I suppose Go to I guess.

I suppose not. Go to I guess not.

I suppose (so). Go to I guess (so).

I suspect Go to I guess.

I suspect not. Go to I guess not.

I suspect (so). Go to I guess (so).

I swan! Rur. What a surprise! □ Well, I swan! I didn't expect to see you here! □ Tom: I hear Charlie just won a thousand dollars! Jane: I swan!

I think not. Go to I guess not.

I think so. Go to I guess (so).

(I was) just wondering. a comment made after hearing a response to a previous question. (See examples for typical patterns.) □ John: Do you always keep your film in the refrigerator? Mary: Yes, why? John: I was just wondering. □ Bob: Did this cost a lot? Sue: I really don't think you need to know that. Bob: Sorry. Just wondering.

I was up all night with a sick friend. an unlikely, but popular excuse for not being where one was supposed to be the night before. □ Bill: Where in the world were you last night? Mary: Well, I was up all night with a sick friend. □ Mr. Franklin said rather sheepishly, "Would you believe I was up with a sick friend?"

I wasn't brought up in the woods to be scared by owls. Rur. I am not foolish or easily frightened. □ His threats don't scare me. I wasn't brought up in the woods to be scared by owls. □ Mary: You'll be sorry you ever crossed me. Jane: I wasn't brought up in the woods to be scared by owls.

[I will] See the entries beginning with I'll.

I wish I'd said that. a comment of praise or admiration for someone's clever remark. □ Mary: The weed of crime bears bitter fruit. Sue: I wish I'd said that. Mary: I wish I'd said it first. □ John: Tom is simply not able to see through the airy persiflage of Mary's prolix declamation. Jane: I wish I'd said that. John: I'm sorry I did.

(I) wonder if a phrase introducing a hypothesis. □ Henry: I wonder if I could have another piece of cake. Sue: Sure. Help yourself. □ Andy: Wonder if it's stopped raining yet. Rachel: Why don't you look out the window? □ Andy: I wonder if I'll pass algebra. Father: That thought is on all our minds.

(I) won't breathe a word (of it). and (I) won't tell a soul. Fig. I will not tell anyone your secret. □ Bill: Don't tell anybody, but Sally is getting married. Mary: I won't breathe a word of it. □ Alice: The Jacksons are going to have to sell their house. Don't spread it around. Mary: I won't tell a soul.

I won't give up without a fight. Fig. I will not give in easily. (Compare this with Don't give up too eas(ily).) □ Sue: Stick by your principles. Fred: Fred: Don't worry, I won't give up without a fight. □ Bob: The boss wants me to turn the Wilson project over to Tom. Sue: How can he do that? Bob: I don't know. All I know is that I won't give up without a fight.

(I) won't tell a soul. Go to (I) won't breathe a word (of it).

[I would] See also the entries beginning with I'd.

(I) would if I could(, but I can't). I simply can't do it. □ Jane: Can't you fix this yourself? John: I would if I could, but I can't. □ Bob: Can you go to the dance? Hardly anyone is going. Alice: Would if I could.

I would like you to meet someone. and I would like to introduce you to someone. an expression used to introduce one person to another. (The word someone can be used as the someone.) □ Mary: I would like you to meet my Uncle Bill. Sally: Hello, Uncle Bill. Nice to meet you. □ Tom: I would like to introduce you to Bill Franklin. John: Hello, Bill. Glad to meet you. Bill: Glad to meet you, John.

(I) wouldn't bet on it. and (I) wouldn't count on it. Fig. I do not believe that something will happen. (Also with that or some specific happening. See examples.) □ John: I'll be a vice president in a year or two. Mary: I wouldn't bet on that. □ John: I'll pick up a turkey on the day before Thanksgiving. Mary: Did you order one ahead of time? John: No. Mary: Then I wouldn't count on it.

(I) wouldn't count on it.

(I) wouldn't count on it. Go to previous.

(I) wouldn't if I were you. Fig. a polite way to advise someone not to do something. □ Mary: Do you think I should trade this car in on a new one? Sally: I wouldn't if I were you. □ Bob: I'm going to plant nothing but corn this year. Sue: I wouldn't if I were you. Bob: Why? Sue: It's better to diversify.

(I) wouldn't know. There is no way that I would know the answer to that question. □ John: When will the flight from Miami get in? Jane: Sorry, I wouldn't know. □ Bob: Are there many fish in the Amazon River? Mary: Gee, I wouldn't know.

I wouldn't touch it with a ten-foot pole. Cliché I would not have anything to do with it under any circumstances. (Said about something you think is untrustworthy, as in the first example, or in response to a remark that seems to invite a nasty reply, as in the second example. The British version is "I would not touch it with a barge-pole.") □ Jill: This advertisement says I can buy land in Florida for a small investment. Do you think I should? Jane: I wouldn't touch it with a ten-foot pole. □ Jane: Can you believe this? Jill said she thinks I'm bossy. You don't think I'm bossy, do you? Mary: I wouldn't touch that with a ten-foot pole.

I wouldn't wish that on a dog. Go to next.

I wouldn't wish that on my worst enemy. and I wouldn't wish that on a dog. Fig. I would not wish that to happen to even the worst or lowliest person. □ A skunk sprayed him! I wouldn't wish that on my worst enemy. □ What a hideous disease! I wouldn't wish that on a dog.

ice over [for water] to freeze and develop a covering of ice. □ I can't wait for the river to ice over so we can do some ice fishing.

ice something down[†] to cool something with ice. □ They are icing the champagne down now. □ They are icing down the champagne now.

ice something up[†] to cause something to become icy. □ I hope the cold doesn't ice the roads up. □ The wind and rain iced up the roads.

ice up to become icy. □ Are the roads icing up?

the icing on the cake Fig. an extra enhancement. □ Oh, wow! A tank full of gas in my new car. That's icing on the cake! □ Your coming home for a few days was the icing on the cake.

(I'd be) happy to (do something). and Be happy to (do something). I would do it with pleasure. (The something is often replaced with a description of an activity.) □ John: I tried to get the book you wanted, but they didn't have it. Shall I try another store? Mary: No, never mind. John: I'd be happy to give it a try. □ Alice: Would you fix this, please? John: Be happy to.

I'd bet money (on it). Fig. I am certain. □ Charlie: Do you think Joe's planning to sell his house? Tom: I'd bet money on it. □ I'd bet money that Jane will get that job.

(I'd) better be going. and (I'd) better be off. an expression announcing the need to depart. □ Bob: Better be going. Got to get home. Bill: Well, if you must, you must.

Bye. □ Fred: It's midnight. I'd better be off. Henry: Okay. Bye, Fred. □ Henry: Better be off. It's starting to snow. John: Yes, it looks bad out.

(I'd) better get moving. Inf. an expression announcing the need to depart. □ Jane: It's nearly dark. Better get moving. Mary: Okay. See you later. □ Bob: I'm off. Good night. Bill: Look at the time! I'd better get moving too.

(I'd) better get on my horse. Inf. an expression indicating that it is time that one departed. □ John: It's getting late. Better get on my horse. Rachel: Have a safe trip. See you tomorrow. □ "I'd better get on my horse. The sun'll be down in an hour," said Sue, sounding like a cowboy.

(I'd) better hit the road. Go to (It's) time to hit the road.

I'd (just) as leave do something I would rather do something. □ Tom: Do you want to go to Joe's party? Jane: We can if you want to, but I'd as leave not. □ I'd just as leave eat dinner at home tonight.

I'd (just) as soon (as) do something I would prefer to do something. □ Tom: Why don't you give Joe a call? Jane: I'd as soon as you did it. □ I'd just as soon we didn't stay here long.

I'd like (for) you to meet someone. an expression used to introduce someone to someone else. (The someone can be a person's name, the name of a relationship, or the word someone.) □ Tom: Sue, I'd like you to meet my brother, Bill. Sue: Hi, Bill. How are you? Bill: Great! How are you? □ Bob: Hello, Fred. I'd like for you to meet someone. This is Bill. Fred: Hello, Bill. I'm glad to meet you. Bill: Hello, Fred. My pleasure.

I'd like (to have) a word with you. and Could I have a word with you? I need to speak to you briefly in private. (The alternate entry is also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Bob: Can I have a word with you? Sally: Sure. I'll be with you in a minute. □ Sally: Tom? Tom: Yes. Sally: I'd like to have a word with you. Tom: Okay. What's it about?

I'd like to speak to someone, please. the standard way of requesting to speak with a specific person on the telephone or in an office. □ Sue (answering the phone): Hello? Bill: Hello, this is Bill Franklin. I'd like to speak to Mary Gray. Sue: I'll see if she's in. □ "I'd like to speak to Tom," said the voice at the other end of the line.

I'd rather face a firing squad than do something Fig. I would prefer to stand and be executed by gunfire than to do something. □ I'd rather face a firing squad than go shopping the day after Christmas.

identify (oneself) with someone or something to classify oneself with someone or something; to relate to someone or something; to see part of oneself represented in someone or something. □ I identify myself with the others. □ I identify with the birds and animals of the forest.

identify someone as someone 1. to determine that someone is a certain person. □ Can you identify Fred as the perpetrator? □ Fred was identified as the thief. 2. to reveal one's identity or name. □ Will you identify the man as Tom? □ The stranger identified himself as a meter reader from the gas company.

identify someone or something by something to recognize someone or something because of something. □ Can you identify your baggage by any special marks? □ You can identify me by the red carnation in my lapel.

identify someone or something with someone or something to associate people and things, in any combination. □ I tend to identify Wally with big cars. □ We usually identify green with grass. □ We tend to identify big cars with greedy people.

idle about to loiter around, doing nothing. □ Please don't idle about. Get busy! □ Andy is idling about today.

An idle brain is the devil's workshop. Prov. People who have nothing worthwhile to think about will usually think of something bad to do. □ We need to figure out something constructive for Tom to do in the afternoons after school. An idle brain is the devil's workshop.

Idle folk have the least leisure. Go to next.

Idle people have the least leisure. and Idle folk have the least leisure. Prov. If you are not energetic and hardworking, you will never have any free time, since you will have to spend all your time finishing your work. □ My grandmother always told me not to dawdle, since idle people have the least leisure.

idle something away† Fig. to waste one's time in idleness; to waste a period of time, such as an afternoon, evening, one's life. □ She idled the afternoon away and then went to a party. □ Don't idle away the afternoon.

Idleness is the root of all evil. Prov. If you have no useful work to do, you will think of harmful things to do in order to amuse yourself. (Compare this with Money is the root of all evil.) □ Child: Why do you make me do so many chores? Father: Idleness is the root of all evil.

idolize someone or something as something to worship or adore someone or something as being something. □ We all idolized Jim as our hero. □ They idolized wealth as a cure for all their ills.

If a thing is worth doing, it's worth doing well. Prov. If you decide to do something, do it as well as you possibly can. □ Jill: Do we have to wash the walls before we paint them? It seems like such a lot of extra work. Fred: Yes, we have to. The paint won't stick properly otherwise. If a thing is worth doing, it's worth doing well. □ Bruce never did sloppy work. He believed that if something is worth doing, it's worth doing well.

If a toady frog had wings, he wouldn't bump his ass. Go to If frogs had wheels, they wouldn't bump their butts.

If anything can go wrong, it will. Prov. Every possible disaster will occur, whether you have prepared for it or not. (This saying is also referred to as "Murphy's Law.") □ Fred: Your car should be fine now, as long as the battery doesn't die. Alan: Then we'd better put a new battery in. If anything can go wrong, it will; so let's make sure it can't go wrong.

if anything should happen and if anything happens Euph. If a disaster or emergency happens. □ I'll give you the phone number of my hotel, so that you can reach me if anything happens. □ If anything should happen, I want you to look after my children.

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. Prov. You have to keep trying until you get what you want. □ Jill: I spent all morning trying to fix the computer, and it still won't work. Jane: If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. □ You'll learn that dance step eventually. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

If frogs had wheels, they wouldn't bump their butts. and If a toady frog had wings, he wouldn't bump his ass. Rur. It is useless to wish for impossible things. (Use caution with ass.) □ Tom: If I had two hundred thousand dollars, I could buy that farm. Jane: Yeah, and if frogs had wheels, they wouldn't bump their butts. □ Charlie: If I were rich and famous, I'd make people listen to me. Bill: If a toady frog had wings, he wouldn't bump his ass.

If God did not exist, it would be necessary to invent Him. Prov. People need a deity to worship. (This is an English translation of a quote from Voltaire. It is often parodied, using a person's name instead of God and implying that the person is somehow necessary.) □ The atheist tried to convince Jerry that God does not exist, and that people should not waste their time worshiping Him. "But you can't stop people from worshiping God," Jerry replied. "If God did not exist, it would be necessary to invent Him." □ The unscrupulous mayor was such a convenient scapegoat for the city's problems that if she had not existed, it would have been necessary to invent her.

if I were you an expression introducing a piece of advice. □ John: If I were you, I'd get rid of that old car. Alice: Gee, I was just getting to like it. □ Henry: I'd keep my thoughts to myself, if I were you. Bob: I guess I should be careful about what I say.

If ifs and ands were pots and pans (there'd be no work for tinkers' hands). Prov. Wishing for things is useless. (Often said in reply to someone who says something beginning with "If only. . .") □ Daughter: If only we didn't have to move out of town, I'd be the happiest girl in the world. Grandmother: If ifs and ands were pots and pans, there'd be no work for tinkers' hands.

If it ain't chickens, it's feathers. Rur. There are always problems.; That is life. □ Now that I'm finally done with school, I've got to worry about getting a job. If it ain't chickens, it's feathers. □ He's got plenty of money now, but he's in such bad health he can't enjoy it. If it ain't chickens, it's feathers.

If it was a snake it woulda bit you. Rur. It was very close to you. □ Jane: Where's the phone book? Tom: Right there! If it was a snake it woulda bit you. □ Bill: I can't find my other shoe. I've looked all over the house. Mary: It's right behind you. If it was a snake it would have bit you.

if I've told you once, I've told you a thousand times Fig. an expression that introduces a scolding, usually to a child. □ Mother: If I've told you once, I've told you a thousand times, don't leave your clothes in a pile on the floor! Bill: Sorry. □ "If I've told you once, I've told you a thousand times, keep out of my study!" yelled Bob.

if looks could kill a catchphrase said when someone makes a frown at someone or when someone casts a dirty look. □ Did you see the way she looked at me? If looks could kill.... □ If looks could kill.... What a nasty glare she gave me.

if my memory serves me correctly Fig. if I have remembered it correctly... □ If my memory serves me correctly, you are the cousin of my closest friend.

if not if that is not [the case]; if that is not so. □ If not cleaned, the clock will stop running. □ He should be here at noon. If not, we will eat without him.

if one knows what's good for one Fig. one had better do what is expected of one. □ You'd better be on time if you know what's good for you. □ If you know what's good for you, you'll call and apologize.

if one's a day Fig. a phrase attached to an expression of someone's age. □ She's fifty if she's a day! □ I'm sure he's forty-five if he's a day.

if push comes to shove Go to when push comes to shove.

if so if that is [the case]; if that is so. □ She might be late. If so, we will eat without her. □ She is supposed to be all right. If so, we have nothing to worry about.

If that don't beat a pig a-pecking! Rur. That's amazing! □ Tom: A Republican won the Senate seat! Jane: If that don't beat a pig a-pecking! □ Mary: Jim lost twenty pounds in one month. Charlie: If that don't beat a pig a-pecking!

If that don't beat all! and That beats everything!; Don't that (just) beat all! Rur. That surpasses everything! That is amazing! That takes the cake! (The grammar error, that don't is built into this catchphrase.) □ Tom: The mayor is kicking the baseball team out of the city. Bill: If that don't beat all! □ John: Now, here's a funny thing. South America used to be attached to Africa. Fred: That beats everything! John: Yeah.

if the going gets tough Go to when the going gets tough.

If the mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet must go to the mountain. Prov. If things do not change the way you want them to, you must adjust to the way they are. (Mohammed is often used instead of Mahomet. Also the mountain has come to Mahomet, something or someone that you would not expect to travel has arrived. There are many variations of this proverb. See the examples.) □ The president won't see me so I will have to go to his office. If the mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet must go to the mountain. □ If Caroline can't leave the hospital on her birthday, we'll have to take her birthday party to the hospital. If the mountain won't come to Mahomet, Mahomet will have to go to the mountain. □ It's true I don't usually leave my home, but if you can't come to see me, I'll have to come see you. The mountain will come to Mohammed.

If the shoe fits, wear it. Prov. An unflattering remark applies to you, so you should accept it. (Slightly rude.) □ Fred: Hey, Jill, how's your love life? Jill: I don't like busybodies, Fred. Fred: Are you calling me a busybody? Jane: If the shoe fits, wear it. □ Ellen: The professor told me I don't write well! Bill: If the shoe fits, Ellen.

if the truth were known Prov. if people knew how something really was, instead of how it appears to be. □ If the truth were known, people wouldn't shop at that store. Its owners aren't as honest as they seem. □ Sam: You're always polite to Fred, but you don't really like him, do you? Alan: Well, no, if the truth were known.

if (the) worst comes to (the) worst Prov. in the worst possible circumstances; if the worst possible thing should happen. □ We should be able to catch the four-thirty train, but if the worst comes to the worst, we could get a taxi and still get into town on time. □ Of course, I hope that your wife's health recovers, but if worst comes to worst, I want you to know that we'd be happy to have you stay with us.

If there's anything you need, don't hesitate to ask. a polite phrase offering help in finding something or by providing something. (Often said by a host or by someone helping someone settle into something. See also If you don't see what you want, please ask (for it).) □ Mary: This looks very nice. I'll be quite comfortable here. Jane: If there's anything you need, don't hesitate to ask. □ "If there is anything you need, don't hesitate to ask," said the room clerk.

If two ride on a horse, one must ride behind. Prov. When two people do something together, one of them will be the leader and the other will have to be subordinate. □ Jane: How come every time we get together, we always do what you want to do, and never do what I want to do? Ellen: Well, dear, if two ride on a horse, one must ride behind.

If wishes were horses, then beggars would ride. Prov. People make a lot of wishes, but wishing is useless. □ Jill: If I were Queen of the World, I would make sure that everyone had enough to eat. Jane: And if wishes were horses, then beggars would ride. □ Alan: I sure wish I had one of those expensive cameras. Jane: If wishes were horses, then beggars would ride.

If you can't be good, be careful. Prov. If you are going to do immoral things, make sure they are not dangerous.; If you are going to do something immoral, make sure to keep it secret. (Sometimes used as a flippant way of saying good-bye.) □ Be a good girl on your vacation trip. Or if you can't be good, be careful. □ Ernest likes to close his letters with, "If you can't be good, be careful."

If you can't beat them, join them. and If you can't lick 'em, join 'em. Prov. If you have to give up fighting some group because you can't win, band together with them. (The version with lick is informal.) □ Jill: I just got a kitten. Jane: I can't believe it! You used to hate people who owned cats. Jill: If you can't beat them, join them. □ Alan: I hear you're a Republican now. Fred: Yeah, I figured, if you can't lick 'em, join 'em.

If you can't lick 'em, join 'em. Go to previous.

If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. Prov. If the pressures of some situation are too much for you, you should leave that situation. (Somewhat insulting; implies that the person addressed cannot tolerate pressure.) □ Alan: I didn't think being a stockbroker could be so stressful. Fred: If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. □ Jill: This exercise class is too tough; the teacher should let us slow down. Jane: If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen.

If you don't like it, (you can) lump it. Prov. Things cannot be changed to suit your preferences. □ We're having fish for dinner tonight. And if you don't like it, you can lump it. □ We're going to go visit Aunt Sally this weekend. If you don't like it, lump it.

If you don't make mistakes, you don't make anything. Prov. If you try to do something, you will likely make mistakes.; The only way to make no mistakes is to avoid trying to do anything. (Can be used to console someone who has made a mistake.) □ Alan: I'm sorry there's no dessert. I tried to make a cake, but I messed it up. Jane: That's OK, dear; if you don't make mistakes, you don't make anything. □ It's a shame that you ruined the sweater you were making, but if you don't make mistakes, you don't make anything.

If you don't mind! 1. an expression that rebukes someone for some minor social violation. □ When Bill accidentally sat on Mary's purse, which she had placed in the seat next to her, she said, somewhat angrily, "If you don't mind!" □ Bill (pushing his way in front of Mary in the checkout line): Excuse me. Mary: If you don't mind! I was here first! Bill: I'm in a hurry. Mary: So am I! 2. a polite way of introducing a request. □ Bill: If you don't mind, could you move a little to the left? Sally: No problem. (moving) Is that all right? Bill: Yeah. Great! Thanks! □ Jane: If you don't mind, could I have your broccoli? John: Help yourself. 3. a vague phrase answering yes to a question that asks whether one should do something. □ Tom: Do you want me to take these dirty dishes away? Mary: If you don't mind. □ Bill: Shall I close the door? Sally: If you don't mind.

If you don't see what you want, please ask (for it). and If you don't see what you want, just ask (for it). a polite phrase intended to help people get what they want. (See also If there's anything you need, don't hesitate to ask.) □ Clerk: May I help you? Sue: I'm just looking. Clerk: If you don't see what you want, please ask. □ Clerk: I hope you enjoy your stay at our resort. If you don't see what you want, just ask for it. Sally: Great! Thanks.

if you get my drift Fig. if you understand what I am saying or implying. (Akin to get someone's drift.) □ I've heard enough talk and seen enough inaction—if you get my drift.

if you know what's good for you Fig. if you know what will be to your benefit; if you know what will keep you out of trouble. □ Mary: I see that Jane has put a big dent in her car. Sue: You'll keep quiet about that if you know what's good for you. □ Sally: My teacher told me I had better improve my spelling. Bill: If you know what's good for you, you'd better do it too.

if you lie down with dogs, you will get up with fleas. Prov. If you associate with bad people, you will acquire their faults. □ Granddaughter: It's not fair. I'm starting to get a bad reputation just because I'm friends with Suzy and she has a bad reputation. Grandmother: It's only natural. People think that if you lie down with dogs, you will get up with fleas.

if you must All right, if you have to. □ Sally: It's late. I have to move along. Mary: If you must. Good-bye. See you tomorrow. □ Alice: I'm taking these things with me. Jane: If you must, all right. They can stay here, though.

if you play with fire, you get burned. Prov. If you do something dangerous, you will get hurt. □ Joe said, "I have no sympathy for race-car drivers who get injured. They should know that if you play with fire, you get burned." □ My mother always told us that experimenting with hard drugs was playing with fire.

if you please and if you would(, please) 1. a polite phrase indicating assent to a suggestion. □ Bill: Shall I unload the car? Jane: If you please. □ Sue: Do you want me to take you to the station? Bob: If you would, please. 2. a polite phrase introducing or following a request. □ John: If you please, the driveway needs sweeping. Jane: Here's the broom. Have at it. □ Jane: Take these down to the basement, if you would, please. John: Can't think of anything I'd rather do, sweetie.

If you run after two hares, you will catch neither. Prov. You cannot do two things successfully at the same time. □ Vanessa: If I want to pursue my acting career, I'll have to take more days off to go to auditions. But I want to get ahead in the office, too. Jane: If you run after two hares, you will catch neither.

If you want a thing done well, do it yourself. Prov. You cannot rely on other people to do things properly for you. (Sometimes right is used instead of well.) □ I asked my son to chop the vegetables for me, but he's cut them into chunks too small to use. I should have known: if you want a thing done well, do it yourself. □ Laura wouldn't trust professional auto mechanics, and so did all her own car repair. "If you want something done right, do it yourself," she said.

If you want peace, (you must) prepare for war. Prov. If a country is well armed, its opponents will be less likely to attack it. □ Wilbur was always arguing with those of his friends who believed in disarmament. "Getting rid of our weapons won't promote peace," he would say. "If you want peace, you must prepare for war."

If you would be well served, serve yourself. Prov. You should do things for yourself, since you cannot trust other people to do them exactly the way you want. □ I would never hire a maid, because a maid wouldn't clean things the way I want them cleaned. Like they say: if you would be well served, serve yourself.

if you would(, please) Go to if you please.

if you'll pardon the expression Fig. excuse the expression I am about to say or just said. □ This thing is—if you'll pardon the expression—loused up. □ I'm really jacked, if you'll pardon the expression.

If you're born to be hanged, then you'll never be drowned. Prov. If you escape one disaster, it must be because you are destined for a different kind of disaster. (Sometimes used to warn someone who has escaped drowning against gloating over good luck.) □ When their ship was trapped in a terrible storm, Ellen told her husband that she feared they would die. "Don't worry," he replied with a yawn, "if you're born to be hanged, then you'll never be drowned."

if you've a mind to do something Rur. if you really want to do something. □ If you've a mind to run for class president, you'd best start making campaign posters. □ You can do just about anything if you've a mind to.

Ignorance is bliss. Prov. Not knowing is better than knowing and worrying. □ A: I never knew that the kid who mows our lawn has been in trouble with the police. B: Ignorance is bliss!

Ignorance (of the law) is no excuse (for breaking it). Prov. Even if you do not know that something is against the law, you can still be punished for doing it. (An ancient legal principle.) □ Police officer: I'm giving you a speeding ticket. Motorist: But I didn't know I was exceeding the speed limit! Police officer: Ignorance of the law is no excuse for breaking it. □ Terry protested that he didn't know it was illegal to break the windows of an abandoned building, but the judge informed him that ignorance of the law was no excuse.

ill at ease uneasy; anxious. □ I feel ill at ease about the interview. □ You look ill at ease. Please relax.

I'll be a monkey's uncle! Fig. I am amazed! □ A: I just won $500,000 in the lottery! B: Well, I'll be a monkey's uncle!

(I'll) be right there. I'm coming. □ Bill: Tom! Come here. Tom: Be right there. □ Mother: Can you come down here a minute? Child: I'll be right there, Mom.

(I'll) be right with you. Please be patient, I will attend to you soon. (Often said by someone attending a sales counter or by an office receptionist.) □ Mary: Oh, Miss? Clerk: I'll be right with you. □ Bob: Sally, can you come here for a minute? Sally: Be right with you.

(I'll) be seeing you. Good-bye, I will see you sometime in the (near) future. □ Bob: Bye. Be seeing you. Sally: Yeah. See you later. □ John: Have a good time on your vacation. I'll be seeing you. Sally: See you next week. Bye.

(I'll) bet 1. Inf. I'm pretty sure that something is so or that something will happen. □ Bob: You're late. I bet you miss your plane. Rachel: No, I won't. □ Sue: I'll bet it rains today. Alice: No way! There's not a cloud in the sky. 2. Inf. I agree. (Often sarcastic.) □ Tom: They're probably going to raise taxes again next year. Henry: I bet. □ Fred: If we do that again, we'll really be in trouble. Andrew: I'll bet.

I'll bite. Inf. Okay, I will answer your question.; Okay, I will listen to your joke or play your little guessing game. □ Bob: Guess what is in this box? Bill: I'll bite. Bob: A new toaster! □ John: Did you hear the joke about the used car salesman? Jane: No, I'll bite.

I'll call back later. a standard phrase indicating that a telephone caller will call again at a later time. □ Sally: Is Bill there? Mary (speaking into the telephone): Sorry, he's not here right now. Sally: I'll call back later. □ John (speaking into the telephone): Hello. Is Fred there? Jane: No. Can I take a message? John: No, thanks. I'll call back later.

(I'll) catch you later. Inf. I will talk to you later. □ Mary: Got to fly. See you around. Sally: Bye. Catch you later. □ John: I have to go to class now. Bill: Okay, catch you later.

I'll drink to that! Inf. I agree with that! (Originally used as a reply to a proposed toast.) □ Great idea! I'll drink to that. □ That's a fine suggestion. I'll drink to that.

I'll eat my hat. Fig. I will be very surprised. (Used to express strong disbelief in something.) □ If Joe really joins the Army, I'll eat my hat. □ If this car gives you any trouble, I'll eat my hat.

I'll get back to you (on that). and Let me get back to you (on that). I will report back later with my decision. (More likely said by a boss to an employee than vice versa.) □ Bob: I have a question about the Wilson project. Mary: I have to go to a meeting now. I'll get back to you on that. Bob: It's sort of urgent. Mary: It can wait. □ Sue: Shall I close the Wilson account? Jane: Let me get back to you on that.

I'll get right on it. I will begin work on that immediately. □ Bob: Please do this report immediately. Fred: I'll get right on it. □ Jane: Please call Tom and ask him to rethink this proposal. John: I'll get right on it.

I'll have the same. and The same for me. I would like the same thing that the last person chose. □ Waitress: What would you like? Tom: Hamburger, fries, and coffee. Jane: I'll have the same. □ John: For dessert, I'll have strawberry ice cream. Bill: I'll have the same.

I'll have to beg off. Fig. a polite expression used to turn down an informal invitation. □ Andrew: Thank you for inviting me, but I'll have to beg off. I have a conflict. Henry: I'm sorry to hear that. Maybe some other time. □ Bill: Do you think you can come to the party? Bob: I'll have to beg off. I have another engagement. Bill: Maybe some other time.

I'll (have to) let you go. Fig. It is time to end this phone conversation. □ Well, I'll let you go. It's getting late. □ I have to go to work early tomorrow, so I'll let you go.

I'll look you up when I'm in town. Fig. I will try to visit you or contact you the next time I am in town. □ Bill: I hope to see you again sometime. Mary: I'll look you up when I'm in town. □ Andrew: Good-bye, Fred. It's been nice talking to you. I'll look you up when I'm in town. Fred: See you around, dude.

I'll put a stop to that. I'll see that the just-mentioned undesirable activity is stopped. □ Fred: There are two boys fighting in the hall. Bob: I'll put a stop to that. □ Sue: The sales force is ignoring almost every customer in the older neighborhoods. Mary: I'll put a stop to that!

(I'll) see you in a little while. a phrase indicating that the speaker will see the person spoken to within a few hours at the most. □ John: I'll see you in a little while. Jane: Okay. Bye till later. □ Sally: I have to get dressed for tonight. Fred: I'll pick you up about nine. See you in a little while. Sally: See you.

I'll see you later. and (See you) later. Good-bye until I see you again. □ John: Good-bye, Sally. I'll see you later. Sally: Until later, then. □ Bob: Time to go. Later. Mary: Later.

(I'll) see you next year. a good-bye expression said toward the end of one year. □ Bob: Happy New Year! Sue: You, too! See you next year. □ John: Bye. See you tomorrow. Mary: It's New Year's Eve. See you next year! John: Right! I'll see you next year!

(I'll) see you (real) soon. Good-bye. I will meet you again soon. □ Bill: Bye, Sue. See you. Sue: See you real soon, Bill. □ John: Bye, you two. Sally: See you soon. Jane: See you, John.

(I'll) see you then. I will see you at the time we've just agreed upon. □ John: Can we meet at noon? Bill: Sure. See you then. Bye. John: Bye. □ John: I'll pick you up just after midnight. Sally: See you then.

(I'll) see you tomorrow. I will see you when we meet again tomorrow. (Typically said to someone whose daily schedule is the same as one's own.) □ Bob: Bye, Jane. Jane: Good night, Bob. See you tomorrow. □ Sue: See you tomorrow. Jane: Until tomorrow. Bye.

(I'll) talk to you soon. I will talk to you on the telephone again soon. □ Sally: Bye now. Talk to you soon. John: Bye now. □ Bill: Nice talking to you. Bye. Mary: Talk to you soon. Bye.

I'll thank you to keep your opinions to yourself. Fig. I do not care about your opinion of this matter. □

Jane: This place is sort of drab. John: I'll thank you to keep your opinions to yourself. □ Bill: Your whole family is sort of loud. John: I'll thank you to keep your opinions to yourself.

I'll thank you to mind your own business. Fig. a version of Mind your own business. (Shows a little anger.) □ Tom: How much did this cost? Jane: I'll thank you to mind your own business. □ Bob: Is your house in your name or your brother's? John: I'll thank you to mind your own business.

(I'll) try to catch you later. Go to next.

(I'll) try to catch you some other time. and (I'll) try to catch you later; I'll try to see you later. Fig. We do not have time to talk now, so I'll try to talk to you or meet with you later. (An expression said when it is inconvenient for one or both parties to meet or converse.) □ Bill: I need to get your signature on this contract. Sue: I really don't have a second to spare right now. Bill: Okay, I'll try to catch you some other time. Sue: Later this afternoon would be fine. □ Bill: I'm sorry for the interruptions, Tom. Things are very busy right now. Tom: I'll try to see you later.

ill will hostile feelings or intentions. □ I hope you do not have any ill will toward me because of our argument. □ Dave felt such ill will toward his family that he left his fortune to his best friend.

ill-disposed to doing something not friendly; not favorable; opposed. □ I am ill-disposed to doing hard labor. □ The police chief was ill-disposed to discussing the details of the case to the news reporters.

ill-gotten gains money or other possessions acquired in a dishonest or illegal fashion. □ Bill cheated at cards and is now living on his ill-gotten gains. □ Mary is enjoying her ill-gotten gains. She deceived an old lady into leaving her $5,000 in her will.

illuminate something with something 1. Lit. to light up something with something. □ The lights illuminated the monument with a bright glow. □ The monument was illuminated with mercury vapor lamps. 2. Fig. to clarify or elucidate something with explanation. □ Please try to illuminate this matter with an explanation. □ Could you illuminate your answer with a little more detail? 3. to decorate a manuscript with pictures or designs, as done in medieval monasteries. □ The monks spent all their days illuminating manuscripts with pictures. □ No one has the patience to illuminate books with tiny designs.

illustrate something with something 1. to provide pictorial examples for a book or other document. □ She illustrated her book with clever line drawings. □ We need someone to illustrate this book with drawings. 2. Fig. to use something to show how something works, how something is meant to be, or how to do something. □ Would you please illustrate how to do it with a drawing or two? □ I think I can illustrate what I mean with a little more explanation.

(I'm) afraid not. and 'Fraid not. I believe, regrettably, that the answer is no. (The apostrophe is not always shown.) □ Rachel: Can I expect any help with this problem? Henry: I'm afraid not. □ Andrew: Will you be there when I get there? Bill: Afraid not.

(I'm) afraid so. and 'Fraid so. I believe, regrettably, that the answer is yes. (The apostrophe is not always shown.) □ Alice: Do you have to go? John: Afraid so. □ Rachel: Can I expect some difficulty with Mr. Franklin? Bob: I'm afraid so.

I'm all ears. Go to I'm listening.

I'm awful at names. Go to I'm terrible at names.

I'm busy. Do not bother me now; I cannot attend to your needs now. □ Bob: Can I talk to you? Bill: I'm busy. Bob: It's important. Bill: Sorry, I'm busy! □ Fred: Can you help me with this? Bill: I'm busy. Can it wait a minute? Fred: Sure. No rush.

I'm cool. Inf. I'm fine. □ Bob: How you been? Fred: I'm cool, man. Yourself? Bob: The same. □ Father: How are you, son? Bill: I'm cool, Dad. Father (joking): So should I turn up the heat?

I'm damned if I do and damned if I don't. Fig. There are problems if I do something and problems if I don't do it. □ I can't win. I'm damned if I do and damned if I don't. □ No matter whether I go or stay, I am in trouble. I'm damned if I do and damned if I don't.

(I'm) delighted to have you (here). and (We're) delighted to have you (here). You're welcome here any time.; Glad you could come. (See also (It's) good to have you here.) □ Bill: Thank you for inviting me for dinner, Mr. Franklin. Bill: I'm delighted to have you. □ "We're delighted to see you," said Tom's grandparents. "It's so nice to have you here for a visit."

(I'm) delighted to make your acquaintance. Fig. I am very glad to meet you. □ Tom: My name is Tom. I work in the advertising department. Mary: I'm Mary. I work in accounting. Delighted to make your acquaintance. Tom: Yeah. Good to meet you. □ Fred: Sue, this is Bob. He'll be working with us on the Wilson project. Sue: I'm delighted to make your acquaintance, Bob. Bob: My pleasure.

(I'm) doing okay. 1. Inf. I'm just fine. □ Bob: How you doing? Bill: Doing okay. And you? Bob: Things could be worse. □ Mary: How are things going? Sue: I'm doing fine, thanks. And you? Mary: Doing okay. 2. Inf. I'm doing as well as can be expected.; I'm feeling better. □ Mary: How are you feeling? Sue: I'm doing okay—as well as can be expected. □ Tom: I hope you're feeling better. Sally: I'm doing okay, thanks.

I'm easy (to please). I accept that because I am not particular.; That's okay with me. □ Tom: Hey, man! Do you care if we get a sausage pizza rather than mushroom? Bob: Fine with me. I'm easy. □ Mary: How do you like this music? Bob: It's great, but I'm easy to please.

(I'm) feeling okay. I am doing well.; I am feeling well. □ Alice: How are you feeling? Jane: I'm feeling okay. □ John: How are things going? Fred: Feeling okay.

(I'm) glad to hear it. a phrase expressing pleasure at what the speaker has just said. □ Sally: We have a new car, finally. Mary: I'm glad to hear it. □ Tom: Is your sister feeling better? Bill: Oh, yes, thanks. Tom: Glad to hear it.

(I'm) glad you could come. and (We're) glad you could come. a phrase said by the host or hostess [or both] to a guest. □ Tom: Thank you so much for having me. Sally: We're glad you could come. John: Yes, we are. Bye. □ Bill: Bye. Sally: Bye, Bill. Glad you could come.

(I'm) glad you could drop by.

(I'm) glad you could drop by. and (We're) glad you could drop by.; (I'm) glad you could stop by.; (We're) glad you could stop by. a phrase said by the host or hostess (or both) to a guest who has appeared suddenly or has come for only a short visit. □ Tom: Good-bye. Had a nice time. Mary: Thank you for coming. Tom: Glad you could drop by. □ Tom: Thank you so much for having me. Sally: We're glad you could drop by.

I'm gone. Inf. an expression said just before leaving. (See also I'm out of here.) □ Bob: Well, that's all. I'm gone. Bill: See ya! □ Jane: I'm gone. See you guys. John: See you, Jane. Fred: Bye, Jane.

(I'm) having a wonderful time; wish you were here. Cliché a catchphrase that is thought to be written onto postcards by people who are away on vacation. □ John wrote on all his cards, "Having a wonderful time; wish you were here." And he really meant it too. □ "I'm having a wonderful time; wish you were here," said Tom, speaking on the phone to Mary, suddenly feeling very insincere.

I'm having quite a time. 1. Lit. I am having a very enjoyable time. □ John: Having fun? Jane: Oh, yes. I'm having quite a time. □ Bob: Do you like the seashore? Sally: Yes, I'm having quite a time. 2. Fig. I am having a very difficult time. □ Doctor: Well, what seems to be the problem? Mary: I'm having quite a time. It's my back. Doctor: Let's take a look at it. □ Father: How's school? Bill: Pretty tough. I'm having quite a time. Calculus is killing me.

(I'm) having the time of my life. Fig. I am having the best time ever. □ Bill: Are you having a good time, Mary? Mary: Don't worry about me. I'm having the time of my life. □ Mary: What do you think about this theme park? Bill: Having the time of my life. I don't want to leave.

I'm history. Inf. Good-bye, I am leaving. □ I'm history. See you tomorrow. □ Later. I'm history.

(I'm) just getting by, an expression indicating that one is just surviving financially or otherwise. □ Bob: How you doing, Tom? Tom: Just getting by, Bob. □ "I wish I could get a better job," remarked Tom. "I'm just getting by as it is."

I'm just looking. Go to I'm only looking.

(I'm just) minding my own business. Fig. an answer to a greeting inquiry asking what one is doing. (This answer also can carry the implication "Since I am minding my own business, why aren't you minding your own business?") □ Tom: Hey, man, what are you doing? Bill: Minding my own business. See you around. □ Sue: Hi, Mary. What have you been doing? Mary: I'm just minding my own business and trying to keep out of trouble.

(I'm) (just) plugging along. Inf. I am doing satisfactorily; I am just managing to function. □ Bill: How are things going? Bob: I'm just plugging along. □ Sue: How are you doing, Fred? Fred: Just plugging along, thanks. And you? Sue: About the same.

(I'm) (just) thinking out loud. Fig. I'm saying things that might better remain as private thoughts. (A way of characterizing or introducing one's opinions or thoughts. Also past tense.) □ Sue: What are you saying, anyway? Sounds like you're scolding someone. Bob: Oh, sorry. I was just thinking out loud. □ Bob: Now, this goes over here. Bill:

You want me to move that? Bob: Oh, no. Just thinking out loud.

I'm like you an expression introducing a statement of a similarity that the speaker shares with the person spoken to. □ Mary: And what do you think about this pair? Jane: I'm like you, I like the ones with lower heels. □ "I'm like you," confided Fred. "I think everyone ought to pay the same amount."

I'm listening. and I'm all ears. Inf. You have my attention, so you should talk. □ Bob: Look, old pal. I want to talk to you about something. Tom: I'm listening. □ Bill: I guess I owe you an apology. Jane: I'm all ears.

I'm not finished with you. I still have more to say to you. □ Bill started to turn away when he thought the scolding was finished. "I'm not finished with you," bellowed his father. □ When the angry teacher paused briefly to catch his breath, Bob turned as if to go. "I'm not finished with you," screamed the teacher, "Don't leave here until I say you can!"

I'm not kidding. I am telling the truth.; I am not trying to fool you. □ Mary: Those guys are all suspects in the robbery. Sue: No! They can't be! Mary: I'm not kidding! □ John (gesturing): The fish I caught was this big! Jane: I don't believe it! John: I'm not kidding!

I'm not surprised. and I don't wonder. It is not surprising.; It should not surprise anyone. □ Mary: All this talk about war has my cousin very worried. Sue: No doubt. At his age, I don't wonder. □ John: All of the better-looking ones sold out right away. Jane: I'm not surprised.

I'm off. an expression said by someone who is just leaving. □ Bob: Time to go. I'm off. Mary: Bye. □ Sue: Well, it's been a great party. Good-bye. Got to go. Mary: I'm off too. Bye.

I'm only looking. and I'm just looking. I am not a buyer, I am only examining your merchandise. (A phrase said to a shopkeeper or clerk who asks May I help you?) □ Clerk: May I help you? Mary: No, thanks. I'm only looking. □ Clerk: May I help you? Jane: I'm just looking, thank you.

I'm out of here. and I'm outa here. Inf. I am leaving this minute. □ In three minutes I'm outa here. □ I'm out of here. Bye.

(I'm) pleased to meet you. an expression said when introduced to someone. (See also (I'm) (very) glad to meet you.) □ Tom: I'm Tom Thomas. Bill: Pleased to meet you. I'm Bill Franklin. □ John: Have you met Sally Hill? Bill: I don't believe I've had the pleasure. I'm pleased to meet you, Sally. Sally: My pleasure, Bill.

I'm (really) fed up (with someone or something). Fig. I have had enough of someone or something. Something must be done. □ Tom: This place is really dull. John: Yeah. I'm fed up with it. I'm out of here! □ Sally: Can't you do anything right? Bill: I'm really fed up with your complaining! You're always picking on me!

(I'm) sorry. an expression used to excuse oneself politely or apologize, especially when one has collided with someone, when one has offended someone, or to ask someone to repeat what has been said. □ "I'm sorry," I said to the woman I bumped into. □ I'm sorry, what did you say? I couldn't hear you.

(I'm) sorry to hear that. an expression of consolation or regret. □ John: My cat died last week. Jane: I'm sorry to hear that. □ Bill: I'm afraid I won't be able to continue here as head teller. Bank manager: Sorry to hear that.

(I'm) sorry you asked (that). I regret that you asked about something I wanted to forget. □ Tom: What on earth is this hole in your suit jacket? Bill: I'm sorry you asked. I was feeding a squirrel and it bit through my pocket where the food was. □ Sally: Why is there only canned soup in the cupboard? John: Sorry you asked that. I just haven't been to the grocery store in awhile. Sally: Want some soup?

I'm speechless. Fig. I am so surprised that I cannot think of anything to say. □ Mary: Fred and I eloped last week. Sally: I'm speechless. □ Tom: The mayor just died! Jane: What? I'm speechless!

I'm terrible at names. and I'm awful at names. I can't seem to remember anyone's name. (Said as an apology to someone whose name you have forgotten.) □ I'm terrible at names. Please tell me yours again. □ Haven't we met already? I'm awful at names.

(I'm) (very) glad to meet you. a polite expression said to a person to whom one has just been introduced. (See also (I'm) pleased to meet you.) □ Mary: I'd like you to meet my brother, Tom. Bill: I'm very glad to meet you, Tom. □ Jane: Hi! I'm Jane. Bob: Glad to meet you. I'm Bob.

I'm with you. I agree with you.; I will join with you in doing what you suggest. (With a stress on both I and you.) □ Sally: I think this old bridge is sort of dangerous. Jane: I'm with you. Let's go back another way. □ Bob: This restaurant looks horrible. Bill: I'm with you. Want to go somewhere else?

imagine someone or something as someone or something to think of someone or something as another person or another type of thing. □ I really can't imagine you as a sailor. □ When I imagine John as our new president, I really worry about our future as a company.

Imagine that! Go to Fancy that!

imbue someone with something to indoctrinate someone with something; to build something into someone. □ I tried to imbue my children with a strong sense of justice. □ Her thinking and attitudes had been imbued with childhood fears.

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. Prov. Copying someone is flattering because it shows you want to be like that person. □ Child: Susie's doing everything I do. Make her stop. Mother: Don't be cross with her. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. □ Imitation may be the sincerest form of flattery, but I don't feel flattered when Mary copies my answers to the homework.

immediate occupancy [of an apartment or house] ready to be moved into at this moment. □ This house is for immediate occupancy. You can move in today if you want. □ The apartment is empty, so that means immediate occupancy.

immerse someone or something in something 1. Lit. to submerge someone or something beneath the surface of a liquid; to soak someone or something in a liquid. □ The preacher immersed the baptism candidate in the water. □ We immersed all the dirty plates in the soapy water and left them to soak. □ She immersed herself in the bathwater.

2. Fig. to saturate or steep someone or a group in information or some type of instruction. □ The trainers immersed us in details day after day. □ The teachers will immerse the entire class in nothing but the Spanish language, day after day.

immigrate (in)to some place (from some place) to migrate into a place from some other place. □ Many of them immigrated into Minnesota from northern Europe. □ My family immigrated to Chicago.

immunize someone against something to vaccinate someone against some disease; to do a medical procedure that causes a resistance or immunity to a disease to develop in a person. □ They wanted to immunize all the children against the measles. □ Have you been immunized against polio?

impact (up)on someone or something [for something] to have an effect on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ This plant closing will impact upon the local economy for years to come. □ The day's troubles impacted on Rachel quite seriously.

impale someone or something on something to put someone or something on a pointed object and press down. □ The crowd had impaled an effigy of the dictator on a sharpened stick. □ The waves almost impaled me on a submerged tree branch.

impart something to someone or something 1. to bestow a quality on someone or a group. □ That hat imparts an aura of grandeur to her presence. □ Walnut paneling imparts an expensive seriousness to a law office. 2. to tell something to someone or a group. □ My professor tried to impart her knowledge to us. □ The speaker imparted a great deal of wisdom to the group.

impeach someone for something 1. to charge someone with doing something illegal. □ You can't impeach her for just disagreeing! □ We tried to impeach Gus for failing to attend sessions. 2. to criticize or discredit someone for something. □ The opposition impeached him for his position in no uncertain terms. □ Liz was impeached by the press for her views.

impinge (up)on someone or something to affect or interfere with someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ This will not impinge upon me at all. □ Will this matter impinge on my policies in any way?

implant something in(to) someone or something to embed something into someone or something. □ The surgeon implanted a pacemaker into Fred. □ They implanted the device in Fred's chest.

implicate someone (in something) to suggest that someone is involved in something. □ The mayor was implicated in the bribery scandal. □ Jane's essay implicated her teacher in the cheating scandal.

import something (from something) ((in)to something) to buy and transport something from a foreign place into a country. □ We imported the carpets from the Orient into this country. □ They imported wine into this country from France. □ I imported this from Germany.

an important milestone in someone's life Go to a milestone in someone's life.

impose something (up) on someone to force something on someone. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Don't try to impose your ideas upon me! □ The colonists tried to impose their values on the indigenous peoples.

impose (up) on someone to be a bother to someone; to make a request of something to someone. (Often refers to being an overnight guest or having a meal at someone's house. Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I don't mean to impose upon you, but could you put me up for the night? □ Don't worry, I won't let you impose on me.

impregnate something with something 1. Lit. to saturate something with something; to penetrate something with some fluid. □ They impregnated the boards with a wood preservative. □ The process impregnated the fibers with a bright yellow dye. 2. Fig. to put something negative into something. □ You have impregnated the entire matter with unpleasantness. □ The whole scheme has been impregnated with needless flaws.

impress someone as something to be memorable to someone as a particular type of person. □ She didn't impress me as a particularly wise individual. □ Liz impressed us all as a skilled artisan.

impress someone by something to make someone notice one's good qualities. □ You impress me by your willingness to serve. □ We were all impressed by your candor.

impress someone with someone or something to awe someone with someone or something. □ Are you trying to impress me with your wisdom? □ She impressed him with her friend, who was very tall.

impress something into something to press something into something. □ I impressed the key into the wax, making a perfect copy. □ Andy impressed his thumb into the pie.

impress something (up) on someone to make someone fully aware of something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ You must impress these facts upon everyone you meet. □ She impressed its importance on me.

impress something (up) on something to press something into the surface of something, leaving a mark. □ The ribbing of my socks impressed a pattern upon my calves. □ The heavy vase impressed its outline on the pine tabletop.

imprint something into something Go to next.

imprint something on(to) something 1. to print something onto something. □ We imprinted your name onto your stationery and your business cards. □ Please imprint my initials on this label. 2. and imprint something into something to record something firmly in the memory of someone. □ The severe accident imprinted a sense of fear onto Lucy's mind. □ Imprint the numbers into your brain and never forget them! 3. and imprint something into something to make a permanent record of something in an animal's brain. (As with newly hatched fowl, which imprint the image of the first moving creature they see into their brains.) □ The sight of its mother imprinted itself on the little gosling's brain. □ Nature imprints this information into the bird's memory.

imprint something with something to print something with a message. □ Amy imprinted each bookmark with her name. □ Each bookmark was imprinted with her name.

imprison someone in something to lock someone up in something. □ The authorities imprisoned him in a separate cell. □ Bob imprisoned Timmy in the closet for an hour.

improve (up) on something to make something better. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Do you really think you can improve upon this song? □ No one can improve on my favorite melody.

improvise on something [for a musician] to create a new piece of music on an existing musical theme. □ For an encore, the organist improvised on "Mary Had a Little Lamb." □ She chose to improvise on an old folk theme.

impute something to someone or something to ascribe something to someone or something; to attribute something to someone or something. □ I didn't mean to impute a bad intention to your company. □ The lawyer imputed perjury to the witness.

in a bad mood sad; depressed; grouchy; with low spirits. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; put someone ~.) □ He's in a bad mood. He may yell at you. □ Please try to cheer me up. I'm in a bad mood.

in a bad way Go to in bad shape.

in a big way very much; intensely. □ I'm really interested in her in a big way. □ He plays to win—in a big way.

in a bind and in a jam Fig. in a tight or difficult situation; stuck on a problem. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; find oneself ~.) □ I'm in a bind. I owe a lot of money. □ Whenever I get into a jam, I ask my supervisor for help. □ When things get busy around here, we get in a bind. We could use another helper.

in a (blue) funk sad; depressed. □ I've been in a blue funk all week. □ Don't get in a funk about your job. Things'll get better.

in a body Fig. as a group of people; as a group; in a group. (*Typically: arrive some place ~; go ~; leave ~; reach some place ~; travel ~.) □ The tour members always traveled in a body.

in a cold sweat in a state of fear. □ He stood there in a cold sweat, waiting for something bad to happen. □ I was in a cold sweat while they counted the ballots.

in a (constant) state of flux Go to in flux.

in a coon's age and in a month of Sundays Rur. in a very long time. (The coon is a raccoon.) □ How are you? I haven't seen you in a coon's age. □ I haven't had a piece of apple pie this good in a coon's age.

in a dead heat Fig. [finishing a race] at exactly the same time; tied. □ The two horses finished the race in a dead heat. □ They ended the contest in a dead heat.

in a delicate condition Euph. pregnant. (Old fashioned.) □ Are you sure you're up for this hike? I know you're in a delicate condition. □ She shouldn't be lifting those boxes. She's in a delicate condition.

in a dither confused; nervous; bothered. □ Mary is sort of in a dither lately. □ Don't get yourself in a dither.

in a family way and in the family way Fig. pregnant. (*Typically: be ~; get someone ~.) □ I've heard that Mrs. Smith is in a family way. □ Our dog is in the family way.

in a fix Fig. in a bad situation. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ I really got myself into a fix. I owe a lot of money on my taxes. □ John is in a fix because he lost his wallet. □ John got into a fix.

in a flash Fig. quickly; immediately. □ I'll be there in a flash. □ It happened in a flash. Suddenly my wallet was gone.

in a fog and in a haze Fig. dazed; not paying attention to what is going on around one; not alert. □ Jane always seems to be in a fog. □ When I get up, I'm in a fog for an hour. □ After surgery, I was in a haze until the anesthetic wore off.

in a heartbeat Fig. almost immediately. □ If I had the money, I would go back to college in a heartbeat. □ Just tell me that you need me and I'll come there in a heartbeat.

in a huff Fig. in an angry or offended manner. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ He heard what we had to say, then left in a huff. □ She came in a huff and ordered us to bring her something to eat.

in a jam Go to in a bind.

in a jiffy Fig. very fast; very soon. □ Just wait a minute. I'll be there in a jiffy. □ I'll be finished in a jiffy.

in a lather Fig. flustered; excited and agitated. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ Now, calm down. Don't be in a lather. □ I always get in a lather when I'm late. □ I get into a lather easily.

in a little bit Fig. in a small amount of time. □ I will be there in a little bit. Please wait. □ In a little bit, we can go outside and play.

in a mad rush Fig. in a hurry. □ I ran around all day today in a mad rush, looking for a present for Bill. □ Why are you always in a mad rush?

in a month of Sundays Go to in a coon's age.

in a nutshell Fig. [of news or information] in a (figurative) capsule; in summary. □ This cable channel provides the latest news in a nutshell. □ In a nutshell, what happened at work today?

In a pig's ass! Go to In a pig's eye!

In a pig's ear! Go to next.

In a pig's eye! and In a pig's ass!; In a pig's ear! Rur. Nonsense! (Use caution with ass.) □ Tom: I wasn't going to steal it. I was just looking at it. Jane: In a pig's eye! I saw you put it in your pocket! □ Mary: Bill says he's sorry and he'll never yell at me again if I take him back. Jane: In a pig's ass! He's made those promises a hundred times before. □ Tom: I thought you said I could keep this. Charlie: In a pig's ear! I said you could borrow it.

in a pinch as a substitute. □ A piece of clothing can be used as a bandage in a pinch. □ In a pinch, you can use folded paper to prop up the table leg so the table won't rock.

in a pique Fig. having a feeling of resentment; feeling that one's pride has been hurt. □ In a real pique, Anne insulted all of her friends. □ John's found himself in a pique over Bob's harsh criticism.

in a (pretty) pickle Fig. in a mess; in trouble. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ John has gotten himself into a pickle. He has two dates for the party. □ Now we are in a pretty pickle. We are out of gas.

in a quandary uncertain about what to do; perplexed. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ Mary was in a quandary about what college to go to. □ I couldn't decide what to do. I was in such a quandary.

in a rut Fig. in a type of boring habitual behavior. (As when the wheels of a buggy travel in the ruts worn into the ground by other buggies making it easiest to go exactly the way all the other buggies have gone before. *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ My life has gotten into a rut. □ I try not to get into a rut.

in a sense in a way; in one way of looking at it. □ In a sense, cars make life better. □ But, in a sense, they also make life worse.

in (a) shambles Fig. in a messy state; destroyed. □ After the earthquake, the town lay in shambles. □ The TV set was in a shambles after John tried to fix it.

in (a) single file Fig. lined up, one behind the other; in a line, one person or one thing wide. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; march ~; walk ~.) □ Have you ever seen ducks walking in single file? □ Please get into single file. □ Please march in single file.

in a snit Fig. in a fit of anger or irritation. □ Don't get in a snit. It was an accident. □ Mary is in a snit because they didn't ask her to come to the shindig.

in a split second Go to a split second.

in a stage whisper Fig. in a loud whisper that everyone can hear. □ John said in a stage whisper, "This play is boring." □ "When do we eat?" asked Billy in a stage whisper.

in a stew (about someone or something) Fig. upset or bothered about someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ I'm in such a stew about my dog. She ran away last night. □ Now, now. Don't get in a stew. She'll be back when she gets hungry.

in a stupor in a dazed condition; in a condition in which one cannot concentrate or think. □ The drunk driver walked away from the car accident in a stupor. □ In the morning, Mary remains in a stupor until she drinks coffee.

in a (tight) spot Fig. caught in a problem; in a jam. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~. See also in a bind and the examples.) □ Look, John, I'm in a tight spot. Can you lend me twenty dollars? □ I'm in a spot too. I need $300.

in a tizzy Fig. in an excited and confused condition. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ John is in a tizzy because we're an hour late. □ Mary was in a tizzy when she couldn't find her keys.

in a twit upset; frantic. □ She's all in a twit because she lost her keys. □ Pete was in a twit and was quite rude to us.

in a twitter in a giddy state; silly. □ Don't get yourself in a twitter. □ We were all in a twitter over the upcoming event.

in a vicious circle Fig. in a situation in which the solution of one problem leads to a second problem, and the solution of the second problem brings back the first problem, etc. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ Life is so strange. I seem to be in a vicious circle most of the time. □ I put lemon in my tea to make it sour, then sugar to make it sweet. I'm in a vicious circle. □ Don't let your life get into a vicious circle.

in a word Fig. said simply; concisely said. □ Mrs. Smith is—in a word—haughty. □ In a word, the play flopped.

in a world of one's own Fig. aloof; detached; self-centered. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; live ~.) □ John lives in a world of his own. He has very few friends. □ Mary walks around in a world of her own, but she's very intelligent.

in abeyance in reserve. □ Until the judge determined that the evidence could be used in the trial, it was held in abeyance. □ I kept my opinion in abeyance.

in accord (with someone or something) (about someone or something) agreeing with someone or something. □ I am in complete accord with you about the policy changes. □ We are in accord about the proposal.

in accordance with something in agreement with something; in conformity with something. □ In accordance with our discussion, I have prepared a contract. □ I did this in accordance with your request.

in addition (to something) additionally; further; moreover; as an additional thing or person. □ In addition, I would like for you to sweep the kitchen floor. □ I put the books away, and in addition to that, I cleaned up my desk.

in advance [of something given, paid, or provided] before it is due. □ The bill isn't due for a month, but I paid it in advance. □ I want my pay in advance.

in agreement (with someone or something) in conformity with someone or something; agreeing with someone or something. □ We are in total agreement. □ I am in agreement with your proposal.

in (all) good conscience Fig. having good motives; displaying motives that will not result in a guilty conscience. □ In all good conscience, I could not recommend that you buy this car. □ In good conscience, she could not accept the reward. She had only been acting as a good citizen should.

in all my born days Rur. in my entire life. □ I've never seen such fireworks in all my born days. □ That's the best party I was ever at in all my born days.

in all probability very likely; almost certainly. □ He'll be here on time in all probability. □ In all probability, they'll finish the work today.

in an age of years Rur. in a long time. □ How have you been? I haven't talked to you in an age of years. □ Jane hasn't ridden a horse in an age of years.

in an interesting condition Euph. pregnant. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Young Mrs. Lutin is in an interesting condition. □ The bride appeared to be in an interesting condition.

in an ivory tower Fig. in a place, such as a university, where one can be aloof from the realities of living. (*Typically: be ~; dwell ~; live ~; work ~.) □ If you didn't spend so much time in your ivory tower, you'd know what people really think! □ Many professors are said to live in ivory towers. They don't know what the real world is like.

in and of itself considering it alone. □ The idea in and of itself is not bad, but the side issues introduce many difficulties. □ Her action, in and of itself, caused us no problem.

in any case and in any event no matter what happens. □ I intend to be home by supper time, but in any case by eight o'clock. □ In any event, I'll see you this evening.

in any event Go to previous.

in any way, shape, or form Fig. in any manner. □ I refuse to tell a lie in any way, shape, or form!

in apple-pie order Fig. in very good order; very well organized. (*Typically: be ~; get something ~; put something ~.) □ Please put everything in apple-pie order before you leave. □ I always put my desk in apple-pie order every evening. □ I've put my entire life into apple-pie order.

in arrears [of debts; of an account] overdue. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Jane's student-loan payments are in arrears. □ The accounts of the bankrupt company were in arrears.

in (at) one ear and out (of) the other Prov. heard but not remembered. (Used to describe something that someone does not listen to.) □ Ellen: Did you tell Junior to be careful with the car when he drives it? Fred: Yes, but I think it went in one ear and out the other. □ The teacher felt that everything she told her students was in one ear and out the other.

in at the kill and in on the kill 1. Lit. present and participating in the killing of prey. □ The baby cheetah wanted to be in on the kill. 2. Fig. involved at the final moment of something in order to share in the spoils. □ At the end of the battle, everyone wanted to be in at the kill. □ The press packed the room, wanting to be in on the kill of the governor's resignation.

in awe (of someone or something) fearful and respectful of someone or something. □ Everyone in the country was in awe of the king and queen. □ I love my new car. In fact, I'm in awe of it.

in bad faith Fig. without sincerity; with bad or dishonest intent; with duplicity. □ It appears that you acted in bad faith and didn't live up to the terms of our agreement. □ If you do things in bad faith, you'll get a bad reputation.

in bad shape and in a bad way 1. Lit. injured or debilitated in any manner. □ Fred had a little accident, and he's in bad shape. □ Tom needs exercise. He's in bad shape. 2. pregnant. □ Jill's in bad shape again, I hear. □ Yup, she's in bad shape all right—about three months in bad shape. 3. Fig. Inf. intoxicated. □ Two glasses of that stuff and I'm in really bad shape. □ Fred is in bad shape. I think he's going to toss his cookies.

in bad sorts in a bad humor. □ Bill is in bad sorts today. He's very grouchy. □ I try to be extra nice to people when I'm in bad sorts.

in bad taste and in poor taste rude; vulgar; obscene. □ Mrs. Franklin felt that your joke was in bad taste. □ We found the play to be in poor taste, so we walked out in the middle of the second act.

in bad (with someone) in trouble with someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I tried not to get in bad with Wally. □ We got in bad with each other from the start.

in behalf of someone and in someone's behalf; on behalf of someone; on someone's behalf; in someone's name [doing something] as someone's agent; [doing something] in place of someone; for the benefit of someone. □ I'm writing in behalf of Mr. Smith, who has applied for a job with your company. I'm calling on behalf of my client, who wishes to complain about your actions. I'm calling in her behalf. I'm acting on your behalf.

in between located in the middle of two things, states, or possibilities. The bath water is not hot or cold. It's in between. A sandwich consists of two slices of bread with some other food in between.

in black and white Fig. [of an agreement, contract, or statement] official, in writing or printing. (*Typically: be ~; get something ~.) I have it in black and white that I'm entitled to three weeks of vacation each year.

in bloom Go to next.

in blossom and in bloom blooming; covered with blossoms. All the apple trees are in blossom now. When are the fruit trees in bloom in this part of the country?

in brief briefly; concisely. The whole story, in brief, is that Bob failed algebra because he did not study. Please tell me in brief why you want this job.

in broad daylight in the open light of day; clearly visible. The crime was committed in broad daylight. Bill stood there in broad daylight, but we never saw him.

in bulk in large quantities or amounts, rather than smaller, more convenient quantities or amounts. Jane always bought office supplies in bulk to save money. Dave purchased cereal in bulk because his family used so much of it.

in business operating; equipped or ready to operate. We're in business now, and things are running smoothly. Now it works. Now we're in business.

in cahoots (with someone) Rur. in conspiracy with someone; in league with someone. The mayor is in cahoots with the construction company that got the contract for the new building. Those two have been in cahoots before.

in care of someone [to be delivered to someone] through someone or by way of someone. (Indicates that mail is to be delivered to a person at some other person's address.) Bill Jones is living at his father's house. Address the letter to Bill in care of Mr. John Jones. Bill said, "Please send me my mail in care of my father at his address."

in case of something if a problem occurs; if something happens; in the event that something happens. What do we do in case of fire? In case of an accident, call the police.

in case (something happens) in the event that something takes place. She carries an umbrella in case it rains. I have some aspirin in my office in case I get a headache. He keeps a fire extinguisher in his car, just in case.

in character Fig. typical of someone's behavior. For Tom to shout that way wasn't at all in character. He's usually quite pleasant. It was quite in character for Sally to walk away angry.

in charge (of someone or something) in control of someone or something; having the responsibility for someone or something. Who is in charge of this office? Do you like being in charge?

in clover Fig. having good fortune; in a very good situation, especially financially. If I get this contract, I'll be in clover for the rest of my life. I have very little money saved, so when I retire I won't exactly be in clover.

in cold blood Fig. without feeling; with cruel intent. (Frequently said of a crime, especially murder.) The killer walked up and shot the woman in cold blood. How insulting! For a person to say something like that in cold blood is just horrible.

in cold storage dead; in a state of death. (Alludes to the actual storage of certain things, such as fur coats, in cold storerooms.) Tom gets paid for putting his subjects in cold storage. Poor old Jed is in cold storage.

in concert (with someone) Fig. in cooperation with someone; with the aid of someone. Mrs. Smith planned the party in concert with her sister. In concert they planned a lovely event.

in condition and in(to) shape in good health; strong and healthy; fit. Bob exercises frequently, so he's in condition. If I were in shape, I could run faster and farther. I'm really overweight. I have to try to get into shape.

in consequence (of something) as a result of something; because of something. In consequence of the storm, there was no electricity. The wind blew down the wires. In consequence, we had no electricity.

in consideration of something in return for something; as a result of something. In consideration of your many years of service, we are pleased to present you with this gold watch. In consideration of your efforts, here is a check for $3,000.

in contact (with someone or something) communicating with someone or a group; to share information with someone or a group. I have been in contact with our supplier, who will deliver the part next week. I am in contact with the Senate committee now.

in contempt (of court) showing disrespect for a judge or courtroom procedures. The bailiff ejected the lawyer who was held in contempt. The judge found the juror in contempt of court when she screamed at the attorney.

in control of someone or something 1. in charge of someone or something. Who is in control of this place? I am not in control of her. She works for another department. 2. to have someone or something mastered or subdued; to have achieved management of someone or something. You should be in control of your dog at all times. The attendant was instructed to be in control of his patient at all times.

in creation Go to on earth.

in custody (of someone or something) and in someone's or something's custody being kept guarded by legal authorities. The suspect was in the sheriff's custody awaiting a trial. The prisoner is in the custody of the state. The police have two suspects in custody.

in debt having debts; having much debt; owing money. Mary is deeply in debt. I am in debt to the bank for my car loan.

in deep 1. Fig. deeply involved (with someone or something). Mary and Sam are in deep. Wilbur got in deep with the mob. 2. Fig. deeply in debt. (Often with with or to.) Willie is in deep with his bookie. I'm in deep to the department store.

in deep water Fig. in a dangerous or vulnerable situation; in a serious situation, especially one that is too difficult or is beyond the level of one's abilities; in trouble. John is having trouble with back taxes. He's in deep water. Bill got in deep water in algebra class. The class is too difficult for him, and he's almost failing.

in defiance (of someone or something) against someone's will or against instructions; in bold resistance to someone or someone's orders. Jane spent the afternoon in the park in defiance of her mother's instructions. She did it in defiance of her mother. She has done a number of things in defiance lately.

in denial in a state of refusing to believe something that is true. Mary was in denial about her illness and refused treatment. Tom doesn't think he's an alcoholic because he's still in denial.

in detail with lots of details; giving all the details. (Often used with an adjective showing the level of detail, such as great, enormous, etc., as in the second example.) I explained the policy to the customer in detail. We planned the entire project in great detail.

in dire straits Fig. in a very serious, bad circumstance. We are nearly broke and need money for medicine. We are in dire straits.

in disguise hidden behind a disguise; looking like something else. Santa Claus was really the little child's father in disguise. What I thought was terrible turned out to be a blessing in disguise!

in drag wearing the clothing of the opposite sex. (Usually refers to a man wearing women's clothing.) Two actors in drag did a skit about life on the farm. Gary looks better in drag than he does in a suit.

in dribs and drabs in small portions; bit by bit. I'll have to pay you what I owe you in dribs and drabs. The whole story is being revealed in dribs and drabs.

in droves Fig. in large numbers. (See also be out in droves.) The settlers arrived on the prairie in droves.

in due course and in due time; in good time; in the course of time; in time in a normal or expected amount of time. The roses will bloom in due course. The vice president will become president in due course. I'll retire in due time. Just wait, my dear. All in good time. It'll all work out in the course of time. In time, things will improve.

in due time Go to previous.

in Dutch (with someone) in trouble with someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) I'm in Dutch with my parents for my low grades. You're in Dutch quite often, it seems.

in earnest with sincerity. (*Typically: act ~; be ~; speak ~.) I've done all the research I need. I spent the day writing the paper in earnest. Mary's comments were in earnest. She really meant them.

in effect producing a particular effect; effectively. In effect, this new law will raise taxes for most people. This policy harms domestic manufacturers. In effect, all our clothing will be made in foreign countries.

in essence basically; essentially. I have lots of detailed advice for you, but in essence, I want you to do the best you can. In essence, lightning is just a giant spark of electricity.

in exchange (for someone or something) in return for someone or something. They gave us two of our prisoners in exchange for two of theirs. I gave him chocolate in exchange for some licorice. John gave Mary a book and got a sweater in exchange.

in existence now existing; currently and actually being. The tiger may not be in existence in a few decades. All the oil in existence will not last the world for another century.

in fact in reality; really; actually. I'm over forty. In fact, I'm forty-six. This is a very good computer. In fact, it's the best.

in fashion in style; current and socially acceptable. Is that kind of thing still in fashion? It won't be in fashion very long.

in favor of someone to someone, as when writing a check. Please make out a check for $300 in Tom's favor. I'm making out the check in favor of Mr. Brown.

in favor (of someone or something) approving, supporting, or endorsing someone or something. Are you in favor of lower taxes? Of course, I'm in favor.

in fear and trembling Cliché with anxiety or fear; with dread. In fear and trembling, I went into the room to take the test. The witness left the courtroom in fear and trembling.

in fine feather 1. Fig. well dressed; of an excellent appearance. (Alludes to a bird that has clean, bright, and flawless feathers.) Well, you are certainly in fine feather today. I like to be in fine feather when I have to give a speech. 2. Fig. in good form; in good spirits. Mary was really in fine feather tonight. Her concert was great! I feel in fine feather and ready to go!

in fits and starts Go to fits and starts.

in flight while flying. A passenger became ill in flight and the pilot had to return to the airport. I really don't care to eat in flight. I am too nervous.

in flux and in a (constant) state of flux in constant change; ever-changing. I can't describe my job because it's in a constant state of flux. The price of gold is in flux.

in focus 1. Lit. [of an image] seen clearly and sharply. (*Typically: be ~; come [into] ~; get [into] ~; get something [into] ~.) I have the slide in focus and can see the bacteria clearly. 2. Lit. [for optics, such as lenses, or an optical device, such as a microscope] to be aligned to allow something to be seen clearly and sharply. I've adjusted the telescope; Mars is now in focus. 3. Fig. [of problems, solutions, appraisals of people or things] perceived or understood clearly. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; get something [into] ~.) Now that things are in focus, I feel better about the world.

in for something due to receive a surprise; due to receive punishment. (When the something is it, the it usually means punishment.) I hope I'm not in for any surprises when I get home. Tommy, you broke my baseball bat. You're really in for it! If I ever catch that chicken thief, he'll be in for it for sure.

in force 1. [of a rule or law] currently valid or in effect. (*Typically: be ~.) Is this rule in force now? The constitution is still in force. 2. Fig. in a very large group. (*Typically: arrive ~; attack ~.) The entire group arrived in force. The mosquitoes will attack in force this evening.

in full flight fleeing at great speed; escaping rapidly. □ The robbers were in full flight before the bank manager even called the sheriff.

in full swing and in high gear Fig. at the peak of activity; moving fast or efficiently. (*Typically: be ~; move [into] ~; get [into] ~.) □ In the summer months, things really get into full swing around here. □ We go skiing in the mountains each winter. Things are in high gear there in November.

in general referring to the entire class being discussed; speaking of the entire range of possibilities; in most situations or circumstances. □ I like vegetables in general, but not beets. □ In general, I prefer a hotel room on a lower floor, but will take a higher room if it's special.

in glowing terms Fig. using words of praise; using complimentary expressions. □ The college president described his accomplishments in glowing terms and awarded him with an honorary degree.

in good condition Go to in good shape.

in good faith Fig. with good and honest intent; with sincerity. □ We are convinced you were acting in good faith, even though you made a serious error. □ I think you didn't sign the contract in good faith. You never intended to carry out our agreement.

in good hands Fig. in the safe, competent care of someone. □ Don't worry. Your children are in good hands. Sally is an experienced baby-sitter. □ Your car is in good hands. My mechanics are factory-trained.

in good repair Fig. operating well; well taken care of. (Usually said of a thing rather than a person.) □ The house is in good repair and ought to attract a number of potential buyers. □ If the car were in good repair, it would run more smoothly.

in good shape and in good condition physically and functionally sound and sturdy. (Used for both people and things. *Typically: be ~; get ~; keep ~.) □ This car isn't in good shape. I'd like to have one that's in better condition. □ Mary is in good condition. She exercises and eats right to stay healthy. □ You have to make an effort to get into good shape.

in good spirits Fig. happy and cheerful; positive and looking toward the future, despite unhappy circumstances. □ The patient is in good spirits and that will speed her recovery. □ Tom wasn't in very good spirits after he heard the bad news.

in good time Go to in due course.

in (good) (with someone) in someone's favor. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I hope I can get in good with the teacher. I need an A in the course. □ Mary is always trying to get in with the people who are in charge.

in great demand wanted by many people. □ Liz is in great demand as a singer. □ Mary's paintings are in great demand.

in great haste very fast; in a big hurry. □ John always did his homework in great haste. □ Why not take time and do it right? Don't do everything in great haste.

in hand in one's possession or control. (*Typically: be ~; have something ~.) □ It's in hand. I have it right here. □ The papers are in hand. Have no fear.

in harm's way Fig. liable to be harmed; subject to potential causes of harm. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; put someone ~.) □ Soldiers are expected to know what to do when they are in harm's way.

in harmony (with someone or something) 1. Lit. in musical concord with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ This part is in harmony with the tenor's solo. □ The tenor part is not in harmony with the accompaniment. 2. Fig. agreeable or compatible with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ This is in complete harmony with our earlier discussions. □ Fred's position is quite clear. What you have said is not in harmony with Fred.

in heat in a period of sexual excitement; in estrus. (Estrus is the period of time in which females are most willing to breed. This expression is usually used for animals. It has been used for humans in a joking sense. *Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; go [into] ~.) □ Our dog is in heat. □ She goes into heat every year at this time.

in heaven Fig. in a state of absolute bliss or happiness. □ Lisa was in heaven after winning the lottery. □ Resting in his hammock, John was simply in heaven.

in high cotton and in tall cotton Rur. to be doing very well; successful. □ Jim's in high cotton ever since he got that raise. □ Tom: How's your sister? Mary: She's in high cotton. Just bought a nice new house. □ We were in tall cotton until the IRS caught up with us.

in high dudgeon Fig. feeling or exhibiting great resentment; taking great offense at something. (Often with leave.) □ After the rude remarks, the person who was insulted left in high dudgeon. □ Dennis strode from the room in high dudgeon, and we knew he would get his revenge eventually.

in high gear 1. [of a machine, such as a car] set in its highest gear, giving the greatest speed. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; move [into] ~.) □ When my car is in high gear, it goes very fast. □ You can't start out in high gear. You must work up through the low ones. 2. Go to in full swing.

in (high) hopes of something Fig. expecting something. □ I was in hopes of getting there early. □ We are in high hopes that John and Mary will have a girl.

in hindsight Go to in retrospect.

in hock in debt. □ After buying the luxury car, Bob was in hock for years.

in hog heaven Fig. very happy; having a wonderful time. □ Bill's a fan of Clark Gable, so when the movie theater had a Clark Gable movie festival, Bill was in hog heaven. □ Jane loves to quilt, so she was in hog heaven when they opened that new store for quilters.

in honor of someone or something showing respect or admiration for someone or something. □ Our club gave a party in honor of the club's president. □ I wrote a poem in honor of John and Mary's marriage.

in horror with intense shock or disgust. □ Mike stepped back from the rattlesnake in horror. □ The jogger recoiled in horror when she came upon a body in the park.

in hot water (with someone) (about someone or something) Fig. in trouble. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ You are going to get into hot water with Rebecca about that. □ Amy got into hot water about Todd with Rebecca.

 □ John got himself into hot water by being late.

in ink written or signed with a pen that uses ink, not with a pencil. □ You should write your report in ink. □ You must sign your checks in ink.

in its entirety and in their entirety completely; until completely done or gone. □ I watched the basketball game in its entirety. □ My friends and I ate the two large pizzas in their entirety.

in its prime Go to in one's prime.

in jeopardy to be at risk; to be at peril. □ John puts himself in jeopardy every time he goes skydiving. □ I was in jeopardy when my car broke down on the deserted road.

in (just) a minute Go to next.

in (just) a second and in (just) a minute in a very short period of time. □ I'll be there in a second. □ I'll be with you in just a minute. I'm on the phone.

in keeping (with something) and in line with something in accord or harmony with something; following the rules of something. □ In keeping with your instructions, I've canceled your order. □ I'm disappointed with your behavior. It really wasn't in line with what it should be.

in kind 1. in goods rather than in money. □ The country doctor was usually paid in kind. He accepted two pigs as payment for an operation. □ Do you have to pay tax on payments made in kind? 2. similarly; [giving] something similar to what was received. □ John punched Bill, and Bill gave it back in kind. □ She spoke rudely to me, so I spoke to her in kind.

in labor [of a woman] experiencing the pains and exertion of childbirth. □ Susan was in labor for nearly eight hours. □ As soon as she had been in labor for an hour, she went to the hospital.

in league (with someone) Fig. [of people] secretly cooperating, often to do something bad or illegal. □ The county sheriff is in league with criminals. □ The car thieves and some crooked police are in league to make money from stolen cars.

in less than no time Fig. very quickly. (See also in no time (at all).) □ I'll be there in less than no time. □ Don't worry. This won't take long. It'll be over with in less than no time.

in lieu of something Fig. in place of something; instead of something. (The word lieu occurs only in this phrase.) □ They gave me roast beef in lieu of ham. □ We gave money to charity in lieu of sending flowers to the funeral.

In like a lion, out like a lamb. Go to March comes in like a lion, and goes out like a lamb.

in limbo 1. Lit. a region of the afterlife on the border of hell. (In some Christian religions, there is a limbo set aside for souls that do not go to either heaven or hell. This sense is used only in this religious context. *Typically: be ~; remain ~; stay ~.) □ The baby's soul was in limbo because she had not been baptized. 2. Fig. in a state of neglect; in a state of oblivion; in an indefinite state; on hold. (*Typically: be ~; leave something ~; put something ~.) □ We'll have to leave the project in limbo for a month or two. □ After I got hit on the head, I was in limbo for about ten minutes.

in line and on line standing and waiting in a line of people. (On line is used especially in the New York City area.) □ I've been in line for an hour. □ Get in line if you want to buy a ticket. □ We waited on line to see the movie.

in line with something Go to in keeping (with something).

in love (with someone or something) feeling love for someone or something; experiencing a strong affectionate emotion for someone or something. □ Mary was in love with her new car! It was perfect for her. □ John is deeply in love with Mary.

in low cotton Rur. depressed. □ She was in low cotton because her dress got torn. □ Jed is in low cotton because his favorite hound is dead.

in luck fortunate; lucky. □ You want a red one? You're in luck. There is one red one left. □ I had an accident, but I was in luck. It was perfect for me.

in many respects Go to in some respects.

in marching order organized and equipped; ready to go. (Originally military.) □ Is our luggage all packed and in marching order? □ We're in marching order and eager to go, sir.

in memory of someone to continue the good memories of someone; for the honor of a deceased person. □ Many streets were renamed in memory of John F. Kennedy. □ We planted roses in memory of my deceased father.

in midair in a point high in the air. □ The planes crashed in midair. □ Extra fuel was released from the plane in midair.

in mint condition Fig. in perfect condition. (*Typically: be ~; find something ~.) □ This is a fine car. It runs well and is in mint condition. □ We saw a house in mint condition and decided to buy it.

in my humble opinion Cliché a phrase introducing the speaker's opinion. □ "In my humble opinion," began Fred, arrogantly, "I have achieved what no one else ever could." □ Bob: What are we going to do about the poor condition of the house next door? Bill: In my humble opinion, we will mind our own business.

in my opinion Go to as I see it.

in my view Go to as I see it.

in name only nominally; not actual, only by terminology. □ The president is head of the country in name only. Congress makes the laws. □ Mr. Smith is the boss of the Smith Company in name only. Mrs. Smith handles all the business affairs.

in need (of something) [of someone or an animal] to require something. □ We are in need of a new car. □ The company is in need of a larger building to hold all its employees.

in neutral with the shift lever of a vehicle in the position where the motor is running but is not powering the wheels or other moving parts. □ The car rolled down the hill because I'd left it in neutral and did not put on the brake. □ If you are moving and in neutral, you do not have control of your vehicle.

in no mood to do something not feeling like doing something; not wishing to do something. □ I'm in no mood to cook dinner tonight. □ Mother is in no mood to put up with our arguing.

in no time (at all) very quickly. (Compare this with in less than no time.) □ I'll be there in no time. □ It won't take long. I'll be finished in no time at all.

in no time flat Go to in nothing flat.

in no uncertain terms Cliché in very specific and direct language. □ I was so mad. I told her in no uncertain terms to leave and never come back. □ I told him in no uncertain terms to stop calling me.

in nothing flat and in no time flat Fig. very quickly; in much less time than expected. □ Of course I can get there in a hurry. I'll be there in nothing flat. □ We covered the distance between New York and Philadelphia in nothing flat. □ The waiter brought our food in no time flat.

in on something 1. involved with something, such as an organization or an idea; informed about special plans. (*Typically: be ~; come ~; get ~; let someone ~.) □ There is a party upstairs, and I want to get in on it. □ I want to get in on your club's activities. □ Mary and Jane know a secret, but they won't let me in on it. 2. receiving a share of something. (*Typically: be ~; come ~; get ~; let someone ~.) □ I want to get in on the new European business that is supposed to develop. □ We will all want to get in on the scheme.

in on the act Fig. involved in something with someone else. (Often refers to an unwelcome attempt to join someone's performance. *Typically: be ~; get ~; let someone ~.) □ Everybody wants to get in on the act. □ Why are you trying to get in on the act?

in on the ground floor Fig. involved at the very beginning of something. (Alludes to riding in an elevator that will become increasingly crowded as it ascends. You will be able to get in most easily at the lowest level. *Typically: be ~; get ~; let someone ~.) □ If you are starting a new project, I want to get in on the ground floor. □ Invest now so you can get in on the ground floor.

in on the kill Go to in at the kill.

in one fell swoop Go to at one fell swoop.

in one's birthday suit Fig. naked; nude. (In the "clothes" in which one was born. *Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ I've heard that John sleeps in his birthday suit. □ We used to go down to the river and swim in our birthday suits.

in one's blood Go to in the blood.

in one's book Fig. according to one's own opinion. □ He's okay in my book. □ In my book, this is the best that money can buy.

in one's cups Euph. drunk. □ She doesn't make much sense when she's in her cups. □ The speaker—who was in his cups—could hardly be understood.

in one's element Fig. in a natural or comfortable situation or environment. □ Sally is in her element when she's working with algebra or calculus. □ Bob loves to work with color and texture. When he's painting, he's in his element.

in one's glory Fig. at one's happiest or best. □ When I go to the beach on vacation, I'm in my glory. □ Sally is a good teacher. She's in her glory in the classroom.

in one's mind's eye Fig. in one's mind or imagination. (Alludes to visualizing something in one's mind.) □ In my mind's eye, I can see trouble ahead. □ In her mind's eye, she could see a beautiful building beside the river. She decided to design such a building.

in one's opinion according to one's belief or judgment. □ In my opinion, that is a very ugly picture. □ That isn't a good idea in my opinion.

in one's or its prime Fig. at one's or its peak or best time. □ Our dog—which is in its prime—is very active. □ The building was in its prime back in the Fifties, but it has not been well maintained. □ I could work long hours when I was in my prime.

in one's (own) backyard Fig. very close to one, where one lives, or where one is. □ That kind of thing is quite rare. Imagine it happening right in your backyard. □ You always think of something like that happening to someone else. You never expect to find it in your own backyard.

in one's (own) (best) interest(s) to one's advantage; as a benefit to oneself. □ It is not in your own interests to share your ideas with Jack. He will say that they are his. □ Jane thought it was in the best interest of her friend to tell his mother about his illness.

in one's own way 1. as the best one can do; using a personal and individual strategy. □ I don't know the answer to the problem, but perhaps I can help in my own way. □ She couldn't go to war and carry a gun, but she helped the war effort in her own way. 2. in the special way that one wishes or demands. □ I don't like doing it your way. I want to do it in my own way. □ I prefer to do it in my own way.

in one's right mind Fig. sane; rational and sensible. (Often in the negative.) □ That was a stupid thing to do. You're not in your right mind. □ You can't be in your right mind! That sounds crazy!

in one's salad days Fig. in one's youth. (Usually formal or literary. Comparing the greenness of a salad with the greenness, or freshness and inexperience, of youth.) □ I recall the joys I experienced on school vacations in my salad days. □ In our salad days, we were apt to get into all sorts of mischief on the weekends.

in one's second childhood Fig. [of an adult] interested in things or people that normally interest children. □ My father bought himself a toy train, and my mother said he was in his second childhood. □ Whenever I go to the river and throw stones, I feel as if I'm in my second childhood.

in one's spare time in one's extra time; in the time not reserved for work or doing something else. □ I write novels in my spare time. □ I'll try to paint the house in my spare time.

in one's Sunday best Rur. in one's best clothes; in the clothes one wears to church. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ All the children were dressed up in their Sunday best. □ I like to be in my Sunday best whenever I go out. □ Let's get into our Sunday best and go out for dinner.

in opposition (to someone or something) against someone or something; opposing someone or something. □ You'll find that I'm firmly in opposition to any further expenditures. □ The council and the mayor are usually in opposition.

in orbit 1. Lit. [of something] circling a heavenly body. (*Typically: be ~; put something [into] ~.) □ The moon is in orbit around the earth. □ They put the satellite into orbit. 2. Fig. ecstatic; thrilled; emotionally high.

(*Typically: be ~.) □ Jane is in orbit about her new job.
 □ John went into orbit when he got the check in the mail.
3. Inf. intoxicated. □ After having six drinks all to herself, Julie was in orbit.

in order properly arranged. (*Typically: get something ~; have something ~; put something ~.) □ Please get your desk in order. □ I wish you would put things in order!

in order to do something for the purpose of doing something; as a means of doing something. □ I went to college in order to further my education. □ I gave John three dollars in order to buy lunch.

in other words a phrase introducing a restatement of what has just been said. □ Henry: Sure I want to do it, but how much do I get paid? Andrew: In other words, you're just doing it for the money. □ Bill: Well, I suppose I really should prepare my entourage for departure. Bob: In other words, you're leaving? Bill: One could say that, I suppose. Bob: Why didn't one?

in over one's head (with someone or something) 1. Lit. in water that is deeper than one is tall. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Johnny! Don't go out too far! You are in over your head. 2. Fig. too deeply involved with someone or something, beyond what one can deal with. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ They are all in over their heads with this money business. 3. Fig. having more difficulties than one can manage. □ Calculus is very hard for me. I'm in over my head.

in park [of an automobile transmission] having the gears locked so the automobile cannot move. □ The driver stopped the car and placed it in park. □ You have to be in park in order to start this car.

in part partly; to a lesser degree or extent. □ I was not there, in part because of my disagreement about the purpose of the meeting. I also had a previous appointment. □ I hope to win, in part because I want the prize money.

in particular specifically; especially. □ I'm not going anywhere in particular. □ Of the three ideas, there is one I like in particular.

in passing casually; said or mentioned as an aside. □ I just heard your name in passing. I didn't hear more than that. □ The lecturer referred to George Washington in passing.

in pencil written or signed with a pencil. □ Why did you write your report in pencil? □ You can't sign a check in pencil!

in perpetuity for an indefinitely long period of time; eternally. □ My trust fund generates income in perpetuity. □ The right for the road to cross my land was granted in perpetuity to the county.

in person [of someone] actually physically present in a place rather than appearing in a film, on a television or computer screen, on a telephone, or through a radio broadcast. □ All the famous movie stars were there in person. □ You must appear in our office in person to collect the money that is due to you.

in perspective within a reasonable view or appraisal. (*Typically: be ~; get something ~; have something ~; put something [into] ~.) □ Let's try to keep everything in perspective. □ If we put the matter into perspective, I think we can discuss it reasonably.

in place in (someone's or something's) proper place or location. (*Typically: be ~; put something [into] ~.) □ The maid came into the room and put everything into place. □ It's good to see everything in place again.

in place of someone or something instead of someone or something; as a substitute for someone or something. □ I changed my mind. I want a red one in place of the blue one. □ John came to help in place of Max, who was sick.

in plain English Go to next.

in plain language and in plain English Fig. in simple, clear, and straightforward language. (*Typically: be ~; put something [into] ~; say something ~; write something ~.) □ That's too confusing. Please say it again in plain English. □ Tell me again in plain language.

in play 1. Lit. [of a ball, in a game] under the effect of the rules of the game. (*Typically: be ~; get back ~; put something back ~.) □ The ball is in play again and the activity is furious. □ The ball is not in play yet. 2. Fig. [of a company or its stock] in the process of being bought out by another company. (*Typically: be ~; put something ~.) □ The company I bought stock in is now in play. □ This stock is in play.

in point of fact just to point out a fact; in fact. □ In point of fact, I am not late. You are simply way too early.

in poor taste Go to in bad taste.

in power in control; in charge. (*Typically: be ~; come [into] ~; get [into] ~.) □ Who is in power now? □ No one is in power. □ The provisional government came into power six months ago.

in practice 1. in the actual doing of something; in reality. □ Our policy is to be very particular, but in practice we don't care that much. □ The instructions say not to set it too high. In practice I always set it as high as possible. 2. well-rehearsed; well-practiced; well-exercised. □ The swimmer was not in practice and almost drowned. □ I play the piano for a living, and I have to keep in practice.

in press [of a book or other document] in the process of being printed. □ This book is in press. It won't be available for at least two months. □ This book has been in press for a long time.

in print [of a book, magazine, newspaper, or other written material] to be available from the publisher. □ Ten thousand copies of the first edition remain in print. □ The publisher listed all of its books in print.

in private privately; without others present. □ I'd like to speak to you in private. □ I enjoy spending the evening in private.

in progress under way; happening; developing or moving right now. □ Don't enter the studio. There's a show in progress. □ We now return you to the regularly scheduled show in progress.

in proportion showing the correct size or proportion relative to something else. □ That man's large head is not in proportion to his small body. □ The cartoonist drew the dog in proportion to its surroundings.

in public in a place or way so that other people can see or know about something. □ It's illegal to walk naked in public. □ John always tries to embarrass me whenever we're in public.

in pursuit of something chasing after something. □ Bill spends most of his time in pursuit of money. □ Every year Bob goes into the countryside in pursuit of butterflies.

in quest of someone or something and in search of someone or something seeking or hunting something; trying to find something. □ They went into town in quest of a reasonably priced restaurant. □ Monday morning I'll go out in search of a job.

in rags Fig. in worn-out and torn clothing. □ Oh, look at my clothing. I can't go to the party in rags! □ I think the new casual fashions make you look as if you're in rags.

in rare form 1. Fig. well prepared for a good performance; at one's best. □ The goalie is in rare form today; that's his third great save already. □ We are not exactly in rare form on Monday mornings. 2. Inf. intoxicated. □ Gert is in rare form, but she'll have time to sleep it off. □ When Harry was finally in rare form, he slid beneath the table.

in reality viewing things realistically; really. □ Jane dreamed it was snowing, but in reality, it was very warm. □ John looks happy, but in reality, he is miserable.

in receipt of something in a state of having received something. (Used in business correspondence.) □ We are in receipt of your letter of request. □ When we are in receipt of your check for the full balance, we will mark your bill as paid.

in recent memory Fig. the period of time in which things are still remembered and discussed. □ Never in recent memory has there been this much snow! □ I haven't been this happy in recent memory!

in reduced circumstances Euph. in poverty. □ After Frederick lost his position, we lived in reduced circumstances while waiting for my inheritance.

in reference to someone or something and with reference to someone or something concerning or about someone or something; in connection with someone or something. □ What shall we do in reference to Bill and his problem? □ With reference to what problem?

in regard to someone or something Go to with regard to someone or something.

in rehearsal a stage of development in the production of a play, opera, or concert, involving many rehearsals. □ The play is in rehearsal now and will open next month. □ While the opera was still in rehearsal, the star developed a hatred for the director.

in relation to someone or something relating to someone or something; in connection with someone or something. □ I mention this fact in relation to your proposed trip. □ Let's discuss Bill in relation to his future with this company.

in remission [of a serious disease] not worsening or progressing. □ While the disease was in remission, John got to leave the hospital. □ The doctor said my cancer was in remission.

in retrospect and in hindsight reconsidering the past with the knowledge one now has. □ In retrospect, I would have gone to a better college. □ David realized, in hindsight, that he should have finished school.

in return for (someone or something) by way of giving something back; as a way of paying someone back for something; as part of an exchange. □ I helped Tom yes- terday, and he helped me in return for my efforts. □ I paid $20 and received four tickets in return.

in round figures Go to next.

in round numbers and in round figures Fig. as an estimated number; a figure that has been rounded off. (*Typically: be ~; express something ~; write something ~.) □ Please tell me in round numbers what it'll cost. □ I don't need the exact amount. Just give it to me in round figures.

in ruins in a state of destruction. (*Typically: be ~; lay ~; leave something ~.) □ The enemy army left the cities they attacked in ruins. □ The crops laid in ruins after the flood.

in search of someone or something Go to in quest of someone or something.

in season 1. [of a game animal] subject to legal hunting. □ You cannot shoot ducks. They are not in season. 2. [of a female animal] ready to breed; in estrus; in heat. □ The cat's in season again. 3. to be currently available for selling. (Some foods and other things are available only at certain seasons. *Typically: be ~; come [into] ~.) □ Oysters are available in season. □ Strawberries aren't in season in January.

in secret secretly. □ They planned in secret to blow up the bridge. □ I will tell her in secret so no one else will hear.

in service [of something] operating or operable. (See also put something in(to) service.) □ Is this elevator in service?

in session [of a court, congress, or other organization] operating or functioning. □ Use of cameras is forbidden while the meeting is in session. □ The spectators must remain quiet while court is in session.

in seventh heaven Fig. in a very happy state. □ Ann was really in seventh heaven when she got a car of her own. □ I'd be in seventh heaven if I had a million dollars.

in shape Go to in condition.

in short stated briefly. □ At the end of the financial report, the board president said, "In short, we are okay." □ My remarks, in short, indicate that we are in good financial shape.

in short order very quickly. □ I can straighten out this mess in short order. □ The maids came in and cleaned the place up in short order.

in short supply Fig. scarce. □ Fresh vegetables are in short supply in the winter. □ Yellow cars are in short supply because everyone likes them and buys them. □ At this time of the year, fresh vegetables go into short supply.

in sight 1. Lit. within the range of vision; visible. □ The goal is in sight. □ The end of the road is in sight. 2. Fig. known; expected. □ The end of the project is finally in sight.

in so many words Fig. exactly; explicitly; in plain, clear language. □ I told her in so many words to leave me alone. □ He said yes, but not in so many words.

in some neck of the woods Rur. in some vicinity or neighborhood; in some remote place. (The some is usually this, that, your, their, etc. Can be used to refer to some specific section of a forest.) □ I think that the Smiths live in your neck of the woods. □ What's happening over in that neck of the woods?

in some respects and in many respects with regard to some or many details. In some respects, Anne's comments are similar to yours. The three proposals are quite different in many respects.

in some transaction for someone having value for someone; having a benefit for someone. (Usually a question: What's in it for me?) What is in this deal for me? There is a lot of money in it for you.

in someone else's place Go to next.

in someone else's shoes and in someone else's place Fig. seeing or experiencing something from someone else's point of view. (See also in a bind and the examples.) You might feel different if you were in her shoes. Pretend you're in Tom's place, and then try to figure out why he acts the way he does.

in someone's behalf Go to in behalf of someone.

in someone's care Go to in the care of someone.

in someone's face Sl. in a provocative attitude, as if ready to fight or argue. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) Ted's a real pain. He likes to get in your face. He'll argue about anything. *I know you are angry, but don't get in my face. I had nothing to do with it.

in someone's favor 1. to someone's advantage or credit. (Especially in sports scores, as in the examples.) The score was ten to twelve in our favor. At the end of the second half, the score was forty to three in the other team's favor. 2. in someone's favor liked by someone; approved of by someone. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) John might be able to help me. I hope I'm currently in his favor. My mother is mad at me. I'm certainly not in her favor. *I'll try to get into her favor.

in someone's good graces Fig. in good with someone; in someone's favor. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) *I'm not in her good graces so I shouldn't be the one to ask her.

in someone's hair 1. Lit. tangled in someone's hair. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) My bubble gum got in my hair and I had to cut it out. 2. Fig. annoying someone. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) You can watch what I am doing, but don't get in my hair. *I wish you wouldn't get in my hair when I'm trying to do something.

in someone's name 1. in someone's ownership; as someone's property. The house is in my name. I own all of it. The car is in our names. 2. Go to in behalf of someone.

in someone's or something's way and in the way of someone or something Fig. in the pathway or movement of someone or something. Don't get in my way. That car is in the way of the bus and all the other traffic.

in someone's possession held by someone; owned by someone. (*Typically: be ~; come [into] ~.) The book is now in my possession. *How long has this object been in your possession?

in someone's prayers [of someone] remembered and called by name when someone prays. I am sorry to hear of your sickness. You will be in our prayers. The whole family is in my prayers because they have suffered so much.

in someone's way 1. Lit. in the pathway of someone. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; stand ~.) Don't get in Bob's way while he is bringing groceries in from the car. 2. and in the way of someone's plans Fig. inter- fering with a person in the pursuit of plans or intentions; hindering someone's plans. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; stand ~.) I am going to leave home. Please don't get in my way. She intends to become a lawyer and no one had better get in her way. *I would never get into the way of her plans.

in spades in the best or most extreme way possible; extravagantly. He flunked the test in spades. He succeeded at life in spades—honors degree, great career, rich wife, lovely children, and early retirement.

in spite of someone or something without regard to someone or something; even though another course had been prescribed; ignoring a warning. In spite of her orders to stay, I left. In spite of the bad weather, I had fun on vacation.

in step (with someone) Fig. [marching or dancing] in cadence with another person. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; march ~; keep ~.) Please keep in step with Jane. *You two, back there. You aren't in step.

in step (with someone or something) Fig. as up-to-date as someone or something. Bob is not in step with the times. We try to keep in step with the fashion of the day.

in step (with something) and in time (with something) Fig. keeping in cadence with music. John, your violin isn't in step with the beat. Sit up straight and try it again. I'm trying to play in time.

in stitches Fig. laughing very hard. Charlie had us in stitches with all his jokes. The movie sure was funny. I was in stitches!

in stock to have merchandise available and ready for sale. Do you have extra-large sizes in stock? Of course, we have all sizes and colors in stock.

in storage in a place where things are stored or kept. Mary placed her winter clothes in storage during the summer. John's furniture is in storage while he is in the army.

in store (for someone) awaiting someone in the future. (*Typically: be ~; hold something ~; lie ~.) None of us knows what lies in store for us tomorrow. *Some good lies in store for me, I think.

in style 1. Lit. in fashion; fashionable. This old coat isn't in style anymore. I don't care if it's not in style. It's warm. I hope this coat comes into style again. 2. Fig. in elegance; in luxury. If I had a million dollars, I could really live in style. If he saves his money, someday he'll be able to live in style.

in surgery to be involved in surgery. (Can refer to a doctor, nurse, or patients.) Dr. Smith is in surgery now. The patient is still in surgery.

in tall cotton Go to in high cotton.

in tandem [of two or more things] in single file. We marched to the door in tandem. They rode along in tandem.

in tatters Fig. in torn pieces of cloth. The poor man's clothes hung in tatters. The flag was in tatters after the storm.

in terms of something regarding something; concerning something. I don't know what to do in terms of John's problem. Now, in terms of your proposal, don't you think you're asking for too much?

in the absence of someone or something while someone or something isn't here; without someone or something.

□ In the absence of the cook, I'll prepare dinner. □ In the absence of opposition, she won easily.

in the act (of doing something) while doing something. □

There he was, in the act of opening the door. □ I tripped while in the act of climbing.

in the affirmative in the form of an answer that means yes. □ The soldier answered in the affirmative by nodding his head "yes." □ My manager's response was in the affirmative.

in the air Fig. everywhere; all about. □ There is such a feeling of joy in the air. □ We felt a sense of tension in the air.

in the altogether and in the buff; in the nude;

in the raw Fig. naked; nude. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; sleep ~.) □ The museum has a painting of some ladies in the buff. □ Mary felt a little shy about getting into the altogether. □ Bill says he sleeps in the raw.

in the back in the back part of a building; in the back room of a building. □ I don't have your size here, but perhaps I can find it in the back. □ He's not in the shop right now. I'll see if he's in the back.

in the back of someone's mind Fig. remembered by someone, but not very important; vaguely remembered by someone. (*Typically: have something ~; keep something ~; leave something ~; put something ~; remain ~; stay ~.) □ You should put this problem in the back of your mind and concentrate on other things.

in the bag 1. Fig. cinched; achieved. (*Typically: be ~; have something ~.) □ It's in the bag—as good as done. □ The election is in the bag unless the voters find out about my past. 2. Fig. Inf. intoxicated. (*Typically: be ~.) □ Kelly looks like he is in the bag. □ John is in the bag and mean as hell.

in the balance in an undecided state; at risk. (*Typically: be ~; hang ~.) □ He stood on the edge of the cliff, his life in the balance. □ With his fortune in the balance, John rolled the dice.

in the ballpark Fig. within certain boundaries; [of an estimate] close to what is expected. □ Your estimate is not even in the ballpark. Please try again. in the best of health very healthy. (*Typically: be ~; get oneself ~.) □ Bill is in the best of health. He eats well and exercises. □ I haven't been in the best of health. I think I have the flu.

in the black Fig. not in debt; in a financially profitable condition. (As opposed to in the red.) □ I wish my accounts were in the black. □ Sally moved the company into the black.

in the blood and in one's blood Fig. built into one's personality or character. □ John's a great runner. It's in his blood. □ The whole family is very athletic. It's in the blood.

in the boondocks and in the boonies in a rural area; far away from a city or population. (*Typically: be ~; camp ~; live ~; stay ~.) □ Perry lives out in the boonies with his parents.

in the boonies Go to previous.

in the buff Go to in the altogether.

in the bull pen 1. Lit. [of a baseball pitcher to be] in a special place near the playing field, warming up to pitch. (*Typically: be ~; go [into] ~.) □ You can tell who is pitching next by seeing who is in the bull pen. □ Our best pitcher just went into the bull pen. He'll be pitching soon.

2. Fig. in reserve, ready if needed. □ I'm willing to be in the bull pen. Just call me if you need me.

in the cards Fig. in the future. (*Typically: be ~; see something ~.) □ Well, what do you think is in the cards for tomorrow? □ I asked the boss if there was a raise in the cards for me.

in the care of someone and in the charge of someone; in someone's care; under someone's care in the keeping of someone. (*Typically: be ~; leave someone or something ~; place someone or something [into] ~.)

□ I left the baby in the care of my mother. □ I placed the house into the care of my friend.

in the case of someone or something in the matter of someone or something; in the instance of someone or something. □ In the case of John, I think we had better allow his request. □ In the case of this woman, we'll not grant permission.

in the catbird seat Sl. in a dominant or controlling position. □ Sally's in the catbird seat—telling everybody where to go. □ I hold all the aces. I'm in the catbird seat.

in the C.E. Go to in the Common Era.

in the charge of someone Go to in the care of someone.

in the chips Fig. wealthy; having lots of money. (Having lots of gambling chips.) □ I'm in the chips this month. Let's go squander it. □ If I were in the chips, I'd buy a Rolls Royce.

in the clear 1. Lit. not obstructed; not enclosed. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; get someone or something [into] ~.) □ You're in the clear. Go ahead and back up.

□ Once the deer got into the clear, it ran away. 2. Fig. to be innocent; not to be guilty. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~; get someone or something [into] ~.) □ Don't worry, Tom. I'm sure you're in the clear. □ I'll feel better when I get into the clear.

in the Common Era and in the C.E. [of dates] a year after the year 1 according to the Western calendar. (Offered as a replacement for Anno Domini and A.D.) □ The comet was last seen in the year 1986 in the Common Era. □ The Huns invaded Gaul in 451 C.E.

in the context of something in the circumstances under which something happens or has happened. □ In the context of a funeral, laughing loudly is inappropriate. □ In the context of an argument, it is fine to speak firmly.

In the country of the blind, the one-eyed man is king. Prov. A person who is not particularly capable can attain a powerful position if the people around him or her are even less capable. □ Jill: How on earth did Joe get promoted to be head of his department? He's such a blunderer! Jane: In the country of the blind, the one-eyed man is king.

in the course of time Go to in due course.

in the dark (about someone or something) Fig. uninformed about someone or something; ignorant about someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; keep someone ~; stay ~.) □ I'm in the dark about who is in charge around here. □ I can't imagine why they are keeping me in the dark. □ She's in the dark about how this machine works.

in the doghouse Fig. in trouble; in (someone's) disfavor. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; find oneself ~; put someone [into] ~.) □ I'm really in the doghouse with my boss. I was late for an appointment. □ I hate being in the doghouse all the time. I don't know why I can't stay out of trouble.

in the doldrums Fig. sluggish; inactive; in low spirits. (*Typically: be ~; put someone [into] ~.) □ He's usually in the doldrums in the winter. □ I had some bad news yesterday, which put me into the doldrums.

in the drink Fig. in the water; in the ocean. (*Typically: be ~; fall ~; throw someone ~.) □ He fell in the drink and had to be rescued.

in the driver's seat Fig. in control; in charge of things. (As if one were driving and controlling the vehicle.) □ Now that Fred is in the driver's seat, there is a lot less criticism about how things are being done. □ Joan can't wait to get into the driver's seat and do what she can to turn things around.

in the event of something if something happens; on the chance that something happens. □ In the event of his late arrival, please call me. □ In the event of rain, the parade is canceled.

in the family way Go to in a family way.

in the fast lane Fig. in a very active or possible risky manner. (See also life in the fast lane. *Typically: be ~; live ~; move ~; stay ~.) □ Fred lives in the fast lane. It's lucky he's still alive.

in the final analysis and in the last analysis in truth; when all the facts are known; when the truth becomes known. (Usually used when someone is speculating about what the final outcome will be.) □ In the final analysis, it is usually the children who suffer most in a situation like this. □ In the last analysis, you simply do not want to do as you are told!

in the first instance Go to next.

in the first place and in the first instance initially; to begin with. □ In the first place, you don't have enough money to buy one. In the second place, you don't need one. □ In the first instance, I don't have the time. In the second place, I'm not interested.

in the flesh Fig. bodily present; in person; totally real. □ I've heard that the queen is coming here in the flesh. □ I've wanted a flat-screen TV for years, and now I've got one right here in the flesh.

in the forefront (of something) Go to at the forefront (of something).

in the groove Sl. attuned to something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I was uncomfortable at first, but now I'm beginning to get in the groove. □ Fred began to get in the groove, and things went more smoothly.

in the gutter Fig. [of a person] in a low state; poor and homeless. (*Typically: be ~; fall [into] ~; put someone [into] ~.) □ You had better straighten out your life, or you'll end in the gutter. □ His bad habits put him into the gutter.

in the hole Fig. in debt. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~; put someone ~.) □ I'm $200 in the hole. □ We went into the hole on that deal.

in the (home)stretch Fig. in the last stage of a process. (From horse racing. *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ We're in the homestretch with this project and can't change it now. □ We're in the stretch. Only three more days till we graduate.

in the hopper Fig. in process; in line to be processed. (A hopper is a chute for incoming work or material to be processed.) □ It's in the hopper. I'll get to it. □ Your job is in the hopper, and your turn is next.

in the hot seat Go to on the hot seat.

in the interest of saving time in order to hurry things along; in order to save time. □ Mary: In the interest of saving time, I'd like to save questions for the end of my talk. Bill: But I have an important question now! □ "In the interest of saving time," said Jane, "I'll give you the first three answers."

in the interest of someone or something as an advantage or benefit to someone or something; in order to advance or improve someone or something. □ In the interest of health, people are asked not to smoke. □ The police imprisoned the suspects in the interest of the safety of the public.

in the interim (between things) in the meantime; in the time between the ending of something and the beginning of something else. □ In the interim between her morning and afternoon classes, Susan rushed home to get a book she had forgotten. □ My favorite show starts in five minutes, but I'll talk to you in the interim.

in the know knowledgeable. □ Let's ask Bob. He's in the know. □ I have no knowledge of how to work this machine. I think I can get myself in the know very quickly though.

in the lap of luxury Cliché in luxurious surroundings. □ John lives in the lap of luxury because his family is very wealthy. □ When I retire, I'd like to live in the lap of luxury.

in the last analysis Go to in the final analysis.

in the laundry with the clothes that are waiting to be washed. □ Is my blue shirt clean or is it in the laundry? □ All my socks are in the laundry. What shall I do?

in (the) light of something Fig. because of certain knowledge now in hand; considering something. (As if knowledge or information shed light on something.) □ In light of what you have told us, I think we must abandon the project. □ In light of the clerk's rudeness, we didn't return to that shop.

in the limelight Go to in the spotlight.

in the line of duty Fig. as part of one's expected duties. □ When soldiers fight people in a war, it's in the line of duty. □ Police officers have to do things they may not like in the line of duty.

in the long haul Go to over the long haul.

in the long run Go to over the long haul.

in the loop Fig. in the group of persons communicating regularly about a specific plan or project. □ I don't know what's going on with the Jones deal since I'm not in the loop. □ Bob and Jean are in the loop. They can tell you what's happening.

in the main basically; generally. □ Mary: Everything looks all right—in the main. Sally: What details need attention? Mary: Just a few things here and there. Like on page 27. □

John: Are you all ready? Sue: I think we're ready, in the main.
John: Then, we shall go.

in the mainstream (of something) following the current trends or styles that are popular or are considered normal. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ Bob is too old-fashioned to be in the mainstream of modern living.

in the making in development; in the process of developing. □ This is a real problem in the making. Let's try to keep it from getting any worse.

in the market (for something) Fig. wanting to buy something. (*Typically: be ~; find oneself ~.) □ I'm in the market for a new camera. □ If you have a boat for sale, we're in the market.

in the meantime the period of time between two things; the period of time between now and when something is supposed to happen. □ The movie starts at 6:00. In the meantime, let's eat dinner. □ My flight was at 8:00. In the meantime, I played solitaire.

in the middle of nowhere Fig. in a very remote place. (*Typically: be ~; drive [into] ~; put someone or something [into] ~.) □ To get to my house, you have to drive into the middle of nowhere. □ We found a nice place to eat, but it's out in the middle of nowhere.

in the money 1. Fig. wealthy. □ John is really in the money. He's worth millions. □ If I am ever in the money, I'll be generous. 2. Fig. in the winning position in a race or contest. (As if one had won the prize money; in horse racing the top three finishers can pay off on bets.) □ I knew when Jane came around the final turn that she was in the money. □ The horses coming in first, second, and third are said to be in the money.

in the mood (for something) and in the mood (to do something) having the proper state of mind for a particular situation or for doing something. □ I'm not in the mood to see a movie tonight. □ Are you in the mood for pizza?

in the near future Cliché in the time immediately ahead. □ I don't plan to go to Florida in the near future. □ Today's prices won't be around in the near future.

in the nude Go to in the altogether.

in the offing happening at some time in the future. □ There is a big investigation in the offing, but I don't know when. □ It's hard to tell what's in the offing if you don't keep track of things.

in the open in the outdoors; in an area that is not closed in. (*Typically: be ~; put something ~.) □ John's bike was stolen because he left it out in the open. □ Mary loves gardening because she loves to be in the open.

in the picture Fig. well-informed; aware of what is going on. (*Typically: be ~; keep someone ~; put someone ~.) □ Please, keep me fully in the picture. □ John found out about the plan. He's in the picture, so take care.

in the pink (of condition) and in the pink (of health) Fig. in very good health; in very good condition, physically and emotionally. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ He recovered completely from his surgery and has been in the pink ever since. □ She was lively and active and in the pink of condition.

in the pink (of health) Go to previous.

in the pipeline Fig. backed up somewhere in a process; in process; in a queue. □ There's a lot of goods still in the pipeline. That means no more new orders will be shipped for a while. □ Your papers are in the pipeline somewhere. You'll just have to wait.

in the poorhouse 1. Lit. in a (historical) communal dwelling for impoverished persons. (*Typically: live ~; end up ~.) □ He couldn't pay his debts and had to live in the poorhouse. 2. Fig. in a state of poverty. (*Typically: live ~; end up ~.) □ If I lose my job, we'll end up in the poorhouse.

in the prime of life Fig. in the best and most productive and healthy period of life. □ The good health of one's youth can carry over into the prime of life. □ He was struck down by a heart attack in the prime of life.

in the public eye Fig. publicly; visible to all; conspicuous. (*Typically: be ~; find oneself ~; get [into] ~.) □ Elected officials find themselves constantly in the public eye. □ The mayor made it a practice to get into the public eye as much as possible.

in the raw Go to in the altogether.

in the rear located in the space or area behind someone or something. □ The waiter told me that the bathrooms were in the rear. □ All deliveries must be made in the rear.

in the red Fig. losing money. (*Typically: be ~; go [into] ~; as opposed to in the black.) □ State government has been operating in the red for five straight years. □ What with all those car repairs, we're going to be in the red this month.

in the right correct; morally or legally correct. □ I know I'm in the right. □ You are not in the right on this point.

in the right place at the right time in the location where something good is to happen exactly when it happens. □ I got a good deal on a car because I was in the right place at the right time. □ Unless you are in the right place at the right time, you won't get a chance to meet a movie star.

in the road 1. Lit. on the roadway. □ What's that in the road ahead? 2. Fig. in the way; obstructing the way. □ You are always in the road. Move aside.

in the running Fig. in competition; competing and having a chance to win. (See also in a bind and the examples.) □ Is Tom still in the running? Does he still have a chance to be elected? □ I don't know about Tom, but Gladys is definitely still in the running.

in the same boat (as someone) in the same situation; having the same problem. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ Tom: I'm broke. Can you lend me twenty dollars? Bill: Sorry. I'm in the same boat. □ Jane and Mary are both in the same boat. They have been called for jury duty.

in the same breath Fig. [stated or said] almost at the same time. □ He told me I was lazy, but then in the same breath he said I was doing a good job. □ The teacher said that the students were working hard and, in the same breath, that they were not working hard enough.

in the second place secondly; in addition. (Usually said after one has said in the first place.) □ In the first place, you don't have enough money to buy one. In the second place, you don't need one. □ In the first place, I don't have the time. In the second place, I'm not interested.

in the short haul Go to over the short haul.

in the short run Go to over the short haul.

in the soup Fig. in a bad situation. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ Now I'm really in the soup. I broke Mrs. Franklin's window. □ I make a lot of mistakes. It's easy for me to get into the soup.

in the spotlight 1. Fig. in the beam of a spotlight, as on a stage. □ The singer was in the spotlight but the band was almost in the dark. 2. and in the limelight Fig. at the center of attention. (Limelight refers to an obsolete type of spotlight, and the word occurs only in this phrase.) □ John will do almost anything to get himself into the limelight. □ I love being in the spotlight. □ All elected officials spend a lot of time in the limelight.

in the swim of things Fig. involved in or participating in events or happenings. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ I've been ill, but soon I'll be back in the swim of things. □ I can't wait to settle down and get into the swim of things.

in the trust of someone under the responsibility or in the care of someone. (*Typically: be ~; leave someone or something ~; place someone or something ~.) □ The state placed the orphan in the trust of the foster parents. □ Our bonds are left in the trust of our broker.

in the twinkling of an eye and in the wink of an eye Fig. very quickly. □ In the twinkling of an eye, the deer had disappeared into the forest. □ I gave Bill ten dollars and, in the twinkling of an eye, he spent it.

in the unlikely event of something and in the unlikely event that something happens if something—which probably will not happen—actually happens. □ In the unlikely event of my getting the job, I'll have to buy a car to get there every day. □ In the unlikely event of a fire, please walk quickly to an exit.

in the (very) nick of time Fig. just in time; at the last possible instant; just before it's too late. (*Typically: arrive ~; get there ~; happen ~; reach something ~; save someone ~.) □ The doctor arrived in the nick of time. The patient's life was saved. □ I reached the airport in the very nick of time and made my flight.

in the wake of something Fig. after something; as a result of some event. (Alludes to a ship's wake.) □ We had no place to live in the wake of the fire. □ In the wake of the storm, there were many broken tree limbs.

in the way of someone('s plans) Go to in someone's way.

in the way of someone or something Go to in someone's or something's way.

in the way of something as a kind of something; as a style of something. □ What do you have in the way of dress shoes? □ We have nothing in the way of raincoats.

in the wind Fig. about to happen. □ There are some major changes in the wind. Expect these changes to happen soon. □ There is something in the wind. We'll find out what it is soon.

in the wink of an eye Go to in the twinkling of an eye.

in the works Fig. being prepared; being planned; being done. □ There are some new laws in the works that will affect all of us. □ I have some ideas in the works that you might be interested in.

in the world Go to on earth.

in the worst way Fig. very much. □ I want a new car in the worst way. □ Bob wants to retire in the worst way.

in the wrong wrong; morally or legally incorrect. □ I am not in the wrong, you are. □ No, you are in the wrong.

in the wrong place at the wrong time in the location where something bad is to happen exactly when it happens. □ I always get into trouble. I'm just in the wrong place at the wrong time. □ It's isn't my fault. I was just in the wrong place at the wrong time.

in their entirety Go to in its entirety.

in theory according to a theory; theoretically. □ In theory, if I take my medicine regularly, I will get well. □ How things work in theory doesn't always match with how things work in reality.

in there Sl. sincere; likeable. □ Martha is really in there. Everybody likes her. □ I like a guy who's in there—who thinks about other people.

in there pitching Fig. trying very hard. □ Bob is always in there pitching. □ Just stay in there pitching. You'll make some progress eventually.

in these parts Rur. around here; in this area. □ There aren't any big hospitals in these parts. □ Joe's the richest man in these parts.

the in thing (to do) the fashionable thing to do. □ Eating low-fat food is the in thing to do. □ Bob is very old-fashioned. He never does the in thing.

in this day and age Fig. now; in these modern times. □ Bill: Ted flunked out of school. Mother: Imagine that! Especially in this day and age. □ Bill: Taxes keep going up and up. Bob: What do you expect in this day and age?

in those parts Rur. around there; in that area. □ I've got a cousin who lives in those parts. □ We used to spend our vacations in those parts.

in time Go to in due course.

in time (with something) Go to in step (with something).

in times past Fig. long ago; in previous times. □ In times past, you would not have been able to wear casual clothing to work. □ In times past, the air always seemed fresher and cleaner.

in top form 1. [of someone or some creature] in very good physical condition. □ The runners are in top form, so this should be a good race. □ I'm not in top form, but I'm not completely out of shape either. 2. able to make witty remarks and clever statements quickly and easily. □ That was really funny, Bob. You are in top form tonight. □ The president was in top form and entertained the audience with her speech.

in touch (with someone) 1. Fig. in contact with someone by letter or telephone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; keep ~.) □ I tried to get in touch with her, but she never answered her phone. □ I just couldn't seem to get in touch. 2. Fig. [of oneself] having self-knowledge. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I need to get in touch with myself and the way I really feel about things. □ She needs to try more to be in touch with herself and her feelings.

in touch with someone or something 1. Fig. in communication with someone or a group. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Are you in touch with your brother, or have you two grown apart? □ I am in touch with the person whom you asked about. 2. Fig. sympathetic or sensitive to someone or something; having good contact or rapport with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ We talk to each other, but we're not really in touch with each other.

in tow closely following; under someone's control. □ The nanny walked into the park with three children in tow. □ The manager went to the meeting with her staff in tow.

in transit while in the process of being transported. □ Dave is in transit from London to Chicago. □ The new stereo is now in transit from the manufacturer.

in triplicate [of a document] produced in three copies. □ Mr. Smith asked me to copy his notes in triplicate. □ I completed each form in triplicate.

in trouble 1. in danger; in difficulty; due for punishment. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ If you don't be quiet, you're going to be in trouble. □ The company was in trouble for months, and then went bankrupt. 2. Euph. pregnant and unmarried. (*Typically: be ~; get [into] ~.) □ They had to get married. She was in trouble. □ She'll be in trouble before long, if she doesn't quit running around like that.

in tune in a state where musical notes are at their proper intervals so that none are flat or sharp. □ Your piano is in tune. □ The choir members all sang in tune.

in tune with someone or something 1. Lit. in musical harmony with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The violin is in tune with the piano. □ The tenor is not in tune with the bass. 2. Fig. in agreement with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Bill is just not in tune with the company's policies.

in tune with the times Fig. up-to-date; in fashion. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Look at that old jacket, Bill. You're not in tune with the times.

in turn in the appropriate point in the series or order; when one's turn comes. □ Someone has to wash the dishes after every meal. All of us will have to do it in turn. □ All three of them shared the task of carrying water in turn.

in two shakes of a lamb's tail Fig. in a very short time; very quickly. □ Jane returned in two shakes of a lamb's tail. □ Mike was able to solve the problem in two shakes of a lamb's tail.

in unison [of musical notes, instruments, or voices] having the same pitch. □ This part of the piece is performed in unison. □ The twins sang in unison.

in use [of some facility or device] occupied or busy. □ Sorry, this room is in use. □ How long will it be in use?

in vain for no purpose; [done] as a failure. □ They rushed her to the hospital, but they did it in vain. □ We tried in vain to get her there on time.

in view of something in consideration of something; because of something. □ In view of the high cost of gasoline, I sold my car. □ I won't invite John to the meeting in view of his attitude.

in vogue fashionable; faddish. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ This style of coat is no longer in vogue. □ That word isn't in vogue any longer.

an in (with someone) a way to request a special favor from someone; an amount of influence with someone. (The in is a noun. *Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Did you get an in with the mayor? I have to ask him a favor. □ Sorry, I don't have an in, but I know someone who does.

in with someone favored by someone; experiencing someone's goodwill. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm really in with my Spanish professor. □ I am trying to get in with the bank manager so I can get a loan. □ Are you in with John? I need to ask him for a favor.

in writing in written form rather than spoken. (*Typically: get something ~; have something ~; put something ~.) □ Be sure to get their salary offer in writing.

inaugurate someone as something to install or introduce someone as something. □ The club inaugurated Amy as the new president. □ We will inaugurate Ken as vice president.

incapacitate someone (for something) (for a period of time) to make someone physically unfit for [doing] something for a period of time. □ The accident incapacitated Rick for further work for a year. □ Sam's carelessness incapacitated Frank for a month.

incarcerate someone in something to imprison someone in something. □ The sheriff incarcerated Lefty in the county jail. □ He had wanted to incarcerate Max in the jail too.

inch along (something) to move slowly along something little by little. □ The cat inched along the carpet toward the mouse. □ Traffic was inching along.

inch back to move back very slowly. □ The trainer inched back from the angry tiger. □ The tiger inched back and sprang.

inch by inch Fig. one inch at a time; little by little. □ Traffic moved along inch by inch. □ Inch by inch, the snail moved across the stone.

inch forward to move forward very slowly. □ Inch forward very slowly, and try not to make any noise. □ The cat inched forward, taking care not to alert the bird to its presence.

inch one's way across something and inch oneself across something to creep slowly across something. □ The little green worm inched its way across the branch. □ It inched itself across the leaf.

inch one's way along something and inch oneself along something to creep slowly on or along something. □ I inched my way along the ledge and almost fell off. □ Sharon inched herself along the side of the bridge.

inch oneself across something Go to inch one's way across something.

inch oneself along something Go to inch one's way along something.

inch over to move over a tiny bit. □ Could you inch over a little? I need just a little more room. □ Please inch over a little.

incite someone to something to excite or provoke someone to something. □ The radicals tried to incite the students to violence. □ The students were incited to violent behavior by the lecturer.

incline away (from someone or something) to lean or slope away from someone or something. □ I inclined away from her to avoid her alcohol breath. □ The land inclined away from the house.

incline forward to lean forward; to slant forward. □ The earthquake-ravaged building inclined forward a little bit more and looked as if it was going to fall. □ My chair inclined forward and I kept feeling as if I were going to fall off.

incline something forward to lean something forward; to make something slant forward. □ Incline the light forward a little bit, so you can see better. □ The fence had been inclined slightly forward to make it harder to climb.

incline toward someone or something 1. to lean or slant toward someone or something. □ The piece of scenery inclined toward Roger very slowly and he jumped out of the way just in time. □ The tree inclined toward the direction of the wind. 2. to favor or “lean” toward choosing someone or something. □ I don’t know which to choose. I incline toward Terri but I also favor Amy. □ I’m inclining toward chocolate.

inclined to do something to tend to do something; to lean toward doing something. □ Tom is inclined to tell jokes when he is with a group of people. □ I’m inclined to go to the beach tomorrow if it doesn’t rain.

include someone in (something) to invite someone to participate in something. □ Let’s include Terri in the planning session. □ Without asking, Henry included himself in the group going on a picnic.

include someone or something among something to count someone or something as a member of a group or collection. □ I am happy to include you among my friends. □ Do you include chocolate among your favorite flavors?

include someone out (of something) Fig. to exclude someone from something. (Jocular.) □ I’m not interested in your games. Include me out of them. □ Include me out too.

include something in the bargain Go to throw something into the bargain.

incorporate someone or something in(to) something to build someone or something into something; to combine someone or something into something. □ We want to incorporate you into our sales force very soon. □ The prince had incorporated himself into the main governing body.

increase by leaps and bounds Fig. to increase or grow by large increments. (See also gain by leaps and bounds.) □ The price of our stock is increasing by leaps and bounds.

increase in something to grow or expand in some quality. □ He increased in stature and wisdom. □ The tree increased in size every year.

increase something by something to enlarge something by an amount or degree. □ They increased the size of the house by two hundred square feet. □ The engine size on the new model has been increased by a small amount.

increase something (from something) (to something) to enlarge something from something to something bigger; to enlarge something from one size to a larger size. □ We plan to increase sales from four million to six million dollars. □ I increased my bid to two thousand from one thousand.

increment something by something to increase a sum by a supplement [of a certain figure]. □ Increment the numbering by ten so that 1, 2, 3 becomes 10, 20, 30. □ The base number was incremented by 4.

inculcate someone with something to touch or impress someone with some specific knowledge. □ The teacher sought to inculcate the students with the knowledge they needed. □ Her parents inculcated her with good manners.

inculcate something in(to) someone to instill specific knowledge into someone; to teach something to someone so that it will be remembered. □ They inculcated good manners into their children all their lives. □ We tried to inculcate good morals into our students.

incumbent (up)on someone to do something obligatory for someone to do something. □ It is incumbent upon me to inform you that you are up for review. □ It was incumbent on Mary to mail her application before June 1st.

indemnify someone or something against something to agree to protect someone or something against something, such as damage or a lawsuit. □ Their employer indemnified them against legal action. □ We indemnified the publisher against legal trouble.

indicate something to someone to signify something to someone. (By speech, writing, or some other sign.) □ Karen indicated her agreement to the lawyer. □ Fred indicated his assent to me.

indict someone for something [for a legal body] to arraign someone for a crime or name someone formally as the one accused of a crime. □ The grand jury indicted her for murder. □ Then they indicted Max for grand larceny.

indoctrinate someone into something to teach someone the ways of a group or some activity. □ The staff sought to indoctrinate Walter into the ways of office procedure. □ Todd indoctrinated Ken into camp life.

indoctrinate someone with something to teach someone the official or fundamental knowledge about something. □ They indoctrinated all their spies with the importance of being loyal to the death. □ Ken indoctrinated Todd with revolutionary thinking.

induce labor in someone to cause the onset of childbirth in a mother-to-be. □ They decided to induce labor in the mother-to-be. □ They decided not to induce labor in Alice.

induct someone into something 1. to conscript someone into the armed services; to bring a nonvolunteer into the armed services. □ They inducted Wally into the army in a little ceremony. 2. to draft someone into something. □ They inducted a number of new members into the group. 3. to install someone in an office or position. □ They inducted her into the presidency. □ The college inducted a new president into office last week.

indulge in something 1. to take pleasure in doing something; to do something habitually. □ No, I don’t indulge in contact sports anymore. □ We don’t indulge in strenuous activity. 2. to choose to eat a certain food or drink something, usually alcohol. □ I don’t usually indulge in hard spirits, but just this once. □ I indulge in chocolate until I can’t hold any more.

indulge someone with something to grant someone the favor or privilege of something. Please indulge me with this one favor. He always indulged himself with dinner at a nice restaurant when he went into town.

infatuated with someone or something to be in love with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) She is infatuated with John. John is infatuated with chocolate ice cream.

infect someone with something 1. to transmit disease-causing organisms to someone. (Someone includes oneself.) Please don't infect me with your cold germs. Somehow, she infected herself with the virus she was studying. 2. to affect someone with something, such as excitement, joy, desires, etc. Her explosive laughter infected everyone with good spirits.

infer something from something to reach a conclusion from something; to deduce facts from something, such as someone's words, a situation, etc. What can we infer from the experience we have just had? You should not infer anything from Sue's remarks.

infested with something to be contaminated with a swarm or throng of some pest. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) All the campers are infested with lice. The dog is infested with ticks.

infiltrate into something 1. to permeate something; to filter into something. The sour smell infiltrated into everything in the refrigerator. The paint smell infiltrated into every room in the house. 2. and infiltrate something to penetrate a group, secretly, for the purposes of spying or influencing the activities of the group. The spy infiltrated into the enemy headquarters. They infiltrated into the government.

inflate something with something 1. Lit. to fill up something with air or some other gas. Jerry has to inflate all the balloons with helium. Ken inflated the balloons with gas. 2. Fig. to make a sum appear larger by including additional irrelevant amounts. I think that she has inflated her expense report with too many miles of travel. Don't inflate your expense report with extra costs.

inflict someone (up)on someone to burden someone with the care or keeping of someone else. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) Please don't inflict Bob upon me. My brother inflicted his children on us for the weekend. Well, I certainly don't want to inflict myself on you for the weekend, but I do need a place to stay.

inflict something (up)on someone or something to impose something, such as pain, a burden, a problem, etc., on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I hate to inflict an additional burden upon you, but someone has to clean the oven. Please don't inflict that on me.

inform on someone to tell the authorities about someone; to tattle on someone. I am going to have to inform on you. Liz informed on Ken to their mother.

inform someone about someone or something to tell someone about someone or something. How is my friend Tom getting on? I asked you to inform me about him from time to time. Please inform me about the state of the contract for the book.

inform someone of something to tell someone a fact. Please inform Sally of my decision. Sally has been informed of your decision.

inform someone on someone to tattle (on someone) (to someone). I will inform the teacher on you! Billy informed his mother on Bobby.

infringe (up)on something to interfere with the rights of someone or with someone's property rights; to encroach on something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) You are infringing upon my right to free speech. I am not infringing on your property. I'm in my own yard.

infuse someone with something to teach someone a body of knowledge or a perspective on a body of knowledge. The schools sought to infuse the children with a sense of history. Children should be infused with a respect for the rights of others.

infuse something into someone to instill specific knowledge into a person; to teach someone something very well. The boss infused a lot of company information into the new assistant before she took another job. The teacher infused a lot of knowledge into the students in a short time.

infuse something into something to mix something into something. You should infuse this mixture into the tea. The tea was infused into the water very slowly.

infuse something with something to make something mix into some liquid. He infused the mixture with a strong solution of soap. The chemical mixture was infused with the other solution.

ingratiate oneself into something to work hard to bring oneself into the favor of someone. Oh, how he fawns over the guests! Isn't it terrible the way he tries to ingratiate himself into their favor? You will never succeed in ingratiating yourself into my good graces.

ingratiate oneself with someone to work oneself into someone's favor. Why do you have to ingratiate yourself with everyone? Don't you know how to be just plain friends? She was very obvious in her effort to ingratiate herself with the boss.

inherit something from someone 1. to receive something from the estate of a person who has died. I inherited this silver bowl from my aunt. Liz inherited her house from her parents. 2. to receive a genetic or behavioral trait from a relative. I inherited my stubbornness from my father's side of the family. My dark hair was inherited from my father.

inhibit someone from doing something to keep someone from doing something. We will attempt to inhibit Karen from doing it, but we have no control over her. A serious case of shyness inhibited Harry from participating in things.

inhibit something from doing something to keep something from happening. We need to inhibit the weeds from further growth. The weeds were inhibited from spreading by the application of a pesticide.

initiate someone into something 1. to induct someone into an organization or activity, usually in a ceremony. They will initiate me into the fraternity next week. They initiated all their new members into the club at once. 2. to introduce someone to the activities associated with a job or other situation. The personnel department will initiate you into our office routines. Our procedures are com- plicated and it takes weeks to initiate a new employee into all our procedures.

inject something into someone, something, or some creature and inject someone, something, or some creature with something to give a hypodermic injection of something to someone or an animal. The nurse injected the medicine into my arm. He injected a very large dose into the patient.

inject something into something 1. Lit. to squirt something, such as oil, water, etc., into something. The pump injected the oil into the wheel bearings when I squeezed the lever. The mechanic injected a solvent into the lock.
2. Fig. to put something, such as humor, excitement, etc., into a situation. Let's inject a little humor into this dismal affair. She likes to inject a lot of excitement into her books.

ink something in! 1. to fill in an outline with ink. Please ink the drawing in with care. Ink in the drawing carefully.
2. to write something in ink. Please ink your name in on the dotted line. Now, ink in your signature on this line right here.

*an inkling (about someone or something) an idea about someone or something; a hint about the nature of someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I had an inkling about the problems that you were going to run into.

*an inkling (of something) a hint about something that is to happen. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) The speeches gave us an inkling of what we could expect from the new president.

inlay something with something to decorate something by cutting in a design and filling the cut with some decorative substance. The workers inlaid the tabletop with bits of polished seashell. The tabletop was inlaid with a lovely design.

innocent as a lamb and innocent as a newborn babe 1. guiltless. (*Also: as ~.) "Hey! You can't throw me in jail," cried the robber. "I'm innocent as a lamb."
2. naive; inexperienced. (*Also: as ~.) She's eighteen years old, but innocent as a newborn babe.

innocent as a newborn babe Go to previous.

inoculate someone against something to immunize someone against a disease. We need to inoculate all the children against whooping cough. Have you been inoculated against measles?

inoculate someone with something to use a particular substance in immunizing someone against a disease. Donna inoculated Richard and Nancy with yellow fever vaccine for their trip. She also inoculated Sam with something to prevent malaria.

inquire about someone or something to ask about someone or something. I inquired about Tom and was told that he doesn't live here anymore. You will have to inquire about that at the front desk.

inquire after someone to ask about the well-being of someone. Jerry inquired after you when I saw him at the store today. I will inquire after his wife the next time I see him.

inquire for someone to ask to see someone. Mr. Franklin, there is a man out here inquiring for you. What shall I tell him? Who is inquiring for me?

inquire into something to look into something; to investigate something by asking questions. I will inquire into your complaint. It sounds as if something is wrong. We have not inquired into it yet.

inquire something of someone to ask some information of someone. I need to inquire something of you. May I inquire something personal of you?

inquire within to ask questions of a person inside [some place, such as a store or office]. (Formula. On a sign posted outside.) "Help wanted. Inquire within," read the sign on the door. If you want to apply, you must inquire within.

the ins and outs (of something) the correct and successful way to do something; the special things that one needs to know to do something. I don't understand the ins and outs of politics. Jane knows the ins and outs of repairing computers.

inscribe something into something to write or engrave a dedication on a gift to someone. (Emphasis is on the act of inscribing.) It was a lovely watch. I asked them to inscribe something into the back, so I could remember the occasion. My initials were inscribed into the wristband.

inscribe something on(to) something to write or engrave certain information on something. (Emphasis is on the message that is inscribed.) The jeweler inscribed Amy's good wishes onto the watch. I inscribed my name on my tools.

inscribe something with something to engrave something with a message. Could you please inscribe this trophy with the information on this sheet of paper? I inscribed the bracelet with her name.

insert something between something and something else to put something in between things. Insert this marker between pages ten and eleven. A marker was inserted between the pages.

insert something in(to) something to push or stick something into something. Insert the card into the slot and pull the lever. Insert the coins in the machine. I need to insert another paragraph into this article.

inside a week in less than a week. We must get all this sorted out inside a week; all right? We've got inside a week to get it right.

inside information information known only by those most involved with the issue; secret information relating to an organization. I have some inside information about the Smith Company.

an inside job a crime committed by someone working or living at the scene of the crime. There was little doubt that it was an inside job, thought the inspector. It's a particularly cunning way to carry out an inside job.

an inside joke a joke that only certain people understand; a joke understood only by people who know certain facts and context. What you said must be an inside joke. It makes no sense to me.

the inside story an explanation known only by those most involved with the issue. □ Well, I've heard the inside story, and it isn't what you were told at all!

*the inside track Fig. an advantage (over someone) gained through special connections, special knowledge, or favoritism. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ If I could get the inside track, I could win the contract. □ The boss likes me. Since I've got the inside track, I'll probably be the new office manager.

insinuate oneself into something to work oneself into a group or situation. □ She had sought for years to insinuate herself into Terry's organization. □ Must you always insinuate yourself into my set of friends?

insinuate something to someone to hint at something to someone; to imply something to someone. □ You think I am interested in you for your money! Is that what you are insinuating to me? □ I did not insinuate anything to you!

insist (up)on something to demand something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I want you here now! We all insist upon it! □ I insist on it too.

inspire someone with something to use something to inspire someone; to stimulate or encourage someone with something. □ The president inspired us all with patriotic speeches. □ She inspired us all with her story of heroism.

inspire something in someone to stimulate a particular quality in someone. □ You do not particularly inspire trust in me. □ She inspires fear in me.

install someone as something to inaugurate or launch someone into the role of something. □ The board installed Jerry as the new parliamentarian. □ She installed herself as the boss of the kitchen and wouldn't allow anyone else in.

install something in someone or something to insert or build something into someone or something. □ We are going to install a trash compactor in our kitchen. □ The doctors installed a pacemaker in Donald.

instigate someone to do something to prompt someone to do something; to urge or cause someone to do something. □ Are you the one who instigated Terry to start all this trouble? □ Did you instigate the children to do this?

instill someone with something to imbue or impress someone with something. □ Her story instilled us all with courage. □ She instilled us with courage.

instill something in(to) someone to impress something into someone's mind. □ You need to remember your manners. I want to instill that into you. □ Good manners were instilled in me at home.

instill something in(to) something to add something to a situation. □ The presence of the mayor instilled a legitimacy into the proceedings. □ Sharon sought to instill a little levity in the meeting.

institute something against someone or something to initiate something against someone or something. □ The hospital decided to institute proceedings against her for failing to pay her bill. □ The prosecutor instituted a case against the county board.

instruct someone in something to teach someone about something. □ Amy will instruct you in the way to hang paper. □ The manager instructed Ken in the best method of entering data into the computer.

instrumental in doing something playing an important part in doing something. □ John was instrumental in getting the contract to build the new building. □ Our senator was instrumental in defeating the bill.

insulate someone or something against someone or something and insulate someone or something from someone or something to protect someone or something against the effect of someone or something. □ Use an extra blanket to insulate the baby against the cold. □ John is a bad influence on the children, and I've taken care to insulate them against him. □ We insulated the children from the effects of John and his bad habits.

insure against something to guard or protect against something. □ You must insure against theft and fire. □ I will insure against all risks.

insure someone or something (against something) (for something) to provide insurance for someone or something against certain perils up to a certain amount of money. □ I insured my wife against accidental death for $100,000. □ We insured the car for its current value against all losses.

insure someone or something with something to provide insurance for someone or something from a specific company. □ I insured Amy with a fine old insurance company. □ We insured the car with Acme Insurance in Adamsville.

integrate someone or something into something to combine someone or something into something; to work someone or something into something. □ We sought to integrate Amy into the everyday affairs of the company. □ We sought to integrate the new family into the ways of the community.

integrate someone with someone to mix people together; to unify people into one group. □ The new regional YMCA will help Hispanics integrate with others in our community. □ They integrated themselves with the people already in attendance.

integrate something with something to merge things together; to join things into one. □ I want to integrate the accounting department with the auditing department to save a little money. □ They integrated your department with mine.

intend something as something to mean something to serve as something. □ We intend this money as a gift. Do not even think about paying it back. □ This money is intended as a gift.

intend something for someone or something to mean for someone or something to get something. □ I intended this one for you. I'm sorry I failed to give it to you in time. □ Aunt Em intended this cake for the county fair, but you can have it instead.

intent on doing something determined to do something. □ The children were intent on making a snowman. □ The prisoner was intent on escaping.

inter someone in something to bury someone in something or in some place. □ They chose to inter her in the family burial plot. □ She was interred in the vault with the rest of the family.

interact with someone to converse with and exchange ideas with someone. □ In act two, I want Terri to interact with Amy a little more. They act as if they never even met each other. □ The students will interact with one another in their study projects.

interact with something to have a reciprocal action with something; to react with something. (Often refers to the negative consequences of interaction.) □ Will this drug interact with coffee? □ This drug will not interact with your current medication.

intercede (for someone) (with someone or something) to intervene on behalf of someone with someone or a group; to plead someone's case with someone or a group. □ I will intercede for Charlotte with the council. □ Tom interceded with Fred for Sharon, who was too shy to speak for herself.

interchange someone with someone else to exchange one person for another. □ I interchanged Sally with Roger for the honor of being first speaker. □ Roger has been interchanged with Sally.

interchange something with something to exchange one thing for another. □ Please interchange the orange one with the purple one. □ The orange one has been interchanged with the red one.

interest someone in someone or something to arouse the interest of someone in someone or something. □ Yes, I can recommend someone for you to hire. Could I interest you in Tom? He's one of our best workers. □ Can I interest you in checking out a book from the library?

interest someone in something to cause someone to wish to purchase something. □ Could I interest you in something with a little more style to it? □ Can I interest you in some additional insurance on your life?

interface someone or something with someone or something to bring about a complex connection of people and things, in any combination. (Originally having to do with computers.) □ Let's interface Walter with the staff from the main office. □ I want to interface my data with Sam, who has some relevant statistics from prior years.

interface with someone or something to develop a connection or interaction with someone or something. □ Call Walter and set up a meeting so we can interface with him. □ This computer is meant to interface with as many as five others just like it.

interfere in something to meddle in something; to become involved in someone else's business. □ Don't interfere in my business! □ Are you interfering in this matter again?

interfere with someone or something to meddle with something or someone's affairs. □ Please do not interfere with us. □ Are you interfering with my project?

interject someone into something to force someone into something, usually into someone else's business. □ I am going to have to interject Fred into this matter before it gets out of hand. □ I hate to interject myself into your affairs, but I have something to say.

interject something into something to volunteer information or a comment into a conversation. □ We can always count on Liz to interject something sensible into our discussions. □ At last, something sensible has been interjected into our discussions.

interlace something with something to weave something into something else. □ I will interlace some silver thread with the white yarn. □ The manufacturer had interlaced a silver thread into the yarn.

intermarry with someone [for members of a group] to marry into another group, race, or clan. □ Our people don't intermarry with people of that clan. □ They do not intermarry with other groups on purpose.

intermingle something with something to mingle or merge things with things. □ Don't intermingle the U.S. mail with the interoffice mail. □ The office mail had been intermingled with the regular mail!

intermingle with someone to mingle or merge with people. □ The mugger intermingled with the people on the street and could not be recognized. □ Let's intermingle with the guests.

intern someone in something to detain or imprison a person in something. □ The government interned the enemy prisoners in the camps for a few months. □ He was interned in a prison camp during the war.

interpose someone or something between people or things to put someone or something between people or things, in any combination. □ I do not wish to interpose Randy between the twins. □ We will not interpose our own standards between these two warring factions.

interpose something in(to) something to introduce something into something; to put a question into a conversation. □ The chairman interposed a question into the discussion. □ May I interpose an observation in the proceedings?

interpret for someone to translate speech in a foreign language for someone. (Interpreting is done in real time.) □ Nina interpreted for Michael, since he understood very little Russian. □ Is there someone who can interpret for me?

interpret something as something to assume that something means something. □ Don't interpret what I just said as criticism. □ It will be interpreted as criticism no matter what you say.

interpret something for someone 1. to translate a foreign language for someone. (Interpreting is done in real time.) □ Could you interpret the ambassador's address for me? □ Nina interpreted the director's greetings for the visitors. 2. to explain something unclear to someone. □ Let me interpret the instructions for you. □ The instructions have been interpreted for me by the manager.

intersperse something among something to place something among things at random. □ We interspersed a few chocolate doughnuts among all the plain ones. □ Some chocolate ones had been interspersed among the plain ones.

intersperse something between something to place things between other things, perhaps regularly or in a pattern. □ We interspersed an onion plant between each pair of plants. □ Onions had been interspersed between every two marigold plants.

intersperse something throughout something to put things throughout something. □ He interspersed recommendations for a better life throughout the book. □ Good advice had been interspersed throughout the book.

intersperse something with something to provide or bestow something with something. □ You should intersperse some red flowers with the orange ones. □ The book was interspersed with good advice.

intertwine something with something to mingle or twist something together with something else. □ She intertwined the flowers with the sprigs of greenery, making a lovely wreath. □ The flowers were intertwined with sprigs of greenery.

intertwine with something to twist together with something else. □ The vines intertwined with the ropes and cables that had once held the beached raft together. □ The cables from the two cranes intertwined with each other, causing a serious accident.

intervene between someone and someone else to intercede between someone and someone else. □ I decided to intervene between Ralph and his brother, who were arguing endlessly. □ There was no point in intervening between Bill and Bob.

intervene in something to get involved in something. □ I will have to intervene in this matter. It's getting out of hand. □ I want to intervene in this before it becomes a major problem.

intervene with someone or something to step into a matter concerning someone or something. □ Megan said she would intervene with the bank manager on our behalf. □ Do I need to intervene with this process?

interview someone for something [for an employer] to discuss employment in a particular job with a person seeking employment. □ We will interview her for the manager's job. □ We will interview the rest of them for the position tomorrow.

interview with someone for something [for a person seeking employment] to discuss employment in a particular job with an employer. □ She interviewed with the civic opera company for a job in the business department. □ I interviewed with Roger for the job.

intimate apparel Euph. women's underwear. □ "You'll find bras and body shapers in the intimate apparel," said the salesclerk at the department store. □ The catalog features intimate apparel for the grande dame.

intimate something to someone to suggest or imply something to someone. □ What are you intimating to me? □ I intimated nothing at all to you.

intimate with someone Euph. having sexual intercourse with someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ He had never been intimate with a woman before. □ They were intimate with each other for the first time that night.

intimidate someone into something to threaten or frighten someone into doing something. □ Do you think you can intimidate me into working for you? □ We weren't intimidated into doing it.

intimidate someone with something to threaten or frighten someone with something. □ Please don't try to intimidate me with your silly threats! □ We hadn't been intimidated with their threats.

in(to) a jam Fig. in(to) a difficult situation. □ Mary cannot keep track of the many times Dave got himself into a jam. □ I found myself in a jam when my car overheated on the highway.

into being into existence. □ The new law brought more problems into being. □ That idea came into being centuries ago.

in(to) someone's clutches Fig. in the control of someone who has power or authority over someone else. □ Snow

White fell into the clutches of the evil witch. □ Once you're in my clutches, I'll ruin you.

intoxicate someone with someone or something Fig. to enthrall or entrance someone with someone or something. (See also intoxicate someone with something.) □ She intoxicated him with her smiling eyes. □ The king intoxicated the dignitaries with his beautiful daughter, whom he offered in marriage to the bravest of them all.

intoxicate someone with something to make someone drunk with alcohol. □ I think that the plaintiff set out to intoxicate the defendant with liquor and then fake a crime. □ Jed set out to intoxicate Max with gin and then rob him. □ Alice intoxicated herself with too much whiskey.

intrigue someone with someone or something to fascinate someone with someone or something. □ Walter intrigued the baby with his keys and funny faces. □ The king intrigued the guests with a seductive dancer who had trained in the Far East.

intrigue (with someone) (against someone) to conspire with someone against someone. □ You are guilty of intriguing with an enemy against the government. □ I did not intrigue against anyone.

introduce someone into something to bring someone into something; to launch someone into something. □ Tony introduced Wally into his club. □ You do not wish me to introduce myself into local social life, do you?

introduce someone to someone to make someone acquainted with someone else. □ I would like to introduce you to my cousin, Rudolph. □ Allow me to introduce myself to you.

introduce something into something to bring something into something or some place; to bring something into something as an innovation. □ The decorator introduced a little bit of bright red into the conference room. □ After I introduced the new procedures into the factory, production increased enormously.

intrude into something to get involved in something that is someone else's business. □ I don't want to intrude into your affairs, but I see that you're short of money. □ Please don't intrude into this matter.

intrude oneself into something to work oneself into some matter that is someone else's business. □ I hate to intrude myself into your conversation, but don't I know you? □ Please do not intrude yourself into this matter.

intrude (up)on someone or something to encroach on someone or something or matters that concern only someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I didn't mean to intrude upon you. □ Please don't intrude on our meeting. Please wait outside.

inundate someone or something with something 1. Lit. to flood someone or something with fluid. □ The river inundated the fields with three feet of water. □ The storm inundated us with heavy rain. 2. Fig. to overwhelm someone with someone or something. □ They inundated us with mail. □ The children inundated us with requests for their favorite songs. □ The citizens inundated the legislature with demands for jobs.

inure someone or something to something to accustom someone to someone or something. □ We wanted to inure you to this kind of problem, but here it is and you must face it.

□ The coach inured the team to the thought of losing. □ She had long ago inured herself to criticism of this type.

invasion of (someone's) privacy Fig. an intrusion that results in the loss of someone's privacy. □ Your invasion of my privacy is not welcome! □ The athlete complained about the invasion of his privacy by the press.

inveigh against someone or something to attack someone or something verbally. □ Why must you always inveigh against Dan whenever I mention his name? □ Stop inveighing against the government all the time.

inveigle someone into something to coax or trick someone into doing something. □ We tried to inveigle her into attending, but she caught on to us. □ I was inveigled into doing it.

inveigle someone out of something to deceive someone into giving something up. □ Are you trying to inveigle me out of my money? □ I was inveigled out of my money by a common thief.

inveigle something out of someone to get something away from someone, usually by deception or persuasion. □ They inveigled a large donation out of Mrs. Smith. □ The crooks tried to inveigle a fortune out of the old lady.

invest in someone or something to put resources into someone or something in hopes of increasing the value of the person or thing. (The emphasis is on the act of investing.) □ We invested in Tom, and we have every right to expect a lot from him. □ She invested in junk bonds heavily.

invest someone's time in something Fig. to put one's time, effort, or energy into a project. □ Mary invests her time in charity work. □ I invested five weeks of my time building this model ship.

invest someone with something to endow someone with something, such as power or privilege. □ The constitution invests the vice president with the authority to act on the president's behalf in certain conditions. □ The state has invested me with the authority to unite this couple in marriage.

invest something in someone or something 1. to put money, time, effort, etc., into someone or something, hoping for a return. □ We will invest time and effort in Fred and make him into a recording star. □ Sharon invested a lot of money in the stock market. 2. to place power or authority under control of someone or something. □ The constitution has invested certain powers in the federal government and left the rest to the states. □ The law invests the power to arrest criminals in the sheriff's department.

invite someone into some place and invite someone in^t to bid or request someone to enter a place. □ Don't leave Dan out there in the rain. Invite him into the house! □ Oh, do invite in the children!

invite someone out^t to ask someone out on a date. □ I would love to invite you out sometime. If I did, would you go? □ Has he ever invited out a girl on a date?

invite someone over^t (for something) to bid or request someone to come to one's house for something, such as a meal, party, chat, cards, etc. □ Let's invite Tony and Nick over for dinner. □ Let's invite over some new people.

invite someone to something to bid or request someone to come to an event. □ Shall we invite Sally to the party? □ I didn't invite her. She invited herself to this affair.

invoke something (up)on someone or something to call something, such as judgment, power, wrath of God, etc., to deal with someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The duke invoked the wrath of God upon his enemies—to no avail. □ Walter invoked divine assistance on the proceedings, which weren't going very well.

involve someone in something to draw someone into a matter or problem. □ Please don't involve me in this mess. □ I do not wish to involve myself in Alice's business. □ I didn't want to involve you in the problem we are having with the police.

involve someone with someone or something 1. to cause someone to associate with someone or something. □ Don't try to involve me with John. I can't stand him. □ We will try to involve all the teachers with the new association. □ I will not involve myself with such goings-on. 2. to connect someone or someone's name to activity (often wrongdoing) associated with someone or something. □ Don't try to involve Amy with the crime. She is innocent. □ We involved the committee with the intense lobbying effort, and everyone began to see the extent of its influence.

involved (with someone) 1. associated with someone romantically. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Sally is getting involved with Bill. They've been seeing a lot of each other. □ I hope they don't get too involved with each other. 2. having established a romantic association with something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Bill is involved with Jane, and it's looking serious. □ Mary is very much involved with Tom.

involved with something established in an association with something or some organization. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; become ~.) □ Bill got involved with a volunteer organization. □ Mary is very much involved with her club activities.

iron something out^t 1. Lit. to use a flatiron to make cloth flat or smooth. □ I will iron the drapes out, so they will hang together. □ I ironed out the drapes. 2. Fig. to ease a problem; to smooth out a problem. (Here problem is synonymous with wrinkle.) □ It's only a little problem. I can iron it out very quickly. □ We will iron out all these little matters first.

is all Rur. That is all [and nothing more].; That is all I meant to say and there are no further implications. (Often used to end a sentence.) □ I'm not mad at you. I'm just disappointed, is all. □ Jane's not a bad kid. She's headstrong, is all.

(Is) anything going on? Inf. Is there anything exciting or interesting happening here? □ Andrew: Hey, man! Anything going on? Henry: No. This place is dull as can be. □ Bob: Come in, Tom. Tom: Is anything going on? Bob: No. You've come on a very ordinary day.

(Is) everything okay? Inf. How are you?; How are things? □ John: Hi, Mary. Is everything okay? Mary: Sure. What about you? John: I'm okay. □ Waiter: Is everything okay? Bill: Yes, it's fine.

(Is it) cold enough for you? Inf. a greeting inquiry made during very cold weather. □ Bob: Hi, Bill! Is it cold enough for you? Bill: It's unbelievable! □ John: Glad to see you. Is it cold enough for you? Bill: Oh, yes! This is awful!

(Is it) hot enough for you? Inf. a greeting inquiry made during very hot weather. □ Bob: Hi, Bill! Is it hot enough for you? Bill: Yup. John: Nice to see you here! Is it hot enough for you? Bill: Good grief, yes! This is awful!

Is someone there? a way of requesting to talk to someone in particular over the telephone. (This is not just a request to find out where someone is. The someone is usually a person's name.) □ Tom: Hello? Mary: Hello. Is Bill there? Tom: No. Can I take a message? Tom: Hello? Mary: Hello. Is Tom there? Tom: Speaking.

Is that everything? Go to (Will there be) anything else?

Is that right? Go to next.

Is that so? and Is that right? 1. Is what you said correct? (With rising question intonation.) □ *Henry: These are the ones we need. Andrew: Is that right? They don't look so good to me. Fred: Tom is the one who came in late. Rachel: Is that so? It looked like Bill to me. 2. That is what you say, but I do not believe you. (No rising question intonation. Slightly rude.) □ *Mary: You are making a mess of this. Alice: Is that so? And I suppose that you're perfect? Bob: I found your performance to be weak in a number of places. Henry: Is that right? I suppose you could have done better?

Is there any truth to something? Is something true?; Is what I have heard true? (no truth to in the negative.) □ Is there any truth to the gossip that Harry is leaving school? No, there is no truth to that at all.

Is there anything else? Go to (Will there be) anything else?

Is there some place I can wash up? Go to Where can I wash up?

(Is) this (seat) taken? an inquiry made by a person in a theater, auditorium, etc., asking someone already seated whether an adjacent seat is available or already taken. □ Finally, Bill came to a row where there was an empty seat. Bill leaned over to the person sitting beside the empty seat and whispered, "Is this seat taken?" Fred: 'Scuse me. This taken? Alice: No. Help yourself.

isolate someone or something from someone or something to keep people or things separated from one another, in any combination. □ They isolated everyone from Sam, who was ill with malaria. We isolated the children from the source of the disease.

issue a call for something to make a public invitation or request for something. □ The prime minister issued a call for peace. The person who organized the writing contest issued a call for entries.

issue (forth) from some place to go out or come out of a place. □ The news releases issued forth from the pressroom on a regular basis. Clear water issued from the side of the hill.

issue from something to come out or flow out of something. □ A delicious perfume issued from Sally's hair as she passed. A wonderful aroma issued from the kitchen as the bread baked.

issue someone with something to provide someone with something; to distribute something to someone. □ We issued them with the clothes they needed for the trip. Everyone was issued with supplies.

issue something as something to release or send out something as something. □ They issued this month's magazine as a special double issue. The publisher issued this month's magazine as the very last one.

issue something to someone to distribute or dispense something to someone. □ The front office issued new assignments to everyone today. New keys were issued to everyone.

It ain't fittin'. Rur. It is not right; It is inappropriate. □ It ain't fittin' for the bridegroom to see his bride before the ceremony. Young folks shouldn't talk back to their elders. It ain't fittin'.

(It) beats me. and (It's) got me beat.; You got me beat. Inf. I do not know the answer.; I cannot figure it out. The question has me stumped. (The stress is on me.) □ Bill: When are we supposed to go over to Tom's? Bill: Beats me. Sally: What's the largest river in the world? Bob: You got me beat.

it behooves one to do something Cliché it is necessary for one to do something; it is incumbent (up) on someone to do something. □ It behooves me to report the crime. It behooves you to pay for the window that you broke.

It blows my mind! Sl. It really amazes and shocks me. □ Bill: Did you hear about Tom's winning the lottery? Sue: Yes, it blows my mind! John: Look at all that paper! What a waste of trees! Jane: It blows my mind!

(It) can't be helped. and (It) couldn't be helped. Nothing can be done to help the situation.; The situation could not have been avoided. □ John: The accident has blocked traffic in two directions. Jane: It can't be helped. They have to get the people out of the cars and send them to the hospital. Bill: My goodness, the lawn looks dead! Sue: It can't be helped. There's no rain and water is rationed. John: I'm sorry I broke your figurine. Sue: It couldn't be helped. John: I'll replace it. Sue: That would be nice. Bill: I'm sorry I'm late. I hope it didn't mess things up. Bob: It can't be helped.

(It) couldn't be better. and (Things) couldn't be better. Everything is fine. □ John: How are things going? Jane: Couldn't be better. Bill: I hope everything is okay with your new job. Mary: Things couldn't be better.

(It) couldn't be helped. Go to (It) can't be helped.

It cuts two ways. Inf. There are two sides to the situation. □ You have to help, too. It cuts two ways. It cuts two ways, you know. It can't always all be my fault.

(It) doesn't bother me any. and (It) doesn't bother me at all. It does not trouble me at all.; I have no objection. (Compare this with (It) don't bother me none. Not very polite or cordial. See also (It) won't bother me any. for the future tense of this expression.) □ John: Do you mind if I sit here? Jane: Doesn't bother me any. Sally (smoking a cigarette): Do you mind if I smoke? Bill: It doesn't bother me any.

(It) doesn't bother me at all. Go to previous.

(It) doesn't hurt to ask. and (It) never hurts to ask. a phrase said when one asks a question, even when the answer is known to be no. □ John: Can I take some of these papers home with me? Jane: No, you can't. You know that. John: Well, it doesn't hurt to ask. Sue: Can I have two of these? Sally: Certainly not! Sue: Well, it never hurts to ask. Sally: Well, it just may!

It doesn't quite suit me. Go to This doesn't quite suit me.

(It) don't bother me none. Inf. It does not affect me one way or the other.; It doesn't bother me any. (Familiar and ungrammatical. Sometimes used for effect.) □ John: Mind if I sit here? Bob: It don't bother me none. □ Mary: Can I smoke? Bill: Don't bother me none.

(It) don't cut no ice (with someone). and (It) don't cut no squares (with someone). Rur. (It) doesn't influence me. □ That excuse don't cut no ice with me. □ I'm tired of you coming home drunk. Your fancy apologies don't cut no squares.

(It) don't cut no squares (with someone) Go to previous.

(It) don't make me no nevermind. Go to (It) makes no difference to me.

It figures. It makes sense.; It confirms what one might have guessed.; I'm not surprised. □ Bob: Tom was the one who broke the window. Bill: It figures. He's very careless. □ Ann: Mary was the last one to arrive. Sally: It figures. She's always late.

It has someone's name on it. Fig. It belongs to someone.; It is meant for someone. □ A: Is that an extra piece of cake? B: Yes, and it has your name on it.

(It) hasn't been easy. and Things haven't been easy. Things have been difficult, but I have gotten through. □ Bill: I'm so sorry about all your troubles. I hope things are all right now. Bob: It hasn't been easy, but things are okay now. □ John: How are you getting on after your dog died? Bill: Things haven't been easy.

[it is] See also the entries beginning with it's.

It is a long lane that has no turning. Prov. Bad times cannot continue forever.; Things will soon improve. □ Nancy: It's been six months, and neither one of us can find work. I'm afraid we're going to lose everything. Bill: Don't despair, honey. It is a long lane that has no turning. □ Your luck has been bad for a long time, but it is a long lane that has no turning. I'm sure things will change soon.

It is a poor heart that never rejoices. and It is a sad heart that never rejoices. Prov. Even a habitually sad person cannot be sad all the time. (Sometimes used to indicate that a habitually sad person is happy about something.) □ Jill: I've never seen Sam smile before, but today, at his retirement party, he smiled. Jane: It is a poor heart that never rejoices.

It is a wise child that knows its own father. Prov. You can never have certain proof that a certain man is your father. (Implies that the child in question might be illegitimate.) □ It is a wise child that knows its own father, but Emily is so much like her dad that there's very little uncertainty.

It is all over with someone. and It is all over for someone. Euph. Someone is about to die.; Someone has just died. □ I am afraid it is all over with Aunt Sarah. Her last surgery did not go well at all. □ The doctor told us that it was all over for Daddy. We sat for a moment in shock.

It is better to be born lucky than rich. Prov. If you are born rich, you may lose your money, but if you are born lucky, you will always get what you need or want just by chance. □ Maybe your family doesn't have a lot of money, but you are lucky, you know. And it's better to be born lucky than rich.

It is better to give than to receive. and It is more blessed to give than to receive. Prov. It is more virtuous to give things than to get them. (Biblical.) □ Susan told her children, "Instead of thinking so much about what you want for your birthday, think about what to give your brothers and sisters for their birthdays. Remember, it is better to give than to receive." □ Our charity encourages you to share the good things you have. It is more blessed to give than to receive.

It is better to travel hopefully than to arrive. Prov. You should enjoy the process of doing something, rather than anticipate the result of doing it. □ Bill: I can't wait till I get my high school diploma. Fred: You should concentrate on enjoying high school instead. It is better to travel hopefully than to arrive.

It is better to wear out than to rust out. Prov. It is better to work until you die than to be idle just because you are old. □ Nancy: Grandma, you shouldn't work so hard. You're not young anymore, you know. Grandmother: Thanks for your concern, dear, but I plan to keep working. It's better to wear out than to rust out. □ Bill: You really ought to relax. I'm afraid you'll kill yourself with too much work. Nancy: So what? It's better to wear out than to rust out.

It is easier to tear down than to build up. Prov. Destroying things is easier than building them. □ Jill: That poor politician—he served honestly and well for all those years and now his career is ruined by one little scandal. Jane: It is easier to tear down than to build up.

It is easy to be wise after the event. Prov. After you see the consequences of a decision, it is easy to tell if the decision was good, but it is also too late, since the consequences have already happened. □ Jill: I should never have invited Aunt Betsy to stay with me; I haven't had a peaceful moment since she got here. Jane: Well, it's easy to be wise after the event.

It is more blessed to give than to receive. Go to It is better to give than to receive.

It is never too late to learn. and You are never too old to learn. Prov. You can always learn something new. □ Alan: Help me make the salad dressing. Jane: But I don't know anything about making salad dressing. Alan: You are never too old to learn. □ Grandma decided to take a course in using computers. "It's never too late to learn," she said.

It is never too late to mend. Prov. It is never too late to apologize for something you have done or try to repair something you have done wrong. □ Sue: I still miss Tony, but it's been a year since our big fight and we haven't spoken to each other since. Mother: Well, it's never too late to mend; why don't you call him up and apologize?

It is not work that kills, but worry. Prov. Working hard will not hurt you, but worrying too much is bad for your health. □ Nancy: You've been working so many hours every day, I'm afraid you'll get sick. Bill: It's not work that kills, but worry.

It is the pace that kills. Prov. Trying to do too much too fast is bad for you. □ Nancy: I hate college. Bill: Why? Is the subject material too difficult? Nancy: No, they just expect me to learn too much of it too fast. It is the pace that kills.

It isn't worth it. 1. Its value does not justify the action you propose. □ *Mary: Should I write a letter in support of your request? Sue: No, don't bother. It isn't worth it. □ John: Do you suppose we should report that man to the police? Jane: No, it isn't worth it. 2. Its importance does not justify the concern you are showing. □ *Tom: I'm so sorry about your roses all dying. Mary: Not to worry. It isn't worth it. They were sort of sickly anyway. □ John: Should I have this coat cleaned? The stain isn't coming out. Sue: It isn't worth it. I only wear it when I shovel snow anyway.

It isn't worth the trouble. Don't bother. It isn't worth it. □ Tom: Shall I wrap all this stuff back up? Mary: No. It's not worth the trouble. Just stuff it in a paper bag. □ Jane: Do you want me to try to save this little bit of cake? John: Oh, no! It's not worth the trouble. I'll just eat it.

(It) just goes to show (you) (something). That incident or story has an important moral or message. □ Tom: The tax people finally caught up with Henry. Sally: See! It just goes to show. □ Angry at the young grocery clerk, Sally muttered, "Young people. They expect too much. It just goes to show you how society has broken down."

(It) (just) goes without saying. Cliché [something] is so obvious that it need not be said. □ It goes without saying that you are to wear formal clothing to the White House dinner. □ Of course you must be on time. That goes without saying.

(It) makes me no difference. Go to next.

(It) makes no difference to me. and (It) makes me no difference.; (It) makes me no nevermind.; (It) don't make me no nevermind. Inf. I really do not care, one way or the other. (The first one is standard, the others are colloquial.) □ Bill: Mind if I sit here? Tom: Makes no difference to me. □ Bill: What would you say if I ate the last piece of cake? Bob: Don't make me no nevermind.

(It) never hurts to ask. Go to (It) doesn't hurt to ask.

It never rains but it pours. Prov. Good (or bad) things do not just happen a few at a time, but in large numbers all at once. □ Fred: I can't believe this. This morning I had a flat tire. When I went to the garage to get the tire patched, I discovered I didn't have any money, and I couldn't even charge it because my credit card's expired. Jane: It never rains but it pours.

It (only) stands to reason. It is only reasonable to hold a certain opinion. □ It stands to reason that most people will not buy a new car if they don't think they can pay for it. □ I think he will come back to pick up his check. It only stands to reason.

(It) (really) doesn't matter to me. I do not care. □ Andrew: What shall I do? What shall I do? Alice: Do whatever you like. Jump off a bridge. Go live in the jungle. It really doesn't matter to me. □ Tom: I'm leaving you. Mary and I have decided that we're in love. Sue: So, go ahead. It doesn't matter to me. I don't care what you do.

It's a (dead) cinch. Fig. It's a very easy task. (Dead means absolutely.) □ Tom: Did you figure out how to change the tire? Jane: Yep! It was a cinch. □ Altering clothes patterns is difficult for me, but for Mary, it's a dead cinch.

It's a deal. Okay.; It is agreed. □ You want to sell me your stereo for $100? It's a deal. □ Bill: Let's go to dinner together tonight. Mary: It's a deal.

It's a jungle out there. The real world is severe.; It's hard to get by in everyday life. □ A: Gee, people are so rude in this town. B: Yup, it's a jungle out there.

It's a snap. Inf. It's really easy to do. □ Nothing to it. It's a snap. A baby could do it.

It's a toss-up. Inf. It's hard to tell the winner, and it could be won by either player or either team. □ The game's almost over, and it's a toss-up.

It's about time! Inf. It is almost too late!; I've been waiting a long time! (Said with impatience.) □ So you finally got here! It's about time! □ They finally paid me my money. It's about time!

It's (all) Greek to me. Go to Greek to someone.

It's all over but the shouting. Fig. Cliché It is decided and concluded.; It is essentially decided and finished. (Meaning that though there may be more to some process, the outcome is clear. An elaboration of all over, which means "finished.") □ The last goal was made with only 4 seconds to go in the game. "Well, it's all over but the shouting," said the coach. □ Tom worked hard in college and passed his last test with an A. When he saw the grade, he said, "It's all over but the shouting."

It's all someone needs. Go to That's all someone needs.

It's always darkest just before the dawn. See The darkest hour is just before the dawn.

It's an ill bird that fouls its own nest. Prov. Only a foolish or dishonorable person would bring dishonor to his or her self or his or her surroundings.; Only a bad person would ruin the place where he or she lives. (See also foul one's own nest.) □ I don't like my new neighbor. Not only does he never mow his lawn, he covers it with all kinds of trash. It's an ill bird that fouls its own nest.

It's an ill wind that blows nobody (any) good. Prov. Even misfortune can benefit someone or something.; A calamity for one person usually benefits somebody else. □ The tremendous hailstorm left gaping holes in most of the roofs in town, so many families were homeless. The roofing companies, however, made plenty of money fixing those holes. It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good.

It's anybody's guess No one knows, so anyone's guess is as good as anyone else's. □ A: When will the messenger be here? B: It's anybody's guess.

It's been. Inf. a phrase said on leaving a party or other gathering. (A shortening of It's been lovely or some similar expression.) □ Mary: Well, it's been. We really have to go, though. Andy: So glad you could come over. Bye. □ Fred: Bye, you guys. See you. Sally: It's been. Really it has. Toodle-oo.

It's been a slice! Sl. It's been good. □ Good-bye and thank you. It's been a slice! □ It's been a slice. I hope to see you again some day.

(It's been) good talking to you. and (It's) been good to talk to you.; (It's been) nice talking to you. a polite phrase said upon departure, at the end of a conversation. □ Mary (as the elevator stops): Well, this is my floor. I've got to get off. John: Bye, Mary. It's been good talking to you. □ John: It's been good talking to you, Fred. See you around. Fred: Yeah. See you.

(It's) better than nothing. Having something that is not satisfactory is better than having nothing at all. □ John: How do you like your dinner? Jane: It's better than nothing. John: That bad, huh? □ John: Did you see your room? How do you like it? Jane: Well, I guess it's better than nothing.

It's for a fact. Rur. It is true. □ Charlie: I can't believe that Bill's selling his house. Tom: It's for a fact! □ It's for a fact that chocolate is poison to cats.

It's for you. This telephone call is for you. □ Henry: Hello? Fred: Hello. Is Bill there? Henry: Hey, Bill! It's for you. Bill: Thanks. Hello? □ "It's for you," said Mary, handing the telephone receiver to Sally.

(It's) good to be here. and (It's) nice to be here. I feel welcome in this place.; It is good to be here. □ John: I'm so glad you could come. Jane: Thank you. It's good to be here. □ Alice: Welcome to our house! John: Thank you, it's nice to be here.

(It's) good to have you here. and (It's) nice to have you here. Welcome to this place.; It is good that you are here. □ John: It's a pleasure to have you here. Jane: Thank you for asking me. □ Alice: Oh, I'm so glad I came! Fred: Nice to have you here.

(It's) good to hear your voice. a polite phrase said upon beginning or ending a telephone conversation. □ Bob: Hello? Bill: Hello, it's Bill. Bob: Hello, Bill. It's good to hear your voice. □ Bill: Hello, Tom. This is Bill. Tom: Hi, Bill. It's good to hear your voice. What's cooking?

(It's) good to see you (again). a polite phrase said when greeting someone whom one has met before. □ Bill: Hi, Bob. Remember me? I met you last week at the Wilsons'. Bob: Oh, hello, Bill. Good to see you again. □ Fred: Hi. Good to see you again! Bob: Nice to see you, Fred.

(It's) got me beat. Go to (It) beats me.

it's high time Rur. it is about the right time for something. □ It's high time we were leaving. □ It's high time you started thinking about saving for your old age.

It's ill waiting for dead men's shoes. Prov. You should not be eager for someone to die so that you inherit something. □ Phil: Why should I bother to learn some kind of trade? I'll be rich when Grandpa dies and leaves me all his money. Alan: It's ill waiting for dead men's shoes.

It's just one of those things. It is something that couldn't have been prevented.; It is an unfortunate thing caused by fate. □ I'm sorry, too. It's not your fault. It's just one of those things. □ I feel terrible that I didn't pass the bar exam. I guess it was just one of those things.

(It's) just what you need. Go to That's all someone needs.

(It's) nice to be here. Go to (It's) good to be here.

(It's) nice to have you here. Go to (It's) good to have you here.

(It's) nice to meet you. an expression said just after being introduced to someone. □ Tom: Sue, this is my sister, Mary. Sue: It's nice to meet you, Mary. Mary: How are you, Sue? □ Bob: I'm Bob. Nice to see you here. Jane: Nice to meet you, Bob.

(It's) nice to see you. an expression said when greeting or saying good-bye to someone. □ Mary: Hi, Bill. It's nice to see you. Bill: Nice to see you, Mary. How are things? □ John: Come on in, Jane. Nice to see you. Jane: Thanks, and thank you for inviting me.

It's no picnic! Inf. There is nothing easy or pleasant about it. □ I was on welfare for a year, and it's no picnic.

(It's) no trouble (at all). Do not worry, this is not a problem. □ Mary: Do you mind carrying all this up to my apartment? Tom: It's no trouble. □ Bob: Would it be possible for you to get this back to me today? Bill: Sure. No trouble at all.

It's no use crying over spilled milk. and Don't cry over spilled milk. Prov. Do not be upset about making a mistake, since you cannot change that now. □ I know you don't like your new haircut, but you can't change it now. It's no use crying over spilled milk. □ OK, so you broke the drill I lent you. Don't cry over spilled milk.

(It's) none of your business! It is nothing that you need to know. It is none of your concern. (Not very polite.) □ Alice: How much does a little diamond like that cost? Mary: None of your business! □ John: Do you want to go out with me Friday night? Mary: Sorry, I don't think so. John: Well, what are you doing then? Mary: None of your business!

It's not cricket. and It's not kosher. It's not done.; It's not acceptable. □ You can't do that! It's not cricket!

(It's) not half bad. It's not as bad as one might have thought. □ Mary: How do you like this play? Jane: Not half bad. □ Jane: Well, how do you like college? Fred: It's not half bad.

It's not kosher. Go to It's not cricket.

It's not over till it's over. Inf. It is not over yet and will not be until the event has completely played out. □ It looks like we have won, but it's not over 'til it's over! □ They haven't won the game yet. It's not over 'til it's over.

(It's) not supposed to. and (Someone's) not supposed to. a phrase indicating that someone or something is not meant to do something. (Often with a person's name or a pronoun as a subject. See the examples.) □ Fred: This little piece keeps falling off. Clerk: It's not supposed to. □ Bill: Tom just called from Detroit and says he's coming back tomorrow. Mary: That's funny. He's not supposed to.

It's not the heat, it's the humidity. Prov. When the air is damp, hot days feel even hotter and more miserable. □ Jill: I hope the air-conditioning is fixed soon; the heat is unbearable in here. Jane: It's not the heat, it's the humidity. □ Alan: I thought the summers were hot when I was growing up in New Mexico, but they're even hotter here in Iowa. Jane: The climate is moister here; it's not the heat, it's the humidity.

It's on me. I will pay this bill. (Usually a bill for a meal or drinks. Compare this with This one's on me.) □ As the waiter set down the glasses, Fred said, "It's on me," and grabbed the check. □ John: Check, please. Bill: No, it's on me this time.

It's raining cats and dogs. Go to next.

It's raining pitchforks (and hammer handles), and It's raining cats and dogs. Rur. It is raining very hard. □ Take an umbrella. It's raining pitchforks and hammer handles out there! □ Charlie: Have you looked outside? How's the weather? Mary: It's raining cats and dogs.

It's six of one, half a dozen of another. Cliché Two options are equivalent. □ To get downtown, we can either take the highway or the side streets. It's six of one, half a dozen of another, since both routes take the same amount of time. □ Jill: Would you rather peel the carrots or wash the lettuce? Jane: It's six of one, half a dozen of the other.

(It's) time for a change. an expression announcing a decision to make a change. □ Bill: Are you really going to take a new job? Mary: Yes, it's time for a change. □ Jane: Are you going to Florida for your vacation again? Fred: No. It's time for a change. We're going skiing.

(It's) time to go. It is now time to leave. (Usually said by guests, but can be said by an adult to children who are guests.) □ Jane: Look at the clock! Time to go! John: Yup! I'm out of here too. □ Mother: It's four o'clock. The party's over. Time to go. Bill: I had a good time. Thank you.

(It's) time to hit the road, and (I'd) better hit the road.; (I've) got to hit the road. Inf. Fig. a phrase indicating that it is time that one departed. (See also (I) have to shove off and (It's) time to run for other possible variations.) □ Henry: Look at the clock. It's past midnight. It's time to hit the road. Andy: Yeah. We've got to go. Sue: Okay, good night. □ Bill: I've got to hit the road. I have a long day tomorrow. Mary: Okay, good night. Bill: Bye, Mary.

(It's) time to run, and (It's) time to move along.; (It's) time to push along.; (It's) time to push off.; (It's) time to split. Inf. an announcement of one's desire or need to depart. (See also (I) have to shove off and (It's) time to hit the road for an illustration of other possible variations.) □ Andy: Time to push off. I've got to get home. Henry: See you, dude. □ John: It's time to split. I've got to go. Sue: Okay. See you tomorrow.

(It's) time to shove off. Go to (I) have to shove off.

(It's) time to split. Go to (It's) time to run.

It's time we should be going. a statement made by one member of a pair (or group) of guests to the other member(s), indicating a desire to leave. (Typically, a way for one person in a couple to signal the other, indicating a desire to leave.) □ Mr. Franklin looked at his wife and said softly, "It's time we should be going." □ Tom: Well, I suppose it's time we should be going. Mary: Yes, we really should. Alice: So early?

It's written all over one's face. Fig. It is very evident and can easily be detected when looking at someone's face. □ I know she's guilty. It's written all over her face.

It's you! It suits you perfectly.; It is just your style. □ John (trying on jacket): How does this look? Sally: It's you! □ Sue: I'm taking a job with the candy company. I'll be managing a store on Maple Street. Mary: It's you! That's a nice step up, and that store is so close by.

It's your funeral. Fig. If that is what you are going to do, you will have to endure the dire consequences. □ Tom: I'm going to call in sick and go to the ball game instead of to work today. Mary: Go ahead. It's your funeral. □ Bill:

I'm going to go into the boss and tell what I really think of him. Sue: It's your funeral.

It's your move. 1. and It's your turn. Lit. [in a game] It's your time to play. □ It's your move, and I think I have you trapped. 2. Fig. It is time for you to do something. □ I've done everything I could do. Now, it's your move.

It's your turn. Go to previous.

it strikes me that Fig. it seems to me that. □ Henry: It strikes me that you are losing a little weight. Mary: Oh, I'm so glad you noticed! □ "It strikes me that all this money we are spending is accomplishing very little," said Bill.

It sucks. Go to That sucks.

(It) suits me (fine). It is fine with me. □ John: Is this one okay? Mary: Suits me. □ John: I'd like to sit up front where I can hear better. Mary: Suits me fine.

It takes all kinds (to make a world). Fig. There are many different kinds of people, and you should not condemn them for being different. □ Jill: Eleanor's trying another fad diet. This week she's sprinkling dried algae on all her food. Jane: It takes all kinds. □ Child: Mommy, I saw a weird man today. He was walking down the street singing real loud. I wish they'd put weird people like that away. Mother: Now, now, honey, it takes all kinds to make a world.

It takes money to make money. Prov. In order to make money, you must first have some money to invest. □ I've been reading a lot of books about how to become wealthy, and they all make it depressingly clear that it takes money to make money.

(It) takes one to know one. Inf. You are one also. □ A: You are a stupid oaf. B: So are you. It takes one to know one.

It takes (some) getting used to. It is very unpleasant at first, but after a time it will not be so bothersome. (Said in recognition of the unpleasantness of something.) □ I never ate raw oysters before. It takes some getting used to. □ These hot Mexican dishes seem impossible at first. They take some getting used to, I agree. But it's worth it.

It takes two to make a bargain. Prov. Both parties in a negotiation must agree in order for the negotiation to be successful. □ Jill: You'll give me a ride to work every day this week, like we agreed, won't you? Jane: Wait a minute. I only said I'd give you a ride to work today. It takes two to make a bargain. □ Ellen: We decided you should make dinner tonight, right? Fred: No, we didn't decide that; you decided that. It takes two to make a bargain.

It takes two to make a quarrel. Prov. An argument is never only one person's fault.; If the other person refuses to participate, there cannot be an argument. □ Sue: I think Mimi ought to apologize for arguing with me. Mother: It takes two to make a quarrel, dear. Maybe you ought to apologize to her. □ Jill: Why are you always so quarrelsome? Jane: Hey, it's not just my fault. It takes two to make a quarrel.

(It) takes two to tango. Prov. Some things cannot happen by one person acting alone. □ Alan: You're always arguing! Stop arguing all the time. Jane: I can't argue all by myself. It takes two to tango. □ Fred: Did you hear? Janice got herself pregnant. Jill: Well, she didn't do it all by herself. Takes two to tango, you know.

It will be your ass! Sl. You will pay dearly!; You will suffer the consequences. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ If you do that again, it will be your ass! □ It will be your ass if it isn't done right this time.

It will take some doing. It will require considerable effort and care. □ It'll take some doing, but it'll get done. □ It's not impossible. It'll just take some doing.

(It) won't bother me any. and (It) won't bother me at all. Inf. It will not trouble me at all; I have no objection if you wish to do that. (Not very polite or cordial. For the present tense of this expression, see also (It) doesn't bother me any.) □ John: Will you mind if I sit here? Jane: Won't bother me any. □ Sally (lighting a cigarette): Do you mind if I smoke? Bill: It won't bother me at all.

(It) won't bother me at all. Go to previous.

It won't wash! Fig. Nobody will believe it! □ Sorry, it won't wash. Try another approach. □ Don't expect me to believe that! It won't wash.

(It) works for me. Inf. It is fine with me. (With stress on works and me. The answer to a question implying Does it work for you?) □ Bob: Is it okay if I sign us up for the party? Sally: It works for me. □ Tom: Is Friday all right for the party? Bill: Works for me. Bob: It works for me too.

It would take an act of Congress to do something. It is almost impossible to do something. □ It would take an act of Congress to get Bill to wear a necktie. □ She's a sour woman. It would take an act of Congress to get her to put a smile on her face.

*an itch for something a desire for something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I have an itch for some ice cream. □ We had an itch for a good movie, so we went.

itch for something Fig. to desire something. □ I'm just itching for a visit from Amy. □ We are itching for some chocolate.

*an itch to do something Fig. a desire to do something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I have an itch to see a movie tonight. □ Tom has an itch to go swimming.

an itching palm Go to an itchy palm.

itchy feet Fig. the need to leave; a feeling of a need to travel. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Hearing the train whistle at night gives me itchy feet.

*an itchy palm and *an itching palm Fig. [of a hand] in need of a tip. (As if placing money in the palm would stop the itching. *Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ All the waiters at that restaurant have itchy palms. □ The cabdriver was troubled by an itching palm. Since he refused to carry my bags, I gave him nothing. □ Whenever he sees expensive luggage, the hotel doorman gets an itching palm.

It'll all come out in the wash. Fig. It does not matter; No lasting damage has been done. □ Tom: I feel so bad about what I said to Bill. I don't think he'll ever forgive me. Mary: Oh, don't worry. It'll all come out in the wash. □ Jane: I'll never forgive myself for losing Mary's book. Charlie: Just tell her you're sorry, and offer to pay for the book. It'll all come out in the wash.

It'll be a cold day in hell when something happens. Rur. Something will never happen or is highly unlikely. □ It'll be a cold day in Hell when the city council agrees on where to build that bridge. □ It'll be a cold day in Hell when I forgive you.

It'll be a long day in January when something happens. Rur. Something will never happen. (There are fewer hours of daylight in January.) □ Tom: Maybe this will be the year that Mama treats herself to a nice vacation. Jane: Are you kidding? It'll be a long day in January when she does that! □ It'll be a long day in January when that car dealer gives an honest price.

It'll never fly. Fig. It will never work!; It will never be approved! (Refers originally to an evaluation of an unlikely-looking aircraft of some type.) □ I have read your report and studied your proposal. It'll never fly. □ Your design for a new electric automobile is interesting, but it'll never fly!

it's no use (doing something) it is hopeless to do something; it is pointless to do something. □ It's no use trying to call on the telephone. The line is always busy. □ They tried and tried, but it was no use.

itty-bitty and itsy-bitsy very small. (Childish.) □ I remember when you was just an itty-bitty baby. □ Gramma sewed with itsy-bitsy stitches.

(I've) been getting by. Inf. a response to a greeting inquiry into one's well-being indicating that one is having a hard time surviving or that things could be much better. (See also (I'm) just getting by.) □ John: How are things? Jane: Oh, I've been getting by. □ Sue: How are you doing? Mary: Been getting by. Things could be better.

(I've) been keeping cool. and (I've been) keeping cool. Inf. an answer to a question about what one has been doing during very hot weather. □ Jane: How do you like this hot weather? Bill: I've been keeping cool. □ Mary: Been keeping cool? Bob: Yeah. Been keeping cool.

(I've) been keeping myself busy. and (I've been) keeping myself busy. a standard response to a greeting inquiry asking what one has been doing. □ Bill: What have you been doing? Bob: I've been keeping myself busy. What about you? Bill: About the same. □ John: Yo! What have you been up to? Bill: Been keeping myself busy.

(I've) been keeping out of trouble. and (I've been) keeping out of trouble. Fig. a standard response to a greeting inquiry that asks what one has been doing. □ John: What have you been doing, Fred? Fred: Been keeping out of trouble. John: Yeah. Me too. □ Mary: How are things, Tom? Tom: Oh, I've been keeping out of trouble.

(I've) been okay. Inf. a standard response to a greeting inquiry that asks how one has been. □ Bill: Well, how have you been, good buddy? John: I've been okay. □ Sue: How you doing? Jane: Been okay. And you? Sue: The same.

(I've) been there(, done that). Inf. I know exactly what you are talking about from my own experience; I know exactly what you are going through. □ John: Wow! Those sales meetings really wear me out! Jane: I know what you mean. I've been there. □ Sue: These employment interviews are very tiring. Bob: I know it! I've been there.

(I've) been under the weather. Fig. a greeting response indicating that one has been ill. □ John: How have you been? Sally: I've been under the weather, but I'm better. □ Doctor: How are you? Mary: I've been under the weather. Doctor: Maybe we can fix that. What seems to be the trouble?

I've done my do. Rur. I have done my share. □ Tom: Aren't you going to finish cleaning the kitchen? Jane: I've done my do. You can do the rest. □ I feel I've done my do, and someone else should do the rest.

(I've) (got) better things to do. There are better ways to spend my time.; I cannot waste any more time on this matter. (Either I've got or I have.) □ Andy: Good-bye. I've got better things to do than stand around here listening to you brag. Henry: Well, good-bye and good riddance. □ Mary: How did things go at your meeting with the zoning board? Sally: I gave up. Can't fight city hall. Better things to do.

(I've) got to be shoving off. Go to (I) have to shove off.

I've got to fly. and I've gotta fly.; (I've) got to fly. Fig. Inf. I have to leave right now. □ Time's up. I've got to fly. □ I've gotta fly. See you later.

(I've) got to get moving. I have to leave right now. (See also (I) have to shove off for other possible variations.) □ Tom: Time to go. Got to get moving. Sally: Bye, Tom. □ Mary: It's late and I've got to get moving. Sue: Well, if you must, okay. Come again sometime. Mary: Bye.

(I've) got to go. a phrase announcing one's need to depart. (See also (I) have to shove off for other possible variations.) □ Andy: Bye, I've got to go. Rachel: Bye, little brother. See you. □ Sally: Got to go. Sue: See ya! Take it easy.

(I've) got to go home and get my beauty sleep. Fig. a phrase announcing one's need to depart because it is late. (See also (I) have to shove off for other possible variations.) □ Sue: Leaving so early? John: I've got to go home and get my beauty sleep. □ Jane: I've got to go home and get my beauty sleep. Fred: Well, you look to me like you've had enough. Jane: Why, thank you.

(I've) got to hit the road. Go to (It's) time to hit the road.

(I've) got to run. Fig. a phrase announcing one's need to depart. (See also (I) have to shove off for other possible variations.) □ John: Got to run. It's late. Jane: Me too. See ya, bye-bye. □ Mary: Want to watch another movie? Bill: No, thanks. I've got to run.

(I've) got to shove off. Go to (I) have to shove off.

(I've) got to split. Inf. Fig. I have to leave now. (See also (I) have to shove off for other possible variations.) □ Jane: Look at the time! Got to split. Mary: See you later, Jane. □ Bill: It's getting late. I've got to split. Sue: Okay, see you tomorrow. Bill: Good night.

(I've) got to take off. Fig. a phrase announcing one's need to depart. (See also (I) have to shove off for other possible variations.) □ Mary: Got to take off. Bye. Bob: Leaving so soon? Mary: Yes. Time to go. Bob: Bye. □ "Look at the time. I've got to take off!" shrieked Alice.

I've got work to do. 1. Lit. I'm too busy to stay here any longer. □ Jane: Time to go. I've got work to do. John: Me too. See you. □ Bob: I have to leave now. Bill: So soon? Bob: Yes, I've got work to do. 2. Fig. Do not bother me. I'm busy. □ Bill: Can I ask you a question? Jane: Not right now. I've got work to do. □ Mary: There are some things we have to get straightened out on this Wilson contract. John: I've got work to do. It will have to wait.

I've gotta fly. Go to I've got to fly.

I've had a lovely time. and We've had a lovely time. a polite expression said to a host or hostess on departure. □ Bob: I've had a lovely time. Thanks for asking me. Fred: We're just delighted you could come. Good night. Bob: Good night. □ Sue: We've had a lovely time. Good night. Bill: Next time don't stay away so long. Good night.

I've had enough of this! I will not take any more of this situation! □ Sally: I've had enough of this! I'm leaving! Fred: Me too! □ John (glaring at Tom): I've had enough of this! Tom, you're fired! Tom: You can't fire me, I quit!

I've had it up to here (with someone or something). I will not endure any more of someone or something. □ Bill: I've had it up to here with your stupidity. Bob: Who's calling who stupid? □ John: I've had it up to here with Tom. Mary: Are you going to fire him? John: Yes.

I've heard so much about you. a polite phrase said upon being introduced to someone you have heard about from a friend or the person's relatives. □ Bill: This is my cousin Kate. Bob: Hello, Kate. I've heard so much about you. □ Sue: Hello, Bill. I've heard so much about you. Bill: Hello. Glad to meet you.

