

Over 24,000
phrases and expressions

McGraw-Hill's
Dictionary
of American
Idioms

The Most Practical Reference to the Idiomatic and Verbal Expressions of Contemporary American English

McGraw-Hill's
Dictionary
of American Idioms
and Phrasal Verbs

Richard A. Spears, Ph.D.

McGraw-Hill

New York Chicago San Francisco Lisbon London Madrid Mexico City Milan New Delhi San Juan Seoul Singapore Sydney Toronto

Copyright © 2005 by The McGraw-Hill Companies, Inc. All rights reserved. Manufactured in the United States of America. Except as permitted under the United States Copyright Act of 1976, no part of this publication may be reproduced or distributed in any form or by any means, or stored in a database or retrieval system, without the prior written permission of the publisher.

0-07-143578-6

The material in this eBook also appears in the print version of this title: 0-07-140858-4.

All trademarks are trademarks of their respective owners. Rather than put a trademark symbol after every occurrence of a trademarked name, we use names in an editorial fashion only, and to the benefit of the trademark owner, with no intention of infringement of the trademark. Where such designations appear in this book, they have been printed with initial caps. McGraw-Hill eBooks are available at special quantity discounts to use as premiums and sales promotions, or for use in corporate training programs. For more information, please contact George Hoare, Special Sales, at george_hoare@mcgraw-hill.com or (212) 904-4069.

TERMS OF USE

This is a copyrighted work and The McGraw-Hill Companies, Inc. (“McGraw-Hill”) and its licensors reserve all rights in and to the work. Use of this work is subject to these terms. Except as permitted under the Copyright Act of 1976 and the right to store and retrieve one copy of the work, you may not decompile, disassemble, reverse engineer, reproduce, modify, create derivative works based upon, transmit, distribute, disseminate, sell, publish or sublicense the work or any part of it without McGraw-Hill’s prior consent. You may use the work for your own noncommercial and personal use; any other use of the work is strictly prohibited. Your right to use the work may be terminated if you fail to comply with these terms.

THE WORK IS PROVIDED “AS IS.” MCGRAW-HILL AND ITS LICENSORS MAKE NO GUARANTEES OR WARRANTIES AS TO THE ACCURACY, ADEQUACY OR COMPLETENESS OF OR RESULTS TO BE OBTAINED FROM USING THE WORK, INCLUDING ANY INFORMATION THAT CAN BE ACCESSED THROUGH THE WORK VIA HYPERLINK OR OTHERWISE, AND EXPRESSLY DISCLAIM ANY WARRANTY, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY OR FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE. McGraw-Hill and its licensors do not warrant or guarantee that the functions contained in the work will meet your requirements or that its operation will be uninterrupted or error free. Neither McGraw-Hill nor its licensors shall be liable to you or anyone else for any inaccuracy, error or omission, regardless of cause, in the work or for any damages resulting therefrom. McGraw-Hill has no responsibility for the content of any information accessed through the work. Under no circumstances shall McGraw-Hill and/or its licensors be liable for any indirect, incidental, special, punitive, consequential or similar damages that result from the use of or inability to use the work, even if any of them has been advised of the possibility of such damages. This limitation of liability shall apply to any claim or cause whatsoever whether such claim or cause arises in contract, tort or otherwise.

DOI: 10.1036/0071435786

Contents

About This Dictionary	v
How to Use This Dictionary	ix
Acknowledgments	xv
Terms and Symbols	xvii
Dictionary	1
Phrase-Finder Index	783

This page intentionally left blank.

About This Dictionary

All languages have phrases that cannot be understood literally and, therefore, cannot be used with confidence. They are opaque or unpredictable because they don't have expected, literal meaning. Even if you know the meaning of all the words in a phrase and understand all the grammar of the phrase completely, the meaning of the phrase may still be confusing. A phrase or sentence of this type is said to be idiomatic. This dictionary is a collection of the idiomatic phrases and sentences that occur frequently in American English. Many of them occur in some fashion in other varieties of English also.

Many overlapping terms have been used to describe the idiomatic phrases included here: verbal collocations, idioms, idiomatic expressions, clichés, proverbs, set phrases, fixed phrases, phrasal verbs, common phrases, prepositional verbs, and phrasal/prepositional verbs. They all offer the same kinds of problems to the speaker and writer of English. They are unclear because the meaning of the phrase is not literal or predictable. Phrasal verbs, also called two-word verbs, are idiomatic expressions because the second element of the verb (the adverb or preposition) is not necessarily predictable. For instance, why the word up in call up a friend? Why not say call on a friend or call in a friend? Actually, those are three separate, unpredictable combinations, and they each mean something completely different. For example, you can call up a friend on the telephone, call on a friend to have a visit, and call in a friend to come and help you with something.

Although there are some entries that are very casual or informal English, slang and idioms should not be confused. Some slang is also idiomatic, and some idioms are also slang, but generally they refer to different aspects of language. There are a few slang terms in this dictionary, because they are also fairly commonly known idioms.

GOALS OF THE DICTIONARY

A major goal of this dictionary is to make certain that each definition of a phrase illustrates the meaning of the phrase and matches it in syntax. The major exceptions are definitions that begin with "a phrase" or "an expression." Similarly, the examples for each sense must match the definition in meaning and syntax. The best use of the entries is to study the entry head, definition, and example carefully. Look for the meaning that is common to all three. If the diligent user can see the elements of meaning shared by the entry phrase, the definition, and the example(s), the dictionary entry has done its task well.

A second goal is to provide the learner with enough information about the many forms that an idiom might take to allow the user to recognize it in a variety of contexts and to be able to use it in speech and writing.

A third goal is to make the details accessible to the learner. Idiomatic expressions and their variants are complex and unpredictable. There are many synonyms and near synonyms. General cross-referencing in the body of the dictionary will help users find synonymous phrases. The Phrase-Finder Index provides a powerful tool for locating entry forms embedded in other entries and partially remembered phrases. The form of the entry is quite straightforward, consisting of entry, definition, comments (if any), and examples. Senses are numbered and may include variants in addition to those found in the entry head. A minimum of abbreviations and symbols are used, and these are explained in the section "Terms and Symbols." The user who understands the meaning of entry head, variable, and wild card term is equipped to understand everything that follows.

WHO CAN BENEFIT FROM THIS DICTIONARY?

The dictionary will prove useful for native speakers who are looking for synonymous idiomatic phrases. Many phrases can be expressed in a variety of ways, and this dictionary, through cross-referencing, can lead the native speaker to equivalent forms with the same or similar meaning. The index provides a means for a writer to find the most appropriate phrase for a given purpose. Native speakers can find most of what they want by looking up words representing key ideas in the index and following the references to phrases in the dictionary itself.

Likewise, near-native speakers who need help with phrasal verbs and common idiomatic phrases will find this reference very useful. Speakers and writers trained in British English will find this dictionary a good reference for checking on the American form and meaning of expressions previously encountered in British English.

The format of the dictionary is designed to provide the information needed by learners who are attempting to read and write conventional American English. It contains far more detail and specificity than is required by people who have heard, spoken, and written standard American English all their lives. For instance, a dictionary designed for native speakers of English might include the subentries bail out and see through. However, there are major differences in meaning between the idiomatic expressions that can be based on these words.

bail out (of something) “jump out”

bail someone out (of something) “post bond to get a person out of jail” bail something out (of something) “remove water from a boat” bail something out “empty a boat (of accumulated water)” see something through “work at something until it is finished” see through something “see through something that is transparent” see through something “detect a trick or deception”

These differences may never be revealed if the entry heads are just bail out and see through, with no object indicated. This dictionary presents the additional details that a native speaker already knows. The information needed for the learner includes whether the verb can take an object and, if so, what kind of object (human, nonhuman, or both) is needed. The learner also needs to know what additional prepositional phrases are required or optional for the correct use of the expressions.

PHRASE ORIGINS

A surprising number of phrases have literary or Biblical origins. The works of Shakespeare, in particular, have provided many memorable phrases that are in constant use around the world. When the source is the Bible or Shakespeare, as well as other authors, that is noted in the dictionary entries. Most of the phrasal or two-word verbs are due to the Germanic origins of English. The choice of which particle (the second part of a two-word verb) is an ancient problem.

There are many instances, recorded in this dictionary, of a figurative phrasal verb being derived from a more literal interpretation of the same phrasal verb. In these instances, the phrasal verbs (or two-word verbs) appear in both figurative and literal senses in the same entry. One sense helps the user understand the other sense. In this case, the figurative sense has its origin in the literal sense. In entries where this occurs, the literal senses are marked Lit. and the figurative senses are marked Fig.

A high percentage of the entries in this dictionary have their origins in a figurative usage where there is no matching literal sense. That is why they offer special difficulty in understanding. Whenever necessary or possible there is a note in the entry suggesting what a figurative entry is based on or alluding to. Sometimes the relationship is completely obvious and no explanation is offered.

Quite a few of the similes (for example, as busy as a beaver) are contrived and appear to be part of an ever-expanding repertory of colorful and quaint comparisons. Similarly, the senses marked Rur. (rural) are often contrived and may appear more often as colorful expressions in writing than they ever did in real life. That these rural-sounding expressions actually had a rural origin can be debated. Nor can all the similes be taken seriously. They are included because they might be encountered by the learner and their listing here might be useful for a writer—if nothing more than as something to be avoided.

There is another kind of “origin” that needs to be mentioned. There are a few idioms that seem to invite very clever but totally baseless tales of origin. Many of these tales are quite popular and widely known. Two examples of such “story” idioms involve sleep tight and a dead ringer. The first is associated with sleeping on a tightly strung, rope-supported mattress, and the second refers to a corpse ringing a bell. The details depend on the teller of the tale. Such tales of origin are very entertaining to many people. The idioms on which these stories are based are included in this dictionary, but the tale is neither told nor debunked here.

There are many additional phrases that are just the customary patterns used to say things in both casual and more formal situations. Common greetings and responses are included in this category, and these expressions have their origins in the functions they were meant to serve.

WHEN WERE THEY FIRST USED?

Users often have an interest in dating the origins of a phrase. It is possible to put a specific date on the early use of a word by consulting a historical dictionary, such as the Oxford English Dictionary. That will show the earliest usage recorded in the books and other documents that have been consulted for the creation of the dictionary. Some phrases and idioms may be included in the entries and quotations, but that is not the primary focus of a historical dictionary. As more and more data become available in a searchable, digital format, it is possible to find examples of the early uses of specific phrases more easily. A very careful writer of historical novels or screenplays will be interested in making sure that a certain word or phrase was actually in use during the period in question. The OED can be helpful in determining this kind of information. An early date for a phrase (or word) does not necessarily indicate the earliest use of the item nor the period of widespread comprehension in the population, however.

This dictionary offers the user help in seeing semantic relationships and allusions, but it has goals that are quite different from those of a historical dictionary. The major concern here is contemporary usage, and it probably reflects idiomatic English over the last 50 years. The older members of the native-speaking population know more of the entries than the younger people, but the latter will learn more as they age. Probably 75 percent of the entries are widely known, conventional English for 75 percent of the educated, native-speaking adult population.

This page intentionally left blank.

How to Use This Dictionary

For most users, most of the time, a single instruction will be enough, and that is to start with the Phrase-Finder Index.

In the index, look up a major word in the idiom, preferably a verb, and go to the most appropriate dictionary entry listed in the right-hand column. If no appropriate entry is listed at the verb, try an adverb, preposition, or other word.

Further hints can be found at the beginning of the Phrase-Finder Index. The organization and philosophy of the dictionary is discussed in much greater detail below.

ALPHABETIZATION

In the dictionary, phrasal verbs (or two-word verbs) and their related prepositional verbs are alphabetized on the verb. All other idiomatic expressions are alphabetized in their complete forms with no inversion of parts. Entries are not listed by “key word” unless the “key word” is the first word. On the other hand, the index lists all the key words in a phrase. In that way, the key word is the user’s choice and not the compiler’s choice. All alphabetizing is word by word, rather than letter by letter. Initial a, an, and the are ignored in the alphabetization. Significant variants are cross-referenced to a main entry head. In most instances, an object of a verb or preposition is shown by a wild card term, either someone, something, someone or something, or some other expression such as some amount of money. Showing whether an object is human, nonhuman, or of some other semantically limited category is essential to explaining meaning and distinguishing the senses. Wild card terms are included in the alphabetization. In the Phrase-Finder Index, you are shown which entry head to look up. Those entry heads will include wild card terms. It is much easier to look up these expressions in the dictionary itself if the wild card terms are included in the alphabetization.

OVERCOMING OPAQUE AND UNPREDICTABLE PHRASES

There are three general reasons why idiomatic expressions are problems for students, writers, and other adults wishing to expand their skills with conventional American English. The three problems involve (1) difficulties with extracting the core of the idiomatic expression from a sentence or paragraph, (2) the variable nature of idioms, and (3) the basic opaque nature of these phrases. There is little that can be done about opacity other than use a dictionary, but there is some information about the other problems that can help the user. What follows will explain the organization of the dictionary and the way the peculiarities of English phrases have been handled here. It is not necessary to be able to understand the following discussion to use the dictionary.

EXTRACTING THE IDIOMATIC PART OF A SENTENCE

Idiomatic phrases are usually found included within a sentence, and it is difficult to extract the core of the idiom so that it can be looked up in a dictionary. These expressions are often learned in a list, and, unfortunately, the form of the expression presented in the list is probably only one of many variants. In the real world, these expressions are never seen or heard except in a complete sentence. In order to look them up in a dictionary, they have to be extracted from the sentence in which they are found. You cannot look up a phrase that is found within a sentence unless you know the boundaries of the phrase. Here are some hints for extracting idiomatic phrases.

Simplify the Grammar

Entries in the dictionary and index use the singular form of the noun and the present tense (bare) verb. The index actually lists both regular and irregular forms when there are both. For instance old wives' tale is listed in the index under "old," "wife," "wives," and "tale." In order to look something up in either section, the user will save time by using the simplest form. There are more items to choose from at the simplest form.

Look for Nonliteral Meanings

Look for something in the sentence that is not understandable literally. For instance, "Sue is known for thinking ahead of her time." How can Sue think ahead of or in front of time? Only figuratively. Mentally extract the nonliteral phrase, "thinking ahead of her time." Try to match "think ahead of her time" to a phrase in the index by looking at "think" and scanning down to "think ahead" where you find think ahead of one's time or the shorter ahead of one's time.

Ignore Immediate Context

The parts of a sentence that refer to specific places, things, measurements, and activities are not likely to be items you can look up in the index. Examine the sentence "It's almost 6:00, and you, Tom, and I have to thrash this contract out before we can meet the President of Acme Widgets for dinner at 8:00." Ignore the specifics that relate only to this time and place: "6:00," "Tom," "you," "I," "President of Acme Widgets," "dinner at 8:00." That leaves "thrash this contract out." Look up "thrash" in the index and find thrash something out, and it seems to explain the meaning of the sentence perfectly. There are things that can cause confusion, though. "Dinner at 8:00" is a common and well-known phrase. "Acme" is a (once) common name for a company, and "widget" is a common imaginary name for a product. Those words are not in the index, however.

VARIATION IN IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS

Idioms are sometimes called fixed phrases. In the real world, many idiomatic expressions are found in many variations, and this makes them hard to use and even harder to find in a dictionary. What follows is a discussion of the seven kinds of variation shown in this dictionary. Unfortunately, many idiomatic expressions exhibit more than one kind of variation. Fortunately, use of the Phrase-Finder Index to find a particular idiom will eliminate most of the problems caused by variation. It is important to know how the variants are related to each other so you do not think that three variants of a single phrase might have three different meanings. Knowing what the core of an idiomatic expression is, and how it can vary, makes it possible to recognize it and use its variants in a far greater number of contexts.

Grammatical Variation

In idioms in general, nouns can be plural or singular and verbs can occur in a variety of tenses and aspects. Many phrases can appear equally well in the negative or affirmative and undergo question inversion. Use the index to find the simplest form. This will lead you to the appropriate entry, even if the entry contains nouns or verbs that do not vary, such as old wives' tale, which is never singular. Here are some sentence examples of grammatical variation:

- The tape wouldn't adhere to the door.
- Why won't this glue adhere to the doors?
- The adhesive adhered to the door easily.
- That old glue has adhered to the front of the door nicely.
- That old tape has adhered to it nicely.

The thing that all the example sentences have in common is that they all have the verb adhere plus a prepositional phrase beginning with to. The object of to can be a variety of nouns or pronouns. The elements each example shares are: adhere to something, and that is the form of the entry in this dictionary. The general rule is to simply reduce the noun to singular and the verbs to present tense and look up the results in the index.

The Transposable Adverb

Adverbs in certain phrases can swap places with the direct object of a transitive verb. This cannot be done if the object of the verb is a pronoun. Although the result may, in some instances, look like a prepositional phrase, it is not. In the following example containing “down the door,” the word down is an adverb that stands between the verb and its direct object:

She broke down the door with an axe.
She broke the door down with an axe.

Please hammer the nail in.
Please hammer in the nail.

But you cannot say:

*She broke down it.
*Please hammer in it.

The entry head break something down[†] contains a dagger (†) that indicates that the “down” can be transposed to a position just after the verb. Any word marked with the dagger can be transposed to a position immediately following the verb except when the object of the verb is a pronoun. Only the adverbs followed by † can be swapped in this manner.

Prepositions That Become Adverbs

There is both a noun hammer and a verb hammer. Similarly, some particles can function as either prepositions or adverbs, depending on how they are used. Prepositions have objects. Out is a preposition in “Run out the door.” It is an adverb in “Put the cat out.” Some prepositional verbs (verb + prepositional phrase) can become phrasal verbs (verb + adverb) by “losing” the object of the preposition. In the phrase add something into something, add has both an object of the verb and a prepositional phrase. Without the object of the preposition, the remaining preposition, in this case in, functions as an adverb, as in add something in. Examine the following sets of sentences. Note the transposable adverb in the second and third examples.

Add the flour into the eggs.
Add the flour in.
Add in the flour.

Boil the wax out of the cloth.
Boil the wax out.
Boil out the wax.

In this dictionary, these pairs are presented as variants of the same entry. Usually it is necessary to express this variation in two parts. Then, the cross-referencing or the index will lead the user to the longer entry, which is then followed by the shorter one. Note that the adverb is marked transposable in the entry heads below. The relationship between these two varieties of phrasal verb is very common in English around the world. The pairs of entries are listed as follows:

add something into something and add something in[†] boil something out of something and boil something out[†]

Note that the prepositions into and out do not have daggers, indicating that they cannot be transposed to the position immediately after the verb.

Idioms with a Limited Verb Choice

There are a number of expressions in the dictionary that consist of a phrase that is likely to be preceded by one of a limited list of verbs. These expressions can usually stand alone, at least in casual conversations. The core meaning is the same regardless of the choice of initial verb. The members of the limited set of verbs that can come before the expression are not predictable. This kind of variation is similar to wild card terms. Here are examples of the sets of limited sets of verbs.

be ahead of Tom
get ahead of Tom keep ahead of Tom remain ahead of Tom stay ahead of Tom

keep clear of the doors remain clear of the doors stand clear of the doors

If each of these idiomatic expressions were a separate entry, it would be repetitious and difficult for the user to see that they include the same basic phrase. Therefore, the core of the entry is preceded by an asterisk (), as with ahead of someone and clear of something. Within the entry, a list of the appropriate verbs is given at the asterisk (). The index lists all of the variations, and the most common ones are given cross-references in the dictionary itself. Many of them are found after be, get, and have and are cross-referenced from the index only. There are some expressions that must begin with be, get, or have and these are alphabetized in the dictionary under their initial word.

Optional Elements

Various additional words or phrases can be used optionally within a single idiomatic expression. These words or phrases occur often with the idiom in question, but they are not required. They are included as part of the idiomatic pattern since they are so typical of conventional usage. Often, idiomatic expressions seem difficult simply because they are shortened versions of a longer expression that would be easier to understand in its full form. There are many instances of optional prepositional phrases. The following examples illustrate optional words:

At last, I am able to breathe freely again.
At last, I am able to breathe again.

all joking aside
joking aside

In this dictionary, optional elements are enclosed in parentheses.

The word freely is the optional element in the first pair of examples, and all is optional in the second set. Their entries are:

able to breathe (freely) again
(all) joking aside

Variable Classes or Wild Card Terms

Idiomatic phrases include both fixed and variable classes of words. The variable classes can be very broad, such as someone, which refers to any person, or something, which refers to any thing, object, or group. Many idiomatic phrases are very particular as to whether they include either someone or something. Others can refer to people or things, someone or something, without distinction. In this dictionary, these groups are called wild card terms. They can be thought of as aliases or proxies for the members of the classes of words they describe. Wild card terms appear in a unique type style. In a few instances, the expression always contains the real word someone or something and in these instances, special type is not used, as with pick on someone your own size. The following examples show the kinds of things that wild card terms can stand for:

associate with new friends (someone) associate with them (someone) associate with a bunch of different people (someone) associate with the Smiths (someone) play the radio at full blast (something) play my new record at full blast (something) play his huge stereo at full blast (something) play all the audio stuff in the whole dorm at full blast (something)

The variable classes are represented in these examples by someone or something as in associate with someone or play something at full blast. The wild card term indicates that any member of the specified class can be used. There are dozens of wild card terms of this kind. All of the wild card terms are descriptive of the kind of words or phrases they can stand for. Here are some of the most common wild card terms with one example of each:

a direction “east by northeast” a period of time “about an hour” doing something “eating bread and butter” some amount of money “about three bucks” somehow “without much effort” someone “Fred”
 some place “the kitchen” something “a toaster” sometime “at noon”

and someone or something, which can be either someone or something.

Note: Wild card terms are mostly nouns, pronouns, and noun phrases. There is no way that these variables could be listed in an index. Therefore, the user is advised to save time by first looking up a verb, adverb, or preposition rather than a noun or pronoun.

Random and Unpatterned Variation

Some expressions differ by only a word or two and are otherwise essentially synonymous. This is more confusing when not all the senses in an entry share the same synonyms, as in the first example where the full entry is quoted. In this entry, only the first sense has a variant.

give someone a lift 1. and give someone a ride Fig. to provide transportation for someone. □ I've got to get into town. Can you give me a lift? 2. Fig. to raise someone's spirits; to make a person feel better. □ It was a good conversation, and her kind words really gave me a lift.

Other entries with variants of this type are:

ache for someone or something and hurt for someone or something amount to the same thing and come to the same thing

Equivalent forms of an idiomatic expression are combined into a single entry where possible. The second and any subsequent expression are joined by and to the first. Sometimes a numbered sense has additional variants. These are introduced by and.

If the variants apply to all senses, they are listed at the beginning of the entry. If they apply only to some senses, the restricted form appears after the sense number, as with give someone a ride above.

This page intentionally left blank.

Acknowledgments

The compiler has included idiomatic phrases drawn from or suggested by Anne Bertram in the McGraw-Hill publications, NTC's Dictionary of Proverbs and Clichés, NTC's Dictionary of Euphemisms, and NTC's Dictionary of Folksy, Regional, and Rural Sayings, as well as other McGraw-Hill special-purpose dictionaries. In addition, I am very grateful for help from my coworkers for their counseling, writing, and editing skills, as applied to various components and stages of this dictionary. They are Carla (White) Kirschenbaum, Nancy L. Dray, Michelle Davidson, Garret Lemoi, Steven R. Kleinedler, and Frank Abate. I also wish to thank Mark and William Pattis for providing appropriate atmosphere, support, and encouragement for the creation of specialized dictionaries.

This page intentionally left blank.

Terms and Symbols

□ is a box that marks the beginning of an example.

~ is a “swung dash” that is an abbreviation for the entry head.

† is a “dagger” that is seen in some entry heads. It shows that the adverb that precedes is one that can occur instead just after the verb in the same entry head. This means that the out in ace someone out† can also be ace out someone.

[...] enclose a partial entry that is followed by an instruction about where to find the whole entry or a comment. These brackets are also used to enclose information needed to understand a definition.

and indicates that an entry head has variant forms that are the same or very similar in meaning as the entry head. One or more variant forms are preceded by and.

Cliché refers to an overused expression that is trite and tiresome.

Entry head is the first phrase or word, in bold-face type, of an entry. It is the phrase or word that the definition explains.

Euph. means “euphemistic,” making something sound or seem “nicer” than some other word might.

Fig. means “figurative.” When the meaning of an entry head is not literal, it is marked Fig. Some are more figurative than others. Some entries contain both literal and figurative senses.

Go to means to search for and read the entry indicated. Go to previous means to read the entry immediately above. Go to next means to read the entry that follows.

Inf. means “informal.” This is used for expressions that are casual but not as intrusive as those marked Sl., “slang.”

Jocular refers to an expression that is said in a joking or humorous way.

Lit. means “literal,” the normal or expected interpretation of a word or phrase. Some entries contain both literal and figurative senses.

Prov. means “proverbial,” in the manner or nature of a proverb.

Rur. means “rural” and refers to country or folksy expressions.

See also means to consult the entry indicated for additional information or to find expressions similar in form or meaning to the entry containing the See also instruction.

Simile refers to expressions containing as or like, such as dry as dust.

Sl. means “slang,” very informal, colorful, playful, or intrusive alternates for more common words.

Variable is an element that stands for a class of items, usually nouns or pronouns. Many expressions must include a noun that is a person, a noun that is a thing, or both. These classes are indicated in the entry head as someone, something, or someone or something. There are many other variables, such as some place or some-time, whose meaning is obvious.

Wild card term is a term that represents a variable, such as someone, something, or someone or something.

*an A for effort Fig. acknowledgement for having tried to do something, even if it was not successful. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ The plan didn't work, but I'll give you an A for effort for trying.

A man's gotta do what a man's gotta do. Go to You got to do what you got to do.

Abandon hope, all ye who enter here. Prov. If you come in, be prepared for the worst. (Describes a hopeless situation or one somehow similar to hell. Often used jocularly. This is the English translation of the words on the gate of Hell in Dante's Inferno.) □ This is our cafeteria. Abandon hope, all ye who enter here!

abandon oneself to something to yield to the comforts or delights of something. □ The children abandoned themselves to the delights of the warm summer day.

abandon ship 1. Lit. to leave a sinking ship. □ The captain ordered the crew and passengers to abandon ship. 2. Fig. to leave a failing enterprise. □ A lot of the younger people are abandoning ship because they can get jobs elsewhere easily.

abandon someone or something to someone or something to leave a person, living creature, or thing to the care of someone or something; to give up someone or something to someone or something. (Usually with the thought that the abandoned person or thing will not receive the best of care.) □ They had to abandon the dogs to the storm.

abbreviate something to something 1. and abbreviate something as something to make specific initials or an acronym out of a word or phrase. □ The phrase was abbreviated to ABC. 2. to make something into a shorter version of itself. □ The act has been abbreviated to just a few minutes.

the ABCs of something Fig. the basic facts or principles of something. □ I have never mastered the ABCs of car maintenance.

abduct someone from someone or something to take away or kidnap a person from someone or from a particular place, usually in secret. □ The thugs abducted the child from her mother.

abet someone in something to help someone in some deed; to help someone do something illegal. □ Surely you do not expect me to abet you in this crime!

abide by something to follow the rules of something; to obey someone's orders. □ John felt that he had to abide by his father's wishes.

abide with someone to remain with someone; to stay with someone. (Old and stilted. Primarily heard in the church hymn Eventide.) □ You are welcome to abide with me for a while, young man.

able to breathe (easily) again and able to breathe (freely) again 1. Lit. able to breathe clean, fresh air with no restriction or obstruction. □ After I got out of the dank basement, I was able to breathe easily again. 2. Fig. able to relax and recover from a busy or stressful time; able to catch one's breath. (Able to can be replaced with can.) □ Final exams are over, so I can breathe easily again.

able to breathe (freely) again Go to previous.

able to cut something Fig. to be able to manage or execute something. (Often negative. Able to can be replaced with can.) □ We thought he could handle the new account, but he is simply not able to cut it.

able to do something to have the strength or skill to do something. (Able to can be replaced with can.) □ Are you able to carry those bags by yourself?

able to do something blindfolded and able to do something standing on one's head Fig. able to do something very easily, possibly without even looking. (Able to can be replaced with can.) □ Bill boasted that he could pass his driver's test blindfolded.

able to do something standing on one's head Go to previous.

able to do something with one's eyes closed Fig. able to do something very easily, even without having to think about it or look at it. (Always affirmative. Able to can be replaced with can.) □ It's easy. I can do it with my eyes closed.

able to fog a mirror Fig. Inf. alive, even if just barely. (Usually jocular. Alludes to the use of a small mirror placed under the nose to tell if a person is breathing or not. (Able to can be replaced with can.) □ Look, I don't need an athlete to do this job! Anybody able to fog a mirror will do fine!

able to make an event able to attend an event. (Able to can be replaced with can.) □ I don't think I'll be able to make your party, but thanks for asking me.

able to take a joke to be able to accept ridicule good-naturedly; to be able to be the object or butt of a joke willingly. (Able to can be replaced with can.) □ Better not tease Ann. She can't take a joke.

able to take just so much and able to take only so much able to endure only a limited amount of discomfort or unpleasantness. (Able to can be replaced with can.) □ Please stop hurting my feelings. I'm able to take just so much.

able to take only so much Go to previous.

abound in something to be rich and abundant in something; to have plenty of something. (A bit formal.) □ The entire area abounds in game and fish.

abound with someone or something to be plentiful with particular persons, other living beings, or objects. □ The world abounds with talented people who are too shy to develop their talents.

A

about as exciting as watching (the) paint dry Go to exciting as watching (the) paint dry.

about one's business busy doing something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~.) □ Why are you still in the house? It's time to be about your business. □ Why are you just standing there? You'd better get busy doing something!

about to do something in the process of doing something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'd better be about my yard work.

an about-face (on someone or something) Fig. a reversal of attitude or action. (*Typically: do ~; have ~.) □ She did an about-face on her rule about not eating in the living room. Now we can do it if we want.

above and beyond (something) more than is required; greater than the required amount. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ The English teacher helped students after school every day, even though it was beyond the call of duty.

above average higher or better than the average. □ Max's grades are always above average.

above (doing) something [of someone] too mature or honorable to do something. □ I thought you were above doing something so thoughtless.

above one's bend and above one's huckleberry Rur. beyond one's ability. □ Fixing those new cars with computers in them is above my bend. □ Joe's a good cook, but fancy desserts are above his huckleberry.

above one's huckleberry Go to previous.

above par better than average or normal. □ His work is above par, so he should get paid better.

above reproach not deserving of blame or criticism. □ Some politicians behave as though they are above reproach.

above someone at a higher rank than someone else; serving as someone's supervisor. □ Ron is above Ginney, but he treats her like an equal.

above someone or something to be in a position that is higher than someone or something. □ The plane is now directly above us.

above suspicion [for one] to be honest enough that no one would suspect one; in a position where one could not be suspected. (This is a translation of words attributed to Julius Caesar, who divorced his wife, Pompeia, on the grounds of her possible involvement in a public scandal; Caesar stated, "Caesar's wife must be above suspicion.") (*Typically: be ~; keep oneself ~; remain ~.) □ The general is a fine old man, completely above suspicion.

above the law not subject to the law; immune to the law. □ None of us is above the law. We have to obey all of them.

aboveboard in the open; visible to the public; honest. □ Don't keep it a secret. Let's make certain that everything is aboveboard. abreast of someone or something 1. Lit. keeping even with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; keep ~; stay ~.) □ I had to run hard to stay abreast of Sally.

2. Fig. knowing the news about someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; keep ~; stay ~.) □ The press corps has to keep abreast of the president.

abscond with someone or something to steal or run away with someone or something; to make off with someone or something in secret. □ The boys absconded with all the dessert.

Absence makes the heart grow fonder. Prov. You will like someone or something better if that person or thing is far away. □ Ever since Carla's boyfriend moved away, she can't stop thinking about him. Absence makes the heart grow fonder.

absent oneself from someone or something to remain away from or avoid someone or some place. □ Fred absented himself from the meeting, which he was certain would be boring.

absent without leave absent from a military unit without permission; absent from anything without permission. (AWOL is an abbreviation. This is a serious offense in the military. *Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ The soldier was taken away by the military police because he was absent without leave.

an absent-minded professor a bumbling professor who overlooks everyday things. □ Fred is such an absent-minded professor. He'd forget his head if it wasn't screwed on.

Absolute power corrupts absolutely. Prov. One who has total authority is very likely to abuse his position. (This phrase was used by the British historian Lord Acton: "Power tends to corrupt and absolute power corrupts absolutely.") □ We thought that Johnson would be a responsible mayor, but within a year of taking office, he was as bad as all the rest. Absolute power corrupts absolutely.

Absolutely not! a strong denial or refusal. (Compare this with Definitely not!) □ Bob: Can I please have the car again tonight? Father: Absolutely not! You can't have the car every night!

absolve someone from something and absolve someone of something to prove that an accused person is innocent of something; to demonstrate that someone is not responsible for something. □ Bob attempted to absolve himself of the crime.

absorb oneself in someone or something Fig. [for someone] to become very interested or preoccupied with something or someone else's interests. □ Tom would often absorb himself in his children's activities on weekends.

absorb someone in(to) something [of a person or a group of people] to include someone in all the activities of the group; to integrate someone into something. □ The club absorbed the new members into the organization.

absorb something in(to) something [of matter or substance] to draw something into itself. □ The sponge absorbed all the moisture into its fibers.

absorb something with something to soak up a fluid with something. □ Henry absorbed the spilled milk with a sponge.

abstain from something to avoid some activity or the use of some substance, such as alcohol, drugs, sex, or food. □ They abstained from hard liquor and any other kind of intoxicants.

abstain from voting to choose not to vote either for or against a proposition or nominee. □ I will have to abstain from voting since I cannot make up my mind.

abstract something from someone or something to steal something from someone or something. (Formal.) □ The officer was found guilty of abstracting a rather large amount of money from the company.

abstract something from something to take the important information from a longer document; to extract the essentials or the gist from a piece of complicated writing. □ Can you abstract a shorter article from this material?

abut on something [particularly of the edge of an area of land] to meet or touch something along one boundary or at one point. □ Our land abuts on the shopping center's parking lot.

abut (up) against something to rest firmly against something solid. □ The end of the board abutted against the foundation.

accede to something 1. to agree to the terms or demands that someone has stated. □ We cannot accede to your demands. 2. to assume a position of power or authority; to begin serving in one's official capacity. □ She acceded to the office of mayor in January.

accept someone as something to consent to receive or consider someone as a particular type of person or a person who can serve a particular role. □ Sally finally accepted herself as the only possible peacemaker in the dispute.

accept something as something 1. to agree that something will serve in payment of a debt or in return for something. □ This receipt shows that we have accepted your money as payment on your debt. □ This money has been accepted as reimbursement for the expenditure. 2. to resign [oneself] to something that cannot be changed. □ I must accept what you say as the final decision.

accept the blame for something Go to the blame for something.

acceptable damage and acceptable losses Euph. casualties or destruction inflicted by an enemy that is considered minor or tolerable. □ At present, the enemy's first-strike capability would produce acceptable damage. □ The general indicated that the fifty thousand casualties were within the range of acceptable losses.

acceptable losses Go to previous.

access to someone or something permission to approach someone or something; the right to use someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Can you get access to a computer?

accidentally-on-purpose Inf. deliberate, but meant to look like an accident. □ Then, I accidentally-on-purpose spilled water on him.

Accidents will happen. Prov. It is impossible to completely prevent things from going wrong. (Often used to console someone who has made a mistake or caused an accident.) □ Child: Mommy, I spilled grape juice all over the carpet! Mother: Don't cry, honey. Accidents will happen. □ Jill: I'm so embarrassed. I was just tapping on your window to wake you up. I didn't mean to break it. Jane: Accidents will happen.

acclimate someone or an animal to something and acclimatize someone or an animal to something to cause a person or other living thing to become used to a different climate or environment. □ We will help acclimate Henry to the new building. □ We need to acclimatize the fish to the new aquarium.

acclimatize someone or an animal to something Go to previous.

accommodate oneself to something to adapt oneself to something, such as someone else's needs or a new environment. □ Please try to accommodate yourself to our routine.

accommodate someone with something to provide something special for someone; to do something that provides for someone's needs or desires. □ We will try to accommodate you with an earlier flight.

accompanied by something with something extra to go along with something else; with something to complement something else. □ Dessert was accompanied by a fine white wine.

accompany someone on a journey 1. [for someone] to go with someone on a trip, journey, adventure, etc. □ Would you please accompany me on my next trip? 2. [for something] to be brought with someone on a trip, journey, etc. □ My cameras always accompany me on my travels.

accompany someone on a musical instrument to provide complementary instrumental music for someone's musical performance. □ Sally accompanied the singer on the piano.

accompany someone with something to use a particular musical instrument to play music that goes along with someone else's musical performance. □ She accompanied Mary with her flute.

accord with something to agree with or match up with something; to jibe with something. □ Does this accord with what you heard?

according to all accounts and by all accounts from all the reports [that are available]; according to what everyone is saying. □ According to all accounts, the police were on the scene immediately. □ By all accounts, it was a very poor performance.

according to Hoyle according to the rules; in keeping with the way something is normally done. (Alludes to the rules for playing games. Edmond Hoyle wrote a widely used book with rules for card games. This expression is usually used for something other than games.) □ That's wrong. According to Hoyle, this is the way to do it.

according to one's own lights according to the way one believes; according to the way one's conscience or inclinations lead one. □ John may have been wrong, but he did what he did according to his own lights.

according to someone or something as said or indicated by someone or something. □ According to the weather forecast, this should be a beautiful day.

according to something in proportion to something. □ You will get paid according to the number of hours that you work.

account for someone or something to know the state of or whereabouts of someone or something. (Usually in reference to some person or thing placed in one's charge.) □ They cannot account for three of the passengers.

account for something to explain something. □ Your explanation accounts for everything that has happened.

A

accredit something to someone to assign or attribute a deed to someone; to assign or attribute praise to someone. (Often passive.) □ We can accredit this great success to Fred and his committee.

accrue to someone or something [used of interest paid on money] to be credited to an account or to a person's account. □ Interest will accrue to your account as long as the account is active.

accuse someone of something to charge someone with a crime, a violation of rules or instructions, or doing something wrong. □ Please don't accuse me of forgetting to lock the door.

accustom someone to someone or something to get someone used to someone or something. □ I think we can accustom Fred to the new rules without difficulty.

accustomed to someone or something and accustomed to doing something used to someone or something; used to or in the habit of doing something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; grow ~.) □ The children are accustomed to eating late in the evening.

ace in the hole and someone's ace in the hole Fig. something important held in reserve. □ The twenty-dollar bill I keep in my shoe is my ace in the hole.

ace in(to something) to be lucky in getting admitted to something. □ I aced into the history class at the last minute.

ace out to be fortunate or lucky. □ Freddy aced out at the dentist's office with only one cavity.

ace out (of something) to get out of something through luck; to evade or avoid something narrowly. □ I just aced out of having to take the math test!

ace someone out[†] to maneuver someone out; to win out over someone. □ Martha aced out Rebecca to win the first place trophy.

ache for someone or something and hurt for someone or something Fig. to desire someone or something very much. (So much that it "hurts.") □ Jim ached for the sight of Mary, whom he loved deeply.

Achilles' heel Fig. a weak point or fault in someone or something otherwise perfect or excellent. (From the legend of Greek hero Achilles, who had only one vulnerable part of his body, his heel; as an infant his mother had held him by one heel to dip him in the River Styx to make him invulnerable.) □ He was very brave, but fear of spiders was his Achilles' heel.

aching heart Fig. the feeling of pain because of love that is lost or has faded away. (Described as being in the heart, where love is said to reside.) □ I try to tell my aching heart that I don't love him.

the acid test Fig. a test whose findings are beyond doubt or dispute. □ The senator doesn't look too popular just now, but the acid test will be if he gets reelected.

acknowledge someone as something to agree or announce publicly that a person holds a particular office or station, or that a person has particular qualities. □ She found it difficult to acknowledge herself as a failure.

acknowledge someone to be right to admit or state that someone is correct about something. □ Bill said that the car was useless, and the mechanic acknowledged him to be right.

acknowledge something as something to agree or announce publicly that something is as previously stated. □ The president acknowledged the statement as the truth.

acknowledge (the) receipt of something to report receiving something, such as a package, letter, or notice. □ The company acknowledged receipt of the merchandise I returned.

acquaint someone with something to introduce someone to an unfamiliar thing; to become familiar with something; to get to know something; to tell someone the facts [about someone or something]. (See also acquainted with someone; acquainted with something.) □ It took a month for the new attorney to acquaint herself with the facts in the case.

acquainted with someone [of a person] known to someone; [of a person] having been introduced to someone. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; get ~.) □ We are only acquainted with each other. We are certainly not what you would call close friends.

acquainted with something familiar with something; able to understand or recognize something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; get ~.) □ Tom is fully acquainted with the way we do things.

acquiesce to someone or something to give in to someone or someone's wishes; to agree, perhaps reluctantly, to someone's ideas or requests. □ We are willing to acquiesce to your demands.

acquire a taste for something Go to a taste for something.

acquit someone of something to establish someone's innocence of a criminal charge or the blame for some wrongdoing. □ The investigator acquitted Wally of the charges.

across the board Fig. [distributed] equally for everyone or everything. □ The school board raised the pay of all the teachers across the board.

act as one Go to as one.

act as someone to perform in the capacity of someone, temporarily or permanently; to serve in some special capacity, possibly temporarily. □ This is Mr. Smith. He'll act as manager from now on.

act for someone 1. to represent someone in an official capacity; to represent the interests of someone. □ Don't worry. I am acting for the owner. I am his real estate agent.

2. to take action when the proper person fails to take action. □ I had to act for her since she was out of town.

act full of oneself Go to full of oneself.

act high-and-mighty Go to high-and-mighty.

act in earnest Go to in earnest.

act like a cold fish Go to a cold fish.

act like oneself again Go to oneself again.

an act of faith an act or deed demonstrating religious faith; an act or deed showing trust in someone or something. □ For him to trust you with his safety was a real act of faith.

an act of God an occurrence or an event for which no human is responsible; an act of nature such as a storm, an earthquake, or a wildfire. □ Will your insurance com- pany pay for damage caused by earthquakes and other acts of God?

an act of war 1. Lit. an international act of warlike violence for which war is considered a suitable response. □ To bomb a ship is an act of war. 2. Fig. any hostile act between two people. □ “You just broke my stereo!” yelled John. “That’s an act of war!”

act out to behave badly. (Usually used to describe young people.) □ Your son has been acting out in the classroom, and his teacher feels that professional intervention is desirable.

act something out 1. to perform in real life a role that one has imagined in a fantasy. □ When I was onstage, I was really acting an old fantasy out. □ I acted out an old fantasy onstage. 2. to convert one’s bad feelings into action rather than words. □ Don’t act your aggressions out on me! □ She acted out her aggression. 3. to demonstrate or communicate something through gestures or action rather than words. □ Act your request out, if you can’t say it. □ She had a sore throat and had to act out her request.

act tough on someone Go to tough on someone.

act up [for a thing or a person] to behave badly. □ This car is acting up again.

act (up) on something 1. to take action on a particular problem. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I will act on this immediately. 2. to take action because of some special information. □ The police refused to act upon his complaint because he was an ex-convict. 3. to perform on something, usually the stage (in a theater). □ Ken has never acted on the stage or in front of a camera.

act within one’s rights Go to within one’s rights.

act young at heart Go to young at heart.

Act your age! Behave more maturely! (A rebuke for someone who is acting childish. Often said to a child who is acting like an even younger child.) □ Child: Aw, come on! Let me see your book! Mary: Be quiet and act your age. Don’t be such a baby!

Actions speak louder than words. Prov. Cliché What you do is more significant than what you say. □ You keep saying that you’ll do your fair share of the housework. Remember that actions speak louder than words.

adapt someone or something to something to cause someone or something to change, adjust to, or get used to something else. □ Can’t you adapt yourself to my way of doing things?

adapt something for something to change or alter something for use with something else. □ Has this furnace been adapted for natural gas?

adapt something from something to derive something from something else; to create by modifying something else. □ I adapted my new musical from a novel.

adapt something to something to convert something to fit or work with something else. □ We converted our furnace to natural gas.

adapt to something to adapt or get used to someone or something. □ Please try to adapt to our routine.

add fuel to the fire and add fuel to the flame Fig. to make a problem worse; to say or do something that makes a bad situation worse; to make an angry person get even angrier. (Alludes to causing a flame to grow larger when fuel is added.) □ Shouting at a crying child just adds fuel to the fire.

add fuel to the flame Go to previous.

add insult to injury Fig. Cliché to make a bad situation worse; to hurt the feelings of a person who has already been hurt. □ First, the basement flooded, and then, to add insult to injury, a pipe burst in the kitchen. □ My car barely started this morning, and to add insult to injury, I got a flat tire in the driveway.

add something into something and add something in to introduce something into something else. □ Now, add the eggs into the mixture. □ Add in some more eggs.

add (something) on(to) something and add (something) on to extend something by providing more (of something). (This use of on with add is colloquial.) □ You added nearly one thousand dollars onto the total. □ You added on a thousand dollars to the total! □ You added too much on.

add (something) to something to increase the intensity or amount of something by giving more (of something) to it. □ You added too much sugar to my coffee.

add something together to sum or total two or more things. □ Add these two together and tell me what you get.

add something up to sum or total a set of figures. (See also add up (to something).) □ Please add these figures up again. □ I didn’t add up these figures!

add up (to something) 1. Lit. [for a set of figures] to equal a total. □ These figures don’t add up to the right total! 2. Fig. [for facts or explanations] to make sense. (Considering facts as if they were figures.) □ Your explanation just doesn’t add up!

add up to the same thing Go to amount to the same thing.

addict someone to something to cause someone to become habituated to something, usually alcohol or some another drug. □ The hospital personnel were thought to have addicted John to morphine. □ She ended up addicting herself to the substance.

address comments or remarks to someone to say something directly to a specific person or group of persons. (See also address oneself to someone; address oneself to something.) □ George addressed his remarks to everyone.

address oneself to someone to speak directly to a particular person, rather than someone else. □ I did not address myself to you!

address oneself to something to turn one’s complete attention to something, such as a problem or an issue. (See also address something to someone.) □ Please address yourself to these current, pressing problems.

address someone as a specific title or attribute 1. to talk to or write to a person, using a particular title. □ They addressed Abraham Lincoln as “Mr. President.” 2. to treat a person you are talking with in a particular manner. □ You should address him as your equal.

address something to someone to write someone’s name and address on an envelope, package, letter, etc. □ Gilbert addressed the envelope to Walter.

A

adhere to something 1. Lit. to stick to something. □ The stamp won't adhere to the envelope. 2. Fig. to follow or "stick to" a particular course of action, plan, or set of beliefs. □ If you don't adhere to the proper routine, you will confuse the other workers.

adjourn for a time to bring a meeting to a temporary close so the participants can take part in some other activity. □ We must adjourn for the day.

adjourn to some place to bring a meeting to a temporary close so the participants can move to another place (where the meeting will be started again). □ We adjourned to the sitting room.

adjust (oneself) to someone or something to make changes in one's opinion or attitude toward someone or something, such as a change in one's life or environment. □ Can't you adjust yourself to your new office?

adjust something to something to make something fit something else; to alter something to make it suitable for something else. □ The builder adjusted the plans for the new house to the requirements of the fire marshal.

administer something to someone or an animal to present or apply something to a person or an animal. □ The vet administered the drug to the cow.

admire someone for something to have a positive feeling toward someone because of something. □ I really admire you for your courage.

admire to do something Rur. to want to do something, to be happy to do something. □ He asked her to the dance. She said she would admire to go with him.

admit someone (in)to some place to allow someone to enter some place. □ They refused to admit us into the theater.

admit something into something to allow something to be introduced into something else. □ You cannot admit this document into the body of evidence!

admit something to someone to confess something to someone. □ Harry admitted his error to his uncle.

admit to something to acknowledge or confess something; to acknowledge or confess to having done something. □ Max would not admit to anything.

admonish someone for something to warn or scold someone mildly for doing something. □ The nurse admonished the patient for not eating her dinner.

adopt someone as something to choose someone as something. □ The committee will adopt Jane as its candidate.

adopt something as something to take on something, such as a policy or principle, as one's own. □ I will adopt this policy as my own.

adore someone for doing something to be in awe of someone for doing something well. □ Everyone adores Sally for her wonderful sense of humor.

adore someone for having something to be in awe of someone because of a particular trait or feature. □ Robert adores Mary for her smiling eyes.

adorn someone or something with something to decorate or ornament someone or something with something. □ They adorned the room with garlands of flowers.

adulterate something with something to dilute or taint something with some other substance. □ They adulterated the wine with some sort of drug.

advance something to someone or something (against something) to make an early payment of a sum of money promised or owed to a person or organization. □ We advanced the money to Tom against his next month's salary.

advance to(ward) someone or something to move forward in the direction of someone or something. □ The line of people slowly advanced to the door of the theater.

advance (up)on someone or something to move toward someone or something. (Typically in military maneuvers or in team sports, such as American football. Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ They advanced upon the town, firing their rifles and shouting.

advanced in years Go to up in years.

the advantage of someone and the advantage over someone; an advantage over someone; the advantage over someone; the edge on someone; the edge over someone a position superior to that of someone else; a status wherein one controls or has superiority or authority over someone else. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~; have ~.) □ She'd gotten an advantage over me at the start of the competition. □ I got an edge on Sally, too, and she came in second.

advertise for someone or something to advertise one's intention to purchase something or hire a particular type of person. □ Did you advertise for a new receptionist?

advertise something for a price to make known by public notice that something is to be sold at a particular price. □ Is this the one that was advertised for a dollar?

advertise something for something to make known by public notice, such as broadcast or print notice, that something is available for purchase or rent. □ Was this apartment advertised for rent?

advise against something to suggest that something not be done. □ Lisa always advises against hasty actions.

advise someone about someone or something to inform someone about someone or something; to counsel someone about someone or something. □ Bill needs to advise the committee about Karen's request.

advise someone against doing something to encourage or counsel someone not to do something. □ I advised Bill against quitting his job.

advise someone of something to inform someone of specific facts or some other information. □ I hope you will advise Larry of the details of the proposal.

advise someone on someone or something to provide someone with specific advice about someone or something. □ Would you please advise me on what kind of computer to buy?

affiliate (someone or something) to someone or something and affiliate (someone or something) with someone or something to cause a person or thing to be associated with some other person or thing. □ He did not want to affiliate his club to the other clubs. □ We tried to affiliate John with other people who shared his interests.

affiliate (someone or something) with someone or something Go to affiliate (someone or something) to someone or something.

affinity for someone or something a strong preference for something; a strong liking for something. □ Mary's affinity for classical music accounts for her large collection of recordings.

affix one's signature to something to sign one's name on something. □ I affixed my signature to each of the documents.

affix something to someone or something to fasten or attach something to someone or something. □ Please affix these tags to your luggage.

afflict someone with someone to burden someone with an annoying person. □ I was foolish enough to afflict myself with my young cousin for the weekend.

afflict someone with something 1. Lit. to cause someone to suffer from a disease or disability. □ The virus has afflicted everyone in the valley. 2. Fig. to burden someone with trouble. □ We were afflicted with all the worry that comes with raising a teenager.

afraid of one's own shadow Fig. easily frightened; always frightened, timid, or suspicious. (An exaggeration.) □ After Tom was robbed, he was even afraid of his own shadow.

after a fashion in a manner that is just barely adequate; poorly. □ He thanked me—after a fashion—for my help. □ Oh, yes, I can swim, after a fashion.

After a storm comes a calm. and After the storm comes a calm.; The calm after a storm. Prov. Things are often calm after an upheaval. □ Jill: I can't believe how peaceful the office is today, when yesterday everyone was either being fired or threatening to quit. Jane: After a storm comes a calm.

after all 1. anyway; in spite of what had been decided. (Often refers to a change in plans or a reversal of plans.) □ It looks like Tom will go to law school after all. 2. recalling or considering the fact that. □ Don't punish Tommy! After all, he's only three years old!

after all is said and done Cliché when everything is settled or concluded; finally. □ After all is said and done, it will turn out just as I said.

after hours after the regular closing time; after any normal or regular time, such as one's bedtime. □ John got a job sweeping floors in the library after hours.

after someone or something 1. Lit. following someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; come ~.) □ Tom comes after Mary in the line. 2. Fig. in pursuit of someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; chase ~; run ~.) □ The dog is after a rabbit.

after the fact after something has happened; after something, such as a crime, has taken place. (Originally a legal phrase.) □ John is always making excuses after the fact.

after the fashion of someone or something and after the style of someone or something in the manner or style of someone or something. □ She walks down the street after the fashion of a grand lady. □ The parish church was built after the style of a French cathedral.

after the style of someone or something Go to after the fashion of someone or something.

After while(, crocodile). Inf. Good-bye till later.; See you later. (The word crocodile is used only for the sake of the rhyme. It is the response to See you later, alligator.) □ Mary: See you later, alligator. Bill: After while, crocodile.

After you. Please go ahead of me.; Please pass through ahead of me. □ Bob stepped back and made a motion with his hand indicating that Mary should go first. "After you," smiled Bob.

again and again repeatedly; again and even more [times]. □ He knocked on the door again and again until I finally answered.

Again(, please). Say it one more time, please. □ Tom: I need some money. I'll pay you back. Bill (pretending not to hear): Again, please. Tom: I said I need some money. How many times do I have to say it?

against all odds despite very low probability; in a most unlikely way. □ Against all odds, she managed to win the trophy.

against someone or something 1. in opposition to someone or something; in competition with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; run ~; stand ~.) □ I am against everything you stand for. □ She ran against me in the election. 2. to the disadvantage of someone or something; in opposition to someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; go ~; run ~; turn ~.) □ When did the trial go against us?

against someone's will without a person's consent or agreement. □ You cannot force me to come with you against my will!

against the clock Fig. in a race with time; in a great hurry to get something done before a particular time. □ In a race against the clock, they rushed the accident victim to the hospital.

against the grain 1. Lit. across the alignment of the fibers of a piece of wood. (*Typically: be ~; cut ~; go ~; run ~; saw ~.) □ You sawed it wrong. You sawed against the grain when you should have cut with grain. □ You went against the grain and made a mess of your sanding. 2. Fig. running counter to one's feelings or ideas. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ The idea of my actually taking something that is not mine goes against the grain.

Age before beauty. a jocular and slightly rude way of encouraging someone to go ahead of oneself; a comical, teasing, and slightly grudging way of indicating that someone else should or can go first. □ "No, no. Please, you take the next available seat," smiled Tom. "Age before beauty, you know."

The age of miracles is past. Prov. Miracles do not happen nowadays. □ I'm afraid this old vacuum cleaner can't be fixed. The age of miracles is past.

age out (of something) [for an adult] to grow [mentally or in years] out of certain behavior or out of a group or classification that is based on age. (Jargon.) □ Most of them tend to age out at about 35.

agitate against someone or something to stir up active dissatisfaction about someone or something. □ The students were agitating against the closing of the old cafeteria.

agitate for something to stir up active support for something. □ The committee agitated for a change, but nothing was done.

agonize (oneself) over someone or something to fret or anguish about someone or something. □ Now, now, don't agonize yourself over the situation. Time cures all.

agree to disagree Cliché [for two or more parties] to calmly agree not to come to an agreement in a dispute. □ We have accomplished nothing except that we agree to disagree.

agree to something to consent to something; to allow something to be done; to approve something. □ If you don't agree to my leaving early, I'll just do it anyway.

agree (up)on someone or something to agree to the choice of someone or something. □ Let's try to agree upon a date.

agree with someone 1. Lit. to hold the same opinion or judgment as someone else. □ I simply do not agree with you! 2. Fig. [for something] to be acceptable to someone as food. (Usually negative, referring to the disagreeable consequences of eating bad food.) □ Onions do not agree with me.

agree (with someone) (about someone or something) and agree (with someone) ((up)on someone or something) [for two or more parties] to agree with one another about the facts concerning someone or something. □ I agree with you about Judy; she is brilliant. □ He agreed with Sam upon a time for the meeting.

agree with something 1. Fig. [for something] to look good or go well with something else. □ This dress does not agree with these shoes, does it? 2. Fig. [for something] to be in accord with something else. □ Your analysis agrees with mine.

agree (with something) (in something) [for grammatical features] to match or go together with other grammatical features. □ The subject and the verb agree in number.

(Ah) shucks! and (Ah) shoot! Rur. Darn! (A mild oath.) □ Ah, shucks! I forgot to call Grandma. □ Tom: We can't get chocolate ice cream. The store's all out. Jane: Shucks. □ Ah, shoot! I missed my favorite TV show.

ahead of one's time Fig. having ideas or attitudes that are too advanced to be acceptable in the present. (*Typically: be ~; think ~.) □ Sue's grandmother was ahead of her time in wanting to study medicine.

ahead of schedule Fig. having done something before the time given on a schedule or before the expected time. (*Typically: be ~; finish ~.) □ I want to be able to finish the job ahead of schedule.

ahead (of someone or something) farther forward than someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; keep ~; remain ~; stay ~.) □ I managed to get ahead of everyone else in line and get tickets for everyone. □ Try to stay ahead of that big truck we just passed.

ahead of something ahead or on target with one's work schedule or responsibilities. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; keep ~; remain ~; stay ~.) □ By the end of the week, I usually can get ahead of my duties, but not by much. □ Jerry can't seem to get ahead of his work.

ahead of the game being early; having an advantage in a competitive situation; having done more than necessary. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; keep ~; remain ~; stay ~.) □ Without the full cooperation of my office staff, I find it hard to stay ahead of the game. □ If being ahead of the game is important to you and to your business, lease a mobile phone from us.

ahead of time beforehand; before the announced time. (*Typically: arrive ~; get there ~; leave ~; show up ~.) □ If you show up ahead of time, you will have to wait. □ Be there ahead of time if you want to get a good seat.

(a)hold of someone or something 1. Lit. [get/have] a grasp of someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; take ~.) □ I got hold of him and dragged him back from the edge just in time. □ I took ahold of his hand and held on tight. 2. Fig. [get/have] contact with someone or something; [get/have] the location of someone or something. (*Typically: get ~.) □ I got hold of a replacement part in Peoria. They are shipping it to us today. □ Try to get ahold of a plumber, would you? 3. Fig. [get/have] contact with someone or a group on the telephone. (*Typically: get ~.) □ I got hold of her just as she was going out the door. □ I was able to get ahold of the factory and cancel the order.

aid and abet someone Cliché to help someone; to incite someone to do something, possibly something that is wrong. (Originally a legal phrase.) □ He was scolded for aiding and abetting the boys who were fighting.

aid someone in doing something to help someone do something. □ He aided her in fixing up the back bedroom.

aid someone in something to help someone in some kind of trouble. □ Will you aid me in this difficulty?

aim for something and aim at something to strive toward a particular goal; to direct oneself or one's energies toward something. □ You should aim for success. □ Aim at getting this done on time.

aim for the sky Go to reach for the sky.

Aim for the stars! and Reach for the stars! Aspire to something!; Set one's goals high! □ Aim for the stars, son! Don't settle for second best. □ Set your sights high. Reach for the stars!

aim something at someone or something to point or direct something at someone or something. □ Wally aimed the hose at Sarah and tried to soak her.

aim to do something Rur. to intend to do something. □ I didn't aim to hurt your feelings, sugar, you know I didn't.

ain't fittin' to roll with a pig Rur. is or are filthy or uncouth. □ After a day's work in the hot sun, Clyde ain't fittin' to roll with a pig.

ain't got a grain of sense and ain't got a lick of sense Rur. is or are foolish. □ Mary spends money like there's no tomorrow. She sure ain't got a grain of sense. □ I wouldn't trust Jim to take care of my kids. He ain't got a lick of sense.

ain't got a lick of sense Go to previous.

ain't got the brains God gave a squirrel and ain't got the sense God gave geese Rur. is or are very foolish. □ There goes John, running around barefooted in the snow. He ain't got the brains God gave a squirrel. □ No use trying to explain anything to Jane. She ain't got the sense God gave geese.

ain't got the sense God gave geese Go to previous.

Ain't it the truth? Rur. or Jocular That is true.; Isn't that true? (Used to agree with a statement someone has made.)
□ Jane: I swear, life can be a trial sometimes. Bill: Yes, Lordy. Ain't it the truth?

ain't particular 1. Rur. doesn't or don't care. □ Tom: Would you rather have ice cream or cheese on your apple pie? Mary: Whatever you're having. I ain't particular.
2. Rur. doesn't or don't have a preference. □ Jane ain't particular. She'll use any old brand of soap.

*the air Fig. a dismissal. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ Whenever I get around Tom, I end up getting the air.

air one's belly Fig. Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit.
□ I had a bad case of food poisoning and was airing my belly for most of the night.

air one's dirty linen in public and wash one's dirty linen in public Fig. to discuss private or embarrassing matters in public, especially when quarreling. (This linen refers to sheets and tablecloths or other soiled cloth.) □ They are arguing again. Why must they always air their dirty linen in public? □ She will talk to anyone about her problems. Why does she wash her dirty linen in public?

air one's grievances Fig. to complain; to make a public complaint. □ I know how you feel, John, but it isn't necessary to air your grievances over and over.

air one's lungs 1. Rur. to swear. □ Don't pay those old cowboys no mind. They're just airin' the lungs. □ I could tell John was working on his old car 'cause I could hear him out in the garage, airin' his lungs.
2. Rur. to talk, gossip, or brag. □ The ladies just love to air their lungs whenever they get together.

air one's paunch Sl. to vomit. □ He got so nauseous that he spent much of the night airing his paunch.

air one's pores Sl. to undress oneself; to become naked. □ Me and Wilbur, that's my brother, both fell in the creek and had to air our pores a while so our pants could dry out.

air out [for something] to remain in the fresh air and become fresher. □ The pillows are airing out on the balcony.

air something out† to freshen something up by placing it in the open air; to freshen a room by letting outside air move through it. □ I'll have to air out the car. Someone has been smoking in it.

alert someone to something to make someone aware of trouble or potential trouble. □ The auditors alerted us to some problems with the accounts.

alienate someone from someone or something to cause someone to feel negative about someone or something. □ The teacher alienated the entire class from the subject of calculus.

alight from something to get off something; to get down off something. □ Almost three hundred people alighted from the plane.

alight (up)on someone or something to land on something; [for a bird or other flying animal] to come to rest on something. (Upon is more formal than on.) □ A small bird alighted on the branch directly over my head. □ It alighted upon the branch and began to sing.

align oneself with someone or something Fig. to bring oneself into agreement with someone or someone's ideas; to associate oneself with someone or someone's cause. □ She sought to align herself with the older members.

align something with something to adjust, straighten, or arrange something in reference to something else. □ Try to align this piece with the one next to it.

alike as (two) peas in a pod very similar. (Compare this with like (two) peas in a pod. *Also: as ~.) □ These two books are as alike as peas in a pod.

alive and kicking and alive and well Fig. well and healthy. □ Jane: How is Bill since his illness last month? Mary: Oh; he's alive and kicking. □ The last time I saw Tom, he was alive and well.

alive and well Go to previous.

alive with people or things Fig. covered with, filled with, or active with people or creatures. □ Look! Ants everywhere. The floor is alive with ants!

all agog surprised and amazed. □ He sat there, all agog, as the master of ceremonies read his name as the winner of first prize.

all and sundry Cliché everyone; one and all. □ Cold drinks were served to all and sundry.

all around Robin Hood's barn going somewhere by an indirect route; going way out of the way [to get somewhere]; by a long and circuitous route. □ We had to go all around Robin Hood's barn to get to the little town.

all at once 1. Lit. all at the same time. □ The entire group spoke all at once.
2. Fig. suddenly. □ All at once the little girl fell out of her chair.

(all) at sea (about something) Fig. to be confused; to be lost and bewildered. (Alludes to being lost at sea.) □ When it comes to higher math, John is totally at sea.

(all) balled up troubled; confused; in a mess. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ John is all balled up because his car was stolen.

(all) beer and skittles all fun and pleasure; easy and pleasant. (Skittles is the game of ninepins, a game similar to bowling. Fixed phrase.) □ For Sam, college was beer and skittles. He wasted a lot of time and money.

all better (now) improved or cured. (Juvenile.) □ I fell off my tricycle and bumped my knee. Mommy kissed it, and it's all better now.

all by one's lonesome Rur. all alone; by oneself. □ Mary's folks went out and left her all by her lonesome.

All cats are gray in the dark. Prov. When in the dark, appearances are meaningless, since everything is hard to see or unseen. □ I don't care if my date is ugly. All cats are gray in the dark.

all day long throughout the day; during the entire day. □ We waited for you at the station all day long.

(all) dolled up Fig. dressed up and well-groomed. (Usually used of females. *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I have to get all dolled up for the dance tonight.

(all) dressed up dressed in one's best clothes; dressed formally. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; get someone ~.) □ I really hate to get all dressed up just to go somewhere to eat.

all dressed up and nowhere to go and all dressed up with nowhere to go completely ready for something that has been postponed or has failed to materialize. (May be literal or figurative.) Tom: I just heard that your company is closed today. Fred: Gee, I'm all dressed up and nowhere to go. The space shot was cancelled, so all the astronauts are all dressed up with nowhere to go.

all ears Fig. listening eagerly and carefully. Well, hurry up and tell me. I'm all ears.

all eyes and ears Fig. listening and watching eagerly and carefully. Be careful what you say. The children are all eyes and ears. Tell us quick. We are all eyes and ears!

(all) for someone or something Fig. (completely) in favor of someone or something; supporting someone or something. I'm all for your candidacy. I'm for the incumbent in the upcoming election.

(all) for the best good in spite of the way it seems; better than you think or than it appears to be. (Often said when someone dies after a painful illness.) I'm very sorry to hear of the death of your aunt. Perhaps it's for the best. I didn't get into the college I wanted, but I couldn't afford it anyway. It's probably all for the best.

all gone used up; finished; over with. Oh, the strawberry jelly is all gone. We used to have wonderful parties, but those days are all gone.

All good things must (come to an) end. Prov. All experiences, even pleasant ones, eventually end. It's time to leave the party, honey. All good things must end. We've had a lovely visit, but all good things must come to an end.

all hell broke loose all sorts of wild or terrible things happened. When the boss left early for the weekend, all hell broke loose.

(all) het up Rur. very angry or upset. (All "heated" up. *Typically: get ~; be ~.) The boss got all het up when I said my project would be late. Jane gets real het up when folks tease her about her freckles.

all hours (of the day and night) Fig. very late in the night or very early in the morning. (*Typically: until ~; till ~; at ~.) Why do you always stay out until all hours of the day and night? I like to stay out till all hours.

all in completely tired. I'm all in. I need some rest. After their 10-mile hike the campers were all in and very hungry.

all in a day's work part of what is expected; typical or normal. I don't particularly like to cook, but it's all in a day's work. Cleaning up after other people is all in a day's work for a busboy.

all in all considering everything that has happened; in summary and in spite of any unpleasantness. All in all, it was a very good party. All in all, I'm glad that I visited New York City.

all in good time at some future time; in the near future; in good time; soon. (This phrase is used to encourage people to be patient and wait quietly.) When will the baby be born? All in good time. Mary: I'm starved! When will Bill get here with the pizza? Tom: All in good time, Mary, all in good time.

(all) in one breath Fig. spoken very rapidly, usually while one is very excited. Ann said all in one breath, "Hurry, quick! The parade is coming!" Jane was in a play, and she was so excited that she said her whole speech in one breath.

all in one piece Fig. safely; without damage. Her son came home from school all in one piece, even though he had been in a fight. The package was handled carelessly, but the vase inside arrived all in one piece.

(all) in the family restricted to one's own family, as with private or embarrassing information. Don't tell anyone else. Please keep it all in the family. He only told his brother because he wanted it to remain in the family.

(all) joking aside and (all) kidding aside being serious for a moment; in all seriousness. I know I laugh at him but, joking aside, he's a very clever scientist. I know I threatened to leave and go round the world, but, joking aside, I do need a vacation.

(all) kidding aside Go to previous.

all kinds of someone or something Fig. a great number of people or things; a great amount of something, especially money. (*Typically: be ~; have ~.) There were all kinds of people there, probably thousands. The Smith family has all kinds of money.

all manner of someone or something Fig. all types of people or things. We saw all manner of people there. They came from every country in the world. They were selling all manner of things in the country store.

all my eye (and Betty Martin) nonsense; not true. Jane is always talking about her wonderful childhood, but it's all my eye. He pretends to have great plans, but they're all my eye and Betty Martin.

all night long throughout the whole night. I couldn't sleep all night long. John was sick all night long.

all oak and iron bound and sound as a barrel Rur. in good health; feeling good. (*Also: as ~.) Tom: How are you today? Bill: All oak and iron bound, thank you. Jane made a wonderful recovery from her surgery, and now she's as sound as a barrel.

all of a size Rur. all of the same size. I tried to pick out the biggest tomato, but they were pretty much all of a size. The houses in that neighborhood are all of a size.

all of a sudden suddenly. All of a sudden lightning struck the tree we were sitting under. I felt a sharp pain in my side all of a sudden.

all or nothing 1. Lit. everything or nothing at all. Sally would not accept only part of the money. She wanted all or nothing. I can't bargain over trifles. I will have to have all or nothing. 2. Fig. [the best] time to choose to do something or not to do it. It was all or nothing. Tim had to jump off the truck or risk drowning when the truck went into the water. Jane stood at the door of the airplane and checked her parachute. It was all or nothing now. She had to jump or be looked upon as a coward.

all over 1. and (all) over with finished. Dinner is all over. I'm sorry you didn't get any. It's all over. He's dead now. 2. everywhere. Oh, I just itch all over. She's spreading the rumor all over.

(all) over again starting over completely again; going through something completely yet another time. Do I have to go through this all over again? Please start over again for those who came in late.

all over creation and all over hell and half of Georgia; all over hell and gone; to hell and gone Rur. everywhere. □ Little Billy had his toys spread out all over creation. It took forever to clean up after him. □ They're looking all over creation, trying to find the missing man. □ Tom has traveled all over hell and half of Georgia trying to find the man who done him wrong.

all over hell and gone Go to previous.

all over hell and half of Georgia Go to all over creation.

all over (some place) found in every place; available in all locations. (*Typically: be ~; spread ~.) □ The window shattered and shards of glass were all over the place. □ There are ants all over the cake!

all over the earth and all over the world Fig. everywhere. □ Gravity acts the same all over the earth. □ Human nature is the same all over the world.

all over the world Go to previous.

all over town 1. Lit. in many places in town. □ Our dog got loose and ran all over town. □ Jane looked all over town for a dress to wear to the party. 2. Fig. known to many; widely known. □ Now keep this a secret. I don't want it all over town. □ In a short time the secret was known all over town.

all right 1. an indication of agreement or acquiescence. (Often pronounced aright in familiar conversation.) □ Father: Do it now, before you forget. Bill: All right. Tom: Please remember to bring me back a pizza. Sally: All right, but I get some of it. 2. Inf. a shout of agreement or encouragement. (Usually All right!) □ Alice: Come on, let's give Sally some encouragement. Fred: All right, Sally! Keep it up! You can do it! □ "That's the way to go! All right!" shouted various members of the audience. 3. well, good, or okay, but not excellent. (This phrase has all the uses that okay has.) □ I was a little sick, but now I'm all right. □ His work is all right, but nothing to brag about. □ All right, it's time to go. 4. beyond a doubt; as the evidence shows. □ The dog's dead all right. It hasn't moved at all. □ The train's late all right. There must be a problem up the line.

All right for you! That's the end of being friendly with you! That's the last chance for you! (Usually said by a child who is angry with a playmate.) □ All right for you, John. See if I ever play with you again. □ All right for you! I'm telling your mother what you did.

all right with someone agreeable to someone. □ If you want to ruin your life and marry Tom, it's all right with me. □ I'll see if using the car is all right with my father.

All righty. Inf. All right.; OK. □ Tom: Let's go to the state fair. Bill: All righty, let's do that. □ Everybody ready? All righty, then, let's get started.

All right(y) already! Inf. an impatient way of indicating agreement or acquiescence. □ Alice: All right already! Stop pushing me! Mary: I didn't do anything! □ Bill: Come on! Get over here! Bob: All righty already! Don't rush me!

All roads lead to Rome. Prov. There are many different routes to the same goal. □ Mary was criticizing the way that Jane was planting the flowers. John said, "Never mind, Mary, all roads lead to Rome." □ Some people learn by doing. Others have to be taught. In the long run, all roads lead to Rome.

All's fair in love and war. Prov. Cliché In some situations, such as when you are in love or waging war, you are allowed to be deceitful in order to get what you want. (Often said as an excuse for deception.) □ I cheated on the entrance exam, but I really want to get into that school, and all's fair in love and war. □ To get Judy to go out with him, Bob lied and told her that her boyfriend was seeing another woman. All's fair in love and war.

All's well that ends well. Prov. Cliché An event that has a good ending is good even if some things went wrong along the way. (This is the name of a play by Shakespeare.) □ I'm glad you finally got here, even though your car had a flat tire on the way. Oh, well. All's well that ends well. □ The groom was late for the wedding, but everything worked out all right. All's well that ends well.

(all) set (to do something) prepared or ready to do something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Are you set to cook the steaks? □ Yes, the fire is ready, and I'm all set to start.

all shook up Sl. excited; disturbed and upset. (See also shook up.) *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ She stole my heart, and I'm all shook up. □ They were all shook up after the accident.

all show and no go Sl. equipped with good looks but lacking action or energy. (Used to describe someone or something that looks good but does not perform as promised.) □ That shiny car of Jim's is all show and no go. □ He's mighty handsome, but I hear he's all show and no go.

(all) skin and bones Go to nothing but skin and bones.

all spruced up freshened up; tidied up; cleaned up. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; get someone or something ~.) □ Let's get the yard all spruced up for spring.

all sweetness and light Cliché very kind, innocent, and helpful. □ She was mad at first, but after a while, she was all sweetness and light. □ At the reception, the whole family was all sweetness and light, but they argued and fought after the guests left.

All systems (are) go. Cliché Everything is ready. (Originally said when preparing to launch a rocket.) □ The rocket is ready to blast off—all systems are go. □ Tom: Are you guys ready to start playing? Bill: Sure, Tom, all systems go.

all talk (and no action) talking often about doing something, but never actually doing it. □ The car needs washing, but Bill is all talk and no action on this matter. □ Bill keeps saying he'll get a job soon, but he's all talk and no action. □ Bill won't do it. He's just all talk.

All that glistens is not gold. Go to next.

All that glitters is not gold. and All that glistens is not gold. Prov. Just because something looks attractive does not mean it is genuine or valuable. (Often said as a warning.) □ Hollywood may look like an exciting place to live, but I don't think you should move there. All that glitters is not gold. □ I know Susie is popular and pretty, but don't be fooled by that. All that glitters is not gold.

All the best to someone. Go to Give my best to someone.

all the livelong day all day long. □ Well, of course you get to feeling stiff, sitting in front of a computer all the livelong day. □ I'd go crazy if I had to stay at home all the livelong day.

all the marbles Fig. all the winnings, spoils, or rewards. (*Typically: end up with ~; get ~; win ~; give someone ~.) □ Somehow Fred always seems to end up with all the marbles. I don't think he plays fair.

all the more reason for doing something and all the more reason to do something with even better reason or cause for doing something. (Can be included in a number of grammatical constructions.) □ Bill: I don't do well in calculus because I don't like the stuff. Father: All the more reason for working harder at it. □ Bob: I'm tired of painting this fence. It's so old it's rotting! □ Sally: All the more reason to paint it.

all the rage Fig. in current fashion; being a current fad. □ A new dance called the "floppy disc" is all the rage. □ Wearing a rope instead of a belt was all the rage in those days.

all the same and just the same nevertheless; anyhow. □ They were told not to bring presents, but they brought them all the same. □ His parents told him to stay home, but John went out just the same.

all the same (to someone) and just the same (to someone) of no consequence to someone—one way or the other; [of a choice] immaterial to someone. □ It's all the same to me whether we win or lose. □ If it's just the same to you, I'd rather walk than ride. □ If it's all the same, I'd rather you didn't smoke.

all the time 1. Lit. throughout a specific period of time. □ Bill was stealing money for the last two years, and Tom knew it all the time. □ All the time through December and January, Jane held down two jobs. 2. Fig. at all times; continuously. □ Your blood keeps flowing all the time. □ That electric motor runs all the time. 3. Fig. repeatedly; habitually. □ She keeps a handkerchief in her hand all the time. □ He whistles all the time. It drives me crazy.

all the way 1. Lit. from the beginning to the end; the entire distance, from start to finish. □ The ladder reaches all the way to the top of the house. □ I walked all the way home. 2. Fig. with everything on it, as with a hamburger with pickles, onion, catsup, mustard, lettuce, etc. □ I'd like one double cheeseburger—all the way. □ Make mine all the way. 3. Sl. [progressing] up to and including sexual intercourse. □ They went all the way on their date last night.

all the way live Sl. very exciting; excellent. □ Man, this place is all the way live. □ Oh, Tiffany is just, like, all the way live!

all there Fig. alert, aware, and mentally sound. (Usually negative.) □ After talking with Larry today, I get the feeling that he's not quite all there. □ You do such foolish things sometimes! I wonder if you're all there.

all things being equal Go to other things being equal.

All things must pass. and All things will pass. Fig. Everything comes to an end eventually. □ You'll get over this setback. All things must pass.

all things to all men and all things to all people Fig. [for someone or something] liked or used by all people; [for someone or something] everything that is wanted by all people. □ You simply can't be all things to all people. □ The candidate set out to be all things to all men and came off looking very wishy-washy.

all things to all people Go to previous.

All things will pass. Go to All things must pass.

all thumbs Fig. very awkward and clumsy, especially with one's hands. □ Poor Bob can't play the piano at all. He's all thumbs. □ Mary is all thumbs when it comes to gardening.

all to the good for the best; to one's benefit. □ He missed the train, but it was all to the good because the train had a wreck. □ It was all to the good that he died without suffering.

all told Fig. totaled up; including all parts. □ All told, he earned about $700 last week. □ All told, he has many fine characteristics.

all tore up (about something) Inf. very upset and sorry about something. (The correct torn can also be used. *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ When Jim's dog was lost, he was all tore up about it. □ I'm all tore up about denting your car like that. I'd be more than happy to pay for fixing it.

(all) tuckered out Rur. tired out; worn out. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Poor John worked so hard that he's all tuckered out. □ Look at that little baby sleeping. She's really tuckered out.

all vine and no taters Rur. to be all display with no real value. □ She's a good-looking woman, but really she's all vine and no taters. □ Don't be fooled by Jim's flowery promises. They're all vine and no taters.

all walks of life Fig. all social, economic, and ethnic groups. □ We saw people at the airport from all walks of life. □ The people who came to the street fair represented all walks of life.

(all) well and good good; desirable. □ It's well and good that you're here on time. I was afraid you'd be late again. □ It's all well and good that you're passing English, but what about math and science?

all wet 1. Lit. completely wet. □ I fell in and got all wet. 2. Fig. mistaken; wrongheaded; on the wrong track. □ That's not the correct answer, John. You're all wet. □ If you think that prices will come down, you're all wet.

all wool and a yard wide Fig. trustworthy and genuinely good. (A description of good quality wool cloth.) □ Mary's a fine human being—all wool and a yard wide. □ I won't hear a word against Bill. He's all wool and a yard wide.

all wool and no shoddy Rur. one hundred percent good quality. □ Everything Mary sells is the best there is, all wool and no shoddy. □ John's a good man through and through—all wool and no shoddy.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. Prov. It is not healthy for someone to work all the time and never play. (Often used to exhort someone to stop working, or to justify why you have stopped working. You can substitute the name of the person you are addressing for Jack.) □ Don't come to the office this weekend. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy. □ I'd like to take a week's vacation next month. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

all year round Fig. throughout all the seasons of the year; during the entire year. □ The public swimming pool is enclosed so that it can be used all year round. □ In the South they can grow flowers all year round.

allocate something to someone or something and allocate something between someone or something; allocate something among someone or something to give or assign something to someone or something. (Between with two, among with three or more.) □ The committee allocated the surplus cheese to the elderly people in the community. □ David allocated the money among all the members. □ He allocated the work between Fred and George. □ We had to allocate the money between the philanthropy and social committees.

allot something to someone or something to give or assign something to someone or something. □ We will allot a share of the proceeds to charity. □ I allotted a small portion of the work to Fred.

*an all-out effort a very good and thorough effort. (*Typically: begin ~; have ~; make ~; start ~.) □ We need to make an all-out effort to get this job done on time. □ The government began an all-out effort to reduce the federal budget.

all-out war total war, as opposed to limited military actions or threats of war. □ We are now concerned about all-out war in the Middle East. □ Threats of all-out war caused many tourists to leave the country immediately.

allow for someone or something 1. to plan on having enough of something (such as food, space, etc.) for someone. □ Mary is bringing Bill on the picnic, so be sure to allow for him when buying the food. □ Allow for an extra person when setting the table tonight. 2. to plan on the possibility of something. □ Allow for a few rainy days on your vacation. □ Be sure to allow for future growth when you plant the rosebushes.

Allow me. and Permit me. Please let me help you. (Typically said by someone politely assisting another person, as by opening a door or providing some personal service. In Allow me, the stress is usually on me. In Permit me, the stress is usually on -mit.) □ Tom and Jane approached the door. "Allow me," said Tom, grabbing the doorknob. □ "Permit me," said Fred, pulling out a gold-plated lighter and lighting Jane's cigarette.

allow some elbow room Go to some elbow room.

allow someone or something in[†] Go to next.

allow someone or something into a place and allow someone or something in[†] to permit someone or something to enter some place. □ Will they allow you in the restaurant without a tie? □ They won't allow in too many visitors.

allow someone up (from something) to permit someone to arise or get up. (Fixed phrase.) □ He knocked Peter down and would not allow him up from the ground. □ The doctor won't allow you up!

allow something for something 1. to allocate a share or a suitable amount of something, such as time, money, space, etc., for some activity or goal. □ I allowed only an hour for lunch. □ They did not allow enough money for their expenditures this month. 2. to give consideration to circumstances or contingencies. □ We allowed room for expansion when we designed the building. □ Allowing for his youth and lack of experience, I forgave him completely for his oversight.

alloy something with something 1. Lit. to combine one molten metal into another molten metal. □ Is it possible to alloy copper with nickel? □ The copper has been alloyed with nickel. 2. Fig. to combine one quality or attribute with another. □ She alloyed her courage with a helping of wisdom. □ Her courage has been alloyed with wisdom.

allude to someone or something to refer to someone or something; to make an implication about someone or something. □ I did not mean to allude to someone you disliked so much. □ I alluded to the accident only once.

ally oneself to someone or something to unite or affiliate oneself with someone or something. □ She sought to ally herself to the older members. □ Jane allied herself to the teacher almost immediately.

ally (oneself) (with someone) (against someone or something) to unite with someone in opposition to someone or something. □ Sally allied herself with John against the committee. □ We allied with the older ones against the younger ones. □ They allied themselves against the attackers.

the almighty dollar Fig. the U.S. dollar, or the acquisition of money, when viewed as more important than anything else. □ Bill was a slave to the almighty dollar. □ It's the almighty dollar that drives Wall Street thinking.

(almost) jump out of one's skin and nearly jump out of one's skin Fig. to react strongly to shock or surprise. □ Oh! You really scared me. I nearly jumped out of my skin. □ Bill was so startled he almost jumped out of his skin.

almost lost it Fig. to nearly lose one's temper, composure, or control, as out of anger. □ I was so mad, I almost lost it. □ When he saw the dent in his fender, he almost lost it.

(a)long about a certain time near a particular time. □ We arrived in town long about midnight and went right to the hotel. □ Along about his thirteenth birthday, Tom decided he was old enough to leave home.

along in years Go to up in years.

along similar lines Go to along those lines.

along these lines Go to next.

along those lines and along these lines; along similar lines similarly; in nearly the same way. □ We will deal with the other students along similar lines.

along with someone or something in addition to someone or something; together with someone or something. □ Jane went to the mall along with David. □ I ate some chocolates along with some fruit.

alongside (of) someone or something as compared with a person or a thing. (The things being compared need not be beside one another. Of is normally used before pronouns.) □ Our car looks quite small alongside of theirs. □ My power of concentration is quite limited alongside of yours.

aloof from someone or something being remote or distant from someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; keep ~; remain ~; stay ~.) □ She tends to keep aloof from the rest of us. □ Ken stays aloof from other committee members between meetings.

alpha and omega both the beginning and the end; the essentials, from the beginning to the end; everything, from the beginning to the end. □ He was forced to learn the alpha and omega of corporate law in order to even talk to the lawyers. □ He loved her deeply. She was his alpha and omega.

A alphabet soup initialisms and acronyms, especially when used excessively. □ The names of these government agencies are just alphabet soup. □ Just look at the telephone book! You can't find anything because it's filled with alphabet soup.

also-ran someone of no significance. (From horse racing, used of a horse that finishes a race but that does not finish among the money winners.) □ Oh, he's just another also-ran. □ Ignore the also-rans.

alternate between someone and someone else and alternate between something and something else to choose or change between two persons or things alternately. □ The job will alternate between Gil and Ed. □ The maid will alternate between the first floor and the second floor.

alternate with something 1. [for someone] to serve as a substitute for someone. □ I alternated with Fred as the lead in the school play. □ They asked Harry to alternate with Ron on the team. 2. [for something] to appear repetitively and regularly in a sequence with something else. (For instance, A alternates with B in the sequence ABABAB.) □ In this design the straight lines alternate with the circles. □ The red dots alternate with the blue ones.

always chasing rainbows tending to look for something (more) exciting and (more) rewarding but without realistic expectations. □ He can't seem to settle down and enjoy life. He's always chasing rainbows.

Am I glad to see you! I am very glad to see you! (Not a question. There is a stress on I and another on you.) □ Bill: Well, I finally got here! John: Wow! Am I glad to see you! □ Tom (as Bill opens the door): Here I am, Bill. What's wrong? Bill: Boy, am I glad to see you! I need your help right now.

Am I my brother's keeper? Go to I am not my brother's keeper.

Am I right? Inf. Isn't that so? Right? (A way of demanding a response and stimulating further conversation.) □ John: Now, this is the kind of thing we should be doing. Am I right? Sue: Well, sure. I guess. □ Fred: You don't want to do this for the rest of your life. Am I right? Bob: Yeah. Fred: You want to make something of yourself. Am I right? Bob: I suppose.

amalgamate something with something to unite something with something else; to merge two things. □ We will amalgamate this company with another firm. □ How long has our local been amalgamated with the national union?

amalgamate with something to join with something; to merge with something. □ Our group decided to amalgamate with another group. □ The groups did not amalgamate after all.

amble along (something) to walk along slowly and casually somewhere. □ They ambled along the path. □ I was just ambling along, minding my own business, when I tripped.

ambulance chaser a lawyer who hurries to the scene of an accident to try to get business from injured persons. □ The insurance companies are cracking down on ambulance chasers.

American as apple pie Cliché quintessentially American. (*Also: as ~.) □ A small house with a white picket fence is supposed to be as American as apple pie.

amount to much to be as good as something; to be any good. □ His fine plans don't amount to much, since he won't work for them. (Usually negative.) □ She's a nice girl, but she'll never amount to much.

amount to something 1. Lit. [for someone or something] to become worthwhile or successful. □ I hope Charles amounts to something some day. □ I doubt that this business will ever amount to anything really profitable. 2. Fig. [for something] to be the equivalent of something. □ Why, doing this amounts to cheating! □ Your comments amount to treason. 3. and amount (up) to something [for a sum of money] to increase [to a large amount]. □ Is that everything you want to buy? That amounts to twenty dollars. □ These charges amount up to a lot.

amount to the same thing and come to the same thing; add up to the same thing Fig. to be the same [as something]. □ Borrowing can be the same as stealing. If the owner does not know what you have borrowed, it amounts to the same thing. □ With cars—whether they're red or blue—it comes to the same thing.

amount (up) to something Go to amount to something.

amuse someone with something to entertain or interest someone with something. □ Try to amuse the child with this little toy. □ She was able to amuse herself with the puzzle for a while.

ancient history Fig. someone or something from so long ago as to be completely forgotten or no longer important, as a former relationship. □ Bob? I never think about Bob anymore. He's ancient history. □ His interest in joining the army is now ancient history.

and all that jazz and all that stuff; and all that nonsense. □ I need some glue, paper, string, and all that jazz to make a kite. □ She told me I was selfish, hateful, rude, ugly, and all that jazz.

and change plus a few cents; plus a few hundredths. (Used in citing a price or other decimal figure to indicate an additional fraction of a full unit.) □ This one only costs ten bucks and change. □ The New York Stock Exchange was up seven points and change for the third broken record this week.

And how! Inf. I agree! □ I am really excited you are here. And how! □ Bill: I am pleased you are here. Bob: Me, too! And how!

and so forth and and so on with additional related or similar things mentioned (but not specified). □ She told me everything about her kids and so forth. □ I heard about problems at work and so forth. □ He told me about all his health problems, including his arthritis and so on. □ I need some help getting ready for dinner, setting the table, and so on.

and so on Go to and so forth.

and something to spare and with something to spare Fig. with extra left over; with more than is needed. □ I had as much flour as I needed with some to spare. □ Fred said he should have enough cash to last the week—with money to spare.

and that's a fact Fig. and that is true. (Used to emphasize a statement.) □ John ain't no friend of mine, and that's a fact. □ I'll be glad when this day is over, and that's a fact.

And that's that. That is final and nothing more needs to be said. □ I refuse to go with you and that's that!

and the like and other similar things. □ Whenever we go on a picnic, we take potato chips, hot dogs, soda pop, and the like. □ I'm very tired of being yelled at, pushed around, and the like.

and them Go to and those.

and then some and even more; and more than has been mentioned. □ John is going to have to run like a deer and then some to win this race. □ The cook put the amount of salt called for into the soup and then some.

and this and that and more; and other miscellaneous things. □ Mom sent me some pillowcases, some sheets, a couple of blankets, and this and that. □ The repairman tightened some screws, fiddled with some bolts, and this and that.

and those and and them Rur. and some other people; and other friends or family members. □ But if we invite Jill, Mary and them will want to come. □ Jim and those was sayin' nasty things about me.

and what have you and more things; and other various things. □ Their garage is full of bikes, sleds, old boots, and what have you. □ The merchant sells writing paper, pens, string, and what have you.

And you? and Yourself? a way of redirecting a previously asked question to the asker or someone else. □ Bill: Do you want some more cake? Mary: Yes, thanks. Yourself? Bill: I've had enough. □ Jane: Are you enjoying yourself? Bill: Oh, yes, and you?

angle for something 1. Lit. to fish for something, as with a fishhook and line. □ Fred was angling for a big bass. □ I am angling for whatever I can catch. 2. Fig. to scheme or plan to get something; to “fish” for something. □ She is just angling for a larger settlement from her former employer. □ Are you angling for a raise in pay?

angle off (to/ward) something to turn or move toward something at an angle. □ The road angles off to the right. □ The sailboat angled off toward the direction the wind was blowing.

angry enough to chew nails Go to mad enough to chew nails (and spit rivets).

annex something to something [for a governmental body of a town or city] to attach a parcel of land onto an existing parcel of land through legal proceedings. □ The village annexed some adjacent land to itself. □ The adjoining lot was annexed to the site to allow for a bigger building.

annex to something [for the owner of a parcel of land] to have land attached to an adjacent town or city. □ Our community doesn't want to annex to Adamsville. □ The town voted to annex to the neighboring city of Smithton.

announce (one's support) for someone or something to declare one's political support for someone or something. □ The senator announced for the Supreme Court nominee. □ Our club announced for the incumbent candidate.

announce something to someone to tell something publicly to someone. □ The president announced his nominee for attorney general to the media. □ When was the news announced to the public?

anoint someone with something to pour or rub oil on a person's head as an honor or blessing; to put a liquid onto oneself. (Mostly in biblical references.) □ They anointed the king with oil and praised him greatly. □ He anointed himself with a menthol rub that was meant to help his cold symptoms.

another country heard from Fig. yet another person adds to the conversation. Used when someone joins a discussion other people are having, especially unexpectedly. (Used sarcastically, implying that the new speaker is not welcome in the discussion.) □ Alan: You ought to take a vacation tomorrow. You really look tired. Fred: I am not tired and I don't need a vacation. Jane: But you do seem awfully short-tempered. Fred: Well, well, another country heard from! □ Brother: Let's go to the movies. Father: I'm too busy to drive you to the movies. Sister: I want to go to the movies, too. Let's go to the movies! Father: Oh, splendid. Another country heard from.