(I've) never been better. and (I've) never felt better. a response to a greeting inquiry into one's health or state of being. □ Mary: How are you, Sally? Sally: Never been better, Mary. How about you? □ Doctor: How are you, Jane? Jane: Never felt better. Doctor: Then why are you here?

(I've) seen better. a noncommittal and not very positive judgment about something or someone. □ Alice: How did you like the movie? John: I've seen better. □ Bill: What do you think about this weather? Bob: Seen better.

I've seen better heads on nickel beers. Rur. This person is stupid. □ Jim's good-looking, but I've seen better heads on nickel beers. □ My students this term aren't what you'd call bright. I've seen better heads on nickel beers.

(I've) seen worse. a noncommittal and not totally negative judgment about something or someone. □ Alice: How did you like the movie? John: I've seen worse. □ Bill: What do you think about this weather? Gladys: Seen worse.

Jj

jab at someone or something to poke or punch at someone or something. □ Tom jabbed at Fred. □ Don't jab at the cat!

jab someone in something to poke someone in a particular location on the body. □ Fred jabbed Tom in the side. □ He jabbed himself in the hand.

jab someone with something to poke or stick someone with something. □ He jabbed Henry with the rake handle on purpose. □ The mugger jabbed the victim with a knife.

jab something at someone or something to poke someone or something with something. □ Tom jabbed the stick at the dog. □ I jabbed my fist at Walter.

jab something into something and jab something in^t to stab something into something. □ Billy jabbed his spoon into the gelatin. □ He jabbed in his spoon. □ He jabbed it in.

jab something out^t to thrust something out. □ Molly jabbed her fist out suddenly. □ She jabbed out her fist.

jabber about someone or something 1. to talk or chat very informally about someone or something. □ Who are they jabbering about? □ Those kids are jabbering about school again. 2. to talk unintelligibly about someone or something. □ Is she jabbering about whatever comes to mind? □ She is jabbering about something, but we can't understand her.

jack around and jerk around Sl. to waste time. □ Stop jacking around and get some work done! □ The kids spend most of the day jerking around.

jack of all trades someone who can do several different jobs instead of specializing in one. □ John can do plumbing, carpentry, and roofing—a real jack of all trades. He isn't very good at any of them. □ Take your car to a certified engine mechanic, not a jack of all trades.

a jack of all trades is a master of none. Prov. If you are able to do a lot of things fairly well, you will not have time to learn to do one thing extremely well. □ Jill: I envy Bob; he can do so many things. He writes novels, paints pictures, makes sculptures, and even plays the dulcimer. Jane: It's true he does a lot of things, but he probably doesn't do them all terribly well. A jack of all trades is a master of none, you know.

jack someone around^t and jerk someone around^t Sl. to give someone a difficult time; to harass someone. □ Come on! Stop jacking me around! □ Max started jerking Lefty around, and it looked as if there was going to be trouble. □ You jack around everyone you know!

jack someone up^t 1. Sl. to excite or stimulate someone, possibly with drugs. □ Tom jacked up his buddy by talking to him. □ Tom jacked up Fred with a lot of encouragement. 2. Sl. to motivate someone; to stimulate someone to do something. □ The mail is late again today. We'll have to jack those people up at the post office. □ I guess I'll have to jack up the carpenter again to repair my stairs.

jack something up^t 1. Lit. to raise something up on a mechanical lifting device. □ Now I have to jack the car up, so I can change the tire. □ Please jack up the car. 2. Fig. to raise the price of something. □ The store keeps jacking prices up. □ The grocery store jacked up the prices again last night.

jacked (out) Sl. angry; annoyed. □ Boy was that old guy jacked out at you. □ Yup, he was jacked all right.

a jam session an informal session where musicians play together. □ Andy and Nick had a jam session last night and kept all the neighbors awake.

jam someone or something in((to) something) and jam someone or something in^t to force or compress someone or something into something or some place. □ Sam jammed all his clothes into the canvas bag. □ The conductor jammed all the passengers into one car. □ Don't jam in everything! □ They had to jam themselves into the tiny room, because there was no other place to meet.

jam someone or something together to pack people or things close together. □ The usher jammed everybody together so more people could be seated. □ Don't just jam the boxes together! Sort them out first.

jam something together to assemble something hastily or carelessly. □ The fragile contents were just jammed together in one box and everything was broken. □ The thing was just jammed together with no care at all.

jam something up^t 1. to clog up something; to impede or block the movement of or through something. □ Rachel jammed traffic up when her car stalled. □ All the leaves and branches jammed up the sewer. 2. Fig. to force something upwards in haste or anger. □ Who jammed the window up? □ Wally jammed up the window and nearly broke it.

jam something up something to thrust something up something. □ She poked the broom handle up the chimney, hoping to force the bird to fly out. □ She jammed it up a few times, but it had no effect.

jam something (up^t) with something to clog something with something. □ Time had jammed the pipe up with rust. □ Time had jammed up the pipe with rust. □ Jam the hole with a cloth so nothing else will leak out.

jam the brakes on^t to press down hard on a vehicle's brakes. □ Alice jammed the brakes on and the car skidded all over the place. □ She jammed on the brakes.

jam with someone to play music in an improvised band with someone. □ Andy loves to jam with the other students. □ Let's set up a time when we can jam with the others.

jangle on something 1. Fig. to ring a bell incessantly. □ Will you stop jangling on that doorbell! □ Who is jangling on that bell? 2. Fig. to irritate someone's nerves; to make someone nervous. □ All that noise jangles on my nerves. □ Too much chattering jangles on Ken's nerves.

jar against someone or something to bump against someone or something. □ The guest jarred against the wall, knocking a picture askew. □ Someone jarred against Fran, almost knocking her over.

jar on someone or something to bother someone or someone's nerves. (Similar to jangle on something.) □ Her voice really jars on me. □ My brash manner jars on her, I guess.

jaw about someone or something Fig. to talk aimlessly about someone or something. □ Do we have to keep jawing about Tom all day? □ Stop jawing about your problems and set about fixing them.

jaw at someone Fig. to lecture at someone; to talk endlessly to someone. □ Please stop jawing at me. □ You are jawing at me too much lately.

jaw someone down[†] Sl. to talk someone down; to wear someone down talking. □ We'll try to jaw him down. If that doesn't work, I don't know what we will do. □ We will jaw down the objectors.

jazz someone or something up[†] to make someone or something more exciting or sexy; to make someone or something appeal more to contemporary tastes. □ Let's jazz this room up a little bit. □ They jazzed up Donna till she looked like a rock star.

jazzed (up) 1. alert; having a positive state of mind. □ I am jazzed up and ready to face life. □ Those guys were jazzed and ready for the game. 2. intoxicated. □ Dave was a bit jazzed up, but not terribly. □ Gert was jazzed out of her mind. 3. enhanced; with something added; made more enticing. □ The third act was jazzed up with livelier music. 4. forged or altered. □ Better not try to cash a jazzed check at this bank.

jeer at someone or something to poke fun at someone; to make rude sounds at someone. □ Please stop jeering at my cousin! □ The others just jeered at my idea.

Jekyll and Hyde someone with both an evil and a good personality. (From the novel The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde by Robert Louis Stevenson.) □ Bill thinks Mary is so soft and gentle, but she can be very cruel—she is a real Jekyll and Hyde. □ Jane doesn't know that Fred is a Jekyll and Hyde. She sees him only when he is being kind and generous, but he can be very cruel.

jerk around Go to jack around.

jerk someone around[†] and jerk someone over[†] to hassle someone; to waste someone's time. □ Stop jerking me around and give me my money back. □ They sure like to jerk around people in that music shop.

jerk someone or something out of something and jerk someone or something out[†] to pull someone or something out of something sharply and quickly. □ She jerked the baby out of the crib and ran from the burning room. □ I jerked the puppy out of the mud. □ She jerked out the puppy before it got soaked.

jerk someone over[†] Go to jerk someone around[†].

jerk something away (from someone, something, or an animal) to snatch something away or quickly pull something back from someone or an animal. □ I jerked the bone away from the dog. □ Kelly jerked the ant poison away from the child. □ Mary jerked her hand away from the fire.

jerk something off[†] Go to next.

jerk something off (of) someone or something and jerk something off[†] to snatch or quickly pull something off someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Alice jerked the top off the box and poured out the contents. □ She jerked off the box top.

jerk something out of someone or something and jerk something out[†] to pull something out of someone or something quickly. □ The doctor jerked the arrow out of Bill's leg. □ He jerked out the arrow.

jerk something up[†] 1. to pull something up quickly. □ He jerked his belt up tight. □ He jerked up the zipper to his jacket. 2. to lift up something, such as ears, quickly. □ The dog jerked its ears up. □ The dog jerked up its ears when it heard the floor creak. □ The soldier jerked his binoculars up to try to see the sniper.

jest about someone or something to make jokes about someone or something. □ There is no need to jest about Lady Bracknell. □ I wish you would not jest about that.

jest at someone or something to make fun of someone or something. □ Please don't jest at my cousin. □ Is someone jesting at my hairdo?

jest with someone to joke with someone; to try to fool someone. □ Surely you are jesting with me. □ Don't jest with me!

jet (from some place) (to some place) to travel from some place to some other place by jet airplane. □ They jetted from here to there. □ They jetted to here from there.

jet from something to spurt from something. □ Water jetted from the broken pipe. □ A column of water jetted from the top of the fountain.

jibe with something [for something] to agree with something. □ Your story doesn't jibe with what we heard from the arresting officer. □ Her tale jibes with yours quite well.

The jig is up. See The game is up.

jim-dandy excellent. □ This is a jim-dandy knife. Where'd you get it? □ Tom: I'll meet you at six, OK? Charlie: That'll be jim-dandy.

jimmy something up[†] pry something up. □ See if you can jimmy this window up. □ Can you jimmy up this window?

jockey around to move around as if trying to get into a special position. □ I spent most of the movie jockeying around, trying to get comfortable. □ She always has to jockey around a bit when she is getting into a parking place.

jockey for position 1. Lit. to work one's horse into a desired position in a horse race. □ Three riders were jockeying for position in the race. □ Ken was behind, but jockeying for position. 2. Fig. to work oneself into a desired position. □ The candidates were jockeying for position, trying to get the best television exposure. □ I was jockeying for position but running out of campaign money.

jockey someone or something into position to manage to get someone or something into a desirable position. (See also jockey for position.) □ The rider jockeyed his horse into position. □ Try to jockey your bicycle into position so you can pass the others.

jockey something around[†] to maneuver something around; to manage something. □ We had to jockey our bikes around a number of stalled cars. □ We jockeyed around a few cars to make room for the bus in the parking lot.

jog along to trot or run along at a slow pace. She was jogging along quite happily. I had been jogging along for a few minutes when my shoelaces broke.

jog someone's memory Fig. to stimulate someone's memory to recall something. Hearing the first part of the song I'd forgotten really jogged my memory. I tried to jog Bill's memory about our childhood antics.

jog to the right and jog to the left [for a road, path, etc.] to turn to the right or left. The road jogs to the right here. Don't run off. Keep going until the road jogs to the left. Our driveway is on the right side.

join forces (with someone) Fig. to combine one's efforts with someone else's efforts. The older boys joined forces with the younger ones to sing the school song. Let's join forces with the other faction and run our own slate of candidates.

join hands [for people] to hold hands so that each person is holding the hands of two other people; [for two people] to hold each other's hands. Let us join hands and pray together. The dancers joined hands and formed a circle that moved to the left.

join in (with someone) to join someone in doing something. Do you mind if we join in with you? Please join in.

join in ((with) something) to participate in doing something. The older boys joined in with the singing. I'm glad they joined in. We needed basses.

join someone with someone else and join something with something else to connect things or people. I joined Fred with the others. We joined the older puppies with the full-grown dogs.

join something and something else together^t to connect or unite things. We joined the pipe and the hose together. He joined together all the blue wires and the red ones.

join something to something else to connect something to something else. We joined our club to the other club. We joined our chorus to the other chorus, making a huge singing group.

join something with something else Go to join someone with someone else.

Join the club! Inf. an expression indicating that the person spoken to is in the same, or a similar, unfortunate state as the speaker. You don't have anyplace to stay? Join the club! Neither do we. Did you get fired too? Join the club!

join the fray and jump into the fray; enter the fray Fig. to join the fight or argument. After listening to the argument, Mary decided to jump into the fray. Tom joined the fray and immediately got knocked down.

join up to join some organization. The club has opened its membership rolls again. Are you going to join up? I can't afford to join up.

join (up) with someone or something to bring oneself into association with someone or something. I decided to join up with the other group. Our group joined with another similar group.

join with someone Go to with someone.

joined at the hip Sl. closely connected; always together. Those two are joined at the hip. They are always together. Sam and Martha are joined at the hip.

The joke is on someone. 1. Someone is the butt of the joke. The joke is on Bob, so it's good that he is a good sport.

2. The joke has backfired on someone. Ha, ha! The joke's on you after all.

joke (with someone) (about someone or something) to quip with someone about someone or something; to make verbal fun with someone about someone or something. I was joking with Tom about the performance. I joked about Andy with Fran.

jolt someone out of something to startle someone out of inertness. The cold water thrown in her face was what it took to jolt Mary out of her deep sleep. At the sound of the telephone, he jolted himself out of his stupor.

jolt to a start and jolt to a stop to start or stop moving suddenly, causing a jolt. The truck jolted to a stop at the stop sign. The little car jolted to a quick start and threw the passenger back in his seat.

jolt to a stop See previous.

jostle someone around^t to push or knock someone around. Please don't jostle me around. Don't jostle around everyone!

jostle someone aside^t to push or nudge someone aside. Poor little Timmy was jostled aside by the crowd every time he got near the entrance. The big kids jostled aside all the little ones.

jostle with someone to struggle with someone. Andy jostled with Fred for access to the door. Timmy and Bobby jostled with one another while they were waiting to get in.

jot something down^t to make a note of something. This is important. Please jot this down. Jot down this note, please.

judge between someone or something and someone or something else to decide between people or things, in any combination. You can't expect me to judge between apples and oranges, can you? Can you judge between the prosecution and the defense?

Judge not, lest ye be judged. and Judge not, that ye be not judged. Prov. If you condemn other people, then they will have the right to condemn you, so it is best not to condemn them. (Biblical.) Jill: I'm sure Gloria is the one who's been stealing from petty cash. She's so sloppy, nasty, and ill-mannered. Don't you think she'd be capable of theft? Jane: Judge not, lest ye be judged.

Judge not, that ye be not judged. Go to previous.

judge one on one's own merits to evaluate one on one's own good and bad points and no one else's. Please judge Janet on her own merits. I was judged on my own merits.

judge something on its own merits to evaluate something on its own good and bad points and nothing else. You must judge this proposal on its own merits. The proposal has not been judged on its own merits.

judging by something and judging from something to make a decision or judgment based on something. Judging by the amount of food eaten, everyone must have been very hungry. □ Judging from the mess that's left, the party must have been a good one.

jugged (up) Sl. intoxicated. □ I'm not jugged up. I'm not even tipsy. □ Fred was too jugged to drive home.

juggle someone or something around¹ to alter the position or sequence of someone or something. □ We will juggle everyone around so that the second round of interviews are in a different order. □ I think I can juggle my schedule around so I can have lunch with you. □ Please juggle around my appointments for this afternoon so I can have a late lunch.

juice and cookies trivial and uninteresting snacks or refreshments. □ The party was not much. Nothing but juice and cookies. □ After juice and cookies, we all went back into the meeting room for another hour of talk, talk, talk.

juice something back¹ Sl. to drink all of something alcoholic, quickly. □ He juiced a beer back. □ Max juiced back another beer.

juice something up¹ 1. Sl. to make something more powerful. □ How much did it cost to juice this thing up? □ Wally juiced up his car. 2. Sl. to turn on the electricity to something. □ It's time to juice the stage lights up. □ Juice up the stage lights.

juice up Sl. to drink one or more alcoholic drinks. □ Hey, man, let's go out and juice up tonight. □ Stop juicing up every night.

jumble someone or something together to mix people or things together randomly into a hodgepodge. □ They just jumbled everything together and made a real mess. □ The army just jumbled everybody together, no matter what their skills and talents were.

jumble something together to assemble something clumsily and hastily. □ They just jumbled some holiday decorations together. It really wasn't very well done. □ I hope this airplane wasn't jumbled together as badly as this meal.

jumble something up¹ to make a hodgepodge out of things. □ Who jumbled my papers up? □ Who jumbled up all my papers?

jump across something to leap over something that is broad rather than tall. □ The frog jumped across the puddle. □ Timmy tried but failed to jump across the puddle.

jump all over someone and jump down someone's throat; jump on someone Fig. to scold someone severely. □ If I don't get home on time, my parents will jump all over me. □ Don't jump on me! I didn't do it! □ Please don't jump all over John. He wasn't the one who broke the window. □ Why are you jumping down my throat? I wasn't even in the house when it happened.

jump at someone or something to jump in the direction of someone or something. □ The frog jumped at me, but I dodged it. □ The cat jumped at the leaf as it fell from the tree.

jump at something Fig. to seize the opportunity to do something. (See also leap at the opportunity (to do something).) □ When I heard about John's chance to go to England, I knew he'd jump at it. □ If something you really want to do comes your way, jump at it.

jump at the opportunity (to do something) Go to leap at the opportunity (to do something).

jump bail and skip bail Fig. to fail to appear in court for trial and forfeit one's bail bond. □ Not only was Bob arrested for theft, he skipped bail and left town. He's in a lot of trouble. □ The judge issued a warrant for the arrest of the man who jumped bail.

jump clear of something Fig. to get out of the way of something; to leap off something before it crashes. □ I barely had time to jump clear of the oncoming truck. □ I jumped clear of the ball as it came my way.

jump (down) (from something) to jump downward off something. □ A small mouse jumped down from the shelf. □ A tiny mouse jumped from the shelf.

jump down someone's throat Go to jump all over someone.

jump down something to leap downward into or through something. □ The rats jumped down the manhole. □ Timmy jumped down the stairs on the morning of his birthday party.

jump for joy Go to leap for joy.

jump from something to something to leap from one place to another. □ A frog jumped from lily pad to lily pad. □ The child jumped from stone to stone.

jump in with both feet Go to dive in with both feet.

jump in((to) something) to leap into something, such as water, a bed, a problem, etc. □ She was so cold she just jumped into bed and pulled up the covers. □ I jumped in and had a refreshing swim.

jump into the fray Go to join the fray.

jump off ((of) something) to leap off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Rachel lost her balance and jumped off the diving board instead of diving. □ Better to jump off than to fall off.

jump off the deep end Go to go off the deep end.

jump off the deep end (over someone or something) Fig. to get deeply involved with someone or something. (Often refers to romantic involvement.) □ Jim is about to jump off the deep end over Jane. □ Jane is great, but there is no need for Jim to jump off the deep end.

the jump on someone a chance to do something before someone else. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Each reporter is trying to get the jump on the others with the story about the earthquake. □ Kelly finally got the jump on Sam.

jump on someone Go to jump all over someone.

jump on someone or something to pounce on someone or something. □ The cat jumped on the mouse. □ Max jumped on the unsuspecting tourist and robbed him.

jump on the bandwagon Go to on the bandwagon.

jump on((to) something) 1. to get onto something. □ The cat jumped onto the sofa and took a nap. □ I was sitting on the sofa and the cat jumped on it and scared me. 2. to get involved in something very quickly. □ Jump onto that story now and get it done for tonight's edition. □ I'll jump on the story right now, boss.

jump out of something to leap from something. □ A mouse jumped out of the cupboard and scared me. □ I jumped out of bed and ran to answer the telephone.

jump out of the frying pan into the fire Go to out of the frying pan into the fire.

jump over something to leap over or across something. □ The fellow named Jack jumped over a candle placed on the floor. □ Puddles are to be jumped over, not waded through.

jump over the broomstick Rur. to get married. □ Jim and Jane have decided to jump over the broomstick. □ The happiest day of my life was when your mother said she'd jump over the broomstick with me.

jump ship 1. Lit. to leave one's job on a ship and fail to be aboard it when it sails; [for a sailor] to go AWOL. □ One of the deckhands jumped ship at the last port. 2. Fig. to leave any post or position; to quit or resign, especially when there is difficulty with the job. □ None of the editors liked the new policies, so they all jumped ship as soon as other jobs opened up.

jump the gun Fig. to start before the starting signal. (Originally used in sports contests that are started by firing a gun.) □ We all had to start the race again because Jane jumped the gun. □ When we took the test, Tom jumped the gun and started early.

jump the track 1. Lit. [for something] to fall or jump off the rails or guides. (Usually said about a train.) □ The train jumped the track, causing many injuries to the passengers. □ The engine jumped the track, but the other cars stayed on. 2. Fig. to change suddenly from one thing, thought, plan, or activity to another. □ The entire project jumped the track, and we finally had to give up. □ John's mind jumped the track while he was in the play, and he forgot his lines.

jump through a hoop and jump through hoops Fig. to do everything possible to obey or please someone; to bend over backwards (to do something). (Trained circus animals jump through hoops.) □ She expects us to jump through hoops for her. □ What do you want me to do—jump through a hoop?

jump to conclusions and leap to conclusions Fig. to judge or decide something without having all the facts; to reach unwarranted conclusions. (See also rush to conclusions.) □ Now don't jump to conclusions. Wait until you hear what I have to say. □ Please find out all the facts so you won't leap to conclusions.

jump up (from something) to leap upward from something. □ The dog jumped up from its resting place. □ The dog jumped up and ran to the door.

jump up (on someone or something) to leap upward onto someone or something. □ A spider jumped up on me and terrified me totally. □ The cat jumped up on the sofa.

jump up (to something) to leap upward to the level of something. □ The child jumped up to the next step. □ The dog couldn't reach the piece of meat on the edge of the table, so it jumped up and got it.

jump with something Fig. to be very active with excitement or enthusiasm. □ The crowd was jumping with enthusiasm. □ The bar was jumping with young people.

jumping-off place Go to next.

jumping-off point and jumping-off place a point or place from which to begin something. □ The local library is a good jumping-off point for your research. □ The office job in that company would be a good jumping-off place for a career in advertising.

junk mail annoying, unsolicited mail, such as promotional letters, etc. □ I am so incredibly tired of getting pound after pound of junk mail every day. I could just scream.

The jury is still out on someone or something. Fig. a decision has not been reached on someone or something; the people making the decision on someone or something have not yet decided. □ The jury is still out on Jane. We don't know what we are going to do about her. □ The jury is still out on the question of building a new parking lot.

just a minute only a short time; [wait] a short period of time. □ I'm almost done. I'll be there in just a minute! □ Could I have just a minute of your time?

Just a minute (you)! Stop where you are! (Not very polite.) □ Just a minute, you! Where are you going with my coat?

(just) a stone's throw away (from something) Go to within a stone's throw (of something).

(just) a stone's throw (from something) Go to within a stone's throw (of something).

(just) as I expected I thought so; I knew it would be this way. □ Just as I expected. The window was left open and it rained in. □ As I expected, he left work early again.

just fell off the turnip truck Rur. ignorant; unsophisticated. □ He stood there gawking at the buildings in town like he just fell off the turnip truck. □ My cousin acts like she just fell off the turnip truck.

just in case in the event that (something happens). □ All right. I'll take it just in case. □ I'll take along some aspirin, just in case.

just in time at the last possible time. □ He got to the meeting just in time. They had just started the topic he was supposed to talk about.

just let me say Go to let me (just) say.

just like that in just the way it happened or was stated; without any [further] discussion or comment. □ Sue: You can't walk out on me just like that. John: I can too. Just watch! □ Mary: And then she slapped him in the face, just like that! Sally: She can be so rude.

just off the boat Fig. to be newly immigrated and perhaps gullible and naive. □ I'm not just off the boat. I know what's going on. □ He may act like he's just off the boat, but he's very savvy.

just one's cup of tea Fig. to be something that one prefers or desires. □ This spy novel is just my cup of tea. □ Teaching children to read is just my cup of tea.

just passing through just moving through an area and not stopping. □ We didn't stop in Moose Jaw. We were just passing through.

just so 1. in perfect order; neat and tidy. □ Her hair is always just so. □ Their front yard is just so. 2. Precisely right!; Quite right! (Usually Just so!) □ Bill: The letter should arrive tomorrow. Tom: Just so! □ Jane: We must always try our best. Martin: Just so!

(just) taking care of business Fig. doing what I am supposed to do; an answer to the question "What are you doing lately?" (Also abbreviated T.C.B.) □ Bill: Hey, man,

What you been doing? Tom: Just taking care of business. Andy: Look, officer, I'm just standing here, taking care of business, and this Tom guy comes up and tries to hit me for a loan. Tom: That's not true!

just the same Go to all the same.

just the same (to someone) Go to all the same (to someone).

just the ticket Fig. to be just the perfect thing. This soup is just the ticket for a quick lunch. A good, hot cup of coffee will be just the ticket.

just what the doctor ordered Fig. exactly what is required, especially for health or comfort. That meal was delicious, Bob. Just what the doctor ordered. Bob: Would you like something to drink? Mary: Yes, a cold glass of water would be just what the doctor ordered.

Just (you) wait (and see)! Go to You (just) wait (and see)!

justify something by something to try to explain why something needs doing or why it is acceptable to do something.

You cannot justify violence by quoting proverbs. Your action was totally justified by the circumstances.

justify something to someone to explain something to someone and show why it is necessary. Please try to justify this to the voters. I can justify your action to no one.

jut out (from something) to stick outward from something. The flagpole juts out from the side of the building. His nose juts out sharply.

jut out (into something) to stick outward into an area. The back end of the truck juttet out into the street. The back end juttet out.

jut out (over someone or something) to stick out over someone or something. The roof of the house juttet out over the patio. I'm glad the roof juttet out and kept us dry during the brief storm.

juxtapose someone or something to someone or something to place people or things next to each other, in any combination. (Also implies that the placing or arranging is done carefully.) I went to the meeting room early so I could juxtapose myself to the head of the table. I juxtaposed the chair to the view out the window.

Kk

K

a kangaroo court a bogus or illegal court. □ Is this a staff meeting or a kangaroo court? □ You have turned this interview into a kangaroo court.

Katie bar the door Prepare immediately for an advancing threat. □ Katie bar the door, the grandchildren are here and they all look hungry.

keel over [for a person] to fall over or fall down in a faint or in death. □ It was so hot in the room that two people just keeled over.

keel something over^t Rur. to push something over. □ He leaned on the flimsy wall and keeled it right over. □ The high wind keeled over that sorry old fence.

keen about someone or something Go to keen on someone or something.

keen on doing something willing or eager to do something. □ Dave isn't very keen on going to the opera. □ The children are keen on swimming this afternoon. Shall I take them?

keen on someone or something and keen about someone or something to be enthusiastic about someone or something. □ I'm not too keen on going to Denver. □ Sally is fairly keen about getting a new job. □ Mary isn't keen on her new boss.

keep a civil tongue (in one's head) Fig. to speak decently and politely. □ Please, John. Don't talk like that. Keep a civil tongue in your head. □ John seems unable to keep a civil tongue.

keep a close rein on someone or something Go to keep a tight rein on someone or something.

keep a close watch on someone or something to watch someone or something very carefully. □ Let's keep a close watch on Fred and his friends. □ I want to keep a close watch on the house across the street.

keep a firm grip on someone or something and keep a tight grip on someone or something 1. Lit. to hold on to someone or something tightly. □ As they approached the edge, Sally kept a firm grip on little Timmy. □ She kept a tight grip on him. □ Keep a firm grip on my hand as we cross the street. 2. Fig. to keep someone or something under firm control. □ The manager keeps a firm grip on all the employees. □ I try to keep a firm grip on all the accounts.

keep a lid on something Go to a lid on something.

keep a low profile Go to a low profile.

keep a promise and keep one's promise to make good on a promise; to fulfill one's promise. □ If you can't keep your promises, you shouldn't make them in the first place.

keep a secret to know a secret and not tell anyone. □ Please keep our little secret private. □ Do you know how to keep a secret?

Keep a stiff upper lip. Prov. Act as though you are not upset.; Do not let unpleasant things upset you. (English people are stereotypically supposed to be very good at keeping a stiff upper lip.) □ Even though he was only three years old, Jonathan kept a stiff upper lip the whole time he was in the hospital recovering from his surgery. □ Jill: Sometimes this job frustrates me so much I could just break down in tears. Jane: Keep a stiff upper lip. Things are bound to improve.

keep a straight face Go to a straight face.

Keep a thing seven years and you'll (always) find a use for it. Prov. If you keep a seemingly useless thing for seven years, you will supposedly have some occasion to use it during that time. □ Jill: My mother sent me a four-foot-tall ceramic vase for my birthday. What can I possibly use it for? Jane: Keep it seven years and you'll find some use for it.

keep a tight grip on someone or something Go to keep a firm grip on someone or something.

keep a tight rein on someone or something and keep a close rein on someone or something Fig. to watch and control someone or something diligently. (Alludes to controlling a horse by a tight grip on the reins.) □ The office manager kept a tight rein on the staff. □ Mary keeps a close rein on her children.

keep abreast of someone or something Go to abreast of someone or something.

keep after someone (about something) and keep at someone (about something); keep on someone (about something); stay after someone (about something) to remind or nag someone over and over to do something. □ I'll keep after you until you do it! □ Mother stayed after Bill until he did the dishes. □ She kept at him until he dried them and put them away. □ We will have to keep on him about the report until he turns it in.

keep ahead (of someone or something) Go to ahead (of someone or something).

keep ahead of something Go to ahead of something.

keep ahead of the game Go to ahead of the game.

keep aloof from someone or something Go to aloof from someone or something.

keep an act up^t and keep one's act up^t to maintain behavior that is a false show; to continue with one's facade. (The an can be replaced with the, this, that, etc.) □ How long do I have to keep this act up? I am tired of fooling people. □ I am weary of keeping up my act.

keep an ear to the ground and have an ear to the ground; keep one's ear to the ground; have one's ear to the ground Fig. to devote attention to watching or listening for clues as to what is going to happen. □ John had his ear to the ground, hoping to find out about new ideas in computers. □ His boss told him to keep his ear to the ground so that he'd be the first to know of a new idea.

keep an eye on someone or something and have an eye on someone or something; keep one's eye(s) on someone or something; have one's eye on someone or something Fig. to watch someone or something; to monitor someone or something closely. I have my eye on the apple tree. When the apples ripen, I'll harvest them. Please keep an eye on the baby. Will you please keep your eye on my house while I'm on vacation?

keep an eye out (for someone or something) and have an eye out (for someone or something); keep one's eye out (for someone or something); have one's eye out (for someone or something) Fig. to watch for the arrival or appearance of someone or something. (See also keep one's eyes open (for someone or something).) Please try to have an eye out for the bus. Keep an eye out for rain. Have your eye out for a raincoat on sale.

keep an open mind Go to an open mind.

keep at arm's length from someone or something and keep someone or something at arm's length Fig. to retain a degree of physical or social remoteness from someone or something. I try to keep at arm's length from Larry, since our disagreement. I keep Tom at arm's length because we don't get along.

Keep at it! Keep doing what you are doing!; Keep trying! (Said as encouragement to keep working at something.) The boss told me to keep at it every time he passed my desk. Keep at it, Tom! You can do it!

keep at someone (about something) Go to keep after someone (about something).

keep at something to persist at doing something; to continue trying to do something. John kept at his painting until the whole house was done. Keep at the job if you want to get it finished.

keep away (from someone or something) Go to away (from someone or something).

keep banker's hours Fig. to work or be open for business for less than eight hours a day. The advertising agency keeps banker's hours. They are only open until four. James doesn't really work full-time. He keeps banker's hours.

keep body and soul together Fig. to manage to keep existing, especially when one has very little money. (Compare this with keep the wolf from the door.) We hardly had enough to keep body and soul together. I don't earn enough money to keep body and soul together.

keep clear of something Go to clear of something.

keep (close) watch (on someone or something) to monitor someone or something; to observe someone or something. Keep close watch on Bill. I think he's loafing. Okay. I'll keep watch, but I think he's a good worker.

keep (close) watch (over someone or something) to guard or care for someone or something. I'm keeping watch over my children to make sure they have the things they need. I think that an angel is keeping close watch over her to make sure nothing bad happens to her.

keep company (with someone) 1. Lit. to spend much time with someone; to associate with or consort with someone. Bill has been keeping company with Ann for three months. Bob has been keeping company with a tough-looking bunch of boys. 2. Fig. to be courting someone. Mary and Bill are keeping company. I heard that Joe is keeping company with Jim Brown's daughter.

keep cool Inf. to stay calm and undisturbed. Relax, man, keep cool! If Sally could just keep cool before a race, she could probably win.

keep faith with someone to be loyal to someone. I intend to keep faith with my people and all they stand for. We could not keep faith with them any longer.

keep fit to keep in good physical condition. I do everything I can to keep fit.

keep from something to avoid doing something; to refrain from doing something. How could I keep from crying? It was so sad! Try to keep from falling off the ladder.

keep (going) on about someone or something to continue to talk excessively about someone or something. I wish you would not keep going on about Tom and Jill. Don't keep on about my haircut. It's perfect!

keep (going) on at someone or something to continue to complain about or scold someone or a group. Don't keep going on at him. Give him the dickens and be done with it. Please don't keep on at the committee. They did the best they could.

keep good time [for a watch or clock] to be accurate. I have to return my watch to the store because it doesn't keep good time. Mine keeps good time.

keep harping on something to continue to talk or complain about something; to keep raising a topic of conversation. (See also harp on something.) Why do you keep harping on the same old complaint? You keep harping on my problems and ignore your own!

keep house to manage a household. I hate to keep house. I'd rather live in a tent than keep house. My grandmother kept house for nearly sixty years.

keep in good condition Go to in good condition.

keep in good shape Go to in good shape.

keep in good with someone to remain in someone's favor. I always try to keep in good with the boss's secretary. It's also good to keep in good with the boss.

keep in step (with someone) Go to in step (with someone).

Keep in there! Inf. Keep trying! Andy: Don't give up, Sally. Keep in there! Sally: I'm doing my best! John: I'm not very good, but I keep trying. Fred: Just keep in there, John.

Keep in touch. Good-bye. (Sometimes a sarcastic way of saying good-bye to someone one doesn't care about.) Nice talking to you. Keep in touch. Sorry, we can't use you anymore. Keep in touch.

keep in touch (with someone) Go to in touch (with someone).

keep in touch (with someone or something) and remain in touch (with someone or something); stay in touch (with someone or something) to maintain communications with someone; to maintain up-to-date knowledge about someone or something. (See also get in touch (with someone).) After my neighbor moved, we still remained in touch. I want to stay in touch with my office over the weekend.

keep in training to maintain oneself in good physical condition. I try to keep in training so I will live longer.
 Try to keep in training.

keep inside ((of) something) to remain inside of something, usually a shelter, house, etc. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) Please keep inside of the house while it's raining. I want you to keep inside.

keep it down (to a dull roar) Fig. to keep quiet or as quiet as possible. Keep it down, you kids! Please try to keep it down to a dull roar, could you?

keep (it) in mind that a statement emphasizing something that the speaker wants remembered. Bill: When we get there I want to take a long hot shower. Father: Keep it in mind that we are guests, and we have to fit in with the routines of the household. Sally: Keep it in mind that you don't work here anymore, and you just can't go in and out of offices like that. Fred: I guess you're right.

Keep it up! 1. Keep up the good work!; Keep on doing it.; Keep (on) trying. Jane: I think I'm doing better in calculus. John: Keep it up! Sally: I can now jog for almost three miles. Fred: Great! Keep it up! 2. Just keep acting that way and see what happens to you. (Compare this with (Go ahead,) make my day!) John: You're just not doing what is expected of you. Bill: Keep it up! Just keep it up, and I'll quit right when you need me most. "Your behavior is terrible, young man! You just keep it up and see what happens," warned Alice. "Just keep it up!"

keep late hours to stay up or stay out until very late at night. I'm always tired because I keep late hours. If I didn't keep late hours, I wouldn't sleep so late in the morning.

keep off (of) someone's back and keep off (of) someone's case Inf. Fig. to leave someone alone; to stop criticizing or scolding someone. Keep off of my back! Leave me alone. Keep off my case!

keep off (of) someone's case Go to previous.

keep off ((of) something) to remain off something; to stay off of something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) Please keep off the grass. This is not a public thoroughfare! Keep off! You had better keep off of my property.

keep on Go to keep on something.

keep on an even keel Fig. to remain cool and calm. (Originally nautical.) If Jane can keep on an even keel and not panic, she will be all right. Try to keep on an even keel and not get upset so easily.

keep on (doing something) to continue to do something. Are you going to keep on singing all night? Yes, I'm going to keep on.

keep on keeping on Inf. keep trying; keep doing what you are doing. I do my best. I just keep on keeping on.

keep on (one's) guard (against someone or something) Go to on (one's) guard (against someone or something).

keep on one's toes Go to on one's toes.

keep on someone (about something) Go to keep after someone (about something).

keep on someone's case Go to on someone's case.

keep on something 1. and keep on Lit. to work to remain mounted on something, such as a horse, bicycle, etc. It's really hard for me to keep on a horse. It's hard to keep on when it's moving all over the place. 2. Fig. to pay close attention to something. (See also keep on top of someone or something.) Keep on that story until everything is settled. This is a problem. Keep on it until it's settled.

keep on the good side of someone Go to keep on the right side of someone.

keep on the left(-hand) side (of something) to stay on the left-hand side of something. Please don't keep on the left side all the time when everyone else is on the right! In England you keep on the left-hand side.

keep on the right side of someone and keep on the good side of someone; stay on the good side of someone; stay on the right side of someone Fig. to remain in someone's favor. (This has nothing to do with the right-hand side.) You had better keep on the right side of Mr. Franklin. He's very particular. I will keep on the good side of him.

keep on the right(-hand) side (of something) to stay on the right-hand side of something. We always keep on the right side of the road in this country. Please keep on the right-hand side.

keep on (the) track Fig. to stay on the path that one is on; to continue doing the things one is doing. Keep on the track and you will end up where you want to be. I know I can keep on track.

keep on top (of someone or something) to stay well-informed about the status of someone or something. I need to keep on top of the president, because I am doing a report on him. News is easy to get these days, and I do what I can to keep on top.

keep on trucking Inf. to continue to do well; to continue to try. Just keep on trucking, man. All I can do is keep on trucking.

Keep (on) trying. and Don't quit trying. Fig. a phrase encouraging continued efforts. Jane: I think I'm doing better in calculus. John: Keep trying! You can get an A. Sue: I really want that promotion, but I keep getting turned down. Bill: Don't quit trying! You'll get it.

keep on with something to continue with something. Just keep on with your work. Don't pay any attention to me. Can I keep on with this while you are talking?

keep one in one's place to make someone stay in the proper rank or station. I guess you want to keep me in my place, is that right? I know enough to keep myself in my place.

keep one on one's toes Go to on one's toes.

keep one's act up[†] Go to keep an act up[†].

keep one's cards close to one's chest Go to play one's cards close to one's chest.

keep one's cards close to one's vest Go to keep one's cards close to one's chest.

keep one's chair and keep one's seat Fig. to stay seated; to remain in one's chair or place. That's all right. Keep your chair. I'll find my own way out. Please keep your seats until after the question-and-answer period.

keep one's chin up Fig. to keep one's spirits high; to act brave and confident. □ Keep your chin up, John. Things will get better. □ Just keep your chin up and tell the judge exactly what happened.

keep one's cool Inf. to remain calm and in control. □ Relax, man! Just keep your cool. □ It's hard to keep your cool when you've been cheated.

keep one's distance (from someone or something) Fig. to maintain a respectful or cautious distance from someone or something. □ Keep your distance from John. He's in a bad mood. □ Keep your distance from the fire.

keep one's ear to the ground Go to keep an ear to the ground.

keep one's end of the bargain up[†] Go to hold one's end of the bargain up[†].

keep one's end up[†] 1. Lit. to hold one's end of a load so that the load is level. □ Be sure to keep your end up while we go up the stairs. □ Try to keep up your end. 2. Fig. to carry through on one's part of a bargain. □ You have to keep your end up like the rest of us. □ Don't worry, I'll keep up my end.

keep one's eye on someone or something and have one's eye on someone or something Fig. to have one's attention directed to someone or something. □ Please keep your eye on the children while I go to the store. □ Bill kept an eye on his expenses because he was spending too much money.

keep one's eye on the ball 1. Fig. to watch or follow the ball carefully, especially when one is playing a ball game; to follow the details of a ball game very carefully. □ John, if you can't keep your eye on the ball, I'll have to take you out of the game. □ "Keep your eye on the ball!" the coach roared at the players. 2. Fig. to remain alert to the events occurring around oneself. □ If you want to get along in this office, you're going to have to keep your eye on the ball. □ Bill would do better in his classes if he would just keep his eye on the ball.

keep one's eyes open (for someone or something) and keep one's eyes peeled (for someone or something) Fig. to remain alert and watchful for someone or something. (The entry with peeled is informal. Peel refers to moving the eyelids back. See also keep an eye out (for someone or something).) □ I'm keeping my eyes open for a sale on winter coats. □ Please keep your eyes peeled for Mary. She's due to arrive here any time. □ Okay. I'll keep my eyes open.

keep one's eye(s) out (for someone or something) Go to keep an eye out (for someone or something).

keep one's eyes peeled (for someone or something) Go to keep one's eyes open (for someone or something).

keep one's feet on the ground and have one's feet on the ground Fig. to remain calm and stable. □ You will do all right if you have your feet on the ground. Don't get carried away. □ Just keep your feet on the ground and you will do fine.

keep one's finger on the pulse of something Fig. to monitor the current state of something frequently. □ I have to keep my finger on the pulse of the city if I want to be a good reporter. □ It is hard to keep your finger on the pulse of Washington, D.C., but a U.S. senator must do it.

keep one's fingers crossed (for someone or something) and cross one's fingers to wish for luck for someone or something, sometimes by actually crossing one's fingers; to hope for a good outcome for someone or something. □ I hope you win the race Saturday. I'm keeping my fingers crossed for you. □ I'm trying out for a play. Keep your fingers crossed!

keep one's hand in (something) Fig. to remain involved in something, perhaps only a token involvement. □ I want to keep my hand in things even after I retire. □ I always have to keep my hand in so I will feel a part of things.

keep one's hands off (something) to refrain from touching or handling something. □ I'm going to put these cookies here. You keep your hands off them. □ Get your hands off my book, and keep them off.

keep one's hands to oneself Fig. to refrain from touching anything or anyone; to refrain from punching or poking someone. □ Won't you keep your hands to yourself? □ Keep your hands to yourself while we are in the toy store. □ I want you boys to stop fighting and keep your hands to yourselves.

keep one's head Fig. to remain calm and sensible when in an awkward situation that might cause a person to panic or go out of control. □ She was very angry. We had to calm her down and encourage her to keep her head. □ Always try to keep your head when others are panicking.

keep one's head above water 1. Lit. to keep from drowning when swimming or floating. (See also get one's head above water.) □ I was so tired I could hardly keep my head above water. 2. Fig. to manage to survive, especially financially. □ We have so little money that we can hardly keep our heads above water. □ It's hard to keep your head above water on this much money. 3. Fig. to keep up with one's work. □ It's all I can do to keep my head above water with the work I have. I can't take on any more. □ We have so many orders that we can hardly keep our heads above water.

keep one's mind on someone or something to concentrate on someone or something. □ He is keeping his mind on Jane instead of his work. □ I find it hard to keep my mind on my reading.

keep one's mouth shut (about someone or something) Fig. to keep quiet about someone or something; to keep a secret about someone or something. □ They told me to keep my mouth shut about the boss or I'd be in big trouble. □ I think I'll keep my mouth shut.

keep one's nose clean Fig. to keep out of trouble, especially trouble with the law. □ I'm trying to keep my nose clean by staying away from those rough guys. □ John, if you don't learn how to keep your nose clean, you're going to end up in jail.

keep one's nose out of someone's business Fig. to refrain from interfering in someone else's business. (See also keep one's nose out of something.) □ Let John have his privacy, and keep your nose out of my business, too! □ Keep your nose out of my business!

keep one's nose out of something Fig. to stay out of something, such as someone else's business. (See also keep one's nose out of someone's business.) □ Try to keep your nose out of stuff that doesn't concern you. □ Keep your nose out of my personal affairs.

keep one's nose to the grindstone Fig. to work hard and constantly. □ Son: I'll never get good grades. I might as well not even study. Mother: Don't give up yet. I'm sure that if you just keep your nose to the grindstone, you'll get the results you want. □ Mary kept her nose to the grindstone while her friends were out enjoying themselves.

keep one's opinions to oneself to stop mentioning one's own opinions, especially when they disagree with someone else's. □ You ought to keep your opinions to yourself rather than upset our guests. □ Please keep your rude opinions to yourself!

keep one's own counsel Fig. to keep one's thoughts and plans to oneself; to withhold from other people one's thoughts and plans. □ Jane is very quiet. She tends to keep her own counsel. □ I advise you to keep your own counsel.

keep one's pants on Go to keep one's shirt on.

keep one's place Fig. to exhibit only the behavior appropriate to one's position or status in life. □ When I complained about the food, they told me to keep my place! □ I suggest you keep your place until you're in a position to change things.

keep one's promise Go to keep a promise.

keep one's seat Go to keep one's chair.

keep one's shirt on and keep one's pants on Fig. to be patient. □ Wait a minute! Keep your shirt on! □ Keep your pants on! I'll be with you in a minute.

keep one's shoulder to the wheel Go to have one's shoulder to the wheel.

keep one's side of the bargain Go to live up to one's end of the bargain.

keep one's temper and hold one's temper to hold back an expression of anger. (The opposite of lose one's temper.) □ She should have learned to keep her temper when she was a child. □ Sally got thrown off the team because she couldn't hold her temper.

keep one's weather eye open Fig. to watch for something (to happen); to be on the alert (for something); to be on guard. □ Some trouble is brewing. Keep your weather eye open. □ Try to be more alert. Learn to keep your weather eye open.

keep one's wits about one Fig. to remain rational when threatened or under stress; to keep one's mind operating in a time of stress. □ If Jane hadn't kept her wits about her during the fire, things would have been much worse. □ I could hardly keep my wits about me.

keep one's word to uphold one's promise; to do as one says. (The opposite of break one's word.) □ I told her I'd be there to pick her up, and I intend to keep my word. □ Keeping one's word is necessary in the legal profession.

keep one step ahead of someone or something and stay one step ahead of someone or something Fig. to be or stay slightly in advance of someone or something. □ Al kept one step ahead of Detective Rogers. □ Try to keep one step ahead of the investigators.

keep oneself above suspicion Go to above suspicion.

keep oneself to oneself to remain aloof. □ He does tend to keep himself to himself. □ Keep yourself to yourself, and you'll be all right there.

keep out from under someone's feet Fig. to stay out of someone's way. □ Please keep out from under my feet. I'm very busy. □ Try to keep out from under Tom's feet while he is working.

Keep out of my way. and Stay out of my way. 1. Lit. Don't get in my pathway. □ John: Keep out of my way! I'm carrying a heavy load. Bill: Sorry. □ "Keep out of my way!" shouted the piano mover. 2. Fig. Don't cause me any trouble. □ Henry: I'm going to get even no matter what. Keep out of my way. Andy: Keep it up! You'll really get in trouble. □ John: I intend to work my way to the top in this business. Mary: So do I, so just keep out of my way.

keep out of sight Go to out of sight.

keep out (of something) 1. Lit. to remain outside something or some place. □ You should keep out of the darkroom when the door is closed. □ The door is closed. Keep out! 2. Fig. to remain uninvolved with something. □ Keep out of this! It's my affair. □ It's not your affair. Keep out!

Keep out of this! and Stay out of this! This is not your business, so do not try to get involved. □ John: Now you listen to me, Fred! Mary: That's no way to talk to Fred! John: Keep out of this, Mary! Mind your own business! Fred: Stay out of this, Mary! Mary: It's just as much my business as it is yours.

keep pace (with someone or something) 1. Lit. to move at the same speed as someone, something, or an animal; to match someone or some creature pace for pace. □ The black horse was having a hard time keeping pace with the brown one. □ Tom runs very fast and I couldn't keep pace with him. 2. Fig. to manage to move, learn, change, etc., at the same rate as someone or something. □ Bill can't keep pace with the geometry class. □ You've just got to keep pace.

keep people straight (in one's mind) Fig. to correctly distinguish one person from other people. □ The twins look exactly alike. Not even their mother can keep them straight.

keep quiet (about someone or something) and keep still (about someone or something) to refrain from talking about someone or something; to keep a secret about someone or something. □ Please keep quiet about the missing money. □ Please keep still about it. □ All right. I'll keep still.

keep sight of someone or something to keep someone or something in view. □ Try to keep sight of the skier. □ I want to keep sight of the children at all times.

Keep smiling. a good-bye phrase encouraging someone to have good spirits. □ John: Things are really getting tough. Sue: Well, just keep smiling. Things will get better. □ Bill: What a day! I'm exhausted and depressed. Bob: Not to worry. Keep smiling. Things will calm down.

keep someone at something to make sure someone continues to work at something. □ Please keep Walter at his chores. □ I was so sick I couldn't keep myself at my work.

keep someone back and hold someone back 1. Lit. to restrain people from moving forward or getting in the way. □ The police were ordered to keep people back so they wouldn't interfere with the paramedics. 2. Fig. to keep a child in the same grade for an extra year. □ We asked them to keep John back a year. □ John was kept back a year in school. 3. Fig. to keep someone from advancing in life. □

I think that your limited vocabulary is keeping you back. □ Her lack of computer skills kept her back in her career.

keep someone company to sit or stay with someone, especially someone who is lonely. □ I kept my uncle company for a few hours. □ He was very grateful for someone to keep him company. He gets very lonely.

keep someone down to prevent someone from advancing or succeeding. □ His lack of a degree will keep him down. □ I don't think that this problem will keep her down.

keep someone from doing something to prevent someone from doing something. □ I kept the child from falling in the lake by grabbing his collar. □ I try to keep myself from overeating, but I seem to fail frequently.

keep someone from someone or something to hold someone away from someone or something; to prevent someone from getting at someone or something. □ You must keep the child from her mother until the mother is infection-free. □ It is hard to keep a child from the playground, even a sick child. □ I could hardly keep myself from the dessert table.

keep someone honest to manage to make someone behave honestly and fairly and tell the truth. □ I love to tell about our vacations, and my wife is usually with me to keep me honest.

keep someone in (a state of) suspense to make someone wait anxiously for something. □ Tell us what happened. Don't keep us in a state of suspense. □ Don't keep me in suspense!

keep someone in ignorance (about someone or something) to prevent someone from learning specific information about someone or something. □ I think we had better keep them all in ignorance about the money for a while. □ I don't know about her. I have kept myself in ignorance on purpose.

keep someone in sight to make sure that a person is visible at all times. □ He looks suspicious. Keep him in sight at all times. □ I cannot keep him in sight day and night.

keep someone in stitches Fig. to cause someone to laugh loud and hard, for a period of time. □ The comedian kept us in stitches for nearly an hour. □ The teacher kept the class in stitches, but the students didn't learn anything.

keep someone in the dark (about someone or something) Go to in the dark (about someone or something).

keep someone in the picture Go to in the picture.

keep someone on Fig. to retain someone in employment longer than is required or was planned. □ She worked out so well that we decided to keep her on. □ Liz was kept on as a consultant.

keep someone on a string Go to on a string.

keep someone on (something) 1. Lit. to make or help someone stay mounted on something, such as a horse, bicycle, etc. □ *Her father kept her on the bicycle as she was learning to ride it. □ I couldn't keep myself on the horse. 2. Fig. to retain someone as an employee. □ *We can't keep you on the payroll any longer. □ Ken could not be kept on any longer.

keep someone on tenterhooks Fig. to keep someone in suspense. □ Don't keep me on tenterhooks! Tell me your news! □ We were all kept on tenterhooks waiting to find out what happened.

keep someone or an animal in^t to make someone or an animal stay inside. □ I will have to keep Billy in until his cold is better. □ Keep the dog in. It's too cold for her to go out. □ Keep in the children and the animals until it warms up.

keep someone or an animal in line Fig. to make certain that someone behaves properly. □ It's very hard to keep Bill in line. He's sort of rowdy. □ The teacher had to struggle to keep the class in line.

keep someone or some creature out in the cold Go to out in the cold.

keep someone or something about and keep someone or something around to have someone or something nearby habitually. □ Try to keep some spare parts about. □ He doesn't work very hard, but we keep him around anyway.

keep someone or something apart to keep someone away from someone else; to keep something away from something else. □ Try to keep the dogs and cats apart. □ Can you keep Bill and Bob apart?

keep someone or something around Go to keep someone or something about.

keep someone or something at a distance to retain some amount of physical distance from someone or something. □ Please try to keep Tom at a distance. He just gets in the way. □ I wanted to keep the smelly plant at a distance.

keep someone or something at arm's length Go to keep at arm's length from someone or something.

keep someone or something at bay Go to at bay.

keep someone or something away (from someone or something) to maintain a physical distance between someone or something and someone or something, in any combination. □ I will try to keep the smokers away from you. □ Try to keep the dog away from the roast.

keep someone or something back^t to hold someone or something in reserve. □ Keep back some of the food for an emergency. □ We are keeping Karen back until the other players have exhausted themselves.

keep someone or something by someone to make someone or something stay next to someone. □ Try to keep the twins by you until we have taken a few more pictures. □ Please keep this package by you until we are ready to present it.

keep someone or something down to hold someone or something in a hidden or protected position. □ Try to keep Sam down where no one can see him. □ Please keep the noise down so Fred won't know it's a party when he comes in.

keep someone or something for someone 1. to retain and care for someone or something. □ *I would be happy to keep Rover for you while you are away. □ Would you keep my dog for me? 2. to keep someone or something in reserve for someone. □ *John wanted to return to the accounting department, but I will keep him here for you for last-minute changes. □ I am keeping some birthday cake here for you, since you will miss the party.

keep someone or something from doing something to prevent someone or something from doing something. □ Would you please keep your dog from digging in my garden? □ Her lack of a degree kept her from advancing.

keep someone or something going to sustain someone or something. I try to eat just enough food to keep me going. Enjoying food is just not an issue any more.

keep someone or something hanging (in midair) Go to leave someone or something hanging (in midair).

keep someone or something in check and hold someone or something in check to keep someone or something under control; to restrain someone or something. Hang on to this rope to keep the dog in check. I was so angry I could hardly hold myself in check.

keep someone or something in mind and bear someone or something in mind to remember and think about someone or something. When you're driving a car, you must bear this in mind at all times: Keep your eyes on the road. As you leave home, keep your family in mind.

keep someone or something in mind (for someone or something) to remember to bring up someone or something in regard to someone or something. Would you keep me in mind for the vice president job? I will keep a position in mind for John, since he is graduating soon.

keep someone or something in order to keep people or things in the proper sequence. Please try to keep the children in order until their turn to perform comes. Can you keep these books in order for me?

keep someone or something in reserve Go to hold someone or something in reserve.

keep someone or something in some place to house or maintain someone or something in some place. We keep the boys in an apartment just off campus. It's cheaper than three dormitory rooms. We can keep your dog in the garage until you return.

keep someone or something in with someone or something to locate people or things together, in any combination. I will keep Tom in with me until he gets his own room. We will keep the cat in with Tom until there is room elsewhere.

keep someone or something off Go to hold someone or something off.

keep someone or something off ((of) someone or something) to make sure that someone or something remains off someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) Keep that woman off of me! She's obsessed with me! Please keep Timmy off the couch. Keep him off!

keep someone or something on (the) (right) track Fig. to make sure that someone or some process continues to progress properly. You have to watch him and keep him on the right track. I will do what I can to keep the process on the track.

keep someone or something on track Go to on track.

keep someone or something out (of something) 1. to prevent someone or something from getting into something or some place. Keep your kids out of my yard. She just couldn't keep herself out of the cookie jar. 2. to keep the subject of someone or something out of a discussion. Keep the kids out of this! I don't want to talk about them. They kept Dorothy out of the discussion.

keep someone or something out of the way to prevent someone or something from getting in the way. Please keep your children out of the way.

keep someone or something quiet Go to next.

keep someone or something still 1. Lit. and keep someone or something quiet to make someone or something silent or less noisy. Can you please keep the baby still? Keep that stereo quiet! 2. Go to keep something quiet. 3. and hold someone or something still Fig. to restrain or control someone or something so that the person or thing cannot move. Please keep your foot still. It makes me nervous when you wiggle it. You have to hold the nail still if you want to hit it.

keep someone or something together to keep things or a group of people together; to keep something, including a group of people, from falling apart. I hope we can keep our club together for a few more years. We will keep it together for a while longer. Keep your toys together. Don't scatter them all over the house.

keep someone or something under (close) scrutiny Go to under (close) scrutiny.

keep someone or something under control Go to under control.

keep someone or something under something to store, hide, or cache someone or something beneath something. Keep Max under the packing crate until the police go away. I keep a box of extra sweaters under the bed.

keep (someone or something) within bounds Fig. to cause someone or something to remain constrained or be reasonable; to cause someone to act or something to be in good taste. I know you want artistic freedom, but if you want an audience, you are going to have to keep within bounds. Try to keep the children within bounds. Do keep your behavior within bounds.

keep someone posted Fig. to keep someone informed (of what is happening); to keep someone up to date. If the price of corn goes up, I need to know. Please keep me posted. Keep her posted about the patient's status.

keep someone, something, or an animal back (from someone or something) to make someone, something, or an animal stay in a position away from someone or something. Keep everyone back from the injured lady. Please keep the dogs back from the turtle.

keep someone under someone's thumb Go to under someone's thumb.

keep someone up 1. Lit. to hold someone upright. Try to keep him up until I can get his bed made. Keep her up for a few minutes longer. 2. Fig. to prevent someone from going to bed or going to sleep. I'm sorry, was my trumpet keeping you up? The noise kept us up.

keep someone young at heart Go to young at heart.

keep something by to keep something handy; to keep something in reserve, ready to be used. Keep this extra glue by in case you need it. This money had been kept by for just such an emergency.

keep something down 1. Lit. to make the level of noise lower and keep it lower. Please keep it down. You are just too noisy. Keep the noise down, or I will call the police. 2. Fig. to retain food in one's stomach rather than throwing it up. I've got the flu and I can't keep any food down. She couldn't keep the milk down. 3. Fig. to keep spending under control. I work hard to keep expenses down. Please try to keep the cost of the new project down.

keep something for a rainy day Go to save (something) for a rainy day.

keep something for another occasion Go to leave something for another occasion.

keep something from someone not to tell something to someone. □ Why did you keep the news from me? I needed to know. □ This matter shouldn't have been kept from me.

keep something in^t Go to hold something in^t.

keep something in the back of someone's mind Go to in the back of someone's mind.

keep something inside ((of) one(self)) Go to hold something in^t.

keep something of someone's or something's to retain something that belongs to or is associated with someone or something. □ I would love to keep this handkerchief of yours. □ I want to keep a memento of the occasion.

keep something on^t to continue to wear an article of clothing. □ I'm going to keep my coat on. It's a little chilly in here. □ I'll keep on my coat, thanks.

keep something on an even keel Fig. to keep something in a steady and untroubled state. □ The manager cannot keep the firm on an even keel any longer. □ When the workers are unhappy, it is difficult to keep the factory on an even keel.

keep something on its feet Fig. to keep something stable and viable. □ It takes a lot of effort to keep this old firm on its feet. We may have to go out of business. □ Can we keep this business on its feet another year?

keep something quiet and keep something still Fig. to keep something a secret. □ I'm quitting my job, but my boss doesn't know yet. Please keep it quiet. □ Okay. I'll keep it still.

keep something still Go to previous.

keep something to a minimum to make something as small, few, or little as possible. □ Do what you can to keep construction dust to a minimum. □ The dust should be kept to a minimum.

keep something to oneself to keep something a secret. □ I want you to keep this news to yourself. □ This should be kept to yourself.

keep something under one's hat Fig. to keep something a secret; to keep something in one's mind (only). (If the secret stays under your hat, it stays in your mind. Note the use of but in the examples.) □ Keep this under your hat, but I'm getting married. □ I'm getting married, but keep it under your hat.

keep something under wraps Fig. to keep something concealed (until some future time). □ We kept the plan under wraps until after the election. □ The automobile company kept the new model under wraps until most of the old models had been sold.

keep something until some time to retain something until a certain time. □ Can you keep this box until I call for it next week? □ The package will be kept until Monday.

keep something up^t 1. Lit. to hold or prop something up. □ Keep your side of the trunk up. Don't let it sag. □ Keep up your side of the trunk. 2. Fig. to continue doing something. □ I love your singing. Don't stop. Keep it up. □ Please keep up your singing. 3. Fig. to maintain something in good order. □ I'm glad you keep the exterior of your house up. □ You keep up your house nicely.

keep something with someone to leave something in the care of someone. □ Can I keep my bicycle with you while I am gone? □ I can keep your bicycle with me.

Keep still. 1. and Hold still. Do not move. □ Quit wiggling. Keep still! □ "Hold still. I can't examine your ear if you're moving," said the doctor. 2. Go to keep quiet (about someone or something).

keep still (for someone or something) Go to hold still (for someone or something).

keep tab(s) (on someone or something) and keep track (of someone or something) Fig. to monitor someone or something; to follow the activities of someone or something. □ I'm supposed to keep track of my books. □ Try to keep tabs on everyone who works for you. □ It's hard to keep tabs when you have a lot of other work to do. □ I can't keep track of the money I earn. Maybe someone else is spending it.

keep the ball rolling 1. Lit. to keep a rolling ball moving. □ You have to throw hard enough to keep the ball rolling all the way to the bowling pins. 2. Fig. to cause something that is in progress to continue. □ Tom started the project, and we kept the ball rolling. □ Who will keep the ball rolling now that she is gone?

keep the home fires burning Fig. to keep things going at one's home or other central location. (From a World War I song.) □ My uncle kept the home fires burning when my sister and I went to school. □ The manager stays at the office and keeps the home fires burning while I'm out selling our products.

keep the stork busy Go to next.

keep the stork flying and keep the stork busy Rur. to have lots of children. □ Sally's pregnant again, with their sixth. They sure do keep the stork flying! □ Grandma and grandpa kept the stork flying. I've got ten aunts and uncles.

keep the wolf from the door Fig. to maintain oneself at a minimal level; to keep from starving, freezing, etc. □ I don't make a lot of money, just enough to keep the wolf from the door. □ We have a small amount of money saved, hardly enough to keep the wolf from the door.

keep things straight (in one's mind) Fig. to correctly distinguish one thing from other things. □ These two bottles look so much alike. It's hard to keep them straight.

Keep this to yourself. a phrase introducing something that is meant to be a secret. □ Andy: Keep this to yourself, but I'm going to Bora Bora on my vacation. Henry: Sounds great. Can I go too? □ John: Keep this to yourself. Mary and I are breaking up. Sue: I won't tell a soul.

keep time 1. Lit. to maintain a musical rhythm. □ Bob had to drop out of the band because he couldn't keep time. □ Since he can't keep time, he can't march, and he can't play the drums. 2. Fig. to keep watch over the time in a game or an athletic contest. □ Ann kept time at all the basketball games. □ Whoever keeps time has to watch the referee very carefully. 3. Fig. [for a clock or a watch] to keep track of time accurately. □ This watch doesn't keep time. □ My other watch keeps time better.

keep to oneself to be solitary; to stay away from other people. □ Ann tends to keep to herself. She doesn't have many friends. □ I try to keep to myself each morning so I can get some work done.

keep to something to adhere to an agreement; to follow a plan; to keep a promise. □ Please keep to the agreed-upon plan. □ Can you keep to what we agreed on?

keep to the straight and narrow Fig. to behave properly and correctly; to stay out of trouble. □ If you keep to the straight and narrow, you can't help but win in the end. □ I always keep to the straight and narrow.

keep together to remain as a group. □ We will keep together to the very end. □ Our group decided to keep together.

keep track (of someone or something) Go to keep tab(s) (on someone or something).

keep under something to remain beneath something. □ Keep under the packing crate, Max. □ I ordered the dog to keep under the table.

keep under wraps Go to under wraps.

keep up an act and keep up one's act Fig. to maintain a false front; to act in a special way that is different from one's natural behavior. □ Most of the time John kept up an act. He was really not a friendly person. □ He works hard to keep up his act.

keep up appearances to make things look all right whether they are or not. □ We must keep up appearances even if it means little sacrifices here and there. □ Things may be unpleasant, but we will keep up appearances.

keep up one's act Go to keep up an act.

Keep up the good work. Please keep doing the good things that you are doing now. (A general phrase of encouragement.) □ Father: Your grades are fine, Bill. Keep up the good work. Bill: Thanks, Dad. □ "Nice play," said the coach. "Keep up the good work!"

keep up (with someone or something) 1. Lit. to advance at the same rate as someone or something; to be just as productive as someone or something. □ Don't work so fast. I can't keep up with you. □ You're running so fast that I cannot keep up with you. □ I don't make enough money to keep up with your spending. 2. Fig. to pay attention to the news about someone or something. □ I don't see the Smiths a lot since they moved, but I keep up with them by phone. □ I try to keep up with current events.

keep up with the Joneses Fig. to try to match the lifestyle of one's neighbors. □ I am tired of trying to keep up with the Joneses. Let's just move if we can't afford to live here. □ We never try to keep up with the Joneses.

keep up with the times Fig. to work to appear contemporary and fashionable. □ I am too old-fashioned. I have to keep up with the times better. □ I don't care about keeping up with the times.

keep watch on someone or something to monitor someone or something. □ Keep watch on the lady in the big coat. She may be a shoplifter. □ Try to keep watch on the committee's work.

keep watch over someone or something to supervise someone or something; to take care of someone or something. □ Please keep watch over the project. □ Will you keep watch over Timmy for a minute?

keep within something to remain within a thing or within the boundaries of something. □ If you keep within the tourist area, you will be safe. □ Please keep within the yard.

Keep your chin up. Fig. an expression of encouragement to someone who has to bear some emotional burdens. (Fixed order.) □ Fred: I really can't take much more of this. Jane: Keep your chin up. Things will get better. □ John: Smile, Fred. Keep your chin up. Fred: I guess you're right. I just get so depressed when I think of this mess I'm in.

Keep your head down. Fig. Lie low, try not to be noticed. □ My advice to you is to keep your head down for the moment. □ Keep your head down. It'll blow over.

Keep your mouth shut (about someone or something). Fig. Do not tell anyone about someone or something. □ Bob: Are you going to see the doctor? Mary: Yes, but keep your mouth shut about it. □ Bob: Isn't Tom's uncle in tax trouble? Jane: Yes, but keep your mouth shut about him.

Keep your nose out of my business. Go to Mind your own business.

Keep your opinions to yourself! Fig. I do not want to hear your opinions! □ Jane: I think this room looks drab. Sue: Keep your opinions to yourself! I like it this way! □ Sally: You really ought to do something about your hair. It looks like it was in a hurricane. John: Keep your opinions to yourself. This is the latest style where I come from.

Keep your pants on! Go to Keep your shirt on!

Keep your powder dry. Go to Put your trust in God, and keep your powder dry.

Keep your shirt on! and Keep your pants on! Inf. Just wait a minute! □ I'll be right with you. Keep your shirt on! □ Keep your pants on! You're next.

Keep your shop and your shop will keep you. Prov. If you work hard at running your business, then your business will always make enough of a profit to support you. □ When Grandpa turned his hardware store over to me, he said, "It's hard work, but it's a good living. Keep the shop and the shop will keep you."

key someone up[†] to cause someone to be anxious or excited. □ The excitement of the moment really keyed me up. □ Thoughts of their vacation keyed up the children so much they couldn't sleep.

the key to success Fig. the secret to someone's success. □ Bob said that the key to his success is working hard, being on time, and being extremely lucky.

keyed up (about something) and keyed up (over something) to be excited or anxious. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Why are you so keyed up about nothing? □ She is keyed up over her son's health.

kick a habit and kick the habit; shake the habit; shake a habit to break a habit. □ It's hard to kick a habit, but it can be done. I stopped biting my nails. □ I used to drink coffee every morning, but I kicked the habit.

kick about someone or something Fig. to complain about someone or something. □ Why are you kicking about your cousin? What has he done now? □ They kicked about our regulations, but they finally accepted them.

kick against someone or something to give someone or something a blow with the foot. □ I kicked against the side of the television set, and it came on. □ He kicked against the giant of a man, but it had no effect.

kick around Go to knock around.

kick ass and kick butt Sl. to actively motivate people to do something. □ It looks like I'm going to have to kick ass to get people moving around here.

kick at someone or something to make kicking motions toward someone or something. □ The horse kicked at me, but I knew it was just a threat. □ The boys kicked at the can aimlessly.

kick back 1. Inf. to relax; to lean back and relax. (See also lie back.) □ I really like to kick back and relax. □ It's time to kick back and enjoy life. 2. Inf. [for an addict] to return to an addiction or a habit, after having "kicked the habit." □ Lefty kicked back after only a few days of being clean. □ A lot of addicts kick back very soon.

kick back (at someone or something) to kick at someone or something in revenge. □ She kicked at me, so I kicked back at her. □ If you kick me, I'll kick back.

kick butt Go to kick ass.

kick in (on something) (for someone or something) Fig. to contribute to something for someone or something. □ Would you like to kick in on a gift for Joel? □ I'll be happy to kick in on a gift. □ Sure, I would like to kick in for the gift.

a kick in the ass Go to a kick in the (seat of the) pants.

a kick in the butt Go to a kick in the (seat of the) pants.

a kick in the guts Sl. a severe blow to one's body or spirit. □ The news was a kick in the guts, and I haven't recovered yet. □ I didn't need a kick in the guts like that.

a kick in the (seat of the) pants and a kick in the ass; a kick in the butt; a kick in the teeth Fig. Inf. a strong message of encouragement or demand. (Use ass and butt with discretion.) □ All he needs is a kick in the seat of the pants to get him going. □ A kick in the butt will get her moving.

a kick in the teeth Go to previous.

kick like a mule and kick like a steer to kick very hard. □ They say that ostriches will kick like a mule if you bother them. □ Stay away from the back end of Tom's horse. It will kick like a steer when a stranger comes up.

kick like a steer Go to previous.

kick off 1. Lit. to start play in a football game by kicking the ball. □ Tom kicked off in the last game. Now it's my turn. □ John tripped when he was kicking off. 2. and kick the bucket Fig. to die. □ Don't say that George Washington "kicked off." Say that he "passed away." □ My cat kicked off last night. She was tough as a lion. □ When I kick the bucket, I want a huge funeral with lots of flowers and crying.

kick one's heels up[†] Fig. to act frisky; to be lively and have fun. (Somewhat literal when said of hoofed animals.) □ I like to go to an old-fashioned square dance and really kick up my heels. □ For an old man, your uncle is really kicking his heels up.

kick oneself (for doing something) Fig. to regret doing something. □ I could just kick myself for going off and not locking the car door. Now the car has been stolen. □ Don't kick yourself. It's insured.

kick out (at someone or something) to thrust one's foot outward at something. □ The ostrich kicked out at the men trying to catch her. □ The mule kicked out and just missed me.

kick over Go to turn over.

kick over the traces Fig. to do what one is meant not to do; to rebel against authority. (Alludes to a horse that steps on the wrong side of the straps that link it to whatever it is pulling.) □ At the age of sixty, Walter kicked over the traces and ran away to Brazil. □ All these young kids seem to want to kick over the traces.

kick some ass (around) Sl. to take over and start giving orders; to raise hell. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ Do I have to come over there and kick some ass around? □ Willie is just the one to kick some ass over there.

kick someone or an animal out[†] Go to boot someone or an animal out[†].

kick someone or something around 1. Lit. to strike someone, something, or some animal with the foot repeatedly. □ Billy is out in the alley kicking a can around. □ Stop kicking that dog around! 2. Fig. to treat someone or something badly. □ I finally quit my job. My boss wouldn't stop kicking me around. □ Stop kicking my car around. It does everything I need a car to do.

kick someone or something aside[†] 1. Lit. to get someone or something out of the way by kicking. □ The bully kicked Timmy aside and grabbed our cake. □ I kicked aside the cats and came into the room. 2. Fig. to get rid of someone or something. □ He simply kicked aside his wife and took up with some young chick. □ I kicked the old laptop aside and got a new one.

kick someone or something away[†] to force someone or something away by kicking. □ Fred kicked the intruder away from the gun he had dropped on the floor. □ Then he kicked away the gun. □ The kickboxer kicked the mugger away.

kick something around[†] 1. Lit. to move something around by kicking it, as in play. □ Kick the ball around awhile and then try to make a goal. □ The boys kicked a can around, making a lot of noise. □ Don't kick around all the dirt. You'll make a mess. 2. Fig. to discuss something; to chat about an idea. □ We got together and kicked her idea around. □ Fred and Bob kicked around some plots for a new movie.

kick something back (to someone or something) to move something back to someone, something, or some place by kicking. □ I kicked the ball back to Walter. □ He kicked it to me, and I kicked it back.

kick something down[†] to break down something by kicking. □ I was afraid they were going to kick the door down. □ Don't kick down the door!

kick something in[†] 1. to break through something by kicking. □ Tommy kicked the door in and broke the new lamp. □ He kicked in the door by accident. 2. Go to next.

kick something in[†] (on something) (for someone or something) to contribute something, such as money, on something for someone or something. □ I will kick a few bucks in on some flowers for the receptionist. □ I will kick in a few bucks on the gift for Marge.

kick something off† Fig. to begin something; to hold a party or ceremony to mark the start of something. (Alludes to starting a football game by kicking off the ball for the first play.) □ The city kicked the centennial celebration off with a parade. □ They kicked off the celebration with a parade.

kick something off (of) someone or something and kick something off† to knock something off someone or something by kicking. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The baby must have kicked her covers off of herself in the night. □ She kicked off her covers in the night.

kick something out of something and kick something out† to move something out of something or some place by kicking. □ The soccer player kicked the ball out of the tangle of legs. □ She got into the fracas and kicked out the ball.

kick the bucket Go to kick off.

kick the habit Go to kick a habit.

kick the (natural) stuffing out of someone and beat the (natural) stuffing out of someone; take the stuffing out of someone; knock the starch out of someone; knock the stuffing out of someone Rur. to kick or beat someone severely. □ Last time I was in a fight with Joe, he kicked the natural stuffing out of me. □ You do that again and I'll kick the stuffing out of you. □ Bill threatened to beat the natural stuffing out of any no-'count rascal who laid a hand on his sister.

kick up to cause trouble or discomfort. □ The ignition in my car is kicking up again. I will have to have it looked into. □ Aunt Jane's arthritis is kicking up. She needs to see the doctor again.

kick up a fuss and kick up a row; kick up a storm Fig. to become a nuisance; to misbehave and disturb (someone). (Row rhymes with cow. Note the variations in the examples.) □ The customer kicked up such a fuss about the food that the manager came to apologize. □ I kicked up such a row that they told me to leave. □ Oh, what pain! My arthritis is kicking up a storm.

kick up a row Go to previous.

kick up a storm Go to kick up a fuss.

kid around (with someone) to tease and joke with someone. □ I like to kid around with John. We are great friends. □ Yes, John and I used to kid around a lot.

kid's stuff a very easy task. □ Climbing that hill is kid's stuff. □ Driving an automatic car is kid's stuff.

kid someone about someone or something to tease someone about someone or something. □ You wouldn't kid me about Jody, would you? □ Please don't kid me about my long hair!

kill for something Sl. to be willing to go to extremes to get something that one really wants or needs. (An exaggeration.) □ I could kill for a cold beer.

kill someone or an animal off† to kill all of a group of people or creatures. □ Lefty set out to kill Max and his boys off. □ Something killed off all the dinosaurs.

kill someone with kindness Fig. to be enormously kind to someone. □ You are just killing me with kindness. Why? □ Don't kill them with kindness.

kill the fatted calf Fig. to prepare an elaborate banquet (in someone's honor). (From the biblical story recounting the return of the prodigal son.) □ When Bob got back from college, his parents killed the fatted calf and threw a great party. □ Sorry this meal isn't much, John. We didn't have time to kill the fatted calf.

Kill the goose that lays the golden egg(s). Prov. To destroy something that is profitable to you. □ Fred's wife knew he wasn't happy in his job, even though it paid well; still, she felt that advising him to leave it would be killing the goose that laid the golden eggs.

kill time Fig. to use something up, especially time. □ I killed time reading a novel. □ The employees were not encouraged to kill time.

kill two birds with one stone Fig. to solve two problems at one time with a single action. □ John learned the words to his part in the play while peeling potatoes. He was killing two birds with one stone. □ I have to cash a check and make a payment on my bank loan. I'll kill two birds with one stone by doing them both in one trip to the bank.

killed outright killed immediately. □ The driver was killed outright in the accident. □ Twenty people were killed outright in the explosion.

killer instinct Cliché an inborn desire or ability to be ruthless. □ Fred has a real killer instinct. He's a difficult boss to work for.

Kind of. Go to Sort of.

a kind of something a variety of something that is fairly close to the real thing, even though it is not exactly the real thing. (See also kind of something.) □ I used a folded newspaper as a kind of hat to keep the rain off. □ Bill is serving as a kind of helper or assistant on this project.

kind of something Go to sort of something.

*a king's ransom Fig. a great deal of money. (To pay an amount as large as one might have to pay to get back a king held for ransom. *Typically: cost ~; pay ~; spend ~.) □ I would like to buy a nice watch, but I don't want to pay a king's ransom for it. □ It's a lovely house. I bet it cost a king's ransom.

Kings have long arms. and Governments have long arms. Prov. Those who are in power can always catch and punish people who have opposed them, no matter how far away those opponents may go. □ After his attempt to assassinate the king, the prince sailed to a distant country, although his wife warned him it would be to no avail. "Kings have long arms," she reminded him.

kink up [for something] to develop kinks or tangles. □ The leather parts tend to shrink and kink up in the damp weather. □ My hair kinks up in this weather.

kiss and make up 1. Lit. [for two people who have been arguing] to kiss each other and apologize. □ John apologized to his wife for disagreeing with her, and they finally kissed and made up. 2. Fig. to forgive someone and be friends again. □ They were very angry, but in the end they kissed and made up. □ I'm sorry. Let's kiss and make up.

kiss and tell Fig. to participate in something secret and private, and then tell other people about it. (In actual use, it usually refers to a person of the opposite sex even when it does not refer to actual kissing.) □ The project was supposed to be a secret between Jane and me, but she spread it all around. I didn't think she was the type to kiss and tell.

 I am willing to discuss it with you, but only if you promise not to kiss and tell.

the kiss of death Fig. an act that puts an end to someone or something. The mayor's veto was the kiss of death for the new law. Fainting on stage was the kiss of death for my acting career.

kiss off 1. Sl. to die. The cat is going to have to kiss off one of these days soon. The cat kissed off after eighteen years of joy and devotion. 2. Sl. death. (Usually kiss-off.)
 When the time comes for the kiss-off, I hope I'm asleep.
 The kiss-off came wrapped in lead, and it was instant.
3. Sl. the dismissal of someone or something. (Usually kiss-off.) The kiss-off was when I lost the Wilson contract. Pete got the kiss-off and is now looking for a new job.

kiss someone off^t Sl. to kill someone. Max kissed Lefty off with a small gun he carried in his boot. He kissed off Lefty with a small gun.

kiss someone on something to kiss someone on a particular place. He kissed her right on the tip of her nose. She was kissed on the tip of her nose.

kiss someone or something off^t Fig. to dismiss someone or something lightly; to abandon or write off someone or something. I kissed off about $200 on that last deal. They kissed me off and that was the end of that job.

kiss someone's ass Sl. to fawn over someone; to flatter and curry favor with someone. (Potentially offensive. Use ass with discretion.) What does he expect me to do? Kiss his ass? I won't kiss your ass for anything.

kiss something away^t (from something) to kiss something and make something bad go away, such as tears, grief, pain, etc. She kissed the tears of pain and disappointment away from her son's face. She kissed away his tears. She kissed the tears away.

kiss something good-bye to anticipate or experience the loss of something. If you leave your camera on a park bench, you can kiss it good-bye. You kissed your wallet good-bye when you left it in the store.

kiss the dust Sl. to fall to the earth, because of death or because of being struck. I'll see that you kiss the dust before sunset, cowboy! You'll kiss the dust before I will, Sheriff.

kiss up to someone Sl. to flatter someone; to curry favor with someone. Edgar is in kissing up to the boss again. Stop kissing up to me.

kissing cousins relatives who know one another well enough to kiss when they meet. Joe and I are kissing cousins, though we ain't seen one another since we was kids. Technically, we're second cousins once removed, but I just say we're kissing cousins.

kith and kin friends and relatives; people known to someone. I was delighted to find all my kith and kin waiting for me at the airport to welcome me home. I sent cards to my kith and kin, telling them of my arrival.

klutz around Inf. to go about acting stupidly or clumsily. Stop klutzing around and get your act together. Why are you klutzing around so much?

knee-deep in something 1. Fig. heavily involved in something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) Right now, we are knee-deep in trouble. 2. Fig. having plenty of something. (*Typically: be ~; stand ~.) We are knee-deep in orders and loving it.

knee-high by the 4th of July Fig. grown as tall as it should. (Corn seedlings are proverbially supposed to be as high as someone's knee by July 4th.) (*Typically: be ~; become ~; grow ~.) What with this drought, I don't think the crop will be knee-high by the 4th of July. It's gonna be a good year. Knee-high by the 4th of July.

knee-high to a grasshopper Go to next.

knee-high to a jackrabbit and knee-high to a grasshopper Rur. very small or short. (Usually used to describe children. *Typically: be ~; since someone was ~.) I've known you since you were knee-high to a jackrabbit. My, how you've grown! The last time I saw you, you were knee-high to a grasshopper!

a knee-jerk reaction Fig. an automatic or reflex reaction; an immediate reaction made without examining causes or facts. With one of his typical knee-jerk reactions, he said no immediately, citing some moral argument that no one understood.

kneel down to get down on one's knees. Please kneel down and fold your hands. You should at least kneel down and be quiet.

kneel down (before someone or something) to show respect by getting down on one's knees in the presence of someone or something. We were told to kneel down in front of the altar. Kneel down when the queen enters!

knew it was coming and (had) known it was coming to have expected in advance that something was to happen. I shouldn't act surprised. I knew it was coming. It's his own fault. He should have known it was coming.

knit one's brow to cause one's brow to wrinkle. Bob knitted his brow when he was confused. Jane knitted her brow because she was angry.

knit something together^t to join things together by knitting. Terry knitted the parts of the sweater together. Sally knitted together the two parts of the glove.

knit together [for broken bones] to join or grow together. The bones are knitting together exactly as expected. If the bones don't knit together properly, we will have to do something a little more drastic.

knock about (some place) (with someone) and knock around (some place) (with someone) to hang around some place with someone; to wander idly about some place with someone. Sally was knocking about France with her friends. I knocked around town with Ken for a while.

knock about (somewhere) to travel around; to act as a vagabond. I'd like to take off a year and knock about Europe. If you're going to knock about, you should do it when you're young.

knock against someone or something to bump against someone or something. Mickey knocked against Mary and said he was sorry. I didn't mean to knock against your sore knee.

knock around 1. to waste time. □ Stop knocking around and get to work! □ I need a couple of days a week just for knocking around. 2. and kick around to wander around; to bum around. □ I think I'll knock around a few months before looking for another job. □ We're just knocking around and keeping out of trouble.

knock around (some place) (with someone) Go to knock about (some place) (with someone).

knock at something to knock [on something] at a particular location. □ I could hear someone knocking at the door next to mine. □ Who is knocking at the door?

knock away (at something) to continue to knock at something. □ The loose shutter kept knocking away at the side of the house. □ It knocked away all night, keeping me awake.

knock back a drink and knock one back; knock one over Sl. to swallow a drink of an alcoholic beverage. □ Todd knocked back one drink, and then had another. □ Kelly knocked one back. □ She knocked one over and left the bar.

Knock it off! Inf. Be quiet!; Stop that noise! Stop doing that! □ John: Hey, you guys! Knock it off! Bob: Sorry. Bill: Sorry. I guess we got a little carried away. Sue: All right. Knock it off! Bill: Yeah. Let's get down to business.

knock off (doing something) to stop doing something. (See also knock off work.) □ Knock off shoveling snow now, and come in for a hot drink. □ I wish he would knock off practicing for a while.

knock off (work) to quit work, for the day or for a break. □ What time do you knock off work? □ I knock off about five-thirty.

knock on something to rap or tap, often with the knuckles, on something. (See also knock on wood.) □ She knocked on the door several times. □ Knock on it again. Maybe she didn't hear you.

knock on wood to rap on something made of wood. (Said as a wish for good luck. Usually a phrase attached to another statement. Sometime said while knocking or rapping on real wood.) □ I think I am well at last—knock on wood. □ I knock on wood when I wish something were true.

knock one back Go to knock back a drink.

knock one off one's feet Go to sweep one off one's feet.

knock one over Go to knock back a drink.

knock one's head (up) against a brick wall Fig. to be totally frustrated. □ Trying to get a raise around here is like knocking your head up against a brick wall. □ No need to knock your head against a brick wall over this problem.

knock one's knees together Fig. [for one's knees] to shake together from fright. □ I stood there freezing for ten minutes, knocking my knees together in the cold. □ It takes a lot of energy to knock your knees together.

knock oneself out (to do something) (for someone or something) to make a great effort to do something for someone or some group. (As if one had worked oneself into unconsciousness.) □ I knocked myself out to plan this party for you! □ She knocked herself out for us. □ I don't know why I knock myself out to do these things for you. You are not at all appreciative. □ He knocked himself out to get there on time.

knock over something 1. Sl. to steal something. (The over is usually before the object in this expression.) □ The gang knocked over an armored car. □ Some cheap crook knocked over a load of television sets. 2. Sl. to rob a place. (The over is usually before the object in this expression.) □ Max knocked over two banks in one week. □ He was the kind of punk who would try to knock over a filling station.

knock some heads together Fig. to scold some people; to get some people to do what they are supposed to be doing. □ If you kids don't quiet down and go to sleep, I'm going to come up there and knock some heads together. □ The government is in a mess. We need to go to Washington and knock some heads together.

knock some sense into someone and knock some sense in^t to strike one, making one smarter, or at least obedient. □ I think his father finally knocked some sense into him. □ The accident finally knocked in some sense. □ I thought that last week's experience would knock some sense in.

knock someone back (an amount of money) to cost an amount of money. □ That trip to Spain knocked me back almost $3,500. □ How much did that new furniture knock us back?

knock someone cold 1. Fig. to render someone unconscious by a violent blow. □ One swipe, and he knocked him cold. □ If you touch her again, I'll knock you cold. 2. and knock someone dead Fig. to put on a stunning performance or display for someone. (Someone is often replaced by 'em from them.) □ This band is going to do great tonight. We're going to knock them dead. □ "See how your sister is all dressed up!" said Bill. "She's going to knock 'em cold."

knock someone dead Go to previous.

knock someone down a peg (or two) Go to take someone down a peg (or two).

knock someone down to size Go to beat someone down to size.

knock someone for a loop 1. Fig. to strike someone hard. □ You really knocked me for a loop. I hope that was an accident. □ I was really knocked for a loop by the falling branch. 2. and throw someone for a loop Fig. to confuse or shock someone. (This is more severe and upsetting than throw someone a curve.) □ When Bill heard the news, it threw him for a loop. □ The manager knocked Bob for a loop by firing him on the spot.

knock someone into something to strike one, sending one into something. □ The blow knocked him into the wall. □ Max knocked Lefty into a lamp post.

knock someone off Go to bump someone off^t.

knock someone or something about and knock someone or something around 1. to jostle someone or something. □ The bumpy road was knocking everyone in the truck about. □ The bumpy road knocked the old truck around a lot. □ Don't knock the grocery bags around. You'll break the eggs. 2. to strike someone or something; to beat on someone or something. □ Max knocked his brother about. □ Stop knocking me around.

knock someone or something down^t to thrust someone or something to the ground by hitting. □ The force of the blast knocked us down. □ It knocked down everyone in the room.

knock someone or something over^t to push or strike someone or something, causing the person or the thing to fall. (See also knock over something; knock someone over (with a feather); knock something over.) □ I am sorry. I didn't mean to knock you over. Are you hurt? □ Who knocked over this vase?

knock someone out^t 1. Lit. to knock someone unconscious. (Someone includes oneself.) □ Fred knocked Mike out and left him there in the gutter. □ Fred knocked out Mike. 2. Fig. to make someone unconsciousness. □ The drug knocked her out quickly. □ The powerful medicine knocked out the patient. 3. Fig. to surprise or please someone. □ I have some news that will really knock you out. 4. Fig. to wear someone out; to exhaust someone. □ All that exercise really knocked me out. □ The day's activities knocked the kids out and they went right to bed.

knock someone over (with a feather) Fig. to leave someone stunned or surprised by something extraordinary. (Fixed order.) □ I was so surprised that you could have knocked me over with a feather. □ Todd could have knocked me over with a feather when he told me his news.

knock someone's block off Sl. to hit someone hard in the head. □ Wilbur almost knocked Tom's block off by accident. □ He threatened to knock my block off if I didn't do as I was told.

knock someone's socks off and knock the socks off (of) someone Sl. to surprise someone thoroughly. (Fixed order. Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The exciting news just knocked my socks off! □ The news knocked the socks off of everyone in the office.

knock someone some skin Sl. to slap hands with someone, a sign of friendship. □ Hey, man, knock me some skin! □ Pete knocked Sam some skin, and they left the building together.

knock someone up^t Inf. to make a woman pregnant. (See also knocked up.) □ They say it was Willie who knocked her up. □ He did not knock up Sue. I did.

knock something against something to strike something against something. □ He knocked a chair against the table and tipped both pieces of furniture over. □ A chair was knocked against the table, upsetting a vase.

knock something back^t Sl. to drink down a drink of something, especially something alcoholic. (See also knock back a drink.) □ I don't see how he can knock that stuff back. □ John knocked back two beers in ten minutes.

knock something down^t 1. Sl. to drink a portion of liquor. □ Here, knock this down and let's go. □ He knocked down a bottle of beer and called for another. 2. Sl. to earn a certain amount of money. □ I'm lucky to knock down twenty thousand. □ She must knock down about twenty thou a year.

knock something into a cocked hat Fig. to demolish a plan, a story, etc. □ I knocked his plans into a cocked hat. □ This bad weather has knocked everything into a cocked hat.

knock something off^t 1. to manufacture or make something, especially in haste. □ I'll see if I can knock another one off before lunch. □ They knocked off four window frames in an hour. 2. to knock off some amount from the price of something, lowering its price.

□ The store manager knocked 30 percent off the price of the coat. □ Can't you knock something off on this damaged item? 3. to copy or reproduce a product. □ The manufacturer knocked off a famous designer's coat. □ They are well known for knocking off cheap versions of expensive watches. 4. Go to knock something off (of) someone or something.

knock something off kilter Go to out of kilter.

knock something off (of) someone or something and knock something off^t to remove something from someone or something by striking. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ I knocked the hard hat off of Wally when I hit him accidentally with the ladder. □ My elbow knocked off the book.

knock something out^t 1. to create something hastily. □ He knocked a few out as samples. □ He knocked out a few of them quickly, just so we could see what they were going to look like. 2. Fig. to put something out of order; to make something inoperable. □ The storm knocked the telephone system out. □ The high winds will probably knock out electrical service all over town.

knock something out of kilter Go to out of kilter.

knock something out of place Go to out of place.

knock something out of someone to beat someone until something emerges or dissipates. □ Max knocked the truth out of the spy. □ Lefty knocked the story out of Max.

knock something out of something to beat or knock on something until something comes out. □ Timmy knocked the stuffing out of his pillow. □ Someone knocked the coins out of my piggy bank.

knock something over^t to tip something over. (See also knock over something.) □ Someone knocked the chair over. □ Who knocked over the flower pot?

knock something to someone to hit something, such as a ball, to someone. □ The coach knocked the ball to each player in turn. □ The ball was knocked to the guy out in center field.

knock something together^t to assemble something hastily. □ I knocked this model together so you could get a general idea of what I had in mind. □ See if you can knock together a quick snack. □ This thing has just been knocked together!

knock the bejeebers out of someone or something Inf. to beat someone or something severely. □ If I catch you doing that again, I'll knock the bejeebers out of you. □ He grabbed the poor dog and just knocked the bejeebers out of it.

knock the bottom out (of something) 1. and knock the bottom out^t Lit. to break the bottom of a container. □ I knocked the bottom out of the barrel and used it to store compost. □ Knock out the bottom and set it right on the soil. 2. Fig. [for something] to go down so low as to knock out the bottom. □ The bad news knocked the bottom out of the stock market. □ The recession knocked the bottom out of our profits.

knock the habit to stop using drugs; to break a drug addiction. □ I just can't knock the habit. □ He tried to knock the habit by drinking lots of booze.

knock the hell out of someone or something Inf. to strike someone or something very hard. (Use hell with discretion.) The bully knocked the hell out of Sam. You really knocked the hell out of my front bumper.

knock the (living) daylight out of someone Fig. Inf. to beat someone severely. If you do that again, I will knock the living daylight out of you. Fred wants to knock the living daylight out of his enemy, Mike “Fingers” Moran.

knock the props out from under someone Fig. to destroy someone’s emotional, financial, or moral underpinnings; to destroy someone’s confidence. When you told Sally that she was due to be fired, you really knocked the props out from under her.

knock the stuffing out of someone Go to kick the (natural) stuffing out of someone.

knock the wind out of someone’s sails 1. Lit. to bring someone to an abrupt halt by a heavy blow to the body, presumably knocking the person’s wind out. (Alludes to a ship being slowed by positioning another ship to block off the wind from the first ship’s sails.) Fred hit Mike and really knocked the wind out of his sails. Fred ran into the side of the garage and knocked the wind out of his sails. 2. Fig. to humiliate someone. The sharp rebuke from the boss knocked the wind out of his sails. That scolding really knocked the wind out of her sails.

knock through something to break through something. They knocked through the wall and put in a doorway. The wall had to be knocked through before we could install a doorway.

knock (up) against someone or something to bump against someone or something. The loose shutter knocked up against the side of the house. The large branch knocked against the garage in the storm.

knock-down, drag-out fight a serious fight; a serious argument. Boy, they really had a knock-down, drag-out fight. Stop calling each other names, or you’re going to end up with a real knock-down, drag-out fight.

knocked in Sl. arrested. (Underworld.) Would you believe that Larry has never been knocked in? When Lefty was knocked in, they found his heat on him.

knocked out 1. Lit. unconscious. The losing boxer lay on the canvas, knocked out. 2. Fig. exhausted. We were all knocked out at the end of the day. I’m knocked out after just a little bit of work. 3. Fig. overwhelmed. We were just knocked out when we heard your news. Were we surprised? We were knocked out—elated! 4. Fig. intoxicated. They were all knocked out by midnight. Gary was knocked out when we dropped by, so we tried to sober him up.

knocked up 1. Lit. battered; beaten. Sally was a little knocked up by the accident. This book is a little knocked up, so I’ll lower the price. 2. Sl. intoxicated. Bill was knocked up and didn’t want to drive. Wow, was that guy knocked up! 3. Inf. pregnant; made pregnant. Sue got knocked up but won’t say who the father is.

knot something together[†] to tie something together in a knot. Knot these strings together and trim the strings off the knot. Are the ropes knotted together properly? Quickly knot together the two loose ends!

know a thing or two (about someone or something) Go to a thing or two (about someone or something).

know a trick or two to know some special way of dealing with a problem. I think I can handle all of this with no trouble. I know a trick or two. I may be a senior citizen, but I still know a trick or two. I think I can help you with this.

know about someone or something to have information or expertise about someone or something. I know about John and what he does. I know about cars, but I can’t fix this one!

know all the angles to know all the tricks and artifices of dealing with someone or something. Ask my accountant about taxes. He knows all the angles. Larry knows all the angles. That’s how he keeps out of the slammer.

know as much about something as a hog knows about Sunday Rur. to have no knowledge of something. Don’t let Jim make dessert for the picnic. He knows as much about pies as a hog knows about Sunday. I had quite a time changing the tire, since I know as much about cars as a hog knows about Sunday.

know at a glance that... to know [something] without much evidence; to know or understand something without a lot of observation. I knew at a glance that Bobbie was severely injured and had to be gotten to a hospital as soon as possible.

know better (than to do something) to be wise enough, experienced enough, or well trained enough not to have done something wrong. Mary should have known better than to accept a lift from a stranger. Children should know better than to play in the road.

know from something to know about something. (Used on the eastern seaboard.) Do you know from thermostats? You don’t know from anything!

know no more about something than a frog knows about bedsheets Rur. to have no knowledge of something. Don’t let Bill fix your car. He knows no more about cars than a frog knows about bedsheets. When I first started studying French literature, I knew no more about it than a frog knows about bedsheets.

know of someone or something to be aware of the existence of someone or something. I think I know of someone who can help you. I didn’t know of Wally’s arrival.

know one for what one is to recognize someone as some type of person or thing. I know you for what you are, you devil. We know him for the thief he is.

know one’s ABCs Fig. to know the alphabet; to know the most basic things (about something). Bill can’t do it. He doesn’t even know his ABCs. You can’t expect to write a letter when you don’t even know your ABCs.

know one’s onions Go to know one’s stuff.

know one’s place to know the behavior appropriate to one’s position or status in life. I know my place. I won’t speak unless spoken to. People around here are expected to know their place. You have to follow all the rules.

know one’s stuff and know one’s onions to know what one is expected to know. I know my stuff. I can do my job. She can’t handle the assignment. She doesn’t know her onions.

know one’s way about Go to next.

K

know one's way around 1. and know one's way about Lit. to know how to get from place to place. □ I can find my way. I know my way around. □ I don't know my way around this city yet. 2. Fig. to know how to deal with people and situations; to have had much experience at living. □ I can get along in the world. I know my way around. □ Do you think I don't know my way around?

know shit from Shinola and tell shit from Shinola Fig. Inf. to know what's what; to be intelligent and aware. (Always in the negative. Shinola is a brand of shoe polish. A person who doesn't know shit from Shinola is very stupid.) □ Poor Tom doesn't know shit from Shinola. □ Fred can't tell shit from Shinola, and he's been made my boss.

know someone as someone to know someone by a different name. □ I know her as Candy La Tour. □ She has been known as Mary Rogers since her marriage.

know someone by sight to recognize a person's face, but not know the name. □ I'm afraid I don't know her by sight. □ I know all my employees by sight.

know someone from someone to tell the difference between one person and another. □ I don't know Fred from his twin brother. □ I know Bill from Bob, but I can't tell most identical twins apart.

know someone or something as something to recognize someone or something as something. □ I know Mr. Franklin as a fine man. □ I know this name as a very fine brand.

know someone or something by name to recognize the name but not the appearance of someone or something. □ I only know her by name. I have no idea what she looks like. □ I know this brand of sausage by name, but I have never tasted it.

know someone or something by something to recognize someone or something by a certain characteristic. □ I know her by her perfume. □ I know this committee only by its reputation, which is not good, by the way.

know someone or something like the back of one's hand Go to next.

know someone or something like the palm of one's hand and know someone or something like the back of one's hand; know someone or something like a book to know someone or something very well. □ Of course I know John. I know him like the back of my hand. □ I know him like a book.

know something backwards and forwards and know something forwards and backwards Fig. to know something very well; to know a passage of language so well that one could recite it backwards as well as forwards. □ Of course I've memorized my speech. I know it backwards and forwards.

know something by heart Fig. to know something perfectly; to have memorized something perfectly. □ I know my speech by heart. □ I went over and over it until I knew it by heart.

know something forwards and backwards Go to know something backwards and forwards.

know something from memory to have memorized something so that one does not have to consult a written version; to know something well from seeing it very often. (Almost the same as know something by heart.) □ Mary didn't need the script because she knew the play from mem- ory. □ The conductor went through the entire concert without sheet music. He knew it from memory.

know something from something to tell the difference between one thing and another. (Often with a negative.) □ You don't know a smoked herring from a squid! □ She didn't know a raven from a crow, and who does?

know something in one's bones Go to feel something in one's bones.

know something inside out to know something thoroughly; to know about something thoroughly. □ I know my geometry inside out. □ I studied and studied for my driver's test until I knew the rules inside out.

know something only too well to know something very well; to know something from unpleasant experience. (Note the variation in the examples.) □ I know the problem only too well. □ I know only too well the kind of problem you must face.

know something through and through to know something very well. □ I want you to know this project through and through before the staff meeting. □ I know my part in the play through and through.

know the big picture Go to the big picture.

know the ropes Go to the ropes.

know the score and know what's what Fig. to know the facts; to know the facts about life and its difficulties. □ Bob is so naive. He sure doesn't know the score. □ I know what you're trying to do. Oh, yes, I know what's what.

Know thyself. Prov. Be aware of your own limitations; know what you are capable of doing. (This was the motto inscribed on the temple of Apollo at Delphi.) □ The motto of the ballet corps was "Know thyself"; every dancer was expected to know how far she could stretch, and not hurt herself by trying to exceed her limits. □ "Know thyself," the high school guidance counselor admonished us, "and try to find a career that makes the most of your abilities."

know the tricks of the trade Go to the tricks of the trade.

Know what? Go to (Do you) know what?

know what's what Go to know the score.

know when one is not wanted to sense when one's presence is not welcome; to know when one is not among friends. (Usually said when someone feels hurt by being ignored by people.) □ I'm leaving this place! I know when I'm not wanted! □ She doesn't know when she's not wanted. Can't she tell she's out of place?

know where all the bodies are buried Fig. to know all the secrets and intrigue from the past; to know all the relevant and perhaps hidden details. □ He is a good choice for president because he knows where all the bodies are buried. □ Since he knows where all the bodies are buried, he is the only one who can advise us.

know where it's at to be alert and know how the world—or some part of it—really works. □ Man, you just don't know where it's at! □ I don't know where cool jazz is at.

know where one is coming from to understand someone's motivation; to understand and relate to someone's position. □ I know where you're coming from. I've been there. □ We all know where he's coming from. That's why we are so worried.

K

know where someone stands (on someone or something) to know what someone thinks or feels about something.

□ I don't know where John stands on this issue. □ I don't even know where I stand.

know where something is at to know where something is located. (Without at, this sense is standard English. See also know where it's at.) □ Do you know where the hammer is at? □ I don't know where my glasses are at.

know whereof one speaks to know well the subject that one is speaking about. □ You are wrong! You do not know whereof you speak. □ He simply doesn't know whereof he speaks.

know which is which and tell which is which to be able to distinguish one person or thing from another person or thing. □ I have an old one and a new one, but I don't know which is which. □ I know that Bill and Bob are twins, but I can't tell which is which.

know which side one's bread is buttered on

Prov. to be aware of where your money comes from; to be loyal to the person or thing that will benefit you the most. □ Wife: Please be sure not to upset Grandma. You know we can't do without the money she sends us every month. Husband: Don't worry. I know which side my bread is buttered on.

Knowledge is power.

Prov. The more you know, the more you can control. □ Child: How come I have to study history? I don't care what all those dead people did hundreds of years ago. Mother: Knowledge is power. If you know something about the past, it may help you to anticipate the future.

known fact

something that is generally recognized as a fact. □ That grass is green is a known fact. □ It is a known fact that John was in Chicago on the night of the murder.

known quantity

someone whose character, personality, and behavior are recognized and understood. □ We need not worry about how John will behave. He is a known quantity. □ Lisa is a known quantity and I am sure she will not surprise us by voting with the opposition.

knuckle down (to something)

Fig. to get busy doing something. □ I want you to knuckle down to your work and stop worrying about the past. □ Come on. Knuckle down. Get busy.

*a knuckle sandwich

Inf. a punch. (*Typically: ask for ~; get ~; give someone ~; want ~.) □ A: Nyah! Your mother smokes cigars! B: You want a knuckle sandwich?

knuckle under (to someone or something) to submit to someone or something; to yield or give in to someone or something. □ You have to knuckle under to your boss if you expect to keep your job. □ I'm too stubborn to knuckle under.

kowtow to someone or something to grovel to someone or something. □ I won't kowtow to anyone! □ You don't expect me to go in there and kowtow to that committee, do you?

label someone or something as something to designate someone or something as something. □ She labeled him as an uncouth person. □ We labeled the committee as a worthless organization.

label someone or something with something to mark or identify someone or something with something. □ They labeled each person who had paid the admission fee with a symbol stamped on the hand. □ I labeled each book with my name.

labor at something to work hard at something. □ He is laboring at his gardening and won't be back in the house until dinnertime. □ What are you laboring at so intensely?

labor for someone or something to work on behalf of someone or something. □ I labored for them all day, and they didn't even thank me. □ I have labored for this cause for many years.

labor for something to work in order to get something, such as money. □ I was laboring for a pittance, so I decided to get another job. □ I labor for the love of it.

a labor of love Fig. a task that is either unpaid or badly paid and that one does simply for one's own satisfaction or pleasure or to please someone whom one likes or loves. □ Jane made no money out of the biography she wrote. She was writing about the life of a friend and the book was a labor of love. □ Mary hates knitting, but she made a sweater for her boyfriend. What a labor of love.

labor over someone or something to work hard on someone or something. □ The surgeon labored over the patient for four hours. □ I labored over this painting for months before I got it the way I wanted it.

labor under an assumption Fig. to function or operate believing something; to go about living while assuming something [that may not be so]. □ I was laboring under the idea that we were going to share the profits equally. □ Are you laboring under the notion that you are going to be promoted?

lace into someone or something and light into someone or something Fig. to attack, devour, or scold someone or something. □ We laced into a big meal of pork and beans. □ The bully punched John once, and then John really laced into him. □ John lit into him with both fists.

lace someone into something to tighten the laces of something someone is wearing. □ Sally helped Billy lace himself into his boots. □ The maid laced Gloria into her corset.

lace someone up[†] to tie someone's laces; to help someone get dressed in a garment having laces. □ Would you please lace me up? I can't reach the ties in the back. □ I laced up Sally, as she requested.

lace something up[†] to tie the laces of something. □ Lace your shoes up, Tommy. □ Lace up your shoes.

lace something with something to adulterate something with something, often with something alcoholic. □ Someone laced the punch with strong whiskey. □ Who laced my coffee with brandy?

lack for something to lack something. □ We don't lack for new ideas. □ We lack for nothing, thank you.

Ladies first. an expression of courtesy indicating that women should go first, as in going through a doorway. □

Bob stepped back and made a motion with his hand indicating that Mary should go first. "Ladies first," smiled Bob.

a ladies' man Fig. a man who likes the company of women and whose company is liked by women, the suggestion being that he likes to flirt with them. □ John is a real ladies' man. He hates all-male parties. □ The new boss is always flirting with the women in the office. He's a bit of a ladies' man.

ladle something out of something and ladle something out[†] to scoop something out of something with a spoon or ladle. □ Marie ladled the last of the gravy out of the gravy boat and went to the kitchen for more. □ She ladled out the soup.

ladle something up[†] to scoop something up in a ladle. □ Jerry ladled a cool dipper of water up and quenched his thirst. □ Please ladle up the soup and serve it.

lady of the evening Euph. a prostitute. □ I saw several ladies of the evening down on Main Street. □ He was approached by a lady of the evening.

lag behind in something to fall behind in something. □ I am lagging behind in my car payments. □ She is lagging behind in her homework assignments.

lag behind (someone or something) to linger behind someone or something; to fall behind someone or something. □ Come on up here. Don't lag behind us or you'll get lost. □ Please don't lag behind the donkeys. Come up here with the rest of the hikers.

laid back 1. calm and relaxed. □ Willie is not what I would call laid back. □ You are really one laid-back guy! 2. intoxicated. □ He's a little laid back and can't come to the phone. □ How can those guys work when they are laid back by noon?

laid out 1. intoxicated. □ Man, you got yourself laid out! □ I'm too laid out to go to work today. 2. well-dressed. □ Look at those silks! Man are you laid out! □ She is all laid out in her Sunday best.

laid up [of people or things] immobilized for recuperation or repairs. □ I was laid up for two weeks after my accident. □ My car is laid up for repairs. □ I was laid up with the flu for a week.

lam into someone or an animal Fig. to attack someone or an animal. □ Paul was so angry that he lammed into his friend and struck him in the side. □ The angry coachman lammed into the poor horses.

L

lame duck 1. Fig. someone who is in the last period of a term in an elective office and cannot run for reelection. □ You can't expect much from a lame duck. □ As a lame duck, there's not a lot I can do. 2. Fig. having to do with someone in the last period of a term in an elective office. (Used as an adjective; sometimes lame-duck.) □ You don't expect much from a lame-duck president. □ Lame-duck Congresses tend to do things they wouldn't dare do otherwise.

lament over someone or something and lament (for) someone or something to sorrow over someone or something. □ There is no need to lament over Sam. There is nothing that crying will do for him now. □ She is still lamenting for her cat.

land a blow 1. Lit. to strike someone. □ He kept moving, and I found it almost impossible to land a blow. □ The boxer landed a blow to the face of his opponent. 2. Fig. to make a point. □ I think I really landed a blow with that remark about extortion. □ The point about justice landed a blow.

land a job to find a job and be hired. □ As soon as I land a job and start to bring in some money, I'm going to get a stereo. □ I managed to land a job at a factory.

land at some place 1. [for a ship] to come to port at a place. □ The ship landed at the wharf and the passengers got off. □ We landed at the island's main city and waited for customs to clear us. 2. [for an airplane] to return to earth at an airport. □ We landed at O'Hare at noon. □ We were to land at Denver, but there was bad weather.

land in something 1. Lit. [for an airplane] to return to earth in or near a particular city. □ We landed in Chicago on time. □ They could not land in San Francisco, so they flew on to Sacramento. 2. Fig. [for someone] to end up in something, such as a mess, jail, trouble, etc. □ If you don't mend your ways, you're going to land in jail! □ Andy is going to land in hot water if he doesn't start paying his bills. 3. [for an airplane] to make a landing in something, such as bad weather, darkness, daylight, fog, etc. □ You can't land this plane in fog like this. □ The novice pilot is not capable of landing in the dark.

Land o' Goshen! Rur. My goodness gracious! (A mild oath. Goshen was an agricultural region in Egypt occupied by the Israelites before the Exodus.) □ Land o' Goshen, it's sure good to see you. □ Land o' Goshen! Look at that rain come down!

the land of Nod a state of sleep. (Humorous. From the fact that people sometimes nod when they are falling asleep.) □ The baby is in the land of Nod. □ Look at the clock! It's time we were all in the land of Nod.

land so poor it wouldn't even raise a fuss and land too poor to raise a racket on Rur. land where nothing will grow. □ I inherited two hundred acres from my uncle, but it's land so poor it wouldn't even raise a fuss. □ The soil's exhausted. That land is so poor it wouldn't even raise a fuss. □ Jill can grow a garden anywhere, even on land too poor to raise a racket on.

land someone in something to cause someone to end up in something. □ His criminal activity finally landed him in jail. □ You really landed yourself in a fine mess!

land something at some place to bring a boat, ship, or airplane to rest or to port at or near a place. □ The captain landed the boat at a small island in hopes of finding a place to make repairs. □ They had to land the plane at a small town because of a medical emergency.

land too poor to raise a racket on Go to land so poor it wouldn't even raise a fuss.

land up somehow Fig. to end up in some way. □ If you keep eating all those sweets, you'll land up sick. □ Do you want to land up without a job?

land up somehow or somewhere to finish somehow or somewhere; to come to be in a certain state or place at the end. □ We set out for Denver but landed up in Salt Lake City. □ He's so extravagant that he landed up in debt.

land (up)on both feet and land (up)on one's feet 1. Lit. to end up on both feet after a jump, dive, etc. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ She jumped over the bicycle and landed upon both feet. □ Donna made the enormous leap and landed on her feet. 2. Fig. to come out of something well; to survive something satisfactorily. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ It was a rough period in his life, but when it was over he landed on both feet. □ At least, after it was over I landed on my feet.

land (up)on one's feet Go to previous.

land (up)on someone or something to light on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ A bee landed upon her and frightened her. □ The spoon I dropped landed on the cake and ruined the icing.

land-office business Fig. a large amount of business done in a short period of time. □ We always do a land-office business at this time of year. □ We keep going. Never do land-office business—just enough to make out.

Land(s) sakes (alive)! and Sakes alive! Rur. My goodness! (A mild oath.) □ Lands sakes! I sure am glad to get home! □ Sakes alive! Can't you even set the table without making a fuss?

a landslide victory a victory by a large margin; a very substantial victory, particularly in an election. □ The mayor won a landslide victory in the election. □ The younger candidate won a landslide victory in the presidential election.

language that would fry bacon Rur. profanity; swearing; curse words. ("Hot" language.) □ He carried on in language that would fry bacon. □ I was shocked when I heard that sweet little girl use language that would fry bacon.

languish in some place 1. to become dispirited in some place; to weaken and fade away in some place. □ Claire languished in prison for her crime. □ I spent over three days languishing in a stuffy hotel room. □ We languished in the airport waiting room while they refueled the plane. 2. to suffer neglect in a place. □ The bill languished in the Senate for months on end. □ The children languished in the squalid conditions until the court intervened.

languish over someone or something to pine over someone or something. □ There is no point in languishing over Tim. He'll never come back. □ She wasted half her life languishing over her lost opportunities.

the lap of luxury Fig. a luxurious situation. □ I rather enjoy living in the lap of luxury. □ You call this pigpen the lap of luxury?

lap over (something) [for something] to extend or project over the edge or boundary of something. □ The lid lapped over the edge of the barrel, forming a little table. □ The blanket did not lap over enough to keep me warm.

lap something up¹. Lit. [for an animal] to lick something up. □ The dog lapped the ice cream up off the floor. □ The dog lapped up the ice cream. 2. Fig. [for someone] to accept or believe something with enthusiasm. □ Of course, they believed it. They just lapped it up. □ They lapped up the lies without questioning anything.

lap (up) against something [for waves] to splash gently against something. □ The waves lapped up against the shore softly. □ The waves lapped against the side of the boat all night long, and I couldn't sleep.

lapse from grace 1. Lit. to fall out of favor with God. □ The child was told that if he ever smoked even one cigarette, he would lapse from grace for certain. □ It is easy, these days, to lapse from grace. 2. Fig. to fall out of favor. □ Ted lapsed from grace when he left the lobby door unlocked all weekend. □ I have to be there on time every day or I will lapse from grace for sure.

lapse into something to weaken or slip into something, especially a coma. □ The survivor of the crash lapsed into a coma. □ Aunt Mary lapsed into unconsciousness and died.

large as life Fig. in person; actually, and sometimes surprisingly, present at a place. (*Also: as ~.) □ I thought Jack was away, but there he was as large as life. □ Jean was not expected to appear, but she turned up large as life.

large as life (and twice as ugly) Go to big as life (and twice as ugly).

larger than life Fig. [of someone] having an aura of greatness, perhaps not supported by the real person. □ Perry seemed larger than life to those who had only read about him. To the rest of us, he was a boor. □ To the children, the star athlete who spoke at the school assembly seemed larger than life.

lash against something [for something, such as wind or water] to beat or whip heavily against something. □ The angry waves lashed against the hull of the boat, frightening the people huddled inside. □ The wind lashed against the house and kept us awake all night.

lash at someone or something to thrash or beat someone or something violently. □ The rain lashed at the windows. □ The mule driver lashed at his beasts with his whip.

lash back (at someone or something) to strike or fight back against someone or something—physically or verbally. □ Randy lashed back at his attackers and drove them away. □ If you threaten Fred, he'll lash back.

lash down on someone or something [for rain] to beat down on someone or something. □ The wind and rain lashed down on us. □ The rain lashed down on the young plants and pounded them into the soil.

lash into someone or an animal to attack someone or an animal—physically or verbally. □ Dad lashed into my brother, who had smashed up the car again. □ Walter lashed into the cat for tearing the upholstery.

lash into something to begin to eat something with vigor. □ Mary lashed into the huge ice cream sundae, and ate almost the whole thing. □ The workers lashed into their lunches and did not say a word until they had finished.

lash out (at someone or something) and lash out (against someone or something) to strike out in defense or attack—physically or verbally. □ Amy was angry with Ed and lashed out at him just to show who was boss. □ She was so angry with him that she just lashed out against him. □ Gretchen was fed up with the cat and lashed out savagely in her anger.

lash someone or something down[†] to tie someone or something down. □ The villain lashed Nell down to the railroad tracks. □ He lashed down the innocent victim. □ Lash that cask down so it doesn't wash overboard.

lash someone or something to something to tie someone or something to something. □ The boys lashed one of their number to a tree and danced around him like savages. □ Abe lashed the cask to the deck. □ Frank lashed himself to the mast.

lash something about to whip or fling something about violently. □ The big cat lashed its tail threateningly. □ The strong wind lashed the tall grass about.

lash something together to tie something or things together. □ Let's lash these logs together and make a raft. □ Lash two or three of the poles together to make them stronger.

last but not least Cliché last in sequence, but not last in importance. (Often said when introducing people.) □ The speaker said, "And now, last but not least, I'd like to present Bill Smith, who will give us some final words." □ And last but not least, here is the final graduate.

last call (for something) and last chance (for something) Fig. the last opportunity for doing, getting, or having something. □ This is the last call for ice cream and cake. It's almost all gone.

last chance (for something) Go to previous.

last for something 1. to exist for a period of time; to serve or function for a period of time. □ This condition has lasted for some time. □ Enjoy it while you can. It won't last forever. 2. to hold out or survive for a period of time. □ It's so hot in here. I don't think I can last for another minute. □ Can you last for another few minutes while I get this window open?

last (from something) until something to endure from one point in time to another. □ The meeting lasted from noon until midnight. □ The party lasted until the food ran out.

the last hurrah Fig. a final appearance, as at the end of one's career; the last time for doing something. □ Tom is retiring, and we are having a little party as his last hurrah right now. He won't be here the next time you visit our offices.

*the last laugh (on someone) Fig. laughter or ridicule at someone who has laughed at or ridiculed you. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ John laughed when I got a D on the final exam. I got the last laugh, though. He failed the course. □ Mr. Smith said I was foolish when I bought an old building. I had the last laugh when I sold it a month later for twice what I paid for it.

last out to hold out; to endure. □ How long can you last out? □ I don't think we can last out much longer without food and water.

the last roundup Fig. death. (Old West.) □ To everyone's surprise, he clutched the wound and faced the last roundup with a smile. □ When I know I'm headed for the last roundup, I'll write a will.

last something out^t to endure until the end of something. □ Ed said that he didn't think he could last the opera out and left. □ He couldn't last out the first act.

the last straw and the straw that broke the camel's back the final difficulty in a series; the last little burden or problem that causes everything to collapse. (From the image of a camel being loaded down with much weight. Finally, at some point, one more straw will be too much and the camel's back will break.) □ When our best player came down sick, that was the straw that broke the camel's back. We hoped to make the playoffs, but lost all the rest of our games. □ When she showed up late a third time, that was the straw that broke the camel's back. We had to fire her.

last will and testament a will; the last edition of someone's will. □ The lawyer read Uncle Charles's last will and testament to a group of expectant relatives. □ Fred dictated his last will and testament on his deathbed.

*the last word and *the final word; *the final say Fig. the final point (in an argument); the final decision (in some matter). (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ The boss gets the last word in hiring. □ Why do you always have to have the final word in an argument?

last-ditch effort Fig. a final effort; the last possible attempt. (*Typically: be ~; have ~; make ~.) □ I made one last-ditch effort to get her to stay. □ It was a last-ditch effort. I didn't expect it to work.

latch on(to someone) to get hold of someone. □ I don't know where Jane is. Let me try to latch onto her.

latch onto something 1. Fig. to obtain something. (See also latch on(to someone or something).) □ I have to latch onto a hundred bucks by Friday night. □ I latched onto a good book about repairing plumbing. 2. Fig. to begin to understand something. □ When Fred finally latched onto the principles of algebra, he began to get better grades. □ Sue doesn't quite latch onto the proper stance in golf.

The latch string is always out. Fig. You are always welcome. □ Come by anytime. The latch string is always out. □ No need to call before you come over. For you folks, the latch string is always out.

a late bloomer 1. Lit. a plant that blooms later than similar plants or that blooms late in the season. □ There are a few late bloomers in the garden, but by fall, we don't care much anymore about flowers. 2. Fig. a person who finally develops a useful or superior skill or talents later than expected or desired. □ Joseph was a late bloomer, but turned out to be a formidable scholar in the long run.

late in life Fig. when one is old. □ Grandma injured her hip running. She's exercising rather late in life. □ Isn't it sort of late in life for your grandparents to buy a house?

late in the day Fig. far along in a project or activity; too late in a project or activity for action, decisions, etc., to be taken. □ It was a bit late in the day for him to apologize. □ It's late in the day to try to change the plans.

the late unpleasantness Euph. the U.S. Civil War. (Old.) □ The town courthouse was burned in the late unpleasantness. □ Many of my ancestors lost their lives in the late unpleasantness.

Later, alligator. Go to See you later, alligator.

lather something up^t to apply thick soapsuds to something, such as part of the body or all of it. □ He lathered his face up in preparation for shaving. □ He lathered up his face.

lather up 1. [for a horse] to develop a foam of sweat from working very hard. □ The horses lathered up heavily during the race. □ Don't let your horse lather up! 2. [for soap] to develop thick suds when rubbed in water. □ This soap won't lather up, even when I rub it hard. □ When the soap lathers up, spread the lather on your face and rub. 3. and lather oneself up [for one] to apply soap lather to one's body. □ He will spend a few minutes lathering himself up before he rinses. □ He lathered up and then shaved.

laugh about someone or something to chuckle or giggle loudly about someone or something. □ Please don't laugh about Sue. It's not funny. □ They were laughing about my haircut.

laugh all the way to the bank Fig. to be very happy about money that has been earned by doing something that other people might think is unfair or that they criticized. □ He may not be in the nicest business, but he is doing well and can laugh all the way to the bank. □ She makes tons of money doing what no one else will do and laughs all the way to the bank.

Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone. Prov. When you are happy, people will want to be around you and share your happiness, but when you are sad, people will avoid you. □ Nancy: When Harry and I were dating, all our friends invited us places and called to say hello. Now that we've broken up, they treat me as if I don't exist. Jane: Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep and you weep alone.

laugh at someone or something to chuckle or giggle loudly at someone or something, perhaps in ridicule. □ Thank goodness, the audience laughed at all my jokes. □ Don't laugh at me! I'm doing my best! □ Everyone laughed at the love scene because it was so badly done.

laugh away at someone or something to continue to laugh at someone or something. □ They laughed away at Sue until she fled the room in embarrassment. □ All the children at the party laughed away at the magician.

laugh in someone's face to laugh in derision directly to someone's face; to show displeasure or ridicule at something one has said by laughing directly into one's face. □ It is very impolite to laugh in someone's face! □ After I heard what she had to say, I just laughed in her face.

laugh one's head off Fig. to laugh very hard and loudly, as if one's head might come off. (See also cough one's head off. Fixed order.) □ The movie was so funny I almost laughed my head off. □ I laughed my head off at Mary's joke.

laugh oneself out of something to lose out on something because one has made light of it or laughed at it. □ While you were howling with laughter about my hat, you laughed yourself out of a ride to town. The bus just pulled away. □ You laugh too much. You just laughed yourself out of a job.

laugh oneself silly Fig. to laugh very, very hard. □ I laughed myself silly when I heard that Steven was really going to give the graduation address.

laugh out of the other side of one's face and laugh out of the other side of one's mouth Fig. to be forced to take a different or opposite view of something humbly; to sing a different tune. □ When you get the kind of punishment you deserve, you'll laugh out of the other side of your face. □ Phil played a dirty trick on me, but he'll be laughing out of the other side of his mouth when I get through with him.

laugh out of the other side of one's mouth Go to previous.

laugh someone off the stage Fig. to laugh rudely, forcing a person to leave a stage. □ The rude audience laughed the politician off the stage. □ The children laughed the soprano off the stage. She really wasn't very good, you know.

laugh someone or something down[†] to cause someone to quit or cause something to end by laughing in ridicule. □ Her singing career was destroyed when the audience laughed her down as an amateur. □ The cruel audience laughed down the amateur singer. □ They laughed down the magic act also.

laugh someone out of something to force someone to leave a place by laughing in ridicule. □ The citizens laughed the speaker out of the hall. □ We laughed the city council out of the auditorium.

laugh something away[†] 1. to spend an amount of time laughing. □ We laughed the hour away listening to the comedian. □ We laughed away the evening. 2. to get rid of something negative by laughing. □ Kelly knows how to laugh her problems away, and it cheers up the rest of us too. □ She laughed away her problems.

laugh something off[†] to treat a serious problem lightly by laughing at it. □ Although his feelings were hurt, he just laughed the incident off as if nothing had happened. □ He laughed off the incident.

laugh something out of court to dismiss something presented in earnest as ridiculous. □ The committee laughed the suggestion out of court. □ Bob's request for a large salary increase was laughed out of court.

laugh up one's sleeve to laugh secretly; to laugh quietly to oneself. □ Jane looked very serious, but I knew she was laughing up her sleeve. □ I told Sally that her dress was darling, but I was laughing up my sleeve because her dress was too small.

laugh with something to laugh in a particular manner. □ Everyone was laughing with glee at the antics of the clown. □ Max laughed with malice as he saw his plan beginning to work.

laughingstock someone or something that is the target of ridicule. □ After he passed out at the president's dinner, he became the laughingstock of all his colleagues.

launch forth on something Go to set forth on something.

launch forth ((up)on something) to set out on something; to begin on something, such as a journey or a long lecture or sermon. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ We launched forth on our trip before dawn. □ What time shall we launch forth tomorrow morning?

launch into something to start in doing something. □ Now, don't launch into lecturing me about manners again! □ Tim's mother launched into a sermon about how to behave at the dinner table.

launch (one's lunch) Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ When I saw that mess, I almost launched my lunch. □ Watch out! She's going to launch!

launch out on something to start out to do something or go somewhere. □ When are you going to launch out on your expedition? □ Ted and Bill launched out on their trip through the mountains.

launch something against someone or something to set something going against someone or something. □ The general launched an attack against the town. □ Claire launched a gossip attack against James.

lavish something (up)on someone to give something freely to someone; to squander something on someone. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The manager lavished all sorts of favors upon the new employee. □ Susan lavished compliments on the cook.

a law unto oneself Fig. one who ignores laws or rules; one who sets one's own standards of behavior. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ You can't get Bill to follow the rules. He's a law unto himself. □ Jane is a law unto herself. She's totally unwilling to cooperate.

lay a finger on someone or something to touch someone or something, even slightly, as with only a finger. □ Don't you dare lay a finger on my pencil. Go get your own! □ If you lay a finger on me, I'll scream.

lay a guilt trip on someone Go to next.

lay a (heavy) trip on someone 1. Inf. to criticize someone. □ There's no need to lay a trip on me. I agree with you. □ When he finally does get there, I'm going to lay a heavy trip on him like he'll never forget. 2. Inf. to confuse or astonish someone. □ After he laid a heavy trip on me about how the company is almost broke, I cleaned out my desk and left. □ After Mary laid a trip on John about leaving him, all he could do was cry. 3. and lay a guilt trip on someone Inf. to attempt to make someone feel very guilty. □ Why do you have to lay a guilt trip on me? Why don't you go to a shrink? □ Of course, she just had to lay a trip on him about being bossy, self-centered, and aloof. 4. Inf. to reveal serious or devastating information to someone. □ That's a powerful story. I didn't know you were going to lay a heavy trip like that on me. □ Man, you really laid a trip on me.

lay about Go to lay around.

lay alongside something [for a ship] to rest afloat next to something. □ The ship lay alongside a lovely island while a shore party searched for fresh water. □ Our ship lay alongside the narrow wooden pier.

lay an egg 1. Lit. [for a hen, etc.] to deposit an egg. □ Old Red stopped laying eggs, so we stewed her for Sunday dinner. 2. Fig. [for someone] to do something bad or poorly; to perform poorly on stage. □ I guess I really laid an egg, huh? □ The cast laid an egg in both performances.

lay around and lay about to lie around. (Common errors for lie about, lie around.) □ Don't just lay around all day! □ I need to lay around for a few days.

lay claim to something to place a claim on something. □ Do you really think you can lay claim to that money after all these years? □ Someone came by and laid claim to the wallet you found.

lay down to give up. □ Do you expect me to just lay down?
□ You really think I should just lay down and let them walk all over me?

lay down on the job Go to lie down on the job.

lay down one's arms Fig. to put one's gun, sword, club, etc., down; to stop fighting; to surrender. □ The prisoners were instructed to lay down their arms. □ The soldiers laid down their arms and surrendered.

lay down one's life (for someone or something) Fig. to sacrifice one's life for someone or something. □ Would you lay down your life for your country? □ There aren't many things for which I'd lay down my life.

lay down the law (to someone) (about something) Fig. to scold someone; to make something very clear to someone in a very stern manner. □ Wow, was she mad at Ed. She really laid down the law about drinking to him. □ She laid down the law to Ed. □ She laid down the law about drinking.

lay emphasis on something and lay stress on something to place emphasis on something; to emphasize something. □ When you present this explanation, lay emphasis on the matter of personal responsibility. □ I'm afraid I laid too much stress on the notion of good attendance. If you are really sick, stay home!

lay eyes on someone or something Go to set eyes on someone or something.

lay for someone or something to lie in wait for someone or something. □ The sheriff was laying for the outlaw. □ Bill was laying for me when I came out of the saloon.

lay hold of someone or something to grasp someone or something with the hands. □ Just wait till I lay hold of Bill! □ I can't wait to lay hold of that fishing pole. I'm ready to catch a huge fish.

lay in ruins Go to in ruins.

lay into someone or something to attack, consume, or scold someone or something. □ Bob laid into the big plate of fried chicken. □ The bear laid into the hunter. □ My father really laid into me when I got home.

lay it on the line and put it on the line Fig. to make something very clear; to be very definite about something. □ I am going to lay it on the line and you had better listen to me. If you eat any of these mushrooms, you will die. □ I've said it before, but this time I'm going to put it on the line. Don't eat the mushrooms!

lay it on thick and lay it on with a trowel; pour it on thick; spread it on thick Fig. to exaggerate or overstate praise, excuses, or blame. □ Sally was laying it on thick when she said that Tom was the best singer she had ever heard. □ After Bob finished making his excuses, Sally said that he was pouring it on thick. □ Bob always spreads it on thick.

lay it on with a trowel Go to previous.

lay low Go to lie low.

lay low and sing small Rur. to hide; to make oneself inconspicuous. □ After he robbed the bank, the outlaw decided to lay low and sing small awhile. □ Jane is looking for you, and she sure is angry. You'd best lay low and sing small.

the lay of the land 1. Lit. the arrangement of features on an area of land. (Also with lie, especially British English.) □ The surveyor mapped the lay of the land. □ The geologist studied the lay of the land, trying to determine if there was oil below. 2. Fig. the arrangement or organization of something other than land. □ As soon as I get the lay of the land in my new job, things will go better. □ The company's corporate structure was complex, so understanding the lay of the land took time.

lay off ((from) something) to cease doing something. □ Lay off from your hammering for a minute, will you? □ That's enough! Please lay off.

lay off ((of) someone or something) to stop doing something to someone or something; to stop bothering someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Lay off of me! You've said enough. □ Please lay off the chicken. I cooked it as best I could.

lay off (someone or something) to leave someone or something alone. □ Lay off the booze for a while, why don't ya? □ Lay off me! I didn't do anything!

lay one on Go to tie one on.

lay one's cards on the table and put one's cards on the table Fig. to be very candid about one's position on some issue. (Alludes to laying playing cards on the table, face up, showing the cards.) □ All right. Let's lay our cards on the table and speak very candidly about this matter. □ It's time we put our cards on the table and spoke honestly.

lay one's hands on someone, something, or an animal Go to put one's hands on someone, something, or an animal.

lay (oneself) down to lie down. □ Just lay yourself down there and try to sleep. □ I'll lay myself down here for just a few minutes.

lay over (some place) to pause some place during one's journey. □ I had to lay over in San Antonio for a few hours before my plane left. □ I want a bus that goes straight through. I don't want to lay over.

lay (some) rubber Sl. to spin one's car tires when accelerating, leaving black marks on the street. □ At that age all they want to do is get in the car and lay some rubber. □ You wanna know how well I can lay some rubber in this thing?

lay some sweet lines on someone and put some sweet lines on someone Sl. to speak kindly to someone; to soft-soap someone. □ I just laid some sweet lines on her, and she let me use her car. □ If you put some sweet lines on him, maybe he won't ground you.

lay someone away! Euph. to bury someone. □ Yes, he has passed. We laid him away last week. □ He laid away his uncle in a simple ceremony.

lay someone down to ease someone into a reclining position; to ease someone into bed. □ The baby woke up when I tried to lay him down. □ The nurse laid the disturbed patient down time and time again.

lay someone off^t (from something) to put an end to someone's employment at something. □ The automobile factory laid five hundred people off from work. □ They laid off a lot of people. □ We knew they were going to lay a lot of people off.

lay someone or something in(to) something to place someone or something in something. □ The women laid the king into the coffin and the funeral procession assembled. □ The cook laid the salmon in the poaching liquid.

lay someone out[†] 1. Sl. to knock someone down with a punch; to knock someone unconscious. □ Tom laid out Bill with one punch to the chin. □ The policeman laid the thief out. 2. to prepare a corpse for burial or for a wake. □ They laid out their uncle for the wake. □ The women of the community used to lay their dead out. 3. Sl. to scold someone severely. □ Don't lay me out! I didn't do it! □ She really laid out the guy but good. What did he do, rob a bank?

lay someone out in lavender Fig. to scold someone severely. □ She was really mad. She laid him out in lavender and really put him in his place. □ If you ever feel like you need to lay me out in lavender again, just forget it.

lay someone to rest Euph. to bury a dead person. □ They laid her to rest by her mother and father, out in the old churchyard. □ We gather together today to lay our beloved son to rest.

lay someone up[†] to cause someone to be ill in bed. □ A broken leg laid me up for two months. □ Flu laid up everyone at work for a week or more.

lay something against something to lean or place something against something. □ They laid the Christmas tree against the house where they could get to it easily when the time came. □ Lay this hot cloth against the sore and hold it there.

lay something alongside ((of) something) to place something next to something else, lengthwise. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Please lay the spoon alongside the knife. □ Find the knife and lay the spoon alongside.

lay something aside[†] to set something aside; to place something to one side, out of the way. □ He laid his papers aside and went out to welcome the visitor. □ He laid aside his papers.

lay something aside[†] for someone or something to put something aside, in reserve, for someone or something. □ I laid some cake aside for Tom, but someone else got it. □ I laid aside some cake for Tom.

lay something at someone's door and put something at someone's door 1. Fig. to blame a problem on someone; to hold someone responsible for something. (Alludes to someone laying incriminating evidence at the door of a guilty person, perhaps in the night.) □ I'm laying responsibility for this mess at your door! □ Don't put this at my door! 2. Fig. to give or assign a problem to someone for solving. □ I am going to lay this problem right at your door. You are the one who can settle it. □ I will put this business at your door and hope you can do something about it.

lay something at someone's feet and put something at someone's feet 1. Lit. to place something on the ground in front of someone. □ The cat came up to me and laid a mouse at my feet. □ The dog put a rabbit at my feet. 2. Fig. to hold someone responsible for something. □ I am going to lay this matter at your feet. You are clearly to blame. □ I will put this matter at your feet. It is your fault.

lay something away[†] (for someone) to put something in storage for someone to receive at a later time. (Often said of a purchase that is held until it is paid for.) □ Please lay this away for me. I'll pay for it when I have the money. □ Please lay away this coat until I can get the money together.

lay something before someone 1. Lit. to present something to someone. □ The cat laid the mouse before her mistress. □ Dave laid the present before her as a peace offering. 2. Fig. to present something for someone to judge. □ All you can do is lay the matter before the teacher and hope for a favorable response. □ I want to lay this before you and let you decide.

lay something by Go to put something by.

lay something down[†] (on something) to place something down on something. □ Lay the plates down on the table gently. □ Please lay down your book and listen to me.

lay something for someone or something to prepare something (for a meal) for the benefit of someone or a group. □ She laid a lovely picnic for the two of them. □ Would you lay the table for dinner for our guests?

lay something in[†] to get something and store it for future use. □ They laid a lot of food in for the holidays. □ We always lay in a large supply of firewood each November.

lay something on[†] to supply something in abundance. □ Look at him lay that butter on! What do you suppose the insides of his arteries look like? □ They laid on a beautiful buffet lunch.

lay something on someone 1. Sl. to present a plan or an idea to someone. □ Here is this century's greatest idea. Let me lay it on you. □ I'm going to lay a great idea on you. 2. Sl. to attempt to make someone feel guilty about something. □ Don't lay that stuff on me. Face your own problem. □ Every week she calls up to lay a guilt trip on me about something or other. 3. Go to lay something on someone or something.

lay something on someone or something to place something on someone or something; to cover someone or something with something. □ As soon as he breathed his last, the nurse laid a cloth on him. □ Ken laid the bundle of flowers on the coffee table.

lay something out[†] 1. Lit. to spread something out. □ The nurse laid the instruments out for the operation. □ The valet laid out the clothing for his employer. 2. Fig. to explain a plan of action or a sequence of events. □ Let me lay it out for you. □ Lay out the plan very carefully, and don't skip anything. 3. Fig. to spend some amount of money. □ I can't lay that kind of money out every day! □ She laid out about $24,000 for that car.

lay something out[†] on someone or something and lay something out[†] for someone or something Fig. to spend an amount of money on someone or something. □ We laid out nearly ten thousand dollars on that car. □ We laid a fortune out on the children.

lay something over someone or something to cover someone or something with something. □ Here, lay this blanket over the baby. □ Please lay a napkin over the bread before you take it to the table.

lay something to rest Go to put something to rest.

lay something to something to attribute something to something. □ I lay all our problems to the inadequacy of our training. □ Mary laid her success to a good upbringing.

lay something to waste and lay waste to something Fig. to destroy something; to ruin or mess up something. □ The invaders laid the village to waste. □ The kids came in and laid waste to my clean house.

lay something together to lay things side by side. □ Lay all the logs together and stack them as high as you can. □ Lay the red ones together and put all the others over there in a pile.

lay something under something to place something beneath something. □ Please lay a cloth under your workbench to catch the sawdust. □ Would you mind laying a sheet of plastic over the table?

lay something up[†] 1. to acquire and store something. □ Try to lay as much of it up as you can. □ I am trying to lay up some firewood for the winter. 2. [for something] to disable something. □ The accident laid up the ship for repairs. □ A wreck laid the bus up for months.

lay stress on something Go to lay emphasis on something.

lay the blame (for something) on someone Fig. to place the blame for something on someone. □ We could not possibly lay the blame for the accident on you. □ Don't try to lay the blame on me!

lay the blame on someone or something Go to put the blame on someone or something.

lay the finger on someone Go to put the finger on someone.

lay to to begin doing something, such as fighting or eating. □ All right, you guys. Lay to. The stuff will get cold if you don't eat it. □ Lay to! Let's get on with it.

lay waste to something Go to lay something to waste.

laze something away[†] to spend a period of time being lazy. □ I just love to sit here and laze the day away. □ I will laze away the entire day.

leach away [for something] to erode or wash away gradually by leaching. □ The soft sandstone leached away under the constant rains. □ The flowerpots sat out in the rain, where all the nutrients in the soil leached away.

leach in(to something) [for a substance] to seep or penetrate into something. □ The salt leached into the soil and ruined it. □ A tremendous amount of salt leached in.

leach out of something [for a substance] to seep or drain out of something. □ All the nutrients leached out of the soil and nothing would grow. □ The phosphorus leached out of the soil after a few years.

leach something away[†] (from something) and leach something out (of something); leach something out[†]; leach something away[†] to remove something from something by leaching. □ The heavy rains leached nutrients away from the soil. □ The rains leached away the nutrients.

lead a dog's life and live a dog's life Fig. to lead a drab or boring life. □ Poor Jane really leads a dog's life. □ I've been working so hard. I'm tired of living a dog's life.

lead back (to some place) [for a pathway] to return to a place. □ This path leads back to the camp. □ I hope it leads back. It seems to be going the wrong way.

lead down to something [for a pathway or other trail] to run downward to something. □ The trail led down to a spring at the bottom of the hill. □ These stairs lead down to the furnace room.

lead forth [for someone] to go on ahead; to precede someone. □ You lead forth, and I will follow. □ Wallace led forth, but no one came after him.

lead in(to something) 1. to begin something; to work into something. □ Let me lead into the first number with a little talk about the composer. □ I'll lead in, then you pick up the melody. 2. to make a transition into something; to segue into something. □ Now, we will lead into the second scene with a little soft orchestral music. □ The soft music will lead in, then the curtains will open.

lead off to be the first one to go or leave. □ You lead off. I'll follow. □ Mary led off and the others followed closely behind.

lead off (with someone or something) [for a person, process, or performance] to begin with someone or something. □ The musical revue led off with a bassoon trio. □ Sharon, the singer, will lead off tonight.

lead on to continue to lead onward. □ The guide led on and we followed. □ Lead on, my friend. We are right behind you!

lead someone astray to direct or guide someone in the wrong direction. □ I am afraid that this young man has been leading you astray. I think you had better stop seeing him. □ No one can lead me astray. I know what I am doing.

lead someone by something to guide someone by grasping a part and moving. □ Do you expect me to lead you around by the hand, showing you everything to do in your job? □ The cop grabbed Max and led him around by the collar.

lead someone by the nose 1. Fig. to force someone to go somewhere (with you); to lead someone by coercion. □ John had to lead Tom by the nose to get him to the opera. □ I'll go, but you'll have to lead me by the nose. 2. Fig. to guide someone very carefully and slowly. (As if the person were not very smart.) □ He will never find his way through the tax form unless you lead him by the nose. □ Don't lead me by the nose! I'm coming!

lead someone down (something) to help someone down something, such as stairs, a steep path, a ladder, etc. □ The usher led the couple down the aisle and seated them at the front. □ I am going to the cellar myself. Let me lead you down.

lead someone down the garden path and lead someone up the garden path to deceive someone. □ Now, be honest with me. Don't lead me down the garden path. □ That cheater really led her up the garden path.

lead someone down to something to guide someone downward to something. □ She led us down to a little room in the cellar, where the old trunk had been kept for all these years. □ Would you please lead me down to the wine cellar?

lead someone into something and lead someone in[†] to guide someone into something or some place. □ The usher led us into the darkened theater and showed us our seats. □ She led in the children. □ We led them in.

lead someone on 1. to guide someone onward. □ We led him on so he could see more of the gardens. □ Please lead Mary on. There is lots more to see here. 2. and lead someone on[†] to tease someone; to encourage someone's romantic or sexual interest without sincerity. □ You are just leading me on! □ It's not fair to continue leading him on. □ It's easy to lead on teenage boys.

lead someone on a merry chase Fig. to lead someone in a purposeless pursuit. □ What a waste of time. You really led me on a merry chase. □ Jane led Bill on a merry chase trying to find an antique lamp.

lead someone or an animal out of something and lead someone or an animal out^t to guide someone or an animal out of something or some place. □ Someone finally led the hiker out of the valley or he would still be there now. □ She led out the striking workers.

lead someone or an animal to something to guide someone or an animal to something or some place. □ Would you lead Paul to the place where the trunks are kept? □ The cat is so old that we had to lead her to her food.

lead someone or something against someone or something to manage someone or a group in an attack on someone or something. □ The general led the entire company against the troops holding the city. □ They led two platoons against the enemy position.

lead someone or something (away^t) (from someone or something) to direct or guide someone or something away from someone or something. □ The officer led the victim's wife away from the accident. □ The trainer led away the dog from the other animals. □ We led them away.

lead someone or something back^t (to someone or something) to guide someone or something back to someone or something. □ Someone will have to lead me back to camp. I just know I'll get lost if I go by myself. □ The park ranger led back the hikers to their tent. □ I will lead them back.

lead someone or something forth^t to bring or usher someone or something forward. □ The captain led the soldiers forth to the parade ground. □ They led forth the army into battle.

lead someone or something off^t to guide someone or something away. □ The guide led the hikers off on the adventure of their lives. □ The dog owners led off their animals and they awaited the decision of the judges.

lead someone to believe something Fig. to imply something to someone; to cause someone to believe something untrue. □ But you led me to believe that this watch was guaranteed! □ Did you lead her to believe that she was hired as a clerk?

lead someone to do something Fig. to cause someone to do something. □ This agent led me to purchase a worthless piece of land. □ My illness led me to quit my job.

lead someone up something to guide someone upward along some route. □ Would you please lead Tom up the path so he can leave his things at the cabin on the hill? □ Mary led the visitors up the stairs to the loft, which she had recently redecorated.

lead someone up the garden path Go to lead someone down the garden path.

lead the life of Riley and live the life of Riley Fig. to live in luxury. (No one knows who Riley alludes to.) □ If I had a million dollars, I could live the life of Riley. □ The treasurer took our money to Mexico, where he lived the life of Riley until the police caught him.

lead the way to lead (someone) along the proper pathway. □ You lead the way, and we'll follow. □ I feel better when you're leading the way. I get lost easily.

lead up to something 1. Lit. to aim at or route movement to something. □ A narrow path led up to the door of the cottage. □ This road leads up to the house at the top of the hill. 2. Fig. to prepare to say something; to lay the groundwork for making a point. (Typically with the present participle.) □ I was just leading up to telling you what happened when you interrupted. □ I knew she was leading up to something, the way she was talking.

lead with someone or something to start out with someone or something. □ The coach led with Walter as pitcher and Sam on first base. □ We will lead with our best players.

lead with something to tend to strike first with a particular fist—the right, the left, the best, etc. (Boxing.) □ Watch that guy, Champ, he always leads with his right. □ Get in there and lead with your left.

leading question a question that suggests the kind of answer that the person who asks it wants to hear. □ The mayor was angered by the reporter's leading questions. □ "Don't you think that the police are failing to stop crime?" is an example of a leading question.

a lead-pipe cinch Fig. something very easy to do; something entirely certain to happen. □ I knew it was a lead-pipe cinch that I would be selected to head the publication committee.

leaf out [for a plant] to open its leaf buds. □ Most of the bushes leaf out in mid-April. □ The trees leafed out early this year.

leaf through something Go to thumb through something.

leak in(to something) [for a fluid] to work its way into something. □ Some of the soapy water leaked into the soil. □ The rainwater is leaking in!

leak out [for information] to become known unofficially. □ I hope that news of the new building does not leak out before the contract is signed. □ When the story leaked out, my telephone would not stop ringing.

leak out (of something) [for a fluid] to seep out of something or some place. □ Some of the brake fluid leaked out of the car and made a spot on the driveway. □ Look under the car. Something's leaking out.

leak something (out) and let something (get) out Fig. to disclose special information to the press so that the resulting publicity will accomplish something. (Usually said of government disclosures. Also used for accidental disclosures.) □ Don't leak that information out. □ I don't want to be the one to leak it.

leak something to someone Fig. to tell [otherwise secret] information to someone. □ The government leaked a phony story to the press just to see how far it would travel. □ The government leaks things to the press occasionally, just to see the reaction.

leak through something [for a fluid] to seep through something. □ Rainwater leaked through the roof. □ I was afraid that the crushed orange would leak through the paper bag.

lean across someone or something to incline oneself across someone or something. □ She leaned across me to reach the telephone and spilled my wine. □ Laura leaned across the table and knocked my coffee over.

lean against someone or something to prop oneself against someone or something. □ The child leaned against her sister to keep warm. □ I leaned against the back of the chair and went right to sleep.

lean and mean Fig. fit and ready for hard, efficient work. □ Dave got himself lean and mean and is ready to play in Saturday's game. □ The management is lean and mean and looks to turn a profit next year.

lean back [for someone] to recline backwards, usually in a chair. □ Lean back and make yourself comfortable. □ Let's lean back and be comfortable.

lean back (against someone or something) to recline backwards, putting weight on someone or something. □ Just lean back against me. I will prevent you from falling. □ Relax and lean back. Nothing bad is going to happen.

lean back (on someone or something) to recline backwards, pressing on someone or something. □ Don't lean back on me! I'm not a chair! □ Lean back on the couch and tell me what you are thinking.

lean down to bend over. □ Lean down and tie your shoe before you trip. □ He leaned down and picked something up from the floor.

lean forward to bend forward. □ Lean forward a minute so I can put a cushion behind your back. □ When Betsy leaned forward, she lost her balance and fell.

lean in (to something) to incline or press into something. □ You have to lean into the wind when you walk or you will be blown over. □ As you walk into the wind, lean in a little bit. □ The north wall of the barn leans in a little. Is it going to fall?

lean on someone Fig. to try to make someone do something; to coerce someone to do something. (From lean on someone or something.) □ If she refuses to do it, lean on her a bit. □ Don't lean on me! I don't have to do it if I don't want to.

lean on someone or something 1. Lit. to incline or press on someone or something. □ Don't lean on me. I'm not strong enough to support both of us. □ Lean on the wall and rest a little while. 2. Fig. to depend on someone or something. □ You lean on your parents too much. You must be more independent. □ You can't lean on the government forever.

lean out of something to hang or bend out of something or some place. □ She leaned out of the window so she could watch what was going on. □ Don't lean out of the car window. You will fall.

lean over 1. to bend over. □ Lean over and pick the pencil up yourself! I'm not your servant! □ As Kelly leaned over to tie her shoes, her chair slipped out from under her. 2. to tilt over. □ The fence leaned over and almost fell. □ As the wind blew, the tree leaned over farther and farther.

lean over backwards (to do something) Go to fall over backwards (to do something).

lean something against someone or something to prop something against someone or something. □ She leaned her spade against the house and wiped the sweat from her brow. □ Bill leaned the mirror against his leg while he screwed the hook into the wall.

lean something forward to tilt or bend something forward. □ Lean the board forward a little bit, please. □ Someone leaned this panel forward a little too much.

lean times (ahead) Fig. a future period of lowered income or revenue; a future period when there will be shortages of goods and suffering. (*Typically: be ~; cause ~; have ~; mean ~.) □ The economy is going sour which means lean times ahead.

lean toward doing something to tend toward doing something; to favor doing something. □ The union is leaning toward accepting the proposal. □ My friends leaned toward swimming instead of shopping.

lean toward someone or something 1. to incline toward someone or something. □ Tom is leaning toward Randy. I think he is going to fall on him. □ The tree is leaning toward the edge of the cliff. It will fall eventually. 2. to tend to favor [choosing] someone or something. □ I am leaning toward Sarah as the new committee head. □ I'm leaning toward a new committee.

leap at someone or something 1. to jump toward someone or something. □ The grasshopper leapt at me and scared me to death. □ The cat leapt at the mouse and caught it. 2. to accept or choose someone or something eagerly. □ We leapt at Carl when his department offered him to us. □ When we had the chance to hire Carl, we leapt at it.

leap at the chance (to do something) Go to next.

leap at the opportunity (to do something) and leap at the chance (to do something); jump at the chance (to do something); jump at the opportunity (to do something) Fig. to accept an opportunity eagerly. □ Frank leapt at the opportunity to become a commercial artist. □ It was a great idea and we leapt at the opportunity. □ I would leap at the chance to go to Moscow. □ His company proposed to send him to England, and John jumped at the chance.

leap down (from something) to hop down from something or some place. □ The performer leapt down from the stage and ran up the aisle. □ She leapt down and ran away.

leap for joy and jump for joy Fig. to jump up because one is happy; to be very happy. □ Tommy leapt for joy because he had won the race. □ We all leapt for joy when we heard the news.

leap forward to jump or hop forward. □ The little creature leapt forward and looked carefully at us. □ As the frog leapt forward, the kitten jumped straight up and fled.

a leap of faith Fig. acceptance of an idea or conclusion largely on faith. (*Typically: be ~; make ~; require ~.) □ We had to make quite a leap of faith to accept his promise after the last time he let us down.

leap out (of something) to jump outward from something. □ A mouse leapt out of the cereal box and frightened everyone. □ I opened the box and a mouse leapt out.

leap over something to jump over something. □ The dog leapt over the hedge and chased the rabbit around the corner of the house. □ Please don't leap over my roses. You'll damage them.

leap to conclusions Go to jump to conclusions.

leap up to jump upwards. The dog leapt up and licked my cheek. I leapt up so I could see over the wall for just a second.

learn a thing or two (about someone or something) Go to a thing or two (about someone or something).

learn about someone or something to find out about someone or something. What have you learned about Mr. Franklin and his business dealings? I learned about what causes rain.

learn by something to learn [something] from some kind of actual experience. The best way to learn is to learn by doing. The best way to learn to sail is to learn by sailing.

learn from someone or something to learn [something] from the experience of someone or something. Pay attention to what Sarah does. I think you can learn from her. This was quite an experience, and we all can learn from it.

learn of someone or something to find out about someone or something. I'm not in the telephone book. How did you learn of me? How did you learn of our company?

learn something by heart Fig. to learn something so well that it can be written or recited without thinking; to memorize something. The director told me to learn my speech by heart. I had to go over it many times before I learned it by heart.

learn something by rote Fig. to learn something by memorizing without giving any thought to what is being learned. I learned history by rote; then I couldn't pass the test that required me to think. If you learn things by rote, you'll never understand them.

learn something from someone or something to find out something from someone or something. I don't know when the children are due to arrive. See what you can learn from Walter. I am sure we can learn something from this experience.

learn something from the bottom up Fig. to learn something thoroughly, from the very basics; to learn all aspects of something, even the least important ones. I learned my business from the bottom up. I started out sweeping the floors and learned everything from the bottom up.

learn (something) the hard way and find (something) out the hard way to learn something by experience, especially by an unpleasant experience. (As opposed to learning in school, from reading, etc.) She learned how to make investments the hard way. I wish I didn't have to learn things the hard way. I found out the hard way that it's difficult to work and go to school at the same time.

learn the ropes Go to the ropes.

learn to live with something Fig. to learn to adapt to something unpleasant or painful. Finally the doctor told Marion that she was going to have to learn to live with her arthritis. The floor plan of the house we bought is not as spacious as we had thought, but we will learn to live with it.

learn the tricks of the trade Go to the tricks of the trade.

a learning experience Go to a growth experience.

lease something back[†] to sell something, then rent it from the buyer. We sold the building to a real estate firm and then leased it back. There was some tax saving involved. We leased back the building.

lease something from someone to rent something from someone. We decided to lease the building from the owner rather than buying it. The company always leases its cars from the dealership.

lease something (out)[†] to someone to rent something to someone. The company leases cars out to its customers. Can you lease this building to me for two years? Lease out only the first two floors.

the least little thing the smallest possible thing. He gets upset over the least little thing. When she was a girl, she would throw a tantrum over the least little thing.

least of all the thing of smallest importance. (Compare this with most of all.) There were many things wrong with the new house. Least of all, the water faucets leaked. What a bad day. Many things went wrong, but least of all, I tore my shirt.

leave a bad taste in someone's mouth [for something] to leave a bad feeling or memory with someone. The whole business about the missing money left a bad taste in his mouth. It was a very nice hotel, but something about it left a bad taste in my mouth.

leave a lot to be desired Cliché to be lacking something important; to be inadequate. (A polite way of saying that something is bad.) This report leaves a lot to be desired. I'm sorry to have to fire you, Mary, but your work leaves a lot to be desired.

leave a paper trail Go to a paper trail.

leave a sinking ship Go to desert a sinking ship.

leave ahead of time Go to ahead of time.

leave an impression (on someone) and leave someone with an impression Fig. to provide a lasting memory for someone after one has left. (Akin to make an impression on someone.) Her performance was less than stunning. She didn't leave a very good impression on us.

leave for some place to depart for some place. We will leave for Denver at dawn. When do we leave for Grandmother's house?

leave go of someone or something Inf. to let go of someone or something. (Usually considered nonstandard.) Leave go of me! Leave go of my hand!

leave in a body Go to in a body.

leave it at that to leave a situation as it is. This is the best we can do. We'll have to leave it at that. I can do no more. I will have to leave it at that.

leave it to someone to depend on someone to behave in a certain way. Leave it to Harry to mess things up. She did it wrong again. Leave it to Janet! Jane: Will you do this as soon as possible? Mary: Leave it to me.

Leave me alone! Stop harassing me!; Don't bother me! John: You did it. You're the one who always does it. Bill: Leave me alone! I never did it. Fred: Let's give Bill a dunk in the pool. Bill: Leave me alone!

leave no stone unturned Fig. to search in all possible places. (As if one might search under every rock.) Don't worry. We'll find your stolen car. We'll leave no stone untuned. □ In searching for a nice place to live, we left no stone untuned.

a leave of absence a period of time away from one's job, with the employer's permission. □ Mr. Takaguchi is on leave of absence because he is going back to school. □ His leave of absence is expected to end next month.

leave off something to quit something. □ I have to leave off working for a while so I can eat. □ I left off reading and went downstairs for supper.

leave one's mark on someone Fig. [for someone like a teacher] to affect the behavior and performance of another person. □ The wise professor left her mark on her students. □ My father left his mark on me, and I will always remember all his good advice.

leave one to one's fate to abandon someone to whatever may happen—possibly death or some other unpleasant event. □ We couldn't rescue the miners and were forced to leave them to their fate. □ Please don't try to help. Just go away and leave me to my fate.

leave one to one's own devices and leave one to one's own resources Fig. to make one rely on oneself. □ I am sure that she will manage if we leave her to her own devices. □ I will leave her to her own resources and everything will turn out fine.

leave one to one's own resources Go to previous.

leave oneself wide open for something and leave oneself wide open to something Fig. to invite criticism or joking about oneself; to fail to protect oneself from criticism or ridicule. □ Yes, that was a harsh remark, Jane, but you left yourself wide open to it. □ I can't complain about your joke. I left myself wide open for it.

leave some loose ends Go to some loose ends.

leave someone at loose ends Go to at loose ends.

leave someone cold to leave someone unaffected or bored. □ He said it was dull, and it left him cold. □ The music's good, but the story left the producer cold.

leave someone flat 1. Fig. to fail to entertain or stimulate someone. □ Your joke left me flat. □ We listened carefully to his lecture, but it left us flat. 2. Fig. to leave someone without any money—flat broke. □ Paying all my bills left me flat. □ The robber took all my money and left me flat. 3. Fig. to leave someone completely and suddenly alone. □ I was at the dance with Harry, but when he met Alice, he left me flat. □ They just walked off and left us flat.

leave someone for dead to abandon someone as being dead. (The abandoned person may actually be alive.) □ He looked so bad that they almost left him for dead. □ As the soldiers turned—leaving the enemy captain for dead—the captain fired at them.

leave someone high and dry 1. Lit. [for water] to recede and leave someone untouched. □ The waters receded and left us high and dry. 2. Fig. to leave someone unsupported and unable to maneuver; to leave someone helpless. □ All my workers quit and left me high and dry. □ All the children ran away and left Billy high and dry to take the blame for the broken window. 3. Fig. to leave someone flat broke. □ Mrs. Franklin took all the money out of the bank and left Mr. Franklin high and dry. □ Paying the bills always leaves me high and dry.

leave someone holding the bag and leave someone holding the baby Fig. to allow someone to take all the blame; to leave someone appearing to be guilty. □ They all ran off and left me holding the bag. It wasn't even my fault. □ It was all the mayor's fault, but he wasn't left holding the bag.

leave someone in peace to stop bothering someone; to go away and leave someone alone. (Does not necessarily mean to go away from a person.) □ Please go—leave me in peace. □ Can't you see that you're upsetting her? Leave her in peace.

leave someone in the lurch Fig. to leave someone waiting for or anticipating your actions. □ Where were you, John? You really left me in the lurch. □ I didn't mean to leave you in the lurch. I thought we had canceled our meeting.

leave someone or some creature out in the cold Go to out in the cold.

leave someone or something alone Go to let someone or something alone.

leave someone or something (at) some place 1. to abandon someone or something at some place. □ Don't leave me here by myself! □ Betty left her newspaper at the table, hoping someone else would enjoy it. 2. to allow someone or something to remain at some place. □ You leave me here and go on ahead. □ Please leave your packages at the door. 3. to allow someone or something to stay behind through forgetfulness. □ I left my glasses behind on my desk. □ I was left at the movie theater by mistake.

leave someone or something be Go to let someone or something alone.

leave someone or something behind to fail or forget to bring someone or something along. □ John was sick, so we had to leave him behind. □ Oh, I left my money behind.

leave someone or something hanging (in midair) and keep someone or something hanging (in midair) 1. Lit. to keep someone or something suspended in midair when support for the person or thing is removed. □ The ladder collapsed and left me hanging in midair. Fortunately, I grabbed onto the windowsill. 2. Fig. to suspend dealing with someone or something; to leave someone or something waiting to be finished or continued. □ She left her sentence hanging in midair. □ Tell me the rest of the story. Don't leave me hanging in midair.

leave someone or something in one's hands Fig. to give one control of or responsibility for someone or something. □ You left the whole project in my hands! □ I have to leave the care of baby in your hands while I go to the doctor.

leave someone or something in someone's care Go to in the care of someone.

leave someone or something in (something) to permit someone or something to remain in something. □ We left the children in the house while we went out to greet the guests. □ Did you leave the dog in the car? □ Poor puppy! I didn't mean to leave you in.

leave someone or something in the care of someone Go to in the care of someone.

leave someone or something in the trust of someone Go to in the trust of someone.

leave someone or something out of something and leave someone or something out[†] to neglect to include someone or something in something. Please leave me out of it. Can I leave John out this time? Leave out the last two eggs.

leave someone or something to someone to give or abandon someone or something to someone. I leave Mr. Franklin to you. Good luck in dealing with him. I leave the whole problem to you. Good luck.

leave someone or something under someone's care Go to in the care of someone.

leave someone or something with someone or something to allow someone or something to remain with someone or something. Can I leave Jimmy with you while I shop? Do you mind if I leave my papers with the committee, just in case they have time to look at them?

leave someone sitting pretty Go to sitting pretty.

leave someone, something, or some creature alone and let someone, something, or some creature alone; leave someone, something, or some creature be; let someone, something, or some creature be to stop bothering someone or something. Don't torment the cat. Leave it alone. I don't want your help. Let me alone. Don't argue about it. Let it be!

leave someone to it to withdraw and allow someone to finish something alone. I hate to leave before the job is finished, but I'll have to leave you to it. I will leave them to it. I have to go home now.

leave someone up in the air Fig. to leave someone waiting for a decision. Please don't leave me up in the air. I want to know what's going to happen to me. Nothing was decided, and they left me up in the air.

leave someone with an impression Go to leave an impression (on someone).

leave something aside[†] 1. to leave something in reserve. Leave some of the sugar aside for use in the icing. Leave aside some cookies too. 2. to ignore something, especially a fact. Let's leave the question of who will pay for it aside for a while. We will leave aside the current situation and talk about the future.

leave something down to leave something in a lowered or low position. Leave the window down, please. It's hot in this car. Leave the window down. This house is cold enough as it is.

leave something for another occasion and keep something for another occasion to hold something back for later. (Occasion can be replaced with time, day, person, etc.) Please leave some cake for another day. Don't eat all the cheese. Leave some for another occasion. I have to leave some of my earnings for next month.

leave something for someone or an animal to allow something to remain for the use of someone or an animal. I will leave this bread here for you, so you won't starve. Don't clean it up. Leave it for the dog.

leave something in limbo Go to in limbo.

leave something in ruins Go to in ruins.

leave something in the back of someone's mind Go to in the back of someone's mind.

leave something (lying) around and leave something (lying) about to permit something to lie around unguarded; to leave something somewhere carelessly. Don't leave your clothes lying around. Hang them up. Don't leave stuff lying about!

leave something on[†] 1. to continue to wear some article of clothing. I think I will leave my coat on. It's chilly in here. I'll leave on my coat. 2. to allow something [that can be turned off] to remain on. Who left the radio on? Please leave on the light for me.

leave something on someone or something to allow something to remain on someone or something. Leave the coats on the children. We are taking them out to a movie almost immediately. Who left this book on the table?

leave something on someone's shoulders Go to on someone's shoulders.

leave something open to leave a date or time unscheduled. I left something open on Friday, just in case we want to leave work early. Please leave an appointment open for Mrs. Wallace next week. She will be calling in to our office for an appointment.

leave something to chance to allow something to be settled by chance. Plan your day. Don't leave anything to chance. It is not a good idea to leave any of this to chance.

leave something to someone 1. Lit. to will something to someone. My grandfather left his house to my mother. I will leave this watch to one of my grandchildren. 2. to assign work to or reserve a task for someone. I will leave this last little bit of the job to you. Can I leave this last part to Carl to finish? 3. Go to leave it to someone.

leave something up[†] to leave something in a raised or high position. It's still warm in here. Please leave the window up. Please leave up the window. It's so hot!

leave something up in the air Fig. to leave a matter undecided. (Alludes to something drifting in the air, moving neither up nor down.) Let's get this settled now. I don't want to leave anything up in the air over the weekend. The whole matter was left up in the air for another week.

leave something up to someone or something Go to up to someone or something.

leave the door open (for something) Fig. to provide for the possibility that something might happen. I think that the matter is completely settled, although we have left the door open for one or two last-minute changes.

leave the room 1. to go out of the room. I had to leave the room to get drinks for everyone. 2. Euph. to leave to go to the toilet. I have to leave the room. I'll be back in a minute.

leave them rolling in the aisles Go to rolling in the aisles.

leave well enough alone Go to let well enough alone.

leave with someone to depart in the company of someone. I left with Frank early in the evening and did not see what happened to Tom and Edna. Mary is gone. She left with Gerald.

leave word for someone to do something Fig. to leave a message or a request for someone. (See also leave word (with someone).) I left word for you to come to my office. We left word for her to hurry up and come home.

leave word (with someone) Fig. to leave a message with someone (who will pass the message on to someone else).

If you decide to go to the convention, please leave word with my secretary. Leave word before you go. I left word with your brother. Didn't he give you the message?

lecture at someone (about something) to talk to someone about something in the manner of a lecture. There is no need to lecture at me about the problem. I know how serious the matter is. Don't lecture at me all the time!

lecture someone for something to give someone a talking-to about something. Please don't lecture me for being late. It won't help now, will it? There is no point in lecturing us for something we didn't do.

lecture ((to) someone) about someone or something and lecture ((to) someone) on someone or something 1. to give an instructional speech to someone about someone or something. He always lectured his children about their duty to vote. She lectured to all her classes on employment opportunities. 2. to scold someone about someone or something. Please don't lecture me about my behavior. I like Ted! Don't lecture about him.

leer at someone to gaze at someone flirtatiously or with lust. Why are you leering at that woman in the bikini? Stop leering at me!

left and right Go to right and left.

The left hand doesn't know what the right hand is doing. Prov. One part of an organization does not know what another part is doing. (Biblical.) It was evident that the left hand did not know what the right hand was doing when we planned our potluck dinner party, since everyone brought dessert and no one brought a main dish.

left-handed compliment Go to backhanded compliment.

*a leg up Fig. a kind of help where someone provides a knee or crossed hand as a support for someone to place a foot on to get higher, as in mounting a horse or climbing over something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I gave her a leg up, and soon she was on her horse. Can I give you a leg up? Could I please have a leg up?

*a leg up on someone Fig. an advantage that someone else does not have. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I have a leg up on Walter when it comes to getting around town, since I have a car. I want to practice indoors all winter and get a leg up on Ken, since he thinks he can beat me at tennis.

a legend in one's own (life)time Fig. someone who is very famous and widely known for doing something special. The young golfer became a legend in his own lifetime.

legislate against something to prohibit something; to pass a law against something. You can't just legislate against something. You have to explain to people why they shouldn't do it. The Congress has just legislated against insolvent banks.

legislate for something to pass a law that tries to make something happen. The candidate pledged to legislate for tax relief. We support your efforts to legislate for lower taxes.

legwork the physical work accompanying a task. I don't mind making the phone calls if you do the legwork. I have a gopher to do the legwork for me.

lend a hand (to someone) Go to lend (someone) a hand.

lend an ear to someone or something and lend your ear to someone or something Fig. to listen to someone or what someone has to say. Lend an ear to me and I will tell you a story. Lend your ear to what I am saying.

lend color to something Fig. to provide an interesting accompaniment for something. Your clever comments lent a great deal of color to the slide show of your vacation. The excellent master of ceremonies will lend color to an otherwise dry panel discussion.

lend oneself or itself to something Fig. [for someone or something] to be adaptable to something; [for someone or something] to be useful for something. This room doesn't lend itself to bright colors. John doesn't lend himself to casual conversation. I don't think that this gown lends itself to outdoor occasions.

lend (someone) a hand and lend a hand (to someone) Fig. to give someone some help, not necessarily with the hands. Could you lend me a hand with this piano? I need to move it across the room. Could you lend a hand with this math assignment? I'd be happy to lend a hand.

lend someone a hand with something Fig. to help someone with something. (This need not involve "hands.") Could you please lend us a hand with this? Can I lend you a hand with that?

lend something out! (to someone) to allow someone to borrow something. I lent my tuxedo out to a friend who was going to a dance, and now I haven't anything to wear to the opera. I lent out my copy of the book. Sorry, I lent it out.

lend something to someone to make a loan of something to someone. Never lend money to a friend. Would you be able to lend your coat to Fred?

lend your ear to someone or something Go to lend an ear to someone or something.

Lend your money and lose your friend. Prov. You should not lend money to your friends; if you do, either you will have to bother your friend to repay the loan, which will make your friend resent you, or your friend will not repay the loan, which will make you resent your friend. Bill: Joe needs a hundred dollars to pay his landlord. I'm thinking about lending it to him. Alan: Lend your money and lose your friend.

lengthen out to stretch or grow longer. The days began to lengthen out and we knew summer was upon us. As we approached the end of the trail, the distance seemed to lengthen out.

A leopard cannot change his spots. Prov. One cannot change the basic way one is. Bill may say he'll stop being so jealous after Cindy marries him, but I doubt he will. A leopard can't change his spots.

Less is more. Cliché fewer or small is better. Simplicity now rules our lives. Less is more. Smaller houses and cars. The world will be a better place!

The less said (about something), the better. Prov. A way of indicating that you think something should not be talked about any further. Jane: How are things going with your divorce proceedings? Ellen: The less said, the better. The less said about my financial situation, the better.

less than pleased displeased. □ We were less than pleased to learn of your comments. □ Bill was less than pleased at the outcome of the election.

the lesser (of the two) the smaller one (of two); the one having the lesser amount. □ The last two pieces of pie were not quite the same size, and I chose the lesser of the two. □ Faced with a basket containing too much and one with too little, Tom chose the lesser.

the lesser of two evils the less bad thing of a pair of bad things. □ I didn't like either politician, so I voted for the lesser of two evils. □ Given the options of going out with someone I don't like and staying home and watching a boring television program, I chose the lesser of the two evils and watched television.

let alone someone or something not to mention or think of someone or something; not even to take someone or something into account. (Fixed order.) □ Do I have a dollar? I don't even have a dime, let alone a dollar. □ I didn't invite John, let alone the rest of his family.

Let bygones be bygones. Cliché Forgive someone for something he or she did in the past. □ Jill: Why don't you want to invite Ellen to your party? Jane: She was rude to me at the office picnic. Jill: But that was six months ago. Let bygones be bygones. □ Nancy held a grudge against her teacher for a long time, but she finally decided to let bygones be bygones.

let down to relax one's efforts or vigilance. □ Now is no time to let down. Keep on your guard. □ After the contest was over, Jane let down a bit so she could relax.

Let every man skin his own skunk. Prov. Everyone should do his own job and not interfere with others.; Each person should do his own dirty work. □ We weren't supposed to help each other with the homework. "Let every man skin his own skunk," the teacher said.

Let every tub stand on its own bottom. Go to Every tub must stand on its own bottom.

let fly with something Fig. to throw or thrust something, such as a rock, ball, punch, etc. □ The pitcher wound up and let fly with a strike—right over the plate. □ Max let fly with a blow to Lefty's chin.

Let George do it. Fig. Let someone else do it: it doesn't matter who. □ Billie always says, "Let George do it." She is unwilling to help with things that don't interest her.

let go of someone or something to release someone or something. □ Please let go of me! □ Don't let go of the steering wheel.

let go (with something) and cut loose (with something); let loose (with something) 1. to shout something out or expel something; to shout or express something wildly. □ The whole team let go with a loud shout. □ The audience cut loose with a loud cheer. 2. to deliver a strong verbal reprimand. □ Molly let loose with a tremendous scolding at Dave. □ Dave cut loose with a vengeful retort.

let grass grow under one's feet Fig. to do nothing; to stand still. □ Mary doesn't let the grass grow under her feet. She's always busy. □ Bob is too lazy. He's letting the grass grow under his feet.

Let her rip! and Let it roll! Inf. Let it go!; Let it start! □ Time to start. Let her rip! □ There's the signal! Let it roll!

let it all hang out Inf. to be yourself, assuming that you generally are not; to become totally relaxed and unpretentious. □ Come on. Relax! Let it all hang out. □ I tried to let it all hang out, but I still felt out of place.

Let it be. Leave the situation alone as it is. □ Alice: I can't get over the way he just left me there on the street and drove off. What an arrogant pig! Mary: Oh, Alice, let it be. You'll figure out some way to get even. □ John: You can't! Bill: Can too! John: Can't! Bill: Can too! Jane: Stop arguing! Let it be! That's enough!

Let it go. Forget it; Stop worrying about it. □ Don't get so angry about it. Let it go. □ Let it go. Stop fretting.

Let it roll! Go to Let her rip!

let loose of someone or something 1. to loosen the grasp on someone or something. □ Please let loose of me! □ Will you let loose of the doorknob? 2. to become independent from someone or something. □ She is nearly forty years old and has not yet let loose of her mother. □ Dave can't let loose of his childhood.

let loose (with something) Go to let go (with something).

Let me get back to you (on that). Go to I'll get back to you (on that).

Let me have it! and Let's have it! Inf. Tell me the news. □ Bill: I'm afraid there's some bad news. Bob: Okay. Let me have it! Bill: The plans we made did away with your job. Bob: What? John: I didn't want to be the one to tell you this. Bob: What is it? Let's have it!

let me (just) say and just let me say a phrase introducing something that the speaker thinks is important. □ Rachel: Let me say how pleased we all are with your efforts. Henry: Why, thank you very much. Bob: Just let me say that we're extremely pleased with your activity. Bill: Thanks loads. I did what I could.

let off (some) steam and blow off (some) steam

1. Lit. [for something] to release steam. □ The locomotive let off some steam after it came to a halt. □ With a great hiss, it let off steam and frightened the children. 2. Fig. to work or play off excess energy. □ Those boys need to get out and let off some steam. □ Go out and let off steam! 3. Fig. to release one's pent-up emotions, such as anger, usually verbally. □ I'm sorry I yelled at you. I guess I needed to let off some steam. □ She's not that mad. She's just letting off steam.

let on (about someone or something) (to someone) to confirm or reveal something about someone or something. □ I won't let on about Kate. □ You promised you wouldn't let on about Sally and her new job! □ He was having money troubles, but he never let on about it to us.

let on something to pretend something. □ She let on that she was a college graduate. □ He looked quite tired, but that wasn't how he let on.

let on (to someone) (about someone or something) to reveal knowledge about someone or something to someone. (See also let on (about someone or something).) □ Please don't let on to anyone about what happened last night. □ I won't let on to anyone.

let one's emotions show to be emotional, especially where it is not appropriate. □ I'm sorry for the outburst. I didn't mean to let my emotions show. □ Please stop crying. You mustn't let your emotions show.

let one's guard down^t Fig. to stop guarding oneself against trouble; to relax one's vigilance. □ He never lets his guard down because he trusts no one.

let one's hair down 1. Lit. to undo one's hair and let it fall freely. □ When she took off her glasses and let her hair down, she was incredibly beautiful. 2. Fig. to tell [someone] everything; to tell one's innermost feelings and secrets. □ Let your hair down and tell me all about it. □ Come on. Let your hair down and tell me what you really think.

let oneself go 1. Fig. to become less constrained; to get excited and have a good time. □ I love to dance and just let myself go. □ Let yourself go, John. Learn to enjoy life. 2. Fig. to let one's appearance and health suffer. □ When I was depressed, I let myself go and was really a mess. □ He let himself go and gained 30 pounds.

let oneself in for something to make oneself vulnerable to some difficulty. □ I don't want to let myself in for a lot of extra work. □ You really let yourself in for some problems!

let out [for an event that includes many people] to end. (The people are then permitted to come out.) □ What time does the movie let out? I have to meet someone in the lobby. □ The meeting let out at about seven o'clock. □ School lets out in June.

let out some kind of sound [for a living creature] to make some kind of a noise or sound. □ Be quiet. Don't let out a sound! □ Suddenly, Jane let out a shriek.

let out (with) something 1. to state or utter something loudly. □ The man let out with a screaming accusation about the person whom he thought had wounded him. □ She let out a torrent of curses. 2. to give forth a scream or yell. □ She let out with a bloodcurdling scream when she saw the snake in her chair. □ They let out with shouts of delight when they saw the cake.

Let's bump this place! Sl. Let's get out of this place; Let's leave! □ Time to go. Let's bump this place! □ Let's bump this place! It's dead here.

Let's call it a day. Fig. Let us end what we are doing for the day. □ Mary: Well, that's the end of the reports. Nothing else to do. Sue: Let's call it a day. □ Bob: Let's call it a day. I'm tired. Tom: Me too. Let's get out of here.

Let's do lunch (sometime). Go to We('ll) have to do lunch sometime.

Let's do this again (sometime). and We must do this again (sometime). an expression indicating that one member of a group or pair has enjoyed doing something and would like to do it again. □ Bill: What a nice evening. Mary: Yes, let's do this again sometime. Bill: Bye. Mary: Bye, Bill. □ Sue (saying good night): So nice to see both of you. Mary: Oh, yes. We must do this again sometime.

Let's dump. Sl. Let's go. □ It's late. Let's dump. □ Let's dump. I've still got a lot to do at home tonight.

Let's get down to business. Fig. a phrase marking a transition to a business discussion or serious talk. □ John: Okay, enough small talk. Let's get down to business. Mary: Good idea. □ "All right, ladies and gentlemen, let's get down to business," said the president of the board.

Let's get out of here. Let us leave (and go somewhere else). □ Alice: It's really hot in this room. Let's get out of here. John: I'm with you. Let's go. □ Bill: This crowd is getting sort of angry. Bob: I noticed that too. Let's get out of here.

Let's get together (sometime). a vague invitation to meet again, usually said upon departing. (The sometime can be a particular time or the word sometime.) □ Bill: Good-bye, Bob. Bob: See you, Bill. Let's get together sometime. □ Jane: We need to discuss this matter. John: Yes, let's get together next week.

Let's go somewhere where it's (more) quiet. Let us continue our conversation where there is less noise or where we will not be disturbed. □ Tom: Hi, Mary. It's sure crowded here. Mary: Yes, let's go somewhere where it's quiet. □ Bill: We need to talk. Sally: Yes, we do. Let's go somewhere where it's more quiet.

Let's have it! Go to Let me have it!

Let's not go through all that again. We are not going to discuss that matter again. (Compare this with Do we have to go through all that again?) □ Bill: Now, I still want to explain again about last night. Sally: Let's not go through all that again! □ Sally: I can't get over the way you spoke to me at our own dinner table. Fred: I was only kidding! I said I was sorry. Let's not go through all that again!

Let's rock and roll! Inf. Let's get started!; Let's get moving! □ A: Everybody ready? B: Yeah. A: Good. Let's rock and roll!

let's say introduces an estimate or a speculation. □ I need about—let's say—twenty pounds. □ Let's say I go over and talk to him. What do you think?

Let's shake on it. Let us mark this agreement by shaking hands on it. □ Bob: Do you agree? Mary: I agree. Let's shake on it. Bob: Okay. □ Bill: Good idea. Sounds fine. Bob (extending his hand): Okay, let's shake on it. Bill (shaking hands with Bob): Great!

Let's talk (about it). Let us talk about the problem and try to settle things. □ Tom: Bill! Bill! I'm sorry about our argument. Let's talk. Bill: Get lost! □ Sally: I've got a real problem. Bob: Let's talk about it.

Let sleeping dogs lie. Prov. Do not instigate trouble.; Leave something alone if it might cause trouble. □ Jill: Should I ask the boss if he's upset at my coming in late in the mornings? Jane: If he hasn't said anything about it, just let sleeping dogs lie. □ I thought I would ask Jill if she wanted me to pay her back right away, but then I decided to let sleeping dogs lie.

let someone down to disappoint someone; to fail someone. □ I'm sorry I let you down. Something came up, and I couldn't meet you. □ I don't want to let you down, but I can't support you in the election.

let someone (get) by and let someone pass by to permit someone to pass. □ Please let me get by. I am in a hurry. □ Let the paramedics by, please.

let someone get by with something to allow someone to do something wrong and not be punished or reprimanded. (An elaboration of get by (with something).) □ She lets those kids get by with anything. □ They won't let you get by with that!

let someone (get) off (something) to permit someone to disembark, dismount, or leave something. □ Please move and let me get off the bus. □ Let her off!

let someone get on with something to permit someone to continue something. □ I will leave now and let you get on with your work. □ She had to settle the matter first. She would not let herself get on with life until the matter was settled.

let someone (get) past to allow someone to pass; to get out of the way so someone can pass. □ Please let me get past. I'm in a hurry. □ Do let me past.

let someone go Euph. to fire someone. □ They let Jane go from her job. □ I'm afraid we're going to have to let you go.

let someone have it (with both barrels) Fig. to strike someone or attack someone verbally. (With both barrels intensifies the phrase; it alludes to firing a double-barreled shotgun.) □ I really let Tom have it with both barrels. I told him he had better not do that again if he knows what's good for him. □ Bob was really angry and let John have it—with both barrels.

let someone in for something to cause someone to be involved in something, usually something unpleasant. □ Fred had no idea what his brother had let him in for when he agreed to take his place in the race. □ Jack didn't know what he was letting himself in for when he married that dreadful woman.

let someone in on something Go to in on something.

let someone in on the act Go to in on the act.

let someone in on the ground floor Go to in on the ground floor.

let someone know (about something) to tell someone something; to inform someone of something. □ Please let me know about it soon. □ Will you be coming to the picnic? Please let me know.

let someone off 1. to permit someone to disembark or leave a means of transportation. □ The driver let Mary off the bus. □ "I can't let you off at this corner," said the driver. □ He let off passengers at every stop. 2. Go to next.

let someone off (easy) and let someone off[†] to release or dismiss someone without punishment. □ The judge didn't let me off easy. □ The judge let off Mary with a warning.

let someone off the hook Go to off the hook.

let someone or an animal (get) out (of something) 1. to permit someone or an animal to exit or escape from something or some place. □ Please let the president get out of the car. □ Don't let the snake get out! 2. to permit someone or an animal to evade something. □ I will not let you get out of your responsibilities. □ They wouldn't let me out of the contract.

let someone or an animal out of something and let someone or an animal out[†] to permit someone or an animal to exit from something or some place. □ Would you please let Ed out of his room? □ Please let out Ed.

let someone or something alone and leave someone or something alone; leave someone or something be to avoid touching, bothering, or communicating with someone or something. □ Leave me alone. I don't want your help. □ Let it alone! Don't touch it! It may be hot!

let someone or something at someone or something to permit someone or something to attack or get at someone or something. □ He did that? Just let me at him! □ Let the committee at her, then she'll change her tune.

let someone or something down[†] Fig. to fail someone or something; to disappoint someone or a group. □ Please don't let me down. I am depending on you. □ I let down the entire cast of the play.

let someone or something into something and let someone or something in[†] to permit someone or something to enter something or some place; to make it possible for someone or something to enter something or some place. □ Would you let Ed into his room? He forgot his key. □ Please let in the dog.

let someone or something through (something) to permit someone or something to move through an opening or through a congested area. □ The usher wouldn't let me through the door. □ Please let the ambulance through the crowd.

let someone pass by Go to let someone (get) by.

let someone slide by Fig. to permit someone to get past a barrier or a challenge too easily. □ You let too many students slide by. You need to be more rigorous. □ Don't let even one unqualified person slide by!

let someone, something, or some creature alone Go to leave someone, something, or some creature alone.

let someone, something, or some creature be Go to leave someone, something, or some creature alone.

let something (get) out Go to leak something (out).

let something off[†] to release something; to give something off. □ The engine let some evil smelling smoke off. □ The flower let off a wonderful smell.

let something out[†] 1. Fig. to reveal something; to tell about a secret or a plan. (See also leak something out.) □ It was supposed to be a secret. Who let it out? □ Who let out the secret? 2. Fig. to enlarge an article of clothing. □ She had to let her overcoat out because she had gained some weight. □ I see you have had to let out your trousers.

let something out[†] (to someone) to rent something to someone. □ I let the back room out to a college boy. □ I let out the back room to someone.

let something pass Fig. to let something go unnoticed or unchallenged. □ Bob let Bill's insult pass because he didn't want to argue. □ Don't worry, I'll let this little incident pass.

let something ride Fig. to allow something to continue or remain as it is. □ It isn't the best plan, but we'll let it ride. □ I disagree with you, but I'll let it ride.

let something slide Go to let things slide.

let something slide by Go to next.

let something slip by and let something slide by 1. Lit. to permit something to move quickly by oneself. □ He let the ball slip by and he knew he had better get the next one. □ The careless cashier let the leaky milk carton slide by. 2. Fig. to forget or miss an important time or date. □ I'm sorry I just let your birthday slip by. □ I let it slide by accidentally. 3. Fig. to waste a period of time. □ You wasted the whole day by letting it slip by. □ We were having fun, and we let the time slide by.

let something slip (out) Fig. to reveal a secret carelessly or by accident. □ I didn't let it slip out on purpose. It was an accident. □ John let the plans slip when he was talking to Bill.

Let the buyer beware. Prov. Cliché When you buy something, you must take precautions against being cheated, because you cannot trust merchants to be honest about what they sell. □ Let the buyer beware when shopping for a used car. □ Several of the lamps among those Max offered for sale were broken. "If a customer isn't smart enough to try a lamp before he buys it, that's his problem," Max argued. "Let the buyer beware."

let the cat out of the bag Fig. to reveal a secret or a surprise by accident. □ When Bill glanced at the door, he let the cat out of the bag. We knew then that he was expecting someone to arrive. □ It's a secret. Try not to let the cat out of the bag.

let the chance slip by Fig. to lose the opportunity (to do something). □ When I was younger, I wanted to become a doctor, but I let the chance slip by. □ Don't let the chance slip by. Do it now!

Let the chips fall where they may. Prov. Let something happen regardless of the consequences and no matter what happens. □ I'm going to tell Ellen the truth about her husband, let the chips fall where they may. □ Kathy decided to risk her money on the investment, and let the chips fall where they may.

Let the cobbler stick to his last. Prov. Do not advise someone in matters outside your area of expertise. □ Whenever Ted, who is a lawyer, tried to give Bob suggestions about how to write his novel, Bob would say, "Let the cobbler stick to his last." □ Bill: I don't think you should put so much oregano in the spaghetti sauce. Nancy: You're a construction worker, not a chef. Let the cobbler stick to his last.

Let the dead bury the dead. Prov. Do not try to revive old grievances.; Forget about past conflicts. (Biblical.) □ The Nelson family and the Hopkins family had been feuding for decades, but when Andrew Nelson and Louise Hopkins declared that they wanted to get married, their families decided to let the dead bury the dead.

Let them eat cake. Prov. A joking disclaimer of responsibility for some group of people. (Supposed to have been said by Marie Antoinette when she heard that the common people had no bread.) □ Fred: The budget will allow each one of our managers to get a substantial holiday bonus. Jane: And what about the rest of the employees? Fred: Let them eat cake!

let things slide and let something slide Fig. to ignore the things that one is supposed to do; to fall behind in the doing of one's work. □ I am afraid that I let the matter slide while I was recovering from my operation. □ If I let things slide for even one day, I get hopelessly behind in my work.

let up 1. to diminish. □ I hope this rain lets up a little soon. □ When the snow lets up so I can see, I will drive to the store.
2. to stop [doing something] altogether. □ The rain let up about noon, and the sun came out.

let up (on someone or something) Fig. to reduce the pressure or demands on someone or something. □ You had better let up on Tom. He can't handle any more work. □ Please let up on the committee. It can only do so much. □ Do let up. You are getting too upset.

Let us do something. We will do something [together]. □ Let us go in peace. □ Let us bow our heads in prayer.

let well enough alone and leave well enough alone to leave things as they are (and not try to improve them). □ There isn't much more you can accomplish here. Why don't you just let well enough alone? □ This is as good as I can do. I'll stop and leave well enough alone.

level a charge against someone Fig. to place a charge against someone; to accuse someone of something. □ The neighbors leveled a disturbance of the peace charge against us. □ The cops leveled an assault charge against Max.

level off [for variation or fluctuation in the motion of something] to diminish; [for a rate] to stop increasing or decreasing. □ The plane leveled off at 10,000 feet. □ After a while the workload will level off. □ Things will level off after we get through the end of the month.

level out [for something that was going up and down] to assume a more level course or path. □ The road leveled out after a while and driving was easier. □ As we got down into the valley, the land leveled out and traveling was easier.

a level playing field Fig. a situation that is fair to all; a situation where everyone has the same opportunity. (See also level the (playing) field.) □ If we started off with a level playing field, everyone would have an equal chance.

level something at someone or something to direct something at someone or something; to aim a remark at someone. □ The sheriff leveled his rifle at the fleeing bandit. □ Why did you think you had to level that barrage of words at me? I didn't make the problem. □ Sam leveled an acid comment or two at the committee.

level something down to make something level or smooth. □ The soil is very uneven in this part of the garden. Would you please level it down? □ The huge earth-moving machines leveled the hill down in preparation for the building of the highway.

level something off^t to make something level or smooth. □ You are going to have to level the floor off before you put the carpet down. □ Please level off the floor.

level something out^t to cause something to assume a more level course or path. □ Level this path out before you open it to the public. □ They have to level out this roadway.

level something to the ground to crush or demolish something down to the ground. □ They were forced to level the building to the ground, because they could not afford to maintain it. □ The house was leveled to the ground by the tornado.

level something up^t to move something into a level or plumb position. □ Use a piece of wood under the table's leg to level it up. □ I will level up the table.

level the (playing) field Fig. to create a state where everyone has the same opportunity. (See also a level playing field.) □ Let's level the playing field and give everyone a chance.

level with someone (about someone or something) Fig. to be straightforward with someone about something; to be sincere or truthful about someone or something. □ The police encouraged the criminal to level with them about the crime. □ Level with me, and tell me what you thought of my cake.

levy something (up)on someone or something to place a tax on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The Congress was very straight- forward. It levied room taxes upon rich people. □ The city council levied a heavy tax on hotel guests.