(another) nail in someone's or something's coffin Fig. something that will harm or destroy someone or something. (Alludes to the sealing of a coffin with nails.) □ Every word of criticism that Bob said about the boss was another nail in his coffin. □ Losing their biggest customer was the final nail in the company's coffin.

another pair of eyes and a fresh pair of eyes Fig. another person to examine something closely in addition to anyone previously. □ As soon as we can get a fresh pair of eyes on this manuscript, we will find the last of the typos.

answer back (to someone) and answer someone back to talk back (to someone); to argue (with someone). (Fixed phrase.) □ I wish you wouldn't answer back to me that way. □ Please don't answer me back like that! □ Don't answer back or I'll ground you for a week!

answer for someone 1. Lit. to speak for another person. □ I can't answer for Chuck, but I do have my own opinion. □ I will answer for my friend in his absence. 2. Fig. to vouch for someone; to tell of the goodness of someone's character. □ Mr. Jones, who had known the girl all her life, answered for her. He knew she was innocent. □ I will answer for Ted. He could not hurt a flea.

answer for someone or something Fig. to explain or justify the actions of someone or some act; to take responsibility or blame for someone or something. □ You will have to answer for your children's bad behavior. □ I will answer only for my own misdeeds.

answer someone back Go to answer back (to someone).

answer someone's purpose and serve someone's purpose to fit or suit someone's aim or goal. □ This piece of wood will answer my purpose quite nicely. □ The new car serves our purpose perfectly.

answer the call 1. Euph. to die. □ Our dear brother answered the call and has gone to his eternal rest. 2. and answer the call (of nature) Euph. to find and use the toilet. □ We stopped the car long enough for Jed to answer the call of nature. □ You had better answer the call of nature when you feel it coming.

answer the call (of nature) Go to previous.

answer the door Fig. [after hearing the doorbell or a knock] to go to the door to see who is there. □ Would you please answer the door. I am busy. □ I wish someone would answer the door. I can't stand to hear the knocking.

answer to someone 1. Fig. to explain or justify one's actions to someone. (Usually with have to.) □ If John can- not behave properly, he'll have to answer to me. The car thief will have to answer to the judge. 2. Fig. [in the hierarchy of the workplace] to be under the supervision of someone; to report to someone. (See also report to (someone or something).) You will answer directly to Mr. Wright. I answer only to the boss.

A

answer to the description of someone Fig. to match a particular set of physical or facial characteristics. Chuck answers to the description his sister gave us. The man in police custody answers to the description of the burglar.

answer to the name (of) something to respond to a particular name. I answer to the name Walter. She answers to the name of Claire.

ants in one's pants Fig. nervousness and agitation. (on the image of someone suffering great discomfort as if having actual ants in the pants. *Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) I always get ants in my pants before a test. I wonder if all actors get ants in their pants before they go onstage.

any fool thing any ridiculous thing; anything that should be viewed as unimportant. He'll buy his wife any fool thing she wants. Bill can get distracted by any fool thing.

Any friend of someone's (is a friend of mine). Cliché. I am always pleased to meet a friend of someone I know. (A pleasant response when meeting or being introduced to a friend of a friend.) Fred: Well, nice to meet you, Tom. Any friend of my brother is a friend of mine. Tom: Thanks, Fred. Nice to meet you too. John: Thank you so much for helping me find Sue's address. Sally: You're welcome. Any friend of Sue's.

any number of someone or something Fig. a large number; a sufficiently large number. (Used when the exact number is not important.) Any number of people can vouch for my honesty. I can give you any number of reasons why I should join the army. I ate at that diner any number of times and never became ill.

any old thing Fig. just anything, not necessarily old. Just give me one. I don't care which. Just give me any old thing.

any port in a storm Fig. when one is having serious trouble, one must accept any solution, whether one likes the solution or not. I don't want to live with my parents, but it's a case of any port in a storm. I can't find an apartment I can afford. He hates his job, but he can't get another. Any port in a storm, you know.

any Tom, Dick, and Harry Go to (every) Tom, Dick, and Harry.

Anyone I know? and Anybody I know? a coy way of asking who? Sally: Where were you last night? Jane: I had a date. Sally: Anyone I know? Bill: I've got a date for the formal next month. Henry: Anybody I know?

Anything new down your way? Rur. Has any interesting event happened where you live? Bill: Anything new down your way? Bob: Nothing worth talking about. Mary: Hi, Sally. Anything new down your way? Sally: No, what's new with you? Mary: Nothing much.

Anything you say. Fig. Yes.; I agree. Mary: Will you please take these blouses over to the cleaners? Bill: Sure, anything you say. Mother: You're going to finish your home- work before you watch TV, right? Child: Anything you say, Mom.

Anytime you are ready. and Anytime you're ready. a phrase indicating that the speaker is waiting for the person spoken to to make the appropriate move or action. Mary: I think it's about time to go. Bill: Anytime you're ready. Surgeon: Shall we begin the operation? Nurse: Anytime you're ready, Doctor.

apologize (to someone) (for someone) to make an apology to someone for someone else's actions. Would you please apologize to Wally for Tom? I apologized for Frank to the hostess. I had to apologize for Frank. I had to apologize to the hostess. He was never able to apologize to himself for his past errors.

appeal against something to ask a court of appeals to change a ruling made by a lower court. My lawyer appealed against the judgment. We will file an appeal against the court ruling.

appeal (to a court) (for something) to plead to a court of appeals for a favorable ruling. She appealed to the court for a retrial. She appealed for an injunction to the circuit court. She appealed for a retrial.

appeal to someone to please or attract someone. Fast food doesn't appeal to me. The idea of a vacation to Florida this winter appeals to me a lot.

appear as something 1. to act a certain part in a play, opera, etc. Madame Smith-Franklin appeared as Carmen at the City Opera last season. The actor refused to appear as a villain in the play. 2. [for something] to be seen or occur in a particular form or with particular characteristics. The tumors appear as shadows on the X-ray. The first signs of the disease appear as a fever and a rash.

appear at some place to perform at a particular place. She is appearing at the Bijou all month. I will appear at Carnegie Hall soon.

appear at some time to arrive at a particular time. I am due to appear at the council at noon. I will appear at the meeting whenever my plane gets in.

appear before someone 1. to show up in the presence of someone, suddenly. The deer appeared before us with no sound or other warning. A frightful specter appeared before me. 2. to have a trial or hearing with a particular judge or court. You have to appear before Judge Cahill tomorrow. Have you ever appeared before the Supreme Court?

appear before something to arrive in advance of the appointed time or before some event. Please appear at least ten minutes before you are due. It is best to appear shortly before the time of your interview.

appear for someone to represent or substitute for a person who is absent. I will appear for you in the council. Who is going to appear for my lawyer, who is ill?

appear in court to go to a court of law as a participant. She has to appear in court tomorrow. I have to appear in court for my traffic violation.

appear in something 1. to be seen in some performance. The singer will appear in the opera with the rest of the chorus. I will appear in Aida. 2. to be seen wearing something. I wouldn't appear in that in public! Would you want to appear in a wrinkled suit?

appear out of nowhere Go to out of nowhere.

appear to be rooted to the spot Go to rooted to the spot.

appear to someone [for something] to make an appearance before someone. My late grandmother appeared to me in a dream.

appear to someone that... Fig. to seem to someone that... It appears to me that you are always late.

appear to the naked eye Go to the naked eye.

appear under the name of some name [for an actor] to perform under a special name. She is appearing under the name of Fifi. I appeared under the stage name Rex Righteous.

appear (up)on something to arrive and be seen on something. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) A fly appeared on the sterile bandages. A small bird appeared on our mailbox.

Appearances can be deceiving. Prov. Things can look different from the way they really are. Edward seems like a very nice boy, but appearances can be deceiving. Jane may look like she doesn't understand you, but she's really extremely bright. Appearances can be deceiving.

append something (on)to something to attach something to something; to hang something onto something. Please append these tassels onto the hem of your coat. Append this sentence to the last paragraph.

appertain to something [of a responsibility or privilege] to belong to something as a right. Do these rights appertain to a third cousin of the deceased? The statement doesn't make sense. It appertains to no one as it is stated.

An apple a day keeps the doctor away. Prov. Apples are so nutritious that if you eat an apple every day, you will not ever need to go to a doctor. Remember to take an apple in your lunch today. An apple a day keeps the doctor away. Grandma always fed us lots of apples when we visited her. She believed that an apple a day keeps the doctor away.

the apple of someone's eye Fig. someone's favorite person or thing; a boyfriend or a girlfriend. Tom is the apple of Mary's eye. She thinks he's the greatest. John's new car is the apple of his eye.

apple-polisher Fig. a flatterer. Doesn't that wimpy apple-polisher know how stupid he looks? Everybody at my office seems to be an apple-polisher but me.

apples and oranges Fig. two entities that are not similar. (Used especially in reference to comparisons of unlike things.) You can't talk about Fred and Ted in the same breath! They're like apples and oranges. Talking about her current book and her previous bestseller is like comparing apples and oranges.

apply oneself to something to work hard and diligently at something. You should apply yourself to your studies. She applied herself to her work and the time passed very rapidly.

apply something to something 1. Lit. to put something onto the surface of something. Apply the decal to the surface of the glass. Apply the paint evenly to each surface. 2. Fig. to use something, such as force, effort, etc., on something or in the performance of some task. Apply more effort in your school work. An even greater effort has been applied to make sure we finish on time.

apply to someone or something [for rules, laws, etc.] to affect someone or something; to be relevant to someone or something. Does this rule apply to me? These policies apply only to very large companies.

apply (to someone or something) (for something) to ask for something from someone or an organization. You must apply to the proper office for permission. I applied to seven colleges for admission.

apply within to ask about something [inside some place]. (Usually part of a sign or announcement posted outside a place.) The sign outside the office read, "Apply within." If you are interested in working here, please apply within.

appoint someone to something to select or assign someone to serve in a particular role. (Usually focusing on the role of the person or on a group of persons with similar roles.) I am going to appoint you to the position of treasurer. Fred tried to appoint himself to the board of directors, but it violated the by-laws.

apportion something out¹ (among some people) to divide something and distribute it among people. He apportioned the cake out among the guests. He apportioned out the applications among all those in the waiting room.

appraise something at something to study something and place a monetary value on it. They appraised the house at twice what it is worth. The diamond ring was appraised at a very high price.

apprentice someone to someone to assign someone to work at a certain trade and learn it from someone experienced. She apprenticed her son to a local diesel mechanic. I apprenticed myself to a printer and learned what it means to get really dirty.

apprise someone of something to inform someone of something. I hope you will apprise me of any change. Have you been apprised of the new rule?

approach someone about someone or something to ask someone about someone or something, usually with tact and caution. Wally has been acting strangely. I will approach Judy about him. She approached Tom about the broken window.

appropriate something for something 1. to allot a certain amount of money for a particular purpose. They will appropriate $10,000 for the exhibit at the fair. A large sum was appropriated for the expenses. 2. Euph. to take something [from someone else] and use it as something else or for a purpose different from what was intended. Walter appropriated a truck for an ambulance. It was necessary to appropriate your laptop for connecting to the Internet.

approve of someone or something to take a favorable view of someone or something. I approve of the way you have remodeled the kitchen. I don't approve of your foul language.

April showers bring May flowers. Prov. Although rain in April is annoying, it starts the flowers growing. Child: I hate all this rain. Why does it have to rain? Mother: April showers bring May flowers. Although it was a dreary, rainy day, we felt cheerful, since April showers bring May flowers.

A

arbitrate between someone and someone else to mediate between two disagreeing parties; to help two disagreeing parties to resolve their differences. □ Jane was called upon to arbitrate between the workers and the manager. □ I arbitrated between Fred and his ex-wife.

arbitrate in a dispute to mediate or negotiate a settlement in a dispute. □ She refuses to arbitrate in this dispute. □ I will arbitrate in this little disagreement.

arch (oneself) over to bend or curve over. (Oneself includes itself.) □ The tree arched over in the wind. □ Arch yourself over gracefully and then straighten up. □ The tree arched itself over in the windstorm.

arch over someone or something to bend or curve over someone or something; to stand or remain bent or curved over someone or something. □ The trees arched gracefully over the walkway. □ A lovely bower of roses arched over the bride.

arch something over someone or something to place something above someone or something to form an arch or archway. □ The cadets arched their swords over the bridal couple. □ The willow arched its long drooping branches over the tiny cabin.

(Are) things getting you down? Are everyday issues bothering you? □ Jane: Gee, Mary, you look sad. Are things getting you down? □ Tom: What's the matter, Bob? Things getting you down? Bob: No, I'm just a little tired.

(Are you) doing okay? and You doing okay? 1. How are you? □ Mary: Doing okay? Bill: You bet! How are you? □ Bill: Hey, man! Are you doing okay? Tom: Sure thing! And you? 2. How are you surviving this situation or ordeal? □ Mary: You doing okay? Bill: Sure. What about you? Mary: I'm doing fine. □ Tom: Wow, that was some turbulence we just hit! Are you doing okay? Mary: I'm still a little frightened, but I'll make it.

(Are you) feeling okay? Do you feel well? □ Tom: Are you feeling okay? Bill: Oh, fair to middling. □ Susan: Are you feeling okay? Mary: I'm still a little dizzy, but it will pass.

(Are you) going my way? If you are traveling in the direction of my destination, could I please go with you or can I have a ride in your car? □ Mary: Are you going my way? Sally: Sure. Get in. □ "Going my way?" said Tom as he saw Mary turn toward him.

(Are you) leaving so soon? and You leaving so soon? a polite inquiry made to a guest who has announced a departure. (Appropriate only for the first few guests to leave. It would seem sarcastic to say this to the last guest to leave or one who is leaving very late at night.) □ Sue: We really must go. Sally: Leaving so soon? Sue: Fred has to catch a plane at five in the morning. □ John (seeing Tom at the door): You leaving so soon? Tom: Yes, thanks for inviting me. I really have to go. John: Well, good night, then.

(Are you) ready for this? a way of presenting a piece of news or information that is expected to excite or surprise the person spoken to. □ Tom: Boy, do I have something to tell you! Are you ready for this? Mary: Sure. Let me have it! □ Tom: Now, here's a great joke! Are you ready for this? It is so funny! Alice: I can hardly wait.

(Are you) ready to order? Would you please tell me what you want as your meal? (A standard phrase used in eating establishments to find out what a customer wants to eat.) □ The waitress came over and asked, "Are you ready to order?" □ Tom: I know what I want. What about you, Sally? Are you ready to order? Sally: Don't rush me!

(Are you) sorry you asked? Now that you have heard (the unpleasant answer), do you regret having asked the question? (Compare this with You'll be sorry you asked.) □ Father: How are you doing in school? Bill: I'm flunking out. Sorry you asked? □ Mother: You've been looking a little down lately. Is there anything wrong? Bill: I probably have the flu. Are you sorry you asked?

argue against someone or something 1. Lit. [for someone] to make a case against someone or something; to oppose the choice of someone or something in an argument. □ I am preparing myself to argue against the case. □ Liz argued against Tom as the new president, but we chose him anyway. 2. Fig. [for something, such as facts] to support a case against someone or something in an argument; [for something, such as facts] to support a case against the choice of someone or something in an argument. □ I have uncovered something that argues against continuing this friendship. □ His own remarks argue against his qualifications for the office, but he probably will be elected anyway.

argue back to argue with or oppose someone; to answer back (to someone); to talk back (to someone). (Usually said of persons who are supposed to listen and obey without comment.) □ Please don't argue back all the time. □ I wish you children did not argue back so much.

argue for someone or something to make a case in favor of someone or something; to speak on behalf of someone or something in an argument. □ Are you prepared to argue strongly for this proposal? □ We will argue for our candidate in the debate.

argue one's way out of something and argue one's way out to talk and get oneself free of a problem. □ You can't argue your way out of this! □ It's a problem, and there is no way that you can argue your way out.

argue someone down[†] to defeat someone in a debate. □ Sally could always argue him down if she had to. □ She tries to argue down everyone she meets.

argue someone into doing something to convince or persuade someone to do something. □ She was unable to argue the manager into attending. □ She was unable to argue herself into doing something so unpleasant.

argue something down[†] 1. Lit. to reduce something, such as a bill or a price, by arguing. □ I tried to argue the price down, but it did no good. □ Tom could not argue down the bill. 2. Fig. to urge the defeat of a proposal or a motion in a meeting through discussion. □ I am prepared to argue the proposal down in court. □ She will argue down the proposal in the council meeting.

argue something out[†] to settle something by discussing all the important points. □ We are going to have to argue this out some other time. □ Must we argue out every single detail of this contract?

argue (with someone) (over someone or something) and argue (with someone) (about someone or something) to dispute or quarrel over someone or something with someone. □ Are you going to argue with her over something so simple? □ I wish you wouldn't argue over money with me.

□ We always argue about who should drive. □ Don't argue with me!

argue with something to challenge or dispute something; to dispute someone's statement of fact. □ I won't argue with your conclusions. □ It is not a good idea to argue with the facts.

arguing for the sake of arguing and arguing for the sake of argument arguing simply to be difficult or contrary. □ You are just arguing for the sake of arguing. You don't even know what the issue is. □ He is annoying, because he is always arguing for the sake of argument.

arguing for the sake of argument Go to previous.

arise from something and arise out of something 1. Lit. to get up from something. □ What time did you arise from bed? □ I arose out of my slumbers at dawn. 2. Lit. [for something] to drift upward from something. □ The smoke arose from the burning oil wells. □ The smoke arose out of the exhaust pipe. 3. Fig. to be due to something; to be caused by something. □ This whole problem arose from your stubbornness. □ The labor problem arose out of mismanagement. 4. Fig. [for someone] to come from poor or unfortunate circumstances. □ She arose from poverty to attain great wealth. □ She arose out of squalor through her own hard work.

arm in arm Fig. [of persons] linked or hooked together by the arms. (*Typically: go ~; stroll ~; walk ~.) □ The two lovers walked arm in arm down the street. □ They skated arm in arm around the rink.

arm (someone against someone or something) (with something) to equip someone with whatever is needed to fight against someone or something. □ They armed themselves against the enemy with guns and ammunition. □ The government armed the soldiers with the new guns.

armed and dangerous Cliché [of someone who is suspected of a crime] having a gun or other lethal weapon and not being reluctant to use it. (This is part of a warning to police officers who might try to capture an armed suspect. *Typically: be ~; be regarded as ~; be presumed to be ~.) □ The murderer is at large, presumed to be armed and dangerous. □ The suspect has killed once and is armed and dangerous.

armed to the teeth Fig. heavily armed with deadly weapons. □ The bank robber was armed to the teeth when he was caught. □ There are too many guns around. The entire country is armed to the teeth.

An army marches on its stomach. Prov. An army needs a regular supply of food in order to keep on fighting. □ The invading army will soon have to pull back. An army marches on its stomach, and they're out of food.

around someone or something 1. enclosing someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; go ~; circle ~.) □ The white picket fence is around the house and the yard. □ Jimmy was crying loudly. A ring of children circled around him, singing "Happy Birthday." 2. near someone or something in this vicinity. (*Typically: be ~; hang ~; live ~.) □ How long have you been around here? □ I don't like people like that hanging around me.

(a)round the bend 1. Fig. crazy; having lost sanity. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ I think this job is sending me around the bend. □ She sounds like she's round the bend

already. 2. intoxicated from alcohol or drugs. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ One more of those, and you'll be around the bend. □ From the glassy look in her eyes, I'd say she is completely round the bend now.

(a)round the clock Fig. continuously for twenty-four hours at a time. □ The priceless jewels were guarded around the clock. □ Grandfather was so sick that he had to have nurses round the clock.

arouse someone from something to activate a person out of a state of rest, sleep, or inaction. □ I could not arouse her from her sleep. □ She aroused herself from a deep sleep.

arrange for someone to do something to make plans for someone to do something. □ I will arrange for Charles to fix what he broke. □ I arranged for the plumber to install a new water heater.

arrange for something to prepare or plan for something. □ We will arrange for a celebration. □ John arranged for it.

arrange some music for something to prepare or adapt music for particular instruments or for a particular musical key. □ Paul arranged the piece for piano. □ This piece was arranged for the guitar by Frank's brother.

arrange something for some time to plan something for a particular time. □ We will arrange a picnic for the afternoon. □ I will arrange an appointment for the noon hour.

arrange something for someone or something to prepare or plan something for someone or something. □ They arranged a reception for Frank. □ We arranged a dance for the holiday.

arrange something with someone or something to prepare or plan something that will include someone or something. □ We arranged entertainment with clowns and a musician. □ I will arrange a fancy dinner with wine and cloth napkins. □ Paul arranged a meeting with the opposition.

arrive ahead of time Go to ahead of time.

arrive at a decision and reach a decision to make a decision; decide. □ Have you arrived at a decision yet? □ We will reach a decision tomorrow.

arrive back (some place) Go to back (some place).

arrive in force Go to in force.

arrive in the (very) nick of time Go to in the (very) nick of time.

arrive on a wing and a prayer Go to on a wing and a prayer.

arrive on the scene Go to come on the scene.

arrive (some place) at some time to reach some place at a particular time. □ We will arrive at the border at noon. □ They arrived at seven o'clock in the evening.

arrive (some place) from some other place to reach or come to a place from another place. (If the first some place is missing, the place is either here or must be inferred.) □ They arrived here from New York yesterday. □ They arrived from Charleston last week.

arrive (some place) in something to reach or come to a place in a particular kind of vehicle. □ They arrived here in their car. □ We arrived at the museum in a bus.

arrive some place in a body Go to in a body.

A arrive (somewhere) at the stroke of some time Go to arrive (somewhere) (up) on the stroke of some time.

arrive (somewhere) (up) on the stroke of some time and arrive (somewhere) at the stroke of some time to reach a place at a particular instant of time. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ She arrived home on the stroke of midnight. □ We all arrived at the stroke of two.

arrive (up) on the scene (of something) and arrive at the scene (of something) to reach the location of an event in progress. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on and at.) □ The police arrived on the scene of the crime. □ They arrived upon the scene of a frightening accident. □ What did they do when they arrived at the scene?

Art is long and life is short. Prov. Works of art last much longer than human lives.; Life is too short to learn everything you need to know about a particular discipline. □ Alan: You ought to do something besides paint pictures in your spare time. Come out with us, have some fun. Bob: Having fun will not win me immortality. Only my paintings can do that. Art is long and life is short. □ I always feel a sense of awe when I look at the Babylonian statues in the art museum. They were made thousands of years ago. Art is long and life is short.

as a duck takes to water Cliché easily and naturally. □ She took to singing just as a duck takes to water. □ The baby adapted to the bottle as a duck takes to water.

as a (general) rule usually; almost always. □ He can be found in his office as a general rule. □ As a general rule, Jane plays golf on Wednesdays. □ As a rule, things tend to get less busy after supper time.

as a last resort as the last choice; if everything else fails. □ Call me at home only as a last resort. □ As a last resort, the doctor will perform surgery.

As a man sows, so shall he reap. Go to As you sow, so shall you reap.

as a matter of course normally; as a normal procedure. □ The nurse takes your temperature as a matter of course. □ You are expected to make your own bed as a matter of course.

as a matter of fact actually; in addition to what has been said; in reference to what has been said. □ As a matter of fact, John came into the room while you were talking about him. □ I'm not a poor worker. As a matter of fact, I'm very efficient.

as a result (of something) because of something that has happened. □ As a result of the accident, Tom couldn't walk for six months. □ We couldn't afford to borrow money for a house as a result of the rise in interest rates.

as a rule in general; usually. □ As a rule, men should wear tuxedos at formal dinners. □ As a rule, the bus picks me up at 7:30 every morning.

as a token (of something) symbolic of something, especially of gratitude; as a memento of something. □ He gave me a rose as a token of his esteem. □ Here, take this gift as a token of my appreciation.

as all get out Rur. very much; as much as can be. □ I'm tired as all get out.

as an aside [said] as a comment that is not supposed to be heard by everyone. □ At the wedding, Tom said as an aside, "The bride doesn't look well." □ At the ballet, Billy said as an aside to his mother, "I hope the dancers fall off the stage!"

as bad as all that as bad as reported; as bad as it seems. (Usually expressed in the negative.) □ Come on! Nothing could be as bad as all that. □ Stop crying. It can't be as bad as all that.

as far as anyone knows and so far as anyone knows; to the best of one's knowledge to the limits of anyone's knowledge. (The anyone can be replaced with a more specific noun or pronoun.) □ As far as anyone knows, this is the last of the great herds of buffalo. □ Far as I know, this is the best spot to sit. □ Q: Are the trains on time? A: To the best of my knowledge, all the trains are on time today.

as far as it goes as much as something does, covers, or accomplishes. (Usually said of something that is inadequate.) □ Your plan is fine as far as it goes. It doesn't seem to take care of everything, though. □ As far as it goes, this law is a good one. It should set stiffer penalties, however.

as far as possible and so far as possible as much as possible; to whatever degree is possible. □ We must try, as far as possible, to get people to stop smoking in buses. □ As far as possible, the police will issue tickets to all speeding drivers. □ I'll follow your instructions so far as possible.

as far as someone is concerned and so far as someone is concerned from the point of view of someone. □ Bob: Isn't this cake good? Alice: Yes, indeed. This is the best cake I have ever eaten as far as I'm concerned. □ As far as we are concerned, anything at all would be fine for dinner.

as far as something is concerned and so far as something is concerned having to do with something; pertaining to something; as for something. □ This bill? As far as that's concerned, the committee will have to take care of it. □ As far as the roof's concerned, it will just have to last another year.

as for someone or something and as to someone or something regarding someone or something. □ As for the mayor, he can pay for his own dinner. □ As for this chair, there is nothing to do but throw it away.

as good as one's word obedient to one's promise; dependable in keeping one's promises. □ He was as good as his word. He lent me the books as he said he would. □ She said she would babysit and she was as good as her word.

As I live and breathe! Fig. How amazing! (Said on seeing or experiencing something surprising.) □ As I live and breathe, here we are again! □ Well, as I live and breathe, it's Harry Smith!

as I see it and in my opinion; in my view Fig. the way I think about it. □ Tom: This matter is not as bad as some would make it out to be. Alice: Yes. This whole affair has been overblown, as I see it. □ Bob: You're as wrong as can be. John: In my view, you are wrong.

as I was saying and like I was saying to repeat what I've been saying; to continue with what I was saying. (The first form is appropriate in any conversation. The second form is colloquial, informal, and familiar. In addition, this use of like for as, in the second form, is objected to by many people.) □ Bill: Now, Mary, this is one of the round ones that attaches to the wire here. Bob (passing through the room): Hello, you two! I'll talk to you later. Bill: Yeah, see you around. Now, as I was saying, Mary, this goes here on this wire. □ Tom: I hate to interrupt, but someone's car is being broken into down on the street. Fred: As I was saying, these illegal practices must stop.

as it is the way things are; the way it is now. □ "I wish I could get a better job," remarked Tom. "I'm just getting by as it is." □ Mary: Can we afford a new refrigerator? Fred: As it is, it would have to be a very small one.

as it were as one might say; as could be said. (Sometimes used to qualify an assertion that may not sound reasonable.) □ He carefully constructed, as it were, a huge submarine sandwich. □ The Franklins live in a small and, as it were, exquisite house.

as long as 1. and so long as since; because. □ As long as you're going to the bakery, please buy some fresh bread. □ So long as you're here, please stay for dinner. 2. and so long as if; only if. □ You may have dessert so long as you eat all your vegetables. □ You can go out this evening as long as you promise to be home by midnight. 3. for a specified length of time. □ You may stay out as long as you like. □ I didn't go to school as long as Bill did.

as luck would have it by good or bad luck; as it turned out; by chance. □ As luck would have it, we had a flat tire. □ As luck would have it, the check came in the mail today.

as one as if acting or moving as a single person. (*Typically: act ~; move ~; speak ~.) □ All the dancers moved as one. □ The chorus spoke as one.

as soon as at the moment that; at the time that; when. □ I fell asleep as soon as I lay down. □ John ate dinner as soon as he came home.

as such in the way something is; as someone or something is. □ I cannot accept your manuscript as such. It needs revisions. □ You are new to this job, and as such, I will have to train you.

As the twig is bent, so is the tree inclined. Prov. A grown person will act the way he or she was taught to act as a child. □ Alice's parents thought it was cute when she threw tantrums, and you'll notice that she still throws tantrums now that she's grown up. As the twig is bent, so is the tree inclined. □ Don't encourage your son to be so greedy. As the twig is bent, so is the tree inclined.

as usual as is the normal or typical situation. □ John ordered eggs for breakfast, as usual. □ He stood quietly as usual, waiting for the bus to come.

as we speak and even as we speak Cliché just now; at this very moment. □ "I'm sorry, sir," consoled the agent at the gate, "the plane is taking off as we speak." □ Tom: Waiter, where is my steak? It's taking a long time. Waiter: It is being grilled even as we speak, sir—just as you requested.

as well also; in addition. □ Could I have a second helping of potatoes as well? □ I'm feeling tired, and dizzy as well.

as well as someone or something 1. in addition to someone or something. □ Mary and Jane are coming to the party, as well as Tom. □ I'm studying biology and chemistry, as well as history. 2. to the same high degree as someone or something; as much as someone or something else.

□ Mary's parents treated me as well as they treat her. □ I did as well as you on the test.

As you make your bed, so you must lie (up)on it. and As you make your bed, so you must lie in it; As you make your bed, so must you lie in it. Prov. You have to suffer the consequences of what you do. (Often used as a rebuke.) □ Tom insisted on taking a trip to Florida in August, after we all told him how hot it was then. Now that he's there, all he does is complain about the heat. As you make your bed, so you must lie upon it. □ You were the one who chose these house painters because they were cheap. I told you they'd do a terrible job. As you make your bed, so must you lie in it.

As you sow, so shall you reap. and As a man sows, so shall he reap. Prov. Things will happen to you good or bad, according to how you behave. (Biblical.) □ You should stop being so cruel to other people. As you sow, so shall you reap. □ Fred built an immense fortune by swindling others, but lost it all when someone swindled him. As a man sows, so shall he reap.

ascertain something from someone or something to find out or learn with certainty information from someone or something. □ I need to ascertain some facts from you. □ A few facts have been ascertained from the interview.

ascribe something to someone or something to attribute something to someone or something; to assert that something has been caused by someone or something. □ Please do not ascribe that attitude to my friends. □ We ascribed the offensive action to Jill and only Jill.

aside from someone or something not including someone or something. □ Aside from a small bank account, I have no money at all. □ Aside from Mary, Nancy, Craig, and Phil, I have no friends on campus.

ask about someone or something Go to ask around (about someone or something).

ask after someone to inquire about the health and well-being of someone. □ Hermione asked after you when I saw her today. □ I asked after Molly and her family.

ask around (about someone or something) and ask about someone or something to request information (about someone or something) from a number of different sources. □ I don't know the answer. I'll ask around about it. □ Ask about, will you? Find out what people are thinking. □ Please ask around about her.

ask for a knuckle sandwich Go to a knuckle sandwich.

ask for someone or something to request someone or something; to ask that someone come forth. □ The police are at the door asking for Henry. □ The child asked for a glass of water.

ask for something bad or dire to act badly, such that one will bring on bad consequences. □ If you keep misbehaving, you'll be asking for punishment. □ You're really asking for it!

ask for the moon Fig. to make outlandish requests or demands for something, such as a lot of money or special privileges. □ She's asking for the moon, and she's not going to get it. □ Don't ask for the moon. Be reasonable!

ask for trouble and look for trouble Fig. to seem to be trying to get into trouble; to do something that would cause trouble; to do or say something that will cause trouble. Stop talking to me that way, John. You're just asking for trouble. The guard asked me to leave unless I was looking for trouble.

A

Ask me no questions, I'll tell you no lies. Go to next.

Ask no questions and hear no lies. and Ask me no questions, I'll tell you no lies. If you ask me that, my answer might not be the truth. (Implies that you will likely tell a lie, because you do not want to tell the truth.) What am I going to give you for your birthday? Ask no questions and hear no lies. Maybe I like Greg, and maybe I don't. Ask me no questions, I'll tell you no lies.

ask someone back 1. [for a host or hostess] to invite someone to come again (at a later time or to another similar event). After the way you behaved, they'll never ask us back. They had been asked back a number of times, but they never came. 2. [for someone who has been a guest] to invite a previous host or hostess to come to an event. We've had the Smiths to dinner five times. I think it's time they asked us back. I don't care if they ask us back or not.

ask someone down[†] to invite someone to come to one's home [for a visit]. (Usually said when someone must go to a lower level, travel south, down a hill, or into the country for the visit.) Sam asked us down for Friday evening. Shall we go? We asked down some old friends for the evening.

ask someone for something 1. to request something from someone. The diners asked the waiter for a type of wine the restaurant didn't have. A special wine was asked for by a number of patrons. 2. and ask someone to something to invite someone to something. Janet asked us to a party Friday evening. Janet asked us for dinner.

ask someone in Go to next.

ask someone in(to) some place and ask someone in to invite someone inside some place. We asked them into the house. We stopped our friends in the hallway and asked them in.

ask someone out[†] (for something) Go to next.

ask someone out (to something) 1. and ask someone out[†] (for something) to invite someone to go out (to something or some place) [on a date]. He asked her out to dinner, but she had other plans. She couldn't go, so he asked out someone else. Liz asked Carl out for dinner. 2. to invite someone for a visit to a place in the country or some other location remote from the center of things. Tom must be tired of the city. Let's ask him out to our place. I don't want to ask out everyone in the whole family again. Oh, let's ask him out anyway.

ask someone over to invite someone who lives close by to come to one's home [for a visit]. (Either to a house or apartment.) Can we ask Tom over? He has been asked over a number of times.

ask someone to something Go to ask someone for something.

ask someone up[†] to ask someone to come to one's home for a visit. (Usually said when someone must travel north, up a hill, or to an apartment on a higher floor for the visit.) Let's ask Judy up for the weekend. We asked up a few old friends.

ask something of someone or something to request or demand something from someone, something, or a group. I want to ask something of you. We will ask that of the board of directors. You should ask that of your database.

asking price the price that someone puts on an item being offered for sale. I think your asking price is a little high.

asleep at the switch Fig. not attending to one's job; failing to do one's duty at the proper time. (Alludes to a technician or engineer on a train sleeping instead of turning whatever switches are required. *Typically: be ~; fall ~.) The security guard fell asleep at the switch and a robber broke in. If I hadn't been asleep at the switch, I'd have noticed the car being stolen.

aspire to something to seek or aim for something better. She aspires to a job more challenging than her current position. I aspire to far greater things.

assail someone with something 1. Lit. to attack someone with something, such as a weapon. The crook assailed the officer with the officer's own club. The riot police were assailed with stones and bottles. 2. Fig. to pester or annoy someone with questions, requests, demands, etc. Don't assail me with all your complaints. She assailed herself with constant guilty rebukes.

assault and battery a violent attack [upon someone] followed by a beating. (A technical legal charge.) Richard was charged with two counts of assault and battery. Dave does not go out at night because he does not want to be a victim of assault and battery.

assault the ear Fig. [for sound or speech] to be very loud or persistent. That loud music assaults the ears! I can't hear you with all that traffic noise assaulting my ears.

assent to something to agree to something. I assent to what you suggest. She will not assent to our request.

assess something at something to estimate or value something at some figure. They assess the value of our house at half what it would sell for. The house was assessed at far more than its true worth.

assign someone or something to someone or something to designate someone or something as belonging to someone or something else. They assigned the new car to Roger. They assigned the new worker to the mail room.

assign something to someone to attribute something to someone; to blame something on someone. We were forced to assign the blame to Robert. They assigned the responsibility for the accident to the driver of the car.

assimilate someone or something into something to cause someone or something to be absorbed into something. (As when a person or thing joins a group.) We sought to assimilate Arnold into the community. The manager had to assimilate the new policies into the list of current ones. They assimilated themselves into the general population.

assimilate with some people to join or mix in with people and become accepted by them. It's easy for Karen to assimilate with new people. I want to assimilate rapidly with the other people in my class.

assist in something to help with something. May I assist in this? Please assist in this task.

assist (someone) at something to serve as a helper or assistant in some procedure. (This usually refers to a surgical procedure.) Will you assist at surgery this morning? I would be happy to assist you at the procedure.

assist someone in something to help a particular person working on a task. □ Please assist Greg in the committee's assignment. □ We assisted him in the whole procedure.

assist someone with someone or something to help someone manage someone or something, especially with lifting or physical management. □ Assist me with Jane, won't you? □ Will you assist me with this heavy box? □ Sally assisted herself with the math problem. She did it on her own.

associate oneself with someone or something to join someone or something as a partner or friend. □ I wanted to associate myself with a prestigious law firm. □ She associated herself with people of low repute.

associate someone or something with someone or something to link someone or something [in one's mind] to someone or something else. (Something and someone can occur in all possible combinations.) □ I always associate Walter with pizza for some reason. □ I associate pizza with stringy cheese.

associate with someone to be friendly with someone; to be acquainted with someone socially in a work setting. □ We seek to associate with persons like ourselves. □ I like to associate with interesting people.

assume a low profile Go to a low profile.

assume liability for something to accept the responsibility for paying a cost. □ Mr. Smith assumed liability for his son's student loans. □ The store assumed liability for the injured customer's hospital bills.

assure someone of something to guarantee something to someone; to promise someone that something will happen or that a particular state exists. □ I want to assure you of our good intentions. □ Frequently, she had to assure herself of her basic worth.

astound someone with something to shock or amaze someone with something. □ She astounded us with her skill. □ He astounded himself with his sudden burst of strength.

at a dead end Fig. having reached an impasse; able to go no further forward. □ I can't go on. I'm at a dead end. □ We are at a dead end; the project is hopelessly stalled.

at a fast clip Go to next.

at a good clip and at a fast clip rapidly. (*Typically: go ~; move ~; run ~; travel ~.) □ We were moving along at a good clip when a state trooper stopped us.

at a loss (for words) Fig. unable to speak; speechless or befuddled. □ I was so surprised that I was at a loss for words. □ Tom was terribly confused—really at a loss.

at a moment's notice and on a moment's notice with very little advance notice; with just a little bit of warning. □ They are always asking us to produce reports at a moment's notice.

at a premium at a high price; priced high because of something special. □ Sally bought the shoes at a premium because they were of very high quality. □ This new sports car sells at a premium because so many people want to buy it.

at a set time at a particular time; at an assigned time. □ Each person has to show up at a set time. □ Do I have to be there at a set time, or can I come whenever I want?

at a sitting at one time; during one period. (Usually refers to an activity that takes place while a person is seated.) □ The restaurant could feed only sixty people at a sitting. □ I can read about three hundred pages at a sitting.

at a snail's gallop Go to next.

at a snail's pace and at a snail's gallop very slowly. □ Things are moving along at a snail's pace here, but we'll finish on time—have no fear. □ Poor old Wally is creeping at a snail's gallop because his car has a flat tire.

at a stretch continuously; without stopping. □ We all had to do eight hours of duty at a stretch. □ The baby doesn't sleep for more than three hours at a stretch.

at all without qualification. (See the examples for word order variations.) □ It really wasn't very cold at all. □ It really wasn't at all cold. □ Tom will eat anything at all.

at all costs and at any cost Fig. regardless of the difficulty or cost; no matter what. □ I intend to have that car at all costs. □ Mary was going to get that job at any cost.

at all hours (of the day and night) Go to all hours (of the day and night).

at all times constantly; continuously. □ You must keep your passport handy at all times when you are traveling in a foreign country. □ When you're in a crowd, you must watch your child at all times.

at an early date soon; some day soon. □ The note said, "Please call me at an early date." □ You are expected to return the form to the office at an early date.

at an end having come to a stop; having reached the end. □ Things are now at an end. □ It's over between us. It's at an end. Good-bye.

at any cost Go to at all costs.

at any rate in any case; anyway. □ At any rate, what were we talking about? □ At any rate, I don't think you should quit your job.

at bay Fig. at a distance. (*Typically: be ~; keep someone or something ~; remain ~.) □ I have to keep the bill collectors at bay until I get my paycheck. □ The mosquitoes will not remain at bay for very long.

at best and at most in the most favorable view; in the most positive judgment; as the best one can say. □ At best we found their visit pleasantly short. □ The dinner was not at all pleasant. At best the food was not burned. □ At most there were three people in line ahead of me.

at close range very near; in close proximity. (Usually used in regard to shooting.) □ The hunter fired at the deer at close range. □ The powder burns tell us that the gun was fired at close range.

at cross-purposes with opposing viewpoints; with goals that interfere with each other. □ We are arguing at cross-purposes. We aren't even discussing the same thing. □ Bill and Tom are working at cross-purposes. They'll never get the job done right.

at death's door very near the end of one's life. (Often an exaggeration.) □ I was so ill that I was at death's door for three days. □ The family dog was at death's door for three days, and then it finally died.

at ease without worry or anxiety. □ The performer is at ease on the stage. □ After she had met a few people, Mary felt at ease with the group.

at every turn everywhere; everywhere one looks. □ There is a new problem at every turn. □ Life holds exciting adventures at every turn.

at face value from outward appearance; from what something first appears to be. (From the value printed on the “face” of a coin or bank note.) □ Don't just accept her offer at face value. Think of the implications. □ Joan tends to take people at face value and so she is always getting hurt.

at fault to blame [for something]; serving as the cause of something bad. □ I was not at fault in the accident. You cannot blame me.

at first initially; at the very beginning. □ He was shy at first. Then he became more friendly. □ At first we chose the red one. Later we switched to the blue one.

at first blush Go to next.

at first glance and at first blush when first examined; at an early stage. □ At first glance, the problem appeared quite simple. Later we learned just how complex it really was. □ He appeared quite healthy at first glance. □ At first blush, she appeared to be quite old.

at first light at dawn; when the first light of dawn appears. □ We will be ready to leave at first light.

at full blast using full power; as loudly as possible. (*Typically: be on ~; play ~; play something ~; run ~; run something ~.) □ The neighbors had their televisions on at full blast. □ The car radio was on at full blast. We couldn't hear what the driver was saying.

at full speed and at full tilt; at full throttle as fast as possible. □ The motor was running at full speed. □ John finished his running at full tilt. □ When the horse reached the back stretch he was at full throttle.

at full strength at the strongest amount, dilution, power, loudness, etc. □ You should use this medicine at full strength, even if it tastes bad.

at full throttle Go to at full speed.

at full tilt Go to at full speed.

at great length for a long period of time. (*Typically: explain ~; question someone ~; speak ~.) □ The lawyer questioned the witness at great length.

at half-mast and at half-staff [of a flag] halfway up or down its flagpole. □ The flag was flying at half-mast because the general had died. □ Americans fly flags at half-staff on Memorial Day.

at half-staff Go to previous.

at hand close by in time or space. □ I don't happen to have your application at hand at the moment. □ With the holiday season at hand, everyone is very excited.

at hazard in danger; at risk. □ He is not willing to have much of his money at hazard in the stock market. □ Your life is at hazard unless you wear a helmet when you ride your motorcycle.

at home at or in one's dwelling. □ Is Mary at home, or is she still at work? □ What time will she be at home?

at home with someone or something 1. Lit. in one's home with someone or something. □ She's at home with her mother. □ Bob's not alone. He's at home with the cats.

2. Fig. comfortable with someone or something; comfortable doing something. □ Tom is very much at home with my parents. □ Mary seems to be at home with her job.

at it again doing something again. □ I asked Tom to stop playing his trumpet, but he's at it again. □ They are at it again. Why are they always fighting?

at its best Go to at one's best.

at large 1. free; uncaptured. (Usually said of criminals not in custody.) □ At noon, the day after the robbery, the thieves were still at large. □ There is a murderer at large in the city!

2. in general; according to a general sample. □ Truck drivers at large don't like the new speed restriction on the highway. □ Students at large felt that discipline was too strict.

3. representing the whole group rather than its subsections. (Always refers to a special kind of elective office.) □ He ran for representative at large. □ She represented shareholders at large on the governing board.

at last finally; after a long wait. □ The train has come at last. □ At last, we have gotten something to eat.

at least anyway; in spite of difficulties. □ At least we had a good evening, even though the afternoon was rainy. □ At least we came away with some of our money left.

at least so many no less than; no fewer than. □ There were at least four people there that I knew. □ I want to spend at least three weeks in Mexico.

at leisure and at one's leisure at one's convenience. □ Choose one or the other at your leisure. □ Please drop by at your leisure.

at length 1. after some time; finally. □ At length, the roses bloomed, and the tomatoes ripened. □ And at length, the wizard spoke. 2. and at some length for quite a long time. □ He spoke to us about the problem at some length. □ He described the history of his village at length.

at liberty free; unrestrained. □ The criminal was set at liberty by the judge. □ You're at liberty to go anywhere you wish. □ I'm not at liberty to discuss the matter.

at loggerheads (with someone) and at loggerheads over something Fig. in conflict with someone; having reached an impasse (about something). □ Tom is at loggerheads with Bill. □ We are at loggerheads with each other. □ The twins were at loggerheads over who should take the larger room.

at (long) last after a long wait; finally. □ At last the hostages were released. □ Sally earned her diploma at long last after six years in college.

at loose ends restless and unsettled; unemployed. (*Typically: be ~; leave someone ~.) □ Just before school starts, all the children are at loose ends. □ Jane has been at loose ends ever since she lost her job.

at most Go to at best.

at night during the night. □ Most people sleep at night. □ Mary studies at night.

at odds (with someone) and at odds over something in opposition to someone; at loggerheads (with someone). □ Mary is always at odds with her father about how late she can stay out. □ John and his father are always at odds over what to watch on TV.

at once immediately; right now. □ We must leave at once!
□ You must come here at once; it is an emergency.

at one fell swoop and in one fell swoop Fig. in a single incident; as a single event. (This phrase preserves the old word fell, meaning “terrible” or “deadly.”) □ The party guests ate up all the snacks at one fell swoop. □ When the stock market crashed, many large fortunes were wiped out in one fell swoop.

at one's best 1. and at its best to the utmost; to the highest degree possible. □ This restaurant serves gourmet food at its best. □ The singer was at her best when she performed ballads. 2. in the best of health; displaying the most civilized behavior. (Often in the negative.) □ He's at his best after a good nap. □ I'm not at my best when I'm angry.

at one's leisure Go to at leisure.

at one's wit's end Fig. at the limits of one's mental resources. □ I'm at my wit's end with this problem. I cannot figure it out. □ Tom could do no more. He was at his wit's end.

at peace 1. relaxed and happy. □ I am always at peace when I sit in my rocking chair. □ When the warm breeze is blowing, I am at peace. 2. Euph. dead. □ It was a long illness, but she is at peace now. □ At last, Uncle George is at peace.

at play [at this moment] involved in playing. (See also at work.) □ The children are at play, and I am doing household chores. □ Whether I am at work or at play, I try to be pleasant to people.

at present now; at this point in time. □ We are not able to do any more at present. □ We may be able to lend you money next week, but not at present.

at random by chance; haphazard. □ The lottery numbers are chosen at random. □ As a prank, the children dialed phone numbers at random.

at regular intervals [of things in a series] at points that are equally distant from each other. □ You will find service stations at regular intervals along the highway. □ There are street lights at regular intervals on the main street of town.

at rest 1. not moving; not active. □ After the hectic day, the office was finally at rest at 8:00 P.M. □ When the car is at rest, you can get into the backseat. 2. Euph. dead. □ After a long, weary life, Emily is at rest. □ There he is, at rest in his coffin.

at risk in a situation where there is risk or hazard; in danger. (*Typically: be ~; put someone or something ~.) □ I refuse to put my family's welfare at risk by quitting my job. □ Your whole future is at risk if you don't stop smoking.

at sea 1. Lit. on the sea; away on a voyage on the ocean. □ The ship is at sea now, and you can't disembark. □ I spent many happy days at sea on my cruise. 2. Fig. confused; at a loss. □ Bill was at sea over the calculus problem. □ Reading economic theory leaves me feeling at sea.

at sea level at the level of the surface of the ocean. □ It is easier to breathe at sea level than in the mountains. □ Boats on the ocean are at sea level, but those on rivers are not.

at sixes and sevens lost in bewilderment; at loose ends. □ Mrs. Smith is at sixes and sevens since the death of her husband. □ Bill is always at sixes and sevens when he's home by himself.

at some length Go to at length.

at some time sharp exactly at the time named. □ You must be here at noon sharp. □ The plane is expected to arrive at seven forty-five sharp.

at someone being argumentative or contentious with someone. □ She is always at him about something. □ I wish you weren't at me all the time over finances.

at someone's beck and call ready to obey someone. □ What makes you think I wait around here at your beck and call? I have to leave for work, you know! □ It was a fine hotel. There were dozens of maids and waiters at our beck and call.

at someone's doorstep and on someone's doorstep Fig. in someone's care; as someone's responsibility. □ Why do you always have to lay your problems at my doorstep? □ I shall put this issue on someone else's doorstep. □ I don't want that problem on my doorstep.

at someone's earliest convenience as soon as it is possible for someone to do something. (This is also a polite way of saying immediately.) □ Please stop by my office at your earliest convenience. □ Bill, please have the oil changed at your earliest convenience.

at someone's mercy Go to at the mercy of someone.

at someone's request due to someone's request; on being asked by someone. □ At his mother's request, Tom stopped playing the saxophone. □ At the request of the police officer, Bill pulled his car over to the side of the road.

at someone's service Fig. ready to help someone in any way. □ The count greeted me warmly and said, "Welcome to my home. Just let me know what you need. I'm at your service." □ The desk clerk said, "Good morning, madam. I'm at your service."

at stake Fig. ready to be won or lost; at risk; hanging in the balance. □ That's a very risky investment. How much money is at stake? □ I have everything at stake on this wager.

at that rate in that manner; at that speed. □ If things keep progressing at that rate, we'll be rich by next year. □ At that rate we'll never get the money that is owed us.

at the appointed time at the expected or assigned time. □ The cab pulled up in the driveway at the appointed time. □ We all met at the hotel at the appointed time.

at the bottom of the hour Fig. on the half hour; the opposite of at the top of the hour. (Alludes to the big hand of a clock pointing to the 6. Typically heard on television or the radio.) □ Hear the news headlines at the bottom of the hour. □ We will have an interview with Harry Kravitz at the bottom of the hour.

at the bottom of the ladder and on the bottom rung (of the ladder) Fig. at the lowest level of pay and status. (Alludes to the lowness of the bottom rung of a ladder.) □ Most people start work at the bottom of the ladder. □ After Ann got fired, she had to start all over again on the bottom rung.

at the break of dawn Go to next.

at the crack of dawn and at the break of dawn Fig. at the earliest light of the day. □ Jane was always awake at the crack of dawn. □ The birds start singing at the break of dawn.

at the drop of a hat Fig. immediately; instantly; on the slightest signal or urging. (Alludes to the dropping of a hat as a signal.) □ John was always ready to go fishing at the drop of a hat. □ If you need help, just call on me. I can come at the drop of a hat.

at the eleventh hour Fig. at the last possible moment. (Just before the last clock hour, 12) □ She always turned her term papers in at the eleventh hour. □ We don't worry about death until the eleventh hour.

at the end of nowhere Fig. at a remote place; at some distance from civilization. (An exaggeration.) □ They live way out in the country at the end of nowhere. □ The police will never find us here, at the end of nowhere.

at the end of one's rope and at the end of one's tether Fig. at the limits of one's endurance. □ I'm at the end of my rope! I just can't go on this way! □ These kids are driving me out of my mind. I'm at the end of my tether.

at the end of one's tether Go to previous.

at the end of the day 1. Lit. at the time when work or one's waking hours end. (See also by the end of the day.) □ I will have an answer at the end of the day. □ Will this be finished at the end of the day or before? 2. Fig. when everything else has been taken into consideration. □ At the end of the day you will have to decide where you want to live. □ The committee interviewed many applicants for the post, but at the end of the day made no appointment.

at the expense of someone or something Fig. to the detriment of someone or something; to the harm of someone or something. □ He had a good laugh at the expense of his brother. □ He took a job in a better place at the expense of a larger income.

at the forefront (of something) and in the forefront (of something) Fig. at the place of greatest activity; vital or important to some activity. □ I interviewed Max Brown, the director who is in the forefront of the movie industry. □ The university I go to is at the forefront of computer technology.

at the height of something Fig. at the most intense or forceful aspect of something. □ At the height of his career, Tom was known around the world. □ At the height of the party, there were 50 people present.

at the helm (of something) Fig. in the position of being in control of something. □ The president is at the helm of the company. □ Things will go well with Anne at the helm.

at the last gasp Fig. at the very last; at the last chance; at the last minute. (Refers to someone's last breath before death.) □ She finally showed up at the last gasp, bringing the papers that were needed. □ We got there at the last gasp, just before our names were called.

at the last minute Fig. at the last possible chance; in the last few minutes, hours, or days. (Often an exaggeration.) □ Please don't make reservations at the last minute. □ Why do you ask all your questions at the last minute?

at the latest not beyond the time mentioned. □ Please pay this bill in ten days at the latest. □ I'll be home by midnight at the latest.

at the mercy of someone and at someone's mercy Fig. under the control of someone; without defense against someone. □ We were left at the mercy of the arresting officer. □ Mrs. Franklin wanted Mr. Franklin at her mercy.

at (the) most no more than the amount mentioned. □ A: How far away is the beach? B: Ten miles at most. □ At the most, there were only 15 people in the audience.

at the outset Fig. at the very beginning. □ At the outset, we were told everything we had to do. □ I learned at the outset of the project that I was to lead it.

at the point of doing something Go to on the point of doing something.

at the present time and at this point (in time) Cliché now; at present. (Used often as a wordy replacement for now.) □ We don't know the location of the stolen car at the present time. □ The patient is doing nicely at the present time.

at the rear of something located at the back part of something. □ I keep my tools at the rear of my garage. □ There's a stream at the rear of my property.

at the same time 1. Lit. during the same moment; simultaneously. □ We arrived at the same time. □ Too many things are happening at the same time, and I am confused.

2. Fig. nevertheless; however; along with that. □ Bill was able to pay for the damage. At the same time, he was very angry about the accident. □ We agree to your demands. At the same time, we object strongly to your methods.

at the top of one's game Fig. good and as good as one is likely to get. (Usually of sports.) □ I guess I was at the top of my game last year. This year, I stink.

at the top of one's lungs Go to next.

at the top of one's voice and at the top of one's lungs Fig. very loudly. □ Bill called to Mary at the top of his voice. □ How can I drive safely when you're all screaming at the top of your lungs?

at the top of the hour Fig. at the exact beginning of an hour. (Alludes to the big hand on a clock pointing to the 12. Often heard on television or the radio. See also at the bottom of the hour.) □ Every class in my school starts at the top of the hour. □ Our next newscast will be at the top of the hour.

at the (very) outside at the very most. □ The car repairs will cost $300 at the very outside. □ I'm now on my way and I'll be there in three hours at the outside.

at the wheel 1. operating the wheel that turns a ship's rudder; at the helm. □ The cabin boy was at the wheel with the captain close by. 2. operating the steering wheel of a car. □ Bobby was at the wheel when the car went off the road.

at (the) worst in the most negative or pessimistic view. □ At worst, Tom can be seen as greedy. □ Ann will receive a ticket for careless driving, at the worst.

at the zenith of something Fig. at the highest point of something; at the pinnacle of something. □ Tragically, at the zenith of his career, the teacher died suddenly. □ The scientist was at the zenith of her career when she made her discovery.

at this juncture at this point; at this pause. □ There is little more that I can say at this juncture. □ We can, if you wish, at this juncture, request a change in venue.

at this point (in time) Go to at the present time.

at this rate at this speed; if things continue in the same way. (Usually of a pessimistic view.) □ Hurry up! We'll never get there at this rate. □ At this rate, all the food will be gone before we get there.

at this stage (of the game) Fig. at the current point in some event or situation; currently. □ We'll have to wait and see. There isn't much we can do at this stage of the game. □ At this stage, we are better off not calling the doctor.

at times sometimes; occasionally. □ I feel quite sad at times. □ At times, I wish I had never come here.

at will whenever one wants; freely. □ You're free to come and go at will. □ The soldiers were told to fire their guns at will. □ You can eat anything you want at will.

at work 1. at one's place of work. □ I'm sorry to call you at work, but this is important. □ She's at work now. She'll be home at supper time. 2. working [at something]; busy [with something]. (See also at play.) □ Tom is presently at work on his project. He'll be finished in a half hour. □ Don't disturb me when I'm busy at work.

atone for something to make amends for an error. □ You must atone for the bad things you have done.

attach oneself to someone 1. Fig. to become emotionally involved with someone. □ Fred seems to have attached himself to a much older woman, who has captured his attention. □ Somehow, Susan has attached herself emotionally to Tom, and she is distraught over his being away. 2. Fig. to follow after someone; to become a constant companion to someone. □ Andy's little brother attached himself to Andy and his friends—much to Andy's distress. □ John attached himself to his older brother and drove him crazy.

attach oneself to something 1. Lit. to connect or secure oneself to something. □ During the storm, Tony attached himself to the helm and proceeded to steer the boat. □ The caterpillar attached itself to a branch and began to spin its cocoon. 2. Fig. to choose to associate with a particular thing, group, or organization. □ Ron attached himself to a volleyball team that practices at the school. □ The manager attached himself to the luncheon club and became a regular fixture there.

attach to someone Fig. [for blame, importance, guilt, fault, etc.] to become “fixed” onto someone or an organization. □ A lot of guilt attaches to Henry for his part in the plot. □ Most of the blame for the accident attaches to Roger.

attach to something [for something] to be meant to fit onto or into something. □ This one attaches to this other one right at this point. □ This part should have attached to the back of the desk, but it didn't fit.

attached to someone or something 1. Lit. connected to someone or something. □ The patient has a tube attached to his arm. □ A little shelf is attached to the wall. 2. Fig. fond of someone or something. □ John is really attached to his old-fashioned ideas. □ I'm really attached to my long-time girlfriend.

attack in force Go to in force.

*an attack (of an illness) a bout of some sickness; an instance or acute case of some disease. (*Typically: have ~; produce ~; suffer ~.) □ Mr. Hodder had an attack of stomach upset that forced him to stay at home.

attend to someone to listen to someone. □ Please attend to your teacher's instructions. □ Attend to the announcement of the new flight departure time.

attend to someone or something to take care of the needs of someone or something; to respond to a request or demand from someone or something. □ Please attend to your wounded friend. □ Would you please attend to the action points of this memo?

attest to something to certify or bear witness to a fact. □ I cannot attest to what you have reported. □ The witness attested to the suspect's presence at the scene of the crime.

attire someone in something to dress someone in something. □ The mother attired her children in new, clean clothes. □ She attired herself in her finest garments.

attract someone or something to someone or something else to draw or pull someone or something to someone or something else. □ The poster attracted a large number of people to the concert. □ The shouting attracted a lot of attention from the people who were nearby.

attribute something to someone or something to ascribe something to someone or something; to believe that someone or something is the source of something. □ We attribute our success to your good advice. □ I attribute all these ill-mannered memos to Andrew.

attune someone or something to someone or something else Fig. to bring someone or something into accord with someone or something else; to adjust someone or something to someone or something else. (Usually metaphorical. Not used for musical tuning.) □ You should try to attune yourself to our needs and direction. □ Try to attune your comments to the level of your audience.

auction something off to sell something [to the highest bidder] at an auction. □ He auctioned his home off. □ He auctioned off his home. □ The duke was forced to auction off his ancestral home to pay his taxes.

audition for something to try out for a part in something. (In a setting in which one's singing, speaking, or playing is heard and judged.) □ I plan to audition for the lead role in the school play. □ Liz auditioned for The Mikado.

audition someone for something to allow someone to try out for a part in a performance; to judge someone's singing, speaking, or playing potential for a part in a performance. □ Will you audition anyone else for the part? □ Have you been auditioned for a part in the school play?

augur well for someone or something to indicate or predict good things for someone or something. (Usually in the negative.) □ This latest economic message does not augur well for the stock market. □ I am afraid that this poll data does not augur well for the incumbent in the election.

avail oneself of something to help oneself by making use of something that is available. □ We availed ourselves of Tom's goodwill and let him repair the fence. □ The campers availed themselves of the first chance in a week to take a shower.

avenge oneself (on someone or something) (for something) and avenge oneself (against someone or something) (for something) to get even with, or take revenge against someone or something for some hurt or damage. □ They avenged themselves on the enemy for the surprise attack. □ He avenged himself against the storekeeper for the false charges. □ Mary avenged herself for her ex-husband's neglect to pay child support. □ Tom avenged himself on Bill for Bill's previous insults.

avenue of escape Fig. the pathway or route along which someone or something escapes. □ The open window was the bird's only avenue of escape from the house. □ Bill saw that his one avenue of escape was through the back door.

average out (at something) and average out (to something) to equal something as the average of a set of figures. □ The figures averaged out at what was expected. □ Will the charges average out to a reasonable figure? □ Over time, our expenses will average out to a low monthly outlay.

average something up[†] to calculate the average of a set of figures. □ Please add these figures and average them up. □ Please average up all the monthly expenses for the previous year. □ Will you please average these figures up on the calculator?

avert something (away) from someone or something to turn or divert something away from someone or something. □ We will attempt to avert attention from the problems. □ She averted her eyes from Bill when he walked by.

avoid someone or something like the plague Fig. to ignore or keep away from someone or something totally. □ What's wrong with Bob? Everyone avoids him like the plague. □ I don't like opera. I avoid it like the plague.

(Aw) shucks! Rur. Gosh!; a mild oath. □ Shucks, ma'am. It wasn't anything at all. □ Aw shucks, I ain't never been this close to a woman before.

awake(n) from something to wake up from something, such as a dream or a deep sleep. □ Tom awakened from a deep sleep at the sound of the phone ringing. □ At dawn, she awoke from her slumbers.

awake(n) someone from something to cause someone to wake up from something. □ The crowing of the rooster awakened Sally from her slumbers. □ She awakened herself from a deep sleep when she fell out of bed.

awake(n) someone to something to make someone alert to something, such as a problem or a need. □ We need to awaken the voters to the need for more taxes. □ They awakened themselves to their callousness and began to treat other people better.

awake(n) to something to wake up while experiencing something. □ Mary awoke to the smell of freshly brewed coffee. □ I love to awaken to music.

award something (to someone) (for something) and award (someone) something (for something) to give a prize or reward to someone (for something). □ The committee awarded a plaque to Andy for his loyalty. □ They awarded prizes for efficiency to two different people.

award something to someone or something [for a judge or other legal entity] to decide in favor of a person or group. □ The judge awarded the judgment to the plaintiff. □ The jury awarded a large sum to the smaller company.

away from it all at a place where one can avoid completely what one is leaving behind. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I need a few days off to get away from it all. □ Everyone needs to get away from it all every now and then.

away from one's desk Fig. not available for a telephone conversation; not available to be seen or spoken to. (Sometimes said by the person who answers a telephone in an office. It means that the person whom the caller wants is not immediately available due to personal or business reasons. *Typically: be ~; step ~.) □ I'm sorry, but Ann is away from her desk just now. Can you come back later? □ Tom has stepped away from his desk, but if you leave your number, he will call you right back.

away (from someone or something) avoiding someone or something; maintaining a physical distance from someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; keep ~; stay ~.) □ Please keep away from me if you have a cold. □ Stay away from the construction site, Timmy.

awkward as a bull in a china shop Go to a bull in a china shop.

awkward as a cow on a crutch and awkward as a cow on roller skates very clumsy or off balance. (*Also: as ~.) □ When Lulu was overweight, she was awkward as a cow on a crutch. □ Tom will never be a gymnast. He's as awkward as a cow on roller skates!

awkward as a cow on roller skates Go to previous. the ax Go to the sack.

Bb

a babe in arms 1. Lit. a very young baby that is carried by an adult. I have known that since I was a babe in arms!
 A young mother with a babe in arms stood in line with the rest of the students. 2. Fig. an innocent or naive person. He's a babe in arms when it comes to taking girls out.
 Mary has no idea how to win the election. Politically she's a babe in arms.

A babe in the woods Fig. a naive or innocent person; an inexperienced person. (Like a child lost in the woods.)
 Bill is a babe in the woods when it comes to dealing with plumbers. As a painter, Mary is fine, but she's a babe in the woods as a musician.

babysit for someone and babysit (with) someone 1. to attend and care for a child for a period of time. I'm looking for someone to babysit for my cousin. Will you babysit with my cousin? 2. to attend and care for a child for someone for a short period of time. Would you mind babysitting Roger for me for a few minutes? Sure, I will babysit for you.

back and fill Fig. to act indecisively; to change one's direction repeatedly; to reverse one's course. (Originally nautical, referring to trimming the sails so as to alternately fill them with wind and release the wind, in order to maneuver in a narrow space.) The president spent most of his speech backing and filling on the question of taxation. The other candidate was backing and filling on every issue, depending on whom she was addressing.

back and forth in one direction and then the other repeatedly; from one place to another repeatedly. We tossed the ball back and forth between us. The tiger paced back and forth in its cage.

back at it (again) doing something again. (Usually said in criticism.) I thought you stopped smoking, but I see you are back at it again.

back (at someone) repaying someone for a bad deed. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) Tom called me a jerk, but I'll get back at him. I don't know how I'll get back for her insult, but I will.

back away (from someone or something) and back off (from someone or something) 1. Lit. to move backwards from a person or thing; to withdraw physically from someone or something. You should back away from the fire. Please back off from the man who is threatening you. 2. Fig. to begin to appear uninterested in someone or something; to withdraw one's interest from someone or something. The board of directors began to back away from the idea of taking over the rival company. Tom backed off from the whole idea of investing in stocks.

back down (from someone or something) to yield to a person or a thing; to fail to carry through on a threat. Jane backed down from her position on the budget. It's probably better to back down from this situation; looks like you are at a disadvantage.

back down (on something) to lessen or drop an earlier rigid position on something; to yield something in an argument. She backed down on her demands. In the end, she backed down.

back down (something) to go down something backwards, such as a ladder or inclined driveway. Harry backed down the ladder safely. Looking behind him, he backed down slowly.

back East to or from the eastern United States, especially the northeastern or New England states. (Used even by people who have never been in the East.) Sally felt that she had to get back East for a few days. Tom went to school back East, but his brother attended college in the Midwest.

back in(to) (the) harness Fig. back doing one's job. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) I don't look forward to getting back into the harness next Monday. When my vacation is over, I have to get back into harness the very next day. I'm not looking forward to having to get back in harness after my trip abroad.

back in(to) circulation 1. Fig. back enjoying one's social contacts; back continuing to make new friends and develop a social life. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) After her illness, Kristine looked forward to getting back into circulation. I want to get back in circulation and have some fun. 2. Fig. becoming available for dating again. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) Now that Fred and Amy are through, Amy is getting back into circulation. Now that you're divorced, are you going to get back into circulation?

back into someone or something to move backwards, bumping into someone or something; to move a car backwards into something, such as a garage or a parking space. (See also back someone or something into someone or something.) I'm sorry. I didn't mean to back into you. I backed into the potted plant.

the back of the beyond the most remote place; somewhere very remote. John hardly ever comes to the city. He lives at the back of the beyond. Mary likes city life, but her husband likes to live in the back of the beyond.

back off (from someone or something) Go to back away (from someone or something).

back on one's feet 1. Lit. standing up again after a fall. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) She struggled to get back on her feet after she fell. 2. Fig. recovered from an illness and out of one's sickbed. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) I will go back to work as soon as I get back on my feet. I want to get back on my feet as soon as possible. 3. Fig. recovered from anything, especially financial problems. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) I can't afford to buy a car until I get a job and get back on my feet. I'll get back on my feet as soon as I start working again.

back on track Fig. running according to schedule again. (*Typically: get ~; get something ~; have something ~; put something ~.) □ I hope we can have this project back on track by the end of the week.

back oneself into a corner Fig. to manage to get oneself into a position where there is limited escape. (Ranging from literal to figurative.) □ He tells different stories to different people. Finally he backed himself into a corner and had to admit his lies.

back onto someone or something to go backwards, moving or rolling onto someone or something. □ The motorcycle backed onto my toe. □ Don't back onto anything as you go down the driveway!

back-order something [for a merchant] to order something that is not in stock and make delivery to the customer when the goods become available. □ The store didn't have the replacement part for my vacuum cleaner, so the manager back-ordered it for me. □ The shop had to back-order some of the items on my list.

back out (of something) 1. Lit. [for someone or something] to move out of something backwards. □ The rabbit tried to back out of its burrow. □ The rabbit backed out. 2. Fig. [for someone] to withdraw from something, such as an agreement, negotiations, an argument, etc. □ Are you going to try to back out of our agreement? □ You won't back out, will you?

back over someone or something [for a car or other vehicle] to roll backwards over someone or something. □ Sandy backed over her brother's bicycle. □ She almost backed over her brother.

back (some place) returned to some place; at some place again. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; arrive ~.) □ I can't wait till we get back home. □ When will we get back? Is it much farther?

back someone for something to support or endorse someone for something, such as a public office. □ We all back Tom for president. □ I am backing Jane for treasurer.

back someone or something into someone or something to guide or move someone or something backwards into someone or something. □ Don't back your car into anyone. □ Using hand signals, the attendant backed all the cars into the parking spaces.

back someone or something off (from something) to guide or move someone or something a short distance from something. □ I backed the car off from the curb a tiny bit. □ Using signals, I backed the car off from the crushed bicycle.

back someone or something onto someone or something to guide or move someone or something backwards onto someone or something. □ I backed the car onto the flow-ers accidentally. □ Using hand signals, the mechanic helped the driver back the car onto the ramp.

back someone or something out^t (from something) to back someone or something out of something. □ Judy backed out the car from the parking place. □ She backed it out from its space.

back someone or something out of something and back someone or something out^t to guide or move someone or something backwards out of something or some place. □

Judy backed the car out of the garage. □ Please back out the car. □ Don backed Fred out of the garage.

back someone or something up to someone or something and back someone or something up^t to guide or move someone or something backwards to someone or something. □ She backed the car up to the end of the street. □ Using hand signals, Todd helped back Mary up to the gas pump. □ He backed up the motor home carefully.

back someone up^t to provide someone with help in reserve; to support someone. □ Don't worry. I will back you up when you need me. □ Will you please back up Nancy over the weekend?

back something up^t 1. Lit. to drive a car backwards. □ Will you back your car up a little? □ I will back up the car. 2. Lit. to cause objects to obstruct a pathway or channel and cause a slowdown in the flow. □ The wreck backed the cars up for a long way. □ Some dead branches and leaves backed the sewer up. 3. Fig. to give additional support or evidence about something. (To support or strengthen the facts.) □ My story of the crime will back your story up. □ That backs up my story, all right.

back the wrong horse Fig. to support someone or something that cannot win or succeed. □ I don't want to back the wrong horse, but it seems to me that Jed is the better candidate. □ Fred backed the wrong horse in the budget hearings.

back to basics return to basic instruction; start the learning process over again. □ Class, you seem to have forgotten the simplest of facts, so it's back to basics for the first week of classes.

back to square one Fig. back to the beginning. (As with a board game.) □ Negotiations have broken down, and it's back to square one. □ We lost our appeal of the lower court decision, so back to square one.

back to the drawing board Fig. time to start from the start; it is time to plan something over again. (Plans or schematics are drawn on a drawing board. Note the variations shown in the examples.) □ It didn't work. Back to the drawing board. □ I flunked English this semester. Well, back to the old drawing board.

back to the salt mines Cliché time to return to work, school, or something else that might be unpleasant. (The phrase implies that the speaker is a slave who works in the salt mines.) □ It's one o'clock and lunch break is over. Back to the salt mines. □ School starts in the fall, so then it's back to the salt mines again.

back up 1. Lit. [for objects] to obstruct and accumulate in a pathway or channel. □ Something clogged the sewer and it backed up. 2. Fig. to refuse to go through with something; to back out (of something). □ Fred backed up at the last minute, leaving me to do the job alone.

back up (to someone or something) to move backwards to someone or something. (See also back someone or something up to someone or something.) □ The bus backed up to the end of the parking space.

back up (to something) to go back to something said in a conversation. □ Wait—back up a little. What did you say that phone number was? □ Let's back up to what you just said and go over that point again.

backfire on someone Fig. [for something, such as a plot] to fail unexpectedly; to fail with an undesired result. □ Your plot backfired on you. □ I was afraid that my scheme would backfire on me.

backhanded compliment and left-handed compliment an unintended or ambiguous compliment. □ Backhanded compliments are the only kind he ever gives! □ And I think his left-handed compliments are all given by accident, too!

the backroom boys Go to the boys in the back room.

backseat driver Fig. an annoying passenger who tells the driver how to drive; someone who tells others how to do things. □ I don't need any backseat driver on this project. □ Stop pestering me with all your advice. Nobody likes a backseat driver!

back-to-back 1. Lit. adjacent and touching backs. □ They started the duel by standing back-to-back. □ Two people who stand back-to-back can manage to see in all directions.
2. Fig. following immediately. (Actually such things are front to back, with the “end” of one event followed in time by the beginning of another.) □ The doctor had appointments set up back-to-back all day long. □ I have three lecture courses back-to-back every day of the week.

bad blood (between people) unpleasant feelings or animosity between people. (*Typically: be ~; have ~.) □ There is bad blood between Fred and Jim. They cannot be civil to one another. □ There is no bad blood between us. I don't know why we should quarrel.

a bad egg Go to a rotten egg.

A bad excuse is better than none. Prov. If you offer some explanation for an unwanted action, there is a slight chance that it will be accepted and you will therefore not be in trouble, but if you have no explanation at all, you do not even have that slight chance. □ Fred: I can't believe we played cards till midnight! What will I tell my wife when she asks why I'm so late getting home? Bill: Tell her something came up at the office. Fred: But that's a lousy excuse. She'll never believe it. Bill: A bad excuse is better than none.

a bad hair day a bad day in general. (As when one's inability to groom one's hair in the morning seems to color the events of the day.) □ I'm sorry I am so glum. This has been a real bad hair day. □ It's just one bad hair day after another.

Bad money drives out good. Prov. If there is counterfeit or inflated currency in circulation, people will hoard their genuine currency; worthless things will drive valuable things out of circulation. (This principle is also known as Gresham's Law.) □ When the government reduced the amount of copper in the pennies it produced, we saw that bad money drives out good; everyone saved copper pennies and only spent the less pure ones. □ Ever since cheap, flimsy furniture began to be manufactured in large quantities, it has been very difficult to find solid, well-made furniture. Bad craftsmanship, like bad money, drives out good.

Bad news travels fast. Prov. Information about trouble or misfortune disseminates quickly (more quickly than good news). □ John: Hi, Andy. I'm sorry to hear you got fired. Andy: How did you know about that already? It only happened this morning. John: Bad news travels fast. □ I called my mother to tell her about my car accident, but my aunt had already told her. Bad news travels fast.

a bad penny a worthless person. □ Wally is a bad penny. Someday he'll end up in jail. □ My little brother is a real bad penny. Every time he shows up, he wants to borrow money.

A bad penny always turns up. Prov. A worthless person always comes back to the place he or she started out. □ Jill: I just found out that Tom left town after we fought last Saturday. What if I never see him again? Jane: Don't worry. A bad penny always turns up.

a bad time Go to a hard time.

bad times and difficult times; trying times; hard times; tough times a period that offers difficulties, such as when there is not enough food, money, or work. □ We went through trying times when Perry was out of work, but we all bounced back.

badger someone into something Fig. to pester someone into doing something. □ Don't try to badger us into doing it. □ My brother and I were badgered into cleaning out the garage.

badger someone or something to death Fig. to bother and annoy someone or some group. □ If you don't tell him what he wants to know, he will badger you to death until he finds out.

bad-mouth someone or something to say negative things about someone or something. □ Mr. Smith was always bad-mouthing Mrs. Smith. They just didn't get along. □ John bad-mouths his car constantly because it is too small for him.

bag and baggage and part and parcel with one's luggage; with all one's possessions. □ Sally showed up at our door bag and baggage one Sunday morning. □ All right, if you won't pay the rent, out with you, bag and baggage! □ Get all your stuff—part and parcel—out of here!

Bag it! and Bag your face! Sl. Be quiet!; Shut up and go away! □ Mary: Sally, you look just terrible! What happened? Sally: Bag it! Mary: Sorry I asked! □ Bill: Did I ever tell you about the time I went to Germany? Sue: Give it a rest, Bill. Bag it! □ Sue: Can I borrow your car again? Mary: Bag your face, Sue! Sue: Well, I never!

bag of bones an extremely skinny person or animal with bones showing. (The skin is the figurative bag.) □ I've lost so much weight that I'm just turning into a bag of bones. □ Get that old bag of bones off the racetrack!

bag of tricks Fig. a collection of special techniques or methods. □ What have you got in your bag of tricks that could help me with this problem? □ Here comes Mother with her bag of tricks. I'm sure she can help us.

bag on someone Sl. to criticize someone. □ Stop bagging on me! I'm tired of all your complaining. □ If you are going to bag on everyone all the time, I don't want to hear about it.

bag some rays Go to catch some rays.

Bag that! Sl. Forget that! □ Bag that! The number I gave you was wrong. □ There are four—no, bag that!—six of the red ones and three blue ones.

Bag your face! Go to Bag it!

bail out (of something) 1. Lit. to jump out of an airplane with a parachute. □ John still remembers the first time he bailed out of a plane. □ When we get to 8,000 feet, we'll all bail out and drift down together. We'll open our parachutes at 2,000 feet. 2. Fig. to abandon a situation; to get out of something. □ John got tired of school, so he just bailed out. □ Please stay, Bill. You've been with us too long to bail out now.

bail someone or something out[†] Fig. to rescue someone or something from trouble or difficulty. (Based on bail someone out of jail.) □ The proposed law was in trouble, but Senator Todd bailed out the bill at the last minute. □ I was going to be late with my report, but my roommate lent a hand and bailed me out at the last minute.

bail someone out of jail and bail someone out[†] 1. Lit. to deposit a sum of money that allows someone to get out of jail while waiting for a trial. □ John was in jail. I had to go down to the police station to bail him out. □ I need some cash to bail out a friend! 2. Fig. to help someone who is having difficulties. □ When my brother went broke, I had to bail him out with a loan.

bail something out[†] 1. to remove water from the bottom of a boat by dipping or scooping. □ Tom has to bail the boat out before we get in. □ You should always bail out a boat before using it. 2. to empty a boat of accumulated water. □ Would you bail this boat out? □ I will bail out the boat.

bait and switch Fig. a deceptive merchandising practice where one product is advertised at a low price to get people's attention [the bait], but pressure is applied to get the customer to purchase a more expensive item. □ Walter described how the store used bait and switch, since they never seemed to have in stock the bargains that they advertised. □ Wilbur accused the merchant of bait and switch practices and stalked out of the store.

bake something from scratch Go to from scratch.

a baker's dozen thirteen. (Bakers often added an extra item to an order for a dozen.) □ We ended up with a baker's dozen each of socks and undershirts on our shopping trip.

the balance of power the situation where the power held by one governing body or adversary is balanced by the power of another. □ The balance of power was threatened when China captured our airplane.

balance out to equal out; to become even or fair. □ These things all balance out in the end. □ Don't worry. Things will balance out.

balance something against something else to consider one thing in reference to another; to weigh one possibility against another possibility. □ We will have to balance all the good he did against all the bad. □ The good will be balanced against the bad in the final reckoning.

balance something with something else to offset something with something else; to balance something against something else. □ The teacher tends to balance a harsh grading scheme with a strong sense of fair play. □ Roger balanced the spicy soup with a bland first course. □ They balanced his bad behavior with the good, but still felt he was much too rude.

balance the accounts 1. Lit. and balance the books to determine through bookkeeping that accounts are in balance, that all money is accounted for. □ Jane was up all night balancing the accounts. □ The cashier was not allowed to leave the bank until the manager balanced the books. 2. Fig. to get even [with someone]. □ Tom hit Bob. Bob balanced the accounts by breaking Tom's toy car. □ Once we have balanced the accounts, we can shake hands and be friends again.

bald as a baby's backside Go to next.

bald as a coot and bald as a baby's backside *completely bald. (Also: as ~.) □ If Tom's hair keeps receding like that, he'll be bald as a coot by the time he's thirty. □ Fred: Now, I'll admit my hair is thinning a little on the top, but— Jane: Thinning? You're not thinning, you're as bald as a baby's backside!

baleful as death *promising evil; very threatening. (Also: as ~.) □ The wind's moan was as baleful as death. □ His voice sounded baleful as death.

balk at something to resist and object to something; to shy away from doing something. □ I hope they don't balk at finishing their work. □ They will probably balk at it.

ball and chain 1. a wife. (Mostly jocular.) □ I've got to get home to my ball and chain. □ My ball and chain is mad at me. 2. a person's special burden; a job. (Prisoners sometimes were fettered with a chain attached to a leg on one end and to a heavy metal ball on the other.) □ Tom wanted to quit his job. He said he was tired of that old ball and chain. □ Mr. Franklin always referred to his wife as his ball and chain.

the ball is in someone's court Fig. to be someone else's move, play, or turn. (From tennis.) □ The ball's in your court now. You do something. □ I can't do anything as long as the ball is in John's court.

ball of fire and fireball an energetic and ambitious person; a go-getter. □ That guy is a real ball of fire when it comes to sales. □ I don't want to hire some young fireball. I need wisdom and thoughtfulness.

ball someone or something up[†] to interfere with someone or something; to mess someone or something up. □ Who balled this television up? □ Someone balled up the television.

ball something up[†] to roll something up into a ball. (Alluding to something, such as rope, being tangled up and so useless.) □ She balled the clay up and stuck it to the clown's face as a nose. □ Why are you balling up the paper?

a ballpark figure Fig. an estimate; an off-the-cuff guess. □ I don't need an exact number. A ballpark figure will do.

the balls of one's feet the bottom part of the feet just behind the toes. □ Mary got blisters on the balls of her feet from playing tennis. □ The dancer balanced on the balls of his feet.

ban someone from something 1. to prohibit someone from doing something. □ We banned everyone from smoking. □ Everyone has been banned from smoking. 2. to prohibit someone from entering something or some place. (The same as bar someone from some place.) □ They banned us from the building. □ The manager banned the children from the theater.

band together (against someone or something) to unite in opposition to someone or something; to unite against someone or something. □ We must band together against the enemy. □ Everyone banded together to finish the cleanup work.

bandage someone or something up^t to wrap bandages on someone or on someone's wounds. □ We should bandage the wounds up first. □ We should bandage up the wounds first. □ I have to bandage him up before we can move him. □ She bandaged herself up with the supplies she kept in her backpack.

bandy something about^t to spread something, such as someone's good name, around in an unfavorable context; to toss words around in a gossipy fashion. (Bandy means to toss or hit something back and forth.) □ Just stop bandying words about and start telling the truth! □ There is no need to keep bandying about those rumors.

bandy with someone to argue [with someone]; to argue by "playing catch with words." (Bandy means to toss or hit something back and forth.) □ Why are you bandying with me? □ She has been bandied with enough. Give her a straight answer.

bang against someone or something to knock or strike against someone or something. □ The shutter banged against the side of the house. □ The board banged against me and hurt my shin.

bang (away) at something to hit at something repeatedly, causing harm or making noise. □ Someone is banging away at the door. □ Stop banging at the door.

(bang) dead to rights in the act; (guilty) without question. □ We caught her dead to rights with the loot still on her. □ There he was, bang dead to rights with the smoking gun still in his hands.

bang for the buck value for the money spent; excitement for the money spent; a favorable cost-to-benefit ratio. (Expressed as an amount of bang for the buck.) □ I didn't get anywhere near the bang for the buck I expected. □ How much bang for the buck did you really think you would get from a twelve-year-old car—at any price?

bang into someone or something to knock or bump into someone or something. □ Why did you bang into me with your car? □ I banged into the door by accident.

bang on someone or something to strike someone or something repeatedly. (Especially to beat on a person or a drum.) □ Please stop banging on that drum! □ Max was banging on Lefty when the cops arrived.

bang one's head against a brick wall Go to beat one's head against the wall.

bang someone or something around^t to knock someone or something about; to beat or strike someone or something. □ Let's bang him around a little and see if that will change his mind. □ Why are you banging around my friend? □ Don't bang those pans around. □ He banged himself around badly in the car wreck.

bang someone up^t to beat someone up; to assault someone; to damage someone. □ The crooks banged him up a little bit. □ The crash banged up the passengers in the car. □ She banged herself up badly.

bang something against someone or something to strike something against someone or something. (Usually refers to striking with something that can make a banging noise.) □ She banged the spoon against the pan to call everyone to dinner. □ He banged the pan against me and made me very angry.

bang something in^t to crush something; to dent or collapse something. □ Who banged the side of the washing machine in? □ Who banged in the side of the washing machine?

bang something into someone or something to strike someone or something with something. □ Mark banged his fist into the cushion and swore. □ He banged the pole into Liz by accident.

bang something out^t to play something on the piano, loudly, banging on the keys; to type something on a keyboard by pounding on the keys. □ Let me bang this melody out and see if you can guess who wrote it. □ Please bang out the school song good and loud. □ I banged out the newspaper story and just barely made my deadline.

bang something up^t to crash or wreck something; to damage something. □ Don't bang my best skillet up! □ Who banged up my best skillet?

bang the drum for someone or something Go to beat the drum for someone or something.

banish someone or something from some place to ban or evict someone or something from some place. □ The town council banished motorcycles from all the parks in town. □ The new law banished vagrants from the train station.

bank on something Fig. to be so sure of something that one can trust it as one might trust a bank with one's money. □ I will be there on time. You can bank on it. □ I need a promise of your help. I hope I can bank on it.

bank something up^t (against something) 1. to heap or mound up something so that it presses against something. □ Walter banked the coals up against the side of the furnace. □ He banked up the coals against the side. □ Tim banked the coals up. 2. to heap or mound up something to guard against something. □ They had to build barriers to hide behind. They banked dirt and rubble up against the oncoming attackers. □ Who banked up this dirt against the flood? □ The river was rising, so we banked some dirt up.

banker's hours Fig. short work hours: 10:00 A.M. to 3:00 P.M. □ When did you start keeping banker's hours? □ There aren't many bankers who keep banker's hours these days.

baptism of fire Fig. a first experience of something, usually something difficult or unpleasant. □ My son's just had his first visit to the dentist. He stood up to this baptism of fire very well. □ Mary's had her baptism of fire as a teacher. She was assigned to the worst class in the school.

bar none with no exceptions. (Follows an assertion.) □ This is the best of all, bar none.

bar someone from some place to prevent someone from entering some place. (See also ban someone from something.) □ Please don't bar me from the movie theater. I will be quiet from now on. □ They were barred from the concert for smoking.

bare one's soul (to someone) Fig. to reveal one's innermost thoughts to someone; to tell another person exactly how one feels about someone or something. □ Mary bared her soul to Jane and Jane told Mary her problems also. □ You don't have to bare your soul to me. Just tell me why you are crying.

bare one's teeth Go to show one's teeth.

the bare something the smallest or least possible. □ Bob did the bare minimum of work to pass the class. □ Food, clothing, and shelter are the bare necessities of life.

bare something to someone to reveal or disclose something to someone. □ I have to know a guy pretty well before I will bare my innermost thoughts to him. □ Our criminal involvement was bared to the judge.

bare-bones Cliché limited; stripped down; lacking refinements or extras. □ This one is the bare-bones model. It has no accessories at all.

barf out Sl. to become deranged, to a greater or lesser degree. □ Terry barfed out when he heard about the damage Nick had done to his car. □ Yuck! I thought I was going to barf out.

barf someone out Sl. to disgust someone. (Fixed order.) □ You just barf me out! □ I barf myself out every time I look in the mirror.

bargain (for someone or something) (with someone) Go to bargain (over someone or something) (with someone).

bargain for something and bargain on something to plan for something; to expect something. □ We knew the project would be difficult, but we didn't bargain for this kind of trouble. □ I bargained on an easier time of it than this.

bargain on something Go to previous.

bargain (over someone or something) (with someone) and bargain (for someone or something) (with someone) to negotiate with someone about obtaining someone or something. □ I refuse to bargain over money with Dan. □ We will bargain with the supplier over prices. □ You can't bargain over Claire with Jeff as if she were a car!

bargaining chip Fig. something to be used (traded) in negotiations. □ I want to use their refusal to meet our terms as a bargaining chip in future negotiations. □ I need to have a few bargaining chips ready when we get down to drawing up the contract.

barge in (on someone or something) Fig. to break in on someone or something; to interrupt someone or something. □ Oh! I'm sorry. I didn't mean to barge in on you. □ They barged in on the church service and caused a commotion. □ Please don't interrupt me! You can't just barge in like that!

barge in(to some place) Fig. to go or come rudely into some place. (See also barge into someone or something.) □ He just barged right in without knocking. □ Don't barge in like that, without letting us know you're here!

barge into someone or something Fig. to bump or crash into someone or something, possibly on purpose. □ She just barged into me and nearly knocked me over. □ Tom tripped, barged into the water cooler, and hurt his knee.

bark at someone Fig. to speak harshly to someone. □ Don't bark at me like that over such a trivial mistake! □ Ken barked at the children for being noisy.

bark at someone or something Lit. [for a dog] to make a characteristic sharp sound at someone or something. (See also bark at someone.) □ The dog is barking at the traffic again. □ Their guard dog was barking at me.

bark something out at someone and bark something at someone; bark something to someone; bark something out† (to someone) Fig. to say something harshly to someone. □ The sergeant barked the orders out at the recruits. □ He barked an order at his staff. □ The teacher barked a reprimand out to the class. □ He barked out the order clearly and loudly.

bark up the wrong tree Fig. to make the wrong choice; to ask the wrong person; to follow the wrong course. (Alludes to a dog in pursuit of an animal, where the animal is in one tree and the dog is barking at another tree.) □ If you think I'm the guilty person, you're barking up the wrong tree. □ The hitters blamed the team's bad record on the pitchers, but they were barking up the wrong tree.