A liar is not believed (even) when he tells the truth. Prov. If people think that you are a liar, they will not believe anything you say. □ As it turned out, Fred was right when he warned his friends that the police were planning to raid their party; but they paid no attention to him, since they knew him to be a liar, and a liar is not believed even when he tells the truth.

liberate someone or something from someone or something to free someone or something from someone or something; to set someone or something free from the control of someone or something. □ The police hoped to liberate the child from his kidnappers. □ We liberated the town from the enemy. □ I liberated the cat from the trap.

license to do something permission, right, or justification to do something. □ You have no license to behave in that manner! □ Who granted you license to enter my house without knocking?

a lick and a promise Fig. a hasty bit of work; a quick once-over. (*Typically: finish something with ~; give something ~.) □ I was pressed for time, so I just gave the housework a lick and a promise. □ Mary spent so much time on her history paper that she had to finish her math homework with a lick and a promise.

lick at something to draw the tongue over something repeatedly. □ Jimmy was just licking at the ice-cream cone, and soon it began to melt and drip off his elbow. □ I don't just lick at the ice cream. I take big bites of it.

a lick of work a bit of work. (Used with a negative.) □ I couldn't get her to do a lick of work all day long! □ The boys didn't do a lick of work while you were away.

lick one's chops Fig. to show one's eagerness to do something, especially to eat something. □ We could tell from the way the boys were licking their chops that they really wanted a turn at riding the motorcycle. □ Fred started licking his chops when he smelled the turkey roasting in the oven.

lick one's lips Fig. to show eagerness or pleasure about a future event. (From the habit of people licking their lips when they are about to enjoy eating something.) □ The children licked their lips at the sight of the cake. □ The author's readers were licking their lips in anticipation of her new novel.

lick one's wounds Fig. to recover from a defeat or a rebuke. (Also literal for an animal.) □ After the terrible meeting and all the criticism, I went back to my office to lick my wounds.

lick someone or something into shape to press or force someone or something into good shape or condition. □ The drama coach will try to lick her into shape by performance time. □ Please try to lick this report into shape by tomorrow morning.

lick something into shape and whip something into shape Fig. to put something into good condition, possibly with considerable effort. □ I've got about two days more to lick this place into shape so I can sell it. □ I want to whip this house into shape for Saturday night.

lick something off (of) something and lick something off to remove something from something by licking with the tongue. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The dog licked the grease off of the floor where the meat had dropped. □ The dog licked off the grease.

lick something up† to clean up all of some substance by licking with the tongue. (Usually said of an animal.) □ Don't worry about the spilled milk. The dog will lick it up. □ The dog licked up the milk.

a licking a spanking; a beating in a fight. (*Typically: get ~; take ~; give someone ~.) □ Billy, you had better get in here if you don't want to get a licking. □ Bob took a real licking in the stock market. □ Tom gave Harry a licking in the fight he was in.

a lid on something 1. Lit. a cover on something, such as a pot, pan, etc. (*Typically: get ~; keep ~; put ~.) □ Keep the lid on the pot until the stew is almost done. □ Put the lid on the skillet for just a little while. 2. Fig. a scheme to suppress a scandalous or embarrassing situation and keep it secret. (*Typically: get ~; keep ~; put ~.) □ We can't keep the lid on this any longer. The press has got wind of it.

lie about 1. [for someone] to recline lazily somewhere. □ She just lay about through her entire vacation. □ Don't lie about all the time. Get busy. 2. [for something] to be located somewhere casually and carelessly, perhaps for a long time. □ This hammer has been lying about for a week. Put it away! □ Why are all these dirty dishes lying about?

lie about someone or something (to someone) to say something untrue about someone or something to someone. □ I wouldn't lie about my boss to anyone! □ I wouldn't lie about anything like that!

lie ahead of someone or something and lie before someone or something 1. to exist in front of someone or something. □ A small cottage lay ahead of us near the trail. □ A huge mansion lay before the car at the end of the road. 2. to be fixed in the future of someone or something. □ I just don't know what lies ahead of me. □ We don't know what lies before our country.

lie alongside (of) someone or an animal to lie next to someone or an animal. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Jimmy came in to lie alongside of his father in bed. □ The puppy lay alongside its mother.

lie around (some place) to recline some place; to spend some time lazily in some place. □ I think I will just lie around the house all day. □ I need to lie around every now and then.

lie at anchor [for a ship] to wait or rest at anchor. □ The ship lay at anchor throughout the day while a shore party searched for the runaway. □ We lay at anchor overnight, waiting for the tide.

lie at death's door Fig. to be close to dying. □ She lay at death's door for over a month. □ I do not want to lie at death's door suffering. I hope to pass on quickly.

lie back to relax; to lean back in a chair and relax. (See also kick back.) □ Just lie back and try to get comfortable. □ I really need to get home and lie back and relax.

lie before someone or something Go to lie ahead of someone or something.

lie behind someone or something 1. [for something] to be positioned to the rear of someone or something. □ A wide expanse of water lay behind the sentry, and a narrow roadway lay in front. □ A vast field lies behind the house. 2. [for something] to be in someone's or a group's past. □ Now that all of our difficulties lie behind us, we can get on with our business. □ The busy season lay behind the company and people could take their vacations.

lie below someone or something Go to below someone or something.

lie beyond someone or something 1. to be located on the other side of someone or something. □ The stream lies beyond those men you see working in the field. □ The village lies just beyond that hill there. 2. to be outside the grasp or the ability of someone or a group. □ I am afraid that this matter lies beyond Dave. □ The solution lies beyond the power of the committee.

lie doggo Fig. to remain unrecognized (for a long time). □ This problem has lain doggo since 1967. □ If you don't find the typos now, they will lie doggo until the next edition.

lie down to recline. □ Why don't you lie down for a while? □ I need to lie down and have a little snooze.

lie down on something to recline on something. □ Don't lie down on that couch! □ I will just lie down on my bed for a few minutes.

lie down on the job and lay down on the job Fig. to do one's job poorly or not at all. (Lay is a common error for lie.) □ Tom was fired because he was laying down on the job. □ You mean he was lying down on the job, don't you?

lie down under something to lie down beneath something. □ She was tired, so she lay down under a willow tree by the brook. □ The dog lay down under a lawn chair and slept.

lie fallow 1. Lit. [for farmland] to exist unplanted for a period of time. □ The fields lay fallow under the burning sun. It had been too wet to plant last spring. 2. Fig. [for a skill and talent] to remain unused and neglected. □ You should not let your talent lie fallow. Practice the piano before you forget how to play it. □ His writing had lain fallow for so long that he could hardly write a proper sentence.

lie in [for a woman] to lie in bed awaiting the birth of her child. □ The child is due soon, and the mother is lying in at the present time. □ She did not lie in at all. She worked right up to the onset of labor pains.

lie in ruins to exist in a state of ruin, such as a destroyed city, building, scheme, plan, etc. □ The entire city lay in ruins. □ My garden lay in ruins after the cows got in and trampled everything.

lie in something to recline in something, such as a bed, a puddle, etc. □ I found my wallet lying in a puddle. My money was soaked! □ We found Jimmy lying in a pile of leaves, napping.

lie in state [for a dead body] to be on display for public mourning. □ The president will lie in state in the Capitol Rotunda. □ Mourners filed past the leader where he lay in state.

lie in store (for someone) Go to in store (for someone).

lie in wait (for someone or something) Fig. to stay still and hidden, waiting for someone or something. □ Bob was lying in wait for Anne so he could scold her about something. □ The assassin lay in wait for his target to approach.

lie like a rug Sl. to tell lies shamelessly. □ He says he didn't take the money, but he's lying like a rug. □ I don't believe her. She lies like a rug.

lie low and lay low Fig. to keep quiet and not be noticed; to avoid being conspicuous. (Lay is a common error for lie.) □ I suggest you lie low for a few days. □ The robber said that he would lay low for a short time after the robbery.

lie out (in something) to remain out (unenclosed or unprotected) in some area. □ Who left my screwdriver lying out in the rain? □ It's not lying out. It's in the drawer.

lie through one's teeth Fig. to lie boldly. □ I knew she was lying through her teeth, but I didn't want to say so just then. □ If John denies it he's lying through his teeth, because I saw him do it.

lie to someone (about someone or something) to tell an untruth about someone or something to someone. □ You wouldn't lie to me about Sarah, would you? □ I'm not lying to you!

lie (up)on someone Go to (up)on someone.

lie with someone 1. to recline with someone. □ Come and lie with me and we will keep warm. □ Jimmy and Franny were lying with each other to keep warm. 2. Euph. to recline with someone and have sex. □ She claimed he asked her to lie with him. □ Do you mean to imply that she lay with him?

lie within something to remain within a defined area or domain. □ The boundaries of the village lie completely within the river valley. □ The cost you cited lies within the range I was considering.

Life begins at forty. Prov. By the time you are forty years old, you have enough experience and skill to do what you want to do with your life. (Often said as an encouragement to those reaching middle age.) □ Alan: Why are you so depressed? Jane: Tomorrow's my fortieth birthday. Alan: Cheer up! Life begins at forty. □ For Pete, life began at forty, because by that time he had enough financial security to enjoy himself now and then, rather than having to work all the time.

life in the fast lane a very active or possible risky way to live. (See also in the fast lane.) □ Life in the fast lane is too much for me.

Life is just a bowl of cherries. Prov. Everything is going well.; Life is carefree. (Often used ironically, as in the second example.) □ The real estate salesman tried to convince us that life in the suburbs is just a bowl of cherries. □ Jill: Hi, Jane. How are you? Jane: Oh, my alarm clock didn't go off this morning, and then my car wouldn't start, and I missed the bus and got to work late, and I just found out my rent's going up fifty dollars a month. Life is just a bowl of cherries.

Life is short and time is swift. Prov. You should enjoy life as much as possible, because it does not last very long. □ Jill: Want to go to the movies with me? Jane: Oh, I don't know; I should probably stay at work and finish a few things. Jill: Come on, Jane, life is short and time is swift.

Life is too short. Life is short and there is no point in wasting it on things like worry, hatred, vengeance, etc. □ I am not going to spend any more time trying to get even with Wally. Life's too short. □ It's a waste of time worrying about money. Life is too short for that.

Life isn't all beer and skittles. Prov. Life is not pleasurable all the time; you cannot always be having fun. (Skittles is a game like bowling.) □ I don't really mind going back to work when my vacation is over. Life isn't all beer and skittles, and I enjoy my fun that much more because I have work to compare it to. □ When George's parents stopped supporting him, George suddenly discovered that life isn't all beer and skittles.

the life of the party Fig. a person who is lively and helps make a party fun and exciting. □ Bill is always the life of the party. Be sure to invite him. □ Bob isn't exactly the life of the party, but he's polite.

Life's been good (to me). I am grateful that I am doing well in life. □ I can't complain. Life's been good to me. □ I am doing fine. Life's been good.

lift a hand (against someone or something) and raise a hand (against someone or something) Fig. to threaten (to strike) someone or something. (Often in the negative. The a hand can be replaced with one's hand.) □ She's very peaceful. She wouldn't lift a hand against a fly. □ Would you raise your hand against your own brother?

lift off [for a plane or rocket] to move upward, leaving the ground. □ The rocket lifted off exactly on time.

lift one's elbow Go to bend one's elbow.

lift someone or something down[†] (from something) to move someone or something down (from something or some place) by lifting and carrying. □ Would you please lift Jimmy down from the top bunk? □ Frank lifted down the heavy box.

lift someone or something up[†] to raise someone or something. □ I helped lift him up and put him on the stretcher. □ Please lift up Tommy.

lift someone's spirits Go to someone's spirits.

lift something from someone or something to raise something off someone or something. □ Please lift this burden from me. □ I lifted the glass from the tray carefully.

lift something off (of) someone or something and lift something off[†] to raise something and uncover or release someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Lift the beam off of him and see if he is still breathing. □ Please lift off the heavy lid.

lift something out of context Go to out of context.

lift up to raise up. □ Suddenly, the top of the box lifted up and a hand reached out. □ Bill's hand lifted up and fell back again.

lift a fire under someone Go to a fire under someone.

light as a feather and *light as air Cliché light in weight; [of cakes and pastries] delicate and airy. (*Also: as ~.) □ Carrying Esther from the car to the house was no problem; she was as light as a feather. □ What a delicious cake, Tom! And light as air, too.

light as air Go to previous.

light into someone or something Go to lace into someone or something.

light out (for some place) Go to cut out (for some place).

light out (of some place) (for some place) Fig. to leave a place in a great hurry for some place. □ I lit out of there for home as fast as I could. □ I lit out of there as fast as I could go.

A light purse makes a heavy heart. Prov. If you do not have enough money, you will worry and be unhappy. □ Nathan is a cheerful person by nature, but since he lost his job, worry has made him glum. A light purse makes a heavy heart.

light someone or something up[†] to shine lights on someone or something. (See also light something up.) □ We lit Fred up with the headlights of the car. □ Light up the stage and let's rehearse.

light something up[†] 1. to light a fire, a gas burner, etc. □ I lit the kindling up and soon the fire was going. □ You light up the stove and get dinner going. 2. to light something to smoke, such as a cigarette, pipe, etc. (See also light someone or something up.) □ She lit the cigarette up and took in a great breath of the smoke. □ She lit up a cigarette.

light something with something 1. to set something afire with something else. □ Kelly lit the fire with her last match. □ I will light the fire with a cigarette lighter. 2. to illuminate something using something. □ She lit the room with a few candles. □ We lit the Christmas tree with colored lights.

light up 1. to become brighter. □ Suddenly, the sky lit up like day. □ The room lit up as the fire suddenly came back to life. 2. [for someone] to become interested and responsive in something. □ We could tell from the way Sally lit up that she recognized the man in the picture. □ She lit up when we told her about our team's success.

light (up)on someone or something 1. Lit. to land on someone or something; to settle on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Three butterflies lit on the baby, causing her to shriek with delight. □ The bees lit on the clover blossom and pulled it to the ground. □ Her glance lit upon a dress in the store window. 2. Fig. to arrive at something by chance; to happen upon something. □ The committee lit upon a solution that pleased almost everyone. □ We just happened to light upon this idea as we were talking to each other.

lighten something up[†] to make something lighter or brighter. □ Some white paint will lighten this room up a lot. □ The sunlight came in and lightened up the kitchen.

lighten up to become lighter or brighter. (See also lighten up (on someone or something).) □ We applied a new coat of white paint to the walls, and the room lightened up considerably. □ The sky is beginning to lighten up a little.

lighten up (on someone or something) to be less rough and demanding or rude with someone or something. (See also lighten up.) □ Please lighten up on her. You are being very cruel. □ You are too harsh. Lighten up.

Lightning never strikes (the same place) twice. Prov. The same highly unlikely thing never happens to the same person twice. □ Jill: I'm scared to drive ever since that truck hit my car. Alan: Don't worry. Lightning never strikes the same place twice. □ It's strange, but I feel safer since my apartment was robbed; I figure lightning never strikes the same place twice.

like a bat out of hell Inf. very fast or sudden. (Use caution with hell.) □ The cat took off like a bat out of hell. □ The car pulled away from the curb like a bat out of hell.

like a blind dog in a meat market Rur. out of control. □ The drunk staggered out of the saloon like a blind dog in a meat market, stumbling all over the sidewalk. □ The kids tore through the museum like a blind dog in a meat market, touching everything they weren't supposed to touch.

like a bolt from the blue Go to next.

like a bolt out of the blue and like a bolt from the blue Fig. suddenly and without warning. (Alludes to a bolt of lightning coming out of a clear blue sky.) □ The news came to us like a bolt from the blue. □ Like a bolt out of the blue, the boss came and fired us all.

like a bull in a china shop Go to a bull in a china shop.

like a bump on a log Fig. completely inert. (Derogatory.) □ Don't just sit there like a bump on a log; give me a hand! □ You can never tell what Julia thinks of something; she just stands there like a bump on a log.

like a can of corn Rur. very easy. □ Whipping up dinner for twelve is like a can of corn, as far as Jane is concerned. □ The championship game was like a can of corn for our team. We won easily.

like a fish out of water Fig. appearing to be completely out of place; in a very awkward manner. □ Bob stood there in his rented tuxedo, looking like a fish out of water. □ Whenever I am with your friends, I feel like a fish out of water. What on earth do you see in them—or me?

like a house on fire and like a house afire Rur. rapidly and with force. □ The truck came roaring down the road like a house on fire. □ The crowd burst through the gate like a house afire.

like a kid with a new toy Fig. very pleased; happily playing with something. □ Every time Bill gets a new gadget for his kitchen, he's like a kid with a new toy. □ Jane is absorbed in that computer. Just like a kid with a new toy.

like a lamb to the slaughter Go to like lambs to the slaughter.

like a million (dollars) Fig. very good or well. (Usually with verbs such as feel, look, run, etc.) □ This old buggy runs like a million dollars. □ Man, I feel like a million. □ Your new hairdo looks like a million dollars.

like a sitting duck Go to a sitting duck.

like a three-ring circus Fig. chaotic; exciting and busy. □ Our household is like a three-ring circus on Monday mornings. □ This meeting is like a three-ring circus. Quiet down and listen!

like a ton of bricks Inf. like a great weight or burden. (*Typically: fall ~; hit ~; hit someone ~.) □ Suddenly, the truth hit me like a ton of bricks. □ The sudden tax increase hit like a ton of bricks. Everyone became angry.

(like) an open book Fig. [of someone or something] easy to understand. □ Jane's an open book. I always know what she is going to do next. □ The committee's intentions are an open book. They want to save money.

Like breeds like. Prov. People tend to raise children who are like them; something tends to give rise to things that resemble it. □ Jill: I think Fred's little boy is going to be just as disagreeable as Fred. Jane: That's no surprise. Like breeds like.

like crazy and like mad Fig. furiously; very much, fast, many, or actively. □ People are coming in here like crazy. There isn't enough room for them all. □ We sold ice cream like crazy. It was a very hot day.

like death warmed over Fig. very ill; appearing very sickly. (*Typically: feel ~; look ~.) □ Oh dear, I feel like death warmed over. □ Poor Carol said you look like death warmed over.

like father, like son Prov. Fathers and sons resemble each other, and sons tend to do what their fathers did before them. □ Jill: George's father smoked all the time, and now George is smoking excessively, too. Jane: Like father, like son, eh? □ I think my son will grow up tall, just like his father. Like father, like son.

like fighting snakes Rur. chaotic; challenging. (As if every time one snake is subdued, another one attacks.) □ It's like fighting snakes to get anything done at this time of year. □ Arguing with you is like fighting snakes.

like flies to manure Rur. eagerly gathering in large numbers. (Has unpleasant connotations because of the reference to manure.) □ Look at all them folks going to the freak show like flies to manure. □ The reporters hovered around the movie star like flies to manure.

like gangbusters with great excitement and speed. (From the phrase “Come on like gangbusters,” a radio show that “came on” with lots of noise and excitement.) □ She works like gangbusters and gets the job done. □ They are selling tickets like gangbusters.

like greased lightning Rur. very fast. □ Once I get her tuned up, this old car will go like greased lightning. □ He's a fat kid, but he can run like greased lightning.

like hell Go to like the devil.

like hell and high lightning Rur. very fast. □ The snowmobiles came zooming down the trail like hell and high lightning. □ The powerboat sped up the river like hell and high lightning.

like herding frogs Rur. chaotic; disorderly. (On the image of trying to direct frogs, which will jump any which way.) □ Trying to get those kids to march into the auditorium is like herding frogs. □ Trying to get everybody to cooperate is like herding frogs.

like I was saying Go to as I was saying.

Like it or lump it! Inf. There is no other choice. Take that or none. □ John: I don't like this room. It's too small. Bill: Like it or lump it. That's all we've got. □ Jane: I don't want to be talked to like that. Sue: Well, like it or lump it! That's the way we talk around here.

Like it's such a big deal! Inf. It really isn't all that important! (Sarcastic.) □ So I dropped the glass. Like it's such a big deal. □ Like it's such a big deal. Who cares?

like it was going out of style Fig. rapidly or frequently. □ I'm worried about Sally. She's taking aspirin like it's going out of style. □ The kids have been eating sweet corn like it was going out of style.

like lambs to the slaughter and like a lamb to the slaughter Fig. quietly and without seeming to realize the likely difficulties or dangers of a situation. □ Young men fighting in World War I simply went like lambs to the slaughter. □ Our team went on the football field like lambs to the slaughter to meet the league-leaders.

like looking for a needle in a haystack Fig. engaged in a hopeless search. □ Trying to find a white glove in the snow is like looking for a needle in a haystack. □ I tried to find my lost contact lens on the beach, but it was like looking for a needle in a haystack.

like mad Go to like crazy.

Like mother, like daughter. Prov. Daughters resemble their mothers.; Daughters tend to do what their mothers did before them. □ My mother loved sweets, and every time my father saw me with a cookie in my hand, he would sigh, "Like mother, like daughter." □ Jill: Gina's beautiful. Jane: Like mother, like daughter; her mother's gorgeous, too.

like nobody's business Inf. very well; very much. □ She can sing like nobody's business. What a set of pipes! □ My mom can cook chocolate chip cookies like nobody's business.

like nothing on earth 1. Fig. very untidy or very unattractive. □ Joan arrived at the office looking like nothing on earth. She had fallen in the mud. □ Alice was like nothing on earth in that electric yellow dress. 2. Fig. very unusual; very distinctive. □ The new car models look like nothing on earth this year. □ This cake is so good! It's like nothing on earth!

like one of the family as if someone (or a pet) were a member of one's family. □ We treat our dog like one of the family. □ We are very happy to have you stay with us, Bill. I hope you don't mind if we treat you like one of the family.

like pigs to the slaughter Rur. obediently and in large numbers. (See also like lambs to the slaughter.) □ Look at all the people lining up to mail their tax forms on time, like pigs to the slaughter.

like rats abandoning a sinking ship Go to Rats abandon a sinking ship.

like shooting fish in a barrel and as easy as shooting fish in a barrel Rur. ridiculously easy. □ Jane's a good mechanic. Changing a tire is like shooting fish in a barrel, for her. □ That comedian has an easy job. Making fun of politicians is like shooting fish in a barrel.

like stealing acorns from a blind pig Rur. very easy. □ Getting Mary to sign the house over to me was like stealing acorns from a blind pig. □ Tom: Was it hard to fool so many people? Charlie: Nope. It was like stealing acorns from a blind pig.

like stink Inf. rapidly. (As fast as a smell spreads. *Typically: go ~; move ~; run ~; swim ~.) □ Those kids moved through the whole test like stink. Real eager-beavers. □ The wood chipper went through the brush like stink and turned it into a small pile in minutes.

like taking candy from a baby and as easy as taking candy from a baby Cliché very easy. □ Getting to the airport was easy. It was like taking candy from a baby.

like the devil and like the dickens; *like hell Fig. with a fury; in a great hurry; with a lot of activity. (*Typically: fight ~; run ~; scream ~; thrash around ~.) □ We were working like the dickens when the rain started and made us quit for the day.

like the dickens Go to previous.

like the wind Fig. very fast; as fast and easy as the wind. (*Typically: go ~; move ~; run ~.) □ Emily's sleek new bicycle can really go like the wind. □ The racehorse ran like the wind, beating its nearest opponent by several lengths.

like there ain't no tomorrow Go to next.

like there's no tomorrow and like there ain't no tomorrow Rur. eagerly; rapidly; without stopping. □ You can't go on eating candy bars like there's no tomorrow. □ Jim's spending money like there's no tomorrow.

like to Rur. almost. □ I like to died laughing when I saw Jim come in wearing a dress. □ Mary like to passed out when she saw how bad her house was damaged in the storm.

like to hear oneself talk [for someone] to enjoy one's own talking more than people enjoy listening to it. □ I guess I don't really have anything to say. I just like to hear myself talk, I guess. □ There he goes again. He just likes to hear himself talk.

like tryin' to scratch your ear with your elbow Rur. impossible. □ Getting those kids to settle down is like tryin' to scratch your ear with your elbow. □ Fixing all the leaks in that old roof is like tryin' to scratch your ear with your elbow.

like (two) peas in a pod Cliché very close or intimate. (Compare this with as alike as (two) peas in a pod.) □ Yes, they're close. Like two peas in a pod. □ They're always together. Like peas in a pod.

like water off a duck's back Fig. easily; without any apparent effect. □ Insults rolled off John like water off a duck's back. □ The bullets had no effect on the steel door. They fell away like water off a duck's back.

like, you know Inf. a combining of the (essentially meaningless) expressions like and you know. (Never used in formal writing.) □ She is, well, like, you know, uncool. □ This is, well, like, you know, too much!

likely as not Fig. probably; with an even chance either way. (*Also: as ~.) □ He will as likely as not arrive without warning. □ Likely as not, the game will be canceled.

liken someone or something to someone or something to compare someone or something to someone or something, concentrating on the similarities. □ He is strange. I can only liken him to an eccentric millionaire. □ The poet likened James to a living statue of Mercury.

the likes of someone or something someone or something similar to that person or thing; the equal or equals of someone or something. □ I never want to see the likes of you again! □ We admired the splendid old ships, the likes of which will never be built again.

Likewise(, I'm sure). Fig. The same from my point of view. (A hackneyed phrase said in greeting someone. See examples.) □ Alice: I'm delighted to make your acquaintance. Bob: Likewise, I'm sure. □ John: How nice to see you! Sue: Likewise. John: Where are you from, Sue?

limber someone or something up[†] to make someone or something more flexible or loose. □ Let me give you a massage; that will limber you up. □ I need to limber up my arms.

limit someone to something 1. to restrict someone to a certain amount or number of something. □ I will have to limit you to two helpings of mashed potatoes. □ I limit myself to cola drinks only. 2. to restrict someone to a certain area. Please try to limit your children to your own yard. They limited themselves to the north side of town.

limit something to something to restrict something to a limited set, a certain amount, or a specific number of something. Please limit your comments to five minutes. Can you limit your remarks to the subject at hand?

the line of least resistance the course of action that will cause least trouble or effort. Jane won't stand up for her rights. She always takes the line of least resistance. Joan never states her point of view. She takes the line of least resistance and agrees with everyone else.

*a line on someone or something Fig. an idea on how to locate someone or something; an idea for finding someone who can help with someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I got a line on a book that might help explain what you want to know. *Sally has a line on someone who could help you fix up your apartment.

line one's own pocket(s) Fig. to make money for oneself in a greedy or dishonest fashion. They are interested in lining their pockets first and serving the people second. You can't blame them for wanting to line their own pockets.

line someone or something up¹ 1. Lit. to put people or things in line. Line everyone up and march them onstage. Line up the kids, please. Please line these books up. Hey, you guys! Line yourselves up! 2. Fig. to schedule someone or something [for something]. Please line somebody up for the entertainment. We will try to line up a magician and a clown for the party. They lined up a chorus for the last act.

line someone or something up² against something to put people or things into a row in front of or against something. We lined everyone up against the wall for the photograph. Please line up everyone against the wall.

line someone or something up³ behind someone or something to put people or things into a line behind someone or something. Please line all the children up behind the tallest child. Line up everyone behind the curtain.

line someone or something up⁴ (in something) to put people or things into some kind of formation, such as a row, column, ranks, etc. The teacher lined the children up in two rows. Please line up the children in a row.

line someone or something up⁵ on something to place people or things into a line oriented on one or more things. Line them all up on the edge of the grass. Line up the children on the white line.

line someone or something up⁶ with someone or something 1. Lit. to place people or things into a line with other people or things. Line Fred up with the others. Line up these books with the others. Please line yourselves up with the others. 2. Lit. to place people or things into a line that is oriented on someone or something. Line everyone up with the flagpole so we can march into the hall. Please line up everyone with the flagpole straight ahead. 3. Fig. to schedule a meeting date with someone or a group of people. Will you line everyone up with us for a Monday morning meeting? See if you can line up a meeting with Todd and Frank.

line someone or something up⁷ with something to position someone or something (or a group) in reference to other things. Please line the chairs up with the floor tiles. Line up this brick with the bricks below and at both sides. That's the way you lay bricks.

line someone up⁸ behind someone or something Fig. to organize people in support of someone or something. I will see if I can line a few supporters up behind our candidate. I can line up everyone behind you.

line someone up⁹ (for something) Fig. to schedule someone for something; to arrange for someone to do or be something. I lined gardeners up for the summer work on the gardens. I lined up four of my best friends to serve as ushers at my wedding.

line someone up¹⁰ (with someone) Go to fix someone up¹⁰ (with someone).

line something with something to place a layer of something over the inside surface of something. You should line the drawers with clean paper before you use them. I want to line this jacket with new material.

line up to form a line; to get into a line. All right, everyone, line up!

line up against someone or something to organize against someone or something. Our people lined up against the candidate and defeated her soundly. We will line up against the opposing party as we did during the last election.

line up alongside someone or something to form or get into a line beside someone or something. Can you line up alongside the other people? Line up alongside the wall and get ready to be photographed.

line up behind someone or something 1. to form or get into a line behind someone or something. Please line up behind Kelly. Please go and line up behind the sign. 2. and get behind someone or something to organize in support of someone or something. We all got behind Todd and got him elected. We got behind the most active political party.

line up for something to form or get into a line and wait for something. Everyone lined up for a helping of birthday cake. Let's line up for dinner. The doors to the dining room will open at any minute.

line up in(to) something to form or get into a line, row, rank, column, etc. Please line up in three columns. I wish you would all line up into a nice straight line.

line up on something to form a line oriented on something. Line up on the white line painted on the pavement. Please line up on the marks on the floor.

line up with someone to get into a line with someone. Go over and line up with the others. Would you please line up with the other students?

linger around to wait around; to be idle some place. Don't linger around. Get going! All the students were lingering around, waiting until the last minute to go into the building.

linger on to remain for a long time; to exist longer than would have been thought. This cold of mine just keeps lingering on. Some of the guests lingered on for a long time after the party was over.

linger on (after someone or something) and stay on (after someone or something) to outlast someone or something; to live longer than someone else or long after an event. □ Aunt Sarah lingered on only a few months after Uncle Herman died. □ She lingered on and was depressed for a while.

linger on something to delay moving on to the next thing; to remain at something and not move on. □ Don't linger on that one problem so long. □ I don't want to waste a lot of time lingering on this question.

linger over something 1. to take too much time or idle over something, such as a meal, a cup of coffee, etc. □ I could linger over coffee all morning, given the chance. □ Don't linger over your soup. It will get cold. 2. to dawdle over the doing of something. □ You shouldn't linger over eating your dinner. □ It would be best not to linger over making up your mind.

link someone or something to someone or something and link someone or something and someone or something together; link someone or something together with someone or something; link someone or something with someone or something 1. to discover a connection between people and things, in any combination. □ I would never have thought of linking Fred to Tom. I didn't even know they knew each other. □ I always sort of linked Tom with honesty. 2. to connect people and things, in any combination. □ We have to link each person to one other person, using this colored yarn to tie them together. □ We linked each decoration together with another one.

link someone or something up⁺ (to something) to connect someone or something to something, usually with something that has a type of fastener or connector that constitutes a link. □ They promised that they would link me up to the network today. □ They will link up my computer to the network today.

link someone or something with someone or something Go to link someone or something to someone or something.

link up to someone or something and link (up) with someone or something to join up with someone or something. □ I have his new e-mail address so I can link up to Bruce. □ Now my computer can link up with a computer bulletin board.

the lion's share of something Fig. the largest portion of something. □ I earn a lot, but the lion's share goes for taxes. □ The lion's share of the surplus cheese goes to school cafeterias.

liquor someone up⁺ to get someone tipsy or drunk. □ He liquored her up and tried to take her home with him. □ They liquored up the out-of-town visitors.

liquor up to drink an alcoholic beverage, especially to excess. □ Sam sat around all evening liquoring up. □ They seem to liquor up almost every night of the week.

list someone as something to categorize someone as something, usually in a written list. □ I will list you as a contributor to the Preservation Fund, if you don't mind. □ Although she was not registered as such, she listed herself as a stockbroker.

list someone or something among something to include someone or something in a particular category. □ I list

George among the all-time greats. □ I have to list the budget committee as the most efficient ever.

list someone or something off^t to recite a list of people or things, one by one. □ She listed everyone off in order without having to look at her notes. □ She listed off the names of the people who are always late. □ Dale listed each one off.

list to a direction to lean to one side or another; to lean toward a specific direction. (Usually of ships or boats.) □ The ship had listed to one side since being struck by the speedboat. □ The huge ship listed a tiny bit to starboard.

listen for someone or something to try to hear someone or something. □ I will have to let you in the front door if you come home late. I will listen for you. □ I am listening for the telephone.

listen in (on someone or something) 1. to join someone or a group as a listener. □ The band is rehearsing. Let's go listen in on them. □ It won't hurt to listen in, will it? 2. to eavesdrop on someone. □ Please don't try to listen in on us. This is a private conversation. □ I am not listening in. I was here first. You are talking too loud.

listen to reason to yield to a reasonable argument; to take the reasonable course. □ Please listen to reason, and don't do something you'll regret. □ She got into trouble because she wouldn't listen to reason.

listen to someone or something 1. to pay attention to and hear someone or something. □ Listen to me! Hear what I have to say! □ I want to listen to his speech. 2. to heed someone, orders, or advice. □ Listen to me! Do what I tell you! □ You really should listen to his advice.

listen up to listen carefully. (Usually a command.) □ Now, listen up! This is important. □ Listen up, you guys!

Listeners never hear any good of themselves. Go to Eavesdroppers never hear any good of themselves.

litmus test 1. Lit. a test used to determine the acidity or alkalinity of chemical substances. (Acid turns litmus paper red and alkaline compounds turn it blue.) □ I used a litmus test to show that the compound was slightly acid.

2. Fig. a question or experiment that seeks to determine the state of one important factor. □ His performance on the long exam served as a litmus test to determine whether he would go to college. □ The amount of white cells in my blood became the litmus test for diagnosing my disease.

litter something about and litter something around to cast around something, such as trash, clothing, personal possessions, etc. □ Don't litter all that stuff about. □ I wish you wouldn't litter your trash around.

litter something up⁺ to mess something up with litter, trash, possessions, etc. □ Who littered this room up? □ Who littered up this room?

Little and often fills the purse. Prov. If you get a little bit of money frequently, you will always have enough. □ Jill: I don't think I'll ever be able to save very much; I can only afford to save such a little bit of money from every paycheck. Jane: Ah, but little and often fills the purse.

A little bird told me. Fig. a way of indicating that you do not want to reveal who told you something. (Sometimes used playfully, when you think that the person you are addressing knows or can guess who was the source of your information.) □ Jill: Thank you for the beautiful pre- sent! How did you know I wanted a green silk scarf? Jane: A little bird told me. □ Bill: How did you find out it was my birthday? Jane: A little bird told me.

a little bit (of something) a small amount; some. □ Can I have a little bit of candy? □ I need a little bit of time to finish this essay.

little bitty very little. □ Can I have just a little bitty piece of that lemon meringue pie? □ He was just a little bitty boy.

little by little gradually, a little bit at a time. □ I earned enough money, little by little, to buy a car. □ Jimmy crawled, little by little, until he reached the door.

A little (hard) work never hurt anyone. and A little (hard) work never killed anyone. Prov. One should expect to do hard or difficult work and not avoid doing it. □ Go help your father with the yard work. A little hard work never hurt anyone. □ Go ahead. Bring me some more bricks. A little work never killed anyone.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing. and A little learning is a dangerous thing. Prov. Cliché If you only know a little about something, you may feel you are qualified to make judgments when, in fact, you are not. □ After Bill read one book on the history of Venezuela, he felt he was an authority on the subject, but he wound up looking like a fool in discussions with people who knew a lot more about it than he did. A little learning is a dangerous thing.

(a little) new to (all) this an apologetic way of saying that one is experiencing something new or participating in something new. □ I'm sorry I'm slow. I'm a little new to all this. □ She's new to this. She needs practice.

a (little) nip in the air a cold feeling; cold weather. □ I felt a little nip in the air when I opened the window. □ There's more of a nip in the air as winter approaches.

a little off Go to a bit off.

little old someone or something ordinary; harmless. (Said to downplay or minimize the importance of something.) □ Aw, honey, I wasn't gambling. I just went to one little old poker game. □ Charlie: Did you eat that whole chocolate cake that I was saving for the party? Jane: Little old me?

Little pitchers have big ears. Prov. Children like to listen to adult conversations and can understand a lot of what they hear. (Used to warn another adult not to talk about something because there is a child present.) □ I started to tell Mary about the date I had on Saturday, but she interrupted me, saying, "Little pitchers have big ears," and looked pointedly at her six-year-old daughter, who was in the room with us.

a little pricey Go to a little steep.

little shaver Rur. a child; a baby. □ I think the little shaver needs her diaper changed. □ Tom thinks his grandson is the cutest little shaver there ever was.

a (little) short on one end Rur. short. □ You'll recognize Bill right away. He's got red hair, and he's a little short on one end. □ He's not small; he's just short on one end. □ The barber cut my hair a little short on one end.

a little steep and a little pricey Fig. relatively expensive; costing more than one wants to pay. □ The food here is a little pricey, but you get a lot of it.

Little strokes fell great oaks. Prov. You can complete a large, intimidating task by steadily doing small parts of it. □ Jill: How can I possibly write a fifty-page report in two months? Jane: Just write a little bit every day. Little strokes fell great oaks.

Little thieves are hanged, but great ones escape.

Prov. Truly expert criminals are never caught. □ Everyone's making such a fuss because they convicted that bank robber, but he must not have been a very dangerous criminal. Little thieves are hanged, but great ones escape.

Little things please little minds. and Small things please small minds. Prov. People who are not intelligent are pleased by trivial things. (Implies that the person you are talking about is not intelligent.) □ Jill: Nathaniel's been awfully cheerful today. Jane: Yes, his favorite TV show is on tonight. Jill: Little things please little minds, they say.

a little white lie Fig. a small, usually harmless lie; a fib. □ Every little white lie you tell is still a lie and it is still meant to mislead people.

live a dog's life Go to lead a dog's life.

live a life of something to have a life of a certain quality or style. □ The movie star lived a life of luxury. □ After Anne won the lottery, she lived the life of a queen.

live above someone or something and live over someone or something to live in a place that is at a higher level than someone or something; to dwell directly over someone or something. □ We used to live above a small grocery store. □ Now we live over a student, who often has noisy parties.

live among someone to live in a community with someone or a community made up of certain people. □ The anthropologist lived among the small tribe for two years. □ They lived among the Jivaro Indians for a brief period.

live and learn Cliché to increase one's knowledge by experience. (Usually said when one is surprised to learn something.) □ I didn't know that snakes could swim. Well, live and learn! □ John didn't know he should water his houseplants a little extra in the dry winter months. When they all died, he said, "Live and learn."

live and let live Cliché not to interfere with other people's business or preferences. □ I don't care what they do! Live and let live, I always say. □ Your parents are strict. Mine just live and let live.

live apart (from someone) to live separated from a person whom one might be expected to live with. □ John lives apart from his wife, who has a job in another city. □ He lives apart, but they are still married.

live around someone or something Go to around someone or something.

live beyond one's means to spend more money than one can afford. □ The Browns are deeply in debt because they are living beyond their means. □ I keep a budget so that I don't live beyond my means.

live by one's wits Fig. to survive by being clever. □ When you're in the kind of business I'm in, you have to live by your wits. □ John was orphaned at the age of ten and grew up living by his wits.

live by something 1. to live near something. □ We live by a lovely park that is filled with children in the summer. □ I would love to live by the sea. 2. to survive by doing or using something in particular. (See also live by one's wits.) □ She lives by her own skill and hard work. □ We live by the skills that we have—and hard work, of course.

Live by the sword, die by the sword. Prov. If you use violence against other people, you can expect to have violence used against you.; You can expect to become a victim of whatever means you use to get what you want. (Biblical.) □ The gang leader who organized so many murders was eventually murdered himself. Live by the sword, die by the sword. □ Bill liked to spread damaging gossip about other people, until he lost all his friends because of some gossip that was spread about him. Live by the sword, die by the sword.

live for someone or something 1. to exist for the benefit of someone or something. □ She just lives for her children. □ Roger lives for his work. 2. to exist to enjoy someone or something. □ She lives for her vacations in Acapulco.

live for the moment Fig. to live only for the pleasures of the present time without planning for the future. □ You need to make plans for your future. You cannot live just for the moment! □ He lives only for the moment.

live from day to day Fig. to survive on limited means one day at a time with no plans or possibilities for the future. □ The Simpsons just live from day to day. They never plan for the future. □ I can't live from day to day. I have to provide for the future.

live from hand to mouth Fig. to live in poor circumstances. □ When both my parents were out of work, we lived from hand to mouth. □ We lived from hand to mouth during the war. Things were very difficult.

live happily ever after Cliché to live in happiness after a specific event. (A formulaic phrase at the end of fairy tales.) □ The prince and the princess lived happily ever after. □ They went away from the horrible haunted castle and lived happily ever after.

live high off the hog and live high on the hog; eat high on the hog Rur. to live well and eat good food. (Note the variation with pretty.) □ After they discovered oil on their land, they lived pretty high on the hog. □ Looks like we're living high off the hog tonight. What's the occasion?

live in to live at the residence at which one works. □ In order to be here early enough to prepare breakfast, the cook has to live in. □ Mr. Simpson has a valet, but he doesn't live in.

live in a world of one's own Go to in a world of one's own.

live in an ivory tower Go to in an ivory tower.

live in hope(s) of something to live with the hope that something will happen. □ I have been living in hopes that you would come home safely. □ Greg lives in hope of winning a million dollars in the lottery.

live in sin to live with and have sex with someone to whom one is not married. (Sometimes serious and sometimes jocular.) □ Would you like to get married, or would you prefer that we live in sin for a few more years? □ Let's live in sin. There's no risk of divorce.

live in something to dwell within something or some place. □ They live in the village. □ She lives in a large house in the country.

live in the best of both worlds Go to the best of both worlds.

live in the boonies Go to in the boondocks.

live in the fast lane Go to in the fast lane.

live in the past Fig. to live while dwelling on past memories without participating in the present or planning for the future. □ You are just living in the past. Join us in the twenty-first century. □ Living in the past has its advantages.

live in the poorhouse Go to in the poorhouse.

live in the present Fig. to deal with contemporary events and not be dominated by events of the past or planning for the future. □ Forget the past; live in the present. □ It was no longer possible to get Uncle Herman to live in the present.

live in (with someone) [for servants or lovers] to live in a residence that one might be expected only to visit rather than reside in. □ Their maid lives in with them. □ She lived in for a few months before they were married.

live it up to have an exciting time; to do what one pleases—regardless of cost—to please oneself. □ At the party, John was really living it up. □ Come on! Have fun! Live it up!

live large to live in luxury; to spend time in grand style. □ George loved to live large, dining at fine French restaurants.

live like a marked man Go to a marked man.

live next door (to someone) to live in the house or dwelling next to someone. □ I live next door to John. □ John lives next door to me. □ John lives next door.

live off campus Go to off campus.

live off (of) someone or something to obtain one's living or means of survival from someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ You can't live off your uncle all your life! □ I manage to live off of my salary.

live off the fat of the land Fig. to live on stored-up resources or abundant resources. □ If I had a million dollars, I'd invest it and live off the fat of the land. □ I'll be happy to retire soon and live off the fat of the land.

live off the land to live by eating only the food that one produces from the land; to survive by gathering or stealing food, fruits, berries, eggs, etc., while traveling through the countryside. □ We lived off the land for a few years when we first started out farming. □ The homeless man wandered about, living off the land.

live on (after someone) to outlive someone. □ Aunt Sarah lived on after Uncle Herman only a short time. □ She had hoped to live on after him and have some fun.

live on (after someone or something) to be remembered long after someone or something might otherwise be forgotten or dead, in the case of persons. □ His good works will live on long after him. □ Fears of war will live on after the actual conflict. □ I hope my memory lives on.

live on an amount of money to live on a specific amount of money; to manage to live on a specific amount of money. □ Can you live on only that much money? □ I can live on a very small amount of money.

live on borrowed time Fig. to exist only because of good fortune; to live on when death was expected. □ The doc- tors told him he was living on borrowed time. You are living on borrowed time, so make the best of it.

live on one's own to live independently, in a separate dwelling. I moved out of my parents' house because I wanted to live on my own for a while. It's time you were out living on your own.

live on something to depend on something for sustenance. (Compare this with live off someone or something.) I can't live on bread and water. We can hardly live on $500 a week.

live on the edge Go to on the edge.

live out of a suitcase Fig. to stay very briefly in several places, never unpacking one's luggage. I hate living out of a suitcase. For my next vacation, I want to go to just one place and stay there the whole time.

live out of cans Fig. to eat only canned food. You have to have some fresh fruit and vegetables. You can't just live out of cans. We lived out of cans for the entire camping trip.

live out one's days and live out one's life to live for the remainder of one's life. (Usually with some reference to a place.) Where do you plan to live out your days? I will live out my life in sunny Florida.

live over someone or something Go to live above someone or something.

L live something down[†] to overcome the shame or embarrassment of something. You'll live it down someday. Wilbur will never be able to live down what happened at the party last night.

live something out[†] to act out something such as one's fantasies. She tried to live her dreams out. He has a tendency to try to live out his fantasies.

live something over to go back and live a part of one's life again in order to do things differently. I wish I could go back and live those days over again. Boy, would I do things differently! I would like to live that period of my life over again.

live the life of Riley Go to lead the life of Riley.

live through something to endure something; to survive an unpleasant or dangerous time of one's life. I almost did not live through the operation. I know I can't live through another attack.

live to do something 1. to survive long enough to do something. I just hope I live to see them get married and have children. Bill wants to live to see his grandchildren grow up. 2. to exist only to do something. He lives to work. One shouldn't live to eat.

live to the (ripe old) age of something to survive to a specific [advanced] age. Sally's aunt lived to the ripe old age of one hundred. Ken lived to the age of sixty-two.

live together 1. [for two people] to dwell in the same place. I live together with my sister in the house my parents left us. Henry and Jill live together in their parents' house. 2. [for two people] to dwell together in a romantic relationship. I heard that Sally and Sam are living together. They are living together and may get married.

live (together) with someone [for someone] to live with someone else. She lives together with her sister in a condo. He lives with his family.

live under someone or something to dwell directly beneath someone or something. We live under the Johnsons. They are fairly quiet. We lived under a law office for a few years.

live under something (negative) to exist under some kind of worry or threat. I can't continue to live under the threat of bankruptcy all the time. It is hard to live under the worry of another war.

live under the same roof (with someone) Fig. to share a dwelling with someone. (Implies living in a close relationship, as a husband and wife.) I don't think I can go on living under the same roof with her. She was quite happy to live under the same roof with him.

live up to one's end of the bargain and keep one's side of the bargain; live up to one's side of the bargain; keep one's end of the bargain to carry through on a bargain; to do as was promised in a bargain. You can't quit now. You have to live up to your end of the bargain. Bob isn't keeping his end of the bargain, so I am going to sue him.

live up to something to fulfill expectations; to satisfy a goal or set of goals. (Often with one's reputation, promise, word, standards, etc.) I hope I can live up to my reputation. The class lives up to its reputation of being exciting and interesting.

live with someone Euph. to live together with someone; to live in a romantic relationship with someone outside of marriage. I lived with my aunt when I was growing up. Is Frank living with his girlfriend? Sandy is living with her domestic partner.

live with something to put up with something; to endure something. (Does not mean "to dwell with.") That is not acceptable. I can't live with that. Please change it. Mary refused to live with the proposed changes.

live within one's means to spend no more money than one has. We have to struggle to live within our means, but we manage. John is unable to live within his means.

live within something 1. to live within certain boundaries. Do you think you can live within your space, or are we going to argue over the use of square footage? Ted demanded again that Bill live within his assigned area. 2. to keep one's living costs within a certain amount, especially within one's budget, means, etc. Please try to live within your budget. You must learn to live within your take-home pay every month.

live without something to survive, lacking something. I just know I can't live without my car. I am sure we can live without vegetables for a day or two.

live worlds apart Go to worlds apart.

liven something up[†] to make something more lively or less dull. Some singing might liven things up a bit. The songs livened up the evening.

the living end Fig. the absolute best [person]. We really like Ralph. He is the living end as far as his girlfriend is concerned.

Lo and behold! Cliché Look here!; Thus! (An expression of surprise.) Lo and behold! There is Fred! He beat us here by taking a shortcut.

load into something [for people] to get into something. □ Everyone loaded into the bus, and we set off for Denver. □ The kids all loaded into the station wagon for the trip.

*a load off one's feet Fig. the weight of one's body no longer supported by one's feet, as when one sits down. (*Typically: get ~; take ~.) □ Come in, John. Sit down and take a load off your feet. □ Yes, I need to get a load off my feet. I'm really tired.

*a load off one's mind and *a weight off one's mind Fig. the relief from a mental burden gained by saying what one is thinking or by speaking one's mind. (*Typically: get ~; take ~.) □ I think you'll feel better after you get a load off your mind.

load someone or something down[†] (with someone or something) to burden someone or something with someone or something. □ Don't load down my car with too many people. □ Tom loaded himself down with work every weekend.

load someone or something into something and load someone or something in[†] to put someone or something into something. □ Would you load the dishes into the dishwasher? □ Let's load the kids into the car and go to the zoo. □ Load them in, and let's go.

load someone or something up[†] (with someone or something) to burden someone or something greatly or to the maximum with someone or something. □ I loaded her up with a number of books on investments, so she could learn what to do with her money. □ Don't load up your shelves with books you will never look at.

load something onto someone or something and load something on[†] to lift something onto someone or something. □ We loaded the trunk onto Sam, and he carried it up the stairs into the house. □ Please help me load the boxes onto the cart. □ Load on the boxes, and let's go.

load something with something to burden something with something; to put a lot of something onto or into something. □ Load this box with all the clothing you can get into it. □ Don't load these drawers with so much stuff.

load up (with something) to take or accumulate a lot of something. □ Don't load up with cheap souvenirs. Save your money. □ Whenever I get into a used-book store, I load up.

loaded for bear 1. Inf. angry. □ He left here in a rage. He was really loaded for bear. □ When I got home from work, I was really loaded for bear. What a horrible day! 2. Inf. drunk. (An elaboration of loaded, which means "drunk.") □ By the end of the party, Bill was loaded for bear. □ The whole gang drank for an hour until they were loaded for bear.

loaded to the barrel Go to next.

loaded to the gills and loaded to the barrel Sl. intoxicated. □ He's loaded to the gills. □ Man, he's loaded to the barrel and fighting mad.

loaf around to waste time; to idle the time away doing almost nothing. □ Every time I see you, you are just loafing around. □ I enjoy loafing around on the weekend.

loaf something away[†] to waste away a period of time. □ You have loafed the entire day away! □ He loafed away the entire day.

loan something to someone to lend something to someone. (Considered to be an error for lend.) □ Can you loan a few bucks to Sam and me? □ I will not loan anything to you.

lob something at someone or something to throw or toss something at someone or something. □ Who lobbed this thing at me? □ They lobbed a stone at the cat, but that only made it mad.

lobby against something to solicit support against something, such as a piece of legislation or a government regulation. □ We sent a lot of lawyers to the state capital to lobby against the bill, but it passed anyway. □ They lobbied against the tax increase.

lobby for something to solicit support for something among the members of a voting body, such as the Congress. □ Tom is always lobbying for some reform bill or other. □ The manufacturers lobbied for tax relief.

local yokel a local resident of a rural place. (Mildly derogatory.) □ One of the local yokels helped me change the tire. □ The local yokels all listen to the same radio station.

lock horns (with someone) Fig. to get into an argument with someone. □ Let's settle this peacefully. I don't want to lock horns with the boss. □ The boss doesn't want to lock horns either.

lock in on someone or something and lock on(to) someone or something Fig. to fix some kind of electronic sensing device on someone or something. □ The enemy pilot was flying just ahead of us. Aiming the laser, we locked in on him and shot him down. □ We locked onto the satellite and got an excellent TV picture.

lock on(to someone or something) to fasten or grab onto someone or something. (See also lock in on someone or something.) □ She locked onto the child and wouldn't leave his side for an instant. □ I saw the thing I wanted and locked on.

lock someone or an animal (up) in (something) and lock someone or an animal up[†] to fasten the opening to something so someone, a group, or an animal cannot get out. □ Take Chuck and lock him up in the cell. □ Lock up the killer and throw away the key!

lock someone or something away[†] to put someone or something away in a locked container or space. □ You will have to lock all the medications away when the grandchildren come to visit. □ They locked away some cash for a rainy day. □ They locked it away.

lock someone or something out of something and lock someone or something out[†] to lock something to prevent someone or something from getting into it. □ Someone locked me out of my office. □ Who locked out the office staff this morning?

lock someone or something up[†] (somewhere) to lock someone or something within something or some place. □ The captain ordered the sailor locked up in the brig until the ship got into port. □ Don't lock me up! □ The sheriff locked up the crook in a cell.

lock something in[†] to make something, such as a rate of interest, permanent over a period of time. □ You should try to lock in a high percentage rate on your bonds. □ We locked in a very low rate on our mortgage.

lock something onto someone or something and lock something on[†] to attach or fix something onto someone or something. The cop locked the handcuffs onto the mugger and led him away. Andy locked his bicycle onto the signpost. See that bike rack? Lock your bike on and keep an eye on it.

lock, stock, and barrel Cliché everything. We had to move everything out of the house—lock, stock, and barrel. We lost everything—lock, stock, and barrel—in the fire.

Lock the stable door after the horse is stolen. Go to Shut the stable door after the horse has bolted.

lodge someone with someone to have someone stay with someone as a guest. We lodged the visitor with George for the weekend. Would it be possible for us to lodge Mary with you?

lodge something against someone to place a charge against someone. The neighbors lodged a complaint against us for walking on their grass. I want to lodge an assault charge against Randy.

lodge something against something to place or prop something against something. We lodged the chest against the door, making it difficult or impossible to open. Let's lodge the stone against the side of the barn to help support it.

lodge something in something to get something stuck in something or some place. She lodged her coat in the door and tore it. He lodged a screwdriver in the machine's gears by accident.

L lodge with someone to stay or reside with someone. I lodged with my cousin while I was in Omaha. Tricia plans to lodge with us while she is here.

log off and log out to record one's exit from a computer system. (This action may be recorded, or logged, automatically in the computer's memory.) I closed my files and logged off. What time did you log out?

log on to begin to use a computer system, as by entering a password, etc. (This action may be recorded, or logged, automatically in the computer's memory.) What time did you log on to the system this morning? I always log on before I get my first cup of coffee.

log out Go to log off.

log someone for something 1. to schedule someone for something. I am going to log you for sentry duty on the weekends. We will have to log Bill for service as a parking attendant. 2. to make a note in a log about someone's bad behavior. The captain logged the first mate for the navigation error. I will have to log you for that.

log someone off and log someone out [for someone] to cause someone to exit from a computer system. (This exit may be recorded, or logged, automatically in the computer's memory.) Mary had to rush off to an appointment, so I logged her off.

log someone on[†] (to something) to allow someone to link (electronically) to a computer system. (This action may be recorded, or logged, automatically in the computer's memory.) I will log you on to the system if you forgot how to do it. I will log on Jill, who is late.

log someone out Go to log someone off.

log something up[†] to record an amount of something. The ship logged many nautical miles up on its last voyage. It logged up a lot of miles.

loiter around to idle somewhere; to hang around. Stop loitering around! Get going! The kids were loitering around for most of the summer.

loiter over something to dawdle or linger over something. Don't loiter over your meal. I want to start the dishwasher. I wish you wouldn't loiter over your chores.

loiter something away[†] to idle away a period of time. Those boys will loiter half their lives away. They loitered away their summer vacation.

loll about (some place) to lie, lounge, or droop some place. The tired travelers lolled about all over the hotel lobby until their rooms were ready. They were still lolling about at three in the afternoon.

loll around to roll, flop, or hang around. The dog's tongue lolled around as it rolled on its back, trying to keep cool. Stop lolling around and get to work.

loll back [for a head] to fall or droop backwards. As he passed out, his head lolled back and struck the corner of the table. Her head lolled back and suddenly she was fast asleep.

loll out [for a tongue] to hang or flop out. The dog's tongue lolled out as it lay sleeping. Since the dog's tongue lolled out every time it opened its mouth, it is a wonder it didn't bite it when it closed its mouth.

lollygag (around) to loaf; to loiter. How can I get my work done with you lollygagging around? I spent my vacation just lollygagging.

the long and the short of it and the short and the long of it Fig. the most important point; the summary of the matter. Jill: Is there some reason that you've spent the last half hour complaining about Fred? Jane: The long and the short of it is, I hate working with him so much that I'm going to resign. Dad keeps saying that he can't spend the rest of his life in mourning for Mother. I finally asked him if he was thinking of getting married again. "That's the long and the short of it," he admitted.

the long arm of the law Fig. the police; the law. The long arm of the law is going to tap you on the shoulder some day, Lefty. The long arm of the law finally caught up with Gert.

long for someone or something to desire or pine for someone or something. She is longing for her old friends. Walter longed for his hometown in the mountains.

long gone gone a long time ago; used up a long time ago. The ice cream and cake are long gone. You are simply too late for the refreshments.

long in the tooth Fig. old. That actor is getting a little long in the tooth to play the romantic lead. I may be long in the tooth, but I'm not stupid.

*a long shot Fig. a risky bet; an attempt, bet, or proposition that has a low probability of success. (*Typically: be ~; seem like ~.) Your solution is a long shot, but we'll try it and hope it works.

long story short Sl. to make a long story short. Okay, long story short: everything that goes up comes down, okay? Then the guy comes over, and—long story short—"You got a match?"

Long time no see. Cliché I have not seen you in a long time.; We have not seen each other in a long time. Tom:

Hi, Fred. Where have you been keeping yourself? Fred: Good to see you, Tom. Long time no see. □ John: It's Bob! Hi, Bob! Bob: Hi, John! Long time no see.

The longest way round is the shortest way home. and The longest way round is the nearest way home. Prov. It may seem as if it will take too long to do something carefully and according to directions, but in fact it will take less time than doing something carelessly, because you will not have to fix it afterwards. □ I would advise you to read the instructions before trying to use your new stereo. It takes some time, but the longest way round is the nearest way home.

look a gift horse in the mouth Fig. to be ungrateful to someone who gives you something; to treat someone who gives you a gift badly. (Usually with a negative.) □ Never look a gift horse in the mouth. □ I advise you not to look a gift horse in the mouth.

look about (for someone or something) to try to locate someone or something. □ I have to look about for someone to serve as a babysitter. □ I don't see it here. I'll have to look about.

look after number one and look out for number one to take care of oneself first. □ You gotta look after number one, right? □ It's a good idea to look out for number one. Who else will?

look after someone or something to take care of someone or something. □ Please look after my little boy. □ Will you look after my cat while I'm away? □ Do you want me to look after your car?

look ahead to something to try to foresee something; to think into the future about something. □ She looked ahead to a bright future in sales. □ I look ahead to a new job when I graduate.

look alike to appear similar. □ All these cars look alike these days. □ The twins look alike and not many people can tell them apart.

Look alive! Act alert and responsive! □ "Come on, Fred! Get moving! Look alive!" shouted the coach, who was not happy with Fred's performance. □ Bill: Look alive, Bob! Bob: I'm doing the best I can.

look around (at something) to investigate something; to study something visually. □ Go into the room and look around at the way they have fixed it up. □ I went in and looked around.

look around for someone or something to seek someone or something out. □ Look around for Ted and tell him to come home. □ I looked around for the can opener, but it's not there.

look around (in) some place to investigate some place. □ Look around the kitchen. You will find what you want. □ Tell her to look around in the attic. Maybe the camping gear is there.

look as if butter wouldn't melt in one's mouth Fig. to appear to be cold and unfeeling (despite any information to the contrary). □ Sally looks as if butter wouldn't melt in her mouth. She can be so cruel. □ What a sour face. He looks as if butter wouldn't melt in his mouth.

look aside to look to one side; to turn one's head aside so as not to see someone or something. □ As I approached, he looked aside, pretending not to recognize me. □ She looked aside, hoping I wouldn't see her.

look askance at someone or something Fig. to be surprised or shocked at someone or something. □ The teacher looked askance at the student who had acted so rudely. □ Everyone had looked askance at her efforts as an artist.

look at someone cross-eyed Fig. to merely appear to question, threaten, or mock someone. (Often in the negative.) □ You had better be on your best behavior around Tony. Don't even look at him cross-eyed! □ If you so much as look at me cross-eyed, I will send you to your room.

look at someone or something to examine someone or something. □ The doctor needs to look at the wound before you leave. □ You had better have the doctor look at you. That is a nasty wound.

look at the crux of the matter and look at the heart of the matter; look at the root of the matter Go to the crux of the matter.

look at the heart of the matter Go to previous.

Look (at) what the cat dragged in! Inf. Look who's here! (A good-humored and familiar way of showing surprise at someone's presence in a place, especially if the person looks a little ruffled. Compare this with look like something the cat dragged in.) □ Bob and Mary were standing near the doorway talking when Tom came in. "Look what the cat dragged in!" announced Bob. □ Mary: Hello, everybody. I'm here! Jane: Look at what the cat dragged in!

look away (from someone or something) to turn one's gaze away from someone. □ She looked away from him, not wishing her eyes to give away her true feelings. □ In embarrassment, she looked away.

look back (at someone or something) and look back (on someone or something) 1. Lit. to gaze back and try to get a view of someone or something. □ She looked back at the city and whispered a good-bye to everything she had ever cared for. □ I went away and never looked back. 2. Fig. to think about someone or something in the past. □ When I look back on Frank, I do remember his strange manner, come to think of it. □ When I look back, I am amazed at all I have accomplished.

look becoming on someone Go to becoming on someone.

Look before you leap. Prov. Cliché Think carefully about what you are about to do before you do it. □ I'm not saying you shouldn't sign the lease for that apartment. I'm just saying you should look before you leap. □ Jill: I'm thinking about going to night school. Jane: Are you sure you can spare the time and the money? Look before you leap.

look beyond someone or something 1. Lit. to try to see to a point farther than someone or something. □ Look beyond Claire at the forest in the distance. □ Look beyond the house and see what you can spot in the trees behind it. 2. Fig. to try to think or plan further than someone or something. □ Sally will be gone soon. Look beyond Sally and decide whom you want to hire. □ Look beyond Tom. Think about how you will deal with the next person who has Tom's job.

look daggers at someone Fig. to give someone a dirty look. □ Tom must have been mad at Ann from the way he look down (at someone or something) was looking daggers at her. □ Don't you dare look daggers at me! Don't even look cross-eyed at me!

look down (at someone or something) 1. to turn one's gaze downward at someone or something. □ She looked down at me and giggled at the awkward position I was in. □ She looked down and burst into laughter. 2. and look down one's nose at someone or something; look down on someone or something to view someone or something as lowly or unworthy. □ She looked down at all the waiters and treated them badly. □ They looked down on our humble food. □ Don't look down your nose at my car just because it's rusty and noisy.

look fit to kill Fig. [dressed up] to look very fancy or sexy. □ Mary put on her best clothes and looked fit to kill. □ John looked fit to kill in his new tuxedo.

look for someone or something to seek someone or something. □ I am looking for Mr. William Wilson. Do you know where he lives? □ I am looking for the address of Bill Wilson.

look for someone or something high and low and look high and low (for someone or something) to search everywhere for someone or something. □ Where were you? I looked for you high and low. □ I looked high and low for my passport.

look for trouble Go to ask for trouble.

L

look forward to something to anticipate something with pleasure. □ I'm really looking forward to your visit next week. □ We all look forward to your new book on gardening.

look good on paper to seem fine in theory, but not perhaps in practice; to appear to be a good plan. □ The plan looks good on paper, but it may not work. □ This looks good on paper. Let's hope it works in the real world.

look here a phrase emphasizing the point that follows. (Can show some impatience.) □ Henry: Look here, I want to try to help you, but you're not making it easy for me. Rachel: I'm just so upset. □ Andy: Look here, I just asked you a simple question! Bob: As I told you in the beginning, there are no simple answers.

look high and low (for someone or something) Go to look for someone or something high and low.

look in (on someone or something) and check in (on someone or something) to see to the welfare of someone or something; to check briefly on someone or something. □ I'll stop by your house and look in on things while you're on vacation. □ Yes, just look in and make sure nothing is wrong.

look into something 1. Lit. to gaze into the inside of something. □ Look into the box and make sure you've gotten everything out of it. □ Look into the camera's viewfinder at the little red light. 2. and check into something; see into something Fig. to investigate something. □ I'll have to look into that matter. □ The police checked into her story. □ Don't worry about your problem. I'll see into it.

look like a candidate for a pair of wings Go to a candidate for a pair of wings.

look like a case of something Go to a case of something.

look like a (dead) ringer (for someone) Go to a (dead) ringer (for someone).

look like a million dollars Go to like a million dollars.

look like a saddle on a sow Rur. to look ridiculous and out of place. □ Tom: How do you like my new diamond earring? Jane: It looks like a saddle on a sow. □ The fancy wheels on that beat-up old car look like a saddle on a sow.

look like death warmed over Go to like death warmed over.

look like someone or something to resemble someone or something. □ You look like my cousin Fred. □ This one looks like an apple.

look like something to give the appearance of predicting (something). □ The sky looks like rain. □ No, it looks like snow. □ Oh, oh. This looks like trouble. Let's go.

look like something the cat dragged in Fig. to look very shabby, worn, exhausted, or abused. (Sometimes with drug.) □ That new sofa of theirs looks like something the cat dragged in. □ Poor Dave looks like something the cat drug in. He must have been out late last night.

look like the cat that swallowed the canary Fig. to appear as if one had just had a great success. □ After the meeting John looked like the cat that swallowed the canary. I knew he must have been a success. □ Your presentation must have gone well. You look like the cat that swallowed the canary.

Look me up when you're in town. When you next come to my town, try to find me (and we will get together). (A vague and perhaps insincere invitation.) □ Bob: Nice to see you, Tom. Bye now. Tom: Yes, indeed. Look me up when you're in town. Bye. □ Sally (on the phone): Bye. Nice talking to you. Mary: Bye, Sally. Sorry we can't talk more. Look me up when you're in town.

look none the worse for wear Go to none the worse for wear.

look on to be a spectator and watch what is happening without participating. □ The beating took place while a policeman looked on. □ While the kittens played, the mother cat looked on contentedly.

look on someone as something to view or think of someone as something. □ I look on you as a very thoughtful person. □ Mary looked on Jane as a good friend.

look on the bright side Fig. consider the positive aspects of a negative situation. □ Look on the bright side. Things could have been much worse than they are.

look on (with someone) to share and read from someone else's notes, paper, book, music, etc. □ I don't have a copy of the notice, but I will look on with Carlo. □ Carla has a copy of the music. She doesn't mind if I look on.

look out Go to watch out for someone or something.

look out for number one Go to look after number one.

look out for someone Go to watch out for someone.

look out (of) something to gaze outward from inside something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Look out of the window and see if it is raining. □ I looked out of the door to see what the weather was like.

look (out) on(to) something [for something] to face onto something or some place. □ The balcony looks out onto the meadow. □ My window looks onto the street.

look someone in the eye Go to next.

look someone in the face and look someone in the eye; stare someone in the face Fig. to face someone directly. (Facing someone this way is a sign of sincerity.) □ I don't believe you. Look me in the eye and say that. □ She looked him in the face and said she never wanted to see him again.

look someone or something over^t to examine someone or something. □ I think you had better have the doctor look you over. □ Please look over these papers.

look someone or something up^t and hunt someone or something up^t 1. to seek someone, a group, or something out. □ I lost track of Sally. I'll try to look her up and get in touch with her. □ I am going to look up an old friend when I am in Chicago. □ I am going to hunt that old gang up. □ Ted came into town and looked up his favorite pizza place. 2. to seek information about someone or something in a book or listing. □ I don't recognize his name. I'll look him up and see what I can find. □ I'll look up this person in a reference book. □ She looked herself up in the telephone book to make sure her name was spelled correctly.

look the other way 1. Lit. to look in the opposite direction. □ To make sure it's safe to cross the street, look the other way before you step off the curb. 2. Fig. to ignore something on purpose. □ John could have prevented the problem, but he looked the other way. □ By looking the other way, he actually made the problem worse.

look through something 1. to gaze through something. □ Look through the window at what the neighbors are doing. □ Look through the binoculars and see if you can get a better view. 2. to examine the parts, pages, samples, etc., of something. □ Look through this report and see what you make of it. □ I will look through it when I have time.

look to be a million miles away Go to a million miles away.

look to one's laurels Fig. to take care not to lower or diminish one's reputation or position, especially in relation to that of someone else potentially better. □ With the arrival of the new member of the football team, James will have to look to his laurels to remain as the highest scorer. □ The older members of the team will have to look to their laurels when the new players arrive.

look to someone or something (for something) to expect someone or something to supply something. □ Children look to their parents for help. □ Tom looked to the bank for a loan.

look to the naked eye Go to the naked eye.

look toward someone or something to face in the direction of someone or something. □ Look toward Sarah and see where she is standing. Isn't that a lovely garden she's in? □ Look toward the sea and see what a sunset is meant to look like.

look under the hood to examine the engine of a car; to check the oil, water, and other such routine items associated with the engine of a car. □ I finished putting gas in. I need to look under the hood. □ Do you want me to look under the hood, sir?

look up to show promise of improving. □ My prospects for a job are looking up. □ Conditions are looking up.

look up and down (for someone or something) to look everywhere for someone or something. □ Where is Kelly? I looked up and down for her. □ I can't find her. I looked up and down, but no Kelly.

look up and down something to gaze up and then down something, such as a street. □ We looked up and down the street and saw no cars, no houses, and no people. □ Mary looked up and down the highway, but she could not find her lost hubcap.

look up at someone or something to raise one's gaze to someone or something. □ Would you please look up at me while I am talking to you? I hate to be ignored. □ Look up at the top of that building.

look up (from something) to gaze upwards; to stop reading or working and lift one's gaze upward. □ She looked up from her reading and spoke to us. □ Mary looked up as we came into the room.

look up to someone Fig. to view someone with respect and admiration. □ Bill really looks up to his father. □ Everyone in the class looked up to the teacher.

look (up)on someone or something as something to view someone or something as something; to consider someone or something to be something. □ I look upon Todd as a fine and helpful guy. □ I look on these requests as an annoyance.

look (up)on someone or something with something to view someone or something with an attitude, such as scorn, favor, anger, disgust, etc. □ She looked upon all of us with scorn. □ Bill looked on the food set before him with disgust.

Look who's here! an expression drawing attention to someone present or who just arrived at a place. □ Bill: Look who's here! My old friend Fred. How goes it, Fred? Fred: Hi, there, Bill! What's new? Bill: Nothing much. □ Bill: Look who's here! Mary: Yeah. Isn't that Fred Morgan?

Look who's talking! Fig. You are guilty of doing the same thing that you have criticized someone else for doing or that you accused someone else of doing. □ Andy: You criticize me for being late! Look who's talking! You just missed your flight! Jane: Well, nobody's perfect. □ Mary: You just talk and talk, you go on much too long about practically nothing, and you never give a chance for anyone else to talk, and you just don't know when to stop! Sally: Look who's talking!

looking like a sitting duck Go to a sitting duck.

looking over one's shoulder Fig. keeping watch for danger or threats to oneself. □ Bob's a little paranoid. He's always looking over his shoulder.

*a look-see Rur. a look at someone or something; a peek. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~; take ~.) □ A: Do you think they have finished painting your office yet? B: Let's go down there and take a look-see.

loom large (on the horizon) Cliché to be of great importance, especially when referring to an upcoming problem, danger, or threat. □ The exams were looming large on the horizon. □ Eviction was looming large when the tenants could not pay their rent.

loom out of something to appear to come out of or penetrate something. □ A truck suddenly loomed out of the fog and just missed hitting us. □ A tall building loomed out of the mists.

loom up to appear to rise up [from somewhere]; to take form or definition, usually threatening to some degree. □ A great city loomed up in the distance. It looked threatening in the dusky light. □ A ghost loomed up, but we paid no attention, since it had to be a joke. □ The recession loomed up, and the stock market reacted.

a loose cannon a person whose actions are unpredictable and uncontrollable. □ As it turned out, he's not just a loose cannon. He makes sense. □ Some loose cannon in the State Department has been leaking stories to the press.

Loose lips sink ships. Don't talk carelessly because you don't know who is listening. (From wartime. Literally, "Don't reveal even the location of a loved one on a ship, because the location could be communicated to the enemy by a spy.") □ You never know who is going to hear what you say and how they will use what they hear. Remember, loose lips sink ships.

a loose translation Go to a free translation.

loosen someone or something up[†] to make someone's muscles and joints move more freely by exercising them. □ The exercise loosened me up quite nicely. □ It loosened up my legs. □ I have to do some exercises to loosen myself up.

loosen someone up[†] Fig. to make someone or a group more relaxed and friendly. □ I loosened up the audience with a joke. □ Loosen yourself up. Relax and try to enjoy people.

loosen up to become loose or relaxed. □ Loosen up. Relax. □ We tried to get Mary to loosen up, but she did not respond.

lop something off (of) something and lop something off[†] to chop or cut something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Lop that long branch off the tree before you put the saw away, will you? □ Please lop off that branch.

lope along to move along, bounding. □ The dog loped along at a very even pace, answering to his master's whistle. □ The horses loped along, eager to get home.

(lord) high muck-a-muck Rur. a very important person. (Humorous.) □ Jim's acting like he's some kind of lord high muck-a-muck. What's gotten into him? □ Mary got a promotion, so now she's a real high muck-a-muck.

lord it over someone Fig. to dominate someone; to direct and control someone. □ Mr. Smith seems to lord it over his wife. □ The boss lords it over everyone in the office.

Lord knows I've tried. Fig. I certainly have tried very hard. □ Alice: Why don't you get Bill to fix this fence? Mary: Lord knows I've tried. I must have asked him a dozen times—this year alone. □ Sue: I can't seem to get to class on time. Rachel: That's just awful. Sue: Lord knows I've tried. I just can't do it.

Lord love a duck! Fig. My goodness! (An exclamation of surprise.) □ Lord love a duck! How that rain is coming down! □ Lord love a duck! Did you see that cat chasing that dog?

Lord willing and the creek don't rise Go to God willing and the creek don't rise.

lose a bundle Sl. to lose a lot of money. □ Don't lose a bundle on that land purchase. □ I know I would lose a bundle if I went to a casino and gambled.

lose (all) one's marbles Go to lose one's marbles.

lose (all) one's marbles and lose one's mind Fig. to go crazy; to go out of one's mind. □ What a silly thing to say! Have you lost your marbles? □ Look at Sally jumping up and down and screaming. Is she losing all her marbles? □ I can't seem to remember anything. I think I'm losing my mind.

lose at something to be defeated at a particular game or activity. □ We lost at basketball but we won at football this weekend. □ I hate to lose at checkers.

lose by something to be defeated by a certain amount. □ Our team lost by ten points. □ I only lost by a few points.

lose contact with someone or something and lose touch with someone or something [for communication with someone or a group] to fail or fade away; to let one's friendship or relationship with someone or a group lapse. □ I hope I don't lose contact with you. □ I don't want to lose touch with my old friends.

lose count of someone or something to fail to be able to count someone or something, especially because there are so many. □ I have lost count of the people who have asked that question. □ I am afraid I have lost count of all the times we have run out of money.

lose face Fig. to lose status; to become less respectable. □ John is more afraid of losing face than losing money. □ Things will go better if you can explain to him where he was wrong without making him lose face.

lose favor (with someone) Go to fall out of favor (with someone).

lose ground (to someone or something) to fall behind someone or something. □ I am losing ground to Wendy in the sales contest. □ We were losing ground to the opposite team in our quest for the trophy.

lose heart Fig. to lose one's courage or confidence. □ Now, don't lose heart. Keep trying. □ What a disappointment! It's enough to make one lose heart.

lose it 1. Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ Oh, God! I think I'm going to lose it! □ Go lose it in the bushes. 2. Sl. to get angry; to lose one's temper. □ It was too much for him. Ted lost it. □ I sat there calmly, biting my lip to keep from losing it.

lose money on something to have a net loss on something, such as an investment. □ I lost thousands on that deal. □ I don't want to lose money on any investment.

lose one's appetite to lose one's desire to eat. □ After that gory movie, I'm afraid I've lost my appetite.

lose one's cool and blow one's cool to lose one's temper; to lose one's nerve. □ Wow, he really lost his cool! What a tantrum! □ Whatever you do, don't blow your cool.

lose one's grip on someone or something Go to lose one's hold on someone or something.

lose one's head (over someone or something) Fig. to become confused or overly emotional about someone or something. □ Don't lose your head over John. He isn't worth it. □ I'm sorry. I got upset and lost my head.

lose one's hold on someone or something and lose one's grip on someone or something 1. Lit. to fail to keep one's handhold on someone or something. I lost my hold on the child, and she nearly slipped away. She lost her grip on the bag of jewels and it fell overboard. 2. and lose one's hold over someone or something Fig. to give up control over someone or something. The manager lost her hold on her employees and was fired. Fred is losing his grip on his workers. He is losing his hold over his empire.

lose one's lunch Go to blow (one's) lunch.

lose one's reason Fig. to lose one's power of reasoning, possibly in anger. I was so confused that I almost lost my reason. Bob seems to have lost his reason when he struck John.

lose one's shirt Fig. to lose a lot of money; to lose all of one's assets (as if one had even lost one's shirt). I almost lost my shirt on that deal. I have to invest more wisely. No, I can't loan you $200. I just lost my shirt at the race-track.

lose one's temper (at someone or something) Fig. to become angry at someone or something. Lisa lost her temper and began shouting at Bob. I hate to lose my temper at someone. I always end up feeling guilty.

lose one's touch (with someone or something) Fig. to lose one's ability to handle someone or something. I seem to have lost my touch with my children. They won't listen to me anymore. We've both lost our touch as far as managing people goes.

lose one's train of thought Fig. to forget what one was talking or thinking about. Excuse me, I lost my train of thought. What was I talking about? Your question made the speaker lose her train of thought.

lose oneself in someone or something to be thoroughly absorbed in someone or something; to become engrossed in someone or something. Frank loses himself in his children when he is at home. When I lose myself in my work, time just rushes by.

lose out 1. to lose in competition; to lose one's expected reward. Our team lost out because our quarterback broke his leg. I ran my best race, but I still lost out. 2. lose out (on something) Go to miss out (on something).

lose out to someone or something to lose a competition to someone or something. Our team lost out to the other team. Bill lost out to Sally in the contest.

lose patience (with someone or something) to stop being patient with someone or something; to become impatient with someone or something. Please try to be more cooperative. I'm losing patience with you.

lose sight of someone or something 1. Lit. to have one's vision of someone or something fade because of distance or an obstruction. I lost sight of Alice as she walked into the distance. We lost sight of the ship as it sailed out of the harbor. 2. Fig. to forget to consider someone or something. Don't lose sight of Alice and her basic contributions. Don't lose sight of the basic value of the land on which the house sits.

lose sleep over someone or something and lose sleep about someone or something Fig. to worry about someone or something a lot, sometimes when one should be sleeping. (Often used with any and the negative.) Yes,

Kelly is in a little bit of trouble, but I'm not going to lose any sleep over her. Don't lose any sleep over the matter. I refuse to lose sleep about it.

lose some amount of time [for some amount of time] to be wasted. We lost a lot of time waiting for Hermione. He lost no time in getting out of there.

lose something at something to lose a wager at playing something or at gambling. I lost a fortune at gambling. We lost all our money at dice.

lose something in something to misplace something in something. I lost my wallet in the barn. Did someone lose something in the dining room?

lose something to someone to yield or give up something in defeat to someone. We lost the case to the opposing lawyers. Mary lost her title to last year's runner-up.

lose the use of something to be deprived of the use of something. After the accident, I lost the use of my left arm for a few days. Andy lost the use of the car for a week.

lose to someone or something to be defeated by someone or something. I lost to Wendy in the sales contest. Our team lost to the Adamsville Raiders for the seventh year in a row.

lose touch with reality to begin to think unrealistically; to become unrealistic. I am so overworked that I am losing touch with reality. The psychotic criminal had lost touch with reality.

lose touch with someone or something Go to lose contact with someone or something.

lose trace of someone or something Rur. to fail to maintain a way of finding someone or something. I lost trace of Walter after we left high school. I lost trace of the stock certificates after about twenty years.

lose track (of someone or something) to lose contact with someone; to forget where something is. I lost track of all my friends from high school. Tom has lost track of his glasses again.

*a losing streak Fig. a series of losses [in sports, for instance]. (*Typically: be on ~; have ~; continue one's ~.) The team was on a losing streak that started nearly three years ago.

lost and gone forever lost; permanently lost. My poor doggy is lost and gone forever. My money fell out of my pocket and I am sure that it is lost and gone forever.

a lost cause a futile attempt; a hopeless matter. Our campaign to have the new party on the ballot was a lost cause. Todd gave it up as a lost cause.

lost in something enveloped in something; engrossed in something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) Ed sat under the tree, lost in reverie. Excuse me. I didn't hear you. I was lost in my own thoughts.

lost on someone Fig. wasted on someone; not valued or appreciated by someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) My jokes are lost on him. He is too literal. The humor of the situation was lost on Mary. She was too upset to see it.

lost without someone or something unable to function without someone or something. I am just lost without you. The engineer is lost without his pocket computer.

lost-and-found an office or department that handles items that someone has lost that have been found by someone else. □ The lost-and-found office had an enormous collection of umbrellas and four sets of false teeth! □ I found a book on the seat of the bus. I turned it in to the driver, who gave it to the lost-and-found office.

a lot of give-and-take 1. Fig. a lot of two-way discussion. □ It was a good meeting. There was a lot of give-and-take, and we all learned. 2. Fig. a lot of negotiating and bargaining. □ After an afternoon of give-and-take, we were finally able to put all the details into an agreement.

*a lot of nerve 1. Fig. great rudeness; a lot of audacity or brashness. (*Typically: have ~; take ~.) □ He walked out on her, and that took a lot of nerve! □ You have a lot of nerve! You took my parking place! 2. Fig. courage. (*Typically: have ~; take ~.) □ He climbed the mountain with a bruised foot. That took a lot of nerve. □ He has a lot of nerve to go into business for himself.

*a lot of promise much promise for the future. (*Typically: have ~; show ~.) □ Sally is quite young, but she has a lot of promise. □ This bush is small, but it shows a lot of promise.

a lot of someone or something and lots of people or things a large number of people or things; much of something. □ I got a lot of presents for my birthday. □ I ate lots of cookies after dinner.

Lots of luck! 1. Good luck! □ I'm glad you're giving it a try. Lots of luck! □ Lots of luck in your new job! 2. You don't have a chance!; Good luck, you'll need it! (Sarcastic.) □ Think you stand a chance? Lots of luck! □ You a senator? Lots of luck!

lots of people or things Go to a lot of someone or something.

loud and clear clear and distinctly. (Originally said of radio reception that is heard clearly and distinctly.) □ Tom: If I've told you once, I've told you a thousand times: Stop it! Do you hear me? Bill: Yes, loud and clear. □ I hear you loud and clear.

lounge around (some place) to pass time idly some place. □ I am going to lounge around the house this morning. □ Don't lounge around all day.

louse someone or something up[†] Inf. to ruin something; to mess someone or something up. □ You really loused me up! You got me in a real mess! □ Who loused up my scheme?

lousy with someone or something Inf. having lots of someone or something. (Like an infestation of lice.) □ Old Mr. Wilson is lousy with money. □ Tiffany is lousy with jewels and furs, but she's got bad teeth.

love at first sight Fig. love established when two people first see one another. □ Bill was standing at the door when Ann opened it. It was love at first sight. □ It was love at first sight when they met, but it didn't last long.

Love begets love. Prov. If you behave lovingly to other people, they will behave lovingly to you. □ Child: I hate Tammy! She's always mean to me. Father: If you're nicer to her, maybe she'll change her ways. Love begets love.

Love is blind. Cliché If you love someone, you cannot see any faults in that person. □ Jill: I don't understand why Joanna likes Tom. He's inconsiderate, he's vain, and he isn't even good-looking. Jane: Love is blind.

Love makes the world go round. Prov. Life is more pleasant when people treat each other lovingly. □ Come on, guys, stop fighting with each other all the time. Love makes the world go round.

Love me, love my dog. Prov. If you love someone, you should accept everything and everyone that the person loves. □ Jill: I wish you'd keep your dog out of the house when I come over. Jane: Love me, love my dog. □ Most of Alice's friends didn't like her sister, but they accepted her because Alice insisted, "Love me, love my dog."

The love of money is the root of all evil. Go to Money is the root of all evil.

Love will find a way. Prov. People who are in love will overcome any obstacles in order to be together. (Sometimes used ironically, to suggest that someone is in love with whatever he or she is struggling to be near, as in the second example.) □ Jill: I feel so sorry for Lily and Craig. They just got engaged, and now his job is transferring him across the country. Jane: Love will find a way, I'm sure. □ Alan: Fred's feeling discouraged because he didn't get the loan he needed to buy the sports car he wants. Bill: I'm sure he'll get that car eventually. Love will find a way.

Love you! Inf. You are great! (Often insincere.) □ See ya around, Martin. Let's do lunch! Love ya! Bye-bye. □ Nice talking to you, babe. Love you!

a love-hate relationship Fig. a relationship of any kind that involves both devotion and hatred. □ Tommy has a love-hate relationship with his teacher. Mostly, though, it's hate lately.

Lovely weather for ducks. and Fine weather for ducks. Cliché a greeting meaning that this unpleasant rainy weather must be good for something. □ Bill: Hi, Bob. How do you like this weather? Bob: Lovely weather for ducks. □ Sally: What a lot of rain! Tom: Yeah. Lovely weather for ducks. Don't care for it much myself.

low man on the totem pole Fig. the least important or lowest-ranking person of a group. □ I was the last to find out because I'm low man on the totem pole. □ I can't be of any help. I'm low man on the totem pole.

*a low profile Fig. a persona or character that does not draw attention. (*Typically: assume ~; have ~; keep ~; give oneself ~.) □ I try to be quiet and keep a low profile. It's hard because I just love attention.

*the lowdown (on someone or something) the full story about someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I need to get the lowdown on John. Is he still an accountant? □ Sally wants to get the lowdown on the new pension plan. Please tell her all about it.

lower one's sights Fig. to set one's goals lower. (Alludes to pointing the barrel of a rifle lower to lower the aim of the rifle.) □ Even though you get frustrated, don't lower your sights. □ I shouldn't lower my sights. If I work hard, I can do what I want.

lower one's voice Fig. to speak more softly. □ Please lower your voice or you'll disturb the people who are working. □ He wouldn't lower his voice, so everyone heard what he said.

lower oneself to some level Fig. to bring oneself down to some lower level of behavior. □ I refuse to lower myself to your level. □ Has TV news lowered itself to the level of the tabloids?

lower someone's ears Rur. to cut someone's hair. □ I asked the barber to lower my ears. □ Looks like somebody lowered Joe's ears!

lower someone's spirits Go to someone's spirits.

lower the boom on someone Fig. to scold or punish someone severely; to crack down on someone; to throw the book at someone. □ If Bob won't behave better, I'll have to lower the boom on him. □ The teacher lowered the boom on the whole class for misbehaving.

low-hanging fruit Fig. the easiest person(s) to sell something to, to convince of something, or to fool. (From the much older easy pickings.) □ People who always want to be the first to buy something, they're low-hanging fruit for this product. □ Don't be satisfied with the low-hanging fruit. Go after the hard-sell types.

luck into something to find something by luck; to get involved in something by luck. □ I lucked into this apartment on the very day I started looking. □ We lucked into a good deal on a used car.

the luck of the draw the results of chance; the lack of any choice. □ Why do I always end up with the luck of the draw? □ The team was assembled by chance. It was just the luck of the draw that we could work so well together.

luck out to be fortunate; to strike it lucky. □ I really lucked out when I ordered the duck. It's excellent. □ I didn't luck out at all. I rarely make the right choice.

luck out of something to get out of something by luck alone. □ I lucked out of taking a driving test. I only had to pass a vision test to get my license. □ Man, I really lucked out of it.

Lucky at cards, unlucky in love. Prov. If you frequently win at card games, you will not have happy love affairs. (Can imply the converse, that if you do not win at card games, you will have happy love affairs.) □ Fred: I wish I was George. He always wins tons of money at our poker games. Alan: Don't be jealous of him. Lucky at cards, unlucky in love.

a lucky break and a nice break; a big break significant good fortune or opportunity. □ I need a lucky break about now. □ She's never had a lucky break. □ Mary is going to get a big break soon.

a lucky dog Fig. a lucky person. □ You won the lottery? You are a lucky dog!

lucky for you a phrase introducing a description of an event that favors the person being spoken to. □ Andy: Lucky for you the train was delayed. Otherwise you'd have to wait till tomorrow morning for the next one. Fred: That's luck, all right. I'd hate to have to sleep in the station. □ Jane: I hope I'm not too late. Sue: Lucky for you, everyone else is late too.

*a lucky streak and *a streak of luck Fig. a series of lucky wins in gambling or games. (*Typically: be on ~; have ~.) □ Thanks to a lucky streak, I won enough in Las Vegas to pay for the trip.

the lull before the storm and the calm before the storm a quiet period just before a period of great activity or excitement. (Literal in reference to weather.) □ It was very quiet in the cafeteria just before the students came in for lunch. It was the lull before the storm. □ In the brief calm before the storm, the clerks prepared themselves for the doors to open and bring in thousands of shoppers.

lull someone into a false sense of security Cliché to lead someone into believing that all is well before attacking or doing someone bad. □ We lulled the enemy into a false sense of security by pretending to retreat. Then we launched an attack. □ The boss lulled us into a false sense of security by saying that our jobs were safe and then let half the staff go.

lull someone or an animal to sleep to quiet and comfort someone or an animal to sleep. □ The sound of the waves lulled me to sleep. □ The dog's heartbeat lulled her puppies to sleep.

lumber along to lope or walk along heavily and awkwardly. □ The horses were lumbering along very slowly because they were tired out. □ They were lumbering along, hoping to get there on time.

lumber off to move or lope away heavily and awkwardly. □ The frightened bear lumbered off, and we left in a hurry. □ He lumbered off, leaving us there alone.

*a lump in one's throat the feeling of something in one's throat—as if one were going to cry. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) □ Whenever they play the national anthem, I get a lump in my throat. □ I have a lump in my throat because I'm frightened.

Lump it! Inf. Forget it!; Go away! □ Well, you can just lump it! □ Lump it! Drop dead!

lump someone and someone else together and lump something and something else together to classify people or things as members of the same category. □ You just can't lump Bill and Ted together. They are totally different kinds of people. □ I tend to lump apples and oranges together.

the lunatic fringe the more extreme members of a group. □ Most of the members of that religious sect are quite reasonable, but Lisa belongs to the lunatic fringe. □ Many people try to avoid eating a lot of fat, but Mary is part of the lunatic fringe and will eat anything.

lunch off something to make a lunch by eating something or part of something. □ We will be able to lunch off the leftover turkey for days! □ I can lunch off what is in the refrigerator. Don't worry about me.

lunch out to eat lunch away from one's home or away from one's place of work. □ I think I'll lunch out today. I'm tired of carrying lunches. □ I want to lunch out today.

lunge at someone or something to jump or dive at someone or something. □ The dog lunged at the man, but he got out of the way without getting bitten. □ The dog lunged at the bicycle.

lunge for someone or something to charge or jump at someone or something; to attack someone or something. □ The mugger lunged for her, but she dodged him. □ Ted lunged for the door, but Bill beat him to it.

lurch at someone or something and lurch toward someone or something to sway or turn quickly toward someone or something. □ Todd lunched at the door and got it open just as the guard saw him. □ Bill lunched toward the ship's rail and hung on.

lurch forward to jerk or sway forward. □ The car lurched forward and shook us around. □ When the train lurched forward, we were pushed back into our seats.

lure someone or something away^t (from someone or something) to entice or draw someone away from someone or something. □ Do you think we could lure her away from her present employment? □ They were not able to lure away many of the employees of the other companies.

lure someone or something in to something and lure someone or something in^t to entice someone or something into something or a place. □ The thief tried to lure the tourist into an alley to rob him. □ Using an old trick, the thief lured in the tourist.

lurk around to slink or sneak around somewhere. □ Who is that guy lurking around the building? □ Stop lurking around.

lust after someone and lust for someone to desire someone sexually. □ You could see that Sam was lusting after Sally. □ Roger claims that he does not lust for anyone.

lust for something Fig. to desire something. □ He says he lusts for a nice cold can of beer. □ Mary lusts for rich and fattening ice cream.

luxuriate in something to indulge oneself in something; to enjoy the luxury of something. □ She stood in front of the mirror, luxuriating in her lovely new coat. □ They were all luxuriating in the warm, bubbling waters of the hot tub.

mad about someone or something Go to crazy about someone or something.

mad as a hatter and mad as a march hare 1. crazy. (Alludes to the crazy characters in Lewis Carroll's Alice's Adventures in Wonderland. *Also: as ~.) □ Poor old John is as mad as a hatter. □ All these screaming children are driving me mad as a hatter. 2. angry. (This is a misunderstanding of mad in the first sense. *Also: as ~.) □ You make me so angry! I'm as mad as a hatter. □ John can't control his temper. He's always mad as a hatter.

mad as a hornet and mad as a wet hen; *mad as hell very angry. (*Also: as ~. Use hell with caution.) □ You make me so angry. I'm as mad as a hornet. □ What you said made Mary mad as a wet hen. □ Those terrorists make me mad as hell.

mad as a march hare Go to mad as a hatter.

mad as a wet hen Go to mad as a hornet.

mad as hell Go to mad as a hornet.

mad (at someone or something) angry at someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; make someone ~.) □ Don't get mad at me. I didn't do it. □ I got mad at my car. It won't start.

mad enough to chew nails (and spit rivets) and angry enough to chew nails; mad enough to spit nails Inf. Fig. very angry, as if to be able to bite through metal nails. □ I am mad enough to chew nails! Who took my checkbook? □ Her sudden tirade made him angry enough to chew nails. □ He stomped in, mad enough to chew nails and spit rivets.

mad enough to kick a cat Rur. very angry. □ Stay out of my way. I'm mad enough to kick a cat! □ The team lost. The coach was mad enough to kick a cat.

mad enough to spit nails Go to mad enough to chew nails (and spit rivets).

made conspicuous by one's absence Go to conspicuous by one's absence.

made for each other [of two people] very well suited romantically. □ Bill and Jane were made for each other. □ Mr. and Mrs. Smith were not exactly made for each other. They really don't get along.

made for someone created to please someone or look good on someone in particular. □ This hat was made for me. □ This suit was just made for me!

made for something to have been designed or manufactured for some purpose; to be very suitable for something or some purpose. □ This night was made for love. □ This wrench is manufactured from the strongest metal. It is made for jobs just like this one.

made from the same mold Go to cut from the same cloth.

made to measure [of clothing] made especially to fit the measurements of a particular person. □ Jack has his suits made to measure because he's rather large. □ Having clothes made to measure is rather expensive.

made to order made to one's own measurements and on request. (See also make something to order.) □ This suit fits so well because it's made to order. □ His feet are so big that all his shoes have to be made to order.

maiden voyage Fig. the first voyage of a ship or boat. □ The liner sank on its maiden voyage. □ Jim is taking his yacht on its maiden voyage.

mail something from some place to send something by mail from a particular place. □ I mailed the check from my office. □ I will mail it from the main post office.

mail something to someone to send something to someone by mail. □ I mailed the check to you yesterday. □ I mailed a gift to my niece.

main strength and awkwardness Fig. great force; brute force. □ They finally got the piano moved in to the living room by main strength and awkwardness. □ Lifting the antique table must be done carefully. This is not a job requiring main strength and awkwardness.

maintain someone in something to keep or provide for someone in a certain style or condition. □ I insist that you maintain me in the style to which I have become accustomed. □ He had hoped to maintain himself in comfort.

maintain something at something to keep something at a certain level, setting, degree, amount, etc. □ You must maintain the temperature at 30 degrees Celsius. □ We have to maintain the temperature at a very high level.

major in something to specialize in a certain subject in college. □ I majored in history in college. □ I want to major in math.

make a beeline for someone or something Fig. to head straight toward someone or something. (Alludes to the straight flight of a bee.) □ Billy came into the kitchen and made a beeline for the cookies. □ After the game, we all made a beeline for John, who was serving cold drinks.

make a believer (out) of someone to convince someone decisively about something. □ The game they played made a believer out of me; from now on, I'm betting on them. □ It was an interesting discussion, but it did not make a believer out of me.

make a big deal about something Go to make a federal case out of something.

make a (big) stink (about someone or something) and raise a (big) stink (about someone or something) Fig. to make trouble about someone or something. □ Why did you raise a big stink about it? □ Jim is making a stink about Alice.

make a bolt for someone or something Fig. to run quickly to or at someone or something. □ The child came into the room and made a bolt for her mother. □ The dog made a bolt for the door.

M

make a break for someone or something Fig. to run suddenly toward someone or something; to seize an opportunity to run toward someone or something. □ The crook made a break for the cop in order to get his gun. □ Max made a break for the door.

make a bundle and make a pile to make a lot of money. □ John really made a bundle on that deal. □ I'd like to make a pile and retire.

make a check (out!) (to someone or something) Fig. to write a check to someone or a group. □ Please make the check out to Bill Franklin. □ Make out a check to me. □ Please make a check out to the bank. □ Make a check to the phone company.

make a check over to someone or something to endorse the back of a check, making it payable to someone or a group. □ Please make the check over to Bill Franklin. □ Would you make the check over to my bank?

make a check to someone or something to write a check to someone. (See also make a check out (to someone or something).) □ The check should be for fifty dollars. Please make it to me. □ Make the check to Jim. □ She made the check to the bank, and sent it off in the mail.

make a clean breast of something (to someone) Fig. to admit something to someone. □ You should make a clean breast of the matter to someone. □ You'll feel better if you make a clean breast of the incident.

make a clean sweep Fig. to do something completely or thoroughly, with no exceptions. □ The boss decided to change the direction of the company, so he made a clean sweep and fired all the top management. □ They made a clean sweep through the neighborhood, repairing all the sidewalks.

make a comeback to return to one's former (successful) career. □ After ten years in retirement, the singer made a comeback. □ You're never too old to make a comeback.

make a dash for someone or something to run quickly for someone or something. □ Suddenly Max made a dash for Lefty and punched him in the stomach. □ John made a dash for the bathroom as soon as they arrived home.

make a day of doing something and make a day of it to spend the whole day doing something. □ We went to the museum to see the new exhibit and then decided to make a day of it. □ They made a day of cleaning the attic.

make a day of it Go to previous.

make a deal with someone to strike a bargain with someone. □ I want to buy your car and I think I can make a deal with you. □ I will make a deal with you that you will like.

make a dent in something 1. Lit. to make a depression in something. □ I kicked the side of the car and made a dent in it. □ Please don't make a dent in the side of the house. 2. Fig. to use only a little of something; to make a small amount of progress with something. □ Look at what's left on your plate! You hardly made a dent in your dinner. □ I've been slaving all day, and I have hardly made a dent in my work.

make a difference in someone or something to cause a noticeable change in someone or something. □ Getting a job made a big difference in my lifestyle. □ His mother's death made a difference in his attitude toward doctors.

make a difference to someone [for one choice or another] to matter to someone. □ The big one or the little one—does it really make a difference to anyone? □ It makes quite a difference to me!

make a face (at someone) and make faces (at someone) 1. to show a funny or distorted expression to someone in ridicule. □ Mother, Billy made a face at me! □ The teacher sent Jane to the principal for making a face in class. 2. to attempt to communicate to someone through facial gestures, usually an attempt to say “no” or “stop.” □ I started to tell John where I was last night, but Bill made a face so I didn't. □ John made a face at me as I was testifying, so I avoided telling everything.

make a fast buck and make a quick buck to make money with little effort or in a short time. □ Tom is always ready to make a fast buck. □ I made a quick buck selling used cars.

make a federal case out of something and make a big deal about something to exaggerate the seriousness of something. □ Come on. It was nothing! Don't make a federal case out of it. □ I only stepped on your toe. Don't make a big deal about it.

make a fool (out) of someone and make a monkey (out) of someone to make someone look foolish. □ John made a monkey out of himself while trying to make a fool out of Jim. □ John made a fool out of himself at the party. □ Are you trying to make a monkey out of me?

make a fresh start Go to a fresh start.

make a friend and make friends to establish a link of friendship with someone. □ I have never found it difficult to make friends. □ Mary had to make new friends when she changed schools.

make a fuss (over someone or something) 1. to worry about or make a bother about someone or something. □ Why do you make a fuss over a problem like that? □ Please don't make a fuss. Everything will be all right. 2. to be very solicitous and helpful toward a person or a pet. □ How can anyone make a fuss over a cat? □ Billy was embarrassed when his mother made a fuss over him. 3. to argue about someone or something. □ Please don't make a fuss over who gets the last cookie. □ Please discuss it. Don't make a fuss over it!

make a go of something to succeed at something. (Often with it.) □ She just didn't have the energy or inclination to make a go of her marriage. □ I did everything I could to make a go of it.

make a grab at someone or something to grasp at someone or something. □ Don made a grab at Betsy, but she eluded him. □ Kelly made a grab at the ball, but it went on past her.

make a great show of something Fig. to make something obvious; to do something in a showy fashion. □ Ann made a great show of wiping up the drink that John spilled. □ Jane displayed her irritation at our late arrival by making a great show of serving the cold dinner.

make a guess Go to take a guess.

make a habit of something to do something so often that it becomes a habit. You mustn't make a habit of interrupting. I make a habit of counting my change.

make a hit with someone to please someone; to impress someone. The dessert you served really made a hit with the guests. Her talk made a hit with the audience.

make a killing Fig. to have a great success, especially in making money. John has got a job selling insurance. He's not exactly making a killing. Bill made a killing at the racetrack yesterday.

make a (kind of) life for oneself to develop and live a particular kind of lifestyle for oneself. She made a good life for herself in New York City, working as a freelancer.

Make a lap! Sl. to sit down. Hey, make a lap and get out of the way! Pull up a chair and make a lap!

make a laughingstock of oneself or something and make oneself or something a laughingstock to make oneself a source of ridicule or laughter; to do something that invites ridicule. Laura made herself a laughingstock by arriving at the fast-food restaurant in full evening dress. The board of directors made the company a laughingstock by hiring an ex-convict as president.

make a living by doing something Go to next.

make a living from something and make a living by doing something to earn a living from something or by doing something. John makes a living from painting houses. Can you really make a living by selling jewelry?

make a long story short and cut a long story short to leave out parts of a story to make it shorter; to bring a story to an end. (A formula that introduces a summary of a story or a joke. See also long story short.) And—to make a long story short—I never got back the money that I lent him. If I can make a long story short, let me say that everything worked out fine.

make a man of someone Fig. to make a young male into an adult male. The experience will make a man of Ted. Send Wally into the army. That'll make a man of him.

make a meal of something 1. to eat something. The cat made a meal of the fish. They made a meal of the roast beef and enjoyed it very much. 2. to eat enough of something to consider it or have it as a full meal. I really don't want to make a meal of lettuce alone. Can we make a meal of this turkey, or should we save some for sandwiches?

make a mental note of something to remember something. So, you want to be considered for a job. I'll make a mental note of that. Please make a mental note of my telephone number.

make a mess of something Fig. to mess something up; to ruin something. Give it a try, but don't make a mess of it. Jerry made a mess of the kitchen.

make a mistake to commit an error; to do something wrong accidentally. I made a mistake and I am really sorry about it.

make a mockery of something to make a deliberate parody or a poor imitation of something. What a mess. You made a mockery of the task. You have made a mockery of my position!

make a monkey (out) of someone Go to make a fool (out) of someone.

make a mountain out of a molehill Cliché to make a major issue out of a minor one; to exaggerate the importance of something. Come on, don't make a mountain out of a molehill. It's not that important. Mary is always making mountains out of molehills.

make a move on someone to attempt to seduce someone. Was he making a move on me? I think he was. Jed is known for making moves on young women.

make a name (for oneself) Fig. to become famous. Sally wants to work hard and make a name for herself. It's hard to make a name without a lot of talent and hard work.

make a night of it Fig. to spend the entire evening or night doing something. (Especially when one had intended to devote only a little time to the outing.) We went out to have a bite to eat and were having such a good time that we decided to make a night of it. I did not want to make a night of it, so I left early.

make a note of something 1. Lit. to write something down as a reminder. Please make a note of it so you will remember. I will make a note of it and try to remember where I put the note. 2. Fig. to make a mental note of something. You want to be considered for promotion. I'll make a note of it. Please make a note of it.

make a nuisance of oneself to be a constant bother. I'm sorry to make a nuisance of myself, but I do need an answer to my question. Stop making a nuisance of yourself and wait your turn.

make a paper trail Go to a paper trail.

make a pass at someone to flirt with or suggest sexual activity with someone. Can you believe it? Larry made a pass at me! No one ever makes a pass at me.

make a pass at something to fly over or close by something. The plane made a pass at the landing field and pulled up at the last minute. The bird made a pass at me because I got too close to its nest.

make a pig of oneself Fig. to eat too much, too fast, or noisily; to eat more than one's share. Don't make a pig of yourself! Sam is making a pig of himself and taking more than his share.

make a pile Go to make a bundle.

make a pitch (for someone or something) Fig. to say something in support of someone or something; to attempt to promote, sell, or advance someone or something. Bill is making a pitch for his friend's new product again. The theatrical agent came in and made a pitch for her client. Every time I turn on the television set, someone is making a pitch.

make a play (for someone) to attempt to attract the romantic interest of someone. Ann made a play for Bill, but he wasn't interested in her. I knew he liked me, but I never thought he'd make a play.

make a point and make points 1. Lit. to score a point in a game. Bob made a point in the last match. Karen made twenty points in the second half. 2. Fig. to state an item of importance. (See also make a point of someone or something; make points (with someone).) You made a point that we all should remember. He spoke for an hour without making a point.

make a point of doing something and make a point of something Fig. to make an effort to do something. Please make a point of mailing this letter. It's very important. The hostess made a point of thanking me for bringing flowers.

make a point of someone or something and make an issue of someone or something Fig. to turn someone or something into an important matter. Please don't make a point of John's comment. It wasn't that important. I hope you make an issue of Tom's success and the reasons for it.

make a practice of something and make something a practice to turn something into a habitual activity. Jane makes a practice of planting daisies every summer. Her mother also made it a practice.

make a quick buck Go to make a fast buck.

make a reservation and make reservations to reserve a seat, as in an airplane, restaurant, or theater in advance; to reserve a room, as in a hotel in advance. Did you make a reservation or are we just going to chance getting a table? I made reservations for a flight at twelve noon.

make a run for it Fig. to run fast to get away or get somewhere. When the guard wasn't looking, the prisoner made a run for it. In the baseball game, the player on first base made a run for it, but he didn't make it to second base.

make a scene and create a scene Fig. to make a public display or disturbance. When John found a fly in his drink, he started to create a scene. Oh, John, please don't make a scene. Just forget about it.

make a secret of something to act as if something were a secret. I'm not making a secret of it. I am quitting this job. Mary made a secret of her intentions.

make a start on something to set out to do something; to make a beginning on something. See if you can make a start on the project. I will try to make a start on the cleaning before I leave today.

make a stink (about something) Go to create a stink (about something).

make a virtue of necessity Prov. to do what you have to do cheerfully or willingly. When Bill's mother became sick, there was no one but Bill to take care of her, so Bill made a virtue of necessity and resolved to enjoy their time together.

make advances at someone Go to next.

make advances to someone and make advances at someone to flirt with someone; to begin to seduce someone. She began making advances to me, and I left the room. Mary made advances at every male she encountered.

make allowance(s) (for someone or something) 1. to allow time, space, food, etc., for someone or something. When planning the party, please make allowances for John and his family. I'm making allowance for ten extra guests. 2. to make excuses or explanations for someone or something; to take into consideration the negative effects of someone or something. You're very late even when we make allowance for the weather. We have to make allowance for the age of the house when we judge its condition.

make amends (to someone) (for someone or something) to make up to someone for something that someone or something did. Don't worry. I will make amends to her for my sister, who behaved so badly. I will try to make amends for the accident. I can make amends to Sam, I'm sure.

make an all-out effort Go to an all-out effort.

make (an amount of) headway 1. Lit. to move forward. Even in a light wind, the ship could not make any headway. 2. Fig. to advance toward completing a task. With the help of Garret, Christopher made a lot of headway on the project.

make an appearance to appear; to appear in a performance. We waited for thirty minutes for the professor to make an appearance, then we went home. The famous singing star made an appearance in Detroit last August.

make an appointment (with someone) to schedule a meeting with someone. I made an appointment with the doctor for late today. The professor wouldn't see me unless I made an appointment.

make an entrance to enter [a place], in some formal or special way, as onto the stage in a play or opera. She made her entrance too early and threw everyone into confusion.

make an example of someone to do something to someone that shows the bad results of bad behavior; to point to someone as a bad example. The judge said that he would make an example of Sally and would fine her the maximum amount. The teacher made an example of me to the class, with a detention on the first day of school.

make an exception (for someone) to suspend a rule or practice for someone in a single instance. Please make an exception just this once. The rule is a good one, and I will not make an exception for anyone.

make an exhibition of oneself to show off; to try to get a lot of attention for oneself. She is not just dancing, she is making an exhibition of herself. Whenever Rudy drinks, he makes an exhibition of himself.

make an honest woman of someone Fig. to marry a woman. (Intended as jocular.) So you finally made an honest woman out of Denise. She had wanted Max to make an honest woman of her, but you can't depend on Max to do anything right.

make an impression on someone to produce a positive memorable effect on someone while one is present. (Akin to leave an impression (on someone).) Tom made quite an impression on the banker.

make an issue of someone or something Go to make a point of someone or something.

make an offer one cannot refuse Go to an offer one cannot refuse.

make an uproar Go to create an uproar.

make application (to someone or something) (for something) to apply to a person or an office for something. You must make application to the committee for admission. Can I make application to this office for a scholarship?

make arrangements for someone to plan accommodations for someone. John is coming for a visit next week.

Please make arrangements for him at the hotel. □ I will make arrangements for everyone when I call the hotel.

make arrangements to do something to plan to do something; to facilitate the doing of something. □ Please make arrangements to have all this stuff hauled away. □ We will make arrangements to be there on time.

make arrangements (with someone) (for something) to make plans with someone for something. □ I will make arrangements with Fred for the loan. □ We can make arrangements for a car with the manager.

make as if to do something to act as if one were about to do something. □ The thief made as if to run away but changed his mind. □ Jane made as if to smack the child.

make away with someone or something and make off with someone or something to take someone or something away; to make someone or something disappear. □ The robber made away with the jewelry. □ The maid quickly made off with the children. We only saw them for a moment.

make believe that... to pretend that... □ Make believe that you have a million dollars. What would you do with it?

make book on something 1. Sl. to make or accept bets on something. □ *Well, she might. But I wouldn't make book on it. □ Don't make book on my success in this game. 2. Sl. to feel confident enough about something to accept wagers on it. □ *Of course the delivery date is certain. You can make book on it! □ The work might be done on time, but I wouldn't make book on it.

make (both) ends meet Fig. to earn and spend equal amounts of money. (Usually in reference to a meager living with little if any money after basic expenses.) □ I have to work at two jobs to make ends meet. □ Through better budgeting, I am learning to make both ends meet.

make certain of something to check something in order to be sure. □ Please make certain of what you want to do. □ Would you please make certain of the number of things you want to order?

make change (for someone) (for something) 1. to return change [coins] for someone to use for some purpose. □ *Will you please make change for me for the telephone? □ I will make change for the telephone for you. 2. to return change [coins or bills or both] to someone for paper money. □ *The clerk refused to make change for her for the dollar bill. □ I will be happy to make change for a ten for you.

make chin music Fig. to talk or chatter. □ We sat around all evening making chin music. □ You were making chin music when you should have been listening.

make contact with someone Go to contact with someone.

make cracks about someone or something Fig. to make jokes or smart remarks about someone or something. □ Stop making cracks about my cousin. □ Ken made a few cracks about the movie.

make demands of someone or something and make demands on someone or something to expect someone or something to do something or act in a particular way. □ Please don't make demands of everyone in the shop. □ The boss is making a lot of demands on the new machinery.

make do (with someone or something) to do as well as possible with someone or something. (See also do with someone or something.) □ You'll have to make do with less money next year. The economy is very weak. □ We'll have to make do with John even though he's a slow worker.

make every effort to do something to try very hard to accomplish something. □ I will make every effort to be there on time.

make eyes at someone Fig. to flirt with someone. □ Mother, he's making eyes at me! □ Jed tried to make eyes at all the young women.

make faces (at someone) Go to make a face (at someone).

make fast work of someone or something Go to make short work of someone or something.

make for somewhere to set out for somewhere; to run or travel to somewhere. □ Wilbur made for Philadelphia when he heard the police in the Big Apple were after him. □ Barlowe made for the stairs, but two shots rang out, and he knew it was all over for Mary.

make free with someone to exploit someone; to take advantage of someone. □ You shouldn't make free with your employees. They are liable to take you to court. □ He was making free with his secretary, having her do his private business.

make free with something to use something freely; to exploit something. □ You can make free with the hot water. We have a huge tank. □ Sally is making free with the sugar I was saving for breakfast cereal.

make friends Go to make a friend.

make friends with someone to work to become a friend of someone. □ I want to make friends with all the people I am going to be working with. □ Let's try to make friends with each other.

make fun of someone or something to ridicule someone or something. □ Are you making fun of me? □ I am making fun of your hat.

make good as something to succeed in a particular role. □ I hope I make good as a teacher. □ John made good as a football player.

make good (at something) to succeed at something. □ Bob worked hard to make good at selling. □ Jane was determined to make good.

make good money to earn a sizable amount of money. □ Ann makes good money at her job. □ I don't know what she does, but she makes good money.

make good on something 1. to fulfill a promise. □ *Tom made good on his pledge to donate $1,000. □ Bill refused to make good on his promise. 2. to repay a debt. (See also set something right.) □ *I couldn't make good on my debts, and I got in a lot of trouble. □ If you don't make good on this bill, I'll have to take back your car.

make good time to proceed at a fast or reasonable rate. □ On our trip to Toledo, we made good time. □ I'm making good time, but I have a long way to go.

make (good) use of something to use something well. □ I am sure I can make good use of the gift you gave me. □ We will make use of this book.

make hamburger (out) of someone Go to make mincemeat (out) of someone.

Make haste slowly. and More haste, less speed.

Prov. Act quickly, but not so quickly that you make careless mistakes. □ Jane: Why are you throwing your clothes around the room? Alan: You told me to get my things packed in a hurry. Jane: Yes, but make haste slowly; otherwise we'll have to spend an hour cleaning up the mess you make. □ I know you want to finish that sweater by Joe's birthday, but you're knitting so fast that you make mistakes. More haste, less speed.

Make hay while the sun shines. Prov. If you have an opportunity to do something, do it before the opportunity expires. □ Jane: While my husband's out of town, I'm going to watch all the movies he wouldn't take me to see. Jane: Why not? Make hay while the sun shines.

make heads or tails of someone or something Fig. to understand someone or something that someone has said. (Usually with the negative.) □ I can't make heads or tails of Fred. □ No one can make heads or tails of this problem.

make inroads into something Fig. to succeed in getting something done or at least started. □ George was unable to make inroads into solving the problem. □ We are making no inroads into the high-priority project.

make it 1. to achieve one's goals. □ I can see by looking around this room that you have really made it. □ I hope I make it someday. But if not, I tried. 2. Sl. to copulate (with someone). □ There was no doubt in his mind that those bedroom eyes were telling him their owner wanted to make it. □ She wanted to make it, but he convinced her they should wait.

make it big to become successful, especially financially. □ I always knew that someday I would make it big. □ My brother made it big, but it has just led to tax problems.

make it by the seat of one's pants Go to by the seat of one's pants.

make it hot for someone Fig. to make things difficult for someone; to put someone under pressure. □ Maybe if we make it hot for them, they'll leave. □ John likes making it hot for people. He's sort of mean.

make it one's business to do something and take it upon oneself to do something Fig. to do something on one's own even if it means interfering in something that does not directly concern one. (As opposed to minding one's own business.) □ I know it doesn't concern me, but I made it my business to call city hall because someone had to. □ Jane took it upon herself to find out exactly what had happened to the old lady.

Make it snappy! Inf. Hurry up!; Move quickly and smartly. □ Andy: Make it snappy! I haven't got all day. Bob: Don't rush me. □ Mary: Do you mind if I stop here and get some film? Bob: Not if you make it snappy! Mary: Don't worry. I'll hurry.

make it (to) some place to reach some place; to be able to attend an event at a place. □ I couldn't make it to the party. □ He didn't think his car could make it to Cleveland.

make it to something; make it as far as something Go to make it (until something).

Make it two. I wish to order the thing that someone else just now ordered. (Said to food or drink server.) □ Bill make it (until something) and make it to something; make it as far as something to endure until something; to last until some time or until reaching some place. □ I hope my car can make it to the next town. □ Do you think you can make it until we come to a hotel?

(speaking to the waiter): I'll have the roast chicken. Mary: Make it two. □ Waiter: Would you like something to drink? Tom: Just a beer. Waiter (turning to Mary): And you? Mary: Make it two.

make it worth someone's while Euph. to tip or offer special (usually extra) payment to someone. □ I made it worth the waiter's while to give us good service. □ If you'll throw a few contracts my way, I'll make it worth your while.

make last-ditch effort Go to last-ditch effort.

make life miserable for someone to give someone misery; to be a great nuisance to someone. □ This nagging backache is making life miserable for me. □ I wish you would stop making life miserable for me.

make light of something to treat something as if it were unimportant or humorous. □ I wish you wouldn't make light of his problems. They're quite serious. □ I make light of my problems, and that makes me feel better.

make like a tree and leave Sl. to leave; to depart. (Jocular; a pun on the leaf of a tree.) □ I have to leave now. It's time to make like a tree and leave. □ Hey, Jane. Don't you have an appointment somewhere? Why don't you make like a tree and leave?

make like someone or something to act like someone or something. □ Why don't you make like a bunny and run away? Beat it! □ Would you please make like a butler and hold the door open for me?

make little of someone or something to minimize someone or something; to play someone or something down; to belittle someone or something. □ John made little of my efforts to collect money for charity. □ The neighbors made little of John and thought he would amount to nothing.

make love (to someone) 1. to kiss and caress someone. □ Ernest made love to Linda in the garden in the moonlight. □ She liked the way he made love to her—all that poetry. 2. Euph. to have sex with someone. □ I really think that he wanted to make love to me. □ She did not want to make love to him.

make mention of someone or something to mention someone or something. □ Did you have to make mention of Sally? I'm angry with her. □ I will have to make mention of your failure to secure additional business.

make merry to have fun; to have an enjoyable time. □ The guests certainly made merry at the wedding. □ The children were making merry in the backyard.

make mincemeat (out) of someone and make hamburger (out) of someone Fig. to beat or pound someone or something; to treat someone or something roughly. (As if chopping someone up.) □ If you don't behave, I'll make mincemeat out of you. □ Do you want Fred to make hamburger out of you?

Make mine something. I wish to have the thing named. (The something can be a particular food or drink, a flavor of a food, a size of a garment, or a type of almost anything. Most typically used for food or drink.) □ Bill: I want some pie. Yes, I'd like apple. Tom: Make mine cherry.

☐ Waiter: Would you care for some dessert? The ice cream is homemade. Tom: Yes, indeed. Make mine chocolate.

make mischief to cause trouble. ☐ Bob loves to make mischief and get other people into trouble. ☐ Don't believe what Mary says. She's just trying to make mischief.

make money on something to make a certain amount of profit on something. ☐ I am sure I can make something on the deal. ☐ Can I make any money on this sale?

Make my day! Inf. Go ahead, do what you are going to do, and I will be very happy to do what I have to do! (A catchphrase from a movie scene of a police officer who has a gun pointed at a criminal. The police officer wants the criminal to do something that will justify pulling the trigger, which the police officer will do with pleasure. Used in real life in any context, and especially in sarcasm.) ☐ Move a muscle! Go for your gun! Go ahead, make my day! ☐ Make my day. Just try it.

Make no bones about it. to make no mistake (about it); no need to doubt it; absolutely. ☐ This is the greatest cake I've ever eaten. Make no bones about it. ☐ Make no bones about it, Mary is a great singer.

make no difference (to someone) [for a choice] not to matter to someone. (Any is used with negative nouns or verbs.) ☐ Pick whom you like. It makes no difference to me. ☐ It doesn't make any difference to me. ☐ Nothing much makes any difference to them anymore.

Make no mistake (about it)! Inf. Do not be mistaken! You can be certain. ☐ Sally: I'm very angry with you! Make no mistake about it! Fred: Whatever it's about, I'm sorry. ☐ Clerk: Make no mistake, this is the finest carpet available. Sally: I'd like something a little less fine, I think.

make nonsense of something to make something appear to be silly or nonsensical. ☐ You are just making nonsense of everything I have tried to do. ☐ Your statement makes nonsense of everything you have said before.

make nothing of something to ignore something as if it had not happened; to think no more about something. (Often with it.) ☐ My father caught me throwing the snowball, but he made nothing of it. ☐ I made nothing of the remark, even though it seemed quite rude. ☐ I saw him leave early, but I made nothing of it.

make off with someone or something Go to make away with someone or something.

make one an offer one cannot refuse Go to an offer one cannot refuse.

make one's mark to do something that allows one to receive appropriate recognition. ☐ Perry made his mark by inventing a special kind of holder for a cell phone.

make one's mind up[†] (about someone or something) to decide about someone or something. ☐ Please make your mind up about Ralph. Will you pick him or not? ☐ Make up your mind about her! ☐ I just couldn't make my mind up.

make one's money stretch Go to stretch one's money.

make one's (own) bed 1. Lit. to restore order to the bedclothes on one's own bed. ☐ Jimmy, you are old enough to make your own bed. 2. Fig. to be the cause of one's own misery. ☐ Well, I guess I made my own bed. Now I have to lie in it. ☐ "We all make our own beds," said the minister.

make (one's) peace with someone to set things right with someone; to make amends with someone. ☐ I will make my peace with Jane. You needn't be the one to patch things up. ☐ Let's go make peace with Karen.

make one's way along something to move along something slowly or carefully. ☐ Todd made his way along the slippery walk. ☐ The old man made his way along the street carefully.

make one's way back (to something) to work one's way back to something or some place. ☐ I made my way back to the little town in the densest fog I have ever seen. ☐ I went for a walk and got lost. It took hours for me to make my way back.

make one's way in the world Fig. to succeed in the world independently. ☐ I intend to prepare myself to make my way in the world by getting a college degree. ☐ I know that all my children can make their way in the world.

make one's way through something Go to pick one's way through something.

make oneself at home to make oneself comfortable as if one were in one's own home. ☐ Please come in and make yourself at home. ☐ I'm glad you're here. During your visit, just make yourself at home.

make oneself conspicuous to attract attention to oneself. ☐ Please don't make yourself conspicuous. It embarrasses me. ☐ Ann makes herself conspicuous by wearing brightly colored clothing.

make oneself heard to speak loudly so that one will be heard above background noise. ☐ I had to shout to make myself heard. ☐ He screamed to make himself heard over the sound of the plane's engines.

make oneself miserable to do things which cause one to be unhappy. ☐ You're just making yourself miserable by trying to do something you aren't qualified to do. ☐ I'm not making myself miserable! You're making me miserable.

make oneself or something a laughingstock Go to make a laughingstock of oneself or something.

make oneself scarce Fig. [for someone] to become difficult to find; [for someone to] go into hiding. ☐ Tom is mad and is looking for you. Better make yourself scarce. ☐ Make yourself scarce! Here comes the sheriff.

make (oneself) up to put makeup on oneself. ☐ I have to make up now. I go on stage in ten minutes. ☐ I will make myself up. I don't need your help.

make or break someone [of a task, job, career choice] to bring success to or improve, or ruin, someone. ☐ The army will either make or break him. ☐ It's a tough assignment, and it will either make or break her.

make (out) after someone or something to run after someone or something; to start out after someone or something. ☐ Paul made out after Fred, who had taken Paul's hat. ☐ The police officer made after the robber.

make (out) for someone or something to run toward someone, something, or some place. ☐ They made out for Sam as soon as they saw him coming. ☐ The boys made for the swimming pool as soon as the coach blew the whistle.

make out like a bandit Rur. to make a large profit. ☐ Joe's making out like a bandit, selling expensive cameras. ☐ make (out) like something Rur. to pretend something. □ Let's make out like we're cowboys and Indians. □ Joe made out like he had a lot of money, and folks believed him.

Mary made out like a bandit, playing twenty-one in Las Vegas.

make out that... to pretend that [something is so]. □ He made out that he hadn't seen me. □ We all made out that we hadn't heard the sound.

make out (with someone) to kiss and pet with someone. □ All evening long, he was trying to make out with me. □ Sharon was trying to make out with Bill.

make out (with someone or something) 1. to manage to do something with someone or something. □ I think I can make out with this hammer. □ If I can't make out with a crew of four, I'll have to ask for more help. 2. Go to make out (with someone).

make overtures about doing something to give hints about something; to present or suggest ideas. □ The company made overtures about hiring me. □ Tom is making overtures about inviting us to his country home next month.

make points (with someone) Fig. to gain favor with someone; to impress someone. (See also make a point.) □ Tom is trying to make points with Ann. He wants to ask her out. □ He's trying to make points by smiling and telling her how nice she looks.

make reservations Go to make a reservation.

make room (for someone or something) to provide space for someone or something. □ Make room for Sam. He needs a place to sit. □ Can you make room for this package?

make sense to be understandable. □ John doesn't make sense. □ What John says makes sense to me.

make short work of someone or something and make fast work of someone or something to finish with someone or something quickly. □ I made short work of Tom so I could leave the office to play golf. □ Billy made fast work of his dinner so he could go out and play.

make so bold as to do something Go to be so bold as to do something.

make (some) sense (out) of someone or something to understand someone or something. □ I can't make sense out of Doris and what she has done! □ No one can make sense out of Tom's story.

make someone SI. to identify someone. (Used especially in the context of law enforcement.) □ The cop stared at Wilbur and tried to make him, but failed to identify him and let him go. □ The cops took the suspect downtown where the police chief made him as a wanted criminal.

make someone an offer to offer someone an amount of money for something. (Usually an invitation.) □ Do you like it? Make me an offer.

make someone eat crow Fig. to cause someone to retract a statement or admit an error. □ Because Mary was completely wrong, we made her eat crow. □ They won't make me eat crow. They can't prove I was wrong.

make someone look good to cause someone to appear successful or competent (especially when this is not the case). □ John arranges all his affairs to make himself look good. □ The manager didn't like the quarterly report because it didn't make her look good.

make someone look ridiculous to make someone look foolish (not funny). □ This hat makes me look ridiculous. □ Please make me look good. Don't make me look ridiculous!

make someone mad (at someone or something) Go to mad (at someone or something).

make someone or something available to someone to supply someone with someone or something. □ I made my car available to Bob. □ They made their maid available to us.

make someone or something into something to turn someone or something into something. □ I will make you into a Hollywood star! □ We made our basement into a family room.

make someone or something tick Fig. to cause someone or something to run or function. (Usually with what. Tick refers to a watch or clock.) □ I don't know what makes it tick. □ What makes John tick? I just don't understand him. □ I took apart the radio to find out what made it tick.

make someone over^t Go to do someone over^t.

make someone's bed (up^t) Go to make the bed (up^t).

make someone's blood boil Fig. to make someone very angry. □ It just makes my blood boil to think of the amount of food that gets wasted around here. □ Whenever I think of that dishonest mess, it makes my blood boil.

make someone's blood run cold Fig. to shock or horrify someone. □ The terrible story in the newspaper made my blood run cold. □ I could tell you things about prisons that would make your blood run cold.

make someone's flesh crawl and make someone's skin crawl to cause someone's skin to feel funny or get goose pimples through fright. □ Just to hear the story of the killings made my flesh crawl. □ The horror movie made our skin crawl.

make someone's gorge rise Fig. to cause someone to become very angry. □ The unnecessary accident made my gorge rise. □ Getting his tax bill made Bob's gorge rise.

make someone's hair curl Go to curl someone's hair.

make someone's hair stand on end Fig. to cause someone to be very frightened. □ The horrible scream made my hair stand on end. □ The ghost story made our hair stand on end.

make someone's head spin Go to next.

make someone's head swim and make someone's head spin 1. Fig. to make someone dizzy or disoriented. □ Riding the merry-go-round makes my head spin. □ Breathing the gas made my head swim. 2. Fig. to confuse or overwhelm someone. □ All these numbers make my head swim. □ The physics lecture made my head spin.

make someone's mind up^t to decide; to do something that decides something for someone. □ Will you please make up your mind? □ I will help make up your mind.

make someone's mouth water to make someone hungry (for something); to cause saliva to flow in someone's mouth. □ That beautiful salad makes my mouth water. □ Talking about food makes my mouth water.

make someone's position clear to clarify where someone stands on an issue. I don't think you understand what I said. Let me make my position clear. I can't tell whether you are in favor of or against the proposal. Please make your position clear.

make someone's skin crawl Go to make someone's flesh crawl.

make someone sick to disgust someone. I am really tired of your vile talk. You make me sick! She screamed at him that he made her sick and then she ran out of the house.

make someone sick at heart Go to sick at heart.

make someone stir crazy Go to stir crazy.

make someone the scapegoat for something to make someone take the blame for something. They made Tom the scapegoat for the whole affair. It wasn't all his fault. Don't try to make me the scapegoat. I'll tell who really did it.

make someone up[†] to put makeup on someone. You have to make the clowns up before you start on the other characters in the play. Did you make up the clowns?

make something to attend an event. I hope you can make our party. I am sorry, but I won't be able to make it.

make something a practice Go to make a practice of something.

make something about someone or something to make comments, remarks, a furor, a fuss, etc., about someone or something. Why are you making such a furor about such a minor matter? You are making too many negative remarks about Sue.

make something against someone or something to build a legal case, argument, speech, etc., against someone or something. The prosecutor made a strong case against Tim. I made a strong speech against the proposed legislation.

make something at someone to make some sign or signal at or to a person. Carlo made a sign at Bill, who seemed to know just what to do. Jimmy made an obscene gesture at me!

make something clear to someone to help someone understand something. Let me help make the contract clear to you. I want to make it clear to you, so ask questions if you want.

make something for someone or something to prepare something for someone or something. I made a big bowl of fruit salad for the visitors. James made a cake for the party.

make something from scratch Go to from scratch.

make something from something to make something from certain parts or ingredients. I made this cake from fresh butter and eggs. They made the fences from the stones of a ruined Roman fort.

make something good Go to set something right.

make something in something to make money in a particular enterprise. She made a lot of money in real estate. I hope to make some money in the stock market.

make something of someone or something to succeed with improving someone or something; to turn someone or something into someone or something worthwhile. I tried to make something of you, but you had to do things the way you saw fit. I think I can make something of this script.

make something of something 1. to make an interpretation of something. What do you make of this letter? Look through this and see what sense you make of it. 2. to turn an incident into a dispute. (Usually with it. Often as an invitation to fight. See also make something (out) of something.) Do you want to make something of it? He looks like he wants to make something of it.

make something off (of) someone or something to make money from someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) Are you trying to make your fortune off of me? We think we can make some money off the sale of the house.

make something out[†] to see, read, or hear something well enough to understand it. What did you say? I couldn't quite make it out. Can you make out what he is saying?

make something out of nothing 1. Lit. to create something of value from nearly worthless parts. My uncle—he sells sand—made a fortune out of nothing. My model airplane won the contest even though I made it out of scrap. 2. Fig. to make an issue of something of little importance. Relax, John, you're making a big problem out of nothing. You have no evidence. You're making a case out of nothing.

make something (out) of something 1. Lit. to make something out of parts or raw materials. I will make the cake out of the very best ingredients. Can you make a salad out of these vegetables? 2. Fig. to make an interpretation of something. Can you make anything out of this message? I don't understand it. I'm sorry, I can't make any sense out of it. 3. Fig. to interpret something negatively. (See also make something of something.) The hostess made too much out of my absence.

make something out to be something else to portray something as something else. You are trying to make this tragedy out to be a minor matter. They made the disease out to be something far more serious than it really is.

make something over[†] Go to do something over[†].

make something right Go to set something right.

make something to order to custom-make an item; to make an item to fit someone's specifications. (See also made to order.) The tailor made the jacket to order for me. The carpenter made the built-in bookcase to order for us.

make something up[†] 1. to redo something; to do something that one has failed to do in the past. Can I make the lost time up? Can I make up the test that I missed? 2. to assemble something. We will ship the parts to China where we will make up the computers with cheap labor. (See also make the bed (up).) Have they finished making up the pages for the next edition of the magazine? 3. to think up something; to make and tell a lie. That's not true! You just made that up! I didn't make it up! You made up that story! 4. to mix something up; to assemble something. John: Is my prescription ready? Druggist: No, I haven't made it up yet. I'll make up your prescription in a minute.

make something up[†] from something to create something from something. □ I will make some stew up from the ingredients available in the fridge. □ I will make up a stew from the leftovers.

make something up[†] out of whole cloth Fig. to fabricate a story or a lie. □ That's a lie. You just made that up out of whole cloth. □ That's a lie. You just made up that story out of whole cloth.

make something up to someone to make amends to someone. □ I'm so sorry. I will do what I can to make it up to you. □ I will make it up to them. Don't worry.

make something with something to make something out of something. □ I will make the cake with margarine rather than butter. □ Can you make our coffee with spring water, please?

make sure (of something) to check something and be certain about it. □ Please make sure of your facts before you write the report. □ We made sure of the route we had to follow before we left. □ Please double-check and make sure.

make the arrangements Euph. to arrange a funeral. □ A funeral services practitioner will be happy to help you make the arrangements. □ When my father died, I was the one who made the arrangements.

make the bed (up[†]) and make someone's bed (up[†]) to restore a bed to an unslept-in condition. □ I make my bed every morning. □ The maid goes to all the rooms to make the beds. □ Please make up all the beds early today.

make the best of a bad job Prov. to try to salvage something from a ruined situation. □ When the dry cleaners ruined Mrs. Anderson's coat, they made the best of a bad job by offering to buy her another one.

make the best of something to do as well as possible with something that is not too promising. □ I don't like it, but I will try to make the best of my summer landscaping job by getting a good tan. □ I will make the best of it, for a while anyway.

make the fur fly and make the feathers fly Fig. to cause a fight or an argument; to create an uproar. □ When your mother gets home and sees what you've done, she'll really make the fur fly. □ When those two get together, they'll make the feathers fly. They hate each other.

make the grade to be satisfactory; to be what is expected. □ I'm sorry, but your work doesn't exactly make the grade. □ This meal doesn't just make the grade. It is excellent.

make the most of something to make something appear as good as possible; to exploit something; to get as much out of something as is possible. □ Mary knows how to make the most of her talents. □ They designed the advertisements to make the most of the product's features.

make the scene 1. Sl. to attend an event. □ We plan to make the scene, but we may be a bit late. □ I hope everybody can make the scene. 2. Sl. to understand a situation; to appreciate the situation. □ I can't quite make the scene, but it looks like Willie punched the guy over here. Then he moved to the window over here, and that's when the woman across the street saw him. □ I can make the scene. It's just like you said, except Willie came in and found the guy laid out on the floor.

make the team to have been qualified enough to be selected to play on a sports team. □ I tried out, but I didn't make the team.

make time for someone or something Go to time for someone or something.

make time (with someone) to flirt with, date, or hang around with someone. □ I hear that Tom's been making time with Ann. □ I hear they've been making time for months.

make (too) much of someone or something to pay too much attention to someone or something. □ We all believe you are making much of Tom when he has done no more than anyone else. □ Don't make too much of it. It was really nothing.

make tracks (for something) Fig. to move rapidly toward something or some place. □ The cowboys all made tracks for the chuck wagon. □ Let's make tracks! Here comes the sheriff.

make trouble to cause trouble or additional work. □ I don't want to make trouble, but I have a few suggestions that could make things work more smoothly.

make up to put on makeup. □ I have to go make up before Joe comes to pick me up.

make up a foursome to assemble into a team of four people. □ We have three people now. Who can we get to make up a foursome? □ Let's make up a foursome and play bridge.

make up for lost time to catch up; to go fast to balance a period of going slow or not moving. □ We drove as fast as we could, trying to make up for lost time. □ Hurry. We have to make up for lost time.

make up for someone or something 1. to take the place of someone or something. □ John can't play in the game Saturday, but I think I can make up for him. □ Do you think that this cat can make up for the one that ran away? 2. to compensate for someone or something someone did. □ We all had to do extra work to make up for Harry, who was very tired from being out late the night before. □ We will certainly make up for what we failed to do.

make up something to constitute something. (See also make something up.) □ Two chapters make up this volume. □ Over forty freight cars made up the train.

make up (to someone) 1. to apologize to someone. □ It's too late to make up to me. □ I think you should go make up to Jerry. 2. to try to become friends with someone. □ Look how the cat is making up to Richard! □ Jimmy is making up to Donna, and she doesn't even notice.

make up (with someone) to reconcile with someone; to end a disagreement (with someone). □ Bill and Max decided to make up. □ They made up with each other and are now very good friends.

make use of someone or something to utilize someone or something; to do something useful with someone or something. □ Can you make use of these papers? □ We were unable to make use of the items you shipped to us.

make war (on someone or something) 1. Lit. to attack someone or something and start a war. □ The small country's generals made war on the United States, hoping for foreign aid when they lost the war. 2. Fig. to actively oppose someone or something. □ The police made war on violent street crime.

make water Euph. to urinate. □ She's got some kind of condition where it hurts when she makes water. □ Can we stop at this here gas station? I need to make water.

make waves Sl. to cause difficulty. (Often in the negative.) □ Just relax. Don't make waves. □ If you make waves too much around here, you won't last long.

make way to make progress; to move ahead. (Originally nautical. See also make way (for someone or something).) □ Is this project making way? □ A sailboat can't make way if there is no wind.

make way (for someone or something) to clear a path for someone or something. □ Make way for the stretcher. □ Here comes the doctor—make way!

make with something Sl. to deliver something. □ Come on, make with the stuff you promised! □ Make with the information, Max, or you will stay in jail even longer! □ Come on, make with the cash. □ I want to know. Come on, make with the answers!

Make your mind up[†]. Fig. Please make a decision.; Please choose. □ Henry: I don't have all day. Make up your mind. Rachel: Don't rush me. □ Bob: Make your mind up. We have to catch the plane. Mary: I'm not sure I want to go.

Make yourself at home. Fig. Please make yourself comfortable in my home. (Also a signal that a guest can be less formal.) □ Andy: Please come in and make yourself at home. Sue: Thank you. I'd like to. □ Bill: I hope I'm not too early. Bob: Not at all. Come in and make yourself at home. I've got a few little things to do. Bill: Nice place you've got here.

man about town a fashionable man who leads a sophisticated life. □ He prefers a nightclub to a quiet night at home—a man about town. □ Bob's too much of a man about town to go to a football game.

a man after my own heart Fig. a man with similar tastes and preferences to mine. □ You like creamed chip-beef on toast? There's a man after my own heart.

Man does not live by bread alone. Prov. In order to survive, people need more than physical things like food and shelter.; People need mental or spiritual things like satisfaction and love. (Biblical.) □ Alan: I'm so miserable. Jill: How can you be miserable? You've got a good place to live, plenty to eat, nice clothes. . . . Alan: But man does not live by bread alone.

the man in the street Fig. the ordinary person. □ Politicians rarely care what the man in the street thinks. □ The man in the street has little interest in literature.

A man is known by the company he keeps. Prov. A person tends to associate with people who are like him or her. □ Son, when you go away to school, spend your time with serious people; don't hang around with people who go to parties all the time. A man is known by the company he keeps. □ If you want to know what kind of person George is, look at his friends. A man is known by the company he keeps.

a man of few words Fig. someone, not necessarily a man, who speaks concisely or not at all. □ He is a man of few words, but he usually makes a lot of sense.

a man of the cloth Fig. a clergyman. □ Father Brown is a man of the cloth and is welcome at our table for dinner every Sunday.

Man proposes, God disposes. Prov. People may make plans, but they cannot control the outcome of their plans. □ Jill: Are you really going to be able to finish writing your novel by the end of the year? Bob: Man proposes, God disposes.

man's best friend Fig. a dog; dogs in general. □ Man's best friend just peed all over my shoes!

A man's home is his castle. Prov. Cliché One can do whatever one wants to in one's own home. □ Don't tell me not to go around the house in my underwear. A man's home is his castle. □ I'll play my radio loud if I want to. A man's home is his castle.

man's inhumanity to man Fig. human cruelty toward other humans. □ It doesn't take a war to remind us of man's inhumanity to man.

manage with someone or something to do as well as possible with only someone or something (less than one had hoped for). □ We wanted Kelly to help us, but we will manage with Larry. □ I am sure we can manage with the money that we have.

manage without someone or something to do as well as possible without someone or something. □ Carla said that she just can't manage without Jerry. □ We just can't manage without some more money.

maneuver for something to get into position for something. □ Sally is maneuvering for a shot at a promotion. □ Todd maneuvered for some attention, but they ignored him.

maneuver someone into something to lure, position, or deceive someone into (doing) something. □ I will see if I can maneuver him into accepting the offer. □ He was maneuvered into accepting the offer.

maneuver someone out of something to trick someone out of getting or achieving something. □ Are you trying to maneuver me out of the running for the job? □ The runner maneuvered her opponent out of first place.

manna from heaven Fig. unexpected help or comfort. (A biblical reference.) □ The arrival of the rescue team was like manna from heaven to the injured climber. □ The offer of a new job just as she had been fired was manna from heaven to Joan.

Many a true word is spoken in jest. and There's many a true word spoken in jest. Prov. Just because something is said as a joke, it can still be true. □ Fred: Why did you make a joke about my being stingy? Do you really think I'm cheap? Ellen: Of course not, don't be silly. It was just a joke. Fred: But many a true word is spoken in jest.

many (and many)'s the time there have been many times. □ Many and many's the time I warned him not to go to the swimmin' hole by himself. □ Many's the time she's forgiven her husband.

Many are called but few are chosen. Prov. Many people may answer a call for something, but only a few people are finally selected. (Biblical.) □ When it comes to getting into a good college, many are called but few are chosen.

Many hands make light work. Prov. If everyone helps with a large task, it will get done easily and quickly. □ Cleaning up the banquet room won't take long if we all help; many hands make light work. □ You do have a lot of dishes to wash, but you also have all of us to help you, and many hands make light work.

map something out^t to plot something out carefully, usually on paper. □ I have a good plan. I will map it out for you. □ I will map out the plan for you.

mar something up^t to dent or scratch something; to harm the smooth finish of something. □ Please don't mar the furniture up. □ Don't mar up my desk.

march against someone or something to march in a demonstration against someone or something. □ The demonstrators marched against the mayor. □ The citizens got together and marched against crime and injustice.

march behind someone or something Go to behind someone or something.

March comes in like a lion, and goes out like a lamb. and In like a lion, out like a lamb. Prov. The month of March usually starts with cold, unpleasant weather, but ends mild and pleasant. (Either part of the proverb can be used alone.) □ March certainly is coming in like a lion this year; there's been a snowstorm every day this week. □ Jill: Today is March twenty-fifth, and it's beautiful and warm outside, when just two weeks ago, everything was covered with ice. Jane: In like a lion and out like a lamb, all right.

march (from some place) (to some place) to move along, walking with purposeful steps, from some place to some place. □ The army marched from one town to another. □ They marched to the battlefield from town.

march in (a) single file Go to in (a) single file.

march in step (with someone) Go to in step (with someone).

march on 1. Lit. to continue marching. □ Please march on. Don't stop here; there are other parts of the parade coming along behind you. □ Let's march on. We have a long way to go. 2. Fig. [for time] to continue. □ Time marches on. We are all getting older. □ As the day marches on, try to get everything completed.

march out of time (with someone or something) Go to out of step (with someone or something).

march past someone or something to move in a file or formation past someone or something. □ The people in the parade marched past the children standing on the curb. □ The soldiers marched past the general.

march to (the beat of) a different drummer Fig. to believe in a different set of principles. □ John is marching to a different drummer, and he doesn't associate with us anymore. □ Since Sally started marching to the beat of a different drummer, she has had a lot of great new ideas.

mark my word(s) Fig. remember what I'm telling you. □ Mark my word, you'll regret this. □ This whole project will fail—mark my words.

mark someone down^t [for a teacher] to give someone a low score. □ He'll mark you down for misspelled words. □ I marked down Tom for bad spelling.

mark someone for life Fig. to affect someone for life. □ The tragedy marked her for life and she was never the same. □ She was marked for life by her brother's untimely death.

mark someone or something off^t and mark someone or something out^t to cross off the name of someone or something. □ They were late, so I marked them off. □ I marked off the late people. □ Could you mark that title out? It has been discontinued.

mark someone or something out^t Go to previous.

mark someone or something with something 1. to use something with which to mark someone or something. □ She marked one of the twins with a sticker so she could identify him later. □ Jill marked the ones that were sold with a wax pencil. 2. to place a particular kind of mark on someone or something. □ The attendant marked the concertgoers who had paid with a rubber stamp. □ Frank marked the book with his initials.

mark something as something to make a mark next to the name of something on a list indicating what the thing is. □ I will mark this one as expired. □ This one is marked as needing repair work.

mark something down^t 1. Lit. to write something down on paper. □ She marked the number down on the paper. □ She marked down the number. 2. Fig. to reduce the price of something. □ We are going to mark all this merchandise down next Monday. □ We marked down the merchandise.

mark something in^t to write or make a mark on something, perhaps in a box or on a line. □ I will mark an X in the box by your name. □ I'll mark in the X.

mark something up^t 1. to mess something up with marks. □ Don't mark up your book! □ Who marked this book up? 2. to grade a paper and make lots of informative marks and comments on it. □ The teacher really marked up my term paper. □ Why did you mark my test up so much? I hardly made any errors. 3. to raise the price of something. □ The grocery store seems to mark the price of food up every week. □ They don't mark up the price of turkey at Thanksgiving.

mark time Fig. to wait; to do nothing but wait. □ I'll just mark time till things get better. □ Do you expect me to just stand here and mark time?

a marked man Fig. to be someone, usually a male, who is in danger from harm by someone else. (*Typically: be ~; live like ~.) □ Bob's a marked man. His parents found out that he's skipping school. □ Fred's a marked man, too. Jack is looking for him to get his money back.

maroon someone on an island to strand someone on something; to abandon someone on something, such as an island. □ The pirate captain marooned his first mate on a small island in the Caribbean. □ Through a navigation error, I marooned myself on a tiny island east of Guam.

a marriage made in heaven and a match made in heaven a happy or harmonious marriage or partnership. (See also Marriages are made in heaven.) □ The partnership of George and Ira Gershwin was a match made in heaven; they wrote such beautiful songs.

Marriages are made in heaven. Prov. You cannot foretell who will marry whom.; Two people may love each other very much but may end up not marrying each other, and two people who do not even know each other may marry each other in the end. □ Tom and Eliza were childhood sweethearts, had a happy family, and now are celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Marriages are made in heaven.

marry above oneself Fig. to marry someone in a higher social class than oneself. □ They say she married above herself, but who cares? □ Scott thought it would not be possible to marry above himself.

marry below oneself and marry beneath oneself Fig. to marry someone in a lower social class than oneself. □ He married beneath himself, but he is happy, and what more is required of a marriage? □ He did not want to marry beneath himself.

marry beneath oneself Go to previous.

Marry in haste, (and) repent at leisure. Prov. If you marry someone you do not know well, or decide to marry someone without first carefully considering what you are doing, you will probably regret it for a long time. □ Sally wanted some time to consider Sam's proposal of marriage; she had heard the saying, "Marry in haste, and repent at leisure."

marry into something to become a part of a family or a fortune by marriage. □ She married into money, they say. □ I always wanted to marry into a large family until I found out what that means in terms of buying gifts.

marry one's way out of something to get out of something, such as poverty, by marrying someone. □ She was able to marry her way out of poverty but regretted it in the long run. □ Sally married her way out of one unhappy home into another one.

marry someone off (to someone) to manage to get someone married to someone and out of the house or family. □ Her parents wanted nothing more than to marry her off to a doctor. □ They married off their children soon.

marry up (with someone) Rur. to marry someone. □ They married up in the spring. □ Jane's going to marry up with someone she met at school.

marshal someone or something together to organize or gather someone or something together. □ The leader marshaled all his people together in preparation for the parade. □ Let's marshal the troops together for the attack.

marvel at someone or something Fig. to express wonder or surprise at someone or something. □ I can only marvel at Valerie and all she has accomplished. □ We all marveled at the beauty of the new building.

a marvel to behold someone or something quite exciting or wonderful to see. □ Our new high-definition television is a marvel to behold. □ Mary's lovely new baby is a marvel to behold.

dash on something to press on something, such as a button. (Southern.) □ He kept mashing on the doorbell until someone responded. □ Just dash on this button if you want someone to come.

dash something up⁺ to crush something into a paste or pieces. □ Mash the potatoes up and put them in a bowl. □ Mash up the potatoes and serve them to our guests.

dash something with something 1. to use something to dash something up. □ Vernon mashed the potatoes with a spoon because he couldn't find the masher. □ Gerald used the heel of his shoe to mash the wasp. 2. to combine ingredients while mashing. □ Mash the turnips with the butter. □ She mashed the potatoes with sour cream, cream cheese, and a little garlic salt.

dash something out⁺ to conceal or cover part of something from view. □ The trees dashed the city dump out, so it could not be seen from the street. □ The trees dashed out the dump.

dasher as someone or something to appear disguised as someone or something; to pretend to be someone or something. □ We decided to dasher as ghosts for the party. □ Mr. Wilson, who is a bit overweight, dashed as Cinderella's coach.

a dash for someone, something, or an animal someone, something, or an animal that is the equal of someone, something, or some other animal, especially in a contest. □ My older brother is no dash for me; he's much weaker. □ Your horse is no dash for mine in a race. Mine will always win.

a dash made in heaven Go to a marriage made in heaven.

dash someone against someone else or something against something else to challenge someone with someone else in a contest; to challenge something with something else in a contest. □ I will dash my boxer against your boxer any day. □ I'll dash myself against you any day!

dash someone or something in something to equal someone or something in some quality. □ I am sure I dash her in wisdom if not in grace and beauty. □ You do not dash her in any way.

dash someone (up⁺) (with someone) and dash something (up⁺) (with something) to pair people or things. □ I will dash Carl up with Kelly and George with Jane. □ I will dash up Carl with Kelly.

dash up [for things or people] to match, be equal, or complementary. □ These dash up. See how they are the same length? □ Sorry, but these two parts don't dash up.

dash up to something [for something] to match, be equal to, or complementary to something. □ This sock does not dash up to the other one. □ This one matches up to all the others.

dash wits (with someone) Fig. to enter into intellectual competition with someone. □ Whenever I try to dash wits with Fred, he always ends up running circles around me with his clever repartee.

dash someone with someone and dash an animal with some other animal to pair or breed people or animals. □ The king sought to dash his daughter with the son of a magician. □ Harry wanted to dash his guppies with June's guppies.

dash with an animal [for an animal] to copulate with its own kind. □ The gander dashed with the goose in the barnyard. □ The coyote acted as if it wanted to dash with the dog.

dash with someone to marry with someone, and presumably, to copulate with someone. □ Did you meet anyone you would like to dash with and spend the rest of your life with?

materialize out of nowhere Go to out of nowhere.

a matter of life and death Cliché an issue of great urgency; an issue that will decide between living and dying. We must find a doctor. It's a matter of life and death. A matter of life and death demands that I return home at once.

a matter of opinion the question of how good or bad someone or something is. It's a matter of opinion how strong the company is. John thinks it's great and Fred thinks it's poor.

matter to someone to be important to someone. Does money really matter to you? Yes, it matters to me a lot.

max out to reach one's maximum in something, such as weight in weight lifting or credit on a credit card. Andy finally maxed out at 300 pounds. Randy just knew when he had maxed out. Something in his body told him to stop.

maxed out 1. Sl. exhausted; tired. I am just maxed out. I haven't been getting enough sleep. I had to stop work because I was too maxed out. 2. Sl. intoxicated. Sam was maxed out and seemed happy enough to sit under the table and whimper. I hadn't seen Barlowe so maxed out in years. He was nearly paralyzed.

may as well Go to might as well.

May I be excused? May I leave this place, please?; May I leave to use the toilet? Nature calls. May I be excused? The student raised her hand and said, "Teacher, may I be excused?"

M May I help you? Go to Could I help you?; How may I help you?

May I see you again? Go to Could I see you again?

May I speak to someone? Go to Could I speak to someone?

May I take a message? Go to Could I take a message?

May I take your order (now)? Go to Could I take your order (now)?

May I tell him who's calling? Go to Could I tell him who's calling?

May I use your powder room? Go to Could I use your powder room?

Maybe some other time. and We'll try again some other time. a polite phrase said by a person whose invitation has just been turned down by another person. Bill: Do you think you can come to the party? Bob: I'll have to beg off. I have another engagement. Bill: Maybe some other time. John: Can you and Alice come over this Friday? Bill: Gee, sorry. We have something else on. John: We'll try again some other time.

mean business to be very, very serious. Stop laughing! I mean business. I could tell from the look on her face that she meant business.

mean by something to intend a certain meaning by words or deeds. What do you mean by that? I did not mean anything special by my remarks.

mean (for someone) to do something to intend (for someone) to do something. John meant to go with us to the zoo. John meant for Jane to do the dishes.

mean lean times (ahead) Go to lean times (ahead).

mean no offense not to intend to offend. (See also take no offense.) I'm really sorry. I meant no offense. It was simply a slip of the tongue. He meant no offense by it.

mean nothing (to someone) 1. not to make sense to someone. This sentence means nothing to me. It isn't clearly written. I'm sorry. This message means nothing.

2. [for someone] not to have feeling for someone or something. Do I mean nothing to you after all these years? Do all those years of devotion mean nothing?

mean something as something to intend something to be understood as something. Do you mean your remarks as criticism? I meant my comment as encouragement.

mean something for someone or something 1. Lit. to imply something important for someone or something; to be important or meaningful for someone or something. Are your comments supposed to mean something special for me? I mean these remarks for the government. 2. Fig. to intend for someone or something to have or receive something. Do you mean this gift for me? I mean this gift for the entire community.

mean something (to someone) 1. Lit. to make sense to someone. Does this line mean anything to you? Yes, it means something. 2. Fig. [for someone] to cause positive feelings in another person. You mean a lot to me. This job means a lot to Ann.

a mean streak Fig. a tendency for a person to do things that are mean. I think that Wally has a mean streak that no one ever saw before this incident.

mean to (do something) to intend to do something. Did you mean to do that? No, it was an accident. I didn't mean to.

mean well to intend to be nice, polite, helpful, etc., but fail in the effort. I know you mean well, but your comments are sort of insulting.

meaner than a junkyard dog (with fourteen sucking pups) Rur. cruel; eager to fight. Don't mess with her. She's meaner than a junkyard dog with fourteen sucking pups. They say Jim's meaner than a junkyard dog, but really, he's a sweetheart.

meant to be destined to exist. Our love was meant to be! It was not meant to be.

meant to be something destined or fated to be something. Jane was meant to be a chemist. I was meant to be rich, but something didn't work right!

measure someone against someone else or something against something else to compare someone with someone else; to compare something with something else. Daniel measured his brother against the boy next door. We measured the new building against the older ones and found the new one lacking in many respects. I measured myself against Tom and found him superior in almost everything.

measure someone up against someone or something to place someone up against someone or something else for the purpose of comparing size or other qualities. Please measure Fred up against Tom and see who has the best qualifications. Can you measure Brian up against the mark on the wall to see how tall he is growing?

measure something off to determine the length of something. He measured the length of the room off and wrote down the figure in his notebook. □ Fred measured off the width of the house. □ Fred measured a few feet of string off, and cut it with a knife.

measure something out¹ to measure and distribute something as it is being taken out, unwrapped, unfolded, etc. □ Carl measured the grain out a cup at a time. □ He measured out the grain little by little.

measure up (to someone or something) to compare well to someone or something. □ He just doesn't measure up to Sarah in intelligence. □ This meal doesn't measure up to my expectations.

a Mecca for someone Fig. a place that is frequently visited by a particular group of people because it is important to them for some reason. (From the city of Mecca, the religious center of Islam.) □ New York City is a Mecca for theatergoers. □ St. Andrews is a Mecca for golf enthusiasts because of its famous course.

meddle in something to intrude [oneself] into something. □ I wish you wouldn't meddle in my affairs. □ Go meddle in someone else's business.

meddle with someone or something to interfere with someone or something; to mess around with someone or something. □ Please don't meddle with me. I am in a bad mood. □ Would you please stop meddling with my computer?

mediate between someone and someone else to negotiate an agreement between people. □ I will have to mediate between Mary and Vernon. □ No one wants to mediate between them.

meditate on someone or something to reflect on someone or something. □ Judy was instructed to meditate on a flower. □ I will meditate on that happy thought.

meek as a lamb [of someone] shy, quiet, and docile. (*Also: as ~.) □ Only an hour after their argument, Joe went to Elizabeth and, meek as a lamb, asked her to forgive him. □ Betsy terrorizes the other children, but she's as meek as a lamb around her elders.

meet one's death and meet one's end Fig. to die. □ After 20 years, my dog finally met his death when he got hit by a bus. □ The skydiver met his end when his parachute didn't open.

meet one's end Go to previous.

meet one's match Fig. to meet one's equal; to encounter someone who can match or outdo one in some activity, talent, etc. □ John played tennis with Bill yesterday, and it looks as if John has finally met his match. □ Listen to Jane and Mary argue. I always thought that Jane was loud, but she has finally met her match.

meet one's Waterloo Fig. to meet one's final and insurmountable challenge. (Alludes to the final defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo.) □ The boss is being very hard on Bill. It seems that Bill has finally met his Waterloo. □ John was more than Sally could handle. She has finally met her Waterloo.

meet someone halfway Fig. to compromise with someone. □ No, I won't give in, but I'll meet you halfway. □ They settled the argument by agreeing to meet each other halfway.

meet the requirements (for something) to fulfill the requirements for something. □ Sally was unable to meet the requirements for the job. □ Jane met the requirements and was told to report to work the next day.

meet up with someone or something to meet someone or something, usually by accident. □ I met up with Don on the street yesterday. □ James met up with a strange accident.

meet with someone to have a meeting with someone. □ I will meet with all of them on Monday. □ When can I meet with you?

meet with something 1. [for someone] to experience something, such as an accident. □ Poor Carlo met with a serious accident. □ Henry always feared meeting with a horrible fate. 2. [for someone or something] to strike or touch something. □ That board is supposed to meet perfectly with the surface of the wall. □ Her head met with the top of the car a number of times during the journey. 3. to encounter some kind of response. □ The proposal met with unexpected opposition. □ Her speech was met with universal approval.

a meeting of the minds the establishment of agreement; complete agreement. □ After a lot of discussion we finally reached a meeting of the minds. □ We struggled to bring about a meeting of the minds on the issues.

a mell of a hess Inf. a hell of a mess. (A deliberate spoonerism.) □ What a mell of a hess you've gotten us into this time. □ Have you ever seen such a mell of a hess?

mellow out 1. to become less angry. □ When you mellow out, maybe we can talk. □ Come on, man, stop yelling and mellow out! 2. to become generally more relaxed. □ Gary was nearly forty before he started to mellow out a little and take life less seriously. □ After his illness, he mellowed out and seemed more glad to be alive.

melt away to melt into a liquid. □ The ice cubes melted away quickly in the intense heat. □ When the wax candles melted away, they ruined the lace tablecloth.

melt down 1. Lit. [for something frozen] to melt. □ The glacier melted down little by little. □ When the ice on the streets melted down, it was safe to drive again. 2. Fig. [for a nuclear reactor] to become hot enough to melt through its container. □ The whole system was on the verge of melting down.

melt in one's mouth 1. to taste very good. (Also can be literal.) □ This cake is so good it'll melt in your mouth. □ John said that the food didn't exactly melt in his mouth. 2. [of meat] to be very, very tender. □ My steak is so tender it could melt in my mouth. □ This filet will melt in your mouth!

melt in something 1. [for something] to melt to a liquid at a high temperature. □ Surely the plastic cup will melt in such heat. □ This tray will melt in the oven, so keep it out of there. 2. [for something] to dissolve in a particular liquid. □ Sugar melts in hot water easily. □ Will this substance melt in heated water?

melt into something to melt and change into a different state. □ All the ice cream melted into a sticky soup. □ The candles melted into a pool of colored wax in all the heat we had last summer.

melt something away¹ to cause something to melt into a liquid. □ The sun melted the ice away. □ The sun melted away the ice.

melt something down[†] to cause something frozen to melt; to cause something solid to melt. □ The rays of the sun melted the candle down to a puddle of wax. □ The heat melted down the ice.

melt something into something to cause something to change its state when melting. □ The ice melted into a cold liquid that we could drink. □ We melted the fat into a liquid that we could deep-fry in.

Men are blind in their own cause. Prov. If you believe in something very fervently, you will not recognize the flaws in what you believe or the dangers associated with it. □ Jill: Lyle is so intent on converting people to his religion, that he doesn't see that his constant preaching is alienating his friends. Jane: Men are blind in their own cause.

Men make houses, women make homes. Prov. Men are often the ones who build or acquire houses for their families, but women provide the things that make a house into a home. □ When William moved into his own apartment, his mother insisted on choosing and arranging the furniture and decorations for him. "Men make houses, women make homes," she said, "and I want you to have a home as nice as the one you grew up in."

mend (one's) fences 1. Lit. to repair fences as part of one's chores. □ Tom is mending fences today at the south end of the ranch. 2. Fig. to restore good relations (with someone). □ I think I had better get home and mend my fences. I had an argument with my daughter this morning. □ Sally called up her uncle to apologize and try to mend fences.

mend one's ways Fig. to improve one's behavior. □ John used to be very wild, but he's mended his ways. □ You'll have to mend your ways if you go out with Mary. She hates people to be late.

a mental block (against something) Fig. to have some psychological barrier that prevents one from doing something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Perry has a mental block against speaking in public.

mention someone or something in passing to mention someone or something casually; to mention someone or something while talking about someone or something else. □ He just happened to mention in passing that the mayor had resigned. □ John mentioned in passing that he was nearly eighty years old.

mention someone or something in something 1. to name someone or something in a particular context. □ We mentioned you in regard to nominations for the congress. □ Everyone mentioned your book in the discussions. 2. to name someone or something in a will, lecture, story, article, etc. □ They mentioned your name in the discussion. □ Uncle Herman mentioned you in his will.

mention something to someone to refer to something while talking to someone. □ Please mention it to your father. □ You had better not mention that to anyone.

a mere trifle Fig. a tiny bit; a small, unimportant matter; a small amount of money. □ But this isn't expensive! It costs a mere trifle!

merge in(to something) to join into something. □ The stream merged into the main channel of the river.

merge someone or something into something and merge someone or something in[†] to route someone or something into something else. □ They merged the marchers into the parade and no one ever knew they were late. □ We merged in the latecomers to the parade at an intersection.

merge something with something else to join two things together. □ The management merged the sales division with the marketing division. □ We merged the accounting department with the auditing department.

merge with someone or something to join with someone or something. □ Ted merged with Fred and they created a very profitable partnership. □ Our company merged with a larger one, and we all kept our jobs. □ This stream merges with a larger stream about two miles to the west.

merry as a cricket and merry as the day is long very happy and carefree. (*Also: as ~.) □ Mary is as merry as a cricket whenever she has company come to call. □ The little children are as merry as the day is long.

merry as the day is long Go to previous.

mesh together to fit together. □ Their interests and personalities mesh together perfectly. □ Their ideas don't mesh together too well.

mesh with something to fit with something. □ Your idea just doesn't mesh with my plans. □ Currently, your proposed project doesn't mesh at all well with our long-range planning.

mess about Go to mess around.

mess about (with something) Go to mess around (with something).

mess around and mess about 1. to waste time; to do something ineffectually. □ Stop messing around and get busy. □ I wish you wouldn't mess about so much. You waste a lot of time that way. 2. to play [with someone] sexually. □ Those two have been messing around. □ Pete was messing around with Maria during the summer.

mess around (with something) and mess about (with something); monkey around (with something) 1. to play with or fiddle with something idly and with no good purpose. □ Don't mess around with the ashtray. □ You'll break it if you don't stop messing about with it. 2. to experiment with something; to use and learn about something. □ We had been messing about with some new video techniques when we made our discovery. □ The people in this lab are messing around with all kinds of polymers.

mess someone over[†] Sl. to treat someone badly; to beat or harm someone. □ Max messed Lefty over and sent him to the hospital. □ Max messed over Lefty.

mess someone's face up[†] Sl. to beat someone about the face. □ The champ threatened to mess the challenger's face up. □ The champ broke the challenger's nose and really did mess up his face.

mess someone up[†] Sl. to rough someone up; to beat someone up. □ The robbers threatened to mess Bob up if he didn't cooperate. □ John messed up Bill a little, but no real harm was done.

mess something up[†] to make something disorderly; to create disorder in something; to throw someone's plans awry. □ You really messed this place up! □ Who messed up my bed?

mess up to make an error; to do something wrong; to flub up. □ I hope I don't mess up on the quiz. □ You really messed up and now you're in big trouble!

mess with someone or something and monkey with someone or something to bother or interfere with someone or something. □ Come on, don't monkey with my new camera. □ Don't mess with me unless you want trouble.

messed up 1. confused. □ I'm sort of messed up since my divorce. □ Most kids are sort of messed up at this age.
2. intoxicated. □ Somehow I must have got messed up. What caused it, do you think? □ Everybody at the party was too messed up to drive home.

metamorphose into something to transform into something. □ This ugly caterpillar will surely metamorphose into something beautiful. □ At about eighteen, Wally metamorphosed into a reasonably handsome young man.

mete something out¹ to measure something out. □ She meted the solution out carefully into a row of test tubes. □ She meted out the cookies to each of them.

method in one's madness Fig. a purpose in what one is doing, even though it seems to be crazy. (*Typically: be ~; have ~.) □ What I'm doing may look strange, but there is method in my madness. □ Wait until she finishes; then you'll see that she has method in her madness.

a middle ground a position of compromise; a state of thinking where two opposing parties can discuss an issue politely and productively. □ If we could only reach a middle ground on this issue, things wouldn't be so confrontational.

the middle of nowhere a very isolated place. □ I don't want to stay out here in the middle of nowhere. □ I was stranded in the middle of nowhere for an hour with a flat tire.

might and main Cliché great physical strength; great force. □ The huge warrior, with all his might and main, could not break his way through the castle gates. □ The incredible might and main of the sea crushed the ship against the cliff.

might as well and may as well a phrase indicating that it is probably better to do something than not to do it. □ Bill: Should we try to get there for the first showing of the film? Jane: Might as well. Nothing else to do. □ Andy: May as well leave now. It doesn't matter if we arrive a little bit early. Jane: Why do we always have to be the first to arrive?

might as well be hung for a sheep as (for) a lamb Rur. might as well commit a large fault as a small one, since the same punishment will result. □ I'll take the expensive fishing rod. My wife will be mad at me no matter how much I spend, so I might as well be hung for a sheep as for a lamb.

might could Rur. might be able to. □ Charlie: Can you come out with me after work? Tom: I might could. I'll have to see if my wife has other plans. □ I might could help you, if you'll tell me what's the matter.

Might makes right. Prov. Cliché The stronger of two opponents will always control the situation. □ Child: How come the country with the biggest army always tells the other countries what to do? Father: Might makes right.

might(y) nigh Rur. very nearly. □ We mighty nigh lost Mary that time she fell through the ice in the river. □ That was might nigh the worst night of my life.

Mighty oaks from little acorns grow. Go to Great oaks from little acorns grow.

migrate between some place and some place else to change residence from one place to another, perhaps repeatedly. □ These birds migrate between the north and the south. □ They migrate between their cottage in the North in the summer and their condo in Florida in the winter.

migrate (from some place) (to some place) [for a population] to move from some place to another. □ The birds all migrate from Europe to Africa. □ They migrate to Canada from South America.

a mile a minute Fig. very fast. (*Typically: go ~; move ~; talk ~; travel ~.) □ She talks a mile a minute and is very hard to keep up with.

a milestone in someone's life and an important milestone in someone's life a very important event or point in one's life. (From the [former] stone markers at the side of a road showing the distance to or from a place.) □ Joan's wedding was a milestone in her mother's life. □ The birth of a child is a milestone in every parent's life.

militate against something [for something] to work against something. □ Everything you have said today militates against an early settlement to our disagreement. □ This really militates against my going to college.

the milk of human kindness Fig. natural kindness and sympathy shown to others. (From Shakespeare's play Macbeth, I. v.) □ Mary is completely hard and selfish—she doesn't have the milk of human kindness in her. □ Roger is too full of the milk of human kindness and people take advantage of him.

milk someone for something Fig. to pressure someone into giving information or money. □ The reporter milked the mayor's aide for information. □ The thief milked me for $20.

mill around and mill about to wander or move around aimlessly within a small area. □ Everyone was milling around, looking for something to do. □ The students milled about between classes.

The mill cannot grind with water that is past. Prov. Do not waste the opportunities you now have.; Do not waste time wishing for what you had in the past. □ If you want to go abroad, do it now, while you're young and have the money. The mill cannot grind with water that is past.

a million miles away Fig. lost in thought; [of someone] daydreaming and not paying attention. (Only one's mind is far away. *Typically: be ~; look to be ~; seem ~.) □ He was a million miles away during the entire lecture. □ Look at her. She is a million miles away, not paying any attention to what she is doing.

The mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small. Prov. It may take a long time, but evil will always be punished. □ Jill: It really doesn't seem right that Fred can be so horrible and dishonest, but he always gets everything he wants. Jane: Be patient. The mills of God grind slowly, yet they grind exceeding small.

a millstone about one's neck a continual burden or handicap. □ This huge and expensive house is a millstone about my neck. □ Bill's inability to control his temper is a millstone about his neck.

mince (one's) words to soften the effect of one's words. □ Tell me what you think, and don't mince your words. □ A frank person never minces words.

Mind if...? Go to (Do you) mind if...?

mind one's own business Fig. to attend only to the things that concern one. □ Leave me alone, Bill. Mind your own business. □ I'd be fine if John would mind his own business.

mind one's p's and q's. Prov. to behave properly; to display good manners. □ When you children go to visit Aunt Muriel, you'll have to mind your p's and q's; not like at home, where I let you do as you please. □ We'd better mind our p's and q's for this new teacher; I hear he's very strict.

mind over matter Fig. [an instance where there are] intellectual powers overriding threats, difficulties, or problems. □ You need to concentrate harder. Pay no attention to your surroundings. This is a case of mind over matter.

mind the store and watch the store Fig. to take care of local matters. □ Please stay here in the office and mind the store while I go to the conference. □ I had to stay home and watch the store when Ann went to Boston.

mind you a phrase introducing something that should be taken into consideration. □ He's very well dressed, but mind you, he's got plenty of money to buy clothes. □ Lisa is unfriendly to me, but mind you, she's never very nice to anyone.

Mind your own beeswax. to mind one's own business. (Juvenile.) □ You just mind your own beeswax! □ Lay off! Mind your own beeswax!

Mind your own business. and Get your nose out of my business.; Keep your nose out of my business. Fig. Stop prying into my affairs. (Not at all polite. The expressions with get and keep can have the literal meanings of removing and keeping removed.) □ Andy: This is none of your affair. Mind your own business. Sue: I was only trying to help. □ Bob: How much did you pay in federal taxes last year? Jane: Good grief, Bob! Keep your nose out of my business! □ Tom: How much did it cost? Sue: Tom! Get your nose out of my business! □ "Hey!" shrieked Sally, jerking the checkbook out of Sue's grasp. "Get your nose out of my business!"

mine for something to dig into the ground in search of a mineral, a metal, or an ore. □ The prospectors ended up mining for coal. □ What are they mining for in those hills?

a mine of information Fig. someone or something that is full of information. □ Grandfather is a mine of information about World War II. □ The new search engine is a positive mine of useful information.

mingle in (with someone) to join in with someone; to mix with people. □ I am going to go into the hall and mingle in with the rest of the guests. □ Ken came into the room and mingled in at once.

mingle someone with someone else and mingle something with something else to mix people together; to mix things together. □ Try to mingle your friends with mine. □ You had better not mingle your money with that of the corporation.

mingle with someone to mix with people. □ Try to mingle with the guests. □ I would like to get out and mingle with people more.

minister to someone or something to take care of someone or someone's needs. □ Sarah tried to minister to the people of the village. □ He sought to minister to the grief of the widow.

minor in something to study a secondary subject in college. (Compare this with major in something.) □ I minored in math in college. □ I decided to minor in history.

the minute something happens the point in time at which an event happens. □ I'll be inside the minute it rains. □ Call me the minute you get to town.

a miscarriage of justice a wrong or mistaken decision, especially one made in a court of law. □ Sentencing the old man on a charge of murder proved to be a miscarriage of justice. □ Punishing the student for cheating was a miscarriage of justice. He was innocent.

Misery loves company. Prov. Unhappy people like other people to be unhappy too. □ Jill: Why is Linda criticizing everybody today? Jane: Her boss criticized her this morning, and misery loves company. □ I should probably feel bad because my sister is so depressed, but I'm pretty depressed myself. Misery loves company.

Misfortunes never come singly. Prov. Bad things tend to happen in groups. □ I already told you that my wife lost her job. Well, misfortunes never come singly; our house was robbed last night.

mislead someone about something to misrepresent something to someone. □ I hope you are not trying to mislead me about the price. □ I'm afraid I misled you on this matter.

misplace one's trust (in someone) to put trust in the wrong person; to put trust in someone who does not deserve it. □ The writer misplaced his trust in his editor. □ The voters misplaced their trust in the corrupt politician.

miss a trick Fig. to miss an opportunity or chance. (Typically with the negative.) □ She hardly ever misses a trick. □ Mr. Big never misses a trick. □ How did a smart guy like you miss a trick like that?

A miss is as good as a mile. Prov. Almost having done something is the same as not having done it at all, since in both cases the thing does not get done. □ We only missed the train by one minute? Well, a miss is as good as a mile.

miss out (on something) and lose out (on something) to fail to participate in something; to fail to take part in something. □ I'm sorry I missed out on the ice cream. □ I lost out on getting in the class photo because I was sick that day.

miss (something) by a mile Fig. to fail to hit something by a great distance; to land wide of the mark. □ Ann shot the arrow and missed the target by a mile. □ "Good grief, you missed by a mile," shouted Sally.

miss the boat 1. Lit. to miss out (on something); to be ignorant (of something). □ Pay attention, John, or you'll miss the boat and not learn algebra. □ Tom really missed the boat when it came to making friends. 2. Fig. to have made an error; to be wrong. If you think you can do that, you have just missed the boat. The guy's missed the boat. He's a lunkhead.

miss the point to fail to understand the important part of something. I'm afraid you missed the point. Let me explain it again. You keep explaining, and I keep missing the point.

mission in life one's purpose in life; the reason for which one lives. Bob's mission in life is to make money. My mission in life is to help people live in peace.

mist over and mist up [for glass] to fog up; [for glass] to develop a coating of water vapor so that one cannot see. The windshield misted over and we could hardly see out. The glass misted up and we had to wipe it off.

mist up Go to previous.

mistake someone for someone else and mix someone up with someone else to confuse someone with someone else; to think that one person is another person. I'm sorry. I mistook you for John. Tom is always mistaking Bill for me. We don't look a thing alike, though. Try not to mix Bill up with Bob, his twin.

mistake something for something else and mix something up with something else to confuse two things with each other. Please don't mix this idea up with that one. I mistook my book for yours.

mix and match 1. to assemble a limited number of items, usually clothing, in a number of different ways. Alice learned to mix and match her skirts, blouses, and sweaters so that she always could be attractively dressed on a limited budget. Gary always bought black, blue, and gray trousers and shirts so he could mix and match without too many bad combinations. 2. to select a number of items from an assortment, often in order to get a quantity discount. (As opposed to getting a quantity discount for buying a lot of only one item.) The candles were 25 percent off, and you could mix and match colors, sizes, and length. I found a good sale on shirts. They were four for fifty dollars, and the store would let you mix and match.

mix in (with someone or something) to mix or combine with people or substances. The band came down from the stage and mixed in with the guests during the break. The eggs won't mix in with the shortening!

mix it up (with someone) to fight with someone; to quarrel with someone. Wilbur and Walt mixed it up for a while, and then things calmed down. Richard came out of the shop and began to mix it up with Walt.

mix someone or something into something and mix someone or something in[†] to combine someone or something into something. We will try to mix the new people into the group. We will mix in the new people a few at a time.

mix someone up[†] to confuse someone. Please don't ask questions now; you'll mix me up! You mixed up the speaker with your question.

mix someone up[†] in something to get someone involved in something. Please don't mix me up in this problem. Walter mixed up his daughter in the sordid affair.

mix someone up with someone else Go to mistake someone for someone else.

mix something up[†] to bring something into disorder; to throw something into a state of confusion. Don't mix up the papers on my desk. He mixes up things in his eagerness to speak.

mix something up[†] (with something) 1. to mix or stir something using a mixing or stirring device. He mixed the batter up with a spoon. First, mix up the batter. 2. to combine substances and mix them together. Please mix the egg up with the sugar first. Please mix up the egg with the sugar.

mix something up with something else Go to mistake something for something else.

mix with someone or something to mix socially with someone or a group. Tom dislikes Bill and Ted so much that he could never mix with them socially. She finds it difficult to mix with friends.

mix with something [for a substance] to combine with a substance. Will this pigment mix with water? Water will not mix with oil.

a mixed bag a varied collection of people or things. (Refers originally to a bag of game brought home after a day's hunting.) The new students in my class are a mixed bag—some bright, some positively stupid. The furniture I bought is a mixed bag. Some of it is antique and the rest is quite contemporary.

mixed feelings (about someone or something) uncertainty about someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I have mixed feelings about Bob. Sometimes I think he likes me; other times I don't. I have mixed feelings about my trip to England. I love the people, but the climate upsets me.

mixed up in something involved in something, especially something wrong or illegal. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) The youth has had problems ever since he got mixed up in a group of boys that stole a car.

mixed up with someone else involved with another person, possibly romantically. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) I hear that Sam is mixed up with Sally. Who is Jerry mixed up with now?

moan about something to complain about something. What are you moaning about? I am not moaning about anything.

moan something out[†] to say something in a moan. The injured woman moaned the name of her assailant out. She moaned out the name.

moan with something to groan because of pain or pleasure. The patient moaned with pain and fear. Ken moaned with pleasure.

mock something up[†] to make a model or simulation of something. The engineers mocked the new car design up for the managers to see. They mocked up the new car design.

model someone on someone and model something on something to use something as a pattern for something; to use someone as a pattern for someone. I will model my house on the house we saw in the Mediterranean. She tried to model herself on her mother.

model something in something to make a model of something in a particular substance. □ She modeled the figure in clay. □ I modeled a bear in modeling clay.

model something on something Go to model someone on someone.

Moderation in all things. Prov. Do not do anything too much or too little. □ Felicia always ate sparingly. "Moderation in all things," she told herself. □ Jane: I think you watch too much TV. Jill: So you think I shouldn't watch any? Jane: No, just watch a reasonable amount. Moderation in all things.

modulate to a (different) key to change from one musical key to another by means of a musical transition. □ Suddenly, the organist modulated to a key that was too high for most of the singers. □ I will have to modulate to a lower key before I start the next hymn.

moist around the edges intoxicated. □ Charlie is more than moist around the edges. He is soused. □ Didn't that guy seem a little moist around the edges?

mold something out of something and mold something from something to form something, using a pliable substance, such as clay, plastic, wet concrete, etc. □ She molded a small turtle out of the moist clay. □ Elaine molded a turtle from the clay.

the moment everyone has been waiting for Go to the big moment.

the moment of truth Fig. the point at which someone has to face the reality of a situation. □ The moment of truth is here. Turn over your exam papers and begin. □ Now for the moment of truth when we find out whether we have got planning permission or not.

Monday's child is fair of face. Prov. A child born on Monday will be good-looking. (This comes from a rhyme that tells what children will be like, according to which day they are born: "Monday's child is fair of face, / Tuesday's child is full of grace, / Wednesday's child is full of woe, / Thursday's child has far to go, / Friday's child is loving and giving, / Saturday's child works hard for a living, / But a child that is born on the Sabbath day / Is blithe and bonny, good and gay.") □ Joan is so pretty, she must be a Monday's child. Monday's child is fair of face.

Money burns a hole in someone's pocket. An expression describing someone who spends money as soon as it is earned. □ Sally can't seem to save anything. Money burns a hole in her pocket. □ If money burns a hole in your pocket, you never have any for emergencies.

Money does not grow on trees. Prov. It is not easy to get money. (Implies that the person you are addressing spends money too easily.) □ Child: Can I have ten dollars to go to the movies? Father: Ten dollars?! Money doesn't grow on trees.

money from home 1. easily gotten money. (Underworld.) □ There is nothing to a simple con job like this. It's money from home. □ This job is like taking candy from a kid. It's money from home. 2. something as welcome as long-awaited money from home. □ This cool drink is money from home right now. □ Having you visit like this is like getting money from home, Mary.

Money is no object. and Expense is no object. Fig. It does not matter how much something costs. □ Please show me your finest automobile. Money is no object. □ I want the finest earrings you have. Don't worry about how much they cost because expense is no object.

Money is power. Prov. If you have money, you can get things and do things. □ Emily wanted a career that would make her a lot of money, since money is power.

Money is the root of all evil. and The love of money is the root of all evil. Prov. People do many evil things in order to get rich. (Biblical. Compare this with Idleness is the root of all evil.) □ Fred: I know I could make more money if I just knew the right things to invest in. Ellen: Don't worry so much about money. It's the root of all evil, after all. □ As the newspapers continued to report the dastardly things the wealthy young banker had done to become even wealthier, people shook their heads and remarked, "The love of money is the root of all evil."

Money talks. Fig. Money gives one power and influence to help get things done or get one's own way. □ Don't worry. I have a way of getting things done. Money talks. □ I can't compete against rich old Mrs. Jones. She'll get her way because money talks.

monkey business and funny business silliness; dishonest tricks. □ That's enough monkey business. Now, settle down. □ Stop the funny business. This is serious!

Monkey see, monkey do. Prov. Children imitate what they see other people doing. □ I don't let my children watch TV programs that show kids being disrespectful to their elders. I know what would happen if I did: monkey see, monkey do.

monkey suit a tuxedo. (Jocular. Possibly in reference to the fancy suit worn by an organ-grinder's monkey.) □ Do I have to wear a monkey suit to dinner? □ All the men except me wore monkey suits at dinner on the cruise.

monkey with someone or something Go to mess with someone or something.

months running Go to days running.

mooch (something) from someone to beg something from someone. □ Can I mooch a match from you? □ Go mooch some money from Fred. □ Why do you always mooch from people?

moon about someone or something and moon over someone or something Fig. to pine or grieve about someone or something. □ Stop mooning about your cat. Cats always come back eventually. □ Jill is still mooning over Robert.

moon something away^t Fig. to waste time pining or grieving. □ Don't moon the whole year away! □ You have mooned away half the year. Now pull yourself together!

mop something down^t to clean a surface with a mop. □ Please mop this floor down now. □ Please mop down this floor.

mop something off^t to wipe the liquid off something. □ Please mop the counter off with paper towels. □ Mop off the counter.

mop something up^t to clean up something, such as a spill, with a mop or with a mopping motion. □ Please mop this mess up. □ I will mop up this mess.

mop something up^t with something to clean or remove something from something else using a mop, rag, towel, etc. I can mop the mess up with this old rag mop. She will mop up the mess with the rag.

mop the floor up[†] with someone to overwhelm and physically subdue someone; to beat someone. Stop talking like that, or I'll mop the floor up with you! Did you hear that? He threatened to mop up the floor with me!

mop up (after someone or something) 1. Lit. to clean up with a mop a sloppy mess made by someone or something. I am the one who has to mop up after the mess you made! 2. Fig. to rectify a problem that someone or something has created. You made a fuss in the conference and upset everyone. I spent hours mopping up after you in private meetings with all in attendance.

mope around to go about in a depressed state. Since her dog ran away, Sally mopes around all day. Don't mope around. Cheer up!

a mopping-up operation a clean-up operation; the final stages in a project where the loose ends are taken care of. It's all over except a small mopping-up operation. The mopping-up operation from the hurricane should cost just under twenty million.

moralize about someone or something to utter moral platitudes about someone or something. There is no point in moralizing about Carlo. He can't be changed. Why are you moralizing about the election? The people are always right.

more and more an increasing amount; additional amounts. As I learn more and more, I see how little I really know. Dad seems to be smoking more and more lately.

more dead than alive Fig. exhausted; in very bad condition; near death. (Almost always an exaggeration.) We arrived at the top of the mountain more dead than alive. The marathon runners stumbled one by one over the finish line, more dead than alive.

more fun than a barrel of monkeys and as much fun as a barrel of monkeys Cliché a great deal of fun. (Compare this with as funny as a barrel of monkeys.) Roger always makes me laugh! He is as much fun as a barrel of monkeys. The circus was more fun than a barrel of monkeys.

More haste, less speed. Go to Make haste slowly.

more often than not Fig. usually. These flowers will live through the winter more often than not. This kind of dog will grow up to be a good watchdog more often than not.

more or less somewhat; approximately; a phrase used to express vagueness or uncertainty. Henry: I think this one is what I want, more or less. Clerk: A very wise choice, sir. I spent more or less a half hour waiting for my flight to depart.

More power to you! Well done! You really stood up for yourself!; You really did something for your own benefit! (The stress is on to, and the you is usually “ya.”) Bill: I finally told her off, but good. Bob: More power to you! Sue: I spent years getting ready for that job, and I finally got it. Mary: More power to you!

more's the pity Fig. it is a great pity or shame; it is sad. (Sometimes with the.) Jack can't come, more's the pity. Jane had to leave early, more's the pity.

more someone or something than one can shake a stick at Rur. a lot; too many to count. There were more snakes than you could shake a stick at. There are lots of flowers in the field—more than one can shake a stick at.

more something than Carter has (liver) pills Fig. a great deal of something. (Older; refers to a product called Carter's Little Liver Pills.) Why he's got more problems than Carter has pills! Bobby has more marbles than Carter has liver pills!

more than one bargained for more than one thought one would get. (Usually in reference to trouble or difficulty.) When Betsy brought home the sweet little puppy for a companion, she got more than she bargained for. That animal has cost her hundreds of dollars in bills. I got more than I bargained for when I took this job.

more than one can bear and more than one can take; more than one can stand more of something, such as trouble or something bad, than a person can endure. This tragic news is more than I can bear! I've heard enough of this horrid music. It's more than I can stand.

more than you('ll ever) know a great deal, more than you suspect. Bob: Why did you do it? Bill: I regret doing it. I regret it more than you know. John: Oh, Mary, I love you. Mary: Oh, John, I love you more than you'll ever know.

the more the merrier Cliché the more people there are, the happier the situation will be. Of course you can have a ride with us! The more the merrier. The manager hired a new employee even though there's not enough work for all of us now. Oh, well, the more the merrier.

more (to something) than meets the eye Fig. [there are] hidden values or facts regarding something. There is more to that problem than meets the eye. What makes you think that there is more than meets the eye?

The more you get, the more you want. and The more you have, the more you want. Prov. People are never satisfied with what they have. You may think that you'll be content being department supervisor, but power is like anything else—the more you have, the more you want.

The more you have, the more you want. Go to previous.

the morning after (the night before) a hangover; the feelings associated with having drunk too much alcohol. Do worries about the morning after keep you from having a good time at parties? She's suffering from the morning after the night before.

Morning dreams come true. Prov. If you dream something in the morning, it will really happen. (According to a superstition.) As I was sleeping through the sound of my alarm clock this morning, I dreamed I was late to work. That morning dream definitely came true.

most of all of greatest importance; more than any other. (Compare this with least of all.) I wanted to go to that museum most of all. Why can't I go? There are many reasons why I didn't use my car today. Most of all, it's a lovely day for walking.

motherhood and apple pie Fig. an often parodied sentiment expressed about allegedly quintessential elements of American home life. Fred is so old-fashioned. Everything about old times is good to him. He's all motherhood and apple pie.

motion (for) someone to do something to give someone a hand signal to do something. □ The minister motioned the organist to begin playing. □ I motioned Ken to raise the curtain so the play could begin. □ Sally motioned for the waiter to bring the check. □ I will motion to the usher and try to get him to come over here and help us.

motion someone aside^t to give a hand signal to someone to move aside. (See also motion someone to one side.) □ He motioned her aside and had a word with her. □ I motioned aside the guard and asked him a question.

motion someone away from someone or something to give a hand signal to someone to move away from someone or something. □ She motioned me away from Susan. □ The police officer motioned the boys away from the wrecked car.

motion someone to one side and motion someone to the side to give someone a hand signal to move to the side of something, such as the road. (Very similar to motion someone aside.) □ The cop motioned her to the side of the road. □ Claire motioned Fred to one side, where she spoke to him.

motion to someone to make some sort of hand signal to a person. □ Did you motion to me? What do you want? □ I did not motion to you.

mound something up^t to form something into a mound. □ Mound the dirt up around the base of the shrub. □ Please mound up the leaves around the rosebushes.

mount something against someone or something to create or instigate something against someone or something. □ The prosecutor mounted a questionable case against Robert. □ The state mounted a very complex case against the company.

mount something on something to place or attach something onto something. □ Mount the butterflies on plain white paper. □ Sue mounted her favorite stamps on a display board.

mount up 1. to get up on a horse. □ Mount up and let's get out of here! □ Please mount up so we can leave. 2. [for something] to increase in amount or extent. □ Expenses really mount up when you travel. □ Medical expenses mount up very fast when you're in the hospital.

mourn for someone or something and mourn over someone or something to grieve for someone or something. □ Everyone will mourn for you when you go. □ We all mourned over the end of the holiday. □ There is no point in mourning over your cat. It won't come back.