A barking dog never bites. Prov. Someone who makes threats all the time seldom carries out the threats. □ Old Mrs. Smith keeps saying she'll call the police if we walk on her lawn, but don't worry. A barking dog never bites. □ My boss threatens to fire me at least once a week, but a barking dog never bites.

barrel along to move along rapidly. □ The car was barreling along at a fairly rapid clip. □ Don't barrel along so fast that you miss the turn.

barrel in(to some place) Fig. to move into a place rapidly and with great force. □ Tony barreled into the room and interrupted the card game. □ He just barreled in without knocking.

a barrel of fun Fig. a tremendous amount of fun. □ Jill is just a barrel of fun in class. □ We had a barrel of fun at your party.

barrel out (of some place) to move rapidly out of a place; to burst out of a place. □ The kids barreled out of town as fast as they could go. □ They heard the police siren and quickly barreled out.

barter for something and barter over something to trade [something] for something else; to acquire something by exchanging goods or services, not by using money. □ I want to barter for a large amount of cloth. □ Will you barter for this month's rent? □ We will not barter over what you owe us.

barter something away† to trade something away; to lose something of value in a trade. □ Don't barter my car away! □ Don't barter away anything of such high value.

barter something for something else to trade something for something else. □ He sought to barter the car for a large computer. □ She bartered the piano for a settee.

barter something off† to get rid of something by trading it for something else. □ See if you can barter that old desk off. □ She bartered off the used bookshelf.

barter with someone to enter into trading with someone without using money; to bargain with someone. □ Are you willing to barter with me, or is this strictly a cash transaction?

base one's opinion on something to make a judgment or form an opinion from something. □ You must not base your opinion on one bad experience. □ I base my opinion on many years of studying the problem.

base something (upon) someone or something to ground something, such as one's opinion, decision, or thinking, on someone or something; to found one's ideas or attitude on something. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I base my opinion on many, many facts. □ I based my opinion upon my own seasoned judgment.

bash someone or something around[†] to treat someone or something roughly (physically or figuratively); to beat on or abuse someone or something (physically or otherwise). □ Stop bashing me around, and let's talk. □ The robber acted as though he was about to bash around his victims.

bash something against someone or something to strike something against someone or something. □ He accidentally bashed his head against a beam. □ She bashed her sore elbow against Ted's forehead and both of them were hurt.

bash something in[†] to crush something inward or to the inside. □ Don't bash the door in! □ It sounds like someone is bashing in the door.

bash something up[†] to crash something; to strike something and damage it. □ She bashed the car up badly. □ How did she bash up the car?

bask in something Fig. to enjoy or revel in something, such as praise, fame, etc. (Alludes to a person or animal resting in the warming rays of the sun.) □ Alice enjoyed basking in her newfound fame. □ Lily loves basking in praise.

a basket case Fig. a person who is a nervous wreck. (Formerly referred to a person who is physically disabled in all four limbs because of paralysis or amputation.) □ After that all-day meeting, I was practically a basket case. □ My weeks of worry were so intense that I was a real basket case afterwards.

bat something around[†] 1. Lit. to knock something around with a bat or something similar. □ Terry spent a little time batting a ball around, then he went home. □ Let's bat around some balls before we go home. 2. Fig. to discuss something back and forth. □ Let's bat this around a little bit tomorrow at our meeting. □ Do you want to bat around this matter a little more?

ba(t)ch (it) to live alone like a bachelor. □ I tried to bach it for a while, but I got too lonely. □ I didn't want to batch, but I had to.

bathe someone or something in something 1. Lit. to cleanse someone or something in something; to coat someone or something all over with some liquid. (In a container of liquid or the liquid itself.) □ She bathed the baby in warm water. □ Liz bathed her injured hand in cold water. □ She bathed herself in the warm spring water and took a long nap under a tree. 2. Fig. to blanket or spread over someone or something, as with light, vapor, color, etc. □ The candles bathed her in a soft glow. □ The red of the sunset bathed the trees in an eerie light.

batten down the hatches Fig. to prepare for difficult times. (From a nautical expression meaning, literally, to seal the hatches against the arrival of a storm. The word order is fixed.) □ Here comes that contentious Mrs. Jones. Batten down the hatches! □ Batten down the hatches, Congress is in session again.

batter someone or something up[†] to damage or harm someone or something. □ Max threatened to batter Lefty up within an inch of his life. □ Who battered up this desk?

batter something down[†] to smash or break down something, such as a wall, door, or any defensive structure. □ Do they have to batter anything down as part of the construction project? □ They battered down the wall as a first step in enlarging the house.

battle against someone or something 1. Lit. to wage a fight against someone or something; to attempt to defeat someone or something. □ The army battled against the enemy until both sides were exhausted. 2. Fig. to struggle with someone or something. □ We are battling against the ancient enemies of ignorance and hatred. □ I am tired of battling against Karen.

battle for something 1. Lit. to fight to gain something. □ The army battled for the town until they had defeated its defenders. 2. Fig. to attempt to win or gain something by struggling or arguing. □ Both of them battled for Kristina's attention.

battle of the bulge the attempt to keep one's waistline slim. (Jocular. Alludes to a World War II battle.) □ She appears to have lost the battle of the bulge. □ I've been fighting the battle of the bulge ever since I turned 35.

a battle royal a classic, hard-fought battle or argument. □ The meeting turned into a battle royal and everyone left angry.

battle something out[†] 1. Lit. to fight about something to a conclusion. □ They battled the matter out and came to an agreement. □ The two young toughs went into the alley to battle out their differences. 2. Fig. to argue something to a conclusion; to struggle to reach a conclusion. □ The Senate and the House disagree on the bill, so they will have to battle a compromise out.

battle (with someone) (over someone or something) Fig. to argue or struggle with someone over someone or something. (Not meant to involve physical fighting.) □ Why do you always have to battle with me over practically nothing? □ You shouldn't battle over just anything for the sake of argument!

bawl someone out[†] to scold someone in a loud voice. □ The teacher bawled the student out for arriving late. □ Principals don't usually bawl out students.

bay at something to howl at something. (Usually said of a dog, wolf, or coyote.) □ The dogs were baying at the moon. □ We heard a coyote in the distance, baying at the moon.

Be careful. 1. an instruction to take care in a particular situation. □ Bill: I'm going to the beach tomorrow. Sally: Be careful. Use lots of sunscreen! □ Jane: Well, we're off to the Amazon. Mary: Heavens! Be careful! 2. a way of saying good-bye while cautioning someone to take care. □ John: See you around, Fred. Fred: Be careful. □ Alice: Well, I'm off. John: Bye, Alice, be careful.

be for doing something Go to next.

be for someone or something and be for doing something supporting or in favor of someone or something. □ I'm for abandoning the scheme. □ Mary is running for office, and the whole family is for her.

be game to be ready for action; to be agreeable to participating in something. □ "I'm game," David replied when I suggested we go for a long hike. □ We're going to the park to play football. Are you game?

be given precedence over someone or something Go to precedence over someone or something.

Be good. a departure response meaning "good-bye and behave yourself." □ Jane: Well, we're off. Be back in a week. Mary: Okay, have fun. Be good. Jane: Do I have to? □ Tom: Bye. Be good. Bill: See you next month.

Be happy to (do something). Go to (I'd be) happy to (do something).

be in aid of to be intended to help, cure, or resolve. □ What is all this in aid of? □ I don't understand what your comments are in aid of.

Be just before you're generous. Prov. Do what you ought to do before you do things that you want to do; pay your debts before you give money away. □ Jill: It's payday! I can't wait to go out and buy my niece that nice toy train set for her birthday. Jane: But, Jill, we have bills to pay. Be just before you're generous.

Be my guest. Help yourself.; After you. (A polite way of indicating that someone else should go first, help himself or herself to something, or take the last one of something.) □ Mary: I would just love to have some more cake, but there is only one piece left. Sally: Be my guest. Mary: Wow! Thanks! □ Jane: Here's the door. Who should go in first? Bill: Be my guest. I'll wait out here. Jane: You're so polite!

be one's brother's keeper to be responsible for someone else. (Used of others besides just real brothers.) □ I can't force these kids to go to school and get an education so they can get jobs. I am not my brother's keeper. □ You can't expect me to be my brother's keeper. Each of us should be responsible for himself!

be one's own man and be one's own master to be someone who is not controlled by other people; to be an independent person. □ Bert longed to be his own master, but at the same time feared losing the security he had as the employee of a large company. □ When I go away to college, I'll be my own man. My parents won't be able to tell me what to do anymore.

be one's own master Go to previous.

Be quiet! Stop talking or making noise. (Regarded as a bit harsh or overbearing, but made polite with please.) □ Bill (entering the room): Hey, Tom! Tom: Please be quiet! I'm on the phone. □ Tom: Hey, Bill! Bill: Be quiet! You're too loud. Tom: Sorry.

be so bold as to do something and make so bold as to do something to dare to do something. □ Would you care to dance, if I may make so bold as to ask? □ She was so bold to confront her rival.

be that as it may Cliché even if what you say is true. □ I am sorry to hear about your troubles, but, be that as it may, you still must carry out your responsibilities. □ Be that as it may, I still cannot help you.

be the last person (to do something) to be the most unlikely person of whom one could think in a particular situation; to be the most unlikely person to do something. (Also literal.) □ Mary is the last person you should ask to chair the meeting—she's so shy.

Be there or be square. Sl. Attend or be at some event or place or be considered uncooperative or not “with it.” □ There's a bunch of people going to be at John's on Saturday. Be there or be square.

be too and be so to be something (despite any information to the contrary). (An emphatic form of is, am, are, was, were.) □ Mother: Billy, you aren't old enough to be up this late. Billy: I am too! □ I was so! I was there exactly when I said I would be!

Beam me up, Scotty! Get me out of here!; Take me away from this mess! (From the late 1960s television program Star Trek.) □ This place is really crazy! Beam me up, Scotty! □ I've heard enough! Beam me up, Scotty!

beam someone or something up^t (to some place) to transport someone or something (up) to something. (Originally in the context of a Star Trek adventure, but also used jocularly.) □ The captain asked the first mate to beam him up. □ Please beam up the crew, Roger. □ Beam me up so I can see your penthouse suite!

beam up Sl. to die. (Alluding to the television program Star Trek.) □ Pete Dead? I didn't think he was old enough to beam up. □ I was so exhausted after climbing four flights that I was afraid I would beam up.

bear a grudge (against someone) and have a grudge (against someone); hold a grudge (against someone) to continue feeling an old resentment for someone; to harbor continual anger for someone. □ She bears a grudge against the judge who sentenced her. □ I have a grudge against my landlord for not fixing the leaky faucet.

bear a resemblance to someone or something to have a degree of similarity to someone or something. □ This wallet bears a strong resemblance to the one I lost last month. □ Do you think that Wally bears any resemblance to his sister Mary?

bear down (on someone or something) to press down on someone or something. □ Bear down on the pen. You have to make a lot of copies. □ Don't bear down too hard or you'll break it.

bear fruit 1. Lit. [for a plant or tree] to yield fruit. □ Our apple tree didn't bear fruit this year. 2. Fig. to yield results. □ I hope your new plan bears fruit. □ We've had many good ideas, but none of them has borne fruit.

bear in mind that... to remember [something]; to consider [something]. □ Bear in mind that the trip will be expensive. □ I asked the teacher to bear in mind that I am just a beginner.

bear off (of something) to turn off a road or course. □ Bear off the main road to the left. □ Don't bear off too sharply.

bear one's cross and carry one's cross Fig. to handle or cope with one's burden; to endure one's difficulties. (This is a biblical theme. It is always used figuratively except in the biblical context.) □ It's a very painful disease, but I'll bear my cross. □ I can't help you with it. You'll just have to carry your own cross.

bear someone or something in mind Go to keep someone or something in mind.

bear someone or something up^t to hold someone or something up; to support someone or something. □ Will this bench bear me up? □ This bench is so sturdy it would bear up an elephant.

bear someone up^t to sustain or encourage someone. □ Your encouragement bore me up through a very hard time. □ I will bear up the widow through the funeral service as well as I can.

bear something out^t [for facts or evidence] to support or confirm a story or explanation. □ The facts don't bear this out. □ Her story bears out exactly what you said.

bear the blame for something Go to the blame for something.

bear the brunt (of something) to withstand the worst part or the strongest part of something, such as an attack. □ I had to bear the brunt of her screaming and yelling. □ Why don't you talk with her the next time she complains? I'm tired of bearing the brunt of her objections.

bear up (against something) to withstand something. □ She was unable to bear up against the criticism. □ Ken bore up against the challenge of his disabling injury well.

bear up (under something) 1. Lit. to hold up under something; to sustain the weight of something. □ How is the new beam bearing up under the weight of the floor? □ It isn't bearing up. It broke. 2. Fig. [for someone] to remain brave under a mental or emotional burden. □ Jill did not bear up well under problems with her family. □ Jill bore up quite well amid serious difficulties.

bear (up)on something [for information or facts] to concern something or be relevant to something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ How do those facts bear on this matter? □ They do not bear upon this matter at all.

bear watching to need close, attentive observation or monitoring. □ This problem will bear watching. □ This is a very serious disease, and it will bear watching for further developments.

bear with someone or something to be patient with someone or something; to wait upon someone or something. (Especially through difficulties.) □ Please bear with me for a moment while I try to get this straightened out. □ Can you bear with the committee until it reaches a decision?

beard the lion in his den and beard someone in his den Prov. to confront someone on his or her own territory. □ I spent a week trying to reach Mr. Toynbee by phone, but his secretary always told me he was too busy to talk to me. Today I walked straight into his office and bearded the lion in his den. □ If the landlord doesn't contact us soon, we'll have to beard him in his den.

beat a dead horse Go to flog a dead horse.

beat a (hasty) retreat to withdraw from a place very quickly. □ We went out into the cold weather, but beat a retreat to the warmth of our fire. □ The dog beat a hasty retreat to its own yard.

beat a path to someone's door Fig. [for people] to arrive (at a person's place) in great numbers. (The image is that so many people will wish to come that they will wear down a pathway to the door.) □ I have a new product so good that everyone will beat a path to my door. □ If you really become famous, people will beat a path to your door.

beat about the bush Go to beat around the bush.

beat against someone or something to strike against someone or something. □ The wind beat against the sides of the house. □ Max beat against Lefty's jaw with his quick jabs.

beat around the bush and beat about the bush Fig. to avoid answering a question; to stall; to waste time. □ Stop beating around the bush and answer my question. □ Let's stop beating about the bush and discuss this matter.

beat at something to strike out at something. □ He beat at his attacker to no avail. □ Lily beat at the snake, but didn't harm it.

beat down (on someone or something) to fall on someone or something. □ The rain beat down on us for an hour. □ The rock slide beat down on the car and totally ruined the body.

Beat it! Inf. Go away!; Get out! □ Bill: Sorry I broke your radio. Bob: Get out of here! Beat it! □ "Beat it, you kids! Go play somewhere else!" yelled the storekeeper.

beat on someone or something to pound or hammer on someone or something. □ She beat on him until he let her go. □ Stop beating on that drum!

beat one's brains out^t (to do something) to try very hard to do something. □ If you think I'm going to beat my brains out to do this, you are crazy. □ I beat out my brains to do this for you! □ I won't beat my brains out again for you!

beat one's gums to waste time talking a great deal without results. (As if one were toothless.) □ I'm tired of beating my gums about this over and over. □ You're just beating your gums. No one is listening.

beat one's head against the wall and bang one's head against a brick wall Fig. to waste one's time trying hard to accomplish something that is completely hopeless. □ You're wasting your time trying to figure this puzzle out. You're just beating your head against the wall. □ You're banging your head against a brick wall trying to get that dog to behave properly.

beat oneself up Fig. to be overly critical of one's behavior or actions; to punish oneself with guilt and remorse over past actions. (Not a physical beating. Fixed order.) □ It's over and done with. There's no need to beat yourself up. □ He's beating himself up over his role in the accident.

beat someone down^t Fig. to defeat or demoralize someone. □ The constant bombing finally beat them down. □ The attackers beat down the defenders.

beat someone down to size and knock someone down to size Fig. to make a person more humble, sometime by actual physical beating. □ If you keep acting so arrogant, someone is going to beat you down to size. □ It's time someone knocked you down to size. □ I'll try to be less arrogant. I don't want anyone to beat me down to size.

beat someone into (doing) something to beat a person until the person agrees to do something or to assume a particular attitude. □ They had to beat John into submission before he gave up. □ Max threatened to beat Lefty into helping him rob the candy store.

beat someone into something Fig. to beat a person until the person turns into a particular physical state, such as a pulp, a mess, etc. □ Fred threatened to beat Mike into a pulp if he didn't do as he was asked. □ Mike beat Fred into a bloody mess.

beat someone or something back^t to drive someone or something back to where it came from. □ We beat them back to where they were before the war started. □ The army beat back the defenders and saved the town. □ They were able to beat the wolves back and make an escape.

beat someone or something off^t to drive someone or something away by beating. □ They beat the enemy off. □ The army beat off the savage attack, saving the town. □ I was able to beat off the intruder.

B

beat someone or something out^t to beat someone or something; to win over someone or something. □ The other team beat us out readily. □ They beat out every other team in the league, too. □ I will win! You will not beat me out!

beat someone out^t to outdistance someone; to perform better than someone. □ We have to beat the other company out, and then we'll have the contract. □ I beat out Walter in the foot race.

beat someone's brains out 1. to hit or batter someone severely. □ She threatened to beat my brains out. □ Those thugs nearly beat his brains out. 2. to drive oneself hard (to accomplish something). □ I beat my brains out all day to clean this house, and you come in and get dirt on the carpet! □ Don't beat your brains out. Just give it a good try.

beat someone to something to get to something before someone else; to claim something before someone else does. (See also beat someone into something.) □ You beat me to it and took the last cookie. □ Ken beat John to the door.

beat someone to the punch and beat someone to the draw Fig. to do something before someone else does it. □ I wanted to have the new car, but Sally beat me to the punch. □ I planned to write a book about using the new software program, but someone else beat me to the draw.

beat someone up^t to harm or subdue a person by striking him. □ The robber beat me up and took my money. □ I really wanted to beat up that intruder.

beat something down^t 1. to break something in; to break through something. □ Don't beat the door down! I'm coming! □ Please don't beat down the door! 2. to flatten something. □ Sam beat the veal down to the thickness of a half an inch. □ First you beat down the meat to a very thin layer.

beat something into someone and beat something in^t Fig. to use physical abuse to get someone to learn something; to work very hard to get someone to learn something. (Beating something into someone or someone's head.) □ Do I have to beat this into your head? Why can't you learn? □ Why do I have to beat in this information? □ Can't you learn by yourself? Does someone have to beat it in?

beat something into something to beat or whip something with a utensil, until it changes into something else. □ Beat the white of the egg into stiff peaks. □ Beat the batter into a smooth consistency.

beat something up^t 1. to whip up something, such as an egg. □ Beat the egg up and pour it in the skillet. □ Beat up another egg and do the same. 2. to ruin something; to damage something. □ The banging of the door has really beat this wall up. □ The frequent pounding of the door handle beat up the wall.

beat the clock Fig. to do something before a deadline; to finish before the time is up. (Alludes to accomplishing something before a clock reaches a specific time.) □ Sam beat the clock, arriving a few minutes before the doors were locked. □ They were afraid they would be late and hurried in order to beat the clock.

beat the drum for someone or something and bang the drum for someone or something Fig. to promote or support someone or something. (As if one were beating a drum to get attention.) □ I spent a lot of time beating the drum for our plans for the future. □ The senator is only banging the drum for his special interests.

beat the gun Fig. to manage to do something before the ending signal. (Originally from sports, referring to scoring in the last seconds of a game just before the referee fires a gun to signal the end of the game.) □ The field goal beat the gun and was in the air just in time. □ Tom tried to beat the gun, but he was one second too slow.

beat the hell out of someone and beat the living daylights out of someone; beat the pants off (of) someone; beat the shit out of someone; beat the socks off (of) someone; beat the stuffing out of someone; beat the tar out of someone 1. Fig. to defeat someone very badly. (Caution: the use of the word shit is considered vulgar and is offensive to many people. Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Our team beat the hell out of the other side. □ We beat the stuffing out of the other side.

2. Fig. Inf. to batter someone severely. (Alludes to physical violence, not the removal of someone's pants. Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The thugs beat the living daylights out of their victim. □ If you do that again, I'll beat the pants off of you. □ Before the boxing match Max said he would beat the socks off Lefty.

beat the (natural) stuffing out of someone Go to kick the (natural) stuffing out of someone.

beat the pants off (of) someone Go to beat the hell out of someone.

beat the rap Sl. to evade conviction and punishment (for a crime). □ He was charged with drunk driving, but he beat the rap. □ The police hauled Tom in and charged him with a crime. His lawyer helped him beat the rap.

beat the shit out of someone Go to beat the hell out of someone.

beat the socks off (of) someone Go to beat the hell out of someone.

beat the stuffing out of someone Go to beat the hell out of someone.

beat the tar out of someone Go to beat the hell out of someone.

beat up on someone to batter someone, usually physically. □ Lefty beat up on Max and made a mess of him. □ Don't beat up on me, you bully!

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder. Prov. Different people have different ideas about what is beautiful. □ Bob: I can't believe Ted bought that ugly old car. Fred: He loves it. Beauty is in the eye of the beholder. □ Jill: Have you seen Mary's pictures of her new baby? He looks pretty ugly, to my eyes. Jane: Beauty is in the eye of the beholder.

Beauty is only skin-deep. Prov. A person who looks beautiful may not have a pleasing personality; a person's good looks may not last. □ Fred: I hope Nancy will go out with me. She's so beautiful! Jane: I hate to disappoint you, but in Nancy's case, beauty is definitely only skin-deep. □ Don't be so proud of your pretty face. Beauty is only skin-deep.

beckon to someone to signal someone to come. □ Wally beckoned to Sally, and she came over to him. □ Lily beckoned to Max and he turned his back on her.

become of someone or something to happen or occur to someone or something. □ Whatever became of Joe and his friends? □ I don't know what became of my other plaid sock.

becoming on someone [of clothing] complimentary to someone; [of clothing] enhancing one's good looks. (*Typically: be ~; look ~.) □ The dress you wore last night is not becoming on you. □ That color is very becoming on you.

bed down (for something) to lie down to sleep for a period of time. □ After she had bedded down for the night, the telephone rang. □ All the chickens bedded down hours ago.

bed down some place to sleep somewhere; to find a place to sleep somewhere. □ I need to bed down somewhere for the night. □ Can I bed down here with you?

a bed of roses a luxurious situation; an easy life. □ Who said life would be a bed of roses? □ If I had a million bucks, I would be in a bed of roses.

bed (someone or something) down[†] (some place) to put someone or something into a bed or on bedding some place. □ We bedded the kids down on mattresses on the floor. □ We bedded down the horses for the night.

bed-and-breakfast a type of lodging for travelers or tourists offering a place to sleep and breakfast the next morning, typically in a small inn or private home. □ We visited six European countries and stayed in a bed-and-breakfast every night. □ I had to take a bed-and-breakfast because the hotels in the city were much too expensive.

bedeck someone or something with something to decorate someone or something with something. □ She bedecked herself with garlands of daisies. □ Karen bedecked the room with flowers.

a bee in one's bonnet a single idea or a thought that remains in one's mind; an obsession. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) □ I have a bee in my bonnet over that cool new car I saw, and I can't stop thinking about it. □ I got a bee in my bonnet about swimming. I just wanted to go swimming all the time.

beef about someone or something Sl. to complain about someone or something. □ Stop beefing about Karen. □ He is always beefing about his working conditions.

beef something up[†] to add strength or substance to something. □ Let's beef this music up with a little more on the drums. □ They beefed up the offer with another thousand dollars.

been around have had many experiences in life. □ You don't need to warn me about anything! I've been around.

been had and was had; have been had 1. (of a woman) been copulated with; been made pregnant. □ I've been had, and I'm going to have the baby. □ When she said she had been had, I didn't know it happened on her honeymoon. 2. been mistreated, cheated, or dealt with badly. □ Look at this cheap shirt that I paid $30 for! I was had! □ I've been had by that lousy gyp joint.

beer up Sl. to drink a lot of beer. □ Those guys are out there beering up like mad. □ Stop beering up and go home!

before long soon. □ Billy will be grown-up before long. □ If we keep spending so much, before long we'll be without any money.

before someone ahead of or in front of someone in order. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; go ~.) □ Who is before Mary? □ I am before all of you.

before someone's time happening before someone was born or old enough to know what was going on. (*Typically: be ~; happen ~; occur ~.) □ Of course I don't remember it. It was before my time. □ All that happened before your time.

before you can say Jack Robinson and quicker than you can say Jack Robinson Fig. almost immediately. (Often found in children's stories.) □ And before you could say Jack Robinson, the bird flew away. □ I'll catch a plane and be there quicker than you can say Jack Robinson.

before you know it almost immediately. □ I'll be there before you know it. □ If you keep spending money like that, you'll be broke before you know it.

beg for someone or something to plead to be given someone or something. □ He missed Jane a lot and was just begging for her to return to him. □ Jane begged for another helping of ice cream.

beg of someone to request earnestly of someone. (Usually added to a request.) □ Please help me. I beg of you. □ I beg of you to help me.

beg off (on something) to ask to be released from something; to refuse an invitation. □ I'm sorry, but I'll be out of town on the day of your party. I'll have to beg off on your invitation. □ I have an important meeting, so I'll have to beg off.

beg something from someone to plead for something from someone. □ She begged the amount of a telephone call from someone who walked by. □ I begged a dollar from a kind lady who went by.

beg something of someone to request earnestly that someone do something or grant something. □ Please help me. I beg it of you. □ She begged a favor of Max.

beg something off[†] to decline an invitation politely. □ She begged the trip to the zoo off. □ We all begged off the dinner invitation.

beg the question 1. to carry on a false argument where one assumes as proved the very point that is being argued, or more loosely, to evade the issue at hand. (Essentially a criticism of someone's line of argument.) □ Stop arguing in circles. You're begging the question. □ A: Why do two lines that are equidistant from one another never meet? B: Because they are parallel. A: You are begging the question. 2. to invite the (following) question. (This reinterpretation of beg the question is incorrect but is currently in widespread use.) □ His complaints beg the question: Didn't he cause all of his problems himself?

beg to differ (with someone) Fig. to disagree with someone; to state one's disagreement with someone in a polite way. (Usually used in a statement made to the person being disagreed with.) □ I beg to differ with you, but you have stated everything exactly backwards. □ If I may beg to differ, you have not expressed my position as well as you seem to think.

beggar (all) description to defy description; to be unable to be described. □ The house was a horrible mess. The place beggared description. □ Our reaction to the proposal beggars description. We were deeply disturbed for days.

Beggars can't be choosers. Prov. If someone gives you something you asked for, you should not complain about what you get. □ I asked Joe to lend me his bicycle, and he sent me this old, rusty one. But beggars can't be choosers. □ Jill: Let me wear your green dress; I don't like the blue one you lent me. Jane: Beggars can't be choosers.

begin an all-out effort Go to an all-out effort.

begin by doing something to start out by doing something first. □ We will begin by painting the house. □ She began by opening the door.

begin to see daylight Fig. to begin to see the end of a long task. □ I've been working on my thesis for two years, and at last I'm beginning to see daylight. □ I've been so busy. Only in the last week have I begun to see daylight.

begin to see the light Fig. to begin to understand something. (See also see the light (at the end of the tunnel).) □ My algebra class has been hard for me, but I'm beginning to see the light. □ I was totally confused, but I began to see the light after your explanation.

begin with someone or something to start off a sequence with someone or something. □ Let's have dinner begin with a nice clear soup. □ I will begin with Liz and take Frank next.

beginner's luck absolute luck; the luck of an inexperienced person. (Referring to surprisingly good luck.) □ I could never have accomplished this if I had practiced a lot. My win was just beginner's luck.

the beginning of the end Fig. the start of the termination of something or of someone's death. □ When he stopped coughing and grew still, I knew it was the beginning of the end. □ The enormous debt we ran up marked the beginning of the end as far as our standard of living was concerned.

beguile someone into something to charm someone into doing something. □ You can't beguile me into stealing for you! □ I beguiled Tom into driving me to the airport.

beguile someone out of something 1. to charm someone out of doing something. □ I will try to beguile them out of doing it. □ He beguiled her out of leaving. 2. to charm something away from someone. □ She's trying to beguile the old man out of a substantial amount of his money. □ Max beguiled the old lady out of her rings.

beguile someone with something to charm or fascinate someone with something. □ She beguiled her date with tales of her luxurious lifestyle. □ He spent the evening beguiling her with stories of the Old West.

behind bars in jail. (*Typically: be ~; put someone ~.) □ Very soon, you will be behind bars for your crimes. □ Max should be behind bars soon for his conviction on burglary charges.

behind closed doors in secret; away from observers, reporters, or intruders, usually in a closed room. □ They held the meeting behind closed doors, as the law allowed. □ Every important issue was decided behind closed doors.

behind schedule having failed to do something by the appointed time, especially the time given on a written plan. (*Typically: be ~; fall ~; get ~.) □ We have to hurry and finish soon or we will fall behind schedule. □ The project is behind schedule by six months.

behind someone's back without someone's knowledge; secret from someone. □ Please don't talk about me behind my back. □ She sold the car behind his back, while he was away on vacation.

behind the eight ball 1. Fig. in trouble; in a weak or losing position. (Alludes to the eight ball in pool, which in certain games cannot be touched without penalty. *Typically: be ~; get ~; have someone ~; put someone ~.) □ I'm behind the eight ball again and can't see how to relieve my dilemma. □ John is behind the eight ball because he started writing his term paper far too late. 2. Fig. broke. □ Sorry, I'm really behind the eight ball this month. I can't make a contribution. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; have someone ~; put someone ~.) □ I was behind the eight ball again and couldn't make my car payment.

behind the scenes without receiving credit or fame; out of public view. (Referring originally to those who worked on a theatrical piece but do not appear on the stage.) □ The people who worked behind the scenes are the real heroes of this project. □ I worked behind the scenes in the play. □ We should thank the people who are behind the scenes of our success.

behind the times old-fashioned. □ Sarah is a bit behind the times. Her clothes are quite old-fashioned. □ Our 90-year-old state senator is a bit behind the times.

Behind you! Look behind you! There is danger behind you! □ "Behind you!" shouted Tom just as a car raced past and nearly knocked Mary over. □ Alice shouted, "Behind you!" just as the pickpocket made off with Fred's wallet.

behoove one to do something Cliché [for someone] to be obliged to do something. □ It behooves you to apologize to her for how you insulted her. □ It behooves me to make up for all the help you have given me.

belabor the point to spend too much time on one item of discussion. □ I don't want to belabor the point, but the sooner we get this matter settled, the better. □ If the speaker would agree not to belabor the point further, I will place it on the agenda for resolution at the next meeting.

belch out to burst, billow, or gush out. □ Smoke belched out of the chimney.

belch something up[†] to cause the release of something that goes upward. □ The fire belched flames and smoke up. □ The volcano belched up clouds of poison gasses.

believe in someone or something to trust or have faith in someone or something; to accept a fact or what someone says as truth. □ You must believe in your own abilities. □ I believe in myself and my talent.

believe it or not (you may) choose to accept something as true or not; it may seem amazing but it's true. □ It's late, but believe it or not, I just got home from work. □ I'm over fifty years old, believe it or not.

Believe nothing of what you hear, and only half of what you see. Prov. Rumors are usually false, and sometimes the things you see can be misleading as well; be very skeptical until there is proof. □ Jill: I heard the football team is losing its best player. He has not been at practice for two days. Jane: Believe nothing of what you hear, and only half of what you see. □ The paper reported that the city government is going bankrupt, but I believe nothing of what I hear, and only half of what I see.

believe something of someone to accept a statement about someone as truth. □ What a terrible thing for Jill to do. I can't believe it of her. □ I can believe anything of Max. He's such a conniving person.

Believe you me! Inf. You really should believe me!; You'd better take my word for it! □ Alice: Is it hot in that room? Fred: It really is. Believe you me! □ Sue: How do you like my cake? John: Believe you me, this is the best cake I've ever eaten!

bell, book, and candle things that are miraculous or that signal that something unusual or bizarre may soon happen. (Alluding originally to the items used when performing the rite of excommunication from the Roman Catholic Church.) □ Look, I can't work miracles! Do you expect me to show up at your house with bell, book, and candle, and make everything right? You have to take charge of your own destiny! □ On the top shelf of the tiny used-book store, Jim saw a bell, book, and candle sitting in a row, and he knew he was going to find some very interesting reading material.

bellow something out^t to cry something out loudly with great force. □ Don't just say it. Bellow it out! □ Bellow out your name so we know who you are!

bells and whistles Fig. extra, fancy add-ons or gadgets. □ I like cars that are loaded with all the bells and whistles. □ All those bells and whistles add to the cost.

belly out [for a sheet of fabric, such as a ship's sail] to fill out in the wind. □ The sails bellied out as the ship turned to catch the wind. □ When the sails bellied out, we began to move forward.

belly up 1. intoxicated by alcohol. □ Fred was boiled—belly up—glassy-eyed. □ After four beers, I was belly up, for sure. 2. Sl. (of a business) bankrupt; dead. (Like a dead fish that floats belly up.) □ That's the end. This company is belly up. □ After the fire the firm went belly up.

belly up (to something) to move up to something, often a bar. (Usually in reference to nudging one's way to a bar.) □ The man swaggered in and bellied up to the counter and demanded my immediate attention. □ As he bellied up, he said, "Do you know who I am?"

belong to someone or something to be owned by someone or something. □ This one belongs to me. □ This desk belongs to the company. You can't take it home!

belong under something to be classified under some general category. □ This one belongs under the other category. □ This file belongs under A.

below average lower or worse than average. □ Tom's strength is below average for a child his size. □ Dad asked why my grades are below average.

below par not as good as average or normal. □ I feel a little below par today. I think I am getting a cold. □ His work is below par, and he is paid too much money.

below someone ranking below someone. □ I am below Terri, but my scores are better than Carol's. □ I am below everyone in the class.

below someone or something positioned under or lower than someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; lie ~; sink ~; sit ~.) □ The sun is below the horizon. □ The swimming hole is below the dam.

belt a drink down^t Fig. to drink an alcoholic drink rapidly. (See also belt someone or something down.) □ She belted a couple of drinks down and went out to face her guests. □ How many drinks did Gloria belt down?

belt someone or something down^t to secure someone or something with a belt or strap. □ Please belt the child's seat down and put the child in it. □ Did you belt down the kids?

belt someone up^t to secure someone with a belt, such as a seat belt in a car. □ I had to belt her up because the seat belt was so complicated. □ We belted up the kids securely.

belt something out^t Fig. to sing or play a song loudly and with spirit. □ When she's playing the piano, she really belts the music out. □ She really knows how to belt out a song.

belt the grape Sl. to drink wine or liquor heavily and become intoxicated. □ He has a tendency to belt the grape—every afternoon after work. □ She's been belting the grape more than her husband wants.

belt up Go to buckle up.

bend back to lean or bend backwards. □ He bent back to pick up the book, and he fell. □ When she bent back, she ripped something.

bend before something to bend under the pressure of moving air. □ The trees bent before the wind. □ Our roses bent gracefully before the breeze.

bend down to curve downward; [for someone] to lean down. □ Please bend down and pick up the little bits of paper you just dropped. □ The snow-laden bushes bent down.

bend forward to lean forward; to curve forward. □ The tree bent forward in the wind. □ I bent forward to pick up the pencil.

bend in to curve or turn inward. □ The shore bent in about a mile to the west. □ The side of the shed bent in under the force of the wind.

bend one's elbow and bend the elbow; lift one's elbow to take a drink of an alcoholic beverage; to drink alcohol to excess. □ He's down at the tavern, bending his elbow. □ Paul gets lots of exercise. I saw him bend his elbow thirty times at a bar yesterday.

bend over [for someone] to bend down at the waist. □ I bent over and picked up the coin. □ When he bent over, something ripped.

bend over backwards (to do something) Go to fall over backwards (to do something).

bend over backwards (to do something) (for someone) Fig. to work very hard to accomplish something for someone; to go out of one's way (to do something) (for someone). (See also fall over backwards (to do something).) □ He will bend over backwards to help you. □ I bent over backwards for you, and you showed no thanks!

bend someone or something back^t to curve or arch someone or something backward. □ We bent the child back a little so we could examine the spider bite. □ Ouch! Don't bend back my hand! □ Bend the branch back so we can get a better view.

bend someone out of shape Fig. to make someone angry. □ The cheating that was going on really bent Joe out of shape. □ Why do you let yourself get bent out of shape? Chill, man, chill.

bend someone's ear Fig. to talk to someone, perhaps annoyingly. (As if talking so much that the other person's ear is moved back.) □ Tom is over there, bending Jane's ear about something. □ I'm sorry. I didn't mean to bend your ear for an hour.

bend something out of shape to distort something by twisting or bending. □ Jill bent the spring out of shape. □ I bent the coat hanger out of shape by hanging my leather jacket on it.

bend the elbow Go to bend one's elbow.

bend the law and bend the rules Fig. to cheat a little bit without breaking the law. (Jocular.) □ I didn't break the rules. I just bent the rules a little. □ Nobody ever got arrested for bending the law.

bend the rules Go to previous.

beneath contempt exceedingly contemptible. □ What you have done is beneath contempt. □ Your rude behavior is beneath contempt.

beneath one's dignity too rude or coarse for a polite person to do. □ That kind of thing is beneath my dignity, and I hope yours as well. □ I would have thought something like that to be beneath your dignity.

beneath someone too shameful for a polite person to do. □ That kind of thing is beneath Fred. I'm appalled that he did it. □ That sort of foul language is beneath you!

beneath something under something. (*Typically: be ~; sit ~.) □ What is that beneath the table? □ The cat is beneath the piano.

benefit by something and benefit from something to profit or gain by something. □ We hope to benefit by the collapse of our competition. □ We will all benefit from the new tax laws.

benefit from something Go to previous.

the benefit of the doubt a judgment in one's favor when the evidence is neither for one nor against one. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I was right between a B and an A. I got the benefit of the doubt—an A. □ I thought I should have had the benefit of the doubt, but the judge made me pay a fine.

bent on doing something Fig. determined to do something. □ I believe you are bent on destroying the entire country. □ I am bent on saving the planet.

bent out of shape 1. Fig. angry; insulted. □ Man, there is no reason to get so bent out of shape. I didn't mean any harm. □ I got bent out of shape because of the way I was treated. 2. intoxicated by alcohol or drugs. □ I was so bent out of shape I thought I'd never recover. □ I've been polluted, but never as bent out of shape as this.

bequeath something to someone to will something to someone; to leave something to someone. □ My uncle bequeathed some furniture to me. □ I will bequeath this watch to my grandson.

bereft of someone or something left without someone or something. (Bereft is the past participle of bereave, functioning here as an adjective.) □ Tom was bereft of all hope. □ The child was bereft of his parents.

beset someone with something to surround someone with harassment; to harass someone with something. □ Please do not beset them with problem after problem. □ They beset us with requests for money.

beside oneself (with something) Fig. in an extreme state of some emotion. □ I was beside myself with joy. □ Sarah could not speak. She was beside herself with anger.

beside the point and beside the question irrelevant; of no importance. □ That's very interesting, but beside the point. □ That's beside the point. You're evading the issue.

beside the question Go to previous.

besiege someone or something with something 1. Lit. to attack someone or a group with something. □ We besieged the enemy with bombs and bullets. 2. Fig. to overwhelm someone or something with something □ They besieged us with orders for the new book. □ We besieged the company with complaints.

besmirch someone or something with something to dirty or soil someone or someone's reputation with something. □ Please don't continue to besmirch Alice with that gossip. □ You have besmirched my reputation with your comments. □ He besmirched her with vile gossip in order to turn people against her.

The best defense is a good offense. Prov. If you attack your opponents, they will be so busy fighting off your attack that they will not be able to attack you. (Often associated with sports. Often pronounced with the accent on the first syllable, similar to offense.) □ The team mostly practiced offensive moves because the coach believed that the best defense is a good offense. □ Jim thought that the best defense is a good offense, so he always tried to pass other drivers before they could pass him.

The best is the enemy of the good. Prov. If you are too ambitious and try to make something better than you are capable of, you may ruin it. □ Bob: After I revise it a few more times, my novel will be the best ever written. Alan: I don't think you should revise it any more. Remember, the best is the enemy of the good. □ In fund-raising as in other areas, the best is the enemy of the good. If you ask someone for a larger contribution than he can possibly give, he may give you nothing at all.

the best of both worlds a situation wherein one can enjoy two different opportunities. (*Typically: enjoy ~; have ~; live in ~.) □ When Don was a fellow at the university, he had the privileges of a professor and the freedom of a student. He had the best of both worlds. □ Donna hated to have to choose between retirement and continuing working. She wanted to do both so she could live in the best of both worlds.

the best of someone Go to the better of someone.

the best part of something almost all of something; a large part of something; the major part of something. □ The discussion took the best part of an hour. □ The best part of the meeting was taken up by budgetary matters.

The best things come in small packages. and Good things come in small packages. Prov. Small packages often contain valuable things. (Sometimes said of petite or short people.) □ Jill: I'm upset at George. He only gave me this tiny box for my birthday. Jane: Don't get upset till you know what's in it. Good things do come in small packages. □ Child: I hate being so short. Grandmother: You shouldn't. The best things come in small packages.

The best things in life are free. Prov. The most satisfying experiences do not cost any money. □ Don't be gloomy because you're broke. The best things in life are free. □ Yesterday I took my children to the zoo. We didn't spend a penny, but we had a wonderful time. The best things in life are free.

the best-case scenario Cliché the optimum outcome being considered. (Compare this with the worst-case scenario.) □ Now that we've seen the negative angle, let's look at the best-case scenario. □ In the best-case scenario, we're all dead eventually—but then that's true of the worst-case scenario also.

The best-laid plans of mice and men oft(en) go astray, and The best-laid schemes o' mice an' men gang aft a-gley. Prov. Things often go wrong even though you have carefully planned what you are going to do. (The gang aft a-gley version is Scots dialect, and comes from Robert Burns' poem "To a Mouse.") □ Jill: I reserved a hotel room for us three weeks ago, but now the clerk says he has no record of our reservation. So much for our fun weekend in the city. Jane: Well, these things happen. The best-laid plans of mice and men oft go astray. □ I had all the arrangements made for my party, and then the guest of honor got sick and I had to call the whole thing off. The best-laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley. □ If a little rain can ruin the best-laid plans of mice and men, think what an earthquake might do!

bestow something on someone to give something to someone; to present something to someone. □ The mere presence of the queen bestowed wisdom and grace on the court. □ Fine gifts were bestowed on the visiting prince.

bet on someone or something to wager on someone or something. □ Are you really going to bet on that horse? □ I bet on Paul. He is the fastest runner.

bet one's bottom dollar and bet one's life Fig. to be quite certain (about something). (A bottom dollar is the last dollar.) □ I'll be there. You bet your bottom dollar. □ I bet my bottom dollar you can't swim across the pool. □ You bet your life I can't swim that far.

bet one's life Go to previous.

bet someone dollars to doughnuts Fig. to bet something of value against something worth considerably less. □ I bet you dollars to doughnuts that she is on time. □ He bet me dollars to doughnuts that it would snow today.

bet something on someone or something to wager something on someone or something. □ I bet one thousand dollars on that horse! □ Fred bet a few bucks on his favorite football team.

bet the farm Go to sell the farm.

bet with someone to make a bet or wager with someone. □ No, I won't bet with you. That's not my style. □ Max will bet with anyone.

betroth someone to someone to promise someone in marriage to someone else. □ The king betrothed his daughter to a prince from the neighboring kingdom. □ She betrothed herself to one of the peasant boys from the village.

Better be an old man's darling than a young man's slave. Prov. A young woman should prefer to marry an old man who dotes on her rather than a young man who may treat her badly. □ When Mr. Nash proposed to me, I thought he was too old, but my mother advised me, "Better be an old man's darling than a young man's slave." □ When Marion's friends objected that her fiancé was much too old for her, she said, "Better be an old man's darling than a young man's slave."

Better (be) safe than sorry. Prov. Cliché You should be cautious—if you are not, you may regret it. □ It may be time-consuming to check the oil in your car every time you buy gasoline, but better safe than sorry. □ Bob: I don't need a tetanus shot just because I stepped on a nail. Mary: I still think you should get one. Better be safe than sorry.

Better be the head of a dog than the tail of a lion. Prov. It is better to be the leader of a less prestigious group than to be a subordinate in a more prestigious one. □ Joe: I can be the headmaster of a small secondary school, or I can be a teacher at a famous university. Which job offer do you think I should take? Nancy: Better be the head of a dog than the tail of a lion. □ A professional writing workshop had asked Bob to join, but he elected to stay with his amateur group, since he thought it better to be the head of a dog than the tail of a lion.

Better keep still about it, and Someone had better keep still about it; Better keep quiet about it; Someone better keep quiet about it. A particular person ought not to tell about or discuss something. (The someone can stand for any person's name, any pronoun, or even the word someone meaning "you-know-who." If there is no Someone had, the phrase is a mild admonition to keep quiet about something.) □ Mary: I saw you with Bill last night. Jane: You'd better keep quiet about it. □ Jane: Tom found out what you're giving Sally for her birthday. Bill: He had better keep quiet about it!

Better late than never. Prov. Cliché Doing something late is better than not doing it. □ I'm sorry I'm late to the party. Better late than never, right? □ Jill: Lisa's birthday was two weeks ago. Should I send her a card now? Jane: Better late than never.

better left unsaid [refers to a topic that] should not be discussed; [refers to a thought that] everyone is thinking, but would cause difficulty if talked about in public. (A typical beginning for this phrase might be It is, That is, The details are, or even Some things are. See the examples.) □ Mary: I really don't know how to tell you this. Bob: Then don't. Maybe it's better left unsaid. □ Bill: I had such a terrible fight with Sally last night. I can't believe what I said. Bob: I don't need to hear all about it. Some things are better left unsaid.

Better luck next time. 1. an expression that comforts someone for a minor failure. (Said with a pleasant tone of voice.) □ Bill: That does it! I can't run any farther. I lose! Bob: Too bad. Better luck next time. □ Mary: Well, that's the end of my brand new weight lifting career. Jane: Better luck next time. 2. an expression that ridicules someone for a failure. (Said with rudeness or sarcasm. The tone of voice distinguishes ② from ①.) □ Sally: I lost out to you, but I think you cheated. Mary: Better luck next time. □ Sue: You thought you could get ahead of me, you fool! Better luck next time! Joan: I still think you cheated.