The mouse that has but one hole is quickly taken. Prov. It is dangerous to always depend on just one thing, because if it fails you, you will not have any alternatives. □ Don't put all your money in a single bank account. The mouse that has but one hole is quickly taken.

a mouth full of South Sl. a southern accent. □ You sure do have a mouth full of South. □ I just love to hear a man with a mouth full of South.

mouth off to speak out of turn; to backtalk. □ If you mouth off, I will ground you for three weeks. □ Don't mouth off at me, buster!

mouth on someone to inform the authorities on someone; to tattle on someone. □ Max mouthed on his accomplice and got him arrested. □ You had better not mouth on me!

a movable feast 1. Lit. a religious holiday that is on a different date from year to year. □ Easter is the best known movable feast. 2. Fig. a meal that is served in motion or with different portions of the meal served at different locations. (Jocular or a complete misunderstanding of ① but in wide use.) □ We enjoyed a real movable feast on the train from Washington to Miami.

move a mile a minute Go to a mile a minute.

move about Go to move around.

move ahead of someone or something to advance beyond someone or something. □ All my coworkers are moving ahead of me in salary. What am I doing wrong? □ The police moved ahead of the parade, pushing back the crowd.

move along to continue to move; to start moving out of the way. (Often a command.) □ The crowd moved along slowly. □ Please just move along. There is nothing to see here.

move around and move about to move here and there a bit; to stir; to walk around a bit. □ Stay where you are. Don't move around at all! □ I wish you would stop moving about.

move as one Go to as one.

move aside to step or move out of the way. □ Please move aside. □ Could you please move aside so we can get this cart through?

move at a fast clip Go to at a fast clip.

move at a good clip Go to at a good clip.

move away (from someone or something) 1. to withdraw from someone or something. □ Please don't move away from me. I like you close by. □ I have to move away from the smoking section. □ There was too much smoke there, so I moved away. 2. to move, with one's entire household, to another residence. □ Timmy was upset because his best friend had moved away. □ They moved away just as we were getting to know them.

move back (from someone or something) to move back and away. (Often a command.) □ Please move back from the edge. □ Please move back!

move beyond someone or something Go to beyond someone or something.

move clear of something Go to clear of something.

move close to someone or something Go to close to someone or something.

move down to move oneself farther down a line of things. □ Someone else needs to sit on this bench. Please move down. □ Could you move down a little so we can have some more room?

move for something to make a parliamentary or legal motion in favor of something. □ I move for dismissal of the case against my client. □ My lawyer moved for a recess of the trial.

move forward with something to advance with something; to make progress with something. □ Let us try to move forward with this matter at once. □ I want to move forward with the project at a fast pace.

move (from some place) (to some place) to travel from one place to another. □ The whole family moved from Denver to Chicago. □ We moved to the country.

move heaven and earth to do something Fig. to make a major effort to do something. □ "I'll move heaven and earth to be with you, Mary," said Bill. □ I had to move heaven and earth to get there on time.

move in for the kill Go to close in for the kill.

move in (on someone) to come to live with someone. □ My brother moved in on me without even asking. □ I don't mean to move in on you. I just need a place for a few days.

move in (on someone or something) 1. Lit. to move closer to someone or something; to make advances or aggressive movements toward someone or something. (See also move in (on someone).) □ The crowd moved in on the frightened guard. □ They moved in slowly. 2. Fig. to attempt to take over or dominate someone or something. □ The police moved in on the drug dealers. □ Max tried to move in on the rival gang's territory.

move in the fast lane Go to in the fast lane.

move in with someone to take up residence with someone. □ Sally moved in with Sam. □ Jimmy moved in with his brother and shared expenses.

move into full swing Go to in full swing.

move into high gear Go to in full swing; in high gear.

move in(to something) 1. Lit. [for someone] to come to reside in something or some place. □ I moved into a new apartment last week. □ When did the new family move in? 2. Lit. to enter something or some place. □ The whole party moved into the house when it started raining. □ All the children just moved in and brought the party with them. 3. Fig. to begin a new line of activity. □ After failing at real estate, he moved into house painting. □ It looked like he could make some money, so he moved into the stock market with his assets.

move like stink Go to like stink.

move like the wind Go to like the wind.

move off campus Go to off campus.

move off (from someone or something) to move away from someone or something. □ The doctor moved off from the patient, satisfied with her work. □ The officer stopped for a minute, looked around, and then moved off.

move off (to the side) with someone Go to off (to the side) with someone.

move on to continue moving; to travel on; to move along and not stop or tarry. □ Move on! Don't stop here! □ Please move on!

move on someone to attempt to pick up someone; to attempt to seduce someone. □ Don't try to move on my date, old chum. □ Harry is trying to move on Tiffany. They deserve each another.

move on something to do something about something. □ I will move on this matter only when I get some time. □ I have been instructed to move on this and give it the highest priority.

move on (to something) to change to a different subject or activity. □ Now, I will move on to a new question. □ That is enough discussion on that point. Let's move on.

move out (from under someone or something) Go to out (from under someone or something).

move out (of some place) 1. to leave a place; to leave; to begin to depart. (Especially in reference to a large number of persons or things.) □ The crowd started to move out of the area about midnight. □ They had moved out by one o'clock. 2. to leave a place of residence permanently. □ We didn't like the neighborhood, so we moved out of it. □ We moved out because we were unhappy.

move over to move a bit [away from the speaker]. □ Move over. I need some space. □ Please move over. Part of this space is mine.

move someone or something around to move someone or something from place to place. □ I wish that the army would stop moving me around. I have moved ten times in eight years. □ Let's move the furniture around and see how this room looks.

move someone or something away (from someone or something) to cause someone or something to withdraw from someone or something. □ Move Billy away from Tommy so they will stop fighting. □ Move the cake away from Billy.

move someone or something back (from someone or something) to cause someone or something to move back and away from someone or something. □ Please move your child back from the lawn mower. □ Move everyone back from the street.

move someone or something down[†] to cause someone or something to move farther down or along [something]. □ Move Tom down a few seats. We need more space here. □ Move down all these chairs. We need more space.

move someone or something forward to cause someone or something to advance. □ Move her forward. She is too far back. □ Please move the chair forward.

move someone or something into something and move someone or something in[†] to cause someone or something to enter something or some place. □ We moved Carla into the spare room. □ We found a vacant room and moved in the piano.

move someone or something off ((from) someone or something) and move someone or something off ((of) someone or something) to remove someone or something from on top of someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The referee moved the wrestler off from his fallen opponent. □ I moved the beam off of the leg of the man.

move someone or something on to cause someone or something to move onward or out of the way. □ Please move those people on. They are in the way. □ The officers worked hard to move the crowd on.

move someone or something out (of some place) to cause someone to depart or leave; to carry someone or something out of a place. □ Move those people out of here. They are crowding up the room. □ Please move all that stuff out.

move someone or something out of the way Go to out of the way.

move someone or something over to cause someone or something to move a little way away. □ Move Tom over a little bit. He is taking too much space. □ Would you move your foot over a little?

move someone or something to something to make someone or something shift toward something. □ Can you move your foot to the right a little? □ Would you move yourself to the right?

move someone or something up to cause someone or something to go higher or more forward. □ She is too far down. Move her up one step. □ Would you move the sofa up a little? It is too far back.

move someone to tears to bring someone to the point of crying. □ The story moved me to tears. □ As she recounted the accident, she moved herself to tears.

move someone up[†] to advance or promote someone. □ We are ready to move you up. You have been doing quite well. □ It will be years before they move up the new people.

move to some place to move one's household to some place, perhaps permanently. □ When we retired, we moved to Arizona. □ I hope we can move to a larger house.

move toward someone or something 1. Lit. to move in the direction of someone or something. □ The car is moving toward Roger! 2. Fig. to tend to favor a particular conclusion. □ We are moving toward making the final decision.

move up to advance; to go higher. □ Isn't it about time that I move up? I've been an office clerk for over a year. □ I had hoped that I would move up faster than this.

move up in the world and come up in the world Fig. to advance (oneself) and become successful. □ The harder I work, the more I move up in the world. □ Keep your eye on John. He's really coming up in the world.

move up into something to advance into something. □ I moved up into administration and I like it fine. □ When I move up into management, I will get a bigger office.

move up through something to advance through something. □ He moved up through the ranks at a very rapid pace. □ He moved up through every level of management to become CEO.

move up (to something) to advance to something; to purchase a better quality of something. □ We are moving up to a larger car. □ There are too many of us now for a small house. We are moving up.

move within earshot (of something) Go to within earshot (of something).

move within range Go to within range.

move within range (of something) Go to within range (of something).

movers and shakers people who get things done; organizers and managers. □ The movers and shakers in this firm haven't exactly been working overtime. □ Who are the movers and shakers around here?

Moving three times is as bad as a fire. Prov. If you move your household three times, you will lose or damage as many things as a fire in your house would have destroyed or damaged. □ Fred: The company is transferring me again. Ellen: But we can't make another move! Moving three times is as bad as a fire.

mow someone or something down[†] to cut, knock, or shoot someone or something down. □ The speeding car almost mowed us down. □ The car mowed down the pedestrian.

Mr. Nice Guy a friendly, forgiving fellow. □ You'll find that I am Mr. Nice Guy as long as you play fair with me. □ Oh, my boss is Mr. Nice Guy. He'll give me the day off, I'm sure.

Mr. Right the one man who is right for a woman to marry. □ Some day Mr. Right will come along and sweep you off your feet. □ I'm tired of waiting for Mr. Right. Where is Mr. Maybe?

much ado about nothing Cliché a furor over something unimportant. (The name of a Shakespeare play.) □ All this arguing is much ado about nothing.

much in evidence Cliché very visible or evident. □ John was much in evidence during the conference. □ Your influence is much in evidence. I appreciate your efforts.

Much obliged. Rur. Thankful and owing a debt of gratitude. □ A: Sit down, Elmer, and have a drink on me. B: Much obliged.

much of a muchness too much of something that there is generally a lot of. □ All this talk about e-commerce and business-2-business is too much of a muchness.

much sought after Cliché wanted or desired very much. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ This kind of crystal is much sought after. It's very rare. □ Sally is a great singer. She's much sought after.

muck something up[†] to ruin something. □ I should never have trusted Jim with the repair work. He was bound to muck it up. □ I asked her to take over for me while I was gone, and she really mucked it up. □ She mucked up the whole deal.

muddle along to progress in confusion; to continue awkwardly. □ I will just have to muddle along as best I can until things get straightened out. □ The project muddled along until the new manager got hold of it.

muddle around to work inefficiently. □ I can't get anything done today. I'm just muddling around. □ Jed is not doing his job well. He is muddling around and getting nothing done.

muddle something up[†] to mix something up; to make something confusing. □ You really muddled the language of this contract up. □ Who muddled up the wording?

muddle through (something) to manage to get through something awkwardly. □ We hadn't practiced the song enough, so we just muddled through it. □ We didn't know what we were meant to do, so we muddled through.

muddled (up) intoxicated. □ I've had a little too much muddler, I think. Anyway, I'm muddled. □ Larry is too muddled up to drive.

muddy something up[†] Lit. 1. to make water muddy; to stir up the mud in water, as at the bottom of a pond or river. □ Don't muddy the water up. It will clog our filters. □ Don't muddy up the water. 2. Fig. to make something unclear. □ You have really muddied this issue up. I thought I understood it. □ You sure muddied up this issue.

muddy the water Fig. to make something less clear; to make matters confusing; to create difficulty where there was none before. □ Things were going along quite smoothly until you came along and muddied the water. □ The events of the past month have muddied the water as far as our proposed joint venture is concerned.

muff one's lines Go to fluff one's lines.

muffle something up[†] to deaden or stifle a sound. □ Betty tried to muffle the sounds up, but everyone heard what was going on. □ She muffled up the sounds.

mulct something out of someone to cheat something away from someone. Are you trying to mulct my inheritance out of me? Max tried to mulct every last cent out of his victim.

mull something over^t to think about something; to ponder or worry about something. That's an interesting idea, but I'll have to mull it over. I'll mull over your suggestions and reply to you next week.

multiply by something to use the arithmetic process of multiplication to expand numerically a certain number of times. To get the amount of your taxes, multiply by .025. Can you multiply by sixteens?

multiply something by something to use the arithmetic process of multiplication to expand numerically a particular number a certain number of times. Multiply the number of dependents you are claiming by one thousand dollars. Multiply 12 by 16 and tell me what you get.

a multitude of sins Fig. many kinds of sins or errors. The term offensive covers a multitude of sins.

Mum's the word. Fig. a pledge not to reveal a secret or to tell about something or someone. "Mum's the word," said Jane to ease Mary's mind about her secret.

munch out Sl. to overeat. I can't help it. Whenever I see french fries, I just have to munch out. I try not to munch out more than once a week.

mung something up^t Sl. to mess something up. Don't mung it up this time. The team munged up the play, and the coach blasted them but good.

murder on something very destructive or harmful to something. Running a marathon is murder on your knees. This dry weather is murder on my crops.

Murder will out. Prov. Murder will always be discovered.; A bad deed will be found out. Horace thought he had disposed of his victim in such a way that no one would ever discover his crime, but murder will out.

murmur against someone or something to grumble about someone or something. Everyone was murmuring against the manager. The citizens will begin murmuring about the government soon.

murmur at someone or an animal to say something softly or indistinctly to someone or an animal. Stop murmuring at me. Speak up! Gene sat alone, murmuring at his favorite cat for over an hour.

muscle in (on someone or something) to try forcefully to displace someone or take over someone's property, interests, or relationships. Are you trying to muscle in on my scheme? If you try to muscle in, you'll be facing big trouble.

muscle someone out of something and muscle someone out^t to force someone out of something; to push someone out of something. (Can be physical or by coercion.) Are you trying to muscle me out of my job? The younger people are muscling out the older ones.

muse over someone or something to reflect or meditate on someone or something. We were just now musing over Sarah and the way she has changed. Tom is so strange. I was musing over his behavior just yesterday.

mushroom into something Fig. to grow suddenly into something large or important. The question of pay sud- denly mushroomed into a major matter. The unpaid bill mushroomed into a nasty argument and, finally, a court battle.

music to someone's ears Fig. a welcome sound to someone; news that someone is pleased to hear. A: Here's your paycheck for this month. B: Ah, that's music to my ears!

muss someone or something up^t to put someone or something into disarray. Don't muss me up! You mussed up my hair. I'm afraid I mussed myself up a little.

muster out of something to be discharged from military service. He mustered out of the service before his time was up. I want to know how I can muster out too.

muster something up^t to call up some quality, such as courage. Do you think you can muster enough courage up to do the job? Can you muster up enough strength to do the job?

mutiny against someone or something 1. to rebel against a ship's captain or the captain's authority. The crew mutinied against the officers. They know better than to mutiny against an authority as great as that held by Captain Bligh. 2. to rebel against someone or something. It does no good to mutiny against the professor. The students mutinied against the school's administration.

mutter about someone or something to grumble or complain about someone or something. Are you muttering about me? What is your complaint? Why is everyone muttering about the food here? It is excellent.

mutter something about someone or something to say something softly and indistinctly about someone or something. I heard him mutter something about being late. Sharon is muttering something about Dave. What does she mean?

mutter something under one's breath Go to under one's breath.

My cup runneth over. Prov. I have received so many benefits that I cannot contain them all. (Said when you feel overcome because many good things have happened to you.) This week, I finished paying off my mortgage, my arthritis improved, and my first grandchild was born. My cup runneth over. Janet was speechless with happiness when she saw how many of her friends and relatives had joined together to give her a surprise party. "My cup runneth over," she finally said.

My foot! Inf. I do not believe it! Like hell! (An exclamation of contradiction.) Your prices are the best in town, my foot! I know two places cheaper. She's going to marry you? My foot!

(My) goodness (gracious)! a general expression of interest or mild amazement. Bill: My goodness! The window is broken! Andy: I didn't do it! Bill: Who did, then? "Goodness! I'm late!" said Kate, glancing at her watch. "Goodness gracious! Are you hurt?" asked Sue as she helped the fallen student to his feet.

my gut tells me (that) my instincts tell me that. (This refers to one's gut reaction or gut response.) My gut tells me that her idea is a sound one. This looks good on paper, but my gut tells me that it is all wrong.

(My) heavens! Inf. a mild exclamation of surprise or amazement. Bill: Heavens! The clock has stopped. Bob: Don't you have a watch? Sally: The police are parked in our driveway, and one of them is getting out! Mary: My heavens!

My house is your house. and Our house is your house. Fig. a polite expression said to make a guest feel at home. (From the Spanish phrase Mi casa, su casa.) □ Bill: Hello, Tom. Tom (entering): So nice you can put me up for the night. Bill: My house is your house, make yourself at home. □ Mary: Come in, you two. Bill: Thanks. Sue: Yes, thank you. Mary: Well, what can I get you? My house is your house.

(My,) how time flies. 1. Time has gone by quickly, it is time for me to go. □ Bill: Look at the clock! Mary: How time flies! I guess you'll be going. Bill: Yes, I have to get up early. □ John: My watch says it's nearly midnight. How time flies! Jane: Yes, it's late. We really must go. 2. Time passes quickly. (Said especially when talking about how children grow and develop.) □ "Look at how big Billy is getting," said Uncle Michael. "My, how time flies." □ Tom: It seems it was just yesterday that I graduated from high school. Now I'm a grandfather. Mary: My, how time flies.

My lips are sealed. Fig. I will tell no one this secret or this gossip. □ Mary: I hope you don't tell anyone about this. Alice: Don't worry. My lips are sealed. □ Bob: Don't you dare tell her I told you. Bill: My lips are sealed.

My(, my). an expression of mild surprise or interest. □ Fred: My, my! How you've grown, Bill. Bill: Of course! I'm a growing boy. Did you think I would shrink? □ Doctor: My, my, this is interesting. Jane: What's wrong? Doctor: Nothing that a little exercise won't fix.

my one and only one's spouse or lover. (See also the one and only.) □ Look at the time. I've got to get home to my one and only. □ You're my one and only. There is no one else for me.

My pleasure. 1. You're welcome.; It is my pleasure to do so. (From It's my pleasure. There is a stress on both words.) □ Mary: Thank you for bringing this up here. Bill: My pleasure. □ Jane: Oh, Doctor, you've really helped Tom. Thank you so much! Doctor: My pleasure. 2. Happy to meet you.; Happy to see you. □ Sally: Bill, meet Mary, my cousin. Bill: My pleasure.

nag at someone (about someone or something) to pester someone about someone or something. □ Don't keep nagging at me about her. □ Stop nagging at me!

nail someone down† (on something) Go to pin someone down† (on something).

nail someone's ears back† Fig. to scold someone severely. □ I'm going to nail your ears back for doing that! □ Who's going to nail back my ears?

nail someone('s hide) to the wall Go to next.

nail someone to a cross and nail someone('s hide) to the wall Fig. to punish or scold someone severely. (Literally, to crucify someone or to nail someone's skin to the wall like that of a captured animal.) □ That guy was really mad. He really nailed you to a cross. □ She must hate your guts. She sure nailed your hide to the wall.

nail something back† to secure something back out of the way by nailing it. □ Please nail the shutters back so they won't bang against the house. □ I'll nail back the shutters.

nail something down† 1. to secure something down by nailing it. □ Please nail the floorboard down or someone will trip over it. □ I'll nail down these floorboards. 2. Go to pin something down.

nail something into something to drive a nail or something similar into something. □ She nailed the hanger into the wall to hold the picture up. □ Please nail in this tack.

nail something onto something and nail something to something; nail something on† to attach something onto something by nailing. □ Suzy nailed the hose bracket onto the side of the house. □ She nailed on the bracket. □ Laura nailed the bracket to the wall.

nail something up† 1. to put something up, as on a wall, by nailing. □ Please nail this up. □ I'll nail up this picture for you. 2. to nail something closed; to use nails to secure something from intruders. □ Sam nailed the door up so no one could use it. □ Who nailed up the door? I can't get in!

naked as a jaybird Cliché naked; bare. (*Also: as ~.) □ Two-year-old Matilda escaped from her nurse, who was bathing her, and ran out naked as a jaybird into the dining room. □ Uncle John sometimes spends a whole day walking around his house as naked as a jaybird.

the naked eye the human eye, unassisted by optics, such as a telescope, microscope, or spectacles. (*Typically: appear to ~; look to ~; see with ~; visible to ~.) □ I can't see the bird's markings with the naked eye. □ The scientist could see nothing in the liquid with the naked eye, but with the aid of a microscope, she identified the bacteria. □ That's how it appears to the naked eye.

the naked truth the complete, unembellished truth. □ Sorry to put it to you like this, but it's the naked truth. □ I can take it. Just tell me the naked truth.

the name of the game Inf. the way things are; the way things can be expected to be. □ The name of the game is money, money, money. □ I can't help it. That's the name of the game.

name someone after someone else and name someone for someone else to give someone (usually a baby) the name of another person. □ We named our baby after my aunt. □ My parents named me for my grandfather.

name someone as something to select someone as something. □ The mayor named Karen as corporate council. □ The president named himself as chairman of the new committee.

name someone for someone else Go to name someone after someone else.

name someone or something for someone or something to name someone or something, using the name of someone or something, in any combination. □ I named her for the beauty of the rising sun. □ They named the mountain for the first person to see it.

Name your poison. Go to What'll it be?

narrow something down† (to people or things) to reduce a list of possibilities from many to a selected few. □ We can narrow the choice down to green or red. □ We narrowed down the choice to you or Paul.

narrow squeak Fig. a success almost not achieved; a lucky or marginal success; a problem almost not surmounted. □ That was a narrow squeak. I don't know how I survived. □ Another narrow squeak like that and I'll give up.

Nature abhors a vacuum. Prov. If there is a gap, something will fill it. □ Jill: As soon as the beggar who used to work that corner left, another one showed up. Jane: Nature abhors a vacuum.

a nature stop Fig. a stop to use the toilet, especially during road travel. □ I think I need a nature stop when it's convenient. □ I left my comb back at the last nature stop.

nause someone out† Sl. to make someone ill; to disgust someone. (From nauseate.) □ That's awful. I bet it nausees Jennifer out. □ This day nauseated out everybody I know. □ He nauseated himself out just thinking of the accident.

near at hand close or handy (to someone). □ Do you have a pencil near at hand? □ My dictionary isn't near at hand.

The nearer the church, the farther from God. Prov. Church officials, or people who live near the church, are not truly pious. □ Jill: I think our pastor is an evil man. Jane: I didn't think evil men could be pastors. Jill: Of course they can! The nearer the church, the farther from God.

nearly jump out of one's skin Go to (almost) jump out of one's skin.

neat as a pin Cliché neat and orderly. (*Also: as ~.) □ Brad is such a good housekeeper; his apartment is always as neat as a pin. □ Joanne certainly is well-organized. Her desk is neat as a pin.

N

Necessity is the mother of invention. Prov. When people really need to do something, they will figure out a way to do it. □ When the fan belt on Linda's car broke in the middle of the desert, Linda used her stockings as a replacement. Necessity is the mother of invention.

Necessity knows no law. Prov. If you are desperate, you may have to do illegal things. □ I'm an honest person by nature, but I lost my job, and my kids needed food and clothes, and it seemed like the best way to get money was to deal in illegal drugs. Necessity knows no law.

neck and neck Fig. exactly even, especially in a race or a contest. □ John and Tom finished the race neck and neck. □ Mary and Ann were neck and neck in the spelling contest. Their scores were tied.

neck with someone to engage in amorous kissing and caressing with someone. □ Ted is over there necking with Molly. □ Molly is necking with Ted and thinking of Ken.

need a firm hand Go to a firm hand.

need a helping hand Go to a helping hand.

need a pick-me-up Go to a pick-me-up.

need doing and need (to be) done [is] required to be done. (The second form, although widespread, is considered by some to be less standard than the first.) □ This chair needs fixing. □ This chair needs fixed.

need I remind you that... and need I remind you of... a phrase that introduces a reminder. (A little haughty or parental.) □ Bill: Need I remind you that today is Friday? Bob (sarcastically): Gee, how else would I have known? □ John: Need I remind you of our policy against smoking in the office? Jane: Sorry, I forgot.

Need I say more? Is it necessary for me to say any more? □ Mary: There's grass to be mowed, weeds to be pulled, dishes to be done, carpets to be vacuumed, and there you sit! Need I say more? Tom: I'll get right on it. □ "This project needs to be finished before anyone leaves tonight," said Alice, hovering over the office staff. "Need I say more?"

need so bad one can taste it Go to so bad one can taste it.

need some elbow room Go to some elbow room.

need some shut-eye Go to some shut-eye.

need something like a hole in the head not to need something at all. □ I need a house cat like I need a hole in the head! □ She needs another car like she needs a hole in the head.

need something yesterday Inf. to require something in a very big hurry. □ Yes, I'm in a hurry! I need it yesterday! □ When do I need it? Now! Now! No, I need it yesterday!

need (to be) done Go to need doing.

needle someone about someone or something to pester or bother someone about someone or something. □ Please don't needle me about Jane. □ Stop needling me about eating out.

needless to say It is so obvious that it doesn't need to be said, but.... □ Needless to say, I should have spent more time on the report, but I just didn't have it.

Needs must when the devil drives. Prov. When you are desperate, you must do things you ordinarily would not do. □ We're going to have to get an enormous loan to pay for your mother's surgery. I hate to go into debt, but needs must when the devil drives.

neglect to do something to fail to do something. □ I hope you do not neglect to lock the door. □ He neglected to water the plants.

negotiate (with someone or something) (over someone or something) and negotiate (with someone or something) (about someone or something) to bargain with someone or a group about someone or something. □ We decided to negotiate with them over the terms of the contract. □ We want to negotiate with them about the cost of the goods. □ They refused to negotiate with our purchasing agent.

neighbor on something to be directly adjacent to something. □ Our house neighbors on a park. □ The park neighbors on a stretch of beach.

Neither a borrower nor a lender be. Prov. It is difficult to be friends with someone who owes you money or with someone to whom you owe something, so it is better not to borrow or lend in the first place. □ After losing several of my favorite books because I didn't have the nerve to insist that my friends return them, I learned that it is best to neither a borrower nor a lender be.

Neither can I. I cannot do that either. (Any subject pronoun can be used in place of I.) □ Bill: No matter what they do to them, I just can't stand sweet potatoes! Bob: Neither can I. □ John: Let's go. I cannot tolerate the smoke in here. Jane: Neither can I.

neither does someone [does] not either. □ Susan does not own a cat, and neither does Mary. □ Bill doesn't want to see a movie tonight, and neither do I.

neither fish nor fowl Cliché not any recognizable thing. □ The car that they drove up in was neither fish nor fowl. It must have been made out of spare parts. □ This proposal is neither fish nor fowl. I can't tell what you're proposing.

neither here nor there Cliché of no consequence or meaning; irrelevant and immaterial. □ Whether you go to the movie or stay at home is neither here nor there. □ Your comment—though interesting—is neither here nor there.

(neither) hide nor hair Cliché no sign or indication of someone or something. (*Typically: find ~; see ~.) □ We could find neither hide nor hair of him. I don't know where he is. □ There has been no one here. We found neither hide nor hair.

neither rhyme nor reason Cliché without logic, order, or planning. (Describes something disorganized. *Typically: be ~; have ~.) □ There seems to be neither rhyme nor reason to Gerald's filing system. □ The novel's plot had neither rhyme nor reason.

nerves of steel Fig. very steady nerves; great patience and courage. □ I was scared to death, but Fred, who has nerves of steel, faced the thugs bravely.

a (nervous) breakdown Fig. a physical and mental collapse brought on by great anxiety over a period of time. □ After month after month of stress and strain, Sally had a nervous breakdown.

nest in something to build a nest in something and live in it. □ Some mice nested in a corner of the garage. □ The birds nested in the eaves.

nest together to fit together or within one another compactly. □ These mixing bowls nest together. □ I want some of those Russian wooden dolls that nest together.

nestle down (in something) to settle down in something; to snuggle into something, such as a bed. □ They nestled down in their warm bed. □ Please nestle down and go to sleep.

nestle (up) against someone or something and nestle up (to someone or something) to lie close to someone or something; to cuddle up to someone or something. □ The kitten nestled up against its mother. □ The shivering puppy nestled up to Kathy.

never a dull moment [it's] always exciting around here. (Describes an exciting or hectic situation.) □ Every time I visit Jean, she has dozens of things planned for us to do: parties and theaters to attend, restaurants to try, scenic places to see. Never a dull moment. □ Alan: How was work today? Jane: First of all, my boss called me in to yell at me. Then I had to fire one of my subordinates. And then my desk chair broke when I sat down on it. Never a dull moment.

Never ask pardon before you are accused. Prov. Do not apologize for something if nobody knows that you did it, because by apologizing, you are admitting that you did it. □ Alan: Should I apologize to Jane for losing the necktie she gave me? Jane: Wait and see if she asks you what happened to the necktie. Never ask pardon before you are accused.

never fear do not worry; have confidence. □ I'll be there on time—never fear. □ I'll help you, never fear.

Never halloo till you are out of the woods. Prov. Do not rejoice until you are certain that your problems are over. □ Jill: Now that I have a full-time job, I'm certain to be able to pay all my debts. Jane: But it's just a temporary job; it may not last long. Never halloo till you are out of the woods.

Never in a thousand years! Go to Not in a thousand years!

never in my life an emphatic expression showing the depth of the speaker's feelings. □ Sally: Never in my life have I seen such a mess! John: Well, it's always this way. Where have you been all this time? Sally: I just never noticed before, I suppose. □ Sue: Never will I go to that hotel again! Never in my life! Bob: That bad, huh? Sue: Yes! That bad and worse!

Never make a threat you cannot carry out. Prov. You should not threaten to do something you cannot do; otherwise, people will not believe you are serious when you threaten. □ Bill: If you don't stop being rude to me, I'll have you fired! Jane: You're not my boss. Never make a threat you cannot carry out.

Never mind! Forget it! It's not important! □ Sally: What did you say? Jane: Never mind! It wasn't important. □ John: I tried to get the book you wanted, but they didn't have it. Shall I try another store? Mary: No, never mind.

Never say die. Prov. Do not give up. □ Jill: I don't think I can finish this project in time. Jane: Never say die. □ Alan: It's no use. I can't make my checkbook balance. Jane: Never say die!

Never speak ill of the dead. Prov. You should not say bad things about dead people. □ Your Uncle Phil had a lot of faults, but there's no reason to talk about them now that he's gone. Never speak ill of the dead. □ I hate to speak ill of the dead, but Amy was a mean woman, God rest her soul.

Never tell tales out of school. Prov. Do not tell secrets; do not gossip. □ Fred: I just learned something really scandalous about the president of our company. Ellen: Well, I don't want to hear it. You shouldn't tell tales out of school.

Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you. Prov. If you think something might cause trouble, leave it alone and wait until it actually causes trouble. □ Ellen: My daughter's teacher is going to be troublesome, I can tell. Maybe I should go to the school and talk to her. Jane: Why not wait till she actually does something? Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you.

never would have guessed 1. never would have thought something to be the case. (Not used in other tenses.) □ He was the one who did it? I never would have guessed. □ I never would have guessed that he wanted the job. He kept it a very good secret. 2. knew it all the time because it was so obvious. (Sarcastic. Not used in other tenses.) □ I never would have guessed that he wanted the job. He only begged and begged for it. □ Now she wants to go back home? I never would have guessed! She has been homesick for days.

New brooms sweep clean. and A new broom sweeps clean. Prov. Someone who is new in a particular job will do a very good job at first, to prove how competent he or she is. □ Jill: That new supervisor is awfully strict. Jane: New brooms sweep clean. □ The new teacher immediately flunked three of the laziest students. "A new broom sweeps clean," one of the students shrugged.

new kid on the block 1. Lit. a child who has just moved to a certain neighborhood. □ The new kid on the block turned out to be a really good baseball player. 2. Fig. the newest person in a group. □ I'm just the new kid on the block. I've only been working here for a month.

a new lease on life Cliché a renewed and revitalized outlook on life. □ Getting the job offer was a new lease on life. □ When I got out of the hospital, I felt as if I had a new lease on life.

new one on someone something that one has not heard before and that one is not ready to believe. □ Bob's talk of poverty is a new one on me. He always seems to have plenty of money. □ The firm's difficulties are a new one on me. I thought that it was doing very well.

Next question. Inf. That is settled, let's move on to something else. (Usually a way of evading further discussion.) □ Mary: When can I expect this construction noise to stop? Bob: In about a month. Next question. □ Bill: When will the board of directors raise the dividend again? Mary: Oh, quite soon. Next question.

next to nothing Fig. hardly anything; almost nothing. □ This car's worth next to nothing. It's full of rust. □ I bought this antique chair for next to nothing.

next to someone or something near to someone or something; adjacent to someone or something. □ I live next to a bank. □ Please sit next to me.

the next world Euph. life after death. □ We will meet in the next world. □ He believed he had made contact with spirits from the next world.

nibble at something to take tiny bites of some kind of food.

□ The children nibbled at their dinner because they had eaten too much candy. □ Stop nibbling at that candy.

nibble away at something to eat at something in tiny bits; to erode away tiny bits of something. □ The waves nibbled away at the base of the cliff, year after year. □ The mice nibbled away at the huge wheel of cheese.

nice and some quality [being or having] enough of some quality; adequately; sufficiently. □ It is nice and cool this evening. □ I think your steak is nice and done now, just the way you like it.

a nice break Go to a lucky break.

Nice going! and Good job!; Good going!; Nice job!

1. Inf. That was done well. □ John: Well, I'm glad that's over. Sally: Nice going, John! You did a good job. □ Tom: Nice job, Bill! Bill: Thanks, Tom! 2. Fig. That was done poorly. (Sarcastic.) □ Fred: I guess I really messed it up. Bill: Nice job, Fred! You've now messed us all up! Fred: Well, I'm sorry. □ "Nice going," frowned Jane, as Tom upset the bowl of potato chips.

Nice guys finish last. Prov. You will never be able to get what you want by being kind and considerate. □ The unscrupulous salesman advised his trainees, "Don't worry if you have to lie about the product to get the customer to buy it. Nice guys finish last."

Nice job! Go to Nice going!

Nice meeting you. It is nice to have met you. (Said when leaving someone whose acquaintance you have just made.) □ I must go now, Fred. Nice meeting you. □ Well, nice meeting you. I must get home now.

Nice place you have here. Your home is nice. (A compliment paid by a guest. The word place might be replaced with home, house, room, apartment, etc.) □ Jane came in and looked around. "Nice place you have here," she said. □ Bob: Come in. Welcome. Mary: Nice place you have here. Bob: Thanks. We like it.

Nice weather we're having. 1. Lit. Isn't the weather nice? (Sometimes used to start a conversation with a stranger.) □ Bill: Nice weather we're having. Bob: Yeah. It's great. □ Mary glanced out the window and said to the lady sitting next to her, "Nice weather we're having." 2. Fig. Isn't this weather bad? (Sarcastic.) □ Bill: Hi, Tom. Nice weather we're having, huh? Tom: Yeah. Gee, it's hot! □ Mary: Nice weather we're having! Sally: Sure. Lovely weather for ducks.

nick something up^t to make little dents or nicks in something, ruining the finish. □ Someone nicked the kitchen counter up. □ Who nicked up the coffeepot?

nickel-and-dime someone (to death) Fig. to make numerous small monetary charges that add up to a substantial sum. □ Those contractors nickel-and-dimed me to death. □ Just give me the whole bill at one time. Don't nickel-and-dime me for days on end.

niggle about something to make constant petty complaints about something. □ Please don't niggle about little things like this. This is just not important. □ Let's not niggle about it.

niggle (over something) (with someone) to have a petty disagreement over some minor thing. □ Stop niggling over this with me! □ I don't want to niggle with you over this.

night and day Go to day and night.

a night on the town a night of celebrating (at one or more places in a town). □ Did you enjoy your night on the town? □ After we got the contract signed, we celebrated with a night on the town.

night owl Fig. someone who stays up at night; someone who works at night. □ My roommate is a night owl and usually reads until 5:00 A.M. □ A few night owls stayed at the café all night long.

a night person Fig. someone who is more alert and active at night than in the daytime. (Compare this with a day person.) □ I'm really not efficient until after supper. I am the quintessential night person.

a nine days' wonder Fig. something that is of interest to people only for a short time. □ Don't worry about the story about you in the newspaper. It'll be a nine days' wonder and then people will forget. □ The elopement of Bob and Anne was a nine days' wonder. Now people never mention it.

nine times out of ten Fig. usually; almost always. □ Nine times out of ten people will choose coffee rather than tea.

nineteen to the dozen Prov. very rapidly or energetically. □ Whenever I get together with my cousins, we always gossip away nineteen to the dozen. □ While Alan got the other ingredients, Jane was chopping up potatoes nineteen to the dozen.

nine-to-five job a job with normal daytime hours. □ I wouldn't want a nine-to-five job. I like the freedom I have as my own boss. □ I used to work nights, but now I have a nine-to-five job.

nip and tuck Fig. almost even; almost tied. □ The horses ran nip and tuck for the first half of the race. Then my horse pulled ahead. □ In the football game last Saturday, both teams were nip and tuck throughout the game.

nip at someone or something to bite at someone or something. □ The dog nipped at the visitor, but didn't cause any real harm. □ A small dog nipped at my heels.

nip something in the bud Fig. to put an end to something before it develops into something larger. (Alludes to destroying a flower bud before it blooms.) □ I wanted to nip that little romance in the bud. □ The whole idea was nipped in the bud.

nip something off (of) something and nip something off^t to clip or cut something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Let me nip a few blossoms off the rosebush. □ I nipped off a few blossoms and made a bouquet.

no big deal and no biggie Inf. [of something] not difficult or troublesome. □ Don't worry. It's no big deal to wash the car. □ No problem. It's no biggie.

no biggie Go to previous.

no buts about it Go to no ifs, ands, or buts (about it).

No can do. Inf. It can't be done.; I can't do it. □ Sorry, John. No can do. I can't sell you this one. I've promised it to Mrs. Smith. □ Bill: Please fix this clock today. Bob: No can do. It'll take a week to get the parts.

No comment. I have nothing to say on this matter. □ Q: When did you stop beating your dog? A: No comment. □

Q: Georgie, did you chop down the cherry tree? A: No comment.

no contest 1. Lit. [in games] a situation where one team fails to appear for a competition. It was declared no contest because the opposing team was stuck in traffic out on the expressway. 2. Fig. a situation where the winner-to-be of a contest is obvious even before holding the contest. It was no contest. The wrestler was so big and strong that no one could have defeated him.

no dice Inf. no; not possible. When I asked about a loan, he said, "No dice." No. It can't be done, no dice.

no doubt a transitional or interpretative phrase strengthening the rest of a previous sentence. Sue: Mary is giving this party for herself? Rachel: Yes. She'll expect us to bring gifts, no doubt. Mary: All this talk about war has my cousin very worried. Sue: No doubt. At his age, I don't wonder.

no earthly reason no conceivable reason. There is no earthly reason for your rude behavior. I can think of no earthly reason why the repairs should cost so much.

no end of something an endless supply of something. Have some candy. I have no end of chocolate drops. I've had no end of trouble ever since I bought this car.

No fair! Inf. That isn't fair! Bill: No fair! You cheated! Bob: I did not! "No fair," shouted Tom. "You stepped over the line!"

no flies on someone Fig. someone is not slow; someone is not wasting time. (On the image of flies not being able to land on someone moving fast.) Of course I work fast. I go as fast as I can. There are no flies on me. There are no flies on Robert. He does his work very fast and very well.

no go Inf. negative; inopportune. (This is hyphenated before a nominal.) We're in a no-go situation. Is it go or no go?

no great shakes Inf. someone or something that is not very good. (There is no affirmative version of this.) Your idea is no great shakes, but we'll try it anyway. Ted is no great shakes when it comes to brains.

no hard feelings and not any hard feelings Fig. no anger or resentment. I hope you don't have any hard feelings. No, I have no hard feelings.

No harm done. It is all right. No one or nothing has been harmed. It's okay. No harm done. A: I am sorry I stepped on your toe. B: No harm done.

no holds barred Fig. with no restraints. (Alludes to a wrestling match in which all holds are legal.) I intend to argue it out with Mary, no holds barred. When Ann negotiates a contract, she goes in with no holds barred and comes out with a good contract.

no ifs, ands, or buts (about it) and no buts about it Fig. absolutely no discussion, dissension, or doubt about something. I want you there exactly at eight, no ifs, ands, or buts about it. This is the best television set available for the money, no buts about it.

no joke a serious matter. It's no joke when you miss the last train. It's certainly no joke when you have to walk home.

No kidding! 1. Inf. You are not kidding me, are you? (An expression of mild surprise.) Jane: I got elected vice pres- ident. Bill: No kidding! That's great! 2. Inf. Everyone already knows that! Did you just find that out? (Sarcastic.) Sue: It looks like taxes will be increasing. Tom: No kidding! What do you expect? Alice: I'm afraid I'm putting on a little weight. Jane: No kidding!

no laughing matter a serious issue or problem. Be serious. This is no laughing matter. This disease is no laughing matter. It's quite deadly if not treated immediately.

No lie? Inf. You are not lying, are you? Bill: A plane just landed on the interstate highway outside of town! Tom: No lie? Come on! It didn't really, did it? Bill: It did too! Tom: Let's go see it! Bob: I'm going to take a trip up the Amazon. Sue: No lie?

No man can serve two masters. Prov. You cannot work for two different people, organizations, or purposes in good faith, because you will end up favoring one over the other. (Biblical.) Al tried going to school and working, both full-time, but soon discovered that he could not serve two masters.

no matter how you slice it Fig. no matter what your perspective is; no matter how you try to portray something. No matter how you slice it, the results of the meeting present all sorts of problems for the office staff.

no matter what (happens) in any event; without regard to what happens (in the future). We'll be there on time, no matter what. No matter what happens, we'll still be friends.

No more than I have to. an answer to the greeting question "What are you doing?" Bob: Hey, Fred. What you been doing? Fred: No more than I have to. Sue: Hi, Bill. How are you? Bill: Okay. What have you been doing? Sue: No more than I have to.

No news is good news. Not hearing any news signifies that nothing is wrong. Fred: I wonder if Jill is doing all right in her new job. Jane: No news is good news. Jane: I'm worried about my sister. She hasn't called me for months. Alan: No news is good news, right?

No, no, a thousand times no! Fig. Very definitely, no! (Jocular.) Bob: Here, have some sweet potatoes. Bill: No, thanks. Bob: Oh, come on! Bill: No, no, a thousand times no! Sue: The water is a little cold, but it's invigorating. Come on in. Bill: How cold? Sue: Well, just above freezing, I guess. Come on in! Bill: No, no, a thousand times no!

no nonsense without any tricks, deceit, or wasting of time. (Hyphenated before nominals.) Let's have no nonsense while we are rehearsing the presentation! Elton is a no-nonsense kind of guy.

No offense meant. I did not mean to offend [you]. (See also No offense taken.) Mary: Excuse that last remark. No offense meant. Susan: It's okay. I was not offended.

No offense taken. I am not offended [by what you said]. (See also No offense meant.) Pete: Excuse that last remark. I did not want to offend you. Tom: It's okay. No offense taken.

No one is indispensable. Prov. Anyone may become unnecessary; anyone may lose his or her job. Fred: You can't fire me. I'm absolutely necessary to this company. Nancy: No one is indispensable, Fred. The housekeeper was sure that her employer would always need her, but she discovered when she was let go that no one is indispensable.

No pain, no gain. Fig. If you want to improve, you must work so hard that it hurts. (Associated with sports and physical exercise.) □ Player: I can't do any more push-ups. My muscles hurt. Coach: No pain, no gain. □ Come on, everybody! Run one more lap! No pain, no gain!

no point in something no purpose in doing something. □ There is no point in locking the barn door now that the horse has been stolen. □ There's no point in crying over spilled milk.

no problem Go to no sweat.

no questions asked no inquiries [to be] made to find out who did something. □ Fines at the library will be suspended, no questions asked, for all late books returned during the first week of July.

No rest for the wicked. Fig. It's because you are wicked that you have to work hard. (Usually jocular.) □ A: I can't seem to ever get all my work done. B: No rest for the wicked.

no sale no. □ I wanted to go to Florida for the holidays, but my father said, "No sale." □ No sale. You can't do it.

no salesman will call a phrase indicating that no salesman will visit or contact you if you make an inquiry about a product. □ All inquiries are confidential and no salesman will call.

no shortage of something lots of something; plenty of something. □ Oh, don't worry about that. I have no shortage of money! □ We've no shortage of fried chicken, so help yourself.

No siree, (Bob)! Inf. Absolutely no! (Not necessarily said to a male, and rarely to any Bob.) □ Bill: Do you want to sell this old rocking chair? Jane: No siree, Bob! □ Bill: You don't want sweet potatoes, do you? Fred: No siree!

no skin off someone's nose Go to next.

no skin off someone's teeth and no skin off someone's nose Fig. no difficulty for someone; no cause for concern to someone. □ It's no skin off my nose if she wants to act that way. □ She said it was no skin off her teeth if we wanted to sell the house.

no soap Inf. no. □ I can't do it. No soap. □ No soap, I don't lend anyone money.

no sooner said than done an expression indicating that something has been done quickly and obediently. □ Jill: Can I help you out? Jane: Yes! Put these files in alphabetical order. Jill: No sooner said than done. □ The service at the hotel was really remarkable. Everything we asked for was no sooner said than done.

no spring chicken Fig. a person well past youth; an old person. □ That actress is no spring chicken, but she does a pretty good job of playing a twenty-year-old girl. □ Jane: How old do you think Robert is? Jill: Well, he's certainly no spring chicken.

no stress Inf. no problem; no bother. □ Don't worry, man, no stress. □ Relax. No stress. It doesn't bother me at all.

no sweat and no problem Inf. no difficulty; do not worry. □ Of course I can have your car repaired by noon. No sweat. □ You'd like a red one? No problem.

No, thank you. and No, thanks. a phrase used to decline something. □ Bob: Would you care for some more coffee? Mary: No, thank you. □ John: Do you want to go downtown tonight? Jane: No, thanks.

no thanks to you I cannot thank you for what happened, because you did not cause it.; I cannot thank you for your help, because you did not give it. □ Bob: Well, despite our previous disagreement, he seemed to agree to all our demands. Alice: Yes, no thanks to you. I wish you'd learn to keep your big mouth shut! □ Jane: It looks like the picnic wasn't ruined despite the fact that I forgot the potato salad. Mary: Yes, it was okay. No thanks to you, of course.

no trespassing do not enter. (Usually seen on a sign. Not usually spoken.) □ The sign on the tree said, "No Trespassing." So we didn't go in. □ The angry farmer chased us out of the field shouting, "Get out! Don't you see the 'No Trespassing' sign?"

no two ways about it no choice about it; no other interpretation of it. (Note the form there's rather than there are.) □ You have to go to the doctor whether you like it or not. There's no two ways about it. □ This letter means you're in trouble with the tax people. There's no two ways about it.

No way! Inf. No! □ Me join the Army? No way! □ She can't do that. No way!

No way, José! Inf. No! (An elaboration of No. José is pronounced with an initial H.) □ Bob: Can I borrow a hundred bucks? Bill: No way, José! □ Sally: Can I get you to take this nightgown back to the store for me and get me the same thing in a slightly smaller size? Bob: No way, José!

no wonder [something is] not surprising. □ No wonder the baby is crying. She's wet. □ It's no wonder that plant died. You watered it too much.

nobody's fool Fig. a sensible and wise person who is not easily deceived. □ Mary is nobody's fool. She watches out for people who might try to cheat her. □ Anne may seem as though she's not very bright, but she's nobody's fool.

the nod Fig. someone's choice for a position or task. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ The manager is going to pick the new sales manager. I think Ann will get the nod. □ I had the nod for captain of the team, but I decided not to do it.

nod at someone to make a motion to someone with one's head indicating a greeting, agreement, or something else. □ I nodded at Fred, but I really didn't agree. □ Molly nodded at Fred, and Fred, knowing she wanted to leave the party, went for their coats. □ When she offered him some ice cream, he only nodded. She thought he was rude and decided not to give him any.

A nod is as good as a wink to a blind horse. Prov. You cannot get people to take a hint if they are determined not to. □ Jill: I keep hinting to the boss that I deserve a raise, but he doesn't seem to get the point. Jane: I'm not surprised. A nod's as good as a wink to a blind horse.

nod off to fall asleep, usually while sitting up. □ Jack nodded off during the minister's sermon. □ Father always nods off after Sunday lunch.

noise something about and noise something abroad; noise something around to spread around a secret; to gossip something around. □ Now don't noise it about, but I am going to Houston next week to see my girl. □ Please don't noise this abroad. □ Stop noising that gossip around.

nominate someone as something to suggest someone to be the candidate to serve as something. □ I would like to nominate Karen as our representative. □ She nominated herself as the one most likely to do the job.

nominate someone for something to suggest someone as a candidate for a particular office. □ I will nominate Carolyn for president. □ You cannot nominate yourself for this office.

nominate someone to something to suggest someone to become a member of a group. □ I am the one who nominated her to the board. □ The president nominated herself to the position of chairman of the board.

None but the brave deserve the fair. Prov. Only a courageous and gallant man deserves a beautiful woman.; Only the best deserves the best. □ Stop making excuses and just call Gina. None but the brave deserve the fair.

none of someone's beeswax Inf. none of someone's business. (Jocular.) □ It's none of your beeswax. I'm not telling. □ You'll never know. The answer is none of your beeswax.

none of someone's business not of someone's concern. (A gentle rebuke.) □ Q: When are you going to leave for home? A: None of your business. □ How I managed to afford all this is none of your business.

None of your lip! Fig. Shut up!; I don't want to hear anything from you about anything! □ A: You are being a real nuisance about the broken window. B: None of your lip! Just help me clean it up.

none other than Cliché the very [person]. (Expresses surprise.) □ The new building was opened by none other than the president. □ Bob's wife turned out to be none other than my cousin.

none the wiser not knowing any more in spite of events or exposure to facts. □ I was none the wiser about black holes after the lecture. It was a complete waste of time. □ Anne tried to explain the situation tactfully to Bob, but in the end, he was none the wiser.

none the worse for wear Fig. no worse because of use or effort. (See also the worse for wear. *Typically: be ~; become ~; look ~.) □ I lent my car to John. When I got it back, it was none the worse for wear. □ I had a hard day today, but I'm none the worse for wear.

none too something not very something; not at all something. □ The towels in the bathroom were none too clean. □ It was none too warm in their house.

noodle around to wander around; to fiddle around with something. □ I couldn't find the instructions so I spent the afternoon noodling around, trying to find out how it worked. □ I noodled around until I found the right address.

noodle over something Inf. to think about something. □ Let's noodle over this problem for a bit and discuss it at our next meeting.

nose about (for someone or something) and nose around (for someone or something) to search here and there to find someone or something. □ We spent an hour nosing about for a newspaper. □ I will nose around for someone to help you. □ We nosed about for a while, but found no one.

nose around (something) to pry into something; to snoop around something. □ I caught her nosing around my desk. □ Wally is always nosing around.

nose in(to something) [for a boat or other vehicle] to move or be moved into something or some place carefully, nose first. □ The captain nosed into the channel, and our journey had begun. □ He nosed in and we sailed on.

nose out (of something) to move cautiously out of something or some place, nose first. □ She nosed out of the little room, hoping she hadn't been observed. □ She nosed out quickly and stealthily.

nose someone or a group out^t to defeat someone or something by a narrow margin. (Alludes to a horse winning a race "by a nose.") □ Karen nosed Bobby out in the election for class president by one vote. □ Our team nosed out the opposing team in last Friday's game.

nose something out of something and nose something out^t
1. Lit. [for an animal] to force something out of something gently and cautiously. (As if pushing with the nose.) □ The cat nosed her kitten out of the corner. □ The cat nosed out her kittens where we could see them. □ She nosed them out.
2. Fig. to move something cautiously out of something or some place, nose first. □ Todd nosed the car out of the parking place carefully. □ He nosed out the car with skill. □ Ted nosed it out.

nose something (out^t) (onto something) to drive or push something carefully out onto the surface of something, nose first. □ I nosed the car out onto the highway, looking both ways. □ She nosed out the car.

nosh on something to make a snack of something. □ After Thanksgiving, we noshed on turkey for three days. □ Who's been noshing on the chocolate cake?

not a bit none at all; not at all. □ Am I unhappy? Not a bit. □ I don't want any mashed potatoes. Not a bit!

Not a chance! Inf. There is no chance at all that something will happen. (A variation of (There is) no chance.) □ Sally: Do you think our team will win today? Mary: Not a chance! □ Jane: Can I have this delivered by Saturday? Clerk: Not a chance!

not a clue Go to next.

not a glimmer (of an idea) and not a clue Fig. no idea. □ A: Where's the subway? B: Sorry. Not a glimmer of an idea. □ How long till we're there? Not a clue.

not a hope in hell Go to not have a snowball's chance in hell.

not a kid anymore Fig. no longer in one's youth. □ You can't keep partying all weekend, every weekend. You're not a kid anymore. □ Kathy: Bill is just as wild as ever, I hear. Jane: Bill needs to realize that he's not a kid anymore.

not a living soul Fig. nobody. (See some of the possible variations in the examples.) □ I won't tell anybody—not a living soul. □ I won't tell a living soul.

not a moment to spare and without a moment to spare just in time; with no extra time. □ Hurry, hurry! There's not a moment to spare! □ I arrived without a moment to spare.

not able See the expressions listed at can't as well as those listed below.

not able to call one's time one's own too busy; so busy as not to be in charge of one's own schedule. □ It's been so busy around here that I haven't been able to call my time my own. □ She can't call her time her own these days.

not able to get something for love or money Fig. not able to get something at any price; completely unable to get something. □ Oranges were so scarce last winter that you couldn't get them for love or money. □ I wanted to go to the concert, but I was not able to get a ticket for love or money.

not able to go on unable to continue (doing something—even living). (Not able to is often expressed as can't.) □ I just can't go on this way. □ Before her death, she left a note saying she was not able to go on.

not able to help something unable to prevent or control something. (Not able to is often expressed as can't.) □ I'm sorry about being late. I wasn't able to help it. □ Bob can't help being boring.

not able to make anything out of someone or something unable to understand someone or something. (Not able to is often expressed as can't. The anything may refer to something specific, as in the first example.) □ I can't make sense out of what you just said. □ We were not able to make anything out of the message.

not able to make head or tail of something Fig. not able to understand something at all. □ I couldn't make head or tail of the professor's geology lecture this morning. □ Can you help me fill out my tax forms? I can't make head or tail of the instructions.

not able to see the forest for the trees Cliché allowing many details of a situation to obscure the situation as a whole. (Not able to is often expressed as can't.) □ The solution is obvious. You missed it because you can't see the forest for the trees. □ She suddenly realized that she hadn't been able to see the forest for the trees.

not able to stomach someone or something and cannot stomach someone or something Fig. not to be able to put up with someone or something; not to be able to tolerate or endure someone or something. □ Jane cannot stomach violent movies. □ The sensitive student could not stomach a lot of ridicule.

not able to wait to have to go to the bathroom urgently. (Also more broadly literal.) □ Mom, I can't wait. □ Driver, stop the bus! My little boy can't wait.

Not again! Inf. I cannot believe that it happened again! □ Mary: The sink is leaking again. Sally: Not again! Mary: Yes, again. □ Fred: Here comes Tom with a new girlfriend. Sue: Not again!

not agree with someone [for food] to make someone ill; [for something that one has eaten] to give one stomach distress. □ Fried foods don't agree with Tom. □ I always have onions in my garden, but I never eat them. They just don't agree with me.

not all something is cracked up to be and not what something is cracked up to be Fig. not as good as something is said to be. (Not always in the negative.) □ This isn't a very good pen. It's not all it's cracked up to be. □ Is this one all it's cracked up to be?

not all there Fig. not mentally adequate; crazy or silly. □ Sometimes I think you're not all there. □ Be nice to Sally. She's not all there.

Not always. a conditional negative response. (See examples.) □ John: Do you come here every day? Jane: No, not always. □ John: Do you find that this condition usually clears up by itself? Doctor: Not always.

not amount to a hill of beans Go to not worth a hill of beans.

not any hard feelings Go to no hard feelings.

Not anymore. The facts you mentioned are no longer true.; A previous situation no longer exists. □ Mary: This cup of coffee you asked me to bring you looks cold. Do you still want it? Sally: Not anymore. □ Tom: Do the Wilsons live on Maple Street? Bob: Not anymore.

not as young as one used to be Fig. getting old. □ Aunt Lila isn't as young as she used to be. She can't take a lot of trips anymore. □ Don't walk so fast! I'm not as young as I used to be. It takes me awhile to catch up.

not at all and not in the least certainly not; absolutely not. □ No, it doesn't bother me—not at all. □ I'm not complaining. Not me. Not in the least.

Not bad (at all). 1. [Someone or something is] quite satisfactory. □ Bill: How do you like your new teacher? Jane: Not bad. □ Bob: Is this pen okay? Bill: I guess. Yeah. Not bad. 2. [Someone or something is] really quite good. (The person or thing can be named, as in the examples.) □ John: How do you like that new car of yours? Mary: Not bad. Not bad at all. □ Tom: This one looks great to me. What do you think? Sue: It's not bad.

not bat an eye Go to next.

not bat an eyelid and not bat an eye Fig. to show no signs of distress even when something bad happens or something shocking is said. □ Sam didn't bat an eyelid when the mechanic told him how much the car repairs would cost. □ The pain of the broken arm must have hurt Sally terribly, but she did not bat an eyelid.

not believe one's ears Fig. not believe the news that one has heard. □ I couldn't believe my ears when Mary said I won the first prize.

not believe one's eyes Fig. not to believe what one is seeing; to be shocked or dumbfounded at what one is seeing. □ I walked into the room and I couldn't believe my eyes. All the furniture had been stolen! □ When Jimmy opened his birthday present, he could hardly believe his eyes. Just what he wanted!

not born yesterday Fig. experienced; knowledgeable in the ways of the world. □ I know what's going on. I wasn't born yesterday. □ Sally knows the score. She wasn't born yesterday.

not breathe a word (about someone or something) and not breathe a word of it Fig. to keep a secret about someone or something. □ Don't worry. I won't breathe a word about this matter. □ Please don't breathe a word about Bob and his problems. □ Don't worry. I won't breathe a word of it.

not breathe a word of it Go to previous.

not buy something Fig. not accept something (to be true). □ You may think so, but I don't buy it. □ The police wouldn't buy his story.

not by a long shot Fig. not by a great amount; not at all. □ Did I win the race? Not by a long shot. □ Not by a long shot did she complete the assignment.

not care two hoots about someone or something and not give two hoots about someone or something; not give a hang about someone or something; not give a hoot about someone or something Inf. not to care at all about someone or something. □ I don't care two hoots about whether you go to the picnic or not. □ She doesn't give a hoot about me. Why should I care? □ I don't give a hang about it.

not dry behind the ears Go to wet behind the ears.

not enough room to swing a cat Rur. not very much space. □ Their living room was very small. There wasn't enough room to swing a cat. □ How can you work in a small room like this? There's not enough room to swing a cat.

not exchange more than some number of words with someone Go to exchange no more than some number of words with someone.

not feel like oneself Go to next.

not feeling oneself and not feel like oneself Fig. to feel upset, troubled, or disturbed in some way. □ I'm sorry I said what I said. I'm not feeling myself today.

not for a moment not at all; not even for a short amount of time; never. □ I don't want you to leave. Not for a moment! □ I could not wish such a horrible punishment on anyone. Not for a moment!

not for all the tea in China Fig. not even if you rewarded me with all the tea in China; not for anything at all. □ No I won't do it—not for all the tea in China.

not for (anything in) the world and not for love nor money; not on your life Fig. not for anything (no matter what its value). (Note the variation in the examples. The order of love nor money is fixed.) □ I won't do it for love nor money. □ He said he wouldn't do it—not for the world.

not for hire [of a taxi] not available to take new passengers. □ The taxi was going to pick someone up at a nearby hotel and was not for hire. □ The taxi had a lighted sign that said it was not for hire.

not for love nor money Go to not for (anything in) the world.

Not for my money. Not as far as I'm concerned. (Has nothing to do with money or finance.) □ Sue: Do you think it's a good idea to build all these office buildings in this part of the city? Mary: Not for my money. That's a real gamble. □ John: We think that Fred is the best choice for the job. Do you think he is? Mary: Not for my money, he's not.

not for publication not to be talked about openly; secret. □ Please tell no one about this. It's not for publication. □ This report is not for publication, so keep it to yourself.

not get one's hopes up Fig. [one] should not expect something to happen; [one] should not start hoping that something will happen. □ The rain could stop so we can go to the beach, but you should not get your hopes up.

not give a hang about someone or something Go to not care two hoots about someone or something.

not give a tinker's damn Fig. not to care at all. (A tinker's damn or dam may be a worthless curse from a tinker or a small dam or barrier used to contain molten metal.) □ I don't give a tinker's damn whether you go or not!

not give anyone the time of day Fig. to ignore someone (usually out of dislike). □ Mary won't speak to Sally. She won't give her the time of day. □ I couldn't get an appointment with Mr. Smith. He wouldn't even give me the time of day.

not give it another thought not to worry about something anymore. (A polite way of accepting someone's apology.) □ It's okay. Please don't give it another thought. □ You should not give it another thought. No one was bothered at all.

not give two hoots about someone or something Go to not care two hoots about someone or something.

not going to win any beauty contests Fig. homely; ugly. □ Fred isn't going to win any beauty contests, but he's smart and considerate and he does well at his job. □ This old truck of mine is not going to win any beauty contests, but I wouldn't trade it for anything.

not grow on trees Fig. not to be abundant; not to be expendable. (Usually said about money.) □ I can't afford that. Money doesn't grow on trees, you know. □ Don't waste the glue. That stuff doesn't grow on trees, you know.

not have a care in the world Fig. free and casual; unworried and carefree. □ I really feel good today—as if I didn't have a care in the world. □ Ann always acts as if she doesn't have a care in the world.

not have a leg to stand on Fig. [for an argument or a case] to have no support. □ You may think you're in the right, but you don't have a leg to stand on. □ My lawyer said I didn't have a leg to stand on, so I shouldn't sue the company.

not have a snowball's chance in hell and not a hope in hell Inf. a very poor chance. (Usually in the negative.) □ She doesn't have a snowball's chance in hell of getting it done on time. □ I know I don't have a hope in hell, but I'll try anyway.

not have a stitch of clothes (on) Fig. naked. □ He walked through the house and didn't have a stitch of clothes on.

not have all one's marbles Fig. not to have all one's mental capacities. □ John acts as if he doesn't have all his marbles. □ I'm afraid that I don't have all my marbles all the time.

not have anything to do with someone or something Go to have nothing to do with someone or something.

not have anything to do with something Go to have something to do with something.

not have the heart to do something Fig. to be too compassionate to do something. □ I just don't have the heart to tell him the bad news.

not hold a candle to someone or something Go to next.

not hold a stick to someone or something and not hold a candle to someone or something Fig. not to be nearly as good as someone or something. □ Sally is much faster than Bob. Bob doesn't hold a stick to Sally. □ This TV doesn't hold a candle to that one. That one is much better.

not hold water 1. Lit. [of a container] not able to contain water without leaking. □ This old wading pool won't hold water any longer. 2. Fig. not able to be proved; not correct or true. □ Jack's story won't hold water. It sounds too unlikely. □ The police's theory will not hold water. The suspect has an ironclad alibi.

not hold with something Rur. to disagree with something; to not tolerate something. □ I don't hold with what you are saying. □ We don't hold with that kind of thing around here.

not hurt a flea Fig. not to harm anything or anyone, even a tiny insect. (Also with other forms of negation.) □ Ted would not even hurt a flea. He could not have struck Bill. □ Ted would never hurt a flea, and he would not hit anyone as you claim.

Not if I see you first. Go to next.

Not if I see you sooner. and Not if I see you first. Inf. a response to I'll see you later. (This means you will not see me if I see you first, because I will avoid you.) □ Tom: See you later. Mary: Not if I see you sooner. □ John: Okay. If you want to argue, I'll just leave. See you later. Mary: Not if I see you first.

Not in a thousand years! and Never in a thousand years! Fig. No, never! □ John: Will you ever approve of her marriage to Tom? Sue: No, not in a thousand years! □ Mary: Will all this trouble ever subside? John: Never in a thousand years!

Not in my book. Fig. Not according to my views. (Compare this with Not for my money.) □ John: Is Fred okay for the job, do you think? Mary: No, not in my book. □ Sue: My meal is great! Is yours good, too? Bob: Not in my book.

not in the least Go to not at all.

not in the same league with someone or something not nearly as good as someone or something. □ John isn't in the same league with Bob at tennis. □ This house isn't in the same league with our old one.

not just whistling Dixie Rur. not talking nonsense. (Alludes to a song titled "Dixie.") □ Man, you are right! You're not just whistling Dixie. □ When you say she is wrong, you're not just whistling Dixie.

not know beans (about someone or something) Inf. to know nothing about someone or something. □ Bill doesn't know beans about flying an airplane. □ When it comes to flying, I don't know beans.

not know enough to come in out of the rain Fig. to be very stupid. □ Bob is so stupid he doesn't know enough to come in out of the rain. □ You can't expect very much from somebody who doesn't know enough to come in out of the rain.

not know from nothing Inf. to be stupid, innocent, and naive. (This nothing is not replaced with something. Usually used with don't, as in the examples.) □ Old John—he don't know from nothing. □ What do you expect from somebody who don't know from nothing?

not know if one is coming or going Go to not know whether one is coming or going.

not know one's own strength not to realize how destructive or harmful one's strength can be. □ I didn't mean to hurt you. I guess I don't know my own strength. □ He might break the door down by accident. He doesn't know his own strength and could end up pushing too hard against the door.

not know someone from Adam Fig. not to know someone by sight at all. □ I wouldn't recognize John if I saw him up close. I don't know him from Adam. □ What does she look like? I don't know her from Adam.

not know the first thing about someone or something Fig. not to know anything about someone or something. □ I don't know the first thing about flying an airplane. □ She doesn't know the first thing about John.

not know what to make of someone or something not to understand someone or something; not to be able to interpret something or the actions of someone. □ We really don't know what to make of his request.

not know where to turn and not know which way to turn to have no idea about what to do (about something). □ I was so confused I didn't know where to turn. □ We needed help, but we didn't know which way to turn.

not know whether one is coming or going and not know if one is coming or going Fig. to be very confused. □ I'm so busy that I don't know if I'm coming or going. □ You look as if you don't know whether you're coming or going.

not know which end is up Inf. not to be alert and knowledgeable. □ Don't try to hustle me, sister. You think I don't know which end is up? □ Poor Jed doesn't even know which end is up.

not know which way to turn Go to not know where to turn.

not let someone catch someone doing something and not want to catch someone doing something an expression that scolds someone who has done something wrong. (The idea is that the person ought not to do the wrong thing again, not that the person simply avoid getting caught.) □ How many times have I told you not to play ball in the house? Don't let me catch you doing that again. □ If I've told you once, I've told you a thousand times: Don't do that! I don't want to catch you doing it again!

not let the grass grow under one's feet Fig. not to stay in one place for a long time; to be always on the move. □ He is always doing something. He never lets the grass grow under his feet. □ I have always thought that I ought not to let the grass grow under my feet. □ Jane: Last night I told Alan that we needed a new bookshelf, and he had built one by the time I got home today. Jill: Boy, he doesn't let the grass grow under his feet.

not lift a finger (to help someone) and not lift a hand (to help someone) Fig. to do nothing to help someone. (The someone is anyone with the negative.) □ They wouldn't lift a finger to help us. □ Can you imagine that they wouldn't lift a finger? □ Sally refused to lift a hand to help her own sister.

not lift a hand (to help someone) Go to previous.

Not likely. Inf. That is probably not so; that probably will not happen. □ Mary: Is it possible that you'll be able to fix this watch? Sue: Not likely, but we can always try. □ Sally: Will John show up on time, do you think? Bob: Not likely.

not long for this world Fig. about to die. □ Our dog is nearly twelve years old and not long for this world. □ I'm so tired. I think I'm not long for this world.

not made of money Fig. [of a person] not having a lot of money; not having an unlimited supply of money. □ I can't afford a car like that. I'm not made of money you know.

□ There is only so much they can pay. They're not made of money.

not miss a thing Go to next.

not miss much 1. and not miss a thing Inf. not to miss observing any part of what is going on. (Usually with do as in the examples.) □ Ted doesn't miss much. He is very alert. □ The puppy doesn't miss a thing. He sees every move you make. 2. Inf. not to miss experiencing something that really was not worth experiencing anyway. (Usually with do as in the examples.) □ I missed the big sales meeting last week, but I understand I didn't miss much. □ Bill: I didn't see that new movie that is showing at the theater. Tom: You didn't miss much; it was pretty bad.

not miss something for love nor money Go to next.

not miss something for the world and not miss something for love nor money Fig. would not miss something for any reason at all. □ Of course I'll be at your wedding. I wouldn't miss it for the world.

not move a muscle to remain perfectly motionless. □ Be quiet. Sit there and don't move a muscle. □ I was so tired I couldn't move a muscle.

not on any account Go to on no account.

not one iota not even a tiny bit. □ I won't give you any at all! Not one iota! □ I did not get one iota of encouragement from any of those people.

not one's cup of tea Fig. not one's choice or preference. (Used to describe an activity you do not enjoy. Can sound somewhat affected.) □ You three visit the museum without me. Looking at fussy old paintings is not my cup of tea. □ Going to church, Mary said, was not her cup of tea.

not one's place not one's role to do something. □ It was not my place to criticize my boss. □ It was not Bill's place to ask the questions; it's my project.

not open one's mouth and not utter a word Fig. not to say anything at all; not to tell something (to anyone). □ Don't worry, I'll keep your secret. I won't even open my mouth. □ Have no fear. I won't utter a word.

not playing with a full deck Go to a few cards shy of a full deck.

not put (a lot) of stock in something Go to take no stock in something.

not put it past someone to think that someone would not dare to do something. □ He might run away from school. I wouldn't put it past him. □ I wouldn't put it past Roger to arrive unannounced.

Not right now, thanks. No for the present. (It is hoped that one will be asked again later. Usually used for a [temporary] refusal of a serving of food or drink. There is an implication that more will be wanted later.) □ Waiter: Do you want some more coffee? Mary: Not right now, thanks. □ John: Can I take your coat? Sue: Not right now, thanks. I'm still a little chilly.

not see any objection (to something) Go to see no objection (to something).

not set foot somewhere not to go somewhere. □ I wouldn't set foot in John's room. I'm very angry at him. □ He never set foot here.

not shed a tear Fig. not to show any emotion even when something is very sad. □ At his uncle's funeral, he didn't shed a tear. They never got along.

not show one's face not to appear somewhere; not to go to some place. □ After what she said, she had better not show her face around here again. □ If I don't say I'm sorry, I'll never be able to show my face again.

not sleep a wink not to sleep at all. □ I couldn't sleep a wink last night. □ Ann hasn't been able to sleep a wink for a week.

not so hot Inf. not very good. □ The service here is not so hot. This restaurant is highly overrated.

not take no for an answer Fig. not to accept someone's refusal. (A polite way of being insistent.) □ Now, you must drop over and see us tomorrow. We won't take no for an answer. □ I had to go to their party. They just wouldn't take no for an answer.

not take stock in something Go to take no stock in something.

not tell a (living) soul not to reveal something to anyone. □ You secret is safe with me. I won't tell a living soul. □ Promise you won't tell a soul, but I'm engaged.

not to put too fine a point on it Fig. a phrase introducing a fine or important point, apologetically. □ Rachel: Not to put too fine a point on it, Mary, but you're still acting a little rude to Tom. Mary: I'm sorry, but that's the way I feel. □ John: I think, not to put too fine a point on it, you ought to do exactly as you are told. Andy: And I think you ought to mind your own business.

not to touch a drop Fig. not to drink any of something, usually alcohol. □ He pledged not to touch a drop all weekend, but he broke his pledge on Friday night.

Not to worry. Inf. Please do not worry. □ Bill: The rain is going to soak all our clothes. Tom: Not to worry, I put them all in plastic bags. □ Sue: I think we're about to run out of money. Bill: Not to worry. I have some more travelers checks.

Not (too) much. a response to greeting inquiries into what one has been doing. □ John: What have you been doing? Mary: Not much. □ Sue: Been keeping busy? What are you up to? Bob: Not too much. Sue: Yeah. Me too.

not too shabby 1. Inf. nice; well done. (With emphasis on shabby.) □ Is that your car? Not too shabby! □ That play was not too shabby. 2. Inf. very shabby; very poor indeed. (With emphasis on too. Sarcastic.) □ Did you see that shot she missed? Not too shabby! □ What a way to treat someone. Not too shabby!

not touch someone or something with a ten-foot pole Cliché not to have anything to do with someone or something. (Always negative.) □ No, I won't hire Fred. I wouldn't touch him with a ten-foot pole. □ I wouldn't touch that job with a ten-foot pole.

not trouble one's (pretty) (little) head about something Rur. not to worry about something. (Considered demeaning by many.) □ Don't you trouble your little head about that. I'll take care of it. □ You shouldn't trouble your head about it. Everything will turn out fine.

not under any circumstances Go to under no circumstances.

not up to scratch and not up to snuff Fig. not adequate. Sorry, your paper isn't up to scratch. Please do it over again. The performance was not up to snuff.

not up to snuff Go to previous.

not utter a word Go to not open one's mouth.

not want to catch someone doing something Go to not let someone catch someone doing something.

not what something is cracked up to be Go to not all something is cracked up to be.

not with it not able to think clearly; not able to understand things. Lisa's mother is not really with it anymore. She's going senile. Tom's not with it yet. He's only just come around from the anesthetic.

not worth a damn Inf. worthless. This pen is not worth a damn. When it comes to keeping score, she's not worth a damn.

not worth a dime and not worth a red cent worthless. This land is all swampy. It's not worth a dime. This pen I bought isn't worth a dime. It has no ink.

not worth a hill of beans and not amount to a hill of beans; not worth a plugged nickel; not worth beans Fig. worthless. Your advice isn't worth a hill of beans. This old cow isn't worth a plugged nickel.

not worth a red cent Go to not worth a dime.

not worth mentioning 1. not important enough to require a comment. There are others, but they are not worth mentioning. A small number of books hint at the phenomenon, but they aren't worth mentioning. 2. [of an error or wrong] not worth apologizing for. This isn't a problem at all. It's not worth mentioning. No need to apologize to me. No harm done. It's not worth mentioning.

not worth one's while not worth bothering with; not worth spending time on. It's not worth my while to discuss it with you. Don't bother trying to collect money from them. It isn't worth your while.

not worth the paper it's printed on Go to next.

not worth the paper it's written on and not worth the paper it's printed on Fig. [of a document] meaningless or without authority; of no value. That contract isn't worth the paper it's written on. All the signatures are forged. Don't take a check from that guy. It's not worth the paper it's written on.

not worth the trouble not important enough to require a comment or any effort. Don't bother with it. It isn't worth the trouble. There is no point in trying to get the spot out of the carpet. It isn't worth the trouble.

a notch above (someone or something) and a notch better than (someone or something) Fig. a little higher in quality than someone or something. This latest candidate we interviewed seems a notch above the rest, so let's hire her. That telescope is a notch better than the others in terms of magnification.

a notch below (someone or something) Fig. a little lower in quality than someone or something. I believe that this wine is a notch below the one we had with the fish.

notch something up[†] to count up something; to add up or score something. We notched yet another victory up in our efforts to regain the trophy. Well, it looks like we notched up another victory.

note something down[†] to write down a note about something. Please note these words down. Note down the following facts.

noted for something Fig. famed for something; memorable for something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) We were all noted for our polite manners. The restaurant was noted for its traditional fare. Tom was noted far and wide for his excellent pies and cakes.

nothing but only; just. Jane drinks nothing but milk. Dave buys nothing but expensive clothes.

nothing but skin and bones and (all) skin and bones Fig. very thin or emaciated. Bill has lost so much weight. He's nothing but skin and bones. Look at Bill. He's just skin and bones. That old horse is all skin and bones. I won't ride it.

Nothing comes of nothing. Prov. If you contribute nothing, you will get nothing. Jill: Why are you so depressed today? Jane: No reason. Jill: There has to be a reason. Nothing comes of nothing. I'm not surprised you did so poorly in school; you haven't been putting in any effort. Nothing comes of nothing.

Nothing doing! Inf. I will not permit it!; I will not participate in it! John: Can I put this box in your suitcase? Bill: Nothing doing! It's too heavy now. Sue: We decided that you should drive us to the airport. Do you mind? Jane: Nothing doing! I've got work to do.

nothing down requiring no down payment. You can have this car for nothing down and $140 a month. I bought a winter coat for nothing down and no payments due until February.

Nothing for me, thanks. I do not want any of what was offered. (Typically to decline a serving of food or drink.) Waiter: Would you care for dessert? Bob: Nothing for me, thanks. Bob: We have beer and wine. Which would you like? Mary: Nothing for me, thanks.

Nothing is certain but death and taxes. Prov. Everything in life is unpredictable, except that you can be sure you will die and you will have to pay taxes. (You can also refer to death and taxes as the only certain things in life.) Son: I can't believe how much tax money is being withheld from my paycheck! Father: Welcome to adult life, where nothing is certain but death and taxes.

Nothing is certain but the unforeseen. Prov. You cannot foresee what will happen. Jill: Now that we've got a new boss, this is certain to be a nicer place to work. Jane: Nothing is certain but the unforeseen.

Nothing is given so freely as advice. Prov. People will give you advice more willingly than they give you anything else. Although no one in my family was willing to give me a loan, they all had suggestions about how I could get the money from elsewhere. Nothing is given so freely as advice. Don't hesitate to ask people what they think you ought to do. Nothing is given so freely as advice.

Nothing much. Inf. not much; hardly anything; nothing of importance. (Often a reply to a greeting asking what one has been doing.) John: Hey, man! How's by you? Bob: Hiya! Nothing much. Bill: What have you been doing? Tom: Nothing much.

nothing of the kind 1. no; absolutely not. □ I didn't tear your jacket—nothing of the kind! □ Did I break your vase? Nothing of the kind! 2. nothing like that. □ That's not true. We did nothing of the kind! □ She did nothing of the kind! She wasn't even there!

nothing short of something more or less the same as something bad; as bad as something. □ His behavior was nothing short of criminal. □ Climbing those mountains alone is nothing short of suicide.

Nothing so bad but (it) might have been worse.

Prov. Although bad things do happen, they are not as bad as other things you can imagine that might have happened. □ Joan: This is like a nightmare! My house burned down—I lost everything! Nancy: At least you and your family are safe. Nothing so bad but might have been worse. □ My bicycle tire blew out, but at least it blew out within walking distance of a repair shop. Nothing so bad but it might have been worse.

Nothing succeeds like success. Prov. If you have succeeded in the past, you will continue to be successful in the future. □ After Alan's brilliant courtroom victory, everyone wanted to be his client. Nothing succeeds like success.

nothing to be sneezed at Go to nothing to sneeze at.

nothing to boast about not worth bragging about; mediocre. □ In high school, my grades were acceptable, but they were nothing to boast about. □ Jill: Does this town have a good library? Nancy: It's nothing to boast about.

nothing to choose from no choice; no choice in the selection; not enough of something to make a choice. □ I went to the store looking for new shoes, but there was nothing to choose from. □ By the time I got around to selecting a team of helpers, there was nothing to choose from.

Nothing to it! It is very easy! □ Look, anybody can do it! Nothing to it! □ Changing a lightbulb is easy. Nothing to it!

nothing to sneeze at and nothing to be sneezed at Fig. nothing small or unimportant. □ It's not a lot of money, but it's nothing to sneeze at. □ Our house isn't a mansion, but it's nothing to sneeze at. □ A few thousand dollars is nothing to be sneezed at!

nothing to speak of not many; not much. □ John: What's happening around here? Bill: Nothing to speak of. □ Mary: Has there been any rain in the last week? Sally: Nothing to speak of.

nothing to write home about Fig. mediocre; not as good as you expected. □ I went to that new restaurant last night. It's nothing to write home about. □ Jill: I went to see a movie last night. Jane: How was it? Jill: Nothing to write home about.

nothing upstairs Fig. no brains; stupid. □ Tom is sort of stupid. You know—nothing upstairs. □ I know what's wrong with you. Nothing upstairs.

Nothing ventured, nothing gained. If you do not take risks, you will never accomplish anything. □ Bill: Should I ask my boss for a promotion? Jane: Nothing ventured, nothing gained. □ I think I'll audition for a part in that play. Nothing ventured, nothing gained.

notify someone about someone or something to inform someone about someone or something. □ Please notify the insurance company about the accident. □ I have to notify the doctor about Ed, who is ill.

notify someone of something to inform someone about something. □ Can you notify my parents of my arrival at the airport? □ We were notified of it last night.

now and then sometimes; occasionally. (See also (every) now and then.) □ I like to go to a movie now and then. □ We visit my parents now and then, but we rarely see our other relatives.

Now hear this! Pay attention to what is going to be said! (In the manner of an announcement over a public address system, especially in the military.) □ Now hear this! You have to turn off the television and go to bed! □ Now hear this! Now hear this! Everyone is ordered to abandon ship.

now, now Inf. a calming and consoling phrase that introduces good advice. □ "Now, now, don't cry," said the mother to the tiny baby. □ Jane: I'm so upset! Andy: Now, now, everything will work out all right.

now or never at this time and no other. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ This is your only chance, John. It's now or never. □ I decided that it was now or never, and jumped.

now then a sentence opener indicating that a new topic is being opened or that the speaker is getting down to business. (Expressions such as this often use intonation to convey the connotation of the sentence that is to follow. The brief intonation pattern accompanying the expression may indicate sarcasm, disagreement, caution, consolation, sternness, etc.) □ "Now then, where's the pain?" asked the doctor. □ Mary: Now then, let's talk about you and your interests. Bob: Oh, good. My favorite subject. □ Sue: Now then, what are your plans for the future? Alice: I want to become a pilot. □ "Now then, what did you have in mind when you took this money?" asked the police investigator.

Now what? and What now? Inf. What is going to happen now?; What kind of new problem has arisen? □ The phone rang again, and Tom said, rising from the chair, "Now what?" □ Bob: There's a serious problem—sort of an emergency—in the mail room. Sue: What now? Bob: They're out of stamps or something silly like that.

(Now,) where was I? I was interrupted, so please help me remember what I was talking about. (The emphasis is on was.) □ Now, where was I! I think I lost my place. □ Q: Where was I? A: You had just described the War of 1812.

Now you're cooking (with gas)! Inf. Fig. Now you are doing what you should be doing! □ As Bob came to the end of the piece, the piano teacher said, "Now you're cooking with gas!" □ Tom (painting a fence): How am I doing with this painting? Any better? Jane: Now you're cooking. Tom: Want to try it?

Now you're talking! Inf. Now you are saying the right things. □ Tom: I won't put up with her behavior any longer. I'll tell her exactly what I think of it. Bill: Now you're talking! □ John: When I get back to school, I'm going to study harder than ever. Mother: Now you're talking!

nowhere near not nearly. □ We have nowhere near enough wood for the winter. □ They're nowhere near ready for the game.

no-win situation a situation where there is no correct or satisfactory solution. □ The general was too weak to fight and too proud to surrender. It was a no-win situation. □ The huge dog my father gave us as a gift eats too much. If we get rid of the dog, my father will be insulted. If we keep it, we will go broke buying food for it. This is a classic no-win situation.

nudge someone or something aside^t to push or bump someone or something out of the way. □ We nudged the old man aside and went on ahead. □ She nudged aside the cat to make room on the sofa.

null and void Cliché without legal force; having no legal effect. □ The court declared the law to be null and void. □ The millionaire's will was null and void because it was unsigned.

number in something to total up to a certain figure. □ The birds numbered in the thousands. □ These pesky ants number in the hundreds. Let's move to another picnic table.

a number of things or people some things or people, in an indefinite amount. □ I subscribe to a number of different magazines. □ A number of people are here now.

number off (by something) to say a number in a specified sequence when it is one's turn. □ Please number off by tens. □ Come on, number off!

number someone or something among something to include someone or something in a group of something. □ I number her among my best friends. □ I number this product among the most popular developed during the past year.

number someone with something to include someone in a list of people. □ I number Clara Wilson with the all-time greats. □ Todd numbered himself with the top athletes at the school.

nurse a grudge (against someone) Fig. to keep resenting and disliking someone over a period of time. (Usually implies that it has been an unreasonably long time.) □ Sally is still nursing a grudge against Mary. □ How long can anyone nurse a grudge?

nurse someone back to health to care for a sick person until good health returns. □ Sally was glad to help nurse her mother back to health. □ She nursed her children back to health when they all had the flu.

nurse someone or an animal along^t to aid or encourage the well-being or return to health of someone or an animal. (See also nurse something along.) □ She nursed the old man along for a few years until he died. □ She nursed along the invalid. □ The vet nursed the horse along for the rest of the night. □ He nursed himself along with chicken noodle soup and hot baths until the virus ran its course.

nurse someone through (something) to care for a sick person during the worst part of a sickness or recovery. □ There was no one there to nurse him through the worst part of his illness. □ It was a horrible ordeal, but John nursed her through.

nurse something along^t Fig. to manage something with care and thrift. (See also nurse someone or an animal along.) □ The board of directors agreed to nurse the firm along for a while and then sell it. □ She nursed along the failing business until it was showing a profit.

a nut case Fig. a crazy person; an irrational person. □ Bob is acting stranger and stranger. He is turning into a real nut case.

nut up Sl. to go crazy. (See also crack up.) □ I knew I would nut up if I didn't quit that job. □ I almost nutted up at the last place I worked.

nuts about someone or something Go to crazy about someone or something.

nuts and bolts 1. Fig. the mundane workings of something; the basics of something. (See also get down to the nuts and bolts.) □ I want you to learn how to write well. You have to know the nuts and bolts of writing. □ She's got a lot of good, general ideas, but when it comes to the nuts and bolts of getting something done, she's no good. 2. Sl. the subject of psychology in college. □ I took a class in nuts and bolts and didn't learn anything at all about what makes me tick. □ Tom is flunking nuts and bolts because he won't participate in the required "experiments."

Nuts to you! Inf. Go away!; Drop dead! □ Well, nuts to you! You are just plain rude! □ Nuts to you! I will NOT lend you money!

nuttier than a fruitcake Go to next.

nutty as a fruitcake and nuttier than a fruitcake crazy. (*Also: as ~.) □ Don't pay any attention to John; he's nutty as a fruitcake. □ Mary's schemes for making money are nuttier than a fruitcake.

nuzzle up against someone or something and nuzzle up (to someone or something) [for an animal] to rub its nose against someone or something; to rub against someone or something, softly, in the manner of rubbing the nose against someone or something; to snuggle up to someone or something. (Nuzzle is related to nose.) □ The dog nuzzled up against my leg, wanting to be friends. □ The dog nuzzled up to me and licked my hand.

object to someone or something to disapprove of someone or something. I object to him as your choice. I object to your opinion.

obligate someone to someone or something to force someone to do something for someone or something. This contract obligates you to the company for five years! I don't wish to obligate myself to anyone.

oblige someone by something to accommodate someone by doing something. Please oblige me by closing the window. Would you oblige me by accompanying me to the dance?

oblige someone to do something to require someone to do something. You are obliged to arrive on time and enter by the side door. The lateness of the hour obliged Tony to enter by the back door.

oblige someone with something to accommodate someone with something. He obliged her with a willing attitude. Please oblige me with a big piece of cake.

obliterate someone or something from something to destroy or wipe out someone or something from something. Karen obliterated the writing from the wall. Max set out to obliterate Lefty "Fingers" Moran from the face of the earth.

obsessed with someone or something preoccupied with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) Kathy was obsessed with the kitten. Roger was obsessed with Kathy.

obstinate as a mule Go to stubborn as a mule.

obtain something for someone or something to get or receive something for someone or something. I promised I would obtain a pet for Becky. I obtained a new part for the vacuum cleaner.

occupy oneself by something to keep busy by doing something. Don't worry. I can occupy myself by knitting or sewing. While waiting, I occupied myself by knitting a scarf.

occupy someone with something to keep someone busy with something. Can you occupy the child with this toy? Here, occupy yourself with this crossword puzzle.

occur before someone's time Go to before someone's time.

occur to someone [for an idea or thought] to come into someone's mind. It occurred to me that you might be hungry after your long journey. Would it ever occur to you that I want to be left alone?

oceans of someone or something and an ocean of someone or something a very large amount of something. The naughty student was in oceans of trouble. After a week of vacation, there was an ocean of work to do.

odd man out an unusual or atypical person or thing. I'm odd man out because I'm not wearing a tie. You had better learn to use the new system software unless you want to be odd man out.

the odd something an extra or spare something; a chance something. The tailor repaired the odd loose button on my shirt. When I travel, I might buy the odd trinket or two, but I never spend much money.

odds and ends miscellaneous things. There were lots of odds and ends in the attic, but nothing of real value.

I had the whole house cleaned out except for a few odds and ends that you might want to keep.

the odds are against one [for fate] to be against one generally. You can give it a try, but the odds are against you. I know the odds are against me, but I wish to run in the race anyway.

the odds-on favorite the most popular choice of a wager. Fred is the odds-on favorite for president of the board of trustees.

odor of sanctity Fig. an atmosphere of excessive holiness or piety. I hate their house. There's such an odor of sanctity with Bibles and holy pictures everywhere. The huge, medieval Gothic cathedral had a distinct odor of sanctity.

of a single mind (about someone or something) Go to of one mind (about someone or something).

of age old enough to marry, buy alcohol, or to sign legal agreements. (*Typically: be ~; come ~.) Now that Mary is of age, she can buy her own car. When I'm of age, I'm going to get married and move to the city.

Of all things! Can you imagine?; Imagine that! (Usually said about something very strange.) She wore jeans to the dance. Of all things! Billy, stop eating the houseplant! Of all things!

of benefit (to someone) serving someone well; to the good of someone. I can't believe that this proposal is of benefit to anyone. Oh, I'm sure you'll find the new health plan to be of benefit.

of course yes; certainly; for sure. Sally: Are you ready to go? Bob: Of course. Sally: Then let's go. Jane: Are you coming with us? John: Of course. I wouldn't miss this for the world. "And you'll be there, of course?" asked Alice. "I would be happy to help, of course," confided Tom, a little insincerely.

of interest (to someone) interesting to someone. These archived files are no longer of any interest. This is of little interest to me.

of late lately. Have you seen Sally of late? We haven't had an opportunity to eat out of late.

of mature years Euph. old. My employer is a man of mature years. The professor, a woman of mature years, is planning to retire at the end of the school term.

of no avail Go to to no avail.

of one mind (about someone or something) and of a single mind (about someone or something) in agreement about someone or something. □ You will have to attend one of the state universities. Your father and I are of a single mind about this.

of one's own accord and of one's own free will by one's own choice, without coercion. □ I wish that Sally would choose to do it of her own accord. □ I'll have to order her to do it because she won't do it of her own free will.

of service (to someone) helping someone; serving someone. □ Good morning, madam. May I be of service to you? □ Welcome to the Warwick Hotel. May I be of service?

of the first water Fig. of the finest quality. □ This is a very fine pearl—a pearl of the first water. □ Tom is of the first water—a true gentleman.

of the old school Go to from the old school.

of the persuasion that... holding a belief that something is true or is in existence. □ Anne is of the persuasion that supports that candidate for mayor. □ The paranoid was of the persuasion that aliens lived among us.

of two minds (about someone or something) Fig. holding conflicting opinions about someone or something; being undecided about someone or something. □ I am of two minds about whether I should go to the convention.

off again, on again Go to on again, off again.

off and on Go to on and off.

off and running 1. Lit. [of horses, dogs, or people] having started racing. □ It's a beautiful day at the races, and, yes, they're off and running! 2. Fig. started up and going. □ The car was finally loaded by 9:30, and we were off and running. □ The construction of the building was going to take two years, but we were off and running, and it appeared we would finish on schedule.

off artist Go to (rip-)off artist.

off base 1. Lit. [of a runner in baseball] not having a foot touching the base. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The runner was off base but the first baseman didn't tag him out. 2. Fig. unrealistic; inexact; wrong. *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm afraid you're off base when you state that this problem will take care of itself. □ You're way off base if you think I was to blame!

off campus not located or present on the grounds of a college or university. (*Typically: be ~; live ~; move ~.) □ Tom has an apartment off campus. □ The dean is off campus and cannot be reached.

off center not exactly in the center or middle. □ The arrow hit the target a little off center. □ The picture hanging over the chair is a little off center.

off chance slight possibility. □ I need your phone number on the off chance I need more help. □ There's an off chance that we might be hiring next month.

off course 1. Lit. not going in the right direction. (*Typically: be ~; drift ~; get ~.) □ The ship is off course and may strike the reef! 2. Fig. not following the plan correctly. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The project is off course and won't be finished on time. □ I am off course and doing poorly.

off duty not working at one's job. (The opposite of on duty.) □ I'm sorry, I can't talk to you until I'm off duty. □ The police officer couldn't help me because he was off duty.

off like a shot away [from a place] very quickly. □ He finished his dinner and was off like a shot. □ The thief grabbed the lady's purse and was off like a shot.

off on a sidetrack Fig. on a digression; discussing a topic that is not the main topic. (Alludes to a train waiting on a siding. *Typically: be ~; get ~; get someone ~.) □ Anne got off on a sidetrack and never returned to her topic. □ The ineffective committee got off on one sidetrack after another.

off on someone or something in a rage about someone or something; on a tirade about someone or something. □ Are you off on Sally again? Why can't you leave her alone?

off (on something) 1. incorrect in one's planning or prediction. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I was off on my estimates a little bit. □ I guess I was off too much. 2. to have started on something, such as a task or a journey. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ What time should we be off on our trip? □ We should be off by dawn. □ I'm off on my diet again. 3. Sl. to get high on some kind of drug. □ Max likes to get off on marijuana.

off on the right foot (with someone or something) and off to a good start (with someone or something) Fig. starting out correctly; beginning something carefully and cautiously. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ This time, I want to get off on the right foot with him. □ I tried to get off to a good start with my new job.

off on the wrong foot and off to a bad start Fig. starting something (such as a friendship) with negative factors. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Bill and Tom got off on the wrong foot. They had a minor car accident just before they were introduced. □ Let's work hard to be friends. I hate to get off on the wrong foot.

off one's game Fig. not able to play a sport as well as normal. (*Typically: be ~; put one ~; throw one ~.) □ I'm a little tired, and that generally puts me off my game.

off one's nut Go to next.

off one's rocker and off one's nut; off one's trolley Fig. crazy; silly. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ Sometimes, Bob, I think you're off your rocker. □ Good grief, John. You're off your nut.

off one's trolley Go to previous.

off season not in the busy time of the year. □ We don't have much to do off season. □ Things are very quiet around here off season.

off someone or something goes someone or something is leaving. (Said on the departure of someone or something.) □ It's time to leave. Off I go. □ Sally looked at the airplane taking off and said, "Off it goes."

off the air not broadcasting (a radio or television program). □ The radio audience won't hear what you say when you're off the air. □ When the performers were off the air, the director told them how well they had done.

off the beaten path Go to next.

off the beaten track and off the beaten path Fig. away from the frequently traveled routes. (*Typically: be ~; go ~; travel ~.) □ We found a nice little Italian restaurant off the beaten track.

off the hook Fig. freed from an obligation. (Alludes to a fish freeing itself from a fishhook. *Typically: be ~;

- get ~; get someone ~; let someone ~. □ Thanks for getting me off the hook. I didn't want to attend that meeting. □ I couldn't get myself off the hook no matter what I tried.
- off the mark Fig. not quite exactly right. □ Her answer was a little off the mark. □ You were off the mark when you said we would be a little late to the party. It was yesterday, in fact!
- off the record Fig. unofficial; informal. (Of comments to the press that one does not want reported.) □ This is off the record, but I disagree with the mayor on this matter. □ Although her comments were off the record, the newspaper published them anyway.
- off the shelf Fig. ready made for purchase; not custom-made. (Hyphenated when pronominal.) □ I generally buy off-the-shelf clothing. I am a perfect size eight.
- off the subject not concerned with the subject being discussed. □ I got off the subject and forgot what I was supposed to be talking about. □ The speaker was off the subject, telling about his vacation in Hawaii.
- off the track 1. Go to off the (beaten) track. 2. Fig. [of comments] irrelevant and immaterial. □ I'm afraid you're off the track, John. Try again. □ I'm sorry. I was thinking about dinner, and I got off the track.
- *off the wagon 1. Fig. drinking liquor after a period of abstinence. (*Typically: be ~; fall ~; get ~.) □ Poor John fell off the wagon again. Drunk as a skunk. □ He was off the wagon for a year the last time before he sobered up. 2. Fig. back on drugs after a period of abstinence. (*Typically: be ~; fall ~; get ~.) □ Wilbur is off the wagon and shooting up again. □ He can't be off the wagon, because he has never stopped using, even for a day.
- off to a bad start Go to off on the wrong foot.
- *off (to a flying start) Fig. having a very successful beginning to something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The new business got off to a flying start with those export orders. □ We shall need a large donation from the local citizens if the charity is to get off to a flying start.
- off to a good start (with someone or something) Go to off on the right foot (with someone or something).
- off to a running start with a good, fast beginning, possibly a head start. □ I got off to a running start in math this year. □ The horses got off to a running start.
- off to one side beside something; (moved) slightly away from something. □ Our garden has roses in the middle and a spruce tree off to one side. □ He took me off to one side to tell me the bad news.
- off to the races Fig. an expression characterizing the activity or excitement that is just beginning; [we are] leaving for something interesting or exciting. □ The tour bus is out in front waiting and we've said goodbye to everyone. Looks like we're off to the races.
- *off (to the side) with someone moving aside with someone to discuss something. (*Typically: get ~; go ~; move ~; step ~.) □ I got off with Charles and we discussed the contract. □ I moved off to the side with the client and explained the offer a little better.
- *off topic not on the topic of discussion; far from the general subject of a discussion; not part of the purpose of a particular communication channel, such as an Internet newsgroup. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; get someone ~.) □ The boys in the back of the room just love to get the teacher off topic.
- Off with you! Go away!; Get going! (Formal or pompous.) □ Off with you! We've had enough of your banter!
- *off (work) and off from work; off of work 1. having left one's work at the end of the day. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ What time do you get off from work? □ I get off work about five o'clock. □ She gets off from work later than I do. 2. absent from one's work with permission. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I think I can get off of work so I can go to the doctor. □ Sorry, I can't join you. Things are busy at the office, and I can't get off.
- offend against someone or something to anger or affront someone or something. □ We do not wish to offend against anyone. □ He didn't realize that he offended against their cultural values.
- offend someone with something to anger or affront someone with something. □ Don't offend us with your bad jokes. □ I offended Ralph with my constant niggling.
- offer a helping hand Go to a helping hand.
- *an offer one cannot refuse Cliché a very attractive offer. (*Typically: give one ~; make ~; make one ~.) □ He made me an offer I could not refuse, so I sold him my car.
- offer something for something to suggest a certain amount of money as a purchase price for something. □ I'll offer you ten bucks for that watch. □ They offered me very little for my car.
- offer something to someone (as something) to propose giving something to someone as a gift, peace offering, payment, etc. □ They offered us a bunch of flowers as a peace offering. □ As an apology, I offered a gift to the hostess.
- offer something up† (to someone or something) to give something to someone or something as a mark of devotion, thanks, etc. □ We offered our gratitude up to the ruler. □ We offered up our gratitude to the queen.
- officiate (as something) (at something) to serve as an official or moderator at some event. □ They asked me to officiate as a judge at the contest. □ Laura will officiate as parade marshal.
- off-key [of music or singing] off pitch; out of tune. □ She always sings off-key and makes the rest of the choir sound like baying hounds.
- off-kilter Go to out of kilter.
- off-limits Go to out-of-bounds.
- off-line not connected to a computer, by direct connection or via the telephone system, etc. (Compare this with online.) □ When he's off-line he's sort of lost. □ The system was off-line all day, so we could get nothing done.
- off-the-cuff Fig. spontaneous; without preparation or rehearsal. □ Her remarks were off-the-cuff, but very sensible. □ I'm not very good at making speeches off-the-cuff.
- off-the-wall Fig. odd; silly; unusual. □ Why are you so off-the-wall today? □ This book is strange. It's really off-the-wall.

ogle (at) someone or something to stare at someone or something, usually with amorous or erotic relish. □ Don't just stand there and ogle at me! □ Stop ogling at those magazines.

Oh, boy. 1. Inf. Wow! (Usually Oh, boy! An exclamation. It has nothing to do with boys.) □ Bill: Oh, boy! An old-fashioned circus! □ "Oh, boy!" shouted John. "Dinner smells great! When do we eat?" 2. Inf. I dread this!; This is going to be awful! □ "Oh, boy!" moaned Fred, as his old car stalled out, "Here we go again." □ Doctor: It looks like something fairly serious. Jane: Oh, boy. Doctor: But nothing modern medicine can't handle.

Oh, sure (someone or something will)! Inf. a sarcastic expression claiming that someone or something will do something or that something will happen. □ Andy: Don't worry. I'll do it. Rachel: Oh, sure you will. That's what you always say. □ Bob: I'll fix this fence the first chance I get. Mary: Oh, sure. When will that be? Next year?

Oh, ye of little faith. Fig. You who trust no one. (Jocular; the word ye is an old form of you used in the Bible.) □ You thought I wouldn't show up on time? Oh, ye of little faith.

Oh, yeah? Inf. Is that what you think? (Rude and hostile.) □ Tom: You're getting to be sort of a pest. Bill: Oh, yeah? Tom: Yeah. □ Bob: This sauce tastes bad. I think you ruined it. Bill: Oh, yeah? What makes you think so? Bob: My tongue tells me!

oil someone's palm Go to grease someone's palm.

oink out Sl. to overeat. □ I oink out every time we have chocolate cake. □ This Thursday starts a four-day weekend, and I plan to oink out every day.

old as Methuselah very old. (Of a person; refers to a biblical figure held to have lived to be 969. *Also: as ~.) □ Old Professor Stone is as old as Methuselah but still gets around with a cane.

old as the hills very old; ancient. (*Also: as ~.) □ That's not a new joke; it's as old as the hills! □ Our family custom of eating black-eyed peas on New Year's Day is old as the hills.

old battle-axe a bossy old woman. □ She is such an old battle-axe. I'll bet she's hell to live with.

old college try a valiant effort. □ Will made the old college try, but that wasn't enough to get the job done.

old enough to be someone's father Go to next.

old enough to be someone's mother and old enough to be someone's father as old as someone's parents. (Usually a way of saying that a person is too old.) □ You can't go out with Bill. He's old enough to be your father! □ He married a woman who is old enough to be his mother.

Old habits die hard. Prov. People find it difficult to change their accustomed behavior. □ Joan retired last year, but she still gets up as early as she used to when she had to go to work. Old habits die hard.

an old hand at doing something someone who is experienced at doing something. □ The maid was an old hand at polishing silver. □ Bob is an old hand at training dogs.

old hat Fig. old-fashioned; outmoded. □ That's a silly idea. It's old hat. □ Hardly anybody uses typewriters anymore. That's just old hat.

the (old) heave-ho the act of throwing someone out; the act of firing someone. (From nautical use, where sailors used heave-ho to coordinate hard physical labor. One sailor called "Heave-ho," and all the sailors would pull at the same time on the ho. *Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ I wanted to complain to the management, but they called a security guard and I got the old heave-ho. That's right. They threw me out! □ They fired a number of people today, but I didn't get the heave-ho.

the old one-two a series of two punches delivered quickly, one after another. □ Tom gave Bill the old one-two, and the argument was ended right there. □ Watch out for Tom. He's a master of the old one-two.

An old poacher makes the best gamekeeper. Prov. The best person to guard something is someone who knows all about how to steal it, so he or she can anticipate what thieves might do. □ We should hire the computer hacker to design computer security systems. An old poacher makes the best gamekeeper.

an old warhorse a performance piece that is performed often. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; perform ~; play ~.) □ The symphony orchestra played a few old warhorses and then some ghastly contemporary stuff that will never again see the light of day.

an old wives' tale Fig. a myth or superstition. □ You really don't believe that stuff about starving a cold do you? It's just an old wives' tale.

omit someone or something from something to leave someone or something out of something. □ You omitted Carol from the list. □ I think that you omitted our company from the bidding. □ She omitted herself from the list of participants.

on a diet trying to lose weight by eating less food or specific foods. (*Typically: be ~; go ~; put someone ~; stay ~.) □ I didn't eat any cake because I'm on a diet. □ I'm getting too heavy. I'll have to go on a diet. □ I have a lot of trouble staying on a diet.

on a first-name basis (with someone) knowing someone very well; good friends with someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm on a first-name basis with John. □ John and I are on a first-name basis.

on a fool's errand Fig. involved in a useless journey or task. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ Bill went for an interview, but he was on a fool's errand. The job had already been filled. □ I was sent on a fool's errand to buy some flowers. I knew the shop would be closed by then.

on a lark Go to for a lark.

on a moment's notice Go to at a moment's notice.

on a pedestal Fig. elevated to a position of honor or reverence. (Alludes to honoring someone on display on a pedestal like a statue. *Typically: place someone ~; put someone ~.) □ He puts his wife on a pedestal. She can do no wrong in his opinion. □ I was just doing my job. There is no point in placing me on a pedestal!

on a power trip exercising power and authority, especially unduly. (*Typically: be ~; be off ~; go ~; have ~.) □ Old Molly is off on a power trip again. She loves ordering everyone about.

on a roll in the midst of a series of successes. Don't stop me now. I'm on a roll. Things are going great for Larry. He's on a roll now.

on a shoestring Fig. with a very small amount of money. We lived on a shoestring for years before I got a good-paying job. John traveled to Florida on a shoestring.

on a silver platter Fig. using a presentation [of something] that is appropriate for a very formal setting. (*Typically: give something to someone ~; present something ~; serve something ~; want something ~.) Aren't paper plates good enough for you? You want dinner maybe on a silver platter?

on a string Fig. under control, as one would control a marionette. (*Typically: get someone ~; have someone ~; keep someone ~.) She keeps him on a string so he won't get involved with other women.

on a tight leash 1. Lit. [of an animal] on a leash, held tightly and close to its owner. I keep my dog on a tight leash so it won't bother people. 2. Fig. under very careful control. My father keeps my brother on a tight leash. We can't do much around here. The boss has us all on a tight leash. 3. Sl. addicted to some drug. Wilbur is on a tight leash. He has to have the stuff regularly. Gert is kept on a tight leash by her habit.

on a wing and a prayer Fig. to arrive or fly in with one's plane in very bad condition. (Sometimes used fig. of other vehicles. *Typically: come (in) ~; arrive ~.) Finally we could see the plane through the smoke, coming in on a wing and a prayer.

on account [money paid or owed] on a debt. I paid twelve dollars on account last month. Wasn't that enough? I still have $100 due on account.

on active duty in battle or ready to go into battle. (Military.) The soldier was on active duty for ten months. That was a long time to be on active duty.

on advance notice Go to with advance notice.

on again, off again and off again, on again uncertain; indecisive. I don't know about the picnic. It's on again, off again. It depends on the weather. Jane doesn't know if she's going to look for a new job. She's off again, on again about it.

on all fours on one's hands and knees. I dropped a contact lens and spent an hour on all fours looking for it. The baby can walk, but is on all fours most of the time anyway.

on and off and off and on occasionally; erratically; now and again. I feel better off and on, but I'm not well yet. He only came to class on and off.

on any account for any purpose; for any reason; no matter what. On any account, I'll be there on time. This doesn't make sense on any account.

on approval for examination, with the privilege of return. I ordered the merchandise on approval so I could send it back if I didn't like it. Sorry, you can't buy this on approval. All sales are final.

on average Go to on the average.

on behalf of someone Go to in behalf of someone.

on bended knee kneeling, as in supplication. (The verb form is obsolescent and occurs now only in this phrase.) Do you expect me to come to you on bended knee and ask you for forgiveness? The suitors came on bended knee and begged the attention of the princess.

on board 1. Lit. aboard (on or in) a ship, bus, airplane, etc. Is there a doctor on board? We have a sick passenger. When everyone is on board, we will leave. 2. Fig. employed by someone; working with someone. Our company has a computer specialist on board to advise us about the latest technology. Welcome to the company, Tom. We're all glad you're on board now.

On Broadway Fig. located in the Broadway theater district in New York City; performed in the Broadway theater district. (Regarded as having the best of American stage productions.) Our musical is the best thing on Broadway! I want to be a star on Broadway someday.

on call ready to serve when called. I live a very hard life. I'm on call twenty hours a day. I'm sorry, but I can't go out tonight. I'm on call at the hospital.

on campus located or being on the grounds of a college or university. Do you live on campus or off campus? I don't think that Lisa is on campus right now.

on cloud nine Fig. very happy. When I got my promotion, I was on cloud nine. When the check came, I was on cloud nine for days.

on consignment [of goods] having been placed in a store for sale, with payments made for the goods by the operator of the store only if they are sold. The artist placed his work in a gallery on consignment. I will attempt to sell your clothing on consignment.

on course 1. Lit. going in the right direction or on the right route. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; stay ~.) We are on course and should arrive at our port about noon. 2. Fig. following the plan correctly. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; stay ~.) Is the project on course? Nothing I am doing is exactly on course right now.

on credit using credit; buying something using credit. I tried to buy a new suit on credit, but I was refused. The Smiths buy everything on credit and are very much in debt.

on dangerous ground Go to on shaky ground.

on dead center 1. Lit. at the exact center of something. The arrow hit the target on dead center. When you put the flowers on the table, put them on dead center. 2. Fig. exactly correct. Mary is quite observant. Her analysis is on dead center. My estimate wasn't on dead center, but it was very close to the final cost.

on deck 1. Lit. on the deck of a boat or a ship. Everyone except the cook was on deck when the storm hit. Just pull up the anchor and leave it on deck. 2. Fig. ready (to do something); ready to be next (at something). Ann, get on deck. You're next. Who's on deck now?

on duty at work; currently doing one's work. (The opposite of off duty.) I can't help you now, but I'll be on duty in about an hour. Who is on duty here? I need some help.

on earth and in creation; in the world Fig. really; indeed; in fact. (Used as an intensifier after who, what, when, where, how.) What on earth do you mean? How in creation do you expect me to do that? Who in the world do you think you are?

on easy street Fig. in a state of financial independence and comfort. I want to live on easy street when I grow up. When I get this contract signed, I'll be on easy street.

on edge 1. Lit. on something's own edge. Can you stand a dime on edge? You should store these crates on edge, not lying flat. 2. Fig. nervous. (As if one were balanced as in ①. See also on the edge.) I have really been on edge lately. Why are you so on edge?

on fire 1. Lit. burning; being burned with flames. Help! My car is on fire! That house on the corner is on fire! 2. Sl. very attractive or sexy. She is really on fire! Look at those jet-set people! Each one of them is just on fire. 3. Fig. Inf. doing very well; very enthusiastic. Jill's new book is really on fire. Everyone is buying it. Fred is on fire in his new job. He'll get promoted in no time.

on foot [running or walking] using the feet. My car won't work so I have to travel on foot. We go everywhere around the campus on foot.

on good terms (with someone) friendly with someone; able to interact well and be friends with someone. Bill is on good terms with the people he works with. We are not on very good terms and don't speak to each other much.

on hold 1. Lit. waiting; temporarily halted. The building project is on hold while we try to find money to complete it. We put our wedding plans on hold until we finished school. 2. Fig. left waiting on a telephone line. I hate to call up someone and then end up on hold. I waited on hold for ten minutes when I called city hall.

on horseback on the back of a horse. Anne rode on horseback across the field. Because they loved horses, the couple decided to marry on horseback.

on ice 1. Lit. stored or preserved on ice or under refrigeration. I have a lot of root beer on ice for the picnic. All the soft drinks are on ice. 2. Fig. [action on someone or something] suspended or left hanging. I was on ice for over a month while the matter was being debated. This matter should be on ice for a while.

on impulse after having had an impulse or sudden thought. On impulse, Bob decided to buy a car. I didn't need a cellular telephone. I just bought it on impulse.

on in years Go to up in years.

on its feet Fig. organized and functioning; started up and functioning. (*Typically: get something ~; have something ~; put something ~.) Trying to get this company on its feet is harder than I thought. What will it take to put this company on its feet again?

on land on the ground; on the land and not at sea or in the air. The flight was rough and I feel better now that I am back on land. When I am at sea, I feel more relaxed than when I am on land.

on loan (from someone or something) [of possession] temporarily granted by someone or some group. This lovely painting is on loan from the Kimble Museum for the rest of the year.

on location [of a movie] being filmed in a place distant from the studio. This movie was shot on location in Ontario. The actress went on location in Spain for her latest film.

on medication taking medicine for a current medical problem. I can't drive the car since I am on medication. He is on medication and hopes to be well soon.

on moral grounds considering reasons of morality. He complained about the television program on moral grounds. There was too much ridicule of his religion.

on no account and not on any account for no reason; absolutely not. On no account will I lend you the money. Will I say I'm sorry? Not on any account.

on occasion occasionally. I like to go to the movies on occasion. On occasion, Mary would walk her dog through the park.

on one's best behavior being as polite as possible. When we went out, the children were on their best behavior. I try to be on my best behavior all the time.

on one's deathbed while one is in bed and dying. While he lay on his deathbed, he told his lawyer that he wanted to give all his money to charity.

on one's feet 1. Lit. standing up. Get on your feet. They are playing the national anthem. I've been on my feet all day, and they hurt. 2. Fig. well and healthy, especially after an illness. I hope to be back on my feet next week. I can help out as soon as I'm back on my feet.

on (one's) guard (against someone or something) alert against someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; keep ~; remain ~; stay ~.) Try to stay on guard against pickpockets. I am always on my guard. Be on guard when you go into the city.

on one's high horse Fig. in a haughty manner or mood. Larry is on his high horse again, bossing people around. The boss is on her high horse about the cost of office supplies.

on one's honor Fig. on one's solemn oath; sincerely. On my honor, I'll be there on time. He promised on his honor that he'd pay me back next week.

on one's mind Fig. occupying one's thoughts; currently being thought about. You've been on my mind all day. Do you have something on your mind? You look so serious.

on one's own independently. Our baby can now walk on his own. I have lived on my own since I was 18.

on one's own hook all by oneself. I don't need any help. I can do it on my own hook. She did it on her own hook without having to call on anyone.

on one's own time not while one is at work. The boss made me write the report on my own time. That's not fair. Please make your personal telephone calls on your own time.

on one's person [of something] carried with one. Always carry identification on your person. I'm sorry, I don't have any money on my person.

on one's toes Fig. alert. (*Typically: be ~; keep ~; keep one ~; stay ~.) You have to be on your toes if you want to be in this business. I have to stay on my toes to keep from getting fired.

on one's way ((to) some place) leaving one place for another; en route to a place. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) I have to leave. I am on my way to the bank. I will be there soon. I'm on my way now.

on one's way (to something or some place) Go to on the way (to something or some place).

on order ordered with delivery expected. Your car is on order. It'll be here in a few weeks. I don't have the part in stock, but it's on order.

on par (with someone or something) equal to someone or something. Your effort is simply not on par with what's expected from you. These two departments are right on par in productivity.

on pins and needles Fig. anxious; in suspense. I've been on pins and needles all day, waiting for you to call with the news. We were on pins and needles until we heard that your plane had landed safely.

on probation 1. Lit. serving a period of probation, typically after conviction for a crime. While Anne was on probation, she reported to the police regularly. John was on probation for a year. 2. Fig. serving a trial period. All new members are on probation for a year. I was on probation in my job for a full year before it became permanent.

on purpose intentionally; in a way that is meant or intended; not an accident. The bully stepped on my foot on purpose. Jealously, Jimmy destroyed Billy's sand castle on purpose.

on record and on the books recorded for future reference. We had the coldest winter on record last year. This is the fastest race on record.

on sale available for sale at a reduced price. (Always implies lower than usual sale price.) These pots are on sale for $20. I bought these pants on sale for half price.

on schedule at the expected or desired time. The plane came in right on schedule. Things have to happen on schedule in a theatrical performance.

on second thought Fig. having given something more thought; having reconsidered something. On second thought, maybe you should sell your house and move into an apartment. On second thought, let's not go to a movie.

on shaky ground and on dangerous ground Fig. [of an idea or proposal] on an unstable or questionable foundation; [of an idea or proposal] founded on a risky premise. When you suggest that we are to blame, you are on shaky ground. There is no evidence that we are at fault. The case for relying solely on nuclear energy seems to be on dangerous ground.

on short notice quickly and without a timely notification of other people; with very little lead time. She called the meeting on such short notice that we had no time to prepare.

on someone or something [incriminating or harmful information] about someone or something. (*Typically: get something ~; have something ~; give someone something ~.) I've gotten something on Albert that would really shock you. She is trying to get something on her husband so she can divorce him.

on someone's account because of someone. Don't do it on my account. They were late on Jane's account.

on someone's back Go to on someone's case.

on someone's behalf Go to in behalf of someone.

on someone's case and on someone's back Inf. harassing someone about a personal problem; annoying someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; keep ~.) I'll get on Tom's case about being late so much. I'm sorry, I won't get on your case anymore.

on someone's doorstep Go to at someone's doorstep.

on someone's good side Go to on the good side of someone.

on someone's head Fig. [for something negative] belonging only to one person or group. All the blame fell on their heads. I don't think that all the criticism should be on my head.

on someone's heels Fig. following someone very closely; following very closely at someone's heels. (*Typically: hard ~; hot ~; right ~. See also on someone's tail.) I ran as fast as I could, but the dog was still hard on my heels. Here comes Sally, and John is hot on her heels.

on someone's nerves Fig. annoying someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) Our noisy neighbors are beginning to get on my nerves. That radio is getting on my nerves.

on someone's or something's last legs Fig. for someone or something to be almost worn out or finished. This building is on its last legs. It should be torn down. I feel as if I'm on my last legs. I'm really tired.

on someone's say-so on someone's authority; with someone's permission. I can't do it on your say-so. I'll have to get a written request. Bill: I canceled the contract with the A.B.C. Company. Bob: On whose say-so?

on someone's shoulders Fig. on someone's own self. (*Typically: be ~; carry something ~; fall ~; have something ~; leave something ~; put something ~.) Why should all the responsibility fall on my shoulders? She carries a tremendous amount of responsibility on her shoulders.

on someone's tail Inf. Fig. following someone closely. (See also on someone's heels.) There is a huge truck on my tail. What should I do? Keep on her tail and don't let her out of your sight.

on someone's watch while someone is on duty; while someone is supposed to be in charge of a situation. I am not responsible since it didn't happen on my watch. I guess I have to bear the blame since it happened on my watch.

on someone's wrong side Go to on the wrong side of someone.

on something 1. taking a medication. I am on an antibiotic for my chest cold. I want you to be on this drug for another week. 2. taking an illegal drug or controlled substance and acting strangely. What is the matter with that kid? Is he on something? She acted as if she were on barbiturates or something.

on speaking terms (with someone) on friendly terms with someone. (Often with the negative.) I'm not on speaking terms with Mary. We had a serious disagreement. We're not on speaking terms.

on spec 1. using money risked in the hope of profit; on speculation. He lives by buying and selling houses on spec. I think it might be an idea to build a few yachts on spec just now. 2. as specified; right on specifications. This has been built exactly on spec—just as you asked. □ It's important to make sure the design is on spec or the customer will not pay.

on standby waiting for one's turn, especially describing the status of travelers who wait at a soon-to-depart train, plane, or bus, hoping that a seat will become available. □ The passenger waited on standby for an available seat. □ The agent was able to seat all of the passengers on standby.

on tap 1. Lit. having to do with beer served from a barrel or keg. □ Do you have any imported beers on tap here? □ I like beer on tap. The canned stuff tastes funny to me.
2. Fig. immediately available. □ I have just the kind of person you're talking about on tap. □ The cook has any kind of food you might want on tap.

on target on schedule; exactly as predicted. □ Your estimate of the cost was right on target. □ My prediction was not on target.

on the air broadcasting (a radio or television program). □ The radio station came back on the air shortly after the storm. □ We were on the air for two hours.

on the alert (for someone or something) watchful and attentive for someone or something. □ Be on the alert for pickpockets. □ You should be on the alert when you cross the street in heavy traffic.

on the average and on average generally; usually. □ On the average, you can expect about a 10 percent failure rate. □ This report looks OK, on average.

on the back burner Fig. [of something] on hold or suspended temporarily. (Alludes to putting a pot that needs less active attention on a back burner of a stove, leaving space for pots that need to be stirred. Compare this with on the front burner. *Typically: be ~; put something ~.) □ The building project is on the back burner for now. □ This matter was on the back burner for a long time.

on the ball Inf. knowledgeable; competent; attentive. (See also have something on the ball.) □ This guy is really on the ball. □ If you were on the ball, this wouldn't have happened.

on the bandwagon Fig. on the popular side (of an issue); taking a popular position. (*Typically: be ~; climb ~; get ~; hop ~; jump ~.) □ You really should get on the bandwagon. Everyone else is. □ Jane has always had her own ideas about things. She's not the kind of person to jump on the bandwagon.

on the beam Fig. exactly right; thinking along the correct lines. □ That's the right idea. Now you're on the beam! □ She's not on the beam yet. Explain it to her again.

on the bench 1. [of a judge] directing a session of court. □ I have to go to court tomorrow. Who's on the bench? □ It doesn't matter who's on the bench. You'll get a fair hearing.
2. sitting, waiting for a chance to play in a game. (In sports, such as basketball, football, soccer, etc.) □ Bill is on the bench now. I hope he gets to play. □ John played during the first quarter, but now he's on the bench.

on the bias on a diagonal line; on a diagonal pathway or direction. □ The panels of the dress were cut on the bias. □ The seamstress sewed the fabric on the bias.

on the bird available on satellite television. □ There is a whole lot of good stuff on the bird, but you need a receiving dish to get it. □ I get a huge book every month listing what programs are on the bird.

on the bleeding edge and on the leading edge having the most advanced technology; knowing about the most advanced technology. (Alludes to the cutting edge of a sword.) □ This gadget is brand new. It's really on the bleeding edge. □ Tom is on the leading edge when it comes to optical storage technology.

on the blink Go to on the fritz.

on the block 1. Lit. on a city or suburban block. □ John is the biggest kid on the block. □ We had a party on the block last weekend.
2. on sale at auction; on the auction block. □ We couldn't afford to keep up the house, so it was put on the block to pay the taxes. □ That's the finest painting I've ever seen on the block.

on the books Go to on record.

on the borderline in an uncertain position between two statuses; undecided. □ Bill was on the borderline between an A and a B in biology. □ Jane was on the borderline of joining the navy.

on the bottom rung (of the ladder) Go to at the bottom of the ladder.

on the bright side Fig. [ignoring the bad for a moment] considering the positive aspects of a situation. (See also look on the bright side.) □ On the bright side, the car you wrecked was covered by insurance.

on the brink (of doing something) Fig. on the verge of doing something; almost to the point of doing something. □ I was on the brink of selling my car to make ends meet when the tax refund came in the mail.

on the button exactly right; in exactly the right place; at exactly the right time. □ That's it! You're right on the button. □ He got here at one o'clock on the button.

on the contrary Go to to the contrary.

on the cusp (of something) Fig. at the point in time that marks the beginning of something. □ The transistor was on the cusp of a new age in electronics.

on the cutting edge Fig. [for someone] to be trendy and very up-to-date; [for something] to be of the latest design. (Akin to on the bleeding edge.) □ This technology is right on the cutting edge. It's so new, it's not available to the public yet.

on the defensive weary and ready to defend oneself. □ John goes on the defensive when his athletic ability is questioned. □ The child was on the defensive when questioned about cheating.

on the dole receiving welfare money. □ I spent six months on the dole, and believe me, it's no picnic.

on the dot Fig. at exactly the right time. (*Typically: be somewhere ~; arrive (somewhere) ~; get somewhere ~; see someone ~; show up ~.) □ I'll be there at noon on the dot. □ I expect to see you here at eight o'clock on the dot.

on the double very fast; twice as fast as normal. (Originally military. Alludes to "double time" in marching.) □ Get over here right now—on the double! □ She wants to see you in her office on the double.

on the edge Fig. very anxious and about to become distraught; on the verge of becoming irrational. (*Typically: be ~; live ~. See also on edge.) □ After the horrible events of the last week, we are all on the edge.

on the edge of one's seat Fig. [of a member of an audience] closely following the action and excitement of a performance. □ We sat on the edge of our seats during the entire play.

on the eve of something Fig. just before something, possibly the evening before something. □ John decided to leave school on the eve of his graduation. □ The team held a party on the eve of the tournament.

on the face of it Fig. superficially; from the way it looks. □ This looks like a serious problem on the face of it. It probably is minor, however. □ On the face of it, it seems worthless.

on the fast track Fig. following an expedited procedure; being acted upon sooner or more quickly than is typical. □ Let's put this project on the fast track and maybe we'll see results sooner.

on the fence (about something) Fig. undecided about something. (*Typically: be ~; sit ~.) □ Ann is on the fence about going to Mexico. □ I wouldn't be on the fence. I'd love to go.

on the fly [done] while something or someone is operating or moving. □ I'll try to capture the data on the fly. □ Please try to buy some aspirin somewhere on the fly today.

on the fringe 1. Lit. at the outer boundary or edge of something. □ He doesn't live in the city, just on the fringe.
2. Fig. at the extremes of something, typically political thought. □ He is way out. His political ideas are really on the fringe.

on the fritz and on the blink not operating; not operating correctly. □ This vacuum cleaner is on the fritz. Let's get it fixed. □ How long has it been on the blink?

on the front burner Fig. receiving particular attention or consideration. (Compare this with on the back burner. *Typically: be ~; put something ~.) □ So, what's on the front burner for us this week? □ Move this project to the front burner so it will get some attention.

on the go busy; moving about busily. □ I'm usually on the go all day long. □ I hate being on the go all the time.

on the good side of someone and on someone's good side Fig. in someone's favor. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I tried to get on the good side of the teacher, but that teacher has no good side. □ First of all, don't try to get on the boss's good side.

on the heels of something Fig. soon after something. □ There was a rainstorm on the heels of the windstorm. □ The team held a victory celebration on the heels of their winning season.

on the horizon 1. Lit. appearing at the boundary between the earth and the sky. □ There is a storm on the horizon.
2. Fig. soon to happen. □ Do you know what's on the horizon? □ There is some excitement on the horizon, but I can't tell you about it.

on the horns of a dilemma Fig. having to decide between two things, people, etc. □ Mary found herself on the horns of a dilemma. She didn't know which to choose.

□ I make up my mind easily. I'm not on the horns of a dilemma very often.

on the hot seat and in the hot seat Fig. in a difficult position; subject to much attention or criticism. □ I was really in the hot seat for a while. □ Now that John is on the hot seat, no one is paying any attention to what I do.

on the hour at each hour on the hour mark. □ I have to take this medicine every hour on the hour. □ I expect to see you there on the hour, not one minute before and not one minute after.

on the house [of something] given away free by a merchant. □ "Here," said the waiter, "have a cup of coffee on the house." □ I went to a restaurant last night. I was the ten thousandth customer, so my dinner was on the house.

on the job working; doing what one is expected to do. □ I'm always on the job when I should be. □ I can depend on my furnace to be on the job day and night.

on the lam running from the police. (Underworld.) □ Richard has been on the lam for a week now. □ The gang leader broke out of prison and is still on the lam.

on the leading edge Go to on the bleeding edge.

on the level honest; straightforward. □ Come on now, on the level, tell me the truth. □ Is the ad on the level?

on the lookout (for someone or something) watchful for someone or something. □ Be on the lookout for signs of a storm. □ I'm on the lookout for John, who is due here any minute.

on the loose running around free. □ Look out! There is a bear on the loose from the zoo. □ Most kids enjoy being on the loose when they go to college.

on the make 1. building or developing; being made. □ There is a company that is on the make. □ That was a very good sales strategy, John. You're a real-estate agent on the make. 2. making sexual advances; seeking sexual activities. □ It seems like Bill is always on the make. □ He should meet Sally, who is also on the make.

on the mark Fig. right on the measurement point; showing just the right amount. □ It's exactly one quart, right on the mark.

on the market openly available for sale. (*Typically: be ~; get something ~; put something ~.) □ We put our house on the market last year and it still hasn't sold.

on the mend getting better; becoming healthy again. □ I cared for my father while he was on the mend. □ I took a leave of absence from work while I was on the mend.

on the money and on the nose exactly right; in exactly the right place; in exactly the right amount (of money). □ That's a good answer, Bob. You're right on the money. □ This project is going to be finished right on the nose.

on the move 1. moving from place to place. □ Are the cattle on the move now, or are they still grazing? 2. progressing; advancing. □ Finally the market has turned around now and is really on the move. □ At last, we are on the move!

on the nose Go to on the money.

on the off chance because of a slight possibility that something may happen or might be the case; just in case. □ I went to the theater on the off chance that there were on (the) one hand Fig. from one point of view; as one side (of an issue). □ On one hand, I really ought to support my team. On the other hand, I don't have the time to attend all the games. □ On the one hand, I really could use Ann's help. On the other hand, she and I don't get along very well.

tickets for the show left. □ We didn't think we would get into the football game, but we went on the off chance.

on the other hand Fig. a phrase introducing an alternate view. □ John: I'm ready to go; on the other hand, I'm perfectly comfortable here. Sally: I'll let you know when I'm ready, then. □ Mary: I like this one. On the other hand, this is nice too. Sue: Why not get both?

on the outs (with someone) Inf. in a mild dispute with someone; sharing ill will with someone. □ Tom and Bill are on the outs again. □ Tom has been on the outs with Bill before. They'll work it out.

on the phone Go to on the telephone.

on the pill taking birth control pills. □ Is it true that Mary is on the pill? □ She was on the pill, but she isn't now.

on the point of doing something and at the point of doing something Fig. ready to start doing something. □ I was just on the point of going out the door. □ We were almost at the point of buying a new car.

on the prowl looking for someone for sexual purposes. (Alludes to a prowling cat.) □ Tom looks like he is on the prowl again tonight. □ That whole gang of boys is on the prowl. Watch out.

on the QT quietly; secretly. (An abbreviation of quiet.) □ The company president was making payments to his wife on the QT. □ The mayor accepted a bribe on the QT.

on the rag 1. Sl. menstruating. (Potentially offensive. Use with caution.) □ Kim's on the rag and in a bad mood. □ Sue doesn't go swimming when she's on the rag. 2. Sl. ill-tempered. □ Bill is on the rag and making trouble for everyone. □ Wow, Bob, you are on the rag. What's eating you?

on the right track 1. Lit. following the right track or trail; riding on the correct track, as with a train. □ The train was on the right track when it left the station. I can't imagine how it got lost. 2. Fig. following the right set of assumptions. □ Tom is on the right track and will solve the mystery soon. □ You are on the right track to find the answer.

on the rise Fig. increasing in frequency or intensity. □ The number of auto thefts in Cook County is on the rise again.

on the road Fig. traveling from place to place, not necessarily on the highways; working away from one's home or office. □ I was on the road with the circus for six months. □ I don't work in the main office anymore. Now I'm on the road.

on the road to recovery Cliché recovering; getting better; improving. □ It's been two weeks since her surgery, and she is on the road to recovery.

on the rocks 1. Lit. [of a ship] broken and marooned on rocks in the sea. □ The ship crashed and was on the rocks until the next high tide. 2. Fig. [of an alcoholic drink] served with ice cubes. □ I'd like mine on the rocks, please. □ Give me a scotch on the rocks, please. 3. Fig. in a state of ruin or bankruptcy. □ That bank is on the rocks. Don't put your money in it. □ My finances are on the rocks just now.

on the run 1. Fig. while one is moving from place to place. □ I will try to pick up some aspirin today on the run. □ I will think about it on the run. 2. Fig. running from the police. □ Richard is on the run from the cops. □ The gang of crooks is on the run.

on the safe side Fig. taking the risk-free path. □ Let's be on the safe side and call first. □ I think you should stay on the safe side and call the doctor about this fever.

on the same wavelength Fig. thinking in the same pattern. □ We're not on the same wavelength. Let's try again. □ We kept talking until we got on the same wavelength.

on the sauce drinking regularly; intoxicated. □ Poor old Ron is on the sauce again. □ He is on the sauce most of the time.

on the scene Fig. available or present where something is happening or where something has happened. □ The ambulance was on the scene almost immediately. □ I wasn't on the scene when it happened.

on the shelf 1. Fig. not active socially; left to oneself in social matters. (Alludes to being left or stored on a shelf.) □ I've been on the shelf long enough. I'm going to make some friends. □ She likes being on the shelf. 2. Fig. postponed. □ We'll have to put this matter on the shelf for a while. □ I have a plan on the shelf just waiting for an opportunity like this.

on the side 1. Lit. extra, such as with a job or an additional order of food. □ I would like an order of eggs with toast on the side, please. □ She is a bank teller and works as a waitress on the side. 2. Fig. in addition to one's spouse. □ He is married, but also has a woman on the side. □ She has boyfriends on the side, but her husband knows about them.

on the skids Sl. on the decline. □ My newly started business is on the skids. □ Her health is really on the skids, but she stays cheery anyway.

on the sly Fig. secretly and deceptively. □ She was stealing little bits of money on the sly. □ Martin was having an affair with the maid on the sly.

on the spot 1. Lit. at exactly the right place; at exactly the right time. □ It's noon, and I'm glad you're all here on the spot. Now we can begin. □ I expect you to be on the spot when and where trouble arises. 2. Fig. in trouble; in a difficult situation. □ There is a problem in the department I manage, and I'm really on the spot. □ I hate to be on the spot when it's not my fault.

on the spur of the moment Fig. suddenly; spontaneously. □ We decided to go on the spur of the moment. □ I had to leave town on the spur of the moment.

on the stick Inf. organized and busy. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Get on the stick and get this job done! □ Come on, you guys. Let's get on the stick!

on the street 1. Fig. widely known. □ Sue put it on the street, and now everyone knows. □ It's on the street. There isn't anyone who hasn't heard it. 2. Fig. on Wall Street or elsewhere in the New York City financial districts. (Similar to ③, except that it refers to a specific street. Usually with a capital s.) □ I heard on the Street today that bank stocks are headed up. □ It's on the Street that the market is due to crash again. 3. Fig. at discount prices; as available at its lowest retail price. (As if some item were being sold on the street by a peddler.) □ It lists at $2200 and can be got for about $1650 on the street. □ On the street it goes for about $400.

on the strength of something Fig. because of the support of something, such as a promise or evidence; due to something. □ On the strength of your comment, I decided to give John another chance. □ On the strength of my testimony, my case was dismissed.

on the table Fig. subject to discussion by the group; submitted as a point of discussion. □ The chairman said we could not discuss salaries since the topic was no longer on the table.

on the take taking bribes. (Underworld.) □ I heard that the mayor is on the take. □ Everyone in city hall is on the take.

on the telephone and on the phone Fig. speaking on the telephone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ She's on the phone but won't be long. □ Please take a seat while I'm on the phone. □ Get on the phone and call him back immediately!

on the throne 1. Lit. [of royalty] currently reigning. □ King Samuel was on the throne for two decades. 2. Fig. Sl. seated on the toilet. □ I can't come to the phone. I'm on the throne.

on the tip of one's tongue Fig. [of a thought or idea] about to be said or almost remembered. (*Typically: be ~; have something ~.) □ I have his name right on the tip of my tongue. I'll think of it in a second. □ John had the answer on the tip of his tongue, but Anne said it first.

on the track of someone or something Go to next.

on the trail of someone or something and on the track of someone or something seeking someone or something; about to find someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm on the trail of a new can opener that is supposed to be easier to use. □ I spent all morning on the track of a vendor who can meet our requirements.

on the up-and-up legitimate; open and aboveboard. □ Is this deal on the up-and-up? What's the catch? □ Everything I do is on the up-and-up. I am totally honest.

on the verge of doing something and on the verge of something at the very beginning of doing something; just about to do something. □ Bill was on the verge of leaving town when he found a job. □ Susan was on the verge of laughter, so she left the lecture hall.

on the wagon Fig. not drinking alcohol. □ No, I don't care for a cocktail. I'm on the wagon. □ Bob's old drinking buddies complained that he was no fun when he went on the wagon.

on the waiting list and on the wait list [for someone's name to be] on a list of people waiting for an opportunity to do something. □ I couldn't get a seat on the plane, but I got on the waiting list. □ There is no room for you, but we can put your name on the waiting list.

on the wane becoming less; fading away. □ Her influence in on the wane, but she is still the boss.

on the warpath very angry. □ The boss is on the warpath again. Watch out! □ I am on the warpath about setting goals and standards again.

on the watch for someone or something alert and watching for someone or something. □ Please stay on the watch for trouble. □ I'm always on the watch for Ann. I want to know when she's around.

on the way (to something or some place) and on one's way (to something or some place) moving toward a place; advancing toward a new status or condition. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Is he here yet or is he on the way? □ Mary is better now and on the way to recovery. □ She's now on the way to San Francisco. □ Yes, she's on her way.

on the whole generally; considering everything. □ On the whole, this was a very good day. □ Your work—on the whole—is quite good.

on the wing Fig. while flying; while in flight. (Usually refers to birds, fowl, etc., not people or planes.) □ There is nothing as pretty as a bird on the wing. □ The hawk caught the sparrow on the wing.

on the (witness) stand [of a witness] giving testimony in court, seated in place in view of the court. □ I was on the witness stand, answering questions, when the judge declared a recess.

on the wrong side of someone and on someone's wrong side Fig. out of favor with someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Don't get on the wrong side of her. □ I do what I can not to get on the wrong side of people.

on the wrong track 1. Lit. [of a train] following the wrong set of tracks. □ We had to back up, because somehow we got on the wrong track. 2. Fig. going the wrong way; following the wrong set of assumptions. □ You'll never get the right answer. You're on the wrong track. □ They won't get it figured out because they are on the wrong track.

on thin ice 1. Lit. on ice that is too thin to support one. (See also skate on thin ice; walk on thin ice.) □ Billy is on thin ice and is in great danger. 2. Fig. in a risky situation. □ If you try that you'll really be on thin ice. That's too risky. □ If you don't want to find yourself on thin ice, you must be sure of your facts.

on time before the deadline; by the stated time. □ Please make sure that your essays are completed on time. □ My taxes were not done on time, so I had to pay a penalty.

on tiptoe standing or walking on the front part of the feet (the balls of the feet) with no weight put on the heels. (This is done to gain height or to walk quietly.) □ I had to stand on tiptoe in order to see over the fence. □ I came in late and walked on tiptoe so I wouldn't wake anybody up.

on top of something 1. Fig. up-to-date on something; knowing about the current state of something. □ Ask Mary. She's on top of this issue. □ This issue is constantly changing. She has to pay attention to it to stay on top of things. 2. Fig. in addition to something. □ Jane told Bill he was dull. On top of that, she said he was unfriendly. □ On top of being dull, he's unfriendly. 3. Fig. victorious over something; famous or notorious for something. □ It was a close game, but the home team came out on top. □ Bill is on top in his field.

on top of the world Fig. feeling wonderful; glorious; ecstatic. □ Wow, I feel on top of the world. □ Since he got a new job, he's on top of the world.

on track on schedule; progressing as planned. (*Typically: be ~; get someone or something ~; have someone or something ~; keep someone or something ~; put someone or something ~; set someone or something ~.) □ Try to keep these procedures on track this time. □ Please get this discussion on track. Time is limited.

on trial 1. [of someone] in a legal case before a judge. □ The criminal was on trial for over three months. □ I am not on trial. Don't treat me like that! 2. being tested; being examined or experimented with. □ The new strain of wheat is on trial in Kansas at the present time. □ The teaching method is on trial in the school system.

on vacation away, taking time off work; on holiday. □ Where are you going on vacation this year? □ I'll be away on vacation for three weeks.

on view visible; on public display. □ The painting will be on view at the museum. □ I'll pull the shades so that we won't be on view.

on with someone [of a date or appointment] agreed to and confirmed with someone. □ Is the Friday date still on with you? □ It's on with me.

On your bike! and Go to your room! Sl. imperative. Get out of here!; Get on your bike and get out! □ What a bad joke! No puns allowed here! On your bike! □ That was a ridiculous remark. Go to your room!

on your mark, get set, go and ready, set, go [in preparing to start a race involving speed] move to the starting point, get set to move, go. □ Runners on your mark, get set, go.

Once a priest, always a priest. and Once a whore, always a whore. Prov. A person who has done a certain kind of job will always have the characteristics of people who do that job, even after he or she no longer does that kind of work. (This can be applied to many different occupations.) □ Alan: My cousin left the clergy, but boy! He still preaches at me all the time. Jane: Once a priest, always a priest, huh?

Once a whore, always a whore. Go to previous.

once and for all finally; permanently. □ Sue: I'm going to get this place organized once and for all! Alice: That'll be the day! □ "We need to get this straightened out once and for all," said Bob, for the fourth time today.

Once bitten, twice shy. Prov. When something or someone has hurt you once, you tend to avoid that thing or person. □ Jill: Let's go ride the roller coaster. Jane: No, thanks. I got really sick on one of those once—once bitten, twice shy. □ I once sent in money for something I saw advertised in the back of a magazine, but the merchandise was of such poor quality I was sorry I'd bought it. I'll never buy anything that way again; once bitten, twice shy.

once in a blue moon Cliché very seldom. □ Jill: Does your husband ever bring you flowers? Ellen: Once in a blue moon. □ Once in a blue moon, I buy a fashion magazine, just to see what people are wearing.

once more and one more time Please do it one more time. □ Mary: You sang that line beautifully, Fred. Now, once more. Fred: I'm really tired of all this rehearsing. □

John (finishing practicing his speech): How was that? Sue: Good! One more time, though. John: I'm getting bored with it.

once upon a time Cliché once in the past. (A formula used to begin a fairy tale.) □ Once upon a time, there were three bears. □ Once upon a time, I had a puppy of my own.

once-in-a-lifetime chance and once-in-a-lifetime opportunity a chance that will never occur again in one's lifetime. □ This is a once-in-a-lifetime chance. Don't miss it. □ She offered me a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity, but I turned it down.

once-in-a-lifetime opportunity Go to previous.

the once-over a quick, visual examination. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ Every time John walks by I get the once-over. Does he like me? □ I went to the doctor yesterday, but I only had a once-over.

once-over-lightly 1. Fig. a quick and careless treatment. (A noun. Said of an act of cleaning, studying, examination, or appraisal.) □ Bill gave his geometry the once-over-lightly and then quit studying. □ Ann, you didn't wash the dishes properly. They only got a once-over-lightly. 2. Fig. cursory; in a quick and careless manner. (An adverb.) □ Tom studied geometry once-over-lightly. □ Ann washed the dishes once-over-lightly.

one and all everyone. □ "Good morning to one and all," said Jane as she walked through the outer office. □ Let's hope that this turns out to be a wonderful party for one and all.

the one and only the famous and talented (person). (Used in theatrical introductions. See also my one and only.) □ And now—the one and only—Jane Smith! □ Let's have a big hand for the one and only Bob Jones!

one and the same Cliché the very same person or thing. □ John Jones and J. Jones are one and the same. □ Men's socks and men's stockings are almost one and the same.

one brick shy of a load Inf. stupid; dense. □ Joyce has done some stupid things. Sometimes I think she is one brick shy of a load. □ Ted is one brick shy of a load. He can't seem to do what he is told without messing up.

one by one and one at a time the first one, then the next one, then the next one, etc.; each in turn. □ I have to deal with problems one by one. I can't handle them all at once. □ Okay, just take things one at a time. □ The children came into the room one by one.

One cannot be in two places at once. Prov. You cannot be in more than one place or do more than one thing at the same time. □ Child: Mom! Mom! Come help me wash my hair! Mother: Just a minute! I'm putting clean sheets on your bed right now, and I can't be in two places at once.

One cannot love and be wise. Prov. People often fall in love with someone with whom they are not compatible or behave foolishly when they are in love. □ My son and his girlfriend have decided to get married in the spring. I don't think that's wise, since they won't have enough money saved by then to set up house. But then, one cannot love and be wise.

one eye on someone or something Fig. [get/have] a small amount of attention devoted to someone or something. (*Typically: keep ~; have ~.) □ I have to have one eye on you at all times or you will get into trouble. □ I have one eye on the speedometer of my car whenever I am driving.

one false move Go to a false move.

one final thing Go to next.

one final word and one final thing Fig. a phrase introducing a parting comment or the last item in a list. □ John: One final word—keep your chin up. Mary: Good advice! □ And one final thing, don't haul around a lot of expensive camera stuff. It just tells the thieves who to rob.

one for the (record) books a record-breaking or very remarkable act. □ What a dive! That's one for the record books. □ I've never heard such a funny joke. That's really one for the books.

one for the road a drink; a drink before a journey or before leaving a bar. (*Typically: down ~; drink ~; have ~; take ~.) □ Let's have one for the road. □ Don't down one for the road if you are going to be the driver.

One good turn deserves another. Prov. If someone does you a favor, you should do a favor for that person in return. □ Jill: Thanks for the ride. Jane: It's the least I can do after you helped me wash the car last week. One good turn deserves another. □ Child: I don't want to help Grandma go shopping. Father: But she helped you with your homework yesterday. And one good turn deserves another.

One hand for oneself and one for the ship. Prov. When you are on a ship, always use one hand to steady yourself, and one to work; likewise, always put some effort into safeguarding yourself as well as into working. □ The old sailor chastised us for forgetting to hold onto something during the rough weather. "One hand for yourself and one for the ship," he bellowed. □ This company expects you to work hard, but not so hard that you hurt yourself. One hand for yourself and one for the ship.

One has to draw the line somewhere. Prov. It is necessary to set limits and enforce them. □ Ellen: This is the fifth night this week that my son has stayed out too late. Jane: Why not punish him, then? You have to draw the line somewhere. □ I am a fairly easygoing employer, but I cannot allow my employees to take two hours for lunch. I have to draw the line somewhere.

one in a hundred Go to next.

one in a thousand and one in a hundred; one in a million Fig. nearly unique; one of a very few. □ He's a great guy. He's one in a million. □ Mary's one in a hundred—such a hard worker.

one jump ahead (of someone or something) and one move ahead (of someone or something) Fig. one step in advance of someone or something. □ Try to stay one jump ahead of the competition. □ If you're one move ahead, you're well prepared to deal with problems. Then, nothing is a surprise.

one law for the rich and another for the poor Prov. Rich people are sometimes able to escape without punishment when they commit crimes, while poor people are usually punished. □ It doesn't seem fair—rich people can avoid paying their taxes and not get in trouble, but poor people are always punished if they don't pay. We shouldn't have one law for the rich and another for the poor.

one little bit any at all; at all. □ Jean could not be persuaded to change her mind one little bit. □ I don't want to hear anything more about it. Not even one little bit.

One man's loss is another man's gain. Prov. When one person loses something, another person gets it. (You can substitute appropriate names or pronouns for the phrases one man's and another man's, as in the second example.) □ Mike found a five-dollar bill on the sidewalk. "One man's loss is another man's gain," he thought to himself, as he took the money. □ Jane: Andy just got fired. Jill: I know. And Andy's loss is my gain; I'm getting promoted to his job!

One man's meat is another man's poison. Prov. Something that one person likes may be distasteful to someone else. □ Fred: What do you mean you don't like French fries? They're the best food in the world! Alan: One man's meat is another man's poison. □ Jill: I don't understand why Don doesn't like to read science fiction. It's the most interesting thing to read. Jane: One man's meat is another man's poison.

One man's trash is another man's treasure. Prov. Something that one person considers worthless may be considered valuable by someone else. □ Q: Why would anyone want to hang a picture like that on the wall? A: One man's trash is another man's treasure. □ A: Bob's uncle is always going through people's garbage, looking for old stuff. B: One man's trash is another man's treasure.

One moment, please. Please wait briefly. (A polite way of acknowledging that you noticed someone's request.) □ John: Can you help me? Clerk: One moment, please. I will be with you shortly. □ Bill (answering the phone): Hello? Bob: Hello. Can I speak to Tom? Bill: One moment, please. (handing phone to Tom) It's for you. Tom: Hello, this is Tom.

one more time Go to once more.

one move ahead (of someone or something) Go to one jump ahead (of someone or something).

one of these days someday; in some situation like this one. □ One of these days, someone is going to steal your purse if you don't take better care of it. □ You're going to get in trouble one of these days.

One of these days is none of these days. Prov. If you say you will do something "one of these days," you probably do not seriously intend to do it, and therefore it will not get done. □ Alan: When are you going to fix the garage door? Jane: One of these days. Alan: One of these days is none of these days. □ Jill: One of these days, I'll pay you the money I owe you. Jane: One of these days is none of these days.

One's bark is worse than one's bite. Prov. Someone makes a lot of harsh-sounding threats but never carries them out. □ Don't get upset at anything my father says. His bark is worse than his bite. □ Jill: Lisa says she's going to sue me for letting my dog dig up her rosebushes. John: Don't pay any attention. Her bark is worse than her bite.

one's bearings the knowledge of where one is; the knowledge of how one is oriented to one's immediate environment. (*Typically: get ~; find ~; have ~; lose ~; tell one ~.) □ After he fell, it took Ted a few minutes to get his bearings. □ Jean found her compass and got her bearings almost immediately.

one's best bib and tucker Rur. one's best clothing. I always put on my best bib and tucker on Sundays. Put on your best bib and tucker, and let's go to the city.

one's best shot Fig. one's best attempt (at something). That was his best shot, but it wasn't good enough. I always try to give something my best shot.

one's better half Fig. one's spouse. (Usually refers to a wife.) I think we'd like to come for dinner, but I'll have to ask my better half. I have to go home now to my better half. We are going out tonight.

one's (butter and) egg money Fig. money that a farm woman earns. (Farm women would often sell butter and eggs for extra money that would be stashed away for an emergency.) Jane was saving her butter and egg money for a new TV. I've got my egg money. Let's go shopping.

one's claws are showing one is acting catty; one is saying spiteful and cruel things. Gloria: Did you see what she was wearing? I wouldn't be caught dead in it! Sally: Gloria, my dear, your claws are showing.

one's days are numbered Fig. one is facing death or dismissal. If I don't get this contract, my days are numbered at this company. Uncle Bill has a terminal disease. His days are numbered.

one's deepest sympathy one's very sincere sympathy. I am so sorry about the death of your father. You have my deepest sympathy. She sent her deepest sympathy to the family.

one's ears are red Fig. [for someone's ears] to be red from embarrassment. I'm so embarrassed. Wow, are my ears red! My ears are red! I can't believe I said that.

one's ears are ringing Fig. [for someone's ears] to have a ringing sound because of an illness or other condition; very loud music, or some other very loud sound. After the explosion, my ears were ringing for hours. My ears are ringing because I have a sinus infection.

one's eyes are bigger than one's stomach Fig. one has taken more food than one can eat. I can't eat all this. I'm afraid that my eyes were bigger than my stomach. Try to take less food. Your eyes are bigger than your stomach at every meal.

one's fair share the amount of something that one is due relative to what other people are receiving. Let him take more. He didn't get his fair share. I want my fair share. You cheated me! Give me some more!

one's fill of someone or something Fig. [get/have] as much of someone or something as one needs or can tolerate. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) You'll soon get your fill of Tom. He can be quite a pest. I can never get my fill of shrimp. I love it.

one's for the asking Fig. [can become] one's property if one asks for it. I have a cherry pie here. A slice is yours for the asking if you want it. Uncle Mac said we could have his old car if we wanted it. It was ours for the asking.

one's frame of mind Fig. one's mood or mental state. My frame of mind is sort of low at the moment. I've had a very bad day.

One's future looks bright. Fig. One has a promising future. Tom's future looks bright and he will do well if he keeps working hard.

one's goose is cooked one is finished; one has been found out and is in trouble. It's over. His goose is cooked! If I get caught, my goose is cooked.

one's heart goes out to someone Fig. one feels great sympathy for someone. My heart goes out to the grieving family. Let your heart go out to those who are suffering, and pray for their improvement.

one's heart is (dead) set against something Fig. one is totally against something. Jane's heart is set against going to that restaurant ever again.

one's heart is in one's mouth Fig. one feels strongly emotional (about someone or something). (See also have one's heart in one's mouth.) "Gosh, Mary," said John, "My heart is in my mouth whenever I see you." It was a touching scene. My heart was in my mouth the whole time.

one's heart is in the right place Fig. one has good intentions, even if the results are bad. She gave it a good try. Her heart was in the right place. He is awkward, but his heart is in the right place.

one's heart is set on something Fig. one desires and expects something. Jane's heart is set on going to London. My heart is set on returning home.

one's heart misses a beat and one's heart skips a beat Fig. one's heart flutters or palpitates; one has a strong emotional reaction. Whenever I'm near you, my heart skips a beat. When the racehorse fell, my heart missed a beat.

one's heart skips a beat Go to previous.

one's heart stands still Fig. one's heart (figuratively) stops beating because of strong emotions. When I first saw you, my heart stood still. My heart will stand still until you answer.

one's home away from home a place, other than one's home, where one can feel at home. Please make our house your home away from home when you are in town.

one's John Hancock Go to next.

one's John Henry and one's John Hancock one's signature. Just put your John Henry on this line, and we'll bring your new car around.

one's last resting place Euph. one's grave. Daddy has gone to his last resting place. I want to be beside her in her last resting place.

one's luck runs out Fig. one's good luck stops. My luck ran out, so I had to come home. She will quit gambling when her luck runs out.

one's mind went blank Fig. someone's mind has experienced total forgetfulness. He knew all his lines in rehearsal, but his mind went blank when he went before an audience.

one's money's worth Fig. everything that one has paid for; the best quality for the money paid. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) Weigh that package of meat before you buy it. Be sure you're getting your money's worth. I didn't get my money's worth with my new camera, so I took it back.

one's name is mud Fig. one is in trouble or humiliated. If I can't get this contract signed, my name will be mud. His name is mud ever since he broke the crystal vase.

one's next of kin one's closest living relative or relatives.

□ The police notified the dead man's next of kin. □ My next of kin lives 800 miles away.

one's next-door neighbor the person living in the house or apartment closest to one's own. □ My next-door neighbor came over to borrow a shovel. □ I will be visiting our next-door neighbor if you need me.

one's nose is in the air Fig. one is acting conceited or aloof. □ Mary's nose is always in the air since she got into that exclusive boarding school. □ Her mother's nose was always in the air, too.

one's number is up Fig. one's time to die—or to suffer some other unpleasantness—has come. □ John is worried. He thinks his number is up. □ When my number is up, I hope it all goes fast.

one's old stamping ground Fig. the place where one was raised or where one has spent a lot of time. (There are variants with stomping and grounds.) □ Ann should know about that place. It's near her old stamping ground. □ I can't wait to get back to my old stomping grounds.

*one's (own) way one's way of doing something; one's will or desire. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ She always has to have her own way. She thinks no one else can do it right.

*one's (own) way (with someone or something) [get/have] one's control over someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ The mayor got his way with the city council. □ He seldom gets his own way. □ How often do you have your way with your own money? □ Parents usually have their way with their children.

*one's own worst enemy Fig. consistently causing oneself to fail; more harmful to oneself than other people are. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ Ellen: My boss is my enemy. She never says anything good about me. Jane: Ellen, you're your own worst enemy. If you did your job responsibly, your boss would be nicer.

*one's say one's stance or position; what one thinks. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ I want to have my say on this matter. □ He got his say, and then he was happy.

*one's sea legs Fig. one's ability to tolerate the movement of a ship at sea. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ Jean was a little awkward on the cruise at first, but in a few days she got her sea legs and was fine. □ You may feel a little sick until you get your sea legs.

*one's second wind 1. Lit. one's stabilized breathing after exerting oneself for a short time. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ John was having a hard time running until he got his second wind. □ Bill had to quit the race because he never got his second wind. 2. Fig. one's greater or renewed energy and productivity, gained at some time after starting. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ I usually get my second wind early in the afternoon. □ Mary is a better worker after she has her second wind.

*one's start one's first career opportunity. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) □ I had my start in painting when I was thirty. □ She helped me get my start by recommending me to the manager.

one's sunset years Euph. one's old age. □ Many people in their sunset years love to travel. □ Now is the time to think about financial planning for your sunset years.

*one's walking papers Fig. a notice that one is fired from one's job. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) □ Well, I'm through. I got my walking papers today. □ They are closing down my department. I guess I'll get my walking papers soon.

one's way of life one's lifestyle; one's pattern of living. □ That kind of thing just doesn't fit into my way of life. □ Our way of life includes contributing to worthy causes.

one's word is one's bond Fig. one's statement of agreement is as sound as a posting of a performance bond. □ Of course, you can trust anything I agree to verbally. My word is my bond. There's no need to get it in writing.

one's work is cut out for one Fig. one's task is prepared for one; one has a lot of work to do. □ This is a big job. My work is cut out for me. □ The new president's work is cut out for him.

one sandwich short of a picnic Inf. not very smart; lacking intelligence. (Jocular.) □ Poor Bob just isn't too bright. He's one sandwich short of a picnic. □ She's not stupid. Just one sandwich short of a picnic.

One swallow does not make a summer. and One swallow does not a summer make. Prov. You should not assume that something is true just because you have seen one piece of evidence for it. □ Amanda: I got a good grade on this quiz! My troubles in school are over. Nancy: One swallow does not a summer make.

the one that got away Fig. the big fish that got away, especially as the subject of a fisherman's story. □ The one that got away is always bigger than the one that got caught.

One thing leads to another. One event sets things up for another event, and so on. (As an explanation of how little things lead to big problems.) □ I kept spending more and more money until I was broke. You know how one thing leads to another. □ He bought a car, then a house, then a boat. One thing leads to another.

one thing or person after another a series of things or people that seems without limit. □ It's just one problem after another. □ One customer after another has been buying shoes today!

one to a customer Fig. each person can have or receive only one. (As in sales restrictions where each customer is permitted to buy only one.) □ "Only one to a customer!" said the chef as he handed out the hamburgers. □ Is it one to a customer, or can I take two now?

one too many Euph. one drink of liquor too many, implying drunkenness. □ I think I've had one too many. It's time to stop drinking. □ Don't drive if you've had one too many.

one up (on someone) ahead of someone; having an advantage over someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Tom is one up on Sally because he got a job and she didn't. □ Yes, it sounds like Tom is one up.

one way or another somehow. □ Tom: Can we fix this radio, or do I have to buy a new one? Mary: Don't fret! We'll get it repaired one way or another. □ John: I think we're lost. Alice: Don't worry. We'll get there one way or another.

one-horse town Fig. a very small town; a small and backward town. □ I refuse to spend a whole week in that one-horse town! □ I grew up in a one-horse town, and I liked it very much.

one-man show 1. Lit. a performance put on by one person. □ It was a one-man show, but it was very entertaining. □ For a one-man show, it was very long. 2. Fig. an exhibition of the artistic works of one person. □ She is having a one-man show at the Northside Gallery. □ I'm having a one-man show next weekend. Come and see what I have done.

one-night stand 1. Lit. a performance lasting only one night. □ The band did a series of one-night stands down the East Coast. □ You can't make a living doing one-night stands. 2. Fig. a romance or sexual relationship that lasts only one night. □ It was not a romance, just a one-night stand. □ It looked like something that would last longer than a one-night stand.

oneself again showing signs of being healthy again or restored. (*Typically: act like ~; be ~; feel like ~; seem like ~.) □ After such a long illness, it's good to be myself again. □ I'm sorry that I lost my temper. I think I feel like myself again now.

one-track mind Fig. a mind that thinks entirely or almost entirely about one subject. □ Adolescent boys often have one-track minds. All they're interested in is the opposite sex. □ Bob has a one-track mind. He can only talk about football.

online 1. Go to in line. 2. Fig. connected to a computer or network. □ As soon as I get online, I can check the balance of your account. □ I was online for an hour before I found out what I wanted to know.

only have eyes for someone Fig. [to be] loyal to only one person, in the context of romance. □ Oh, Jane! I only have eyes for you! □ Don't waste any time on Tom. He only has eyes for Ann.

(Only) time will tell. Prov. You will only know the outcome after time has passed. □ Jill: Do you think Bill and Nancy will have a happy marriage? John: Only time will tell. □ I'm not sure yet if our advertising campaign was a success. Time will tell.

the only way to go the best way to do something; the best choice to make. □ Get a four-wheel drive car. It's the only way to go. □ That's it! A new house. It's the only way to go.

onto a good thing having found something useful, promising, or profitable. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ This is a great scheme. I know I'm onto a good thing. □ I'm onto a good thing. I'm sure I am.

onto someone seeing through someone's deception. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; catch ~.) □ By the time we got on to the con artists, they were out of town. □ The sheriff got on to Jed, and Jed wanted to get out of town fast.

onto something 1. Fig. alerted to or aware of a deceitful plan. (*Typically: be ~; catch ~.) □ The cops are onto your little game here. Fig. having found something useful or promising; on the verge of discovering something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I think we are really onto something this time. □ I am onto a new discovery.

ooze (out) (from someone or something) and ooze out (of someone or something) to seep out of someone or something. □ The heavy oil oozed out from the hole in the barrel. □ Some blood was oozing out of his nose.

ooze with something 1. Lit. to flow or seep with something; to be covered with some oozing substance. □ The wound oozed with blood. □ The roast beef oozed with juices.

2. Fig. [for someone] to exude an ingratiating or insincere manner. □ The used-car salesman oozed with insincerity. □ The young woman oozed with charm.

open a can of worms Go to a can of worms.

open a conversation to start a conversation. (See also strike up a conversation.) □ I tried to open a conversation with him, but he had nothing to say. □ She opened a conversation with an inquiry into my health, which got me talking about my favorite subject.

open a few doors (for someone) Go to open some doors (for someone).

open and aboveboard Go to honest and aboveboard.

(Open) confession is good for the soul. Prov. If you have done something wrong, you will feel better if you confess that you did it. □ You ought to tell Dad that you broke his radio. Open confession is good for the soul. □ Sue: I've been so upset about cheating on the exam that I haven't been sleeping nights. Sam: You can do something about it; confession is good for the soul.

open fire (on someone) Fig. to start (doing something, such as asking questions or criticizing). (Based on open fire on someone or something.) □ The reporters opened fire on the mayor. □ When the reporters opened fire, the mayor was smiling, but not for long.

open fire (on someone or something) to begin shooting at someone or something. □ The troops opened fire on the enemy. □ The trainees opened fire on the target.

open for business [of a shop, store, restaurant, etc.] operating and ready to do business. □ The store is now open for business and invites you to come in. □ The construction will be finished in March, and we will be open for business in April.

open into something to open inward to something. □ The passageway opened into a dining room. □ Our kitchen opens into a bright breakfast nook.

an open mind a mind or attitude that is open to new ideas and opinions. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; keep ~.) □ Please try to be nice and keep an open mind. It's all not as bad as you think.

open one's heart to someone or something 1. Fig. to tell all of one's private thoughts to someone. □ I didn't mean to open my heart to you. □ She opened her heart to the wrong magazine, and it published a scandalous story. 2. Fig. to become loving and solicitous toward someone; to donate money generously to someone or some cause. □ We opened our hearts to Fred, who was soliciting for a good cause. □ We hope you will all open your hearts to our plea.

open oneself to criticism to do something that makes one vulnerable to criticism. □ By saying something so stupid in public, you really opened yourself to criticism.

open (out) on(to) something [for a building's doors] to exit toward something. □ The French doors opened out onto the terrace. □ The doors opened on a lovely patio.

open Pandora's box Fig. to uncover a lot of unsuspected problems. □ When I asked Jane about her problems, I didn't know I had opened Pandora's box. □ You should be cautious with people who are upset. You don't want to open Pandora's box.

open season (on some creature) a time of unrestricted hunting of a particular game animal. □ It's always open season on rabbits around here.

open season (on someone) Fig. a period of time when everyone is criticizing someone. (Based on open season (on some creature).) □ It seems as if it's always open season on politicians. □ At the news conference, it was open season on the mayor.

an open secret something that is supposed to be known only by a few people but is known in fact to a great many people. □ Their engagement is an open secret. Only their friends are supposed to know, but in fact, the whole town knows. □ It's an open secret that Max is looking for a new job.

open some doors (for someone) and open a few doors (for someone) Fig. to gain access to opportunity or influence (for someone). □ Morris was able to open a few doors for Mary and get her an interview with the president.

open someone's eyes to someone or something Fig. to cause someone, including oneself, to become aware of someone or something. □ We finally opened our eyes to what was going on around us. □ The events of last night opened my eyes to Tom.

open someone up[†] Fig. to perform a surgical operation requiring a major incision on someone. □ The doctor had to open George up to find out what was wrong. □ They opened up George, seeking the cause of his illness.

open something out[†] to unfold or expand something; to open and spread something out. □ When she opened the fan out, she saw it was made of plastic. □ The peacock opened out its tail feathers and delighted the children.

open something up[†] 1. Lit. to unwrap something; to open something. □ Yes, I want to open my presents up. □ I can't wait to open up my presents. □ Open up this door! 2. Fig. to begin examining or discussing something. □ Do you really want to open it up now? □ Now is the time to open up the question of taxes. 3. Fig. to reveal the possibilities of something; to reveal an opportunity. □ Your letter opened new possibilities up. □ Your comments opened up a whole new train of thought. 4. Fig. to start the use of something, such as land, a building, a business, etc. □ They opened the coastal lands up to resort development. □ We opened up a new store last March. 5. Fig. to make a vehicle go as fast as possible. (As in opening up the throttle.) □ We took the new car out on the highway and opened it up. □ I've never really opened up this truck. I don't know how fast it'll go. 6. to make something less congested. □ They opened the yard up by cutting out a lot of old shrubbery. □ We opened up the room by taking the piano out.

open something up[†] (to someone) to make something available to someone; to permit someone to join something or participate in something. □ We intend to open the club up to everyone. □ We will open up our books to the auditors.

open the door to someone 1. Lit. to permit someone to enter a room, building, etc. □ The butler opened the door to the guests and they all entered. □ I opened the door to Mr. Wilson. 2. to make a move or passage easier for a person. □ Ann opened the door to Fred, who wanted to start a new career in writing. □ Mark opened the door to her, and she was always grateful to him.

open the door to something Fig. to invite something to happen. □ The armistice opened the door to peace talks. □ The door was opened to further discussion.

open to criticism vulnerable to criticism. □ Anything the president does is open to criticism.

open to question [an action or opinion] inviting question, examination, or refutation. □ Everything he told you is open to question and you should look into it.

open to something Fig. agreeable to hear or learn about new ideas and suggestions. □ The store owner was open to suggestions from her employees. □ We are always open to new ideas.

open up 1. Lit. open your door; open your mouth. (Usually Open up!) □ I want in. Open up! □ Open up! This is the police. 2. Fig. to become available. □ A new job is opening up at my office. □ Let me know if any other opportunities open up. 3. Fig. to go as fast as possible. (As in opening up the throttle.) □ I can't get this car to open up. Must be something wrong with the engine. □ Faster, Tom! Open up! Let's go! 4. to become clear, uncluttered, or open. □ As we drove along, the forest opened up, and we entered into a grassy plain. □ The sky opened up, and the sun shone.

open up (about someone or something) (with someone) and open up (on someone or something) (with someone) to speak freely about someone or something; to speak a great deal about someone or something. □ After a while, he began to open up about his disagreements. □ He opened up with us about the accident. □ She opened up on Fred with Alice.

open up (on someone, something, or an animal) to fire a gun or other weapon at someone, something, or an animal. □ The sergeant told the soldiers to open up on the enemy position. □ "Okay, you guys," shouted the sergeant. "Open up!"

open (up) one's kimono Sl. to reveal what one is planning. (From the computer industry, referring especially to the involvement of the Japanese in this field.) □ Sam isn't one to open his kimono much when it comes to new products. □ Even if Tom appears to open up his kimono on this deal, don't put much stock in what he says.

open up (to someone) and open up (with someone) to tell [everything] to someone; to confess to someone. □ If she would only open up to me, perhaps I could help her. □ She just won't open up. Everything is "private."

open up to something to become more accepting of someone or something. □ Finally, he opened up to the suggestion that he should leave. □ Finally the boss opened up to the notion of Tom as a manager.

open up (with someone) Go to open up (to someone).

open with someone or something to begin a season, session, series, or performance with someone or something. □ The conference will open with a series of invited speakers. □ The performance opened with Donna, who played the flute.

an open-and-shut case a simple and straightforward situation without complications. (Often said of criminal cases where the evidence is convincing.) □ The murder trial was an open-and-shut case. The defendant was caught with the murder weapon. □ Bob's death was an open-and-shut case of suicide. He left a suicide note.

opening gambit Fig. an opening movement, tactic, or statement which is made to secure a position that is to one's advantage. □ The rebel army's opening gambit was to bomb the city's business district. □ The prosecution's opening gambit was to call a witness who linked the defendant to the scene of the crime.

operate against someone or something to work against someone or something; to have a negative effect on someone or something. □ All of this operates against our idea of fixing the garage up as a family room. □ The new vacation policy operates against my plan to take all of July off.

operate from something to work out of something or some place. □ I'm in business for myself. I operate from my home. □ We operate from a garage in the back of City Hall.

operate on someone to perform a surgical operation on someone. □ They decided not to operate on her. □ She wasn't operated on after all.

operate on something 1. to work on something; to work with the insides of something. (As a surgeon might operate.) □ He tried to operate on his watch and ruined it. □ Todd operated on the door lock and fixed it. 2. to function or conduct business on a certain principle or assumption. □ The company has always operated on the theory that the customer is always right. □ Sam operates on the assumption that everyone is out to get him.

Opportunity knocks but once. Prov. You will only have one chance to do something important or profitable. (You can say opportunity knocks to signal that someone's chance to do something important is here right now.) □ When Nancy got a scholarship offer from a college far away, her parents encouraged her to go, even though they didn't like the thought of her moving so far from home. "Opportunity knocks but once," they said, "and this may be your only chance to get a good education."

Opportunity makes a thief. Prov. Anyone would steal, given a chance to do so without being punished. □ Mr. Cooper thought of himself as a moral man. But opportunity makes a thief, and with the safe unguarded he had the opportunity to steal thousands of dollars undetected.

opposed to something in opposition to something. □ I am strongly opposed to your suggestion. □ He is morally opposed to war.

the opposite sex the other sex; (from the point of view of a female) males; (from the point of view of a male) females. (Also with member of, as in the example.) □ Ann is crazy about the opposite sex. □ Bill is very shy when he's introduced to the opposite sex. □ Do members of the opposite sex make you nervous?

opt for something to choose a particular option. □ I opted for the orange one. □ I opt for not going out at all.

opt in favor of someone or something to choose a particular person; to choose a particular thing. □ Do you think she will opt in favor of this one or that? □ We will opt in favor of David.

opt in(to something) to choose to join in. □ She opted into our plans. □ She opted in almost immediately.

opt out (of something) to choose not to be in something. □ If you do that, I'm going to have to opt out of the club. □ Then go ahead and opt out.

or else or suffer the consequences. (An inspecific threat of bad consequences.) □ Do what I tell you, or else. □ Don't be late for work, or else!

or what? a way of adding emphasis to a yes-or-no question the speaker has asked. (In effect, if it wasn't what I said, what is it?) □ Bob: Now, is this a fine day or what? John: Looks okay to me. □ Tom: Look at Bill and Mary. Do they make a fine couple or what? Bob: Sure, they look great.

or words to that effect Fig. or similar words meaning the same thing. □ John: It says right here in the contract, "You are expected to attend without fail," or words to that effect. Mary: That means I have to be there, huh? John: You got it! □ Sally: She said that I wasn't doing my job well, or words to that effect. Jane: Well, you ought to find out exactly what she means. Sally: I'm afraid I know.

orbit (around) someone or something to circle around something in an orbit. □ The flies orbited around Fred and his ice-cream cone. □ Many satellites orbit around our planet.

ordain someone (as) something 1. Lit. to establish someone as a priest or minister. □ In a lovely ceremony, they ordained David as a priest. □ He was ordained as a priest by a bishop. 2. Fig. to establish someone as something. □ They ordained the poor old man as a deputy sheriff. □ Was he duly ordained as a Mercedes mechanic?

the order of the day something necessary or usual at a certain time. □ Warm clothes are the order of the day when camping in the winter. □ Going to bed early was the order of the day when we were young.

order some food to go Go to to go.

order someone about and order someone around to give commands to someone. □ I don't like for someone to order me about. □ Don't order me around!

order someone in(to something) to command someone to get into something. □ The officer ordered Ann into the wagon. □ She didn't want to go, but the cop ordered her in.

order someone off ((of) something) to command someone to get off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The teacher ordered Tom off the steps. □ He ordered him off.

order someone off the field [for a game official] to command a player to leave the playing area. □ The referee will order you off the field. □ He ordered us off the field.

order someone out of some place and order someone out! to command that someone leave a place. □ The cook ordered Judy out of the kitchen. □ The teacher ordered out all the kids.

order something from someone or something to agree to purchase something from someone or a group. □ We ordered some plants from the mail-order company. □ I will order some of those clever little things from you as soon as I can.

order something in! to have something, usually food, brought into one's house or place of business. □ Do you want to order pizza in? □ Shall I order in pizza?

orient someone to something 1. Lit. to help someone locate a compass direction or other similar location. □ Try to orient Karen to the light so I can photograph her. □ It took time, but I oriented myself to north at last. 2. Fig. to help someone adjust to something, a position, or a relationship.

□ Will you please orient Bill to our routine? □ She found it difficult to orient herself to the new procedures.

originate from something to come from something or some place. □ Did you originate from around here? □ I originated from a different area of the country. □ Some of our customs originate from old beliefs.

originate in something to have had a beginning in something or some place. □ The river originates in the Andes Mountains. □ All your troubles originate in your lungs.

originate with someone or something to have been started by someone, something, or during a time period or event. □ Did this policy originate with you? □ This idea originated with the committee.

ornament something with something to decorate something with something. □ The driver ornamented his truck with lots of chrome. □ The room was ornamented with velvet drapes, wood paneling, family portraits—a den of Victorian virtue.

oscillate between someone or something and someone or something else to swing between (choosing) someone and someone else; to swing between (choosing) something and something else. □ Fred oscillated between going to college and getting a job. □ The boss oscillated between John and Roger.

the other place Euph. hell. □ If you're good, you'll go to heaven, and if you're bad, you'll go to the other place. □ If she keeps up her drinking and gambling, she's headed to the other place for sure.

the other side of the tracks and the wrong side of the tracks the poor part of a town or city. □ He was a rich boy, and she was a girl from the other side of the tracks. □ You don't want to buy a house in that neighborhood. It's on the wrong side of the tracks.

other things being equal and all things being equal Cliché if things stay the way they are now; if there are no complications from other factors. □ Other things being equal, we should have no trouble getting your order to you on time. □ I anticipate no problems, all things being equal.

Other times, other manners. Prov. Different generations or eras have different customs. □ Amy thought her grandchildren addressed their friends in startlingly rude terms. "But then," she reflected, "other times, other manners." □ Jane: The young folks today are so shocking. Why, when I was their age, you wouldn't kiss your husband in public, let alone some of the things these children do! Alan: Other times, other manners.

the other way (a)round the reverse; the opposite. □ No, it won't fit that way. Try it the other way round. □ It doesn't make any sense like that. It belongs the other way around.

An ounce of common sense is worth a pound of theory. Prov. Common sense will help you solve problems more than theory will. □ The psychologist had many elaborate theories about how to raise her child, but often forgot that an ounce of common sense is worth a pound of theory.

An ounce of discretion is worth a pound of wit. Prov. Knowing when to refrain from making jokes is better than being able to make jokes all the time. □ Mabel makes fun of everybody, regardless of whether or not she hurts their feelings. Someone should tell her that an ounce of discretion is worth a pound of wit.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Prov. If you put in a little effort to prevent a problem, you will not have to put in a lot of effort to solve the problem. □ Brush your teeth every day; that way you won't have to go to the dentist to have cavities filled. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. □ If you get in the habit of being careful with your new stereo, chances are you won't break it and have to have it fixed later. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Our house is your house. Go to My house is your house.

oust someone from something to force someone to leave something or some place; to throw someone out of something or some place. □ They ousted the boys from the bar. □ The underage kids were ousted from the tavern quickly.

*an out an excuse; means of avoiding something. (*Typically: have ~; give someone ~.) □ He's very clever. No matter what happens, he always has an out.

out an amount of money lacking something; having lost or wasted something. □ I'm out ten bucks because of your miscalculation. □ I'm out the price of a meal.

out and about outside the house; outdoors. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Beth has been ill, but now she's out and about. □ As soon as I feel better, I'll be able to get out and about.

out at some place located at a distant place. □ Tom's out at the farm and there's no phone there, so you can't talk to him. □ Jed is out at the cabin on a hunting trip.

out cold and out like a light 1. Fig. unconscious. □ I fell and hit my head. I was out cold for about a minute. □ Tom fainted! He's out like a light! 2. Fig. intoxicated. □ Four beers and he was out cold. □ He sat in his chair at the table, out cold. 3. Fig. sound asleep. □ After a few minutes of tossing and turning, she was out like a light.

out for blood Fig. aggressively seeking to harm or get revenge; angry and looking for the cause of one's distress. □ The opposite team is out for blood, but we have a good defense.

out for the count Go to down for the count.

out from something some distance away from something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~.) □ I would like to be farther out from the city. □ I need to get out from the town.

out (from under someone or something) 1. Lit. out from beneath someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; crawl ~; creep ~; move ~.) □ Will you please get out from under my bed? □ The dog got out from under her just before she sat down. 2. Fig. free of someone's control or the burden of a problem. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; crawl ~; move ~.) □ Mary wanted to get out from under her mother. □ There is so much work to do! I don't know when I'll ever get out from under it.

out front 1. in the front of one's house. □ Our mailbox is out front. □ We have a spruce tree out front and a maple tree in the back. 2. leading, as in a race. □ My horse was out front by two lengths until the final turn. □ The other candidate is out front in the polls.

out (in bloom) Go to next.

out (in blossom) and out (in bloom) [of a plant or tree] blooming; [of flowers] open in blooms. (*Typically: be ~; come ~.) □ All the trees were out in blossom. □ The daffodils won't be out until next week.

out in droves Go to out in large numbers.

out in force Fig. appearing in great strength. (*Typically: be ~; come ~; go ~. See also out in large numbers.) □ What a night! The mosquitoes are out in force. □ The police went out in force over the holiday weekend.

out in large numbers and out in droves Fig. in evidence in some large amount. (*Typically: be ~; come ~.) □ The sidewalk salesmen are out in droves today. □ The ants were out in large numbers at the picnic.

out in left field Fig. offbeat; unusual and eccentric. (See also out of left field.) □ Sally is a lot of fun, but she's sort of out in left field. □ What a strange idea. It's really out in left field.

out in the cold 1. Lit. outdoors where it is cold. (*Typically: be ~; keep someone or some creature ~; leave someone or some creature ~; put someone or some creature ~.) □ Open the door! Let me in! Don't keep me out in the cold! □ Who left the dog out in the cold all night? 2. Fig. not informed about what is happening or has happened. (*Typically: be ~; keep someone ~; leave someone ~.) □ Don't keep your supervisor out in the cold. Tell her what's going on. □ Please don't leave me out in the cold. Share the news with me! 3. Fig. excluded. (*Typically: be ~; keep someone ~; leave someone ~.) □ There was a party last night, but my friends left me out in the cold. □ When it came to the final prizes in the dog show, they left our animals out in the cold.

out in the open 1. Lit. visible in an open space; exposed in an open area. (*Typically: be ~; bring something ~; come ~; get ~; get something ~.) □ The trucks are out in the open where we can see them. □ They came out in the open. 2. Fig. [for something] to be public knowledge. (*Typically: be ~; bring something ~; get ~; get something ~.) □ Is this matter out in the open, or is it still secret? □ Let's get this out in the open and discuss it.

out like a light Go to out cold.

out of action not operating temporarily; not functioning normally. □ The pitcher was out of action for a month because of an injury. □ I will be out of action for a while.

out of (all) proportion of exaggerated importance; of an unrealistic importance or size compared to something else. (*Typically: be ~; blow something ~; grow ~.) □ This problem has grown out of all proportion. □ Yes, this figure is way out of proportion to the others in the painting.

out of breath and out of wind breathing fast and hard; gasping for breath. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I ran so much that I got out of breath. □ Mary gets out of wind when she climbs stairs.

out of character 1. unlike one's usual behavior. □ Ann's remark was quite out of character. □ It was out of character for Ann to act so stubborn. 2. inappropriate for the character that an actor is playing. □ Bill went out of character when the audience started giggling. □ Bill played the part so well that it was hard for him to get out of character after the performance.

out of circulation 1. Lit. no longer available for use or lending. (Usually said of library materials, certain kinds of currency, etc.) □ I'm sorry, but the book you want is temporarily out of circulation. □ How long will it be out of circulation? 2. Fig. not interacting socially with other people. □ I don't know what's happening because I've been out of circulation for a while. □ My cold has kept me out of circulation for a few weeks.

out of commission 1. Lit. [for a ship] to be not currently in use or under command. □ This vessel will remain out of commission for another month. □ The ship has been out of commission since repairs began. 2. Fig. broken, unserviceable, or inoperable; not currently in use. □ My watch is out of commission and needs a new battery. □ I can't run in the marathon because my knees are out of commission.

out of condition Go to out of shape.

out of consideration (for someone or something) with consideration for someone or something; with kind regard for someone or something. □ Out of consideration for your past efforts, I will do what you ask. □ They let me do it out of consideration. It was very thoughtful of them.

out of context [of an utterance or the report of an action] removed from the surrounding context of the event, thereby misrepresenting the intent of the utterance or report. (*Typically: be ~; lift something ~; quote someone or something ~; take something ~.) □ You took her remarks out of context! You're the dishonest person, not her!

out of control 1. Lit. [of something, such as a machine] not responding to direction or instructions. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ The computer is out of control and making funny-looking characters all over the screen. □ My CD player is out of control and only makes screeching noises. 2. and out of hand Fig. acting wildly or violently. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Watch out, that dog is out of control. □ The kids got out of hand again.

out of courtesy (to someone) in order to be polite to someone; out of consideration for someone. □ We invited Mary's brother out of courtesy to her. □ They invited me out of courtesy.

out of debt no longer owing a debt. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; get oneself ~.) □ I've taken a second job so I can get myself out of debt.

out of earshot Fig. too far from the source of a sound to hear the sound. □ I was out of earshot and could not hear the conversation. □ Mary waited until her children were out of earshot before mentioning the presents she got them.

out of fashion Go to out of style.

out of favor (with someone) no longer desirable or preferred by someone. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ I can't ask John to help. I'm out of favor with him. □ That kind of thing has been out of favor for years.

out of focus blurred or fuzzy; seen indistinctly. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~.) □ What I saw through the binoculars was sort of out of focus. □ The scene was out of focus.

out of gas 1. Lit. without gasoline (in a car, truck, etc.). (*Typically: be ~; run ~.) □ We can't go any farther. We're out of gas. □ This car will be completely out of gas in a few more miles. 2. Fig. tired; exhausted; worn out. (*Typically: be ~; run ~.) □ What a day! I've been working since morning, and I'm really out of gas. □ I think the old washing machine has finally run out of gas. I'll have to get a new one.

out of hand Go to out of control.

out of harm's way Fig. not liable to be harmed; away from any causes of harm. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; get someone ~.) □ We should try to get all the civilians out of harm's way.

out of hock 1. Lit. [of something] bought back from a pawn shop. □ When I get my watch out of hock, I will always be on time. 2. Fig. out of debt; having one's debts paid. □ When I pay off my credit cards, I'll be out of hock for the first time in years.

out of it 1. Go to out to lunch. 2. intoxicated. □ Two drinks and she was totally out of it. □ When they are out of it, they are quite dangerous.

out of keeping (with something) [of something said or some behavior] failing to fit in with something. □ This kind of thing is completely out of keeping with our standards of behavior. □ That is quite out of keeping with your statement of yesterday.

out of kilter and off-kilter 1. Lit. out of balance; crooked or tilted. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; knock something ~.) □ John, your tie is sort of off-kilter. Let me fix it. □ Please straighten the picture on the wall. It's out of kilter. 2. Fig. malfunctioning; on the fritz. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ My furnace is out of kilter. I have to call someone to fix it. □ This computer is out of kilter. It doesn't let me log on.

out of left field suddenly; from an unexpected source or direction. (See also out in left field.) □ Most of your ideas are out of left field. □ All of his paintings are right out of left field.

out of line (with something) 1. Lit. not properly lined up in a line of things. □ I told you not to get out of line. Now, get back in line. □ One of those books on the shelf is out of line with the others. Please fix it. 2. Fig. beyond certain set or assumed limits. □ Your bid on this project is completely out of line with our expectations. □ The cost of this meal is out of line with what other restaurants charge. □ Your asking price is quite out of line! 3. Fig. [of something said or behavior] improper. □ I'm afraid that your behavior was quite out of line. I do not wish to speak further about this matter. □ Bill, that remark was out of line. Please be more respectful. □ Your request is out of line.

out of luck without good luck; having bad fortune. □ If you wanted some ice cream, you're out of luck. □ I was out of luck. I got there too late to get a seat.

out of necessity because of necessity; due to need. □ I bought this hat out of necessity. I needed one, and this was all there was. □ We sold our car out of necessity.

out of nowhere appearing suddenly, without warning. (*Typically: appear ~; come ~; materialize ~.) □ A huge bear appeared out of nowhere and roared and threatened us. □ Suddenly, a truck came out of nowhere. □ Without warning, the storm came out of nowhere.

out of one's depth Fig. involved in something that is beyond one's capabilities. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ out of one's element Fig. not in a natural or comfortable situation. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ When it comes to computers, I'm out of my element. □ Sally's out of her element in math.

You know, you are really out of your depth in this project. □ I am sure I am out of my depth in organic chemistry.

out of one's head Go to next.

out of one's mind and out of one's head; *out of one's senses Fig. to be silly and senseless; to be crazy and irrational. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ Why did you do that? You must be out of your mind! □ Don't drive so fast, Tom! You have to be out of your head!

out of one's skull Sl. intoxicated. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ Oh, man, I drank till I was out of my skull. □ Two beers and he went out of his skull.

out of one's way Go to out of the way.

out of order 1. Lit. [of something or things] out of the proper sequence. □ She noticed that the books on the shelf were out of order. □ All these cards were alphabetized, and now they're out of order. 2. Fig. [of something] incapable of operating; [of something] broken. □ The elevator is out of order again. □ My stereo is out of order. 3. Fig. not following correct parliamentary procedure. □ I was declared out of order by the chair. □ Anne inquired, "Isn't a motion to table the question out of order at this time?"

out of patience annoyed and impatient after being patient for a while. (*Typically: be ~; run ~.) □ I finally ran out of patience and lost my temper. □ The boss is finally out of patience with me.

out of place 1. Lit. not in the proper place. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; knock something ~.) □ The book I wanted was out of place, and I almost did not find it. □ How did the furniture in this room get out of place? 2. Fig. inappropriate. (*Typically: be ~; seem ~.) □ That kind of behavior is out of place at a party. □ Your crude language is out of place. 3. Fig. [of someone] awkward and unwelcome. (*Typically: be ~; feel ~; seem ~.) □ I feel out of place at formal dances. □ Bob and Ann felt out of place at the picnic, so they went home.

out of practice performing poorly due to a lack of practice. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~.) □ I used to be able to play the piano extremely well, but now I'm out of practice. □ The baseball players lost the game because they were out of practice.

out of print [for a book] to be no longer available from the publisher. □ The book you want just went out of print, but perhaps I can find a used copy for you. □ It was published nearly ten years ago, so it's probably out of print.

out of proportion Go to out of (all) proportion.

out of reach 1. Lit. not near enough to be reached or touched. □ Place the cookies out of reach, or the children will eat them all. □ The mouse ran behind the piano, out of reach. The cat just sat and waited for it. 2. Fig. unattainable. □ I wanted to be president, but I'm afraid that such a goal is out of reach. □ I shall choose a goal that is not out of reach.

out of season 1. not now available for sale. □ Sorry, oysters are out of season. We don't have any. □ Watermelon is out of season in the winter. 2. Fig. not now legally able to be hunted or caught. □ Are salmon out of season? □ I caught a trout out of season and had to pay a fine.

out of service inoperable; not currently operating. □ Both elevators had been put out of service, so I had to use the stairs. □ The washroom is temporarily out of service.

out of shape and out of condition not in good physical condition. □ I get out of breath when I run because I'm out of shape. □ Keep exercising regularly, or you'll get out of condition.

out of sight 1. not visible; too far away to be seen. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~; keep ~; stay ~.) □ The cat kept out of sight until the mouse came out. □ "Get out of sight, or they'll see you!" called John. 2. figuratively stunning, unbelievable, or awesome. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Wow, this music is out of sight! □ What a wild party. It's out of sight! 3. Fig. very expensive; high in price. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~.) □ Prices at that restaurant are out of sight. □ The cost of medical care has gone out of sight. 4. Sl. heavily intoxicated. (*Typically: be ~.) □ They've been drinking since noon, and they're out of sight. □ Man, is she ever out of sight!

Out of sight, out of mind. Prov. If you do not see someone or something frequently, you will forget about it. (Sometimes used to imply that you will forget about people who have moved away.) □ Ever since I moved, none of my old friends have gotten in touch with me. It's out of sight, out of mind with them, evidently. □ My electric bill somehow got moved to the bottom of the stack on my desk, and I forgot all about paying it. Out of sight, out of mind.

out of someone's hands 1. Lit. no longer in someone's grasp. (*Typically: get ~; pull something ~; take something ~.) □ The police officer took the gun out of Fred's hands. □ The heavy tray was pulled out of my hands just in time. 2. Fig. no longer in someone's control. (*Typically: get ~; pull something ~; take something ~.) □ The boss decided to take the project out of Roger's hands. □ The contract had to be gotten out of Alice's hands because she announced that she was leaving.

out of someone's way Go to out of the way.

out (of something) 1. gone; having left some place; absent from a place; escaped. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The monkey is out of its cage. □ Sam is out of the building at present. 2. having no more of something. (*Typically: be ~; run ~.) □ Sorry, we are fresh out of cucumbers. □ We ran out of catsup and mustard halfway through the picnic. 3. free of the responsibility of doing something. (*Typically: get ~.) □ Are you trying to get out of this job? □ You agreed to do it, and you can't get out of it!

out of sorts not feeling well; grumpy and irritable. (*Typically: be ~; feel ~; get ~.) □ I've been out of sorts for a day or two. I think I'm coming down with something. □ The baby is out of sorts. Maybe she's getting a new tooth.

out of spite with the desire to harm someone or something. □ Jane told some evil gossip about Bill out of spite. □ That was not an accident! You did it out of spite.

out of step (with someone or something) 1. and out of time (with someone or something) Lit. out of cadence with someone else. (*Typically: be ~; dance ~; get ~; march ~.) □ You've gotten out of step with the music.

□ Pay attention, Ann. You're out of time. 2. Fig. not as up-to-date as someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ John is out of step with the times. □ Billy missed three days and now is out of step with the rest of the class.

out of stock not immediately available in a store; [for goods] to be temporarily unavailable. □ Those items are out of stock, but a new supply will be delivered on Thursday. □ I'm sorry, but the red ones are out of stock. Would a blue one do?

out of style and out of fashion not fashionable; old-fashioned; obsolete. (See also go out of fashion.) □ John's clothes are really out of style. □ He doesn't care if his clothes are out of fashion.

out of sync uncoordinated; unsynchronized. (An abbreviation for synchronization. *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Our efforts are out of sync. □ My watch and your watch are out of sync.

out of the ballpark Fig. beyond the amount of money suggested or available. □ Your estimate is completely out of the ballpark. Just forget it.

out of the closet 1. Fig. revealing one's secret interests. (*Typically: be ~; come ~; get ~.) □ Tom Brown came out of the closet and admitted that he likes to knit. □ It's time that all of you lovers of chamber music came out of the closet and attended our concerts. 2. Fig. revealing that one is homosexual. (*Typically: be ~; come ~; bring someone ~.) □ Tom surprised his parents when he came out of the closet. □ It was difficult for him to be out of the closet.

out of the corner of one's eye Fig. [seeing something] at a glance; glimpsing something, as with peripheral vision. □ I saw someone do it out of the corner of my eye. It might have been Jane who did it. □ I only saw the accident out of the corner of my eye. I don't know who is at fault.

out of the frying pan (and) into the fire Fig. from a bad situation to a worse situation. (*Typically: get ~; go ~; jump ~.) □ When I tried to argue about my fine for a traffic violation, the judge charged me with contempt of court. I really went out of the frying pan into the fire. □ I got deeply in debt. Then I really got out of the frying pan into the fire when I lost my job.

out of the goodness of one's heart Fig. simply because one is kind. (*Typically: be something ~; do something ~.) □ What are you going to pay me? You don't expect me to do this out of the goodness of my heart, do you?

out of the hole Fig. out of debt. □ I get paid next week, and then I can get out of the hole. □ I can't seem to get out of the hole. I keep spending more money than I earn.

Out of the mouths of babes (oft times come gems). Prov. Children occasionally say remarkable or insightful things. □ Mr. and Mrs. Doyle were quietly bickering in the kitchen when their seven-year-old daughter came in and said, "You guys should get counseling." After a surprised pause, Mrs. Doyle remarked, "Out of the mouths of babes." □ Child: Don't eat so much candy, Mommy. Candy is bad for your teeth. Mother: Out of the mouths of babes oft times come gems.

out of the ordinary unusual. □ It was a good meal, but not out of the ordinary. □ Your report was nicely done, but nothing out of the ordinary.

out of the picture Fig. no longer relevant to a situation; departed; dead. □ Now that Tom is out of the picture, we needn't concern ourselves about his objections. □ With her husband out of the picture, she can begin living as she pleases.

out of the question Fig. not allowed; not permitted. □ I'm sorry, but your taking my car is out of the question. □ You can't go to Florida this spring. We can't afford it. It's out of the question.

out of the red Fig. out of debt; into profitability. □ This year our company is likely to get out of the red before fall. □ If we can cut down on expenses, we can get out of the red fairly soon.

out of the running Fig. no longer being considered; eliminated from a contest. □ After the first part of the diving meet, three members of our team were out of the running. □ After the scandal was made public, I was out of the running. I pulled out of the election.

out of the swim of things Fig. not in the middle of activity; not involved in things. (The opposite of in the swim of things.) □ While I had my cold, I got out of the swim of things. □ I've been out of the swim of things for a few weeks. Please bring me up-to-date.

out of the way 1. and out of someone's way; *out of the road Lit. not blocking or impeding the way. (*Typically: get ~; get someone or something ~; move someone or something ~.) □ Please get out of my way. □ Would you please get your foot out of the way? 2. and out of one's way Fig. not along the way; not included in the proposed route. (*Typically: be ~.) □ I'm sorry, but I can't give you a ride home. It's out of my way. □ That route is out of our way. 3. Fig. completed; finished. (*Typically: be ~; get something ~; have something ~.) □ I'm sure glad to have that test out of the way. □ I'll be happy to have all this medical stuff out of the way.

out (of) the window Fig. gone; wasted. □ All that work gone out the window because my computer crashed. □ My forty dollars—out the window! Why didn't I save my money?

out of the woods Fig. past a critical phase; out of the unknown. □ When the patient got out of the woods, everyone relaxed. □ I can give you a better prediction for your future health when you are out of the woods.

out of the woodwork Fig. out into the open from other places or a place of concealment. (*Typically: bring someone or something ~; come ~; creep ~.) □ When the cake appeared, all the office people suddenly came out of the woodwork.

out of thin air Fig. out of nowhere; out of nothing. □ Suddenly—out of thin air—the messenger appeared. □ You just made that excuse up out of thin air.

out of this world 1. Fig. wonderful and exciting. □ This pie is out of this world. □ My boyfriend is just out of this world. 2. intoxicated. □ Man, is she ever out of this world! What did she drink? □ He drank until he was out of this world.

out of time (with someone or something) Go to out of step (with someone or something).

out of touch (with someone or something) Fig. knowing no news of someone or something; not keeping informed of the developments relating to someone or something. □ I've been out of touch with my brother for many years. □ I couldn't go back into mechanics because I've been out of touch for too long.

out of town temporarily not in one's own town. □ I'll go out of town next week. I'm going to be at a conference. □ I take care of Mary's cat when she's out of town.

out of tune (with someone or something) 1. Lit. not in musical harmony with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The oboe is out of tune with the flute. □ The flute is out of tune with John. □ They are all out of tune. 2. Fig. not in agreement with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~.) □ Your proposal is out of tune with my ideas of what we should be doing. □ Your ideas are out of tune with company policy.

out of turn not at the proper time; not in the proper or expected order. □ We were permitted to be served out of turn because we had to leave early. □ Bill tried to register out of turn and was sent away.

out of w(h)ack 1. crazy, silly, or irrational. (*Typically: be ~.) □ Why do you always act as if you're out of whack? □ I'm not out of wack. I'm eccentric. 2. Fig. out of adjustment; to be out of order. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm afraid that my watch is out of whack. □ The elevator is out of wack. We'll have to walk up.

out of wind Go to out of breath.

out of work unemployed; having lost one's job. □ Todd was out of work for almost a year. □ Too many people were out of work, and the economy got into trouble.

out on a limb 1. Lit. out on a limb of a tree where it is dangerous. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ It's okay to climb the tree, but don't go out on a limb and fall off. 2. Fig. in a dangerous position to do something; at risk. (*Typically: be ~; go ~; put someone ~.) □ I don't want to go out on a limb, but I think we can afford to do it. □ If I had to go out on a limb, I would say that it will be a month before your merchandise will be delivered.

out on bail out of jail after a court appearance and pending trial because bail bond money has been paid. (The money will be forfeited if the person who is out on bail does not appear for trial at the proper time.) □ Bob got out on bail waiting for his trial. □ The robber committed another crime while out on bail.

(out) on parole out of prison, conditionally, before one's total sentence is served. □ Bob was caught using drugs while out on parole and was sent back to prison. □ He has to be careful and obey the law because he is out on parole.

(out) on patrol away from a central location, watching over a distant or assigned area. (Said especially of police and soldiers.) □ Officer Smith is out on patrol and cannot see you now. □ The soldiers who are on patrol on this snowy night must be very cold.

out (on strike) to be away from one's job in a strike or protest. □ The workers went out on strike. □ We can't do anything while the workers are out.

out on the town Fig. celebrating at one or more places in a town. □ I'm really tired. I was out on the town until dawn. □ We went out on the town to celebrate our wedding anniversary.

Out, please. Please let me get out. (Said by someone trying to get out of an elevator. Compare this with Coming through(, please).) □ The elevator stopped again, and someone at the back said, "Out, please." □ Jane: Out, please. This is my floor. John: I'll get out of your way. Jane: Thanks.

out to (a meal) to be away, eating a meal. □ Mary is out to lunch right now. □ Fred went out to dinner for the evening.

out to get someone Fig. intending to harm someone in particular. □ I know they are out to get me! They hate me!

out to lunch 1. Lit. eating lunch away from one's place of work or activity. □ I'm sorry, but Sally Jones is out to lunch. May I take a message? □ She's been out to lunch for nearly two hours. When will she be back? 2. and out of it Fig. not alert; giddy; uninformed. □ Bill is really out of it. Why can't he pay attention? □ Don't be out of it, John. Wake up! □ Ann is really out to lunch these days.

out to win determined to win. □ Bobby is out to win at all costs! He can't face losing.

out West in the western part of the United States. □ We lived out West for nearly ten years. □ Do they really ride horses out West?

out-of-bounds 1. Lit. outside the boundaries of the playing area. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~.) □ The ball went out-of-bounds just at the end of the game. □ The whistle blew when Juan went out-of-bounds. 2. and off-limits Fig. forbidden. (*Typically: be ~.) □ This area is off-limits. You can't go in there. □ Don't go there. It's out-of-bounds. □ That kind of behavior is off-limits. Stop it!

out-of-pocket expenses Fig. the actual amount of money spent. (Alludes to the money one person pays while doing something on someone else's behalf. One is usually paid back this money.) □ My out-of-pocket expenses for the party were nearly $175. □ My employer usually reimburses all out-of-pocket expenses for a business trip.

outside of something except for something; besides something. □ Outside of the cost of my laundry, I have practically no expenses. □ Outside of some new shoes, I don't need any new clothing.

over a barrel Fig. out of one's control; in a dilemma. (*Typically: get someone ~; have someone ~; put someone ~.) □ He got me over a barrel, and I had to do what he said. □ Ann will do exactly what I say. I've got her over a barrel.

over and above something Fig. more than something; in addition to something. □ I'll need another twenty dollars over and above the amount you have already given me. □ You've been eating too much food over and above what is required for good nutrition. That's why you're gaining weight.

over (and done) with finished. (*Typically: be ~; get something ~; have something ~.) □ I'm glad that's over and done with. □ Now that I have college over and done with, I can get a job.

Over and out. I am finished talking. (From two-way radio communications.) □ That's all. Good day. Over and out.

over and over (again) repeatedly. □ She stamped her foot over and over again. □ Bill whistled the same song over and over.

over easy Fig. [of eggs] turned carefully during cooking. □ I want mine cooked over easy. □ Over easy eggs are better than scrambled.

Over my dead body! Inf. Fig. a defiant phrase indicating the strength of one's opposition to something. (A joking response is "That can be arranged.") □ Sally: Alice says she'll join the circus no matter what anybody says. Father: Over my dead body! Sally: Now, now. You know how she is. □ Bill: I think I'll rent out our spare bedroom. Sue: Over my dead body! Bill (smiling): That can be arranged.

over someone's head 1. Fig. [of the intellectual content of something] too difficult for someone to understand. (*Typically: be ~; go ~; pass ~.) □ All that talk about computers went over my head. □ I hope my lecture didn't go over the students' heads. 2. and over someone; *above someone Fig. to an authority higher than someone. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ I don't want to have to go over your head, but I will if necessary. □ I had to go over Fran to get it done. □ My boss wouldn't listen to my complaint, so I went above her.

over the counter Fig. [of medication bought or sold] without a prescription. (Hyphenated when prenominal. See also under the counter.) □ This is a good product. You can buy it over the counter. □ I don't put much trust in over-the-counter medications.

over the edge Fig. excessive; out of control. □ His performance was over the edge. Too long, too dirty, and too loud!

over the hill 1. Fig. Inf. escaped from prison or the military. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ Two privates went over the hill last night. □ They broke out of jail and went over the hill. 2. Fig. too old (for something). (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ You're only fifty! You're not over-the-hill yet. □ Some people seem over-the-hill at thirty.

over the hump 1. Fig. over the hard part; past the midpoint. □ Things should be easy from now on. We finally got over the hump. □ When you get over the hump, life is much better. 2. intoxicated on drugs. □ Harry is over the hump now. He is stoned. □ This stuff makes you sick at first. Then suddenly you are over the hump and floating.

over the long haul and in the long haul; in the long run Fig. long term; over a long period of time. □ Over the long haul, this model will prove best. □ This will last in the long haul.

over the short haul and in the short haul; in the short run Fig. for the immediate future. □ Over the short haul, you'd be better off to put your money in the bank. □ Over the short haul, you may wish you had done something different. But things will work out all right.

over the top 1. Fig. having gained more than one's goal. □ Our fund-raising campaign went over the top by $3,000. □ We didn't go over the top. We didn't even get half of what we set out to collect. 2. Fig. outrageously overdone. □ The comedy sketch was so over-the-top that most of the audience was embarrassed.

over the wall reaching freedom from a prison. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ Max tried to go over the wall, but they caught him. □ Lefty was over the wall for a week before that caught him.

over (with) finished; concluded. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) I hope this thing gets over with pretty soon. When will the lecture get over?

overdose (someone) on something and overdose someone with something to give someone too much of some substance, usually a drug. The police say he overdosed on heroine. Sam overdosed his sister on the cough medicine. She overdosed herself with aspirin.

overflow into something to spill over into something. The river overflowed into the surrounding farmland. The water in the bowl overflowed into the sink.

overflow with someone or something to have so much or so many people or things that they spill over. The kitchen overflowed with the guests. My cup overflowed with coffee and spilled on the counter.

owe someone a debt of gratitude a large amount of thanks owed to someone who deserves gratitude. (Actually payment of the debt is owed.) We owe you a debt of gratitude for all you have done for us.

owe someone a pound of flesh Go to a pound of flesh.

owe something (to someone) (for something) to be under obligation to pay or repay someone for something. I owe forty dollars to Ann for the dinner. I owe money for the gift to Ann. I still owe money for the gift. Do you still owe money to Ann?

owing to because of something; due to the fact of something. Owing to the lateness of the evening, I must go home. We were late owing to the heavy traffic.

own flesh and blood Go to flesh and blood.

own up to someone to confess or admit something to someone. Finally, he owned up to his mother about breaking the vase. We had hoped he would own up to us sooner.

own up (to something) to admit something; to confess to something. I know you broke the window. Come on and own up to it.

Pp

pace around and pace about to walk around nervously or anxiously. □ Stop pacing around and sit down. □ There is no need to pace about.

pace back and forth and pace up and down to walk over and over the same short route nervously or anxiously. □ The leopard paced back and forth in its cage. □ I paced up and down, worrying about a variety of things.

pace something off^t to mark off a distance by counting the number of even strides taken while walking. □ The farmer paced a few yards off and pounded a stake into the soil. □ He paced off a few yards.

pace something out^t 1. Lit. to measure a distance by counting the number of even strides taken while walking. □ He paced the distance out and wrote it down. □ He paced out the distance from the door to the mailbox. 2. Fig. to deal with a problem by pacing around. □ When she was upset, she walked and walked while she thought through her problem. □ When Ed came into the room, she was pacing a new crisis out. □ She usually paced out her anxiety.

pace up and down Go to pace back and forth.

P

pack a punch Go to next.

pack a wallop and pack a punch Fig. to provide a burst of energy, power, or excitement. □ Wow, this spicy food really packs a wallop. □ I put a special kind of gasoline in my car because I thought it would pack a punch. It didn't.

pack down [for something] to settle down in a container. □ The cereal has packed down in the box so that it seems that the box is only half full. □ Everything was packed down carefully inside.

pack it in 1. Fig. to quit trying to do something; to give up trying something and quit. □ I was so distressed that I almost packed it in. □ I've had enough! I'm going to pack it in. 2. Fig. to go to bed. □ Good night. It's time for me to pack it in. □ We drove to a hotel and packed it in.

a pack of lies a series of lies. □ The thief told a pack of lies to cover up the crime. □ John listened to Bill's pack of lies about the fight and became very angry.

pack someone off^t (to someone or something) to send someone away to someone or some place. □ Laura just packed all the kids off to summer camp. □ She packed off the kids to their camp. □ After a lot of planning and a few tears, she packed them all off.

pack someone or something in^t Go to pack someone or something into something.

pack someone or something (in^t) like sardines Fig. to squeeze in as many people or things as possible. (From the way that many sardines are packed into a can.) □ They packed us in like sardines. There was no room to breathe. □ They packed in the people like sardines. □ Dave got a box and packed old negatives in like sardines.

pack someone or something into something and pack someone or something in^t to press or push someone or something into something; to manage to get a lot of things or people into a place. □ The boys packed a lot of kids into a telephone booth as a gag. □ They packed in a lot of kids.

pack someone or something together^t to press or squeeze people or things together. □ The ushers packed the people together as much as they dared. □ They packed together all the people standing in the room. □ They packed the cups together too tightly and some broke.

pack something away^t to pack something up and put it away. □ Pack this mirror away where it will be safe. □ Please pack away this mirror carefully.

pack something down^t to make something more compact; to press something in a container down so it takes less space. □ The traffic packed down the snow. □ Pack the grass down in the basket so the basket will hold more.

pack something in something to surround or enclose something in something. □ They packed his wounded hand in ice, then took him to the hospital. □ Pack the vase in shredded paper before you close the box.

pack something off^t (to someone or something) to send something to someone or something. □ I will pack the books off to you immediately. □ She packed off the books to my home address. □ Harry found the books I wanted and packed them off.

pack something up^t (in something) to prepare something to be transported by placing it into a container. □ Gerry will pack the dishes up in a strong box, using lots of crumpled paper. □ Please pack up the dishes carefully.

pack them in Fig. to draw a lot of people. □ It was a good night at the theater. The play really packed them in. □ The circus manager knew he could pack them in if he advertised the lion tamer.

pack up to prepare one's belongings to be transported by placing them into a container; to gather one's things together for one's departure. □ If we are going to leave in the morning, we should pack up now. □ I think you should pack up and be ready to leave at a moment's notice. □ He didn't say good-bye. He just packed up and left.

a package deal Fig. a collection or group of related goods or services sold as a unit. □ I got all these tools in a package deal for only $39.95. □ What about giving me all three shirts as a package deal?

packed (in) like sardines Fig. packed very tightly. □ It was terribly crowded there. We were packed in like sardines. □ The bus was full. The passengers were packed like sardines.

pad down (some place) Sl. to make one's bed somewhere, usually a casual or temporary bed. □ Do you mind if I pad down at your place for the night? □ Can I pad down tonight?

pad out Sl. to go to bed or to sleep. □ Man, if I don't pad out by midnight, I'm a zombie. □ Why don't you people go home so I can pad out?

pad something out^t Fig. to make something appear to be larger or longer by adding unnecessary material. □ If we pad the costume out here, it will make the person who wears it look much plumper. □ Let's pad out this paragraph a little.

pad the bill Fig. to put unnecessary or additional items on a bill to make the total cost higher. □ The plumber had padded the bill with things we didn't need. □ I was falsely accused of padding the bill.

paddle one's own canoe Fig. to do something by oneself; to be alone. □ I've been left to paddle my own canoe too many times. □ Sally isn't with us. She's off paddling her own canoe.

a pain in the ass and a pain in the butt; a pain in the rear Fig. a very annoying thing or person. (Crude. Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion. An elaboration of pain. Use caution with ass. Butt is less offensive. Rear is euphemistic.) □ That guy is a real pain in the ass. □ Things like that give me a pain in the butt.

a pain in the neck Fig. a bother; an annoyance. □ This assignment is a pain in the neck. □ Your little brother is a pain in the neck.

a pain in the rear Go to a pain in the ass.

paint on something to apply paint to the surface of something. □ He painted on the fence a while and then went inside to rest. □ Please don't paint on the area that is not sanded down.

paint over something to cover something up with a layer of paint. □ Sam painted over the rusty part of the fence. □ The work crew was told to paint over the graffiti.

paint something in^t to paint something extra onto a painted area. □ I know that there is supposed to be a big white spot here. We will have to paint it in. □ We will have to paint in the spot.

paint something onto something and paint something on^t to apply a design or picture to something, using paint. □ Joel painted the portrait onto a large sheet of plywood. □ He painted on some leaves and flowers too.

paint something out^t to cover something up or obliterate something by applying a layer of paint. □ The worker painted the graffiti out. □ They had to paint out the graffiti.

paint the town (red) Sl. to go out and celebrate; to go on a drinking bout; to get drunk. □ I feel like celebrating my promotion. Let's go out and paint the town. □ They were out painting the town red last night.

pair off [for two people or other creatures] to form a couple or pair. □ All of them paired off and worked as teams to solve the puzzle. □ Everyone should pair off and discuss the issue for a while.

pair up (with someone) to join with someone to make a pair. □ Sally decided to pair up with Jason for the dance contest. □ Sally and Jason paired up with each other.

pal around (with someone) to associate with someone as a good friend. □ I like to pal around with my friends on the weekends. □ They like to pal around. □ They often palled around with each other.

pal up (with someone) to join with someone as a friend. □ I palled up with Henry and we had a fine time together.

□ We palled up and had a fine time together. □ They palled up with each other.

pale around the gills and blue around the gills; green around the gills Fig. looking sick. (The around can be replaced with about.) □ John is looking a little pale around the gills. What's wrong? □ Oh, I feel a little green about the gills.

pale as a ghost and pale as death very pale. (*Also: as ~.) □ Laura came into the room, as pale as a ghost. "What happened?" her friends gasped. □ What's the matter? You're pale as death!

pale as death Go to previous.

pale at something to become weak, frightened, or pale from fear of something or the thought of something. □ Bob paled at the thought of having to drive all the way back to get the forgotten suitcase. □ We paled at the notion that we would always be poor.

pale beside someone or something Fig. to appear to be weak or unimportant when compared to someone or something. □ He is competent, but he pales beside Fran. □ My meager effort pales beside your masterpiece.

pale by comparison and pale in comparison Fig. to appear to be deficient in comparison to something else. □ My work pales by comparison with yours. You are a real pro.

pally (with someone) friendly or overly friendly with someone, as a pal would be. □ I don't know why Sue acts so pally. I hardly know her. □ She doesn't seem pally with me.

paln someone or something off^t (on someone) (as someone or something) and pass someone or something off^t (on someone) (as someone or something); pawn someone or something off^t (on someone) (as someone or something) Fig. to give someone or something to someone as a gift that appears to be someone or something desirable. (As if the gift had been concealed in one's palm until it was gotten rid of.) □ Are you trying to palm that annoying client off on me as a hot prospect? □ Don't palm off that pest on me. □ Please don't pass that problem off on me as a challenge. □ Don't pass it off on me! □ Don't pawn it off on me as something of value.

pan across to someone or something to turn or rotate a film or television camera so that the picture follows movement or moves to and settles on someone or something. □ The camera panned across to Mary, who was sitting, looking out the window. □ The camera operator panned across to the window on the opposite side of the room.

pan for something to search for a precious metal, usually gold, by using a pan to locate the bits of metal in sand and gravel in a stream bed. □ When I was in Alaska, I panned for gold in a little stream set aside for tourists. □ The old prospector spent many hours panning for gold.

pan in (on someone or something) Go to zoom in (on someone or something).

pan out 1. and zoom out to move back to a wider angle picture using a zoom lens. □ The camera zoomed out. □ Pan out at this point in the script and give a wider view of the scene. 2. Go to turn out (all right).

pan over someone or something to turn or rotate a film or television camera so that the picture moves across a view of someone or something. □ The camera panned over the skyline, picking up interesting cloud formations. □ It panned over Roger as if he weren't there—which is exactly the effect the director wanted.

pander to someone or something to cater toward undesirable tastes or people with undesirable tastes. □ All your writing seems to pander to persons with poor taste. □ You are pandering to the moral dregs of society.

panic at something to lose control in a frightening or shocking situation. □ Try not to panic at what you see. It will be a shock. □ Don't panic at the price of food. It will be worse next week.

panic someone by something to make someone lose control by doing something. □ She panicked Denise by describing the event too vividly. □ She panicked her horse by jerking the reins too tightly.

pant for air to breathe fast and hard in need of air. □ The dog was panting for air. □ I was panting for air after my long climb.

pant for someone or something Fig. to desire or long for someone or something. □ My heart is panting for you! □ I am just panting for some interesting news.

pant something out^t to tell something while panting for breath. □ Laura had been running but she was able to pant the name of the injured person out. □ She panted out the name.

paper over something 1. Lit. to put a layer of wallpaper on a wall. □ We papered over the wall, giving the room a bright, new look. □ We papered over the old plaster on the wall. 2. to cover up some sort of blemish on a wall with wallpaper. □ We papered over a lot of little cracks. □ Sam papered over all the flaws in the plaster wall. 3. Fig. to conceal something; to cover something up. □ Don't try to paper over the mess you have made. □ George tried to paper over all his mistakes.

paper over the cracks (in something) Fig. to try to hide faults or difficulties, often in a hasty or not very successful way. (Based on paper over something ②.) □ The politician tried to paper over the cracks in his party's economic policy. □ Tom tried to paper over the cracks in his relationship with the boss, but it was not possible. □ She didn't explain it. She just papered over the cracks.

*a paper trail Fig. a series of records that is possible to examine to find out the sequence of things that happen. (*Typically: have ~; leave ~; make ~.) □ The legal department requires all these forms so that there is a paper trail of all activity.

par for the course typical; about what one could expect. (This refers to golf courses, not school courses.) □ So he went off and left you? Well that's about par for the course. He's no friend. □ I worked for days on this proposal, but it was rejected. That's par for the course around here.

parade by (someone) to march past someone in a parade or as if in a parade. □ The soldiers paraded by the commander in chief. □ Looking quite sharp, they paraded by.

parade someone or an animal out^t to bring or march someone or an animal out in public. □ He parades his children out every Sunday as they go to church. □ He paraded out all his children.

parade someone or something in front of someone or something to exhibit someone or something in front of someone or something, as if in a parade. □ One by one, the teacher paraded the honor students in front of the parents. □ The sheriff paraded the suspects in front of the camera. □ The sheriff paraded the suspects in front of the victim.

a paradise (on earth) Fig. a place on earth that is as lovely as paradise. □ The retirement home was simply a paradise on earth. □ The beach where we went for our vacation was a paradise.

parcel someone or something out^t Fig. to divide up and send or give away people or things. □ Carla parceled all the uniforms out so everyone would have one to wear for the parade. □ We will parcel out the children for the summer.

parcel something up^t to wrap something up in a package. □ Would you parcel the papers up and set them in the corner? □ Parcel up the files and place them on top of the file cabinet.

Pardon (me). Go to Excuse me.

Pardon me for living! Inf. a very indignant response to a criticism or rebuke. □ Fred: Oh, I thought you had already taken yourself out of here! Sue: Well, pardon me for living! □ Tom: Butt out, Mary! Bill and I are talking. Mary: Pardon me for living!

Pardon my French. and Excuse my French. Inf. Excuse my use of swear words or taboo words. (Does not refer to real French.) □ Pardon my French, but this is a hell of a day. □ What she needs is a kick in the ass, if you'll excuse my French.

pardon someone for something 1. to excuse someone for doing something. □ Will you please pardon me for what I did? □ I can't pardon her for that. 2. to excuse and release a convicted criminal. □ The governor pardoned Max for his crime. □ The governor did not pardon any drug dealers for their crimes.

pare something down^t (to something) to cut someone down to something or a smaller size. □ I will have to pare the budget down to the minimum. □ I hope we can pare down the budget. □ After much arguing, we pared it down.

pare something off (of) something and pare something off^t to cut something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ See if you can pare a bit of this extra wood off the edge of the base of this pillar. □ Pare off some of the wood.

park it (somewhere) Inf. sit down somewhere; sit down and get out of the way. □ Hey, park it! You're in the way. □ Richard, park it over there in the corner. Stop pacing around. You make me nervous.

parlay something into something Fig. to exploit an asset in such a way as to increase its value to some higher amount. □ She is trying to parlay her temporary job into a full-time position. □ Alice parlayed her inheritance into a small fortune by investing in the stock market.

parley with someone Fig. to talk with someone. □ I need to parley with my brother before making a financial commitment. □ We need to parley with each other sometime soon.

part and parcel Go to bag and baggage.

part company (with someone) Fig. to leave someone; to depart from someone. □ Tom finally parted company with his brother. □ They parted company, and Tom got in his car and drove away.

part from someone to leave someone. □ I just hate parting from you. □ I must part from her now.

a part in something Go to a hand in something.

part over something [for people] to separate because of something. □ We had to part over our disagreement. □ They parted over a very small matter.

part someone or an animal from someone or an animal to take someone or an animal away from someone or some other animal. □ It was difficult to part the mother dog from her puppies. □ I hated to part the mother from her child.

part someone's hair 1. Lit. to divide someone's hair into separate sections while combing it. □ The barber asked me where I parted my hair. 2. Fig. to come very close to someone. (Usually an exaggeration.) □ That plane flew so low that it nearly parted my hair. □ He punched at me and missed. He only parted my hair.

part with someone or something to give up or let go of someone or something. □ She did not want to part with her friend. □ I could never part with my books.

partake in something to participate in something. □ Valerie does not care to partake in those childish games. □ I would like to partake in the fun.

partake of something 1. to have a portion of something, such as food or drink. □ Would you care to partake of this apple pie with me? □ I would like to partake of that fine dinner I see set out on the table. 2. to take part in or experience something. □ Sarah had always wanted to partake of the good life. □ Roger had no intention of partaking of the events offered at the fair.

partial to someone or something favoring or preferring someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The boys think their teacher is partial to female students. □ I am partial to vanilla ice cream.

partially sighted Euph. not able to see well. □ Carrie is partially sighted, but she is not able to see well enough to read. □ I am not blind. I am partially sighted.

participate (in something) (with someone or something) to take part in something with someone or a group. □ I will not participate in this activity with you. □ They don't participate with our team in this contest.

the particulars of something specific details about something. □ My boss stressed the important particulars of the project. □ What are the particulars of your request?

a parting of the ways a point at which people separate and go their own ways. (Often with come to a, arrive at a, reach a, etc.) □ Jane and Bob finally came to a parting of the ways. □ Bill and his parents reached a parting of the ways.

partition something into something to divide or separate something into something [smaller]. □ I will partition this room into two separate spaces. □ Do you think you can partition this box into four compartments so we can store files by quarter?

partition something off to divide off a section of something. □ They planned to partition the basement off. □ We will partition off a larger area.

partners in crime 1. Fig. persons who cooperate in committing a crime or a deception. (Usually an exaggeration.) □ The sales manager and the used-car salesmen are nothing but partners in crime. 2. persons who cooperate in some legal task. □ The legal department and payroll are partners in crime as far as the average worker is concerned.

the party line Fig. the official ideas and attitudes that are adopted by the leaders of a particular group and that the other members are expected to accept. □ Tom has left the club. He refused to follow the party line. □ Many politicians agree with the party line without thinking.

The party's over. Fig. A happy or fortunate time has come to an end. □ We go back to school tomorrow. The party's over. □ The staff hardly worked at all under the old management, but they'll find the party's over now.

a party to something a participant in something; someone who is involved in something. □ I refuse to be a party to your dishonest plan!

pass as someone or something to succeed in being accepted as someone or something. □ The spy was able to pass as a regular citizen. □ The thief was arrested when he tried to pass as a priest.

pass away and pass on Euph. to die. □ My aunt passed away last month. □ When I pass on, I won't care about the funeral.

pass by (someone or something) to move or travel past someone, something, or some place. □ Please don't pass by me so fast. □ If you pass by a large white house with a red roof, you have gone too far.

pass for someone or something to be accepted as someone, some type of person, or something. □ You could pass for your twin brother. □ This painting could almost pass for the original.

pass for something to pay for something; to treat someone by paying for something. □ Come on. Let's go out. I'll pass for dinner. □ I'll pass for drinks if you want.

pass from something to fade away from something; to go away gradually. □ The larger trees had passed from the scene years ago. □ The exact details passed from Harry's memory some time ago.

pass gas Euph. to release intestinal gas through the anus. □ Someone on the bus had passed gas. It smelled awful. □ Something I ate at lunch made me pass gas all afternoon.

pass in review [for marchers] to move past an important person for a visual examination. □ All the soldiers passed in review on the Fourth of July. □ As they passed in review, each of them saluted the officers on the reviewing stand.

pass into something to move into something; to fade away into something. □ Thoughts about the accident, little by little, passed into oblivion. □ All her old school chums passed into oblivion.

pass judgment (on someone or something) to make a judgment about someone or something. □ I should not pass judgment on you, but I certainly could give you some good advice about how to be more pleasant. □ The judge passed judgment on the defendant, who was then taken away to prison.

pass muster Fig. to measure up to the required standards.
 I tried, but my efforts didn't pass muster. If you don't wear a jacket and tie, you won't pass muster at that fancy restaurant. They won't let you in.

pass on Go to pass away.

pass on someone or something to accept or approve someone or something.
 She refused to pass on Ted, so he will not be appointed. The committee passed on the proposal, so work can now begin.

pass out to faint; to lose consciousness.
 Oh, look! Tom has passed out. When he got the news, he passed out.

pass over (someone or something) 1. to skip over someone or something; to fail to select someone or something.
 I was next in line for a promotion, but they passed over me.
 I passed over the bruised apples and picked out the nicest ones.
2. to pass above someone or something.
 A cloud passed over our little group, cooling us a little. The huge blimp passed over the little community.

pass over someone's head Go to over someone's head.

pass sentence on someone 1. Lit. [for a judge] to read out the sentence of punishment for a convicted criminal.
 It is my job as judge to pass sentence on you. The judge was about to pass sentence on Max—ten years in prison.
2. Fig. [for someone] to render a judgment on another person in the manner of a judge.
 You have no right to pass judgment on me! I wish you wouldn't pass judgment on everyone around you.

pass someone on^t (to someone) to send, hand, or conduct a person to someone else.
 I passed the baby on to the next admiring relative. She passed on the baby to her aunt.

pass someone or something by^t to miss someone or something; to overlook someone or something.
 The storm passed by the town leaving it unharmed. The teacher passed me by and chose the next person in line.

pass someone or something off^t (on someone) (as someone or something) Go to palm someone or something off^t (on someone) (as someone or something).

pass someone or something up^t 1. to fail to select someone or something.
 The committee passed Jill up and chose Kelly. They passed up Jill.
2. to travel past someone or something.
 We had to pass the museum up, thinking we could visit the next time we were in town. We passed up a hitchhiker.

pass something along^t (to someone) 1. to give or hand something to someone.
 Would you kindly pass this along to Hillary? Please pass along my advice to Wally over there.
2. to relay some information to someone.
 I hope you don't pass this along to anyone, but I am taking a new job next month. Could you pass along my message to Fred?

pass something around^t (to someone) to offer something to everyone.
 Please pass the snacks around to everyone.
 Would you pass around the snacks?

pass something back (to someone) to return something by hand to someone.
 Kelly passed the pictures back to Betty.
 They weren't Betty's and she passed them back to Beth.

pass something down^t (to someone) and pass something on (to someone) 1. to send something down a line of people to someone. (Each person hands it to the next.)
 Please pass this down to Mary at the end of the row. Pass down this box to Mary.
2. to will something to someone.
 My grandfather passed this watch down to me. He passed on the watch to me.

pass something forward to send something toward the front of a group of people. (Each person hands it to the next.)
 Please pass this forward to the front of the room.
 Would you pass this book forward, please?

pass something in^t (to someone) and hand something in^t (to someone) to turn in or hand in something, such as a school assignment, paper, etc., to someone.
 They were told to pass their papers in to the teacher. Hand in your papers to me.

pass something off^t Go to pass something off (on someone) (as something).

pass something off (as something) Go to shrug something off (as something).

pass something off (on someone) (as something) and pass something off^t to get rid of something deceptively by giving or selling it to someone as something else.
 I passed the rhinestone off on John as a diamond. Don't try to pass that fake off on me! He couldn't pass off the stone on the clever jeweler.

pass something on^t 1. Lit. to hand or give something (to another person).
 Have a piece of toffee and pass the box on. Please pass on this book to the next person on the list.
2. Fig. to tell someone something; to spread news or gossip.
 Don't pass this on, but Bill isn't living at home any more. I refuse to pass on rumors.

pass something on (to someone) Go to pass something down^t (to someone).

pass something out^t (to someone) to distribute something to someone.
 Please pass these out to everyone. Pass out these papers to everyone.

pass something over (to someone) to send something to someone farther down in a line of people. (Each person hands it to the next.)
 Please pass this paper over to Jane.
 Would you pass this paper over to Jane?

pass something to someone to hand or send something to someone, usually by way of a number of other people.
 Please pass this paper to Betty. Who passed this to me?

pass the buck Fig. to pass the blame (to someone else); to give the responsibility (to someone else). (See also The buck stops here.) Don't try to pass the buck! It's your fault, and everybody knows it. Some people try to pass the buck whenever they can.

pass the hat (around^t) (to someone) Fig. to collect donations of money from people. (Could also be literal.) Jerry passed the hat around to all the other workers. He passed around the hat to everyone. I'll pass the hat around.

pass the time (of day) to spend time doing something; to consume or use spare time by doing something.
 I read to pass the time while waiting in the doctor's office. I passed the time of day by talking to Dave.

pass the time of day (with someone) to chat or talk informally with someone. □ I saw Mr. Brown in town yesterday. I stopped and passed the time of day with him. □ No, we didn't have a serious talk; we just passed the time of day.

pass through someone to be digested through the bowels of someone. □ This fruit should pass through you in no time at all. □ He will be better when the offending food passes through him.

pass through someone's mind and cross someone's mind Fig. [for a thought] to come to mind briefly; [for an idea] to occur to someone. □ Let me tell you what just crossed my mind. □ As you were speaking, something passed through my mind that I'd like to discuss.

pass through something to travel through something or some place. □ I passed through the countryside and breathed the good clean air. □ Perhaps I will stop and visit Joe the next time I pass through Adamsville.

pass under something to move or travel beneath something. □ The ship slowly passed under the bridge. □ Harry counted the cars as they passed under the bridge.

passport to something Fig. something that allows something good to happen. □ John's new girlfriend is his passport to happiness. □ Anne's new job is a passport to financial security.

past caring Fig. [of someone] beyond caring about someone or something that is hopeless. □ I don't care what you do! I'm past caring!

*a past master at something Fig. someone proven extremely good or skillful at an activity. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ Mary is a past master at cooking omelets. □ Pam is a past master at the art of complaining.

past someone's or something's prime Fig. beyond the most useful or productive period. □ Joan was a wonderful singer, but she's past her prime now. □ This old car's past its prime. I'll need to get a new one.

paste someone one Sl. to land a blow on someone. □ I pasted him one right on the nose. □ Next time you do that, I'll paste you one!

paste something down^t to secure something down [onto something] with paste or glue. □ The poster will look better if you will paste the loose edges down. □ Please paste down the edges.

paste something on someone 1. Lit. to affix something to someone with paste or glue. □ We had to paste a mustache on her for the last scene of the play. □ They pasted beards on themselves too. 2. Sl. to charge someone with a crime. □ You can't paste that charge on me! Max did it! □ The cops pasted a robbery charge on Lefty "Fingers" Moran. 3. Sl. to land a blow on someone. (See also paste someone one.) □ If you do that again, I'll paste one on you. □ Max pasted a nasty blow on Lefty's chin.

paste something up^t 1. to repair something with paste. □ See if you can paste this book up so it will hold together. □ Paste up the book and hope it holds together for a while. 2. to assemble a complicated page of material by pasting the parts together. □ There is no way a typesetter can get this page just the way you want it. You'll have to paste it up yourself. □ Paste up this page again and let me see it.

a pat answer a quick, easy answer; a simplified or evasive answer. □ Don't just give them a pat answer. Give some more explanation and justification. Otherwise you will just end up answering a lot more questions.

pat someone on the back and give someone a pat on the back 1. Lit. to pat someone's back to show praise. □ The coach patted each player on the back after the game. 2. Fig. to praise someone for something. □ The teacher patted all the students on the back for their good work. □ They were patting themselves on the back for winning when the final whistle blew.

pat someone or something on something to tap someone or something on a particular place with the open hand. □ She patted the child on the bottom. □ I patted the car on its hood to show how proud I was of it.

pat something down^t to tap something down with the open hand. □ I heaped some soil over the seeds and patted it down. □ I patted down the soil.

patch a quarrel up^t Fig. to put an end to a quarrel; to reconcile quarreling parties. □ Tom and Fred were able to patch their quarrel up. □ I hope we can patch up this quarrel.

patch someone up^t to give medical care to someone. □ That cut looks bad, but the doc over there can patch you up. □ The doc patched up my friend.

patch something together (with something) to use something to repair something hastily or temporarily. □ I think I can patch the exhaust pipe together with some wire. □ See if you can patch this engine together well enough to run for a few more hours.

patch something up^t 1. Lit. to repair something in a hurry; to make something temporarily serviceable again. □ Can you patch this up so I can use it again? □ I'll patch up the hose for you. 2. Fig. to "repair" the damage done by an argument or disagreement. □ Mr. and Mrs. Smith are trying to patch things up. □ We patched up our argument, then kissed and made up.

the path of least resistance Fig. the easiest course to follow; the easiest route. (Often with follow the or take the.) □ John will follow the path of least resistance. □ I like challenges. I won't usually take the path of least resistance.

Patience is a virtue. Prov. It is good to be patient. □ Jill: I wish Mary would hurry up and call me back! Jane: Patience is a virtue. □ Fred: The doctor has kept us waiting for half an hour! If he doesn't call us into his office pretty soon, I may do something violent. Ellen: Calm down, dear. Patience is a virtue.

patient as Job very patient. (Alludes to the biblical figure Job. *Also: as ~.) □ If you want to teach young children, you must be as patient as Job. □ The director who is working with that temperamental actor must have the patience of Job.

the patter of tiny feet the sound of young children; having children in the household. □ I really liked having the patter of tiny feet in the house. □ Darling, I think we're going to be hearing the patter of tiny feet soon.

pattern something after something to use something as an example or model when making something. □ I patterned my house after one I saw in England. □ She wanted to pattern her coat after her mother's.

pattern something on something to use something as a model for something else. Try to pattern your sales speech on Jane's. She's got it just right. We patterned our approach on Bob's.

pave the way (for someone or something) (with something) Fig. to prepare the way with something for someone to come or something to happen. (Alludes to paving a road.) I will pave the way for her with an introduction. I am sure I can pave the way for your success. I will pave the way with an introduction.

pawn someone or something off (on someone) (as someone or something) Go to palm someone or something off (on someone) (as someone or something).

pay a call Euph. to go to the toilet; to leave to go to the toilet. (See also pay a call on someone.) Excuse me. I have to pay a call. Tom left to pay a call. He should be back soon.

pay a call on someone to visit someone. Grandmother always paid us a call on Sundays. Let's pay a call on Mary at the hospital.

pay a king's ransom Go to a king's ransom.

pay a visit to someone or something Go to pay (someone or something) a visit.

pay an arm and a leg (for something) and pay through the nose (for something) Fig. to pay too much [money] for something. I hate to have to pay an arm and a leg for a tank of gas. If you shop around, you won't have to pay an arm and a leg. Why should you pay through the nose?

pay as you go to pay costs as they occur; to pay for goods as they are bought (rather than charging them). You ought to pay as you go. Then you won't be in debt. If you pay as you go, you'll never spend too much money.

pay attention (to someone or something) to give attention (to someone or something). Please pay attention to the teacher. Max always pays careful attention to what is being told to him.

pay by something 1. Lit. to use something as a medium of payment. Will you pay by cash or check? The bill was paid by check. 2. Fig. to pay by a certain time. You will have to pay by the end of the month or we will cancel your lease. I promise I will pay by the end of the month.

pay court to someone Fig. to solicit someone's attention; to woo someone. The lawyer was thought to be paying court to too many politicians. The lobbyist paid court to all the influential members of Congress.

pay for something 1. Lit. to pay out money for something. Did you pay for the magazine, or shall I? No, I'll pay for it. 2. Fig. to suffer punishment for something. The criminal will pay for his crimes. I don't like what you did to me, and I'm going to see that you pay for it. Max paid for his wicked ways.

pay heed to someone to listen to and accommodate someone. You had better pay heed to your father! They are not paying heed to what I told them.

pay homage to someone or something to openly honor or worship someone or something. Do you expect me to pay homage to your hero? I refuse to pay homage to your principles.

pay in advance to pay (for something) before it is received or delivered. I want to make a special order. Will I have to pay in advance? Yes, please pay in advance.

pay into something to pay money into an account. I intend to pay into my vacation account until I have enough for a nice vacation. We paid a lot into our savings account this month.

pay lip service (to something) Fig. to express loyalty, respect, or support for something insincerely. You don't really care about politics. You're just paying lip service to the candidate. Don't sit here and pay lip service. Get busy!

pay off to yield profits; to result in benefits. My investment in those stocks has really paid off. The time I spent in school paid off in later years.

pay on something to make a payment against a bill. You have to pay on this every month or we will repossess it. How much do you plan to pay on the car per month?

pay one's debt (to society) Cliché to serve a sentence for a crime, usually in prison. The judge said that Mr. Simpson had to pay his debt to society. Mr. Brown paid his debt in state prison.

pay one's dues 1. Lit. to pay the fees required to belong to an organization. If you haven't paid your dues, you can't come to the club picnic. How many people have paid their dues? 2. Fig. to have earned one's right to something through hard work or suffering. He worked hard to get to where he is today. He paid his dues and did what he was told. I have every right to be here. I paid my dues!

pay one's last respects (to someone) to go to someone's funeral. I paid my last respects to Mr. Kantor yesterday. Scores of people came to pay their last respects.

pay one's own way to pay for one's own transportation, entrance fees, tickets, room, board, etc. I wanted to go to Florida this spring, but my parents say I have to pay my own way.

pay someone a backhanded compliment and pay someone a left-handed compliment Fig. to give someone a false compliment that is really an insult or criticism. John said that he had never seen me looking better. I think he was paying me a left-handed compliment. I'd prefer that someone insulted me directly. I hate it when someone pays me a backhanded compliment—unless it's a joke.

pay someone a compliment Fig. to give someone a compliment. Tom paid Bill a compliment when he told him he was intelligent. Mary was very gracious when Anne paid her a compliment.

pay someone a left-handed compliment Go to pay someone a backhanded compliment.

pay someone a pound of flesh Go to a pound of flesh.

pay someone back[†] 1. Lit. to return money that was borrowed from a person. You owe me money. When are you going to pay me back? You must pay John back. You have owed him money for a long time. You have to pay back everyone you owe money to. 2. Fig. to get even with someone [for doing something]. I will pay her back for what she said about me. Fred eventually will pay Mike back. He bears grudges for a long time. He intends to pay back everyone who has wronged him!

pay someone (for something) (with something) to make payment with something to someone for something or for doing something. □ I will pay you for the loan you made me with the money I get from selling my car. □ I will pay you with a check.

pay someone off 1. Lit. to pay what is owed to a person. □ I can't pay you off until Wednesday when I get my paycheck. □ *I have to use this money to pay off Sarah. 2. Fig. to bribe someone. □ Max asked Lefty if he had paid the cops off yet. □ *Lefty paid off the cops on time.

pay (someone or something) a visit and pay a visit to someone or something to visit someone or something. □ Bill paid a visit to his aunt in Seattle. □ Please pay a visit to our house whenever you are in town.

pay someone respect to honor someone; to have and show respect for someone. □ You really should pay your boss more respect. □ We have to pay our parents a lot of respect.

pay someone's way to pay the costs (of something) for a person. □ My aunt is going to pay my way to Florida—only if I take her with me!

pay something back[†] (to someone) to repay someone. □ I paid the money back to Jerry. □ Can I pay back the money to George now? □ Please pay the money back now.

pay something down[†] 1. Lit. to make a deposit of money on a purchase. □ You will have to pay a lot of money down on a car that expensive. □ *I only paid down a few thousand dollars. 2. Fig. to reduce a bill by paying part of it, usually periodically. □ I think I can pay the balance down by half in a few months. □ *I will pay down the balance a little next month.

pay something into something and pay something in[†] to pay an amount of money into an account. □ Mary paid forty dollars into my account by mistake. □ She paid in a lot of money. □ I have an account here and I want to pay something in.

pay something off[†] to pay all of a debt; to pay the final payment for something bought on credit. □ This month I'll pay the car off. □ Did you pay off the gas bill yet?

pay something out[†] to unravel or unwind wire or rope as it is needed. (See also play something out.) □ One worker paid the cable out, and another worker guided it into the conduit. □ The worker paid out the cable.

pay something out[†] (for someone or something) to disburse or spend money for someone or something. □ We have already paid too much money out for your education. □ We paid out too much money.

pay something out[†] (to someone) to pay money to someone. □ The utility paid one hundred dollars out to everyone who had been overcharged. □ They paid out money to every customer.

pay something up[†] to pay all of whatever is due; to complete all the payments on something. □ Would you pay up your bills, please? □ Your dues are all paid up.

pay the penalty 1. Lit. to pay a fine for doing something wrong. □ *You ran the red light and now you will have to pay the penalty. 2. Fig. to suffer the consequences for doing something wrong. □ *My head really hurts. I am paying the penalty for getting drunk last night.

pay the piper Fig. to face the results of one's actions; to receive punishment for something. □ You can put off paying your debts only so long. Eventually you'll have to pay the piper. □ You can't get away with that forever. You'll have to pay the piper someday.

pay the price 1. Lit. to pay the price that is asked for goods or services. (Usually implying that the price is high.) □ *If this is the quality of goods that you require, you will have to pay the price. 2. Fig. to suffer the consequences for doing something or risking something. □ *Oh, my head! I am paying the price for drinking too much last night.

pay through something to make payment through an intermediary, such as a bank. □ I will pay the bill through my bank in New York. □ Sam had to pay through his brokerage account.

pay through the nose (for something) Go to pay an arm and a leg (for something).

pay to do something to be beneficial to do something; to be profitable. □ It doesn't pay to drive downtown when you can take the train. □ It pays to take an umbrella with you if it's supposed to rain.

pay tribute to someone or something Fig. to salute someone or something; to give public recognition to someone or something. □ Many of Judy's friends gathered to pay tribute to her. □ We will have a reception to pay tribute to the work of the committee.

pay up to pay what is owed. (Often a command: Pay up!) □ I want my money now. Pay up! □ If you don't pay up, I'll take you to court.

peace of mind Fig. a tranquility that results from not having worries, guilt, or problems. □ If peace of mind is more important to you than earning a lot of money, maybe you should consider teaching.

peal out [for bells or voices] to sound forth musically. □ The bells pealed out to announce that the wedding had taken place. □ All six of the bells seemed to peal out at once.

peck at something 1. Lit. [for a bird] to poke someone or something with its beak. □ The bird pecked at the ground, snatching up the ants. □ *I tried to hold on to the bird but it pecked at me hard. 2. Fig. [for someone] to eat just a little bit of something, being as picky as a bird. □ Are you well, Betty? You are just pecking at your food. □ *Please don't peck at your food. You should eat everything.

peck something up[†] [for a bird] to eat something up by pecking at it. □ The chickens pecked all the grain up. □ The birds pecked up the grain.

peek at someone or something to sneak a glimpse at someone or something. □ Now, don't peek at me while I am changing my shirt. □ I peeked at the dessert you made. It looks delicious.

peek in (on someone or something) to glance quickly into a place to see someone or something. □ Would you please peek in on the baby?

peek in(to something) to steal a quick glimpse into something. □ Sam peeked into the oven to see what was cooking. □ Laura opened the oven door and peeked in.

peek out (from behind someone or something) 1. to look outward from behind someone or something. □ A shy kitten peeked out from behind the sofa. □ I looked toward the back of the sofa just as a little cat face peeked out. 2. to show just a little bit with the rest concealed behind someone or something. A bit of yellow peeked out from behind the tree, so we knew Frank was hiding there. We saw a flash of Frank's yellow shirt peek out.

peek out (from underneath someone or something)

1. to look outward from beneath someone or something. A small furry face peeked out from underneath the sofa. At the base of the sofa, a cat peeked out. 2. to show just a little bit with the rest concealed under someone or something. Her petticoat peeked out from underneath her skirt. Her skirt was a tad too short and a little bit of her slip peeked out.

peek out of something (at someone or something) 1. to be inside of something and take a look out. A pair of glimmering eyes peeked out of the darkened room at the two people standing at the door. I peeked out of my room at the eerie shadows in the hallway. Jerry peeked out of the bathroom to see if anyone was looking. 2. [for a little bit of something] to be revealed with the rest concealed within. A bit of white skin peeked out beneath his pants cuff.

peek over something 1. to examine something with a quick glance. I really can't say how good the story was. I only peeked over it. I peeked over your manuscript, and it looks good. 2. to raise up and look over some barrier. I peeked over the wall and saw the lovely garden. Don't peek over the sofa and let Roger see you. It will ruin the surprise.

peek through (something) 1. to peer or glimpse through something. I'll just peek through your picture album. I'll study it more carefully later. I only have time to peek through. I would like to spend more time with it later. 2. [for something] to become slightly visible through something. Mary, the lace of your slip is peeking through your blouse! Some lace is peeking through.

peek under something to sneak a little glance beneath something. I peeked under the table, hoping to see the dog waiting there for the part of my dinner I wasn't going to eat. Peek under the chair and see if the cat is there.

peel off (from something) [for one or more airplanes] to separate from a group of airplanes. The lead plane peeled off from the others, and soon the rest followed. The lead plane peeled off and dived into the clouds.

peel off ((of) something) [for a surface layer] to come loose and fall away from something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) The paint is beginning to peel off the garage. The paint is peeling off.

peel out [for a driver] to speed off in a car with a screeching of tires. Dave got in his car and peeled out, waking the neighbors. I wish he would stop peeling out!

peel something away[†] (from something) to peel something from the surface of something. Peel the label away from the envelope and place it on the order form. Peel away the label carefully.

peel something back[†] (from something) to lift something away from the surface of something. He peeled the sheets back from the bed and got in. He peeled back the sheets and got into the bed.

peel something off[†] ((of) something) and peel something off[†] from something to remove the outside surface layer from something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.)

She carefully peeled the skin off the apple. She peeled off the apple's skin.

*a peep a quick look at someone or something. (*Typically: have ~; take ~.) Have a peep into the refrigerator and see if we need any milk. I took a peep at the comet through the telescope.

peep at someone or something to get a glimpse of someone or something, as if looking through a hole. I peeped at Tom through the venetian blinds. Look in the microscope and peep at this bacterium.

peep in(to something) to get a quick look into something, as through a hole in the wall or something similar. I peeped into the oven to see what was cooking for dinner. She opened the oven door and peeped in.

peep out (of something) (at someone or something) to sneak a glimpse of someone or something out of something, as through a hole. A little mouse peeped out of its hole at the bright lights in the room. Johnny, hiding in the closet, peeped out at the guests through the partly opened door.

peep over something to raise up and sneak a glance over some barrier; to look over the top of something. The child peeped over the wall to get a look at the yard next door. Grandfather peeped over his glasses to look at the television set for a moment.

peep through something to take a quick glance through something, such as a hole, telescope, etc. Sam peeped through the keyhole and saw that the room was dark. Peep through the telescope and have a look at the moon!

peep under something to take a quick little glance under something. Would you please peep under the table and see if my shoes are there? Dave peeped under the bed, looking for the cat.

peer about to stare around; to look at everything about. She came into the room and peered about. Mary peered about, looking for a place to sit.

peer at someone or something to look at someone or something closely; to stare at and examine someone or something. The child peered at me for a while in a strange way. The owl peered at the snake for a moment before grabbing it.

peer in(to something) to stare into something; to look deep into something. I peered into the room, hoping to get a glimpse of the lovely furnishings. I only had time to peer in and then I walked on by.

peer out at someone or something to stare out at someone or something. A little puppy peered out at them from the cage. When I looked under the box, Timmy peered out at me with a big smile.

peer over something to stare out or look over something, such as one's glasses. The old man peered over his glasses and looked off into the distance. She peered over the wall to see what she could see.

peer through something 1. to view or look through glasses, spectacles, binoculars, etc. From the way she peered through her glasses at me, I knew I was in trouble. Claire stood on the balcony, peering through her binoculars. 2. to stare through a partial barrier, such as a window, drapes, the haze, the fog, etc. George peered through the drapes and spied on the party next door. Sally peered through the haze as best she could, trying to see if the way was clear.

peer under something to look underneath something. □ She peered under the bed, hoping to find her slippers. □ When she peered under the bed, she found nothing but lint.

peg away (at something) Go to plug away (at something).

peg out Sl. to die. □ I was so scared, I thought I would peg out for sure. □ Uncle Herman almost pegged out last week.

peg someone as something and have someone pegged as something to think of someone in a certain way. □ Susan pegged the new employee as a lazy worker. □ I had you pegged as an angry rebel before I got to know you.

peg something down[†] to fasten something to the ground with pegs. □ After he had finished pegging the tent down, he built a fire. □ He pegged down the tent before building a fire.

pelt down (on someone or something) [for something] to fall down on someone or something hard or in quantity. (Typically rain, hail, sleet, stones, etc.) □ The rain pelted down on the children as they ran to their school bus. □ The ashes from the volcanic eruption pelted down on the town, covering the houses in a gray shroud.

pelt someone or something with something to hit or strike someone or something with something. □ The citizens pelted Max with rocks. □ The boys pelted the mad dog with a hail of stones.

The pen is mightier than the sword. Prov. Eloquent writing persuades people better than military force. □ Believing that the pen is mightier than the sword, the rebels began publishing an underground newspaper. □ Alan: Why do you want to become a journalist? Bill: The pen is mightier than the sword.

pen someone or an animal in[†] (some place) to confine someone or an animal in a pen. □ We penned all the kids in out in the backyard while we got the party things ready in the house. □ We had to pen in the kids to keep them away from the traffic. □ Alice penned her dog in.

pen someone or an animal up[†] to confine someone to a confined space or an animal to a pen. □ He said he didn't want them to pen him up in an office all day. □ They penned up the dog during the day.

penalize someone for something to punish someone for something. □ It's not fair to penalize her for being late. □ You needn't penalize yourself for the failure. It wasn't all your fault.

pencil someone or something in[†] to write in something with a pencil. (Implies that the writing is not final.) □ This isn't a firm appointment yet, so I will just pencil it in. □ I penciled in a tentative answer.

penetrate into someone or something to pierce into someone or something; to stick deep into someone or something. □ The lance penetrated into the knight, right through his armor. □ The bullet penetrated into the wall.

penetrate something with something to pierce something with something. □ I could not even penetrate the steel door with a cold chisel. □ It was easy to penetrate the lid with a can opener.

penetrate through something to pierce all the way through something. (Some people will view the through as redundant.) □ The bullet could not penetrate through the metal plating. □ It did not have enough force to penetrate through the steel.

A penny for your thoughts! Prov. What are you thinking about?; I would give you a penny if you tell me your thoughts. □ Noticing that Janet looked pensive, Bill said, "A penny for your thoughts!" □ You seem very pleased with yourself today. A penny for your thoughts!

A penny saved is a penny earned. Prov. Money that you save is more valuable than money that you spend right away.; It is good to save money. □ Now that you have your first job, you ought to open a savings account. A penny saved is a penny earned. □ Mary worked hard to save money; she knew that a penny saved is a penny earned.

penny-wise and pound-foolish Prov. thrifty with small sums and foolish with large sums. (Describes someone who will go to a lot of trouble to save a little money, but overlooks large expenses to save a little money. Even in the United States, the reference is to British pounds sterling.) □ Sam: If we drive to six different grocery stores, we'll get the best bargains on everything we buy. Alan: But with gasoline so expensive, that's penny-wise and pound-foolish.

pension someone off[†] to retire someone with a pension. □ The company tried to pension me off before I was ready to retire. □ They pensioned off the long-time workers.

people something with someone to provide population for something or some place, using someone or some kind of people. □ The government decided to people the frontier with a variety of races. □ The island had been peopled with marooned sailors.

People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones. Prov. You should not criticize other people for having the same faults that you yourself have. □ Jill: Richard sure was drinking a lot at the office party. Jane: I noticed you had quite a few cocktails yourself. People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones.

pep someone or something up[†] to make someone or something more vigorous. □ Nancy needs to take some vitamins to pep her up. □ The coffee break pepped up the tired workers. □ Better food might pep your cat up.

pepper someone or something with something to shower someone or something with something, such as stones, bullets, etc. □ The angry crowd peppered the police with stones. □ The sheriff's posse peppered the bandit's hideout with bullets.

perceive someone or something as something to think of someone or something as something or as displaying certain characteristics. □ I perceive Randy as sort of hot-headed. □ We all perceive this problem as solvable.

perch on something 1. [for a bird] to stand at rest on something. □ A robin perched on the branch by my window. □ We saw a parrot perched on some kind of flowering tree.
2. to sit or balance on something. □ I can't perch on this fence forever. Let's go. □ Sam was perched on the bicycle and he looked very uncomfortable.

perch someone or something on something to place, seat, or stand someone or something in a place. □ She perched the little girl on the edge of the tub. □ Walter perched his hat on the top shelf.

percolate through something [for a liquid] to seep down through something. □ The water percolated through the coffee grounds too slowly for Fred, who was just dying for a hot cup of the stuff. □ The water percolated through the subsoil and appeared again at the bottom of the hill.

a perfect stranger and a total stranger Fig. a person who is completely unknown [to oneself]. □ I was stopped on the street by a perfect stranger who wanted to know my name. □ If a total stranger asked me such a personal question, I am sure I would not answer!

perform an old warhorse Go to an old warhorse.

perform something on someone or something to do something to someone or something; to carry out a procedure on someone or something. □ The surgeon performed a simple office procedure on the patient. □ Do you expect me to perform magic on this problem?

Perhaps a little later. Not now, but possibly later. □ Waiter: Would you like your coffee now? Bob: Perhaps a little later. Waiter: All right. Sally: Hey, Bill, how about a swim? Bob: Sounds good, but not now. Perhaps a little later. Sally: Okay. See you later.

perish from something to die from a particular cause, such as a disease. □ Nearly all the fish perished from the cold. □ I was afraid that I would perish from hunger.

perish in something to die because of involvement in something. □ Four people perished in the flames. □ Our cat perished in an accident.

Perish the thought. Fig. Do not even consider thinking of such a (negative) thing. □ If you should become ill—perish the thought—I'd take care of you. □ I'm afraid that we need a new car. Perish the thought.

perish with something to feel bad enough to die because of something, such as heat, hunger, etc. (Often an exaggeration.) □ I was just perishing with hunger when we arrived at the restaurant. □ Mary felt as if she would perish with the intense heat of the stuffy little room.

perk someone up[†] to make someone more cheery or refreshed. □ A nice cup of coffee would really perk me up. □ A cup of coffee will perk up the sleepiest person.

perk something up[†] to refresh or brighten something; to make something more lively. □ A bit of bright yellow here and there will perk this room up a lot. □ We need something to perk up the second act of the play.

perk up to become invigorated; to become more active. □ After a bit of water, the plants perked up nicely. □ About noon, Andy perked up and looked wide-awake.

permeate something with something to saturate something with something. □ The comedian permeated his act with smutty jokes. □ The evening air was permeated with the smell of jasmine.

permeate through something to seep in and saturate something. □ The coffee spilled on the desk and permeated through all the papers and stuff. □ The strong odor permeated through the walls and nearly suffocated us.

Permit me. Go to Allow me.

permit someone into something and permit someone in[†] to allow someone to enter something or some place. □ They would not permit me in the dining room since I had no tie. □ They would not permit in that bunch of rowdy brats or any other of her friends.

permit someone out (of something) to allow someone to go out of something or some place. □ His mother won't permit him out of his room all weekend. □ I didn't do anything, but she won't permit me out!

permit someone through (something) to allow someone to pass through something. □ Would you permit me through the door? I have to get into this building. □ Janet said she was in a hurry, but they wouldn't permit her through.

permit someone up (something) to allow someone to come up something. □ She would not permit me up the ladder. □ I wanted to climb the ladder to be with Walter, but he wouldn't permit me up.

permit someone up to something to allow someone to come up to something or some place. □ The teacher would not permit the smallest children up to the edge. □ They would not permit us up to the gate before our turn came.

persecute someone for something to harass or repress someone for something. □ They were persecuting the native people for being underdeveloped. □ They were persecuted for being simple and unsuspecting.

persevere at something to keep trying to do something. □ I will persevere at my studies and I'm sure I will succeed. □ Todd persevered at his job and got promoted in no time.

persevere in something to persist in [doing] something. □ I will persevere in my efforts to win election. □ Kelly persevered in her studies and graduated with honors.

persevere with something to continue to try to accomplish something. □ Do you really think it is wise to persevere with your plan? □ Sally persevered with her scheme to earn a million dollars.

persist in doing something to continue doing something. □ John persists in thinking that he's always right. □ Tom persists in demanding that I agree to his terms.

persist with something to continue the state of something; to extend an action or state. □ Please do not persist with your demands that I agree to your terms. □ If you persist with this intrusion, I'm going to call the police.

person of color a person of an African, Asian, or Native American race. (The plural is people of color.) □ The apartment manager clearly discriminated against people of color. He would only rent to whites. □ As a person of color, I felt threatened by the racist jokes that my coworker told.

*a perspective on something a way of looking at a situation and determining what is important. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; gain ~; give someone ~.) □ The jury did not have a good perspective on the crime since some of the evidence had to be ignored. □ Studying history gives one a perspective on the past.

persuade someone of something to convince someone of something. □ Laura was unable to persuade me of the truth of her statement. □ We were all persuaded of the need for higher taxes.

persuade someone to do something to convince someone to do something. □ Are you sure I can't persuade you to have another piece of cake? □ Richard was easily persuaded to have another piece of his favorite cake.

pertain to someone or something to relate to someone or something; to have something to do with someone or something. □ I don't think that anything discussed in this meeting pertained to me. □ It really doesn't pertain to the matter at hand.

pester someone about someone or something to bother someone about someone or something. □ Please don't pester me about Frank. □ Stop pestering me about money.

pester someone into something to annoy someone into doing something. □ We are trying to pester her into accepting the position. □ I don't want to be pestered into losing my temper!

pester someone out of something 1. to annoy someone out of doing something. □ Dave pestered Mary out of going away for the weekend. □ He pestered her out of leaving without him. 2. to annoy one out of one's mind, senses, good manners, etc. □ I was pestered out of my mind by a series of silly questions.

pester someone with something to annoy someone with something. □ Don't pester me with your constant questions! □ I was pestered with phone call after phone call.

pester the life out of someone Fig. to annoy someone excessively. □ Leave me alone. You are pestering the life out of me. □ Stop pestering the life out of me!

pet hate Fig. something that is disliked intensely and is a constant or repeated annoyance. □ My pet hate is being put on hold on the telephone. □ Another pet hate of mine is having to stand in line.

pet peeve Fig. a frequent annoyance; one's "favorite" or most often encountered annoyance. □ My pet peeve is someone who always comes into the theater after the show has started. □ Drivers who don't signal are John's pet peeve.

peter out [for something] to die or dwindle away; [for something] to become exhausted gradually. □ When the fire petered out, I went to bed. □ My money finally petered out, and I had to come home.

petition someone or something for something to make a formal request of someone or a group for something. □ They petitioned us for an end to the stringent dress code. □ We had to petition the upper administration for a revision in the policy.

phase someone or something into something and phase someone or something in[†] to work someone or something into use or service gradually. □ They decided to phase Ruth into the job little by little. □ They phased in Ruth over a long period of time.

phase someone or something out of something and phase someone or something out[†] to work someone or something out of use or service or out of a group gradually. □ We are going to have to phase you out of the job of treasurer. □ They phased out the unneeded workers.

phone in (to someone or something) to call in by telephone to a central person or central point. □ I will phone in to my secretary and report the change in schedule. □ I have to phone in and report the changes.

phone someone up[†] to call someone on the telephone. □ I don't know what he will do. I will phone him up and ask him. □ Phone up your brother and ask his advice.

phone something in[†] (to someone or something) to transmit information to a central person or central point by telephone. □ I will phone this order in to the plant right away. □ I will phone in the order to my secretary right now. □ Don't worry. I'll phone it in.

phony as a three-dollar bill and queer as a three-dollar bill phony; bogus. (*Also: as ~.) □ This guy's as phony as a three-dollar bill. □ The whole deal stinks. It's as queer as a three-dollar bill.

a photo op (portunity) a time or event designed for taking pictures of a celebrity. □ All the photographers raced toward a photo op with the president.

physical (with someone) 1. Lit. physical in the use of force against someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The coach got in trouble for getting physical with some members of the team. □ When the suspect wouldn't cooperate, the police were forced to get physical. 2. Fig. physical in touching someone in lovemaking. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I've heard that Bill tends to get physical with his dates. □ I don't care if he gets physical—within reason.

Physician, heal thyself. Prov. Do not rebuke someone for a fault or problem you have yourself. (Biblical.) □ Ellen: You're such a spendthrift. You should go on a strict budget. Fred: But you manage money even worse than I do! Physician, heal thyself. □ Jane: You look like you're gaining weight. You should probably get more exercise. Alan: Physician, heal thyself. You're getting a little pudgy, too.

pick a fight (with someone) and pick a quarrel (with someone) to start a fight or argument with someone on purpose. □ Are you trying to pick a fight with me? □ Max intended to pick a quarrel with Lefty.

pick a lock to open a lock without using a key. □ The robber picked the lock with a nail file. □ The thief picked the lock on the safe and stole the money.

pick a quarrel (with someone) Go to pick a fight (with someone).

pick and choose to choose very carefully from a number of possibilities; to be selective. □ You must take what you are given. You cannot pick and choose. □ Meg is so beautiful. She can pick and choose from a whole range of boyfriends.

pick at someone or something to be very critical of someone or something; to pick on someone or something. □ Why are you always picking at me? □ The critics picked at the little things, missing the serious problems.

pick at something 1. Lit. to try to pull away bits of something. □ Don't pick at the bookbinding. It will fall apart. 2. Fig. to eat just a tiny bit of a meal or some kind of food. □ You are just picking at your food!

pick holes in something 1. and pick something to pieces to criticize something severely; to point out the flaws or fallacies in an argument. □ The lawyer picked holes in the witness's story. □ They will pick holes in your argument. □ Stop picking holes in everything I say! 2. to poke or pinch little holes in something. □ Look! You've picked holes in the bread! How can I make sandwiches? □ Who picked holes in the blanket?

the pick of something the best of the group. □ This playful puppy is the pick of the whole lot. □ These potatoes are the pick of the crop.

pick on somebody your own size Go to pick on someone your own size.

pick on someone or something to harass or bother someone or something, usually unfairly. □ Please stop picking on me! I'm tired of it. □ You shouldn't pick on the cat.

pick on someone your own size and pick on somebody your own size to abuse someone who is big enough to fight back. □ Go pick on somebody your own size! □ Wilbur should leave his little brother alone and pick on someone his own size.

pick one's way through something and make one's way through something 1. to move along a route full of obstacles; to travel, usually on foot, through an area of heavy vegetation or through a crowd of people or things. □ When the grandchildren visit, I have to pick my way through the toys on the floor. □ We slowly picked our way through the thorny bushes to get to the ripe raspberries. 2. to work slowly and meticulously through something. □ My teacher said he couldn't even pick his way through my report. It was just too confusing. □ I spent an hour picking my way through the state tax forms.

pick someone or something apart¹ 1. Lit. to pick at and pull someone or something to pieces. □ The vultures attacked the hunger-weakened man and tried to pick him apart. □ They tried to pick apart the body. □ Harry picked his piece of cake apart, looking to get all the nuts out. 2. Fig. to analyze and criticize someone or something negatively. □ You didn't review her performance; you just picked her apart. □ The critics picked apart the performers.

pick someone or something from someone or something to choose someone from a group of people; to choose something from a group of things. □ I picked Joe from all the other boys. □ Tony picked this one from the collection.

pick someone or something off¹ 1. Fig. to kill someone or something with a carefully aimed gunshot. □ The hunter picked the deer off with great skill. □ The killer tried to pick off the police officer. 2. Go to next.

pick someone or something off (of) someone or something and pick someone or something off¹ to pull or gather someone or something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The teacher picked the little boys off the jungle gym and hurried them back into the school building before the storm hit. □ Pick off the ripe tomatoes and leave the rest.

pick someone or something out¹ Go to pick someone or something out of something.

pick someone or something out¹ (for someone or something) to choose someone or something to serve as someone or something. □ I picked one of the new people out for Santa Claus this year. □ I picked out several large potatoes for the stew.

pick someone or something out of something and pick someone or something out¹ 1. to lift or pull someone or something out of something. □ The mother picked her child out of the fray and took him home. □ I picked out the mushrooms before eating the soup. 2. to select someone or something out of an offering of selections. □ I picked Jerry out of all the boys in the class. □ I picked out Jerry.

pick someone or something to pieces 1. Lit. to pull or pinch at someone or something until only pieces are left.

□ The savage birds picked the carcass to pieces. □ The mice seem to have picked the stuffed doll to pieces. 2. Fig. to criticize someone or something harshly or unduly. □ You have just picked her to pieces. Leave her alone! □ The critic picked the play to pieces.

pick someone's brain(s) Fig. to talk with someone to find out information about something. □ I spent the afternoon with Donna, picking her brain for ideas to use in our celebration. □ Do you mind if I pick your brains? I need some fresh ideas.

pick someone up¹ 1. to attempt to become acquainted with someone for romantic or sexual purposes. □ Who are you anyway? Are you trying to pick me up? □ No, I never picked up anybody in my life! 2. [for the police] to find and bring someone to the police station for questioning or arrest. □ The cop tried to pick her up, but she heard him coming and got away. □ Sergeant Jones, go pick up Sally Franklin and bring her in to be questioned about the jewel robbery. 3. to stop one's car, bus, etc., and offer someone a ride. □ Don't ever pick a stranger up when you're out driving! □ I picked up a hitchhiker today, and we had a nice chat. 4. to go to a place in a car, bus, etc., and take on a person as a passenger. □ Please come to my office and pick me up at noon. □ I have to pick up Billy at school.

pick something away¹ to pull or pinch something loose from something. □ Mary picked the meat away from the bones. □ He picked away the burrs.

pick something over¹ Fig. to look through something carefully, looking for something special. □ The shoppers who got here first picked everything over, and there is not much left. □ They picked over all the merchandise.

pick something to pieces Go to pick holes in something.

pick something up¹ 1. Lit. to lift up or raise something from a lower place. □ Please help me pick this stuff up off the pavement. □ Pick up every bit of it! 2. Fig. to tidy up or clean up a room or some other place. □ Let's pick this room up in a hurry. □ I want you to pick up the entire house. 3. Fig. to find, purchase, or acquire something. □ Where did you pick that up? □ I picked up this tool at the hardware store. 4. Fig. to learn something. □ I pick languages up easily. □ I picked up a lot of knowledge about music from my brother. 5. Fig. to cause something to go faster, especially music. □ All right, let's pick up the tempo and get it moving faster. □ Okay, get moving. Pick it up! 6. Fig. to resume something. □ Pick it up right where you stopped. □ I'll have to pick up my work where I left off. 7. Fig. to receive radio signals; to bring something into view. □ I can just pick it up with a powerful telescope. □ I can hardly pick up a signal. 8. Fig. to find a trail or route. □ The dogs finally picked the scent up. □ You should pick up highway 80 in a few miles.

pick up 1. to tidy up. (See also pick up (after someone or something).) □ When you finish playing, you have to pick up. □ Please pick up after yourself. 2. to get busy; to go faster. □ Things usually pick up around here about 8:00. □ I hope business picks up a little later. It's boring here.

pick up after someone or something to tidy up after someone or a group. □ I refuse to pick up after you all the time. □ I refuse to pick up after your rowdy friends.

pick up on something to become alert to something; to take notice of something; to learn or catch on to something. □

She's real sharp. She picks up on everything. □ The cop picked up on the car with the expired license plates.

pick up someone for a song Go to for a song.

pick up speed to increase speed. □ The train began to pick up speed as it went downhill. □ The car picked up speed as we moved into the left lane.

pick up the check Go to pick up the tab.

pick up the pace to speed up the tempo; to increase the rate that something is being done. □ We are going to have to pick up the pace of activity around here if we are to get the job done.

pick up the pieces (of something) 1. Lit. to gather up each piece or part. □ Norma picked up the pieces of the broken lamp. □ She stooped down to pick up the pieces. 2. Fig. to try to repair emotional, financial, or other damage done to one's life. □ I need some time to pick up the pieces of my life after the accident. □ After a while, Fred was able to pick up the pieces and carry on.

pick up the tab and pick up the check to pay the bill. □ Whenever we go out, my father picks up the tab. □ Order whatever you want. The company is picking up the check.

picked over rejected; worn, dirty, or undesirable. □ This merchandise looks worn and picked over. I don't want any of it. □ Everything in the store is picked over by the end of the month.

A picture is worth a thousand words. Prov. Pictures convey information more efficiently and effectively than words do. □ It's much easier to learn how machines work by looking at pictures, rather than by hearing someone describe them. A picture is worth a thousand words. □ The newspaper editor decided to devote more space to photographs of the disaster than to text, since a picture is worth a thousand words.

the picture of (good) health in a very healthy condition. □ The doctor says I am the picture of good health. □ Each of the children is the picture of health.

picture perfect Fig. looking exactly correct or right. (Hyphenated as a modifier.) □ At last, everything was picture perfect. □ Nothing less than a picture-perfect party table will do.

picture someone as someone or something to imagine someone as someone or a type of person; to form a mental picture of someone as someone or a type of person. □ Just picture me as Santa Claus! □ I can't picture you as a doctor.

picture someone in something 1. to form a mental picture of someone wearing something. □ I can just picture Tony in that baseball uniform. □ Can you picture yourself in a dress like this? 2. to form a mental picture of someone inside something or some place. □ I can just picture you in that car! □ Can you picture yourself in jail?

piddle around Fig. to waste time doing little or nothing. □ Stop piddling around and get busy. □ I'm not piddling around. I am experimenting.

piddle something away Fig. to waste away money or a period of time. □ Please don't piddle all your money away. □ Jane piddled away most of the day.

pie in the sky 1. Fig. a future reward after death, considered as a replacement for a reward not received on earth. □ Don't hold out for pie in the sky. Get realistic. □ If he didn't hope for some heavenly pie in the sky, he would probably be a real crook. 2. Fig. having to do with a hope for a special reward. (This is hyphenated before a nominal.) □ Get rid of your pie-in-the-sky ideas! □ What these pie-in-the-sky people really want is money.

piece of cake Fig. something easy to do. □ No problem. When you know what you're doing, it's a piece of cake. □ Glad to help. It was a piece of cake. □ Rescuing frightened cats is my specialty. Piece of cake!

a piece (of the action) and a bit of the action; a slice of the action Sl. a share in the activity or the profits. (Especially of a business scheme or gambling activity.) □ If you get in on that real estate deal, I want a piece, too. □ Deal Tom in. He wants a piece of the action.

piece something out 1. Lit. to add patches or pieces to something to make it complete. □ There is not quite enough cloth to make a shirt, but I think I can piece it out with some scraps of a complementary color for the collar. □ We managed to piece out the material that we needed.

2. Fig. to add missing parts to a story, explanation, or narrative to make it make sense. □ Before she passed out, she muttered a few things and we were able to piece the whole story out from that. □ We pieced out the story from the few bits we heard from her.

piece something together to fit something together; to assemble the pieces of something, such as a puzzle or something puzzling, and make sense of it. □ The police were unable to piece the story together. □ The detective tried to piece together the events leading up to the crime.

pierce through something to poke through something; to penetrate something. □ He pierced through the meat with a fork and then put it in a spicy marinade. □ Mary pierced the yarn through with the knitting needles.

a piercing scream Fig. a very loud and shrill scream. □ Suddenly, there was a piercing scream from the next room. □ Bob heard Susan's piercing scream and ran to help her.

pig out (on something) Inf. to eat too much of something; to make a pig of oneself. □ I intend to really pig out on pizza. □ I love to pig out on ice cream.

pile in(to something) to climb in or get in roughly. □ Okay, kids, pile in! □ The children piled into the car and slammed the door.

pile off (something) to get down off something; to clamber down off something. □ All the kids piled off the wagon and ran into the barn. □ She stopped the wagon, and they piled off.

pile on((to) someone or something) to make a heap of people on someone or something. □ The football players piled onto the poor guy holding the ball. □ They ran up to the ballcarrier and piled on.

pile out (of something) [for many people] to get out of something roughly. □ Okay, kids, pile out! □ The car door burst open, and the children piled out.

pile someone into something and pile someone in to bunch people into something in a disorderly fashion. □ She piled the kids into the van and headed off for school. □ She piled in the kids and closed the doors. □ Pile them in and let's go. □ They piled themselves into the car and sped off.

pile someone or something on(to) someone or something and pile someone or something on[†] to heap people or things onto someone or something. □ The wrestler piled the referee onto his unconscious opponent. □ We piled the kids on the heap of leaves we had raked up. □ Pile on the chili! What's a hot dog without chili?

pile something up[†] 1. to crash or wreck something. □ Drive carefully if you don't want to pile the car up. □ The driver piled up the car against a tree. 2. to make something into a heap. □ Carl piled all the leaves up and set them afire. □ Please pile up the leaves.

pile the work on (someone) Fig. to give someone a lot of work to do. □ The boss really piled the work on me this week. □ The boss piled on the work this week.

pile up 1. Lit. [for things] to gather or accumulate. □ The newspapers began to pile up after a few days. □ Work is really piling up around here. 2. Fig. [for a number of vehicles] to crash together. □ Nearly twenty cars piled up on the bridge this morning.

pilfer from someone or something to steal from someone or a group. □ The petty thief had pilfered from several merchants in town. □ Someone has pilfered from the petty-cash drawer.

pilfer something from someone or something to steal something from someone or something. □ Did you pilfer this money from your parents? □ Who pilfered some money from the cash box?

pillar of strength and pillar of support someone or something that consistently provides moral, emotional, or financial support as does a pillar. □ My parents are my pillars of support. □ John looked to God as his pillar of strength.

pillar of support Go to previous.

pilot someone or something through (something) to guide or steer someone or something through something, especially through a waterway. □ We hired someone to pilot us through the harbor entrance. □ The channel was treacherous, and we hired someone to pilot the ship through.

pilot something into something and pilot something in[†] to steer or guide something into something. (Usually refers to steering a ship.) □ We need to signal for a pilot to pilot our ship into the harbor. □ Fred piloted in the freighter.

pilot something out of something and pilot something out[†] to steer or guide something out of something. (Usually refers to steering a ship.) □ The chubby little man with a pipe piloted the huge ship out of the harbor. □ The storm made it very difficult to pilot the ship out. □ Help me pilot out this old tub.

pin one's faith on someone or something and pin one's hopes on someone or something Fig. to fasten one's faith or hope to someone or something. □ Don't pin your faith on Tom. He can't always do exactly what you want. □ He pinned his hopes on being rescued soon.

pin one's hopes on someone or something Go to previous.

pin someone down[†] (on something) and nailed someone down[†] (on something) Fig. to demand and receive a firm answer from someone to some question. (Alludes to shifting from answer to answer; commit to one answer or another.) □ I tried to pin him down on a time and place, but he was very evasive. □ Don't try to pin down the mayor on anything! □ I want to nail her down on a meeting time.

pin someone or something against something to press and hold someone or something against something. □ The police pinned the mugger against the wall and put handcuffs on him. □ The wildlife veterinarian pinned the rhino against the walls of the enclosure and subdued it so it could be treated.

pin someone or something beneath someone, something or an animal to trap someone or something beneath someone, an animal, or something. □ The mine cave-in pinned four miners beneath a beam. □ I held the alligator's mouth closed and pinned it beneath me.

pin someone or something under someone or something to trap someone or something under someone or something. □ Someone knocked Gerry down and pinned Randy under him. □ The accident pinned Maggie under the car.

pin someone's ears back[†] 1. Fig. to beat someone, especially about the head. □ Don't talk to me like that or I will pin your ears back! □ Max wanted to pin back Lefty's ears for making fun of him. 2. Fig. to give someone a good scolding. □ Did you hear him? He really pinned Chuck's ears back. □ He pinned back Chuck's ears.

pin something back[†] to hold something back by pinning. □ I will pin the curtains back to let a little more light in. □ Jane pinned back the curtains.

pin something down[†] and nail something down[†] 1. Lit. to attach or affix something with nails or pins. □ Pin the pattern down temporarily. □ Nail down this piece of flooring every 12 inches. 2. Fig. to determine or fix something, such as a date, an agreement, an amount of money, a decision, etc. □ It will be ready sometime next month. I can't pin the date down just yet, however. □ I can't pin down the exact date just now.

pin something on someone Fig. Inf. to blame something on someone; to frame someone for a crime; to make it appear that an innocent person has actually committed a crime. (See also pin something on someone or something.) □ Don't try to pin that crime on me! I didn't do it. □ The gang member tried to pin the crime on a rival gang.

pin something on someone or something to hang something on someone or something by pinning. (See also pin something on someone.) □ The mayor pinned the medal on the boy who had rescued the swimmer. □ I pinned a yellow ribbon on my lapel.

pin something (on)to something to attach or fix something to someone or something by pinning. □ The mayor pinned the medal onto the lapel of the brave young hero. □ She pinned a medal to his lapel.

pin something up[†] 1. to raise something and hold it up with pins. □ I will pin this hem up and then sew it later. □ Please pin up the hem so I can see where to sew it. 2. Go to next.

pin something up on(to) something and pin something up[†] to attach something to something, for display, with pins. □ I pinned the picture up onto the bulletin board where everyone could see it. □ I pinned up the picture.

pinch and scrape Go to scrimp and save.

pinch someone for something Sl. to arrest someone for something. □ The cops pinched Max for driving without a license. □ Max was pinched for speeding.

pinch something back^t to pinch off a bit of the top of a plant so it will branch and grow more fully. □ You should pinch this back so it will branch. □ Pinch back the new leaves at the top.

pinch something from someone or something Sl. to steal something from someone or something. □ Sam pinched an apple from the produce stand. □ We saw a pickpocket pinch a wallet from an old man.

pinch something off^t Go to next.

pinch something off (of) something and pinch something off^t to sever something from something by pinching. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Pinch the buds off the lower branches so the one at the top will bloom. □ Pinch off the lower buds.

pinch-hit for someone 1. Fig. to bat for someone else in a baseball game. □ Wally Wilson will pinch-hit for Gary Franklin. □ Rodney Jones is pinch-hitting for Babe DiMaggio. 2. Fig. to substitute for someone in any situation. □ Bart will pinch-hit for Fred, who is at another meeting today. □ Who will pinch-hit for me while I am on vacation?

pine after someone or something and pine for someone or something; pine over someone or something to long for or grieve for someone or something. □ Bob pined after Doris for weeks after she left. □ Dan is still pining for his lost dog. □ There is no point in pining over Claire.

pine away (after someone or something) to waste away in melancholy and longing for someone or something. □ A year later, he was still pining away after Claire. □ Still, he is pining away.

pine for someone or something Go to pine after someone or something.

pine over someone or something Go to pine after someone or something.

pins and needles Fig. a tingling feeling in some part of one's body, especially the arms and legs. (See also on pins and needles.) □ I've got pins and needles in my legs. □ Mary gets pins and needles if she crosses her arms for long.

pipe down to become quiet; to cease making noise; to shut up. (Especially as a rude command.) □ Pipe down! I'm trying to sleep. □ Come on! Pipe down and get back to work!

a pipe dream Fig. a wish or an idea that is impossible to achieve or carry out. (From the dreams or visions induced by the smoking of an opium pipe.) □ Going to the West Indies is a pipe dream. We'll never have enough money. □ Your hopes of winning a lot of money are just a silly pipe dream.

pipe something away^t to conduct a liquid or a gas away through a pipe. □ We will have to pipe the excess water away. □ They piped away the water.

pipe something from some place (to some place) to conduct a liquid or a gas from one place to another place through a pipe. □ One oil company wanted to pipe oil all the way from northern Alaska to a southern port on the Pacific. □ The company pipes gas from the storage tanks in the middle of the state.

pipe something into some place and pipe something in^t 1. Lit. to conduct a liquid or a gas into some place through a pipe. □ An excellent delivery system piped oxygen into every hospital room. □ They piped in oxygen to every room. □ They piped it in. 2. Fig. to bring music or other sound into a place over wires. □ They piped music into the stairways and elevators. □ The elevators were nice except that the management had piped in music.

pipe up (with something) Fig. to interject a comment; to interrupt with a comment. □ Nick piped up with an interesting thought. □ You can always count on Alice to pipe up.

piping hot [of food] extremely hot. □ On a cold day, I like to eat piping hot soup. □ Be careful! This coffee is piping hot!

pipped (up) Sl. intoxicated. □ I'm not drunk. Just a little pipped up. □ She's pipped and ready to get sick.

pique someone's curiosity and pique someone's interest to arouse interest; to arouse curiosity. □ The advertisement piqued my curiosity about the product. □ The professor tried to pique the students' interest in French literature.

pique someone's interest Go to previous.

pipe someone off^t Inf. to make someone angry. (Crude. Potentially offensive, even though it is widely used. Use with discretion.) □ She really pissed me off! □ That's enough to piss off anybody.

pissed (off) Inf. angry. (Crude. Potentially offensive, even though it is heard widely. Use with discretion.) □ I was so pissed off I could have screamed. □ He's come back, and he's sure pissed.

the pit of one's stomach Fig. the middle of one's stomach; the location of a "visceral response." □ I got a strange feeling in the pit of my stomach when they told me the bad news.

pit one's shoulder to the wheel Go to have one's shoulder to the wheel.

pit someone or something against someone or something to set someone or something in opposition to someone or something. □ The rules of the tournament pit their team against ours. □ John pitted Mary against Sally in the tennis match.

pitch a tent to erect a tent at a campsite. □ The campers pitched their tent in a clearing in the woods. □ I pitched my tent next to a large oak tree.

pitch black very black; as black as pitch. □ The hearse was pitch black. □ The bandit rode on a pitch black horse and wore black clothing.

pitch camp to set up or arrange a campsite. □ We pitched camp near the stream. □ Two campers went ahead of us to pitch camp while it was still light.

pitch dark very dark; as dark as pitch. □ I couldn't see anything outside because it was pitch dark. □ The room was pitch dark, and I couldn't find the light switch!

pitch forward to jerk or thrust forward. □ Suddenly the car pitched forward, jerking the passengers around. □ We pitched forward inside the car as we went over the bumpy road.

pitch in (and help) (with something) Fig. to join in and help someone with something. □ Would you please pitch in and help with the party? □ Come on! Pitch in!

pitch someone a curve(ball) Fig. to surprise someone with an unexpected act or event. (Referring to a curveball in baseball. It is the route of the ball that is curved, not the ball itself. See also throw someone a curve(ball).) □ You really pitched me a curveball when you said I had done a poor job. I did my best. □ You asked Tom a trick question. You certainly pitched him a curve.

pitch someone or something out (of) something and pitch someone or something out^t to throw someone or something out of something or some place. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The usher pitched the drunk out of the theater. □ The usher pitched out the annoying person.

pitch someone or something over something to toss someone or something over something. □ Then Max tried to pitch Lefty over the railing onto the tracks. □ Billy pitched the stone over the wall.

pitch something at someone or something 1. to throw something at someone or something. □ The boys pitched cans at the tree. □ We all pitched rocks at the big boulder. 2. to aim advertising at a particular group. □ They pitched the ad campaign at teenagers. □ These comedy programs are pitched at the lowest level of mentality.

pitch something away^t to toss or throw something away. □ He pitched the broken stick away, and looked around for something stronger. □ He pitched away the stick.

pitch something into something and pitch something in^t to toss or throw something into something. □ Please pitch your aluminum cans into this container. □ She pitched in the can.

pitch something out^t to throw something away; to discard something. □ This cottage cheese is so old, I'm going to pitch it out. □ They pitched out the bad food.

pitch (the) woo Inf. to kiss and caress; to woo someone. (Old but still heard.) □ They were out by the barn pitching woo. □ Old Ted can hardly see any more, but he can still pitch the woo.

pivot on something to rotate on something; to spin around, centered on something. □ This part spins around and pivots on this little red spot, which is what they call a jewel. □ If the lever will not pivot on the bar, it needs some lubrication.

place a price on one's head Go to a price on one's head.

place a strain on someone or something 1. Lit. to burden and nearly overwhelm someone or something. □ The weight of all the trucks placed a strain on the bridge. 2. Fig. to tax the resources or strength of someone, a group, or something to the utmost. □ All of the trouble at work placed a strain on Kelly. □ The recession placed a strain on the economy.

place an order to submit an order. □ My secretary placed an order for a new computer. □ I placed my order only yesterday.

A place for everything, and everything in its place. Prov. Everything in order and put away where it belongs. (Used to describe a very orderly thing or place.) □ I like to put my books in alphabetical order by author. She has a place for everything, and everything in its place. □ Barbara's room is so tidy. A place for everything, and everything in its place.

place of business a place where business is done; a factory or office. □ Our place of business opens at 9:00 A.M. each day. □ You will have to come to our place of business to make a purchase.

a place of concealment a hiding place. □ She brought her little safe out of a place of concealment where it had been for decades.

place one's trust in someone or something to trust someone or something. □ If you place your trust in me, everything will work out all right. □ You should place your trust in your own proven talent.

place someone to recall someone's name; to recall the details about a person that would help you identify the person. □ I am sorry, I can't seem to place you. Could you tell me your name again? □ I can't place her. Did I meet her once before?

place someone by someone or something Go to by someone or something.

place someone in an awkward position Fig. to put someone in an embarrassing or delicate situation. □ Your decision places me in an awkward position. □ I'm afraid I have put myself in sort of an awkward position.

place someone on a pedestal Go to on a pedestal.

place someone or something above someone or something 1. Lit. to put someone or something in a place that is higher than someone or something else. □ I placed Sally above everyone else in a place where she could see everything. □ I placed the book above Sally on a shelf. □ Who placed the mirror above the fireplace? 2. Fig. to hold someone or something in higher regard than someone or something else. □ I place her above all others in honesty. □ She seems to place money above her family. □ She placed herself above almost everyone else.

place someone or something at something 1. to put someone or something somewhere. □ The king placed extra guards at the door for the night. □ I placed the wine bottle at the left of the host. 2. to figure that someone or something was in a certain place. □ The detective placed Randy at the scene of the crime about midnight. □ I place the getaway car at the first tollbooth at dawn.

place someone or something before someone or something and put someone or something before someone or something 1. to put someone or something in front of someone or something, especially in a line. □ The teacher placed George before Bob, because Bob was a little taller. □ Tom placed himself before the group and began to speak. 2. to consider someone or something more important than someone or something. □ I am sorry, but I place my wife and her welfare before yours! □ He places his job before his family!

place someone or something behind someone or something 1. to move someone or something to a place behind or to the rear of someone or something else. □ Place the taller boy behind John in the second row. □ Place the iris behind the nasturtium. 2. to rank or estimate someone or something behind someone or something else. □ I would place George behind Fred in this contest. □ Frank placed the white horse well behind the black one in the race.

place someone or something in jeopardy to put someone or something at risk. □ Do you realize that what you just said places all of us in jeopardy? □ She has placed the entire project in jeopardy.

place someone or something in someone's care Go to in the care of someone.

place someone or something in the trust of someone Go to in the trust of someone.

place someone or something into the care of someone Go to in the care of someone.

place someone or something next to someone or something to put someone or something immediately adjacent to someone or something. □ Please don't place Donna next to Betty for the class photograph. They are wearing identical dresses. □ Please don't place the flowers next to me. I have hay fever.

place someone or something on someone or something to put or lay someone or something on someone or something. □ The archbishop placed the crown on the new queen. □ The police officer placed Timmy on the sergeant's desk and gave him an ice-cream cone.

place someone or something under someone's care Go to in the care of someone.

place someone with someone or something to get someone a job with someone or some company. □ The agency was able to place me with Dave, who runs a small candy store on Maple Street. □ They placed me with a firm that makes doghouses.

place something aside[†] to set something aside or out of the way. □ Place this one aside and we'll keep it for ourselves. □ Place aside some of the smaller ones for later.

place something at a premium to force up the value of something so that its price is higher. □ The rapid changes in the market placed all the medical stocks at a premium. □ The goods had been placed at a premium by the changing market conditions.

place something back 1. to move something backwards. □ Place this chair back a little. It is in the walkway. □ Would you please place the boxes back so there is more room to get through? 2. to return something to where it was. □ You found it on the table. Place it back when you finish. □ When you finish examining the book from the shelf, place it back.

place something down[†] (on something) to put something down on something. □ Place the book down on the top of the table. □ Please place down the book on the table.

place something in something to put something inside something. □ Place the rabbit in the pen with the others. □ Please place your dishes in the sink when you finish.

place something under someone or something to put something beneath someone or something. □ Bill was in the tree trying to get down, so we placed a ladder under him. □ I placed my wallet under my pillow.

place something up against something Go to up against something.

place something with someone or something to leave something in the care of someone or something. □ We placed the trunk with Fred and his wife. □ Mary placed the problem with the committee, hoping a solution could be found.

place the blame on someone or something (for something) to blame someone or something for something. □ Please don't try to place the blame on me for the accident. □ The insurance company placed the blame on the weather.

a place to call one's own a home of one's very own. □ I am tired of living with my parents. I want a place to call my own.

plague someone or something with something to bother or annoy someone or something with something. □ Stop plaguing me with your requests. □ We plagued the committee with ideas.

plain and simple Go to pure and simple.

plain as a pikestaff Go to next.

plain as day and plain as a pikestaff 1. Cliché very plain and simple. (*Also: as ~.) □ Although his face was as plain as day, his smile made him look interesting and friendly. □ *Fred: I have a suspicion that Marcia is upset with me. Alan: A suspicion? Come on, Fred, that's been plain as a pikestaff for quite some time! 2. and plain as the nose on one's face Cliché clear and understandable. (*Also: as ~.) □ The lecture was as plain as day. No one had to ask questions. □ *Jane: I don't understand why Professor Potter has been so friendly this week. Alan: It's plain as the nose on your face. He wants to be nominated for Professor of the Year.

plan for someone to prepare enough [of something] for someone. □ Fred just called and said he can show up for dinner after all. Please plan for him. □ Tony wasn't planned for, and there is no place for him to sit.

plan for something 1. to prepare for something. □ I need to take some time and plan for my retirement. □ We carefully planned for almost every possibility. 2. to prepare or estimate for a certain number [of people or things]. □ I am planning for twelve. I hope everyone can come.

plan on someone to be ready for someone; to anticipate someone's arrival. □ Don't plan on Sam. He has a cold and probably won't come. □ We are planning on Ted and Bill.

plan on something to prepare for something; to be ready for something; to anticipate something. □ If I were you, I would plan on a big crowd at your open house. □ This was not planned on.

plan something out[†] to make thorough plans for something. □ Let us sit down and plan our strategy out. □ We sat down and planned out our strategy.

plane something away[†] to smooth off bumps or irregularities with a plane. □ Please plane the bumps away so that the board is perfectly smooth. □ Sam planed away the bumps.

plane something down[†] to smooth something down with a plane; to remove some material from something with a plane. □ I will have to plane the door down before I hang it again. □ I planed down the edge of the door for you.

plane something off[†] to remove bumps, nicks, or scrapes by planing. □ Plane the rough places off so the surface will be as smooth as possible. □ Sam planed off the bumps.

plank over something to cover something over with planking. □ The county planked over the old bridge so bicyclists could use it.

plant something in something 1. Lit. to set out a plant in something; to sow seeds in something. □ Are you going to plant tomatoes in these pots? □ What have you planted in the garden? 2. Fig. to put an idea in someone's brain, head, or thinking. □ Who planted that silly idea in your head? □ I want to plant this concept in her thinking. 3. Fig. Inf. to conceal something in something. □ The crook planted the money in the back of the refrigerator. □ What did the cops plant in your pockets?

plant something on someone 1. to hide incriminating evidence on a person for later discovery and use in prosecution. (Drugs. Allegedly a police practice used to entrap drug offenders.) □ The cops planted crack on Richard and then arrested him for carrying it. □ Don't touch me! You'll plant something on me! 2. to conceal narcotics or other contraband on an unsuspecting person for the purpose of smuggling. (This person will bear the risk of discovery and arrest.) □ The crooks planted the stuff on a passenger, but couldn't find him when the plane landed. □ Someone had planted coke on me, and the airport security officer found it.

plaster one's hair down[†] Fig. to use water, oil, or cream to dress the hair for combing. (The result looks plastered to the head.) □ Tony used some strange substance to plaster his hair down. □ He plastered down his hair with something that smells good.

plaster over something to cover over something with plaster. □ I think that we will just plaster over the cracks in the wall.

plaster something onto something and plaster something on[†] to spread a substance onto something. □ She plastered great globs of the jam onto the toast. □ She plastered on lots of butter.

plaster something up[†] to close something up with plaster; to cover over holes or cracks in a wall with plaster. □ He plastered the cracks up and then painted over them. □ You have to plaster up the cracks.

plaster something with something to spread some substance onto something. □ Jane plastered each slice of bread with butter and then heaped on a glob of jam. □ She plastered the wall with a thin coat of fine white plaster.

play a big part (in something) and play a large part (in something) Fig. to serve as a major part of some situation or event. □ The incredible amount of duplicative paperwork played a large part in my decision to find employment elsewhere.

play a bit part to perform a small part in a play or a movie. □ She played a few bit parts in minor Broadway plays, and then got the lead in an exciting new musical.

play a joke on someone to make a joke that tricks someone. □ The children played a joke on their teacher. □ I don't like it when you play jokes on me.

play a large part (in something) Go to play a big part (in something).

play a part in something and play a role in something 1. to participate in something in a specific way. □ I hope to play a part in the development of the new product. □ I want to play a role in this procedure. 2. to portray a character in a performance. □ He played a part in The Mikado, but it was not a major role. □ Larry wanted to play a role in the next play.

play a prank on someone Go to play a trick on someone.

play a role in something Go to play a part in something.

play a trick on someone and play a prank on someone to do a trick that affects someone. □ Somebody played a trick on me by hiding my shoes. □ The little boys planned to play a trick on their teacher by turning up the heat in the classroom.

play about (with someone or something) Go to play around (with someone or something).

play against someone or something to compete against someone or something in a team sport. □ We won't be ready to play against the other team this weekend. □ We refuse to play against you until the field is in better condition.

play along (with someone or something) 1. Lit. to play a musical instrument with someone or a group. □ The trombonist sat down and began to play along with the others. □ Do you mind if I play along? 2. Fig. to pretend to cooperate with someone or something in a joke, scam, etc. □ I decided that I would play along with Larry for a while and see what would happen. □ I don't think I want to play along.

play an old warhorse Go to an old warhorse.

play around (with someone or something) 1. and play about (with someone or something) to play and frolic with someone or something. □ Kelly likes to play around with the other kids. □ The boys are out in the yard, playing about with the neighbor girls. □ Will you kids stop playing about and get busy? □ Stop playing around and get busy! 2. Euph. to have a romantic or sexual affair with someone or persons in general. □ Kelly found out that her husband had been playing around with Susan. □ I can't believe that Roger is playing around!

play at full blast Go to at full blast.

play at something to pretend to be doing something. □ You are not fixing the car, you are just playing at repair work! □ Stop playing at doing the dishes and get the job done.

play ball with someone 1. Lit. to toss a ball back and forth with someone. □ Carla is out playing ball with the little kids. □ Will you play ball with us? 2. Lit. to play baseball or some other team sport with someone. □ Do you want to play ball with our team? □ I decided I wouldn't play ball with the school team anymore. 3. Fig. to cooperate with someone. □ Why can't you guys play ball with us? □ Max won't play ball with the gang anymore.

play both ends (against the middle) Fig. [for one] to scheme in a way that pits two sides against each other (for one's own gain). □ I told my brother that Mary doesn't like him. Then I told Mary that my brother doesn't like her. They broke up, so now I can have the car this weekend. I succeeded in playing both ends against the middle. □ If you try to play both ends, you're likely to get in trouble with both sides.

play by ear Go to play something by ear.

play by the book Go to by the book.

play cat and mouse with someone Fig. to be coy and evasive with someone. □ I know what you are up to. Don't play cat and mouse with me! □ I wish that they wouldn't play cat and mouse with me!

play dead to pretend to be dead. □ When the bear attacked me, I just dropped down and played dead.

play down to someone to condescend to one's audience.

□ Why are you playing down to the audience? They will walk out on you! □ Don't play down to the people who have paid their money to see you.

play dumb Go to play ignorant.

play fair to do something by the rules; to play something in a fair and just manner. □ John won't play with Bill anymore because Bill doesn't play fair. □ You moved the golf ball with your foot! That's not playing fair!

play fast and loose (with someone or something) Fig. to act carelessly, thoughtlessly, and irresponsibly. □ I'm tired of your playing fast and loose with me. Leave me alone. □ Bob got fired for playing fast and loose with the company's money.

play first chair 1. to be the leader of a section of instruments in an orchestra or a band. (More literal than the following sense.) □ Sally learned to play the violin so well that she now plays first chair in the orchestra. □ I'm going to practice my flute so I can play first chair. 2. Fig. to act as a leader. □ I need to get this job done. Who plays first chair around here? □ You're not the boss! You don't play first chair.

play footsie with someone 1. to get romantically or sexually involved with someone. (Refers literally to secretly pushing or rubbing feet with someone under the table.) □ Someone said that Ruth is playing footsie with Henry. □ Henry and Ruth are playing footsie with each other. 2. to get involved in a scheme with someone; to cooperate with someone. □ The guy who runs the butcher shop was playing footsie with the city meat inspector. □ Henry was playing footsie with the mayor in order to get the contract.

play for keeps to do things with permanent effect; to be serious in one's actions. (From the game of marbles, where the winner actually keeps all the marbles won.) □ Are we playing for keeps or can we give everything back at the end of the game? □ We are playing for keeps, so be careful of what you do.

play for something 1. to gamble for something; to use something as the medium of exchange for gaming or gambling. □ Let's just play for nickels, okay? □ We will play for dollar bills. 2. to play for a particular reason, other than winning. □ We are just playing for fun. □ They are not competing. They are playing for practice.

play for time Fig. to stall; to act in such a way as to gain time. □ I'll play for time while you sneak out the window. □ The lawyers for the defense were playing for time while they looked for a witness.

play freeze-out to open windows and doors, or turn down a thermostat, making someone cold. □ Wow, it's cold in here! Who's playing freeze-out? □ Is someone trying to play freeze-out?

play games (with someone) Fig. to use clever strategies against someone. □ Come on! Stop playing games with me. Let's talk this over.

play hard to get Fig. to be coy, intentionally shy, and fickle. (Usually refers to someone of the opposite sex.) □ Why can't we go out? Why do you play hard to get? □ Sally annoys all the boys because she plays hard to get.

play hardball (with someone) Fig. to act strong and aggressive about an issue with someone. □ Things are getting a little tough. The president has decided to play hard- ball on this issue. □ If he wants to play hardball with us, we can play that way, too.

play havoc with someone or something Go to raise havoc with someone or something.

play hell with someone or something Fig. to cause enormous disruptions with someone or something. (Use discretion with hell.) □ Your proposal would play hell with Gerry and his plans. □ This new event really plays hell with my schedule.

play hob with someone or something Go to raise hob with someone or something.

play hooky to fail to attend school or some other event. □ Why aren't you in school? Are you playing hooky? □ I don't have time for the sales meeting today, so I think I'll just play hooky.

play ignorant and play dumb to pretend to be ignorant [of something]. □ I played ignorant even though I knew about the surprise party. □ John played dumb when I asked him if he knew who had been on the telephone.

play in something 1. to play a musical instrument in some musical organization. □ I used to play in a band. □ I wanted to play in the orchestra but I wasn't good enough. 2. [for someone] to play the action of a game in a particular position or location. □ Fred played in left field for the rest of the game. □ I will play in the backfield for the rest of the game. 3. to perform in a specific production. □ She played in the Broadway production of Major Barbara. □ Once, I played in The Mikado.

play in the big leagues Fig. to be involved in something of large or important proportions. (Alludes to playing a professional sport at the highest level.) □ You had better shape up if you want to play in the big leagues. □ The conductor shouted at the oboist, "You're playing in the big leagues now. Tune up or ship out."

play innocent to pretend to be innocent and not concerned. □ There is no need to play innocent. I know you broke the lamp! □ John is playing innocent, and he knows more than he is telling us.

play into someone's hands Fig. [for a person one is scheming against] to assist one in one's scheming without realizing it. □ John is doing exactly what I hoped he would. He's playing into my hands. □ John played into my hands by taking the cash he found in my desk. I caught him and had him arrested.

play it cool 1. Inf. to do something while not revealing insecurities or incompetence; to act blasé. □ Play it cool, man. Look like you belong there. □ If the boss walks in, just play it cool. 2. Inf. to hold one's temper. □ Come on now. Let it pass. Play it cool. □ Don't let them get you mad. Play it cool.

play it for all it's worth Fig. to exploit a problem, disability, or injury to get as much sympathy or compensation as possible. □ He injured his hand before the examination and he played it for all it was worth in order to get the exam delayed.

play it safe to be or act safe; to avoid taking a risk. □ You should play it safe and take your umbrella. □ If you have a cold or the flu, play it safe and go to bed.

play like someone or something to pretend to be someone or a type of a person. □ Sam is playing like Mr. Watson, the teacher. □ He is playing like a teacher and helping Mary with her homework.

play on to continue to play. □ The band played on and the dance continued until the wee hours of the morning. □ We played on and on until the last guests left the party.

play on someone's heartstrings Fig. to attempt to get sympathy from someone. □ She is crying so she can play on your heartstrings and try to get you to take her home.

play on something to have an effect on something; to manage something for a desired effect. (The on can be replaced by upon.) □ The clerk played on my sense of responsibility in trying to get me to buy the book. □ See if you can get her to confess by playing on her sense of guilt.

play one's cards close to one's chest and play one's cards close to one's vest; keep one's cards close to one's chest; keep one's cards close to one's vest Fig. to keep to oneself or be very cautious in one's dealing with people. (As if one were playing cards and not permitting anyone to see any of the cards.) □ He is very cautious. He plays his cards close to his chest. □ You seem to be playing your cards close to your vest.

play one's cards right and play one's cards well Fig. to work or negotiate correctly and skillfully. □ If you play your cards right, you can get whatever you want. □ She didn't play her cards well, and she ended up with something less than what she wanted.

play one's cards well Go to previous.

play one's heart out Go to cry one's heart out.

play one's trump card 1. Lit. [in certain card games] to play a card that, according to the rules of the game, outranks certain other cards and is thus able to take any card of another suit. □ Bob played his trump card and ended the game as the winner. 2. Fig. to use a special trick; to use one's most powerful or effective strategy or device. □ I won't play my trump card until I have tried everything else. □ I thought that the whole situation was hopeless until Mary played her trump card and solved the whole problem.

play out [for a process] to run out; to finish. □ The whole incident is about to play out. Then it all will be forgotten. □ When the event plays out, everything will return to normal.

play politics 1. Lit. to negotiate politically. □ Everybody at city hall is playing politics as usual. □ If you're elected as a member of a political party, you'll have to play politics. 2. to allow politics to dominate in matters where principle should prevail. □ Look, I came here to discuss the legal issues of this trial, not play politics. □ They're not making reasonable decisions. They're playing politics.

play possum Fig. to pretend to be inactive, unobservant, asleep, or dead. (The possum refers to an opossum.) □ I knew that Bob wasn't asleep. He was just playing possum. □ I can't tell if this animal is dead or just playing possum.

play second fiddle (to someone) Fig. to be in a subordinate position to someone. □ I'm tired of playing second fiddle to John. □ I'm better trained than he, and I have more experience. I shouldn't always play second fiddle.

play someone against someone else to cause someone to dispute with someone else. □ Don tried to play George against David, but they figured out what he was up to. □ Alice never managed to play Tom against Fred.

play someone for a fool Fig. to treat someone like a fool; to assume someone is naive or stupid. □ Don't play me for a fool. I won't have it. □ You are playing me for a fool! Stop it!

play someone off against someone else to scheme in a manner that pits two of your adversaries against one another. □ Bill wanted to beat me up and so did Bob. I did some fast talking, and they ended up fighting with each other. I really played Bill off against Bob. □ The president played the House off against the Senate and ended up getting his own way.

play someone or something down^t to lessen the effect or importance of someone or something. □ John is a famous actor, but the director tried to play him down as just another member of the cast. □ Her lawyer tried to play down her earlier arrest.

play someone or something up^t to make someone or something seem to be more important. □ The director tried to play Ann up, but she was not really a star. □ Try to play up the good qualities of our product.

play something as something to deal with something as if it were something else. □ I will play this matter as a simple case of mistaken identity. □ We will play this lapse as an instance of forgetfulness and not make too much of it.

play something at full blast Go to at full blast.

play something back^t (to someone) to play a recording to someone. □ Can you play the speech back to me? □ Please play back the speech to me, so I can hear how I sound.

play something by ear 1. to be able to play a piece of music after just listening to it a few times, without looking at the notes. □ I can play "Stardust" by ear. □ Some people can play Chopin's music by ear. 2. and play by ear to play a musical instrument well, without formal training. □ John can play the piano by ear. □ If I could play by ear, I wouldn't have to take lessons—or practice! 3. to improvise; to decide one's next steps after one is already involved in a situation. □ If we go into the meeting unprepared, we'll have to play everything by ear. □ He never prepared his presentations. He always played things by ear.

play something off^t to play a game to break a tied score. □ They decided not to play the tie off because it had grown so late. □ They went ahead and played off the tie after all.

play something on someone or something to aim a light or a hose on someone or something. □ The fireman played water on the burning building. □ The stagehand played a spotlight on the singer.

play something out^t 1. to play something, such as a game, to the very end. □ I was bored with the game, but I felt I had to play it out. □ She played out the rest of the game.

2. to unwind, unfold, or unreel something. (See also pay something out.) □ Please play some more rope out. □ They played out many feet of cable.

play something over to replay something, such as a game, a videotape, an audio recording, etc. □ There was an objection to the way the referee handled the game, so they played it over. □ Let's play that song over again.

play something through^t to play something, such as a piece of recorded music, all the way through. □ I played the album through, hoping to find even one song I liked. □ As I played through the album, I didn't hear anything I liked.

play something up[†] to emphasize something; to be a booster of something. □ The press played the scandal up so much that everyone became bored with it. □ They really played up the scandal.

play something with someone or something 1. to play a game with someone or a group. □ Do you want to play checkers with me? □ Fran played ball with the dog for a while. 2. to assume a particular role with someone or some group. □ Don't play the fool with me! □ Don always tried to play the successful entrepreneur with the board of directors.

play (the) devil's advocate Fig. to put forward arguments against or objections to a proposition—which one may actually agree with—purely to test the validity of the proposition. (The devil's advocate opposes the canonization of a saint in order to prove that the grounds for canonization are sound.) □ I agree with your plan. I'm just playing the devil's advocate so you'll know what the opposition will say. □ Mary offered to play devil's advocate and argue against our case so that we would find out any flaws in it.

play the devil with something Fig. to cause disruption with something; to foul something up. □ Your being late really played the devil with my plans for the day. □ This weather is really playing the devil with my arthritis.

play the field to date many different people rather than just one. □ When Tom told Ann good-bye, he said he wanted to play the field. □ He said he wanted to play the field while he was still young.

play the fool Fig. to act in a silly manner in order to amuse other people. □ The teacher told Tom to stop playing the fool and sit down. □ Fred likes playing the fool, but we didn't find him funny last night.

play the heavy Fig. to act the part of a mean person; to do the unpleasant tasks that no one else wants to do. (Refers originally to playing the role of someone evil in a movie, etc.) □ I'm a nice guy, but at work, I am required to play the heavy. The boss makes me do all the cruel things.

play the horses Go to next.

play the ponies and play the horses to wager on horse races. □ I used to play the ponies every afternoon during the summer. Then I ran out of money.

play the race card Go to the race card.

play the (stock) market to invest in the stock market. (As if it were a game or as if it were gambling.) □ Would you rather put your money in the bank or play the market? □ I've learned my lesson playing the market. I lost a fortune.

play through [for golfers] to pass someone on the golf course. □ Do you mind if we play through? We have to get back to the courtroom by two o'clock. □ We let them play through because they were moving so fast.

play to someone or something 1. to perform something for someone or a group. □ The cast played to one of their classmates who was confined to the hospital. □ Gerald Watson will play to a small gathering of wealthy socialites this Saturday evening. 2. to aim one's performance only toward a particular person, group, or a particular taste. □ The comedian was playing only to the juveniles in the audience. □ It was clear that she was playing to the people in the cheaper seats.

play to the crowd Go to next.

play to the gallery and play to the crowd to perform in a manner that will get the strong approval of the audience; to perform in a manner that will get the approval of the lower elements in the audience. □ John is a competent actor, but he has a tendency to play to the crowd. □ When he made the rude remark, he was just playing to the gallery.

play tricks on someone 1. Lit. to pull pranks on someone. □ You had better not play any tricks on me! □ Stop playing tricks on people! 2. Fig. [for something, such as the eyes] to deceive someone. □ Did I see him fall down or are my eyes playing tricks on me? □ My brain is playing tricks on me. I can't remember a word you said.

play up to someone to flatter someone; to try to gain influence with someone. □ It won't do any good to play up to me. I refuse to agree to your proposal. □ I played up to him and he still wouldn't give in to me.

play (up)on something 1. Lit. to make music on a musical instrument. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Can you play upon this instrument, or only the one you are holding? □ I can't play on this! It's broken. 2. Lit. to play a game on a field or court. □ Shall we play on the floor or on the table? □ Let's play on the field. It's dry enough now. 3. Fig. to exploit something—including a word—for some purpose; to develop something for some purpose. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ You are just playing on words! □ You are playing on a misunderstanding. 4. Fig. [for light] to sparkle on something. □ The reflections of the candles played on the surface of the wall. □ The lights played on the crystal goblets.

play with a full deck 1. Lit. to play cards with a complete deck, containing all the cards. □ Are we playing with a full deck or did some card drop on the floor? I haven't seen the three of hearts all evening! 2. Fig. to operate as if one were mentally sound. (Usually in the negative. One cannot play cards properly with a partial deck.) □ That guy's not playing with a full deck. □ Look sharp, you dummies! Pretend you are playing with a full deck.

play with fire 1. Lit. to use fire as a toy; to experiment with flames and fire. □ Jimmy! I've told you never to play with fire! 2. Fig. to do something dangerous or risky. (Usually playing with fire.) □ Be careful with that knife! You are playing with fire! □ If you mess with Max, you are playing with fire.

play with someone or something 1. to play games with someone or a group. □ I love to play Ping-Pong. Will you play with me? □ They won't play with our team. We are too good. 2. to toy with someone or something. □ You are just playing with me. Can't you take me seriously? □ Please don't play with that crystal vase.

play-by-play description a description of an event given as the event is taking place. (Usually in reference to a sporting event.) □ And now here is Bill Jones with a play-by-play description of the baseball game. □ John was giving me a play-by-play description of the argument going on next door.

played out too exhausted to continue. □ At the end of the race, Donna was played out. □ After the race, we were played out for the rest of the day.

plead for someone to beg for someone to be spared. □ Tom pleaded for Dave, but it was no use. Dave was found guilty. □ She pleaded for her husband, but the judge sentenced him to ten years in prison.

plead for something to beg for something. □ I don't want to have to plead for what's already mine. □ The children were pleading for ice cream, so we got some for them.

plead guilty to something to state that one is guilty of a crime before a court of law. □ Gerald refused to plead guilty to the crime and had to stand trial. □ Max pleaded guilty to the charge and then fled town.

plead to something to enter an admission of guilt to a specific crime. □ Max pleaded to the lesser charge of larceny. □ Lefty pleaded to the grand larceny charge.

plead with someone to beg something of someone; to make an emotional appeal to someone. □ Do I have to plead with you to get you to do it? □ You can plead with me as much as you want. I won't permit you to go.

(Please) don't get up. Please, there is no need to rise to greet me or in deference to me. □ Mary approached the table to speak to Bill. Bill started to push his chair back as if to rise. Mary said, "Don't get up. I just want to say hello." □ Tom (rising): Hello, Fred. Good to see you. Fred (standing): Don't get up. How are you?

Please hold. Go to Hold the phone.

please oneself to do what one wishes. □ We don't mind whether you stay or not. Please yourself! □ The boss preferred me to work late, but he told me to please myself.

pleased as Punch delighted; very pleased. (*Also: as ~.) (This refers to Punch from the "Punch and Judy" shows.) □ Child: Do you think Grandma will like the picture I'm making for her? Father: I think she'll be as pleased as Punch. □ Fred was pleased as Punch to discover that Ellen was making lemon pie, his favorite, for dessert.

pleased for someone or something happy for someone or a group. □ I am very pleased for you. □ We were all pleased for the committee. The members got all the praise they deserved. □ Everyone could see how pleased Sam was for himself and his whole family.

pleased with someone or something happy and satisfied with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ I am quite pleased with you. You did a fine job. □ We are pleased with your work.

pledge something to someone to promise something to someone. □ I pledged one hundred dollars to Ralph for his cause. □ We pledged a lot of money to our favorite charity.

plenty of something lots of something; an abundance of something; enough of something. □ I have plenty of candy. Do you want some? □ This project is giving me plenty of trouble.

plight one's troth to someone to become engaged to be married to someone. (Literary or jocular.) □ I chose not to plight my troth to anyone who acts so unpleasant to my dear aunt. □ Alice plighted her troth to Scott.

plod along to move along slowly but deliberately. □ I'm just plodding along, but I am getting the job done. □ The old man plodded along, hardly able to stand. □ The movie plodded along putting most of the audience to sleep.

plod away at something to keep trying to do something. □ He continues to plod away at writing his novel. It's been three years now. □ How long have you been plodding away at that book?

plod through something to work one's way through something laboriously. □ I just plodded through my work today. I had no energy at all. □ This is certainly a lot of papers to have to plod through.

plonk something down[†] to slap something down; to plop something down. □ He plonked a dollar down and demanded a newspaper. □ He plonked down his beer mug on the bar.

plot against someone or something to make a scheme against someone or something. □ All the counselors plotted against the czar. □ We plotted against the opposing party.

plot something on something to draw a route or outline on something. □ He plotted the course they would be taking on a map of the area. □ The captain plotted the course on a chart of the upper reaches of the Nile.

plot something out[†] to map something out; to outline a plan for something. □ I have an idea about how to remodel this room. Let me plot it out for you. □ I plotted out my ideas for the room.

The plot thickens. Things are becoming more complicated or interesting. □ The police assumed that the woman was murdered by her ex-husband, but he has an alibi. The plot thickens. □ John is supposed to be going out with Mary, but I saw him last night with Sally. The plot thickens.

plot with someone to scheme with someone. □ Mary looks as though she is plotting with Jerry to make some sort of mischief. □ I am not plotting with anyone. I am planning everything myself.

plow into someone or something to crash into someone or something; to bump hard into someone or something. □ The car plowed into the ditch. □ The runner plowed into another player.

plow something back into something and plow something back[†] to put something, such as a profit, back into an investment. □ We plowed all the profits back into the expansion of the business. □ Bill and Ted plowed back everything they earned into the company.

plow something in[†] to work something into soil by plowing. □ Lay the fertilizer down and plow it in. □ Plow in the fertilizer as soon as you can.

plow something under (something) to turn something under the surface of soil by plowing. □ The farmer plowed the wheat stubble under the surface of the soil. □ The farmer plowed the stubble under.

plow something up[†] to uncover something by plowing. □ The farmer plowed some old coins up and took them to the museum to find out what they were. □ He plowed up some valuable coins.

plow through something 1. Lit. to move through something such as snow or mud with a plow. □ The huge truck plowed through the snow-covered streets so traffic could move again. 2. Fig. to work through something with determination. □ She plowed through the book to learn everything she could. □ Billy plowed through dinner and ran outside to play.

pluck at someone or something to pull or pick at someone or something. □ Kelly plucked at Ed, picking off the burrs that had caught on his clothing. □ Kelly plucked at the strings of the guitar.

pluck something from someone or something to pick, grab, or snatch something from someone. □ Sally plucked a chocolate from the box and popped it into her mouth. □ He stooped over and plucked a rose from the bush.

pluck something off (of) someone or something and pluck something off^t to pick something off someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ She plucked the mosquito off his back before it could bite him. □ She plucked off the bud.

pluck something out of something and pluck something out^t to snatch something out of something. □ She plucked the coin out of his hand and put it in her pocket. □ Reaching into the fountain, Jane plucked out the coin.

pluck up someone's courage to bolster someone's, including one's own, courage. □ I hope you are able to pluck up your courage so that you can do what has to be done. □ Some good advice from a friend helped pluck up my courage.

plug away (at something) and peg away (at something) to keep trying something; to keep working at something. □ John kept pegging away at the trumpet until he became pretty good at it. □ I'm not very good at it, but I keep plugging away.

plug (oneself) in(to something) to become attached to something; to become attached to some sort of network or system. □ As soon as I have plugged my laptop into the local network, I will have access to the Internet. □ I plugged myself into the computer network and began to communicate quickly and efficiently.

plug something into something and plug something in^t to connect something to something else, usually by connecting wires together with a plug and socket. □ Plug this end of the wire into the wall. □ Plug in the lamp and turn it on.

plug something up^t to stop or fill up a hole, crack, or gap. □ Take out the nail and plug the hole up with something. □ You have to plug up the cracks to keep out the cold.

plumb loco Rur. completely crazy. (Loco is from a Spanish word meaning "mad.") □ You're plumb loco if you think I'll go along with that. □ All those people were running around like they were plumb loco.

plummet to earth to fall rapidly to earth from a great height. □ The rocket plummeted to earth and exploded as it struck. □ As the plane plummeted to earth, all the people on the ground were screaming.

plummet to something to drop or fall to some level or low point. □ Stock prices plummeted to record low levels. □ The rock plummeted to the river at the base of the cliff.

plump for someone or something to support or promote someone or something. □ Henry spent a lot of energy plumping for Bill, who was running for vice president. □ She spent a lot of time plumping for our candidate.

plump something down^t 1. to drop a heavy load of something. □ She plumped the load of groceries onto the bench and looked through her purse for the keys. □ Jill plumped down her packages. 2. to drop something as if it were a heavy load. □ He plumped the potatoes down on each plate, making a loud noise each time. □ Dave plumped down a huge slab of meat onto the grill.

plump something up^t to pat or shake something like a pillow into a fuller shape. □ Todd plumped his pillow up and finished making the bed. □ He plumped up his pillow.

plunge down something to run or fall down something. □ The car plunged down the hill and ran into a tree at the bottom. □ The bicyclist plunged down the side of the hill at a great speed.

plunge from something to fall or flee from something or some place. □ The eagle plunged from the sky to the lake to capture its prey. □ Lily plunged from the room in embarrassment.

plunge in(to something) to dive or rush into something; to immerse oneself in something. □ Ned took off his shoes and plunged into the river, hoping to rescue Frank. □ He plunged into his work and lost track of time.

plunge something into someone or something and plunge something in^t to drive or stab something into someone or something. □ The murderer plunged the knife into his victim. □ She plunged in the dagger.

plunge to something 1. to fall or drop down to something. □ The temperature plunged to zero last night. □ The burning car plunged to the floor of the canyon. 2. to dive or fall to one's death. □ She walked straight to the edge of the cliff and plunged to her death. □ The burro slipped and plunged to an untimely end.

plunk (oneself) down to sit or fall down hard. □ Nancy pulled up a chair and plunked herself down. □ She pulled the chair up and plunked down. □ She plunked herself down in the middle of the kids and began to sing.

plunk someone or something down^t to place, drop, or plop someone or something down hard. □ He picked her up and plunked her down in a chair and began to shout at her. □ Sally plunked down the book in anger.

ply between something and something else to travel between things or places regularly or constantly. □ There are a number of small craft that ply between Santerem and Manaus on a regular basis. □ Our little ship was unable to ply the entire distance between the two islands.

ply someone with something else to try to supply or give something to someone. (Implies an attempt to influence or fawn upon someone.) □ We plied the mayor with gifts and favors, but it got us nowhere. □ Don't try to ply the police officer with gifts. That is considered a bribe.

pock something with something to cause dents or small craters by shooting or throwing something at something. □ The hail pocked the roof of the car with dents. □ The side of the house was pocked with tiny dents where the hail had struck.

a pocket of resistance Fig. a small group of people who resist change or domination. □ The accounting department seems to be a pocket of resistance when it comes to automating.

poetic justice appropriate, ideal, or ironic punishment. □ It was poetic justice that Jane won the race after Mary tried to get her banned from the race. □ The car thieves tried to steal a car with no gas. That's poetic justice.

poetic license liberties or license of the type taken by artists, especially poets, to violate patterns of rhyme, harmony, structure, etc. □ I couldn't tell whether he kept making spelling mistakes or if it was just poetic license.

point at someone or something 1. [for someone] to direct an extended finger at someone or something; to point one's finger at someone or something. □ You should not point at people. □ Harry pointed at the mess Jerry had made and scowled. 2. [for something] to aim at someone or something. □ The gun pointed directly at him. He was frightened. □ The sign pointed at a small roadside cafe, populated by truck drivers.

point down to something to aim downward to something. □ The sign pointed down to the little bell sitting on the counter. □ The room clerk pointed down the stairs to a little cafe on the lower level.

the point of no return the halfway point; the point at which it is too late to turn back. (Often with past.) □ The flight was past the point of no return, so we had to continue to our destination. □ The entire project is past the point of no return; we will have to continue with it.

point of view a way of thinking about something; [someone's] viewpoint; an attitude or expression of self-interest. □ From my point of view, all this talk is a waste of time. □ I can understand her point of view. She has made some good observations about the problem.

point someone or something out^t to select or indicate someone or something (from a group). □ Everyone pointed the error out. □ She pointed out the boy who took her purse.

point something at someone or something to aim or direct something at someone or something. □ Don't ever point a gun at anyone! □ Point the rifle at the target and pull the trigger.

point something up^t 1. Fig. to emphasize something; to emphasize one aspect of something. □ This is a very important thing to learn. Let me point it up one more time by drawing this diagram on the board. □ This points up what I've been telling you. 2. Fig. to tuck-point something; to repair the joints in masonry. □ I hired someone to point the chimney up. □ Carl pointed up the brick wall.

point the finger at someone Fig. to blame someone; to identify someone as the guilty person. □ Don't point the finger at me! I didn't take the money. □ The manager refused to point the finger at anyone in particular and said that everyone was sometimes guilty of being late.

point to someone or something to aim at someone or something. □ Who is she pointing to? □ He pointed to the door.

point to something to indicate, reveal, or suggest something. □ All the evidence seems to point to his guilt. □ The signs point to a very cold winter.

point to something as something to identify something as something. □ All the indications pointed to Jill as the next president.

point toward someone or something to direct an extended finger toward someone or something. □ The teacher pointed toward Laura and asked her to come to the front of the room. □ Randy pointed toward the door and frowned at the dog.

poise oneself for something to get ready for something. □ She poised herself for her dive. □ Fred poised himself for a fall, but everything worked out all right.

poise over someone or something to hover or hang over someone or something. □ She spent the entire afternoon poised over her desk, pouting. □ The dog poised over the downed duck, waiting for the hunter.

poised for something ready for something; in the right position and waiting for something. □ The cat stared at the mouse, poised for action. □ The army was poised for battle.

poised to do something ready to do something; in the right position to do something. □ The cat is poised to jump on the mouse. □ The army is poised to attack at dawn.

poison someone against someone or something to cause someone to have negative or hateful thoughts about someone, a group, or something. □ You have done nothing more than poison Gerald against all of us! Stop talking to him! □ Your negative comments poisoned everyone against the proposal.

poison someone or an animal with something to render someone or an animal sick or dead with a poison. □ He intended to poison his wife with arsenic. □ Barry wanted to poison the cat with something that left no trace. □ He poisoned himself with the cleaning compound.

poison something with something to render something poisonous with something. □ She poisoned the soup with arsenic. □ They are poisoning our water supply with pollutants.

poke a hole in something and poke a hole through something to make a hole by pushing something through something; to push something through a hole. □ The carpenter poked a hole in the wall with a nail. □ The fisherman poked a hole through the ice with a pick.

poke about Go to poke around.

poke about (in something) and poke around (in something) to rummage around in something or some place; to look through things in something or some place. □ I'll have to go up and poke about in the attic to see if I can find it. □ Janet went to the attic and spent the rest of the afternoon poking around.

poke along to move along slowly; to lag or tarry. □ Get moving. Stop poking along. □ I was just poking along, taking my time, not paying attention to what was going on around me.

poke around 1. and poke about to look or search around. □ I've been poking around in the library looking for some statistics. □ I don't mind if you look in my drawer for a paper clip, but please don't poke about. 2. to waste time while moving about. □ I just poked around all afternoon and didn't accomplish much. □ Stop poking around and get moving.

poke around (in something) Go to poke about (in something).

poke at someone or something to thrust or jab at someone or something. □ Stop poking at me! □ Don't poke at the turtle. It might bite you.

poke fun at someone or something to make fun of someone or something. □ You shouldn't poke fun at me for my mistakes. □ They are just poking fun at the strange architecture.

poke one's nose in(to something) and stick one's nose in(to something) Fig. to interfere with something; to be nosy about something. □ I wish you'd stop poking your nose into my business. □ She was too upset for me to stick my nose in and ask what was wrong.

poke out (of something) to stick out of something; to extend out of something. □ The bean sprouts were beginning to poke out of the soil of the garden. □ I knew there were little birds in the birdhouse, because a little head poked out now and then.

poke someone in something to strike or jab someone in some body part. □ Billy poked Bobby in the tummy and made him cry. □ She poked herself in the eye accidentally.

poke something at someone or something to jab or thrust something at someone or something. □ Don't poke that thing at me! □ The hunter poked his spear at the pig one more time and decided it was dead.

poke something into something and poke something in^t to stick or cram something into something. □ He poked his finger into the jam, pulled it out again, and licked it. □ Jeff poked in his finger.

poke something out of something and poke something out^t to thrust something out of something. □ The lobster poked its antennae out of the little cave and wiggled them around. □ It poked out its antennae.

poke something through someone or something to jab or stab something through someone or something. □ The evil knight poked his weapon through Arthur and withdrew it again. □ Danny poked his finger through the plastic pool liner by mistake.

poke through (something) to stick through something; to extend through something. □ The tips of Tommy's toes poked through his sneakers and looked very cold. □ The end of the lost spoon poked through the piecrust on the freshly baked pie. Now we knew where it had disappeared to.

polarize something into something to divide a group into two segments. □ Your actions have just polarized the students into two opposing groups! □ We polarized the entire population into two factions.

poles apart very different; far from coming to an agreement. (Alludes to the distance between the north and south poles. *Typically: be ~; become ~; grow ~.) □ Mr. and Mrs. Jones don't get along well. They are poles apart. □ They'll never sign the contract because they are poles apart.

polish something off^t to eat, consume, exhaust, or complete all of something. □ Who polished the cake off? □ Who polished off the cake?

polish something up^t to rub something until it shines. □ Polish the silver up and make it look nice and shiny. □ If you will polish up the silver, I will put it away.

a political football Fig. an issue that becomes politically divisive; a problem that doesn't get solved because the politics of the issue get in the way. □ The question of campaign contributions has become a political football. All the politicians who accept questionable money are pointing fingers at each other.

Politics makes strange bedfellows. Prov. People who would normally dislike and avoid one another will work together if they think it is politically useful to do so. □ Jill: I never would have thought that genteel, aristocratic candidate would pick such a rabble-rousing, rough-mannered running mate. Jane: Politics makes strange bedfellows.

pollute something with something to adulterate something with something; to dirty something with something. □ You should not pollute the stream with chemicals. □ Someone polluted the sewer with automotive oil.

ponder (up)on something to think on something; to consider something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Ponder upon this awhile. See what you come up with. □ I need to ponder on this.

pontificate on something to speak and act dogmatically and pompously. □ Must you pontificate on your own virtues so much? □ The speaker was pontificating on the virtues of a fat-free diet.

pooch out to stick or bulge out, as with a belly. □ His chubby tummy pooched out when he relaxed.

poop out Inf. to quit; to wear out and stop. □ He pooped out after about an hour of hard work. □ I think I'm going to poop out pretty soon.

poop someone or something out Inf. to cause someone to become exhausted or give out. □ All that exercise really pooped everyone out. □ A full day of play at the beach had pooped the dog out. □ The activity pooped out the dog.

pooped (out) 1. Inf. [of a person or an animal] exhausted; worn out. □ I'm really pooped out. □ The horse looked sort of pooped in the final stretch. 2. Inf. intoxicated. □ How much of that stuff does it take to get pooped? □ He's been drinking all night and is totally pooped out.

poor as a church mouse and poor as church mice very poor. (*Also: as ~.) □ My aunt is as poor as a church mouse. □ The Browns are poor as church mice.

poor but clean Cliché having little money but clean and of good habits, nonetheless. (Either extremely condescending or jocular. Some people would consider it offensive.) □ My salary isn't very high, and I only have one old car. Anyway, I'm poor but clean. □ When Fred uttered the phrase "poor but clean" in reference to some of the people working in the yard, Ellen went into a rage.

pop around (for a visit) and pop by (for a visit); pop in (for a visit); pop over (for a visit) to come by [someone's residence] for a visit. □ You simply must pop around for a visit sometime. □ I will pop by about noon. □ I can pop in for only a minute.

pop back (for something) to come back to a place for just a moment. □ Okay, I think I can pop back for a minute. □ I have to pop back for something I forgot.

pop by (for a visit) Go to pop around (for a visit).

pop down (for a visit) to come or go to someone's home that is downstairs or in a place on a lower level. □ You simply must pop down for a visit whenever you get a chance. □ I'll try to pop down tomorrow evening after dinner.

pop for something Inf. to pay for a treat (for someone). □ Let's have some ice cream. I'll pop for it. □ It's about time you popped for coffee.

pop in (for a visit) Go to pop around (for a visit).

pop in(to something) 1. Lit. Inf. to come or go into some place, such as a store, shop, etc., for a moment. Let me pop into the bakery for a minute. I have to pop into the drugstore for some shampoo. 2. Fig. to snap into place in something. The little plastic thing popped into its slot, and the model plane was finished. It pops in and holds tight if you do it right.

pop off 1. Sl. to make an unnecessary remark; to interrupt with a remark; to sound off. Please don't pop off all the time. Bob keeps popping off when he should be listening. 2. Sl. to lose one's temper. Now, don't pop off. Keep your cool. I don't know why she popped off at me. All I did was say hello. 3. Sl. to die. My uncle popped off last week. I hope I'm asleep when I pop off. 4. Sl. to leave; to depart in haste. Bye, I must pop off. Got to pop off. I'm late.

pop one's cork 1. Fig. to suddenly become mentally disturbed; to go crazy. I was so upset that I nearly popped my cork. They put him away because he popped his cork. 2. Fig. to become very angry. My mother popped her cork when she heard about my low grades. Calm down! Don't pop your cork.

pop out (of something) to jump out of something; to burst out of something. Suddenly, a little mouse popped out of the drawer. I opened the drawer and a mouse popped out.

pop over (for a visit) Go to pop around (for a visit).

pop (some) tops Sl. to drink beer. Wanna go out tonight and pop some tops? We are going to pop tops and watch the B-ball game.

pop someone off^t Inf. to kill someone. Max was told to pop Lefty off because he was trying to muscle in on the gang's turf. Max intended to pop off Lefty.

pop someone on something Inf. to strike someone on some body part. If you don't sit down, I'll pop you on the chin! Max popped Lefty on the nose.

pop something into something and pop something in^t to fit, snap, or press something into place in something. Lee popped the lever into place, and the machine began to function. Lee popped in the plastic part, and the toy ran beautifully.

pop something on(to) something and pop something on^t to snap something onto something. Denise took one more sip of the medicine and popped the lid onto the bottle.

pop something out of something and pop something out^t to release something from something so that it jumps or bursts out, possibly with a popping sound. Sue popped the cork out of the champagne bottle. It took a little effort to pop the cork out. She popped out the cork with a quick tug.

pop something up^t to remove something by making it jump or burst upwards. Henry popped the lid up and helped himself to the strawberry preserves. He popped up the lid and cleaned out the jam jar.

pop the question [for a man] to ask a woman to marry him. (Could also be used by a woman asking a man.) She waited for years for him to pop the question. Finally she popped the question.

pop up 1. [for a baseball batter] to hit a baseball that goes high upward rather than outward. The catcher came to bat and popped up. I hope I don't pop up this time. 2. [for a baseball] to fly high upward rather than outward. The ball popped up and went foul. The ball will always pop up if you hit it in a certain way. 3. to arise suddenly; to appear without warning. New problems keep popping up all the time. Billy popped up out of nowhere and scared his mother.

pop up (some place) to appear suddenly and unexpectedly some place. I never know where Henry is going to pop up next. A new problem has popped up.

pore over something to look over something carefully. She pored over the reports, looking for errors. I need to take a few hours to pore over these contracts and see if they are ready to be signed.

pork out (on something) Inf. to overeat on something; to become fat as a pig from eating something. (A play on pig out.) I pork out on french fries whenever I get the chance. I wish I didn't pork out all the time.

portent of things to come Go to a harbinger of things to come.

portion something out^t to give out shares of something. Who will portion the cake out? She portioned out the chocolate carefully, making sure everyone got an equal share.

portray someone as someone or something to represent or describe someone as someone or a type of person. Fred portrayed his political opponent as an evil man. She tried to portray herself as a grand lady, but she fooled no one.

portray someone or something as someone to develop a character that one is playing in a dramatic production as a kind of person or someone having certain characteristics or a particular personality. Tom portrayed Scrooge as an evil old man. Randy hopes to portray his character as a sympathetic friend.

pose a question to ask a question; to imply the need for asking a question. Genetic research poses many ethical questions. My interviewer posed a hypothetical question.

pose as someone to pretend to be someone else. The impostor posed as the president of the company. My twin posed as me while I went on vacation.

pose as someone or something to pretend to be someone or a type of person. I posed as Gerald and got the job. I posed as a nurse and got a job at a summer camp.

pose for someone or something to assume a posture appropriate to the subject of a photograph or painting. Paul wanted me to pose for him, but I declined. Will you pose for my painting?

possessed by something obsessed or driven by something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) Ned was possessed by a desire to become the best at everything he did. Jan acts as if she is possessed by the need to be right all the time.

possessed of something having something; possessing something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) She is possessed of a large amount of money. Todd wishes he were possessed of a large car and a fine house.

Possession is nine-tenths of the law. Prov. If you actually possess something, you have a stronger legal claim to owning it than someone who merely says it belongs to him or her. □ Dana may say he owns this house, but we actually live in it, and possession is nine-tenths of the law.

post someone somewhere to place someone, as if on guard, at something or some place. □ The police chief posted a guard at the hospital door. □ The boss posted himself at the water cooler to catch up on the gossip.

post something on something to fasten a notice onto something. □ Please post this notice on the door where everyone will see it. □ I will post this photo on the bulletin board.

post something to someone to mail something to someone. □ I posted it to him over a month ago. I can't imagine where it is now. □ The letter was posted last week.

post something up[†] to record a transaction in an account. □ I'll post this charge up right away, and then you can check out. □ Please post up the charges a little later.

postage and handling charges for shipping [something] and for wrapping and handling the item. □ The cost of the book was quite reasonable, but the postage and handling was outrageous. □ They did not charge postage and handling because I prepaid the order.

a poster child (for something) Fig. someone who is a classic example of a state or type of person. □ She is a poster child for soccer moms.

postpone something until something to delay something until something happens or until a later time. □ Can we postpone our meeting until tomorrow? □ The picnic was postponed until Saturday.

posture as someone or something to pretend to be someone or a particular type of person. □ Why is the secretary posturing as the manager and giving out assignments? □ Carla entered the ballroom, posturing as a grand duchess of somewhere or another.

The pot is calling the kettle black. and That's the pot calling the kettle black. Prov. You should not criticize someone for a fault that you have too. (Not polite to say about the person you are addressing.) □ Bill told Barbara she was sloppy, but Bill never cleans up after himself, either. That's the pot calling the kettle black. □ My sister says I dress funny, but if you've seen some of the clothes she wears, you know it's a case of the pot calling the kettle black.

a pot of gold 1. Lit. a container filled with gold, as in myth guarded by a leprechaun. □ I was hoping to find a pot of gold in the cellar, but there were only cobwebs. 2. Fig. an imaginary reward. □ Whoever gets to the porch first wins a pot of gold.

pot something up[†] to put plants into pots. □ If you would like one of these tomato plants, I'll pot one up for you. □ Jan potted up a plant for me.

pounce (up)on someone or something to spring or swoop upon someone or something; to seize someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ As Gerald came into the room, his friend Daniel pounced on him and frightened him to death. □ The cat pounced upon a mouse.

pound a beat Fig. to walk a regular route. □ The cop pounded the same beat for years and years. □ Pounding a beat will wreck your feet.

pound along something 1. Fig. to walk or run along something awkwardly or heavily. □ As the horse pounded along the street, the rider tried hard to get it to slow down. □ Tom pounded along the pavement, looking a bit angry. 2. Fig. to tap or hammer along something. □ The worker pounded along the edge of the roof, looking for rotten places. □ I pounded along the wall, looking for a stud to nail into.

pound away (at someone or something) to hammer or batter constantly on someone or something. □ The cops pounded away at the poor guy, and then they put him in handcuffs. □ The jackhammer kept pounding away at the pavement.

pound for pound [Usually of value, quality, strength, etc.] considering the amount of weight involved. □ Pound for pound, a dog fed properly is much stronger than a dog that has to fend for itself. □ Pound for pound, there is more food value in beef than in chicken.

*a pound of flesh Fig. a payment or punishment that involves suffering and sacrifice on the part of the person being punished. (*Typically: give someone ~; owe someone ~; pay someone ~; take ~.) □ He wants revenge. He won't be satisfied until he takes his pound of flesh.

pound on someone or something to beat or hammer on someone or something. □ She kept pounding on him until he released her. □ Will you please stop pounding on that drum?

pound one's ear Sl. to sleep. □ I've got to spend more time pounding my ear. □ She went home to pound her ear an hour or two before work.

pound someone's head in[†] Fig. to beat someone, especially about the head. □ Fred looked like he wanted to pound Mike's head in; he was so mad! □ You want me to pound in your head?

pound something down[†] to hammer, flatten, or batter something. □ Please pound that nail down so that no one gets hurt on it. □ Yes, please pound down that nail!

pound something in[†] Go to hammer something into something.

pound something into someone Go to hammer something into someone.

pound something on someone or something to hit or strike someone or something with something. □ Sarah pounded the vase on the robber until it broke. □ Betty stood pounding her shoe on the radiator, hoping the racket would magically bring heat.

pound something out[†] 1. Lit. to flatten something by pounding. □ He pounded the gold leaf out very thin. □ He pounded out the gold leaf. 2. Fig. to play something loudly on the piano, perhaps with difficulty or clumsily. □ Here, pound this one out. A little softer, please. □ She was pounding out a nice little tune. 3. Fig. to type something on a keyboard. □ I have finished writing it. Can I borrow your laptop so I can pound it out? □ All the reporters were pounding out stories for the next edition of the paper.

pound something up[†] to break something up by pounding. □ Pound the crackers up into crumbs and use them to coat the chicken before you fry it. □ Pound up the crackers and put the crumbs in a jar.

pound the books Go to hit the books.

pound the pavement Fig. to walk through the streets looking for a job. I spent two months pounding the pavement after the factory I worked for closed. Hey, Bob. You'd better get busy pounding those nails unless you want to be out pounding the pavement.

pour (all) over someone or something to flood over someone or something. (Compare this with pore over something.) The water from the broken dam poured all over the rocks standing at its base. The spilled milk poured over my lap.

pour along something to rush along something in great numbers or in a great amount. Hundreds of people poured along the street during the lunch hour. The rain-water poured along the gutter, heading toward the sewer basin.

pour cold water on something 1. Lit. to douse something with cold water. Pour cold water on the vegetables to freshen them. I poured cold water on my head to cool myself off. 2. and dash cold water on something; throw cold water on something Fig. to discourage doing something; to reduce enthusiasm for something. (Alludes to cooling passion with cold water.) When my father said I couldn't have the car, he poured cold water on my plans. John threw cold water on the whole project by refusing to participate.

pour down (on someone or something) 1. Lit. [for water, as with rain] to shower down on someone. The rain poured down on us, soaking us to the bone. 2. Fig. [for blessings, criticism, praise, kudos, etc.] to flow down on someone or something. Criticism poured down on the mayor until he resigned. Blessings poured down on the early settlers in the form of good harvests and plentiful game.

pour forth to gush out; to gush forth. The milk gushed out of the hole in the container. A tremendous amount of water poured forth when the fire hydrant was knocked over.

pour in(to something) 1. Lit. to flow or flood into something. The rain poured into the open window. I left the window open and the rain just poured in. 2. Fig. [for people or things] to continue to arrive in great numbers. Complaints poured into the television station after the scandalous broadcast. Cards and letters are still pouring in.

pour it on thick Go to lay it on thick.

pour money down the drain Fig. to waste money; to throw money away. What a waste! Buying that old car is just pouring money down the drain. Don't buy any more of that low-quality merchandise. That's just throwing money down the drain.

pour oil on troubled water(s) Fig. to calm someone or something down. (A thin layer of oil will actually calm a small area of a rough sea.) Don can calm things down. He's good at pouring oil on troubled waters. Alice is very good at pouring oil on troubled water.

pour one's heart out to someone and pour one's heart out Fig. to tell one's personal feelings to someone else. I didn't mean to pour my heart out to you, but I guess I just had to talk to someone. She poured out her heart to her friend.

pour oneself into something 1. Fig. to get deeply involved with something. He distracted himself from his grief by pouring himself into his work. She poured herself into the project and got it done on time. 2. Fig. to fit oneself into clothing that is very tight. (Usually jocular.) Marilyn didn't put that dress on, she poured herself in! She looks as if she poured herself into those jeans.

pour out (of something) 1. Lit. [for something] to stream, fall, or gush out of something or some place. The water poured out of the broken pipe and flooded the basement. The pipe split and the water just poured out. 2. Fig. [for people] to come out of a place in great numbers. At the end of the game, people poured out of the stadium for an hour.

pour out one's soul Fig. to confess something [to someone]; to reveal one's deepest concerns. Every time she calls me up, she takes an hour or more to pour out her soul.

pour something back[†] (in(to) something) to replace a liquid into something. Larry poured the extra glass of orange juice back into the pitcher. Lily took too much and poured some back. Pour back the extra juice into the pitcher.

pour something into something and pour something in[†] to guide a flow of liquid into something. She poured the lemonade into the pitcher and carried it to the porch. She held the glass and poured in the lemonade.

pour something off (of) something and pour something off[†] to drain liquid off the top of something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) Valerie poured the cream off the milk. Valerie poured off the cream.

pour something on(to) something to discharge a vessel of something onto something. Don broke open the piggy bank and poured the money onto the kitchen table. Don spread out a towel on the table and poured the money on it.

pour something out on(to) someone or something and pour something out[†] to empty something onto someone or something. She poured the pitcher of ice water out onto Dave, making him scream. Sarah poured out the pitcher on the floor by accident.

pour something over someone or something to cover or douse someone or something with something. As I poured the cooling water over myself, I felt relaxed for the first time since I began the long hike. Mary poured some milk over her cereal.

pour something through something to cause something to flow through something, such as a filter. The chemist poured the mixture through the filter or opening. I can't get the syrup into the bottle without pouring it through a funnel.

pour through something to flow freely through something. The water poured through the leak in the window frame. The rain poured through the hole in the roof.

pour with rain to rain heavily. (Said of the sky, day, morning, night, the weather, etc.) The sky was pouring with rain and the sun never shone from dawn to dusk. It poured with rain the entire night.

pouring rain very heavy rain. The children's clothes were soaked after they played out in the pouring rain. I waited in the pouring rain for the next bus.

pout about someone or something to be sullen about someone or something. There is no need to pout about the cat. She'll come back. Sally is pouting about her lost dog.

Poverty is no sin. Go to next.

Poverty is not a crime. and Poverty is no sin. Prov.

You should not condemn someone for being poor. □ Ellen: I wish there were a law to make all those poor people move out of our neighborhood. Jim: Poverty is not a crime, Ellen.

powder one's face Go to next.

powder one's nose and powder one's face to depart to the bathroom. (Usually said by women, or jocularly by men.) □ Excuse me, I have to powder my nose. □ She just went out to powder her face.

powder up Sl. to drink heavily; to get drunk. □ Let's go out and powder up. □ He's at the tavern powdering up.

the power behind the throne Fig. the person who actually controls the person who is apparently in charge. □ Mr. Smith appears to run the shop, but his brother is the power behind the throne. □ They say that the vice president is the power behind the throne.

a power play Fig. a strategy using one's power or authority to carry out a plan or to get one's way. □ In a blatant power play, the manager claimed he had initiated the sales campaign.

power something up⁺ to start something, such as an engine. □ You should power the engine up and let it run awhile before you drive away. □ Power up the engine and mow the grass.

power something with something to provide something as the source of energy for something to operate. □ The government decided to power its vans with natural gas engines. □ We will power the generators with coal as long as it is cheap.

power up to start an engine. □ Well, let's power up so we will be ready to leave with the others. □ It's time to power up and get going.

the powers that be the people who are in authority. □ The powers that be have decided to send back the immigrants. □ I have applied for a license, and the powers that be are considering my application.

A pox on someone or something! Fig. A curse on someone or something! (Old. Now usually jocular.) □ A pox on you, you creep! □ I've been trying to make this computer work all day. A pox on it!

Practice makes perfect. Prov. Cliché Doing something over and over again is the only way to learn to do it well. □ Jill: I'm not going to try to play the piano anymore. I always make so many mistakes. Jane: Don't give up. Practice makes perfect. □ Child: How come you're so good at peeling potatoes? Father: I did it a lot in the army, and practice makes perfect.

practice (up)on someone or something to train or drill on someone or something. (In preparation for the real thing. Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I do not want a dental student practicing upon me. □ I want to learn how to braid hair. Can I practice on you?

Practice what you preach. Prov. Cliché You yourself should do the things you advise other people to do. □ Dad always told us we should only watch an hour of television every day, but we all knew he didn't practice what he preached.

praise someone or something to the skies Fig. to give someone or something much praise. □ He wasn't very good, but his friends praised him to the skies. □ They liked your pie. Everyone praised it to the skies.

prance around to dance, jump, or strut around. □ The little deer were prancing around, enjoying the spring air. □ Stop prancing around and get to work.

prance around something to dance or jump in celebration around something or throughout some place. (Compare this with waltz around something.) □ The kids pranced around the room, celebrating. □ They pranced around the table that held the ice cream and cake.

prattle (away) about someone or something to chatter idly and endlessly about someone or something. □ The little girl prattled away for an hour about her school, her friends, and her toys. □ I wish you would stop prattling about your friends.

pray for someone or something 1. to beseech God, or some other deity, on behalf of someone or something. □ I will pray for you to recover from your illness quickly. □ As the fire spread throughout the old church, the congregation prayed for its preservation. 2. to ask God, or some other deity, to grant something. □ The family prayed for David's safety. □ All the people prayed for peace.

pray over something 1. to say grace over a meal. □ Do you pray over your meals? □ We prayed over dinner just after we sat down to eat. 2. to seek divine guidance about something through prayer. □ I will have to think about it and pray over it awhile. I'll have an answer next week. □ She prayed over the problem for a while and felt she had a solution.

pray to someone or something to utter prayers of praise or supplication to some divine or supernatural being or something. □ I pray to God that all this works out. □ The high priest prayed to the spirits of his ancestors that the rains would come.

pray to the porcelain god Sl. to kneel at the toilet bowl and vomit from drunkenness. □ Wally spent a while praying to the porcelain god last night. □ I think I have to go pray to the porcelain god.

preach about something to give a moral or stern discourse on something. □ Please don't preach about the evils of fried food. I like the stuff, and people eat it all the time and don't die! □ She was preaching about the value of a fat-free diet.

preach against someone or something to exhort against someone or something. □ The evangelist preached against the operator of the town's only saloon. □ The principal kept preaching against drinking and drugs.

preach at someone to lecture or moralize at someone. □ Don't preach at me! I don't need any of your moralizing. □ I really don't wish to be preached at.

preach to someone to give a moral discourse to someone. □ Please don't preach to me. I know that I did wrong. □ When you preach to us like that, we don't pay any attention to you.

preach to the choir and preach to the converted Fig. to make one's case primarily to one's supporters; to make one's case only to those people who are present or who are already friendly to the issues. □ There is no need to convince us of the value of hard work. We already know that. You are just preaching to the choir. Don't waste your time telling us about the problem. That's preaching to the choir. Bob found himself preaching to the converted when he was telling Jane the advantages of living in the suburbs. She already hates city life.

preach to the converted Go to previous.

precedence over someone or something the right to come before someone or something else; greater importance than someone or something else. (*Typically: take ~; have ~; be given ~.) Ambulances have precedence over regular cars at intersections. My manager's concerns take precedence over mine.

precious few and precious little very few; very little. (Few for people or things that can be counted, and little for amounts.) We get precious few tourists here in the winter. There's precious little food in the house and there is no money.

precious little Go to previous.

precipitate into something 1. Lit. [for a chemical] to go out of solution into solid form. The sodium chloride precipitated into a salt. Will this compound precipitate into anything if I cool it? 2. Fig. [for something] to become a more serious matter. By then, the street fight had precipitated into a riot. We were afraid that the argument would precipitate into a fight.

precipitate something into something 1. Lit. to cause a chemical to go out of a solution into a solid form. Adding just one salt grain at the right time will precipitate the salt dissolved into the water into large crystals. One grain precipitated the dissolved salt into crystals. 2. Fig. to cause something to become more serious. The gunshot precipitated the incident into a riot. The rally was precipitated into a serious brawl.

preclude someone or something from something to prevent someone or something from being included in something; to eliminate someone from something in advance. Your remarks do not preclude me from trying again, do they? These facts do not preclude my company from consideration, do they?

predicate something (up)on something to base something on something. There is no need to predicate my promotion upon the effectiveness of my secretary! You can hardly predicate the picnic on the weather, can you?

predispose someone or something to(ward) something to make someone or something susceptible to something. Your comments will not predispose me toward a favorable treatment of your case. Do you think that this weather will predispose me to catching a cold?

preface something by something to begin something by saying, writing, or reading something. I would like to preface my prepared remarks by making a personal observation. Her remarks were prefaced by the reading of a poem.

preface something with something to begin something with a particular message. She prefaced her speech with a recitation of one of her favorite poems. Alice prefaced her remarks with a few personal comments.

prefer someone or something to someone or something else to rank the desirability of someone or something over someone or something else. For the post of treasurer, I prefer Don to Jill. I prefer missing a meal to Jill's cooking.

prefer something against someone to file legal charges against someone [with the police]; to file a complaint or a charge against someone. The neighbors preferred charges against the driver of the car who ruined their lawns. I will not prefer charges against the driver, since it was partly my fault.

prefix something to something to place something at the beginning of a word or part of a word. If you prefix a re- to some verbs, you get an entirely different meaning. You can't prefix anything to some verbs.

prejudice someone or something against someone or something to turn someone or a group against someone or something. I believe that the lawyer was trying to prejudice the jury against the defendant. The discussion about how calves are raised prejudiced me against eating veal.

a prelude to something an act or event that comes before and signals another act or event. Her rudeness to her boss was a prelude to her resignation. The Munich Pact was a prelude to World War II.

prepare someone for something to build someone up for shocking news. I went in and had a talk with her to prepare her for the report. You should prepare yourself for the worst.

prepare someone or something for something to get someone or something ready for something. I prepared her for her trip by going over her itinerary. I prepared the garden for planting.

prescribe something for someone to order a medication to be given to or sold to someone. I asked the doctor to prescribe a painkiller for me. What can you prescribe for me for this illness?

prescribe something for something to suggest or recommend something for a particular disease. Could you prescribe something for my cold? What can you prescribe for this illness?

present someone (to someone) (at something) to introduce someone to someone at some event. They presented him to the queen at her birthday party. I will present you to the rest of the committee.

present someone with something Go to present something to someone.

present something on a silver platter Go to on a silver platter.

present something to someone and present someone with something to give something to someone, especially if done ceremoniously. They presented a watch to me when I retired. They presented me with a watch when I retired.

preserve someone or something against something to guard or protect someone or something against something. (Stilted or old-fashioned in reference to people.) I hope that the vaccine will preserve us against influenza. There is nothing in the jam to preserve it against spoilage.

preserve someone or something from someone or something to protect or guard someone or something from someone or something. Please help preserve our people from the attacks of our enemies. Is there any way to preserve my skin against the harmful rays of the sun?

preserve something for someone or something to save, maintain, or protect something for someone or something. □ Try to preserve some of these memories for your grandchildren. □ We learned how to preserve leaves for future reference.

preside at something to manage or act as chair at a meeting or a ceremony. □ The mayor presided at the meeting, assuring that the speeches would be very short. □ She presided at the ceremony.

preside over something to be in control of the order and procedures of a meeting or ceremony. □ The vice president will have to preside over the next meeting. □ I will be glad to preside over the discussion.

press against someone or something to push or bear upon someone or something. □ I pressed against Henry, trying gently to get him to move out of the way. □ Don't press against the glass door!

press charges (against someone) and file charges (against someone) Fig. to make a formal charge of wrongdoing against someone. □ They agreed not to press charges against me if I agreed to pay for the damages.

press down on someone or something to push down on someone or something. □ The weight of all the covers was pressing down on me, and I couldn't sleep. □ Press down on this lever and the recorder will start.

press for something 1. to urge for something to be done; to request something. □ The mayor is pressing for an early settlement to the strike. □ I will press her for an answer. □ The citizens are pressing for an investigation of the incident. 2. to press a button for service. □ If you need any help, just press for service. □ Here is the steward's button. Just press for immediate service.

press forward to move forward; to struggle forward; to continue. □ Do not be discouraged. Let us press forward. □ We must press forward and complete this work on time.

press on something to push or depress something, such as a button, catch, snap, etc. □ Press on this button if you require room service. □ Don't press on this because it rings a loud bell.

press one's luck Go to push one's luck.

press on(ward) to continue; to continue to try. □ Don't give up! Press onward! □ I have lots to do. I must press on.

press someone or something into service to force someone or something to serve or function. □ I don't think you can press him into service just yet. He isn't trained. □ I think that in an emergency, we could press this machine into service.

press someone to the wall Go to push someone to the wall.

press something against someone or something to push or force something against someone or something. □ The person in line behind Betty kept pressing his elbow against her. □ I pressed my hand against the door and it opened.

press something into something and press something in^t 1. to force something into something, such as a mold. □ Now, you need to press the clay into the mold carefully. □ Now, hold the mold with one hand and press in the clay. 2. to force or drive something into the surface of something. □ You are standing on my chewing gum, and you have pressed it into the carpet! □ Don't press in the gum by standing on it.

press something on^t Go to next.

press something onto something and press something on^t to put pressure on something and cause it to stick to the surface of something. □ I pressed the label onto the envelope and took it to the post office. □ I pressed on the label.

press something out of something and press something out^t to squeeze something out of something by applying pressure. □ The Indians press the acid out of the manioc before they use it as food. □ Gene used an iron to press the wrinkles out of his suit coat. □ Go back and press out all the wrinkles!

press something together to use pressure to close or unite things. □ He pressed his lips together and would say no more. □ Why are his lips pressed together so tightly?

press something (up)on someone to urge or force something on someone; to try to get someone to accept something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ He always presses second helpings upon his guests. □ She pressed a gift on us that we could not refuse.

press (the) flesh Sl. to shake hands. □ Hey, chum! Glad to press flesh with you! □ He wanted to press the flesh, but I refused even to touch him.

press the panic button Go to hit the panic button.

press (up)on someone or something to put pressure on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The crowd pressed upon the child, squeezing out all his breath. □ The load presses on your car's springs very heavily.

pressed for cash Go to next.

pressed for money and pressed for cash; pushed for cash; pushed for money Fig. needful of money; short of money. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; get ~; become ~; get ~.) □ We are usually pushed for money at this time of year. □ I'm a little pressed for money just now.

pressed for time and pushed for time Fig. needing time; in a hurry. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; get ~; seem ~.) □ If I weren't so pressed for time, I could help you. □ I can't talk to you. I'm too pushed for time. □ Can't talk to you now. I'm pressed for time.

pressure someone into something to force someone into doing something. □ Please don't try to pressure me into taking that promotion. □ You can't pressure me into it. I won't do it!

presume (up)on someone or something to take unwelcome advantage of someone or something. □ I didn't mean to seem to presume upon you. I apologize. □ I did not feel that you presumed on me.

pretend to something to claim to have a skill or quality. □ I can hardly pretend to the artistry that Wally has, but I can play the piano a bit. □ I can't pretend to that level of skill.

pretty as a picture very pretty. (*Also: as ~.) □ Sweet little Mary is as pretty as a picture. □ Their new house is pretty as a picture.

Pretty is as pretty does. Prov. It is more important to treat people well than to be good-looking; just because you are good-looking does not mean you are a good person. (Said only of girls and women.) □ Janice may have a pretty face, but pretty is as pretty does; the way she behaves isn't pretty at all.

pretty oneself or something up[†] Rur. to make oneself or something more attractive; to tidy oneself or something up. I tried to pretty myself up for him, but he didn't notice. Let's try to pretty up this room.

a pretty pickle Fig. a difficult situation. (Pickle = a bad situation.) Well, this is a pretty pickle you've gotten us into.

Pretty please? an emphasised form of please? Pretty please? I need an answer! Can I have my book back? Pretty please?

a pretty state of affairs and a fine state of affairs an unpleasant state of affairs. This is a pretty state of affairs, and it's all your fault. What a fine state of affairs you've got us into.

prevail against someone or something to win out over someone or something; to dominate someone or something. You will not prevail against me! I am sure that our team will prevail against the challengers.

prevail (up) on someone or something (to do something) to appeal to someone or a group to do something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I will prevail upon her to attend the meeting. I prevailed on the committee to no avail.

prevent someone from doing something to keep someone from doing something. You can't prevent me from doing it! We must try to prevent her from going back there.

Prevention is better than cure. Prov. It is better to try to keep a bad thing from happening than it is to fix the bad thing once it has happened. (See also An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.) If we spend more money on education, so that children learn to be responsible citizens, we won't have to spend so much money on prisons. Prevention is better than cure.

prey on something [for an animal] to feed on another animal as a matter of habit or preference. Owls prey on mice. Many birds prey on snakes.

prey (up) on someone or something Fig. to take advantage of someone or something. (See also prey on something. Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) The people of that island prey on tourists and do not give them good treatment. I really don't want to seem to prey upon your kindness.

*a price on one's head a reward for one's capture. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; put ~; place ~.) We captured a thief who had a price on his head, and the sheriff gave us the reward. The crook was so mean, he turned in his own brother, who had a price on his head.

the price one has to pay the sacrifice that one has to make; the unpleasantness that one has to suffer. Being away from home a lot is the price one has to pay for success.

price someone or something out of the market to raise or lower a price and drive someone or something out of the marketplace. You are a very good singer, but your agent has priced you out of the market. The discount prices posted by the chain store were meant to price us out of the market.

price something down[†] to lower the price of something. When they start pricing this stuff down at the end of the season, I'll come in and buy something. I hope to price down the merchandise soon.

price something out to list and total all the component prices of goods and services for a complex project. I have finished listing all the materials required for the project, and now I have to price it out so that we can decide if we can afford it.

price something up[†] to raise the price of something. They have priced oranges up so high that I can't afford any. Why do they price up these common foods so high?

prick up its ears[†] and prick up one's ears[†] Fig. [for an animal or a person] to become attentive. (The animal will adjust its ears toward the sound.) The sound made the dog prick its ears up. When Fred heard his name, he pricked up his ears. She pricked her ears up when she heard her name.

pride and joy Fig. something or someone that one is very proud of. (Often in reference to a baby, a car, a house, etc. Fixed order.) And this is our little pride and joy, Roger. Fred pulled up in his pride and joy and asked if I wanted a ride.

Pride goes before a fall. and Pride goeth before a fall. Prov. If you are too proud and overconfident, you will make mistakes leading to your defeat. (Biblical.) Sue: I'm the best student in my history class. I'm sure I can pass the exam without studying very hard. Sam: Be careful. Pride goes before a fall, you know.

pride oneself in something and pride oneself on something to take pride in one of one's qualities or accomplishments. She prides herself in her ability to spot a shoplifter. I pride myself on my ability to find compromises.

prime mover Fig. the force that sets something going; someone or something that starts something off. The assistant manager was the prime mover in getting the manager sacked. Discontent with his job was the prime mover in John's deciding to retire early.

prime something with something to enable something to start working or functioning with something. Larry primed the pump with a little water, and it began to do its work. We will prime the market for our new product with a free coupon offer.

primp (oneself) up to get dressed up; to fix oneself up by combing, brushing, adjusting, etc. Let me stop in the powder room and primp myself up a bit. I have to go in here and primp up.

the primrose path Fig. earthly delights that come to an end. She led him down the primrose path until she got tired of him.

print something in something 1. to make block letters in a specific location on a paper. Please print your name in the box. Would you please print the information in the space provided? 2. to publish something in a publication. They printed my letter in today's paper. Her stories have been printed in several magazines.

print something out[†] 1. to write something out by using block letters. Please print it out. I can't read your handwriting. Print out your name, please. 2. to use a computer printer to print something. □ I will print a copy out and send it to you. □ Please print out another copy.

print something up[†] to set something in type and print it; to print something by any process. □ This looks okay to me. Let's print it up now. □ Print up the final version.

privy to something Fig. knowledgeable about something secret or private. □ The reporter became privy to the senator's evil plan. □ Why are you privy to this secret information?

prize someone or something above someone or something to value someone or something more than anyone or anything else. □ He prized his only daughter above everyone else in the world. □ Scott seemed to prize his sports car above all the members of his family.

probe into something to investigate something. □ The police will probe into the matter and report to the commissioner. □ We will take some time and probe into that for you.

probe something for something to poke around in something for something. □ He probed his memory for some clue as to where he had been on that date. □ Sam probed the darkened space for the tool that he had mislaid.

proceed against someone or something 1. to begin to move against someone or something. □ The entire platoon proceeded against the single enemy soldier who refused to surrender. □ The army proceeded against the fortress as planned. 2. to start legal action against someone or something. □ The district attorney will proceed against the suspect next week. □ The state prosecutor will proceed against the company as soon as one of the witnesses is located.

proceed (from something) (to something) to go from something or some place to something or some place. □ Next, we will proceed from Vienna to Budapest. □ We proceeded from Detroit, passing through rural Michigan.

proceed with something to move ahead with something; to continue something. □ Now, we will proceed with the reading of the minutes of the last meeting. □ When will you proceed with the needed action?

Procrastination is the thief of time. Prov. If you put off doing what you ought to do, you will end up not having enough time to do it properly. □ Jim: Have you started looking for a job yet? Jane: Oh, that can wait till tomorrow. Jim: Procrastination is the thief of time.

procure something (from someone or something) (for someone or something) to get something from someone or something for someone or some purpose. □ I will procure a copy of the paper from Kelly for you. □ I have to procure a book for my sister.

prod at someone or something to poke at someone or something. □ The boys prodded at the prone body of the man to see if he was dead or sleeping. □ If you prod at the turtle, it will never come out of its shell.

prod someone into something to motivate someone into doing something; to provoke someone into action. □ Do I have to prod you into going? Can't you volunteer for once? □ We will prod her into getting it done on time.

produce an attack (of an illness) Go to an attack (of an illness).

produce something for something 1. to make something for some purpose. □ This production line produces brackets for the installation of the circuit boards in the next production line. □ We produce the seats for the trucks that they assemble on the other side of town. 2. to bring something out for some purpose. □ Lee quickly produced a penknife for cutting the string on the package. □ Ruth can always produce the right tool for the job.

produce something from something to create something from something; to make something out of something. □ We are able to produce a high-quality writing paper from the scraps we trim off the edges of the books as we bind them. □ Jane produces an excellent jelly from the grapes she grows in her backyard.

profit by something and profit from something 1. Lit. to gain money from something. □ You will surely profit by investing in this stock. □ I know I will profit from this investment. 2. Fig. to learn from something. □ I am sure you will profit by your unpleasant experience. □ Yes, I will profit from my failure.

progress to something to reach all the way to something or some place. □ The crisis has progressed to its final stage. □ Things had progressed to a serious stage where nothing more could be done for him.

progress toward something to move partway toward some goal. □ Nancy is progressing toward her degree quite nicely. □ We are progressing toward the end of the project.

progress with something to continue to move toward something or completing something. □ I can't seem to progress with this project. □ How are you progressing with the building of your model ship?

prohibit someone from something 1. to prevent someone from doing something. □ The committee voted to prohibit people from leaving before the meeting was over. □ They prohibit anyone from being seated after the first act has started. 2. to keep someone out of some place. □ Our policy is to prohibit people from the beach area after dark. □ State law prohibits children from this dangerous area while the machines are running.

prohibit something from something 1. to prevent something from happening or from doing something. □ My mother prohibits me from going out with friends on school nights. □ Why do you want to prohibit the cars from traveling on this street during rush hour? 2. to keep something out of or away from something or some place. □ The law prohibited bicycles from the sidewalks. □ The city council prohibits unleashed dogs from the public parks.

project into something to extend into something. □ The end of the grand piano projected into the next room, but she had to have a grand, nonetheless. □ The front of the car projected into the flower bed when it was parked, but that was all right.

project something onto someone to imagine that someone else experiences one's feelings, especially one's guilt or anger. □ Since you project your anger onto your best friends, you imagine you have gathered a number of angry people around you. □ You should not project your feelings onto other people.

project something on(to) someone or something and project something upon someone or something to show a picture, such as from a film, transparency, etc., onto something, such as a screen, wall, etc., or even onto a person. □ Henry projected the pictures onto the screen as he discussed each one. □ The teacher had to project the slides upon the wall.

promise someone the moon Go to promise the moon (to someone).

promise something to someone to pledge something to someone. □ I promised this vase to my niece. □ Is this book promised to anyone?

promise the moon (to someone) and promise someone the moon to make extravagant promises to someone. □ Bill will promise you the moon, but he won't live up to his promises. □ My boss promised the moon, but never gave me a raise.

Promises are like piecrust, made to be broken. Prov. It is useless to make promises, because people always break their promises. □ Lisa made Andrew promise not to drink anymore, but promises are like piecrust, made to be broken.

promote someone (from something) (to something) to raise someone's rank from something to something. □ They promoted her from teller to vice president. □ Carl promoted his daughter to supervisor.

prone to something likely to [do] something; apt to have something. □ My boss is prone to anger when my work isn't done on schedule. □ My sister is prone to sneezing because of her allergies.

pronounce something on someone or something to make a statement, usually a judgment, about someone or something. □ The judge pronounced final judgment on the prisoner. □ The family all pronounced a positive opinion on the cake.

The proof is in the pudding. Prov. You cannot be sure that you have succeeded until you have examined the result of your efforts. □ Jill: I think we've done a good job of fixing the lawn mower. Jane: Well, the proof is in the pudding. We haven't tried to mow the lawn with it yet.

prop someone or something up[†] (against someone or something) to stand or lean someone or something against someone or something. □ He was so tired I had to prop him up against the wall while I looked for the door key. □ I propped up the man against the wall. □ I propped the mop up against the wall.

A prophet is not without honor save in his own country. Prov. Everyone recognizes that a wise person is wise, except for the people close to him or her. (Biblical.) □ No one in the novelist's country would publish her books, but last year she won the Nobel Prize. A prophet is not without honor save in his own country.

propose a toast to make a toast before a celebratory drink. □ I'd like to propose a toast in honor of your birthday. □ At the wedding reception, the bride's father proposed a toast to the new couple.

propose something to someone to suggest something to someone. □ I have an idea I would like to propose to you. □ Sam wanted to propose a new plan to Sarah.

propose to someone to suggest marriage to someone, usually a male to a female. □ Guess who proposed to me last night? □ Do you think that Sam will propose to Mary?

prospect for something to search for something, especially for metals or minerals. □ The old men said they were prospecting for gold. □ What are they prospecting for out in the desert?

prosper from something to gain wealth from something. □ Carla prospered from trading on the options exchange. □ I hope you prosper from your new enterprise.

prostrate oneself before someone or something 1. Lit. to lay oneself out in respect or obedience in front of someone or something. □ The members of the cult prostrated themselves before their leader. □ They prostrated themselves before the altar. 2. Fig. to submit to someone's dominance. □ If you think I'm going to prostrate myself before you and do as you ask, you are wrong. □ I will not prostrate myself before the high council!

protect someone or something against someone or something and protect someone or something from someone or something to shield or preserve someone or something against someone or something. □ Please come along and protect us against muggers as we walk home. □ What will protect my car against thieves?

protest about someone or something and protest against someone or something 1. to complain about someone or something. □ Valerie is always protesting about some problem at work. □ She filed a complaint that protested against her supervisor. 2. to rally or demonstrate against someone or something. □ A number of people protested about the war. □ They were mainly protesting against the draft.

protrude from someone or something to stick out from someone or something. □ Even in the dark, I knew he was hurt because I could see the knife protruding from him. □ A knife protruded from the victim's back.

proud as a peacock and vain as a peacock overly proud; vain. (*Also: as ~.) □ Mike's been strutting around proud as a peacock since he won that award. □ I sometimes think Elizabeth must spend all day admiring herself in a mirror. She's as vain as a peacock.

prove oneself as something to demonstrate that one can serve in a certain office or capacity. □ It's time to promote her. She has proved herself as a teller. □ I proved myself as an investor by making a lot of money in the stock market.

prove something to someone to substantiate a claim about something to someone; to make someone believe or accept a statement about something. □ What do I have to do to prove my innocence to you? □ Nothing you say will prove it to me.

prove to be something to be shown to be someone or something; to be found to be someone or something. □ Susan proved to be a good friend when she lent me some money. □ The food proved to be spoiled when I smelled it.

provide against something to plan against something happening. □ Have you provided against the possible collapse of the agreement? □ We have not provided against financial disaster.

provide for someone or something to supply the needs of someone or something. □ Don't worry, we will provide for you. □ We will provide for the committee in the budget.

provide someone with something to supply something to someone. □ I will provide you with an escort to your car.

□ Jane provided herself with just enough food to get through the weekend.

provide something for someone or something to supply something for someone or something. □ I will provide salad for the guests. □ Ted provided food for his dog.

provide something under something to supply something in keeping with a contract, rule, guideline, agreement, etc. □ We have agreed to provide two tons of coal per month under our contract. Do you want more? □ We will agree to provide ample insurance for our employees under union guidelines.

provided that on the condition that. □ I will come, provided that I am invited. □ I will help you, provided that you pay me.

provoke someone into something to incite someone into doing something. □ The soldiers sought to provoke the demonstrators into starting a riot. □ They provoked us into leaving.

prowl about and prowl around to sneak around, looking for someone or something. □ Something is prowling about out there in the yard. □ There is someone outside prowling around.

prune something away^t to cut away something unwanted or unneeded. □ Please prune the lower branches of the trees away. They are starting to annoy pedestrians. □ We pruned away the dead branches.

prune something of something to clear, clean, or groom something of something by pruning. □ Sally was out in the orchard pruning the apple trees of dead branches. □ They pruned the roses of their unneeded branches.

prune something off (of) something and prune something off^t to cut something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Claire pruned the dead branch off the apple tree. □ She pruned off the dead branch.

pry around to sneak or prowl around looking for something. □ Why are you prying around? Mind your own business! □ Please don't pry around. You might find out something you don't want to know.

pry into something to snoop into something; to get into someone else's business. □ Why are you prying into my affairs all the time? □ I wish you wouldn't pry into my personal life.

pry something from someone and pry something out of someone to work information out of someone; to force someone to reveal information. □ I couldn't even pry her name from her. □ The police tried to pry the name of the killer out of Max.

pry something from something and pry something out (of) something to remove something from something with or as if with a lever. □ See if you can pry this wedge from its slot. □ I pried the rotted board out of the side of the house.

pry something off (of) something and pry something off^t to use a lever to get something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Tom pried the top off the jelly jar. □ He pried off the jar top.

pry something out of someone Go to pry something from someone.

pry something out (of) something Go to pry something from something.

pry something up^t to raise something with or as with a lever. □ See if you can pry that trapdoor up. □ Pry up that lid.

psych out 1. Inf. to have a nervous or emotional trauma; to go mad for a brief time. □ Another day like this one and I'll psych out for sure. □ He looked at the bill and psyched out. 2. Inf. to become very excited; to lose mental control. □ I was so angry, I almost psyched out. □ The kids were psyching out over the rock star.

psych someone out^t 1. Inf. to get someone very excited; to cause someone to lose mental control. □ Wow! What you just said really psyched me out! □ He psyched out his friends. 2. Inf. to figure someone out; to know how someone thinks. □ It took me a while to psych out Fred, but I have him figured out now. □ Don't waste time trying to psych me out. I am an enigma.

psych someone up^t Inf. to get someone excited or mentally prepared for something. □ I psyched myself up to sing in front of all those people. □ The coach psyched up the team for the game.

psych up Inf. to get mentally ready for something. □ I have to psych up before the big game tonight. □ We want to psych up so we can play a good game.

psyched (out) 1. Inf. excited; overwhelmed; thrilled. □ She's really psyched out. □ That's great. I'm really psyched about my new job! 2. Inf. intoxicated. □ She's just lying there psyched out. □ Two beers and a shot of whiskey and he was psyched out.

psyched (up) Inf. completely mentally ready (for something). □ I'm really psyched for this test. □ The team isn't psyched up enough to do a good job.

psyched up (for something) Inf. excited and enthusiastic. □ I can play a great tennis game if I'm psyched up. □ She is really psyched up for the game.

publish or perish Fig. [for a professor] to try to publish scholarly books or articles to prevent getting released from a university or falling into disfavor in a university. (Also occurs as other parts of speech. See the examples.) □ Alice knew she would have to publish or perish if she took the teaching job. □ This is a major research university and publish or perish is the order of the day.

pucker something up^t to cause something to wrinkle up, especially the edges of the mouth, as when tasting something very sour. □ She puckered her lips up and pouted for a while. □ She puckered up her lips when she tasted the lemon juice.

pucker up 1. Lit. to tighten one's lips together into a circle as if to kiss. □ He puckered up and kissed her once, and then again. 2. Fig. [for something] to shrink up and get wrinkled. □ The material puckered up when I washed it. □ The top edge of the drapes puckered up and I don't know how to straighten it out.

puff along 1. [for someone] to run along, puffing to breathe. □ Sam puffed along, jogging on his morning route. □ As Wally puffed along, he thought again about going on a diet. 2. [for an engine] to move along, putting out puffs of smoke or steam. □ The old engine puffed along, driving the small boat slowly up the river. □ The locomotive puffed along, not making very much headway up the hill.

puff (away) at something 1. to blow at or into something in puffs. □ She puffed away at the beach ball, blowing it up as fast as she could. □ Todd puffed at the fire until it grew larger. 2. and puff (away) on something to smoke something, such as a cigar, cigarette, or pipe. □ Scott was puffing away at his pipe. □ She is always puffing on a cigarette.

puff out to swell out. □ The frog's throat puffed out, and we expected to hear a croak. □ The sail puffed out, and the boat began to move.

puff someone or something up⁺ to boost or promote someone or something. □ Judy puffed Nell up so much that Nell could not begin to live up to her reputation. □ Don't puff up your own accomplishments so much.

puff something out^t to cause something to swell out or expand outward. □ The frog puffed its throat out and croaked. □ The frog puffed out its throat and croaked a mighty croak.

puff up to swell up. □ Her finger puffed up and she thought she might have an infection. □ His eyelids had puffed up during the night.

puff up (into something) to assume a larger shape by filling up with air or water; to swell up into something. □ The strange-looking fish puffed up into a round ball. □ The fish puffed up and stuck out its spines.

pull a boner Inf. to do something stupid or silly. □ Boy, I really pulled a boner! I'm so dumb. □ If you pull a boner like that again, you're fired!

pull a fast one Inf. to succeed in an act of deception. □ She was pulling a fast one when she said she had a headache and went home. □ Don't try to pull a fast one with me! I know what you're doing.

pull a few strings Go to pull (some) strings.

pull a gun (on someone) and pull a knife (on someone) to bring out a gun or knife suddenly so that it is ready for use against someone. □ I screamed when the mugger pulled a knife on me. □ The police shot the thief when he pulled a gun.

pull a job Sl. to carry out a crime, especially a robbery. (Police and underworld. Note the variations in the examples.) □ Richard decided that it was not a good time to pull a bank job. □ Willie and Richard left town after they pulled the job.

pull a knife (on someone) Go to pull a gun (on someone).

pull a muscle to strain a muscle and suffer the attendant pain. □ I pulled a muscle in my back and can't play golf today.

pull a stunt (on someone) and pull a trick (on someone) to deceive someone; to play a trick on someone. □ Let's pull a trick on the teacher. □ Don't you dare pull a stunt like that!

pull a trick (on someone) Go to previous.

pull ahead (of someone or something) to pass someone or something and continue moving. □ The runner pulled ahead of the rest of the field. □ Our car pulled ahead of theirs.

pull all the stops out^t Fig. to use everything available; to not hold back. (Alludes to pulling out all of the stops on an organ so that it will sound as loud as possible.) □

The mayor decided to pull out all the stops and campaign in every district. □ Todd pulled all the stops out for his exhibition and impressed everyone with his painting artistry.

pull around to something to drive around to something or some place. □ Please pull around to the back and deliver the furniture there. □ We told the driver to pull around to the service entrance.

pull at someone to vie for someone's attention or concern. (See also pull at someone or something.) □ There are too many demands pulling at me. I need to cut down on my responsibilities. □ I don't see how I can function with so many different things pulling at me.

pull at someone or something to tug at someone or something. (See also pull at someone.) □ The child kept pulling at her mother to get her attention. □ Don't keep pulling at your hair. It will come out.

pull away from someone or something to jerk away or draw away from someone or something. □ Suddenly, she pulled away from me and fled. □ The car pulled away from the curb and drove off.

pull back (from someone or something) to move back from someone or something. □ When I saw how sick he looked, I pulled back from him in shock. □ I took one look at the snake and pulled back.

pull down (an amount of money) Fig. Inf. to earn a stated amount of money. ("An amount of money" is expressed as a figure or other indication of an actual amount.) □ She pulls down about $40,000 a year. □ They pull down pretty good salaries.

pull for someone or something to support and cheer for someone, a group, or something. □ We're pulling for you. We know you can do it! □ All the students were pulling for the team.

pull in one's ears Fig. to stop listening in on someone or something. (The opposite of prick up one's ears.) □ Now, pull in your ears. This is none of your business. □ Pull in your ears and mind your own business.

pull in one's horns Go to draw in one's horns.

pull in some place [for a wheeled vehicle] to steer or drive to a point off the main route. □ Let's pull in at the next motel and get some rest. □ I want to pull in at a service station and have my tires checked.

pull in(to some place) to drive into some place. □ A strange car just pulled into our driveway. □ Some stranger just pulled in.

pull off (something) to steer or turn a vehicle off the road. □ I pulled off the road and rested for a while. □ I had to pull off and rest.

pull on something to tug something. □ I pulled on the rope, hoping to get it loose. □ Please help me pull on the anchor chain so we can raise the anchor.

pull one over on someone to deceive someone. □ Don't try to trick me! You can't pull one over on me.

pull one's belt in^t (a notch) Go to take one's belt in^t (a notch).

pull one's (own) weight Go to carry one's (own) weight.

pull one's punches 1. [for a boxer] to strike with light blows to enable the other boxer to win. □ Bill has been barred from the boxing ring for pulling his punches. □ "I never pulled punches in my life!" cried Tom. 2. Fig. to hold back in one's criticism. (Usually in the negative. The one's can be replaced with any in the negative.) □ I didn't pull any punches. I told her exactly what I thought of her. □ The teacher doesn't pull any punches when it comes to discipline.

pull oneself together 1. Fig. to compose oneself; to gather one's wits about one. □ I have to pull myself together and try it again. □ Now try to pull yourself together and get through this crisis. 2. Fig. to gather up one's things; to pull one's things together. □ I'll be ready to leave as soon as I pull myself together. □ I want to pull myself together and leave.

pull oneself up by one's (own) bootstraps Fig. to improve or become a success by one's own efforts. □ If Sam had a little encouragement, he could pull himself up by his bootstraps. □ Given a chance, I'm sure I can pull myself up by my own bootstraps.

pull (out) in front of someone or something to drive out into the road in front of someone or some vehicle. □ A car pulled out in front of me, and I almost hit it. □ The car pulled in front of a truck and there was a terrible wreck.

pull out (of something) 1. to withdraw from something. □ For some reason, he pulled out of the coalition and went his own way. □ The other side got impatient with the negotiations and pulled out. 2. to drive out of something, such as a driveway, parking space, garage, etc. □ The car pulled out of the driveway and nearly hit a truck. □ Look out! A car is about to pull out!

pull over (to something) to steer over to something, such as the side of the road. □ Betty pulled over to the side of the road and waited for the traffic to thin. □ The police officer ordered her to pull over.

pull rank (on someone) Fig. to assert one's rank, authority, or position over someone when making a request or giving an order. □ Don't pull rank on me! I don't have to do what you say! □ When she couldn't get her way politely, she pulled rank and really got some action.

pull (some) strings and pull a few strings to use influence (with someone to get something done). □ I can get it done easily by pulling a few strings. □ Is it possible to get anything done around here without pulling some strings?

pull someone about 1. Lit. to drag someone around. □ The boys were pulling one another about and playing very rough. □ Don't pull your little brother about so! 2. Fig. to give someone a hard time. □ I'm tired of your double-talk! Stop pulling me about! □ You can't believe what she tells people. She is always pulling people about.

pull someone apart 1. Lit. to separate people who are entangled. □ The teacher pulled the fighting boys apart and sent them home. □ They hugged each other so tightly that no one could have pulled them apart. 2. Fig. to upset someone very much; to cause someone grief and torment. □ This whole terrible affair has just pulled me apart. □ Don't let this matter pull you apart. Things won't always be this bad.

pull someone aside to grasp and pull a person to one side. □ I pulled the child aside and scolded him for trying to sneak into the theater. □ I pulled aside the child to say something to him.

pull someone down Fig. to degrade someone; to humiliate someone. (See also pull someone or something down.) □ I'm afraid that your so-called friends are pulling you down behind your back. □ There is no need to pull down everyone.

pull someone in to pull someone into something; pull someone into a place.

pull someone into a place and pull someone in Lit. to bring someone into a place; to draw someone into a place. □ Advertising will pull hundreds of customers in. □ The sale pulled in a lot of customers.

pull someone into something and pull someone in Fig. to get someone involved in something. □ Please don't pull me into this argument. □ Don't pull in anyone else.

pull someone or an animal down to drag or force someone or an animal down. □ The wolves pulled the hunter down and set upon him. □ They pulled down the hunter.

pull someone or an animal through (something) 1. Lit. to manage to get someone or an animal through an opening. □ Do you think you can pull the cow through this narrow door to the shed? 2. Fig. to help someone or an animal survive a difficult time or situation. □ All her friends worked hard to pull her through the crisis. □ The vet worked hard to pull the cat through the illness.

pull someone or something apart to separate or dismember someone or something. □ The murderer pulled his victim apart and sought to dispose of the parts. □ He pulled apart his victim. □ Nick pulled the parts of the box apart.

pull someone or something around to drag or haul someone or something around. □ The woman had pulled her children around all day while she did the shopping. All of them were glad to get home. □ Nick pulled around his wagon and collected discarded aluminum cans.

pull someone or something away from someone or something and pull someone or something away to grasp and haul someone or something away from someone or something. □ The lady pulled the child away from the edge of the well. □ Please pull your dog away from my hedge. □ Pull away that dog, or I will call the police!

pull someone or something back (from someone or something) to grasp and haul someone or something away from someone or something. □ The cop pulled the kid away from the other kid and made them stop fighting. □ I pulled back the child from the dangerous hole.

pull someone or something by something to grasp someone or something by something and tug or haul. □ I pulled him by the hand, trying to get him to follow me. □ Timmy pulled the toy duck by its string and it quacked as it waddled along.

pull someone or something into something and pull someone or something in to haul or drag someone or something into something or some place. □ She pulled him into the room and closed the door. □ Lisa pulled in her friend and closed the door.

pull someone or something over (to something) [for someone] to cause someone or a vehicle to drive over to something, such as the side of the road. □ The cop pulled Betty over to the side of the road. □ I pulled the car over to the side.

pull someone or something to pieces to pull someone or something apart; to separate someone or something into pieces. □ The machine almost pulled him to pieces when he got his arm caught in it.

pull someone or something under 1. Lit. to drag someone or something beneath the surface of something. □ The strong undertow pulled John under the surface. □ The whirlpool nearly pulled the boat under. 2. Fig. to cause someone or something to fail. □ The heavy debt load pulled Don under. He went out of business. □ The recession pulled his candy shop under.

pull someone or something up[†] to drag or haul someone or something upward or to an upright position. □ Bob had slipped down into the creek, so I reached down and pulled him up. □ I pulled up Bob and nearly fell in myself. □ Nick pulled the cushion up and propped it against the back of the sofa.

pull someone's leg Fig. to kid, fool, or trick someone. □ You don't mean that. You're just pulling my leg. □ Don't believe him. He's just pulling your leg.

pull someone's or something's teeth Fig. to reduce the power or efficacy of someone or something. □ The mayor tried to pull the teeth of the new law. □ The city council pulled the teeth of the new mayor.

pull someone through (something) to help someone survive or get through something difficult. □ With the help of the doctor, we pulled her through her illness. □ With lots of encouragement, we pulled her through.

pull someone up short to cause someone to stop short. □ My scream pulled him up short. □ The sudden thought that everything might not be all right pulled Tom up short.

pull something down[†] 1. to demolish something; to raze something. □ Why do they want to pull the building down? Why not remodel it? □ They are going to pull down the old building today. 2. to lower or reduce the amount of something. □ That last test pulled my grade down. □ Let's see if we can pull down your temperature with aspirin.

pull something down over someone or something to draw something down over someone or something. □ Lucy's mother pulled the dress down over Lucy and buttoned it up in back. □ Sarah pulled the cover down over the birdcage and turned out the lights.

pull something off[†] 1. Inf. to manage to make something happen. □ Yes, I can pull it off. □ Do you think you can pull off this deal? 2. and pull something off (of) someone or something Lit. to tug or drag something off someone or something else. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Sam pulled the covers off the bed and fell into it, dead tired. □ He pulled off his clothes and stepped into the shower.

pull something on[†] to draw on an article of clothing. □ He pulled his pants on. □ He pulled on his pants quickly and ran outside while putting on his shirt.

pull something on someone to play a trick on someone; to deceive someone with a trick. (The word something is often used.) □ You wouldn't pull a trick on me, would you? □ Who would pull something like that on an old lady?

pull something out[†] Go to pull something out of someone or something.

pull something out of a hat and pull something out of thin air 1. Lit. [for a magician] to make something, such as a live rabbit, seem to appear by pulling it out of a top hat or out of the air. □ He pulled a rabbit out of a hat and then pulled a chicken out of thin air. 2. Fig. to produce something seemingly out of nowhere. □ Where am I going to get the money? I can't just pull it out of a hat! □ I don't know where she found the book. She pulled it out of thin air, I guess.

pull something out of someone to draw or force information out of someone. □ The cops finally pulled a confession out of Max. □ I thought I would never pull her name out of her.

pull something out of someone or something and pull something out[†] to withdraw something from someone or something. □ I pulled the arrow out of the injured soldier and tried to stop the bleeding. □ I pulled out the arrow.

pull something out of someone's hands Go to out of someone's hands.

pull something out of the fire 1. Lit. to drag or take something out of a fire before it is consumed. □ The fire was too big, so he pulled a few logs out of the fire. 2. Fig. to rescue something; to save something just before it's too late. □ Can we rescue this project? Is there time to pull it out of the fire? □ There is no way we can pull this one out of the fire.

pull something out of thin air Go to pull something out of a hat.

pull something over someone or something to draw something over someone or something. □ The doctor pulled a sheet over Gerald and left the room. □ Sharon pulled the cover over the birdcage for the night.

pull something to to close something, usually a door of some type. □ The door is open a little. Pull it to so no one will hear us. □ Please pull the door to.

pull something together 1. Lit. to close something, such as a pair of drapes or sliding doors. □ Please pull the doors together when you finish in the closet. □ Would you pull the drapes together before you turn on the lights? 2. Fig. to assemble something, such as a meal. □ I will hardly have time to pull a snack together. □ I will pull a nice dinner together for the two of us. 3. Fig. to organize something; to arrange something. □ How about a party? I'll see if I can pull something together for Friday night. 4. Fig. to tidy things up; to straighten things up and make them orderly. □ This place is a mess. Please pull things together.

pull something toward oneself to draw something closer to oneself. □ He pulled his plate toward himself and began eating like a starving man. □ Mary pulled the basket of fruit toward herself and chose a nice juicy peach.

pull something up[†] Go to pull something up to something.

pull something up[†] (out of something) to draw something upward out of something. □ The worker pulled a cold wet dog up out of the pond. □ He pulled up the dog out of the pond.

pull something up to something and pull something up[†] to draw something close to something else. □ She pulled the chair up to the table and began to examine the papers. □ She pulled up a chair.

pull the plug (on someone) 1. Lit. to turn off someone's life-support system in a hospital. (Based on pull the plug (on something) ①. This results in the death of the person whose life support has been terminated.) They had to get a court order to pull the plug on their father. Fred signed a living will making it possible to pull the plug on him without a court order. 2. Fig. to put an end to someone's activities or plans. (Based on pull the plug (on something) ②.) The mayor was doing a fine job until the treasurer pulled the plug on him. David pulled the plug on Fred, who was taking too long with the project.

pull the plug (on something) 1. Lit. to terminate the functions of something by pulling a connector from a socket. While she was working at the computer, I accidentally pulled the plug. I pulled the plug on the vacuum because the switch was broken. 2. Fig. to reduce the power or effectiveness of something; to disable something. Jane pulled the plug on the whole project. The treasurer pulled the plug because there was no more money in the budget.

pull the rug out^t (from under someone) Fig. to make someone or someone's plans fall through; to upset someone's plans. Don pulled the rug out from under me in my deal with Bill Franklin. I was close to getting the contract until Don came along and pulled out the rug.

pull the wool over someone's eyes Fig. to deceive someone. You can't pull the wool over my eyes. I know what's going on. Don't try to pull the wool over her eyes. She's too smart.

pull through (something) to survive something. I am sure that your uncle will pull through the illness. I'm glad he pulled through.

pull together (as a team) to cooperate; to work well together. Let's all pull together and get this done. If we pull together as a team, we can get this job done on time.