*the better of someone and *the best of someone triumph over someone. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ Bill got the best of John in the boxing match. □ I tried to get the better of Tom in the golf match, but he won anyway.

better off (doing something) and better off (if something were done) in a better position if something were done. □ She'd be better off selling her house. □ They are better off flying to Detroit than driving.

better off (somewhere) and better off (if one were somewhere else) in a better position somewhere else. □ They would be better off in a cheaper apartment. □ We'd all be better off if we were in Florida. □ I know I'd be better off in a warmer climate.

Better the devil you know than the devil you don't know. Prov. If you have to choose between a familiar but unpleasant situation and an unfamiliar situation, choose the familiar one because the unfamiliar situation may turn out to be worse. □ Jill: I hate my job so much that I'm thinking of asking for a transfer. Jane: I'd advise against it. Better the devil you know than the devil you don't know. □ Although she was unhappy in her marriage, Donna never considered pursuing romances with other men. "Better the devil you know than the devil you don't know," was her philosophy.

between a rock and a hard place and between the devil and the deep blue sea Fig. in a very difficult position; facing a hard decision. □ I couldn't make up my mind. I was caught between a rock and a hard place. □ He had a dilemma on his hands. He was clearly between the devil and the deep blue sea.

between jobs and between projects Euph. unemployed. □ Interviewer: Tell me about your current position. Job candidate: I'm between jobs right now. □ When Jill was between projects, she took a computer class at the community college.

between life and death Fig. in a position where living or dying is an even possibility. (Especially with caught or hovering.) □ And there I was on the operating table, hovering between life and death. □ The mountain climber hung by his rope, caught between life and death.

between projects Go to between jobs.

between someone and someone else and between something and something else Fig. [of a choice] existing between a selection of people or a selection of things. □ The choice is between Fred and Jill. □ It's between chocolate cake and cherry pie.

between something and something else Go to previous.

between the devil and the deep blue sea Go to between a rock and a hard place.

between you (and) me and the bedpost and between you and me and these four walls Fig. a somewhat affected way of signaling that you are about to tell a secret. □ Alan: What's wrong with Ellen these days? She seems so touchy. Jane: Between you and me and the bedpost, I've heard that her boyfriend is seeing someone else. □ Jill: How much did you get for your used car? Jane: Well—between you and me and these four walls—five thousand dollars.

between you and me and these four walls Go to previous.

betwixt and between 1. Lit. between (people or things). □ I liked the soup and the dessert and all that came betwixt and between. □ I sat betwixt and between all the actors who weren't on stage. 2. Fig. undecided about someone or something. □ I wish she would choose. She has been betwixt and between for three weeks. □ Tom is so betwixt and between about getting married. I don't think he's ready.

a bevy of beauties Cliché a group of very attractive women, as found in a beauty contest. □ A whole bevy of beauties waltzed past the old man, but he didn't even notice.

Beware of Greeks bearing gifts. Prov. Do not trust an opponent who offers to do something nice for you. (A line from the story of the Trojan horse, as told in Vergil's Aeneid.) □ Jill: I can't believe Melanie brought me cookies today, when we've been fighting for weeks. Jane: Beware of Greeks bearing gifts. She probably has ulterior motives. □ When the rival company invited all his employees to a Christmas party, Tom's first impulse was to beware of Greeks bearing gifts, but then he upbraided himself for being paranoid.

beware of someone or something to be cautious and watchful about someone or something. □ Beware of Ted. He's acting irrational. □ You should beware of the dog.

beyond a reasonable doubt almost without any doubt. (A legal phrase.) □ The jury decided beyond a reasonable doubt that she had committed the crime. □ He was also found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

beyond help and beyond repair beyond the help of anything; not able to be fixed. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ The poor dog that was hit by a truck is beyond help. □ This old car is beyond repair.

beyond me completely missing or surpassing my understanding. □ I'm confused. All this is beyond me.

beyond measure Fig. in an account or to an extent more than can be quantified; in a very large amount. □ They brought in hams, turkeys, and roasts, and then they brought vegetables and salads beyond measure. □ They thanked all of us beyond measure.

beyond one's depth 1. Lit. in water that is too deep. □ Sally swam out from the beach until she was beyond her depth. □ Jane swam out to get her even though it was beyond her depth, too. 2. Fig. beyond one's understanding or capabilities. □ I'm beyond my depth in calculus class. □ Poor John was involved in a problem that was really beyond his depth.

beyond one's ken outside the extent of one's knowledge or understanding. □ Why she married that shiftless drunkard is beyond our ken. □ His mean attitude to others is quite beyond my ken.

beyond one's means more than one can afford. □ I'm sorry, but this house is beyond our means. Please show us a cheaper one. □ They feel that a Caribbean cruise is beyond their means.

beyond repair Go to beyond help.

beyond some emotional response in too extreme a state to feel or care. □ Do what you want. You have hurt me so much, I am beyond caring. □ The dying patient is beyond feeling. It doesn't matter now.

beyond someone or something 1. on the other side of something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ When we get beyond this bad road, I'll have to check the tires. □ I have to get beyond the large gentleman standing in the hall.

2. finished with someone or something; having solved the problems relating to someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; move ~.) □ Things will be better when we get beyond this financial crisis. □ When the country gets beyond the current situation, things will have to get better.

beyond the pale Fig. unacceptable; outlawed. (A pale is a barrier made of wooden stakes.) □ Your behavior is simply beyond the pale. □ Because of Tom's rudeness, he's considered beyond the pale and is never asked to parties anymore.

beyond the shadow of a doubt Go to without a shadow of a doubt.

beyond words Fig. more than one can say. (Especially preceded by grateful, shocked, and thankful.) □ Sally was thankful beyond words. □ I don't know how to thank you. I'm grateful beyond words.

bias someone against someone or something to prejudice someone against someone or something. □ Please avoid biasing everyone against me. □ One bad experience biased all of us against that brand of sausage.

bicker (with someone) (about someone or something) and bicker (with someone or something) (over someone or something) to argue with someone about someone or something. □ Why are you always bickering with her about absolutely nothing? □ Please don't bicker with us over these small details.

bid adieu to someone or something Cliché to say good-bye to someone or something. (The word adieu is French for good-bye and should not be confused with ado.) □ Now it's time to bid adieu to all of you gathered here. □ He silently bid adieu to his favorite hat as the wind carried it down the street.

bid something down⁺ to lower the value of something, such as stock, by offering a lower price for it each time it comes up for sale. □ We bid the price down and then bought all of it. □ I could see that the traders were bidding down the price, but I didn't want to take the risk.

bid (something) for something and bid (something) on something to offer an amount of money for something at an auction. □ I bid a thousand for the painting. □ I didn't want to bid for it. □ I wouldn't bid a cent on that rickety old table!

bid (something) on something Go to previous.

bid something up⁺ to raise the price of something at an auction by offering higher and higher prices; to increase the value of something, such as shares of stock, by offering a higher price for it each time it comes up for sale. □ Who is bidding the price up on that painting? □ Someone bid up the price on each piece at auction and then backed off.

bide one's time to wait patiently. □ I've been biding my time for years, just waiting for a chance like this. □ He's not the type just to sit there and bide his time. He wants some action now.

big and bold large and capable of getting attention. (Usually refers to things, not people.) □ The big and bold lettering on the book's cover got lots of attention, but the price was too high. □ She wore a brightly colored dress. The pattern was big and bold and the skirt was very full.

The Big Apple New York City. □ We spent the weekend in the Big Apple.

big around as a molasses barrel Rur. very big around. (*Also: as ~.) □ He ate till he was as big around as a molasses barrel. □ The athlete's chest was big around as a molasses barrel.

big as all outdoors Cliché very big, usually referring to an indoor space of some kind. (*Also: as ~.) □ You should see Bob's living room. It's as big as all outdoors! □ The new movie theater is as big as all outdoors.

big as life (and twice as ugly) and *large as life (and twice as ugly); bigger than life (and twice as ugly) Cliché a colorful way of saying that a person or a thing appeared, often surprisingly or dramatically, in a particular place. (*Also: as ~.) □ The little child just stood there as big as life and laughed very hard. □ I opened the door, and there was Tom as large as life. □ I came home and found this cat in my chair, as big as life and twice as ugly.

a big break Go to a lucky break.

big bucks a very large amount of money. □ He earns big bucks for doing almost nothing.

a big drink of water and a tall drink of water 1. Fig. a very tall person. □ Tim is sure a big drink of water. □ Kelly grew into a tall drink of water. 2. Fig. a boring person or thing. (A pun on "hard to take.") □ She is a big drink of water, but she could be worse. □ The lecture was a big drink of water.

*the big eye 1. a flirtatious look or gaze; a long look to get another's attention. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ Look at that pretty girl giving you the big eye. □ I thought she was cute, so I gave her the big eye. 2. obvious eye contact with someone. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ Tom gave me the big eye to let me know he wanted to talk to me. □ I tried to give her the big eye, but she never looked my way.

a big frog in a small pond an important person in the midst of less important people. (Alludes to a large frog that dominates a small pond with few challengers.) □ I'd rather be a big frog in a small pond than the opposite. □ The trouble with Tom is that he's a big frog in a small pond. He needs more competition.

*a big hand for something lots of applause for something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ She got a big hand for singing so well. □ They always give the acrobats a big hand.

*a (big) head a hangover. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Oh, man, that booze gave me a big head! □ Tom has a head this morning and won't be coming into work.

big man on campus Sl. an important male college student. (Often derisive or jocular.) □ Hank acts like such a big man on campus. □ Let some big man on campus do the dirty work for a change.

the big moment and the moment everyone has been waiting for the special time that everyone has been waiting for. □ The big moment has come. I will now announce the winner. □ This is the moment everyone has been waiting for. Now we will learn the name of the big winner.

big of someone generous; kind or forgiving. (Sometimes sarcastic.) □ He gave me some of his apple. That was very big of him. □ It was big of Sally to come over and apologize like that.

B

*the big picture the whole story of something; a complete view of something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~; know ~; see ~; show someone ~.) □ The sales manager gave us all the big picture this morning, and I'm more confused than ever.

*a big send-off a happy celebration before departing. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I had a wonderful send-off before I left. □ John got a fine send-off as he left for Europe.

big with someone famous with or desired by someone or some group. □ This kind of pizza is supposed to be big with people in Chicago. □ Rock concerts are big with the kids.

bigger than life (and twice as ugly) Go to big as life (and twice as ugly).

The bigger they are, the harder they fall. Prov. When prominent people fail, their failure is more dramatic. □ After the newspapers reported that the mayor cheated on his wife, he lost the election and he can't get any kind of job. The bigger they are, the harder they fall. □ Jackson used to be very wealthy, but he lost every cent in the stock market crash. The bigger they are, the harder they fall.

The biggest frog in the puddle and The biggest toad in the puddle Prov. The most important or powerful person in some small, unimportant group. (See also a big frog in a small pond.) □ Jill: Elaine seems to be obsessed with becoming class president. Jane: Yes, she really wants to be the biggest frog in the puddle. □ The people in my office don't care about doing their work; mostly they compete over who will be the biggest toad in the puddle.

The biggest toad in the puddle Go to previous.

bilk someone out of something to get something away from someone by deception. □ The crooks bilked the old lady out of a fortune. □ I was bilked out of my life's savings!

bill someone for something to ask someone for payment for something in writing. □ Just bill me for the balance. □ She billed them for her expenses and then tried to deduct the expenses from her income tax.

billow out 1. [for something, such as smoke] to burst and flow outward. □ At the site of the fire, smoke billowed out. □ Clouds of ash billowed out of the volcano. 2. [for a sheet of cloth] to fill with the wind. (Especially a ship's sail.) □ The sail billowed out and we moved forward. □ Her skirt billowed out when the wind caught it.

bind someone or something down[†] to tie or secure someone or something to something. □ Bind the tarpaulin so it won't get away. □ We will bind down the patient tightly. □ They bound the hatch down so it could not be opened.

bind someone or something together[†] to tie the parts of something together; to tie a number of things or people together. □ Can you bind together all three parts? □ Bind these two bandits together and lead them to jail.

bind someone or something up[†] (in something) and bind someone or something up[†] (with something) to tie someone or something up in something. □ They bound the books up in leather straps. □ I will bind up the larger sticks in strong cord.

bind someone or something up[†] (with something) Go to previous.

bind someone over[†] (to someone or something) to deliver someone to some legal authority; to deliver someone to some legal authority. (A legal usage.) □ They bound the suspect over to the sheriff. □ The sheriff will bind over the suspect to the county jail.

binge and purge to overeat and vomit, alternatively and repeatedly. (A symptom of the condition called bulimia.) □ She had binged and purged a number of times before she finally sought help from a doctor. □ Terry had been bingeing and purging for a number of years and was very, very thin.

A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. Prov. Having something for certain is better than the possibility of getting something better. □ I might get a better offer, but a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush. □ Bill has offered to buy my car for $3,000 cash. Someone else might pay more, but a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

a bird's-eye view 1. Lit. a view seen from high above. □ We got a bird's-eye view of Cleveland as the plane began its descent. □ From the top of the church tower you get a splendid bird's-eye view of the village. 2. Fig. a brief survey of something; a hasty look at something. □ The course provides a bird's-eye view of the works of Mozart, but it doesn't deal with them in enough detail for your purpose. □ All you need is a bird's-eye view of the events of World War II to pass the test.

the birds and the bees Euph. sex and reproduction. (See also the facts of life.) □ My father tried to teach me about the birds and the bees. □ He's twenty years old and doesn't understand about the birds and the bees!

Birds in their little nests agree. Prov. People who live together should try hard to get along peacefully. (Usually used to admonish children not to fight with each other.) □ Brother: She called me a name! Sister: I did not! He's a liar! Father: Now, now, kids—birds in their little nests agree. □ Let's not argue about this, guys. Birds in their little nests agree.

Birds of a feather flock together. Prov. Similar people tend to associate with each other. □ I always thought Amy was pretentious, and now she's going out with that snobbish boy, Louis. Birds of a feather flock together. □ George: Why do you think Donald is dishonest? Ned: All his friends are dishonest. Birds of a feather flock together.

a bit much beyond what is needed or tolerable. □ The speech she gave in acceptance of the award was a bit much. She went on and on.

a bit of the action Go to a piece (of the action).

*a bit off and *a little off a little crazy; a little out of whack. (*Typically: be ~; find someone ~.) □ This guy's a little off, but he is harmless.

bitch about someone or something Inf. to complain about someone or something. (Use discretion with bitch, a word many consider coarse or vulgar.) □ You are always bitching about your girlfriend. □ Stop bitching about your job so much.

a bitch of a someone or something Inf. a really difficult person or thing. (Use discretion with bitch, a word many consider coarse or vulgar.) □ What a bitch of a day! □ He is really a bitch of a boss.

bitch someone off Sl. to make someone angry. (Use discretion with bitch, a word many consider coarse or vulgar.) □ You really bitch me off, do you know that? □ That foul temper of yours could bitch off anybody.

bitch someone or something up Inf. to mess someone or something up. (Use discretion with bitch, a word many consider coarse or vulgar.) □ Who bitched these cards up? □ I never bitch up anything!

bite back (at someone or something) 1. Lit. to defend an attack by biting at someone or something. (Usually an animal.) □ I threatened the dog and the dog bit back. 2. Fig. to fight back at someone; to return someone's anger or attack; to speak back to someone with anger. □ She is usually tolerant, but she will bite back if pressed. □ Yes, she will bite back.

bite into something 1. Lit. to press one's teeth into something. □ As he bit into the apple, the juices ran down his chin. □ Lily bit into the sandwich and smiled. 2. Fig. [for the wind or something similar] to blow sharply against someone, causing a stinging pain. □ The cold wind bit into poor Wally, who only has a light jacket. □ The frigid air bit into my exposed skin.

bite off more than one can chew 1. Lit. to take a larger mouthful of food than one can chew easily or comfortably. □ I bit off more than I could chew, and nearly choked. 2. Fig. to take (on) more than one can deal with; to be overconfident. □ Ann is exhausted again. She's always biting off more than she can chew.

bite on someone Sl. to copy something that someone else has done; to dress the same way someone else does. □ Nobody will bite on Sally. She has terrible taste. □ Jennifer is always biting on Anne, who is a careful dresser.

bite on something 1. to chew on something; to grasp something with the teeth. □ The injured cowboy bit on a leather strap while they tried to fix his dislocated shoulder. 2. to respond to a lure; to fall for something. (Can refer literally to fishing, or be used figuratively.) □ Do you think the fish will bite on this? □ No one would bite on that bait. Try another approach.

bite one's nails 1. to use one's teeth to remove parts of one's fingernails as a means of shortening them. □ Stop biting your nails! Use clippers! 2. to literally bite one's nails from nervousness or anxiety; to be nervous or anxious. □ I spent all afternoon biting my nails, worrying about you. □ We've all been biting our nails from worry.

bite one's tongue 1. Lit. to bite down on one's tongue by accident. □ Ouch! I bit my tongue! 2. Fig. to struggle not to say something that you really want to say. □ I had to bite my tongue to keep from telling her what I really thought. □ I sat through that whole silly conversation biting my tongue.

bite someone's head off Fig. to speak sharply and with great anger to someone. (Fixed order.) □ Don't bite my head off! Be patient. □ I'm very sorry I lost my tempter. I didn't mean to bite your head off.

bite something off to remove something in a bite. □ Ann bit a piece off and chewed it up. □ She bit off a piece.

bite the big one Sl. to die. □ I was so tired that I thought I was going to bite the big one. □ I hope I am old and gray when I bite the big one.

bite the bullet Sl. to accept something difficult and try to live with it. □ You are just going to have to bite the bullet and make the best of it. □ Jim bit the bullet and accepted what he knew had to be.

bite the dust 1. Sl. to die. □ A shot rang out, and another cowboy bit the dust. □ The soldier was too young to bite the dust. 2. Sl. to break; to fail; to give out. □ My old car finally bit the dust. □ This pen is out of ink and has bitten the dust.

bite the hand that feeds one Fig. to do harm to someone who does good things for you. (Does not involve biting.) □ I'm your mother! How can you bite the hand that feeds you? □ She can hardly expect sympathy when she bites the hand that feeds her.

Bite the ice! Sl. Go to hell! □ If that's what you think, you can just bite the ice! □ Get away from me! Bite the ice!

* a bite (to eat) to get something to eat; to get food that can be eaten quickly. (*Typically: get ~; grab ~; have ~.) □ I need a few minutes to grab a bite to eat. □ Bob often tries to get a bite between meetings.

Bite your tongue! Fig. an expression said to someone who has just stated an unpleasant supposition that unfortunately may be true. □ Mary: I'm afraid that we've missed the plane already. Jane: Bite your tongue! We still have time. □ Mary: Marry him? But you're older than he is! Sally: Bite your tongue!

bitten by the same bug Fig. having the same need, desire, or obsession. □ Bob and I were both bitten by the same bug and ended up getting new cars at the same time.

a bitter pill to swallow Fig. an unpleasant fact that has to be accepted. (Does not involve pills or swallowing.) □ It was a bitter pill for her brother to swallow when she married his enemy. □ We found his deception a bitter pill to swallow.

blab something around Inf. to gossip something to others; to spread some news or secret. □ It's true, but don't blab it around. □ Did you blab around everything I told you to keep to yourself?

blab something out Inf. to speak out freely about something that is a secret. □ Don't just blab it out! □ Don't blab out the names of the people who were there!

black-and-blue Fig. bruised, physically or emotionally. □ I'm still black-and-blue from my divorce. □ What is that black-and-blue mark on your leg?

black as a skillet and black as a stack of black cats; black as a sweep; black as coal; black as night; black as pitch; black as the ace of spades completely dark or black. (*Also: as ~.) □ I don't want to go down to the cellar. It's as black as a skillet down there. □ Her hair was black as a stack of black cats. □ After playing in the mud all morning, the children were as black as night. □ The stranger's clothes were all black as pitch.

black as one is painted as evil as described. (Usually negative. *Also: as ~.) □ The landlord is not as black as he is painted. He seems quite generous to me. □ Young people are rarely black as they are painted in the media.

black as pitch Go to black as a skillet.

black as the ace of spades Go to black as a skillet.

B

a black eye 1. Lit. a bruise near the eye from being struck. (*Typically have ~; get ~; give someone ~.) □ I got a black eye from walking into a door. □ I have a black eye where John hit me. 2. Fig. harm done to one's character. (*Typically have ~; get ~; give someone ~.) □ Mary got a black eye because of her constant complaining. □ The whole group now has a black eye, and it will take years to recover our reputation.

*a black mark beside one's name Fig. something negative associated with a person. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) □ I did it again! Now I've got still another black mark beside my name!

black out 1. Lit. [for lights] to go out. □ Suddenly the lights blacked out. □ The power went dead and everything blacked out from the heat. 2. Fig. to pass out; to become unconscious. □ After I fell, I must have blacked out. □ I think I am going to black out.

the black sheep of the family Fig. the worst member of the family. □ Mary is the black sheep of the family. She's always in trouble with the police. □ He keeps making a nuisance of himself. What do you expect from the black sheep of the family?

black something out[†] 1. Lit. to cut or turn out the lights or electric power. □ The lightning strike blacked the entire town out. □ The manager blacked out the whole building during the emergency to prevent an explosion. 2. Fig. to prevent the broadcast of a specific television or radio program in a specific area. □ Will they black the game out around here? □ They blacked out the basketball game in this area.

blackmail someone into doing something to force a person to do something by threatening to reveal some secret about the person. □ Are you trying to blackmail me into doing what you want? □ They blackmailed me into doing it.

*the blame for something the responsibility of having done something wrong or caused something bad to happen. (*Typically: accept ~; bear ~; shoulder ~; take ~.) □ I absolutely refuse to shoulder the blame for the entire fiasco!

blame someone for something to hold someone responsible for something; to name someone as the cause of something. □ Please don't blame Jill for it. □ She blamed herself for everything that went wrong.

blame something on someone to say that something is someone's fault; to place the guilt for something on someone. □ Don't blame it on me. □ I blamed it all on someone else.

blanch at something Fig. to cringe at something; to become pale at the thought of something. □ Jill blanched at the thought of swimming in that cold water. □ Lily blanched at the sight before her.

blanch with something Fig. to become pale with some emotion, such as anger or fear. □ He saw the injury and blanched with fear. □ Lily blanched with anger as Max walked out.

a blank check freedom or permission to act as one wishes or thinks necessary. □ He's been given a blank check with regard to reorganizing the work force. □ The new manager has been given no detailed instructions about how to train the staff. He just has a blank check.

blank something out[†] 1. Lit. to erase something, as on a computer screen. □ Who blanked out the information that was on my screen? □ Please blank your password out as soon as you type it. 2. Fig. to forget something, perhaps on purpose; to blot something out of memory. □ I'm sorry, I just blanked your question out. □ I blanked out your question. What did you say?

blanket someone or something with something Fig. to cover someone or something with something. □ They blanketed the flames with a layer of foam. □ The children blanketed Jimmy with leaves and pretended he was lost.

blast off (for some place) 1. [for a space vehicle] to take off and head toward a destination. □ The rocket blasted off for the moon. □ Will it blast off on time? 2. Sl. [for someone] to leave for a destination quickly. □ Ann blasted off for the library so she could study. □ I've got to blast off. It's late.

blast something off something else to remove something from something else with a powerful charge, pressure, or force. □ They blasted the writing off the wall with a stream of sand. □ We will have to blast the paint off the wall.

blaze a trail 1. Lit. to make and mark a trail. □ The scout blazed a trail through the forest. 2. Fig. to do early or pioneering work that others will follow up on. □ Professor Williams blazed a trail in the study of physics.

blaze away (at someone or something) [for gunfire] to fire continually at someone or something. □ The guns blazed away at the oncoming ducks. □ The cowboy blazed away at his opponent in the gunfight.

blaze down (on someone or something) [for the sun or other hot light] to burn from above onto someone or something. □ The sun blazed down on the people on the beach. □ The stage lights blazed down on the set while the actors rehearsed.

blaze up 1. Lit. [for flames] to expand upward suddenly. □ The fire blazed up and warmed all of us. □ As the fire blazed up, we moved away from the fireplace. 2. Fig. [for trouble, especially violent trouble] to erupt suddenly. □ The battle blazed up again, and the fighting started to become fierce. □ As the battle blazed up, the cowards fled into the hills.

blaze with something to burn with some quality, such as great heat or sound. □ The sun blazed with unbelievable heat. □ The fire blazed with much crackling.

bleach something out[†] to remove the color or stain from something. □ Wally bleached his jeans out so they looked more stylish. □ Can you bleach out this stain?

bleed for someone Fig. to feel the emotional pain that someone else is feeling; to sympathize or empathize with someone. □ I just bled for him when I heard his sad story. □ We bled for her as she related her recent woes.

bleed from something for blood to emerge from a wound or other source. □ He was bleeding from a number of wounds. □ He bled from his mouth and nose.

bleed someone white and bleed someone dry to take all of someone's money; to extort money from someone. □ The creeps tried to bleed me white. □ Richard got a picture of Fred and Joan together and tried to bleed both of them dry by threatening to show it to their spouses.

bleed to death to die from the loss of blood. □ If something isn't done, he will bleed to death. □ I cut my finger. I hope I don't bleed to death.

bleeding heart Fig. someone, usually considered politically liberal or leftist, who is very emotional about certain political issues, such as endangered species, downtrodden people, the suffering poor, etc. □ Bob is such a bleeding heart. No cause is too far out for him.

bleep something out^t to replace a word or phrase in a radio or television broadcast with some sort of covering tone. (This is sometimes done to prevent a taboo word or other information from being broadcast.) □ He tried to say the word on television, but they bleeped it out. □ They tried to bleep out the whole sentence.

blend in (with someone or something) to mix well with someone or something; to combine with someone or something. □ Everyone there blended in with our group. □ This color doesn't blend in with the upholstery fabric I have chosen.

blend in (to something) to combine nicely with something; to mix well with something. □ The oil won't blend into the water very well. □ It simply won't blend in.

blend something into something else and blend something in^t to mix something evenly into something else. □ We should blend the strawberry jam into the peanut butter slowly. □ You should blend in some more jam.

blend something together (with something) to mix something evenly with something else. □ Blend the egg together with the cream. □ Blend the ingredients together and pour them into a baking pan.

Bless one's lucky star. and Bless one's stars. Prov. Be thankful for a lucky thing that happened. (Also Bless my stars!, a mild interjection of surprise.) □ I bless my lucky star that I met you, dear. □ I was in a car crash yesterday, and I bless my stars that no one was hurt. □ Alan: Look, honey! I gave the house a thorough cleaning while you were away. Jane: Bless my stars!

Bless one's stars. Go to previous.

bless someone or something with something [for God or fate] to give someone or something a valuable gift. □ God has blessed us with a bountiful harvest. □ Nature blessed the morning with a gentle rain.

blessed event Fig. the birth of a child. □ My sister is expecting a blessed event sometime in May. □ The young couple anxiously awaited the blessed event.

Blessed is he who expects nothing, for he shall never be disappointed. Prov. If you do not expect good things to happen, you will not be disappointed when they fail to happen. □ Ellen: This is going to be the best vacation we've ever had; we're going to have fun every minute of every day. Fred: Blessed is he who expects nothing, for he shall never be disappointed. □ Jill: Do you think you'll win the contest? Jane: I like to keep in mind that blessed is he who expects nothing, for he shall never be disappointed.

a blessing in disguise Fig. something that at first seems bad, but later turns out to be beneficial. □ Tony's motorcycle accident was a blessing in disguise, because he got enough insurance money from the other driver to make a down payment on a house. □ Dad's illness was a blessing in disguise; it brought the family together for the first time in years.

a blight on the land Fig. something that harms the land or the environment. □ Your garage is ugly! No, it's a blight on the land!

blimp out to overeat; to eat too much and gain weight. □ I blimp out almost every weekend. □ If I could stop blimping out, I could lose some weight.

blind as a bat 1. completely blind. (Bats are not really blind. *Also: as ~.) □ He lost his sight in an accident and is as blind as a bat. 2. not able to see well. □ I'm as blind as a bat without my glasses. 3. unwilling to recognize problems or bad things. □ Connie is blind as a bat when it comes to her daughter's disgraceful behavior.

The blind leading the blind Prov. Someone who is not capable of dealing with a situation is guiding someone else who is not capable of dealing with it. (See also a case of the blind leading the blind.) □ Jill: Mike is helping me fill out my tax forms this year. Jane: Is he a tax expert? Jill: He read a book about income tax once. Jane: Sounds to me like the blind leading the blind. □ Nathan offered to be my guide through Philadelphia, but since he'd never been there before either, it was a case of the blind leading the blind.

blind luck Go to pure luck.

blind someone to something Fig. to prevent someone from seeing or understanding something. □ The king blinded his subjects to what was going on by controlling what appeared in the newspapers. □ The lies and confusion blinded Jill to what was happening. □ She blinded herself to all his faults.

blink at something 1. Lit. to open and close the eyelids quickly, one or more times. □ I blinked at the bright light and finally had to close my eyes. □ Don't blink at me while I am trying to take your picture. 2. Fig. to overlook something, such as a mistake. (As if one had blinked one's eyes rather than seeing the error.) □ I just can't blink at that kind of behavior. □ We can't blink at what evil you did.

blink one's tears back^t Fig. to try to keep from crying. □ She blinked back her tears and went on. □ He blinked his tears back and endured the pain.

bliss out Sl. to be overcome with happiness. □ She blissed out at the concert, because she loves that kind of music.

bliss someone out^t Sl. to cause someone to be overcome with happiness. □ This kind of sunny weather just blisses me out. □ The lovely weather blissed out everyone after the long winter.

blitz someone out^t Sl. to shock or disorient someone. □ The accident blitzed her out for a moment. □ The second act blitzed out the audience and thrilled them to pieces.

blitzed out Sl. shocked or disoriented. □ Ann was totally blitzed out by the events of the day. □ They were totally blitzed out by the bad news.

block someone or something in some place and block someone or something in^t to place an obstacle that prevents someone or something from getting out of something. □ I can't get out of my parking space. Someone blocked me in my space. □ Don't block in any of the other cars in the garage.

block someone up^t to constipate someone. □ That food always blocks me up. □ He blocked himself up by eating something he shouldn't. □ That vile stuff would block up anybody!

block something off^t to prevent movement through something by putting up a barrier; to close a passageway. □ Sam blocked the corridor off with a row of chairs. □ He used some chairs to block off the hallway.

block something out^t 1. to obscure a clear view of something. □ The trees blocked the sun out. □ The bushes blocked out my view of the car that was approaching. 2. to lay something out carefully; to map out the details of something. □ She blocked it out for us, so we could understand. □ Let me block out this project for you right now.

block something up^t to obstruct something; to stop the flow within a channel. □ The heaps of debris blocked the channel up. □ The leaves blocked up the drain.

blood and guts 1. Fig. strife; acrimony. □ There is a lot of blood and guts around here, but we get our work done anyway. □ Cut out the blood and guts and grow up. 2. Fig. acrimonious. (This is hyphenated before a nominal.) □ There are too many blood-and-guts arguments around here. □ Old blood-and-guts Wally is making his threats again.

Blood is thicker than water. and Blood runs thicker than water. Prov. People who are related have stronger obligations to each other than to people outside the family. □ My friends invited me to go camping on Saturday, but I have to go to my cousin's wedding instead. Blood is thicker than water, after all. □ If you ever need help, don't ask your friends. Come home and ask us, your family. Blood runs thicker than water.

blood, sweat, and tears Fig. the signs of great personal effort. □ There will be much blood, sweat, and tears before we have completed this project. □ After years of blood, sweat, and tears, Timmy finally earned a college degree.

Blood will have blood. Prov. People will use violence to get revenge for violent acts; murderers will themselves be murdered. □ Although no one suspected him of the murder he had committed, Parker lived in fear. He had heard that blood will have blood. □ I am afraid that the two gangs will never stop killing each other. Blood will have blood.

Blood will tell. Prov. A person whose ancestors had certain characteristics, often bad ones, will eventually turn out to be similar. □ Lisa's father was a gambler, and now Lisa has started to gamble, too. Blood will tell. □ William went to all the best schools, but he's just as vulgar as the rest of his family. Blood will tell.

bloody but unbowed Fig. showing signs of a struggle, but not defeated. (Originally referring to the head. From the poem Invictus by William Earnest Henley.) □ Liz emerged from the struggle, her head bloody but unbowed. □ We are bloody but unbowed and will fight to the last.

blossom forth 1. Lit. [for a plant] to burst into flower. □ All the trees blossomed forth at the same time. □ Each spring my tulips blossom forth in all their glory. 2. Fig. [for someone or a concept] to develop or grow quickly. □ A wonderful idea blossomed forth and caught on quickly. □ That summer she suddenly blossomed forth into a young woman.

blossom into something 1. Lit. [for a plant] to develop into full bloom. □ The bush blossomed into beautiful red roses. □ Imagine this brown old bulb blossoming into a lovely flower. 2. Fig. [for someone or a concept] to develop into something. □ She blossomed into a lovely young lady. □ The idea blossomed into a huge real estate development.

blossom out 1. Lit. [for a plant or tree] to become covered with flowers. □ The apple tree blossomed out for the last time. 2. Fig. [for someone or a concept] to develop fully, physically and intellectually. □ She blossomed out in her studies and her excellent grades showed it. □ In her last year in school, she blossomed out.

a blot on the landscape Fig. a sight that spoils the look of a place. □ That monstrosity you call a house is a blot on the landscape. You should have hired a real architect!

blot someone or something out^t Fig. to forget someone or something by covering up memories or by trying to forget. □ I try to blot those bad thoughts out. □ I tried to blot out those unhappy days.

blot someone out^t Sl. to kill someone. (Originally underworld slang.) □ Sorry, chum, we got orders to blot you out. □ The gang blotted out the only living witness before the trial.

blot something out^t to make something invisible by covering it. (See also blot someone or something out.) □ Don't blot the name out on the application form. □ Who blotted out the name on this form?

blow a bundle (on someone) Go to drop a bundle (on someone).

blow a fuse 1. to burn out the fuse on an electrical circuit and lose power. □ The microwave oven blew a fuse, so we had no power. □ You'll blow a fuse if you use too many appliances at once. 2. and blow one's fuse; blow a gasket; blow one's cork; blow one's lid; blow one's top; blow one's stack Fig. to explode with anger; to lose one's temper. □ Come on, don't blow a fuse. □ Go ahead, blow a gasket! What good will that do?

blow away [for something light] to be carried away by the wind. □ The leaves blew away on the autumn winds. □ My papers blew away!

blow hot and cold Fig. to be changeable or uncertain (about something). □ He keeps blowing hot and cold on the question of moving to the country. □ He blows hot and cold about this. I wish he'd make up his mind.

blow in 1. Go to blow in (from some place). 2. Go to blow in (to some place) (from some place). 3. [for something] to cave in to the pressure of moving air. □ The door blew in during the storm. □ The window blew in from the wind.

blow in (from some place) [for a wind] to move air in from some place. □ A huge mass of frigid air blew in from Canada. □ When the cold air blew in, we were dressed in short sleeves.

blow in (to some place) (from some place) Sl. [for someone] to arrive at a place suddenly, or surprisingly, or with a casual air. □ We blew into town about midnight from Detroit. □ It was late when we blew in from Detroit. □ What time did you blow in?

blow into something to force air into something. □ He blew into the balloon. □ I blew into the box, hoping to get some of the little bits of paper out.

Blow it out your ear! Sl. Go away!; Leave me alone! □ Oh, blow it out your ear, you cornball! □ You are not cool, you're just weird! Blow it out your ear!

blow itself out [for a storm or a tantrum] to lose strength and stop; to subside. (Fixed order.) □ The storm blew itself out. □ Eventually, the hurricane blew itself out.

blow off 1. Lit. [for something] to be carried off something by moving air. □ The leaves of the trees blew off in the strong wind. □ My papers blew off the table. 2. Lit. [for a valve or pressure-maintaining device] to be forced off or away by high pressure. (See the examples.) □ The safety valve blew off and all the pressure escaped. □ The valve blew off, making a loud pop. 3. Fig. [for someone] to become angry; to lose one's temper; to blow off (some) steam. □ I just needed to blow off. Sorry for the outburst. □ I blew off at her. 4. Sl. to goof off; to waste time; to procrastinate. □ You blow off too much. □ All your best time is gone—blown off. 5. Sl. a time-waster; a goof-off. (Usually blow-off.) □ Fred is such a blow-off! □ Get busy. I don't pay blow-offs around here. 6. Sl. something that can be done easily or without much effort. (Usually blow-off.) □ Oh, that is just a blow-off. Nothing to it. □ The test was easy—a blow-off. 7. and blow someone or something off^t Sl. to ignore someone or something; to skip an appointment with someone; to not attend something where one is expected. □ He decided to sleep in and blow this class off. □ It wasn't right for you to just blow off an old friend the way you did. 8. and blow someone off^t Sl. to ignore someone in order to end a romantic or other relationship. □ She knew that he had blown her off when he didn't even call her for a month. □ Steve blew off Rachel before he started seeing Jane. 9. Sl. the final insult; an event that causes a dispute. (Usually blow-off.) □ The blow-off was a call from some girl named Lulu who asked for Snookums. □ When the blow-off happened, nobody was expecting anything. 10. Sl. a dispute; an argument. (Usually blow-off.) □ After a blow-off like that, we all need a break. □ There was a big blow-off in the office today.

blow off (some) steam Go to let off (some) steam.

Blow on it! Sl. Cool it!; Take it easy! □ It's all right, Tom. Blow on it! □ Hey, man. Relax. Blow on it!

blow on something to force air across something especially with a puff of breath. □ Jill blew on the hot soup. □ Blow on the fire to make it burn hotter.

blow one's cookies Go to blow (one's) lunch.

blow one's cool Go to lose one's cool.

blow one's cork Go to blow a fuse.

blow one's fuse Go to blow a fuse.

blow one's groceries Go to blow one's lunch.

blow one's lid Go to blow a fuse.

blow one's lines Go to fluff one's lines.

blow (one's) lunch and lose one's lunch; blow one's cookies; blow one's groceries Sl. to vomit. □ I almost lost my lunch, I ran so hard. □ I wanted to blow my lunch, that's how rotten I felt. □ He got carsick and blew his cookies all over the front seat.

blow one's nose to expel mucus and other material from the nose using air pressure from the lungs. □ Excuse me,

I have to blow my nose. □ Bill blew his nose into his handkerchief.

blow one's own horn and toot one's own horn Fig. to brag. □ Gary sure likes to toot his own horn. □ "I hate to blow my own horn," said Bill, "but I am always right."

blow one's stack Go to blow a fuse.

blow one's top Go to blow a fuse.

blow over Fig. [for something] to diminish; to subside. (As with a storm or a temper tantrum.) □ Her display of temper finally blew over. □ The storm will blow over soon, I hope.

blow someone a kiss to pantomime the sending of a kiss to a person visible nearby by kissing one's hand and "blowing" the kiss off the hand toward the person. □ As she boarded the train she blew him a kiss, and he waved back.

blow someone away 1. Sl. [for something shocking or exciting] to overwhelm a person; to excite a person very much. □ The amount of the check blew me away. □ The loud noise from the concert blew me away. 2. Sl. to murder someone, usually by gunfire. □ Mr. Big ordered Lefty to blow Max away. □ Max tried to blow Lefty away.

blow someone or something away^t [for the wind] to carry someone or something away. □ The wind almost blew her away. □ It nearly blew away all the houses.

blow someone or something down^t [for a rush of air] to knock someone or something over. □ The wind blew Chuck down. □ The tornado blew down many buildings.

blow someone or something out of the water Fig. to destroy utterly someone or something, such as a plan. (Alludes to a torpedo or other weapon striking a ship and causing a great explosion that makes pieces of the ship fly out of the water.) □ I will blow him out of the water if he shows up around here. □ The boss blew the whole idea out of the water.

blow someone or something over [for the wind] to move strongly and upset someone or something. □ The wind almost blew us over. □ The tornado blew the shed over.

blow someone or something to bits Go to blow someone or something to smithereens.

blow someone or something to kingdom come Fig. to destroy someone or something by means of an explosion. □ You'd better get that gas leak fixed or it will blow you and your car to kingdom come.

blow someone or something to pieces Go to next.

blow someone or something to smithereens and blow someone or something to bits; blow someone or something to pieces Lit. to explode someone or something into tiny pieces. (See also blow something to smithereens.) □ The bomb blew the ancient church to smithereens. □ The explosion blew the tank to bits. □ The explosion blew the car to pieces.

blow someone or something up^t 1. Lit. to destroy someone or something by explosion. □ The terrorists blew the building up at midday. □ They blew up the bridge. 2. Fig. to exaggerate something [good or bad] about someone or something. □ I hope no one blows the story up. □ The media always blows up reports of celebrity behavior. □ The press blew the story up unnecessarily.

blow someone out Sl. to kill someone, especially with gunshots. (Fixed order.) □ Lefty set out to blow Max out once and for all. □ Lefty wanted to blow Max out too.

blow someone over¹ Lit. [for the wind or an explosion] to knock someone over. □ The force of the wind nearly blew me over. □ The wind blew over the old tree. 2. Fig. to surprise or astound someone. (Fixed order.) □ Her announcement just blew me over. □ The whole event just blew me over.

blow someone's brains out¹ Sl. to kill someone with a gun. □ Careful with that gun, or you'll blow your brains out. □ Max was so depressed that he wanted to blow out his brains.

blow someone's cover Sl. to reveal someone's true identity; to ruin someone's scheme for concealment. □ The dog recognized me and blew my cover. □ I didn't mean to blow your cover by calling out to you.

blow someone's doors off¹ Sl. [for a driver] to speed past another vehicle. □ Wow, he almost blew my doors off! □ The truck passed us and blew off our doors!

blow someone's mind 1. Sl. to disturb or distract; to destroy the function of one's brain. □ It was a terrible experience. It nearly blew my mind. □ She blew her mind on drugs. 2. Sl. to overwhelm someone; to excite someone. □ It was so beautiful, it nearly blew my mind. □ The loud guitar music was so wild. It blew my mind.

blow someone to something Sl. to pay for something or someone, such as a meal, a movie, a drink, etc. □ Let me blow you to a meal. □ I think I'll blow myself to a fancy dessert.

blow something Sl. to ruin or waste something. □ I had a chance to do it, but I blew it. □ He blew the whole five dollars on candy.

blow something out¹ to extinguish a flame with a puff of breath. □ I blew the candle out. □ I blew out the candles one by one.

blow something out of (all) proportion Go to out of (all) proportion.

blow something to smithereens and blow something to bits; blow something to pieces Fig. to destroy an idea or plan by exposing its faults. (See also blow someone or something to smithereens.) □ The discovery blew my case to pieces. □ The opposing lawyer blew my case to smithereens.

blow something up¹ 1. to inflate something. □ He didn't have enough breath to blow the balloon up. □ They all blew up their own balloons. 2. to have a photograph enlarged. □ How big can you blow this picture up? □ I will blow up this snapshot and frame it.

blow something wide open and bust something wide open Sl. to expose corrupt practices or a secret plan; to put an end to corruption. □ The press is trying to blow the town wide open, and the feds are trying to hush them up so they can move about in secret. □ I'm going to bust this racket wide open.

blow the joint Sl. to get out of a place, usually in a hurry or without delay. □ Come on, let's blow the joint before there's trouble. □ They blew the joint about an hour ago.

blow the lid off (something) Sl. to expose something to public view. □ The police inspector blew the lid off the work of the gang of thugs. □ The investigation blew the lid off the scandal.

blow the whistle (on someone) 1. Fig. to report someone's wrongdoing to someone (such as the police) who can stop the wrongdoing. (Alludes to blowing a whistle to attract the police.) □ The citizens' group blew the whistle on the street gangs by calling the police. □ The gangs were getting very bad. It was definitely time to blow the whistle.

2. Fig. to report legal or regulatory wrongdoing of a company, especially one's employer, to authorities. □ She was fired for blowing the whistle on the bank's mismanagement of accounts, but she then sued the bank.

blow up 1. Lit. [for something] to explode. □ The bomb might have blown up if the children had tried to move it. □ The firecracker blew up. 2. Fig. to burst into anger. □ I just knew you'd blow up. □ So she blew up. Why should that affect you so much? 3. Fig. an angry outburst; a fight. (Usually blowup.) □ After the third blowup, she left him. □ One blowup after another from you. Control your temper!

4. Fig. an enlarged version of a photograph, map, chart, etc. (Usually blowup.) □ Here's a blowup of the scene of the crime. □ Kelly sent a blowup of their wedding picture to all her relatives. 5. Fig. the ruination of something; the collapse of something. (Usually blowup.) □ The blowup in the financial world has ruined my chances for early retirement. □ After the blowup at the company, the top managers called one another to compare notes. 6. Fig. to fall apart or get ruined. □ The whole project blew up. It will have to be canceled. □ All my planning was blown up this afternoon.

7. [for a storm] to arrive accompanied by the blowing of the wind. □ A terrible storm blew up while we were in the movie theater. □ I was afraid that a rainstorm was blowing up.

blow up in someone's face 1. Lit. to blow up or explode suddenly. □ The bomb blew up in the terrorist's face. □ The firecracker blew up in his face and injured him. 2. Fig. [for something] to get ruined while someone is working on it. □ All my plans blew up in my face. □ It is terrible for your life to get ruined and blow up in your face.

a blow-by-blow account and a blow-by-blow description Fig. a detailed description (of an event) given as the event takes place. (This referred originally to reporting on boxing.) □ I want to listen to a blow-by-blow account of the prizefight. □ The lawyer got the witness to give a blow-by-blow description of the argument.

a blow-by-blow description Go to previous.

blown (up) Sl. intoxicated. □ I guess I'm a little too blown up to drive.

blue around the gills Go to pale around the gills.

blue blood 1. Fig. the blood [heredity] of a noble family; aristocratic ancestry. □ The earl refuses to allow anyone who is not of blue blood to marry his son. □ Although Mary's family is poor, she has blue blood in her veins. 2. Fig. a person of aristocratic or wealthy ancestry. □ Because his great-grandparents made millions, he is regarded as one of the city's blue bloods.

blue collar of the lower class or working class; of a job or a worker, having to do with manual labor. (Also, when used as an attributive adjective, often blue-collar. Compare this with white collar. Alludes to the typical color of work shirts worn by mechanics, laborers, etc.) □ His parents were both blue-collar workers. He was the first person in his family to go to college. □ They bought a house in a nice, settled, blue-collar neighborhood.

*the blues 1. sadness; a mood of depression. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ You'll have to excuse Bill. He's getting the blues thinking about Jane. □ I get the blues every time I hear that song. 2. a traditional style of popular music characterized by lyrics expressing hardship, lost love, etc. □ Buddy had been singing the blues ever since the Depression.

bluff one's way out (of something) to get out of a difficult situation by deception or cunning. □ I will try to bluff my way out of this mess.

bluff someone into something to mislead or deceive someone into doing something. □ Are you trying to bluff me into giving up without a fight? □ I won't be bluffed into revealing the whereabouts of the safe.

bluff someone out (of something) to get something away from someone through deception. □ We bluffed her out of her share of the pie. □ I bluffed Liz out of her rightful turn to drive.

blurt something out[†] (at someone) to say something to someone without thinking. (Usually to say something that should not be said.) □ It was a secret. Why did you blurt it out? □ Why did you blurt out our hiding place?

blush with something [for someone's cheeks] to redden from a particular emotion or reaction. □ She blushed with shame. □ You could see that Lily was blushing with anger, even though she tried to conceal it.

board someone or an animal out[†] to send someone or an animal away to live, temporarily. (Usually said of a school-age child or a pet.) □ They decided to board Billy out. □ They boarded out the dog while they were on vacation.

board something up[†] to enclose or seal a building or part of a building with boards or panels. □ We will have to board this house up if we can't sell it. □ Should I board up the house while I am away that season?

board with someone to live with someone temporarily, usually while paying to do so. □ I will board with my aunt when I go to school in Adamsville. □ I do not wish to board with relatives.

boast about someone or something and boast of someone or something to speak highly about someone or something that one is proud of. □ I just have to boast about my grandchildren. Do you mind? □ Is he boasting about his car again? □ I don't like to boast of what I did.

bode somehow for someone or something to foretell or portend fortune or misfortune for someone or something. (Typically with ill or well.) □ Things do not bode well for the stock market. □ Things do not bode well for your future at this job.

bodily functions Euph. anything the body does automatically or as a normal occurrence, especially urinating and defecating. □ The dog needed to go outside and perform her bodily functions. □ It is not polite to discuss bodily functions at the dinner table.

the body politic the people of a country or state considered as a political unit. □ The body politic was unable to select between the candidates.

bog down to become encumbered and slow. (As if one were walking through a bog and getting stuck in the mud. Often preceded by a form of get.) □ The process bogged down and almost stopped. □ The truck got bogged down in the mud soon after it started.

bogged down stuck; prevented from making progress. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; become ~.) □ The students became bogged down with the algebra problems. □ The Smiths really got bogged down in decorating their house.

boggle at something to be amazed at something, particularly something large or surprising. □ The audience boggled at the size of the loss. □ I boggled at the damage to my car.

boggle someone's mind to confuse someone; to overwhelm someone; to blow someone's mind. □ The immense size of the house boggles my mind. □ She said that his arrogance boggled her mind.

boil down to something 1. and boil down Lit. [for a liquid] to be condensed to something by boiling. □ Boil this mixture down to about half of what it was. 2. Fig. [for a complex situation] to be reduced to its essentials. □ It boils down to the question of who is going to win. □ It boils down to a very minor matter.

boil over [for a liquid] to overflow while being boiled. (See also boil over (with something).) □ The sauce boiled over and dripped onto the stove. □ Don't let the stew boil over!

boil over (with something) Fig. [for someone] to erupt in great anger. □ The boss boiled over with anger. □ Things got out of hand and the crowd's passions boiled over.

boil something away[†] 1. Lit. to boil a liquid until it is gone altogether. □ She left the kettle on and boiled the water away. □ Boil away some of that water. 2. Lit. to remove a volatile chemical from a solution by boiling. □ Boil the alcohol away or the sauce will be ruined. □ You should boil away some of the liquid.

boil something down[†] 1. Lit. to condense or thicken something, such as a liquid. □ I have to boil this gravy down for a while before I can serve it. □ You boil down the sauce and I'll set the table. 2. Fig. to reduce a problem to its simple essentials. □ If we could boil this problem down to its essentials, we might be able to solve it. □ We don't have time to boil down this matter. This is too urgent.

boil something out[†] Go to next.

boil something out of something and boil something out[†] to remove something from something by boiling. □ I boiled the wax out of the cloth. □ You can boil out the stain.

boil something up[†] Rur. to cook a batch of food by boiling. □ She boiled some beans up for dinner. □ She boiled up some potatoes.

boil with something Fig. to show the heat or intensity of one's anger. □ You could see that she was just boiling with anger. □ Tom was boiling with rage when we got there.

bold as brass very bold; bold to the point of rudeness. (*Also: as ~.) □ Lisa marched into the manager's office, bold as brass, and demanded her money back. □ The tiny kitten, as bold as brass, began eating the dog's food right under the dog's nose.

bollix something up[†] Inf. to ruin something; to mess something up. □ Please don't bollix my stereo up. □ Who bollixed up the folded laundry?

bolster someone up[†] Fig. to give someone emotional support and encouragement. □ We bolstered her up the best we could, but she was still unhappy. □ I don't mind bolstering up people who are depressed.

bolster something up[†] to give added support to something. □ The carpenter bolstered the shelf up with a nail or two. □ I had to bolster up the door or it would have fallen in.

a bolt from the blue Fig. a sudden surprise. (Alludes to a stroke of lightning from a cloudless sky.) □ Joe's return to Springfield was a bolt from the blue. □ The news that Mr. and Mrs. King were getting a divorce struck all their friends as a bolt from the blue.

bolt out (of some place) to run out of some place very quickly. □ Frank bolted out of the room in a flash. □ I bolted out after him.

bolt something down[†] 1. Lit. to fasten something down securely with bolts. □ Did anyone bolt the washing machine down? □ Someone should bolt down this washing machine. 2. Fig. to eat something too rapidly. □ Don't bolt your food down. □ She bolted down her dinner and ran out to play.

bomb out (of something) Sl. to flunk out of or fail at something, especially school or a job. □ She was afraid she would bomb out of school. □ Her brother bombed out the year before.

bomb someone out[†] to cause people to flee by bombing their homes and towns. □ The planes bombed the villagers out. □ The attack bombed out everyone for miles around.

bomb something out[†] to destroy a place by bombing. □ I hope they don't bomb the village out. □ The planes bombed out the factory.

bombard someone or something with something to cast or shoot something at someone or something. (See also bombard someone with questions.) □ The boys bombarded their friends with snowballs. □ Gerald bombarded his friends with criticism.

bombard someone with questions Fig. to ask someone many questions, one after another. □ The press bombarded the president with questions. □ The company spokesperson was bombarded with leading questions.

bone of contention Fig. the subject or point of an argument; an unsettled point of disagreement. □ We've fought for so long that we've forgotten what the bone of contention is. □ The question of a fence between the houses has become quite a bone of contention.

bone up (on something) to study something thoroughly; to review the facts about something. □ I have to bone up on the state driving laws because I have to take my driving test tomorrow. □ I take mine next month, so I'll have to bone up, too.

boo someone off the stage and boo someone off[†] to jeer and hoot, causing a performer to leave the stage. □ The rude audience booted the performer off the stage. □ The audience booted off the comedian.

booby prize a mock prize given to the worst player or performer. □ Bob should get the booby prize for the worst showing in the race.

boogie down (to somewhere) Sl. to hurry (to somewhere); to go (somewhere). □ So, why don't you boogie down to the store and load up with goodies for the weekend? □ I'm gonna boogie down and see what's going on.

book (on) out Sl. to leave in a hurry; to depart very suddenly and rapidly. □ I'm in a hurry, so I've got to book out right now. □ Let's book on out of this place as soon as we can.

book someone on something to reserve a place for someone on some travel conveyance. □ They booked us on a direct flight to San Juan. □ He booked himself on a flight to Manaus.

book someone through (to some place) to make transportation arrangements for someone that involve a number of changes and transfers. □ The travel agent booked me through to Basra. □ I would be happy to book you through if you would like.

book something up[†] to reserve all the available places. □ The travel agency booked all the good seats up. □ Who booked up all these seats?

boom out [for a loud sound] to sound out like thunder. □ His voice boomed out such that everyone could hear. □ An explosion boomed out and frightened us all.

boom something out[†] [for someone] to say something very loud; to shout. □ Will someone with a loud voice boom the names out? □ The announcer boomed out the names of the players.

boost someone up[†] to give someone a helpful lift up to something. □ She boosted me up so I could get into the window. □ They boosted up the child for a better view.

*the boot dismissal from employment or from a place that one is in. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ I guess I wasn't dressed well enough to go in there. They gave me the boot. □ I'll work harder at my job today. I nearly got the boot yesterday.

boot someone or an animal out[†] and kick someone or an animal out[†] 1. Lit. to send or remove someone or an animal from a place forcefully, often by kicking. □ I kicked the cat out and then went to bed. □ Tom kicked out the dog. 2. Fig. to force someone or something to leave some place. □ We booted out the people who didn't belong there. □ The doorman booted the kid out.

boot something up[†] to start up a computer. □ She booted her computer up and started writing. □ Please go boot up your computer so we can get started.

boot up [of a computer] to begin operating; to start up one's computer. □ He turned on the computer and it booted up. □ Try to boot up again and see what happens.

booze it up Sl. to drink heavily; to drink to get drunk. (Fixed order.) □ She wanted to get home and booze it up by herself. □ He boozes it up every Friday after work.

booze up Sl. to drink heavily. □ Those guys are always boozing up. □ Stop boozing up and go home.

border (up)on something 1. Lit. [for something] to touch upon a boundary. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Our property borders on the lakeshore. □ The farm borders upon the railroad tracks.

2. Fig. [for some activity or idea] to be very similar to something else. (Not usually physical objects. Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ This notion of yours borders upon mutiny! □ That plan borders on insanity.

bore someone stiff and bore someone to death; bore someone to tears Fig. to be exceedingly dull and uninteresting. (Stiff means “dead.”) □ The play bored me stiff. □ The lecture bored everyone to death.

bore someone to death Go to previous.

bore someone to tears Go to bore someone stiff.

bore the pants off of someone Fig. to be exceedingly dull and uninteresting to someone. □ You bore the pants off of me! □ The lecture bored the pants off of everybody.

bore through someone Fig. [for someone’s gaze] to seem to penetrate the person being gazed or stared at. □ Her stare bored right through me.

bore through something to pierce or drill through something. □ The drill bit could not bore through the steel plate.

bored silly and bored to distraction; bored stiff; bored to death; bored to tears very bored; extremely dull and uninteresting (Usually an exaggeration.) □ I was bored silly at the lecture. □ The dull speaker left me bored to distraction. □ I am bored to tears. Let’s go home.

bored to distraction Go to previous.

born and bred Go to next.

born and raised and born and bred born and nurtured through childhood, usually in a specific place. □ She was born and raised in a small town in western Montana. □ Freddy was born and bred on a farm and had no love for city life.

born on the wrong side of the blanket Rur. [of a child] illegitimate. □ All his life, Edward felt that people looked down on him because he was born on the wrong side of the blanket. □ Just between you and me, I suspect Mrs. Potter’s oldest child was born on the wrong side of the blanket.

born out of wedlock born to an unmarried mother. □ The child was born out of wedlock. □ In the city many children are born out of wedlock.

born with a silver spoon in one’s mouth Fig. born into wealth and privilege. □ James doesn’t know anything about working for a living; he was born with a silver spoon in his mouth. □ Most of the students at the exclusive private college were born with silver spoons in their mouths.

borrow something Euph. to steal something. □ The bank robber borrowed a car to drive out of state. □ I discovered that my office mate had been borrowing money out of my wallet when I wasn’t looking.

borrow something from someone to request and receive the use of something from someone. □ Can I borrow a hammer from you? □ Sorry, this hammer was borrowed from my father.

borrow trouble Fig. to worry needlessly; to make trouble for oneself. □ Worrying too much about death is just borrowing trouble. □ Do not get involved with politics. That’s borrowing trouble.

bosom buddy and bosom pal a close friend; one’s closest friend. □ Of course I know Perry. He is one of my bosom pals.

bosom pal Go to previous.

boss someone around[†] to give orders to someone; to keep telling someone what to do. □ Stop bossing me around. I’m not your employee. □ Captain Smith bosses around the whole crew. That’s his job.

botch something up[†] to mess something up; to do a bad job of something. □ You really botched this up. □ I did not botch up your project.

both sheets in the wind intoxicated. (A ship’s sheets are the ropes or lines that control the sails. See also three sheets in the wind.) □ She’s both sheets in the wind at the moment. □ She’s not just both sheets in the wind—they’re all in the wind.

bother about something to care about something; to take the trouble to deal with something. □ Please don’t bother about this mess. I’ll clean it up. □ Don’t bother about it.

bother one’s (pretty little) head about someone or something Rur. to worry about something. (Stereotypically polite Southern talk to a woman; often said facetiously or patronizingly.) □ Now, don’t bother your pretty little head about all this. □ Don’t bother your head about me.

bother someone with someone or something and bother someone about someone or something to annoy someone with someone or something; to worry someone about someone or something. (Either a physical annoyance or a mental annoyance.) □ Don’t bother me with that! □ Don’t bother yourself about the bill. I’ll pay it.

bother with someone or something to take the time or trouble to deal with someone or something. (Usually negative.) □ Please don’t bother with Jill. She can take care of herself. □ Don’t bother me with your problems.

the bottle drinking alcohol. □ His friends thought he was a bit too fond of the bottle. □ She tried to stay away from the bottle, but she never could manage it for long.

bottle something up[†] 1. Lit. to put some sort of liquid into bottles. □ She bottled her homemade chili sauce up and put the bottles in a box. □ She bottled up a lot of the stuff. 2. Fig. to constrict something as if it were put in a bottle. □ The patrol boats bottled the other boats up at the locks on the river. □ The police bottled up the traffic while they searched the cars for the thieves. 3. and bottle something up[†] (inside (someone)) Fig. to hold one’s feelings within; to keep from saying something that one feels strongly about. □ Let’s talk about it, John. You shouldn’t bottle it up. □ Don’t bottle up your problems. It’s better to talk them out. □ Don’t bottle it up inside you. □ Don’t bottle up all your feelings.

the bottom fell out (of something) Fig. a much lower limit or level of something was reached. □ The bottom fell out of the market and I lost a lot of money.

the bottom line 1. Lit. the last figure on a financial profit-and-loss statement, or on a bill. □ What’s the bottom line? How much do I owe you? □ Don’t tell me all those figures! Just tell me the bottom line. 2. Fig. the result; the final outcome. □ I know about all the problems, but what is the bottom line? What will happen? □ The bottom line is that you have to go to the meeting because no one else can.

the bottom of the barrel and the bottom of the heap Fig. the location of persons or things of the very lowest quality; someone or something of the lowest quality. (The fruit at the bottom of a barrel of apples is likely to be bruised from the weight of the other apples.) □ That last secretary you sent me was really the bottom of the barrel. □ I don't need any candidates from the bottom of the heap.

the bottom of the heap Go to previous.

bottom out Fig. to reach the lowest or worst point of something. □ All my problems seem to be bottoming out. They can't get much worse. □ Interest rates bottomed out last February.

Bottoms up! and Here's looking at you.; Here's mud in your eye.; Here's to you. Inf. an expression said as a toast when people are drinking together. (Alludes to the bottoms of the drinking glasses.) □ Bill: Bottoms up. Tom: Here's mud in your eye. Bill: Ah, that one was good. Care for another?

bounce along 1. Lit. to move along bouncing. (As might be done by a ball.) □ The ball bounced along and finally came to rest. □ The beach ball sort of bounced along until it came to the water. 2. Fig. [for someone] to move along happily. □ He was so happy that he just bounced along. □ He stopped bouncing along when he saw all the work he had to do.

bounce back (from something) 1. Lit. [for something] to rebound; [for something] to return bouncing from where it had been. □ The ball bounced back from the wall. □ A rubber ball always bounces back. 2. and bounce back (after something) Fig. [for someone] to recover after a disability, illness, blow, or defeat. (See also rebound from something.) □ She bounced back from her illness quickly. □ She bounced back quickly after her illness.

bounce for something Go to spring for something.

bounce off ((of) something) to rebound from something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The ball bounced off the wall and struck a lamp. □ It hit the wall and bounced off.

bounce out (of something) to rebound out of or away from something. □ The ball bounced out of the corner into my hands. □ The ball bounced out of the box it had fallen into.

bounce something around^f (with someone) to discuss something with a number of people; to move an idea from person to person like a ball. □ I need to bounce this around with my family. □ I need to bounce around something with you.

bounce something back and forth 1. Lit. to bat, toss, or throw something alternately between two people. (Usually a ball.) □ The two guys bounced the ball back and forth. □ John and Timmy bounced it back and forth. 2. Fig. to discuss an idea back and forth among a group of people. □ Let's bounce these ideas back and forth awhile and see what we come up with. □ The idea was bounced back and forth for about an hour.

bounce something off (of) someone or something 1. Lit. to make something rebound off someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ She bounced the ball off the wall, turned, and tossed it to Wally. □ She bounced the ball off of Harry, into the wastebasket. 2. and bounce something off^t Fig. to try an idea or concept out on someone or a group. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Let me bounce off this idea, if I may. □ Can I bounce something off of you people, while you're here?

bounce up and down to spring up and down due to natural elasticity or from being jostled or thrown. □ The ball bounced up and down for an amazingly long time. □ I bounced up and down in the back of that truck for almost an hour.

bound and determined Cliché very determined; very committed or dedicated (to something). □ We were bound and determined to get there on time. □ I'm bound and determined that this won't happen again.

bound for somewhere headed for a specific goal or destination. □ Bill accidentally got on a bus bound for Miami. □ Our baseball team is bound for glory.

bound hand and foot with hands and feet tied up. □ The robbers left us bound hand and foot. □ We remained bound hand and foot until the police found us and untied us.

bound to do something certain to do something; destined to do something. □ Jill's bound to do a good job. □ We are bound to tell the truth.

bound up with someone or something deeply concerned or involved with someone or something. □ He's so bound up with his work, he has time for nothing else. □ Andrew is bound up with his girlfriend and has time for no one else.

bow and scrape Fig. to be very humble and subservient. □ Please don't bow and scrape. We are all equal here. □ The salesclerk came in, bowing and scraping, and asked if he could help us.

bow before someone or something 1. Lit. to bend or curtsy in respect to someone or something. □ I will not bow before any king or queen. □ Henry insisted that I bow before him. 2. Fig. to submit to someone or something; to surrender to someone or something. □ Our country will never bow before a dictator's demands. □ We will not bow before such a corrupt politician.

bow down (to someone or something) and bow to someone or something 1. Lit. to bend or curtsy to someone or something. □ Do you expect me to bow down or something when you enter? □ He bowed down low to the duchess. □ She faced forward and bowed to the altar. 2. Fig. to submit to someone or something; to yield sovereignty to someone or something. □ I will not bow down to you, you dictator! □ We will never bow to a foreign prince.

bow out (of some place) to bow as one departs from a place. □ The servant bowed out of the room. □ The servant departed, bowing out as he left.

bow out (of something) Fig. to retire or resign as something. □ It's time to bow out as mayor. □ I think I will bow out and leave this job to someone else.

bow to someone's demands Fig. to yield to someone's demands; to agree to do something that someone has requested. □ In the end, they had to bow to our demands. □ We refused to bow to their demands that we abandon the project.

bow to the porcelain altar Sl. to vomit, especially as a result of drinking too much alcohol. (The porcelain altar is a euphemism for a toilet bowl.) □ He spent the whole night bowing to the porcelain altar. □ I have the feeling that I will be bowing to the porcelain altar before morning.

bowl someone over 1. Lit. to knock someone over. (Fixed order.) □ We were bowled over by the wind. □ Bob hit his brother and bowled him over. 2. Fig. to surprise or overwhelm someone. (Fixed order.) □ The news bowled me over. □ The details of the proposed project bowled everyone over.

bowl up to fill a pipe bowl with smokable material. □ The detective bowled up and struck a match. □ Roger bowled up, but forgot to light his pipe.

box someone in[†] Fig. to put someone into a bind; to reduce the number of someone's alternatives. (See also the following entry.) □ I don't want to box you in, but you are running out of options. □ I want to box in the whole staff, so they'll have to do it my way.

box someone or something in[†] to trap or confine someone or something. □ He boxed her in so she could not get away from him. □ They tried to box in the animals, but they needed more space. □ Don't try to box me in.

box someone up[†] to confine someone in a small area. □ Please don't box me up in that little office. □ The boss boxed up Fred in a tiny office. □ Why the president boxes himself up in such a little office is beyond me.

box something up[†] to place something in a box. □ Please box the books up and put them into the trunk of the car. □ Please box up four of these for me.

boxed in Fig. in a bind; having few alternatives. □ I really feel boxed in around here. □ I got him boxed in. He'll have to do it our way.

boxed on the table Sl. died on the (operating) table. (Medical.) □ The surgeon did the best job possible, but the patient boxed on the table. □ Another patient boxed on the table. That's three this month.

boxed (up) 1. Sl. intoxicated. □ I am way boxed, and I feel sick. □ She got boxed up on gin. 2. Sl. in jail. □ I committed the crime, and I was boxed for a long time for it. □ Pat was boxed up for two days till we got bond money.

Boy howdy! Rur. an exclamation of excited surprise. □ Bob: Well, I finally got here. Fred: Boy howdy! Am I glad to see you! □ Bill: How do you like my horse? Fred: That's one fine-looking filly! Boy howdy!

the boys in the back room and the backroom boys Fig. any private group of men who make decisions, usually political decisions. (See also smoke-filled room.) □ The boys in the back room picked the last presidential candidate. □ The backroom boys have decided too many things in the past. Their day is over.

Boys will be boys. Prov. Boys are expected to be irresponsible or boisterous. (Also said ironically about men.) □ You can't blame David for breaking the window with his baseball. Boys will be boys. □ My husband can't resist driving eighty miles an hour in his new sports car. Boys will be boys.

brace oneself for something 1. Lit. to hang onto something or prop oneself against something in preparation for something that might cause one to fall, blow away, wash away, etc. □ Hold onto the rail. Brace yourself. Here comes another huge wave. 2. Fig. to prepare for the shock or force of something. □ Brace yourself for a shock. □ As the boat leaned to the right, I braced myself for whatever might happen next.

brace someone or something up[†] to prop up or add support to someone or something. □ They braced the tree up for the expected windstorm. □ They braced up the tree again after the storm.

brace up to take heart; to be brave. □ Brace up! Things could be worse. □ I told John to brace up because things would probably get worse before they got better.

brag about someone or something to boast about someone or something; to talk proudly about someone or something. □ He bragged about how selfish he was. □ Jill brags a lot about her kids.

brain someone Fig. to strike a person hard on the skull as if to knock out the person's brains. (Often said as a vain threat.) □ I thought he was going to brain me, but he only hit me on the shoulder. □ If you don't do it, I'll brain you.

brainwash someone with something to drive specific knowledge or propaganda into someone's brain, by constant repetition and psychological conditioning. □ The dictator brainwashed his people with lie after lie. □ You have brainwashed yourself with your own propaganda.

branch off (from something) to separate off from something; to divide away from something. □ A small stream branched off from the main channel. □ An irrigation ditch branched off here and there.

branch out (from something) 1. Lit. [for a branch] to grow out of a branch or trunk. (Having to do with plants and trees.) □ A twig branched out of the main limb and grew straight up. □ The bush branched out from the base. 2. Fig. to expand away from something; to diversify away from narrower interests. □ The speaker branched out from her prepared remarks. □ The topic was very broad, and she was free to branch out.

branch out (into something) Fig. to diversify and go into new areas. □ I have decided to branch out into some new projects. □ Business was very good, so I decided to branch out.

(brand) spanking new very new; just purchased and never before used. □ My car is spanking new. □ Look at that brand spanking new car!

brass someone off[†] Sl. to make someone angry. (Primarily military. As angry as the "brass," or officers, might get about something.) □ You really brass me off. □ The private brassed off the sergeant.

brave something out[†] to endure something; to put up with something courageously. □ I don't know if all the men can brave the attack out. □ The soldiers braved out the attack.

The bread always falls on the buttered side. Prov. When things go wrong, they go completely wrong. □ Not only did my phone break, but it broke today—today of all days, when I'm expecting a really important call. The bread always falls on the buttered side. □ When the painting fell off the wall, it landed on a priceless porcelain vase and broke it. The bread always falls on the buttered side.

bread and water Fig. the most minimal meal possible; a meal as once was given to prisoners. (Usually used in reference to being in prison or jail.) □ Wilbur knew that if he got in trouble again it would be at least a year on bread and water. □ This dinner is terrible again. I would rather have bread and water! Why don't we ever have pizza?

Bread is the staff of life. Prov. Food is necessary for people to survive. □ Miranda likes to give money to charities that feed people. "Other services are important," she reasons, "but bread is the staff of life." □ Jill: Want to go to lunch with us, Bob? Bob: No. I must work on my novel while inspiration lasts. Jill: Don't forget to eat. Bread is the staff of life, you know.

bread-and-butter letter a letter or note written to follow up on a visit; a thank-you note. □ When I got back from the sales meeting, I took two days to write bread-and-butter letters to the people I met. □ I got sort of a bread-and-butter letter from my nephew, who wants to visit me next summer.

*a break a chance; another chance or a second chance. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I'm sorry. Please don't send me to the principal's office. Give me a break! □ I got a nice break. They didn't send me to prison.

break a code to figure out a code; to decipher a secret code. □ The intelligence agents finally broke the enemy's code. □ When they broke the code, they were able to decipher messages.

break a habit and break the habit; break one's habit to end a habit. □ I was not able to break the habit of snoring. □ It's hard to break a habit that you have had for a long time.

break a law and break the law to fail to obey a law; to act contrary to a law. □ Lisa broke the law when she drove the wrong way on a one-way street. □ If you never break the law, you will never get arrested.

Break a leg! Fig. Good luck! (A special theatrical way of wishing a performer good luck. Saying "good luck" is considered by actors to be a jinx.) □ "Break a leg!" shouted the stage manager to the heroine. □ Let's all go and do our best. Break a leg!

break a record to destroy a previously set high record by setting a new one. □ The athlete broke all the school records in swimming. □ The league record was broken after thirty years.

break a story [for a media outlet] to be the first to broadcast or distribute the story of an event. □ The Tribune broke the story before the Herald could even send a reporter to the scene.

break against something [for something] to crash against something. □ The waves broke against the barrier. □ The glass broke against the side of the sink.

break away (from someone) and break free (from someone); break loose (from someone) 1. Lit. to get free of the physical hold of someone. □ I tried to break away from him, but he was holding me too tight. □ She broke free from him, at last. □ I broke free from the intruder. 2. Fig. to sever a relationship with another person, especially the parent-child relationship. □ He found it hard to break away from his mother. □ She was almost thirty before she finally broke free.

break bread with someone Fig. to eat a meal with someone. □ Please come by and break bread with us sometime. □ I would like to break bread with you.

break camp to close down a campsite; to pack up and move on. □ Early this morning we broke camp and moved on northward. □ Okay, everyone. It's time to break camp. Take those tents down and fold them neatly.

break down 1. Lit. [for something] to fall apart; [for something] to stop operating. □ The air-conditioning broke down, and we got very warm. □ The car broke down on the long trip. 2. Fig. [for one] to lose control of one's emotions; [for one] to have an emotional or psychological crisis. □ He couldn't keep going. He finally broke down. □ I was afraid I'd break down. 3. Go to next.

break down (and cry) to surrender to demands or emotions and cry. □ Max finally broke down and confessed. □ I was afraid I would break down and cry from the sadness I felt.

break even for income to equal expenses. (This implies that money was not made or lost.) □ Unfortunately, my business just managed to break even last year. □ I made a bad investment, but I broke even.

break for something 1. to stop working for something else, such as lunch, coffee, etc. □ We should break now for lunch. □ I want to break for coffee. 2. to run suddenly toward something; to increase dramatically one's speed while running. □ At the last moment, the deer broke for the woods. □ The deer broke for cover at the sound of our approach.

break free (from someone) Go to break away (from someone).

break ground (for something) to start digging the foundation for a building. □ The president of the company came to break ground for the new building. □ This was the third building this year for which this company has broken ground. □ When do they expect to break ground at the new site?

break in (on someone) 1. to burst into a place and violate someone's privacy. □ The police broke in on him at his home and arrested him. □ They needed a warrant to break in. 2. to interrupt someone's conversation. (See also break in (on something).) □ If you need to talk to me, just break in on me. □ Feel free to break in if it's an emergency.

break in (on something) to interrupt something; to intrude upon something. (See also break in (on someone).) □ I didn't mean to break in on your discussion. □ Please don't break in on us just now. This is important.

break into a gallop [for a horse] to begin to gallop; [for a horse] to speed up to a gallop. □ The pony broke into a gallop, racing to get home. □ Near the stables, the horse broke into a fast gallop.

break into something to begin to perform or utter suddenly, especially with song, speech, chattering, tears, etc. □ Suddenly, she broke into song. □ As soon as the movie started, the people behind me broke into loud chattering.

break in (to something or some place) to force entry into a place criminally; to enter some place forcibly for the purpose of robbery or other illegal acts. □ The thugs broke into the liquor store. □ They broke in and took all the money.

break in (to) tears Go to break out in (to) tears.

Break it up! Stop fighting!; Stop arguing! (Fixed order.) □ Tom: I'm going to break your neck! Bill: I'm going to mash in your face first! Bob: All right, you two, break it up! □

When the police officer saw the boys fighting, he came over and hollered, "Break it up! You want me to arrest you?"

break loose (from someone) Go to break away (from someone).

break new ground Fig. to begin to do something that no one else has done; to pioneer [in an enterprise]. □ Dr. Anderson was breaking new ground in cancer research. □ They were breaking new ground in consumer electronics.

break off (from something) [for a piece of something] to become separated from the whole. □ This broke off from the lamp. What shall I do with it? □ This piece broke off.

break off (with someone) and break with someone to end communication with someone; to break up (with someone); to end a relationship with someone, especially a romantic relationship, or to create a break between adult members of a family. □ Terri has broken off with Sam. □ We thought she would break with him pretty soon.

break one's arm patting oneself on the back Go to have calluses from patting one's own back.

break one's back (to do something) Go to break one's neck (to do something).

break one's balls to do something Go to bust (one's) ass (to do something).

break one's habit Go to break a habit.

break one's neck (to do something) and break one's back (to do something) Fig. to work very hard to accomplish something. □ I broke my neck to get here on time. □ There is no point in breaking your back. Take your time.

break one's stride to deviate from a rhythmic stride while walking, running, or marching. (See also put one off one's stride.) □ After I broke my stride, I never could pick up enough speed to win the race.

break one's word not to do what one said one would do; not to keep one's promise. (Compare this with keep one's word.) □ Don't say you'll visit your grandmother if you can't go. She hates people to break their word. □ If you break your word, she won't trust you again.

break out 1. to burst forth suddenly, as with a fire, a riot, giggling, shouting, etc. □ A fire broke out in the belfry. □ A round of giggling broke out when the teacher tripped. 2. Sl. to leave. □ It's late, man. Time to break out. □ We broke out a little after midnight. 3. Go to break out (in pimples); break out (of something); break out (with something).

break out in a cold sweat Lit. or Fig. to become frightened or anxious and begin to sweat. □ I was so frightened, I broke out in a cold sweat. □ Larry broke out in a cold sweat when he cut his hand.

break out in a rash [for the skin] to erupt with a rash. (See also break out in a cold sweat; break out (with a rash).) □ I knew Dan had the chicken pox, because he broke out in a rash and had a dry cough. □ The baby breaks out in a rash all the time.

break out (in pimples) to erupt with something such as a rash, a cold sweat, or pimples. □ After being in the woods, I broke out in a rash. I think it's poison ivy. □ I hate to break out like that. □ Whenever I eat chocolate, I break out in pimples the next day.

break out in(to) tears and break in(to) tears to start crying suddenly. □ I was so sad that I broke out into tears. □ I always break into tears at a funeral.

break out (of something) 1. Lit. to escape from something, often by destructive means, especially from prison. □ The convicts plotted to break out of prison. □ You don't have the guts to break out of jail! 2. Fig. to escape from something in one's life that is too confining. □ I was 16 years old when I finally broke out of my rigid upbringing. □ She just couldn't break out of her old patterns of behavior.

break out (with a rash) [for the skin] to erupt with pimples, hives, or lesions, from a specific disease such as measles, chicken pox, rubella, etc. □ Nick and Dan broke out with chicken pox. □ They both broke out at the same time.

break out with something to utter or emit laughter, a shout, or a cry. □ The kids broke out with a cheer. □ They broke out with laughter every time they saw the lady with the red wig.

break over something [for waves] to lift high and tumble over a barrier. □ The waves broke over the rocks at the shore. □ Huge waves broke over the bow of the ship.

break silence to give information about a topic that no one was mentioning or discussing. □ The press finally broke silence on the question of the plagiarized editorial.

break someone down[†] to force someone to give up and tell secrets or agree to do something. □ After threats of torture, they broke the spy down. □ They broke down the agent by threatening violence.

break someone in[†] to train someone to do a new job; to supervise someone who is learning to do a new job. □ Who will break the new employee in? □ I have to break in a new receptionist.

break someone or something of something to cause someone or something to stop practicing a habit. □ We worked hard to break the dog of making a mess on the carpet. □ I don't think I can break her of the habit. □ Tom broke himself of biting his nails.

break (someone's) balls and break (someone's) stones; bust (someone's) balls; bust (someone's) stones 1. Sl. to wreck or ruin (someone); to overwork someone; to overwhelm someone. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ The boss acts like he's trying to break everybody's balls all the time. □ No need to break my balls. I'll do it! 2. Sl. to kid or tease (someone). □ Don't sweat what I said—I was just bustin' balls. □ Hey, relax, he didn't mean it. He was just breakin' your stones!

break someone's fall to cushion a falling person; to lessen the impact of a falling person. □ When the little boy fell out of the window, the bushes broke his fall. □ The old lady slipped on the ice, but a snowbank broke her fall.

break someone's heart Fig. to cause someone great emotional pain. □ It just broke my heart when Tom ran away from home. □ Sally broke John's heart when she refused to marry him.

break someone's stones Go to break (someone's) balls.

break someone up[†] to cause a person to laugh, perhaps at an inappropriate time. □ John told a joke that really broke break something away[†] (from something) to break a part or piece of something away from the whole. □ She broke a bit away and popped it into her mouth. □ Todd broke away a piece from the bar of candy.

Mary up. □ The comedian's job was to break up the audience by telling jokes.

B

break something down[†] 1. Lit. to tear something down; to destroy something. □ They used an ax to break the door down. □ We broke down the wall with big hammers. 2. Fig. to destroy a social or legal barrier. □ The court broke a number of legal barriers down this week. □ They had to break down many social prejudices to manage to succeed.

break something down[†] (for someone) Fig. to explain something to someone in simple terms or in an orderly fashion. (Alludes to breaking a complex problem into smaller segments which can be explained more easily. See also break something down (into something).) □ She doesn't understand. You will have to break it down for her. □ I can help. This is a confusing question. Let me break down the problem for you.

break something down[†] (into something) 1. to reduce a compound or its structure to its components. □ Heat will break this down into sodium and a few gases. □ Will heat break down this substance into anything useful? □ We broke it into little pieces. 2. to reduce a large numerical total to its subparts and explain each one. □ She broke the total down into its components. □ Please break down the total into its parts again. □ I'll break the total down for you. 3. to discuss the details of something by examining its subparts. (See also break something down (for someone).) □ Let's break this problem down into its parts and deal with each one separately. □ Breaking down complex problems into their components is almost fun. □ Let's break this issue down and discuss it.

break something free (from something) to force something to detach from something; to get something out of the hold of something else. □ I broke the gun free from her grasp. □ Someone broke the light fixture free from its mounting.

break something in[†] 1. Lit. to crush or batter something to pieces; to break something down. □ Why are you breaking the door in? Here's the key! □ Who broke in the door? 2. Fig. to use a new device until it runs well and smoothly; to wear shoes, perhaps a little at a time, until they feel comfortable. □ I can't drive at high speed until I break this car in. □ I want to go out this weekend and break in the car. □ The new shoes hurt her feet because they were not yet broken in.

break something loose from something to loosen a part of something; to loosen and remove a part of something. □ The mechanic broke the strap loose from the tailpipe. □ The bracket was broken loose from the wall.

break something off (of) something and break something off[†] to fracture or dislodge a piece off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ He broke a piece of the decorative stone off the side of the church. □ He didn't mean to break off anything. □ This fragment was broken off of that.

break something on something to strike and break something against something else. □ She broke the glass on the countertop. □ He broke his arm on the steps.

break something out (of something) to remove something from something else by force. □ Carefully, she broke the gemstone out of the side of the rock face. □ She broke the gemstone out carefully.

break something to pieces to shatter something. □ I broke my crystal vase to pieces. □ I dropped a glass and broke it to pieces.

break something to someone to disclose some news or information to someone. (Often said of unpleasant news.) □ I hate to be the one to break this to you, but there is trouble at home. □ We broke the bad news to Ken gently.

break something up[†] 1. Lit. to destroy something. □ The storm broke the docks up on the lake. □ The police broke up the gambling ring. 2. Fig. to put an end to something. □ The police broke the fight up. □ Walter's parents broke up the party at three in the morning.

break something up[†] (into something) to break something into smaller pieces. □ We broke the crackers up into much smaller pieces. □ Please break up the crackers into smaller pieces if you want to feed the ducks.

break something off[†] 1. to end a relationship abruptly. (See also break off (with someone).) □ I knew she was getting ready to break it off, but Tom didn't. □ After a few long and bitter arguments, they broke off their relationship. 2. Go to break something off (of) something.

break the back of something Fig. to end the domination of something; to reduce the power of something. □ The government has worked for years to break the back of organized crime. □ This new medicine should break the back of the epidemic.

break the bank Fig. to use up all one's money. (Alludes to casino gambling, in the rare event when a gambler wins more money than the house has on hand.) □ It will hardly break the bank if we go out to dinner just once. □ Buying a new dress at a discount price won't break the bank.

break the habit Go to break a habit.

break the ice 1. Fig. to attempt to become friends with someone. □ He tried to break the ice, but she was a little cold. □ A nice smile does a lot to break the ice. 2. Fig. to initiate social interchanges and conversation; to get something started. □ It's hard to break the ice at formal events. □ Sally broke the ice at the auction by bidding $20,000 for the painting.

break the law Go to break a law.

break the news (to someone) to tell someone some important news, usually bad news. (See also break something to someone.) □ The doctor had to break the news to Jane about her husband's cancer. □ I hope that the doctor broke the news gently.

break the silence to make a noise interrupting a period of silence. □ The wind broke the silence by blowing the door closed.

break the spell 1. to put an end to a magic spell. □ The wizard looked in his magic book to find out how to break the spell. 2. to do something that ends a desirable period of figurative enchantment. □ At the end of the second movement, some idiot broke the spell by applauding.

break through (something) 1. Lit. to break something and pass through. □ The firefighters broke through the wall easily. □ The robbers broke through the glass window of the shop. 2. Fig. to overcome something. □ Tom was able to break through racial barriers. □ The scientists broke through the mystery surrounding the disease and found the cause.

break through (to someone or something) to force [one's way] through an obstruction and reach someone or something on the other side. □ The miners broke through to their trapped friends. □ They broke through the thin wall easily.

break up 1. Lit. [for something] to fall apart; to be broken to pieces. (Typically said of a ship breaking up on rocks.) □ In the greatest storm of the century, the ship broke up on the reef. □ It broke up and sank. 2. Go to break up (with someone). 3. [for married persons] to divorce. □ After many years of bickering, they finally broke up. 4. [for a marriage] to dissolve in divorce. □ Their marriage finally broke up. 5. to begin laughing very hard. □ The comedian told a particularly good joke, and the audience broke up. □ I always break up when I hear her sing. She is so bad!

break (up) (into something) to divide into smaller parts. □ The glass broke up into a thousand pieces. □ It hit the floor and broke up, flinging bits everywhere.

break up (with someone) to end a romantic relationship with someone. □ Tom broke up with Mary and started dating Lisa. □ We broke up in March, after an argument.

break wind Euph. to expel gas from the anus. □ Someone in the bus broke wind. It smelled terrible. □ He broke wind with an embarrassing noise.

break with someone Go to break off (with someone).

breaking and entering the crime of forcing one's way into a place. (A criminal charge.) □ Wilbur was charged with four counts of breaking and entering. □ It was not an act of breaking and entering. The thief just opened the door and walked right in.

the breaking point 1. Lit. the point at which something will break. □ The mule's back was strained to the breaking point with masses of bundles and straw. 2. Fig. the point at which nerves or one's mental state can endure no more. □ My nerves are at the breaking point.

a breath of fresh air 1. Lit. an influx of air that is not stale or smelly, especially from outdoors. □ You look ill, John. What you need is a breath of fresh air. 2. Fig. a portion of air that is not "contaminated" with unpleasant people or situations. (This is a sarcastic version of ①.) □ You people are disgusting. I have to get out of here and get a breath of fresh air. □ I believe I'll go get a breath of fresh air. The intellectual atmosphere in here is stifling. 3. Fig. a new, fresh, and imaginative approach (to something). (Usually with like.) □ Sally, with all her wonderful ideas, is a breath of fresh air. □ The decor in this room is like a breath of fresh air.

breathe a sigh of relief 1. Lit. to sigh in a way that signals one's relief that something has come to an end. □ At the end of the contest, we all breathed a sigh of relief. 2. Fig. to express relief that something has ended. □ With the contract finally signed, we breathed a sigh of relief as we drank a toast in celebration.

breathe down someone's neck 1. Fig. to keep close watch on someone; to watch someone's activities intently. (Alludes to someone standing very close behind a person.) □ I can't work with you breathing down my neck all the time. Go away. □ I will get through my life without your help. Stop breathing down my neck. 2. Fig. [for someone or something] to represent an approaching deadline. □ The project deadline is breathing down my neck. □ The due date for this paper is breathing down my neck.

breathe easy to assume a relaxed state after a stressful period. □ After this crisis is over, I'll be able to breathe easy again. □ He won't be able to breathe easy until he pays off his debts.

breathe in to inhale; to take air into the lungs. □ Now, relax and breathe in. Breathe out. □ Breathe in deeply; enjoy the summer air.

breathe into something to exhale into something; to expel one's breath into something. □ I was told to breathe into a tube that was connected to a machine of some type.

breathe one's last Euph. to die. □ She breathed her last at about two o'clock that afternoon. □ Cradled in his wife's arms, he breathed his last.

breathe out to exhale. □ Now, breathe out, then breathe in. □ The doctor told me to breathe out slowly.

breathe something in[†] to take something into the lungs, such as air, medicinal vapors, gas, etc. □ Breathe the vapor in slowly. It will help your cold. □ Breathe in that fresh air!

breathe something into something to revive something; to introduce something new or positive into a situation. □ Her positive attitude breathed new life into the company. □ The project breathed a new spirit into the firm.

breathe something (of something) (to someone) to tell something to someone. (Usually in the negative.) □ Don't breathe a word of this to anyone! □ I won't breathe a word!

breathe something out[†] to exhale something. □ At last, he breathed his last breath out, and that was the end. □ Breathe out your breath slowly.

breathe (up)on someone or something to exhale on someone or something. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Please don't breathe upon the food. □ Don't breathe on me!

Breeding will tell. Prov. One's character or lack of it will become known. □ From the beginning, he appeared to be courteous, and now he clearly has proven himself to be so. Breeding will tell.

breeze along Fig. to travel along casually, rapidly, and happily; to go through life in a casual and carefree manner. □ Kristine was just breezing along the road when she ran off onto the shoulder. □ We just breezed along the highway, barely paying attention to what we were doing. □ Don't just breeze along through life!

breeze away to leave quickly or abruptly. □ She said nothing more. She just breezed away. □ I breezed away without stopping to say good-bye.

breeze in (from some place) Go to sweep in (from some place).

breeze in(to some place) to enter a place quickly, in a happy and carefree manner. □ She breezed into the con- ference room and sat down at the head of the table. □ Jerry breezed in and said hello.

breeze off to leave quickly or abruptly. □ Don't just breeze off! Stay and talk. □ Lily breezed off in a huffy manner.

breeze out (of some place) to leave a place quickly. □ She was here for a moment and then suddenly breezed out. □ She breezed out of the room in an instant.

breeze through (something) 1. Fig. to complete some task rapidly and easily. □ I breezed through my calculus assignment in no time at all. □ It was not hard. I just breezed through. 2. Fig. to travel through a place rapidly. □ They breezed through every little town without stopping. □ We didn't stop. We just breezed through.