Pull up a chair. Please get a chair and sit down and join us. (Assumes that there is seating available. The speaker does not necessarily mean that the person spoken to actually has to move a chair.) Tom: Well, hello, Bob! Bob: Hi, Tom. Pull up a chair. The three men were sitting at a table for four. Bob came up and said hello. Bill said, "Pull up a chair." Bob sat in the fourth chair at the table.

pull (up) alongside ((of) someone or something) to move to a point beside someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) The car pulled up alongside the truck and honked and the people inside waved and waved. Please pull alongside the curb.

pull up (somewhere) Go to haul up (somewhere).

pull up stakes 1. Lit. to pull up tent stakes to take down a tent in preparation to leaving. Let's pull up stakes and head home before the storm hits. 2. Fig. to end one's ties to a particular place; to get ready to move away from a place where one has lived or worked for a long time. Even after all these years, pulling up stakes is easier than you think. It's time to pull up stakes and move on.

pull up to something to drive up close to something. I pulled up to the drive-in window and placed my order. When the taxi pulls up to the curb, open the door and get in.

pulse through someone or something to flow or surge through someone or something. A jolt of electricity pulsed through Sam, causing him to jerk his hand away from the wire. They repaired the power lines and electricity began to pulse through the wires again.

pump (some) iron Sl. to lift weights for exercise. Andy went down to the gym to pump some iron. Mary's hobbies are pumping iron and running.

pump someone for something Inf. to try to get information about something out of someone. The representative of the other company pumped Harry for information, but he refused to say anything. Are you trying to pump me for company secrets?

pump someone up (for something) Inf. to get someone, including oneself, mentally ready for something. The coach tried to pump the team up so they would win. The coach talked and talked to pump them up.

pump something into someone or something and pump something in^t to try to force something, such as a gas, liquid, information, or money into someone or something. First you have to pump some air into the ball to make it hard. I pumped in the air. The hospital oxygen system pumped life-giving oxygen into Karen's lungs.

pump something out of someone or something and pump something out^t to remove something from someone or something by force or suction. The doctors pumped the poison out of her stomach. They pumped out the poison.

pump something through something to force something, such as a gas or fluid, through something. They pumped crude oil through this pipeline, all the way to the south shore. They pumped fresh air through the sewers while the workers were working inside.

pump something up^t 1. to inflate something. Do you have something with which I can pump my basketball up? I pumped up the ball just an hour ago. 2. Sl. to exercise to make muscles get bigger and stronger. The body-builder pumped her muscles up in preparation for the competition. She pumped up her muscles.

pumped (up) Sl. excited; physically and mentally ready. The team is really pumped up for Friday's game. She really plays well when she's pumped!

punch a hole in something to make a hole in something with something. John punched a hole in the wall with his fist. Mary punched a hole in the paper with her pencil.

punch in to record one's arrival at one's workplace at a certain time. What time did you punch in? I punched in at the regular time.

punch out to record that one has left one's workplace at a certain time. Why didn't you punch out when you left last night? I punched out at the regular time.

punch someone in something to strike someone in some body part. Tony punched Nick in the side. Why didn't you punch that mean guy in the nose?

punch someone on something to strike someone on some body part, typically the shoulder. (Not with the intention of causing harm.) Sally punched Frank on the shoulder just to show they were still friends. Tom punched Fred on the shoulder in a friendly way.

punch someone out^t Sl. to overcome or beat someone by punching. He threatened to punch me out. The thug punched out the cop and ran down an alley.

punch someone's lights out Sl. to knock someone out with a fist. □ You had better stop that, or I will punch your lights out! □ Do you want me to punch your lights out?

punch something down[†] to press something down. □ Punch this lever down and then try to place your telephone call. □ Punch down this lever and push this button.

punch something in[†] to crush or smash something in. □ Who punched the cereal box in? □ Who punched in the cereal box?

punch something into something to stick or press something into something. □ She punched her finger into the cake and ruined my lovely icing job. □ He finally punched a spoon into the cereal box to get it open.

punch something out of something and punch something out[†] to press on something and make it pop out of something. □ She punched the perforated stickers out of the page and stuck them onto her schoolbooks. □ Jane punched out the stickers.

punch something up[†] to register a figure on a cash register or calculator. □ Jake punched the total up, and the register drawer opened. □ He punched up the total too carelessly.

Punctuality is the soul of business. Prov. You should be on time for all your business appointments. □ The office manager insisted on everyone's coming to work on time, not a minute late. "Punctuality is the soul of business," she said.

punctuate something with something 1. to add a particular punctuation mark to a piece of writing. □ You have punctuated this ad with too many exclamation points. □ This letter is punctuated with dashes to emphasize the key points. 2. to add emphasis to one's speaking by adding phrases, exclamations, or other devices. □ Her comments were punctuated with a few choice swear words. □ Tom punctuated his address with a few choice comments about politicians.

punish someone by something to discipline someone by doing something. □ The headmaster punished the children by forcing them to go to bed early. □ She punished herself by not eating.

punish someone for something to discipline someone for [doing] something. □ Someone will punish you for what you did. □ Please don't punish me for doing it. I'm sorry.

punish someone with something to use something to discipline someone. □ The captain punished the sailor with the lash. □ Sally threatened to punish Timmy with a spanking.

punk out Sl. to chicken out (of something); to withdraw from something in cowardice. □ He was supposed to ask her out, but he punked out at the last minute. □ Come on! Stick with it! Don't punk out!

puppy love Fig. mild infatuation; infatuation as in a crush. (Used especially of adolescent relationships.) □ Is it really love or just puppy love? □ Look at them together. It may be puppy love, but it looks wonderful.

purchase something for someone to buy something for someone else; to buy something to give to someone. □ Tony purchased a number of toys for the children in the orphanage. □ Who did you purchase this gift for?

pure and simple and plain and simple absolutely; without further complication or elaboration. □ I told you what you must do, and you must do it, pure and simple. □ Will you kindly explain to me what it is, pure and simple, that I am expected to do? □ Just tell me plain and simple, do you intend to go or don't you?

pure as the driven snow pure and chaste. (Often used ironically. *Also: as ~.) □ Jill: Sue must have gone to bed with every man in town. Jane: And I always thought she was as pure as the driven snow. □ Robert was notoriously promiscuous, but tried to convince all his girlfriends that he was pure as the driven snow.

pure luck and blind luck complete luck; nothing but plain luck. □ I have no skill. I won by pure luck.

purge someone or something from something to rid something of someone or something. □ We are going to purge the delinquent members from the list. □ The court purged her arrest from the records.

purge someone or something of someone or something to rid someone or something of someone or something. □ The medicine is designed to purge the patient of the deadly toxin. □ We purged the list of the delinquent members.

purge something away[†] to wash or flush something away. □ We will purge the rusty water away and then start up the pump again. We will have fresh, clean water again in no time. □ Laura purged away the rusty water.

purr like a cat and purr like a kitten 1. Fig. [for an engine] to run well and smoothly. □ My car really purred after I got it tuned up. □ New spark plugs and this old heap will really purr like a cat. 2. Fig. [for a person] to be very pleased, and perhaps moan or purr with pleasure. □ She was so pleased that she purred like a cat. □ Sarah really purrs like a kitten when she is happy.

purr like a kitten Go to previous.

purse something up[†] to bunch or pucker something up. (Usually the lips.) □ When he tasted the lemon juice, he pursed his lips up and spat it out. □ Don pursed up his lips as if to spit it out.

push ahead (with something) 1. Lit. to go on ahead, pushing with something. □ The worker pushed ahead with the plow, moving the snow to the side of the road. □ Our car followed the snowplow, which was pushing ahead at a fast clip. 2. and push ahead (on something) Fig. to continue to progress with something. □ Let's push ahead with this project immediately. □ I want to push ahead on this project.

push along to move along; to travel along as with a purpose. □ We must push along. We have a long way to travel before morning. □ They pushed along at a steady clip until they arrived at their destination.

push at someone or something to apply pressure to and try to move someone or something. □ She pushed at him, trying to get him to get out of the way, but he wouldn't budge. □ Mary pushed at the door, trying to open it against the wind. □ There is no need for you to push at me so hard.

push down on something to press down on something, such as a button, stamp, lever, etc. □ Push down on this button if you want room service. □ Don't push down on the door handle too hard. It will break.

push for something to request or demand something. □ The citizens are pushing for an investigation of the police department. □ My secretary is pushing for a raise.

push forward to move forward; to move onward toward a goal. □ We have lots to do. We must push forward! □ They are pushing forward, hoping to complete the project on time.

push off and shove off to leave. (As if one were pushing a boat away from a dock.) □ Well, it looks like it's time to push off. □ It's time to go. Let's shove off.

push on someone or something to put pressure on someone or something. □ Don't push on me! I can't move any faster than the person in front of me! □ Push on this button if you want the steward to come. □ Push on the door a little. It will open.

push on (to something) 1. to move on to another topic; to stop doing one thing and move on to another. □ Okay. Let's push on to the next topic. □ Let us push on. We are nearly finished with the list. 2. to travel onward to something or some place. □ We left Denver and pushed on to Omaha. □ Let us push on. We are nearly there.

push on (with something) to continue to try to make progress with something. □ Let's push on with this project. We must finish it soon. □ Yes, let's push on and finish.

push one's luck and press one's luck to expect continued good fortune; to expect to continue to escape bad luck. (Often implies unreasonable expectation.) □ You're okay so far, but don't push your luck. □ Bob pressed his luck too much and got into a lot of trouble.

push (oneself) away (from something) to move oneself back and away from something. □ The skater pushed herself away from the wall. □ Tom pushed himself away from the table when he had eaten enough.

push (oneself) by (someone or something) to shove or thrust oneself past someone or something. □ In a hurry, I pushed myself by the security guard, and almost got arrested for doing so. □ I pushed by Jane and went in first.

push (oneself) off (on something) [for someone in a boat] to apply pressure to something on the shore, thus propelling the boat and oneself away. □ The weekend sailor pushed himself off on the boat he had been moored to. □ We pushed off on the dock.

push out to spread out; to expand outward. □ The sides of the box pushed out, and I was afraid it would break. □ His little tummy pushed out when he was full.

push past (someone or something) to force one's way past someone or something. (Considered a rude act.) □ Nick pushed past the others and made himself first in line. □ I pushed past the gate and went right in.

push someone around Fig. to harass someone physically; to jostle someone. (See also push someone or something about.) □ I wish you would stop pushing me around all the time. □ Stop pushing Max around if you know what's good for you.

push someone into something and push someone in^t to force someone into a situation; to force someone to do something. □ They are trying to push me into signing the contract. □ Please don't push me into it! □ You pushed me in!

push someone or something about and push someone or something around to jostle someone around. □ The crowd pushed the visitors around and made them feel unwelcome. □ People on the sidewalk pushed the delegation about during the noon rush hour.

push someone or something about in something and push someone or something around in something; push someone or something around^t to propel someone or something about on wheels. □ Freddie pushed his brother about in the wagon. □ The nurse pushed around Aunt Mary in her wheelchair.

push someone or something across (something) to move or propel someone or something across something. □ Jill pushed Fred across the ice. He simply could not skate at all. □ The old car stalled just before the bridge, so we pushed it across.

push someone or something ahead of someone to push someone or something forward from behind. □ I pushed Gerald ahead of me so he could get a better view. □ Sally pushed the cart ahead of her and filled it from the supermarket shelves.

push someone or something along to apply pressure to move someone or something along. □ The mother tried to push her child along, but he wouldn't go. □ Jane pushed the cart along, down the supermarket aisle.

push someone or something around Go to push someone or something about.

push someone or something around in something Go to push someone or something about in something.

push someone or something aside^t to shove someone or something to one side. □ Martha pushed Bill aside and went in ahead of him. □ He pushed aside the papers and laid his books on the desk.

push someone or something (away) (from someone or something) to move or force someone or something away from someone or something. □ The police pushed the crowd away from the movie star. □ They pushed away the hecklers from the stage.

push someone or something back^t (from someone or something) to move or force someone or something back from someone or something. □ I quickly pushed her back from the edge. She almost fell over. □ There wasn't enough room, so we pushed back the furniture. □ Tony pushed Jane back from the edge.

push someone or something down^t to force someone or something downward. □ Every time he tried to get up, the other boys pushed him down again. □ I pushed down the button and the machine began to operate.

push someone or something forward to shove or move someone or something to the front. □ Mary's mother pushed her forward where she would be seen. □ Let me push the piano bench forward for you.

push someone or something into someone or something to cause someone or something to bump into someone or something. □ Todd accidentally pushed Marlene into Bill. □ I pushed the lawn mower into the tree by accident.

push someone or something off (of) someone or something and push someone or something off^t to apply pressure to and force someone or something off someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ He con- tinued to come at me, but I managed to push him off me and escape. □ I pushed off the attacker.

push someone or something on (ahead) (of someone or something) to move or propel someone or something ahead. □ He did not want to go in with me, but I pushed him on forward or ahead of me. □ I went into each room to clean it, pushing the laundry cart on ahead. □ She paused for a moment to rest, and then pushed the baby stroller on.

push someone or something out of something and push someone or something out^t to force someone or something out of something. □ Nick pushed the intruder out of the house. □ Tony pushed out the intruder.

push someone or something over^t to make someone or something fall over or fall down. □ When you ran into me, you nearly pushed me over. □ You nearly pushed over your friend.

push someone or something over (something) to cause someone or something to move over something. □ The convict pushed his buddy over the wall and followed after him. □ He climbed up to the top of the fence and I pushed him over.

push someone or something to someone or something to propel someone or something to or as far as someone or something. □ Max pushed Lefty to the window and made him look out. □ I pushed the chair to the window.

push someone or something toward someone or something to propel someone or something to someone or something. □ The drama coach got behind the shy young actor playing Romeo and pushed him toward Juliet. □ Clyde pushed his victim toward the edge of the cliff.

push someone or something up^t to raise or lift someone or something. □ Jake is sliding down again. Push him up. □ Push up the window, please.

push someone, something, or an animal into something to guide, shove, or press someone, something, or an animal inside of something. □ I pushed the lawn mower into the garage and closed the door. □ I opened the garage door and pushed the dog in.

push someone to something to try to drive or force a person to do something. □ After the bankruptcy the board pushed the president to resign. □ We pushed her to reconsider, but her mind was made up.

push someone to the wall and press someone to the wall to force someone into a position where there is only one choice to make; to put someone in a defensive position. □ There was little else I could do. They pushed me to the wall.

push someone too far Fig. to antagonize someone too much; to be too confrontational with someone. □ I guess I pushed him too far, because he began shouting at me and threatening to hit me.

push someone up against the wall Go to up against the wall.

push something in^t to crush something in; to make something cave in. □ He ran at the door and pushed it in. □ He pushed in the door.

push something off on(to) someone to place one's task onto another person; to make someone else do an unwanted job. □ Don't push the dirty work off onto me. □ Kelly pushed some of her workload off on me.

push something through (something) 1. Lit. to force something to penetrate something. □ Tony pushed the needle through the cloth, and drew the thread tight. □ He pushed the needle through just like a tailor. 2. Fig. to force passage of a motion or law. □ The committee chairman managed to push the bill through the committee. □ With a little lobbying, they pushed it through.

push something to to close or nearly close something, such as a door. □ The door is open a little. Please push it to. □ Todd came in and pushed the door to.

push something (up) against someone or something to press something against someone or something. □ I pushed the chair up against the door to prevent the robber from getting in. □ Accidentally, I pushed the door against Donna and hurt her sore elbow.

push the envelope Fig. to expand the definition, categorization, dimensions, or perimeters of something. □ The engineers wanted to completely redesign the product, but couldn't push the envelope because of a very restricted budget.

push the panic button Go to hit the panic button.

push through (something) to work through or force one's way through something. □ I pushed through the snow, trying to get to the post office on time. □ The snow was very deep, but I pushed through.

push toward someone or something to move or struggle toward someone or something. □ The crowd pushed toward the convicted man, but the police held them back. □ The horses pushed toward the corral gate.

push (up) against someone or something to put pressure on someone or something. □ The small dog pushed up against me, wagging its tail. □ Push up against the ceiling tile while I try to tack it back in place.

push up on something to raise something upward; to push something up from below. □ Larry pushed up on the trapdoor and lifted it so he could climb out. □ Push up on this lever if you want the lights to get brighter.

pushed for money Go to pressed for money.

pushed for time Go to pressed for time.

pushing up (the) daisies Fig. dead and buried. (Usually in the future tense.) □ I'll be pushing up daisies before this problem is solved. □ If you talk to me like that again, you'll be pushing up the daisies.

pussyfoot around Fig. to go about timidly and cautiously. (Alludes to a cat walking carefully.) □ Stop pussyfooting around! Get on with it! □ I wish that they would not pussyfoot around when there are tough decisions to be made.

put a bee in someone's bonnet (about someone or something) Fig. to give someone an idea about someone or something; to urge someone to do something. □ Julie put a bee in my bonnet about a way to solve our money problems. □ Sam put a bee in my bonnet about having a party for Jane. □ He put a bee in my bonnet about Jane. □ I'm glad he put a bee in my bonnet.

put a cap on something Fig. to put a limit on something. □ We need to put a cap on spending in every department. □ The city put a cap on the amount each landlord could charge.

put a contract out on someone [for an underworld character] to order someone to kill someone else. The mob put out a contract on some crook from Detroit.

put a damper on something Fig. to have a dulling or numbing influence on something. The bad news really put a damper on everything. The rainy weather put a damper on our picnic.

put a dog off the scent to distract a dog from trailing the scent of someone or an animal. The odor of a skunk put the dogs off the scent.

put a hold on something to place restriction on something so that it is reserved, delayed, or inactivated. The bank put a hold on my credit card until I paid my bill. The committee agreed to put a hold on the troublesome piece of business.

put a horse out to pasture to retire a horse by allowing it to live out its days in a pasture with no work. (See also put someone out to pasture.) The horse could no longer work, so we put it out to pasture.

put a lid on something Go to a lid on something.

put a plug in⁺ (for someone or something) to say something favoring someone or something; to advertise someone or something. I hope that when you are in talking to the manager, you put a plug in for me. I could use some help. While you're there, put in a plug.

put a premium on something to make something harder or more expensive to obtain or do. The recent action of the bank directors put a premium on new home loans. The scarcity of steel put a premium on the cost of new cars.

put a price on one's head Go to a price on one's head.

put a smile on someone's face Fig. to please someone; to make someone happy. We are going to give Andy a pretty good raise, and I know that'll put a smile on his face. The surprise birthday party really put a smile on my dad's face.

Put a sock in it! Go to Stuff a sock in it!

put a spin on something to twist a report or story to one's advantage; to interpret an event to make it seem favorable or beneficial to oneself or one's cause. The mayor tried to put a positive spin on the damaging polls. The pundit's spin on the new legislation was highly critical.

put a stop to something and put an end to something to bring something to an end. I want you to put a stop to all this bad behavior. Please put an end to this conversation.

put a strain on someone or something to burden or overload someone or something. All this bad economic news puts a strain on everyone's nerves. The epidemic put a strain on the resources of the hospital.

put all one's eggs in one basket Fig. to make everything dependent on only one thing; to place all one's resources in one place, account, etc. (If the basket is dropped, all is lost.) Don't invest all your money in one company. Never put all your eggs in one basket. I advise you to diversify and not to put all your eggs in one basket.

put an amount of time in on something to spend an amount of time (doing something). You put how much time in? I put in four months on that project.

put an animal down⁺ Euph. to take the life of an animal mercifully. We put down our old dog last year. It's kind to put fatally ill animals down.

put an animal out⁺ to send an animal, such as a pet, outdoors. Did you put the cat out? Yes, I put out the cat.

put an end to something Go to put a stop to something.

put another way Go to put it another way.

put balls on something Sl. to make something more masculine or powerful; to give something authority and strength. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) Come on, sing louder. Put some balls on it. This story is too namby-pamby. Put some balls on it.

Put 'em up! Go to Hands up!

Put 'er there(, pal). Inf. Please shake hands with me. Glad to meet you. Put 'er there, pal.

put hair on someone's chest Fig. to do or take something to invigorate or energize someone, always a male, except in jest. Here, have a drink of this stuff! It'll put hair on your chest. That stuff is powerful. It will really put hair on your chest.

put ideas into someone's head Fig. to suggest something—usually something bad—to someone (who would not have thought of it otherwise). Bill keeps getting into trouble. Please don't put ideas into his head. Bob would get along all right if other kids didn't put ideas into his head.

put in a good word (for someone) Fig. to say something (to someone) in support of someone else. I hope you get the job. I'll put in a good word for you. Yes, I want the job. If you see the boss, please put in a good word.

put in a hard day at work and put in a hard day's work Fig. to work very hard at one's job. I put in a hard day at work at the office, and now I want to be left alone to rest.

put in an appearance (at something) to appear briefly at some place or at some event. I only wanted to put in an appearance at the reception, but I ended up staying for two hours. Do we have to stay a long time, or can we just put in an appearance?

put in for something to apply for something; to make a request for something. I put in for a transfer, but I bet I don't get it. She put in for a new file cabinet, but she never got one.

put in some place to dock [a vessel] temporarily some place. The ship put in at Bridgetown, Barbados, for repairs. We will put in at Honolulu for a few hours.

put it on the line Go to lay it on the line.

put money up⁺ (for something) to provide the funding for something. The government put the money up for the cost of construction. Who will put up the money for my education?

put off by someone or something distressed or repelled by someone or something. I was really put off by your behavior. We were all put off by the unfairness of the rules.

put on to pretend; to act as if something were true. Ann wasn't really angry. She was just putting on. I can't believe she was just putting on. She really looked mad.

put on a (brave) front Go to put up a (brave) front.

put on airs and give oneself airs Fig. to act better than one really is; to pretend to be good or to be superior. □ Pay no attention to her. She is just putting on airs. □ Stop giving yourself airs and act like the rest of us.

put on an act to pretend that one is something other than what one is. □ Be yourself, Ann. Stop putting on an act. □ You don't have to put on an act. We accept you the way you are.

put on the dog and put on the ritz to make things extra special or dress formally for a special event. □ Frank's really putting on the dog for the big party Friday night. □ They really put on the ritz for us.

put on the ritz Go to previous.

put on weight to gain weight; to get fat. □ I think I am putting on a little weight. I had better go on a diet. □ He has put on a lot of weight since last year.

put one at (one's) ease Fig. to cause someone to relax or feel welcome. □ She usually tells a little joke to put you at your ease. □ Please do something to put me at ease.

put one foot in front of the other 1. Lit. to walk deliberately. □ I was so tired that I could hardly even put one foot in front of the other. □ She was putting one foot in front of the other so carefully that I thought she must be ill. 2. Fig. to do things carefully and in their proper order. □ Let's do it right now. Just put one foot in front of the other. One thing at a time. □ All I need to do is put one foot in front of the other. Everything else will take care of itself.

put one in one's place to rebuke someone; to remind one of one's (lower) rank or station. □ The boss put me in my place for criticizing her. □ Then her boss put her in her place for being rude.

put one in over one's head Go to in over one's head.

put one off one's game Go to off one's game.

put one off one's stride 1. Lit. to cause one to deviate from a rhythmic stride while walking, running, or marching. □ A rabbit ran across the path and put me off my stride. 2. Fig. to interfere with one's normal and natural progress or rate of progress. □ Your startling comments put Larry off his stride for a moment. □ He was put off his stride by an interruption from the audience.

put one on one's feet Go to get one on one's feet.

put one on one's guard to make one wary or cautious. □ The menacing growl by the watchdog put me on my guard. □ Every time the boss comes around, it puts me on my guard.

put one on one's honor Fig. to inform one that one is trusted to act honorably, legally, and fairly without supervision. □ I'll put you on your honor when I have to leave the room during the test. □ They put us on our honor to take no more than we had paid for.

put one out of (one's) misery 1. Euph. Fig. to kill someone as an act of mercy. (See also put some creature out of its misery.) □ Why doesn't the doctor simply put her out of her misery? □ He took pills to put himself out of his misery. 2. Fig. to end a suspenseful situation for someone. □ Please, put me out of misery; what happened? □ I put her out of her misery and told her how the movie ended.

put one over on someone Go to put something over on someone.

put one's back (in)to something 1. Fig. to apply great physical effort to lift or move something. □ All right, you guys. Put your backs into moving this piano. □ You can lift it if you put your back to it. 2. Fig. to apply a lot of mental or creative effort to doing something. (From ①.) □ If we put our backs to it, we can bake twelve dozen cookies today. □ The artist put his back into finishing the picture on time.

put one's best foot forward Fig. to act or appear at one's best; to try to make a good impression. □ When you apply for a job, you should always put your best foot forward. □ I try to put my best foot forward whenever I meet someone for the first time.

put one's cards on the table Go to lay one's cards on the table.

put one's dibs on something to lay a claim to something; to announce one's claim to something. □ She put her dibs on the last piece of cake. □ I put my dibs on the seat by the window.

put one's face on Fig. [for a woman] to apply cosmetics. □ Martha's gone to put her face on. □ We'll be on our way once my wife has put her face on.

put one's feet up[†] to sit down, lean back, and rest; to lie down. □ He was really exhausted and had to go put his feet up. □ Time to put up my feet and get some rest.

put one's finger on something 1. Lit. to touch something with one's finger. □ I put my finger on the button and pressed. □ Put your finger on this spot and push hard. 2. Fig. to identify and state the essence of something. □ That is correct! You have certainly put your finger on the problem. □ When she mentioned money, she really put her finger on the problem.

put one's foot down (about someone or something) Fig. to assert something strongly. □ The boss put her foot down and refused to accept any more changes to the plan.

put one's foot in it Go to next.

put one's foot in one's mouth and put one's foot in it; stick one's foot in one's mouth Fig. to say something that you regret; to say something stupid, insulting, or hurtful. □ When I told Ann that her hair was more beautiful than I had ever seen it, I really put my foot in my mouth. It was a wig. □ I put my foot in it by telling John's secret; he found out.

put one's hair up[†] to arrange one's hair into a ponytail, bun, etc. (with curlers, hairpins, etc.). □ I can't go out because I just put my hair up. □ I put up my hair every night.

put one's hand to the plow Fig. to get busy; to help out; to start working. (Alludes to grasping a plow, ready to work the fields.) □ You should start work now. It's time to put your hand to the plow. □ Put your hand to the plow and get the job done!

put one's hand up[†] to raise one's hand to get attention from whomever is in charge. □ The student put his hand up to ask a question of the teacher. □ She put up her hand to ask a question.

put one's hands on someone, something, or an animal and lay one's hands on someone, something, or an animal 1. Lit. to place one's hands on someone or an animal. □ He put his hands on the sick woman and proclaimed her cured. This act of faith healing failed, alas. □ He laid his hands on the dog and gently felt for broken bones. 2. Fig. to locate and get hold of someone or something. As soon as I can lay my hands on him, I'll get him right over here. I am trying to put my hands on the book you suggested. 3. Fig. to get hold of someone or an animal with punishment or harm as a goal. Just wait till I put my hands on you! When I lay my hands on Ken, he will be sorry he ever lied to me.

put one's head on the block (for someone or something)

Fig. to take great risks for someone or something; to go to a lot of trouble or difficulty for someone or something; to attempt to gain favor for someone or something. I don't know why I should put my head on the block for Joan. What has she ever done for me? Sally tried to get me to put in a good word about her with the boss. But the last time I put my head on the block for anyone, it all backfired, and when the person goofed up, I looked like an idiot!

put one's heart (and soul) into something Fig. to put all of one's sincere efforts into something. She put her heart and soul into the singing of the national anthem. Come on, choir. You can sing better than that. Put your heart into it!

put one's house in order Fig. to put one's business or personal affairs into good order. (As if one were cleaning one's house. See also put one's own house in order.) There was some trouble in the department office and the manager was told to put his house in order. Every now and then, I have to put my house in order. Then life becomes more manageable.

put one's mind to something and set one's mind to something Fig. to concentrate on doing something; to give the doing of something one's full attention. I know I can do it if I put my mind to it. I will set my mind to it and finish by noon.

put one's money on someone or something (to do something) 1. Fig. to bet money that someone or something will accomplish something. I put my money on the favorite to win the race. Donna put her money on the winning horse. 2. Fig. to predict the outcome of an event involving someone or something. (This is not a wager.) I put my money on Bob to get elected this time. Alice put her money on the most popular candidate.

put one's neck on the line Fig. to put oneself at great risk. I put my neck on the line and recommended you for the job, and now look what you've done! I'm ruined!

put one's nose in (where it's not wanted) and stick one's nose in (where it's not wanted) Fig. to interfere in someone else's business. Why do you always have to stick your nose in? Please don't put your nose in where it's not wanted!

put one's nose out of joint Go to get one's nose out of joint.

put one's nose to the grindstone Fig. to keep busy doing one's work. (Also with have and get, as in the examples.) The boss told me to put my nose to the grindstone. I've had my nose to the grindstone ever since I started working here. If the other people in this office would get their noses to the grindstone, more work would get done.

put one's oar in[†] and stick one's oar in[†]; put one's two cents(' worth) in[†] Fig. to add one's comments or opinion, even if unwanted or unasked for. You don't need to put your oar in. I don't need your advice. I'm sorry. I shouldn't have stuck my oar in when you were arguing with your wife. Do you mind if I put in my oar? I have a suggestion. There is no need for you to put in your two cents' worth.

put one's own house in order to make one's own affairs right, before or instead of criticizing someone else. (See also put one's house in order.) You should put your own house in order before criticizing someone else. I have to put my own house in order before I criticize others.

put one's thinking cap on[†] Fig. to start thinking in a serious manner. (Usually used with children.) It's time to put our thinking caps on, children. All right now, let's put on our thinking caps and do some arithmetic.

put one's trust in someone or something to trust someone or something. Will I never be able to put my trust in you? You can put your trust in the bank. Its deposits are insured.

put one's two cents(' worth) in[†] Go to put one's oar in[†] put one through one's paces and put something through its paces Fig. to give someone or something a thorough test; to show what someone or something can do. I brought the young gymnast out and put her through her paces.

put oneself in someone else's place and put oneself in someone else's shoes to allow oneself to see or experience something from someone else's point of view. Put yourself in someone else's place, and see how it feels. I put myself in Tom's shoes and realized that I would have made exactly the same choice.

put oneself out to inconvenience oneself. I just don't know why I put myself out for you! No, I did not put myself out at all. It was no trouble, in fact.

put out to generate [lots of something]. What a great machine. It really puts out! The new laser printer really puts out!

put out a warrant (on someone) and send out a warrant (on someone) to issue a warrant for the arrest of someone. The police put out a warrant on Max. We sent out a warrant on Lefty "Fingers" Moran at the same time.

put out (about someone or something) irritated; bothered. John behaved rudely at the party, and the hostess was quite put out. Liz was quite put out about the question.

put out (some) feelers (on someone or something) to arrange to find out about something in an indirect manner. I put out some feelers on Betty to try and find out what is going on. I will put out feelers on what's going on with June.

put paid to something to consider something closed or completed; to mark or indicate that something is no longer important or pending. (As if one were stamping a bill "paid".) At last, we were able to put paid to the matter of who is to manage the accounts.

put people or things together to join or combine people or things. We will put Sam and Trudy together at the dinner table. Let's put all the crystal goblets together.

put people's heads together to join together with someone to confer. Let's put our heads together and come up with a solution to this problem. Mary and Ted put their heads together, but failed to provide anything new.

put pressure on something to apply weight or pressure to something. (See also put (the) pressure on someone (to do something).) Put pressure on the wound to stop the bleeding. Put some pressure on the papers to flatten them out.

put roots down[†] (some place) to settle down somewhere; to make a place one's permanent home. I'm not ready to put roots down anywhere yet. I'm ready to put down roots some place. I want to settle down. I want to put roots down and buy a house.

put some creature out of its misery to kill an animal in a humane manner. (See also put one out of one's misery.) The vet put that dog with cancer out of its misery. Please, put my sick goldfish out of its misery.

put some distance between someone and oneself or something to move or travel away from someone or something. Jill and I aren't getting along. I need to put some distance between her and me. I drove fast to put some distance between Max and me.

put some sweet lines on someone Go to lay some sweet lines on someone.

put some teeth into something Fig. to increase the power or efficacy of something. The mayor tried to put some teeth into the new law. The delivery clause in the contract is too weak. Put some teeth into it.

put (some) years on someone or something Fig. to cause someone or something to age prematurely; to cause deterioration in the state of someone or something. (The some may be replaced with a specific number or period of time.) The events of the last week have really put a lot of years on Gerald. The severe weather put many years on the roof of the house.

put someone across (in a good way) and get someone across (in a good way) to present someone in a good way or a good light. I don't want Tom to make the speech. He doesn't put himself across well. I get myself across in situations like this. I'll do it.

put someone away[†] 1. Sl. to kill someone. (Underworld.) The gangster threatened to put me away if I told the police. They've put away witnesses in the past. 2. Euph. to bury someone. My uncle died last week. They put him away on Saturday. They put away my uncle in the cold ground. 3. and send someone away Euph. to have someone put into a mental institution. My uncle became irrational, and they put him away. They put away my aunt the year before. 4. and send someone away Euph. to sentence someone to prison for a length of time. (Underworld.) They put Richard away for fifteen years. The judge put away the whole gang.

put someone behind bars Go to behind bars.

put someone behind the eight ball Go to behind the eight ball.

put someone by someone or something Go to by someone or something.

put someone down as something bad to judge that someone is bad or undesirable in some way. (See also put some- one or something down as something.) He was so rude that I put him down as someone to be avoided. If you act silly all the time, people will put you down as a fool.

put someone down (for something) to put someone's name on a list of people who volunteer to do something or give an amount of money. Can I put you down for ten dollars? We're having a picnic, and you're invited. Everyone is bringing something. Can I put you down for potato salad?

put someone in[†] Go to put someone into power.

put someone in a bad mood Go to in a bad mood.

put someone in an awkward position to make a situation difficult for someone; to make it difficult for someone to evade or avoid acting. Your demands have put me in an awkward position. I don't know what to do. I'm afraid I've put myself in sort of an awkward position.

put someone in harm's way Go to in harm's way.

put someone in mind of someone or something to remind someone of someone or something. Mary puts me in mind of her mother when she was that age. This place puts me in mind of the village where I was brought up.

put someone in the hole Go to in the hole.

put someone in the picture Go to in the picture.

put someone in touch with someone or something to cause or help someone to communicate with someone or something. Can you put me in touch with Liz? Would you please put me in touch with the main office?

put someone in(side) (something) to place or insert someone inside something. The sheriff put Roger inside the cell and locked the door. He opened the cell door and put Roger in.

put someone into power and put someone in[†] to elect or appoint someone to office or a position of power. The board decided to put an unknown from another company into the presidency. They put in a complete unknown.

put someone into the doghouse Go to in the doghouse.

put someone into the doldrums Go to in the doldrums.

put someone into the gutter Go to in the gutter.

put someone off[†] 1. to delay dealing with someone until a later time. I hate to keep putting you off, but we are not ready to deal with you yet. I had to put off the plumber again. He really wants his money. 2. to repel someone; to distress someone. You really put people off with your scowling face. You put off people with your arrogance. 3. to avoid or evade someone. I don't wish to see Mr. Brown now. Please put him off. I won't talk to reporters. Tell them something that will put them off. Put off those annoying people!

put someone off (of) something and put someone off[†] to remove someone from a form of transportation, such as a train, ship, or airplane, owing to illness or misbehavior. (See also put someone off. Of is usually retained before pronouns.) The captain ordered that the unruly passengers be put off the ship at the next port. We put the thief off at the dock.

put someone off the scent Fig. to distract someone or a group from following a scent or trail. (From put a dog off the scent; the scent or trail can be purely figurative.

(See also put someone off the track.) □ The clever maneuvers of the bandits put the sheriff's posse off the scent. □ The mob laundered the drug money to try to put investigators off the trail.

put someone off the track and put someone off the trail to cause someone to lose a trail that is being followed. (See also put someone off the scent; throw someone off the track.) □ A distraction put me off the track and I almost got lost in the jungle. □ I was following an escaped convict and something put me off the trail.

put someone off the trail Go to previous.

put someone on to tease or deceive someone innocently and in fun. □ Come on! You're just putting me on! □ He got real mad even though they were only putting him on.

put someone on a diet Go to on a diet.

put someone on a pedestal Go to on a pedestal.

put someone on hold Fig. to stop all activity or communication with someone. (See also put someone or something on hold.) □ John put Ann on hold and started dating Mary. □ "You can't just put me on hold!" cried Ann.

put someone on the spot Fig. to ask someone forthright questions; to demand that someone produce as expected. □ Don't put me on the spot. I can't give you an instant answer. □ The boss put Bob on the spot and demanded that he do everything he had promised.

put someone onto someone or something to alert someone to the existence of someone or something; to lead someone to someone or something. □ Nancy put Elaine onto George, who knew of a job that Elaine might be interested in. □ Nancy put Elaine onto a good job lead.

put someone or an animal out of something and put someone or an animal out^t to get rid of someone or an animal; to eliminate someone or an animal from something or some place. □ The usher put the noisy boys out of the theater. □ He put out the boys. □ Please put out the cat after dinner.

put someone or an animal to sleep 1. to cause someone or an animal to sleep, perhaps through drugs or anesthesia. □ The doctor put the patient to sleep before the operation. □ I put the cat to sleep by stroking its tummy. 2. Euph. to kill someone or an animal. □ We had to put our dog to sleep. □ The robber said he'd put us to sleep forever if we didn't cooperate.

put someone or some creature to death to kill someone or some creature. □ The killer was put to death right at midnight.

put someone or some creature out in the cold Go to out in the cold.

put someone or something above someone or something to place someone or something at a higher level than someone or something. □ The captain put one soldier above the wall so he could see trouble coming. □ In the painting, the artist put an angel above the small shed.

put someone or something ahead (of someone or something) 1. to move or place someone or something in front of someone or something. □ The teacher put Freddie ahead of Mike, because Mike had been disrespectful. □ Don't put him ahead! I didn't do anything. 2. to think of someone or something as more important than someone or something. □ I put Gerry ahead of Betty as far as strength is concerned. □ Yes, I would put Gary ahead. □ She put herself ahead of everyone else and expected special treatment.

put someone or something among someone or something to place someone or something in the midst of people or things. □ The martial arts instructor put Fred among the strongest students to see what he would do. □ The shopkeeper put the green pears among the ripe ones and tried to sell them.

put someone or something at loose ends Go to at loose ends.

put someone or something at someone's disposal to make someone or something available to someone; to offer someone or something to someone. □ I'd be glad to help you if you need me. I put myself at your disposal. □ I put my car at my neighbor's disposal.

put someone or something before someone or something Go to place someone or something before someone or something.

put someone or something down^t 1. Go to set someone or something down. 2. Fig. to belittle or degrade someone or something. □ It's an old car, but that's no reason to put it down. □ You put down everything you don't understand!

put someone or something down^t as something to write down the name of someone or a group as something. (See also put someone down as something.) □ I will put you down as cook for the benefit luncheon. □ I put down John as a likely prospect.

put someone or something forward 1. Lit. to move someone or something forward. □ The director put all the players forward during the last scene, leaving more room for the chorus to come on for the finale. □ Could you put your left foot forward a little? 2. Fig. to suggest someone or something; to advance the name of someone or something. □ I put Henry forward as a possible nominee. □ I would like to put forward a plan.

put someone or something in^t Go to put someone or something into something.

put someone or something in(to) jeopardy to put someone or something into danger. □ What you just said puts Bill into jeopardy. □ It puts his plans in jeopardy.

put someone or something into order to put people or things into a proper sequence. □ Would you please put these people into order by height so we can march into the auditorium? □ Could you put these magazines into order?

put someone or something into something and put someone or something in^t to insert or install someone or something into something. □ The magician put the woman into the cabinet and locked the door. □ She put in the woman and locked the cabinet.

put someone or something into the middle of nowhere Go to in the middle of nowhere.

put someone or something on hold to put someone or someone's telephone call on an electronic hold. (See also put someone on hold.) □ Please don't put me on hold! I'm in a hurry! □ I am going to have to put your call on hold.

put someone or something on ice 1. Lit. to put a body part or corpse on ice or under refrigeration to preserve it; to put a foodstuff on ice or under refrigeration to cool it. □ The surgeon transplanted a heart that had been put on ice for two hours. □ Please put the soda pop on ice. 2. Fig. to postpone acting on someone or something. □ I know he keeps pestering you for an answer, but we'll just have to put him on ice until we have more facts to go on. □ Let's put this project on ice till we find out how well it's financed.

put someone or something on something to place someone or something on top of something. □ The man put the child on the pony and led it about. □ June put the lid on the pickle jar and put it in the fridge.

put someone or something on track Go to on track.

put someone or something out of one's mind to forget someone or something; to make an effort to stop thinking about someone or something. (Almost the same as get someone or something out of one's mind.) □ Try to put it out of your mind. □ I can't seem to put him out of my mind.

put someone or something out of the way to move someone or something out of a pathway. (See also put someone out of the way.) □ Please put that chair out of the way before someone trips on it. □ Put the baby out of the way so the noise doesn't bother her.

put someone or something over to succeed in making someone or something be accepted. □ The public relations expert helped put John over to the public. □ Do you think we can put this new product over?

put someone or something through (to someone) to put someone's telephone call through to someone. □ Will you please put me through to the international operator? □ Please put my call through.

put someone or something to the test Fig. to see what someone or something can achieve. □ I think I can jump that far, but no one has ever put me to the test. □ I'm going to put my car to the test right now, and see how fast it will go.

put someone or something under something to place someone or something beneath something. □ Dave put Sam under the loft in the barn, hoping no one would find him there. □ Alice put the birthday present under the couch, where she could get to it in a hurry.

put someone or something with someone to place someone or something with someone; to assign someone or something to someone. □ I will put David with you and let you two work together for a while. □ I will put this project with you for the time being.

put someone out^t to distress or inconvenience someone. □ I'd like to have a ride home, but not if it puts you out. □ Don't worry. It won't put out anybody.

put someone out of the way Euph. to kill someone. □ The police suspected that she had put her uncle out of the way in order to inherit his property.

put someone out on a limb Go to out on a limb.

put someone out to pasture Fig. to retire someone. (Based on put a horse out to pasture.) □ Please don't put me out to pasture. I have lots of good years left. □ This vice president has reached retirement age. It's time to put him out to pasture.

put someone over a barrel Go to over a barrel.

put someone's back up Go to get someone's dander up.

put someone's eye out^t to puncture or harm someone's eye and destroy its ability to see. □ Careful with that stick or you'll put your eye out. □ He fell on a stick and almost put out his eye!

put someone's nose out of joint Fig. to make someone resentful. □ What's wrong with Jill? What put her nose out of joint? □ Don't put your nose out of joint. I didn't mean anything by what I said.

put someone through something to cause someone to have to endure something. □ The doctor said he hated to put me through all these tests, but that it was medically necessary.

put someone through the mill Go to through the mill.

put someone through the wringer Fig. to give someone a difficult time; to interrogate someone thoroughly. (Alludes to putting something through an old-fashioned clothes wringer.) □ The lawyer really put the witness through the wringer! □ The teacher put the students through the wringer.

put someone to bed and send someone to bed to make someone go to bed. □ Mother put Jimmy to bed and kissed him. □ Sally was naughty and was sent to bed.

put someone to bed with a shovel Sl. to bury someone; to kill and bury someone. □ Shut up! You want me to put you to bed with a shovel? □ The leader of the gang was getting sort of tired and old, so one of the younger thugs put him to bed with a shovel.

put someone to shame 1. to embarrass someone; to make someone ashamed. □ I put him to shame by telling everyone about his bad behavior. 2. to show someone up. □ Your excellent efforts put us all to shame.

put someone to sleep 1. to bore someone. □ That dull lecture put me to sleep. □ Her long story just put me to sleep. 2. Go to put someone or an animal to sleep.

put someone under Fig. to anesthetize someone. □ They put him under with ether. □ After you put her under, we will begin the operation.

put someone under a spell Go to under a spell.

put someone under arrest Go to under arrest.

put someone up^t to provide lodging for someone. □ I hope I can find someone to put me up. □ They were able to put up John for the night.

put someone up against someone to place someone into competition with someone else. □ The coach put his best wrestler up against the champ from the other team. □ The varsity put themselves up against the alumni team in a game to benefit charity.

put someone up^t (for something) to nominate or offer someone for some office or task. □ I put Henry up for club president. □ We put up Shannon for treasurer.

put someone up to something to cause someone to do something; to give someone the idea of doing something. □ Who put you up to throwing the party? □ Nobody put me up to it. I thought it up myself.

put someone up with someone to house someone with someone. □ I will put her up with my cousin, who has an extra bedroom. □ We will put up the lady with us.

put someone wise to someone or something Go to wise to someone or something.

put something across (to someone) and get something across (to someone) Fig. to make something clear to someone; to convince someone of something; to get a plan accepted. I don't know how to put this point across to my class. Can you help? Can you help me get this across?

put something aside[†] to set or place something to the side. I put the magazine aside and began reading a book. Put aside your work for a minute and listen to what I have to tell you.

put something aside for a rainy day Go to save (something) for a rainy day.

put something aside[†] (for something) to hold something in reserve for some purpose. You should put a little of the sugar aside for your coffee in the morning. Please put aside some money for me. I can put a little aside.

put something at a premium to make something available only at an extra cost or through extra effort. The scarcity of fresh vegetables at this time of year puts broccoli at a premium. The high demand for apples puts them at a premium.

put something at an amount to price something at a certain amount of money; to estimate something at a certain figure. I would put the charges at about two hundred dollars. She put the damages at nearly two hundred thousand dollars.

put something at someone's door Go to lay something at someone's door.

put something away[†] 1. Lit. to return something to its proper storage place. When you are finished with the hammer, please put it away. Don't leave it out. Put away this mess! 2. Fig. to eat something. Are you going to put this last piece of cake away? Did you put away that whole pizza?

put something back[†] 1. to return something to where it was before. Please put the book back when you finish it. Put back the book when you finish. 2. Go to set something back.

put something back in play Go to in play.

put something back on track Go to back on track.

put something behind one Fig. to try to forget about something. I look forward to putting all my problems behind me. She will be happier when all this can be put behind her.

put something behind someone or something to place something in back of someone or something. I put the box behind Mary, and she didn't even know it was there. Please put the present behind the couch where Janet will not see it.

put something by and lay something by to reserve a portion of something; to preserve and store something, such as food. I put some money by for a rainy day. I laid some eggs by for our use tomorrow.

put something down[†] 1. Fig. to repress or put a stop to something such as a riot or rebellion. The army was called to put down the rebellion. The police used tear gas to put the riot down. 2. Go to set something down.

put something down[†] in black and white and set something down[†] in black and white Fig. to write down the terms of an agreement; to draw up a written contract; to put the details of something down on paper. (Alludes to black ink and white paper.) We agree on all the major points. Now, let's set it down in black and white. I think I understand what you are talking about, but we need to put down the details in black and white.

put something down to something and set something down to something to explain something as being caused by something else. I put his bad humor down to his illness. We set your failure down to your emotional upset.

put (something) forth to exert effort. You are going to have to put more effort forth if you want to succeed. You need to put forth. You are not carrying your load.

put something forward[†] to state an idea; to advance an idea. Toward the end of the meeting, Sally put an idea forward. He put several suggestions forward.

put something in[†] to submit something, such as an order, request, or demand. In fact, I put the order in some time ago. I put in a request for a new monitor.

put something in a nutshell Fig. to state something very concisely. (Alludes to the small size of a nutshell and the amount that it would hold.) The explanation is long and involved, but let me put it in a nutshell for you. To put it in a nutshell: you are fired!

put something in apple-pie order Go to in apple-pie order.

put something in layaway and put something in will-call to purchase something by paying part of the price initially, and not receiving the goods until all the money has been paid. I couldn't afford a winter coat right now, so I picked one out and put it in layaway. Please put this in will-call. I'll pay for it next month.

put something in limbo Go to in limbo.

put something in mothballs 1. Lit. to put something into storage in mothballs. He put his winter coat in storage with mothballs each fall and had to air it out for a week each spring. 2. Fig. to put something into storage or reserve. (Often said of warships.) The navy put the old cruiser in mothballs and no one ever expected to see it again. Let's just put this small bicycle in mothballs until we hear of a child who can use it.

put something in order Go to in order.

put something in play Go to in play.

put something in quotes to put quotation marks around writing or printing. Please put this word in quotes, since it means something special the way you have used it here. They put it in quotes so people would know it means something different.

put something in the back of someone's mind Go to in the back of someone's mind.

put something in the open Go to in the open.

put something in the way of someone or something to place a barrier in the way of someone or something. You know I don't want to put anything in the way of your happiness. I would never put anything in the way of you and Donna.

put something in will-call Go to put something in layaway.

put something in writing Go to in writing.

put something in((side) someone or something) to place or insert something inside someone or something. The surgeon put a tube inside Chuck and left it there to drain fluid. □ While you have the closet door open, will you put this in?

put something into effect and put something into force to make something take effect; to begin using or enforcing a policy or procedure. □ When will the city council put this law into effect? □ We will put it into force tomorrow.

put something into orbit Go to in orbit.

put something in(to) order to make something tidy. □ Please put this room into order. □ I will put it in order as soon as I have a minute.

put something into perspective Go to in perspective.

put something into place Go to in place.

put something into practice to make a suggested procedure the actual procedure. □ That is a good policy. I suggest you put it into practice immediately. □ I plan to put the new technique into practice as soon as I can.

put something in(to) print to publish something; to record something spoken in printed letters. □ The article looks good. We will put it into print as soon as possible. □ We'll put it in print as soon as we can.

put something in(to) service and put something into use to start to use a thing; to make a device operate and function. □ I hope that they are able to put the elevator into service again soon. I am tired of climbing stairs. □ We will put it in service within an hour. □ When can we put the new copier into use?

put something in(to) someone's head Fig. to give ideas to someone who might not have thought of them without help. □ Who put that idea into your head? □ No one put it in my head. I thought of it all by myself.

put something into use Go to put something in(to) service.

put something into words Fig. to form an idea into sentences that can be spoken or written. □ I find it hard to put my thoughts into words. □ She put it into words quite nicely.

put something off^t to postpone something; to schedule something for a later time. □ I have to put off our meeting until a later time. □ I put off a visit to the dentist as long as I could.

put something on^t to place clothing onto one's body; to get into a piece of clothing. □ I put a heavy coat on to go outside in the cold. □ Please put on this one and see if it fits.

put something on hold to postpone something; to stop the progress of something. (See also put someone on hold; put someone or something on hold.) □ They put the project on hold until they got enough money to finish it. □ Sorry, but we must put your plan on hold.

put something on its feet Go to on its feet.

put something on paper Fig. to write something down. □ You have a great idea for a novel. Now put it on paper. □ I'm sorry, I can't discuss your offer until I see something in writing. Put it on paper, and then we'll talk.

put something on someone or an animal to clothe someone or an animal in something. □ The mother put a little jacket on her child. □ Alice puts a silly little coat on her poodle during the winter.

put something on someone or something to place or set something on someone or something. □ She put sand on Tom as he lay napping on the beach. □ Please put the paper on the coffee table.

put something on someone's shoulders Go to on someone's shoulders.

put something on the back burner Go to on the back burner.

put something on the cuff Fig. to buy something on credit; to add to one's credit balance. □ I'll take two of those, and please put them on the cuff. □ I'm sorry, Tom. We can't put anything more on the cuff.

put something on the front burner Go to on the front burner.

put something on the map Fig. to make some place famous or popular. □ The good food you serve here will really put this place on the map. □ Nothing like a little scandal to put an otherwise sleepy town on the map.

put something on the market Go to on the market.

put something on the street Sl. to tell something openly; to spread news. □ There is no need to put all this gossip on the street. Keep it to yourself. □ Now, please don't put this on the street, but I am going to get married.

put something out^t 1. to emit something. □ The factory put a lot of fumes out. □ It put out nasty fumes. 2. to extinguish something on fire. □ He used flour to put the grease fire out. □ He put out the fire with flour. 3. to manufacture or produce something. □ That factory puts electrical supplies out. □ We put out some very fine products. 4. to publish something. □ When was this book put out? □ We put out both books last year.

put something over^t to accomplish something; to put something across. (See also put someone or something over.) □ This is a very hard thing to explain to a large audience. I hope I can put over the main points. □ This is a big request for money. I go before the board of directors this afternoon, and I hope I can put it over.

put something over on someone and put one over on someone to play a trick on someone; to deceive someone with something. □ We really put one over on the teacher and boy, was he mad. □ I'm too observant. You can't put anything over on me.

put something plainly to state something firmly and explicitly. □ To put it plainly, I want you out of this house immediately. □ Thank you. I think you've put your feelings quite plainly.

put something right Go to set something right.

put something straight Go to set something straight.

put something through its paces Go to put one through one's paces.

put something to bed Fig. to complete work on something and send it on to the next step in production, especially in publishing. (From put someone to bed.) □ This week's edition is finished. Let's put it to bed. □ Finish the editing of this book and put it to bed.

put something to (good) use to apply a skill or ability; to use a skill or ability. □ The lawyer put her training to good use for the charity. □ The pianist put his talents to use at the party.

put something to rest and lay something to rest Fig. to put an end to a rumor; to finish dealing with something and forget about it. □ I've heard enough about Ann and her illness. I'd like to put the whole matter to rest. □ I'll be happy to lay it to rest, but will Jane?

put something together 1. Lit. to assemble something. □ How long will it take to put dinner together? □ This model was put together incorrectly. 2. Fig. to consider some facts and arrive at a conclusion. □ I couldn't put everything together to figure out the answer in time. □ When I put together all the facts, I found the answer.

put something under pressure Go to under pressure.

put something up 1. to build a building, a sign, a fence, a wall, etc. □ We'll put a garage up next month. □ The city put up a fence next to our house. 2. to store and preserve food by canning or freezing. □ This year we'll put some strawberries up. □ We put up a lot of tomatoes every year.

put something up for auction Go to up for auction.

put something up for sale Go to up for sale.

put teeth in(to) something Go to give teeth to something.

Put that in your pipe and smoke it! Fig. Inf. See how you like that!; It is final, and you have to live with it. □ Well, I'm not going to do what you want, so put that in your pipe and smoke it! □ I'm sick of you, and I'm leaving. Put that in your pipe and smoke it!

put the arm on someone Fig. to apply pressure to someone. □ John's been putting the arm on Mary to get her to go out with him. □ John has been putting the arm on Bill to get him to cooperate.

put the bite on someone and put the touch on someone Sl. to try to get money from someone. □ Tom put the bite on me for ten dollars. □ Bill put the touch on me, but I told him to forget about it.

put the blame on someone or something and lay the blame on someone or something; place the blame on someone or something to blame someone or something; to assign a bad outcome to someone or something. □ Don't put the blame on me. I didn't do it. □ We'll have to place the blame for the damage on the storm.

put the brakes on someone Fig. to block someone's activities; to cause someone to stop doing something. (Based on put the brakes on something.) □ The boss put the brakes on Gerald, who was trying too aggressively to get promoted. □ We are going to have to put the brakes on you if you make any more difficulties.

put the brakes on something to halt or impede some process. □ The manager had to put the brakes on the Wilson project due to lack of funds. □ We will put the brakes on this project because it is costing too much money.

put the cart before the horse Fig. to have things in the wrong order; to have things confused and mixed up. (Also with have.) □ You're eating your dessert first! You've put the cart before the horse. □ John has the cart before the horse in most of his projects.

put the chill on someone and put the freeze on someone Sl. to ignore someone; to end social contact with someone. □ Max put the chill on the guys who threatened him. □ Max put the freeze on Lefty.

put the clamps on someone or something and put the clamps on Sl. to impede or block someone or something; to restrain or restrict someone. □ Fred had to put the clamps on Tony, who was rushing his work too much. □ Tony is getting a little anxious. Time to put on the clamps.

put the fear of God in(to) someone Fig. to frighten someone severely; [for something] to shock someone into contrite behavior. □ A near miss like that really puts the fear of God into you. □ Yes, it puts the fear of God in you.

put the feed bag on and put the nose-bag on Fig. to eat a meal. (Both refer to a method of feeding a horse by attaching a bag of food at its nose and mouth.) □ It's time to put the feed bag on! I'm starved! □ When do we put on the nose-bag?

put the finger on someone and lay the finger on someone Sl. to accuse someone; to identify someone as the one who did something. □ Tom put the finger on John, and John is really mad. □ He'd better not lay the finger on me. I didn't do it.

put the freeze on someone Go to put the chill on someone.

put the hard word on someone Go to put the make on someone.

put the heat on 1. to turn on central heating; to increase the amount of heat in a room or house. □ It's going to get cold tonight. I'd better put the heat on. □ Let's put on the heat to take off the chill. 2. Go to next.

put the heat on (someone) and put the screws on (someone); put the squeeze on (someone); put the heat on; put the screws on; put the squeeze on Sl. to put pressure on someone (to do something); to coerce someone. □ John wouldn't talk, so the police were putting the heat on him to confess. □ When my boss puts the screws on, he can be very unpleasant. □ The police know how to put the squeeze on.

put the kibosh on someone or something Fig. to squelch someone or something; to veto someone or someone's plans. □ I hate to put the kibosh on Randy, but he isn't doing what he is supposed to. □ Your comments put the kibosh on the whole project.

put the make on someone and put the moves on someone; put the hard word on someone Sl. to attempt to seduce or proposition someone. □ I think he was beginning to put the make on me. I'm glad I left. □ James tried to put the hard word on Martha. □ Are you putting the moves on me?

put the moves on someone Go to previous.

put the nose-bag on Go to put the feed bag on.

put the pedal to the metal Sl. to press a car's accelerator to the floor; to drive very fast. □ Let's go, man. Put the pedal to the metal. □ Put the pedal to the metal, and we'll make up some lost time.

put (the) pressure on someone (to do something) to make demands on someone; to try to get someone to do something. □ Please don't put pressure on me to go there! □ We put the pressure on him to get him to come, but he refused.

put the screws on (someone) Go to put the heat on (someone).

put the skids on (something) Sl. to cause something to fail. □ They put the skids on the project when they refused to give us any more money. □ That's the end of our great idea! Somebody put the skids on.

put the skids under someone or something Sl. to cause someone or something to fail. □ Her lateness put the skids under our presentation to the board of directors. □ He thought he could get promoted if he put the skids under the vice president.

put the squeeze on someone 1. Inf. to attempt to get money out of someone. □ The mob put the squeeze on all the merchants, threatening to break their windows if they didn't pay. □ Are you trying to put the squeeze on me for more money? 2. Go to put the heat on (someone).

put the touch on someone Go to put the bite on someone.

put to bed with a shovel 1. Sl. dead and buried. (Alludes to burying someone.) □ You wanna be put to bed with a shovel? Just keep talking that way. □ Poor old Jake. He was put to bed with a shovel last March. 2. Sl. intoxicated. □ He wasn't just tipsy. He was put to bed with a shovel! □ Dead drunk? Yes, he was put to bed with a shovel.

put to it strained or exhausted. □ Man, I'm really put to it! What a day! □ John was put to it to get there on time.

put too fine a point on something Fig. to make too much out of something; to dwell overly long on a small detail of a complaint or argument. (Usually with not. Formal or stilted.) □ Not to put too fine a point on it, but did you really mean to say that Paul was the former secretary of the organization? Wasn't he the corresponding secretary? □ When he said that everyone was angry, he put too fine a point on it.

put two and two together to figure something out from the information available. □ Well, I put two and two together and came up with an idea of who did it. □ Don't worry. John won't figure it out. He can't put two and two together.

put up a (brave) front and put on a (brave) front Fig. to appear to be brave (even if one is not). □ Mary is frightened, but she's putting up a brave front. □ If she weren't putting on a front, I'd be more frightened than I am.

put up a fight and put up a struggle to make a struggle, a fight, etc. (Fixed order.) □ Did he put up a fight? □ No, he only put up a bit of a struggle.

put up a struggle Go to previous.

put up one's dukes Fig. to be prepared to fight. □ He's telling you to put up your dukes. □ Put up your dukes and be a man!

Put up or shut up! 1. Inf. a command to prove something or stop talking about it; Do something or stop promising to do it! □ I'm tired of your telling everyone how fast you can run. Now, do it! Put up or shut up! □ Now's your chance to show us that you can run as fast as you can talk. Put up or shut up! 2. Inf. a command to bet money in support of what one advocates. □ If you think that your horse is faster than mine, then make a bet. Put up or shut up! □ You think you can beat me at cards? Twenty bucks says you're wrong. Put up or shut up!

put up with someone or something to tolerate or endure someone or something; to be able to stand someone or something. □ I cannot put up with your constant whining any longer! □ We can put up with John's living here until he finds a place of his own.

put upon by someone to be made use of to an unreasonable degree. (Typically passive.) □ My mother was always put upon by her neighbors. She was too nice to refuse their requests for help. □ Jane feels put upon by her live-in mother-in-law.

put wear (and tear) on something to cause deterioration in the state of something. (There can be various amounts of wear and tear. See the examples.) □ This road salt puts a lot of wear on cars. □ All this wave action puts too much wear and tear on the boat dock.

put weight on[†] Fig. to gain weight; to grow fat. □ The doctor says I need to put some weight on. □ I have to go on a diet because I've been putting on a little weight lately.

put weight on some part of the body to subject an injured body part, as a foot or knee, to the weight of standing, to test its strength. □ My doctor told me I can put weight on my broken leg next week.

put words in(to) someone's mouth Fig. to interpret what someone said so that the words mean what you want and not what the speaker wanted. □ I didn't say that! You are putting words into my mouth. □ Stop putting words in my mouth!

Put your money where your mouth is! Inf. Stop just talking and stake your own money! (From gambling. Can also be said to someone giving investment advice.) □ You want me to bet on that horse? Did you? Why don't you put your money where your mouth is? □ If this is such a good stock, you buy it. Put your money where your mouth is!

Put your trust in God, and keep your powder dry. and Keep your powder dry. Prov. Have faith that God will make sure that you win a conflict, but be prepared to fight well and vigorously. (Supposed to have been said by Oliver Cromwell; powder means gunpowder.) □ Bill: Am I going to win my lawsuit? Alan: All you can do is put your trust in God, and keep your powder dry.

putt along to move along rapidly, usually in a motorized vehicle. ("Putt-putt" is the sound made to mimic engines, especially small engines.) □ The little car was putting along down the highway, when one of the tires went flat. □ We were putting along very smoothly all the way into town.

putter about Go to putter around.

putter around and putter about to do little things of little consequence; to do small tasks as found around the house. □ I spent all of Saturday just puttering around, not really getting anything done. □ I stayed home and puttered about during my vacation.

putty in someone's hands Fig. [of someone] easily influenced by someone else; excessively willing to do what someone else wishes. (Putty is soft and malleable. *Typically: be ~; seem like ~.) □ Bob's wife is putty in his hands. She never thinks for herself. □ Jane is putty in her mother's hands. She always does exactly what her mother says.

a put-up job Inf. a deception; a deceptive event. □ That's really phony; a put-up job if I ever saw one. □ No put-up job is clever enough to fool me.

putz around Inf. to fiddle around; to mess around. □ Stop putzing around and get to work. □ Those guys spend most of their time just putzing around.

puzzle over someone or something to consider or ponder someone or something. □ Anne is a bit strange. I've spent some time puzzling over her. □ While I was puzzling over why she had slapped me, she did it again.

puzzle something out¹ to figure something out. □ It took me a while to puzzle it out. □ I can't puzzle out the meaning of this argument.

Qq

quail at someone or something to show fear at someone or something; to shrink from someone or something. Todd quailed at the thought of what he had to do. The students quailed at the teacher who had been so hard on them in the past.

quail before someone or something to cower before or at the threat of someone or something. The students quailed before the angry principal. They quailed before the thought of punishment.

quake in one's boots Go to shake in one's boots.

quake with something to shake as with fear, terror, etc. Alice was quaking with fear as the door slowly opened. Todd quaked with terror when he saw the vicious dog at the door.

qualify as something to fulfill the requirements to be something. Tom qualified as a mechanic. I have been qualified as a mechanic since I was twenty.

qualify for something to meet the requirements for something. I'm sorry, you do not qualify for this job. I don't qualify for it.

qualify someone as something to cause someone to fulfill the requirements for something. Does this course qualify me as a stockbroker? She qualified herself as a realtor.

qualify someone for something to enable someone to meet the requirements for something. His years with the company qualified him for pension. Does this ticket qualify me for the drawing?

quality time time spent with someone allowing interaction and closeness. He was able to spend a few minutes of quality time with his son, Buxton, at least once every two weeks.

qualms (about someone or something) an uneasy feeling of one's conscience about someone or something. (*Typically: cause ~; have ~; have no ~; give someone ~.) Do you have any qualms about telling a little white lie to Mary about her not getting an invitation to the party?

quarrel (with someone) (about someone or something) to have an argument with someone about the subject of someone or something. Please don't quarrel with me about money. You are always quarreling with Claire.

quarrel (with someone) (over someone or something) to have an argument with someone about someone or something. Todd quarreled with Carl over who was going to get the new secretary. They are quarreling over Sally.

quarrel with something to argue against something; to have a complaint about something. I can't quarrel with that. Does anyone want to quarrel with that last remark?

The Queen's English "Official" British English. He can't even speak The Queen's English! Despicable!

queer as a three-dollar bill Go to phony as a three-dollar bill.

queer for something Inf. in the mood for something; desiring something. (Old.) I'm queer for a beer right now. She's queer for him because of his money.

quest for someone or something to seek after someone or something. Martin is off questing for a book on baroque organ building. She is questing for a better way to do it.

a question of something a matter of something; a problem of something. It's not a matter of not wanting to go to the opera. It's a question of money.

question someone about someone or something to ask someone about someone or something. The police questioned Roger about the crime. Then they questioned Claire about Roger.

question someone at great length Go to at great length.

queue up (for something) to line up for something. (Typically British.) We had to queue up for tickets to the play. You must queue up here to get in.

quibble (about someone or something) (with someone) and quibble (over someone or something) (with someone) to be argumentative or contentious with someone about someone or something. Let's not quibble about it. Please don't quibble with your sister. No need to quibble over it.

quick and dirty Fig. [done] fast and carelessly; [done] fast and cheaply. I am not interested in a quick and dirty job. I want it done right. The contractor made a lot of money on quick and dirty projects that would never last very long.

quick as a flash Go to next.

quick as a wink and *quick as a flash; *quick as (greased) lightning; *swift as lightning very quickly. (*Also: as ~.) As quick as a wink, the thief took the lady's purse. I'll finish this work quick as a flash. Quick as greased lightning, the thief stole my wallet.

quick as (greased) lightning Go to previous.

quick like a bunny really quick. Now's your chance. Do it! Quick like a bunny!

quick off the mark quick starting or reacting. (Compare this with slow off the mark.) Boy, you were quick off the mark there! If you can be really quick off the mark, you can soon find the answer.

quick on the draw Go to next.

quick on the trigger and quick on the draw 1. Lit. quick to draw a gun and shoot. Some of the old cowboys were known to be quick on the trigger. *Wyatt Earp was particularly quick on the draw. 2. Fig. quick to respond to anything. John gets the right answer before anyone else. He's really quick on the trigger. *Sally will probably win the quiz game. She's really quick on the draw.

quick on the uptake quick to understand or learn something. □ Just because I'm not quick on the uptake, it doesn't mean I'm stupid. □ Mary understands jokes before anyone else because she's so quick on the uptake.

a quick study a person who is quick to learn things. (Compare this to a slow study.) □ Jane, who is a quick study, caught the joke immediately and laughed before everyone else.

a quick temper and a short temper; a short fuse a bad temper that can be easily aroused. □ Tyler has a quick temper and doesn't mind letting everyone see it.

quicker than hell Inf. very fast. □ You got over here quicker than hell. □ Be careful in the stock market. You can lose all your money quicker than hell.

quicker than you can say Jack Robinson Go to before you can say Jack Robinson.

quiet as a (church) mouse and quiet as the grave very quiet. (*Also: as ~.) □ You'd better be as quiet as a mouse while Grandma takes her nap so you won't wake her up. □ This town is quiet as the grave now that the factories have closed.

quiet as the grave Go to previous.

quiet down to become quiet; to become less noisy. □ Please quiet down. □ Ask them to quiet down.

quiet someone or an animal down^t to make someone or an animal more quiet. □ Please go and quiet the children down. □ Try to quiet down the children. □ Please quiet that dog down.

quip about someone or something to joke about someone or something. □ The kids were quipping about the principal's hairpiece. □ It is rude to quip about an elderly person.

quit a place to leave a place. □ In the autumn, Melinda quit Paris and traveled south to warmer climes. quit on someone 1. [for something] to quit while someone is using it. □ This stupid car quit on me. □ I hope this thing doesn't quit on me. 2. [for one] to leave one's job, usually suddenly or unannounced. □ Wally, the park supervisor, quit on us at the last minute. □ My assistant quit on me.

quit over someone or something to stop working or doing something because of someone or something; to quit because of a dispute over someone or something. □ Please don't quit over a silly thing like that. □ She quit over one of her fellow workers.

quit while one is ahead to stop doing something while one is still successful. □ When will I learn to quit while I'm ahead? □ Get into the market. Make some money and get out. Quit while you're ahead.

quite a bit Go to next.

quite a few and quite a lot; quite a bit; quite a number much or many. □ Do you need one? I have quite a few. □ I have quite a bit—enough to spare some. □ How many? Oh, quite a number.

quite a lot Go to previous.

quite a number Go to quite a few.

quite a something definitely something; a good example of something. □ The captain of the swim team is quite a swimmer. □ That's quite a bruise you have there.

quite something something very good or remarkable. □ You should see their new house. It's quite something. □ Meg's mother has bought a new hat for the wedding and it's quite something.

quiver with something 1. Lit. to shake or shiver from something, such as cold, fear, anticipation, etc. □ On seeing the bear, the dogs quivered with fear. □ Todd quivered with the cold. 2. Fig. to experience eagerness or joy. □ I quivered with delight when I saw the dessert. □ Tom quivered with eagerness as the door opened.

quiz out (of something) to earn permission to waive a college course by successful completion of a quiz or exam. □ Andrew was able to quiz out of calculus. □ After studying very hard, he quizzed out.

quiz someone about someone or something to ask someone many questions about someone or something. □ The general quizzed the soldier about the incident. □ The officer quizzed her about Randy.

quiz someone on someone or something to give someone a quiz or test over the subject of someone or something. □ The teacher quizzed the students on the chapter she had assigned for homework. □ I hope they quiz me on George Washington. I am prepared.

quote a price to name or state in advance the charge for doing or supplying something. □ The mechanic quoted a price of $100 to repair my car. □ The carpenter quoted a price for fixing the stairs.

quote someone or something out of context Go to out of context.

quote (something) from someone or something to recite something verbatim that someone else has said; to recite something verbatim from a printed source. □ May I quote from your letter of the tenth? □ Do you mind if I quote a line from Keats?

quote, unquote a parenthetical expression said before a word or short phrase indicating that the word or phrase would be in quotation marks if used in writing. □ So I said to her, quote, unquote, it's time we had a little talk.

Rr

race against someone or something to attempt to win a trial of speed against someone or something. I don't want to race against Kelly. She is too fast. I had to race against time to get there before the baby got worse.

race against time 1. a rush; a rush to beat a deadline. We were in a race against time to beat the deadline. It was a race against time, but we made it. 2. to hurry to beat a deadline. We had to race against time to finish before the deadline. You don't need to race against time. Take all the time you want.

race around to run or move around in a great hurry. Stop racing around and calm down! I have been racing around all morning, trying to get some things done.

race around (after someone or something) to rush here and there to find or fetch someone or something. I had to race around after Tom. I couldn't seem to catch up to him. I wish I could find the dog without having to race around all over the neighborhood.

race for something to run or drive fast to get to something in a hurry. I raced for the door to see who was there. The children raced for the best seats in front of the television set.

race into someone or something to bump or crash into someone or something. The boys raced into the side of the car, and one of them was hurt. We raced into Mary and knocked her over.

race into something to run into a place. The children raced into the room and headed straight for their presents. Please don't race into the garden. You will trample the flowers.

race someone for something to compete against someone for a prize; to try to outrun someone to get to something first. I will race you for the grand prize. Ned raced his sister for the breakfast table every morning.

race someone to some place to compete against someone to see who gets to a place first. I will race you to the door. Tim wanted to race me to the corner.

race through someone or something to run or chase through a group of people or a place. The children raced through the group of ladies standing by the door. The dogs raced through the room, upsetting a lamp.

race through something to perform some task very rapidly. They raced through their prayers and jumped into bed.

The children raced through dinner, in a hurry to get outside to play.

race to someone or something to run to someone or something. The girls raced to the front room. We all raced to Mary, who had the candy.

race up to someone or something to run to someone or something. Molly raced up to Paul and kissed him on the cheek. We raced up to the door and opened it cautiously.

race with someone or something to enter a speed contest with someone or something. I refuse to race with Carla. She is much too fast for me. I can't race with a horse!

rack one's brain(s) Fig. to try very hard to think of something. I racked my brains all afternoon, but couldn't remember where I put the book. Don't waste any more time racking your brain. Go borrow the book from the library.

rack out Sl. to go to bed and to sleep. I'm really tired. I've got to go rack out for a while. I racked out until nearly noon.

rack something up[†] 1. Lit. to place something onto or into its rack. You had better rack the billiard balls up when you finish this game. Please rack up the balls. 2. Fig. to accumulate something; to collect or acquire something. They all racked a lot of profits up. We racked up twenty points in the game last Saturday. 3. Sl. to wreck or damage something. Fred racked his new car up. He racked up his arm in the football game.

racked with pain suffering from severe pain. My body was racked with pain, and I nearly passed out. My head was racked with pain.

radiate from someone or something to spread out from someone or something, as with rays. Happiness radiated from Mary. She was so proud! The heat radiated from the wall next to the furnace room.

raffle something off[†] to give something away by a drawing or raffle. They will raffle a television set off. They are going to raffle off a television set this weekend at the school.

rag on someone and rake on someone Sl. to bother someone; to irritate someone; to criticize and humiliate someone. I wish you would stop ragging on me. I don't know why you are so annoyed at me. Stop raking on me!

rag out Sl. to dress up. I like to rag out and go to parties. I hate to rag out. I like comfortable clothes.

rag someone about someone or something 1. to complain to someone about someone or something. Why are you always ragging me about Mary? Stop ragging me about being late. 2. to tease someone about someone or something. I wish you would stop ragging me about my hat. Why do you always rag me about my funny walk? I can't help it.

rage against someone or something to vent one's anger about someone or something; to criticize someone or something severely. She exhausted herself raging against Judy. Mary is raging about the office politics again.

rage at someone or something to direct one's anger at someone or something. Why are you raging at me? What on earth did I do? Nothing can be solved by raging at the police department.

rage out of control to become uncontrollable. □ The fire raged out of control and threatened the residential area. □ If we didn't do something quickly, the fire would be raging out of control.

rage over someone or something to fight furiously over someone or something. □ The two managers both wanted to hire the same prospective employee. They raged over her for nearly an hour. □ The bears raged over that one fish for a long time.

rage through something 1. Lit. [for a fire] to burn rapidly through an area or a building. □ The fire raged through the unoccupied building. □ When the fire began to rage through the forest, we knew we had better head for the river.
2. Fig. [for someone] to move rapidly through some sequence or process, as if in a rage. □ Harry raged through the contract, looking for more errors. □ She raged through the book, angry with everything she read.

rail against someone or something to complain vehemently about someone or something. □ Why are you railing against me? What did I do? □ Leonard is railing against the tax increase again.

rail at someone (about something) to complain loudly or violently to someone about something. □ Jane railed at the payroll clerk about not having received her check. □ I am not responsible for your problems. Don't rail at me!

railroad someone into something to force someone into doing something in great haste. □ The salesman tried to railroad me into signing the contract. □ You can't railroad me into doing anything!

railroad something through (something) to force something through some legislative body without due consideration. □ The committee railroaded the new constitution through the ratification process. □ Mary felt she could railroad the legislation through.

rain cats and dogs Fig. to rain very hard. □ It's raining cats and dogs. Look at it pour! □ I'm not going out in that storm. It's raining cats and dogs.

a rain check (on something) 1. a piece of paper allowing one to see an event—which has been canceled—at a later time. (Originally said of sporting events that had to be canceled because of rain. *Typically: get ~; have ~; take ~; give someone ~.) □ The game was canceled because of the storm, but we all got rain checks on it. □ I can't use a rain check because I'm leaving town for a month.

2. a reissuance of an invitation at a later date. (Said to someone who has invited you to something that you cannot attend now, but would like to attend at a later time. *Typically: get ~; have ~; take ~; give someone ~.) □ We would love to come to your house, but we are busy next Saturday. Could we take a rain check on your kind invitation? □ Oh, yes. You have a rain check that's good anytime you can come by and visit.
3. a piece of paper that allows one to purchase an item on sale at a later date. (Stores issue these pieces of paper when they run out of specially priced sale merchandise. *Typically: get ~; have ~; take ~; give someone ~.) □ The store was all out of the shampoo they advertised, but I got a rain check. □ Yes, you should always take a rain check so you can get it at the sale price later when they have more.

rain down on someone or something to fall or drop down on someone or something like rain. □ The ashes from the incinerator rained down on us, getting our clothes dirty. □ The hail rained down on us—some of it quite large.

rain in on someone or something [for rain] to enter a window or other opening and get someone or something wet. □ Carol left the window open, and it rained in on her in the night. □ The storm rained in on my carpet!

rain on someone's parade and rain on someone or something Fig. to spoil something for someone. □ I hate to rain on your parade, but your plans are all wrong. □ She really rained on our plans.

rain or shine no matter whether it rains or the sun shines. (See also come rain or shine.) □ Don't worry. I'll be there rain or shine. □ We'll hold the picnic—rain or shine.

rain something down⁺ (on someone or something) to pour something, such as criticism or praise, onto someone or something. (Based on rain down on someone or something.) □ The employees rained criticism down on the personnel manager for the new policy on sick leave. □ The audience rained down compliments on the performers.

rain something out⁺ [for the weather] to spoil something by raining. □ Oh, the weather looks awful. I hope it doesn't rain the picnic out. □ It's starting to sprinkle now. Do you think it will rain out the ball game?

rain (up)on someone or something [for rain, or something similar] to fall on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The ashes from the erupting volcano rained on all the people fleeing the village. □ It rained on the fields until they were flooded.

raise a (big) stink (about someone or something) Go to make a (big) stink (about someone or something).

raise a few eyebrows Go to raise some eyebrows.

raise a hand (against someone or something) Go to lift a hand (against someone or something).

raise a hue and cry (about something) Fig. to make an issue about something; to alert people to a problem or difficulty. (See also hue and cry.) □ The city council raised a hue and cry about the mayor's proposed budget.

raise a stink (about something) Go to create a stink (about something).

raise (an) objection (to someone or something) to mention an objection about someone or something. □ I hope your family won't raise an objection to my staying for dinner. □ I'm certain no one will raise an objection. We are delighted to have you.

raise Cain to make a lot of trouble; to raise hell. (A Biblical reference, from Genesis 4.) □ Fred was really raising Cain about the whole matter. □ Let's stop raising Cain.

raise havoc with someone or something and play havoc with someone or something to create confusion or disruption for or among someone or something. □ Your announcement raised havoc with the students. □ I didn't mean to play havoc with them.

raise hell (with something) Go to raise the devil (with something).

raise hob with someone or something and play hob with someone or something to do something devilish to someone or something; to cause trouble for someone or something. (A hob is a hobgoblin, a wicked little elf.) □ Your sudden arrival is going to play hob with my dinner plans. □ Sorry, I didn't mean to raise hob with you.

raise money for someone or something and raise money to do something to work to earn money or encourage donations for the benefit of someone, something, or doing something. □ I worked hard to raise money for college, and then decided not to go.

raise one's glass to someone or something to propose a drinking toast in salute to someone or something. □ Let us all raise our glasses to George Wilson! □ They raised their glasses to the successful campaign.

raise one's sights Fig. to set higher goals for oneself. (Alludes to someone lifting the sights of a gun in order to fire farther.) □ When you're young, you tend to raise your sights too high. □ On the other hand, some people need to raise their sights.

raise one's voice against someone or something Fig. to speak out loudly or angrily against someone or something; to complain about someone or something. □ Tony was very polite and did not raise his voice against Roger. □ I was too timid to raise my voice against the injustices of the day.

raise one's voice (to someone) Fig. to speak loudly or shout at someone in anger. □ Don't you dare raise your voice to me! □ I'm sorry. I didn't mean to raise my voice.

raise some eyebrows and raise a few eyebrows Fig. to shock or surprise people mildly (by doing or saying something). (Some can be replaced with a few, someone's, a lot of, etc.) □ What you just said may raise some eyebrows, but it shouldn't make anyone really angry. □ John's sudden marriage to Ann raised a few eyebrows.

raise someone from something to help someone up from a lowly state. □ They hoped for some windfall to raise them from their poverty. □ They raised me from the depressed state I was in.

raise someone from the dead Fig. to bring a dead person back to life. (When used figuratively, usually refers to something very bad or offensive.) □ How great are your magic powers? Can you raise people from the dead? □ They say her singing could raise people from the dead.

R

raise someone or an animal from something Fig. to bring up someone or an animal from a young state. □ My grandmother raised me from a baby. □ We raised all these rabbits from babies.

raise someone or something to something to elevate someone or something to something at a higher level. □ Dan raised Alice up to the window. □ I helped raise the ladder to the top of the roof.

raise someone or something to the surface (of something) to bring someone or something up to the surface of a body of water. □ The pull of the inflatable life vest raised Tom to the surface of the water. □ The divers were able to raise the sunken ship to the surface.

raise someone or something up[†] to lift someone or something up. □ The aides raised the patient up while the nurse spread clean linen beneath him. □ Jane raised up the lid.

raise someone's spirits Go to someone's spirits.

raise someone to something to promote or advance someone to a higher rank. □ The boss raised her to vice president after one year. □ I hope she raises me to head clerk.

raise something with someone to bring up a matter with someone. □ I will raise that question with Mary when she comes in. □ Please raise the question with the boss.

raise the ante Go to up the ante.

raise the bar Fig. to make a task a little more difficult. (As with raising the bar in high jumping or pole vaulting.) □ Just as I was getting accustomed to my job, the manager raised the bar and I had to perform even better.

raise the devil (with someone) to severely chastise someone or a group. □ The coach came in and raised the devil with Sally for her error in the first quarter of the game. □ I'm going to raise the devil with him!

raise the devil (with something) and raise hell (with something) to cause trouble with something. □ That idea raises hell with my plan. □ The onions raised the devil with my stomach.

raise the dickens (with someone or something) to act in some extreme manner; to make trouble; to behave wildly; to be very angry. □ John was out all night raising the dickens. □ That cheap gas I bought really raised the dickens with my car's engine.

raise up to lift oneself up; to get up or begin to get up. □ She raised up and then fell back onto her bed. She was too weak to get up. □ I could not raise up enough to see out the window.

raised in a barn brought up to behave like a barnyard animal; having crude behavior. □ Close the door behind you! Were you raised in a barn? □ Don't wipe your nose on your sleeve. Were you raised in a barn?

rake on someone Go to rag on someone.

rake someone over the coals and haul someone over the coals Fig. to give someone a severe scolding. □ My mother hauled me over the coals for coming in late last night. □ The manager raked me over the coals for being late again.

rake something around[†] to spread something around with a rake. □ She raked the leaves around, spreading them over the flower beds as natural fertilizer. □ I need to rake around the soil and stir it up.

rake something in[†] 1. Lit. to draw or pull something inward with a rake. □ Jane is raking in the leaves into a big pile.

2. Fig. to take in a lot of something, usually money. □ Our candidate will rake votes in by the thousand. □ They were raking in money by the bushel.

rake something off[†] 1. to steal or embezzle a portion of a payment or an account. □ They claimed that no one was raking anything off and that the money was only mislaid. □ The county treasurer was caught raking off some of the tax money. 2. Go to next.

rake something off (of) something and rake something off[†] to remove something from something by raking. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Please rake the leaves off the lawn. □ Rake off the leaves.

rake something out of something and rake something out[†] to clean something out of something by raking. □ You ought to rake the leaves out of the gutter so the water will flow. □ Please rake out the leaves.

rake something up[†] 1. Lit. to gather and clean up something with a rake. □ Would you please rake these leaves up before it rains? □ Please rake up the leaves. 2. to clean something up by raking. Would you rake the yard up?

 I will rake up the yard. 3. Fig. to find some unpleasant information. His opposition raked an old scandal up and made it public. That is ancient history. Why did you have to rake up that old story?

rake through something Fig. [for someone] to rummage through something, as if with a rake. She quickly raked through the mass of loose papers, looking for the right one.
 I will have to rake through everything in this drawer to find a red pencil.

rally around someone or something Fig. to unite or assemble in support of someone or something. All the other workers rallied around Fred in his fight with management.
 They rallied around the principle that Fred stood for.

rally to someone or something to unite in support of someone or something. The students rallied to Betty, their elected president. We all rallied to the cause.

ralph something up^t Sl. to vomit something. (Teens and collegiate.) The doctor gave him some stuff that made him ralph it up. He ralphed up his dinner.

ram into someone or something to crash into someone or something. Mary accidentally rammed into a fence as she rode along. The car rammed into the tree and was totally wrecked.

ram someone or something down someone's throat Go to shove someone or something down someone's throat.

ram something down^t to pack something down by pounding, as with a ram. The worker used a pole to ram the earth down and pack it tight. The worker rammed down the earth.

ram something into someone or something and ram something in^t to pound something into someone or something. He rammed his fist into Bill's side and shouted something angry at him. He rammed in his fist.

ram something through (something) 1. to force something through something. He rammed his fist through the window, cutting himself in the process. Harry put the brick up to the window glass and rammed it through. Next time he would remember his key. 2. to force something through a deliberative body, usually not allowing due consideration. They rammed the bill through the city council. The President was unable to ram the measure through Congress.

ram through something to crash or pound through something. The car rammed through the back of the garage.
 I was afraid that the truck would ram through the fence.

ramble on 1. to wander about aimlessly. (As with a traveler or a winding path.) The road rambled on through mile after mile of wilderness. 2. [for a structure] to spread out over a large area, perhaps in a random way. This old house rambles on, way back into the woods.

ramble on (about someone or something) Fig. [for someone] to talk endlessly and aimlessly about someone or something. (Based on ramble on.) I wish you wouldn't ramble on about your first husband all the time. Must you ramble on so?

range from something to something to vary from one thing to another. The winter weather ranges from bad to ter- rible in this part of the north. The appraisals of the property ranged from high to low.

range over something to cover an area; to travel about in one area. The buffalo ranged over vast areas of prairie, grazing and breeding. These animals range over a very large territory.

rank above someone to outrank someone; to rank higher than someone. I think that I rank above you, so I will sit by the window. The boss ranks above everyone and demands that everyone recognize the fact.

rank among something to be included in a particular group. In my opinion, Kelly ranks among the very best.
 Tom ranks among the most widely known of the contemporary writers.

rank and file 1. Lit. regular soldiers, not the officers. I think there is low morale among the rank and file, sir. The rank and file usually do exactly as they are told. 2. Fig. the ordinary members of a group, not the leaders. The rank and file will vote on the proposed contract tomorrow.
 The last contract was turned down by the rank and file last year.

rank as something to have a particular rank; to serve in a particular rank. She ranks as a fine pianist in my book.
 Don ranks as the top economist of the day.

rank on someone Sl. to attack someone verbally; to gossip about someone. Please stop ranking on my family! Tom keeps ranking on Jennifer, and she is really mad about it.

rank someone among something to judge someone to be essentially equal to a specific group of people. I don't rank Kelly among the best drivers in the world. Our committee ranked Fred among the best of the current applicants.

rank someone or something as something to assign a particular rank to someone or something. I have to rank Sally as number one. She's the best. Mary ranked the chocolate as the best she had ever eaten.

rank someone (out^t) 1. Sl. to annoy someone. He really ranks me out. What a pest! 2. Sl. to chastise someone. She ranked him out for being a coward. I ranked out the whole gang, but good!

rank someone with someone to judge someone to be equal with someone. Would you rank Tom with Donna? Fred ranked himself with Tom when it came to diving.

rank with someone or something to be equal to someone or something. Do you think Sarah ranks with Albert? No one ranks with Albert. The food at that restaurant ranks with that of the best places in New York.

rant against someone or something to rave and yell against someone or something. She spent most of the morning ranting against her mother-in-law. Leonard spent the entire morning ranting against the government.

rant and rave (about someone or something) to shout angrily and wildly about someone or something. Barbara rants and raves when her children don't obey her. Bob rants and raves about anything that displeases him.

rant (at someone) about someone or something to talk in a loud, violent way, about someone or something. Anne ranted about the bad service she had received at the store.

□ On the bus, someone was ranting at me about the end of the world.

rant at someone or something to rave and yell at someone or something. □ Stop ranting at me! □ The boss would never rant at the office staff.

rap at something and rap on something to tap on something to attract someone's attention. □ Who is that rapping at my door? □ Someone is rapping at the window, trying to get my attention. □ I will rap on her window and try to wake her.

rap on something Go to previous.

rap someone across the knuckles and rap someone on the knuckles; rap someone's knuckles to strike someone on the knuckles. □ As punishment, she rapped him across the knuckles. □ The teacher rapped the student on the knuckles.

rap something out^t (on something) to tap out the rhythm of something on something. □ Try to rap the rhythm out on the table. □ He rapped out the rhythm on the table.

rap with someone Sl. to have a chat with someone or a group of people. (Old.) □ Come in, sit down, and rap with me for a while. □ Let's get together and rap with one another sometime.

rarin' to go extremely keen to act or do something. □ Jane can't wait to start her job. She's rarin' to go. □ Mary is rarin' to go and can't wait for her university term to start.

rasp something out^t to carve or smooth something out with a rasp. □ You should use this tool to rasp the inside of the bowl out. Use sandpaper to make the inside smoother. □ Rasp out the inside carefully.

rat around Sl. to waste time loafing around; to kick around. (Collegiate.) □ I didn't do anything but rat around all summer. □ If kids don't have jobs, they just rat around.

rat on someone Inf. to report someone's bad behavior to someone in authority; to tattle on someone. □ John ratted on me, and I got in trouble. □ If he rats on me, I'll hit him!

R rat out Sl. to quit; to fink out (on someone or something). □ It's too late to rat out. □ He tried to rat out at the last minute.

rat race Fig. a fierce struggle for success, especially in one's career or business. □ Bob got tired of the rat race. He's retired and gone to the country. □ The money market is a rat race, and many people who work in it get out quickly because of the stress.

rate someone or something above someone or something else to judge someone to rank higher than someone else; to judge something to rank higher than something else. □ Do you rate Alice above Valerie? □ I rate chocolate ice cream above vanilla.

rate someone or something among something to judge someone or something to be essentially equal to something. □ I rate Polly among the best of this year's class. □ We rate these contestants among the best ever.

rate someone or something as something to assign a particular rating to someone or something. □ I rate her as a number four. □ The judge rated my cake as second place.

rate someone or something below someone or something else to judge someone to rank lower than someone else; to judge something to rank lower than something else. □ I have to rate Carol below Donna in this regard. □ We all rate plain chocolate ice cream below rocky road ice cream.

rate someone or something with someone or something else to judge someone or something to be equal to someone or something else. □ I rate Fred with Don. They are equally good. □ Vanilla is very nice, but I don't rate it with chocolate ice cream.

rate something at something to assign a particular level of rating to something. □ I rate this brand at about a B-. □ The broker rated this stock at a buy.

rate something below something else Go to rate someone or something below someone or something else.

rate with someone to be in someone's favor; to be thought of highly by someone. □ Ann is great. She really rates with me. □ She doesn't rate with me at all.

ration something out^t (among someone) to give people limited shares of something, attempting to make it last as long as possible. □ The captain rationed the water out among all the crew, trying to make it last as long as possible. □ Jane rationed out the cookies among the kids.

Rats abandon a sinking ship. and like rats abandoning a sinking ship Prov. You can tell when something is about to fail because large numbers of people begin to leave it. (Can imply that the people who leave are "rats," that is, selfish and disloyal.) □ Jill: The company next door must be going bankrupt. Jane: How do you know? Jill: All its employees are resigning. Rats abandon a sinking ship.

rattle around in something 1. Lit. to make a rattling noise inside something. □ What is rattling around in this package? □ There is something rattling around in my glove compartment. 2. Fig. to ride about in a vehicle with a rattle. □ I am perfectly happy to rattle around in my ten-year-old car. □ Todd rattles around in his grandfather's old car. 3. Fig. to live in a place that is much too big. □ We have been rattling around in this big old house for long enough. Let's move to a smaller place. □ I can't afford to rattle around in a three-story house any longer.

rattle away to chatter endlessly and aimlessly. □ The two old men sat there and rattled away at one another. □ Tom rattled away at Jane for a few minutes and then left the house.

rattle its saber Go to rattle one's saber.

rattle on (about someone or something) Fig. to talk endlessly about someone or something. □ Martin talked incessantly. He would rattle on about any topic whenever he could trap an unfortunate listener.

rattle one's saber and rattle its saber Fig. to make threatening statements or actions. □ The president is just rattling his saber. He would never attack such a small country!

rattle something off^t and reel something off^t to recite something quickly and accurately. □ She can really reel song lyrics off. □ Listen to Mary rattle off those numbers.

raunch someone out Sl. to disgust someone. □ These dirty socks absolutely raunch me out! □ Sam and Beavis enjoy raunching out everyone in the room.

rave about someone or something 1. to rage in anger about someone or something. □ Gale was raving about Sarah and what she did. □ Sarah raved and raved about Gale's insufferable rudeness. 2. to sing the praises of someone or something. □ Even the harshest critic raved about Larry's stage success. □ Everyone was raving about your excellent performance.

rave over someone or something to recite praises for someone or something. □ The students were just raving over the new professor. □ Donald raved over the cake I baked. But he'll eat anything.

ravished with delight Fig. happy or delighted; overcome with happiness or delight. □ Mary was ravished with delight by the dozen roses. □ My parents were ravished with delight when I graduated from college.

*a raw deal an instance of unfair or bad treatment. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Mary got a raw deal on her traffic ticket. She was innocent, but she had to pay a big fine. □ I bought a used TV that worked for two days and then quit. I sure got a raw deal. □ You sure had a raw deal.

raw recruit a new, inexperienced, or fresh recruit, such as someone just entering the army, navy, police, etc. □ These boys are nothing but raw recruits. They've never seen a gun up close!

raze something to the ground to tear down something, usually a building, to ground level. □ The council decided to raze the old city hall to the ground. □ This building is to be razed to the ground.

reach a compromise to achieve a compromise; to negotiate an agreement. □ After many hours of discussion, we finally reached a compromise. □ We were unable to reach a compromise and quit trying.

reach a conclusion to complete discussion and decide an issue. □ It took three days of talks to reach a conclusion. □ When we reach a conclusion, we will notify you of the results.

reach a dead end Go to come to a dead end.

reach a decision Go to arrive at a decision.

reach a turning point Go to a turning point.

reach an accord (with someone) and reach an agreement (with someone) to come to an agreement with someone. □ I hope that we can reach an accord with the union so work can start again. □ We will try one more time to reach an agreement with you. □ We reached an agreement and signed a contract.

reach an agreement (with someone) Go to previous.

reach an impasse to progress to the point that a barrier stops further progress. □ When negotiations with management reached an impasse, the union went on strike. □ The discussion reached an impasse and no one was able to propose a compromise.

reach an understanding with someone and come to an understanding (with someone) to achieve a settlement or an agreement with someone. □ I hope we are able to reach an understanding with the commissioners. □ We were able to reach an understanding with Tony.

reach back (in)to something to extend back into a particular period in time. □ This policy reaches back into the last century. □ Our way of making fine candies reaches back to the recipes used by the founder of the company.

reach down to extend downward. □ The stems of the plant reached down almost to the floor. □ The drapes don't quite reach down to the floor.

reach first base (with someone or something) Go to get to first base (with someone or something).

reach for someone or something to extend one's grasp to someone or something. □ I reached for my father, but he wasn't there. □ I reached for a pen, but I only had a pencil.

reach for the sky 1. and aim for the sky; shoot for the sky Fig. to set one's sights high. □ Reach for the sky! Go for it! □ You should always reach for the sky, but be prepared for not attaining your goals every time. 2. Fig. Inf. to put one's hands up, as in a burglary. □ The gunman told the bank teller to reach for the sky. □ Reach for the sky and give me all your money!

Reach for the stars! Go to Aim for the stars!

reach in(to something) to stick one's hand into something to grasp something. □ Bob reached into the cookie jar and found it empty. □ Bob went to the cookie jar and reached in.

reach one's stride and hit one's stride to do something at one's best level of ability. □ When I reach my stride, things will go faster, and I'll be more efficient. □ Now that I've hit my stride, I can work more efficiently.

reach out 1. Lit. to extend one's grasp outward. □ He reached out, but there was no one to take hold of. □ I reached out and grabbed onto the first thing I could get hold of. 2. Fig. to enlarge one's circle of friends and experiences. □ If you are that lonely, you ought to reach out. Get to know some new friends. □ I need to reach out more and meet people.

reach out (after someone or something) and reach out (for something) to extend one's grasp to someone or something. □ Don reached out after Doris, but she slipped away before he could get a good hold on her. □ Doris reached out for the door, but it slammed closed.

reach out into something to extend one's grasp out into something, such as the darkness. □ Laura reached out into the darkness, looking for the light switch. □ Jane reached out into the unlit room, hoping to find a lamp or even a candle.

reach out to someone 1. Fig. to offer someone a helping hand. □ You reached out to me just when I needed help the most. □ I reach out to other people in trouble because I would want someone to do that for me. 2. Fig. to seek someone's help and support. □ When I reached out to Don for help, he turned me down. □ Jane reached out to her friends for the help and support that she needed.

reach (rock) bottom Go to (rock) bottom.

reach someone 1. Lit. to travel up to or as far as someone. □ I ran until I reached her just in time to save her from going over the cliff. 2. Fig. to manage to be understood by someone; to have one's message appreciated by someone. □ If we could only reach them with our message, we might be able to convince them to stay in school.

reach some place in a body Go to in a body.

reach something down^t Inf. to hand something down. Please reach the hammer down to me. Would you reach down the hammer to Jane?

reach something in the (very) nick of time Go to in the (very) nick of time.

reach something up to someone Inf. to hand something up to someone. I reached the hammer up to Jack, who was fixing a loose shingle on the roof. Please reach this cold drink up to your brother.

reach speeds of some amount Go to speeds of some amount.

reach to something to extend all the way to something. Our property reaches to the bank of the river. The grounds reach all the way to the banks of the river.

reach toward someone or something to aim one's reach to someone or something. Sam reached toward Walter and took hold of his shoulder. He reached toward the apple but withdrew his hand when he saw it was rotten.

react against someone or something to respond negatively to someone or something. Why did she react against me so strongly? There is no need to react against the plan with such force.

react to someone or something to act in response to someone or something. You made some very good points. I would like to take some time to react to you. How did Mary react to the news?

read about someone or something to read information concerning someone or something. Did you read about John in the newspaper? I read about bonds, and learned a lot about finance.

read between the lines Fig. to infer something (from something else); to try to understand what is meant by something that is not written explicitly or openly. After listening to what she said, if you read between the lines, you can begin to see what she really means. Don't believe everything you read literally. Learn to read between the lines.

read for something to read, looking especially for something, such as errors, clarity, etc. Please read this manuscript for spelling and grammar errors. Read this book for entertainment and nothing more.

read from something to read [aloud] from something in particular. I will now read from a book of poetry that I like very much. I like that poem very much. What are you reading from?

read from the same page and sing from the same hymnbook Cliché share the same understanding of something. Okay, I think we are reading from the same page now. We can discuss the future of this project more productively.

read it and weep Fig. read the bad news; hear the bad news. I'm sorry to bring you the bad news. Read it and weep.

Read my lips! Go to Watch my lips!

read of someone or something (somewhere) to read news about someone or something in something. I think I have read of you in the papers. Mary read of the job opening in the newspaper.

read on to continue to read. Please read on. Don't stop. She read on until she had come to the end of the story.

read one one's rights to make the required statement of legal rights to a person who has been arrested. All right, read this guy his rights and book him on a charge of theft. You have to read them their rights before questioning them.

read oneself to sleep to read something in preparation for falling asleep. I need a really dull book so I can read myself to sleep. That's the kind of book I use to read myself to sleep.

read someone like a book Fig. to understand someone very well. I've got John figured out. I can read him like a book. Of course I understand you. I read you like a book.

read someone or something as something to interpret someone or something as something. I read you as a quiet guy who wants to settle down and have kids. Mary read the problem as one that did not require a lot of understanding.

read someone out^t (for something) to chastise someone verbally for doing something wrong. The coach read the player out for making a silly error. She really read out the lazy players.

read someone out of something to expel someone from an organization, such as a political party. Because of her statement, they read her out of the party. The officers tried to read me out of the society, but they didn't succeed.

read someone's lips to manage to understand speech by watching and interpreting the movements of the speaker's lips. I couldn't hear her but I could read her lips.

read someone's mind Fig. to guess what someone is thinking. You'll have to tell me what you want. I can't read your mind, you know. If I could read your mind, I'd know what you expect of me.

read (someone) something out of something to read something [aloud] from something. He read us a story out of the book. Mary read the story out of the magazine.

read someone the riot act Fig. to give someone a severe scolding. The manager read me the riot act for coming in late. The teacher read the students the riot act for their failure to do their assignments.

read something back^t (to someone) to read back some information to the person who has just given it. Yes, I have written the telephone number down. Let me read it back to you to make sure I have it right. Please read back the letter to me.

read something in something to read something in particular in a some publication or document. I read an interesting article about moose in today's newspaper. Did you read that in today's newspaper?

read something into something Fig. to attach or attribute a new or different meaning to something; to presume inferences as one reads something. This statement means exactly what it says. Don't try to read anything else into it. Am I reading too much into your comments?

read something off^t to read aloud from a list. □ Nick read the list of the names off, and I wasn't on the list. □ Jane read off the names.

read something out^t to read something aloud. □ Please read it out so everyone can hear you. □ Read out the names loudly.

read something over^t to read something. □ When you have a chance, read this over. □ Also, read over this report.

read something through^t to read all of something. □ Take this home and read it through. □ Read through this report and see if you can find any errors.

read (something) to someone to read something aloud to someone. □ Please read a story to me. □ Grandpa read to Timmy all afternoon.

read the handwriting on the wall Fig. to anticipate what is going to happen by observing small hints and clues. (See also see the (hand)writing on the wall.) □ I know I am going to be fired. I can read the handwriting on the wall. □ Can't you read the handwriting on the wall? Can't you see what they are planning?

read up (on someone or something) to find and read some information about someone or something. □ Please go to the library and read up on George Washington. □ I don't know anything about that. I guess I need to read up.

readjust to someone or something to make a new adjustment to someone or something. □ Please make an attempt to readjust your work schedule for the next two weeks. □ I don't think I can readjust to this climate.

ready, set, go Go to on your mark, get set, go.

ready (to do something) prepared to do something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Get ready to jump! □ It's time to get ready to go to work.

ready, willing, and able Cliché eager or at least willing [to do something]. □ If you need someone to help you move furniture, I'm ready, willing, and able. □ Fred is ready, willing, and able to do anything you ask him.

a (real) go-getter an active, energetic, and aggressive person. □ Mary is very aggressive in business. A real go-getter.

the real McCoy an authentic thing or person. □ Of course it's authentic. It's the real McCoy.

the real thing something that is genuine and not an imitation. □ I don't want frozen yogurt, I want the real thing! Yes, ice cream! □ She hates plastic that looks like wood. She wants the real thing.

the reality of the situation the truth or actuality of the situation; the way the situation really is. □ The reality of the situation is that we must act right now. □ Let's face the reality of the situation and go out and get jobs so we can pay our bills.

realize one's potential to fulfill one's potential; to do as well as one possibly can. □ I hope I can get a good education so I can realize my potential.

realize something from something 1. to perceive something from some kind of evidence. □ I just now realized something from what you've been saying. □ Tom realized how wrong he had been from what Mary told him. 2. to reap a profit by selling an asset that has increased in value. □

He realized a large profit from the sale of the house. □ We hoped to realize a lot of money from the sale of stock.

ream someone out^t Sl. to scold someone severely. □ The teacher really reamed him out. □ The coach reamed out the whole team.

ream something out^t to widen or clean an interior cavity or channel by scraping, grinding, or drilling. □ Ream the opening out so the flow will be faster. □ We had to ream out the pipes so the fuel would flow to the engine.

reap something from something 1. Lit. to harvest something from something. □ We reaped a fine harvest from our cornfields this year. □ They will reap nothing from their flooded fields. 2. Fig. to gain something from something. □ The students reaped a lot of information from their interview with the police chief. □ I hope to reap some good advice from the discussion.

reappoint someone as something to select or appoint someone to serve again in the same office. □ Are they going to reappoint Alan as the chairman again? □ Alan was reappointed as the head of the committee.

rear back 1. Lit. [for a horse] to pull back and up onto its hind legs in an effort to move backwards rapidly or throw a rider. (See also rear up.) □ The animal reared back in terror. □ The horse reared back and almost threw its rider. 2. Fig. [for a person] to pull back and stand up or sit up straighter. □ He reared back in his chair and looked perturbed. □ Tom reared back in his chair, waiting for something else to happen.

rear its ugly head Fig. [for something unpleasant] to appear or become obvious after lying hidden. □ Jealousy reared its ugly head and destroyed their marriage. □ The question of money always rears its ugly head in matters of business.

rear up 1. Lit. [for a horse] to lean back on its hind legs and raise its front legs, assuming a threatening posture or avoiding something on the ground such as a snake. (See also rear back.) □ The horse reared up suddenly, throwing the rider onto the ground. □ When the horse reared up, I almost fell off. 2. Fig. [for something, especially a problem] to raise up suddenly. □ A new problem reared up and cost us a lot of time. □ A lot of new costs reared up toward the end of the month.

reason against something to argue against something, using reason. □ I can hardly be expected to reason against a silly argument like that! □ I reasoned against it, but they paid no attention to me.

reason something out^t to figure something out; to plan a reasonable course of action. □ Now let's be calm and try to reason this out. □ Let us reason out our difficulties.

reason with someone to discuss something with someone, seeking a reasonable solution to a problem. □ Try to reason with Jill. If she won't listen, forget her. □ You cannot reason with someone who is so narrow-minded.

reassign someone to something to change someone's assignment to something else. □ I will reassign Jill to a different department. □ I was reassigned to the accounting department.

reassure someone about something to give someone confidence about something. □ Nancy reassured Betty about her promotion. □ Betty was reassured about her promotion.

reassure someone of something to promise or guarantee someone something. □ Kelly reassured her friend of her support in the election. □ Please reassure Tom of our continued support.

rebel against someone or something to resist and revolt against someone or something. □ Barbara rebelled against the teachers at the school. □ Most young people have to rebel against authority for a while.

rebel at someone or something to resist and defy someone or something. □ It is natural for teenagers to rebel at their parents. □ I feel as if I have to rebel at all these rules.

rebound from something 1. Lit. to bounce back from something. □ The ball rebounded from the wall and hit Randy hard on the elbow. □ When the ball rebounded from the backboard, it bounced onto the court and Tom tripped on it. 2. Fig. to recover quickly from something. □ Barbara rebounded from her illness in less than a week. □ I hope I can rebound from this cold quickly.

rebuke someone for something to reprimand someone for something. □ There is no need to rebuke me for a simple mistake like that. □ Sally was rebuked for overspending her budget.

recall someone from something to call someone back from something or some place. □ The president recalled our ambassador from the war-torn country. □ I was recalled from retirement to help out at the office.

recall someone or something from something to remember someone or something from some event or some place. □ I recall someone by that name from my days at the university. □ Mary recalled the appropriate fact from her history studies.

recall something to mind to cause [someone] to remember something. □ The events of the day recall similar days in the past to mind. □ This book recalls a similar book published some years ago to mind.

recall something to someone to bring something to the mind of someone. □ Your comments recall another event to me—something that happened years ago. □ What you just said recalled an old saying to me.

R recast something in something to rebuild or redevelop something in a different form. □ She recast the sentence in the negative, hoping to make it less blunt. □ I will recast my request in different language.

recede from something to pull back from something. □ The river receded from its banks during the dry season. □ I think that my hair is receding from my forehead.

receive someone as someone or something to welcome and accept someone as someone or something. □ The king received the ambassador as an honored guest. □ They said they would receive their former guest as a welcome visitor.

receive someone into something to welcome someone into something, some place, or some organization. □ Everyone received the new member into the club with eager congratulations. □ We received them into our homes and fed them well.

receive someone or something back to get someone or something back. □ Martha received her husband back after his escapade. □ I sent a letter off with the wrong postage and received it back two weeks later.

receive someone with open arms and welcome someone with open arms 1. Lit. to greet someone with arms spread wide to hug someone. □ His mother greeted him with open arms at the door. 2. Fig. to greet someone eagerly. □ I'm sure they wanted us to stay for dinner. They received us with open arms. □ When I came home from college, the whole family welcomed me with open arms.

receive something from some place to get and accept something from some place. □ I just received a letter from Budapest! □ Mary received a package from Japan.

receive something from someone to get and accept something from someone. □ Tony received a sweater from his grandfather for his birthday. □ Who did you receive this from?

receive word (from someone or something) Go to word (from someone or something).

reckon someone as someone or something to perceive someone as someone or something. □ I reckoned her as a more thoughtful individual than she turned out to be. □ Mary reckoned Scott as a constant irritation, and she was right on the button.

reckon someone or something among something to judge someone or something to belong among a select group. □ I reckon Donna among the best tennis pros in the country. □ We reckon this automobile among the most advanced in the world.

reckon someone or something into something and reckon someone or something in[†] to figure someone or something in; to include someone or something in one's calculations. □ I will reckon Jane into the total number of guests. □ I reckoned in a few too many people.

reckon with someone or something to deal with someone or something; to cope with someone or something. □ I have to reckon with the troublesome Mr. Johnson this afternoon. □ Mary knew just exactly how she had to reckon with the bill collector.

reckon without someone to fail to think about someone. □ He thought he'd get away with his crime, but he reckoned without the FBI agents. □ He had thought he was gone for sure, but he had reckoned without the paramedics.

reclaim someone or something from someone or something to bring someone or something back from someone or something. □ The mother reclaimed Sally from her father, who had abducted her contrary to the divorce decree. □ Mary reclaimed the book from her brother's desk.

recognize one for what one is Go to recognize something for what it is.

recognize someone as someone or something to accept and acknowledge someone to be someone; to accept and acknowledge something to be something. □ Mary didn't recognize the lawyer as her legal representative. □ Lizzy didn't recognize the car as her car.

recognize someone or something by something to know someone or something by some distinguishing sign. □ You will be able to recognize me by my long mustache. □ Mary recognized her car by the ribbon tied to the antenna.

recognize someone or something for something 1. to identify someone or something as something. □ I recognized the deal for a scam as soon as I heard about it. □ Anyone could recognize Max for a common thief. 2. to show appreciation to someone or something for something. The organization recognized Laura for her excellent contributions to the philanthropy committee. The officers recognized the committee for its outstanding efforts.

recognize something for what it is and recognize one for what one is to see and understand exactly what someone or something is or represents. The disease represented a serious threat to all peoples, and Dr. Smith recognized it for what it was. I recognize you for what you are, you scoundrel!

recoil at the sight (of someone or something) and recoil at the thought (of someone or something) Fig. to flinch or cringe at the sight or thought of someone or something. Sally recoiled at the sight of Gerry, who had said something unspeakable. Mary recoiled at the very thought.

recoil at the thought (of someone or something) Go to previous.

recoil from someone or something to draw back from someone or something. I recoiled from Sally when she told me what she had done. I recoiled from the horror and slammed the door.

recommend someone as something to suggest someone as something. Could you recommend Frank as a good carpenter? I can recommend Jane Smith as a good artist.

recommend someone for something to suggest someone for something. I would be very glad to recommend you for promotion. She recommended herself as the best choice.

recommend someone or something to someone to suggest that someone choose someone or something. I would like to recommend Sally to you as a good prospect for membership on the committee. Could you recommend a good mechanic to me?

recompense someone for something to (re)pay someone for something. I am required to recompense Mrs. Wilson for her broken window. Can I recompense you for your expenses?

reconcile oneself to something to grow to feel comfortable with an undesirable or challenging situation. John reconciled himself to living alone. Anne reconciled herself to having to wear glasses.

reconcile something with something to bring something into harmony, accord, or balance with something. The accountants were not able to reconcile the expense claims with the receipts that had been turned in. I can't reconcile your story with those of the other witnesses.

reconstruct something from something 1. to rebuild something from something. I was not able to reconstruct the puzzle from the pieces that were left on the floor. Can you reconstruct the damaged part of the house from these materials? 2. to recall and restate a story or the details of an event from something. Can you reconstruct the story from the fragments you have just heard? I cannot reconstruct the chain of events from memory.

record something from something to make an audio or video recording of something from some source. Listen to this. I recorded it from a radio broadcast. From what TV show did you record this?

record something in something to enter a record of something into something. I will record your appointment in my notebook. Jane recorded the memo in her computer.

record something on something to make a record of something on the surface of something. Nancy recorded the appointment on the calendar that served as a blotter on the top of her desk. Please record this on your calendar.

recount something to someone to tell something to someone; to narrate a series of events, in order. Carl recounted the events of the day to his wife. The strange events were recounted by a number of people.

recoup something from someone or something to salvage something from someone or something. I hope I can recoup my expenses from the company this week. Mary intended to recoup her money from the investment.

recover from someone or something to get over an experience with someone or something. My great-uncle just left, and it will take a day or two to recover from him. I hope I recover from his visit soon.

recover from something to recuperate from a disease. I hope I recover from this cough soon. She recovered from her cold soon enough to go on the trip.

recover something from someone or something to retrieve or salvage something from someone, something, or some place. The police recovered my purse from the thief who had taken it. Mary recovered her deposit from the failed bank.

recruit someone for something to seek and engage someone for something. Harry had to recruit a few people for the new jobs that opened up. We recruited three more people for the project.

recruit someone from something to convince someone to leave something and join one's own group. Phyllis recruited a new work team from the company she used to work for. We recruited a number of people from private industry.

recruit someone into something to seek out and induct someone into something. The recruitment office tried to recruit ten people a week into the army. The army recruited almost no one during the month of December.

recuperate from something to recover from something; to be cured or to heal after something. I hope that you recuperate from your illness soon. Has she recuperated from her surgery yet?

red as a cherry and red as a poppy; red as a rose; red as a ruby; red as blood bright red. (*Also: as ~.) When she came in from ice-skating, Clara's nose was as red as a cherry. When her boss praised her in front of the whole office, Emily turned red as a poppy. I would like to make a dress out of that beautiful velvet that is red as a rose. Jane painted her fingernails with polish as red as a ruby. I want to have my car painted red as blood.

red as a poppy Go to previous.

red as a rose Go to red as a cherry.

red as a ruby Go to red as a cherry.

red as blood Go to red as a cherry.

a red herring a piece of information or suggestion introduced to draw attention away from the real facts of a situation. (A red herring is a type of strong-smelling smoked fish that was once drawn across the trail of a scent to mislead hunting dogs and put them off the scent.) □ The detectives were following a red herring, but they're on the right track now. □ The mystery novel has a couple of red herrings that keep readers off guard.

red in the face Fig. embarrassed. □ After we found Ann hiding in the closet, she became red in the face. □ The speaker kept making errors and became red in the face.

red ink Fig. debt; indebtedness as shown in red ink on a financial statement. □ There is too much red ink in my financial statement. □ Too much red ink and the company will collapse.

red tape Fig. over-strict attention to the wording and details of rules and regulations, especially by government workers. (From the color of the tape used by government departments in England to tie up bundles of documents.) □ Because of red tape, Frank took weeks to get a visa. □ Red tape prevented Jack's wife from joining him abroad.

*the red-carpet treatment Fig. very special treatment; royal treatment. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I love to go to fancy stores where I get the red-carpet treatment. □ The queen expects to get the red-carpet treatment wherever she goes.

rededicate oneself or something to someone or something to reaffirm the dedication of oneself or something to someone or something. □ I must ask you to rededicate yourself to our high purposes. □ They rededicated their church to God.

a red-letter day Fig. an important or significant day. (From the practice of printing holidays in red on the calendar.) □ Today was a red-letter day in our history. □ It was a red-letter day for our club.

redound on someone to have an effect on someone. □ The hot weather has redounded on all of us in a bad way. □ The problems created by your mistake have redounded on the entire company.

R

reduce someone to silence to cause someone to be silent. □ The rebuke reduced him to silence—at last. □ Mary was reduced to silence by Jane's comments.

reduce someone to tears to cause a person to cry through insults, frustration, and belittling. □ He scolded her so much that she was reduced to tears by the end of the meeting.

reduce something by something to diminish something by a certain amount. □ I have to reduce your allowance by two dollars per week until you pay me back for the broken window. □ I will reduce the bill by a few dollars.

reduce something from something to something to diminish something from one degree to a lower degree. □ I will reduce the fine from two hundred dollars to one hundred dollars. □ Mary reduced her demands from a large sum to a smaller one.

reduced to doing something brought into a certain humble condition or state. □ The poor man was reduced to begging for food.

A reed before the wind lives on, while mighty oaks do fall. Prov. An insignificant, flexible person is more likely not to get hurt in a crisis than a prominent or rigid person. □ Our office has new managers now; I plan to be as inconspicuous as possible while they reorganize everyone. A reed before the wind lives on, while mighty oaks do fall.

reef a sail in^t to reduce the area of a ship's sail, by folding the sail. □ The first mate ordered the sailors to reef the sails in. □ They had to reef in the sails.

reek of something 1. Lit. to have the stench or smell of something. □ This whole house reeks of onions! What did you cook? □ She reeks of a very strong perfume. She must have spilled it on herself. 2. Fig. to give a strong impression of something. □ The neighborhood reeks of poverty. □ The deal reeked of dishonesty.

reek with something to stink with some smell. □ This place reeks with some horrible odor. □ Jane reeks with too much perfume.

reel back (from something) to fall or stagger backwards, as from a blow. □ The boxer reeled back from the blow, stunned. □ Another blow to the midsection and he reeled back and fell.

reel something in^t to bring in something, such as a fish, by winding up the line on a reel. □ With great effort, she reeled the huge fish in. □ Hurry and reel in the fish!

reel something off^t Go to rattle something off^t.

reel under something 1. Lit. to stagger under the weight of something. □ Tony reeled under the weight of the books. □ She knew she would reel under the heavy load. 2. Fig. to stagger because of a blow. □ The boxer reeled under the blow to his chin. □ Fred reeled under the beating that Mike gave him. 3. Fig. to suffer because of a burden. □ Gary reeled under the responsibilities he had been given. □ I was just reeling under the burdens of my new job.

refer someone back to someone or something to suggest that someone go back to someone or something, such as the source. □ I referred the client back to the lawyer she had originally consulted. □ Tom referred the customer back to the manufacturer who had made the shoddy product.

refer someone to someone or something to direct someone to someone or something; to send someone to someone or something. □ The front office referred me to you, and you are now referring me to someone else! □ They should have referred you to the personnel department.

refer something back to someone or something and refer something back^t to send something back to someone or a group for action. □ Dr. Smith knows more about this kind of case, so I referred it back to him. □ They referred back all the bills.

refer to someone or something to mention someone or something. □ Are you referring to me when you speak about a kind and helpful person? □ I was referring to the personnel department.

refill a prescription sell a second or subsequent set of doses of a medicine upon a doctor's orders. □ The pharmacy refused to refill my prescription because it has expired. □ If you want the drugstore to refill your prescription, just give them the prescription number over the telephone.

reflect (back) (up)on someone or something to remember or think about someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ When I reflect back on the years I spent with my parents, I think I had a good childhood. □ I like to reflect on my great-grandmother.

reflect credit (up)on someone or something [for some act] to bring credit to someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Your efforts really reflect credit upon you. □ Mary's success really reflected credit on the quality of her education.

reflected in something 1. Lit. [of something] mirrored in something, such as a mirror, water, ice, etc. □ His image was reflected in the mirror, giving him a good view of his sunburn. □ When the hermit's image was reflected in the pool, he was amazed. 2. Fig. [of something] shown in a result. □ The extra charges will be reflected in next month's bill. □ I do not understand all the charges that are reflected in my statement.

refrain from something to hold back from doing something; to choose not to do something as planned. □ I wish you would refrain from shouting. □ Please refrain from hollering.

refresh someone with something to renew or revive someone with something. □ Here, let me refresh you with a cool glass of lemonade. □ After the game, Wally will probably refresh himself with a bottle of iced tea.

refresh something with something to restore or brighten up something. □ I think we can refresh this drab old room with a coat of fresh paint. □ The old house was refreshed with new siding and some landscaping.

refund something to someone to return payment for something to someone. □ I insist that you refund the money to me at once. □ Her money was refunded to her by the store as soon as she asked for it.

refuse something to someone to deny someone permission to receive or use something. □ You wouldn't refuse water to me, would you? □ Nothing at all was refused to the new employee.

refuse to do something to reject doing something; to reject a request to do something. □ I absolutely refuse to go there! □ We all refused to break the law.

regain one's composure Cliché to become calm and composed after being angry or agitated. □ I found it difficult to regain my composure after the argument. □ Here, sit down and relax so that you can regain your composure.

regain one's feet 1. Lit. to stand up again after falling or stumbling. □ I fell on the ice and almost couldn't regain my feet. □ I helped my uncle regain his feet as he tried to get up from the floor. 2. Fig. to become independent after financial difficulties. □ I lent Bill $400 to help him regain his feet. □ I'll be able to pay my bills when I regain my feet.

regain something from someone or something to take back possession of one's property or right from someone or something. □ I intend to regain my money from Herb. □ The finance company regained the car from the delinquent buyer.

regale someone with something to present a great deal of something, such as lavish entertainment or fine food, to someone. □ They regaled their guests with food and music well into the night. □ The committee was regaled with tales of wrongdoing by the government.

regard someone or something as someone or something to look upon someone or something as someone or something; to consider someone or something to be someone or something. □ I have always regarded you as my friend. □ The cult members regarded the stone idol as their dead leader.

regard someone or something with something to look upon someone or something with a certain attitude or with certain expectations. □ The child regarded the teacher with a questioning expression. □ The kitten regarded the fishbowl with great curiosity.

regardless of something without considering something; at any rate; whatever is done; whatever option is chosen. □ Regardless of what you say, I'm still going to the club tonight. □ I still have to pay the bill, regardless of the facts.

register for something to sign up to participate in something. □ Have you registered for the class yet? □ She is registered for the same classes as I am.

register in something to enter one's name on a list for something; to sign oneself up to belong to something. □ Are you going to register in the pie-eating contest? □ We registered in the drawing for a new car.

register on something [for an effect] to show on something, such as someone's face. □ Recognition registered on her face when she saw the photograph of Walter. □ The total of the votes registered on the large scoreboard at the front of the hall.

register someone as something to record someone's name on a list of a category of people. □ I will register you as an independent voter. □ I am registered as a qualified financial advisor.

register someone for something to sign someone up to participate in something. □ Would you please register me for the workshop when you sign up? □ Excuse me. I have to register myself for the contest.

register someone in something 1. to enter someone's name on a list in something. □ I will register you in the competition. 2. to sign someone up to belong to something. □ I registered my cousin in the club.

register something with someone or something to record the existence of something with someone or something. □ Did you register your new stereo with the manufacturer? □ If you bring any packages into this store, please register them with the manager.

register with someone 1. Lit. to sign up with someone. □ You will have to register with the lady at the front desk. □ I registered with the attendant when I came in. 2. Fig. [for something] to be realized or understood by someone. □ Suddenly, the import of what she had said registered with me. □ My name did not register with her, and I had to explain who I was.

regress to something to go back to an earlier, probably simpler, state; to go back to a more primitive state. □ Bob claimed that Gerald's behavior was regressing to that of a three-year-old. □ I tend to regress to my college ways when I am out with the guys.

regular as clockwork Cliché very regular; completely predictable. (*Also: as ~.) □ George goes down to the bus stop at 7:45 every morning, as regular as clockwork. □ You can always depend on Nancy to complain about the office for fifteen minutes every afternoon, regular as clockwork.

a regular fixture someone who is found so frequently in a place as to be considered a fixture of, or part of the place. □ The manager attached himself to the luncheon club and became a regular fixture there.

a regular guy a normal and dependable guy. □ Don't worry about Tom. He's a regular guy. He won't give you any trouble.

rehearse for something to practice for something. □ We will rehearse for the graduation exercises on Saturday morning. □ We rehearsed for the play all weekend.

reign over someone or something to rule over someone or something. □ The king reigned over his subjects for over thirty years. □ The queen reigned over the country for a long time.

reimburse someone for something to repay someone for making a purchase, such as a business expense. □ I will reimburse you for whatever it cost you. □ The treasurer reimbursed himself for his expenses.

reimburse something to someone to repay money to someone, such as a business expense. □ I will reimburse the money to you. Don't worry. □ The full cost was reimbursed to me.

rein back on someone or something to control or diminish the intensity of someone or something. □ The manager was urged to rein back on her assigning overtime. □ She reined back on expenses and demanded that others do likewise.

rein someone or something in^t to bring someone or something under control; to slow down someone or something. □ Fred is getting out of hand. The boss undertook to rein him in a bit. □ The boss is trying to rein in Jane's enthusiasm.

rein something up^t to bring something, usually a horse, to a stop. □ She reined her horse up and stopped for a chat. □ Rein up your horse and stop for a while.

rein up [for a horse rider] to stop. □ The equestrian reined up and dismounted. □ We all reined up and waited for the cars to pass by.

reinforce someone or something with something to strengthen someone or something with something. □ The general reinforced his troops with volunteers fresh from basic training. □ I had to reinforce the garage roof with new boards.

reinstate someone as something to put someone back as a certain officeholder. □ The city council agreed to reinstate Mr. Wilson as alderman. □ Fred was reinstated as the court clerk.

reinstate someone in something to put someone back into a certain office or position. □ If you will pay your dues, we will reinstate you in the organization. □ Fred was reinstated in office.

reinvent the wheel Fig. to make unnecessary or redundant preparations. □ You don't need to reinvent the wheel.

Read up on what others have done. □ I don't have to reinvent the wheel, but I will be cautious before I act.

reissue something to someone to release or distribute to someone something that has been distributed before. □ I plan to reissue the check to you next week. □ The check was reissued to Mary the very next day.

reject someone or something out of hand to reject someone or something without any thought or study. □ Fred is so contrary that they rejected him out of hand when his name came up for a committee position.

rejoice at something to celebrate or revel about something. □ Everyone rejoiced at the lucky events that had saved them. □ We all rejoiced at the outcome of the election.

rejoice in someone or something to take great joy at someone or something. □ I am in love and I rejoice in my beloved! □ Roger rejoices in a good night's sleep.

rejoice over something to celebrate because of something. □ Everyone rejoiced over their good fortune. □ What happened to us next was nothing to rejoice over.

relapse into something to experience a return to a worse condition. □ Valerie relapsed into a coma in the afternoon. □ Mary relapsed into her depression after a brief period of normalcy.

relate something to someone to tell something to someone; to narrate something to someone. □ Very slowly, she related the events of the past week to her parents. □ I have an interesting story to relate to you.

relate something to something to associate something to something. □ I relate this particular problem to the failure of the company to provide proper training. □ This point is related to what I just told you.

relate to someone or something to understand, accept, or feel kinship with someone or something. □ He relates to people well. □ I really don't relate to your thinking at all.

related to someone connected through blood kinship or through marriage to someone. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ I wonder if he is related to you, because he looks a little like you. □ I am not related to anyone here.

relative to someone or something 1. concerning someone or something. □ I have something to say relative to Bill. □ Do you have any information relative to the situation in South America? 2. in proportion to someone or something. □ My happiness is relative to yours. □ I can spend an amount of money relative to the amount of money I earn.

relax into something 1. to sit or lie down in something, relaxing. □ I want to go home and relax into my easy chair. □ I relaxed into the reclining chair and was asleep in a few moments. 2. [for something that is tense] to assume a more relaxed shape or condition. □ His cramped muscle finally relaxed into a soft mass of tissue. □ As her tight neck relaxed into softness, her face brightened.

relax one's hold on someone or something to lessen one's grasp on someone or something. □ When she relaxed her hold on me, I got away. □ Never relax your hold on an alligator.

relay something to someone to pass something on to someone. □ Can you relay this to Frank, who is way down the line? □ The message was relayed to Frank, who was at the end of the line.

release someone or something from something to liberate or let someone or something go from something. The police officer released George from the handcuffs. I released all the dogs from the city dog pound.

release someone to someone to discharge or distribute someone to someone. The judge released the defendant to his mother. Don was released by the police to his father, who was more than a little bit angry.

relegate someone to someone or something to assign someone to someone or something. (Often refers to something unimportant or demeaning.) They relegated the old man to a bed in the corner. The former vice president was relegated to the position of manager of special projects.

reliance on someone or something trust and dependence on someone or something. John's reliance on his family is holding him back. Reliance on sleeping pills is dangerous.

relieve one of one's duties Euph. to fire someone; to dismiss someone from employment. I am afraid I must relieve you of your duties. After the scandal, she was relieved of her duties at the embassy.

relieve oneself Euph. to urinate or defecate. He stopped by the side of the road to relieve himself. She needed badly to relieve herself, but there was no bathroom in sight.

relieve someone of something 1. Lit. to unburden someone of something. Here, let me relieve you of that heavy box. At last, he could relieve himself of the problem. 2. Fig. to lessen someone's responsibilities. I will relieve you of some of the responsibility you have carried for so long. Let me relieve you of that job. You have enough to do.

religious about doing something Fig. strict about something; conscientious about something. Bob is religious about paying his bills on time. Max tries to be religious about being polite to everyone.

relinquish something over someone to release the hold on or control of someone. She refused to relinquish control over the operations of the front office. Mary was ordered to relinquish her hold over the children for a month each year.

relinquish something to someone or something to surrender something to someone or something. Todd refused to relinquish his authority to anyone. I finally relinquished the car to the bank.

relocate someone or something in something to reposition or move someone or something in or at something. I will have to relocate you in a different office. Can I relocate the copy machine in the other room?

reluctant to do something unwilling to do something; not wanting to do something. David was reluctant to admit his mistakes. Although reluctant to appear in court, the witness was ordered to by subpoena.

rely (up)on someone or something to depend on someone or something; to trust in someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I know I can rely upon you to do a good job. Can we rely on this old car to get us there?

remain ahead (of someone or something) Go to ahead (of someone or something).

remain ahead of something Go to ahead of something.

remain ahead of the game Go to ahead of the game.

remain aloof from someone or something Go to aloof from someone or something.

remain at bay Go to at bay.

remain at some place to stay at some place; to stay behind at some place. I will remain at the office until supper time. Please remain at home until I call you.

remain away (from someone or something) to stay away from someone or something. I must ask you to remain away from my daughter. I cannot remain away any longer. I must be with her.

remain behind to stay at a place even when others have left. Can't I go too? Do I have to remain behind? I will remain behind for a day or two.

remain behind someone or something Go to behind someone or something.

remain clear of something Go to clear of something.

remain down to stay down; to keep down. I asked them to remain down until the shooting stopped. Please remain down with me so no one will see us.

remain in limbo Go to in limbo.

remain in (something) 1. to stay within something. Please remain in the house today. It is too cold to go out. You should remain in because the weather is bad. 2. to stay in an organization as a member. He remained in the Boy Scouts until he was sixteen. I will remain in the teacher's union for many years.

remain in the back of someone's mind Go to in the back of someone's mind.

remain in touch (with someone or something) Go to keep in touch (with someone or something).

remain on 1. to continue to stay in one place. (The on is an adverb, not a preposition.) Everyone else left, but I decided to remain on there. I remained on for a while during the time they were training my replacement. 2. and remain on something to continue to be on something; to continue to serve on a body. Will you remain on the board of directors for another year? I will remain on this committee as long as I am needed. 3. to continue to take a particular medicine. How long should I stay on these pills? I want you to remain on this medication until you run out.

remain on (one's) guard (against someone or something) Go to on (one's) guard (against someone or something).

remain on something Go to remain on.

remain together to stay close together; to stay in association. We will have to remain together while we are on this tour. It is very easy to get lost in this town. The two boys remained together throughout college.

remain under something to continue to stay beneath the surface of something. Please remain under the umbrella so you don't get wet. A lot of people decided to leave the shelter, but I remained under it.

remain up to stay awake and out of bed. I remained up throughout most of the night. I cannot remain up much longer.

R

remain within (something) to stay inside something or some place. □ Please try to remain within the boundaries of the campus. □ Everyone else went out, but I decided to remain within.

remand someone (in)to the custody of someone and remand someone over to someone to order someone placed into the custody of someone. □ The court remanded the prisoner into the custody of the sheriff. □ The judge remanded Mary to the custody of the sheriff. □ The judge remanded Gerald over to his father.

remand someone over to someone Go to previous.

remark (up)on someone or something to comment on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ She remarked upon his tardiness and then continued the lesson. □ There is no need to remark on me or anything I do or don't do.

Remember me to someone. Please carry my good wishes to someone. (The someone can be a person's name or a pronoun.) □ Tom: My brother says hello. Bill: Oh, good. Please remember me to him. Tom: I will. □ Fred: Bye. John: Good-bye, Fred. Remember me to your Uncle Tom.

remember someone as something to recall someone as being a particular type of person. □ I remember Terri as a rather cheerful girl, always willing to help out. □ William will be remembered as a grouchy person.

remember someone in one's will to bequeath something to someone in one's will. □ My uncle always said he would remember me in his will. □ He failed to remember me in his will.

remember someone to someone to carry the greetings of someone to someone else. □ Please remember all of us to your uncle. □ I will remember you to my brother, who asks of you often.

Remember to write. and Don't forget to write.

1. Lit. a final parting comment made to remind someone going on a journey to write to those remaining at home. □ Alice: Bye. Mary: Good-bye, Alice. Remember to write. Alice: I will. Bye. □ Sally: Remember to write! Fred: I will!

2. Fig. a parting comment made to someone in place of a regular good-bye. (Jocular.) □ John: See you tomorrow. Bye. Jane: See you. Remember to write. □ John: Okay. See you after lunch. Jane: Yeah. Bye. Remember to write.

remind someone about someone or something to cause someone to remember someone or something. □ Will you please remind me about Fred? He's coming to visit next week. □ I will remind you about your appointments for today.

remind someone of someone or something to bring a memory of someone or something into someone's mind. □ You remind me of my brother. □ The happy song reminded us of our cabin on the lake.

reminisce about someone or something to think about one's memories of someone or something; to discuss or share memories of someone or something. □ They were reminiscing about their old friends. □ The old men sat and reminisced about the good old days.

reminisce with someone to share memories with someone. □ I love to reminisce with my sister about old times. □ Todd was reminiscing with Alice about the good old days.

reminiscent of someone or something reminding someone about someone or something; seeming like or suggesting someone or something. □ This fragrance is reminiscent of fresh flowers. □ Jane's dress seems reminiscent of the style worn in the 1920s.

remit something to someone or something to send something, especially money, to someone or a group. □ Please remit your rent to your landlady immediately. □ You are requested to remit your loan payment to the bank on time this month.

remonstrate (with someone) (about someone or something) to protest to someone about someone or something. □ After remonstrating with the manager about the price for a while, Vernon left quietly. □ I spent an hour remonstrating about Ted with Alice.

remove someone from something to take someone out of an office or position. □ The county board removed the sheriff from office. □ She removed herself from office voluntarily.

remove someone or something from someone or something to take someone or something away from someone or something. □ The authorities removed the child from his mother. □ They removed the dog from the kennel.

remunerate someone for something 1. to pay someone for something. □ Of course, I will remunerate you for your time. □ She was promptly remunerated for the hours she spent working on the project. 2. to repay someone for money spent. □ I will remunerate you for the cost of the book if you will give me the receipt. □ Please remunerate me for the charges as soon as possible.

rend something from someone or something to tear something from someone or something. (The past tense and past participle are rent.) □ Harry rent the burning clothing from the man who had just fled from the burning building. □ I will rend these dirty old clothes from my body and shower.

rend something into something to rip or tear something into something. (The past tense and past participle are rent.) □ The tailor rent the garment into shreds in his anger. □ The garment was rent into bits and pieces by the machine.

render something down¹ 1. Lit. to cook the fat out of something. □ Polly rendered the chicken fat down to a bit of golden grease that she would use in cooking a special dish. □ Jane rendered down the fat for use later. □ The cook rendered it down. 2. Fig. to reduce or simplify something to its essentials. □ Let's render this problem down to the considerations that are important to us. □ Can't we render down this matter into its essentials? □ Not all of this is important. Let's render it down.

render something in(to) something to translate something into something. □ Now, see if you can render this passage in French. □ Are you able to render this into German?

render something to someone or something and render something up (to someone or something) to give something to someone or a group. □ You must render your taxes to the government. □ I will render my money to the tax collector. □ I had to render up all my earnings.

renege on something to go back on one's promise or commitment. □ I am mad at you because you renege on your promise! □ I did not renege on what I promised.

renounce someone for something to repudiate someone for doing something. She renounced her brother for his political orientation. Jane was renounced for her illegal activities.

rent something from someone to pay someone for the use of something. We rented a small car from one of the rental agencies. They rented a house from a local realtor.

rent something (out!) (to someone) to sell temporary rights for the use of something to someone. I rented the back room out to a nice young student. We rented the back room to someone. For how long did you rent it out? Let's rent out the garage.

repair to some place to move oneself to some place. I will repair to my room until the crisis is over. She repaired to a safe place for the duration of the storm.

repatriate someone to some place to restore one to one's country of origin. He asked that they repatriate him to the land of his birth. She was repatriated to her homeland.

repay someone by something to recompense someone by doing something; to settle a debt with someone by doing something. I will repay you by cutting your lawn free for a year. How's that? Can I repay you by taking you to dinner?

repay someone for something to remunerate someone for doing something. I refused to repay him for his excessive expenses. She was repaid for her kindness many times over.

repay someone with something to remunerate someone with something. The farmer's wife repaid the plumbers with fresh eggs and cream. We were repaid with fresh eggs from the farm.

repel someone from something to push someone back from something; to fight someone off from something. The army repelled the attackers from the entrance to the city. The attacking army was repelled from the city.

replace someone or something by someone or something and replace someone or something with someone or something to remove someone or something and add someone or something in place of the first. The manager replaced two workers by a machine. Walter replaced his old lawn mower with a newer one.

replenish something with something to rebuild the supply of something with more of it. I will replenish the checking account with more money at the end of the month. Can I replenish your glass with more iced tea?

reply to someone or something to give a response to someone or something. I replied to her already. There is no reason to do it again. I will reply to her letter as soon as I can.

report about someone or something to deliver information about someone or something. Isn't it time to report about Frank and how well he is doing? I want to report about the accident.

report back (on someone or something) to return with information or an explanation from someone or something. I need you to report back on Walter by noon. I'll report back as soon as I can.

report back (to someone or something) 1. to go back to someone or something and present oneself. Report back to me at once! I'll report back immediately. 2. to present information or an explanation to someone or some group. Please report back to me when you have the proper information. I'll report back as soon as I have all the information.

report for something to present oneself for something. Please report for duty on Monday morning at eight o'clock sharp. I can't report for my examination at the time we agreed upon.

report in to present oneself; to make one's presence known. Please report in when you get back in town. He reported in and his name was taken off the absentee list.

report in sick to call one's office to say that one will not come to work because one is sick; to show up for work ill. (See also call in sick. Normally, one must be present to report in.) I don't feel well today. I will report in sick. The phone was busy, so I reported in sick by e-mail.

report something to someone to present a body of information to someone. Please report the results to the supervisor. The event was reported to the proper person.

report to someone or something 1. to present oneself to someone or an office. You must report to me for duty at noon. They told me to report to this office at this time. 2. to be supervised by someone or an office. When you start work here, you will report to Mrs. Franklin. I report directly to the home office. 3. to return to someone or an office and make a report. Please report to me when you have the results. If you have any more to say, please report to headquarters and tell the whole story.

report (up)on someone or something to present an explanation on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) The detective visited Mrs. Jones to report upon Mr. Jones. I want to report on the events of the day. Do you have time to listen?

repose in something 1. to lie stretched out in something, such as a bed. I think I would like to repose in my own bed for an hour or two before I begin my journey. Tom reposed in a comfortable chair for the rest of the evening. 2. to lie stretched out in a particular state, such as death or slumber. She lay on the cot, reposed in slumber, waiting for Prince Charming to arrive. The ruler reposed in death on public view for two days. 3. [for something] to exist in something or be part of the essence of something. Much of our cultural heritage reposes in our literature. Considerable important thinking reposes in folktales and myths.

repose (up)on something to lie on something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I will repose upon these cushions until my bathwater has been drawn. Dawn reposed on the sofa for over an hour.

represent someone in something to act as one's advocate or agent in business or legal proceedings. My lawyer represented me in court. His attorney will represent him in all his dealings with the publishing company.

represent someone or something as something to depict or portray someone or something as something; to think of someone or something as something. I don't think you should represent me as so perfect. After all, I'm human. □ The artist represented my puppy as a playful animal.

R

represent something to someone 1. to exemplify something to someone. □ What does this behavior represent to you? □ This represents a lapse in manners to me. 2. to explain a matter to someone. □ He represented the matter to me in a much more charitable light. □ I did not represent it properly to you.

reprimand someone for something to scold someone for something; to admonish someone for something. □ There is no need to reprimand me for a simple accident! □ Mary was reprimanded for being late.

reproach someone for something to rebuke or censure someone for something. □ She reproached Jerry for gambling away all their money. □ She reproached herself mercilessly for her failure.

reproach someone with something to rebuke someone with reference to something. □ I wish you wouldn't continue to reproach me with things that happened long ago. □ She was reproached with something out of the past.

reproduce something from something to make a copy of something from something else. □ I think we can reproduce the picture from the copy that you have there. We don't need the negative. □ Can you reproduce a good copy from this old print?

reprove someone for something to criticize or censure someone for something. □ The boss reprovved all the employees for their use of the telephones for personal calls. □ We were all reprovved for being late too often.

repulse someone or something from something to resist or repel someone or something from something. □ The royal guard repulsed the rebels from the palace grounds. □ Only the use of guns could repulse the starving wolves from the area around the cabin.

*a reputation (as a something) a state of having a particular kind of reputation for being something. (Can be a good or a bad reputation. *Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ She once had a reputation as a singer. □ Unfortunately, Tom's got a reputation as a cheat.

R *a reputation (for doing something) a state of having a particular kind of reputation for doing something. (Often a bad reputation, as in the examples. *Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ You'll get a reputation for cheating. □ I don't want to get a reputation for being late.

reputed to thought to do, be, or have someone or something. □ My boss is reputed to have cancer. □ My neighbor was reputed to have been a spy during the war.

request someone to do something to ask someone to do something. □ I am going to request you to turn your radio down. □ Mary was requested to arrive a few minutes early.

request something from someone to call for something from someone. □ I will request an explanation from the employee in question. □ A full report was requested from each person present.

request something of someone to call for someone to give or do something. □ I have to request a favor of you. □ Can I request anything more of him?

require a leap of faith Go to a leap of faith.

require something from someone to demand something from someone. □ The telephone company required a deposit from John and Martha before they would install a telephone. □ They required some help from us.

require something of someone to expect or demand someone to give or do something. □ I require absolute loyalty of my employees. □ What is required of me in this job?

requisition something for someone or something to present an order or formal request for something for someone or some purpose. □ I will have to requisition a desk for you. □ You can't work an eight-hour day at a table. □ We will requisition catering for the office party.

requisition something from someone or something to send an order or formal request to someone or something for something. □ The general requisitioned food and bedding from the supply depot. □ We requisitioned a new bookcase from central supply.

rescue someone or something from someone or something to save or liberate someone or something from someone or something. □ I hoped that someone would come and rescue me from this boring person. □ Nothing can rescue us from the ravages of time.

research into someone or something to study about someone or something thoroughly. □ I decided that I would research into Queen Elizabeth. □ We researched into the period in which she lived.

resemble someone or something in something to look or seem like someone or something. □ You resemble my Uncle Herman in the way you walk. □ This resembles vanilla ice cream in flavor, but not in consistency.

reserve something for someone or something to save or set aside something for someone or something. □ I am reserving this seat for Claire. □ We are reserving some of the cake for tomorrow.

reside in some place to dwell in some place. □ I reside in a small apartment in the center of town. □ The Wilsons resided in a large house on a hill.

reside in someone or something to be a property or characteristic of someone or something. □ I never knew such anger could reside in such a calm person. □ The finest acoustics that can be found in the world reside in this hall.

resign from something to make a written statement that removes one from an office or position of employment. □ Andy resigned from the fraternity. □ I will not resign from my job. You will have to fire me.

resign oneself to something to accept something reluctantly. □ I finally resigned myself to going to Mexico even though I didn't want to. □ Mary resigned herself to her fate.

resign under fire Go to under fire.

resonate with someone Fig. [for an idea, issue, or concept] to appeal to someone or cause someone to relate to it. □ The concept of wearing worn-looking clothing seems to resonate with young people. □ Your notion just doesn't resonate with the public in general.

resort to something to turn to something that is not the first choice. □ I hope they don't resort to a lawsuit to accomplish their goals. □ She will resort to anything to get her way.

resound through(out) something to roar, noisily, through a space or an enclosed area. □ An explosion resounded through the busy train station. □ An explosion resounded throughout the busy train station.

resound with something [for something, such as the air or a place] to be filled with sound or sounds. □ The hall resounded with the sounds of the orchestra. □ The house resounded with the laughter of children.

respect someone as something to admire someone as something. □ I respect you as a friend and supervisor. □ We respected them all as colleagues and coworkers.

respect someone for something to admire someone for something. □ I really respect George for his courage. □ Mary respected the company for its fine products.

respond to someone or something 1. to answer someone or something. □ Would you please respond to me? □ When are you going to respond to my letter? 2. to react to someone or something. □ You have heard his presentation. How would you respond to him? □ I need you to respond to the points in the report by the end of the day. □ The police responded right away to the riot call.

the responsible party the person or organization responsible or liable for something. □ I intend to find the responsible party and get some answers to my questions. □ Mary sued the responsible party in the car crash.

rest against someone or something to lean against someone or something; to take a rest period positioned against someone or something. □ The child rested against his father until it was time to board the train. □ A fishing pole rested against the side of the garage, ready to go to work.

rest assured to be assured; to be certain. □ Rest assured that you'll receive the best of care. □ Please rest assured that we will do everything possible to help.

rest from something to take it easy and recover from something. □ I need to take a few minutes and rest from all that exertion. □ When you have rested from your running, please come in here and help me.

rest in peace to lie dead peacefully for eternity. (A solemn treaty used in funeral prayers, eulogies, etc.) □ We prayed that the deceased would rest in peace. □ The bodies of the soldiers will rest in peace.

rest in something 1. to be comfortable in something, such as a chair or a bed. □ I rested in the chair for a while and then got up and made supper. □ I will rest in bed until I feel better. 2. to be at ease in a particular condition or status, such as comfort or comfortable surroundings. □ I hope that you can rest in comfort for the rest of the night. □ We rested in the plush surroundings and then went back out into the hot sun to work. 3. [for something] to have its source in something. □ The source of her magnetism rests in the way she uses her eyes. □ His skill rests in his thorough training.

The rest is gravy. Fig. Any additional money received is just an easily acquired bonus. □ There is some cost involved in buying the raw materials, and the cost of manufacturing is negligible. When we pay off the costs, the rest is gravy.

The rest is history. Fig. Everyone knows the rest of the story that I am referring to. □ Bill: Then they arrested all the officers of the corporation, and the rest is history. □ Bob: Hey, what happened between you and Sue? Bill: Finally we realized that we could never get along, and the rest is history.

rest on one's laurels Fig. to stop trying because one is satisfied with one's past achievements. □ Despite our success, this is no time to rest on our laurels. □ We rested on our laurels too long. Our competitors took away a lot of our business.

rest something against something to lean or position something against something, allowing it to bear part of the weight of the thing being rested. □ Rest the heavy end of the box against the wall and we'll slide it down the stairs. □ Please rest the board against something solid while you paint it.

rest something in someone or something to place or vest something in someone or something. □ The board of directors saw fit to rest the power to hire and fire in the office of the vice president. □ The president rested the power to hire and fire in the hands of his son, who promptly fired all the top managers.

rest up (for something) to take it easy in advance of something tiring. □ Excuse me, but I have to go rest up for the concert tonight. □ I really need to rest up a while.

rest up (from something) to recover or recuperate from something tiring. □ I need about a week to rest up from my long travels. □ I'll need a few days to rest up.

rest (up)on something to lie on something; to take it easy on something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Here, rest upon this mat. □ I'll just rest on this chair, thanks.

rest with someone or something to remain with someone or something; to be vested with someone or something. □ The final decision rests with you. □ The power rests with the board of directors.

restore someone's trust in something and restore someone's belief in something; restore someone's faith in something to reinstate someone's belief, faith, trust, etc., in something. □ I knew that a good performance on the test would restore my parents' belief in me. □ Her faith was restored in the government.

restore something to someone to give something back to someone; to cause something to be returned to someone. □ I will restore the man's wallet to him after we lock the thief up. □ His wallet was restored to him by a police officer.

restore something to something to bring something to its original state. □ The state restored the park to its original condition. □ The government forced the mining company to restore the area to its original state.

restrain someone from something to prevent someone from doing something. □ I had to restrain her from hurting herself. □ I was unable to restrain myself from giggling at the wisecrack.

restrict someone or something to someone or something to limit someone or something to someone or something; to confine someone or something to someone or something. (The first something may typically refer to a choice or selection.) □ When choosing team members, we are restricting them to people they already know. □ We restricted the choices to Bill, Bob, or Ted.

result from something to emerge from something; to be the outcome of something. □ It will be interesting to see what results from your efforts. Nothing resulted from all that work.

result in something to achieve something; to bring about something; to cause something to happen. I hope that this will result in the police finding your car. All my effort resulted in nothing at all.

resurrect someone or something from something to restore someone or something from some state to its formal state. We decided to resurrect Toby from the ranks of the retired. I resurrected my old uniform from its tattered and wrinkled state.

retail at something to sell at a retail price of something. This model normally retails at a much higher price. What does a product like this usually retail at?

retail for something to sell for a retail price of an amount of money. This item retails for less than ten dollars. How much does this retail for?

retail something to someone to sell something to someone at a retail price. I can retail this merchandise at ninety percent of the price of my competitor. We are not allowed to retail this to anyone in the state of Maine.

retain something over someone or something to keep or maintain something, such as power or control, over someone or something. Tony found a way to retain control over Fred. I wish to retain veto power over the committee.

retaliate against someone or something to take revenge against someone or something. The striking workers will retaliate against the company with a protest march. The students retaliated against the administration.

retire from something to withdraw from something. (Usually to terminate a working career permanently.) I retired from the company early. When do you intend to retire from your job?

retire (in)to something to quit working and move into something or some place. Sam and Ella retired into a Florida condo. Joe did not want to retire to Florida.

retire on something to quit working and live on something or a particular amount of money. I already have enough money to retire on. I cannot retire on a sum like that!

retire someone or something from something to take someone or something out of service permanently. The company retired the vice president from the job and gave it to someone else. It is time to retire my automobile from service.

retire to some place to quit working permanently and move to a particular location. When I quit working, I want to retire to Florida. We will retire to our place in the country.

retool for something 1. Lit. to set up with new or altered tools for a different kind of production. The factory was closed down so they could retool for next year's model. How soon can we retool for this new line of products? 2. Fig. to prepare oneself for a different kind of work. He decided to retool for a new job in the computer industry. I am too old to retool for a job like this.

retool something for something to set up a factory with new or altered tools for a different kind of production. The manager decided to retool the factory for greater efficiency. We will retool the plant for next year's models.

retreat (from something) (to some place) to withdraw from something to some place. The army retreated from the battlefield to the safety of the forest. They retreated to the other side of the river.

retrieve someone or something from some place to recover and bring back someone or something from some place. The mother hurried to the school and retrieved her child from the classroom. I retrieved my cat from the well into which she had fallen.

retrieve something from someone to get something back from someone. I hope I can retrieve my book from the person who borrowed it. We were not able to retrieve the lawn mower from Fred before he moved away and took it with him.

return from some place to come back from some place. I just returned from a research trip in the Amazon basin. When will they return from their vacation?

return someone or something to someone to give someone or something back to someone. Please return my tools to me. Would you return my book to me soon?

return someone's compliment Go to return the compliment.

return something for something to give or pay back something for something. The clerk returned the correct change for a twenty-dollar bill. I hope that the product returns good value for my money.

return the compliment and return someone's compliment to pay a compliment to someone who has paid you a compliment. Mary told me that my hair looked nice, so I returned her compliment and told her that her hair was lovely. When someone says something nice, it is polite to return the compliment.

return the favor to do a good deed for someone who has done a good deed for you. You helped me last week, so I'll return the favor and help you this week. There is no point in helping Bill. He'll never return the favor.

return to haunt one Go to come back to haunt one.

return to some place to go or come back to some place. When do you plan to return to your home? I will return there when I have finished here.

return with something to come back with something. He went to town and returned with the doctor just in time. She returned with the material they had requested.

reunite someone or something with someone or something to bring someone or something together with someone or something. Mary was pleased to reunite Sally with her sister. I reunited the lost cat with its owner.

rev something up[†] to make an idling engine run very fast, in short bursts of power. Hey! Stop revving it up! I wish that Tom wouldn't sit out in front of our house in his car and rev up his engine.

rev up to increase in amount or activity. Production revved up after the strike. We're hoping business will rev up soon.

reveal someone or something to someone to show or disclose someone or something to someone. The magician opened the door of the cabinet and revealed his assistant to the audience. □ I revealed my secret to no one. □ She stepped out from behind the tree and revealed herself to the hostess.

revel in something to rejoice or celebrate about something. □ All the children reveled in the fresh, warm, spring air. □ Tony reveled in his success.

Revenge is a dish best served cold. Prov. It is very satisfying to get revenge a long time after the event for which you want revenge. □ I don't mind waiting to get revenge on Greg; I'll wait ten years if I have to. Revenge is a dish best served cold.

Revenge is sweet. Prov. It is very pleasurable to revenge yourself on someone. □ Jill: Remember when Tom left me for another woman? Well, she just left him, and he asked me out on a date. I told him I had better things to do. Jane: Revenge is sweet, huh?

revenge oneself (up)on someone or something to retaliate against someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ There is no need for you to revenge yourself upon Walter. It was an accident. □ She did not know how she would revenge herself on Joe, but she knew she would.

reverberate through something [for sound] to roll through or pass through a space. □ The thunder reverberated through the valley. □ The sound of the organ reverberated through the church.

reverberate throughout something [for sound] to roll about and fill a space. □ The thunder reverberated throughout the valley. □ The noise of chairs scraping the floor reverberated throughout the room.

reverberate with something to echo or resound with something. □ The hall reverberated with the rich basso voice of Walter Rogers. □ The church reverberated with the roar of the pipe organ.

revere someone or something for something to admire or venerate someone or something for something. □ I will always revere my dear aunt for her devotion to all of us. □ We have always revered his lovely gift for our little kindness.

revert to someone or something 1. to return to some type of person or a former state. □ After he was out of prison, he reverted to a life of crime. □ She quickly reverted to her childhood dialect after a few weeks at home. 2. to become the property of someone, a group, or an institution. □ At the end of ten years, this house and the land it sits on reverts to the youngest living child. □ Then the property reverts to the state.

review for something to study material again for something, such as an examination. □ I need some time to review for the examination. □ Have you had enough time to review for your speech?

revolt against someone or something to rebel or rise against someone or something. □ The citizens were gathering arms, preparing to revolt against the government.

revolted at someone or something sickened by someone or something. □ I was revolted at Frank and his behavior. □ We were all revolted at the scene of the bloody highway accident.

revolve around someone or something and revolve about someone or something 1. Lit. to spin or move around someone or something. □ Do you think that the whole world revolves around you? □ The moon revolves about the earth. 2. Fig. [for people or things] to center upon someone or something or to be primarily concerned with someone or something. □ The way all of this is going to turn out revolves around Bob. □ The success of the picnic revolves around the weather.

reward someone for something to give someone a prize or a bonus for doing something. □ I would like to reward you for your honesty. □ She wanted to reward herself for her hard work, so she treated herself to a massage.

reward someone with something to honor someone with a gift of something. □ She rewarded the helpful child with a chocolate chip cookie. □ He rewarded himself with a night on the town.

rhapsodize over someone or something to go on and on about the virtues of someone or something. □ Young Thomas likes to rhapsodize over Francine, his girlfriend. □ Please do not rhapsodize over this poem anymore.

rhyme something with something [for someone] to make one word rhyme with another word. □ I need to rhyme tree with some other word. Any suggestions? □ Can I rhyme good with food?

rhyme with something [for a word] to rhyme with another word. □ You can't use house in that line of the poem, because it doesn't rhyme with mice. □ The last word in your poem doesn't rhyme with any other word in the poem!

rich in something having valuable resources, characteristics, traditions, or history. □ The entire region is rich in historical churches. □ Our soil is rich in important nutrients.

A rich man's joke is always funny. Prov. Everyone wants to curry favor with rich people and so will always laugh at their jokes. (From a poem by Thomas Edward Brown.) □ We all thought that Mr. Lisle was a narrow-minded, unpleasant old man, but we were careful to act otherwise, because he was wealthy. A rich man's joke is always funny.

rich with something having a lot of something; abundant in something. □ The beautiful book was rich with color illustrations. □ The old town was rich with elegant Victorian houses.

ricochet off something [for some rapidly moving object, such as a bullet] to bounce off something at an angle. □ The bullet ricocheted off the wall and struck the gunman. □ Bullets were ricocheting off the walls from all angles.

rid of someone or something free of someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm trying to get rid of Mr. Smith. He's bothering me. □ I'll be happy when I get rid of my old car.

rid oneself or something of someone or something to free oneself or something of someone or something; to deliver oneself or something from someone or something. □ The boys were not clever enough to rid themselves of Tom's little sister. □ Will we ever be able to rid this house of spiders?

riddle someone or something with something to fill someone or something with small holes, such as bullet holes. □ Max pulled the trigger of the machine gun and riddled ride away to depart, riding a bike or a horse or similar animal. □ She got on her horse and rode away. □ They rode away without even saying good-bye.

Lefty with holes. □ The police riddled the wall with holes trying to shoot the escaped convict in the house.

ride by someone or something to pass by someone or something, riding. (As on a horse or bicycle, or as a passenger in a car.) □ She rode by me without saying anything. □ I rode by the store and forget to stop and go in.

ride herd on someone or something Fig. to supervise someone or something. (Alludes to a cowboy supervising cattle.) □ I'm tired of having to ride herd on my kids all the time. □ My job is to ride herd on this project and make sure everything is done right.

ride off to depart, riding something such as a horse or a bicycle. □ Betty said good-bye and rode off. □ We rode off, each one in a different direction.

ride off in all directions 1. Fig. [for people] to scatter, riding something, such as a horse or a bicycle. (See also run off in all directions.) □ The boys hopped on their bikes and rode off in all directions. □ The sheriff got the posse together and they rode off in all directions, looking for the bank robber. 2. Fig. to behave in a totally confused manner; to try to do everything at once. □ Bill has a tendency to ride off in all directions. He's not organized enough. □ Now, calm down. There is no sense in riding off in all directions.

ride on to continue to ride, traveling onward. □ We rode on for at least an hour before finding a rest stop. □ They rode on for a while.

ride on someone's coattails and hang on someone's coattails Fig. to make one's good fortune or success on the strength of someone else's. (Also with else, as in the examples.) □ Bill isn't very creative, so he rides on John's coattails. □ Some people just have to hang on somebody else's coattails.

ride on something 1. Lit. to travel on something. □ Do you like to ride on the train? □ I have never ridden on a horse. 2. Fig. to be borne on something and carried along. (On something other than a means of transportation.) □ She rode on a wave of popularity to reelection. □ He rode on his past laurels as long as he could.

ride out (of some place) to travel out of a place on something such as a horse or bicycle. □ All the racers rode out of the starting area and began the bicycle marathon. □ At the sound of the starting gun, all the contestants rode out.

ride over someone or something to pass over someone or something, riding something such as a horse or a bicycle. □ Bobby fell down and Susan rode over him with her bicycle, but he wasn't hurt at all. □ Tom almost rode over my toe!

ride roughshod over someone or something and run roughshod over someone or something Fig. to treat someone or something with disdain or scorn. □ Tom seems to ride roughshod over his friends. □ You shouldn't have come into our town to ride roughshod over our laws and our traditions.

ride someone about something to continue to bother someone about something. □ Stop riding me about my weight!

This is how I'm supposed to be! □ It's not fair to ride someone about being bald.

ride someone or an animal down[†] to chase down someone or an animal while riding on horseback. □ The mounted policeman rode the mugger down and captured him. □ The rider rode down the thief. □ We had to ride down the runaway horse.

ride something down to ride on something that is going down, such as an elevator. □ You take the stairs, and I will ride the elevator down. □ I don't want to ride the cable car down. I will walk.

ride something out[†] to endure something unpleasant. (Originally referred to ships lasting out a storm.) □ It was a nasty situation, but the mayor tried to ride it out. □ The mayor decided to ride out the scandal.

ride the gravy train Fig. to live in ease or luxury. □ If I had a million dollars, I sure could ride the gravy train. □ I wouldn't like loafing if I were rich. I don't want to ride the gravy train.

ride to some place to travel to a place, riding something such as a horse or a bicycle, or a vehicle one does not drive. □ I will ride to town and get the doctor. □ Tom will ride to the store on his bike to get a loaf of bread.

ride up (on someone) 1. Lit. [for someone on a horse] to approach someone, riding. □ I rode up on him and frightened him. □ I guess I was in the house when you rode up. 2. Fig. [for clothing, especially underpants] to keep moving higher on one's body. □ I don't like it when my pants ride up on me. □ I hate it when my underpants ride up.

ride (up)on someone or something to use someone or something as a beast of burden. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ As a game, the children used to ride on their father. □ We rode upon burros along the narrow mountain trails.

ride with someone to travel with someone on or in a vehicle or a beast of burden. □ I'm going to the store for some milk. Do you want to ride with me? □ Can I ride with you to the store?

riding for a fall Fig. risking failure or an accident, usually due to overconfidence. □ Tom drives too fast, and he seems too sure of himself. He's riding for a fall. □ Bill needs to eat better and get more sleep. He's riding for a fall.

rifle through something to ransack something; to search quickly or roughly through something looking for something. □ The teenager quickly rifled through the cabinets, looking for something worth eating. □ The soldiers rifled through every house they could break into.

rig someone or something out[†] (in something) to outfit someone or something in something; to decorate or dress someone or something in something. (Alludes to the rigging of a sailing ship.) □ Joan rigged her daughter out in a witch's costume for the Halloween party. □ He rigged out his car with lights for the parade.

rig something up[†] to prepare something, perhaps on short notice or without the proper materials. □ We don't have what's needed to make the kind of circuit you have described, but I think we can rig something up anyway. □ We will rig up whatever you need.

right and left and left and right to both sides; on all sides; everywhere. □ I dropped the tennis balls, and they rolled right and left. □ There were children everywhere—running right and left.

right as rain Cliché perfectly fine; all right. (Based on the alliteration with r. *Also: as ~.) □ Lily has sprained her ankle, but after a few weeks of rest she should be as right as rain. □ All we need to do is tidy the house up; then it will be right as rain.

right at a certain time exactly or precisely at a specific place or time. □ Meet me at this corner right at 3:00 P.M. □ The restaurant is right at First and Main Streets.

right away and right now immediately. □ John: Take this over to Sue. Bill: Right away. □ John: How soon can you do this? Sue: Right away.

right down someone's alley and right up someone's alley Fig. ideally suited to one's interests or abilities. □ Skiing is right down my alley. I love it. □ This kind of thing is right up John's alley.

right in the kisser Inf. right in the mouth or face. □ Wilbur poked the cop right in the kisser. □ He caught a punch right in the kisser.

right now Go to right away.

right off the bat and straight off the bat Fig. immediately; first thing. □ When he was learning to ride a bicycle, he fell on his head right off the bat. □ The new manager demanded new office furniture right off the bat.

(right) off the top of one's head Fig. without giving it too much thought or without precise knowledge. □ Mary: How much do you think this car would be worth on a trade? Fred: Well, right off the top of my head, I'd say about a thousand. □ Tom: What time does the morning train come in? Bill: Off the top of my head, I don't know.

Right on! Sl. Exactly!; That is exactly right! □ After the speaker finished, many people in the audience shouted, "Right on!" □ One member of the crowd called out, "Right on!"

right on someone's heels Go to on someone's heels.

right on time at the correct time; no later than the specified time. □ Bill always shows up right on time. □ If you get there right on time, you'll get one of the free tickets.

right side up with the correct (top) side upwards, as with a box or some other container. □ Keep this box right side up, or the contents will be crushed. □ Please set your coffee cup right side up so I can fill it.

the right stuff the right or correct character or set of skills to do something well. □ She's got the right stuff to be a winner.

*a right to do something and *the right to do something the freedom to do something; the legal or moral permission or license to do something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ You don't have the right to enter my home without my permission. □ I have a right to grow anything I want on my farmland.

*a right to something and *the right to something a privilege or license to have something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I have the right to have the kind of house I want. □ You have a right to any house you can afford.

(right) under someone's (very) nose 1. Fig. right in front of someone. □ I thought I'd lost my purse, but it was sitting on the table under my very nose. □ *How did Mary fail to see the book? It was right under her nose. 2. Fig. in someone's presence. □ The thief stole Jim's wallet right under his nose. □ *The jewels were stolen from under the very noses of the security guards.

right up someone's alley Go to right down someone's alley.

*the right-of-way the legal right to occupy a particular space on a public roadway. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~; yield ~.) □ I had a traffic accident yesterday, but it wasn't my fault. I had the right-of-way. □ Don't pull out onto a highway if you haven't yielded the right-of-way.

rile someone up[†] to get someone excited and angry. □ He yelled at them and riled them up. They left quite angry. □ He riles up everyone he talks to.

ring a bell Fig. [for something] to cause someone to remember something or for it to seem familiar. □ I've never met John Franklin, but his name rings a bell. □ Whenever I see a bee, it rings a bell. I remember when I was stung by one.

ring around something to circle something. □ The children ringed around the maypole, dancing and singing. □ The mourners had ringed around the coffin for the final ceremony.

ring back to call back on the telephone. □ No, there's no message. I'll ring back later. □ She's not here now. I suggest you ring back after dinner.

ring in someone's ears and ring in someone's mind Fig. [for words or a sound] to linger in one's consciousness. □ Her words rang in my ears for days. □ The sound of the choir rang in their minds long after they had finished their anthem.

ring in someone's mind Go to previous.

ring in the new year Fig. to celebrate the beginning of the new year at midnight on December 31. □ We are planning a big party to ring in the new year. □ How did you ring in the new year?

ring off the hook Fig. [for a telephone] to ring incessantly and repeatedly. □ What a busy day! The telephone has been ringing off the hook all day long. □ The telephone has been ringing off the hook ever since the ad appeared in the paper.

ring out [for a loud sound] to go out. □ The bells rang out at the end of the wedding ceremony. □ Loud cheers rang out at the end of the game. □ A shot rang out and started all the dogs barking.

ring out the old Fig. to celebrate the end of a year while celebrating the beginning of a new one. (See also ring in the new year.) □ I don't plan to ring out the old this year. I'm just going to go to bed. □ We never ring out the old because it's too dismal.

ring someone back[†] to call someone back on the telephone. □ I will have to ring back the store at a later time. □ Please ring me back when you have a moment.

ring someone up[†] to call someone on the telephone. □ I will ring her up when I get a chance. □ I have to ring up a whole list of people.

ring something up[†] to record the cost of an item on a cash register. □ Please ring this chewing gum up first, and I'll put it in my purse. □ The cashier rang up each item and told me how much money I owed.

ring the bell Inf. to be just what is needed; to hit the spot. □ This cold water really rings the bell. □ A good hot bowl of soup would ring the bell about now.

ring the curtain down[†] (on something) and bring the curtain down[†] (on something) 1. Fig. to lower a theater curtain, usually at the end of an act or a play. (More literal than ②.) □ After one hundred performances, it's time to ring the curtain down on our show for the last time. □ As we bring down the curtain on another successful performance, let's be thankful nothing serious went wrong. 2. Fig. to bring something to an end; to declare something to be at an end. □ It's time to ring the curtain down on our relationship. We have nothing in common anymore. □ We've tried our best to make this company a success, but it's time to ring down the curtain.

ring the curtain up[†] 1. Fig. to raise the curtain in a theater. (Alludes to sending the signal to raise the curtain.) □ The stagehand rang the curtain up precisely on time. □ Let's ring up the curtain. It's time to start the show. 2. Fig. to start a series of activities or events. □ I am set to ring up the curtain on a new lifestyle. □ It's a little late to ring up the curtain for a new career.

ring true Fig. to sound or seem true or likely. (From testing the quality of metal or glass by striking it and evaluating the sound made.) □ The student's excuse for being late doesn't ring true. □ Do you think that Mary's explanation for her absence rang true?

ring with something 1. Lit. to resound with something. □ The morning air rang with the sound of church bells. □ The canyon rang with the sound of gunfire. 2. [for a bell] to ring in some characteristic way. □ The bells seemed to ring with unusual clarity on this fine Sunday morning. □ The doorbell rang with an urgency that could not be ignored.

rinse someone or something down[†] to wash or clean someone or something with water or other fluid. □ I rinsed him down for an hour and still didn't get the smell of skunk off him. □ I had to rinse down the driveway.

rinse someone or something off[†] to wash or clean someone or something by flushing with water or other fluid. □ Mother rinsed the baby off and dried him with a soft towel. □ She rinsed off the baby.

rinse someone's mouth out[†] (with soap) and wash someone's mouth out[†] (with soap) Fig. to punish one by washing one's mouth out with soap, especially for using foul language. (Usually a jocular threat.) □ If you say that again, I'll rinse your mouth out with soap. □ I will wash out your mouth if you swear.

rinse something down[†] (with something) to wash something down one's throat with a liquid; to follow something that one has eaten with a drink to aid its going down. □ Alice rinsed the cheeseburger down with a milkshake. □ She rinsed down the sandwich with a drink.

rinse something out[†] 1. to clean cloth or clothing partially by immersing it in water and squeezing it out. □ Can you please rinse this rag out? It's all dirty. □ Please rinse out your clothes to make sure there is no soap left in them. 2. to launder something delicate, such as feminine underwear, using a mild soap. □ I have to go rinse a few things out. □ After I rinse out some things, I will be right with you. 3. to clean the inside of a container partially by flushing it out with water. □ Rinse the bottle out and throw it away. □ Rinse out the bottle and throw it away.

rinse something out of something to remove something from something by flushing it with water. □ See if you can rinse the dirt out of this jacket. □ I can't rinse out the dirt.

rinse something with something to flush something with some fluid. □ You should rinse your clothes in milk or tomato juice to remove the smell of the skunk. □ Please rinse the stain with cold water.

a riot of color Cliché a selection of many bright colors. □ The landscape was a riot of color each autumn.

rip into someone or something 1. Lit. to attack someone or something by ripping. □ The raccoons ripped into the trash bags, scattering papers and stuff all over the street. □ The horrid murderer ripped into the helpless victim. 2. Fig. to criticize or censure someone or something severely. □ The drama critic ripped into Larry. □ The critics really ripped into Larry's poor performance.

rip off [for something] to tear or peel off. □ My pocket ripped off, and my money is gone now! □ A piece of the bumper ripped off my car.

rip on someone Sl. to give someone a hard time; to hassle someone. □ Stop ripping on me! What did I do to you? □ Tim is ripping on Mary and she is getting really mad.

ripsnorter Rur. a remarkable person or thing; a hilarious joke. □ Old Fred is a real ripsnorter. □ Her new car is a ripsnorter, I tell you. □ Let me tell you a ripsnorter about a farmer and his cow.

rip someone off[†] Inf. to steal [something] from someone; to cheat someone. □ That merchant ripped me off! □ She rips off everyone.

rip someone or something apart[†] to tear someone or something apart into pieces. □ The automobile accident ripped the car apart. □ Don't rip apart the newspaper!

rip someone or something to something 1. Lit. to tear someone or something into small pieces, expressed as bits, pieces, shreds, etc. □ If you fall into that lawn mower, it will rip you to pieces. □ The lawn mower ripped the newspaper to tiny bits. 2. Fig. to criticize someone or something mercilessly. □ The critics ripped Gerald to pieces even though the audience just loved his show. □ They ripped the whole production to pieces.

rip someone or something up[†] to tear someone or something into bits; to mutilate someone or something. □ Careful! That machine will rip you up if you fall in. □ I ripped up the contract and threw the pieces in the trash.

rip something away[†] (from someone) to grab or snatch something away from someone. □ Betty ripped the box away from Frank and walked away with it. □ She ripped away the box and opened it.

rip something away[†] (from something) to tear or strip something away. □ Billy ripped the wrapping paper away from the box. □ He ripped away the paper.

rip something down[†] to tear something down. (Alludes to something that has been posted or mounted.) □ The cus- todian ripped all the posters down at the end of the day. □ He ripped down the posters.

rip something in half and rip something in two to tear something into two parts. □ Did you know that Ed can rip a telephone book in half? □ I can rip a newspaper in two.

rip something in two Go to previous.

rip something off^t Inf. to steal something [from someone]. □ The mugger ripped my purse off of me. □ Jane ripped off a lot of money. □ Somebody ripped my wallet off.

rip something off (of) someone or something and rip something off^t to tear something away from someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ I ripped the cover off of the book accidentally. □ I ripped off the book cover.

rip something out of someone or something and rip something out^t to tear something out of someone or something. □ The high priest ripped the beating heart out of the sacrificial victim. □ The priest ripped out the victim's heart.

rip something up^t to take something up by force and remove it. (Usually refers to something on the floor or ground, such as carpeting or pavement.) □ They are going to rip all the broken sidewalk up. □ The workers ripped up the pavement and loaded the pieces into a truck.

a ripe old age a very old age. □ Mr. Smith died last night, but he lived to a ripe old age—99. □ All the Smiths seem to reach a ripe old age.

ripen into something 1. Lit. to ripen and become something recognizable. □ This little green ball will ripen into an apple. 2. Fig. to mature into something. □ This problem is going to ripen into a real crisis if we don't do something about it right now. □ The small matter ripened into a large problem in a short time.

(rip)-off artist Inf. a con artist. □ Fred is such an off artist. □ Beware of the rip-off artist who runs that shop.

a ripple of excitement a series of quiet but excited murmurs. □ A ripple of excitement spread through the crowd. □ As the president came near, a ripple of excitement indicated that people could really see him.

a ripple of protest quiet remarks protesting something; a small amount of subdued protest. □ There was only a ripple of protest about the new tax law. □ The rude comedian hardly drew a ripple of protest.

ripple through something 1. Lit. to move through a liquid so as to cause ripples or tiny waves. □ The canoe rippled through the still water. □ A tiny snake rippled through the water of the swamp. 2. Fig. to move through something or a group of people in a ripple or wave motion. □ A murmur of excitement rippled through the crowd. □ Some giggling rippled through the group of children sitting by the door.

rise above something 1. Lit. to move up above something. □ The huge sun rose above the horizon and spread its red glow across the sea. 2. Fig. [for one] to ignore petty matters and do what one is meant to do in spite of them. □ He was able to rise above the squabbling and bring some sense to the proceedings. □ Jane was never able to rise above her petty dislikes.

Rise and shine! Fig. Get out of bed and be lively and energetic! (Often a command.) □ Come on, children! Rise and shine! We're going to the beach. □ Father always calls "Rise and shine!" in the morning when we want to go on sleeping.

rise from someone or something to emanate from someone or something in the manner of a cloud of dust or a cheer. □ After the singer finished, a loud cheer rose from the crowd. □ A cloud of smoke rose from the burning barn.

rise from the ashes Fig. [for a structure] to be rebuilt after destruction. □ The entire west section of the city was destroyed and a group of new buildings rose from the ashes in only a few months. □ Will the city rise again from the ashes? No one knows.

rise from the dead and rise from the grave Fig. to come back to life after being dead. □ Albert didn't rise from the dead. He wasn't dead in the first place. □ The movie was about a teenager who rose from the grave and haunted his high school friends.

rise from the grave Go to previous.

rise from the ranks Fig. to achieve position or office, having worked up from the masses. □ He rose from the ranks to become president of the company. □ Most of the officers of the company have risen from the ranks.

rise in something to increase in something. □ I hope that this land rises in value over the next few years. □ Her expensive antique car actually rose in value during the first year.

rise to one's feet to stand up. □ The entire audience rose to its feet, applauding wildly. □ We rose to our feet when the bride came down the aisle.

rise to the bait Fig. to respond to an allurement; to fall for an enticement or fall into a trap. (Alludes to a fish coming up from deep water to seize bait.) □ You can get him here easily. Tell him that there will be lots of food and he will rise to the bait. □ He rose to the bait and did just as he was expected to do.

rise to the challenge Fig. to accept a challenge. (Usually in reference to success with the challenge.) □ You can depend on Kelly to rise to the challenge. □ We were not able to rise to the challenge and we lost the contract.

rise to the occasion Fig. to meet the challenge of an event; to try extra hard to do a task. □ John was able to rise to the occasion and make the conference a success. □ It was a big challenge, but he rose to the occasion.

rise to the top to move or float to something, such as the top, surface, etc. □ The cream will rise to the top. □ The lighter oil rose to the top and we scooped it up and saved it.

rise up 1. to come up; to ascend. □ The water is rising up fast. You had better get to higher ground. □ As the water rose up, it covered the fields and streets. 2. to get up from lying down. □ The deer rose up and darted off into the woods. □ I rose up and brushed my clothing.

rise (up) against someone or something to challenge someone or something; to rebel against someone or something. □ The citizens rose up against their elected officials. □ They rose up against the abusive power of the government.

risk of rain and risk of showers; risk of thunder-(storms) a chance of precipitation. (Used only in weather forecasting. There is no “risk” of hazard or injury involved.) □ And for tomorrow, there is a slight risk of showers in the morning. □ There is a 50 percent risk of rain tonight.

risk of showers Go to previous.

risk of thunder(storms) Go to risk of rain.

risk one’s neck (to do something) Fig. to accept the risk of physical harm in order to accomplish something. □ Look at that traffic! I refuse to risk my neck just to cross the street to buy a paper. □ I refuse to risk my neck at all.

risk something on someone or something to chance losing something on someone or something. □ I wouldn’t risk any money on him. He’s a poor credit risk. □ Don’t risk your life on his being there to help you.

rival someone in something to have a quality or status that is comparable to that of someone else. □ I would say that Jane rivals Dave in the ability to find the essential elements of a problem and deal with them swiftly. □ No one rivals Ted in pitching a baseball.

rivet one’s gaze on someone or something and rivet one’s glare on someone or something Fig. to fasten one’s gaze onto someone or something. (As if it were attached by rivets.) □ He riveted his gaze on the surly young man. □ Walter riveted his hateful glare on the last page of the contract and sneered.

rivet one’s glare on someone or something Go to previous.

rivet someone’s attention Fig. to keep someone’s attention fixed [on something]. □ The movie riveted the audience’s attention. □ Professor Jones’s lecture riveted the students’ attention.

rivet something on(to) something and rivet something on† to attach something to something with rivets. □ The pockets of these jeans are riveted onto the body of the pants. □ You should rivet on this part of the frame to the wall.

riveted to the ground Fig. [of someone or someone’s feet] unable to move. □ I was riveted to the ground out of fear. □ My feet were riveted to the ground and I could not move an inch.

R

road hog Fig. someone who drives carelessly and selfishly. □ Look at that road hog driving in the middle of the road and stopping other drivers from passing him. □ That road hog nearly knocked the children over. He was driving too fast.

The road to hell is paved with good intentions. Prov. People often mean well but do bad things. (Can be a strong rebuke, implying that the person you are addressing did something bad and his or her good intentions do not matter.) □ Jane: I’m sorry. I didn’t mean to hurt your feelings; I only wanted to help you. Jane: Oh, yeah? The road to hell is paved with good intentions.

roam about and roam around to wander or range about freely. □ Stay where you are and don’t roam about. □ I’m too tired to roam around very much.

roar at someone or something 1. Lit. to bellow or bawl at someone or something. □ Don’t roar at me! Control your temper. □ The lion roared at the hyena, who ran off. 2. Fig. to laugh very hard at someone or something. □ The audience roared at the clown. □ The children roared at Dad’s jokes.

roar away to speed away, making a loud clamor. □ The car roared away into the night with tires screeching. □ The train roared away, carrying Andy to Canada.

roar something out† to bellow something out loudly. □ Walter roared his protest out so everyone knew how he felt. □ Jane roared out her criticism.

rob Peter to pay Paul Fig. to take or borrow from one in order to give or pay something owed to another. □ Why borrow money to pay your bills? That’s just robbing Peter to pay Paul. □ There’s no point in robbing Peter to pay Paul. You will still be in debt.

rob someone blind 1. Fig. to steal freely from someone. □ Her maid was robbing her blind. □ I don’t want them to rob me blind. Keep an eye on them. 2. Fig. to overcharge someone. □ You are trying to rob me blind. I won’t pay it! □ Those auto repair shops can rob you blind if you don’t watch out.

rob someone of something to deprive someone of something, not necessarily by theft. □ What you have done has robbed me of my dignity! □ If you do that, you will rob yourself of your future.

rob the cradle Fig. to marry or date someone who is much younger than oneself. □ I hear that Bill is dating Ann. Isn’t that sort of robbing the cradle? She’s much younger than he is. □ Uncle Bill—who is nearly eighty—married a thirty-year-old woman. That is really robbing the cradle.

rock around to tilt or totter about. □ The boat rocked around, tossing the passengers to and fro. □ The road was bumpy and the huge car rocked around.

(rock) bottom the lowest point or level. (*Typically: be at ~; hit ~; reach ~.) □ The value of the goods is at rock bottom right now. □ Prices have reached rock bottom. □ When my life hit bottom, I gradually began to feel much better.

rock someone to something to help someone, usually an infant, get to sleep by rocking in a rocking chair, cradle, or carriage. □ It is best to rock the baby to sleep after you feed her. □ Somehow she learned to rock herself to sleep.

rock the boat 1. Lit. to do something to move a boat from side to side, causing it to rock. (Often in a negative sense.) □ Sit down and stop rocking the boat. You’ll turn it over! 2. Fig. to cause trouble where none is welcome; to disturb a situation that is otherwise stable and satisfactory. (Often negative.) □ Look, Tom, everything is going fine here. Don’t rock the boat! □ You can depend on Tom to mess things up by rocking the boat.

rocket (in)to something 1. Lit. [for a projectile] to ascend into the sky or into space; [for something] to shoot rapidly into something. □ The space shuttle rocketed into space. □ The locomotive rocketed into the darkness. 2. Fig. [for someone] to ascend rapidly into something, such as fame or prominence. □ Jill rocketed into prominence after her spectacular performance on the guitar. □ She will undoubtedly rocket to success.

rocket something into something to send something somewhere—usually into space—by rocket. □ The government rocketed the satellite into space. □ Someone suggested rocketing our waste into space.

a rocky road a difficult period of time. □ Bob’s been going down quite a rocky road since his divorce.

Roger (wilco). Yes. (From aircraft radio communication. Wilco = “will comply.”) □ John: Can you do this right now? Bob: Roger. □ Mary: I want you to take this over to the mayor’s office. Bill: Roger wilco.

roll about to move about, turning or rotating, as a wheel or a ball. □ The ball rolled about awhile and then came to rest. □ His eyes rolled about in amazement before he spoke.

roll along 1. Lit. [for wheels or something on wheels] to move along, smoothly and rapidly. □ The wheels of the cart rolled along, making a grinding noise as they went. □ Our car rolled along rapidly toward our destination. 2. Fig. [for something] to progress smoothly. □ The project is rolling along nicely. □ I hope that your career is rolling along quite well.

roll around to move about, rotating, turning over, turning, or moving on wheels. □ The baby rolled around on the floor, giggling and cooing. □ The toy truck won’t roll around anymore.

roll away to move away, rotating, turning over, turning, or moving on wheels. □ The ball rolled away and fell down a storm sewer. □ The cart rolled away, and we had to chase it down the hill.

roll back [for something] to return, rotating or turning or moving on wheels. □ I rolled the ball away, thinking it would roll back. It didn’t. □ I struck the golf ball out of the sand trap, but it rolled back.

roll by 1. Lit. to pass by, rotating, as a wheel or a ball; to move past, rolling on wheels. □ The wheel of a car rolled by, all by itself. It must have come off a car somewhere down the road. □ The traffic rolled by relentlessly. 2. Fig. to move (past), as if rolling. □ The years rolled by, and soon the two people were old and gray. □ The clouds were rolling by, spreading patterns of light and dark across the land.

roll down to move downward, rotating, as a wheel or a ball, or to move downward on wheels. □ I pushed the wagon up the driveway, and it rolled down again. □ Don’t place the cart at the top of the hill. It will roll down.

roll down something to move downward, along something, rotating, as a wheel or a ball, or moving downward on wheels. □ The ball rolled down the hall to the end. □ The cart went rolling down the hill all by itself.

roll in Fig. to come in large numbers or amounts, easily, as if rolling. (Alludes to the arrival of many wheeled conveyances.) □ We didn’t expect many people at the party, but they just kept rolling in. □ Money is simply rolling in for our charity.

roll in something 1. Lit. to rotate about in something. □ What is that dog rolling in? □ We had fun rolling in the leaves. 2. Fig. to have lots of something, such as money—enough to roll in. □ She is just rolling in cash. □ Mary is rolling in money because she won the lottery.

roll in(to some place) to arrive at a place; to come into some place. □ The two cars rolled into the parking lot at about the same time. □ What time did they roll in?

roll off (someone or something) to flow or fall off someone or something. □ The ball rolled off the shelf and bounced across the room. □ The ball rolled off and struck the lampshade.

roll on 1. Lit. [for something] to continue rolling. □ The ball rolled on and on. □ The cart came rolling down the hill and rolled on for a few yards at the bottom. 2. Lit. [for something] to be applied by rolling. □ This kind of deodorant just rolls on. □ She rolled on too much paint and it dripped from the ceiling. 3. Fig. [for something, such as time] to move on slowly and evenly, as if rolling. □ The years rolled on, one by one. □ As the hours rolled on, I learned just how bored I could get without going to sleep.

roll one’s sleeves up[†] 1. Lit. to turn one’s sleeves upward, exposing the arms. □ He rolled his sleeves up and began to wash the dishes. □ Don rolled up his sleeves so he would be cooler. 2. Fig. to prepare to get to work. □ Let’s roll our sleeves up and get this job done! □ Jane rolled up her sleeves and got to work.

roll (oneself) up in something to spin or swivel oneself so as to be contained in a coil of something. □ Roll yourself up in some cloth and go to the costume party as a mummy. □ The caterpillar rolled up in a leaf.

roll out the red carpet (for someone) 1. Lit. to unwind a roll of red carpet for someone important to walk on. □ The city council decided to roll out the red carpet for the visit of the foreign prince. 2. Fig. to give someone treatment befitting royalty. □ The citizens of the small community enjoyed rolling out the red carpet for important visitors.

roll over to turn over; to rotate one half turn. □ The old man rolled over and started snoring again. □ Please roll over and give me some more space in the bed.

roll over and play dead Fig. to just give up and be unable to cope with life or a problem. □ Why can’t I complain about this? Am I supposed to roll over and play dead?

roll (over) in one’s grave Go to turn (over) in one’s grave.

roll over something [for something that rolls] to pass over something. (See also roll something over.) □ The wheelbarrow rolled over the hose, making the water squirt off and on. □ After all the traffic had rolled over Timmy’s ball, there was very little left to it.

roll prices back[†] Fig. to reduce prices. □ The store rolled all its prices back for the sale. □ The protesters demanded that the big oil companies roll back their prices.

roll someone or something over to turn someone or something over. □ Bobby rolled Billy over and began tickling him ruthlessly in the tummy. □ Mary rolled the stone over, hoping to find a snake underneath.

roll someone or something (up) in something to turn or wrap someone or something so as to contain someone or something in something. □ Roll this painting up in a sheet of heavy wrapping paper. □ They rolled the burning man up in a blanket to put out the flames.

roll something away[†] to cause something to move away, rotating, turning over, turning, or moving on wheels. □ Jane rolled the ball away and it was lost. □ Jane rolled away the ball.

roll something back[†] to return something to someone by rotating it, as with a wheel or a ball, or moving it back on wheels. □ I intercepted the ball and rolled it back. □ Jane rolled back the ball.

roll something down¹ 1. to move something down, making it rotate like a wheel or a ball, or moving it on wheels.

□ Don't carry the ball down; roll it down! □ I rolled down the ball as you asked. 2. to crank down something, such as a car window. □ Please roll the window down and get some air in this car. □ Please roll down the car window.

roll something down something to cause something to move down along something, rotating it like a wheel or a ball.

□ Claire rolled the bowling ball down the alley for a strike. □ Roll the barrel down the ramp carefully. It is heavy.

roll something in¹ to bring something in by rotating it like a wheel or a ball or by moving it on wheels. □ She put the round table on its edge and rolled it in. Then she went out and got the chairs before the rain started. □ The waiters rolled in the table with the wedding cake on it.

roll something in something to turn something over and over in something, as if to coat the thing being rolled. □ Tony rolled each of the meatballs in flour and popped them into the hot oil. □ Roll each of these cookies in powdered sugar.

roll something off (of) someone or something and roll something off¹ to cause something to roll away, off someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The other workers quickly rolled the wheel off of the injured man. □ Please roll off the wheel quickly!

roll something onto something and roll something on¹ to apply something or a coat of a substance by rolling something saturated with the substance on the thing to be coated. □ You should roll another coat of paint onto this wall over here. □ Roll on another coat.

roll something out¹ 1. to bring or take something out by rolling it; to push something out on wheels. □ Jane rolled her bike out to show it off. □ Alice rolled out her bicycle for us to see. 2. to flatten something by rolling it. □ You should roll the pastry out first. □ They rolled out the steel in a huge mill.

roll something over¹ Fig. to renew a financial instrument as it expires. (See also roll over something.) □ Do you plan to roll this certificate of deposit over? □ Are you going to roll over your certificates of deposit?

R roll something to someone or something to send something revolving toward someone or something or moving toward someone or something on wheels. □ I rolled the ball to the baby, who just sat and looked at it. □ The blow with the mallet rolled the croquet ball to the wicket.

roll something up¹ to coil or rotate something into a coil or roll of something. □ I rolled the poster up and put it back in its mailing tube. □ I have to roll up this paper.

roll something up¹ (into something) 1. to include something into something that is being rotated into a coil. □ I guess I accidentally rolled the letter up into the poster that was lying on my desk. □ I rolled up the letter into the poster. 2. to make something into a round shape by rolling it. □ He rolled the gum up into a ball and tossed it away. □ Jane rolled up the dough into a ball.

roll with the punches Fig. to absorb the force of a blow, as in boxing. □ You have to learn to roll with the punches. Accept what is dealt to you. □ Paul could never roll with the punches. He always had to get even.

rolling in it Go to rolling in something.

rolling in money Go to next.

rolling in something and rolling in money; rolling in it Fig. having large amounts of something, usually money.

□ That family is rolling in money. □ Bob doesn't need to earn money. He's rolling in it.

rolling in the aisles Fig. [of an audience] wild with laughter. (*Typically: get them ~; have them ~; leave them ~.) □ I have the best jokes you've ever heard. I'll have them rolling in the aisles. □ What a great performance. We had them rolling in the aisles.

A rolling stone gathers no moss. Prov. A person who does not settle down is not attached to anything or anyone. (Can be said in admiration or in censure, depending on whether or not the speaker feels it is good to be attached to something or someone.) □ I worry about Tom. He's never lived in the same place for two years in a row, and he keeps changing jobs. A rolling stone gathers no moss.

Rome was not built in a day. Prov. It takes a lot of time to achieve something important. □ Professor: When will you finish your research project? Student: It'll take me a while. Rome wasn't built in a day, you know.

romp all over someone Go to romp on someone.

romp around to run and bounce around playfully. □ The horses were in the meadow, romping around in the crisp autumn air. □ The children need to get out and romp around.

romp on someone and romp all over someone 1. Fig. Inf. to beat or win over, as in a sports contest. □ Our team romped on our opponents and beat them 10 to 1. □ We romped all over them. 2. Fig. Inf. to scold someone. □ The teacher romped on the students for their behavior. □ He romped all over all of them.

romp through something to run through something fast and playfully. □ The conductor romped through the slow movement of the symphony as if it were a march. □ The cast romped through the last act, knowing that the play would be closed that very night.

roof something over¹ to build a roof over something; to provide something with a roof. □ After the destructive storm they had to roof the shed over so that the cow would have some shelter. □ We will roof over the patio and turn the area into a porch.

room and board food to eat and a place to live; the cost of food and lodging. □ That college charges too much for room and board. □ How much is your room and board?

room together [for two or more people] to share a room, as in a college dormitory. □ Sarah and I roomed together in college. □ We don't want to room together anymore.

room with someone to share a room with someone, as in college. □ I need someone to room with me next year. □ No one wants to room with Kelly.

root around (for something) to dig or shuffle in or through something, looking for something. □ Alice rooted around in her desk drawer for a pen. □ I'll root around here and see if I can find it.

root for someone or something to cheer and encourage someone or something. □ Are you rooting for anyone in particular, or are you just shouting because you're excited? □ I'm rooting for the home team.

the root of the matter Go to the crux of the matter.

*the root of the problem an understanding of the causes or basis of a problem. (*Typically: determine ~; figure out ~; find ~; get to ~; get at ~.) □ It will take a little more study to get to the root of the problem. □ Let's stop avoiding the issue and get at the root of the problem.

root someone or something out of something and root someone or something out^t to seek and remove someone or something from something or some place; to seek to discover or bring something to light. □ The committee wanted to root all the lazy people out of the club. □ The manager rooted out all the deadwood.

root something in something to start a plant growing roots in something. □ I tried to root the plants in sand, but they died. □ You have to root this kind of tree in very rich soil.

root something out^t to get rid of something completely; to destroy something to its roots or core. □ No government will ever root out crime completely. □ The principal wants to root out troublemakers at the local school.

root something up^t [for a pig] to find something in the ground by digging with its nose. □ The pigs will root your plants up if they get out of their pen. □ The pigs will root up your plants if they get out of their pen.

rooted in something based on something; connected to a source or cause. □ The civil war was rooted in old cultural hatred. □ This fictional book was rooted in actual events.

rooted to something [of someone] firmly attached to something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ She is firmly rooted to her homeland and has no intention of emigrating. □ The farmer is rooted to the land and will not leave.

rooted to the spot Fig. unable to move because of fear or surprise. (*Typically: appear to be ~; be ~; become ~.) □ Jane stood rooted to the spot when she saw the ghostly figure. □ Mary stood rooted to the spot when the thief snatched her bag.

rope someone in^t Go to rope someone into something.

rope someone into doing something Fig. to persuade or trick someone into doing something. □ I don't know who roped me into doing this, but I don't want to do it. □ See if you can rope somebody into taking this to the post office.

rope someone into something and rope someone in^t Fig. to cause someone to get involved in some project. □ She's always trying to rope me into her club. □ Let's rope in someone to help with cleaning up.

rope someone or an animal up^t to tie someone or an animal up with a rope. □ Rope this guy up tight so he won't get away. □ The cowboy roped up the steer.

rope something off^t to isolate something with a rope barrier. □ The police roped the scene of the accident off. □ The police roped off the scene of the accident.

rope something together^t to tie or bind up a thing or things with rope. □ Rope this carton together and put it in the trunk of the car. □ Rope together these two packages and take them to the truck.

*the ropes Fig. knowledge of how to do something; how to work something. (*Typically: know ~; learn ~; show someone ~; teach someone ~.) □ I'll be able to do my job very well when I know the ropes. □ John is very slow to learn the ropes.

A rose by any other name would smell as sweet.

Prov. The nature of a thing is more important than what it is called. (From Shakespeare's play, Romeo and Juliet.)

□ Bob was upset when his job title was changed from "administrative assistant" to "secretary." We tried to convince him that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet.

rot away to decompose; to decompose and fall away. □

The fallen trees rotted away and surrendered their nutrients to the soil. □ As the wood rotted away, it became rich humus.

rot off to decompose. □ If you don't clean and repaint that old windowsill, it will rot off. □ A few old branches finally rotted off, but the ancient tree looked as if it would survive the wet spell.

rot out to decompose and fall out. □ If you don't clean your teeth regularly, they'll rot out! □ Some of the rafters in the shed rotted out, but we replaced them easily.

rotate on something to spin on something; to pivot on something. □ This wheel rotates on this little red jewel on the main frame of the watch. □ The record rotates on this device, which is called a turntable.

a rotten apple a single bad person or thing. □ There always is a rotten apple to spoil it for the rest of us. □ Tom sure has turned out to be the rotten apple.

The rotten apple spoils the barrel. Prov. A bad person influences everyone he or she comes into contact with, making them bad too. □ Helen is the rotten apple that spoils the barrel in our office. Everyone sees her come in late to work and take long coffee breaks, and they think, "Why can't I do the same?"

a rotten egg and a bad egg a bad or despised person; an evil influence. □ That guy is a real rotten egg. □ She sure has turned out to be a rotten egg.

rotten luck Fig. bad luck. □ Of all the rotten luck! □ I've had nothing but rotten luck all day.

rotten to the core Fig. really bad; corrupt. □ That lousy punk is rotten to the core. □ The entire administration is rotten to the core.

*a rough idea (about something) and *a rough idea (of something) a general idea; an estimate. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I need to get a rough idea of how many people will be there. □ I'll manage to get a rough idea. That's good enough.

rough it to live without luxury; to live simply; to camp out. □ During the blackout, we roughed it without electricity. □ The campers roughed it in the remote cabin for a week.

rough someone up^t to beat someone up; to maltreat someone. □ Am I going to have to rough you up, or will you cooperate? □ The crooks roughed up the old lady before taking her purse.

rough something in^t to construct or draw something initially, temporarily, or crudely. □ The carpenter roughed the doorways in without consulting the plans. □ The carpenter roughed in the doorways without consulting the plans.

rough something out^t to make a rough sketch of something. □ I will rough it out and have one of the staff artists attend to the details. □ Jane roughed out a picture of the proposed building.

rough something up^t to scrape or rub something in a way that makes it rough. □ All you have to do is rough the ground up, sow the seeds, and then water them. □ Rough up the surface a little before you paint it.

rough stuff unnecessary roughness; physical violence or threats of violence. □ Okay, let's cut out the rough stuff! □ There was too much rough stuff in the football game.

a rough time Go to a hard time.

rough-and-ready 1. strong, active, and ready for anything. □ John is not exactly rough-and-ready, but he is a moderately good athlete. □ Ralph is very rough-and-ready, but his table manners are very bad. 2. Go to rough-and-tumble.

rough-and-tumble and rough-and-ready disorderly; aggressive. □ That was a rough-and-tumble football game. □ George is too rough-and-ready for me. He doesn't know how to act around civilized people.

round off to something and round up to something; round down to something to express a number in the nearest whole amount or nearest group of 1, 10, 100, 1,000, 1/10, 1/100, 1/1,000, etc. □ When doing taxes, Anne rounded her figures off to the nearest dollar. □ These census population figures are rounded up to the nearest million.

round someone or something up^t to locate and gather someone or something. □ Please round the suspects up for questioning. □ The police rounded up the two possible suspects.

round something down^t to reduce a fractional part of a number to the next lowest whole number. (See also round off to something.) □ You can round this figure down if you want. It won't affect the total all that much. □ Please round down all figures having fractions less than one-half.

round something off^t to change a number to the next higher or lower whole number. (See also round off to something.) □ You should round 8.122 off. □ I rounded off 8.789 to 9.

round something off^t (with something) to finish something with something; to complement something with something. (See also round something off.) □ We rounded the meal off with a fine cognac. □ We rounded off the meal with a sinful dessert.

round something out^t to complete or enhance something. □ We will round the evening out with dessert at a nice restaurant. □ They rounded out the meal with dessert.

round something up^t 1. to collect a group of people or things; to organize people or things into a group. □ The cowboys rounded up the cattle for market. □ See if you can round some helpers up. 2. to change a number to the next higher whole number. (See also round off to something.) □ I rounded up 8.789 to 9. □ You should round $65.99 up to $66.

round up to something Go to round off to something.

a rounding error a large amount of money that is relatively small in comparison to a much larger sum. □ To a large company like Smith & Co., a few thousand dollars is just a rounding error. It's not a lot at all.

round-trip ticket a ticket (for a plane, train, bus, etc.) that allows one to go to a destination and return. □ A round-trip ticket is usually cheaper than two one-way tickets. □ How much is a round-trip ticket to San Francisco?

rouse someone from something to awaken someone from something; to cause someone to come out of something. □ I roused Tom from his nap and sent him on his way. □ We could not rouse her from her deep sleep.

rouse someone out of something to awaken someone out of a state, such as sleep. □ It was almost impossible to rouse George out of his sleep. □ They could not rouse us out of our drowsy state.

rouse someone to something to stir someone to something. □ I will rouse the workers to action. They will work or have to find other jobs. □ The speech by the president roused the citizens to action.

roust someone out of something and roust someone out^t to force someone out of something. □ Bob's brother roused him out of bed just in time for the school bus. □ He roused out his brother.

rout someone or something out of some place and rout someone or something out^t to remove someone or something from some place by force. □ The soldiers routed the snipers out of the deserted buildings. □ They routed out the snipers.

route someone or something around something to send someone or something on a path that avoids something. □ The travel agent routed us around the congestion of the big city. □ Due to the storm, they routed the trains around the fallen bridge.

route something to someone to send something along a particular path to someone. □ Try to route this to Walter, who is on a ship at sea. I'll get the name of the ship for you. □ I will route a copy of the invoice to you.

row (someone or something) out^t to something to carry someone or something in a rowboat from the shore out to something. □ Will you row me out to the island? □ I rowed out all the visitors to the little island.

a royal pain a great annoyance. □ This guy's a royal pain, but we have to put up with him because he's the boss.

the royal treatment very good treatment; very good and thoughtful care of a person. □ I was well cared for. They gave me the royal treatment. □ I got the royal treatment when I stayed at that expensive hotel.

rub (away) at something to chafe or scrape something, repeatedly. □ The side of his shoe rubbed away at the side of his desk until the paint wore off. □ Don't rub at your sore. It will get worse.

rub elbows (with someone) and rub shoulders with someone Fig. to associate with someone; to work closely with someone. (No physical contact is involved.) □ I don't care to rub elbows with someone who acts like that! □ I rub shoulders with John at work. We are good friends.

rub off ((of) something) [for something] to become detached from something because of incidental rubbing or scraping. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □

The label rubbed off this can. What do you think it is? □ I can't tell what it is. The label rubbed off.

rub off (on someone) [for a characteristic of one person] to seem to transfer to someone else. □ I'll sit by Ann. She has been lucky all evening. Maybe it'll rub off on me. □ Sorry. I don't think that luck rubs off.

rub off on(to) someone or something [for something, such as a coating] to become transferred to someone or something through the contact of rubbing. □ Look what rubbed off on me! □ The wet paint rubbed off onto my pants leg.

rub salt in a wound Fig. to deliberately make someone's unhappiness, shame, or misfortune worse. □ Don't rub salt in the wound by telling me how enjoyable the party was. □ Bill is feeling miserable about losing his job and Bob is rubbing salt into the wound by saying how good his replacement is.

rub shoulders with someone Go to rub elbows (with someone).

rub someone or an animal down^t to stroke or massage someone or an animal, for muscular well-being. □ Sam rubbed his horse down after his ride. □ He rubbed down his horse.

rub someone or something with something to wipe someone or something with something. □ The mother rubbed the baby gently with a soft cloth. □ Todd rubbed the surface of the car with a rag to polish it.

rub someone out^t Sl. to kill someone. (Underworld.) □ The gunman was eager to rub somebody out. □ The crooks tried to rub out the witness.

rub someone('s fur) the wrong way Fig. to irritate someone. □ I'm sorry I rubbed your fur the wrong way. I didn't mean to upset you. □ Don't rub her the wrong way!

rub someone's nose in it Fig. to remind one of something one has done wrong; to remind one of something bad or unfortunate that has happened. (Alludes to a method of housebreaking pets.) □ When Bob failed his exam, his brother rubbed his nose in it. □ Mary knows she shouldn't have broken off her engagement. Don't rub her nose in it.

rub something against someone or something to scrape or chafe something against someone or something repeatedly. □ The cat kept rubbing its tail against me. □ I wish John would stop rubbing his hand against my leg.

rub something away^t to remove something by chafing or rubbing. □ See if you can rub some of the dirt away. □ Rub away the dirt if you can.

rub something in^t Fig. to keep reminding one of one's failures; to nag someone about something. □ I like to rub it in. You deserve it! □ Why do you have to rub in everything I do wrong?

rub something into something and rub something in^t to cause something to penetrate a surface by rubbing it against the surface. □ Rub this lotion into your muscles. It will stop the aching. □ Try rubbing in this lotion.

rub something off (of) something and rub something off^t to remove something from something by rubbing. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The butler rubbed the tarnish off the pitcher. □ The butler rubbed off the dark tarnish.

rub something onto something and rub something on^t to apply something onto the surface of something by rubbing. □ Alice rubbed suntan lotion onto her arms and legs. □ Rub on some of this lotion.

rub something out^t to obliterate something by rubbing. □ See if you can rub those stains out. □ Rub out the graffiti on the side of the car if you can.

rub something over something to cover something with something, spreading it by rubbing. □ The chef rubbed the herbal butter over the skin of the turkey. □ Please rub the lotion over my back.

rub something together to press two things together and move them back and forth. □ Sam rubbed his fingers together, indicating that he needed some money before he could continue. □ Mary rubbed her hands together to get them warmed up.

rub something up^t to raise something, such as the nap of a rug, by rubbing. □ When you run the vacuum cleaner across the floor, you rub the nap of the rug up and get the dirt out. □ Don't rub up the nap.

rub (up) against someone or something to bump or scrape against someone or something. □ The cat rubbed up against me and seemed friendly. □ The side of the car rubbed against the fence.

ruffle its feathers [for a bird] to point its feathers outward. □ The bird ruffled its feathers when it was annoyed. □ My parrot ruffles its feathers whenever it is ready to preen itself.

ruffle someone's feathers Fig. to irritate or annoy someone. □ I didn't mean to ruffle his feathers. I just thought that I would remind him of what he promised us.

ruffle something up^t to raise something, such as feathers, up or outward. □ The bird ruffled its feathers up and started to preen. □ It ruffled up its feathers.

rug rat Sl. a small child, especially an infant or toddler. (Also a term of address.) □ You got any rug rats at your house? □ Hey, you cute little rug rat, come over here.

the ruin of someone or something the cause of destruction; a failure. □ Your bad judgment will be the ruin of this company! □ The greedy politicians were the ruin of the old empire.

rule against someone or something to give a judgment against someone or something. □ The judge ruled against the prosecutor. □ The judge ruled against my motion.

rule in favor of someone or something and rule for someone or something [for a judge or deliberating body] to award a decision to someone or something or to render a decision favoring someone or something. □ The judge ruled for the defendant. □ The examining board ruled in favor of dismissing George.

a rule of thumb a general principle developed through experiential rather than scientific means. □ As a rule of thumb, I move my houseplants outside in May. □ Going by a rule of thumb, we stop for gas every 200 miles when we are traveling.

rule on something to give a decision or judgment about something. □ How long will it be before the court rules on your petition? □ The boss will rule on your request tomorrow.

rule over someone or something to serve as the boss or chief over someone or something. □ I guess you could say that the boss rules over me. □ The president of a democracy doesn't really rule over the country.

rule someone or something out† to prevent, disqualify, overrule, or cancel someone or something. □ John's bad temper rules him out for the job. □ The rainy weather ruled out a picnic for the weekend.

rule the roost Fig. to be the boss or manager, especially at home. □ Who rules the roost at your house? □ Our new office manager really rules the roost.

rule with a velvet glove Fig. to rule in a very gentle way. □ She rules with a velvet glove, but she gets things done, nonetheless. □ He may appear to rule with a velvet glove, but he is really quite cruel.

rule with an iron fist Fig. to rule in a very stern manner. □ The dictator ruled with an iron fist and terrified the citizens. □ My boss rules with an iron fist. I'm looking for a new job.

ruminate about something and ruminate on something to ponder and think about something. (Alludes to a cow, relaxing and chewing its cud, as if it is thinking.) □ He sat, ruminating about the events of the day, humming and eating peanuts. □ Let me ruminate on this a little bit.

ruminate on something Go to previous.

rummage around (somewhere) (for something) to move things about haphazardly while looking for something somewhere. □ Alice rummaged around in the drawer for a candy bar she had been saving. □ After she rummaged around for the candy bar, she found it. □ She rummaged around in the old trunk.

rummage through something to move things about haphazardly while searching through something. □ I rummaged through my top drawer, looking for any two socks that matched. □ Mary spent some time rummaging through the toolbox before she found what she was looking for.

rumor has it that... there is a rumor that... □ Rumor has it that Fred is seeing Mary and that they are engaged.

R rump session a meeting held after a larger meeting. □ A rump session continued after the meeting was adjourned. □ A lot of business was conducted in the rump session.

rumple someone or something up† to bring disorder to someone[’s clothing] or something; to wrinkle someone or something. □ One of the little boys knocked another boy down and rumbled him up. □ He rumbled up Dan's shirt.

run a comb through something to comb one's hair quickly. □ Run a comb through your hair after you come back in the house. □ She ran a comb through Timmy's hair, and tried to make him look presentable.

run a fever and run a temperature to have a body temperature higher than normal; to have a fever. □ I ran a fever when I had the flu. □ The baby is running a temperature and is grouchy.

run a make on someone to perform an identity check on someone. □ The cops ran a make on Lefty and learned about his prison record. □ We tried to run a make on him and came up with nothing.

run a red light to pass through an intersection having a red traffic light without stopping. □ Sam got a ticket for running a red light.

run a risk (of something) and run the risk (of something) to take a chance that something (bad) will happen. □ I don't want to run the risk of losing my job. □ Don't worry. You won't have to run a risk.

run a tab to accumulate charges on a bill at a bar or tavern. □ They won't let me run a tab here. I have to pay for each drink as I order it.

run a taut ship Go to run a tight ship.

run a temperature Go to run a fever.

run a tight ship and run a taut ship to run a ship or an organization in an orderly and disciplined manner. (Taut and tight mean the same thing. Taut is correct nautical use.) □ The new office manager really runs a tight ship. □ Captain Jones is known for running a taut ship.

run across someone or something Go to come across someone or something.

run across something to cross something while running. □ The joggers all ran across the bridge together. □ The mice ran across the floor, not knowing that a cat was watching them.

run (a)foul of someone or something Go to fall (a)foul of someone or something.

run after someone to chase someone of the opposite sex hoping for a date or some attention. □ Is John still running after Ann? □ No, Ann is running after John.

run after someone or something Go to after someone or something.

run against someone to compete against someone for elective office. □ Eisenhower ran against Adlai Stevenson in 1952. □ Not many people run against an incumbent.

run against someone or something Go to against someone or something.

run against the grain Go to against the grain.

run aground (on something) [for a ship] to ram its hull into something beneath the water and get stuck. □ The ship ran aground on a reef and had to wait for high tide to get free. □ I was afraid we would run aground in the storm.

run along to leave. □ Please run along and leave me alone. □ I have to run along now. Good-bye.

run amok and run amuck to go awry; to go bad; to turn bad; to go into a frenzy. (From a Malay word meaning to run wild in a violent frenzy.) □ Our plan ran amok. □ He ran amuck early in the school year and never quite got back on the track.

run amuck Go to previous.

run an errand and do an errand; go on an errand to take a short trip to do a specific thing; to complete an errand. □ I've got to run an errand. I'll be back in a minute. □ John has gone on an errand. He'll be back shortly.

run around 1. to run here and there. □ Why are you running around? Sit down and be quiet. □ Please stop running around. You are making me nervous. 2. to go here and there having meetings or doing errands. □ I've been running around all day, shopping for the party tonight. □ I am so tired of running around, carting children to various places.

run around after someone or something to chase after someone or something; to seek after someone or something. □ Where have you been? I've run around after you all over town! □ I have been running around after the right-sized shoes all morning.

run around like a chicken with its head cut off and run (around) in circles Fig. to run around frantically and aimlessly; to be in a state of chaos. (Alludes to a chicken that continues to run around aimlessly after its head has been chopped off.) □ I spent all afternoon running around like a chicken with its head cut off. □ If you run around in circles, you'll never get anything done.

run around with someone to be friends with someone; to go places with regular friends. □ John and I were great friends. We used to run around with each other all the time. □ Mary ran around with Jane for about a year.

run as something to run for office in a certain party. □ Do you suppose I can run as an independent? □ Fred ran as a Democrat and won a seat in the legislature.

run at a fast clip Go to at a fast clip.

run at a good clip Go to at a good clip.

run at full blast Go to at full blast.

run at someone or something to run toward someone or something; to charge someone or something. □ The bull started to run at us, but changed its mind—thank heavens. □ The huge crocodile ran at the goat, but the goat leapt away.

run away (from someone or something) to flee someone or something. □ Please don't run away from me. I mean you no harm. □ Our dog ran away from the lawn mower.

run away with someone 1. to flee in the company of someone. □ Frank arrived on the scene, saw what had happened, and ran away with the other boys. □ Tom ran away with Bill to a place where they could hide. 2. [for two people] to elope. □ Jill ran away with Jack, much to her father's relief. □ Jill and Jack ran away with each other.

run away with something 1. to flee with something in one's possession. □ The crook ran away with the watch. □ Someone ran away with that lady's purse. 2. to capture or steal a performance by being the best performer. □ Henry ran away with the show, and everyone loved him. □ The dog ran away with the whole performance.

run back to come back, running. □ She ran to the barn and then ran back. □ Tom ran back, very much afraid.

run back over something to review something. □ Would you please run back over that last part again? □ Let me run back over the hard part for you.

run back to someone or something to return to someone or something in a hurry. □ The child ran back to her mother. □ We all ran back to the house.

run behind to be late; to run late. □ We are running behind. You had better hurry. □ Things are running behind, and we will not finish on time.

run behind someone or something to travel along behind someone or something, running. □ I will run behind you in the race. □ Mary ran behind the bicycle until she could not run anymore.

run between something and something else 1. to travel between someone or something, running. □ I spent all afternoon running between my office and the conference room. □ We ran between the two quarreling people all day long, trying to settle the argument. 2. to pass between someone or something, running. □ The child ran between the two ladies, giving them quite a start. □ Please don't run between the bushes. You will wear a path there.

run circles around someone and run rings around someone Fig. to outrun or outdo someone. (Alludes to someone who runs fast enough to run in circles around a competitor and still win the race.) □ John is a much better racer than Mary. He can run circles around her. □ Mary can run rings around Sally.

run counter to something to be in opposition to something; to run against something. (This has nothing to do with running.) □ Your proposal runs counter to what is required by the manager. □ His idea runs counter to good sense.

run down 1. to come down, running or very quickly; to go down, running or very quickly. □ I need to talk to you down here. Can you run down? □ I will run down and talk to you. 2. [for something] to lose power and stop working. □ The clock ran down because no one was there to wind it. □ The toy ran down and wouldn't go again until it had been wound. 3. to become worn or dilapidated. □ The property was allowed to run down, and it took a lot of money to fix it up. □ The old neighborhood has certainly run down since we moved away.

run down some lines 1. Sl. to converse (with someone). □ I was running down some lines with Fred when the bell rang. □ Hey, man, let's run down some lines. 2. Sl. to try to seduce someone; to go through a talk leading to seduction. □ Go run down some lines with someone else. □ I was just standing there running down some lines with Mary when those guys broke in.

run down to some place to travel to a place. (By running or any other means.) □ I have to run down to the store and get some bread. □ I want to run down to the bank, but my car is out of gas.

run down to someone or something to come or go down to someone or something, rapidly. □ Sally ran down the slope to Bob, who stood waiting for her with outstretched arms. □ I ran down to the well to get some water for Ed, who had the hiccups.

run for it to escape by running. (See also swim for it.) □ The dogs were coming after me fast. There was nothing I could do but run for it. □ I ran for it when I saw the police coming.

run for one's life to run away to save one's life. □ The dam has burst! Run for your life! □ The captain told us all to run for our lives.

a run for one's money 1. Fig. the results or rewards one deserves, expects, or wants. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I get a run for my money at the club tennis tournament. □ I had a run for my money in the stock market. 2. Fig. a challenge. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Bob got a run for his money when he tried to beat Mary at pool. □ Bill got a run for his money playing cards with John.

run for something 1. to travel quickly by running to a place of safety. □ The picnickers ran for the shelter when the rain started to fall. □ Tom and Jane ran for the house as soon as they heard your call. 2. to try to be elected to a particular office. □ Who's going to run for president? □ I am running for mayor.

run for the hills Go to head for the hills.

run from someone or something to flee someone or something, usually on foot. □ She ran from the mugger who had accosted her. □ Mary ran from the dog and jumped over a fence to safety.

run from something to something to travel on foot from one thing or place to another, running. □ Do you think you can run from the bank downtown to the post office on Maple Street? □ I ran from door to door, telling people what had happened.

run in circles 1. Lit. to run in a circular path. □ The horses ran in circles around the corral for their daily exercise. □ The children ran in circles around the tree. 2. and run around in circles Fig. to waste one's time in aimless activity. □ Stop running in circles and try to organize yourself so that you are more productive. □ I have been running around in circles over this matter for days.

run in something to compete in something, such as a race or an election. □ I will run in the one-hundred-yard dash. □ I will not run in a race this time. □ Who will run in this year's election?

run in the family [for a characteristic] to appear in many (or all) members of a family. □ My grandparents lived well into their nineties, and it runs in the family. □ My brothers and I have red hair. It runs in the family.

run into a stone wall Fig. to come to a barrier against further progress. □ We've run into a stone wall in our investigation. □ Algebra was hard for Tom, but he really ran into a stone wall with geometry.

run into someone Go to bump into someone.

run into someone or something to bump into someone or something. □ I didn't mean to run into you. I'm sorry. □ Mary ran into the fence and scraped her elbow.

run in(to something) 1. [for a liquid] to flow into something or a place. □ The water is running into the basement! □ It's running in very fast. 2. to enter something or a place on foot, running. □ The boys ran into the room and out again. □ They ran in and knocked over a lamp. 3. to stop by a place for a quick visit or to make a purchase quickly. □ I have to run in the drugstore for a minute. □ I ran into the store for a loaf of bread. □ I want to visit Mrs. Potter. I can't stay long. I can only run in for a minute.

Run it by (me) again. Go to Run that by (me) again.

run it down Sl. to tell the whole story; to tell the truth. □ Come on! What happened? Run it down for me! □ I don't care what happened. Run it down. I can take it.

run its course [for something] to continue through its cycle of existence, especially a disease. □ Sorry. There is no medicine for it. It will just have to run its course.

run like clockwork to run very well; to progress very well. □ I want this office to run like clockwork—with everything on time and everything done right. □ The plans for the party were made and we knew that we could depend on Alice to make sure that everything ran like clockwork.

run like stink Go to like stink.

run like the wind Go to like the wind.

run low (on something) to near the end of a supply of something. □ We are running low on salt. It's time to buy more. □ The car is running low on gas.

run off 1. to flee. □ The children rang our doorbell and then ran off. □ They ran off as fast as they could. 2. to have diarrhea. □ He said he was running off all night. □ One of the children was running off and had to stay home from school. 3. [for a fluid] to drain away from a flat area. □ By noon, all the rainwater had run off the playground.

run off at the mouth Sl. to talk too much. □ I wish you would stop running off at the mouth. □ Tom runs off at the mouth too much. I wish he would temper his remarks.

run off in all directions Fig. [for people] to set out to do something or go somewhere in an aimless and disorganized fashion. (Can also apply to one person. See also ride off in all directions.) □ The people in the marketing department need some organization. They are always running off in all directions. □ Stop running off in all directions and focus your energy.

run off something to drive or travel off something, such as rails, tracks, a road, etc. □ The train ran off its rails and piled up in a cornfield. □ We almost ran off the road during the storm.

run off (with someone) to run away with someone, as in an elopement. □ Tom ran off with Ann. □ Tom and Ann ran off and got married.

run off with someone or something 1. to take someone or something away, possibly running. (See also run off (with someone).) □ Fred ran off with Ken. They'll be back in a minute. □ Who ran off with my dictionary? 2. to capture and take away someone or something; to steal someone or something. □ The kidnapers ran off with little Valerie. □ The kids ran off with a whole box of candy, and the storekeeper is going to press charges.

run on 1. to continue running. □ I wanted to stop her and ask her something, but she just ran on. □ The joggers had a chance to stop and rest, but they just ran on. 2. to continue on for a long time. □ The lecture ran on and bored everyone to tears. □ How long is this symphony likely to run on?

run on all cylinders 1. Lit. [for an engine] to run well and smoothly. □ This car is now running on all cylinders, thanks to the tune-up. □ You can hear if an engine is not running on all cylinders. 2. Fig. to function well or energetically. □ Our department seems to be running on all cylinders. Congratulations. □ I am back at my desk after my illness—running on all cylinders.

a run on something Go to a rush on something.

run one's eye over something Fig. to gaze at the whole of something; to glance at all of something. □ She ran her eyes over the lines of the automobile and nodded her approval. □ He ran his eyes over the drawing and decided that he had to have it.

run one's feet off Fig. to run very hard and fast. I ran my feet off and I'm really tired now that the race is over. I almost ran my feet off getting over here to see you!

run one's fingers through one's hair and run one's hand through one's hair to comb one's hair with one's fingers. I came in out of the wind and ran my fingers through my hair to straighten it out a bit. He ran his hand through his hair and tried to make himself presentable.

run one's hand through one's hair Go to previous.

run one's head against a brick wall Fig. to be frustrated by coming up against an insurmountable obstacle. There is no point in running your head against a brick wall. If you can't succeed in this case, don't even try. I have been running my head against a brick wall about this problem long enough.

run one's rhymes Sl. to say what you have to say; to give one's speech or make one's plea. Go run your rhymes with somebody else! I told him to run his rhymes elsewhere.

run out at someone or something to come out of a place and charge or attack someone or something. The badger ran out at us and then went back to its den. The dogs ran out at the speeding car.

run out of gas Go to out of gas.

run out of patience Go to out of patience.

run out of some place to leave a place quickly, on foot; to flee a place. He ran out of the room as fast as he could. We ran out of the building as soon as we felt the first signs of the earthquake.

run out (of something) Go to out (of something).

run out of steam Fig. to lose momentum and fail. Toward the end of the lecture, he seemed to run out of steam, leaving us with no summary or conclusion.

run out of time to have used up most of the allotted time; to have no time left. You have just about run out of time. I ran out of time before I could finish the test.

run out (on someone) to depart and leave someone behind. My date ran out on me at the restaurant, and I had to pay the bill. Her boyfriend ran out when she needed him the most.

run over 1. to come by for a quick visit. Can you run over for a minute after work? I will run over for a minute as soon as I can. 2. to overflow. The bathtub ran over and there was water all over the floor. She poured the coffee until the cup ran over.

run over someone or something to drive, steer, or travel so as to pass over someone or something. The bus ran over the fallen man. That car almost ran over my toe.

run over (something) to exceed a limit. The lecture ran over the allotted time. Bob ran over the amount he was budgeted to spend.

run over something with someone to review something with someone. I would like to run over this with you one more time. I want to run over the proposal with Carl again.

run over to something to go to something or some place, running or by any independent mode of transportation.

Would you run over to the store and get me some eggs?
 I have to run over to the bank to cash a check.

run over with something to drop over for a visit, bringing something. Do you mind if I run over with the cup of sugar I borrowed last week? Mary ran over with the papers you requested.

run rampant to run, develop, or grow out of control. The children ran rampant through the house. Weeds have run rampant around the abandoned house.

run rings around someone Go to run circles around someone.

run riot and run wild Fig. to get out of control. The dandelions have run riot in our lawn. The children ran wild at the birthday party and had to be taken home.

run roughshod over someone or something Go to ride roughshod over someone or something.

run scared to behave as if one were going to fail. The mayor was running scared, but won anyway. When we lost that big contract, everyone in the office was running scared. We thought we'd be fired.

run short (of something) to begin to run out of something. We are running short of eggs. I always keep enough so I will never run short.

run someone in^t to arrest one and take one to the police station. The cop ran George in so they could question him extensively. They ran in George to protect him from the rioters.

run someone or something down^t 1. to collide with and knock down someone or something. The drunken driver ran three pedestrians down. Mary ran down a stop sign. 2. to criticize or deride someone or something. Please stop running me down all the time. I can't be that bad! You run down everybody who takes your old job! 3. to hunt for and locate someone or something. Could you run some information down for me? I was finally able to run down my old friend.

run someone or something into something and run someone or something in^t to take or drive someone or something into something or some place. Let me run you into the city this morning. I need the car today. Do you want to go to town? I have to run in George and you can come along.

run someone or something off (of) something and run someone or something off^t to drive someone or something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) Go out and run those dogs off the lawn. Go run off the dogs from the lawn.

run someone or something out of something and run someone or something out^t to chase someone or something out of something or some place. The old man ran the kids out of his orchard. He ran out the kids.

run someone or something to earth to find something after a search. Lisa finally ran her long-lost cousin to earth in Paris. After months of searching, I ran a copy of Jim's book to earth.

run someone or something to something 1. to run someone or something to some extreme extent, such as death. The villain's idea was to run his victim to death by chasing him. He nearly ran his horse to death. 2. to drive someone or something to some place. □ Could you run me to the store? □ Please run these clothes to the cleaners.

run someone ragged Fig. to keep someone or something very busy. □ This busy season is running us all ragged at the store. □ What a busy day. I ran myself ragged.

run someone through something 1. to make or guide someone through an area while running. □ They ran us through a maze as part of our training. □ We ran the little boys through the park so they could get some exercise. 2. to guide a person through a process. □ Let me run you through the process so you will know what is happening to you. □ Can I run you through this procedure again? 3. to rehearse someone. □ The director ran the cast through the last act three times. □ She ran herself through the part at home between rehearsals.

run someone through (with something) to stab a person all the way through with something, such as a sword. □ The knight ran the attacker through with his own sword. □ He ran him through and stole his horse.

run something at full blast Go to at full blast.

run something back^t to wind something back to the beginning. □ Run the tape back and listen to it again. □ Run back the tape and listen again.

run something by (someone) (again) to explain something to someone again; to say something to someone again. □ I didn't hear you. Please run that by me again. □ Please run it by so we can all hear it.

run something by the book Go to by the book.

run something down^t to use something having batteries, a motor, or an engine until it has no more power and it stops. □ Who ran my electric toothbrush down? □ Someone ran down my batteries.

run something in^t Go to run something into something.

run something in^t (for something) to bring or drive something quickly into a place for some purpose. □ I have to run my car in for an oil change. □ I will run in the truck for the mechanic to take a look at it.

run something into something and run something in^t 1. to guide or route something, such as a wire or a pipe, into something or a place. □ The worker ran the circuit into each room. □ He ran in the circuit as specified. 2. to guide something into something; to drive or steer something into something else. □ Bobby ran his bicycle into the wall, bending the front wheel. □ Please don't run your car into the wall!

run something into the ground and drive something into the ground 1. Lit. to pound or force something into the ground. □ Use a heavy mallet to drive the stakes into the ground. □ Run this post into the ground and nail this sign to it. 2. Fig. to carry something too far. □ It was a good joke at first, Tom, but you've run it into the ground. □ Just because everyone laughed once, you don't have to drive it into the ground.

run something off^t 1. to get rid of something, such as fat or energy, by running. □ The little boys are very excited. Send them outside to run it off. □ They need to run off their energy. 2. to duplicate something, using a mechanical duplicating machine. □ If the master copy is ready, I will run some other copies off. □ I'll run off some more copies.

run something onto something to drive or guide something onto the surface of something. □ He ran the car onto the grass and washed it. □ Please run your bicycle onto the porch and I will try to fix it for you.

run something out of something and run something out^t to drive or steer something out of something or some place. □ The cowboys ran the cattle out of the corral. □ They ran out the cattle.

run something over to someone or something and run something over^t to carry something to someone or something. □ Would you please run this package over to Mrs. Franklin? □ Do you know where Bill lives? Please run over this package.

run something through something 1. to drive or propel something through the midst of something or a group. □ The cowboys ran the cattle right through the crowd of people standing at the station. □ He ran his truck through the bushes at the end of the driveway. 2. to process something by going through a procedure, a deliberative body, or a department. □ I will have to run this through the board of directors. □ She ran the invoice through the accounting department.

run something up^t 1. Lit. to raise or hoist something, such as a flag. □ Harry ran the flag up the flagpole each morning. □ Will you please run up the flag today? 2. Fig. to cause something to go higher, such as the price of stocks or commodities. □ A rumor about higher earnings ran the price of the computer stocks up early in the afternoon. □ They ran up the price too high. 3. Fig. to accumulate indebtedness. □ I ran up a huge phone bill last month. □ Walter ran up a bar bill at the hotel that made his boss angry. 4. to stitch something together quickly. □ She's very clever. I'm sure she can run up a costume for you. □ The seamstress ran up a party dress in one afternoon.

Run that by (me) again. and Run it by (me) again. Inf. Please repeat what you just said.; Please go over that one more time. □ Alice: Do you understand? Sue: No. I really didn't understand what you said. Run that by me again, if you don't mind. □ John: Put this piece into the longer slot and the remaining piece into the slot on the bottom. Sue: Run that by again. I got lost just after put. □ Mary: Keep to the right, past the fork in the road, then turn right at the crossroads. Do you follow? Jane: No. Run it by me again.

run the gamut to cover a wide range [from one thing to another]. □ She wants to buy the house, but her requests run the gamut from expensive new carpeting to completely new landscaping. □ His hobbies run the gamut from piano repair to portrait painting.

run the gauntlet 1. Lit. to race, as a punishment, between parallel lines of men who thrash one as one runs. □ The knight was forced to doff his clothes and run the gauntlet. 2. and run the gauntlet of something Fig. to endure a series of problems, threats, or criticism. □ After the play, the director found himself running the gauntlet of questions and doubts about his ability.

run the good race to do the best that one could; to live life as well and as fully as possible. □ He didn't get what he wanted, but he ran the good race. □ Joan ran the good race, and she will be remembered by all of us.

run the risk (of something) Go to run a risk (of something).

run the show to be in charge; to be in command. Who's running this show? No, I don't want to have to run the show again.

run through something 1. to pass through an area, running. Stop running through the living room! We ran through the park as part of our exercise. 2. to go through a procedure or sequence; to rehearse a procedure or sequence. I want to run through act two again before we end this rehearsal. 3. to read or examine something quickly. I ran through your report this afternoon. Sally ran through the list, checking off the names of the people who had already paid for tickets. 4. to spend or use a supply of something wastefully and rapidly. He ran through his inheritance in two years. Have we run through all the peanut butter already?

run to seed Go to go to seed.

run to someone or something to travel quickly on foot to someone or something; to go to someone or something with some urgency. Mary ran to Alice and greeted her. I ran to the door and fled.

run to something to amount to a certain amount of money. In the end, the bill ran to thousands of dollars. His account ran to more than I expected.

run up against someone or something Go to up against someone or something.

run up to some place to travel to a place quickly or for a brief time. Let's run up to the lake for the weekend.

run up (to someone or something) to run as far as someone or something and stop; to run to the front of someone or something. I ran up to the mailman and said hello to him. I ran up and said hello.

run wild Go to run riot.

run with someone or something to stay in the company of someone or some group. Fred was out running with Larry when they met Vernon. Let's go out and run with the other guys this morning.

run with something 1. Lit. to run, showing a particular characteristic. Sally runs with speed and grace. Fred runs with tremendous speed. 2. Fig. to take over something and handle it aggressively and independently. I know that Alice can handle the job. She will take it on and run with it. I hope she runs with this next project.

run with the hare and hunt with the hounds Fig. to support both sides of a dispute. In our office politics, Sally always tries to run with the hare and hunt with the hounds, telling both the clerical workers and the management that she thinks they should prevail.

*the runaround a series of excuses, delays, and referrals. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) You'll get the runaround if you ask to see the manager. I hate it when they give me the runaround.

running high [for feelings] to be in a state of excitement or anger. Feelings were running high as the general election approached. The mood of the crowd was running high when they saw the mother slap her child.

run-of-the-mill common or average; typical. The restaurant we went to was nothing special—just run-of-the- mill. The service was good, but the food was run-of-the-mill or worse.

the runt of the litter 1. Lit. the smallest animal born in a litter; the animal in a litter least likely to survive. No one wanted to buy the runt of the litter, so we kept it. 2. and the runt of the family Fig. the smallest child in the family. I was the runt of the litter and the butt of all the jokes.

rush at someone or something to run at or charge toward someone or something. The dog rushed at us and scared us to death. Mary rushed at the door, but it slammed shut before she got there.

rush for something to hurry to something. All the people rushed for the exits when the game was over. We rushed for the picnic tables as soon as they said that lunch was ready.

rush hour the period of time when heavy traffic is moving into or out of a city. This is the slowest rush hour I have ever been in. Traffic is almost in gridlock.

rush in(to something) 1. to run or hurry into a thing or a place. Everyone rushed into the shelter when the rain started. They all rushed in at once. 2. to begin doing something without the proper preparation. Don't rush into this job without thinking it through. Mary rushed in without thinking.

rush off (from some place) to hurry away from some place. I'm sorry, but I will have to rush off from this meeting before it's over. Mary had to rush off before the party was over.

a rush on something and a run on something a large demand for something. There was a rush on bottled water during the drought. During the hot summer, there was a run on air conditioners.

rush out (of something) to exit in a hurry. Everyone rushed out of the room at the same time. They rushed out because they smelled smoke.

rush someone into something to hurry someone into doing something. We rushed Harry into taking the job. Sally has always hated that dress. Sam rushed her into buying it.

rush someone or something into something and rush someone or something in^t to lead or carry someone or something into something or some place hurriedly. I rushed her into the hospital emergency room, and everything was soon all right. The nurse rushed in the emergency medical equipment.

rush someone or something out of something and rush someone or something out^t to lead or guide someone or something out of something or some place hurriedly. The ushers rushed everyone out of the church so they could clean the place before the next wedding. They rushed out another edition of the newspaper that afternoon.

rush someone to the hospital to take someone to the hospital very quickly. They had to rush her to the hospital because she had stopped breathing. We rushed Uncle Harry to the hospital after he complained of chest pains.

rush something into print to print up something hastily. The story was so timely that the newspaper editor rushed it into print without checking all the details. We will rush the book into print as soon as the author finishes.

rush something off (to someone or something) rush something off^t (to someone or something) to send something quickly to someone or something. □ I will rush your order off to you immediately. □ I need to rush off this package to Walter.

rush something through (something) 1. Lit. to pass something through a physical area rapidly. □ He rushed the ambulance through the gate to the stadium. □ Strong blowers rushed many cubic feet of air through the ductwork into all the rooms. 2. Fig. to move something through some process or office in a hurry. □ He was in a hurry so we rushed his order through the shipping department. □ He asked us to rush it through.

rush through something to hurry to get something finished; to race through something. □ Please don't rush through this business. Get it right. □ Timmy rushed through dinner so he could go out and play.

rush to conclusions to try to reach a conclusion too fast, probably with insufficient evidence; to jump to conclusions. □ I hope that you don't rush to any conclusions. I can explain this. □ I'm afraid you are rushing to conclusions when you speak of canceling the performance.

rush to someone or something to hurry to get to someone, something, or some event. □ I rushed to the injured man to try to help him. □ We all rushed to the office to see what had happened.

rust away to dissolve away into rust. □ In a few years, this car will rust away if you don't take care of it. □ The bridge is rusting away, little by little.

rust belt Fig. the industrial north of the United States. (Patterned on sun belt.) □ The economy in the rust belt is slowing down. □ The salt they put on the roads in the winter made my car all rusty. I guess that's why they call this area the rust belt.

rust out to develop holes or weak places owing to rust. □ Our hot water heater rusted out and flooded the basement.

rustle something up^t Rur. to manage to prepare a meal, perhaps on short notice. □ I think I can rustle something up for dinner. □ Please rustle up something to eat.

*the sack and *the ax dismissal from one's employment. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ Poor Tom got the sack today. He's always late. □ I was afraid that Sally was going to get the ax.

sack out to go to bed or go to sleep. □ It's time for me to sack out. □ Let's sack out early tonight.

sack something up† to put something into bags or sacks. □ Please sack the groceries up and put them in the cart. □ I will sack up your groceries.

sacked out asleep. □ Mary is sacked out in her room. □ Here it is ten o'clock, and you are still sacked out!

sacred cow Fig. something that is regarded by some people with such respect and veneration that they do not like it being criticized by anyone in any way. (From the fact that the cow is regarded as sacred in India and is not eaten or mistreated.) □ A university education is a sacred cow in the Smith family. Fred is regarded as a failure because he quit school at 16. □ Don't talk about eating meat to Pam. Vegetarianism is one of her sacred cows.

sacrifice someone or something for someone or something to forfeit someone or something for the sake of someone or something. □ Surely you won't sacrifice your dear wife for a silly twit like Francine! □ Would you sacrifice your bank account for a chance to go to Europe?

sacrifice someone or something to someone or something to make an offering of or give up someone or something to someone or some power. □ The high priest prepared to sacrifice the prisoner to the gods. □ I sacrificed a lot of money to a fancy lifestyle.

a sad sight Go to a sorry sight.

sadder but wiser Cliché unhappy but knowledgeable [about someone or something—after an unpleasant event]. □ After the accident, I was sadder but wiser, and would never make the same mistake again. □ We left the meeting sadder but wiser, knowing that we could not ever come to an agreement with Becky's aunt.

saddle an animal up† to put a saddle on a horse or some other beast of burden. □ Please saddle my horse up. I have to leave. □ Would you saddle up my horse for me?

saddle someone with someone or something Fig. to burden someone with someone or something undesirable, annoying, or difficult to deal with. □ I apologize for saddling you with my young cousin all day. □ I didn't mean to saddle you with my problems.

saddle up 1. Lit. to prepare one's horse for riding by putting a saddle on it. □ Let's saddle up and go for a ride. 2. Fig. to mount one's horse and sit in the saddle. □ The cowboys saddled up and took off after the rustlers.

saddled with someone or something Fig. burdened with someone or something. □ I've been saddled with the children all day. Let's go out tonight. □ I don't want to be saddled with your work.

safe and sound unharmed and whole or healthy. □ It was a rough trip, but we got there safe and sound. □ I'm glad to see you here safe and sound.

safeguard against someone or something to protect against someone or something. □ We will try to safeguard against accidents. □ How can I safeguard against prowlers?

safeguard someone or something against someone or something to protect someone or something against someone or something. □ We will take action that will safeguard you against a recurrence of the unpleasantness. □ I will safeguard my family against the prowler.

safety in numbers safety achieved by being concealed in or united with large numbers of people or other creatures. □ We stayed close together, thinking that there was safety in numbers. □ The elderly people went out together for a walk, knowing that there was safety in numbers.

sag away (from something) to settle or droop down or away. □ The cloth sagged away from the edge of the table.

sag down to droop downward. □ The branch sagged down and nearly touched the ground. □ When the rain got the drapes wet, they sagged down and touched the floor.

sag under something to droop under the burden of something. □ The porch roof sagged under the weight of the snow. □ The springs of the car sagged under the weight of all the passengers.

sage advice very good and wise advice. □ My parents gave me some sage advice when I turned 18. □ I asked my uncle for some of his sage advice.

sail against something to operate a boat or ship, so as to move against the wind. □ It takes skill and training to sail against the wind. □ The huge cruise ship sailed against the wind all the way to St. Thomas.

sail along (something) to travel on a course in a boat or plane. □ The huge white ship sailed along the Amazon River slowly and peacefully. □ The boat sailed along peacefully.

sail around to travel by water in a boat or ship. □ We sailed around for about an hour and then went back to the shore. □ Let's go out and sail around before dinner.

sail for some place to depart in a boat or ship for some place. □ This ship sails for Bridgetown, Barbados, at noon today. □ We will sail for home early in the morning.

sail from some place to some place else to move or travel from one place to another in a boat or ship. □ We sailed from San Juan to Acapulco. □ The ship sailed from its home port to Baltimore overnight.

sail into someone Fig. to attack someone; to chastise someone. (Based on sail into someone or something.) □ The angry coach sailed into the players. □ The teacher sailed into Timmy for breaking the window.

S

sail into someone or something 1. to crash into someone or something with a boat or ship. □ The boat sailed into the dock, causing considerable damage. □ I was in my skiff when a larger boat sailed into me. 2. to crash into someone or something. □ The missile sailed into the soldiers, injuring a few. □ The car sailed into the lamppost.

sail in(to something) 1. Lit. to travel into something or some place in a boat or ship. □ We sailed into the harbor nearly an hour late. □ We sailed in at noon. 2. Fig. to move or proceed into something or some place gracefully or without resistance. □ She sailed into the room wearing a flowing gown. □ Three young maidens sailed into the room before the door closed.

sail (right) through something 1. Lit. to travel through something in a boat or ship. □ The line of boats sailed right through the Grenadines in the daylight hours. □ We sailed through the narrows without a pilot. 2. Fig. to go through something very quickly and easily. □ The kids just sailed right through the ice cream and cake. There was not a bit left. □ You have sailed through your allowance already. 3. Fig. to get through a procedure, evaluation, or vote quickly and easily. □ The proposal sailed through the committee with no debate. □ I hope that this matter sails through quickly.

sail under false colors 1. Lit. to sail with false identification. (Pirates often sailed under the national flag of the ship they planned on attacking.) □ The ship, sailing under false colors, suddenly started to pursue our ship. □ Bluebeard the pirate was known for sailing under false colors. 2. Fig. to function deceptively. □ You are not who you seem to be. You are sailing under false colors. □ Tom was sailing under false colors and finally got found out.

sail up a river to travel upstream on a river in a boat or ship. □ We sailed up the Amazon River in a large, seagoing ship. □ It was not possible to sail up the Mississippi as far as we wanted.

Sakes alive! Go to Land(s) sakes (alive)!

sally forth to go forth; to leave and go out. □ The soldiers sallied forth from behind the stone wall. □ Well, it's time to sally forth and drive to work.

the salt of the earth Fig. the most worthy of people; a very good or worthy person. (A biblical reference, Matthew 5:13.) □ Mrs. Jones is the salt of the earth. She is the first to help anyone in trouble. □ Frank's mother is the salt of the earth. She has five children of her own and yet fosters three others.

salt something away[†] 1. Lit. to store and preserve a food-stuff by salting it. □ The farmer's wife salted a lot of fish and hams away for the winter. □ She salted away a lot of food. 2. Fig. to store something; to place something in reserve. □ I need to salt some money away for my retirement. □ I will salt away some money for emergencies.

salt something down[†] to place salt on something, such as icy roads. □ I won't go out until midmorning, after they have salted the roads down. □ I hope they salt down the roads soon.

salt something with something 1. Lit. to put a variety of salt or a salt substitute onto some food. □ Oscar salts his food with a salt substitute. □ Did you salt your meat with salt or something else? 2. Fig. to put something into something as a lure. (Refers to putting a bit of gold dust into a mine in order to deceive someone into buying the mine.) □ The land agent salted the bank of the stream with a little gold dust hoping for a land rush to start. □ Someone salted the mine to fool the prospectors.

salute someone with something 1. Lit. to greet someone with a formal hand salute. □ He failed to salute the officer with the proper salute and was reprimanded. □ David saluted the captain with the appropriate salute and passed on by. 2. Fig. to greet or honor someone with the firing of guns or an overflight of airplanes. (Military or government.) □ The government saluted the visiting dignitary with a twenty-one gun salute. □ They saluted the prime minister with a flight of acrobatic jets.

salvage something from someone or something to rescue or save something from someone or something. □ The baby got into the eggs, but I was able to salvage about six of them from him before they were broken all over the place. □ I salvaged a good pair of shoes from the trash.

the same as someone or something identical to someone or something. □ Can you build me a birdhouse the same as yours? □ Have you noticed that Mary looks the same as her mother?

same difference the same; no difference at all. □ Pink, fuchsia, what does it matter? Same difference. □ Whether you go or I go, it's the same difference.

The same for me. Go to I'll have the same.

Same here. Me too!; I agree! □ Bob: I'll have chocolate ice cream! Bill: Same here. □ Mary: I'll vote for the best candidate. Tom: Same here!

same o(l)' same o(l)' Sl. the same old thing as one has had before or is used to. □ I'm getting tired of the same ol' same ol'. □ Why not something different? Do you like the same o' same o'?

the same old story something that occurs or has occurred in the same way often. □ Jim's got no money. It's the same old story. He's spent it all on clothing. □ The company is getting rid of workers. It's the same old story—a shortage of orders.

The same to you. The same comment applies to you. (This can be a polite or a rude comment.) □ Bill: Have a pleasant evening. Bob: Thank you. The same to you. □ Mary: You're the most horrible person I've ever met! John: The same to you!

sand something down[†] 1. to make something smooth by rubbing it with sandpaper. (To act on the main body of the object, not the imperfections.) □ You should sand the board down before you paint it. □ Please sand down the board. 2. to remove bumps or imperfections on the surface of something by rubbing them with sandpaper. (To act on the imperfections, not the main body of the object.) □ Sand these bumps down, will you? □ Sand down these bumps, please.

the sands of time Fig. the accumulated tiny amounts of time; time represented by the sand in an hourglass. □ The sands of time will make you grow old like everyone else. □ My only enemy is the sands of time.

sandwich someone or something between people or things Fig. to enclose someone or something on both sides between people or things in any combination. □ We had to sandwich the children between us because there were no other seats close by. □ We had to sandwich the package between Ed and the side of the bus.

satiate someone or an animal with something to provide enough of something for someone or an animal. □ The waiters set out to satiate the guests with whatever sinful desserts they desired. □ The zookeeper satiated the tigress with a huge leg of beef.

satisfy someone or an animal with something to use something to please or content someone or an animal. □ Do you think I can satisfy Mrs. Franklin with payment for her broken window? □ A dog biscuit will satisfy the dog until its regular feeding time.

satisfy something by something and satisfy something with something to fulfill a requirement, using a particular thing, such as a school or college course. □ Can I satisfy the requirements by taking a course in art? □ Will I satisfy the requirement with this course?

saturate someone or something with something to drench someone or something thoroughly with something. □ The rain saturated them all with cooling water. □ Irrigation saturated the field with the moisture they needed.

Saturday night special a small, easily obtainable pistol. □ There was another killing last night with a Saturday night special. □ That's the tenth shooting done with a Saturday night special this week.

saunter along to walk along slowly; to ramble along. □ Bob sauntered along, looking as if he didn't have a care in the world. □ I was just sauntering along, minding my own business, when all of a sudden a mugger jumped out and swiped my purse.

save a bundle (on something) Fig. to save a lot of money on the purchase of something. □ I managed to save a bundle on a car by buying a used one.

Save it! Inf. Stop talking.; Shut up!; Tell it to me later. □ I've heard enough. Save it! □ Save it! You talk too much!

save (money) on something to save money or some amount of money on the purchase of something. □ I can save a lot of money on this purchase by buying it somewhere else. □ I am sure you can save on a new car if you shop wisely.

save (money) toward something to accumulate money toward the purchase of something. □ I am saving my money toward the purchase of a big-screen TV. □ I'm saving toward a new car.

save money up[†] (for something) to accumulate an amount of money for the purchase of something. □ I'm saving my money up for a car. □ Save up your money for a car.

save one's bacon Go to save someone's skin.

save one's breath Fig. to refrain from talking, explaining, or arguing. □ There is no sense in trying to convince her. Save your breath. □ Tell her to save her breath. He won't listen to her.

save (one's) face Fig. to preserve one's good standing, pride, or high position (after a failure). □ The ambassador was more interested in saving his face than winning the argument. □ Most diplomats are concerned with saving face.

save oneself (for marriage) Euph. to remain a virgin until marriage. □ No, I can't. I love you, but I'm saving myself for marriage. □ His buddies teased him, asking if he was saving himself.

save someone in the (very) nick of time Go to in the (very) nick of time.

save someone or something from someone or something to rescue someone or something from someone or something. □ The cop was able to save the kid from his attackers. □ I managed to save some old photographs from the fire.

save someone's neck Go to next.

save someone's skin and save someone's neck; save one's bacon Fig. to save someone from injury, embarrassment, or punishment. □ I saved my skin by getting the job done on time. □ Thanks for saving my neck! I would have fallen down the stairs if you hadn't held my arm.

save (something) for a rainy day and put something aside for a rainy day; hold something back for a rainy day; keep something for a rainy day Fig. to reserve something—usually money—for some future need. □ I've saved a little money for a rainy day. □ Keep some extra allowance for a rainy day.

save something for someone or something to reserve something for someone or something. □ Please save some cake for me. □ I am saving this cake for tomorrow.

save something up[†] to save something; to accumulate something. □ I'm saving up cans for recycling. □ If you'd only save your money up, you could buy anything you want.

save the day to produce a good result when a bad result was expected. □ The team was expected to lose, but Sally made three points and saved the day. □ Your excellent speech calmed the crowd and saved the day.

save (up) (for something) to accumulate money in order to buy something. □ I can't buy a car because I am saving up for college. □ I don't have the money now, but I am saving up.

saved by the bell Cliché saved by the timely intervention of someone or something. (Alludes to a boxer who is saved from being counted out by the bell that ends a round.) □ I was going to have to do my part, but someone knocked on the door and I didn't have to do it. I was saved by the bell. □ I wish I had been saved by the bell.

saving grace Cliché the one thing that saves or redeems someone or something that would otherwise be a total disaster. □ Her saving grace is that she has a lot of money. □ The saving grace for the whole evening was the good music played by the band.

savor of something to taste like something. □ This casserole savors of nutmeg. □ The meat savors of too much garlic.

saw against the grain Go to against the grain.

saw into something to cut into something with a saw. □ The carpenter sawed into the beam and had it cut in two in no time at all. □ Be careful not to saw into the table.

saw something down[†] to cut something down with a saw. □ We are going to have to saw that dead tree down before it falls on the house. □ I'll saw down the tree.

saw something off (of) something and saw something off[†] to cut something off something with a saw. (Of is usually saw something (up) (in(to) something) retained before pronouns.) □ He sawed the branch off of the tree. □ Sam sawed the dead branch off. □ Saw off another branch on the other side.

saw something (up⁺) (in(to) something) to cut something up into pieces with a saw. □ Jake sawed the logs up into pieces the right size for the fireplace. □ Would you saw up the logs into smaller pieces?

saw through something to cut through something with a saw. □ I can't saw through this wood. It's too hard! □ I can saw through it!

saw a mouthful Fig. to say a lot; to say something very important or meaningful. □ When you said things were busy around here, you said a mouthful. It is terribly busy. □ You sure said a mouthful, Bob. Things are really busy.

Say cheese! Inf. an expression used by photographers to get people to smile, which they must do while saying the word cheese. □ "All of you please stand still and say cheese!" said the photographer. □ "Is everybody ready? Say cheese!" asked Mary, aiming the camera.

saw grace to say a prayer of gratitude before or after a meal. □ Grandfather always says grace at Thanksgiving. □ A local preacher said grace at the banquet.

Say hello to someone (for me). Please convey my good wishes to someone. (The someone can be a person's name or a pronoun. See also Give my best to someone.; Remember me to someone.) □ Andy: Good-bye, Tom. Say hello to your brother for me. Tom: Sure. Bye, Andy. □ Sally: Well, good-bye. Mary: Bye. Sally: And say hello to Jane. Mary: Sure. Bye-bye.

a say (in something) Go to a voice (in something).

Say no more. Inf. I agree.; I will do it.; I concede, no need to continue talking. □ John: Someone ought to take this stuff outside. Bill: Say no more. Consider it done. □ Mary: Shouldn't we turn here if we plan to visit Jane? Alice: Say no more. Here we go.

say one's piece and speak one's piece to say what one must say; to recite what one has planned to say. □ Look, just say your piece and get out of here. □ I said my piece and left.

say something about someone or something 1. to make remarks about someone or something. □ What did you say about me? □ I think that Fran must have said something about me to you. 2. to indicate or reveal something about someone or something. □ They all cheered. That really says something about Tom's popularity. □ The fact that almost no one came to his party says something about Walter, I think.

say something against someone or something to speak out against someone or something; to make a case against someone or something. □ I would never say anything against you! □ No one would say anything against your work.

say something for something [for something] to imply something good about something. □ The speed with which we were able to sell the house says something for the state of the real estate market. □ The number of new cars on the road says something for the state of the nation's economy.

say something in a roundabout way to imply something without saying it; to say something indirectly; to speak using circumlocution. □ Why don't you say what you mean? Why do you always say something in a roundabout way? □ What did she mean? Why did she say it in a roundabout way?

say something in plain English Go to in plain English.

say something in plain language Go to in plain language.

say something out loud to say something so it can be heard; to say something that others might be thinking, but not saying. □ Yes, I said it, but I didn't mean to say it out loud. □ If you know the answer, please say it out loud.

say something over (and over (again)) to repeat something, perhaps many times. □ I have said it over and over again! Why don't you listen? □ Why do you keep saying it over?

say something (right) to someone's face to say something (unpleasant) directly to someone. □ She knew I thought she was rude because I said it right to her face. □ I thought she felt that way about me, but I never thought she'd say it to my face.

say something to oneself 1. Lit. to mutter something to oneself so that no one else can hear. □ He said something to himself, but I didn't catch what it was. □ I said the answer to myself and no one else was supposed to hear it. 2. Fig. to think something to oneself. □ When I thought of him as a basketball player, I said to myself that he really isn't tall enough. □ I said a few choice critical remarks to myself when she presented her talk.

say something to someone to tell something to someone. □ He didn't say anything to me. □ Did someone say something to you?

say something to something to say yes or no to a proposal, request, etc. □ I hope you will say yes to my proposal. □ Nothing was said to your request at the last meeting.

say something under one's breath Go to under one's breath.

say that... to assume [something]; to suppose [that something were so]. □ Say that x is equal to a whole number greater than 10. □ Say that two trains leave two different cities at the same time.

say the word to give a signal to begin; to say yes or okay. □ I'm ready to start any time you say the word. □ We'll all shout "Happy Birthday!" when I say the word.

say uncle Go to holler uncle.

Say what? Inf. What did you say?; Please repeat what you said. □ Sally: Would you like some more salad? Fred: Say what? Sally: Salad? Would you like some more salad? □ John: Put this one over there. Sue: Say what? John: Never mind, I'll do it.

Say when. Inf. Tell me when I have given you enough of something, usually a liquid. (Sometimes answered simply with When.) □ Tom (pouring milk into Fred's glass): Say when, Fred. Fred: When. □ John: Do you want some more juice? Mary: Yes. John: Okay. Say when.

Says me! and Sez me! Inf. a formulaic answer to Says who? □ Tom: Says who? Fred: Says me, that's who! □ Tom: You? Fred: You got it, buster. Says me!

Says who? and Sez who? Inf. a formulaic challenge indicating disagreement with someone who has said something. □ Tom: Says who? Fred: Says me, that's who! □ She drew herself up to her full height, looked him straight in the eye, and said, "Says who?"

Says you! Inf. That's just what you say!; You don't know what you are talking about! □ Fred: You are fat and ugly. Tom: Says you! □ Mary: People who go around correcting other people were found to be very annoying in a recent survey. Bill: Says you!

scab over [for a wound] to form a scab. □ The wound soon scabbed over and the injury was well on its way to healing. □ I hope this shaving cut scabs over before I have to leave for work.

scale something down[†] to reduce the size or cost of something. □ The bad economy forced us to scale the project down. □ Liz scaled down the project.

scale something to something to design or adjust the size of one thing to match or complement the size of another thing. □ The architect sought to scale the office building to the buildings surrounding it. □ The playhouse will have to be scaled to the main house.

scamper along [for a child or small animal] to run along nimbly. □ The rabbit scampered along, unaware that a fox was following it. □ It is time for Timmy to scamper along home.

scamper away [for a child or small animal] to run away nimbly. □ The rabbit scampered away across the lawn. □ The children scampered away when they heard the teacher coming.

scar over [for an injury] to form and leave a scar. □ The wound will scar over, but your arm will never be the same as it was before the accident.

scarce as hen's teeth and scarcer than hen's teeth Cliché scarce; seldom found. (*Also: as ~.) □ I do declare, decent people are as scarce as hen's teeth in these chaotic times. □ Handmade lace is scarcer than hen's teeth; most lace is made by machine.

scarcely exchange more than some number of words with someone Go to exchange no more than some number of words with someone.

scarcely have time to breathe Go to hardly have time to breathe.

scarcer than hen's teeth Go to scarce as hen's teeth.

scare one out of one's mind Go to frighten one out of one's wits.

scare one out of one's wits Go to frighten one out of one's wits.

scare someone or an animal off[†] to frighten someone or an animal away. □ The dog's barking scared the burglar off. □ The barking scared off the prowler.

scare someone or an animal out[†] Go to scare someone or an animal out of something.

scare someone or an animal out of something and scare someone or an animal out[†] to frighten someone or an animal out of something or some place. □ The old man tried to scare the kids out of his orchard by shouting at them. □ Karen scared out the intruder.

scare someone or an animal to death Go to frighten someone or an animal to death.

scare someone or something away[†] (from someone or something) to frighten someone or something away from someone or something. □ He put on a gruff exterior to scare everyone away from him. □ The bear scared away a lot of people from the campground.

scare someone or something up[†] Rur. to search for and find someone or something. □ Go out in the kitchen and scare some food up. □ I'll see if I can scare up somebody to fix the broken chair.

scare someone out of something to startle someone; to frighten someone into losing something, such as a year's worth of growth, ten years of life, etc. □ You nearly scared me out of my skin! □ The bad news scared Roger out of ten years' growth.

scare someone stiff Fig. to frighten someone severely. (Stiff = dead.) □ That loud noise scared me stiff. □ The robber jumped out and scared us stiff.

scare something out of someone to frighten someone very badly. (The something can be the living daylights, the wits, the hell, the shit, etc. Use discretion with shit.) □ Gee, you scared the living daylights out of me! □ The police tried to scare the truth out of her. □ The door blew shut and scared the hell out of me.

scare the living daylights out of someone Go to frighten the hell out of someone.

scare the pants off (of) someone to frighten someone very badly. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Wow! You nearly scared the pants off me! □ The explosion scared the pants off of everyone.

scare the wits out of someone Go to frighten the hell out of someone.

scared silly frightened very much. □ I was scared silly by the loud explosion. □ We were scared silly to go into the park after dark.

scared stiff Fig. badly frightened. □ We were scared stiff by the robber. □ I was scared stiff when the dog growled at me.

scared to death Go to frightened to death.

scarf out Sl. to overeat. □ I scarf out whenever we have pizza. □ My brother scarfs out every day—around the clock!

scarf something down[†] Sl. to eat something, perhaps in a hurry; to swallow something, perhaps in a hurry. □ Are you going to scarf this whole thing down? □ Here, scarf down this sandwich.

scatter something about[†] and scatter something around[†] to throw or distribute something about. □ The children scattered the books about and left the room in a general mess. □ They scattered about all the books and papers.

scavenge (around) for someone or something to search everywhere for someone or something. □ We had to scavenge for a person who would agree to run for president in my place. □ Sam scavenged around for a socket wrench.

scheme against someone or something to plot or conspire against someone or something. □ A group of generals was plotting against the government. □ They schemed against the king until he caught them and put an end to it.

scheme for something to plot and plan for something, perhaps using deception. □ She is scheming for a raise. □ Ted is always scheming for a way to miss work.

schiz(z) out Sl. to freak out; to lose mental control. □ What a day! I nearly schizzed out. □ I schizzed out during the test. Got an F.

the school of hard knocks Fig. the school of life's experiences, as opposed to a formal, classroom education. □ I didn't go to college, but I went to the school of hard knocks. I learned everything by experience.

school of thought a particular philosophy or way of thinking about something. □ One school of thought holds that cats cause allergic reactions. □ I come from the school of thought that believes people should always be polite.

school someone in something to train, discipline, or coach someone in something. □ The voice coach schooled the singer in excellent breathing techniques. □ We were schooled in oratory and debate. □ She schooled herself in patience.

scoff at someone or something to show ridicule or scorn for someone or something. □ The directors scoffed at her when she presented her plan. □ They scoffed at my new hat, not realizing how stylish it was.

scold someone about something to rebuke or chastise someone about something. □ How many times have I scolded you about that? □ Please don't scold me about something I didn't do.

scold someone for something to rebuke or chastise someone for doing something. □ The manager scolded the worker for misplacing the door key. □ The teacher scolded all the students for their bad behavior.

scoop something out of something and scoop something out^t to remove something from something by dipping or scooping. □ She scooped the water out of the bottom of the rowboat. □ Karen scooped out the water.

scoop something up^t to gather and remove something by scooping, dipping, or bailing. □ Karen scooped the nuts up and put them in a bag. □ Jill scooped up all the money she had won and left the poker table.

scoot down (to some place) to go (down) somewhere in a hurry. □ I want you to scoot down to the store and get me a dozen eggs. Okay? □ I'll scoot down as soon as I finish reading the newspaper.

scoot over to slide sideways while seated. □ Scoot over and let me sit down. □ If you scoot over, we can get another person in this row.

scoot over to someone or something to travel or move over to someone or something or some place in a hurry. □ Scoot over to Don and ask him to come here for a minute. □ We all scooted over to the stadium for the football game.

scope (on) someone Sl. to evaluate a member of the opposite sex visually. □ He scoped every girl who came in the door. □ He wouldn't like it if somebody scoped on him. Or would he?

scope someone or something out^t Sl. to look someone or something over; to check someone or something out. □ Hey, scope the new car out! □ Dave was scoping out all the girls.

score against someone or something to make a point or goal against someone or some team. □ Because of his bad ankle, Fred was unable to score against his defender. □ We never scored against the visiting team.

score something for something 1. to arrange music for one or more musical instruments; to arrange music for a particular type of voice or voices. □ The arranger scored the music for two pianos. □ The arranger scored the song for a four-part chorus. 2. to scratch something, such as glass, for breaking. □ Valerie scored the piece of glass for breaking and then snapped it off. □ The worker scored the pane of glass for snapping off.

score something (up^t) against someone or something to tally up a score against someone or some team. □ Tara scored a few points against Sally. □ The Bears scored up thirteen points against the Giants.

score with someone or a group Inf. to please someone or a group. □ Her rendition of "Old Kentucky Home" really scored with the audience. □ You really score with me.

scour something for someone or something to look carefully and thoroughly in something for someone or something. □ I scoured the entire roster of members for a person who would agree to run for president. □ The police scoured the entire area for any sign of the suspects.

scour something off (of) something and scour something off^t to clean something off something else by scouring. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ See if you can scour the rust off the cookie sheet. □ I will scour off the rust with steel wool.

scour something out^t to clean something out by scouring. □ Would you scour the pans out? □ Please scour out the pans—don't just wash them.

scour something out of something to clean something out of something by scouring. □ Did you scour the rust out of the pan? □ Please scour the burned material out of the bowl.

scout around (for someone or something) to look around for someone or something. □ I don't know who would do a good job for you, but I'll scout around for a likely candidate. □ You stay here. I'll scout around.

scout someone or something out^t to search for and discover someone or something. □ I will scout a new salesclerk out for you if you want. □ I'll scout out a new clerk for you.

scout someone or something up^t to search for and find someone or something. □ I'll scout up a costume for the Halloween party. □ Can you scout a date up for Friday night?

scowl at someone or something to make a frown of disapproval or displeasure at someone or something. □ Why are you scowling at me? I didn't do anything wrong! □ Mary scowled at her noisy cat.

scramble for someone or something to push and struggle to get to someone or something. □ All the teenagers scrambled for the rock star but couldn't catch him. □ The children scrambled for the candy as it fell from the piñata.

scrape along (on something) and scrape along (with something) to manage just to get along with a minimum amount of something. □ We can just scrape along on the money I earn from my sewing. □ Do you think you can scrape along with just $400 per month?

scrape by (on something) and scrape by (with something) to manage just to get by with something. (Usually applies to a more specific period or time or a more specific event than scrape along (on something).) □ There is not really enough money to live on, and we just have to scrape by on what we can earn. □ We can't scrape by with only that amount of money.

scrape by (something) to manage just to get by something. □ I scraped by the man standing at the gate and got into the theater without a ticket. □ Mary scraped by the cart that was blocking the crowded hallway.

scrape by (with something) Go to scrape by (on something).

scrape someone or something together^t and scrape someone or something up^t Fig. to find and collect something; to locate and assemble a group of people or things. (Based on scrape something up.) □ I'm sure we can scrape up someone for the job. □ Mary scraped a few dollars together for some new books. □ John barely scraped up enough money to pay his rent.

scrape something away^t (from something) to scratch or rasp something off something. □ Ted scraped the rough places away from the fender he was repairing. □ Ted scraped away the rough places.

scrape something off (of) someone or something and scrape something off^t to rub or stroke something off someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ I sat down and scraped the caked mud off of me. It was everywhere! □ Jake scraped off the rust.

scrape something out^t to empty something by scraping. □ Scrape the pan out. Don't leave any of that good sauce inside. □ Please scrape out the pan.

scrape something out of something and scrape something out^t to remove something by scraping. □ Scrape all the peanut butter out of the jar before you discard it. □ Scrape out the peanut butter.

scrape something together^t to gather things together by scraping. □ The waiter scraped all the crumbs together and removed them from the table with a little gadget. □ Karen scraped together all the trimmings and set them aside.

scrape the bottom of the barrel to select from among the worst; to choose from what is left over. □ You've bought a bad-looking car. You really scraped the bottom of the barrel to get that one. □ The worker you sent over was the worst I've ever seen. Send me another—and don't scrape the bottom of the barrel.

scrape through (something) 1. Lit. to move through something, scraping or rubbing the sides. □ The car, going at a very high speed, scraped through the tunnel. □ It just managed to scrape through. 2. Fig. to get by something just barely; to pass a test just barely. □ Alice passed the test, but she just scraped through it. □ I just scraped through my calculus test.

scratch about (for something) and scratch around (for something) 1. Lit. to hunt for something in dirt, gravel, rocks, etc. □ The prospector spent the day scratching about for signs of gold. □ The chickens were scratching around for something to eat. 2. Fig. to look very hard for something. □ The children were scratching about the kitchen for something to eat. □ I've been scratching around for a new assistant for months now.

scratch at something to scratch something. □ You shouldn't scratch at a chigger bite because it might get infected. □ Don't scratch at it!

scratch someone or something from something to mark the name of someone or something off a list. □ We were obliged to scratch Dave from the list. □ The judges scratched the large collie from the eligibility list.

scratch someone or something out^t to mark out the name of someone or something. □ I scratched John out and wrote in George instead. □ I scratched out John and forgot about him.

scratch someone or something up^t to damage or mar someone or something by scratching. □ Being thrown clear of the car in the accident didn't break any bones, but it scratched her up a lot. □ Who scratched up my coffee table?

scratch someone's back 1. Lit. to scratch, usually with the fingers, the parts of someone's back that they cannot reach. □ Please scratch my back between my shoulder blades. 2. Fig. to do a favor for someone in return for a favor done for you. □ You scratch my back, and I'll scratch yours. □ We believe that the mayor has been scratching the treasurer's back.

scratch something away^t to rub or scrape something off by scratching. □ Look at the finish on this furniture. The cat has almost scratched it away! □ That cat scratched away the finish on the table!

scratch the surface 1. Lit. to scratch something just on the surface, not extending the mark below the finish into the wood, stone, marble, below. □ There is no serious damage done to the bench. You only scratched the surface. 2. Fig. to just begin to find out about something; to examine only the superficial aspects of something. □ The investigation of the governor's staff revealed some suspicious dealing. It is thought that the investigators have just scratched the surface. □ We don't know how bad the problem is. We've only scratched the surface.

scream at someone or something to yell or screech at someone or something. □ Why are you screaming at me? □ Go scream at the dog, not me!

scream bloody murder and yell bloody murder Fig. to complain bitterly; to complain unduly. □ When we put him in an office without a window, he screamed bloody murder. □ There is something wrong next door. Everyone is yelling bloody murder.

scream down (on someone or something) Fig. [for something, such as birds or bombs] to dive down on someone or something, with a loud noise or very swiftly. □ The bombs screamed down on the helpless peasants. □ As the bombs screamed down, some people ran and some prayed.

scream for something to yell or shriek for something. □ The teenage audience applauded and screamed for more. □ The children said they were screaming for ice cream.

scream someone down^t to scream loudly at someone; to outscream someone. (Compare this with shout someone down.) □ The angry crowd screamed down the politician. □ They screamed her down and drove her from the platform.

scream something out^t to say something in a very loud voice. □ She screamed his name out for everyone to hear. □ Liz screamed out the winner's name.

scream with something to scream because of something, such as pain, anger, rage, etc. □ Frank screamed with pain when the car door closed on his fingers. The teacher screamed with rage when the student talked back.

screeching (drunk) Sl. intoxicated; very drunk. How can anybody be so screeching drunk on four beers? She's not just drunk; she's screeching.

screen someone or something (off)[†] (from someone or something) to make someone or something out of sight or blocked off to someone or something by erecting a screen. We screened her off from the patient in the next bed. We screened off the yard from the street.

screen someone or something out of something and screen someone or something out[†] to filter someone or something out of something. The test screened all the unqualified candidates out of the group. We screened out the suppliers who were not financially sound.

screw around 1. Inf. to mess around; to waste time. Stop screwing around and get to work! I'm not screwing around, I'm thinking. 2. Inf. to play sexually; to indulge in sexual intercourse. A few couples were screwing around at the party. They say that Ted and Alice are screwing around a lot.

screw around with someone or something Inf. to fiddle with or mess around with someone or something. Andy screwed around with his clock until he broke it. Look, chum! Don't screw around with me!

screw off Inf. to waste time. Stop screwing off and get busy! I'm not screwing off. This is my lunch hour.

screw someone around Inf. to harass or bother someone. Don't screw me around, man! I bite back! Max got tired of being screwed around by Lefty.

screw someone or something up[†] Inf. to interfere with someone or something; to mess up someone or something. Try again and don't screw it up this time. You really screwed up my brother by not being on time.

screw someone out of something Inf. to cheat someone out of something. I think you screwed me out of ten bucks on that deal. Max screwed me out of what was due me.

screw someone over[†] Sl. to give someone a very bad time; to scold someone severely. Those guys really screwed you over. What started it? Don't think you can screw over me and my friends. I won't let you.

S screw someone up[†] Inf. to confuse someone mentally. Please don't screw me up again! You screwed up my train of thought.

screw something down[†] to secure something to the floor or a base by the use of screws. You had better screw these seats down or someone will knock them over. Please screw down the shelf.

screw something into something to twist something that is threaded into something. I screwed all the screws into the back of the computer and turned it on. Please screw this bracket into the wall.

screw something (on)(to something) to attach something to something by the use of screws or other threaded fasteners. Screw the bracket onto the wall, will you? Screw on the bracket to the wall.

screw something up[†] to attach something to a higher place by the use of screws. The bracket holding the shelf up has come loose. Will you please screw it up again? Please screw up this loose bracket.

screw up 1. Inf. to mess up. I hope I don't screw up this time. The waiter screwed up again. 2. Inf. a mess; a blunder; utter confusion. (Usually screw-up.) This is the chef's screw-up, not mine. One more screw-up like that and you're fired.

screw up one's courage Fig. to build up one's courage. I guess I have to screw up my courage and go to the dentist. I spent all morning screwing up my courage to take my driver's test.

screwed, blued, and tattooed 1. Sl. taken advantage of I got a bad deal. I got screwed, blued, and tattooed. When John bought his wreck of a car, he got screwed, blued, and tattooed. 2. Sl. intoxicated. Who wants to go out and get screwed, blued, and tattooed? All four of them went out and got screwed, blued, and tattooed.

screwed up Inf. ruined; messed up. This is a really screwed up schedule. Let's start over again. Your schedule is completely screwed up.

scribble away (at something) to write hard and fast at some task. He scribbled away at his notes as the lecturer droned on. Jane sat in the library scribbling away.

scribble something down[†] to write something down fast and not too neatly. He scribbled the figure down and raced for the telephone. Liz scribbled down the telephone number.

scrimp and save and pinch and scrape to be very thrifty; to live on very little money, often in order to save up for something. We had to scrimp and save in order to send the children to college. The Smiths pinched and scraped all year in order to go on a Caribbean cruise.

scrimp on something to try to economize on the use of something; to fail to use enough of something. Please don't scrimp on the quality of the food. There is enough money. You don't have to scrimp on anything.

scrounge around (for someone or something) Fig. to look around all over for someone or something. I scrounged around for Jamie, but she was nowhere to be found. I will try to scrounge around for a replacement part that will do the job.

scrounge someone or something up[†] Fig. to find someone or something somewhere; to dig someone or something up. I can't think of anyone just now, but I will scrounge someone up. They scrounged up an escort for Liz.

scrub someone or something down[†] to clean someone or something thoroughly by rubbing. The mother scrubbed the baby down gently and put lotion on her. Please scrub down this floor.

scrub someone or something off[†] to clean someone or something by rubbing. Mother scrubbed Timmy off. Liz scrubbed off the countertop.

scrub something away[†] to clean something away by rubbing. See if you can scrub that rust away. Scrub away that rust if you can.

scrub something off (of) something and scrub something off[†] to clean something off something by scrubbing. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) I have to scrub the mud off the porch steps. Did you scrub off all the grease?

scrub something out^t to clean out the inside of something by rubbing or brushing. □ Please scrub these pots out and put them away. □ Jim will scrub out the pots.

scrub something out of something and scrub something out^t to clean something out of something by scrubbing. □ Please scrub the gravy out of the pot. □ Are you going to scrub out the burned material?

scrub up 1. Lit. to clean oneself up. □ You have to scrub up before dinner. □ Please go scrub up before you come to the table. 2. Fig. to clean oneself, especially one's hands and arms, as a preparation for performing a surgical procedure. □ The surgeon scrubbed up thoroughly before the operation. □ When you finish scrubbing up, someone will help you on with sterile clothing.

scrunch down to squeeze or huddle down into a smaller shape. □ Mary scrunched down, trying to hide behind the chair. □ The children scrunched down so they wouldn't be seen.

scrunch down into something to squeeze down into a small area or container. □ Fred scrunched down into his seat, hoping no one would see him there. □ Don't scrunch down into your seat. It's bad for your posture.

scrunch something down^t (into something) 1. to squeeze something into a smaller size or shape. □ He scrunched the wad of paper down into a hard ball. □ Liz scrunched down the cloth into a pad for the hot pan. □ Scrunch the boxes down before you throw them away. 2. to pack something tightly into something. □ Dave scrunched his clothing down into the drawer and closed it. □ Dave scrunched down his clothing into the suitcase.

scrunch something up^t to crush or crunch up. □ I pounded the biscuits and scrunched them up into crumbs. □ He scrunched up the note and threw it upon the fire.

scuff something up^t to scrape or scratch something. □ Who scuffed my floor up? □ Please don't scuff up my freshly polished floors!

scuffle with someone to struggle or have a fight with someone. □ The two prisoners scuffled with each other a little till a guard came along and saw them. □ The cowboys scuffled with the deputies when they came out of the saloon.

scurry along to run or scamper along fast. □ The children scurried along, trotting to school. □ We scurried along the trail, keeping watch out for things that might trip us up.

scuttle across something to hurry across something. (Said especially of a small animal.) □ A tiny mouse scuttled across the kitchen floor and startled me. □ A rabbit scuttled across my path.

scuttle away [for a small animal] to run away. □ The otters scuttled away as we approached. □ A skunk scuttled away quickly—thank heavens.

scuzz someone out^t Sl. to nauseate someone. □ He had this unreal face that almost scuzzed me out! □ It's not nice to scuzz out people like that, especially when you hardly know them.

a sea change Fig. a major change or transformation. □ This is not the time for a sea change in our manufacturing division. There are too many orders at the moment.

seal a bargain and seal the bargain Fig. to signify or celebrate the reaching of an agreement or bargain. □ They signed the papers and sealed the bargain by drinking champagne.

seal someone's fate Fig. to determine finally the fate of someone. □ His lying and cheating sealed his fate. He was convicted and sent to prison.

seal something off from someone or something and seal something off^t to make something inaccessible to someone or something. □ The police sealed the building off from everyone. □ They sealed off the building from all the reporters.

seal something (up^t) (with something) to fasten something closed with something. □ Please seal this box up with twine. □ Would you seal up this box with tape?

seal the bargain Go to seal a bargain.

sealed (up) Sl. settled; secured; cinched. □ The matter was sealed by Monday morning. □ The contract was sealed up just in time.

sealed with a kiss and SWAK written and sent with love and care. (The initialism is sometimes written on love letters. Also an acronym.) □ All her letters come SWAK. □ I know they are sealed with a kiss, because she says so.

seam something with something to join the edges of something together with something. □ The worker seamed the two parts of the carpet with a special tool. □ She seamed the material with a strip of cloth to strengthen the seam.

the seamy side of life Fig. the most unpleasant or roughest aspect of life. (A reference to the inside of a garment where the seams show.) □ Doctors in that area really see the seamy side of life. □ Mary saw the seamy side of life when she worked as a volunteer in the homeless shelter.

search after someone or something to look for someone or something. (Perhaps over a long period of time.) □ We searched after a suitable candidate for weeks. □ I am searching after a part for my '57 Chevy.

search for someone or something to look very hard for someone or something. □ I searched for Ted everywhere, but he was already gone. □ I have searched for my glasses high and low.

search high and low (for someone or something) Go to hunt high and low (for someone or something).

Search me. Inf. I do not know.; You can search my clothing and my person, but you won't find the answer to your question anywhere near me. (The two words have equal stress.) □ Jane: What time does Mary's flight get in? Sally: Search me. □ John: What kind of paint should I use on this fence? Bill: Search me.

search someone for something to feel, touch, pat, frisk, or examine electronically a person's body, looking for something hidden underneath the clothes. □ The police searched the suspect for hidden weapons. □ The airport guard used an electronic instrument to search the passengers for weapons.

search someone or something out^t to seek and find someone or something. □ I will search Fred out. I know he's here somewhere. □ We have to search out the key to the safe-deposit box.

search something for someone or something to examine something, looking for someone or something. □ Everyone searched the house for little Wally, but he was not to be found. □ I searched all my coat pockets for the note, but I didn't find it.

search something with a fine-tooth comb Go to go over something with a fine-tooth comb.

search through something to examine all the things found in something. □ I searched through my books for the answer. □ My drawers were searched through thoroughly.

season something with something to make something more flavorful with specific spices and herbs. □ I always season my stews with lots of freshly ground black pepper. □ The chili was seasoned with cumin and allspice, among other things.

seat someone by someone or something Go to by someone or something.

secede from something to withdraw from something. □ Which was the first state to secede from the Union? □ We do not want to secede from the organization, but we will if we must.

second-guess someone to try to predict what some person will do before it is known to anyone, including the person. □ There is no point in trying to second-guess Bob. He is completely unpredictable.

second hand from another person or source, not directly from personal experience or observation. □ I wasn't present at the meeting. I heard about it at second hand. □ Frank tells stories about the Gulf War, but he got them second hand. He wasn't actually in the desert with the troops.

second nature to someone easy and natural for someone. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ Swimming is second nature to Jane. □ Flying a helicopter is no problem for Bob. It's become second nature to him.

second thoughts (about someone or something) new doubts about someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I'm beginning to get second thoughts about Tom. □ You're giving me second thoughts about going there. □ I'm having second thoughts also.

second to none better than everything else. □ This is an excellent car—second to none. □ Her suggestion was second to none, and the manager accepted it eagerly.

S

secure something against someone, something, or an animal 1. to fasten something against the entry of someone, an animal, or something. □ Jane secured the doors and windows against the prowler who was roving around the neighborhood. □ You had better secure the henhouse against coyotes. 2. to obtain a legal order involving someone or something. □ I secured an injunction against Harry. If he bothers you again, he'll have to go into court to explain himself. □ We can't secure an injunction against this ruling.

security against something something that keeps something safe; something that protects; a protection. □ Insurance provides security against the financial losses owing to theft, loss, or damage. □ A good education is a security against unemployment.

seduce someone from something to lure someone away from something. □ The crooked agent seduced Jerry from his usual honest behavior. □ Frank was seduced from his proper ways by the offer of money.

see a man about a dog Fig. to leave for some unmentioned purpose. (Often refers to going to the rest room.)

□ I don't know where Tom went. He said he had to see a man about a dog. □ When John said he was going to see a man about a dog, I thought he would be gone for only a minute.

see about someone or something to investigate someone or something; to check on something that someone has said. □ I don't know who is going on the trip. You ask Jill, and I'll see about Jerry. □ I will see about your request.

see after someone or something to take care of someone or something. (The same as but less common than look after someone or something.) □ Would you please see after Walter? He looks a little pale. □ I will see after the committee while they are meeting.

see ahead (of someone or something) to be able to see into the distance in front of someone or something. □ The fog was so thick I couldn't see ahead of the car. □ I can't see ahead, so I will have to stop.

see around something 1. Lit. to see what is on the other side of or partially concealed by something. □ I could not see around the truck in front of me. □ Do you think I can see around corners? 2. Fig. to perceive someone's deception. □ I see around your trickery! □ We all see around your stated purpose!

see beyond something 1. Lit. to be able to perceive into the distance beyond something. □ Can you see beyond the big tree there, where the barn is on the horizon? □ I can't see beyond the end of the road. I think I need glasses. 2. Fig. to be able to imagine the future beyond a certain time or event. □ He can't see beyond the next day—no sense of the future. □ Todd is usually able to see beyond his immediate situation. I do not know what happened this time.

see double to see two of everything instead of one, owing to a medical disorder. □ When I was driving, I saw two people on the road instead of one. I'm seeing double. There's something wrong with my eyes. □ Mike at first thought he was seeing double when he saw Mary with her sister. He didn't know she had a twin.

see eye to eye (about someone or something) (with someone) and see eye to eye (on someone or something) (with someone) Fig. [for someone] to agree about someone or something with someone else. □ I'm glad we see eye to eye about Todd with Mary. □ I see eye to eye with Mary. □ Will labor and management ever see eye to eye on the new contract?

see fit (to do something) to decide to do something. □ If I see fit to return, I'll bring Bill with me. □ She'll do it if she sees fit.

See if I care! Inf. I do not care if you do it! □ Mary: That does it! I'm going home to Mother! John: See if I care! □ Sue: I'm putting the sofa here, whether you like it or not. Bill: Go ahead! See if I care!

see (neither) hide nor hair Go to (neither) hide nor hair.

See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil. Prov. Ignore any evil that you come in contact with; be virtuous even though there is evil around you. (Often represented by three monkeys, one of which is covering his eyes, one his ears, and one his mouth.) □ Jill: Do you have any idea why

Fred is staying in the office so late every night? Jane: Not me. Like the three little monkeys, I see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil.

see no further than the end of one's nose and cannot see (any) further than the end of one's nose; can't see beyond the end of one's nose Fig. to be narrow-minded; to lack understanding and perception. She is so selfish she can see no further than the end of her nose. You don't care about anyone but yourself. You can't see any further than the end of your nose.

see no objection (to something) and not see any objection (to something) not to think of any objection to something. I see no objection to your idea. Do you see any objection? I do not see any objection to anything you have done.

see one's way (clear) (to do something) to find it possible to do something. I'd be happy if you could see your way clear to attend our meeting. I wanted to be there, but I couldn't see my way clear.

see over something to be able to have a view over something such as a wall, fence, etc. I couldn't see over the fence, but I could hear what was going on. We could not see over the wall.

see red to be angry. Whenever I think of the needless destruction of trees, I see red. Bill really saw red when the tax bill arrived.

see someone about someone or something to confer with someone about someone or something. Jill has to see the boss about one of her office staff members. I will have to see Jill about getting permission to go.

see someone across something to accompany someone across a dangerous area. Paul saw his mother across the field, which contained a number of hazards. Timmy offered to see the elderly lady across the street.

see someone as someone or something to visualize someone as some other person or type of person. I see you as a perfect candidate for the job. I don't see you as mayor.

see someone as something to consider someone or something; to deem someone or something as something. The manager saw the skilled employee as a godsend. John saw the new salesman as a threat to his territory.

see someone back (to something) to accompany someone back to something or some place. I saw her back to her apartment. I will see her back safely.

see someone down to something to accompany or escort someone to a lower level. I will see you down to the front door. Would you please see Mrs. Bracknell down to the door?

see someone home to accompany someone home. Bill agreed to see his aunt home after the movie. You don't need to see me home. It's perfectly safe, and I can get there on my own.

see someone into something and see someone in[†] to usher or accompany someone into something or some place. Please see her into the room and make sure she is seated where she can hear the speaker. Please see in the speaker and make sure she finds her seat on the stage.

see someone off[†] to accompany one to the point of departure for a trip and say good-bye upon departure. We went to the train station to see Andy off. We saw off all the scouts going to camp.

see someone off something to accompany someone who is leaving something; to escort someone away from something. I saw the elderly lady off the station platform safely. The emcee saw the contestants off the stage.

see someone on the dot Go to on the dot.

see someone or something around something to notice someone or something in the vicinity of something or near something. I saw the boys around the swings on the playground. Did you see my cat around the neighborhood anywhere?

see someone or something in a new light Fig. to understand someone or something in a different way [than before]. After we had a little discussion, I began to see Fred in a new light. I can now see the problem in a new light.

see someone out (of something) and show someone out (of something) to accompany or escort someone out of something or some place. Please see our guest out of the factory. Please show our guest out.

see someone to some place to escort someone to a place; to make sure that someone gets some place safely; to accompany someone to a place. I saw Mary to her apartment, and then got back in my car and left. Bill saw his cousin to the train station, and then they parted.

see someone to something to accompany or escort someone to something or some place. (See also see someone to the door.) Let me see you to the station. Would you please see your aunt to her car?

see someone to the door Go to show someone (to) the door.

see someone up to something to accompany or escort someone to a higher level. That is the end of the tour of the wine cellar. I will see you up to the exit. Ted saw Mary up to her apartment.

see something against something 1. Lit. to view something against something else. I can't see the cars against the evening sky if their lights aren't on. The cars can't be seen against the evening sky. 2. Fig. to view or consider something within the context of something else. If you can see this issue against the background of a long series of problems, perhaps you will understand how concerned we are. You really need to see this matter against the background of what has happened before.

see something as something else to visualize or fantasize something as something else. I see this as a wonderful way to interest some new people in our organization. We all see this as a golden opportunity to get to know one another better.

see something in someone or something to appreciate a certain quality in someone or something. I see a strong sense of dignity in Fred. That's good. I now see the strong points in your proposal.

see something in the cards Go to in the cards.

see something of someone or something to know, experience, or visit with someone or some group for some amount of time. I hope we are able to see something of you while you are in town. □ We don't see enough of the town council. What does it do?

see something through to follow through on something until it is completed. □ Mary is prepared to see the project through. □ It's going to be an unpleasant experience, but I hope you'll see it through.

see stars Fig. to seem to see flashing lights after receiving a blow to the head. □ I saw stars when I bumped my head on the attic ceiling. □ The little boy saw stars when he fell headfirst onto the concrete.

see the big picture Go to the big picture.

see the color of someone's money Fig. to verify that someone has money or has enough money. □ So, you want to make a bet? Not until I see the color of your money. □ I want to see the color of your money before we go any further with this business deal.

see the (hand)writing on the wall Fig. to know that something is about to happen. □ If you don't improve your performance, they'll fire you. Can't you see the writing on the wall? □ I know I'll get fired. I can see the handwriting on the wall.

see the last of someone or something to have experienced the last visit, episode, adventure, etc., with someone or something. □ I hope I have seen the last of Robert Ellis! □ We have seen the last of grandma's homemade strawberry jam.

see the light Fig. to understand something clearly at last. □ After a lot of studying and asking many questions, I finally saw the light. □ I know that geometry is difficult. Keep working at it. You'll see the light pretty soon.

see the light (at the end of the tunnel) Fig. to foresee an end to one's problems after a long period of time. (See also begin to see the light.) □ I had been horribly ill for two months before I began to see the light at the end of the tunnel. □ I began to see the light one day in early spring. At that moment, I knew I'd get well.

see the light (of day) Fig. to come to the end of a very busy time. □ Finally, when the holiday season was over, we could see the light of day. We had been so busy! □ When business lets up for a while, we'll be able to see the light.

see the sights to see the important things in a place; to see what tourists usually see. □ We plan to visit Paris and see the sights. □ Everyone left the hotel early in the morning to see the sights.

see through someone or something 1. Lit. [for one's vision] to penetrate something clear or opaque or a person. □ Of course, I can see through the window! □ With x-rays, they can see through your body! 2. Fig. to understand or detect the true nature of someone or something. □ You can't fool me anymore. I can see through you and all your tricks. □ This plan is designed to make money for you, not to help people. I can see through it! I'm not a fool!

see (to it) that something is done to make sure of something; to make certain of something; to be certain to do something. □ The manager saw to it that everyone began working on time. □ The mayor should see that the potholes are repaired.

see to someone or something to take care of someone or something. □ Tom will see to the horses. Come to the house and freshen up. □ I hear the doorbell. Will someone please see to answering the door?

see which way the wind is blowing to determine what is the most expedient thing to do under the conditions at hand. □ We studied the whole situation to see which way the wind was blowing and decided to avoid any conflict at that time. □ Sam failed to see which way the wind was blowing and got himself caught up in an argument.

see with the naked eye Go to the naked eye.

See ya. Go to See you.

See ya, bye-bye. Inf. Bye. □ Bill: I have to be off. Bob: See ya, bye-bye. □ Mary: See ya, bye-bye. Sue: Toodle-oo.

See you. and See ya. Inf. Good-bye. (See also I'll see you later.) □ Good game, Tom. See ya. □ See you, old chum. Give me a ring.

See you around. Inf. I will see you again somewhere. □ Bob: Bye for now. Jane: See you around. □ Tom: See you around, Fred. Fred: Sure, Tom. See you.

(See you) later. Go to I'll see you later.

See you later, alligator. and Later, alligator. Inf. Good-bye. (Sometimes the reply is After while(, crocodile.)) □ Bob: See you later, alligator. Jane: After while, crocodile. □ Bob: Bye, Tom. Tom: See you later, alligator. Bob: Later.

Seeing is believing. Prov. It is hard to believe something you have not seen. (Implies that you will not believe the thing under discussion until you have actually seen it.) □ Jill: They say Melissa has become a wonderful housekeeper now that she has her own apartment. Jane: Seeing is believing. □ I really didn't think that Jerry's girlfriend could be as pretty as he said she was, but seeing is believing.

seeing pink elephants and seeing pink spiders; seeing snakes intoxicated; recovering from a drinking bout; having the delirium tremens. □ When I got to the point of seeing pink elephants, I knew that something had to be done. □ The old one who's shaking—he's probably seeing snakes.

seeing pink spiders Go to previous.

seeing snakes Go to seeing pink elephants.

seeing that... considering...; since... □ Seeing that she has no money, Sally won't be going shopping. □ Seeing that it's raining, we won't go to the beach.

seeing things imagining that one sees someone or something that is not there. □ Lisa says that she saw a ghost, but she was just seeing things. □ I thought I was seeing things when Bill walked into the room. Someone had told me he was dead.

seek after someone or something to keep looking for someone or something. □ I will continue to seek after the thief who stole my car. □ The thief was seeking after a late-model sedan.

Seek and ye shall find. Prov. If you search hard enough for something, you will find it. (Biblical. Can imply that the only thing you need to do to get something is look for it.) □ The bookstore on the corner is an excellent one. Any book you want, just seek and ye shall find.

seek professional help Euph. to get psychiatric or psychological treatment. □ If you are seriously thinking of sui- cide, now is the time to seek professional help. □ His friends suggested that he seek professional help.

seek revenge (against someone) Go to take revenge (against someone).

seek someone or something out^t to search for and find someone or something. □ We will seek someone out to do the work for us. □ Liz sought out a helper for Karen.

seek something from someone or something to pursue something from someone or something. □ We will seek an injunction from the judge. □ My lawyer sought an injunction from the court to try to stop the building project.

seem high-and-mighty Go to high-and-mighty.

seem like a long shot Go to a long shot.

seem like oneself again Go to oneself again.

seem like putty in someone's hands Go to putty in someone's hands.

seem like someone or something to appear to be like some kind of person or something. □ You seemed like such a nice person when I met you. □ This seems like a nice day.

seem like the last person Go to the last person.

seem out of place Go to out of place.

seem pushed for time Go to pressed for time.

seep away [for a fluid] to escape little by little, as through a leak. □ All the oil seeped away, leaving none in the engine. □ The water seeped away after a while.

seep in(to something) [for a fluid] to trickle or leak out of something. □ Water is seeping into the basement. □ Water is seeping in very slowly.

seep out (of something) [for a fluid] to trickle or leak out of something. □ A lot of oil has seeped out of the car onto the driveway. □ There is oil seeping out. There must be a leak.

seep through something [for a fluid] to permeate something and escape. □ The oil seeped through the gasket onto the ground. □ Some water seeped through the ceiling, ruining our carpet as well as the ceiling.

seethe with someone or something to swarm or seem to “boil” with someone or something. □ The wedding reception was seething with guests and well-wishers. □ The room was just seething with flies and other flying creatures.

seethe with something [for someone] to be agitated with anger, hatred, scorn, disgust, etc. □ Laura was seething with rage as she entered the tax office. □ We were seething with disgust at the rude way they treated the people who had just moved in.

segregate someone from someone else and segregate something from something else to separate someone from someone else or something from something else. □ I was asked to segregate the swimmers from the nonswimmers. □ Let's segregate the larger fish from the smaller ones.

segregate someone, something, or an animal into something to isolate someone, an animal, or something into something or a special place. □ We segregated the infected people into a separate room. □ Let's segregate the white pigs into a different pen.

segregate something from something else Go to segregate someone from someone else.

segue into something to make a smooth transition into something. (From filmmaking and broadcasting. Rhymes with egg - day.) □ At this point in the script, you should segue into the next scene. □ Don't segue here, this is where a commercial goes.

seize onto someone or something to grab onto someone or something. □ The beggar seized onto the well-dressed gentleman and demanded money. □ Tony seized onto the door-knob and gave it a hard jerk.

seize someone or something with something to grab someone or something with something. □ The robot seized Roger with its mechanical claws. □ The dockworker seized the cable with a long hook.

seize something up^t to grab or take something. □ The crow seized the freshly hatched chick up and flew away. □ The huge bird seized up the tiny chick.

seize the opportunity to take advantage of an opportunity when offered. □ My uncle offered me a trip to Europe, so I seized the opportunity. □ Whenever you have a chance, you should seize the opportunity.

seize up to freeze or halt; to grind suddenly to a stop. □ The engine seized up, and the car coasted to a stop. □ My knee seized up in the middle of a football game.

seize (up)on something 1. Lit. to grasp something tightly. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Dave seized upon the knob of the door and yanked hard. □ I seized on the railing and held on tight. 2. Fig. to accept or adopt something, such as a plan, idea, etc. □ I heard her ideas and seized upon them immediately. □ The committee seized on my plan at once.

seized with something Fig. affected suddenly by something, such as laughter, coughing, sneezing, fits of rage, etc. □ Suddenly, I was seized with a fit of coughing. □ Mary was seized with laughter at the sight of Ted in a clown suit.

select from someone or something to make a choice from a group of people or things. □ You will have to select from the people we have asked to interview with you today. □ They told me that I had to select from what you have in stock.

select someone from something to choose someone from a group of people. □ You will have to select a new secretary from the available pool of workers. □ I selected Ted from the applicants I had at the time.

select someone or something as something to choose someone or something to be something. □ The voters selected Alice as the county treasurer. □ We selected Acme as our main distributor.

select someone or something for someone or something to choose someone or something for the benefit of someone or something. □ You need a helper, so I will select someone for you. □ Jane selected a car for her husband.

Self-praise is no recommendation. Prov. If you praise yourself, people will think that you are boastful and will not respect you. □ After listening to the lawyer brag about his achievements for a solid half hour, I decided I would find someone else to handle my case. Self-praise is no recommendation.

Self-preservation is the first law of nature. Prov. Every living thing will fight to survive.; It is natural to think of yourself first. □ When Joe's best friend was arrested, Joe pretended not to know him. "Perhaps it wasn't very loyal of me," he thought, "but self-preservation is the first law of nature."

sell at something [for something] to be marketed at a particular price. □ This coat formerly sold at twice this price. □ Next month, this will sell at a 60 percent markup.

sell like hotcakes Fig. [for something] to be sold very fast. □ The delicious candy sold like hotcakes. □ The fancy new cars were selling like hotcakes.

sell out [for an item] to be sold until there is no more. □ All the plastic hangers have sold out.

sell out (to someone) 1. to sell everything, such as all one's property or one's company, to someone. □ The farmer finally gave up and sold out to a large corporation. □ I refuse to sell out no matter what they offer me. 2. to betray someone or something to someone. □ I think that you have sold out to the enemy!

sell someone a bill of goods Fig. to get someone to believe something that isn't true; to deceive someone. □ Don't pay any attention to what John says. He's just trying to sell you a bill of goods. □ I'm not selling you a bill of goods. What I say is true.

sell someone down the river Go to sell someone out.

sell someone on something to convince someone to do something; to convince someone to accept an idea. □ Mary sold me on ordering pizza for dinner. □ John sold Anne on switching long-distance phone companies.

sell someone or something as something to put someone or something up for consideration as something. □ The political party tried to sell the candidate as a responsible administrator. □ The sales force was told to sell the paint as the best available anywhere.

sell someone or something short Fig. to underestimate someone or something; to fail to see the good qualities of someone or something. □ This is a very good restaurant. Don't sell it short. □ When you say that John isn't interested in music, you're selling him short. Did you know he plays the violin quite well?

sell someone out^t and sell someone down the river to betray someone; to reveal damaging information about someone. □ Bill told everything he knew about Bob, and that sold Bob down the river. □ You'll be sorry if you sell me out. □ Lefty sold out his friends, and we'll all soon be arrested.

sell something at something 1. to market something at a particular price. □ Do you think we can sell these things at four dollars each? □ We cannot sell these at ten times what we paid for them! 2. to market something at something or some place. □ We will try to sell our old kitchen sink at the flea market in Adamsville. □ He sold all his watermelons at the farmers market in town.

sell something for a certain price to market something at a certain price. □ I think I can sell this for twice what I paid for it. □ This is selling for twice the price at the shop down the street.

sell something for a song Fig. to sell something for very little money. (As in trading something of value for the singing of a song.) □ I had to sell my car for a song because I needed the money in a hurry. □ I have two geometry books and I would sell one of them for a song.

sell something off^t to sell all of something. □ We ended up with a large stock of out-of-style coats and we had to sell them all off at a loss. □ We sold off all the excess stock.

sell something on credit to sell something now and let the purchaser pay for it later. □ I'm sorry, we don't sell groceries on credit. It's strictly cash-and-carry. □ There is a shop around the corner that sells clothing on credit.

sell something out^t to sell all of something. □ Have they sold their supply out yet? □ The stores sold out their stocks of that game long before Christmas.

sell the farm and bet the farm Fig. to liquidate all one's assets in order to raise money to invest in something. □ It's a risky proposition. I wouldn't bet the farm on it.

a selling point a feature of a product or idea that is worth mentioning when trying to sell the product or idea. □ The fact that the book had large type is an important selling point.

send after someone or something to request that someone or something be brought; to send for someone or something. □ You really ought to send after a doctor. □ Let's send after a taxi to take us to the airport.

send ahead for something to send a message for something to be ready or available when one arrives. □ I will send ahead for a taxi to meet us at the station. □ We sent ahead for room reservations at the hotel.

send away (for something) to order something to be brought or sent from some distance. □ I sent away for a new part to replace the one that was broken. □ I couldn't find the part locally. I had to send away for it.

send for someone or something to make a request that someone or something be brought. □ Mr. Franklin sent for his secretary. □ I think we should send for an ambulance.

send in for something and send off for something to dispatch an order for something to a company or other body making a public offer of goods. □ I sent in for a new product that is supposed to make my hair grow back. □ Did you send in for that country-and-western CD as you said you would? □ I sent off for the proper contest entry forms.

send off for something Go to previous.

send one about one's business to send someone away, usually in an unfriendly way. □ Is that annoying man on the telephone again? Please send him about his business. □ Ann, I can't clean up the house with you hanging around. I'm going to have to send you about your business.

send one to one's death to order one to go on a mission or journey that will result in one's death. □ The general sent many fine young men to their deaths that day. □ They were sent to their death by the act of a madman.

send out (for someone or something) to send an order by messenger, telephone, cable, or fax that someone or something is to come or be delivered. □ We sent out for a public stenographer to record the will as Uncle Herman dictated it. □ There was no food in the refrigerator, so we decided to send out.

send someone after someone or something to send someone to get someone or something. □ Please send John after the doctor. This is an emergency. □ The telephone was out so we sent someone after an ambulance.

send someone away Go to put someone away.

send someone away with something to make someone leave and carry something away. □ I sent him away with a message for his mother. □ She sent Ted away with a little booklet about manners.

send someone back for something to cause someone to return to get something. □ He came without it, so I sent him back for it. □ Ted sent Roger back for the rest of the groceries.

send someone before someone or something to cause someone to appear before someone or a group. □ I sent my lawyer before the mayor to plead my cause. □ Donna sent a friend before the committee.

send someone below to send someone to one of the lower decks of a ship. □ The first mate sent the sailor below to shovel coal into the boiler. □ The captain sent Mr. Wallace below, where he would be out of the way during the storm.

send someone down for something to request someone to go to a place on a lower level to get something. □ I sent the butler down for another bottle of wine. □ I sent the butler down for more of this vintage.

send someone for someone or something to cause someone to go and get someone or something. □ Please send Jerry for the doctor. This is an emergency. □ Could you send someone for pizza?

send someone from pillar to post Fig. to send someone to many different places, none of which is the correct place. (Compare this with send someone on a wild-goose chase.) □ Jill sent Roger from pillar to post to look for a special kind of paper. □ Roger was sent from pillar to post with his problem.

send someone in[†] Go to send someone into something.

send someone in for someone to send someone into a game as a replacement for someone else. □ The coach sent Jill in for Alice, who was beginning to tire. □ Ted sent Bill in for Wally.

send someone into a state or condition to cause someone to be in a certain state or condition. □ The horrifying news sent our family into hysterics. □ The clerk's rude behavior sent the customer into a fit of anger.

send someone into something and send someone in[†] to make someone go into something or some place. □ George sent me into the house for a hammer. □ The boys know where it is. He should have sent in the boys. □ George sent me in.

send someone off to participate in saying good-bye to someone who is leaving. □ We had a party to send Tom off on his retirement. □ Bob's parents sent him off from the airport.

send someone off (to something) to send someone away to something or some place, especially away on a journey; to be present when someone sets out on a journey to something or some place. □ We sent both kids off to camp this summer and had peace in the house for the first time in years. □ Liz sent Karen off to the store.

send someone on a wild-goose chase Fig. to send someone on a pointless or futile search. □ You sent me on a wild-goose chase! There are no straw hats for sale anywhere in town! □ Fred was sent on a wild-goose chase while his friends prepared a surprise party for him.

send someone or something across (something) to cause someone or something to cross something. □ The coach sent the player across the field to give a message to someone on the other side. □ We sent the taxi across the river to pick up Gerald on the other side.

send someone or something along[†] to help someone or something continue along; to send someone. □ I knew it was time for Johnny to go home, so I sent him along. □ I will send along the baggage later.

send someone or something around[†] to cause someone or something to go from place to place. □ I sent my secretary around to look for the missing book. □ I will send around some papers for you to sign.

send someone or something around for someone or something to make someone or something go somewhere to pick up someone or something. □ I will send my driver around for you at about six. □ We sent a taxi around for Jane.

send someone or something away[†] to cause someone, a group, or something to leave. □ I sent the salesman away. □ The store sent away all late deliveries.

send someone or something back[†] to cause someone or something to return. □ He came to apologize, but I sent him back. □ Send back these goods. They are defective.

send someone or something down[†] to dispatch someone or something to some place on a lower level. □ They wanted someone downstairs to help with the moving, so I sent John down. □ I sent down John to help.

send someone or something on[†] (ahead) (of someone or something) to dispatch someone or something to arrive before someone or something else. □ I sent my personal assistant on ahead of me to get the rooms ready. □ Jeff sent on his luggage.

send someone or something under something to force someone or something under something. □ The accident sent poor Roger under the wheels of a truck. □ Mary kicked the ball and sent it under a bush.

send someone or something up[†] 1. Lit. to order someone to go upward to a higher level; to arrange for something to be taken upward to a higher level. □ I'll send up Gary. □ They are hungry on the tenth floor. Let's send some sandwiches up. 2. Fig. to parody or ridicule someone or something. □ Comedians love to send the president or some other famous person up. □ The comedian sent up the vice president.

send someone out[†] Go to send someone out of something.

send someone out[†] (for someone or something) to send someone out to search for someone or something. □ We sent Gerald out for Walter, who was supposed to have been here already. □ Karen sent out Liz for some medicine.

send someone out of something and send someone out[†] to order someone to leave something or some place. □ The teacher sent the student out of the room. □ The teacher sent out the troublesome students.

send someone (out) on an errand to dispatch someone to perform an errand. □ Jerry will be back in a minute. I sent him out on an errand. □ Who sent you on an errand?

send someone over (to) some place send someone over (to) some place and send someone over^t to order someone to go to some place. □ I sent Dave over to the main office. □ Please send over someone else.

send someone packing Fig. to send someone away; to dismiss someone, possibly rudely. □ I couldn't stand him anymore, so I sent him packing. □ The maid proved to be so incompetent that I had to send her packing.

send someone through the mill Go to through the mill.

send someone to bed Go to put someone to bed.

send someone to glory 1. Fig. to kill someone. □ One shot sent him to glory. □ You want me to send you to glory or something? 2. Fig. to officiate at the burial services for someone. □ The preacher sent him to glory amidst the sobs of his relatives. □ The preacher probably gets fifty bucks for every stiff he sends to glory.

send someone to the locker room Go to next.

send someone to the showers and send someone to the locker room Fig. to order a player from the playing field, thus ending the player's participation for the day. □ The coach had sent four players to the showers before the end of the game. □ He was angry enough to send them all to the locker room.

send someone up^t Fig. to mock or ridicule, particularly by imitation. □ Last week, he sent the prime minister up. □ In his act, he sends up famous people.

send someone up (the river) Fig. to send someone to prison. (Underworld. As done by a judge or indirectly by the police.) □ They tried to send me up the river, but my testimony got me off. □ I'm gonna send you up the river if it's the last thing I do.

send someone up the wall Fig. to annoy and irritate someone; to drive someone crazy. □ Don't scratch your fingers on the blackboard. It sends me up the wall! □ That noise sends me up the wall!

send something by something to dispatch something by a particular carrier. □ I will send it to you by special messenger. □ We sent the package by air freight.

send something C.O.D. to send merchandise to someone who will pay for it when it is delivered. (C.O.D. means "cash on delivery" or "collect on delivery.") □ I asked them to send the book C.O.D. □ This person has ordered a copy of our upcoming release. Send it C.O.D.

send something from something to dispatch something from something or some place. □ Ted sent the package from the downtown post office. □ The gifts were sent off in a large box from the company's shipping dock.

send something into something and send something in^t to dispatch something, such as an order, to a company or other body making a public offer of goods. □ I sent the order in to the home office. □ I sent in the order.

send something off^t (to someone or something) to dispatch something to someone, something, or some place. □ I will send the package off to you in tomorrow's mail. □ Karen sent off a letter to her aunt.

send something over^t ((to) some place) to cause something to be taken to some place. □ I sent the package over to your home. □ Please send over the rest of the mail.

send something to someone or something to dispatch something to someone, something, or some place. □ I will send the books to my parents. □ I sent the order to Detroit.

send up a trial balloon to suggest something and see how people respond to it; to test public opinion. □ Mary had an excellent idea, but when we sent up a trial balloon, the response was very negative. □ Don't start the whole project without sending up a trial balloon.

send word to someone to get a message to someone by any means. □ I will send word to her as soon as I have something to report. □ Tom sent word to Bill just in time.

a sense of humor the ability to appreciate good humor and jokes; the ability to create jokes and say funny things. □ Does he have a sense of humor? He looks like he has never laughed in his life.

sensitize someone to something 1. to make a person have an allergic reaction to something. □ Frequent exposure to the chemical sensitized Harry to it and made him get a rash. □ He became sensitized to pet dander. 2. to make someone more thoughtful and receptive to something. □ We want to sensitize you to the feelings of other people. □ He never became sensitized to the needs of others.

sentence someone to something (for something) [for a judge] to order someone to suffer confinement, death, or labor for committing a crime. □ The judge sentenced Roger to three years in prison for the crime. □ The judge sentenced him to hard labor.

separate but equal segregated but of equal value or quality. (A doctrine once sanctioned by the U.S. Supreme Court regarding racial segregation.) □ The separate but equal doctrine was abandoned years ago. □ They were provided with facilities that were said to be separate but equal—but were really of a lower standard.

separate off (from something) to move or head away from something. □ The road to the cabin separates off from the main road and goes along for a mile or two. □ It separates off about a mile from here.

separate someone from someone else and separate something from something else to segregate people or things. □ The nurse separated the infected people from the healthy ones. □ Please separate the spoiled apples from the good ones.

separate someone or something into something to divide people or things into subdivisions. □ We had to separate the kids into smaller groups. □ Jane separated the apples into three groups by size.

separate something from something else Go to separate someone from someone else.

separate something off from something and separate something off^t to remove something from something. □ Frank separated the cream off from the milk. □ Separate off the hens from the rooster.

separate something out of something and separate something out^t to remove something out from something. □ She used a filter to separate the dirt particles out of the water. □ A filter separated out the impurities.

separate the men from the boys and separate the sheep from the goats Fig. to separate the competent from those who are less competent. (Not necessarily just about males.) □ This is the kind of task that separates the men from the boys. □ Working in a challenging place like this really separates the sheep from the goats.

separate the wheat from the chaff Prov. to separate what is useful or valuable from what is worthless. □ When it comes to books, time will separate the wheat from the chaff. Good books will have lasting appeal, and the rest will be forgotten. □ The managers hoped that the new procedure for evaluating employees would separate the wheat from the chaff.

serious about someone in love with someone; romantically interested in someone. □ I'm afraid I'm getting serious about Bill. □ Bill, unfortunately, is pretty serious about Mary.

serve a (useful) purpose to be useful in accomplishing some purpose. □ This large book should serve a useful purpose. We can use it for a doorstep.

serve as a guinea pig Fig. [for someone] to be experimented on; to allow some sort of test to be performed on one. (Alludes to the use of guinea pigs for biological experiments.) □ Try it on someone else! I don't want to serve as a guinea pig! □ Jane agreed to serve as a guinea pig. She'll be the one to try out the new flavor of ice cream.

serve as someone or something to act in the capacity of someone or something. □ I served as the mayor's assistant for a number of years. □ This brick will not serve as a doorstep.

serve as the driving force (behind someone or something) Go to the driving force (behind someone or something).

serve notice (on someone) to formally or clearly announce something to someone. □ John served notice that he wouldn't prepare the coffee anymore. □ I'm serving notice that I'll resign as secretary next month.

serve on something to carry out one's duty or responsibility on something, such as a committee or a board. □ Will you be able to serve on this committee next year also? □ Sarah refused to serve on the committee again.

serve someone right [for an act or event] to punish someone fairly (for doing something). □ John copied off my test paper. It would serve him right if he fails the test. □ It'd serve John right if he got arrested.

serve someone's purpose Go to answer someone's purpose.

serve someone with something to officially deliver something, such as a subpoena, to someone. □ He served her with papers from the circuit court. □ Has Tom been served with the subpoena?

serve something around[†] to distribute something to eat or drink to everyone present. □ Please serve the snacks around so that everyone gets some. □ Serve around the birthday cakes, would you?

serve something for something to distribute something to eat or drink for a particular purpose. □ We served smoked salmon for an appetizer. □ What will you serve for a main course?

serve something in something to present something to eat or drink in a particular container. □ Kelly served the lemonade in paper cups. □ What will you serve the soup in?

serve something on a silver platter Go to on a silver platter.

serve something on someone to officially deliver something, such as a subpoena, to someone. □ A prosecuting attorney served the subpoena on Max. □ The document was served on the plaintiff by a sheriff's deputy.

serve something out[†] to carry out one's duty or responsibility for the whole time, all the way to the end. □ She was unable to serve her term out. □ The convict served out his sentence in solitary confinement.

serve something to someone[†] 1. to present someone with something to eat or drink. □ The host served the snacks to everyone and left the room to work on the salad. □ The snacks were served to everyone in attendance. 2. to officially deliver something, such as a subpoena, to someone. □ The sheriff at the door was there to serve a subpoena to Fred. □ She served the papers to the person who lived there.

serve something up[†] to distribute or deliver food for people to eat. □ The cook served the stew up and then passed around the bread. □ Can you serve up the food now?

serve time to spend a certain amount of time in jail. □ The criminal served ten years in jail. □ After the felon served his time, he was released from prison.

serve under someone or something to carry out one's responsibility under the direction or in the employment of someone. □ I served under the president of the company as special assistant. □ Jane served under the previous administration as an investigator.

serve with someone to perform military service alongside or with someone. □ I served with Harry when we were both in the army. □ At the reunion, I met a lot of the guys I served with in the navy.

Set a beggar on horseback, and he'll ride to the devil. Prov. If a poor person becomes wealthy, he or she will quickly become corrupt. □ Jill: Since Phil inherited all that money, all he does is go to parties and take drugs. Jane: Yep. Set a beggar on horseback, and he'll ride to the devil.

set a precedent to establish a pattern; to set a policy that must be followed in future cases. □ I'll do what you ask this time, but it doesn't set a precedent. □ We've already set a precedent in matters such as these.

Set a thief to catch a thief. Prov. The best person to catch a thief is another thief, because he or she knows how thieves think. □ The government set a thief to catch a thief, hiring a stockbroker convicted of fraudulent practices to entrap the stockbroker they were investigating for fraud.

set a trap to adjust and prepare a trap to catch an animal. □ Bill set a mousetrap and baited it with cheese. □ The old man set a trap to catch an annoying squirrel.

set about doing something to begin to do something. □ When are you going to set about fixing the roof? □ We will set about painting the house when the weather gets a little cooler.

set eyes on someone or something and lay eyes on someone or something Fig. to see someone or something for the first time. □ I knew when I set eyes on that car that it was the car for me. □ Have you ever laid eyes on such a beautiful flower?

set fire to someone or something and set someone or something on fire to ignite someone or something; to put someone or something to flames. □ The thief set fire to the building. □ The poor man accidentally set himself on fire.

set foot in some place to enter into some place; to begin to enter some place. □ The judge ordered him never to set foot in her house again. □ I would never set foot in a place like that.

set for life prepared to exist for the rest of one's life; having adequate supplies for the rest of one's life. □ As soon as I win the lottery, I will be set for life. I'll never have to work again!

set forth on something and launch forth on something
1. Lit. to start out on something, such as a journey. □ We intend to set forth on our journey very early in the morning. □ What time will you launch forth on your trip? 2. Fig. to begin presenting a speech or an explanation. □ As soon as John set forth on his speech, three people walked out. □ Every time he launches forth on a presentation, it's a half hour before he shuts up.

set great store by someone or something to have positive expectations for someone or something; to have high hopes for someone or something. □ I set great store by my computer and its ability to help me in my work. □ Bill sets great store by his expensive tools.

set in to begin; to become fixed for a period of time. □ A severe cold spell set in early in November. □ When high temperatures set in, the use of electricity went up considerably.

set in one's ways leading a fixed lifestyle; living according to one's own established patterns. □ At her age, she's getting sort of set in her ways. □ If you weren't so set in your ways, you'd be able to understand young people better.

a set of pipes Fig. a very loud voice; a good singing voice. □ She has a nice set of pipes. □ With a set of pipes like that, she's a winner.

a set of wheels Fig. a car. □ I need a new set of wheels. □ Man, look at that set of wheels that chick has!

set off (for something) to leave for something or some place. □ We set off for Springfield three hours late. □ It was afternoon before we could set off.

S set off on something to begin on a journey or expedition. □ When do you plan to set off on your journey? □ We will set off on our adventure tomorrow morning.

set one (back) on one's feet and set one on one's feet again Fig. to reestablish someone; to help someone become active and productive again. □ Gary's uncle helped set him back on his feet. □ We will all help set you on your feet again.

set one back on one's heels Fig. to surprise or shock someone. □ I'll bet that news really set her back on her heels! □ The bill for the repairs set me back on my heels.

set one on one's feet again Go to set one (back) on one's feet.

set one's heart against something Fig. to turn against something; to become totally against something. □ Jane set her heart against going to Australia. □ I set my heart against her departure.

set one's heart on someone or something Fig. to be determined to get or do someone or something. □ I am sorry you didn't get to pick the one you wanted. I know you had set your heart on Fred. □ Jane set her heart on going to London.

set one's hopes on someone or something Fig. to have one's hopes or expectations dependent on someone or something. □ Please don't set your hopes on me in the race. I can't run as fast as I used to. □ I have set my hopes on the effectiveness of the new law.

set one's house in order Fig. to make certain that one's affairs are in proper legal order. □ Before we can ask for a bank loan, we have to set our house in order. □ I found an accountant who would help me set my house in order.

set one's mind on someone or something Fig. to be determined to get or have someone or something. □ I've set my mind on Dave. I have to have him on my team. □ Jamie set her mind on the red sports car.

set one's mind to something Go to put one's mind to something.

set one's (own) price to name the (relatively high) price at which one is willing to sell something. □ If you have a first edition of Milton, you can almost set your own price. They are in great demand by collectors.

set one's sights on someone or something Fig. to regard having someone or something as one's goal. □ He wanted a wife and he had set his sights on Alice. □ James set his sights on a law degree.

set out (for some place) (from some place) to leave from some place on a journey for some place. □ We set out for home from the cabin on the very next morning. □ We set out from the cabin at dawn.

set out on one's own Go to strike out on one's own.

set out (on something) to begin a journey; to begin a project. □ We set out on our trip exactly as planned. □ We set out at noon.

set out to do something to begin to do something; to intend to do something. □ Jill set out to weed the garden, but pulled up a few valuable plants in the process. □ I set out to repair the door, not rebuild the whole porch.

set sail for some place to leave in a ship or boat for some place. (Not limited to ships having sails.) □ We set sail for Grenada at noon. □ When do we set sail for Nantucket?

set someone about something to make someone begin doing something. □ I set the boys about raking up the leaves. □ She set herself about repairing the damaged machine.

set someone apart from someone else to make someone stand out when compared to someone else. □ Her flaming red hair sets her apart from all the others in her class. □ They set themselves apart from the rest due to their superb accomplishments.

set someone back (some amount of money) to cost someone (an amount of money). □ This coat set me back about $250. □ That fancy dinner at the restaurant last night really set us back.

set someone down (on/to) something to place a person one is carrying or lifting onto something. □ I set the small boy down onto the desk and gave him a piece of candy. □ Set the baby down and come over here.

set someone off 1. Fig. to cause someone to become very angry; to ignite someone's anger. (Based on set something off ①.) □ That kind of thing really sets me off! □ Your rude behavior set off Mrs. Franklin. 2. Fig. to cause someone to start talking or lecturing about a particular subject. (Based on set something off ②.) □ When I mentioned high taxes it really set Walter off. He talked and talked. □ The subject set off my uncle, and he talked on endlessly.

set someone on fire Fig. to excite someone; to make someone passionate. (Based on set fire to someone or something.) □ Her oratory set everyone on fire. □ Ted's presentation didn't exactly set me on fire, but it was a good summary of the project.

set someone or an animal on someone or an animal to command someone or an animal to attack someone or an animal. □ The gang leader set his thugs on the unwary tourists. □ Scott set his hounds on the raccoon.

set someone or something above someone or something 1. to place someone or something in a physical location higher than someone or something. □ Timmy's dad set him above the others so he could see better. □ I set the trophy above the television on a little shelf. 2. to regard someone or something as better than someone or something else. □ Fred set his wife and children above everyone else. □ Gene set his job above his family.

set someone or something down[†] and put someone or something down[†] to lower or set down someone or something. (See also set something down; put someone or something down.) □ Put me down! □ Please set that vase down. It cost a fortune. □ Put down that gun!

set someone or something free (from something) to release someone or something from something. □ The commando set the secret agent free from the prison. □ Who set the chickens free from their pens? □ At last, he set himself free from the inhibitions that held him back.

set someone or something on fire Go to set fire to someone or something.

set someone or something on track Go to on track.

set someone or something to work to start someone or something working; to cause someone or something to begin functioning. □ The captain set everyone to work repairing the tears in the fabric of the sails. □ We will set the machines to work at the regular time.

set someone or something up[†] against someone or something to put someone or something into competition against someone or something. □ The coach set his team up against the Lions. □ He set up Will against a very fast runner.

set someone or something up[†] as something to arrange for or equip someone or something to be or work as something. □ His uncle set him up as a tax consultant. □ Lee set up his nephew as a tax consultant. □ Ken set the company up as a partnership.

set someone's mind at ease (about someone or something) to make someone feel mentally comfortable about someone or something. □ Alice is upset. I will have to do something to set her mind at ease about the accident. □ Please set your mind at ease. Everything will be all right.

set someone's teeth on edge 1. Fig. [for a scraping sound] to irritate someone's nerves. □ That noise sets my teeth on edge! □ Tom's teeth were set on edge by the incessant screaming of the children. 2. Fig. [for a person or an idea] to upset someone very much. □ Her overbearing manner usually sets my teeth on edge. □ The very thought of doing that set her teeth on edge.

set someone straight to make certain that someone understands something exactly. (Often said in anger or domination.) □ Please set me straight on this matter. Do you or do you not accept the responsibility for the accident? □ I set her straight about who she had to ask for permission to leave early.

set someone up[†] to lead—by deception—a person to play a particular role in an event; to arrange an event—usually by deception—so that a specific person suffers the consequences for the event; to frame someone. (See also set someone up (as something).) □ I had nothing to do with the robbery! I was just standing there. Somebody must have set me up! □ John isn't the one who started the fight. Somebody set up the poor guy.

set someone up (in business) to help establish someone in business; to provide the money someone needs to start a business. □ My father set my sisters up in business. □ He helped set them up so he could keep the business in the family.

set something against someone or something 1. to place or lean something against someone or something. □ Dave set the chair against Fred and had to move it away. □ I set the rake against the side of the house. 2. to make someone hate or oppose someone or something. □ His second wife set him against his former in-laws. □ The Civil War set brother against brother.

set something apart from something else 1. to move something so it is away from something else. □ Set the old ones apart from the others so we can sell them first. □ The stale loaves were set apart from the fresh ones. 2. to make something stand out when compared to something else. □ The bright green really sets this plant apart from the others. □ Her golden hair sets her apart from all the others.

set something aside[†] to place something in a place that is to one side or out of the way. □ Betty set the manuscript aside until she had more time to work on it. □ Liz set aside her book for a while.

set something aside[†] (for someone or something) to reserve something for someone or some purpose. □ I will set a piece of cake aside for you. □ Liz set aside some cake for Karen.

set something at something to fix something at a particular value or amount. □ Please set the thermostat at a lower temperature. □ Who set the refrigerator at freezing?

set something back[†] and put something back[†] to set something, like a timepiece, to a lower number. (Put is less common.) □ It's that time of year when you must set your clocks and watches back! □ Set back your clock tonight. □ I have to put all the clocks back.

set something back from something else and set something back[†] to place something at some distance from something else. □ Set the glasses back from the edge or they will get knocked off. □ You should set back the crystal vase a little. It's too close to the edge.

set something before someone, something, or some creature to place something in front of someone, an animal, a group, or something. □ I set the plate of sandwiches before the children and they were gone in a few minutes. □ Jane set the bowl of food before the cats.

set something beside something to place something near or next to something. □ Please set the chair beside the window. □ I set the suitcase beside the door so I would not forget it.

set something down[†] and put something down[†] 1. to place something on the surface of something. □ Andy set the hot skillet down on the dishcloth and burned a hole in it. □ He set down the skillet here and burned the counter. 2. to write something on paper. □ Let me put this down on paper so we will have a record of what was said. □ I will set down this note on paper. 3. to land an aircraft. □ The pilot put the plane down exactly on time. □ I can't set down this plane in the fog.

set something down as something to regard something as something. (See also put something down to something.) □ I set his behavior down as an event that would not repeat itself. □ Please just set the whole afternoon down as an exercise in patience.

set something down[†] in black and white Go to put something down[†] in black and white.

set something down to something Go to put something down to something.

set something for something to adjust something for a particular setting. □ I set the thermostat for a lower temperature. □ Please set the air conditioning for about 75 degrees.

set something forth[†] to explain something; to present some information. □ She set her ideas forth in an organized and interesting manner. □ Please set forth your thoughts quickly and concisely.

set something forward 1. to move something to a more forward position. □ Please set the chair forward a little bit. It is in the walkway. □ If you set the vase forward, it will show up better against the dark background. 2. to reset a timepiece to a later time. □ You are supposed to set your clock forward at this time of year. □ Did you set your watch forward?

set something in[†] Go to set something into something.

set something in a place to locate the action of a play or movie in a place. □ The author set the second act in a wooded glade. □ The opera was set in a forest outside Moscow.

set something in a type face to set something in type, a particular style of type, or a particular font. □ Why not set this section in italics to make it stand out from the rest? □ Why was this paragraph set in bold type?

set something in motion to start something moving. □ The mayor set the project in motion by digging the first shovelful of soil. □ I cannot set the procedure in motion until I receive a purchase order.

set something into something and set something in[†] to install something into its place. □ The movers set the stove into its proper place, and the plumber hooked it up two days later. □ They set in the stove carefully.

set something off[†] 1. Lit. to ignite something, such as fireworks. □ The boys were setting firecrackers off all afternoon. □ They set off rocket after rocket. 2. Fig. to cause something to begin. □ The coach set the race off with a shot from the starting pistol. □ She set off the race with a whistle. 3. Fig. to make something distinct or outstanding. □ The lovely stonework sets the fireplace off quite nicely. □ The white hat really sets off Betsy's eyes.

set something out[†] (for someone or something) to remove something and place it so that it is available for someone or some purpose. □ I set a piece of cake out for you to eat whenever you get home. □ Liz set out some cake for Karen.

set something over something to place something in a position above something else. □ Toby set the plate over the hole in the tablecloth. □ Please place the kettle over the fire.

set something right and make something right; make something good; put something right to correct something; to alter a situation to make it more fair. □ This is a very unfortunate situation. I'll ask the people responsible to set this matter right. □ I'm sorry that we overcharged you. We'll try to put it right. □ I know I owe you some money, but don't worry, I'll make it good.

set something straight and put something straight to figure out and correct something; to straighten out a mess. □ I am sorry for the error. I am sure we can set it straight. □ We'll put this matter straight in a short time.

set something to music to write a piece of music to accompany a set of words. □ The musician set my lyrics to music. □ The rock band set the poem to music.

set something up[†] 1. Lit. to put something together; to erect something. □ My parents bought me a dollhouse, but I had to set it up myself. □ It took nearly an hour to set up the tent. 2. Fig. to establish or found something. □ We set up a fund to buy food for the needy. □ The business owners set a bank up in the small town.

set something up[†] (with someone) to make plans for something. □ John is hard at work setting something up with Bill and Mary. □ Sally and Tom set up a party for Saturday night.

set something (up)on something to place something on the surface of something. □ Mrs. Franklin set a bowl of fruit upon the table. □ I set my empty glass on the counter.

set the ball rolling Go to get the ball rolling.

set the record straight Fig. to put right a mistake or misunderstanding; to make sure that an account, etc., is correct. □ The manager thought Jean was to blame, but she soon set the record straight. □ Jane's mother heard that Tom is a married man, but he set the record straight. He's divorced.

set the stage for something 1. Lit. to arrange a stage for an act or scene of a production. □ The stage crew set the stage for the first act. □ They set the stage for the second scene while the orchestra played. 2. Fig. to prepare something for some activity. □ The initial meeting set the stage for further negotiations. □ Your negative comments set the stage for another big argument.

set the table to place plates, glasses, napkins, etc., on the table before a meal. (The opposite of clear the table.) □

Jane, would you please set the table? □ I'm tired of setting the table. Ask someone else to do it.

set the world on fire Fig. to do exciting things that bring fame and glory. (Frequently with the negative.) □ I'm not very ambitious. I don't want to set the world on fire. □ You don't have to set the world on fire. Just do a good job.

set to to begin to fight; to attack or commence someone or something. □ The two boys set to almost as soon as they met each other. □ They set to and fought for about ten minutes, cursing and screaming.

set to do something ready to do something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm all set to go. Are you ready? □ We are set to leave at a moment's notice.

set to work (on someone or something) to begin working on someone or something. □ We have finished questioning Tom, so we will set to work on Fred. □ We set to work on dinner at noon.

set tongues (a)wagging Fig. to cause people to start gossiping. □ The affair between the boss and her accountant set tongues awagging. □ If you don't get the lawn mowed soon, you will set tongues wagging in the neighborhood.

set type to arrange type for printing; to prepare finished pages for printing. □ Have you finished setting the type for page one yet? □ John sets type for a living.

set up shop somewhere to establish one's place of work somewhere. □ Mary set up shop in a small office building on Oak Street. □ The police officer said, "You can't set up shop right here on the sidewalk!"

set upon someone or something to attack someone or something violently. □ The dogs set upon the bear and chased it up a tree. □ Bill set upon Tom and struck him hard in the face.

settle a score with someone and settle the score (with someone) Fig. to clear up a problem with someone; to get even with someone. □ John wants to settle a score with his neighbor. □ Tom, it's time you and I settled the score.

settle down 1. to calm down. □ Now, children, it's time to settle down and start class. □ If you don't settle down, I'll send you all home. 2. to settle into a stable way of life; to get married and settle into a stable way of life. □ Tom, don't you think it's about time you settled down and stopped all of this running around? □ Bill and Ann decided to settle down and start a family.

settle for something to agree to accept something (even though something else would be better). □ We wanted a red one, but settled for a blue one. □ Ask your grocer for Wilson's canned corn—the best corn in cans. Don't settle for less.

settle in to become accustomed to one's new surroundings; to get used to living in a place or a new dwelling. □ I need a little time to settle in, then I can think about buying a car.

settle on something to decide on something. □ We've discussed the merits of all of them, and we've settled on this one. □ I can't settle on one or the other, so I'll buy both.

settle someone's affairs to deal with one's business matters; to manage the business affairs of someone who can't.

□ When my uncle died, I had to settle his affairs. □ I have to settle my affairs before going to Mexico for a year.

settle someone's hash Sl. to calm someone down, perhaps by threats or by violence. □ If he comes in here, I'll settle his hash. □ Now, that ought to settle your hash.

settle (something) (out of court) to end a disagreement and reach an agreement without having to go through trial in a court of justice. □ The plaintiff and defendant decided to settle before the trial. □ Mary and Sue settled out of court before the trial.

settle the score (with someone) Go to settle a score with someone.

settle up with someone to pay someone what one owes; to pay one one's share of something. □ I must settle up with Jim for the bike I bought for him. □ Bob paid the whole restaurant bill and we all settled up with him later.

a seven-day wonder Fig. a person or a process supposedly perfected in only seven days. (Sarcastic.) □ Tommy is no seven-day wonder. It took him 6 years to get through high school!

the seven-year itch a real or imagined longing for other women in a man's seventh year of marriage. □ Looks like Jack has the seven-year itch. □ The seven-year itch is just a rumor.

sever ties with someone Fig. to end a relationship or agreement suddenly or completely. □ The company severed its ties with the dishonest employee. □ John has severed all ties with his parents.

sew someone or something up¹ 1. Lit. to stitch together an opening in someone or something. □ The surgeon sewed the patient up and pronounced the operation a success. □ This is torn. Can you sew up this rip? 2. Fig. to complete one's dealings with or discussion of someone or something. □ It's time to sew this up and go home. □ I think we can sew up the shipping contract this afternoon and get on to someone else. □ Let's sew up this last matter and go.

sewed up 1. Lit. [the sewing of a gap in cloth] completed. (*Typically: get something ~; have something ~.) □ Have you got that tear sewed up yet? 2. and wrapped up Fig. settled or finished. (*Typically: get something ~; have something ~.) □ I'll take the contract to the mayor tomorrow morning. I'll get the whole deal sewed up by noon. □ Don't worry about the car loan. I'll have it wrapped up in time to make the purchase.

Sez me! Go to Says me!

Sez who? Go to Says who?

shack up (with someone) Inf. to sleep or live with someone temporarily in a sexual relationship. □ They shacked up for over a year until her parents found out and stopped sending her money.

shackle someone with something to fetter or hobble someone with something, such as chains, etc. □ The sheriff shackled the prisoner with handcuffs and leg irons. □ The prisoners were shackled with leg irons.

shades of someone or something Fig. reminders of someone or something; a thing that is reminiscent of someone or something. □ When I met Jim's mother, I thought "shades of Aunt Mary." □ "Shades of grade school," said Jack as the university lecturer rebuked him for being late.

*a shadow of oneself and *a shadow of itself; *a shadow of one's former self Fig. someone or something that is not as strong, healthy, full, or lively as before. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ The sick man was a shadow of his former self. □ The abandoned mansion was merely a shadow of its old self.

a shady character and a suspicious character Fig. an untrustworthy person; a person who makes people suspicious. □ There is a suspicious character lurking about in the hallway. Please call the police.

a shady deal Fig. a questionable and possibly dishonest deal or transaction. □ The lawyer got caught making a shady deal with a convicted felon.

shag (off) Sl. to depart. □ I gotta shag. It's late. □ Go on! Shag off! □ I gotta shag. Somebody's calling my name.

shagged out Sl. exhausted. □ What a day! I'm shagged out! □ You guys look sort of shagged out.

a shaggy-dog story a kind of funny story that relies for its humor on its length and its sudden ridiculous ending. □ Don't let John tell a shaggy-dog story. It'll go on for hours. □ Mary didn't get the point of Fred's shaggy-dog story.

shake a disease or illness off Fig. [for the body] to fight off a disease or illness. □ I thought I was catching a cold, but I guess I shook it off. □ I hope I can shake off this flu pretty soon.

shake a habit Go to kick a habit.

shake a leg 1. to hurry; to move faster. (Often as a command.) □ Let's shake a leg, you guys. We gotta be there in twenty minutes. □ She told me to shake a leg, so I hurried the best I could. 2. to dance. □ Let's shake a leg. The music's great. □ Hey, Jill! You wanna shake a leg with me?

shake hands and shake someone's hand to take someone's hand and move it up and down to greet someone or mark an agreement with someone. (See also shake hands (with someone).) □ David shook my hand when he greeted me. □ Anne and John shook hands before their business appointment.

shake (hands) on something to clasp and shake the hand of someone as a sign of agreement about something. □ The two people didn't sign a contract; they just shook hands on the terms of the agreement. □ I think it would be better to sign an agreement than just shake on it.

shake hands (with someone) to clasp and shake the hand of someone as a greeting. □ His hands were full, and I didn't know whether to try to shake hands with him or not. □ He put down his packages, and we shook hands.

shake in one's boots and quake in one's boots Fig. to be afraid; to shake from fear. □ I was shaking in my boots because I had to go see the manager for being late. □ Stop quaking in your boots, Bob. I'm not going to fire you.

Shake it (up)! Inf. Hurry!; Move faster! □ Get going, chum! Shake it up! □ We're late. Shake it!

shake someone down 1. to blackmail someone. (Underworld.) □ Fred was trying to shake Jane down, but she got the cops in on it. □ The police chief was trying to shake down just about everybody in town. 2. to put pressure on someone to lend one money. □ We tried to shake down Max for a few hundred, but no deal. □ If you're trying to shake me down, forget it. I have no cash.

shake someone or something off Fig. to get rid of someone; to get free of someone who is bothering you. □ Stop bothering me! What do I have to do to shake you off? □ I wish I could shake off John. He's such a pest!

shake someone or something up to jostle or knock someone or something around; to toss someone or something back and forth. □ We rode over a rough road, and that shook us up. □ The accident shook up John quite a bit.

shake someone's hand Go to shake hands.

shake someone up to shock or upset someone. □ The sight of the injured man shook me up. □ Your rude remark really shook up Tom.

shake something down Go to shake something out.

shake something off to get rid of something that is on one by shaking. (See also shake a disease or illness off.) □ I tried to shake the spider off. □ The dog shook off the blanket Billy had put on him.

shake something out 1. Lit. to clean something of dirt or crumbs by shaking. □ Please shake the tablecloth out. □ Can you shake out your coat? It's really dusty. 2. and shake something down Fig. to test something to find out how it works or what the problems are. □ I need to spend some time driving my new car to shake it out. □ We need to shake down this car before I buy it.

shake something up 1. Lit. to shake a container to mix its contents together well. □ Please shake this up before using it. □ I shook up the medicine bottle like it says on the label.

2. Fig. to reorganize a group or organization, not always in a gentle way. □ The new manager shook the office up and made things run a lot better. □ The coach shook the team up before the last game and made them better organized.

shake the habit Go to kick a habit.

shake the lead out Go to get the lead out.

The shame of it (all)! That is so shameful; I am so embarrassed; I am shocked. (Considerable use jocularly or as a parody. Compare this with For shame!) □ John: Good grief! I have a pimple! Always, just before a date. Andy: The shame of it all! □ Tom: John claims that he cheated on his taxes. Bill: Golly! The shame of it!

Shame on you! a phrase scolding someone for being naughty. (Typically said to a child or to an adult for a childish infraction.) □ John: I think I broke one of your figurines. Mary: Shame on you! John: I'll replace it, of course. Mary: Thanks, I sort of liked it. □ "Shame on you!" said Mary. "You should have known better!"

shank it Sl. to use one's legs to get somewhere; to walk. □ My car needs fixing so I had to shank it to work today. □ I like to shank it every now and then.

shank's mare Fig. travel on foot. □ You'll find that shank's mare is the quickest way to get across town. □ Is there a bus, or do I have to use shank's mare?

shape someone up to get someone into good physical shape; to make someone behave or perform better. □ I've got to shape myself up to improve my health. □ The trainer was told that he'd have to shape up the boxer before the fight.

shape up 1. to improve; to reform. □ I want to get things shaped up around here. □ I guess I'd better shape up if I want to stay in school. 2. to assume a final form or structure. □ The game plan for the election was beginning to shape up. □ Her objectives began to shape up in her senior year.

Shape up or ship out. Fig. Either improve one's performance (or behavior) or leave. (Used as a command.) □ Okay, Tom. That's the end. Shape up or ship out! □ John was late again, so I told him to shape up or ship out.

share and share alike Cliché having or taking equal shares. □ I kept five and gave the other five to Mary—share and share alike. □ The two roommates agreed that they would divide expenses—share and share alike.

share someone's pain to understand and sympathize with someone's pain or emotional discomfort. (Said in order to sound sympathetic.) □ I am sorry about the loss of your home. I share your pain. □ We sympathize about the loss of your mother. We share your pain.

share someone's sorrow to grieve as someone else grieves. □ We all share your sorrow on this sad, sad day. □ I am sorry to hear about the death in your family. I share your sorrow.

sharp as a razor 1. very sharp. (*Also: as ~.) □ The penknife is sharp as a razor. □ The carving knife will have to be as sharp as a razor to cut through this gristle. 2. and sharp as a tack very sharp-witted or intelligent. (*Also: as ~.) □ The old man's senile, but his wife is as sharp as a razor. □ Sue can figure things out from even the slightest hint. She's as sharp as a tack.

sharp as a tack Go to previous.

a sharp tongue Fig. an outspoken or harsh manner; a critical manner of speaking. □ He has quite a sharp tongue. □ Don't be totally unnerved by what he says or the way he says it.

a sharp wit Fig. a good and fast ability to make jokes and funny comments. □ Terry has a sharp wit and often makes cracks that force people to laugh aloud at inappropriate times.

She will get hers. Go to He will get his.

shed crocodile tears and cry crocodile tears Fig. to shed false tears; to pretend that one is weeping. □ The child wasn't really hurt, but she shed crocodile tears anyway. □ He thought he could get his way if he cried crocodile tears.

shed (some) light on something and throw (some) light on something Fig. to reveal something about something; to clarify something. (Also with any.) □ This discussion has shed some light on the problem. □ Let's see if Ann can throw any light on this question.

shell out (an amount of money) to spend a certain amount of money. □ I'm not going to shell out $400 for that! □ Come on. You owe me. Shell out!

a shellacking 1. Fig. a physical beating. (*Typically: get ~; take ~; give someone ~.) □ The boxer took a shellacking and lost the fight. □ I got a shellacking when I broke the window. 2. Fig. a beating—as in sports. (*Typically: get ~; take ~; give someone ~.) □ Our team played well, but got a shellacking anyway. □ I practiced my tennis game so I wouldn't take a shellacking in the tournament.

shift for oneself and fend for oneself to get along by oneself; to support oneself. □ I'm sorry, I can't pay your rent anymore. You'll just have to shift for yourself. □ When I became twenty years old, I left home and began to fend for myself.

shift one's ground Fig. to change one's opinions or arguments, often without being challenged or opposed. □ At first Jack and I were on opposite sides, but he suddenly shifted ground and started agreeing with me. □ Jim has very fixed views. You won't find him shifting his ground.

shine up to someone Fig. to try to gain someone's favor by being extra nice. □ John is a nice guy, except that he's always trying to shine up to the professor. □ Mary never tries to shine up to the manager.

shipping and handling the costs of handling a product and transporting it to a customer. □ Shipping and handling charges were included in the price. □ The cost of the goods is low and shipping and handling added only a few dollars.

ships that pass in the night Cliché people who meet each other briefly by chance, sometimes having a sexual liaison, and who are unlikely to meet again or have an ongoing relationship. □ Mary wanted to see Jim again, but to him, they were ships that passed in the night. □ We will never be friends. We are just ships that passed in the night.

shirk one's duty to neglect one's job or task. □ The guard was fired for shirking his duty. □ You cannot expect to continue shirking your duty without someone noticing.

Shit happens. Sl. Bad things just happen and are unavoidable. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ Too bad that your new car got dented, but shit happens. □ Shit happens. There's nothing that can be done about it.

the shock of one's life Fig. a serious (emotional) shock. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) □ I opened the telegram and got the shock of my life. □ I had the shock of my life when I won $5,000.

The shoe is on the other foot. Prov. One is experiencing the same (often bad) things that one caused another person to experience. (Note the variations in the examples.) □ The teacher is taking a course in summer school and is finding out what it's like when the shoe is on the other foot. □ When the policeman was arrested, he learned what it was like to have the shoe on the other foot.

shook up upset; shocked. (See also all shook up.) □ Relax, man! Don't get shook up! □ I always get shook up when I see a bad accident.

shoot a place up[†] and shoot the place up[†] Fig. to fire a gun in or at a place, usually at people. □ The cowboy walked into the saloon and began to shoot the place up. □ They shot up the place.

Shoot first, ask questions later. Prov. Assume that everyone you encounter is hostile to you.; Take action, even though you do not know enough to be sure if it is the right action. □ If the foreman saw that one of the workers was working slowly, he didn't stop to find out if the worker was sick or unhappy; he just fired him. He believed in shooting first and asking questions later.

shoot for something 1. Lit. to aim for or at something. (Usually in reference to basketball.) □ The center shot for the basket just before the end of the game. □ Wally shot for the basket but missed. 2. Fig. to aim for something; to set something as one's goal. □ You have to shoot for the very best. Don't be satisfied with less. □ She shot for the highest attainable goal.

shoot for the sky Go to reach for the sky.

shoot from the hip 1. Lit. to fire a gun that is held at one's side, beside one's hip. (This increases one's speed in firing a gun but is much less accurate.) □ When I lived at home on the farm, my father taught me to shoot from the hip. □ I quickly shot the snake before it bit my horse. I'm glad I learned to shoot from the hip. 2. Fig. to speak directly and frankly. (Alluding to the rapidness of firing a gun from the hip.) □ John has a tendency to shoot from the hip, but he generally speaks the truth. □ Don't pay any attention to John. He means no harm. It's just his nature to shoot from the hip.

shoot one's breakfast Go to next.

shoot one's cookies and shoot one's breakfast; shoot one's supper Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ I think I'm gonna shoot my cookies. □ I shot my supper, and I was glad to get rid of it.

shoot one's mouth off Inf. to boast or talk too much; to tell secrets. □ Don't pay any attention to Bob. He's always shooting his mouth off. □ Oh, Sally! Stop shooting off your mouth! You don't know what you're talking about.

shoot one's supper Go to shoot one's cookies.

shoot one's wad Sl. to spend all or nearly all one's cash on hand. □ I shot my wad on junk food. □ I can't afford a cab. I shot my wad at the restaurant.

shoot oneself in the foot Fig. to cause oneself difficulty; to be the author of one's own misfortune. □ I am a master at shooting myself in the foot. □ Again, he shot himself in the foot by saying too much to the press.

shoot someone down in flames Fig. to ruin someone; to bring about someone's downfall. (See also go down in flames.) □ It was a bad idea, okay, but you didn't have to shoot me down in flames at the meeting. □ I didn't mean to shoot you down in flames.

shoot someone or something (all) to hell 1. Lit. to destroy someone or something with gunfire. (Use discretion with hell.) □ Fred shot the crook to hell with his machine gun. □ The farm boys had shot the stop sign all to hell. 2. Fig. to destroy, exhaust, or damage someone or something. □ The hard work in the morning shot me all to hell for the rest of the day. □ You shot my ideas to hell.

shoot someone, something, or an animal down† to bring down someone, something, or an animal by gunfire. □ Fred shot Mike down in the street. □ They shot down the plane.

shoot something down† Fig. to foil a plan through criticism; to counter an idea with criticism. (Based on shoot someone, something, or an animal down.) □ He raised a good point, but the others shot him down almost immediately. □ Liz shot down Jeff's best idea.

shoot something out† 1. to stick, throw, or thrust something outward. □ The diamond shot bright shafts of light out when the sun fell on it. □ The little girl shot out her tongue at the teacher. 2. to settle a matter by the use of guns. □ Bill and the cowboy—with whom he had been arguing—went out in the street and shot it out.

shoot the breeze Fig. to chat casually and without purpose. □ We spent the entire afternoon just shooting the breeze. □ It was good to shoot the breeze with you, Mary.

shoot the bull and shoot the crap; shoot the shit Inf. to chat and gossip. (The same as throw the bull. Use caution with crap, shit.) □ Let's get together sometime and shoot the bull. □ You spend too much time shooting the crap.

shoot the cat Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ I must have shot the cat a dozen times during the night. □ Shooting the cat is no fun when you're weak and dizzy.

shoot the crap Go to shoot the bull.

shoot the shit Go to shoot the bull.

shoot the works 1. to do everything; to use everything; to bet all one's money. □ Okay, let's go out to dinner and shoot the works. □ Don't shoot the works! Save some for a cab. 2. Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ Suddenly she turned sort of green, and I knew she was going to shoot the works. □ After she shot the works, she looked fine—but I was sort of pale.

shoot up Sl. to take drugs by injection. □ Wallace was caught by the cops shooting up in the high school rest room.

shop around (for something) to shop at different stores to find what you want at the best price. □ I've been shopping around for a new car, but they are all priced too high. □ You can find a bargain, but you'll have to shop around.

shopping list 1. Lit. a list of things one needs to buy. □ I made up a shopping list for groceries that we are out of. □ Don't forget to take the shopping list with you to the store.

2. Fig. a list of things, especially questions or things one wants. □ I have a shopping list of absolute musts. □ He showed up for the interview with a shopping list so long that it took two pages.

shore someone up† Fig. to (figuratively) prop up or support someone. □ Mary's solid character and personality helped shore her up during her recent problems with the law. □ Everyone co-operated to shore up John when his mother died.

shore something up† to prop up or support something. □ The fence fell over, so we shored it up with more posts. □ The storm weakened the foundation of our house, and we had to have workers shore up the house.

short and sweet Cliché brief (and pleasant because of brevity). □ That was a good sermon—short and sweet. □ I don't care what you say, as long as you make it short and sweet.

the short and the long of it Go to the long and the short of it.

*the short end of the stick Fig. the smaller or less desirable part, rank, task, or amount. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~; end up with ~.) □ Why do I always get the short end of the stick? I want my fair share! □ She's unhappy because she has the short end of the stick again.

short for something [of a form] being a shortened form of a word or phrase. □ Photo is short for photograph. □ Dave is short for David.

short of something not having enough of something. □ I wanted to bake a cake, but I was short of eggs. □ Usually at the end of the month, I'm short of money.

Short reckonings make long friends. Prov. If you borrow something from a friend, pay it back as soon as possible so that the two of you remain friendly. □ Now that you've finished using Bert's saw, take it right back to him. Short reckonings make long friends.

(a) short shrift a brief period of consideration of a person's ideas or explanations. □ They gave the reporter short shrift and got him out of the office. □ My plan got short shrift from the board—a ten-minute presentation; they then voted it down.

a short temper Go to a quick temper.

short with someone abrupt and a little bit rude in speaking to a person. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; get ~.) □ Please don't be short with me. I am doing the best that I can.

a shot at someone Go to a try at someone.

shot full of holes and shot to ribbons; shot to hell; shot to pieces 1. Fig. [of an argument that is] demolished or comprehensively destroyed. □ Come on, that theory was shot full of holes ages ago. □ Your argument is all shot to hell. 2. to be very intoxicated due to drink or drugs. □ Tipsy? Shot to ribbons, more like! □ Boy, I really felt shot full of holes. I'll never drink another drop. 3. totally ruined. (Use hell with caution.) □ My car is all shot to hell and can't be depended on. □ This rusty old knife is shot to hell. I need a sharper one.

a shot in the arm 1. Lit. an injection of medicine. □ The doctor administered the antidote to the poison by a shot in the arm. 2. Fig. a boost or act of encouragement. □ The pep talk was a real shot in the arm for all the guys. □ The good test grade was a shot in the arm for Gary. 3. Fig. a drink of liquor. □ I could use a little shot in the arm. □ How about a little shot in the arm, bartender?

a shot in the dark Fig. a very general attempt; a wild guess. □ It was just a shot in the dark. I had no idea I was exactly correct. □ Come on, try it. Even a shot in the dark may win.

shot through with something Fig. containing something; interwoven, intermixed, or filled with something. □ The rose was a lovely pink shot through with streaks of white. □ John's comments are often shot through with sarcasm.

a shotgun wedding Fig. a forced wedding. (From imagery of the bride's father having threatened the bridegroom with a shotgun to force him to marry the bride because he made her pregnant.) □ Mary was six months pregnant when she married Bill. It was a real shotgun wedding. □ Bob would never have married Jane if she hadn't been pregnant. Jane's father saw to it that it was a shotgun wedding.

should have stood in bed Fig. an expression used on a bad day, when one should have stayed in one's bed. □ What a horrible day! I should have stood in bed. □ The minute I got up and heard the news this morning, I knew I should have stood in bed.

shoulder the blame for something Go to the blame for something.

shoulder to shoulder Fig. side by side; with a shared purpose. □ The two armies fought shoulder to shoulder against the joint enemy. □ The strikers said they would stand shoulder to shoulder against the management.

shouldn't happen to a dog Fig. an expression of something that is so bad that no creature deserves it. □ Poor guy. That shouldn't happen to a dog. □ This cold I got shouldn't happen to a dog.

shout about someone or something 1. to yell about someone or something. □ Alice is shouting about Tom, the guy who stood her up. □ What are you shouting about? 2. to show one's pride or enthusiasm about someone or something. (Usually with the object shifted to the front of the sentence.) □ That's really something to shout about. □ She's something to shout about.

shout someone or something down[†] to overwhelm someone or something by shouting. □ Mary was trying to speak, but Sally shouted her down. □ Ann brought up a very important suggestion, but Bob shouted it down. □ The lecturer had to shout down the entire audience to be heard.

shove off Go to push off.

shove one's way somewhere to make a path through a crowd by pushing. □ The impatient man shoved his way through the crowd. □ The reporter shoved her way to the front of the crowd.

shove someone around[†] 1. Lit. to push someone around. □ The bigger boys shoved him around easily because he is so small. □ Karen shoved around the little kids until they got mad at her. 2. Fig. to harass someone. □ Stop shoving me around! Who do you think you are? □ Do you think you can shove around just anybody?

shove someone or something down someone's throat and ram someone or something down someone's throat; force someone or something down someone's throat 1. Lit. to force someone to swallow something. □ The harsh nurse forced the medicine down the patient's throat. □ The zookeepers rammed the food down the python's throat. 2. Fig. to force someone to accept something. □ Don't try to force that car down my throat! I don't want it! □ You can't force that nonsense down my throat! □ I don't want any more insurance, and I don't want anyone to shove any insurance down my throat. □ Mary isn't invited to my party, and I don't wish for anyone to ram her down my throat!

show a lot of promise Go to a lot of promise.

show and tell a session where objects are presented and described. (Essentially a kindergarten or grade school activity, but often used figuratively.) □ It was a short lecture with lots of show and tell. □ I can't take another show and tell session.

show good faith to demonstrate good intentions or good will. □ I'm certain that you showed good faith when you signed the contract. □ Do you doubt that she is showing good faith?

a show of hands a display of raised hands [in a group of people] that can be counted for the purpose of votes or surveys. □ We were asked to vote for the candidates for captain by a show of hands. □ Jack wanted us to vote on paper, not by a show of hands, so that we could have a secret ballot.

show off to do things in a way that is meant to attract attention. □ Please stop showing off! You embarrass me. □ John is always showing off to his girlfriend.

show one's hand Fig. to reveal one's intentions to someone. (From card games.) □ I don't know whether Jim is intending to marry Jane or not. He's not one to show his hand. □ If you want to get a raise, don't show the boss your hand too soon.

show one's teeth and bare one's teeth Fig. to act in an angry or threatening manner. (Alludes to what an angry wolf or dog does.) □ We thought Bob was meek and mild, but he really showed his teeth when Jack insulted his girlfriend. □ The enemy forces didn't expect the country they invaded to bare its teeth.

show one's (true) colors Fig. to show what one is really like or what one is really thinking. □ Whose side are you on, John? Come on. Show your colors. □ It's hard to tell what Mary is thinking. She never shows her true colors.

show one to one's seat Go to show someone to a seat.

show signs of something to show hints or indications of something. □ I let the horse run at full speed until it began to show signs of tiring. □ Sally is showing signs of going to sleep.

show someone around (some place) to give someone a tour of a place. □ I'm very glad you've come to work here. Let me show you around so you'll know where things are. □ Welcome to our town. As soon as you unpack, I'll get someone to show you around.

show someone into somewhere and show someone in† to lead or usher someone into somewhere. □ The butler showed me into the sitting room and asked me to wait. □ The car dealer showed me into the sales office and asked me to sign some papers. □ The butler showed in the guests one by one.

show someone one's stuff Fig. to show someone how well one can do something. □ We'll audition Kate now. Okay, Kate, show us your stuff.

show someone or something off† to display someone or something so that the best features are apparent. □ Bill drove around all afternoon showing his new car off. □ Mrs. Williams was showing off her baby to the neighbors.

show someone out (of something) Go to see someone out (of something).

show someone the big picture Go to the big picture.

S show someone the ropes Go to the ropes.

show someone to a seat and show one to one's seat to lead or direct someone to a place to sit. □ May I show you to your seat, sir? □ The ushers showed us to our seats politely and efficiently.

show someone (to) the door and see someone to the door to lead or take someone to the door or exit. □ After we finished our talk, she showed me to the door. □ Bill and I finished our chat as he saw me to the door.

show someone the tricks of the trade Go to the tricks of the trade.

show someone up† to make someone's faults or shortcomings apparent. □ John is always trying to show someone up to make himself look better. □ John's excellent effort really showed up Bill, who didn't try very hard at all.

show someone up† as something to reveal that someone is really something (else). □ The investigation showed her up as a fraud. □ The test showed up the candidate as unqualified.

show something to good advantage to display the best features of something; to display something so that its best features are apparent. □ Put the vase in the center of the table and show it to good advantage. □ Having and using a large vocabulary shows your intelligence to good advantage.

show up to appear; to arrive. □ Where is John? I hope he shows up soon. □ When will the bus show up? □ Weeds began to show up in the garden.

show up ahead of time Go to ahead of time.

show up on the dot Go to on the dot.

shower someone or something with something to cover someone or something with cascades of something. □ Mary's friends showered her with gifts on her twenty-first birthday. □ The guests showered the bride and groom with confetti and rice.

a shrinking violet Fig. someone who is very shy and not assertive. □ I am not exactly a shrinking violet, but I don't have the guts to say what you said to her.

shroud someone or something in something to wrap or conceal someone or something in something. □ They shrouded Mr. Carlson in sailcloth and prepared him for burial at sea. □ They shrouded the decision in a series of formalities.

Shrouds have no pockets. Prov. You cannot take any material goods with you when you die. □ You should use your money to enjoy yourself while you're alive. Shrouds have no pockets.

shrug something off (as something) and pass something off (as something) to ignore something unpleasant or offensive as if it meant something else. □ She shrugged off the criticism as harmless. □ I passed off the remark as misinformed. □ Bill scolded me, but I just passed it off.

shuck something off† 1. to take something off. □ Tom shucked his jacket off and sat on the arm of the easy chair. □ He shucked off his jacket. 2. to get rid of someone or something. □ She shucked all her bad habits off. □ Tom shucked off one girlfriend after another.

shuffle off this mortal coil Euph. to die. (Often jocular or formal euphemism. Not often used in consoling someone.) □ Cousin Fred shuffled off this mortal coil after suffering a heart attack. □ When I shuffle off this mortal coil, I want to go out in style—bells, flowers, and a long, boring funeral.

shush (up) to be quiet. □ Shush! I want to hear the weather. □ Shush up and listen to the lecture.

shut down Go to close down.

shut one's eyes to something Go to close one's eyes to something.

shut someone or something out† to exclude someone or something; to refuse entrance to someone or something. □ We tried to get into the stadium, but they shut us out because there was no more room. □ My parents shut out their children when they made important decisions.

shut someone up† to silence someone. □ Oh, shut yourself up! □ Will you please shut up that crying baby!

shut something down[†] Go to close something down[†].

shut the door (up)on someone or something and close the door on someone or something; close the door to someone or something 1. Lit. to close a door, preventing someone or something from passing through. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ They shut the door upon me, and I couldn't get in! □ We quickly closed the door on the smoke. 2. Fig. to eliminate an opportunity for someone or something. □ The board of directors shut the door on me, and there was no further opportunity for me to pursue. □ They closed the door on further discussions.

Shut the stable door after the horse has bolted. and Lock the stable door after the horse is stolen. Prov. To try to prevent something that has already happened; to act too late. □ When Ray heard that the bank had failed, he tried to withdraw his money, but there was no money to withdraw. He was shutting the stable door after the horse had bolted. □ Jenny has stopped smoking since the doctor told her that her lungs were in bad shape, but I'm afraid she's locking the stable door after the horse is stolen.

Shut up! Inf. Be quiet! (Impolite.) □ Bob: And another thing. Bill: Oh, shut up, Bob! □ Andy: Shut up! I've heard enough! Bob: But I have more to say! □ "Shut up! I can't hear anything because of all your noise!" shouted the director.

Shut up about it. Inf. Do not tell anyone about it. □ Bill: I heard that you had a little trouble with the police. Tom: Just shut up about it! Do you hear? □ Andy: Didn't you once appear in a movie? Alice: Shut up about it. No one has to know.

Shut your cake hole! and Shut your pie hole! Shut your face! Inf. Shut up!; Shut your mouth! □ I've heard enough! Shut your cake hole!

shuttle someone or something from person to person and shuttle someone or something from place to place (Specific persons or places are sometimes expressed.) to move or pass someone or something from person to person; to move or pass someone or something from place to place. □ My phone call was shuttled from person to person. □ Mary shuttled her children from home to school to practice.

shy away (from someone or something) to avoid someone or something. □ The dog shies away from John since he kicked it. □ I can understand why the dog would shy away.

sick (and tired) of someone or something Fig. tired of someone or something, especially something that one must do again and again or someone or something that one must deal with repeatedly. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; get ~; grow ~.) □ I am sick and tired of cleaning up after you. □ Mary was sick of being stuck in traffic.

sick as a dog Cliché very sick; sick and vomiting. (*Also: as ~.) □ We've never been so ill. The whole family was sick as dogs. □ Sally was as sick as a dog and couldn't go to the party.

sick at heart Fig. distressed and depressed. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; make someone ~.) □ I became sick at heart just looking at all the homeless children.

sick in bed remaining in bed while (one is) ill. □ Tom is sick in bed with the flu. □ He's been sick in bed for nearly a week.

sick to death (of someone or something) totally disgusted with someone or something. □ I am sick to death of your constant bickering. □ This reporting about the scandals in the government just has me sick to death.

sick (up) Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ I think I'm going to sick up. Isn't there supposed to be a barf bag in one of these seat pockets? □ He's got to sick, and there's no air sickness bag. Help!

side against someone to be against someone; to take sides against someone. □ I thought you were my friend! I never thought you would side against me! □ The two brothers were always siding against their sister.

side by side (of two or more people or things) lined up so their sides are adjacent. □ We walked side by side across the lawn.

side with someone to join with someone; to take someone else's part; to be on someone's side. □ Why is it that you always side with him when he and I argue? □ I never side with anybody. I form my own opinions.

sidle away (from someone or something) to avoid someone or something by moving to the side; to ease away from someone or something. □ The cowboy sidled away from the bar and drew his gun. □ He sidled away and snuck out the door.

sidle up (to someone or something) to move close to someone or something cautiously or furtively; to move closer to someone or something gradually. □ Tex sidled up to Dolly and said howdy in a soft, shy voice. □ Dolly sidled up and picked the cowboy's pocket.

sift something from something to remove something from something by sifting. □ Fran sifted all the impurities from the flour before using it. □ Timmy sifted all the leaves from the sand in his sandbox.

sift something out of something and sift something out[†] to get rid of something in something else by sifting. □ Dan sifted the impurities out of the flour. □ Walter sifted out the foreign matter.

sift something through something to make something pass through something such as a sieve. □ She sifted the powdered sugar through a strainer. □ Please sift the soil through this screen and watch for bits of pottery.

sift through something to examine all parts of something. □ The fire inspector sifted through the rubble, looking for clues to the start of the fire. □ We sifted through all the papers in the old trunk, but we did not find what we were looking for.

sigh about something to release a deep breath, indicating anxiety, distress, or relief about something. □ What are you sighing about? □ She sighed about her illness and then shifted her thoughts to something else.

sigh for someone to release a deep breath, indicating anxiety about one's emotional attachment for someone. □ Dave spent a lot of his time sighing for Laura, on whom he had a crush. □ Laura has been sighing for some as-yet-unnamed young man.

a sight for sore eyes Fig. a welcome sight. Oh, am I glad to see you here! You're a sight for sore eyes. I'm sure hungry. This meal is a sight for sore eyes.

sign for someone to sign something, using one's own signature in place of someone else's signature; to sign something, using another person's name, adding the phrase "by [one's own name]." He's not here. I will sign for him. Where do I sign? Who will sign for Mr. Wilson?

sign for something to sign a piece of paper indicating that one has received something. Would you sign for this, please? Ted signed for the package and opened it up.

sign in to indicate that one has arrived somewhere and at what time by signing a piece of paper or a list. Please sign in so we will know you are here. Did you remember to sign in this time?

a sign of the times something that signifies the situation evident in the current times. Your neighbor's unmowed grass is just a sign of the times. Nobody really cares any longer.

a sign of things to come Go to a harbinger of things to come.

sign off 1. Lit. [for a broadcaster] to announce the end of programming for the day; [for an amateur radio operator] to announce the end of a transmission. Wally signed off and turned the transmitter off. Channel 43 failed to sign off at the scheduled time last night. 2. Fig. to quit doing what one has been doing and leave, go to bed, quit trying to do something, etc. I have to sign off and get to bed. See you all. When you finally sign off tonight, please turn out all the lights.

sign off on something to sign a paper, indicating that one has finished with something or agrees with the state of something. The publisher signed off on the book and sent it to be printed. I refuse to sign off on this project until it is done correctly.

sign on to announce the beginning of a broadcast transmission. The announcer signed on and then played "The Star-Spangled Banner." We usually sign on at six in the morning.

sign on the dotted line 1. Lit. to indicate one's agreement or assent by placing one's signature on a special line provided for that purpose. (The line may be solid or dotted.) I agreed to the contract, but I haven't signed on the dotted line yet. When you have signed on the dotted line, please give me a call. 2. Fig. to indicate one's agreement to something. Okay. I agree to your terms. I'll sign on the dotted line. He is thinking favorably about going with us to Canada, but he hasn't signed on the bottom line.

sign on (with someone or something) (as something) to join up with someone or something in a particular capacity by signing a contract or agreement. I signed on with the captain of the Felicity Anne as first mate. Roger signed on as manager for the new store.

sign one's own death warrant Fig. to do something (knowingly) that will most likely result in severe trouble. (As if one were ordering one's own execution.) I wouldn't ever gamble a large sum of money. That would be signing my own death warrant. The killer signed his own death warrant when he walked into the police station and gave himself up.

sign out to indicate that one is leaving a place or going out temporarily by signing a piece of paper or a list. I forgot to sign out when I left. Please sign out every time you leave.

sign someone in^t to record that someone has arrived somewhere and at what time by recording the information on a paper or a list. I will sign you in. What is your name? Do I have to sign in everyone?

sign someone on^t to employ someone; to recruit someone as an employee. How many workers did the manager sign on? The construction company signed on ten new workers.

sign someone out of some place and sign someone out^t to make a record of someone's departure from some place. Did someone sign you out of the factory, or did you just open the door and leave? I signed out those two who just left.

sign someone up^t (for something) to record the agreement of someone, including oneself, to participate in something. Has anyone signed you up for the office picnic? Can you sign up Liz for the party?

sign someone up^t (with someone or something) to record the agreement of someone to join someone, a group of people, or an organization. I want to sign George up with our softball team. Tom signed up his friends with the agency.

sign something away^t to sign a paper in which one gives away one's rights to something. Valerie signed her rights away. She signed away her claim to the money.

sign something for someone 1. to sign one's signature on a paper in place of someone else's signature. Would you please sign this for me? I can't sign it right now. Would you sign it for me? 2. to sign a paper for another person, using that person's name, adding the phrase "by [one's own name]." When the delivery comes, will you please sign my name for me? I signed Ted's name for him.

sign something in^t to record that something has been received at a particular time by recording the information on a paper or a list. I have to sign this package in, then I will be right with you. Should I sign in this shipment now?

sign something out of some place and sign something out^t to make a record of the borrowing of something from some place. Dave signed the tape recorder out of the library. Dave signed out the tape recorder as well as some blank tapes.

sign something over^t (to someone) to sign a paper granting the rights to or ownership of something to a specific person. Larry signed all the rights to his book over to the publisher. He signed over all the rights to the publisher.

sign up (for something) to record one's agreement to participate in something. I want to sign up for guitar lessons. We will sign up as soon as possible.

sign (up) with someone or something to enter into an agreement with someone or a group. I signed up with Tom and John to crew their ship in the regatta. Did you sign with the office equipment supplier yet?

signal for someone to make a sign for someone to come. I signaled for the waiter and got the check. Ted signaled for the parking lot attendant.

signal for something to make a sign that something should be done. □ I caught the waiter's eye and signaled for the check. □ The director signaled for applause.

signal (to) someone (to do something) [for someone] to give someone a command or instruction using a signal. □ The traffic cop signaled me to stop. □ The state trooper signaled the driver to pull over to the side of the road.

signed, sealed, and delivered Fig. formally and officially signed; [for a formal document to be] executed. □ Here is the deed to the property—signed, sealed, and delivered. □ I can't begin work on this project until I have the contract signed, sealed, and delivered.

Silence gives consent. Prov. If you do not object to what someone says or does, you can be assumed to agree with or condone it. □ Jill: What did Fred say when you told him we were thinking about leaving the office early? Jane: He didn't say anything. Jill: Then he must not mind if we go. Silence gives consent.

Silence is golden. Prov. Silence is often good or desirable. □ Jerry has two teenage children who listen to music using their headphones all day. He knows that silence is golden. □ Hush! Silence is golden.

silent as the dead and silent as the grave completely silent. (Has ominous connotations because of the reference to death. Usually used to promise someone that you will be silent and therefore not betray a secret. *Also: as ~.) □ I knew something was wrong as soon as I entered the classroom; everyone was silent as the dead. □ Jessica is as silent as the grave on the subject of her first marriage. □ If you tell me what Katy said about me, I promise to be as silent as the grave.

silent as the grave Go to previous.

silly as a goose very foolish. (*Also: as ~.) □ Edith is as silly as a goose. She thinks that reading aloud to her houseplants will help them grow. □ The ad in the newspaper said this lotion would make my hair grow back, but I've been using it for a whole month and my hair is still the same. Jane: You're as silly as a goose! Do you believe everything you read in newspaper ads?

silt up [for a body of water] to become filled with silt. □ The river moved too fast to silt up. □ The lake silted up in a very few years.

simmer down 1. Lit. to decrease in intensity. (As boiling dies down when the heat is lowered or removed.) □ The hectic activity of the day finally simmered down. □ When things simmer down in the fall, this is a much nicer place. 2. Fig. [for someone] to become calm or less agitated. □ I wish you would simmer down. □ Please simmer down, you guys!

sin against someone or something to offend or desecrate someone or something sacred or revered. □ The critic said that Walter sinned against the poet when he read the poem in a sarcastic manner. □ I would say that Walter sinned against poetry, not just one poet.

since day one Go to day one.

since someone was knee-high to a grasshopper Go to knee-high to a jackrabbit.

since time immemorial since a very long time ago. (Literally, since time before recorded history.) □ My hometown has had a big parade on the Fourth of July since time immemorial. □ Since time immemorial, the trees have blossomed each spring.

Since when? Inf. When was that decided?; That's news to me.; When was that done? □ Tom: You've been assigned to the night shift. John: Since when? □ Jane: Fred is now the assistant manager. Pete: Since when? Jane: Since I appointed him, that's when.

sing a different tune and sing another tune Fig. to change one's manner, usually from bad to good. (Almost the same as dance to another tune.) □ When she learned that I was a bank director, she began to sing a different tune. □ You will sing another tune as soon as you find out how right I am!

sing along (with someone or something) to sing with someone or with the accompaniment of some instrument(s). □ Harry played all the old songs and everybody sang along. □ Let's sing along with Mary. She knows some good songs.

sing another tune Go to sing a different tune.

Sing before breakfast, you'll cry before night. and Sing before breakfast, you'll cry before supper. Prov. If you wake up feeling very happy, your mood will change before the end of the day. □ Jill: I woke up in such a good mood today. I don't even know why, but everything seems good. Jane: Sing before breakfast, you'll cry before night. □ Alan: Good morning, dear! Isn't it a wonderful day? I feel great. Jane: Sing before breakfast, you'll cry before supper.

sing from the same hymnbook Go to read from the same page.

sing of someone or something to tell about or sing a song about someone or something. □ The folksinger sang of Paul Bunyan. □ They all sang of happier times in the past.

sing one's heart out Go to cry one's heart out.

sing out to sing louder. □ Sing out, please. This is a very large hall. □ The sopranos will have to sing out more.

sing someone's or something's praises and sing the praises of someone or something Fig. to praise someone highly and enthusiastically. □ The boss is singing his new secretary's praises. □ The theater critics are singing the praises of the young actor.

sing someone to sleep to sing softly and sweetly to someone until sleep comes. □ The mother sang her baby to sleep. □ Please sing Timmy to sleep. He is very restless.

sing something out[†] to sing or announce something loudly. □ The teacher sang the names out loud and clear. □ She sang out "The Star-Spangled Banner" in a loud voice.

sing the praises of someone or something Go to sing someone's or something's praises.

sing to someone or something to sing a song and direct it at someone or something. □ The singer sang to a man in the front row, and he was very embarrassed by it. □ Claire sang to an older audience and put many of them to sleep.

sing together [for people] to coordinate their singing. □ Let's sing together now. Everyone should watch the conductor and follow the beat. □ You have to sing together if you want your words to be understood.

sing up a storm Go to up a storm.

single file a line of things or people, one person or one thing wide. (See also in single file.) Please get into single file. You have to march single file.

single someone or something out[†] (for something) to choose or pick someone or something for something; to select an eligible person or thing for something. The committee singled her out for a special award. We singled out Liz for special honors.

sink back (into something) to lean back and relax in something, such as a soft chair. I can't wait to get home and sink back into my easy chair. He sank back and went to sleep almost immediately.

sink below someone or something Go to below someone or something.

sink below something to descend below a certain level. The boat sank below the surface of the water and was gone. The temperature sank below the freezing mark again today.

sink down to sink or submerge. The sun sank down and darkness spread across the land. She sat in the chair and sank down, enjoying her moment of relaxation.

sink in 1. Lit. to sink, submerge, or descend into something. How long will it take the water to sink in? It might take days for the oil to sink in, so you have time to clean it up. 2. Fig. [for knowledge] to be understood. I heard what you said, but it took a while for it to sink in. I pay careful attention to everything I hear in calculus class, but it usually doesn't sink in.

sink into despair to become depressed; to become completely discouraged. After facing the hopelessness of the future, Jean Paul sank into despair. Mary sank into despair upon learning of the death of her grandmother.

sink into oblivion Fig. to fade into obscurity. She may be famous now, but in no time she will sink into oblivion. In his final years, Wally Wilson sank into oblivion and just faded away.

sink one's teeth into something Go to get one's teeth into something.

sink or swim Fig. to fail or succeed. (Alludes to the choices available to someone who has fallen into the water.) After I've studied and learned all I can, I have to take the test and sink or swim. It's too late to help John now. It's sink or swim for him.

sink something in(to) someone or something and sink something in[†] 1. Lit. to drive or push something into someone or something. The brave hero sank the wooden stake into the vampire. The hero sank in the stake. 2. Fig. to invest time or money in someone or something. (Sometimes implying that it was wasted.) You would not believe how much money I've sunk into that company! She sank in a lot of money, but it was all wasted.

sink to (doing) something Fig. to lower oneself to doing something bad or mean. I never thought he would sink to doing that. There is nothing that Max wouldn't sink to.

sink under (something) to submerge. The small boat turned over and sank under the surface. It sank under and went straight to the bottom.

a sinking feeling the feeling that everything is going wrong; a bad feeling in the base of one's stomach. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I get a sinking feeling whenever I think of the night of the accident.

siphon something off[†] (from something) 1. Lit. to suck or draw a liquid off from something. Harry siphoned the cream off the milk. He siphoned off the cream. 2. Fig. to embezzle or steal something a little at a time. The teller had been siphoning money off for years. She siphoned off a few dollars from the collection every week or so.

sit around to relax sitting; to waste time sitting. Don't just sit around! Get moving! I need to sit around every now and then and reorganize my thoughts.

sit around something to be seated at the edge or perimeter of something. They sat around the campfire for hours. We used to sit around the big kitchen table and talk.

sit around (somewhere) to sit somewhere and relax or do nothing; to sit idly somewhere. Tom likes to sit around the house in shorts and a T-shirt on hot days. Too many people are just sitting around doing nothing at my office.

sit at something to be seated in front of something, such as a table. He sat at the table, taking his tea. Please sit at your desk and finish your work before taking a break.

sit at the feet of someone Fig. to pay homage to someone; to pay worshipful attention to someone. The graduate student sat at the feet of the famous professor for years. I do not intend to sit at the feet of an incompetent for years and years.

sit back to push oneself back in one's seat; to lean against the back of one's seat. Please sit back. I can't see around you. I sat back and made myself comfortable, assuming that the movie would bore me to sleep.

sit back and let something happen Fig. to relax and not interfere with something; to let something happen without playing a part in it. I can't just sit back and let you waste all our money! Don't worry. Just sit back and let things take care of themselves.

sit behind someone or something Go to behind someone or something.

sit below someone or something Go to below someone or something.

sit beneath something Go to beneath something.

sit bolt upright to sit up straight. Tony sat bolt upright and listened to what the teacher was saying to him. After sitting bolt upright for almost an hour in that crowded airplane, I swore I would never fly again.

sit by someone to sit next to someone. May I sit by you? Come over here and sit by me.

sit close to someone or something Go to close to someone or something.

sit down to be seated; to sit on something, such as a chair. Please sit down and make yourself comfortable. Can I sit down here?

sit down on something to be seated on something. Please sit down on this chair and wait until you are called. I don't want to sit down on this hard bench.

sit down to something to sit down at a table to do something, such as eat a meal or attend to some business. I look forward to going home and sitting down to a quiet supper. Ted looked forward to sitting down to a big Thanksgiving dinner.

sit for an exam to take an exam to qualify for a license, such as a bar exam. When do you sit for the bar exam? I will sit for the exam next week.

sit for one's portrait to serve as the subject of a portrait being done by a painter or photographer. I sat for the picture for two hours. Do you mind sitting for the painter all day? It will be easier if you get it over with all at once.

sit for someone 1. to care for someone in the role of babysitter. I sit for Timmy sometimes. I like him. He's a good little kid. Mary doesn't sit for anyone anymore. It leaves no time for a social life. 2. to serve as a babysitter in someone's employ. I sit for Mrs. Franklin every now and then. Ted used to sit for the Wilsons. 3. to serve as a model or subject for someone, such as an artist. She sat for the portrait painter every day for a week. She is looking for someone to sit for her so she can develop her skills.

sit hand in hand Go to hand in hand.

sit idly by and stand idly by to remain close, doing nothing to help. I do not intend to stand idly by while my children need my help. The wealthy man sat idly by while the poor people starved.

sit in (for someone) to act as a substitute for someone. (Usually involves actual sitting, such as at a meeting.) I am not a regular member of this committee. I am sitting in for Larry Smith. Do you mind if I sit in? My representative can't be here.

sit in judgment (up)on someone or something to make a judgment about someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I don't want to sit in judgment upon you or anyone else, but I do have some suggestions. There is no need to sit in judgment on the proposal at this time.

sit in (on something) to attend something as a visitor; to act as a temporary participant in something. Do you mind if I sit in on your discussion? Please do sit in.

sit on its hands and sit on their hands Fig. [for an audience] to refuse to applaud. (See also sit on one's hands.) The performance was really quite good, but the audience sat on its hands. They sat on their hands during the first act.

sit on one's ass Inf. to sit idle; to sit around doing nothing. (Use ass with discretion.) Don't just sit on your ass! Get busy! He just sat on his ass, watching what was going on.

sit on one's hands Fig. to do nothing; to fail to help. (See also sit on its hands.) When we needed help from Mary, she just sat on her hands. We need the cooperation of everyone. You can't sit on your hands!

sit on someone or something 1. Lit. to place oneself in a sitting position on someone or something. The enormous woman knocked the crook out and sat on him until the police came. I need to sit on this chair for a minute and catch my breath. 2. Fig. to hold someone or something back; to delay someone or something. The project cannot be finished because the city council is sitting on the final approval. Ann deserves to be promoted, but the manager is sitting on her because of a disagreement. It's hard to do your best when you know that someone is sitting on you, and no matter what you do, it won't help your advancement.

sit on the fence Fig. not to take sides in a dispute; not to make a clear choice between two possibilities. (Fig. on the image of someone straddling a fence, representing indecision.) When Jane and Tom argue, it is best to sit on the fence and not make either of them angry. No one knows which of the candidates Joan will vote for. She's sitting on the fence.

sit on the fence (about something) Go to on the fence (about something).

sit on their hands Go to sit on its hands.

sit out to elect not to participate in something. I think I will not join in this game. I'll sit out. I'll sit out for this round.

sit right with someone Fig. [for something] to be acceptable or understandable to someone. (Very close to sit well with someone.) What you just said doesn't really sit right with me. Let's talk about it. It didn't sit right with the boss.

sit something out not to participate in something; to wait until something is over before participating. Oh, please play with us. Don't sit it out. I'm tired of playing cards, so I think I'll sit out this game.

sit still for something 1. Lit. to remain seated without fidgeting during something. The child could hardly be expected to sit still for the opera. Timmy would not sit still for his haircut. 2. Fig. to remain idle rather than act to prevent something; to endure or tolerate something. I won't sit still for that kind of treatment. She would not sit still for an insult like that.

sit through something to remain seated and in attendance for all of something, even though it is boring or poorly done. I can't stand to sit through that class one more time! Do I have to sit through the whole lecture?

sit tight to wait; to wait patiently. (This does not necessarily refer to sitting.) Just relax and sit tight. I'll be right with you. We were waiting in line for the gates to open when someone came out and told us to sit tight because it wouldn't be much longer before we could go in.

sit up 1. to rise from a lying to a sitting position. When the alarm went off, he sat up and put his feet on the floor. She couldn't sleep, so she sat up and read a book. 2. to sit more straight in one's seat; to hold one's posture more upright while seated. Please sit up. Don't slouch! You wouldn't get backaches if you would sit up.

sit up and take notice to become alert and pay attention. A loud noise from the front of the room caused everyone to sit up and take notice. The company wouldn't pay any attention to my complaints. When I had my lawyer write them a letter, they sat up and took notice.

sit up with someone to stay with someone through the night, especially with a sick or troubled person or with someone who is waiting for something. I had to sit up with my younger sister when she was ill. I sat up with Bill while he waited for an overseas telephone call.

sit well with someone to be acceptable to someone. Your explanation of your absence doesn't sit well with the president. The whole affair didn't sit well with the manager.

sit with someone 1. to stay with someone; to sit up with someone. □ My uncle sat with me my first day in the hospital. 2. to stay with and care for one or more children; to babysit for someone. □ I hired Mrs. Wilson to sit with the children. □ We couldn't go out for dinner because we couldn't find anyone to sit with the kids.

*a sitting duck Fig. someone or something vulnerable to attack, physical or verbal. (Alludes to a duck floating on the water, not suspecting that it is the object of a hunter or predator. *Typically: be ~; like ~; looking like ~.) □ You look like a sitting duck out there. Get in here where the enemy cannot fire at you. □ The senator was a sitting duck because of his unpopular position on school reform.

sitting on a gold mine Fig. in control of something very valuable; in control of something potentially very valuable. □ When I found out how much the old book was worth, I realized that I was sitting on a gold mine. □ Mary's land is valuable. She is sitting on a gold mine.

sitting on a powder keg Fig. in a risky or explosive situation; in a situation where something serious or dangerous may happen at any time. (A powder keg is a keg of gunpowder.) □ Things are very tense at work. The whole office is sitting on a powder keg. □ The fire at the oil field seems to be under control for now, but all the workers there are sitting on a powder keg.

(sitting) on top of the world Fig. feeling wonderful; glorious; ecstatic. □ Wow, I feel on top of the world. □ Since he got a new job, he's on top of the world.

sitting pretty living in comfort or luxury; living in a good situation. (*Typically: be ~; leave someone ~.) □ My uncle died and left enough money for me to be sitting pretty for the rest of my life. □ Now that I have a good-paying job, I'm sitting pretty.

six feet under Fig. dead and buried. □ Fred died and is six feet under. □ They put him six feet under two days after he died.

six of one and half a dozen of the other Fig. about the same one way or another. □ It doesn't matter to me which way you do it. It's six of one and half a dozen of the other. □ What difference does it make? They're both the same—six of one and half a dozen of the other.

a sixth sense a supposed power to know or feel things that are not perceptible by the five senses of sight, hearing, smell, taste, and touch. □ My sixth sense told me to avoid going home by my usual route. Later I discovered there had been a fatal accident on it. □ Jane's sixth sense demanded that she not trust Tom, even though he seemed honest enough.

the sixty-four-dollar question Fig. the most important question; the question that everyone wants to know the answer to. □ Who will win? Now, that is the sixty-four-dollar question. □ Now for the sixty-four-dollar question. What's the stock market going to do this year?

size someone or something up[†] to observe someone or something to get information; to check someone or something out. □ The comedian sized the audience up and decided not to use his new material. □ I like to size up a situation before I act.

skate around to skate here and there in no particular direction. □ Let's go over to the pond and skate around. □ We will skate around for a while until we get too cold.

skate around someone or something 1. to skate to one side or the other of someone or something. □ Somehow I managed to skate around the child without knocking her down. □ I skated around the tree limb and avoided an accident. 2. to circle someone or something while skating. □ The children skated around their instructor until she was satisfied with their form. □ We skated around the post in a circle.

skate on something to skate on a particular surface. □ You can't skate on that ice! It's too thin. □ Don't skate on the ice until it has been scraped smooth.

skate on thin ice Fig. to be in a risky situation. (Fig. on the image of someone taking the risk of ice skating on thin ice.) □ I try to stay well informed so I don't end up skating on thin ice when the teacher asks me a question. □ You are skating on thin ice when you ask me that!

skate over something 1. Lit. to move over something, skating. □ I love to be the first one to skate over newly frozen ice. □ I skated over the pond too soon and the ice cracked while I was on it. 2. Fig. to move over or deal with something quickly. □ The speaker skated over the touchy issues with discretion. □ I will skate over the things that I am not sure about.

skeleton(s) in the closet a hidden and shocking secret. □ You can ask anyone about how reliable I am. I don't mind. I don't have any skeletons in the closet. □ My uncle was in jail for a day once. That's our family's skeleton in the closet.

sketch something in[†] to draw in the image of someone or something. □ I sketched a figure of a woman in so that she appears to be standing beneath the tree. □ I'll sketch in the house in the upper left corner.

sketch something out[†] to create a rough idea or image of something by sketching or some other means. (Does not necessarily require an actual sketch.) □ Sally sketched the furniture arrangement out so we could get an idea of what it was to look like. □ Would you sketch out your ideas, please?

skid across something to slip or glide across something, such as ice or wet pavement. □ The car skidded across the pavement and crashed into a tree. □ Our bus skidded across the icy bridge and ran into a ditch on the other side.

skid into someone or something to slip or glide into someone or something. □ The bicycle skidded into a pedestrian. □ The car skidded into a guard rail.

skim over something 1. Lit. to glide across something. □ The sailboat skimmed over the waves like a bird. □ The bird skimmed over the treetops, darting and dodging. 2. Fig. to go over or review something hastily. □ I just skimmed over the material and still got an A on the test! □ Please skim over chapter four for Thursday.

skim something off (of) something and skim something off[†] 1. Lit. to scoop something off the surface of something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The cook skimmed the fat off the stew. □ The cook skimmed off the fat. 2. Fig. to remove a portion of something of value, such as money, from an account. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The auditor was skimming a few dol- lars a day off the bank's cash flow. □ Kelly skimmed off a few dollars each day.

skim through something to go through something hastily; to read through something hastily. □ She skimmed through the catalogs, looking for a nice gift for Gary. □ I will skim through your manuscript and see whether it looks promising.

skimp on something to use too little of something; to save something by using less of it than needed for something. □ Please don't skimp on the gravy. I like my potatoes swimming in it. □ They skimmed on quality a little when they furnished the lobby.

Skin me! Go to Give me five!

skin someone alive Fig. to be very angry with someone; to scold someone severely. (Fig. on being angry enough to do this kind of bodily harm to someone.) □ I was so mad at Jane that I could have skinned her alive. □ If I don't get home on time, my parents will skin me alive.

skinny as a beanpole very thin; very skinny. (*Also: as ~.) □ I exercised and dieted until I was skinny as a beanpole.

skinny-dip to swim naked. □ The boys were skinny-dipping in the creek when Bob's mother drove up.

skip bail Go to jump bail.

Skip it! Inf. Never mind!; Forget it! (Shows impatience or disappointment.) □ John: I need some help on this project. Mary: What? John: Oh, skip it! □ Jane: Will you be able to do this, or should I get someone with more experience? Bob: What did you say? Jane: Oh, skip it!

skip off (with something) Fig. to leave and take something with one. □ The little kid with the freckles skipped off with a candy bar. □ He took the candy bar I offered him and skipped off.

skip (out) Inf. to leave; to run away without doing something, such as paying a bill. □ The guy skipped when the waitress wasn't looking. □ Fred skipped out, leaving me with the bill.

skip out (on someone or something) Fig. to sneak away from someone or some event; to leave someone or an event suddenly or in secret. □ I heard that Bill skipped out on his wife. □ I'm not surprised. I thought he should have skipped out long ago.

skip out with something Fig. to leave and take something with one; to steal something. □ The hotel guest skipped out with the towels. □ Someone skipped out with the petty cash box.

skip over someone or something not to choose someone or something next in line. □ She skipped over me and chose the next one in line. □ I skipped over the red ones and took a blue one.

skip rope to jump over an arc of rope that is swung beneath one's feet then over one's head, repeatedly. □ The children skipped rope on the playground. □ The boxer skipped rope while training.

skip through something to go through a book or a stack of papers without dealing with every page. □ I skipped through the book, just looking at the pictures. □ Ted skipped through the report, not bothering to read it.

skirmish with someone or something to have a minor fight with someone, a group, or something. □ Tim skirmished a bit with his brother and then ran into the house. □ I don't want to skirmish with the committee.

skirt around someone or something Fig. to move around and avoid someone or something. (Something can be a topic of conversation.) □ We talked the whole evening and managed to skirt around Fred. □ We had to skirt around the subject.

The sky's the limit. Inf. there is no upper limit. □ I can afford it. The sky's the limit. □ You can do anything you set your mind to, Billy. The sky's the limit.

slack off 1. to taper off; to reduce gradually. □ Business tends to slack off during the winter months. □ The storms begin to slack off in April. 2. [for someone] to become lazy or inefficient. □ Near the end of the school year, Sally began to slack off, and her grades showed it. □ John got fired for slacking off during the busy season.

slack up (on something) and slack off (on something) to release the pressure or tension on something. (See also slack off.) □ Slack up on the rope a bit, will you? □ Please slack off!

slam dunk 1. Lit. [in basketball] a goal scored by shooting the ball down from above the rim. □ He was wide open and scored on an easy slam dunk. 2. Fig. an action or accomplishment that is easily done. □ Finishing that project with all his experience should be a slam dunk for George.

slam into someone or something to crash into someone or something. □ The race car—out of control—slammed into the stands. □ The bus slammed into a truck.

slam someone or something down[†] to drive or strike someone or something downward. □ The wrestler slammed his opponent down hard. □ He slammed down his opponent and injured him.

slam something down[†] (on/to) something to bang something down onto something. □ She slammed her fist down on the table in anger. □ Karen slammed down her fist onto the table.

slam the brakes on[†] to push on a vehicle's brakes suddenly and hard. (The can be replaced by a possessive pronoun.) □ The driver in front of me slammed her brakes on and I nearly ran into her. □ Don't slam on your brakes when the road is wet.

slam the door in someone's face 1. Lit. to swing a door closed with force while someone is standing in the doorway. □ I didn't know Todd was behind me and I accidentally slammed the door in his face. □ Please don't slam the door in my face! 2. Fig. suddenly to withdraw an opportunity from someone. □ The events of the last week effectively slammed the door in my face for future employment. □ We slammed the door in Bill's face since he was so rude when we interviewed him.

slant against something to rest obliquely against something. □ The bookcase slants against the wall, and it should be straight. □ The lumber was left slanted against the garage.

slant something against someone or something to bias something against someone or something; to twist information so it is against someone or something. □ The writer slanted the story against the innocent people of the town. □ The reporter slanted her story against one political party.

slant something toward someone or something and slant something in favor of someone or something to bias something toward someone or something; to twist information so it favors someone or something. □ The writer slanted the story toward the plaintiff's charges. □ The reporter slanted her story in favor of one political party.

slant toward someone or something to incline toward someone or something. □ The scenery slanted toward the actors and looked as if it would fall. □ Everything in your sketch slants toward the right.

slap against someone or something [for something] to flap or strike against someone or something. □ The flag kept slapping against Ed, making it hard for him to remain at attention. □ The awning slapped against the side of the house.

a slap in the face an insult; an act that causes disappointment or discouragement. □ Losing the election was a slap in the face for the club president. □ Failing to get into a good college was a slap in the face to Tim after his years of study.

*a slap on the wrist 1. Lit. a hit on the wrist as a mild punishment for putting one's hands where they shouldn't be or taking something. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ When Billy tried to grab another cookie, he got a slap on the wrist. 2. Fig. to get a light punishment (for doing something wrong). (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ He created quite a disturbance, but he only got a slap on the wrist from the judge. □ I thought I'd get a slap on the wrist for speeding, but I got fined $500.

slap someone down 1. Lit. to cause someone to fall by striking with the open hand. □ She became enraged and slapped him down when he approached her again. □ Liz slapped down the insulting wretch. 2. Fig. to squelch someone; to rebuke or rebuff someone. □ I had a great idea, but the boss slapped me down. □ Don't slap down people without hearing what they have to say.

slap someone in something Fig. Inf. to put or throw someone in jail or prison. □ The sheriff slapped the crooks in jail. □ Do you want me to slap you in jail?

slap someone on something to slap a particular part of someone. □ Gerald was always slapping his friends on the back. □ He slapped himself on the knee and laughed very loudly.

slap someone on the wrist and slap someone's wrist 1. Lit. to strike someone's wrist with the open hand, as a punishment. □ Aunt Maude slapped Tony on the wrist when he grabbed a couple of her freshly baked cookies. □ Tony was slapped on the wrist when he tried to swipe some cookies. 2. Fig. to administer only the mildest of punishments to someone. □ The judge did nothing but slap the mugger on the wrist.

slap something against someone or something to flap or strike something onto someone or something. □ The wind slapped the branch against Walter. □ The gusts from the storm slapped the shutters against the side of the house.

slap something down† to strike downward with something flat in one's hand. □ She slapped the dollar bill down in great anger and took her paper cup full of water away with her. □ Karen slapped down the money that the bailiff demanded.

slap something on† 1. Inf. to dress in something hastily. □ Henry slapped a shirt on and went out to say something to the garbage hauler. □ He slapped on a shirt and ran to the bus stop. 2. Go to slap something onto someone or something.

slap something on someone Inf. to serve someone with a legal paper or citation. □ The strange man came into the office and slapped a subpoena on Mary. □ I will slap a citation on you for speeding if you don't stop arguing.

slap something onto someone or something and slap something on† to place something onto someone or something by slapping. □ Tim slapped a sign onto Gary that said "kick me." □ Tim came up to Gary's back and slapped on a sign.

slap something together† Go to throw something together†.

slash and burn 1. Lit. of a farming technique where vegetation is cut down and burned before crops are planted. (Hyphenated before nominals.) □ The small farmers' slash-and-burn technique destroyed thousands of acres of forest. 2. Fig. of a crude and brash way of doing something. (Hyphenated before nominals.) □ The new manager's method was strictly slash and burn. He looks decisive to his boss and merciless to the people he fires.

slash (out) at someone to thrust out at someone with a knife or something similar, with the intent of cutting. □ The attacker slashed out at his victim and then ran away. □ Max slashed at the cop with a pocketknife.

slate someone or something for something to schedule someone or something for some thing or a particular time. □ They slated me for a trip to Columbia, Missouri, in August. □ Wally slated the meeting room for his presentation.

slated for something scheduled for something. (As if a schedule had been written on a slate. *Typically: be ~; have someone ~.) □ John was slated for Friday's game, but he couldn't play with the team. □ Ann is slated for promotion next year.

slated to do something scheduled to do something. (*Typically: be ~; have someone ~.) □ Mary is slated to go to Washington in the fall. □ We are slated to leave in November.

slave away (at something) Fig. to work very hard (doing something). □ I'm tired of slaving away at this and getting nowhere. □ I'm slaving away for $7.00 an hour and have no prospects for the future.

slave over something Fig. to stand over something, working at it very hard, typically cooking over a hot stove. □ I've been slaving over this hot stove for hours to cook this meal! □ Ted slaved over his special dessert for hours.

*a slave to something Fig. someone who is under the control of something; someone whose time or attention is controlled or "owned by" by something. (Fig. on being a slave to a person. *Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ Mary is a slave to her job. □ Bill is a slave to his drug addiction.

sled down something to ride down something on a sled. □ I love to sled down the hill in the winter. □ This hill is too steep to sled down safely.

sled over something to travel over something, such as snow, in a sled. We sledged rapidly over the fresh snow, scooting down the hill. We wanted to sled over the new snow, but we had to wait until Uncle Herman had taken a picture of it for his scrapbook.

sleep around the clock to sleep for a full twenty-four hours; to sleep for a very long time. I was so tired I could have slept around the clock. When I got home, I lay down and slept around the clock.

sleep around (with someone) Inf. to have sex with several partners over time; to be promiscuous. They say she sleeps around with just anybody all the time. Yes, she sleeps around.

sleep in to oversleep; to sleep late in the morning. If you sleep in again, you'll get fired. I really felt like sleeping in this morning.

sleep in the buff Go to in the altogether.

sleep like a log and sleep like a baby to sleep very soundly. Everyone in our family sleeps like a log, so no one heard the thunderstorm in the middle of the night. Nothing can wake me up. I usually sleep like a baby.

sleep on something 1. Lit. to recline on something and slumber. I like to sleep on a firm bed. Mary had to sleep on the floor because her sister was visiting. 2. Fig. to postpone a decision until one has slept through the night. (As if one were going to think through the decision while sleeping.) It sounds like a good idea, but I'd like to sleep on it before giving you my response. You go home and sleep on it and give me your answer in the morning.

sleep out to sleep outside or away from one's home. Can I sleep out tonight? Didn't you sleep out last night?

sleep over (with someone) (some place) to spend the night sleeping at someone else's home. (Typically said by teenagers or younger children who spend the night with a friend.) Mom, can I sleep over with Tony? Can I sleep over at Tony's house?

sleep something away[†] to spend or waste a specific period of time sleeping. You can't sleep the whole day away! Jim slept away his whole vacation.

sleep something off[†] to sleep while the effects of liquor or drugs pass away. John drank too much and went home to sleep it off. Bill is at home sleeping off the effects of the drug they gave him.

sleep through something to remain sleeping through some event. I didn't hear the storm. I guess I slept through it. Wally slept through the entire opera—even the loud part.

sleep tight to sleep warm and safe. (Usually said with good night to someone going to bed.) Sleep tight, Bobby. See you in the morning.

sleep together 1. [for two or more people] to share a bed. Do you mean that Fred and Dave have to sleep together? My brother and I used to have to sleep together. 2. Euph. [for two people] to copulate. Do you think they slept together? Ted and Alice slept together a lot when they were in college.

sleep with someone 1. to share a bed with someone. Do I have to sleep with my little brother? Many little boys have to sleep with their brothers. 2. Euph. to copulate with someone. I hear Sam's sleeping with Sally now. Whom did you say he slept with?

a sleeping giant a great power that is still and waiting. The huge country to the south is a sleeping giant, waiting for its chance to become sufficiently industrialized to have real prosperity. The U.S. was a sleeping giant at the outbreak of both world wars.

slice in(to something) to cut into something, usually with a knife or something similar. Betty sliced into the cake and discovered it was chocolate all the way through. It wasn't until she sliced in that she found out what kind of cake it was.

a slice of the action Go to a piece (of the action).

a slice of the cake a share of something. There's not much work around and so everyone must be content with a slice of the cake. The company makes huge profits and the workers want a slice of the cake.

slice someone or something up[†] to cut someone or something up into slices. The blades of the lawn mower can slice you up if you get too close. The sharp blades sliced up Bobby's rubber ball.

slice something off[†] to cut something off with slicing motions. Sue sliced the dead branches off with a tree saw. Karen sliced off a nice piece of turkey.

slice through something to cut through something with slicing motions. The chef sliced through the ham as if it were butter. The knife was too dull to slice through the tomato.

slick as a whistle quickly and cleanly; quickly and skillfully. (*Also: as ~.) Tom took a broom and a mop and cleaned the place up as slick as a whistle. Slick as a whistle, Sally pulled off the bandage.

slick something down[†] to brush or comb down hair, usually with some sort of dressing or water. He used something gooey—grease or something—to slick his hair down. Please slick down your hair. You look a mess.

slick something up[†] to tidy up something or some place. I have to slick this house up a little. Please slick up this room before company gets here.

slide along to slip or glide along. The sled slid along at a good clip down the gently sloping hill. We slid along on the icy roads and had a hard time stopping and turning.

slide around to slip or skid around. Many cars slide around on the roads when they are icy. The pedestrians were sliding around on the icy pavement.

slide by to get along with a minimum of effort. She didn't do a lot of work—she just slid by. Don't just slide by. Put in some effort.

slide down from something to slip down on something from a higher place. Beth slid down from the top of the mound. The boys slid down from the roof of the shed and got their pants all dirty.

slide down something to slip down something, such as a pole. The fire captain slid down the pole and ran to the engine. Please don't slide down the stairs. You'll ruin the carpet.

slide into something to slip or glide into something, as a car going into a ditch. It was raining hard, and car after car slid into the ditch at the sharp turn near Wagner Road.

 Mary's car slid right into the side of a bus.

slide out of something to slip or glide out of something without much effort. Mary slid out of the car and ran to the front door. The CD-ROM slid out of the computer.

slide over something to slip or glide over something. The car almost slid over the edge of the cliff. We almost slid over the edge.

slide something around to push, twist, or turn something around. (The thing must be movable, but not often on wheels.) Please slide the carton around and look at the address on the other side. Can you slide the refrigerator around so I can clean the back of it?

slide something into something and slide something in† to insert something into something effortlessly. Henry slid the end of the seat-belt buckle into its holder and started the car. Slide in the buckle and make sure it's tight.

slide something out of something and slide something out† to cause something to slip or glide out of something without much effort. The hunter slid his knife out of its sheath and got ready to skin the deer. He slid out the heavy box.

slightly rattled 1. Inf. upset; confused. Tom was slightly rattled by the policeman at the door. I'm slightly rattled. I'll get over it. 2. Inf. tipsy; intoxicated. He's only slightly rattled. He'll recover by morning. She can be really drunk and still seem only slightly rattled.

a slim chance a slight chance; a small chance. There is a slim chance that I will arrive on Monday, but Tuesday is more likely.

slim down to become thinner; to lose weight. You have really slimmed down a lot since I last saw you. I need to eat less so I can slim down. He slimmed down quite a bit after he had his health problem.

slim someone down† to cause someone to lose weight. They started to slim her down in the hospital, but she gained the weight back as soon as she got out. The dietitian slimmed down all the patients under his care.

sling something at someone or something to heave or toss something at someone or something. The child slung a handful of mud at his playmate. Who slung this muddy mess at the side of the house?

sling something out† 1. to toss or heave something outward. The fishermen slung their nets out into the water. They slung out their nets. 2. to throw something away. Just sling all that old junk out, if you will. Sling out that stuff into the trash!

sling the cat Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. Suddenly Ralph left the room to sling the cat, I guess. That stuff will make you sling the cat.

slink around to creep or slither around furtively. The cat slunk around, waiting for a chance to get at the bird. Don't slink around like that. Someone is likely to take you for a robber.

slink away to creep or slither away furtively. The fox slunk away, leaving the henhouse as quietly as such a thing is possible. I hope that the skunk will slink away as quietly as it came.

slink in(to something) to creep into something. The cat slunk into the hallway and lay down in the middle of the floor. I left the door ajar and a cat slunk in.

slink off to creep away furtively. Carl was embarrassed and tried to slink off, but the ushers spotted him. The boys slunk off from the picnic and smoked some cigarettes.

slink out (of some place) to creep out of some place furtively. The fox slunk out of the henhouse just as the farmer came out. It slunk out and got away.

slip around to slide or skid around. The pedestrian slipped around and finally fell on the ice. The dog slipped around on the ice and finally made it to shore.

slip away 1. and slip off to go away or escape quietly or in secret; to slip out. I slipped away when no one was looking. Let's slip off somewhere and have a little talk. I'll try to slip out for an hour or two when Tom is asleep. 2. Euph. to die. Uncle Charles slipped away in his sleep last night.

slip back (to someone or something) to move quietly and cautiously back to someone or something. Walter slipped back to Sally when her parents weren't looking. He slipped back and then Mary's parents slipped back, and there was quite a scene.

slip between the cracks Fig. [for someone or something] to be forgotten or neglected. (Fig. on something being lost by falling between floorboards.) Where is Alice? I guess we neglected her and she slipped between the cracks. This issue seems to have slipped between the cracks and become forgotten.

slip by 1. and slip by someone or something to move by someone or something quickly or unnoticed; to move through a tight area or past someone or something in a tight area. The hall was narrow, and I could hardly have slipped by. 2. [for time] to pass quickly or unnoticed. Goodness, almost an hour has slipped by! How time flies. The entire workday slipped by before I knew it.

slip down to slide or glide downward. His socks kept slipping down. He lost so much weight that his pants almost slipped down.

slip from something to fall away from something; to lose one's step or grasp and fall from something. He slipped from the top step and fell down the other three. Ted slipped from the stool and fell on the floor.

slip in (some place) to sneak or go into a place quietly and unnoticed. I think we can slip in the rear door unnoticed. We slipped in and crept up the stairs.

slip in(to something) to slide or glide into something, such as clothing, a sleeping bag, a tight place, etc. I don't want to slip into a cold sleeping bag. How can I warm it up? I opened the bag and slipped in.

Slip me five! Go to Give me five!

a slip of the tongue an error in speaking in which a word is pronounced incorrectly, or in which the speaker says something unintentionally. I didn't mean to tell her that. It was a slip of the tongue. I failed to understand the instructions because the speaker made a slip of the tongue at an important point.

slip off Go to slip away.

slip off (of) someone or something to fall away from or off someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The jacket slipped off of Sally, but she grabbed it before it hit the floor. □ She hung the jacket on the back of the chair, but it slipped off.

slip off (to some place) to sneak away to some place. □ Judy and Jeff slipped off to the movies unnoticed. □ They slipped off and no one saw them leave.

slip on something to step on and slide on something. □ Valerie slipped on a banana peel and hurt her back. □ Don't slip on that wet spot on the floor!

slip one over on someone or something Go to slip something over on someone or something.

slip one's mind [for something that was to be remembered] to be forgotten. □ I meant to go to the grocery store on the way home, but it slipped my mind. □ My birthday slipped my mind. I guess I wanted to forget it.

slip one's trolley Sl. to become a little crazy; to lose one's composure. □ I was afraid I would slip my trolley. □ He slipped his trolley and went totally bonkers.

slip out 1. [for someone] to exit quietly without bothering anyone. □ I slipped out during intermission. 2. [for information] to be spoken without realizing that it is secret or privileged. □ The secret about her divorce slipped out when we were discussing old friends.

slip out (of something) 1. to sneak out of a place unnoticed. □ Gloria slipped out of the theater at intermission. □ She slipped out and went home. 2. to slide out of an article of clothing. □ She slipped out of her dress and hung it neatly in the closet. □ Ted slipped out of his T-shirt and left it on the floor where it fell.

slip past someone or something to sneak or move past someone or something unnoticed. □ It is impossible to slip past the armed guards and metal detectors. □ Do you think I can slip past the doorway without being seen?

slip someone a Mickey to secretly put a Mickey Finn in someone's alcoholic drink. (This drug either makes the victim ill or causes immediate diarrhea.) □ Somebody slipped Barlowe a Mickey and sent him into action. □ For a ten-spot, the bartender slipped Slim a Mickey.

slip someone five Sl. to shake someone's hand. □ Billy slipped me five, and we sat down to discuss old times. □ Come on, man, slip me five!

slip someone or something past someone or something to cause someone or something to move past someone or something unnoticed; to manage to get something past the scrutiny of someone. □ I slipped another one of my friends past the usher into the theater. □ Do you think I can slip this sausage past the customs officers? □ I slipped a note past the guard.

slip something back^t 1. to pull or place something back. □ Alice slipped the gearshift lever back and away they went. □ She slipped back the gearshift and sped away. 2. to return something secretly. □ Someone took my wallet away and slipped it back later. □ The thief slipped back my wallet, but the money was gone.

slip something down^t to slide something downward. □ I slipped my pants down a little so the doctor could give me a shot in what they call your "hip." □ He slipped down his pants a little.

slip something in(to) something and slip something in^t to cause something to slide or glide into something. □ Max slipped the bullets into their chambers and got ready to fire. □ He slipped the bullets in silently.

slip something off^t to let an item of clothing slide off one's body; to remove an item of clothing easily or casually. □ He slipped his coat off and put it on a chair. □ She slipped off her shoes and relaxed.

slip something on^t to put on an article of clothing, possibly in haste or casually. □ I will go in and slip my bathing suit on and join you in a minute. □ She slipped on her shoes and we left.

slip something over on someone or something and slip one over on someone or something; slip something over; slip one over to deceive someone. □ Are you trying to slip something over on me? □ I think he tried to slip one over on me.

slip something over someone or something to cause something to slide or glide over and onto someone or something. □ Mother slipped the covers over Timmy and kissed him good night. □ Jane slipped the cover over the birdcage for the night.

slip something through (something) 1. Lit. to cause something to slide or glide through something. □ The nickel I dropped slipped through the crack in the floor. □ It rolled toward a crack in the floor and slipped through. 2. Fig. to get something approved without much fuss by a group of people, perhaps by deception. □ I will try to slip this through the committee. □ I can slip it through for you.

slip through someone's fingers 1. Lit. to slide through and out of one's grasp. □ The glass slipped through his fingers and crashed to the ground. □ The rope slipped through his fingers and followed the anchor to the bottom of the lake. 2. Fig. to escape from someone; to elude someone's capture or control. □ The prisoner slipped through the sheriff's fingers. □ Don't let Max slip through your fingers again this time!

slip through something to slide or slither through something narrow or crowded. □ Gerald slipped through the narrow opening and got away. □ The dog slipped through the door and ran out into the street.

slip through the cracks Go to through the cracks.

slip up to make an error. □ I hope you don't slip up again. Try to be more careful.

slip up on someone, something, or an animal to sneak up on someone, something, or an animal quietly. (See also slip up.) □ I slipped up on Harry and scared him to death. □ The cat slipped up on a mouse and grabbed it.

slip up on something to make an error in something. □ I guess I slipped up on that last job. □ Fred slipped up on compiling that list—there are a lot of names missing.

slip up something to climb something, slipping along the way. □ The hikers slipped up the wet slope. □ Ted slipped up the stairs, tracking mud and water as he went along.

slippery as an eel devious and untrustworthy, but impossible to catch. (*Also: as ~.) □ Don't sign a lease with that landlord; I think he's as slippery as an eel. □ The con artist was slippery as an eel. Although he defrauded many people, he never went to prison.

S

a slippery customer 1. Fig. a clever and deceitful customer. Watch out for that guy with the big padded coat. He may snatch something. He's a real slippery customer.
2. Fig. a slippery creature. This little fish is a slippery customer. Get me something to scoop it back into its bowl.

a slippery slope a dangerous pathway or route to follow; a route that leads to trouble. The matter of euthanasia is a slippery slope with both legal and moral considerations.

slither along to slink or crawl along. The snake slithered along, unmindful of our presence. A pair of otters slithered along playfully.

slither away to sneak or crawl away, like a snake. The little lizards slithered away soundlessly. The snake slithered away while Maggie was still screaming.

slob up Sl. to eat. What time do you people slob up around here? Fred stopped slobbering up long enough to change the channel on the TV set.

slobber (all) over someone or something to drool on someone or something. (See also slobber over something.) The dog slobbered over the child. It was just being friendly. Jenny has slobbered all over her dress.

slobber over someone or something Fig. to drool with delight or eagerness at the thought of someone or something. (Based on slobber over something. See also slobber (all) over someone or something.) Fred was slobbering over Donna as she lay sunbathing in a tiny bikini. Jamie was slobbering over Mary's new car.

slobber over something to drool with delight or eagerness before or while eating something. (See also slobber over someone or something.) The dog was slobbering over a chunk of meat when the cat came in and hissed at the dog.

slog through something to wade or trudge through something, such as mud or snow. Do I have to slog through the snow to go to school? Can't you drive me? When I was your age, I slogged through snow twice this deep to get to school.

slop around 1. [for someone] to splash around in a body of liquid, such as a bath. Timmy was in his bath, slopping around and singing. Bob is out in the pool, slopping around. 2. [for a liquid] to splash or rush around in a container. The water was slopping around in the bottom of the boat even though the lake we were traveling on was calm. There is some coffee left. I hear it slopping around in the bottom of the pot.

slop out (of something) [for a liquid] to spill or splash out of a container. Some of the orange juice slopped out of the container, making a mess on the table. Some milk slopped out. Please clean it up.

slop over [for a liquid] to splash out of or overflow a container. The milk slopped over and messed up the carpet. Her cup slopped over and spilled its contents on the kitchen table.

slop something around[†] to spill portions of a liquid here and there. Don't slop the milk around as you pour it. Please don't slop around the paint while you work.

slop something on(to) someone or something to spill or splash a liquid onto someone or something. Don't slop the pancake batter onto yourself. Who slopped paint on the floor?

slop something over something to spill or splash some liquid onto something. He slopped the starting fluid over the charcoal and lit it. The artist slopped some grape juice over the canvas and proceeded to spread it around in an artistic fashion.

slope away from something to slant downward and away from something. The lawn sloped away from the patio toward the riverbank. The porch sloped away from the house at a very slight angle.

slope down (to something or some place) to slant downward toward something or some place from a higher level. The wide white beach sloped down to the azure water. The yard sloped down, making a lovely view from the living room.

slope (down) toward something to slant downward toward something. The backyard slopes down toward the river. It slopes toward the water.

slope up (to something) to slant upward in the direction of something. The ramp sloped up to the door, allowing wheelchairs to enter. It sloped up rather steeply.

slosh around (in something) 1. [for a liquid] to rush or splash around in an enclosure or container. The milk sloshed around in the pitcher and splashed over a little bit. The fluid sloshed around, making a splashing sound. 2. to move or splash through a liquid, usually standing on one's feet. Billy sloshed around in the wading pool. The kids have been sloshing around in puddles again.

slosh over [for a liquid] to splash over its container. The water in the wading pool sloshed over and made the grass slippery. Don't fill the glass too full. It will slosh over.

slosh something (all) over someone or something to spill or splash a liquid over someone or something. Laura tripped and sloshed the grape juice all over Martha. Martin sloshed pancake batter over the side of the stove.

slosh something around[†] to cause a liquid to rush or splash in a container. The chef sloshed the dressing around a few times and poured it on the salad. The chef sloshed around the dressing and poured it on the salad.

slosh something on(to) someone or something and slosh something on[†] to splash or spill a liquid onto someone or something. Betty sloshed the charcoal lighter fluid on Fred, and he went in to wash it off. Then she sloshed the fluid onto the charcoal. Slosh on some more.

slosh through something [for a person] to wade or splash through something. The little kids sloshed through every puddle on their way home. We sloshed through the stream, ruining our shoes and soaking our cuffs.

slouch around to move around with a stooped or bent body. (One may slouch because of age, illness, fatigue, depression, fear, or with the intention of not being observed.) She is slouching around because she is tired. Don't you slouch around when you are tired?

slouch behind something to remain behind something, slouching with depression, fear, or the intent of not being observed. Jim slouched behind a chair where no one could see him. A weary clerk slouched behind the counter, wanting a nap more than anything else.

slouch down to slump or droop down. Don't always slouch down, Timmy! Stand up straight. I slouch down because I am tired.

slouch down (in something) to sink or snuggle down into something, trying to become less visible or more comfortable. □ Please don't slouch down in your chair, Tim. □ He can't sit in anything without slouching down.

slouch over to lean or crumple and fall to one side; [for someone] to collapse in a sitting position. □ He slouched over and went to sleep in his chair. □ When he slouched over, I thought something was wrong.

slough something off 1. Lit. to brush or rub something off. □ The snake sloughed its old skin off. □ It sloughed off its skin. 2. Fig. to ignore or disregard a negative remark or incident. □ I could see that the remark had hurt her feelings, but she just pretended to slough it off. □ Liz sloughed off the remark.

Slow and steady wins the race. Prov. If you work slowly but constantly, you will succeed better than if you work fast for a short while and do not continue. (Associated with Aesop's fable of "The Tortoise and the Hare.") □ Joy only had a little bit of time to spend sewing every day, but she worked steadily and soon had finished a beautiful quilt. Slow and steady wins the race.

slow as molasses in January and slower than molasses in January very slow-moving. (*Also: as ~.) □ Can't you get dressed any faster? I declare, you're as slow as molasses in January. □ The traffic on the way to the concert was slower than molasses in January.

slow but sure and slowly but surely slow but unstoppable. □ Bob's progress on his novel was slow but sure. □ Nancy is finishing the paint job on her house, slowly but surely.

slow down to decrease speed; to go slower. □ Please slow down. You are going too fast.

slow going the rate of speed when one is making slow progress. □ It was slow going at first, but I was able to finish the project by the weekend. □ Getting the heavy rocks out of the field is slow going.

slow off the mark 1. Lit. slow in starting or reacting. (Compare this with quick off the mark.) □ If you are always that slow off the mark you will never win the race. □ Boy, you were slow off the mark there! 2. Fig. slow-witted. □ The guy's slow off the mark but very friendly. □ Yes, I'm afraid Tony is a bit slow off the mark when it comes to trigonometry.

slow on the draw 1. Lit. slow in drawing a gun. (Cowboy and gangster talk.) □ Bill got shot because he's so slow on the draw. □ The gunslinger said, "I have to be fast. If I'm slow on the draw, I'm dead." 2. and slow on the uptake Fig. slow to figure something out; slow-thinking. □ Sally didn't get the joke because she's sort of slow on the draw. □ Bill—who's slow on the uptake—didn't get the joke until it was explained to him.

slow on the uptake Go to previous.

slow someone or something up and slow someone or something down to cause someone or something to reduce speed. □ I'm in a hurry. Don't try to slow me down. □ Please slow up the train. There are sheep near the track.

a slow study a person who is slow to learn things. (Compare this to a slow study.) □ Fred, who is a slow study, never caught on to the joke.

slow up to go slower; to reduce speed in order for someone or something to catch up. □ Slow up a little! I can't keep up with you! □ Please slow up. I can't follow your lecture when you talk so fast.

slower and slower at a decreasing rate of speed; slow and then even slower. □ The car is going slower and slower and will stop soon. □ The dog's breathing got slower and slower as it went to sleep.

slower than molasses in January Go to slow as molasses in January.

slowly but surely Go to slow but sure.

sluff (off) Sl. to waste time; to goof off. □ Watch him. He will sluff off if you don't keep after him. □ He won't sluff. I know I can trust him.

slug it out to fight something out; to argue intensely about something. □ They finally went outside to slug it out. □ We'll just have to sit down in the conference room and slug it out.

sluice something down to rinse something down; to flood the surface of something with water or other liquid to clean it. □ John sluiced the driveway down. □ Karen sluiced down the garage floor.

sluice something out to rinse something out; to flood the inside of something to clean it. □ Sluice the wheelbarrow out, will you? □ Please sluice out the wheelbarrow.

slump down [for someone] to collapse and fall down; [for someone] to crumple. □ The shot hit Max and he slumped down. □ Suddenly, Mr. Wilson slumped down in pain.

slump down in(to) something [for someone] to bend down or collapse into something, such as a chair or bed. □ Gary grabbed at his chest and slumped down into the bed. □ He slumped down into the chair and draped himself over the arm.

slump over [for someone] to collapse and fall over forward in a sitting position. □ Just after the gunshot, Bruno slumped over and slid from his chair.

slur over something 1. Lit. to avoid saying difficult or crucial words by mumbling them; to speak over words unclearly. □ The speaker slurred over so many words that we didn't know what she was saying. □ Unfortunately, Ted slurred over many of the important parts of his speech. 2. Fig. to avoid talking about or mentioning an issue. □ The mayor slurred over the major issue of the day. □ She slurred over the major problems.

slush up to become messy with slush. □ As the winter storm increases in intensity, the roads will slush up and become impassable. □ After an hour of snow and rain, the roads were so slushed up that we could not travel.

slut's wool Go to curly dirt.

sly as a fox and cunning as a fox Cliché smart and clever. (*Also: as ~.) □ My nephew is as sly as a fox. □ You have to be cunning as a fox to outwit me.

smack (dab) in the middle exactly in the middle. □ I came in smack dab in the middle of the play. □ I want a piece that is not too big and not too small—just smack in the middle.

a smack in the face Fig. something that will humiliate someone, often when it is considered deserved; an insult. □ Being rejected by Jane was a real smack in the face for

Tom, who thought she was fond of him. □ Meg thought she was the best-qualified candidate for the job, and not getting it was a smack in the face.

smack of something to be reminiscent of something; to imply something. □ The whole scheme smacked of dishonesty and deception. □ All of this story smacks of illegal practices.

smack someone down[†] 1. Lit. to knock a person down or cause a person to retreat with a slap or a blow. □ He tried to touch her again and she smacked him down. □ She smacked down the rude fellow. 2. Fig. to rebuke someone. □ She smacked him down by telling him that he didn't fit in there anymore. □ He has a way of smacking down people who ask stupid questions.

smack something down[†] (on(to) something) to slap something down onto something. □ He smacked his bet down onto the table, angry with his mounting losses. □ Todd smacked down his hand on the table. □ She smacked her dollar down and grabbed up the newspaper.

smack the road Sl. to leave; to hit the road. □ Time to smack the road! Let's go! □ Let's smack the road. I have to get up early.

small change Fig. an insignificant person. (Also a rude term of address.) □ Look, small change, why don't you just move along? □ The guy you think is small change happens to own this building you seem to be guarding so well.

a small fortune a rather sizeable amount of money. □ This set of wheels cost me a small fortune. □ I've got a small fortune tied up in test equipment.

small fry 1. Lit. newly hatched fish; small, juvenile fish. □ The catch was bad today. Nothing but small fry. 2. Fig. unimportant people. □ The police have only caught the small fry. The leader of the gang is still free. □ You people are just small fry! I want to talk to the boss. 3. Fig. children. □ Peter's taking the small fry to the zoo. □ We should take the small fry to the pantomime.

the small hours (of the night) and the wee hours (of the night) the hours immediately after midnight. □ The dance went on into the small hours of the night. □ Jim goes to bed in the wee hours and gets up at lunchtime.

small potatoes something or someone insignificant; small fry. □ This contract is small potatoes, but it keeps us in business till we get into the real money. □ Small potatoes are better than no potatoes at all.

small print and fine print an important part of a document that is not easily noticed because of the smallness of the printing. □ You should have read the small print before signing the contract. □ You should always read the fine print of an insurance policy.

Small things please small minds. Go to Little things please little minds.

smart ass someone who makes wisecracks and acts cocky. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ Some smart ass came in here and asked for a sky hook. □ Don't be such a smart ass!

smart at something to suffer the pains of something. □ Over an hour later she was still smarting at his cruel remarks. □ For many days Ted smarted at the scolding he got.

smart from something 1. Lit. to get a stinging pain from something. □ His arm smarted from many mosquito bites. □ Her legs smarted from the scratches she got from walking through the briars. 2. Fig. to suffer mental distress from something. □ She smarted from wounded vanity. □ He smarted for hours from the rude rebuff.

smart guy someone who acts cocky or rude. □ All right, smart guy, see if you like this one. □ Some smart guy put chewing gum on this bench.

smart money money belonging to smart or clever people. □ Most of the smart money is going into utility stocks right now. □ Watch and see what the smart money is doing.

smart mouth someone who makes wisecracks; a cocky person who speaks out of turn. □ Don't be a smart mouth with me! □ Mr. Atkins is going to get a reputation as a smart mouth.

smart under something to suffer stinging pain under something. □ The sailor's back smarted under the blows of the lash. □ Ted smarted under the lash for his wrongdoings.

smarten up to get smarter; to become more alert and knowing. □ You had better smarten up if you want to survive around here. □ I knew he would smarten up sooner or later.

a smash hit a play, movie, musical, etc., that is a big success. □ Her first book was a smash hit. The second was a disaster. □ A smash hit doesn't always make people rich.

smash into something to crash into something; to bump or crash into something. □ Judy smashed into the coffee table and hurt her leg. □ The car smashed into the side of a bus and caused a lot of damage.

smash out of something to break [one's way] out of something. □ The prisoner smashed out of his cell and ran. □ The horse smashed out of its stable.

smash someone's face in[†] 1. Fig. to crush someone's face. □ The accident smashed Harry's face in, and he had to have extensive surgery. □ The accident smashed in his face. 2. Inf. to strike someone in the face. □ You had better stop that or I will smash your face in. □ Max tried to smash in Lefty's face.

smash something in[†] to crush something inward; to make something collapse inward by striking it. □ Andy gave one good kick and smashed the box in. □ Liz smashed in the window.

smash something up[†] to break something up; to destroy something. □ I hope the children don't smash any of the good china up if we use it tonight. □ The driver fell asleep and smashed up the car.

smash through something to break [one's way] through some sort of barrier. □ The fleeing car smashed through the police barrier. □ Max got angry and smashed through the office door.

a smear campaign (against someone) a campaign aimed at damaging someone's reputation by making accusations and spreading rumors. □ The politician's opponents are engaging in a smear campaign against him. □ Jack started a smear campaign against Tom so that Tom wouldn't get the manager's job.

smear someone or something with something 1. to spread or rub someone or something with some substance. □ Billy smeared Bobby with mud and made him very angry. □ You should smear that burn with lotion. □ He smeared himself with grease and ruined his shirt. 2. to damage the reputation of someone or something by spreading serious charges or rumors. □ He smeared his opponent with all sorts of charges. □ The speaker smeared the entire city with his criticism.

smear something on(to) someone or something and smear something on† to spread or rub something onto someone or something. □ Judy asked Jeff to smear the sun lotion onto her, and he was very happy to do so. □ She smeared on the lotion. □ Jane smeared a little on.

smell a rat to suspect that something is wrong; to sense that someone has caused something wrong. □ I don't think this was an accident. I smell a rat. Bob had something to do with this. □ The minute I came in, I smelled a rat. Sure enough, I had been robbed.

smell blood Fig. to be ready for a fight; to be ready to attack; to be ready to act. (Like sharks, which are sent into a frenzy by the smell of blood.) □ Lefty was surrounded, and you could tell that the guys from the other gang smelled blood. □ The lawyer heard the crash and came running—smelling blood and bucks.

smell fishy to seem suspicious. □ Barlowe squinted a bit. Something smells fishy here, he thought. □ Something about the deal smelled fishy—too good to be true.

smell like a rose Fig. to seem innocent. □ I came out of the whole mess smelling like a rose, even though I caused all the trouble. □ The politician survived the scandal smelling like a rose, but I knew different.

smell of something to have the smell of something; to smell like something. □ This house smells of onions. □ Her cooking always smells of entirely too much garlic.

smell someone, something, or an animal out† to locate someone, something, or an animal by smelling or as if by smelling. □ The dog smelled the crook out from the place in the alley where he was hiding. □ The dog smelled out the raccoon.

smell something up† to cause a bad or strong odor in a place or on something. □ Your cooking sure smelled this place up! □ The spoiled meat really smelled up the house!

smell to (high) heaven 1. Go to stink to high heaven. 2. Fig. to give signals that cause suspicion. □ This deal is messed up. It smells to high heaven. □ Something's wrong here. Somebody blabbed. This setup smells to high heaven.

smile at someone to make a smiling face at someone. □ I love the way you smile at me. □ I am glad you smile at me occasionally.

smile on someone or something to be favorable to someone or something. □ Fate smiled on me and I got the job. □ Lady luck smiled on our venture and we made a profit.

smile (up)on someone or something to bestow approval on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Fate has smiled upon me at last! □ I wish good luck would smile on me.

Smile when you say that. Inf. I will interpret that remark as a joke or as kidding. □ John: You're a real pain in the neck. Bob: Smile when you say that. □ Sue: I'm going to bop you on the head! John: Smile when you say that!

smiling like a Cheshire cat Fig. smiling very broadly. (Alludes to a grinning cat in Alice's Adventures in Wonderland.) □ There he stood, smiling like a Cheshire cat, waiting for his weekly pay.

smirk at someone or something to smile in a smug or sneering way at someone or something. □ Why are you smirking at me like that? □ Jane looked at the report and smirked at it.

smite someone with something to strike someone with something. (Literary or biblical.) □ The silver knight approached the black knight and smote him with his sword. □ Please go and smite the dragon with your sword.

smoke and mirrors deception and confusion. (Said of statements or more complicated rhetoric used to mislead people rather than inform. Alludes to the way a magician uses optical illusion to create believability while performing a trick. Fixed order.) □ Most people know that the politician was just using smoke and mirrors to make things look better than they really were. □ Her report was little more than smoke and mirrors. No one will believe any of it.

smoke like a chimney to smoke a great deal of tobacco or other smokable substances. □ My uncle smoked like a chimney when he was living. □ Somebody who smokes like a chimney in a restaurant ought to be thrown out.

smoke someone, something, or an animal out of something and smoke someone, something, or an animal out† 1. Lit. to force someone, something, or an animal out of something or a place, using smoke. □ The police used tear gas to smoke the kidnappers out of the house. □ They smoked out the crooks. 2. Fig. to drive someone or something out into public view, as if using smoke or something similar. □ What will it take to smoke these crooks out of government? □ We will smoke out the corrupt officials yet.

smoke something up† to cause something or a place to become smoky. □ Get out of here with that cigarette! I don't want you smoking my house up! □ The burning beans sure smoked up the house.

smoke-filled room a room where a small group of people make important decisions. (Usually used in reference to political parties.) □ The smoke-filled rooms are still producing the candidates for most offices, despite all the political reforms. □ The deal was cut in a smoke-filled room.

the smoking gun Fig. the indisputable sign of guilt. (Fig. on a murderer being caught just after shooting the victim.) □ Mr. South was left holding the smoking gun. □ The chief of staff decided that the aide should be found with the smoking gun.

smooth as glass and smooth as silk Cliché smooth and shiny. (Often used to describe calm bodies of water. *Also: as ~.) □ The bay is as smooth as glass, so we should have a pleasant boat trip. □ This custard is smooth as silk.

smooth as silk Go to previous.

smooth sailing Go to clear sailing.

smooth something away† to remove something, such as wrinkles or other unevenness, by pressing or smoothing. □ Jeff put the cloth on the table and smoothed the wrinkles away with his hand. □ Jeff smoothed away the wrinkles.

smooth something back^t to flatten and position something by pressing or smoothing. □ He smoothed his hair back out of his eyes. □ Jeff smoothed back his hair.

smooth something down^t to make something flat or smooth by pressing. □ She smoothed her skirt down, fluffed her hair, and went into the boardroom. □ Karen smoothed down the bedclothes.

smooth something onto someone or something and smooth something on^t to spread or flatten something onto someone or something. □ Ted smoothed the suntan lotion onto Alice, who lay on a towel in the sand. □ He smoothed on some lotion.

smooth something out^t 1. Lit. to flatten or even something by smoothing or pressing. □ Wally smoothed the bedspread out. □ Wally finished making the bed by smoothing out the spread. 2. Fig. to polish and refine something. □ The editor smoothed John's style out. □ You need to smooth out your delivery when you are speaking. 3. and smooth something over^t Fig. to reduce the intensity of an argument or a misunderstanding; to try to make people feel better about something disagreeable that has happened. (Fig. on ①.) □ Mary and John had a terrible argument, and they are both trying to smooth it over. □ Let's get everyone together and try to smooth things out. We can't keep on arguing with one another. □ We can smooth over the whole affair.

smother someone or something with something 1. Lit. to suffocate someone or something with something. □ The villain tried to smother his victim with a pillow. □ Fred tried to smother the cat with a plastic bag. 2. Fig. to cover someone or something with something. (An exaggeration.) □ She smothered him with kisses. □ Aunt Margaret smothered us with the ruffles on the front of her dress when she hugged us.

smuggle someone or something across something to move someone or something across a border illegally and in secret. □ The terrorists smuggled one of their number across the border last night. □ Larry helped smuggle contraband across the border.

smuggle someone or something into some place and smuggle someone or something in^t to move someone or something across a border into a place illegally and in secret. □ The secret agent smuggled his family into the country and then defected. □ He smuggled in his family.

smuggle someone or something out of some place and smuggle someone or something out^t to move someone or something across a border out of a place illegally and in secret. □ Judy smuggled her cousin out of the country in a van. □ She smuggled out her cousin.

smuggle someone or something past (someone or something) to move something past a guard or monitor illegally and in secret. □ We failed in our attempt to smuggle Mary past the border. □ It is easy to smuggle wine past the border guards.

smuggle someone or something through (something) to move something through a guard post or other barrier illegally and in secret. □ The officers smuggled the child through the barrier so he could be with his mother. □ We smuggled some other goods through, too.

snack off (of) something to eat food, bit by bit, in little snacks. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Please don't snack off the turkey so we can get another meal out of it. □ Who has been snacking off of last night's roast beef?

snake along to move along in a curving line, looking like a snake; to move along in a line, moving as a snake moves. □ The train snaked along, gaining speed as it went downhill. □ The line of people waiting to buy tickets snaked along slowly.

snake in the grass a sneaky and despised person. □ How could I ever have trusted that snake in the grass? □ John is such a snake in the grass.

snakebite medicine Inf. inferior whiskey; strong whiskey; homemade whiskey. □ That old-time snakebite medicine is good for what ails you. □ Snakebite medicine is a tremendous protection against snakebites if you can get the snake to drink the stuff before it bites you.

snap at someone to speak sharply or angrily to someone. (Based on snap at someone or something.) □ Don't snap at me. What did I do? □ Why did you snap at me? I did nothing wrong.

snap at someone or something to bite at someone or something. (See also snap at someone; snap at something.) □ The dog snapped at my pants leg, but I escaped the attack unharmed. □ The fox snapped at the chicken and finally caught hold of it. □ The dog snapped at the judge and was disqualified.

snap at something Fig. to seize an opportunity. (See also snap at someone or something.) □ It is such a good deal, I knew you would snap at it. □ Just as I thought, Ted snapped at my final offer.

snap back (after something) to return to normal after an accident or similar event. □ He is upset now, but he will snap back after things settle down. □ Things will snap back in no time at all.

snap back (at someone) to give a sharp or angry response to someone. □ The telephone operator, unlike in the good old days, snapped back at the caller. □ Please don't snap back. I've had a bad day.

snap back (on someone or something) [for something] to be jerked back onto someone or something. □ The branch snapped back on Tim and left a welt on his arm. □ The whip snapped back and stung Tex's hand.

snap into something [for something] to be put or fit into an opening with an audible snap. □ The larger edge of the card snaps into the slot at the base. □ This part snaps right into the other part.

Snap it up! Inf. Hurry up! □ John: Come on, Fred. Snap it up! Fred: I'm hurrying! I'm hurrying! □ Sally: Snap it up! You're going to make us late. John: That's exactly what I had in mind.

snap one's cookies Sl. to vomit; to regurgitate. □ I think I'm gonna snap my cookies. □ Some jerk snapped his cookies on the sidewalk.

snap out of something Fig. to become suddenly freed from a condition. (The condition can be a depression, an illness, unconsciousness, etc.) □ I was very depressed for a week, but this morning I snapped out of it. □ It isn't often that a cold gets me down. Usually I can snap out of it quickly.

snap someone's head off Fig. to speak very sharply to someone. (Based on snap at someone.) □ How rude! Don't snap my head off! □ Mary snapped Ted's head off because he had come in late.

snap something back^t to cause something to jerk back. □ The force of the crash snapped his head back and injured his neck. □ The crash snapped back his head.

snap something into something and snap something in^t to put or press something into something with an audible snap. □ Next, you snap this little part into this slot here. □ Snap in these legs then tighten the screws.

snap something off^t to break off something brittle. □ Liz snapped a bit of the rock off and put it in her bag. □ Carl snapped off a piece of the candy and gave it to Timmy.

snap something on^t to attach something to something else, causing an audible snap. □ Dawn took two pills from the bottle and snapped the lid on. □ She snapped on the lid.

snap something out of something and snap something out^t to remove something from something, causing an audible snap. □ Jeff snapped the plastic plug out of the socket. □ He snapped out the plug.

snap something up^t 1. Lit. to grasp something quickly. □ Karen snapped her pencil up and strode out of the room. □ Harry walked through the kitchen and snapped up two cookies on the way. 2. Fig. to purchase something quickly, because the price is low or because the item is so hard to find. (Fig. on ①.) □ We put the cheap shirts out for sale this morning and people snapped them up in only a few minutes. □ They snapped up the bargains quickly. 3. Fig. to believe something eagerly; to believe a lie readily. □ They are so gullible that you can say anything and they'll snap it up. □ They will snap up anything that sounds good.

snap to (attention) Fig. to move quickly to military attention. □ The troops snapped to attention when they saw the general appear. □ Snap to when I tell you!

Snap to it! Inf. Move faster!; Look alert! □ Bill: Snap to it! Mary: Don't rush me! □ John: Get in line there. Snap to it! Sally: What is this, the army? You just wait till I'm ready!

snarl at someone, something, or an animal to growl at someone, something, or an animal angrily and threateningly. □ The dog snarled at everyone who passed by. □ Our dog used to sit in front of the washing machine and snarl at it.

snarl someone or something up^t to tangle someone or something; to mess something up. □ The wind snarled my hair up terribly. □ The wind snarled up my hair.

snarl something out^t to utter something by snarling or growling. □ Lefty snarled a naughty word out at the police. □ Walt the pickpocket snarled out a curse as the cop grabbed his coat collar.

snatch at someone or something to grasp at someone or something. □ The mugger snatched at Jane just as she sprayed Mace on him. □ He snatched at the Mace, but it was too late.

snatch someone from the jaws of death Go to snatch someone out of the jaws of death.

snatch someone or something (away) from someone or something to grab and take someone or something from someone or something. □ The mother snatched her child away from the doctor and fled. □ She snatched the candy from the child.

snatch someone out of the jaws of death and snatch someone from the jaws of death Fig. to save someone from almost certain or imminent death. □ The soldier snatched the tiny child from the jaws of death.

snatch something out of something to grab something out of something. □ The police officer snatched the gun out of Don's hand. □ Mary snatched the piece of chicken out of the fire as soon as it fell in.

snatch something up^t 1. Lit. to grasp something and lift it up. □ Tom snatched the last cookie up and popped it into his mouth. □ He snatched up the last piece of cake. 2. Fig. to collect or acquire as many of something as possible. □ The shoppers snatched the sale merchandise up very quickly. □ The shoppers snatched up the sale merchandise very quickly.

snatch victory from the jaws of defeat Cliché to win at the last moment. □ At the last moment, the team snatched victory from the jaws of defeat with a last-second full-court basket.

snazz something up^t Sl. to make something classy or exciting. □ Come on, let's try to snazz this up. □ What can I do to snazz up my face?

sneak around (some place) to move about a place in a sneaky or stealthy fashion. □ Please don't sneak around the house. It makes me nervous. □ Please stop sneaking around!

sneak around someone or something 1. Lit. to creep around or past someone or something. □ The cat sneaked around Molly and ran out the door. □ We had to sneak around the corner so we wouldn't be seen. 2. Fig. to circumvent the control or censorship of someone or some group. □ I think we can sneak around the board of directors and authorize this project ourselves. □ Yes, let's sneak around the board.

sneak away (from some place) to go away from a place quietly and in secret. □ Jeff tried to sneak away from the party, but Judy saw him. □ They sneaked away together.

sneak in(to some place) to enter a place quietly and in secret, perhaps without a ticket or permission. □ The kids tried to sneak into the rock concert, but they were stopped by the guards. □ Never try to sneak in. Sometimes they arrest you for trespassing.

sneak out (of some place) to go out of a place quietly and in secret. □ I sneaked out of the meeting, hoping no one would notice. □ Jamie saw me and sneaked out with me.

sneak up on someone or something to approach someone or something quietly and in secret. □ Please don't sneak up on me like that. □ I sneaked up on the cake, hoping no one would see me. Someone did.

sneak up to someone or something to move close to someone or something quietly and in secret. □ I sneaked up to Don and scared him to death. □ Don sneaked up to the punch bowl and helped himself before the party began.

sneer at someone or something to make a haughty or deprecating face at someone or something; to show one's contempt for someone or something. □ I asked her politely to give me some more room, and she just sneered at me. □ Jamie sneered at the report that Ken had submitted.

sneeze at someone to sneeze in someone's direction. □ Please don't sneeze at me! Cover your nose and mouth! □ You should never sneeze at anyone. It is very bad manners.

sneeze at something Fig. to indicate one's disapproval of something; to belittle someone or something. □ I wouldn't sneeze at that amount of money if I were you. It's better than nothing. □ I thought it was a good offer, but the customer just sneezed at it.

sneeze into something to aim a sneeze into something. □ You should always sneeze into a handkerchief. □ Please sneeze into a tissue or something.

sneeze on someone or something to aim a sneeze onto someone or something, probably by accident. □ Don't sneeze on me! □ Don't sneeze on anything. Cover your nose and mouth!

sniff at someone or something 1. Lit. to try to get the smell of someone or something by smelling. □ The dog sniffed at the visitor. □ The cat sniffed at almost every inch of the rug that the dog had walked on. 2. Fig. to show one's disapproval of someone or something by sniffing. (Sometimes this is figurative, the "sniffing" being expressed by tone of voice or gesture.) □ I made one suggestion, but Claire just sniffed at me. □ Gale just sniffed at the idea and would say nothing.

sniff someone or something out^t to locate someone or something by sniffing or as if by sniffing. □ The dog sniffed the intruder out and the police captured him. □ The dog sniffed out the mole in the lawn.

snip something off^t Go to snip something off (of) something.

snip something off (of) something and snip something off^t to cut something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ She snipped a dead blossom off the rosebush. □ Jane snipped off a bud.

snipe at someone or something 1. Lit. to fire a weapon at someone or something from a concealed position. □ Someone with a rifle sniped at the troops as they went through the jungle. □ A rifleman was busy sniping at the platoon. 2. Fig. to make petty complaints attacking someone or something. □ Stop sniping at me and everything I do. □ Ken is always sniping at my reports.

snitch on someone to tattle on someone. □ You wouldn't snitch on me, would you? □ Timmy snitched on his older brother.

snoop around (something) to look around in a place, trying to find out something secret or about someone else's affairs. □ Why are you snooping around my house? □ I am not snooping around.

snoop into something to pry into something or someone else's affairs. □ I wish you would stop snooping into my business! □ Whose affairs are they snooping into now?

snort at someone or something to show one's displeasure with someone or something by snorting. □ The customer snorted at the waiter for his surliness. □ The customer snorted at the prices and walked out.

snotnose(d) (kid) Inf. a young child; a relatively young person. (Derogatory. Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ Some little snotnose swiped my wallet. □ A little snotnosed kid came in and asked for money.

snow bunny 1. someone learning to ski. □ This little slope is for snow bunnies. □ Most of the snow bunnies come here to socialize. 2. a young, attractive female at a skiing lodge. □ Some cute little snow bunny came over and sat beside me.

□ This place is swarming with snow bunnies who have never even seen a ski.

a snow job a systematic deception; a deceptive story that tries to hide the truth. □ You can generally tell when a student is trying to do a snow job. □ This snow job you call an explanation just won't do.

snow someone or something in^t [for heavy snowfall] to block someone or something in a place. □ The sudden storm snowed us in. □ The storm snowed in most of the people in town.

snow someone or something under with something and snow someone or something under^t to burden someone or something with something. (Usually too much work.) □ The busy season snowed us all under with too much work. □ The heavy workload snowed under the office staff.

snowball into something Fig. [for something] to become larger or more serious by growing like a snowball being rolled. □ This whole problem is snowballing into a crisis very rapidly. □ The argument soon snowballed into a full-blown riot.

snowed in trapped (somewhere) because of too much snow. □ The snow was so deep that we were snowed in for three days. □ Being snowed in is no problem if you have enough food.

snowed under overworked; exceptionally busy. □ Look, I'm really snowed under at the moment. Can this wait? □ He really has been snowed under with work.

snuff someone out^t Sl. to kill someone. □ Max really wanted to snuff the eyewitness out, once and for all. □ Lefty wanted to snuff out his partner.

snuff something out^t to extinguish something, such as a flame. □ She snuffed all the candles out and went to bed. □ Karen snuffed out the flames one by one.

snug as a bug in a rug Cliché wrapped up tight, warm, and comfortable. (Playful; often used when addressing a child. *Also: as ~.) □ The bedroom in Aunt Jane's house was cold, but after she wrapped me up in four or five quilts and put a stocking cap on my head, I was snug as a bug in a rug and ready to go to sleep. □ Alan: Are you warm enough? Jane: Yes, I'm as snug as a bug in a rug.

snug down (some place) to become comfortable and warm in a place. □ The cat snuggled down at the foot of the bed. □ Finally the children snuggled down and we could go to sleep.

snuggle down (into something) to nestle into something, such as a warm bed. □ Toby snuggled down into his nice warm bed. □ He got into bed and snuggled down.

snuggle down (with someone) to nestle [into something] with someone else. □ Billy snuggled down with his sister in the big feather bed. □ They snuggled down and went to sleep.

snuggle down (with something) to nestle [into something] with something, such as a blanket, doll, book, etc. □ The baby snuggled down with her blanket and was asleep in no time. □ Sally grabbed onto her favorite doll and snuggled down for the night.

snuggle (up) against someone or something to press or cuddle against someone or something, as if to keep warm. □ Tiffany snuggled up against Tad and asked him to give her some chewing gum. □ He snuggled against the warm wall on the other side of the fireplace.

snuggle up (to someone or something) to cuddle up close to someone or something. □ Kelly snuggled up to Jeff. □ She snuggled up and said she wanted him to go pick up a pizza.

so bad one can taste it Fig. very much, indeed. (*Typically: need ~; want ~; have to do something ~.) □ I want that car so bad I can taste it. □ He had to get to Philadelphia so bad he could taste it.

So be it. This is the way it will be. □ If you insist on running off and marrying her, so be it. Only don't say I didn't warn you! □ Mary has decided that this is what she wants. So be it.

so clean you could eat off the floor [of a room or a house] very clean. □ Her kitchen is so clean you could eat off the floor! □ It's so clean here you could eat off the floor. I prefer a little mess, myself.

so cold you could hang meat Fig. very cold; as cold as a meat storage locker. □ Lord it was cold there! So cold you could hang meat. □ A: How cold was it? B: So cold you could hang meat.

So do I. I do too. □ Mary: I want some more cake. Sally: So do I. □ Bob: I have to go home now. Tom: So do I. Bob: Bye.

so far as anyone knows Go to as far as anyone knows.

so far as possible Go to as far as possible.

so far as someone is concerned Go to as far as someone is concerned.

so far as something is concerned Go to as far as something is concerned.

So far, so good. All is going well so far. □ We are half finished with our project. So far, so good. □ The operation is proceeding quite nicely—so far, so good.

So gross! Sl. How disgusting! □ He put chocolate syrup on his pie! So gross! □ He's barfing! So gross!

So help me(, God)! I so pledge and vow in God's name. □ I will do it. I really will, so help me, God!

So it goes. Inf. That is the kind of thing that happens; That is life. □ Too bad about John and his problems. So it goes. □ I just lost a twenty-dollar bill, and I can't find it anywhere. So it goes.

So long. Good-bye. □ So long, see ya later. □ It's been good talking to you. So long.

so long as Go to as long as.

so mad I could scream very mad. □ I am just so mad I could scream! Why is he such a jerk? □ She makes me so mad I could scream.

So many countries, so many customs. Prov. People in different countries have different ways of behaving. □ In the last place I visited, it was considered rude to put your hands on the table at dinner, but here, it's rude to keep them under the table. So many countries, so many customs.

so much for someone or something that is the last of someone or something; there is no need to consider someone or something anymore. □ It just started raining. So much for our picnic this afternoon. □ So much for John. He just called in sick and can't come to work today.

So much for that. That is the end of that.; We will not be dealing with that anymore. □ John tossed the stub of a pencil into the trash. "So much for that," he muttered, fishing through his drawer for another. □ Mother: Here, try some carrots. Child (brushing the spoon aside): No! No! Mother: Well, so much for that.

so much the better even better; all to the better. □ Please come to the picnic. If you can bring a salad, so much the better. □ The flowers look lovely on the shelf. It would be so much the better if you put them on the table.

so quiet you could hear a pin drop Go to so still you could hear a pin drop.

So's your old man! Inf. The same to you!; Drop dead! (Old. A catch phrase indicating basic disagreement or hostility.) □ Bill: You're acting like an idiot! Tom: So's your old man! □ I don't know what you said, but so's your old man!

so soon early; before the regular time; ahead of schedule. □ I got there early because my bus arrived so soon. □ Because the meeting ended so soon, I had some extra time.

so still you could hear a pin drop and so quiet you could hear a pin drop Fig. very quiet. (Also with can.) □ When I came into the room, it was so still you could hear a pin drop. Then everyone shouted, "Happy birthday!" □ Please be quiet. Be so quiet you can hear a pin drop.

So, sue me. If you are so angry, why don't go ahead and sue me. (A rude way of brushing off an angry person.) □ A: You ran into my car! You didn't even look where you were going! B: So, sue me.

so to speak as one might say; said a certain way, even though the words are not exactly accurate. □ John helps me with my taxes. He's my accountant, so to speak. □ I just love my little poodle. She's my baby, so to speak.

So (what)? Inf. Why does that matter? (Can be considered rude.) □ Bob: Your attitude always seems to lack sincerity. Mary: So what? □ John: Your car sure is dusty. Sue: So?

(So) what else is new? Inf. This isn't new. It has happened before; Not this again. □ Mary: Taxes are going up again. Bob: So what else is new? □ John: Gee, my pants are getting tight. Maybe I'm putting on a little weight. Sally: What else is new?

soak in(to something) [for moisture] to penetrate something. □ The rain soaked into the parched ground as fast as it fell. □ I'm glad it soaked in. I was afraid it would run off.

soak one's face Sl. to drink heavily. □ They're down at the tavern soaking their faces. □ Well, I guess I'll go soak my face in a few beers.

soak someone or something with something to get someone or something thoroughly wet with some liquid. □ The rain soaked us all with icy cold drops of water. □ The storm soaked the land with much-needed moisture.

soak someone to the skin [for water, rain, or other liquid] to work its way through someone's clothing to the skin. □ The storm soaked us all to the skin. □ She soaked herself to the skin in the storm.

soak something in something to leave something immersed in a liquid, intending for it to be absorbed. □ Soak your feet in Epsom salts to make them feel better. □ I had to soak my elbow in ice water to take down the swelling.

soak something off (of) something and soak something off† to remove something, such as a label or surface soil, from something by soaking in a liquid. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ She soaked the labels off the bottles and jars. □ Please soak off the label.

soak something out of something and soak something out† to remove something, such as a stain, from something by soaking in a liquid. □ Dan soaked the stain out of his shirt and then washed it. □ Dan soaked out the stain.

soak something up† 1. Lit. to gather up moisture or a liquid, using an absorbent cloth, paper, etc. □ Alice soaked the spill up with a sponge. □ She soaked up the spilled milk.
2. Lit. [for cloth, paper, or other absorbent material] to absorb moisture or a liquid. □ Please get some paper towels to soak the spill up. □ The sponge soaked up the orange juice. 3. Fig. to learn or absorb some information; to learn much information. □ I can't soak information up as fast as I used to be able to. □ The tourists will soak up anything you tell them.

soak through something [for liquid] to work its way through something, such as cloth or paper. □ Please wipe up that mess before it soaks through the tablecloth. □ It's too late. The grape juice has soaked through the carpet into the mat.

soaked to the skin wet clear through one's clothing to the skin. □ I was caught in the rain and got soaked to the skin. □ Oh, come in and dry off! You must be soaked to the skin.

so-and-so a despised person. (This expression is used in place of other very insulting terms. Often modified, as in the examples.) □ You dirty so-and-so! I can't stand you! □ Don't you call me a so-and-so, you creep!

soap someone or something down† to cover someone or something thoroughly with soap or suds. □ Mother soaped Timmy down and rinsed him off in warm water. □ She soaped down the floor.

sob one's heart out Go to cry one's heart out.

sob oneself to sleep to cry until one falls asleep. □ He sobbed himself to sleep for days after his grandpa died. □ The child sobbed himself to sleep night after night.

sob something out† to speak something out while sobbing. □ Wally sobbed his story out while the police made notes. □ He sobbed out his sad tale.

sob something to someone to cry and tell one's troubles to someone. □ He is always sobbing his sad tale to anyone who will listen. □ Timmy sobbed his story to the teacher.

sob story Fig. a sad story that is likely to draw tears. □ I've heard nothing but sob stories today. Isn't anybody happy? □ She had quite a sob story, and I listened to the whole thing.

sober as a judge 1. Cliché very formal, somber, or stuffy. (*Also: as ~.) □ You certainly look gloomy, Bill. You're sober as a judge. □ Tom's as sober as a judge. I think he's angry. 2. Cliché not drunk; alert and completely sober. (*Also: as ~.) □ John's drunk? No, he's as sober as a judge. □ You should be sober as a judge when you drive a car.

sober someone up† 1. Lit. to take actions that will cause a drunken person to become sober. □ Some coffee ought to sober him up. □ He tried to sober himself up because he had to drive home. □ They tried to sober up the guys who had been out all night. 2. Fig. to cause someone to face reality.

□ The harsh reality of what had happened sobered him up immediately. □ The arrival of the police sobered up all the revelers.

sober up to recover from alcohol or drug intoxication. □ Barlowe had one hour to sober up and get to the station. □ It took him a while to sober up.

sock it to someone 1. to punch someone; to punch one's fist at someone. □ Max really socked it to Lefty! □ Lefty socked it to Roger and knocked him down. 2. to tell bad news to someone in a straightforward manner. □ I can take it. Sock it to me! □ I don't care how bad it seems. Sock it to me!

sock someone or something in† [for fog] to cause someone or something to remain in place. □ The heavy fog socked us in for six hours. □ The fog socked in the airport for an hour.

sock something away† to place something, such as money, into reserve; to store something in a secure place. □ I try to sock a little money away each month for my vacation. □ I will sock away some money.

socked in fogged in. □ The airport was completely socked in. □ We couldn't take off because we were socked in.

A soft answer turneth away wrath. Prov. If you speak softly and meekly to someone who is angry with you, that person will calm down. (Biblical.) □ It won't do any good for you to yell at John because he yelled at you. Remember that a soft answer turneth away wrath.

soft as a baby's backside Go to next.

soft as a baby's bottom and soft as a baby's backside; *soft as down; *soft as silk; *soft as velvet Cliché very soft and smooth to the touch. (*Also: as ~.) □ This cloth is as soft as a baby's bottom. □ The kitten's fur was as soft as down. □ Your touch is soft as silk. □ This lotion will make your skin soft as velvet.

soft as down Go to previous.

soft as silk Go to soft as a baby's bottom.

soft as velvet Go to soft as a baby's bottom.

soft in the head Fig. stupid; witless. □ George is just soft in the head. He'll never get away with his little plan. □ You're soft in the head if you think I'll go along with that.

soft money and easy money money obtained without much effort. □ Don't become dependent on soft money. □ In college he got spoiled by soft money—a check from his parents every week.

soft on someone 1. Fig. romantically attracted to someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Fred is soft on Martha, I've heard. □ He looked like he was getting a little soft on Sally. 2. Fig. not severe enough on someone; too easy on someone or a class of people. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; grow ~.) □ The judge was viewed as being too soft on drug pushers. □ The cops are soft on speeders in this town.

soft sell a polite attempt to sell something; a very gentle sales pitch. □ Some people won't bother listening to a soft sell. You gotta let them know you believe in what you are selling. □ I tried the soft sell, but that didn't work.

soft soap 1. flattering talk; sweet talk. □ I don't mind a little soft soap. It won't affect what I decide, though. □ Don't waste my time with soft soap. I know you don't mean it. 2. (Usually soft-soap.) to attempt to convince someone soft touch 1. a gentle way of handling someone or something. □ Bess has a soft touch and can bring both sides together. □ Kelly lacks the kind of soft touch needed for this kind of negotiation. 2. a gullible person; a likely victim of a scheme. □ John is a soft touch. You can always ask him for a few bucks. □ Here comes the perfect soft touch—a nerd with a gleam in his eye.

(of something) by gentle persuasion. □ We couldn't soft-soap her into it. □ Don't try to soft-soap her. She's an old battle-ax.

soften one's stance (on someone or something) Fig. to reduce the severity of one's position regarding someone or something. □ If he would soften his stance on the matter, I could easily become more cooperative.

soften someone up[†] Fig. to prepare to persuade someone of something. □ I will talk to Fred and soften him up for your request. □ I will soften up your father before you ask him about it.

soften something up[†] to take actions that will make something softer. □ Soften the butter up before you add it to the batter. □ Please soften up the ice cream before you try to serve it.

soften up 1. Lit. [for something] to become softer. □ The butter softened up in the heat of the day. □ The candles will probably soften up and bend over in this hot weather. 2. Fig. [for someone] to adopt a more gentle manner. □ After a while, she softened up and was more friendly. □ It was weeks before Ted softened up and treated us more kindly.

soft-pedal something to play something down; to de-emphasize something. (Alludes to the soft pedal on the piano, which reduces the volume.) □ Try to soft-pedal the problems we have with the cooling system. □ I won't soft-pedal anything. Everyone must know the truth.

soil one's diaper(s) [for a baby] to excrete waste into its diaper. □ The baby soiled his diapers. □ I detect that someone has soiled his diaper.

soil one's hands Go to get one's hands dirty.

sold on someone or something convinced of the value of someone or something. □ I'm not yet sold on your idea. □ The crowd was sold on Gary. Nothing he had done or could do would cool their enthusiasm.

sold out [of a product] completely sold with no more items remaining; [of a store] having no more of a particular product. □ The tickets were sold out so we couldn't go to the concert. □ I wanted new shoes like yours, but they were sold out.

solicit for someone or something to seek money or other contributions for someone or something, such as a charitable cause. □ I am soliciting for crippled children. Would you care to contribute? □ Are you soliciting for a local cause?

solicit someone for something to attempt to persuade someone to give something, such as money, for a specific purpose. □ The school band solicited the owners of the business for a contribution. □ Fred solicited everyone in his department for at least a dollar.

solid as a rock Cliché very solid; dependable. (*Also: as ~.) □ Jean has been lifting weights every day, and her arm muscles are solid as a rock. □ This company has always built power tools that are as solid as a rock.

a (solid) grasp of something and a (sound) grasp of something; a (good) grasp of something Fig. a firm understanding of something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Try to get a grasp of the basic rules. □ You don't have a good grasp of the principles yet. □ John was unable to get a solid grasp of the methods used in his work, and we had to let him go.

some creature's time has come Go to someone's time has come.

some elbow room Fig. room to move about in; extra space to move about in. (*Typically: allow ~; get ~; have ~; give someone ~; need ~.) □ This table is too crowded. We all need some elbow room.

some loose ends Fig. some things that are not yet finished; some problems not yet solved. (*Typically: are ~; have ~; leave ~; tie ~ up[†]; take care of ~.) □ I have to stay in town this weekend and tie up some loose ends.

(some) new blood and fresh blood Fig. new personnel; new members brought into a group to revive it. □ This company needs some new blood on its board to bring in new ideas. □ We're trying to get some new blood in the club. Our membership is falling.

Some people (just) don't know when to quit. and Some people (just) don't know when to give up; Some people (just) don't know when to stop. 1. You, or someone being talked about, should stop doing something, such as talking, arguing, scolding, etc. (Often directed toward the person being addressed.) □ Bill: I hate to say it again, but that lipstick is all wrong for you. It brings out the wrong color in your eyes, and it makes your mouth larger than it really is. Jane: Oh, stop, stop! That's enough! Some people just don't know when to quit. □ John: Those bushes out in the backyard need trimming. Sally: You keep criticizing! Is there no end to it? Some people don't know when to stop! 2. Some people do not know when to slow down and stop working so hard. □ Jane: He just kept on gambling. Finally, he had no money left. Sally: Some people don't know when to quit.

some pumpkins and some punkins someone or something great or special. (Old.) □ That chick is some punkins! □ Isn't this little gadget really some pumpkins?

some shut-eye some sleep. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; use ~; need ~.) □ I need to get home and get some shut-eye before I do anything else. □ We all could use some shut-eye.

Someone had better keep still about it. Go to Better keep still about it.

someone of note a person who is famous. □ We invited a speaker of note to lecture at the next meeting. □ The baseball player of note was inducted into the Hall of Fame.

the someone or something from hell Fig. someone or something that is terrible or unbearable. □ I just attended the meeting from hell! It was quite a strain on all of us. □ We live next to the neighbors from hell. They are constantly fighting and their vicious dog terrorizes our kids.

Someone or something is supposed to. Go to Supposed to.

someone's ace in the hole Go to ace in the hole.

someone's bread and butter Fig. someone's basic income; someone's livelihood—the source of one's food. □ I can't miss another day of work. That's my bread and butter. □ I worked as a bartender for a year, and it was the tips that were my bread and butter.

S

someone's claim to fame someone's reason for being well-known or famous. □ Her claim to fame is that she can recite the entire works of Shakespeare.

someone's dirty laundry Fig. someone's unpleasant secrets. □ I don't want to hear about her dirty laundry. Why do you feel it necessary to gossip about things like this?

someone's fate is sealed Fig. the destiny of someone has been determined. □ When the driver finally saw that the bride was out, he knew his fate was sealed.

someone's hands are tied Fig. someone is not able to help or intervene. (See also have one's hands tied.) □ I'm sorry. There's nothing I can do. My hands are tied.

someone's level best one's very best effort. □ I will do my level best to find your husband. □ Don't go to a whole lot of trouble. Your level best is good enough.

(someone's) not supposed to. Go to (It's) not supposed to.

someone's point is well taken someone's idea or opinion is accepted and appreciated. □ Your point is well taken and I will see that it is not forgotten.

someone's time has come and some creature's time has come Euph. someone or some creature is about to die. □ The poor old dog's time has come. □ My time has come. I'm ready to go.

someone's train of thought Fig. someone's pattern of thinking or sequence of ideas; what one was just thinking about. (See also lose one's train of thought.) □ My train of thought is probably not as clear as it should be. □ I cannot seem to follow your train of thought on this matter. Will you explain it a little more carefully, please?

someone's true colors Fig. a person's true attitude, opinions, and biases. □ When he lost his temper at his wife, I began to see his true colors.

(someone's) ups and downs a person's good fortune and bad fortune. □ I've had my ups and downs, but in general life has been good to me. □ All people have their ups and downs.

S

someone's word is good someone can be believed and trusted. □ You can believe her. Her word is good.

someone's word of honor someone's trustworthy pledge or promise. □ He gave me his word of honor that he would bring the car back by noon today.

Someone will be with you in a minute. Go to With you in a minute.

something about someone or something something alluring or curious about someone or something. □ There is something about Jane. I just can't figure her out. □ I love Mexican food. There's just something about it.

something else (again) something entirely different. □ Borrowing is one thing, but stealing is something else. □ Skindiving is easy and fun, but scuba diving is something else again.

Something is better than nothing. Prov. It is better to get only some of what you want than to get nothing at all. (See also (It's) better than nothing.) □ Fred: I only got something is killing someone Fig. something is causing someone pain. □ Wow, my feet are killing me!

$50 for all those books I sold. Jane: Something is better than nothing. □ Jill: Is your camera very good? Jane: It's better than nothing.

Something is rotten in (the state of) Denmark. Prov. Something suspicious is going on. (From Shakespeare's play Hamlet.) □ Jim: Look, there's a light on in the office, even though it's way past the time everyone should have left. John: Something is rotten in the state of Denmark. □ Jane: I wonder why Fred is coming in so late every morning. Jane: Something is rotten in Denmark.

something never fails a particular thing always works. □ My old folk remedy for hiccups never fails.

something of sorts an inferior example of a kind of something. □ Well, it's a solution of sorts, I suppose. □ It was a novel of sorts, but not what I'd ever have chosen.

something of the sort something of the kind just mentioned. □ The tree isn't exactly a spruce tree, just something of the sort. □ Jane has a cold or something of the sort.

something or other something unspecified; one thing or another. □ I can't remember what Ann said—something or other. □ A messenger came by and dropped off something or other at the front desk.

Something's got to give. Emotions or tempers are strained, and there is going to be an outburst. □ Alice: There are serious problems with Mary and Tom. They fight and fight. Sue: Yes, something's got to give. It can't go on like this. □ Bill: Things are getting difficult at the office. Something's got to give. Mary: Just stay clear of all the bickering.

something's up something is going to happen; something is going on. □ Everybody looks very nervous. I think something's up. □ From the looks of all the activity around here, I think something's up.

something to shout about Fig. something that causes one to show pride or enthusiasm about someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; have ~.) □ Getting into med school is really something to shout about. □ She's something to shout about.

something to that effect something like that just mentioned. □ She said she wouldn't be available until after three, or something to that effect. □ I was told to keep out of the house—or something to that effect.

(somewhere) in the neighborhood of something Fig. approximately a particular amount or measurement. □ I take somewhere in the neighborhood of ten pills a day for my various ailments. □ My rent is in the neighborhood of $700 per month.

somewhere to hang (up) one's hat Fig. a place to live; a place to call one's home. □ What I need is somewhere to hang up my hat. I just can't stand all this traveling. □ A home is a lot more than a place to hang your hat.

son of a bachelor Go to son of a gun.

son of a bitch 1. Inf. a very horrible person. (Use with caution. Usually intended as a strong insult. Never used casually.) □ Bill called Bob a son of a bitch, and Bob punched Bill in the face. □ This guy's a son of a bitch. He treats everybody rotten. 2. Inf. a useless thing. □ This car is a son of a bitch. It won't ever start when it's cold. □ This bumpy old road needs paving. It's a real son of a bitch.

3. Inf. a difficult task. □ This job is a son of a bitch. □ I can't do this kind of thing. It's too hard—a real son of a bitch.

son of a gun and son of a bachelor a worthless person. (A substitute for son of a bitch.) □ That tightfisted son of a gun won't buy me a beer. □ He can be a real son of a bachelor when he's in a bad mood.

son of a sea biscuit Euph. a person, usually a male. (Sometimes a substitute for son of a bitch.) □ Why, good to see you, you old son of a sea biscuit. □ You son of a sea biscuit! You make me so mad I could slug you.

soon as possible at the earliest time. (*Also: as ~.) □ I'm leaving now. I'll be there as soon as possible. □ Please pay me soon as possible.

Soon ripe, soon rotten. Go to Early ripe, early rotten.

sooner or later eventually; in the short term or in the long term. □ He'll have to pay the bill sooner or later. □ She'll get what she deserves sooner or later.

Sooner than you think, an expression stating that something will happen sooner than a time expected or just mentioned. □ Sally: I'm going to have to stop pretty soon for a rest. Mary: Sooner than you think, I'd say. I think one of our tires is low. □ Tom: The stock market is bound to run out of steam pretty soon. Bob: Sooner than you think from the look of today's news.

The sooner the better. The sooner something [referred to] gets done, the better things will be. □ Bob: When do you need this? Mary: The sooner the better. □ Bob: Please get the oil changed in the station wagon. The sooner the better. Alice: I'll do it today.

sop something up¹ to mop or soak up a liquid. □ Use this rag to sop the spilled milk up. □ The rag will sop up the mess a little at a time.

sopping (wet) intoxicated. □ He's soused—you know, sopping wet.

sore (at someone) Fig. angry at someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; make someone ~.) □ When Mary hears what you said about her, she'll get sore for sure. □ Please don't get sore at me.

sorrow over someone or something to grieve or feel sad about someone or something. □ There is no need to sorrow over Tom. He will come back. □ He is sorrowing over the business he has lost because of the weather.

sorry about that and sorry 'bout that sorry; whoops. (A gross understatement, said more as a self-deprecating joke than as an apology.) □ You spill hot cocoa on my coat, and all you can say is "Sorry 'bout that?" □ When the passenger stepped on my toe, she said, "Sorry about that."

a sorry sight and a sad sight a sight that one regrets seeing; someone or something that is unpleasant to look at. □ Well, aren't you a sorry sight! Go get cleaned up and put on some fresh clothes.

Sorry (that) I asked. Now that I have heard the answer, I regret asking the question. □ Alice: Can we get a new car soon? The old one is a wreck. John: Are you kidding? There's no way that we could ever afford a new car! Alice: Sorry I asked. □ After he heard the long list of all the reasons he wouldn't be allowed to go to the concert, Fred just shrugged and said, "Sorry that I asked."

Sort of. and Kind of. Yes, but only to a small degree. □ Bob: Do you like what you're doing in school? Alice: Kind of. □ Henry: What do you think about all these new laws? Do they worry you? John: Sort of.

sort of something and kind of something almost something; somewhat; somehow. □ Isn't it sort of cold out? □ That was kind of a stupid thing to do, wasn't it?

sort oneself out to pull oneself together; to figure out what to do about one's problems. (Fig. on sort something out ②.) □ I need a few days to sort myself out. □ I need some time to sort myself out.

sort something out¹ 1. Lit. to sort something; to arrange according to class or category. □ Let's sort these cards out. □ Would you please sort out your socks? 2. Fig. to study a problem and figure it out. □ I can't sort this out without some more time. □ Let's sort out this mess and settle it once and for all.

(soul) brother a black person's male, black friend. □ Another brother took a fall last night. □ Terry's a soul brother, and I'll do anything for him.

(soul) sister a black person's female, black friend. □ Many of the top singing groups of the '60s featured soul sisters.

sound as a barrel Go to all oak and iron bound.

sound as a bell in perfect condition or health; undamaged. (*Also: as ~.) □ The doctor says that the old man's heart's as sound as a bell. □ I thought the vase was broken when it fell, but it was sound as a bell.

sound as a dollar 1. Cliché very secure and dependable. (*Also: as ~.) □ This investment is as sound as a dollar. □ I wouldn't put my money in a bank that isn't sound as a dollar. 2. Cliché sturdy and well-constructed. (*Also: as ~.) □ This house is as sound as a dollar. □ The garage is still sound as a dollar. Why tear it down?

sound as if and sound like to seem, from what has been said, as if something were so. (Sound like is colloquial.) □ It sounds as if you had a good vacation. □ You sound like you are angry.

sound asleep completely asleep; in a deep sleep. □ I was sound asleep when the fire broke out.

a (sound) grasp of something Go to a (solid) grasp of something.

sound like Go to sound as if.

sound like a broken record to say the same thing over and over again. (Fig. on a scratch in a phonograph record causing the needle [or stylus] to stay in the same groove and play it over and over.) □ He's always complaining about the way she treats him. He sounds like a broken record! □ I hate to sound like a broken record, but we just don't have enough people on the payroll to work efficiently.

sound off to speak something loudly; to call out one's name or one's place in a numerical sequence. □ All right, sound off, you guys! □ Each one sounded off.

sound off (about something) 1. to complain about something; to gripe about something. □ You are always sounding off about something that gripes your soul. □ Just sound off if you've got a beef. 2. to speak out of turn about something. □ Who asked you to sound off about this? □ Don't just sound off without raising your hand.

sound someone out^t to try to find out what someone thinks (about something). □ I don't know what Jane thinks about your suggestion, but I'll sound her out. □ Please sound out everyone in your department.

sound something out^t to pronounce the letters or syllables of a word as a means of figuring out what the word is. (Usually said to a child.) □ This word is easy, Bobby. Try to sound it out.

Soup's on! Rur. The meal is ready to eat. (Said for any food, not just soup.) □ Tom: Soup's on! Bill: The camp chef has dished up another disaster. □ John: Soup's on! Come and get it! Mary: Well, I guess it's time to eat again.

soup something up^t to increase the power of something. □ He souped his car up so it will do nearly 120 miles per hour. □ If only I could soup up this computer to run just a little faster.

souped up made more powerful. □ That souped-up car of John's sure makes a lot of noise. □ Why do all cars driven by males under the age of twenty have to be souped up?

sour as vinegar 1. [of something] very sour. (*Also: as ~.) □ This milk is as sour as vinegar. □ The juice they gave us is sour as vinegar. 2. [of someone] ill-natured and disagreeable. (Fig. on ①. *Also: as ~.) □ The old man greeted us ill-naturedly, his face as sour as vinegar. □ Jill: Is Mary in a bad mood today? Jane: Yes, sour as vinegar.

sour grapes Fig. something that one cannot have and so disparages as if it were never desirable. □ Of course you want to buy this expensive jacket. Criticizing it is just sour grapes, but you still really want it.

sow one's wild oats to do wild and foolish things in one's youth. (Often assumed to have some sort of sexual meaning.) □ Jack was out sowing his wild oats last night, and he's in jail this morning. □ Mrs. Smith told Mr. Smith that he was too old to be sowing his wild oats.

Sow the wind and reap the whirlwind Prov. to start some kind of trouble that grows much larger than you planned. (Biblical.) □ Our enemy has sown the wind by provoking this war, and they will reap the whirlwind when we vanquish them.

space out to become giddy or disoriented. □ Judy spaced out during the meeting and I didn't understand a word she said. □ I have a tendency to space out at the end of a hard day.

space someone out^t to cause someone to become giddy. □ The circus clowns just spaced me out. □ The hilarious spectacle spaced out the entire audience.

spaced (out) silly; giddy. □ I have such spaced-out parents! □ He's so spaced!

spade something up^t to turn over the soil in a garden plot with a spade. □ Please go out and spade the garden up so I can plant the potatoes and onions. □ I will spade up the garden when I have time.

spar with someone 1. Lit. to box with someone for practice. □ The champ needs someone to spar with every day. □ Ted was sparring with his brother when the phone rang and saved him from further exertion. 2. Fig. to argue or quibble with someone. □ I think you really enjoy sparring with people just to irritate them. □ Stop sparring with me! I am not here to argue.

spare someone something to exempt someone from having to listen to or experience something. □ I'll spare you the details and get to the point. □ Please, spare me the story and tell me what you want.

Spare the rod and spoil the child. Prov. You should punish a child when he or she misbehaves, because if you do not, the child will grow up expecting everyone to indulge him or her. □ Jane: How can you allow your little boy to be so rude? Ellen: It distresses me to punish him. Jane: I can understand that, but spare the rod and spoil the child.

spare tire 1. a thickness in the waist; a roll of fat around one's waist. □ I've got to get rid of this spare tire. □ The spare tire started when I was twenty-six. 2. an unneeded person; an unproductive person. □ Gary is a spare tire. Send him home. □ You spare tires over there! Get to work.

spark something off^t 1. Lit. to ignite something flammable or explosive. □ The lightning sparked a fire off. □ The match sparked off a raging inferno. 2. Fig. to cause or start some violent or energetic activity. □ We were afraid there would be a riot and the speaker nearly sparked it off. □ The speaker sparked off quite a discussion.

sparkle with something to glitter or twinkle because of something. □ The crystal goblets sparkled with the light from the flickering candles. □ Her eyes sparkled with the reflection of the candles.

spatter on someone or something [for a liquid or something moist] to splash onto someone or something. □ When Kelly painted the hallway, a lot of paint spattered on the floor. □ The hot fat spattered on me.

spatter someone or something up^t to get drops of a liquid or bits of something moist onto someone or something. □ The painter spattered his partner up when he dropped the paint bucket accidentally. □ The falling paint bucket spattered up the wall.

spatter someone or something with something to splash someone or something with drops of a liquid or bits of something moist. □ Frank spattered us with grapefruit juice as he was eating a half of grapefruit. □ He even spattered the wall with juice.

spatter something around^t to scatter bits or drops of a liquid or something moist here and there. □ Ted spattered paint around everywhere when he redecorated his kitchen. □ Don't spatter around the paint.

spatter something on(to) someone or something to scatter or splash bits or drops of a liquid or something moist onto someone or something. □ Who spattered barbecue sauce onto the wall? □ The paint can fell and spattered paint on everyone.

spaz around Sl. to waste time; to mess around. □ You kids are always spazzing around. Why don't you do something useful? □ We're just spazzing around. Leave us alone.

spaz down Sl. to relax. □ Spaz down, man! Chill out! □ We tried to get the crowd to spaz down, but they were very excited.

spaz out 1. Sl. to overreact to something; to become overly excited about something. □ I knew you would spaz out! But my grades are not that bad! □ Come on, don't spaz out! 2. Sl. an emotional display. (Usually spaz-out.) □ speak about someone or something to mention or discuss someone or something. □ And now I will speak about Abraham Lincoln. □ Let us speak about what happened yesterday.

There's no need for a spaz-out! □ She threw a hell of a spaz-out.

speak against someone or something 1. to criticize someone or something. □ Many people are speaking against the mayor. She will not be reelected. □ Please don't speak against cats in my presence. 2. to testify or argue against someone or something. □ Judy spoke against the candidate at length. □ The next speaker spoke against nuclear waste.

speak as one Go to as one.

speak at great length Go to at great length.

speak down to someone to address someone in simpler terms than necessary; to speak condescendingly to someone. □ There is no need to speak down to me. I can understand anything you are likely to say. □ Sorry. Sometimes I tend to speak down to people over the telephone.

speak for itself and speak for themselves [for something] not to need explaining; to have an obvious meaning. □ The facts speak for themselves. Tom is guilty. □ Your results speak for themselves. You need to work harder.

speak for oneself to speak on one's own behalf. □ I can speak for myself. I don't need you to speak for me. □ Speak for yourself. What you say does not represent my thinking.

speak for someone or something 1. to testify or argue for someone or something. □ I would be happy to speak for you in court. Just tell me when. □ My attorney will speak for our position. 2. to lay claim to someone or something. □ Fred is spoken for. □ I want to speak for the red one.

speak for themselves Go to speak for itself.

speak from something to draw authority or credibility in one's speaking from something such as knowledge or experience. □ Believe me, I speak from experience. □ Listen to her. She speaks from a lot of knowledge and training.

speak highly of someone or something 1. [for someone] to say good things about someone or something. □ She always speaks highly of you. □ Everyone spoke highly of this movie, but it is not good. 2. [for a fact] to reflect well on someone or something. □ The success of your project speaks highly of you. □ All of this good news speaks highly of your ability to influence people.

speak ill of someone to say something bad about someone. □ I refuse to speak ill of any of my friends. □ Max speaks ill of no one and refuses to repeat gossip.

speak in earnest Go to in earnest.

speak of someone or something 1. to mention or discuss someone or something. □ Were we speaking of Judy? I don't recall. □ We were speaking of the new law. 2. [for a type of behavior or action] to reflect a particular quality. □ Jeff's behavior spoke of a good upbringing. □ Her good singing voice speaks of years of training.

Speak of the devil (and in he walks). and Talk of the devil (and he is sure to appear). Prov. Talk about a certain person, and that person appears. (Used when someone appears whom you have just been talking about.) □ Alan: I haven't seen Bob for weeks. Jane: Look, here comes Bob right now. Alan: Well, talk of the devil. □

Hi, there. We were just talking about you. Speak of the devil and in he walks.

speak off-the-cuff Fig. to speak without preparing a speech; to speak extemporaneously; to render a spoken opinion or estimate. (As if one's notes had been written hastily on one's cuff.) □ She is capable of making sense and being convincing even when she speaks off-the-cuff. □ I find it very difficult to speak off-the-cuff.

speak one's mind Fig. to say frankly what one thinks (about something). □ Please let me speak my mind, and then you can do whatever you wish. □ You can always depend on John to speak his mind. He'll let you know what he really thinks.

speak one's piece Go to say one's piece.

speak out to speak loudly; to speak to be heard. (See also speak out (about someone or something).) □ Please speak out. We need to hear you. □ They won't hear you in the back row if you don't speak out.

speak out (about someone or something) to express oneself about someone or something; to tell what one knows about someone or something. (See also speak out.) □ I could keep silent no longer. I had to speak out about the alleged accident. □ I had to speak out!

speak out (against someone or something) to speak negatively and publicly about someone or something; to reveal something negative, in speech, about someone or something. □ I don't want to speak out against my friends, but I am afraid I have to. □ The citizens spoke out against corruption in government.

speak out of turn Fig. to say something unwise or imprudent; to say something at the wrong time. □ Excuse me if I'm speaking out of turn, but what you are proposing is quite wrong. □ Bob was quite honest, even if he was speaking out of turn.

speak out (on something) to say something frankly and directly; to speak one's mind. □ This law is wrong, and I intend to speak out on it until it is repealed. □ You must speak out. People need to know what you think.

speak someone's language Fig. to say something that one agrees with or understands. □ I gotcha. Now you're speaking my language. □ Mary speaks Fred's language. They get along fine.

speak the same language 1. Lit. [for two or more people] to communicate in a shared language. □ These two people don't speak the same language and need an interpreter. 2. Fig. [for people] to have similar ideas, tastes, etc. □ Jane and Jack get along very well. They really speak the same language about almost everything. □ Bob and his father didn't speak the same language when it comes to politics.

speak to someone to talk to someone. □ I am angry with him and I refuse to speak to him. □ Were you speaking to me?

speak to something [for something] to address, indicate, or signal something. □ This event speaks to the need for good communication. □ Your present state of employment speaks to your need for a better education.

speak up 1. Lit. to speak more loudly. □ They can't hear you in the back of the room. Please speak up. □ What? Speak up, please. I'm hard of hearing. 2. Fig. to speak out (on

Speak up (against someone or something) something). If you think that this is wrong, you must speak up and say so. I'm too shy to speak up.

speak up (against someone or something) to end one's silence and speak negatively and publicly about someone or something. She finally spoke up against her cruel boss. We all felt like we had to speak up and denounce this tyrant.

speak up for someone or something to speak in favor of someone or something. If anybody says bad things about me, I hope you speak up for me. I want to speak up for the rights of students.

speak (up)on something to talk about a particular topic. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) This evening, I will speak upon the subject of Plato's thoughts on the universe. What will you speak on today?

speak volumes Fig. [for something that is seen] to reveal a great deal of information. The unsightly yard and unpainted house speaks volumes about what kind of people live there.

speak with a forked tongue Fig. to tell lies; to try to deceive someone. Jean's mother sounds very charming, but she speaks with a forked tongue. People tend to believe Fred because he seems plausible, but we know he speaks with a forked tongue.

speak with someone (about someone or something) 1. to talk with someone about someone or something; to discuss someone or something with someone. I was speaking with Fred about Don, who is a mutual friend. I need to know something about Don. I will speak with his friend Fred. 2. to reprimand one about one's dealing with someone or something. He should not have insulted Kelly. I will speak with him about her. He did what? I will speak with him!

speak for oneself an expression indicating that one is expressing only one's own opinion. Speaking for myself, I am ready to cancel the contract. Sally is speaking for herself. She is not expressing our opinions.

speaking (quite) candidly an expression introducing a frank or forthright statement. "Speaking quite candidly, I find your behavior a bit offensive," stated Frank, obviously offended. Mary: Tell me what you really think about this skirt. Sally: Speaking candidly, I think you should get your money back.

(speaking) (quite) frankly and frankly speaking a transitional phrase announcing that the speaker is going to talk in a more familiar and totally forthright manner. Tom: Speaking quite frankly, I'm not certain she's the one for the job. Mary: I agree. Bob: We ought to be looking at housing in a lower price bracket. Bill: Quite frankly, I agree. "Frankly speaking," said John, "I think you're out of your mind!"

spear something out^t (of something) to bring something forth from something by sticking it with something sharp and pulling. Richard spears pickles right out of the jar with a fork. He speared out a pickle.

specialize in something to limit oneself to or be specially trained to practice one particular thing. I specialize in tropical medicine. What do you specialize in?

speculate about someone or something to make guesses about someone or something; to hypothesize about someone or something. I refuse to speculate about Sally. I don't presume to guess what she will do. We don't speculate about the future.

speculate in something to make risky business deals in the buying and selling of something. Jeff made a fortune speculating in cotton. I do not wish to speculate in anything. It is too risky.

speculate on something to make a hypothesis about something. I really don't want to speculate on what might happen next. Would you care to speculate on what might happen if you quit your job?

speed away (from someone or something) to move or drive away very fast from someone or something. The taxi sped away from the passenger who had just alighted. The car sped away from the accident. The motorcycle sped away.

speed someone or something up^t to cause someone or something to move faster. We tried to speed him up, but he is just a very slow person. We sped up the process, but it still took too long.

speed up to go faster. Please speed up. We are late.

speeds of some amount a variety of speeds (of movement) of a certain level. (*Typically: clock someone at ~; have ~; hit ~; reach ~.) The cops clocked him at speeds of up to one hundred miles per hour.

spell disaster Fig. to indicate or predict disaster. What a horrible plan! It would spell disaster for all of us!

spell someone (at something) to take a turn at doing something while the person who was doing it can take a rest. I will spell you at selling tickets while you go and grab a bite to eat.

spell someone down^t to win over someone in a spelling match. Frank spelled everyone else down and won the spelling bee. He spelled down almost everyone.

spell something for someone to spell a word or name for someone's benefit. I don't recognize that word. Would you please spell it for me? It is a difficult name. I will have to spell it for you.

spell something out^t 1. Lit. to spell something (with letters). I can't understand your name. Can you spell it out? Please spell out all the strange words so I can write them down correctly. 2. Fig. to give all the details of something. I want you to understand this completely, so I'm going to spell it out very carefully. The instruction book for my computer spells out everything very carefully.

spell trouble to signify future trouble; to mean trouble. This letter that came today spells trouble. The sky looks angry and dark. That spells trouble.

spend a king's ransom Go to a king's ransom.

spend money like it's going out of style and spend money like there's no tomorrow Fig. to spend money recklessly; to spend money as if it were worthless or will soon be worthless. Extravagant? She spends money like it's going out of style! I can't control it. I spend money like there is no tomorrow.

spend money like there's no tomorrow Go to previous.

spend something for something to pay out an amount of money for something. I spent nearly forty dollars for that vase! □ How much did you spend for this house—if I may ask?

spend something on someone or something to pay out an amount of money for the benefit of someone or something. □ How much did you spend on him for his birthday? □ I spent a lot on Mary's gift.

spend time in something to stay in something or some place for a period of time. □ I spent time in Barbados when I was younger. □ I am afraid that you will have to spend some time in the hospital until the infection is cleared up.

spending money cash, as opposed to money in the bank. □ I'm a little short of spending money at the present. Could I borrow ten dollars? □ I don't have any spending money either.

spew one's guts (out) 1. Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ Fred is spewing his guts out because of that lousy fish you served. □ He's spewing his guts because he has the flu. 2. Sl. to tell everything that one knows; to confess everything. (Underworld.) □ Lefty was sitting there in the police station spewing his guts out about the bank job. □ If he really is spewing his guts, the mob will cancel his Christmas.

spew something out^t to have something gush forth. □ The faucet spewed a little yellowish water out and stopped altogether. □ The faucet spewed out some yellowish water.

spew something up^t to gush something upward. □ The geyser spewed hot water and steam up every hour on the hour. □ The fountain spewed up a thin stream of cool, clear water.

spice something up^t 1. Lit. to make some food or drink more spicy. □ Judy spiced the cider up by adding cinnamon and nutmeg. □ She spiced up the chili too much. 2. Fig. to make something more interesting, lively, or sexy. □ I'm afraid that the nude scenes spiced the musical up too much. Some people walked out. □ Judy liked to spice her lectures up by telling jokes. □ She spiced up each lecture with a joke. □ They spiced up the play too much.

spiel something off^t to recite a list of things very rapidly; to recite something very rapidly. □ I used to be able to spiel the names of the presidents off. □ Liz spied off her gift list to the clerk.

spiff something up^t to polish and groom something very well; to make something clean and tidy. □ See if you can spiff this place up a little. □ I will spiff up the room a little.

spiffed out Sl. to be dressed in one's finest clothes and well-groomed. □ He got himself all spiffed out for the wedding reception. □ Man, are you ever spiffed out!

spiffed up dressed up, groomed, and polished up nicely; clean and tidy. □ See if you can get yourself a little spiffed up before we go out to dinner. We wouldn't want the Wilmington-Thorpes to think you only have one suit. □ The house doesn't have to be too spiffed up for the Franklins. They are used to clutter.

spill one's guts Sl. to tell all; to confess. □ I had to spill my guts about the broken window. I didn't want you to take the blame. □ Mary spilled her guts about the window. She confessed that she was trying to shield Bob.

spill (out) into something and spill (over) into something to be so great in number or volume as to expand into another area. □ The crowd spilled out into the street. □ The well-wishers spilled over into the neighbor's yard.

spill out (of something) to scatter, flow, or drop out of something. □ All the rice spilled out of the box onto the floor. □ The rice spilled out on the floor.

spill over 1. [for a container] to overflow. □ I hope your bucket of water doesn't spill over. □ The milk glass spilled over because it was filled too full. 2. [for the contents of a container] to overflow. □ The bucket is too full. I don't know why the water doesn't spill over. □ The milk spilled over because you overfilled the glass.

spill (over) into something Go to spill (out) into something.

spill over on(to) someone or something [for something] to scatter, flow, or drop (out of something) onto someone or something. □ The bowl of milk spilled over onto the children when they jarred the table. □ The bowl spilled over on the floor.

spill the beans and spill the works Fig. to give away a secret or a surprise. □ There is a surprise party for Heidi on Wednesday. Please don't spill the beans. □ Paul spilled the works about Heidi's party.

spill the works Go to previous.

spin a yarn Fig. to tell a tale. □ Grandpa spun an unbelievable yarn for us. □ My uncle is always spinning yarns about his childhood.

spin around 1. to turn around to face a different direction. □ Jill spun around to face her accuser. □ Todd spun around in his chair so he could see who was talking to him. 2. to rotate, possibly a number of times. □ The propellers spun around and soon the old plane began to taxi down the runway. □ The merry-go-round spun around at a moderate speed.

spin doctor someone who gives a twisted or deviously deceptive version of an event. (Usually in the context of manipulating the news for political reasons.) □ Things were going bad for the candidate, so he got himself a new spin doctor. □ A good spin doctor could have made the incident appear far less damaging.

spin off [for something] to part and fly away from something that is spinning; [for something] to detach or break loose from something. □ The blade of the lawn mower spun off, but fortunately no one was injured. □ The rusted-on nut spun off easily after I got it loosened.

spin one's wheels to waste time; to remain in a neutral position, neither advancing nor falling back. (Fig. on a car that is running but is not moving because its wheels are spinning in mud, etc.) □ I'm just spinning my wheels in this job. I need more training to get ahead. □ The whole project was just spinning its wheels until spring.

spin out [for a vehicle] to go out of control, spinning. □ You nearly spun out on that last turn! □ Cars were spinning out all over the highway when the ice storm hit.

spin something off^t 1. Lit. [for something rotating] to release a part that flies away. □ The propeller spun one of its blades off and then fell apart all together. □ It spun off one of its blades. 2. Fig. [for a business] to divest itself of one of its subparts. □ The large company spun one of its smaller divisions off. □ It spun off a subsidiary and used the cash to pay down its debt. 3. Fig. [for an enterprise] to produce useful or profitable side effects or products. □ We will be able to spin off a number of additional products. □ The development of this product will allow us to spin off dozens of smaller, innovative products for years to come.

spin something out^t to prolong something. □ Was there really any need to spin the whole process out so long? □ Why did they spin out the graduation ceremony for such a long time?

spin something out of something and spin something out^t to remove liquid from something by spinning. □ The washer spun the water out of the load of clothing. □ The washer spun out all the water in the clothes.

spiral down to descend in a spiral path. □ The ancient trail spiraled down the mountain peak. □ A path spiraled down and at the bottom was a small refreshment stand.

spiral up to ascend in a spiral path. □ The smoke spiraled up to the sky. □ The trail spiraled up the slope to the top.

The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak. Prov. People cannot always do what they know they ought to do; People are not always physically capable of doing what they are willing to do. (Biblical.) □ Alan: Have you started the diet your doctor recommended? Fred: The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.

spirit someone or something away^t (somewhere) to sneak someone or something away to another place. □ The police spirited the prisoner away before the crowd assembled in front of the jail. □ They spirited away the celebrity.

spirit someone or something off^t (to some place) to hurry someone or something away, presumably unnoticed, to another place. □ Aunt Jane spirited the children off to bed at half-past eight. □ She spirited off the leftover roast beef.

*the spit and image of someone and *the spitting image of someone the very likeness of someone; a very close resemblance to someone. (*The second version is a frequent error. *Typically: be ~; look like ~.) □ John is the spit and image of his father. □ At first, I thought you were saying spitting image.

spit and polish orderliness; ceremonial precision and orderliness. □ I like spit and polish. It comes from being in the military. □ There is no such thing as too much spit and polish.

spit at someone or something to expectorate on someone or something or in the direction of someone or something. □ The angry crowd cursed and spit at the prisoner as he was being taken back to jail. □ Max actually spit at the police station door as he was dragged in.

spit something in(to) something and spit something in^t to expel something from the mouth into something. □ He spit his gum into the toilet. □ He opened the toilet and spit in his gum.

spit something on(to) something to expel something from the mouth onto something. □ You shouldn't spit your gum onto the sidewalk! □ Don't spit your gum on the pavement.

spit something out^t 1. Lit. to cast something from the mouth. □ The food was so terrible that I spit it out. □ I spit out the sweet potatoes. 2. Fig. to manage to say something. □ Come on! Say it! Spit it out! □ Spit it out! Get it said! 3. Fig. to say something scornfully. □ He spit out his words in utter derision. □ She spit out the most unpleasant string of curse words I have ever heard from anyone.

spit something up^t Euph. to vomit something. □ She almost spit her dinner up. □ Sally was afraid she was going to spit up her dinner.

spit up Euph. to vomit. □ The food was so bad, she was afraid she would spit up. □ Mommy, I have to spit up!

spit (up)on someone or something 1. to eject spit onto someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The angry crowd spit on the convict. □ Don't spit on the sidewalk. 2. to spew spittle onto someone or something while talking. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I always have a fear of accidentally spitting on someone in the first row while I am talking. □ I regret spitting on you, but it was an accident.

the spitting image of someone Go to the spit and image of someone.

splash about and splash around 1. to move about in a volume of a liquid, splashing. □ The children splashed about in the pool. □ They splashed around for an hour. 2. [for a liquid] to move about, splashing. □ The water splashed about in the bucket. □ It splashed around as I carried the bucket.

splash down [for a space capsule] to land in the water. □ The capsule splashed down very close to the pickup ship.

splash on someone or something to scatter [a liquid] on someone or something. □ Try to keep from splashing on anybody. □ Don't splash on the wall!

splash over [for a volume of liquid] to overflow its container. □ A lot of the coffee splashed over before I got to the table with the cup. □ Don't fill it so full and it won't splash over.

splash someone or something up^t to scatter a liquid onto someone or something. □ Don't get that stuff all over. Don't splash the place up! □ She splashed up the kitchen when she washed the dishes.

splash someone or something with something to scatter or slosh someone or something with a liquid. □ The whales at Sea World splashed everyone in the audience with water. □ I splashed the side of the stove with pancake batter when I dropped the bowl.

splash something about to scatter or slosh a liquid about. □ Please don't splash that about. It will stain anything you spill it on. □ Don't splash that stuff about!

splash something (all) over someone or something to cause a liquid to overflow or engulf someone or something. □ Tony splashed water all over Nick. □ Who splashed milk all over the table?

splash something on(to) someone or something to make a liquid scatter onto someone or something. □ Accidentally, the lab assistant splashed acid onto his arm. □ He splashed something on the counter.

splatter someone or something up^t to cover someone or something with drops of a liquid. □ The painter splattered his coworker up with both red and blue. □ Don't splatter up the wall!

splay out to spread out; to extend out at an angle. □ His feet splayed out so much that it was hard to see how he could stand up. □ The legs of the table splayed out and gave it sturdy support.

splice something (in)to something to connect something to something; to cut and join something into something to connect the two. □ The workers spliced the small wires into the main cable. □ Let's splice this rope into the larger one at the halfway point.

splice something together^t to connect things together, usually by twisting or tying a joint between the two. □ I spent over an hour splicing the two ends of the ropes together, and it didn't hold for even a minute. □ He carefully spliced together the two ropes.

splinter off ((of) something) and splinter off (from something) [for a bit of something] to tear off or separate from something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ A piece of wood splintered off of the oar and dropped into the water. □ A tiny bit splintered off and stuck in my hand.

split a gut and bust a gut 1. Fig. Inf. to laugh very hard. □ He laughed until he nearly split a gut. □ The clown made me bust a gut laughing. 2. Fig. Inf. to work very hard. □ I split a gut to get this place fixed up in a week. □ Don't bust a gut cleaning up for me. I love things that are a bit messy.

split hairs Fig. to quibble; to try to make petty distinctions. □ They don't have any serious differences. They are just splitting hairs. □ Don't waste time splitting hairs. Accept it the way it is.

split in something to divide into a certain number of groups. (The something can be half, thirds, two, quarters, etc.) □ Lightning struck the big tree and the trunk split in half. □ The vase dropped and split in quarters.

split off (from something) to separate away from something; to sever connection with and separate from something. □ A large iceberg split off from the glacier and made an enormous splash. □ A giant chunk of ice split off and floated away.

split one's sides (with laughter) Fig. to laugh so hard that one's sides almost split. (Always an exaggeration.) □ The members of the audience almost split their sides with laughter. □ When I heard what happened to Patricia, I almost split my sides.

split people up^t to separate two or more people (from one another). □ If you two don't stop chattering, I'll have to split you up. □ I will have to split up that twosome in the corner.

*a split second an instant; a tiny period of time. (*Typically: for ~; in ~.) □ The lightning struck, and in a split second the house burst into flames. □ For a split second, it looked like she would fall.

split someone or something up^t (into something) to divide people or things up into something, such as groups. □ I had to split the group up into two sections—there were so many who showed up. □ I split up the class into two discussion sections.

split someone or something with someone or something to divide someone or something with someone or a group of people. □ I will split the campers with you. You lead your half on the hike, and I will lead my half. □ Will you split your candy bar with me?

split something between (someone and someone else) and split something between (something and something else) to divide something between two people or things. □ The cook split the last of the pie between Jane and Carla. □ We have to split the copies of the reports between the two committees.

split something fifty-fifty Go to divide something fifty-fifty.

split something into something to divide or sever something into something. □ Jeff split the log into four parts. □ Please split this log in half so it will burn better.

split something off (of) something and split something off^t to sever connection with something; to separate from something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Dave split a piece of wood off the log to use for kindling. □ He split off a stick of wood.

split the difference to divide the difference evenly (with someone else). □ You want to sell for $120, and I want to buy for $100. Let's split the difference and close the deal at $110. □ I don't want to split the difference. I want $120.

split up (with someone) [for someone] to separate from someone; to break up a marriage or love affair. □ Jeff split up with Judy. □ I had heard that they had split up with each other.

a splitting headache Fig. a severe headache, as if one's head were splitting open. □ I'm sorry, I can't. I have a splitting headache. Maybe Fred will play bridge with you. □ This splitting headache has been going on for hours.

spurge on someone or something to spend a lot of money on someone or something. □ I really splurged on my wife for her birthday. □ Mary really splurged on that dinner!

spoiled rotten Fig. indulged in; greatly spoiled. □ This kid is spoiled rotten! □ I was spoiled rotten when I was a child, so I'm used to this kind of wasteful luxury.

spoiling for a fight argumentative; asking for a fight. □ They were just spoiling for a fight, and they went outside to settle the matter. □ She was grouchy, and you could tell she had been spoiling for a fight all day.

spoken for taken; reserved (for someone). □ I'm sorry, but this piece of cake is already spoken for. □ Pardon me. Can I sit here, or is this seat spoken for?

sponge someone or something down^t to remove the [excess] moisture from someone or something; to wipe someone or something with a sponge. □ The fight manager sponged his boxer down. □ I will sponge down the countertop.

sponge something away^t to absorb, wipe up, and wipe away something, as with a sponge. □ Try sponging the stain away with some soda water. □ I will sponge away the mess.

sponge something from someone to beg or borrow money or food from someone. □ Gary tried to sponge a few bucks from me. □ I can't continue sponging food from my relatives.

sponge something from something to remove moisture from something, as with a sponge. □ Liz sponged the sauce from her blouse. □ We gently sponged the splattered paint from the carpet.

sponge something off of someone or something and sponge something off^t to beg or borrow money or food from someone or a group. □ Please stop sponging food and money off your relatives! □ Stop sponging off food and money all the time!

sponge something up[†] to absorb or take up moisture, as with a sponge. □ I had to sponge the spilled milk up from the floor, the chair, the table, and the baby. What a mess! □ Liz sponged up the water.

spook someone or something to startle or disorient someone or something. □ A snake spooked my horse, and I nearly fell off. □ Your warning spooked me, and I was upset for the rest of the day.

spoon something out[†] to serve something out, as with a spoon; to give something out, as with a spoon. □ The cook spooned the beans out, giving plenty to each camper. □ The cook spooned out the beans.

spoon something up[†] to serve something that requires finding and bringing up out of a pot with a spoon. □ The cook spooned the hard-cooked eggs up one by one. □ The cook spooned up chunks of meat from the stew.

spoon-feed someone Fig. to treat someone with too much care or help; to teach someone with methods that are too easy and do not stimulate the learner to independent thinking. □ The teacher spoon-feeds the students by dictating notes on the novel instead of getting the children to read the books. □ You mustn't spoon-feed the new recruits by telling them what to do all the time. They must use their initiative.

the sport of kings horse racing. □ The sport of kings has sure impoverished a lot of commoners.

sport with someone or something to tease or play with someone or something. □ What a tease you are! You are just sporting with me! □ The dog was sporting with a turtle down by the stream.

a sporting chance a reasonably good chance. □ If you hurry, you have a sporting chance of catching the bus. □ The firm has only a sporting chance of getting the export order.

spot someone as something to recognize someone to be something; to realize that someone is something. □ I spotted you as a troublemaker from the very beginning. □ The guard spotted Max as a potential thief the moment he saw him.

spot someone (something) 1. Sl. to give an advantage to someone. □ I'll spot you twenty points. □ No need to spot me. I'm the greatest! 2. Sl. to lend someone something. □ Can you spot me a few bucks? □ I can spot you a whole hundred!

spout from something [for a liquid] to gush from something. □ A plume of water vapor spouted from the blowhole of the whale. □ Water spouted from the top of the fountain and flowed down the sides.

spout off (about someone or something) 1. to brag or boast about someone or something. □ Stop spouting off about Tom. Nobody could be that good! □ Alice is spouting off about her new car. 2. to speak out publicly about someone or something; to reveal information publicly about someone or something. □ I wish you wouldn't spout off about my family affairs in public. □ There is no point in spouting off about this problem.

spout something out[†] 1. Lit. to exude a liquid. □ The hose spouted the cooling water out all over the children. □ It spouted out cooling water. 2. Fig. to blurt something out; to speak out suddenly, revealing some important piece of information. □ She spouted the name of the secret agent out under the effects of the drug. □ She spouted out everything we wanted to know.

sprain one's ankle to become pregnant. □ She has, ah, sprained her ankle. □ From the looks of her, she must have sprained her ankle some months ago.

sprawl about and sprawl around to slouch or lounge somewhere; to spread oneself out casually while lounging. (Usually refers to habitual action, perhaps in a number of places.) □ He sprawled about, loafing the afternoon away. □ When I came into the room, four teenage boys were sprawled around the furniture, watching television.

sprawl out to spread oneself out casually while lounging. (Usually done one time, not habitually. Compare this with sprawl about.) □ He sprawled out and took up most of the space. □ I need more room so I can sprawl out.

spray someone or something with something to coat someone or something with a mist or stream of liquid. □ The elephant sprayed us with water. □ I sprayed the fence with white paint. □ He sprayed himself with some of the cologne.

spray something onto someone or something and spray something on[†] to direct a mist or stream of a liquid onto someone or something. □ Danny sprayed cold water onto the boys and cooled them off. □ Dan sprayed on some cold water. □ I sprayed the paint on and it dried almost immediately.

spread all over (some place) Go to all over (some place).

spread it on thick Go to lay it on thick.

spread like wildfire Fig. [for something] to spread rapidly. □ Rumors spread like wildfire when people are excited. □ This disease will spread like wildfire when it gets going.

spread oneself too thin Fig. to do so many things at one time that you can do none of them well. □ It's a good idea to get involved in a lot of activities, but don't spread yourself too thin. □ I'm too busy these days. I'm afraid I've spread myself too thin.

spread out to separate and distribute over a wide area. □ The sheriff told the members of the posse to spread out and continue their search. □ The wine spread out and stained a large area of the carpet.

spread over someone or something[†] [for something] to cover someone or something gradually. □ The shade slowly spread over the picnickers. □ Dusk spread its final shadows over the land.

spread someone or something around[†] to distribute people or things over an area. □ Spread the good singers around so they can help the others in the choir. □ Liz spread around the seeds so they would dry.

spread something around[†] to distribute news or gossip. □ Please don't spread this around, but Don ran away from home! □ Don't spread around that story!

spread something on[†] Go to spread something onto something.

spread something on thick 1. to distribute a thick layer of something. □ This paint will cover well if you spread it on thick. □ If you spread the paint on thick, you will only need one coat. 2. Go to lay it on thick.

spread something onto something and spread something on^t to distribute a coating of something onto something.

□ Spread the butter onto the bread evenly. □ Spread on the butter evenly. □ Donna spread the paint on with a roller.

spread something out^t to open, unfold, or lay something over a wider area. □ Spread the wet papers out so they will dry. □ She spread out the papers to dry them.

spread something over someone or something to cause something to cover or be distributed over someone or something. □ The cloud spread its shadow over everyone at the picnic. □ We spread fertilizer over the prepared ground. □ He spread the work over a few weeks.

spread something under someone or something to extend or unfold something, such as a tarpaulin, beneath someone or something. □ Please spread some newspapers under Jimmy while he is working this clay. □ Would you spread some newspapers under your work, please?

spread something with something to cover something with a coat of something. □ Using the roller, Judy spread the wall with a thick coat of pink paint. □ Spread the lasagna with a layer of cheese mixture and cover that with another layer of lasagna.

spread the word to tell many people some kind of information. □ I need to spread the word that the meeting is canceled for this afternoon.

spread to someone or something to expand or extend to reach someone or something. □ The epidemic finally spread to me and my family. □ The business slowdown spread to the West Coast.

spring at someone or something to jump at someone or something. □ The cat sprang at me but could not sink in its claws. □ The spider sprang at the moth and captured it.

spring back (to some place) to jump, bounce, or recoil back to a place. □ The cat sprang back to its original place on the top of the table. □ The lid sprang back to a closed position.

spring for something and bounce for something Sl. to treat someone by buying something. □ I'm bouncing for pizza. Any takers? □ Ralph sprang for drinks, and we all had a great time.

spring (forth) from someone or something to come forth from someone or something; to gush out of someone or something, as with a spring of water; to jump from or out of someone or something. □ The best ideas spring forth from the mind of Mary! □ What new example of pure genius can we expect to spring from Mary today?

spring into action Fig. to suddenly begin moving or doing something. □ As soon as the boss came in the door, everyone sprang into action. □ Every morning, I jump out of bed and spring into action.

spring out at someone to jump out at someone. □ A grasshopper sprang out at me when I peered into the hollow log. □ I was afraid that something would spring out at me, so I opened the cellar door carefully.

spring out of something to jump out of something. □ The cat sprang out of the closet when I opened the door. □ The boys sprang out of the cold water as fast as they could.

spring something on someone 1. to surprise someone with something. □ I hate to spring this on you at the last moment, but I will need some money to travel on. □ Please don't spring any other demands on me. 2. to pull a trick on someone. □ Let me tell you about the trick I sprang on Sally. □ What are you going to spring on her this time?

spring to attention to move quickly to assume the military posture of attention. □ The recruit sprang to attention.

spring to life Fig. to become suddenly alive or more alive. □ The party sprang to life after midnight. □ The city sprang to life at dawn.

spring to one's feet Fig. to stand up quickly. □ He sprang to his feet and demanded that the chair recognize him. □ The audience sprang to its feet and cheered madly when the soprano finished.

spring to someone's defense Fig. to go quickly to defend someone. (Can be against physical or verbal attack.) □ Fred was attacked and Ralph sprang to his defense. □ We sprang to Mary's defense when she was accused of doing wrong.

spring up to appear or develop suddenly; to sprout, as with a seedling. □ We knew it was really spring when all the flowers sprang up. □ It seems as if the tulips sprang up overnight. □ The dog's ears sprang up when the refrigerator opened.

spring (up)on someone, something, or an animal to jump on someone, something, or an animal; to pounce on someone, something, or an animal. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The lion sprang upon him and knocked him down. □ The cat sprang on the mouse and captured it.

sprinkle someone or something with something to lightly cover someone or something with something by scattering or sprinkling. □ The storm sprinkled us with a few droplets of water and then blew over. □ Larry sprinkled his grapefruit with powdered sugar.

sprinkle something on(to) someone or something and sprinkle something on^t to scatter or dribble something onto someone or something. □ The minister sprinkled the water onto the baby. □ The cook sprinkled on a dusting of powdered sugar.

sprout up to grow upward quickly, as do newly sprouted seedlings. □ The seeds sprouted up in the warm rains. □ Many of the newly planted seeds failed to sprout up on time.

sprout wings Fig. to behave so well as to resemble an angel. □ The kid is not about to sprout wings, but he probably won't get into jail again. □ He was so good and helpful, I thought he would sprout wings.

spruce someone or something up^t 1. Lit. to tidy up and groom someone or something. □ Laura's mother took a few minutes to spruce her daughter up for the party. □ She spruced up her room each day. 2. Fig. to refurbish or renew someone or something. □ Do you think we should spruce this room up a little? □ Yes, let's spruce up this room with new furniture and drapes.

spur someone on^t to urge someone onward; to egg someone on. (Fig. on applying spurs to a horse.) □ The crowd spurred the runners on throughout the race. □ The cheering spurred on the runners.

spurt out (of someone or something) and spurt (out) (from someone or something) to squirt out of someone or something; to erupt in a stream out of someone or something. □ Hot lava spurted out of the volcano. □ Hot lava spurted out from the volcano. □ The blood spurted out from Walter where he had been slashed. □ Blood spurted from the wound. □ The fountain had a carved fish with water spurting from its mouth.

spurt something out^t to eject something in a stream. □ The octopus spurted its ink out as the scuba diver approached it. □ It spurted out all its ink.

sputter out [for a flame] to go out in little puffs. □ The candle flame flickered and sputtered out. □ The fire sputtered out after midnight and we all got very cold before dawn.

sputter something out^t to utter something while stuttering or faltering. (As when one is physically or mentally disoriented.) □ She was so excited she could hardly sputter her name out. □ He could only sputter out a few words.

spy (up)on someone or something to watch someone or something to learn secret or concealed information. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Are you spying upon me? □ I wasn't spying on you! I was just trying to see who you were.

squabble about someone or something to quarrel and disagree about someone or something. □ Please stop squabbling about Jeff, or I'll put him on my team so neither of you can have him. □ There is no need to squabble about the last piece of pie. There's more in the kitchen.

squabble over someone or something to fight over someone or something. □ Please don't squabble over me. I don't want to be chosen by any of you! □ Stop squabbling over money and go out and get a job.

squabble with someone to argue with someone. □ Please don't squabble with your sister! □ I wish that everyone would stop squabbling with me!

squabble with something to argue about something. □ I won't squabble with what you said, but you are wrong. □ One political party will squabble with any issue the other party brings up.

squander something away^t to waste something; to use up something valuable wastefully. □ Where is all the money I gave you last month? Did you squander it all away? □ Frank squandered away all his assets.

squander something on someone or something to waste all of something on someone or something. □ I am tired of squandering money on this rickety old house. □ I squandered a fortune on Roger and what did it get me?

square accounts (with someone) 1. Lit. to settle one's financial accounts with someone. □ I have to square accounts with the bank this week, or it'll take back my car. □ I called the bank and said I needed to come in and square accounts. 2. Fig. to get even with someone; to straighten out a misunderstanding with someone. □ I'm going to square accounts with Tom. He insulted me in public, and he owes me an apology. □ Tom, you and I are going to have to square accounts.

a square deal a fair and honest transaction; fair treatment. □ All the workers want is a square deal, but their boss underpays them. □ You always get a square deal with that travel company.

square (meal) a good and nutritious meal. (Always with quantifier when square is used without meal.) □ I need three squares a day—at least. □ The old beggar looks like he could use a square meal.

square off (for something) to get ready for an argument or a fight. □ John was angry and appeared to be squaring off for a fight. □ When those two square off, everyone gets out of the way.

a square peg in a round hole Fig. someone who is uncomfortable or who does not belong in a particular situation. (Also the cliché: trying to fit a square peg into a round hole, trying to combine two things that do not belong or fit together.) □ I feel like a square peg in a round hole at my office. Everyone else there seems so ambitious, competitive, and dedicated to the work, but I just want to make a living. □ Trying to teach me math is like trying to fit a square peg into a round hole. I'm convinced my brain is not built right to understand algebra.

square someone away^t to get someone or something arranged or properly taken care of. □ See if you can square Bob away in his new office. □ When you are squared away, come back and we'll talk.

square something off^t to make something square; to trim something until it is square. □ You will have to square this corner off a bit so it will match the part it will be attached to. □ Please square off this corner.

square something up^t to cause something to have right angles. □ Please square the door frames up better before you nail them in. □ Can you square up this box a little better?

square something with someone to make certain that something is approved by a particular person. □ I am sure I can square this matter with Sally. □ Sam intended to square everything with Henry when he had time.

square up (for fighting) to get ready for an argument or a fight. □ John was angry and appeared to be squaring up for a fight. □ When those two square up, everyone gets out of the way.

square up to someone or something to face someone or something bravely; to tackle someone or something. □ You'll have to square up to the bully or he'll make your life miserable. □ It's time to square up to your financial problems. You can't just ignore them.

square up with someone to pay someone what one owes; to pay one's share of something to someone. □ I'll square up with you later if you pay the whole bill now. □ Bob said he would square up with Tom for his share of the gas.

square with someone 1. Lit. to settle a disagreement with someone. □ I will try to square with Fred before the end of the school year. □ Max refused to square with Lefty and they are still feuding. 2. Fig. to apologize to someone. □ I will try to square with Harold. I really am sorry, you know. □ Finally, Mary squared with Alice and they forgave each other.

square with something Fig. [for a statement] to agree, match, or correspond to something. □ Your answer doesn't square with mine. □ The figures I have don't square with those the government has.

squared away arranged or properly taken care of. □ Is Ann squared away in her dorm room yet? □ I will talk to you when I am squared away.

squash someone or something up[†] to grind someone or something up; to mash someone or something up. □ You had better stay out of the traffic, or some big truck will squash you up! □ The truck squashed up the tiny car.

squash something down[†] to crush something down; to pack something down. □ Squash the ice cream down so the air will be pushed out. □ Who squashed down my hat?

squash something in[†] to crush or make something concave by squashing or mashing. □ The children squashed the Halloween jack-o'-lantern in and ruined it. □ Someone squashed in the lampshade.

squash something into something and squash something in[†] to press or mash something into something. □ She squashed the clay into the mold. □ She squashed in the clay and started to make a bowl.

squash up against someone or something to press hard up against someone or something. (Usually said of something soft.) □ The egg squashed up against the window and splattered all over. □ The pumpkin squashed up against the side of the truck.

squawk about something to complain about something. □ Stop squawking about how much money you lost. I lost twice as much. □ What are you squawking about now?

squeak by (someone or something) 1. Fig. to manage just to squeeze past someone or something. □ I squeaked by the fat man in the hallway only to find myself blocked by another. □ I just barely squeaked by. 2. Fig. to manage just to get past a barrier represented by a person or thing, such as a difficult teacher or an examination. □ Judy just squeaked by Professor Smith, who has a reputation for flunking students. □ I took the test and just squeaked by.

squeak something through Fig. to manage just to get something accepted or approved. □ I just managed to squeak the proposal through. □ Tom squeaked the application through at the last minute.

squeak through (something) 1. Fig. to manage just to squeeze through an opening. □ The child squeaked through the opening and escaped. □ Sally squeaked through and got away. 2. Fig. to manage just to get past a barrier, such as an examination or interview. (Fig. on ①.) □ Sally just barely squeaked through the interview, but she got the job. □ I wasn't too alert and I just squeaked through.

The squeaking wheel gets the oil. and The squeaky wheel gets the oil. Prov. People who complain the most will get attention or what they want. □ If you don't get good service at the hotel, make sure to tell the manager that you're dissatisfied. The squeaking wheel gets the oil.

squeal (on someone) (to someone) Fig. to report someone to someone. □ Max was afraid that the witness would squeal on him to the cops. □ Sally threatened to squeal to the boss. □ Please promise you won't squeal on me!

squeal with something Fig. to shriek or squeak, exhibiting some characteristic emotion or experience, such as delight, pain, glee, etc. □ The baby saw the bright picture and squealed with delight. □ Timmy squealed with excitement when he saw the presents and the birthday cake.

squeeze by (someone or something) to manage just to press oneself past someone or something. □ The hall was crowded and I had to squeeze by a number of rotund gen- tlemen. □ I squeezed by the crowd and ran on to my appointment.

squeeze someone or something into something and squeeze someone or something in[†] to press or push someone or something into something small. □ Let's see if we can squeeze everyone into the car. □ Let's squeeze in one more.

squeeze someone or something through (something) to push and compress until someone or something passes through something. □ John's cellmate managed to squeeze John through the window just before the guards walked by. □ I squeezed some food through the crack and the trapped miner was glad to get it.

squeeze someone or something together to press people or things together. □ The driver squeezed us together so he could get more people in the taxi. □ See if you can squeeze the vegetables together a little so we can get more in the basket.

squeeze someone or something up[†] to press people or things close together. □ The usher tried to squeeze us up so she could seat more people. □ Don't squeeze up the cars too tight in the parking area.

squeeze something from something 1. Lit. to press something out of something; to press on something until something comes out. □ Betty squeezed some toothpaste from the tube. □ Don't squeeze so much mustard from the bottle. 2. Fig. to get a little more of something from something. □ Let's see if we can squeeze a few more miles from this tank of gas before we fill up again. □ I think I can squeeze another few minutes from this candle before I have to light a new one.

squeeze something out of something and squeeze something out[†] to press something until something is expelled from something. □ Claire squeezed some toothpaste out of the tube. □ She squeezed out some toothpaste.

squeeze (themselves) together [for creatures] to press close together. □ The little pigs squeezed themselves together to get a better chance at some food. □ They squeezed together and gobbled their dinner. □ They squeezed themselves together to keep warm.

squeeze (themselves) up [for people] to press themselves closely together. □ Everyone squeezed themselves up in the tiny car so there would be room for one more. □ Let's squeeze up so Jamie can sit down. □ They squeezed themselves up so they would take less space.

squeeze through something to manage to press oneself through an opening. □ I think I can squeeze through the window and get out of this place. □ The cat squeezed through a hole in the fence and got away.

squeeze up against someone or something to press close up against someone or something. □ He squeezed up against me, trying to keep warm. □ The puppies squeezed up against their mother.

squiff out Sl. to collapse from drink. □ Hank squiffed out at midnight, right on the dot. □ She kept from squiffing out and barely made it home.

squint at someone or something to look at someone or something with the eyes partly closed. (When squinting, the eyes are partly closed by pressing the upper and lower eyelids toward one another.) □ Why are you squinting at me? □ I had to squint at the small print in order to read it.

squint out of something 1. to cast one's gaze from something, such as a place of concealment, with one's eyes partly closed. □ The prisoner squinted out of the little hatch in the door to his cell. □ You could see that many people were squinting out of the windows, trying to get a good view of the movie star who was visiting. 2. to cast one's gaze through something, such as glasses, one eye, etc., with one's eyes partly closed. □ She squinted out of one eye in the bright sun. □ Tony squinted out of his glasses and his mother decided that he needed to have his eyes checked again.

squirm in(to something) to press into something that is tight; to crawl or wiggle into something tight. (For people, this is often clothing that is too tight. For other creatures, it is more variable.) □ Dave squirmed into his jeans and pledged to himself that he would lose some weight. □ He squirmed in and knew he could never close the zipper.

squirm out (of something) 1. Lit. to crawl or wiggle out of something. □ The worm squirmed out of its hole and was gobbled up by a bird. □ The worm squirmed out. 2. Fig. to escape doing something; to escape the responsibility for having done something. □ He agreed to go but squirmed out at the last minute. □ You did it and you can't squirm out of it by denying it!

squirm with something to fidget or move around restlessly, showing irritation of some type. □ The children squirmed with impatience, but they kept quiet. □ I squirmed with discomfort, hoping that the time on the aircraft would pass rapidly.

squirrel something away^t Fig. to hide something or store something in the way that a squirrel stores nuts for use in the winter. □ I squirreled a little money away for an occasion such as this. □ Liz squirreled away a lot of money while she was working.

squirt from something [for a liquid] to be ejected in a spurt from something. □ The water squirted from the hose. □ Juice squirted from the orange when I squeezed it.

squirt out (of someone or something) [for something, especially a liquid] to gush or spurt forth from someone or something. □ In the horror movie, black stuff squirted out of this guy whenever he got angry. □ A lot of blood squirted out of the gash and I closed my eyes.

squirt something at someone or something 1. to direct a narrow stream of liquid onto someone or something. □ They squirted the water at the cat and it ran away. □ Who is squirting catsup at people? 2. to direct a device for squirting liquid at someone or something. □ Tom squirted the hose at the cat. □ Who is squirting the firehose at the front of the house?

squirt something out of something and squirt something out^t to cause something to spurt out of something. □ He squirted a bit of the vaccine out of the syringe, making sure the needle was not clogged. □ He squirted out a bit of the vaccine.

a stab at someone Go to a try at someone.

stab at someone or something to thrust at someone or something with something sharp, such as a knife. □ The hor- rid man stabbed at me and missed. □ The stork stabbed at the frog with its beak.

a stab at something Go to a try at something.

stab someone in something to stab someone in a particular place. □ Max stabbed a prison guard in the belly and left him to die. □ Tom stabbed himself in the thigh by accident.

stab someone in the back 1. Lit. to thrust a knife into someone's back. □ Max planned to stab his hostage in the back if he screamed. □ The murderer stabbed his victim in the back and fled. 2. Fig. to betray someone. □ I wish you would not gossip about me. There is no need to stab me in the back.

stab something at someone or something to thrust something at someone or something. □ The hunter stabbed a stick at the bear to see if there was any life at all left in it. □ The stork tried to stab its beak at me as I held it, but I held tight while the vet examined it.

stack something against someone or something to make a pile of something that leans against someone or something. (See also stack the deck (against someone or something).) □ Watch what you are doing! Why are you stacking the books against me? They will fall when I move. □ Stack the books against the wall.

stack something up^t to make a stack of things. (Also without the up.) □ Where should I stack them up? □ Please stack up these boxes.

stack the cards (against someone or something) Go to next.

stack the deck (against someone or something) and stack the cards (against someone or something) to arrange things against someone or something. (Originally from card playing; stacking the deck is to cheat by arranging the cards to be dealt out to one's advantage.) □ I can't get ahead at my office. Someone has stacked the cards against me. □ Do you really think that someone has stacked the deck? Isn't it just fate?

stack up [for something] to accumulate, as in stacks. □ Your work is stacking up. You will have to work late to finish it. □ I hate to let my work stack up. I have to do it sooner or later.

stack up to someone or something [for someone or something] to measure up favorably when compared to someone or something. □ How do you think I stack up to Liz? □ My car stacks up pretty well to yours.

stagger around to go about tottering or wobbling, especially as if drunk. □ The wounded man staggered around and then fell. □ A lot of people came out of the party and staggered around.

stagger from something to move out of a place, tottering. □ The drunk staggered from the tavern and fell into the gutter. □ The wounded man staggered from the door and called for help.

stagger in(to some place) to walk into some place, tottering. □ The old man staggered into the room and collapsed. □ He staggered in and fell down.

stagger out (of some place) to walk out of some place, tottering. □ The drunk staggered out of the tavern and fell down. □ She staggered out and sat on the curb.

stagger under something to struggle or totter under a serious burden, either a heavy object or a serious problem or responsibility. □ The welfare budget is staggering under the burden of having to care for many people. □ Sam staggered under the heavy load and finally fell.

stain something with something 1. to cause a blemish or blotch on something with something. (Usually an accident.) □ Judy stained the carpet with some grape juice. □ You will stain your clothing with that food if you drop any of it. 2. to affect the coloring of something through the use of a chemical stain. (A purposeful act, much the same as painting.) □ Walter stained the house with a long-lasting reddish stain. □ We decided to stain the doors with a special varnish rather than paint them. 3. Fig. to injure or blemish someone's reputation. □ They stained his reputation with their charges. □ I don't want to do anything that would stain my reputation.

stake a claim to someone or something Fig. to state or record one's claim on someone or something. (Alludes to marking off an area by pounding in wooden stakes.) □ She staked a claim to Jeff and told all her rivals to stay away. □ The prospector staked a claim to the gold-rich area.

stake one's reputation on someone or something to risk harming one's reputation on someone or something. □ Of course Denise is great. I will stake my reputation on her! □ It may be so, but I wouldn't stake my reputation on it.

stake out a claim to something and stake out a claim on something to lay claim to something. □ The prospector staked out a claim to the promising piece of land. □ We staked out a claim on two seats at the side of the auditorium.

stake someone or something out^t 1. to position a person so that someone or something can be observed or followed. □ The cops staked the car out and made the arrest. □ Barlowe staked out the apartment building and watched patiently for an hour. 2. to position a person to observe someone or something. □ He staked his best operative out in front of the building. □ We staked out two men to keep watch.

stake someone to something to make a loan of something to someone. □ I will stake you to a hundred bucks if that will help. □ Jeff refused to stake Tex to a loan.

stake something off^t to mark out the boundaries of an area of land with stakes. □ The prospectors staked an area off for themselves. □ The prospectors staked off an area in which they would look for gold.

stalk in(to some place) to stride into a place, perhaps indignantly. □ Carl stalked into the manager's office and began his tirade. □ He stalked in and began to complain.

stalk out of some place to stride out of a place indignantly. □ Jeff stalked out of the store and went straight to the police. □ Mary got angry and stalked out of the meeting.

stall for time to cause a delay intentionally. □ You are just stalling for time. Please hurry. □ She is stalling for time, hoping someone will rescue her.

stall someone or something for something to delay someone or something for a period of time. □ I stalled him for as long as I could. □ I could not stall the proceedings for another second.

stall someone or something off^t to put off or delay someone or something. □ The sheriff is at the door. I'll stall him off while you get out the back door. □ You can stall off the sheriff, but you can't stall off justice.

stammer something out^t to manage to say something, but only haltingly. □ Fred stammered the words out haltingly. □ He stammered out the name of the winner.

stamp a fire out^t to extinguish a fire by stamping on it. □ Quick, stamp that fire out before it spreads. □ Tom stamped out the sparks before they started a fire.

stamp on someone or something to strike down hard on someone or something with the bottom of the foot. □ The attacker stamped on his victim after he had knocked him down. □ Walter stamped on a spider.

stamp someone or something as something to label someone or something as something; to mark someone or something as something. □ His manner stamped him as a fool. □ The committee stamped the proposal as wasteful.

stamp someone or something with something to affix a label onto someone or something with something; to apply a particular message or symbol onto someone or something, as with a rubber stamp. □ Judy stamped everyone who went into the dance with a symbol that showed that each had paid admission. □ Mary stamped the bill with the PAID symbol.

stamp someone out^t Sl. to get rid of or kill someone. (Fig. on stamp something out.) □ You just can't stamp somebody out on your own! □ The victim wanted to stamp out the robbers without a trial.

stamp something onto something to affix an informative label onto something, as with a rubber stamp. □ She stamped her name and address onto all her books. □ Tom stamped his identification onto all his papers and books.

stamp something out^t Fig. to eliminate something. □ The doctors hope they can stamp cancer out. □ Many people think that they can stamp out evil.

stamp something out of someone or something and stamp something out^t Fig. to eliminate a characteristic of someone or something; to destroy a characteristic of someone or something. □ I would really like to stamp that mean streak out of you. □ We were not able to stamp the excess costs out of the proposal and had to reject it. □ We couldn't stamp out their bad behavior.

stamp something (up)on someone or something to affix an informative label onto someone or something, as with a rubber stamp. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The attendant stamped a date upon each person who entered the dance hall. □ The person at the door stamped something on my hand when I came in.

stampede in(to some place) [for a crowd of people or other creatures] to move rapidly into a place, as if in panic. □ The shoppers stampeded into the store the minute the doors opened. □ The doors opened and the shoppers stampeded in.

stampede out of some place [for a crowd of people or other creatures] to move rapidly out of a place, as if in panic. □ The patrons stampeded out of the smoky theater. □ The cattle stampeded out of the corral.

stampede someone or something into something to cause people or other creatures to move rapidly into a place, in panic or as if in panic. □ The loud noises stampeded the crowd into the parking lot across from the stadium. □ The cowboys stampeded the cattle into the corral.

stand a chance (of doing something) stand a chance (of doing something) to have a chance of doing something. □ Do you think I stand a chance of winning first place? □ Everyone stands a chance of catching the disease.

stand against someone or something Go to against someone or something.

stand and deliver to give up something to someone who demands it. (Originally used by highway robbers asking for passengers' valuables.) □ And when the tax agent says "Stand and deliver" you have to be prepared to pay what is demanded. □ The robber stopped the coach and demanded of Lady Ellen, "Stand and deliver!"

stand apart (from someone or something) 1. Lit. to stand, separated from someone or something. □ Please stand apart from the person next to you. We want to see the table between you. □ Stand apart. Leave some space between you. 2. Fig. to appear clearly different from other things or people. □ Alice really stands apart from her peers. □ This book really stands apart. It is much better than the others.

stand around to wait around, standing; to loiter. □ Please don't stand around. Get busy! □ Why are all these people standing around doing nothing?

stand aside 1. Lit. to step aside; to get out of the way. □ Please stand aside while the bridal party passes by. □ The guests stood aside while the bride and groom left. 2. Fig. to withdraw and ignore something; to remain passive while something happens. □ He just stood aside and let his kids behave as they pleased. □ She stood aside and did not try to come between them.

stand at something 1. to stand in front of something; to stand in the vicinity of something. □ I stood at the window, watching the traffic. □ Tom stood at the door, counting people as they came in. 2. to stand or remain in a particular state, such as attention or readiness. □ The troops stood at attention for a very long time. □ The entire platoon is standing at readiness, awaiting further orders.

stand back (from someone or something) to stand or move well away and to the rear of someone or something. □ Stand back from Sam. He is really angry. □ Would you please stand back from the edge?

stand behind someone or something Go to stand (in) back of someone or something.

S stand between someone or something and someone or something else to position oneself between things and people, so as to act as a barrier. □ I don't want to stand between you and your family. □ We won't stand between you and your goals.

stand by to wait and remain ready. (Generally heard in communication, such as broadcasting, telephones, etc.) □ Your transatlantic telephone call is almost ready. Please stand by. □ Is everyone ready for the telecast? Only ten seconds—stand by.

stand by someone to support someone; to continue supporting someone even when things are bad. □ Don't worry. I'll stand by you no matter what. □ I feel as though I have to stand by my brother even if he goes to jail.

stand by someone or something to stand next to someone or something. □ Jeff, please stand by Judy. I want to take your picture. □ Can I stand by the window and watch the birds?

stand clear of something Go to clear of something.

stand close to someone or something Go to close to someone or something.

stand corrected to admit that one has been wrong. □ I realize that I accused him wrongly. I stand corrected. □ We appreciate now that our conclusions were wrong. We stand corrected.

stand down 1. to step down, particularly from the witness stand in a courtroom. □ The bailiff told the witness to stand down. □ Please stand down and take your seat. 2. [for military forces] to move away from readiness for war. □ After the peace treaty was signed, troops on both sides stood down.

stand for something 1. to permit something; to endure something. □ The teacher won't stand for any whispering in class. □ We just can't stand for that kind of behavior. 2. to signify something. □ In a traffic signal, the red light stands for "stop." □ The abbreviation Dr. stands for "doctor." 3. to endorse or support an ideal. □ The mayor claims to stand for honesty in government and jobs for everyone. □ Every candidate for public office stands for all the good things in life.

stand head and shoulders above someone or something Fig. [for someone or something] to be considerably superior to someone or something. □ Alice stands head and shoulders above all the rest of the people we interviewed. □ Your proposal stands head and shoulders above the rest.

stand idly by Go to sit idly by.

stand in awe (of someone or something) Fig. to be overwhelmed with respect for someone or something. □ Many people stand in awe of the president. □ Bob says he stands in awe of a big juicy steak. I think he's exaggerating.

stand (in) back of someone or something and stand behind someone or something 1. Lit. to place oneself at the rear of someone or something. □ Please stand behind your friends. □ The police told them to stand behind the fence. 2. Fig. to guarantee someone or something; to guarantee the performance or worth of someone or something. □ I will stand back of Elaine. I trust her totally. □ The manufacturer stands behind this product.

stand in (for someone) to substitute for someone; to serve in someone's place. □ The famous opera singer was ill, and an inexperienced singer had to stand in for her. □ The new singer was grateful for the opportunity to stand in.

stand in someone's way Go to in someone's way.

stand knee-deep in something Go to knee-deep in something.

stand off from someone or something to be or remain at some distance from someone or something. □ Charles stood off from the group. □ Mary stood off from the fire-side, where all the excitement was taking place.

stand off some place [for a ship] to wait some distance from a point on shore. □ The ship stood off at some distance, waiting for its berth. □ We stood off about a mile from shore and went to land in small boats called tenders.

stand on ceremony to hold rigidly to protocol or formal manners. (Often in the negative.) □ Please help yourself to more. Don't stand on ceremony. □ We are very informal around here. Hardly anyone stands on ceremony.

stand on one's dignity to remain dignified in spite of difficulties. □ I will stand on my dignity to the very end. □ She stood on her dignity and ignored all the nonsense going on around her.

stand on one's head 1. Lit. to stand or balance vertically with one's head and hands—rather than one's feet—touching the floor. □ Can you stand on your head? □ Todd stood on his head as a form of exercise. 2. Fig. to attempt to impress someone by hard work or difficult feats. □ You don't have to stand on your head to succeed in this office. Just do your assigned work on time.

stand on one's (own) two feet to act in an independent and forthright manner. □ I can stand on my own two feet without any help from you! □ Dave will be better off when he gets a job and can stand on his own feet.

stand on something 1. to step or tread on something, perhaps by accident. □ I didn't mean to stand on the cat's tail. □ Please don't stand on the nice carpet with muddy shoes. 2. to elevate oneself by standing on something, such as a chair or stool. □ Tony stood on a stool so he could reach the cookie jar. □ Don't stand on that box. It won't hold you and it's not tall enough.

stand one's ground and hold one's ground to stand up for one's rights; to resist an attack. □ The lawyer tried to confuse me when I was giving testimony, but I managed to stand my ground. □ Some people were trying to crowd us out of the line for tickets, but we held our ground.

stand out (against someone or something) to be prominent or conspicuous against a background of someone or something. □ Your red coat really stands out against all those dull brown ones. □ With that deep tan, you really stand out against the others.

stand out (from someone or something) to be prominent when compared to someone or something. □ As a programmer, she stands out from all the others. □ This entry stands out from all the rest in this show.

stand out (from something) to protrude from something. □ One very straight branch in particular stood out from the tree and looked suitable for a post. □ The branch stood out and made a perfect place to hang my shirt while I worked.

stand outside (of) something to remain outside of a place, standing. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Judy stood outside the shop, waiting for it to open. □ How long have you been standing outside the door in this cold wind?

stand over someone or something to hover over someone or something; to monitor or keep close watch on someone or something. □ Please don't stand over me while I work! □ Dave stood over the machine, making sure it did what it was supposed to do.

stand pat (on something) to stick firmly to one's position or opinions. □ I am going to stand pat on this issue. □ I thought you would stand pat in the absence of new information.

stand someone in good stead [for something] to be of great use and benefit to someone. □ I know that my large vocabulary will always stand me in good stead at college. □ Any experience you can get in dealing with the public will stand you in good stead no matter what line of work you go into.

stand someone or something off to repel the attack of someone or something; to defend against someone or something; to stave someone or something off. □ It was all we could do to stand them off. □ The soldiers stood off the attackers as long as they could.

stand someone to a treat to pay for a treat for someone. □ Come on. Let's go out and eat. I'll stand you to a treat. □ It seems as if I am always standing someone to a treat.

stand someone up[†] 1. to place someone into a standing position. □ I tried to stand him up, but he was just too tired. □ Let's try to stand up Timmy and get him awake. 2. to fail to show up for a meeting or a date. □ He stood her up once too often, so she broke up with him. □ Tom stood up Mary once, and she never forgave him.

stand something on its head Fig. to stir up, baffle, or surprise a group or organization. □ The new owners came into the company and stood it on its head. Nothing will ever be the same. □ The mayor set out to stand the town on its head, but after one month, it was business as usual.

stand still for something Go to hold still for something.

stand tall to be brave and proud. □ I can still stand tall. I'm innocent. □ Our athletes stand tall in the knowledge that they did their best.

stand the test of time Prov. to be well regarded; to last for a long time. □ Bill and Nancy just celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Their marriage has stood the test of time. □ The singer's work was not popular while she was alive, but it has stood the test of time.

stand there with one's bare face hanging out Rur. to stand some place looking helpless and stupid. □ Say something. Don't just stand there with your bare face hanging out. □ She just stood there with her bare face hanging out while they took away everything she owned.

stand to lose something to be likely to lose something or have it taken away. □ I stand to lose hundreds of dollars if I am not there on time.

stand to reason to seem reasonable. □ It stands to reason that it'll be colder in January than it is in November. □ It stands to reason that Bill left in a hurry, although no one saw him go.

stand together 1. to stand in a group. □ All the members of the family stood together for a photograph. □ Please stand together so I can count you. 2. to remain united. □ We must stand together if we want to defeat this enemy. □ If we don't stand together, we will be defeated one by one.

stand trial to be the accused person in a trial before a judge; to be on trial. □ He had to stand trial for perjury and obstruction of justice.

stand up 1. to arise from a sitting or reclining position. □ He stood up and looked across the valley. □ She had been sitting for so long that it was a pleasure to stand up. 2. to be in a standing position. □ I've been standing up all day and I'm exhausted. □ I stood up throughout the whole trip because there were no more seats on the train. 3. to wear well; to remain sound and intact. □ This material just doesn't stand up well when it's washed. □ Her work doesn't stand up under close scrutiny. 4. [for an assertion] to remain believable. □ His testimony will not stand up in court. □ When the police checked the story, it did not stand up.

stand up against someone or something to withstand or hold one's own against someone or something. □ He's good, but he can't stand up against Jill. □ Can this tent stand up against the wind?

stand up and be counted to state one's support (for someone or something). □ If you believe in more government help for farmers, write your representative—stand up and be counted. □ I'm generally in favor of what you propose, but not enough to stand up and be counted.

stand up before someone Go to up before someone.

stand up for someone or something to take the side of someone or something; to defend someone or something. □ I hope you will stand up for me if the going gets rough. □ We will have to stand up for our rights someday.

stand up in court [for a case] to survive a test in a court of law. □ Do you think that this case will stand up in court? □ These charges will never stand up in court. They are too vague.

stand up to someone or something to take a stand against someone or something; to hold one's ground or principles in the face of a challenge by someone or something. □ He is a tough customer, and you have to learn to stand up to him. □ Can the witness stand up to questioning by the prosecution?

stand up with someone to attend someone who is being married. (Usually refers to males.) □ I agreed to stand up with my buddy at his wedding. □ Tom stood up with Harry when the latter got married.

stand (up)on someone or something to be on someone or something, standing. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ To help his back pain, he lay down on his tummy and Jill stood upon him, digging her toes into his back. □ Please don't stand on the bed.

stand well with someone to be acceptable or agreeable to someone. □ That idea doesn't stand well with the management. □ I hope my suggestions stand well with you.

stand with someone to unite with someone, as in defense. □ Don't worry. I'll stand with you to the end. □ He stood with her and they faced the threat together.

a standing joke a subject that regularly and over a period of time causes amusement whenever it is mentioned. □ Uncle Jim's driving was a standing joke. He used to drive incredibly slowly. □ Their mother's inability to make a decision was a standing joke in the Smith family all their lives.

star as someone or something [for someone] to be a featured performer, representing a particular person, or play in a particular role. □ Judy starred as Evita in the Broadway production of the same name. □ Mary starred as an aging countess.

star in something to be a featured actor in a play, movie, opera, etc. □ Roger starred in an off-Broadway play last season. □ Mary always wanted to star in her own movie, but it was not to be.

star-crossed lovers ill-fated lovers. □ I suppose that Romeo and Juliet are star-crossed lovers.

stare at someone or something to look fixedly at someone or something. □ Why are you staring at me? □ I was staring at the scenery behind you.

stare into something to gaze fixedly into something. □ She just sat there, staring into space. □ Tom stared into the water, hoping to see a fish or maybe a turtle.

stare out at someone or something 1. to be in a place staring outward at someone or something. □ I stayed in my little room and stared out at the others having fun in the crisp fall air. □ We stared out at the deep snow. 2. [for a face or eyes visible in a place] to be seen staring outward from that place. □ Two bright little cat eyes stared out at me from the basket. □ Her faced stared out of the tiny window.

stare someone down^t to pressure someone to capitulate, back down, or yield by staring. □ Don't try to stare me down. I have nerves of steel. □ I tried to stare down my opponent, but it didn't work.

stare someone in the face 1. Go to look someone in the face. 2. [for evidence] to confront someone directly. (Fig. on stare someone in the face; look someone in the face.) □ Finally, the truth stared me in the face, and I had to admit to myself what had really happened. □ When the facts in the case stared the jury in the face, there was nothing they could do but acquit.

stark raving mad Cliché totally insane; completely crazy; out of control. (Often an exaggeration.) □ When she heard about what happened at the office, she went stark raving mad. □ You must be stark raving mad if you think I would trust you with my car!

stars in one's eyes Fig. an obsession with celebrities, movies, and the theater. (Alludes to movie stars. *Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) □ Many young people have stars in their eyes at this age. □ Anne has stars in her eyes. She wants to go to Hollywood.

*a start 1. and *a jump(start) battery power to help start someone's car, etc. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ My car is stalled. I need to get a start. □ I got my car going. I got a jump from John. 2. help in beginning one's career; a first opportunity in the beginning of one's career. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ She got a start in show business in Cincinnati. □ She had a start when she was only four.

start a fire under someone Go to a fire under someone.

start an all-out effort Go to an all-out effort.

start as something to begin in some original condition or status. □ Every forest fire starts as a small spark. □ The argument started as a small disagreement.

start back (to some place) to begin the journey back to a place. □ When do we start back to Chicago? □ It's time to start back.

start for some place to begin a journey to some place. □ When shall we start for Springfield? □ We will start for Detroit before dawn.

start from scratch to start from the very beginning; to start from nothing. □ Whenever I bake a cake, I start from scratch. I never use a cake mix in a box. □ I built every bit of my own house. I started from scratch and did everything with my own hands.

start from some place 1. [for someone] to begin a journey at some place. (The emphasis is on the location of the start of the journey.) □ We started from California. □ Where will you start from? 2. [for a journey] to begin from a particular point. The journey started from Chicago. Our trip started from the airport in New York.

start in on someone or something to begin dealing with, discussing, or chastising someone or something. Please don't start in on me again! You said enough the previous three times. When will you be ready to start in on painting the house?

start off to begin; to set out on a journey. When do you want to start off? We will start off as soon as we can get everything packed.

start off as someone or something to begin in a particular status, character, rank, etc. I started off as a waiter and ended up as the owner of the restaurant. This tree started off as a tiny seedling only a few years ago.

start off (by doing something) to begin a process by doing a particular thing first. Can I start off by singing the school song? That's a good way to start off.

start off from some place to begin a journey from some place. (The emphasis is on the inception of the journey.) We will start off from Detroit and drive to Chicago. He started off from work rather than home.

start off (on something) 1. to begin a series or sequence. Today I start off on the first volume of my trilogy. I am ready to start off now. 2. to begin a journey. When do we start off on our trip? I'm ready to start off. What about you?

start off on the wrong foot and step off on the wrong foot Fig. to begin things incorrectly. (As if one were beginning to march and began on the right rather than the left foot.) Give me some advice. I don't want to start off on the wrong foot. Tim stepped off on the wrong foot in his new job.

start (off) with a bang Fig. to begin with considerable excitement. The program started off with a bang and the whole show was great. The day started off with a bang and kept going that way.

start (off) with a clean slate and start (over) with a clean slate Fig. to start out again afresh; to ignore the past and start over again. I plowed under all last year's flowers so I could start with a clean slate next spring. If I start off with a clean slate, then I'll know exactly what each plant is. When Bob got out of jail, he started over with a clean slate.

start (off) with someone or something to begin a task or a process with someone or something. I will start off with one volunteer and then add others as we go along. I will start off with one hot dog and get another later if I want it.

start on someone or something 1. to begin dealing with someone or something. We have finished talking about Gary, and now we will start on Bob. We will start on dessert after you have finished your broccoli. 2. to begin to castigate someone or something Don't start on me! I didn't do anything wrong! The politician started on the opposing party, and everyone in the audience cheered.

start out to begin. Whenever you are ready, we will start out. We can't start out until Tom is here.

start out as something to begin one's career as something. I started out as a clerk and two years later I'm still a clerk! I wanted to start out as an assistant manager.

start out (on something) to begin something, such as a trip, a career, an investigation, etc. When we started out on this investigation, I never dreamed we would uncover so much. What time did you start out this morning?

start out with someone or something to begin something in association with someone or something. I started out the project with Jeff, but he had to be replaced. We started out with the Acme Corp., but they could not handle all our work.

start over to begin again. I have messed this up so much that there is nothing to do now but start over. When you start over, try to do it right this time.

start (over) with a clean slate Go to start (off) with a clean slate.

start someone in (as something) and start someone out (as something) to start someone on a job as a certain kind of worker. I got a job in a restaurant today. They started me in as a dishwasher. I now work for the telephone company. They started me out as a local operator.

start someone off[†] (on something) to cause someone to begin on a task or job. I have to start Jeff off on this task, then I will talk to you. I will start off my workers on the job tomorrow.

start someone out (as something) Go to start someone in (as something).

start someone out at an amount of money to start someone working at a particular salary. We will start you out at $30,000. I wanted to be started out at $35,000.

start someone over to cause someone to begin again; to lead someone to begin again. The orchestra messed up the first few bars, so the conductor started them over again. I hope the conductor doesn't start us over again. This is getting boring to play.

start someone up[†] (in something) to help someone get a start in some enterprise. My uncle started me up in business. I started up my niece in the candy business.

start something to start a fight or an argument. (Something can be replaced by anything or nothing with the negative.) Hey, you! Better be careful unless you want to start something. I don't want to start anything. I'm just leaving.

start something up[†] to start something, such as a car or some procedure. (Also without up.) It was cold, but I managed to start up the car without any difficulty. We can't start the project up until we have more money.

start something up[†] with something to use something in the process of starting something else. Do you have to start this old car up with a crank? Do you start up this car with a crank?

start the ball rolling Go to get the ball rolling.

start up to begin; to begin running, as with an engine. The car started up without a problem. The engines of the plane started up one by one.

start up with someone or something to begin by using someone or something. We will start up with two clerks and add more as we grow. We started up with one old cash register, and now we have six.

startle someone out of something to frighten someone very badly. (The something that may be lost may be expressed as wits, senses, ten years' growth, etc.) The explosion star- bled Polly out of her senses. I frightened myself out of ten years' growth.

starve for some food to be very hungry for something. I am just starved for some fresh peaches. We were starved for dinner by the time we finally got to eat.

starve for someone or something Fig. to have a strong desire or need for someone or something. (Based on starved for some food.) I am starved for Jane. I miss her so! Claire was starved for affection.

starve someone or an animal into something to force someone or an animal to do something by starvation. The torturers finally starved the prisoner into telling the battle plans. They starved the water buffalo into a state of weakness.

starve someone or an animal out of some place and starve someone or an animal out^t to force a living creature to come out of a hiding place or a place of security by starvation. The attackers tried to starve the people out of the walled city. We tried to starve out the mice.

stash something away^t to hide something; to set something aside for use at a later time. Please stash this away somewhere. You may need it someday. You should stash away some money for later.

stash something in something to put or shove something into something; to store or hide something in something. You should stash your food in a place that is safe from bears when you go camping. I stashed my clothes in my suitcase and called a taxi.

state of mind basic attitude or outlook at a point in time. She was in a terrible state of mind when she was interviewed for a job.

state of the art using the most recent technology. (Hyphenated before nouns.) Our company's computer setup is strictly state of the art. This state-of-the-art radio is capable of filling the whole room with sound.

station someone at something to position or place someone near something. The manager stationed a receptionist at the door. Would you station a guard at the back door to keep people out?

stave someone or something off^t to hold someone or something off; to defend against the attack of someone or something. (See also stave something off.) The citizen was not able to stave the mugger off. The army staved off the attackers for three hours without letup.

stave something in^t to crush something in. (The past tense is usually stove with ships, and otherwise, staved.) The rocks on the reef staved the hull of the ship in. The angry sailor staved in the cask of rum.

stave something off^t to delay or postpone something unwanted, such as hunger, foreclosure, death, etc. (See also stave someone or something off.) He could stave his thirst off no longer. Despite the enemy sentries, he made a dash for the stream. The lost hiker could not stave off her hunger any longer.

stay abreast of someone or something Go to abreast of someone or something.

stay after someone (about something) Go to keep after someone (about something).

stay after (someone or something) to remain behind later than someone or something. I will stay after the others and clean up. I would be happy to stay after school.

stay ahead of something Go to ahead of something.

stay ahead of the game Go to ahead of the game.

stay aloof from someone or something Go to aloof from someone or something.

stay at some place 1. to remain at a place. Have you ever tried to make a cat stay at one place? Please stay at home until I call you. 2. to live at a place temporarily. I am staying at the Statler Hotel. At what hotel are you staying while you are in town?

stay at something to keep working at something. You should stay at something until you finish it. She couldn't seem to stay at her place of work for a whole day.

stay away (from someone or something) Go to away (from someone or something).

stay back (from something) to keep one's distance from someone or something. Stay back from the lawn mower! This is dangerous. Stay back!

stay behind [for someone] to remain in a place when others have left. I will stay behind and tell the late arrivals where you have gone. Fred always stayed behind to clean up.

stay behind someone or something Go to behind someone or something.

stay by someone or something to remain close to someone or something. Please stay by me until we get through this crowd of rough-looking people. Stay by the wall and move along slowly.

stay clear of someone or something to keep one's distance from something, usually something dangerous. Please stay clear of me. I have the flu. Stay clear of that machine. It is dangerous.

stay down to remain in a prone, squatting, or sitting position. Stay down until the danger is over. Stay down so they won't see you.

stay for something to remain in a place to participate in something. Would you please stay for dinner? I am sorry, but we cannot stay for dinner.

stay in limbo Go to in limbo.

stay in (something) to remain inside a place or thing; to stay indoors. Please stay in the house. It's too cold to go outside. You should stay in when it's this cold.

stay in the back of someone's mind Go to in the back of someone's mind.

stay in the boonies Go to in the boondocks.

stay in the dark (about someone or something) Go to in the dark (about someone or something).

stay in the fast lane Go to in the fast lane.

stay in touch (with someone or something) Go to keep in touch (with someone or something).

stay loose Go to hang loose.

stay off (something) to keep off of something. Please stay off my lawn! Stay off!

stay on a diet Go to on a diet.

stay on (after someone or something) Go to linger on (after someone or something).

stay on course Go to on course.

stay on (one's) guard (against someone or something) Go to on (one's) guard (against someone or something).

stay on one's toes Go to on one's toes.

stay on (some place) to remain at a place longer than had been planned. I stayed on in Paris for nearly two years. Mary liked it there and decided to stay on.

stay on something 1. to remain on something, such as a horse, road, stool, etc. The first time I rode, I could hardly stay on the horse. It was so slippery that I had trouble staying on the road. 2. to continue to pursue something. I will stay on this problem until it is settled. She stayed on the matter for weeks until it had been dealt with.

stay on the good side of someone Go to keep on the right side of someone.

stay on top of someone or something 1. Lit. to remain positioned on the top of someone or something. Please stay on top of the hill until we call you. The wind is blowing and this sheet of plastic will not stay on top of me, so I am getting soaked! 2. Fig. to keep well-informed about someone or something; to keep watch over someone or something. You have to stay on top of her if you want her to do it right. I will stay on top of this project.

stay one step ahead of someone or something Go to keep one step ahead of someone or something.

Stay out of my way. Go to Keep out of my way.

stay out of sight Go to out of sight.

stay out (of something) 1. Lit. to keep out of something or some place. Stay out of here! Please stay out until we are ready. 2. Fig. to remain uninvolved in some piece of business. I decided to stay out of it and let someone else handle it. My help wasn't needed there, so I just stayed out.

Stay out of this! Go to Keep out of this!

stay over (somewhere) to stay overnight in a dwelling other than one's own. Can I stay over at Jimmy's tonight? No, you can't stay over.

stay put not to move; to stay where one is. We've decided to stay put and not to move to Florida. If the children just stay put, their parents will come for them soon.

stay to something to remain in a place for something, such as dinner. I hope you will stay to dinner. I stayed to lunch because they were having fried shrimp.

stay under (something) to remain concealed or protected beneath something. You had better stay under the blankets until I get the fire started in the fireplace. Stay under and keep warm.

stay up (for something) to remain awake and out of bed for some nighttime event. I will stay up for her arrival. I can't stay up that late.

stay up late to remain awake and out of bed later than usual. I am in the practice of staying up late. I can't stay up late three nights in a row.

stay up until a particular time to remain awake and out of bed until a particular time. I stayed up until long past midnight last night. Do you think Susie should stay up until midnight?

stay with someone or something to remain in the company of someone or something. Please stay with me for a little while. How long did you stay with the company?

stay within something to remain inside something. You will have to stay within the immediate area until things return to normal in the town. Our dog just can't seem to stay within our yard.

stay young at heart Go to young at heart.

steady as a rock Cliché very steady and unmovable; very stable. (*Also: as ~.) His hand was steady as a rock as he made each incision. You must remain as steady as a rock when you are arguing with your supervisor.

steal a base Fig. to sneak from one base to another in baseball. The runner stole second base, but he nearly got put out on the way. Tom runs so slowly that he never tries to steal a base.

steal a glance at someone or something Fig. to sneak a peek at someone or something. He stole a glance at his brother, who appeared to be as frightened as he was. Karen stole a glance at her watch and yawned.

steal a march on someone or something to precede someone who has the same goal; to accomplish something before someone else does. Jeff stole a march on all of us when he had his story published. Our competitor stole a march on us and got the big contract.

steal away (from someone or something) to sneak away from someone or something. The thief stole away from the policeman. We stole away from the boring lecture.

steal from someone or something to rob someone or something. You wouldn't steal from a poor man, would you? Max didn't feel bad about stealing from a bank.

steal out of some place to sneak quietly out of some place. The critic stole out of the theater, unable to endure any more of the abysmal play. I stole out of the lecture and went back to my room.

steal over someone or something 1. [for a covering of some sort] to move slowly over someone or something. (As with the sun or the shade of a cloud.) The shade stole over the sunbathers and ended their day. Darkness stole over the land. 2. [for a feeling] to spread through someone gradually. A feeling of gloom stole over the crowd. A sense of high excitement stole over the boys as they waited.

steal someone's heart Fig. to capture someone's affections; to cause someone to fall in love with oneself. When I first met him, I knew he would steal my heart away. And he did.

steal someone's thunder Fig. to lessen someone's force or authority. What do you mean by coming in here and stealing my thunder? I'm in charge here! Someone stole my thunder by leaking my announcement to the press.

steal something from someone or something to take the property belonging to someone or something without permission; to commit the theft of something from someone or something. Max stole $50 from Henry. Lefty stole an apple from the fruit stand.

steal something off someone to rob something from someone. □ I think that guy who walked past me stole my wallet off me! □ Max stole a lot of money off tourists last season.

steal the show Go to next.

steal the spotlight and steal the show Fig. to give the best performance in a show, play, or some other event; to get attention for oneself. □ The lead in the play was very good, but the butler stole the show. □ Ann always tries to steal the spotlight when she and I make a presentation.

steal up on someone or something to sneak up on someone or something. □ We will steal up on Tony and give him a scare. □ The fox stole up on the hen and grabbed it.

steam across something [for a ship] to cross a body of water under power. (Originally referred to steam engines, but now can be any sort of engine.) □ How long does it take to steam across the Atlantic these days? □ We steamed across the bay in less than an hour.

steam in((to) something) [for a vehicle, usually a ship] to enter something under power. (Originally referred to steam engines, but now can be any sort of engine.) □ The ship steamed into the harbor and headed for the pier. □ Right on time, the ship steamed in.

steam out (of some place) [for a conveyance, usually a ship] to exit something under power. (Originally referred to steam engines, but now can be any sort of engine.) □ The huge diesel engines began to labor, and the ship steamed out of its berth. □ It shuddered a couple of times and steamed out.

steam someone's beam Sl. to make someone angry. □ Being stood up really steams my beam! □ Come on, don't steam your beam. Remember how hard times are now.

steam someone up¹ Sl. to get someone excited. □ Steam yourselves up and get in there and win this game! □ The coach can really steam up those guys. 2. Sl. to get someone angry. □ This whole mess steamed me up but good. □ The long critical statement simply steamed up my opponent in the debate.

steam something off (of) something and steam something^t to loosen and remove something by an application of steam. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Toby steamed the old paper off the wall. □ Toby steamed off the old wallpaper.

S steam something out of something and steam something out^t to remove something embedded, through an application of steam. □ The cleaner was not able to steam the wrinkles out of my jacket. □ I tried to steam out the gum.

steam something up^t to cause something to be covered with water vapor due to the presence of steam. □ Our breaths steamed the windows up. □ The hot shower steamed up the mirror.

steam up 1. Lit. to become covered with a film of steam or water vapor. □ The windows steamed up and we had to wipe them so we could see out. □ The window has steamed up, and I can't see. 2. to drink heavily; to get drunk. □ Fred and Mike were steaming up in the back room.

steamed (up) angry. □ Now, now, don't get so steamed up! □ She is really massively steamed. 2. Sl. intoxicated and fighting. □ He was really steamed—and could hardly stand up. □ By midnight, Larry was too steamed to drive home, and he had to spend the night.

steaming (mad) Fig. very angry; very mad; very upset. □ The steaming coach yelled at the clumsy players. □ The principal was steaming mad when he found that his office had been vandalized.

steel oneself for someone or something to prepare oneself for someone or something difficult or unpleasant; to get ready to face someone or something. □ Aunt Helen is coming for a visit. We should steel ourselves for her. □ I think something is going wrong. We had better steel ourselves for a shock.

steel someone against someone or something to fortify someone against someone or something; to prepare someone to endure someone or something. □ I tried to steel Liz against Carl, who was bringing her some very bad news. □ We steeled her against the bad news.

a steely gaze Cliché an intense, staring gaze. □ The principal turned a steely gaze toward the frightened student and suddenly smiled.

steep someone in something Fig. to immerse someone in some kind of knowledge or other experience; to saturate someone with some kind of experience or training. (Fig. on steep something in something.) □ Her parents steeped her in good literature and music. □ She steeped herself in the legends of her people.

steep something in something to soak something in a liquid. □ I steeped the shirt in red dye. □ You have to steep these herbs in steamy hot water for five minutes.

steer away from someone or something to move or turn away from someone or something. □ You had better steer away from Jeff. He is in a terrible mood. □ Try to steer away from the potholes. The road is full of them.

steer clear (of someone or something) to avoid someone or something. □ John is mad at me, so I've been steering clear of him. □ Steer clear of that book. It has many errors in it.

steer into something to turn or drive into something. □ Try to steer into the right parking space this time. □ Poor Wally steered into the curb.

steer someone or something through something to guide someone or something through something that is confusing or treacherous. □ I tried to steer Judy through the registration procedure, but I really didn't know what I was doing. □ Should I try to steer my car through all this foot traffic or take a different route?

steer something for something to aim oneself or one's vehicle toward something. □ Jeff steered the car for the entrance to the tunnel and stepped on the gas. □ The driver steered the bus for the center lane just in time.

steer something toward someone or something to guide something in the direction of someone or something. □ The farmer steered the tractor toward the sheriff, who had come to talk to the farmer. □ Please steer the car toward the right side.

steer through something to maneuver through something that is confusing or treacherous. □ Do you think you can steer through this flooded tunnel? □ I can't steer through this mess of leaves and mud on the road.

steer toward someone or something to turn or drive toward someone or something. □ He steered toward the empty parking space, but someone got there before he did. □ Steer toward the house with the red door.

stem from something [for an event] to result from something. □ These problems all stem from your mismanagement. □ Our difficulties stem from the bad weather we have been having.

step aside (for someone) 1. Lit. to move out of someone's way. □ Would you step aside for my uncle and his walker? □ We had to step aside for the people in wheelchairs to get by. 2. Fig. to retire from an office so someone else can take over. □ The president retired and stepped aside for someone else. □ Walter stepped aside for a younger person to take over.

step away from one's desk Go to away from one's desk.

step back (from someone or something) to move away from someone or something; to move back so as to provide space around someone or something. □ Please step back from the injured woman. Give her some air. □ Step back and give her some air.

step back on someone or something to move back and tread on someone or something in the process. □ Jeff stepped back on Judy and made her yelp with pain. □ Jeff stepped back on the cat.

step between someone or something and someone or something else to move between things or people. □ Jeff stepped between Judy and the gunman. □ He stepped between Judy and the wall.

step down (from something) 1. Lit. to come down from something; to alight from something. □ Please step down from the platform. □ She stepped down and went back to her chair. 2. Fig. to resign a job or a responsibility. □ The mayor stepped down from office last week. □ It's unusual for a mayor to step down.

step forward 1. Lit. to move forward one step or several steps. □ The volunteer stepped forward. □ I stepped forward and someone moved up behind me immediately. 2. Fig. to volunteer to present important information. □ When I go into court, I will have to step forward and present evidence. It is my civic duty. □ If you have information to present, you should step forward and seek recognition to do so.

step in something Go to step into something.

step inside (some place) to walk into a place. □ Please step inside my office, and we will discuss this matter. □ Please step inside.

step in(to some place) to walk into a place. □ Tiffany stepped into the room and said hello to everyone. □ She stepped in to say hello.

step into someone's shoes Fig. to take over a job or some role from someone. □ I was prepared to step into the boss's shoes, so there was no disruption when he left for another job. □ There was no one who could step into Alice's shoes when she left, so everything came to a stop.

step into something 1. Lit. and step in something to step into something wet, messy, or dirty. □ Don't step in the mud! □ What is that stinky stuff you stepped into? 2. Fig. to involve oneself in some matter; to intervene in an affair or dispute. □ I will have to step into the business and settle the problem. □ Please don't step into something that does not concern you.

step in(to the breach) Fig. [for someone] to assume a position or take on a responsibility when there is a need or an opportunity to do so. □ The person who was supposed to help didn't show up, so I stepped into the breach. □ The manager stepped into the breach when Jane got sick.

step off to come off something by taking a step. □ She came to the bottom step and stepped off. □ Ed was afraid to dive in from the side of the pool, so he just stepped off.

step off (of) something to leave something elevated with one's first step. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ She stepped off the bottom step and walked down the street. □ Tony stepped off of the bank and waded across the stream.

step off on the wrong foot Go to start off on the wrong foot.

step off (to the side) with someone Go to off (to the side) with someone.

step on it Go to step on the gas.

step on someone or something to tread on someone or something. □ Ouch! You stepped on me! □ Don't step on the flooring in that spot. It's weak.

step on someone's toes and tread on someone's toes 1. Lit. to step down onto someone's toes, causing pain. □ Please don't step on my toes as you walk by. 2. Fig. to offend or insult someone, as if causing physical pain. □ You're sure I won't be stepping on her toes if I talk directly to her supervisor? □ I didn't mean to tread on your toes.

step on the gas and step on it to hurry up; to make a vehicle go faster. (As if stepping on an automobile's accelerator. □ Step on the gas. We are going to be late! □ Step on it! Let's go!

step out into something to go out from a place into a different set of conditions. □ Julie stepped out of her previous job into a whole new world. □ Wally stepped out into the bright sunlight.

step out of line 1. Lit. to move out of a line of people. □ If you step out of line, you will lose your place in it. □ I had to step out of line to sit down on the curb and rest for a minute. 2. Fig. to misbehave; to deviate from normal, expected, or demanded behavior. □ If you step out of line again, I'll slap you. □ Tom stepped out of line once too often and got yelled at.

step out (of something) 1. to go out of a place. □ She stepped out of the house without a coat and nearly froze to death. □ Jamie stepped out and got wet in the rain. 2. to take one step to get out of pants of some type that have been dropped. □ He stepped out of his pants and pulled off his shirt. □ He dropped his pants and stepped out.

step out (on someone) to be unfaithful to a spouse or lover. □ Jeff has been stepping out on Judy. □ I was not stepping out!

step outside 1. to go outside, as if to get some fresh air. □ I need to step outside for a minute to get a breath of air. □ Tom and Harry stepped outside for a moment. 2. to go outside to fight or settle an argument. □ I find that insulting. Would you care to step outside? □ Max invited Lefty to step outside.

step over someone or something to walk so as to avoid stepping on someone or something. □ I stepped over Tom, who

step over (to) some place was napping on the floor. Please step over the things on the floor. We are doing the spring cleaning.

step over (to) some place to move to a place a few steps away. Please step over here and I'll show you some other merchandise. If you will step over to the display case, I will show you some earrings.

step right up to come right to where the speaker is; to come forward to the person speaking. (Used by people selling things, as at carnival sideshows.) Please step right up and buy a ticket to see the show. Don't be shy! Step right up and buy one of these.

step something down[†] to reduce the intensity or amount of something by one step or grade. See if you can step the lights down a little. Step down the lights just a little more.

step something off[†] to measure a distance by counting the paces required to cover it. She stepped the distance off and noted it on her pad. Liz stepped off the number of feet from the window to the opposite wall.

step something up[†] 1. to make something more active. I hope we can step the pace of business up in the next few days. We can step up business considerably by putting out a larger sign. 2. to make something go or run faster. The engineer stepped the motors up and the production line moved even faster. Please step up the speed of your activity.

step up to increase. Industrial production stepped up a large amount this last quarter. Traffic has stepped up since the road was paved.

step up to something to walk to something, especially a counter or a bar. Jake stepped up to the ticket counter and bought a single ticket for the balcony. When Wally stepped up to the ticket window, he learned that the show was sold out.

step up to the plate 1. Lit. [for a batter in baseball] to move near home plate in preparation for striking the ball when it is pitched. The batter stepped up to the plate and glared at the pitcher. 2. Fig. to move into a position where one is ready to do a task. It's time for Tom to step up to the plate and take on his share of work.

step-by-step 1. Lit. [walking] one step at a time. The old man slowly moved across the lawn step-by-step. 2. Fig. little by little. Just follow the instructions step-by-step, and everything will be fine.

stew in one's own juice Fig. to be left alone to suffer one's anger or disappointment. John has such a terrible temper. When he got mad at us, we just let him go away and stew in his own juice. After John stewed in his own juice for a while, he decided to come back and apologize to us.

stick around [for a person] to remain in a place. The kids stuck around for a time after the party was over. Oh, Ann. Please stick around for a while. I want to talk to you later.

stick at something to keep trying to do something; to stay on a task or job. I hope he can stick at this job. He doesn't seem to be able to stick at anything for very long.

stick by someone or something and stick with someone or something to support someone or something; to continue supporting or committing to someone or something when things are bad. Don't worry. I'll stick by you no matter what. I feel as if I have to stick by my brother even if he goes to jail.

Stick 'em up! Go to Hands up!

stick in someone's mind to remain in someone's thinking. The events of that day stuck in my mind for a very long time. The image of her smiling face stuck in Henry's mind for a long time.

stick in something to remain embedded in something; to remain held in something. Do you think this will stick in the hole, or is it too small? A fish bone stuck in his throat for a while.

stick it to someone Inf. to give someone a problem; to confront someone. They stuck it to me about the stopped-up drain. He was late, and the boss really stuck it to him.

stick man Sl. a police patrol officer (who carries a stick). The stick man is due here in about three minutes. Hurry. I was a stick man for a few years till my feet went bad.

stick one's foot in one's mouth Go to put one's foot in one's mouth.

stick one's neck out (for someone or something) Fig. to take a risk. Why should I stick my neck out to do something for her? What's she ever done for me? He made a risky investment. He stuck his neck out for the deal because he thought he could make some big money.

stick one's nose in (where it's not wanted) Go to put one's nose in (where it's not wanted).

stick one's nose in(to something) Go to poke one's nose in(to something).

stick one's nose up in the air Fig. to behave in a haughty manner. Jeff stuck his nose up in the air and walked out. Don't stick your nose up in the air. Come down to earth with the rest of us.

stick one's oar in[†] Go to put one's oar in[†].

stick one's tongue out[†] Fig. to cause one's tongue to project outward. (A gesture of contempt.) Don't stick your tongue out at me! She stuck out her tongue at me!

stick out to project outward. You can't lock your suitcase because there is a bit of cloth sticking out. Some cloth stuck out of the top of the drawer.

stick out a mile Fig. to project outward very obviously. My nose sticks out a mile! I hate it! His stomach sticks out a mile. What do you suppose is in there?

stick out against something to be highly visible against a background of something. Your cold, red nose sticks out against your white, frozen face. The red vase sticks out against the pale blue wallpaper.

stick out (from someone or something) to project outward from someone or something. His right arm, which was in a cast, stuck out from him like a crane. His arm stuck out.

stick out like a sore thumb Fig. to be very obvious. That pimple really sticks out like a sore thumb. Do you think I would stick out like a sore thumb at the party if I wear this coat?

stick out (of someone or something) to protrude from someone or something. The arrow stuck out of him, wobbling as he staggered. A dollar bill stuck out of the book. What a strange bookmark.

stick shift 1. having to do with a nonautomatic transmission or a car that has one. □ I prefer a stick shift car—I don't know why. □ The stick shift models are cheaper—that's why. 2. a nonautomatic transmission. □ I can't drive a stick shift! □ My husband took the other car and stuck me with the stick shift.

stick someone or something up[†] to rob someone or a business establishment. (Presumably with the aid of a gun.) □ Max tried to stick the drugstore up. □ Max stuck up the store.

stick someone with someone or something to burden someone with someone or something. □ The dishonest merchant stuck me with a faulty television set. □ John stuck me with his talkative uncle and went off with his friends.

stick something down[†] to fasten something down, as with glue or paste. □ Get some glue and stick down this wallpaper, please. □ Stick this wallpaper down, would you?

stick something into someone or something and stick something in[†] to insert something into someone or something. □ The technician stuck a needle into my arm and took some blood out. □ She stuck in the needle.

stick something on(to) someone or something and stick something on[†] to affix something onto someone or something. □ The baggage clerk stuck a label onto Jimmy as a joke. □ Jimmy stuck on the label.

stick something out[†] to endure something; to stay with something. (The something can be vaguely expressed using it.) □ I will stick it out as long as I can. □ She stuck out the abuse as long as she could; then she started looking for another job.

stick something out[†] to someone to hold something, such as one's hand, out where someone can grasp it. □ She stuck her hand out to him, intending that he shake it. □ Ted stuck out his hand to Bill, but withdrew it suddenly.

stick something through someone or something to push something so that it penetrates someone or something. □ The good knight stuck his lance through the bad knight. □ I stuck my fist through the flimsy wall.

stick something together 1. to glue or paste something together. □ Use glue to stick these pieces together. □ Please stick the pieces of the broken vase together with glue. 2. to assemble something, perhaps in haste. □ He just stuck the model plane together, making a mess of it. □ Don't stick the parts together so fast. It won't look good.

stick something up[†] 1. to fasten something to a place where it can be seen; to put something on display, especially by gluing, tacking, or stapling. □ Stick this notice up. Put a copy on every bulletin board. □ Please stick up this notice. 2. to raise something; to hold something up. □ She stuck her hand up because she knew the answer. □ The elephant stuck up its trunk and trumpeted.

stick to one's guns Fig. to remain firm in one's convictions; to stand up for one's rights. (Fig. on a soldier remaining in place to fire a gun even when all appears to be lost.) □ I'll stick to my guns on this matter. I'm sure I'm right. □ Bob can be persuaded to do it our way. He probably won't stick to his guns on this point.

stick to one's ribs Fig. [for food] to last long and fortify one well; [for food] to sustain one even in the coldest weather. □ This oatmeal ought to stick to your ribs. You need something hearty on a cold day like this. □ I don't want just a salad! I want something that will stick to my ribs.

stick to someone or something 1. Lit. to adhere to someone or something; to remain affixed to someone or something. □ The tape stuck to me and I couldn't get it off. □ This stamp won't stick to the envelope. 2. Fig. to continue to accompany someone or something. □ Stick to me and I'll lead you out of here. □ Stick to the group of us, and you'll be okay. 3. Fig. to continue to use or employ someone or something. □ I'll stick to Jill. She does a good job and she's my friend. □ We decided to stick to our present supplier.

stick to someone's fingers Fig. to remain in someone's possession; to be stolen by someone. □ Other people's watches tend to stick to Max's fingers. □ Watch that clerk. Your change tends to stick to his fingers.

stick together 1. Lit. to adhere to one another. □ The noodles are sticking together. What shall I do? □ You need to keep the pieces separate while you fry them or else they will stick together. 2. Fig. to remain in one another's company. □ Let us stick together so we don't get lost. □ They stuck together through thick and thin.

stick up to stand upright or on end; to thrust upward. □ The ugly red flower stuck up from the bouquet. □ Why is the worst-looking flower sticking up above all the rest?

stick up for someone or something to support someone or something; to speak in favor of someone or something. □ Everyone was making unpleasant remarks about John, but I stuck up for him. □ Our team was losing, but I stuck up for it anyway.

Stick with it. Do not give up. Stay with your task. □ Bill: I'm really tired of calculus. Father: Stick with it. You'll be a better person for it. □ Bill: This job is getting to be such a pain. Sue: True, but it pays well, doesn't it? Stick with it.

stick with someone or something Go to stick by someone or something.

stick-in-the-mud Fig. a dull and old-fashioned person. □ Don't be such an old stick-in-the-mud. □ Some stick-in-the-mud objected to the kind of music we wanted to play in church.

Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt me. Prov. You do not hurt me by calling me names. (A reply to someone who has called you names. Primarily used by children; sounds childish when used by adults.) □ Brother: You're stupid and mean, and everybody hates you! Sister: Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt me.

stiff as a poker rigid and inflexible; stiff and awkward. (Usually used to describe people. *Also: as ~.) □ This guy's dead. He's cold and as stiff as a poker. □ John is not a very good dancer; he's stiff as a poker.