Brevity is the soul of wit. Prov. Jokes and humorous stories are funnier if they are short. □ Dale took ten minutes to tell that joke; he obviously doesn't know that brevity is the soul of wit. □ The comedian was in the middle of a long, tedious story when someone in the audience shouted, "Brevity is the soul of wit!"

brew a plot Fig. to plot something; to make a plot. □ The children brewed an evil plot to get revenge on their teacher. □ We brewed a plot so that we would not have to help with dinner.

brew something up[†] 1. Lit. to brew something, as in making coffee or tea. □ Can somebody brew some coffee up? □ Let me brew up a pot of tea, and then we'll talk. 2. Fig. to cause something to happen; to foment something. □ I could see that they were brewing some kind of trouble up. □ Don't brew up any trouble!

brew up Fig. to build up; [for something] to begin to build and grow. (Typically said of a storm.) □ A bad storm is brewing up in the west. □ Something serious is brewing up in the western sky.

bribe someone into doing something to pay money to get someone to do something. □ You can't bribe me into doing anything! □ Max bribed Lily into leaving early.

brick something up[†] to fill up an opening with bricks. □ He bricked the doorway up. □ Why did he brick up the opening?

bricks and mortar buildings; the expenditure of money on buildings rather than something else. (The buildings referred to can be constructed out of anything.) □ The new president of the college preferred to invest in new faculty members rather than bricks and mortar. □ Sometimes people are happy to donate millions of dollars for bricks and mortar, but they never think of the additional cost of annual maintenance.

brick(s)-and-mortar [of commercial establishments] based in buildings rather than relying on online sales over the Internet. □ Many of the dot-com business owners have never been involved in a brick-and-mortar business.

bridge over something to make a bridge or passage over something. □ They bridged over each of the streams as they came to them. □ I think we can bridge over this little river in a few days if we work hard.

bridge the gap 1. Lit. to make a bridge that reaches across a space. □ The engineers decided to bridge the gap with a wooden structure. 2. Fig. to do or create something that will serve temporarily. □ We can bridge the gap with a few temporary employees.

bridle at someone or something Fig. to show that one is offended by someone or something. □ She bridled at the suggestion that she should go. □ Tony bridled at Max. Max was going to have to be dealt with.

brief someone about someone or something and brief someone on someone or something to tell someone a summary with the essential details about someone or something. □ We need to brief the president about the latest event. □ I have to brief Michael on the new procedures at work.

bright and breezy cheery and alert. □ You look all bright and breezy this morning. □ Bright and breezy people on a gloomy day like this make me sick.

bright and early very early in the morning or the workday. □ Yes, I'll be there bright and early. □ I want to see you here on time tomorrow, bright and early, or you're fired!

bright as a button intelligent; quick-minded. (Usually used to describe children. *Also: as ~.) □ Why, Mrs. Green, your little girl is as bright as a button. □ You can't fool Jane. She may be only six years old, but she's bright as a button.

bright as a new pin bright and clean; shiny. (*Also: as ~.) □ After Joe cleaned the house, it was as bright as a new pin. □ My kitchen floor is bright as a new pin since I started using this new floor wax.

a bright idea a clever thought or new idea. (*Typically: have ~; get ~; give someone ~.) □ Now and then I get a bright idea. □ John hardly ever gets a bright idea.

brighten up to become brighter; to lighten, especially with sunshine. □ The sky is brightening up a little. □ When the morning sky brightens up just a little, the birds begin to sing.

bright-eyed and bushy-tailed Fig. awake and alert. (Often used ironically, as in the first example. The idea is that one is like a frisky animal, such as a squirrel.) □ Jill: Hi, Jane! How are you on this beautiful morning? Jane: Bright-eyed and bushy-tailed, just as you might expect, since I've only had three hours of sleep. □ Despite the early hour, Dennis was bright-eyed and bushy-tailed.

brim over (with something) and brim with something to overflow with something. □ The basket was brimming over with flowers. □ I was brimming with confidence after my recent success.

brim with something Go to previous.

brimming with something Fig. full of some kind of happy behavior. □ The volunteer workers were brimming with goodwill. □ The smiling children were brimming with joy.

bring a charge against someone or something to file a complaint against someone or a group; to begin a legal process against someone or a group. (A charge can also be charges even if only one charge is involved.) □ We brought a charge against the town council. □ Sam brought charges against Jeff.

bring a dog to heel to make a dog heel; to make a dog stand or follow close to one's heels. □ A quiet command from his owner brought Fido to heel.

bring a verdict in[†] [for a jury] to deliver its decision to the court. □ Do you think they will bring a verdict in today? □ The jury brought in their verdict around midnight.

bring an amount of money in^t to earn an amount of money; to draw or attract an amount of money. My part-time job brings fifty dollars in every week. She brings in a lot of money from her executive's salary.

bring down the curtain (on something) Go to ring down the curtain (on something).

bring home the bacon Fig. to earn a salary; to bring home money earned at a job. I've got to get to work if I'm going to bring home the bacon. Go out and get a job so you can bring home the bacon.

bring one out of one's shell and get one out of one's shell; bring one out; get one out Fig. to make a person become more open and friendly. (Alludes to a shy turtle being coaxed to put its head out of its shell.) We tried to bring Greg out of his shell, but he is very shy. He's quiet, and it's hard to get him out of his shell.

bring one to one's feet and bring something to its feet to make someone or an audience rise up applauding or cheering in approval or in salute to someone or something. (Usually refers to an audience.) The finale brought the audience to its feet. Liz was brought to her feet by the playing of the national anthem.

bring one to one's senses to cause someone to return to normal [after being out of control or irrational]. A gentle slap in the face brought him to his senses. Liz was brought to her senses quickly.

bring one to oneself to cause one to become rational; to cause one to act normal. A glass of ice water thrown in her face brought Sally to herself. I was brought to myself by some smelling salts.

bring out the best in someone to cause someone to behave in the best manner. This kind of situation doesn't exactly bring out the best in me. Good weather brings out the best in me.

bring someone around^t 1. Lit. to bring someone for a visit; to bring someone for someone (else) to meet. Please bring your wife around sometime. I'd love to meet her. You've just got to bring around your doctor friend for dinner. 2. and bring someone around (to consciousness) Fig. to bring someone to consciousness. The doctor brought around the unconscious man with smelling salts. The boxer was knocked out, but his manager brought him around. 3. and bring someone around (to one's way of thinking); bring someone around (to one's position) Fig. to persuade someone (to accept something); to manage to get someone to agree (to something). The last debate brought around a lot of voters to our candidate. I knew I could bring her around if I just had enough time to talk to her.

bring someone back out [for an applauding audience] to succeed in bringing a performer back onto the stage for a curtain call or encore. They brought her back out about seven times, cheering and applauding. She was brought back out repeatedly for curtain calls.

bring someone back to reality to force someone to face reality. The rain shower brought her back to reality. Liz was brought back to reality by a rude shock.

bring someone before someone or something to bring a person to an authority, such as a judge, for criticism or discipline. They brought Terri before the committee for her explanation. I brought you before me to explain your side of the story.

bring someone down^t 1. Lit. to assist or accompany someone from a higher place to a lower place. Please bring your friends down so I can meet them. She brought down her cousin, who had been taking a nap upstairs. Aunt Mattie was brought down for supper. 2. Fig. to bring someone to a place for a visit. Let's bring Tom and Terri down for a visit this weekend. We brought down Tom just last month. They were brought down at our expense for a weekend visit. 3. Fig. to restore someone to a normal mood or attitude. (After a period of elation or, perhaps, drug use.) The bad news brought me down quickly. I was afraid that the sudden change of plans would bring down the entire group.

bring someone down to earth Fig. to help someone face reality; to help someone who is euphoric become more realistic. The events helped bring us all down to earth. I hate to be the one to bring you down to earth, but things aren't as good as you think.

bring someone in^t (on something) to include someone in some deed or activity. I'm going to have to bring a specialist in on this. Please bring in several specialists to advise on this case. Let's bring an expert in before we go any further.

bring someone into the world Fig. to deliver a baby; to attend the birth of someone. The doctor who brought me into the world died last week. I was brought into the world by a kindly old doctor.

bring someone on^t 1. Lit. to bring someone out onto the stage. Now, for the next act, I'm going to bring a chorus on, and I'm sure you'll love them. Bring on the clowns! 2. Fig. to arouse someone romantically or sexually. Ted sought to bring Sally on, but she was uninterested. He tried to bring on one of the guests.

bring someone or an animal back to life and bring someone or an animal back^t to make someone or some living creature come back to life. There was nothing that would bring Jimmy's cat back. It was truly dead. Not even a magician could bring back the cat.

bring someone or something along^t (to something) to bring someone or something with one to some event. I brought my uncle along to the party. Please bring along your camera to the show.

bring someone or something back^t to make someone or something return. (See also bring something back to life.) Would you please bring the child back? Bring back my child!

bring someone or something forth^t to present or produce someone or something. Bring the roast turkey forth! Bring forth the roast turkey!

bring someone or something forward to introduce someone or something; to move someone or something into a more visible position. Please bring him forward so that we can examine him. Please bring your chair forward so I can see you.

bring someone or something in^t Go to bring someone or something in(to) some place.

bring someone or something into action to activate someone or something; to cause someone or something to function as intended. □ The threats brought the police into action. □ A kick in the side brought the television set into action.

bring someone or something into contact with someone or something to cause things or people to touch or associate with one another. □ She hasn't been the same since I brought her into contact with the child who had chicken pox. □ Don't bring your hand in contact with the poison ivy. □ Don't bring him into contact with Fred.

bring someone or something into disrepute to dishonor or discredit someone or something. □ This embarrassing incident will bring the entire committee into disrepute. □ My bankruptcy brought me into disrepute.

bring someone or something into line (with someone or something) 1. Lit. to make someone or something even with someone or something. □ I brought the books into line with the others on the shelf. □ I brought Jimmy into line with the other scouts. 2. Fig. to make someone or something conform to someone or something. □ We brought Ted into line with the guidelines. □ Sam brought his proposal into line with the company standards.

bring someone or something into prominence to cause someone or something to become famous or renowned. □ The award brought Mike into national prominence. □ The current national need for engineers brought our school into prominence. □ A terrible scandal brought Lily into prominence.

bring someone or something in(to) some place and bring someone or something in^t to permit or assist someone or something to enter something or some place. □ Do you mind if I bring my sister in here with me? □ Please bring in your sister.

bring someone or something into view to cause someone or something to be seen or to be visible. □ A bright light brought the sleeping cattle into view. □ Please bring your child into view.

bring someone or something out^t Go to bring someone or something out of something.

bring someone or something out in droves Fig. to lure or draw out people or other animals in great number. □ The availability of free drinks brought people out in droves. □ The fresh grass sprouts brought the deer out in droves.

bring someone or something out of something and bring someone or something out^t to cause someone or something to emerge from something or some place. □ The explosion brought the people out of their homes. □ The noise brought out all the people.

bring someone or something out of the woodwork Go to out of the woodwork.

bring someone or something to a halt to cause someone or something to stop immediately. □ The explosion brought the lecture to a halt. □ I brought the visitor to a halt at the front gate.

bring someone or something to life Fig. to give vigor or vitality to someone or something; to reactivate someone or something. (See also bring something back to life.) □ A little singing and dancing would have brought the play to life. □ Some coffee will bring you to life.

bring someone or something to light Fig. to present or reveal someone or something to the public. □ The news- paper story brought the problem to light. □ I have brought some interesting facts to light in my article.

bring someone or something to someone's attention to make someone aware of someone or something. □ Thank you for bringing this to my attention. □ I am grateful for your bringing her to my attention.

bring someone or something to trial to bring a crime or a criminal into court for a trial. □ At last, the thugs were brought to trial. □ We brought the case to trial a week later.

bring someone or something under control Go to under control.

bring someone or something under one's control to achieve dominion over someone or something. □ The dictator was at last able to bring the army under his control. □ Harry could not bring Ron under his control. □ Walter could not be brought under Lily's control.

bring someone or something under someone or something to assign someone or something to someone or something; to put someone or something under the management of someone or something. □ I had David brought under me, so I could keep an eye on his day-to-day work. □ David was brought under my jurisdiction.

bring someone or something up^t 1. Lit. to cause someone or something to go up with one from a lower place to a higher place. □ We brought them up and let them view the city from the balcony. □ Why did you bring up Tom? Wasn't he comfortable down there? 2. Fig. to mention someone or something. □ Why did you have to bring that up? □ Why did you bring up Walter? I hate talking about him! 3. Fig. to raise someone or something; to care for someone or something up to adulthood. □ We brought the dog up from a pup. □ We brought up the puppies carefully and sold them for a good profit.

bring someone or something up to something to raise someone or something to a particular standard, level, expectation, etc. □ What do I have to do to bring Billy up to grade level? □ The lab was brought up to standards quickly.

bring someone or something up-to-date to modernize someone or something. □ We brought the room up-to-date with a little paint and some modern furniture. □ I can bring you up-to-date with a new hairdo.

bring someone or something within range (of someone or something) to cause someone or something to be in someone's or something's [gun] sights. □ Don't bring the hunters within range of the farmer's gun sights. □ The bait brought the geese within range of Jeff and his friends.

bring someone out of the closet Go to out of the closet.

bring someone out (on something) Lit. to make someone come onto the stage from the stage sides or wings. (See also bring someone on.) □ Let's applaud loudly and bring her out on stage again. □ Lily was brought out on stage by the applause.

bring someone over^t from some place to bring someone from a place, from nearby, or from a great distance. □ They brought over the neighbors from across the street. □ A soprano was brought over from Moscow.

bring someone over^t ((to) some place) to bring a person for a visit to some place. □ Why don't you bring her over to our place for a visit? □ You should bring over your girlfriend for a visit.

bring someone over^t to something to bring someone for a visit and a meal or other event. □ Please bring your friend over to dinner sometime. □ I want to bring over my husband sometime.

bring someone through something to help someone endure something, such as a disease, an emotional upset, or a stressful period. □ The doctor brought Tom through the sickness. □ Liz was brought through the ordeal by her friends.

bring someone to to help someone return to consciousness. □ We worked to bring him to before he went into shock. □ He was finally brought to by the smelling salts.

bring someone to a boil Fig. to make someone very angry. □ This really brought her to a boil. She was fit to be tied. □ Lily was really brought to a boil by the news.

bring someone to account Fig. to confront someone with a record of misdeeds and errors. □ The committee decided to bring Martha to account. □ Martha was brought to account by the committee.

bring someone to do something to cause someone to do something; to encourage someone to do something. □ What brought you to do this? □ I was brought to do this by a guilty conscience.

bring someone to heel Fig. to cause someone to act in a disciplined fashion; to force someone to act in a more disciplined manner. □ She tried to bring her husband to heel, but he had a mind of his own. □ He was brought to heel by his demanding wife.

bring someone to justice Fig. to punish someone for a crime. □ The police officer swore she would not rest until she had brought the killer to justice. □ Years later, the rapist was found out and finally brought to justice.

bring someone together 1. Lit. to cause people to gather into a group. □ He brought everyone together in the drawing room. □ They were brought together in a large conference room. 2. Fig. to attempt to get people to agree with one another. □ I tried to bring them together, but they are too stubborn. □ They could not be brought together on a price.

bring someone up^t for something 1. to suggest someone's name for something. □ I would like to bring Beth up for vice president. □ I will bring up Beth for this office if you don't. 2. to put someone's name up for promotion, review, discipline, etc. □ We brought Tom up for promotion. □ The boss brought up Tom, too.

bring someone up^t on something to provide something while raising a child to adulthood. □ She brought her children up on fast food. □ You shouldn't bring up your children on that kind of entertainment!

bring someone up sharply and bring someone up short to surprise or shock someone; to make someone face something unpleasant, suddenly. □ The slap in the face brought me up sharply. □ The loud bang brought me up short.

bring someone up short Go to previous.

bring someone up to speed on someone or something Go to up to speed.

bring someone up-to-date (on someone or something) to inform someone of the latest information about something. □ Let me bring you up-to-date on what is happening in the village. □ Please bring me up-to-date.

bring something about^t to make something happen. □ Is she clever enough to bring it about? □ Oh, yes, she can bring about anything she wants.

bring something all together to organize something; to coordinate something or some event. □ The party was a great success. Janet was the one who brought it all together. □ It was a difficult conference to organize, but Sam brought it all together.

bring something around^t (to someone or something) 1. to move something, such as a vehicle, from one place to another, especially so it can be used. □ Would you kindly have James bring the car around? □ Tony will bring around the car to us. 2. to distribute something to someone or a group. (Said by a person who intends to receive what is brought.) □ Please bring the snacks around to us. □ Carl is bringing around the snacks to us.

bring something away^t (from something) 1. to come away from some event with some important insight or information. □ I brought some valuable advice away from the lecture. □ She brought away some valuable advice from the meeting. 2. to move something away from something. (A request to move something away from something and toward the requester.) □ Bring the pitcher of water away from the fireplace. □ Bring away the pitcher from the fireplace when you get up.

bring something back^t to restore an earlier style or practice. □ Please bring the good old days back. □ Bring back good times for all of us.

bring something back to life Fig. to restore vitality to something, such as a performance, a story, etc. (See also bring someone or an animal back to life.) □ The third act of the play had a clever twist that brought the whole drama back to life.

bring something back^t (to someone) to remind someone of something. □ The funeral brought memories back. □ The warm winds brought back the old feeling of loneliness that I had experienced so many times in the tropics.

bring something before someone or something to bring a matter to the attention of someone or a group. □ I wanted to bring this matter before you before it got any worse. □ I will have to bring this matter before the committee.

bring something crashing down (around one) 1. Lit. to cause a structure to collapse and fall (on oneself). □ He hit the tent pole and brought the tent crashing down. □ When she removed the last vertical board, she brought the shed crashing down around her. 2. Fig. to destroy something, such as one's life and well-being, that one has a special interest in; to cause someone's basic orientation to collapse. □ She brought her whole life crashing down around her.

bring something down^t 1. Lit. to move something from a higher place to a lower place. □ Bring that box down, please. □ And while you're up there, please bring down the box marked "winter clothing." 2. to lower something, such as prices, profits, taxes, etc. □ The governor pledged to bring taxes down. □ I hope they bring down taxes. 3. Fig. to defeat or overcome something, such as an enemy, a government, etc. □ The events of the last week will probably bring the government down. □ The scandal will bring down the government, I hope.

bring something down† on one('s head) 1. Lit. to cause something to fall onto one's head. (See also bring something crashing down (around one).) □ He jarred the shelves and all the books were brought down on his head. □ When he hit the wall of the hut, he brought down the roof on himself. 2. Fig. to cause the collapse of something or some enterprise onto oneself. □ Your bumbling will bring everything down on your head! □ Your mistakes have brought down the whole thing on your own head.

bring something down to something to make a concept simpler to understand by bringing it to a simpler level of understanding. □ Why don't you bring all this down to my level? □ Everything was brought down to the child's level.

bring something home to someone 1. Lit. to return home with a gift for someone. □ I brought a box of candy home to the children. □ The candy was brought home to Lily by Ken. 2. Fig. to cause someone to realize something. □ My weakness was brought home to me by the heavy work I had been assigned to do. □ The hard work really brought my frailty home to me.

bring something into being to cause something to be; to create something. □ How can I bring my new scheme into being? □ The new scheme was brought into being by a lot of hard work.

bring something into blossom to make a plant or tree bloom. □ The special plant food brought the rosebush into blossom. □ The roses were brought into blossom by the lovely weather.

bring something into focus 1. Lit. to make something seen through lenses sharply visible. □ I adjusted the binoculars until I brought the bird sharply into focus. □ The flowers were brought into focus by adjusting the controls. 2. Fig. to make something clear and understandable. □ I think we will have a better discussion of the problem if you will say a few words to bring it more sharply into focus. □ Please try to bring your major point into focus earlier in the essay.

bring something into play 1. Lit. [in a ball game] to put the ball into the action of the game, such as after a time-out. □ Fred brought the ball into play when he bounced it in from the sidelines. 2. Fig. [for the shares of a company] to become the subject of a takeover bid. □ The recent drop in the value of that stock brought the company into play. □ The company was brought into play by a news story about their new product line. 3. Fig. to cause something to become a factor in something. □ Now, this recent development brings some other factors into play. □ Something else was brought into play by the strange event.

bring something into question to cause something to be doubted; to cause something to be questioned. □ What you have just told me seems to bring the wisdom of the trip into question. □ Your presence here has been brought into question.

bring something into service to begin to use something; to start something up. □ They are bringing a much larger boat into service next month. □ A newer machine will be brought into service next year.

bring something off† to cause something to happen; to carry out a plan successfully. □ Do you think you can bring it off? □ She brought off her plan without a hitch!

bring something on† 1. to cause something to happen; to cause a situation to occur. □ What brought this event on? □ What brought on this catastrophe? 2. to cause a case or an attack of a disease. □ What brought on your coughing fit? □ Something in the air brought it on.

bring something on someone to cause something to go wrong for someone. □ You brought it on yourself. Don't complain. □ Max brought this problem on all of us.

bring something out† 1. to issue something; to publish something; to present something [to the public]. □ I am bringing a new book out. □ I hear you have brought out a new edition of your book. 2. Go to bring something out of someone.

bring something out† (in someone) to cause a particular quality to be displayed by a person, such as virtue, courage, a mean streak, selfishness, etc. □ You bring the best out in me. □ This kind of thing brings out the worst in me.

bring something out in the open Go to out in the open.

bring something out of mothballs Fig. to bring something out of storage and into use; to restore something to active service. □ They were going to bring a number of ships out of mothballs, but the war ended before they needed them.

bring something out of someone and bring something out† to cause something to be said by a person, such as a story, the truth, an answer, etc. □ We threatened her a little and that brought the truth out of her. □ This warning ought to bring out the truth!

bring something to a boil to heat liquid to its boiling point; to make something boil. □ First, you must bring the soup to a boil.

bring something to a climax Go to next.

bring something to a close and bring something to an end; bring something to a climax to end something; to cause something to reach its final point and stop. □ I think it is time to bring this matter to a close. □ The incident has been brought to a climax.

bring something to a dead end to cause something to reach a point from which it can go no further. □ The accident brought the project to a dead end. □ The study was brought to a dead end by the loss of federal funding.

bring something to a head to cause something to come to the point when a decision has to be made or action taken. □ The latest disagreement between management and the union has brought matters to a head. There will be an all-out strike now. □ It's a relief that things have been brought to a head. The disputes have been going on for months.

bring something to a standstill to cause a process or a job to reach a point at which it must stop. □ The accident brought the work to a standstill. □ The strike brought construction to a standstill.

bring something to a successful conclusion to complete something successfully. □ They brought the battle to a successful conclusion. □ The case was brought to a successful conclusion by the prosecutor.

bring something to an end Go to bring something to a close.

bring something to fruition to make something come into being; to achieve a success. □ Do you think you can bring this plan to fruition? □ The plan was brought to fruition by the efforts of everyone.

bring something to its feet Go to bring one to one's feet.

bring something to light Fig. to make something known. □ The scientists brought their findings to light. □ We must bring this new evidence to light.

bring something to mind Go to call something to mind.

bring something to rest to cause a machine, vehicle, or process to stop. □ Jill brought the car to rest against the curb. □ The car was brought to rest against the curb.

bring something to someone's aid to bring something with which to help someone. □ The officer brought medical supplies to our aid. □ An ambulance was brought to the injured man's aid.

bring something to someone's attention to make someone aware of something; to mention or show something to someone. □ I would like to bring this problem to your attention. □ If there is something I should know about, please bring it to my attention.

bring something to the fore to move something forward; to make something more prominent or noticeable. □ All the talk about costs brought the question of budgets to the fore. □ The question of budget planning was brought to the fore.

bring something together^t to assemble things; to gather things together. □ Thank you for bringing everything together so we can begin work. □ We brought together all the tools that we needed.

bring something up^t 1. Lit. to vomit something up; to cough something up. □ See if you can get him to bring the penny up. □ I did, and he brought up a nickel instead! 2. Fig. to mention something. □ Why did you have to bring that problem up? □ Then they brought up the question of money.

bring something up to speed Go to up to speed.

bring something up to the minute Go to up to the minute.

bring something (up)on oneself to be the cause of one's own trouble. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ It's your own fault. You brought it upon yourself. □ You brought it all on yourself.

bring something with (Inf. or regional.) to carry something along with [oneself]. □ Are you going to bring your umbrella with? □ I brought it with. Don't worry.

bring something within a range to adjust something into a particular range; to adjust a parameter. □ Let's try to bring your cholesterol within the normal range with diet. □ It was brought within the normal range by an expensive drug.

bring the house down^t 1. Lit. to cause a house to collapse. □ The most severe earthquake in years finally brought the house down. □ The earthquake brought down all the houses on the hillside. 2. Fig. [for a performance or a performer] to excite the audience into making a great clamor of approval. □ Karen's act brought the house down. □ She really brought down the house with her comedy.

bring up the rear to move along behind everyone else; to be at the end of the line. (Originally referred to marching soldiers. Fixed order.) □ Here comes John, bringing up the rear. □ Hurry up, Tom! Why are you always bringing up the rear?

bristle at something Fig. to show sudden anger or other negative response to something. (Alludes to a dog or cat raising the hair on its back in anger or as a threat.) □ She bristled at the suggestion. □ I knew Lily would bristle at the appearance of Max.

bristle with anger Go to next.

bristle with rage and bristle with anger; bristle with indignation Fig. to demonstrate one's anger, rage, or displeasure with a strong negative response. (Alludes to a dog or cat raising the hair on its back in anger or as a threat.) □ She was just bristling with anger. I don't know what set her off. □ Walter bristled with rage as he saw the damage to his new car.

broach something with someone and broach something to someone to mention something to someone; to bring up an idea to someone. □ I hate to be the one to have to broach this to you, but your trousers are torn. □ This delicate matter must be broached with Mr. Rogers.

broad as a barn door very broad or wide. (*Also: as ~.) □ Jim's backside is as broad as a barn door. □ The weight lifter's chest is broad as a barn door.

broad in the beam 1. Lit. [of a ship] wide at amidships. □ This old tub is broad in the beam and sits like a ball in the water, but I love her. 2. Fig. Inf. with wide hips or large buttocks. □ I am getting a little broad in the beam. It's time to go on a diet. □ John is just naturally broad in the beam.

broaden out to become wider; to expand. □ The river broadened out and became deeper. □ The road broadens out here.

broaden something out^t to make something wider; to expand something. □ Now, broaden this part out a little, so it looks like a cloud, not a painted pillow. □ Broaden out the river in your painting so it looks very wide. □ The photographic view of the valley can be broadened out by using a different lens.

broken dreams wishes or desires that cannot be fulfilled. □ We all have our share of broken dreams, but they were never all meant to come true anyway.

a broken reed an unreliable or undependable person. (On the image of a useless, broken reed in a reed instrument.) □ You can't rely on Jim's support. He's a broken reed. □ Mr. Smith is a broken reed. His deputy has to make all the decisions.

brood about someone or something and brood on someone or something; brood over someone or something to fret or be depressed about someone or something. □ Please don't brood about Albert. He is no good for you. □ There's no need to brood on Jeff. He can take care of himself.

browbeat someone into something Fig. to bully or intimidate someone into something. □ It won't do any good to try to browbeat me into it. □ I was browbeaten into doing it once. I refuse to do it again.

brown as a berry very brown from the sun; quite suntanned. (*Also: as ~.) □ She was out in the sun so much that she became as brown as a berry.

brown out [for the electricity] to diminish in power and dim the lights, causing a brownout. (Something less than a blackout, when there is no power.) □ The power kept browning out. □ The lights started to brown out, and I thought maybe there was a power shortage.

brown someone off Sl. to make someone angry. (See also browned (off).) □ You really brown me off!

browned (off) Sl. angry. □ I am really browned off at you! □ The boss really got browned—to say the least; he fired me!

browse among something 1. [for an animal] to wander about among plants and trees, selecting and eating some. □ The deer were browsing among the vegetables in my garden. □ The cows were browsing among the grasses in the field. 2. [for someone] to look at or survey different items of reading material. □ I browsed among the books on the rack until I found what I wanted. □ I browsed among the books for something suitable.

browse on something [for an animal] to feed on some kind of plant material. □ The deer browsed on the tender shoots in my garden. □ The rabbit browsed on my carrots.

browse over something and browse through something [for someone] to glance through written or printed material quickly or curiously. □ Why don't you browse over this and call me about it in the morning? □ I want to browse through this magazine quickly. □ When it has been browsed through by everyone, throw it away.

browse through something Go to previous.

bruit something about to spread a rumor around; to gossip something around. □ You really shouldn't bruit that incident about, you know. □ The story was bruited about all over the office.

brush by someone or something and brush past someone or something to push quickly past someone or something. □ She brushed by the little group of people standing there talking. □ I brushed by the plant, knocking it over.

brush over someone or something Fig. to deal lightly with an important person or matter; to just barely mention someone or something. □ I want to hear more. You only brushed over the part I was interested in. □ You only brushed over the bit about your girlfriend. Tell us more about her.

brush past someone or something Go to brush by someone or something.

brush someone off 1. Lit. to remove something, such as dust or lint, from someone by brushing. □ The bathroom attendant brushed Mr. Harris off and was rewarded with a small tip. □ The porter had never brushed off such a miserly man before. 2. Fig. to reject someone; to dismiss someone. (As if someone were mere lint.) □ He brushed her off, telling her she had no appointment. □ He brushed off Mrs. Franklin, who was only trying to be nice to him.

brush someone or something aside 1. Lit. to push or shove someone or something out of the way. □ Don't just brush me aside. I almost fell over. □ I brushed aside the branch, not realizing it was poison ivy. 2. Fig. to cast someone or something away; to rid oneself of someone or something; to ignore or dismiss someone or something. □ You must not brush this matter aside. □ The clerk brushed aside the old man and moved on to the next person in line.

brush something away (from something) to remove something from something by brushing; to get dirt or crumbs off something by brushing. □ He brushed a bit of lint away from Tom's collar. □ She brushed away the crumbs from the table.

brush something down to clean and groom fur or fabric by brushing. □ Why don't you brush your coat down? It's very linty. □ I brushed down my trousers, and they looked much better.

brush something off someone or something and brush something off to remove something from someone or something by brushing. □ I brushed a little lint off her collar. □ I brushed off the lint that was on her collar.

brush something up to improve one's knowledge of something or one's ability to do something. (See also brush up (on something).) □ I need to brush my French up a little bit. □ I need to brush up my French.

brush (up) against someone or something to touch someone or something lightly in passing. □ I brushed up against the freshly painted wall as I passed. □ I guess I brushed against Walter as I walked by.

brush up (on something) to improve one's knowledge of something or one's ability to do something. □ I need to brush up on my German. □ My German is weak. I had better brush up.

a brush with death Fig. an instance of nearly dying. □ After a brush with death, Claire seemed more friendly and outgoing.

the brush-off Fig. rejection; being cast aside and ignored. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ Don't talk to Tom. He'll just give you the brush-off. □ I went up to her and asked for a date, but I got the brush-off.

bubble over 1. Lit. [for boiling or effervescent liquid] to spill or splatter over the edge of its container. □ The pot bubbled over and put out the flame on the stove. □ The stew bubbled over. 2. Fig. [for someone] to be so happy and merry that the joy "spills over" onto other people. □ She was just bubbling over, she was so happy. □ Lily bubbled over with joy.

bubble up (through something) [for a liquid] to seep up or well up through something, such as from between rocks, through a crack in the floor, or through a hole in the bottom of a boat. □ The water bubbled up through a crack in the basement floor.

buck for something Sl. to work ambitiously for something, such as a promotion. □ I'm just bucking for recognition and, of course, a 20 percent raise. □ You can tell by her attention to the boss that she's bucking for promotion.

buck someone off [for a horse or similar animal] to rear up in an attempt to shake off its rider. □ The horse tried to buck Sharon off, but she held on tight. □ The horse bucked off its rider.

The buck stops here. The need to act or take responsibility, that other people pass on to still other people, ultimately ends up here. (An expression made famous by U.S. President Harry Truman, about the finality of decisions a president must make. See also pass the buck.) □ After everyone else has avoided making the decision, I will have to do it. The buck stops here.

buck up to cheer up; to perk up. □ Come on, now, buck up. Things can't be all that bad. □ She began to buck up when I showed her the results of the tests.

buckle down (to something) to settle down to something; to begin to work seriously at something. □ If you don't buckle down to your job, you'll be fired. □ You had better buckle down and get busy.

buckle someone in^t to attach someone securely with a vehicle's seat belts. (This includes airplane seat belts.) □ Don't forget to buckle the children in. □ Did you buckle in the children?

buckle someone or something down^t to attach someone or something down with straps that buckle together. □ They stopped to buckle the load down again. □ Did you buckle down the kids?

buckle someone or something up^t to attach someone or something securely with straps that buckle together. (This emphasizes the completeness and secureness of the act.) □ Buckle the children up before we leave. □ Buckle up your shoes.

buckle under 1. Lit. [for something] to collapse. □ With heavy trucks on it, the bridge buckled under. □ The table buckled under. 2. Fig. [for someone] to collapse or give in under the burden of heavy demands or great anxiety. □ With so much to worry about, she buckled under. □ I was afraid she would buckle under.

buckle under something to collapse under or from the weight of something. □ The bridge buckled under the weight of the truck and collapsed. □ The table finally buckled under.

buckle up and belt up to buckle one's seat belt, as in a car or plane. □ Please buckle up so our flight can begin. □ I wish you would obey the law and belt up.

bud out [for a flowering plant or tree] to develop buds. □ How early in the spring do the trees bud out around here? □ The trees bud out in early spring.

a budding genius a very bright and promising young person. □ Harry is a budding genius, but he seems like a fairly normal teenager.

buddy up (to someone) to become overly familiar or friendly with someone. □ Don't try to buddy up to me now. It won't do any good. □ He always tries to buddy up, no matter how coldly you treat him.

buddy up (with someone) to join with another person to form a pair that will do something together or share something. □ I buddied up with Carl, and we helped each other on the hike. □ Carl and I buddied up, and we shared a canoe.

budget something for someone or something to set aside a certain amount of money for someone or something. □ Did you budget some money for the holiday party? □ I budgeted a few hundred a month for Andrew's college expenses.

buff something down^t to polish or smooth something by buffing. □ I buffed the newly waxed table down with a cloth. □ I'm going to go out and buff down the car.

buff something up^t to polish something to a shine. □ He buffed his shoes up and went out for the evening. □ He buffed up the antique silver platter.

buffet someone or something from someone or something to someone or something Fig. to shift someone or something back and forth between people, things, or places, as if being tossed around by the waves of the sea. □ The state agency buffeted the orphan child from one relative to another. □ The office staff buffeted the memo from one desk to another.

bug off 1. Sl. to cease bothering [someone]. □ Hey, bug off! Your comments are annoying. □ I wish you would bug off! 2. Sl. Get out!; Go away! (Usually Bug off!) □ Bug off! Get out of my sight! □ Bug off and leave me alone!

bug out 1. Sl. to pack up and leave or retreat. □ Orders are to bug out by oh-nine-hundred. □ Okay, everybody, move it! We're bugging out. 2. Sl. to get out of somewhere fast. □ I gotta find a way to bug out of here without getting caught. □ Okay, the downpour has stopped. Let's bug out.

bug someone to irritate someone; to bother someone. □ Go away! Stop bugging me! □ Leave me alone. Go bug someone else.

buggy whip Go to horse and buggy.

build a better mousetrap to develop or invent something superior to a device that is widely used. (From the old saying, "If you build a better mousetrap, the world will beat a path to your door.") □ Harry thought he could build a better mousetrap, but everything he "invented" had already been thought of.

build a case (against someone) and gather a case (against someone) to put together the evidence needed to make a legal or disciplinary case against someone. □ The police easily built a case against the drunken driver. □ As soon as we gather the case against her, we can obtain a warrant to arrest her.

build a fire under someone Go to a fire under someone.

build castles in Spain Go to next.

build castles in the air and build castles in Spain Fig. to daydream; to make plans that can never come true. □ Ann spends most of her time building castles in Spain. □ I really like to sit on the porch in the evening, just building castles in the air.

build down [for traffic] to reduce in volume or diminish. □ At about six, the going-home traffic begins to build down. □ When traffic builds down, I leave for home.

build one's hopes on someone or something to make plans or have aspirations based on someone or something. □ I have built my hopes on making a success of this business. □ I built my hopes on John's presidency.

build on(to) something and build on to add to something by constructing an extension. □ Do you plan to build onto this house? □ Yes, we are going to build on.

build out onto something to extend a building onto a particular space. □ We can build out onto the adjacent lot after we purchase it. □ We built out onto the area over the old patio.

build someone in[†] Go to next.

build someone into something and build someone in[†] to make a person an integral part of an organization or a plan. □ The mayor built his cronies into the organizational structure of the town. □ He built in his relatives as part of the administration.

build someone or something up[†] 1. Lit. to make someone or something bigger or stronger. □ Tom is lifting weights to build himself up for basketball. □ Tom needs to build up his upper body. 2. Fig. to advertise, praise, or promote someone or something. □ Theatrical agents work very hard to build up their clients. □ Advertising can build a product up so much that everyone will want it.

build someone or something up[†] (from something) to transform someone or something from a lowly start to a higher state. □ I built up this business from nothing. □ The publicity agent built this politician up from a cheap party hack.

build someone or something up[†] (into someone or something) to develop or advance someone or something into a particular [desirable] kind of person or thing. □ The publicity people built her up into a singer whom everyone looked forward to hearing. □ The agent built up the local band into a top national act.

build someone up[†] (for something) Fig. to prepare someone for something; to bring a person into a state of mind to accept some information. □ We built them up for the challenge they were to face. □ We had to build up the woman before breaking the bad news.

build something in[†] Go to next.

build something into something and build something in[†] 1. to integrate a piece of furniture or an appliance into a building's construction. □ We will build this cupboard into the wall about here. □ We are going to build in a chest of drawers. □ Then we will build another one in. 2. to make a particular quality a basic part of something. □ We build quality into our cars before we put our name on them. □ We build in quality. 3. to make a special restriction or specification a part of the plan of something. □ I built the restriction into our agreement. □ The lawyer built in the requirement that payments be by certified check.

build something on[†] Go to next.

build something on(to) something and build something on[†] to construct an extension onto a building. □ We are going to build a garage onto this side of the house. □ We will build on a new garage. □ The people next door are not going to build anything on.

build something out of something to construct something from parts or materials. □ She built a tower out of the blocks. □ They will build the bridge out of reinforced concrete.

build (something) out[†] over something and build (something) over something to construct something so that it extends over something else, such as water or some architectural feature. □ We built a deck out over the pond. □ We built the deck over the pond.

build (something) over something Go to previous.

build something to order to build an individual object according to a special set of specifications. □ I am having them build a new house to order—just for us. □ The car will be built to order.

build something up[†] 1. Lit. to add buildings to an area of land or a neighborhood. □ They are really building this area up. There is no more open space. □ They built up the area over the years. 2. Fig. to develop, accumulate, or increase something, such as wealth, business, goodwill, etc. □ I built this business up through hard work and hope. □ She built up a good business over the years. 3. Fig. to praise or exalt something; to exaggerate the virtues of something. □ The master of ceremonies built the act up so much that everyone was disappointed when they saw it. □ He built up the act too much.

build something (up)on something 1. Lit. to construct something on the base of something else. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The ancients built their houses upon the houses of earlier people. 2. Fig. to add to and develop something that already exists. □ We have a good reputation and we must build on it. □ He has to build on his strong friendships with the customers.

build up to increase; to develop. □ The storm clouds are building up. Better close the windows.

build up to something 1. [for a person] to lead up to something or advance to doing or saying something. □ I can tell you are building up to something. What is it? 2. [for a situation] to develop into something. □ The argument is building up to something unpleasant.

build (up)on something 1. to construct something on a particular space. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Are you going to build upon this land? □ Yes, we will build on it. 2. to start with something and add to it. (Upon is more formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Our progress has been good so far. Let's build on it. □ We will build upon the success of our forebears.

built like a brick outhouse and built like a brick shithouse Fig. well-built—either strong or full-sized. (Built more strongly than is typical. The second form is potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ Look at that guy's muscles—he's built like a brick shithouse. □ This garage is built like a brick outhouse. It'll last for years.

bulge out to swell outward; to extend out into a lump or mound. □ The puppy's tummy bulged out, full of food. □ The bag of grass clippings bulged out heavily.

bulge with something to be swollen with something. □ The bag was bulging with gifts and candy. □ The chipmunk's cheeks bulged with the nuts it had found.

*a bull in a china shop Prov. a very clumsy creature in a delicate situation. (*Typically: as awkward as ~; like ~.) □ I never know what to say at a funeral. I feel like a bull in a china shop, trampling on feelings without even meaning to. □ Lester felt like a bull in a china shop; reaching for an orange, he made several elaborate pyramids of fruit tumble down.

bulldoze into something Fig. to move clumsily into something. □ Don't just bulldoze into me! Watch where you are going! □ Todd bulldozed into the wall, denting it badly.

bulldoze through something Fig. to push clumsily and carelessly through something. □ Don't just bulldoze through your work! □ I wish you wouldn't bulldoze through the room.

Bully for you! 1. an expression that praises someone or someone's courage. (Dated, but still heard.) □ The audi- ence shouted, "Bravo! Bully for you!" □ Bob: I quit my job today. Sally: Bully for you! Now what are you going to do? Bob: Well, I need a little loan to tide me over. 2. a sarcastic phrase belittling someone's statement or accomplishment. □ Bob: I managed to save three dollars last week. Bill: Well, bully for you! □ Mary: I won a certificate good for a free meal! Sally: Bully for you!

A bully is always a coward. Prov. Bullies will only intimidate people who are much weaker than they are, because they are afraid of losing a fight. □ Child: Dad, Joey keeps picking on me. How can I make him stop? Father: Try fighting back. A bully is always a coward. □ Bill took advantage of the younger children, but he was quiet and docile around the older ones. A bully is always a coward.

bully someone into something to harass or threaten someone into doing something. □ The coach tried to bully them into agreeing to stay late and practice. □ Don't try to bully me into your way of doing things.

bum around (with someone) to spend or waste a lot of time with a particular person. □ He used to bum around with Ted a lot. □ They bummed around together all summer.

bum out Sl. to have a bad experience. (Originally referred to a bad experience with drugs.) □ Are you going to bum out again tonight? □ Man, is he bummed out!

*the bum's rush hurrying someone out of a place. (As someone might quickly escort a vagrant from a fancy restaurant. *Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ The young customer in the jewelry store was getting the bum's rush until he pulled out an enormous roll of bills. □ Bill got the bum's rush at the restaurant because he didn't have a tie on.

bum someone out Sl. to disappoint someone. □ This menial job really bums me out. □ The bad movie bummed out the entire audience.

bum something off someone Sl. to beg or borrow something from someone. □ Can I bum a cigarette off you? □ You can't bum anything off me that I don't have.

*a bum steer misleading instructions or guidance; a misleading suggestion. (Bum = false; phony. Steer = guidance, as in the steering of a car. *Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Wilbur gave Ted a bum steer and Ted ended up in the wrong town. □ I got a bum steer from the salesman, and I paid far more than I needed to for a used car.

bumble through something to get through something clumsily. □ I guess I will have to bumble through this speech again. □ Lily bumbled through her song and fled from the stage.

bummed (out) Sl. discouraged; depressed. □ I feel so bummed. I think I need a nice hot bath. □ When you're feeling bummed out, think how much you've accomplished.

bump along 1. and bump along something Lit. to travel along a rough road. □ We bumped along on the dirt road to the lake. □ We bumped along the road, hanging onto our hats. 2. Fig. [for some plan or situation] to move along awkwardly and unevenly. □ The whole project bumped along to an uncertain conclusion. □ The plan bumped along for a while and then we all gave it up.

bump into someone and run into someone 1. Lit. to move inadvertently or crash into someone. □ Excuse me. I didn't mean to bump into you. □ The child on the bicycle nearly bumped into me. 2. Fig. to chance on someone; to meet someone by chance. (Not normally with physical contact.) □ Guess who I bumped into downtown today? □ I ran into Bill Jones yesterday.

bump someone off and knock someone off Sl. to kill someone. □ They tried to bump her off, but she was too clever and got away. □ The crooks threatened to bump off the witness to the crime.

bump someone or something up 1. Lit. to damage or batter someone or something. □ The crash into the wall bumped the race driver up a little. □ The accident bumped up the passengers a little. 2. Fig. to raise someone or something to a higher category or level. (As if pushing someone into a higher category.) □ I wanted to fly first class, but they wouldn't bump me up. □ The ticket agent bumped up both of my friends, but not me.

Bump that! Sl. Forget that! □ Bump that! I was wrong. □ I gave you the wrong number. Bump that!

bump (up) against someone or something to strike someone or something accidentally, usually relatively gently. □ The car bumped up against the curb. □ The door has bumped against the wall and scratched the paint.

bumper to bumper [of traffic] close together and moving slowly. □ The traffic is bumper to bumper from the accident up ahead.

a bunch of fives Sl. a punch from a closed fist. □ How would you like a bunch of fives right in the kisser? □ He ended up with a bunch of fives in the gut.

bunch someone or something up to pack or cluster things or people together. □ Bunch them up so you can squeeze them into the sack. □ Kelly bunched up the roses and put them in a vase.

bunch up to pack together or cluster. □ Spread out. Don't bunch up!

bundle from heaven Go to next.

bundle of joy and bundle from heaven Fig. a baby. □ We are expecting a bundle of joy next September. □ When your little bundle from heaven arrives, things will be a little hectic for a while.

a bundle of nerves a very nervous person. □ I was a bundle of nerves before my dental appointment.

bundle off to leave in a hurry; to take all one's parcels or baggage and leave in a hurry. □ She got ready and bundled off after her bus. □ Her arms full, Lily bundled off in a rush.

bundle (oneself) up (against something) to wrap oneself up in protective clothing or bedding as protection against the cold. □ Please bundle yourself up against the frigid wind. □ Bundle up before you go outside.

bundle someone into something 1. to put someone, usually a child, into heavy outdoor clothing. □ Bill bundled Billy into his parka. □ Tom bundled himself into his parka and opened the door to go out. 2. and bundle someone in to put someone, usually a child, into bed. □ She bundled Sarah into bed after reading her a story. □ June pulled the sheets back and bundled Sarah in.

bundle someone off^t (to some place) Fig. to send someone, usually a child, somewhere. □ Robert bundled the children off to school. □ They bundled off the kids and were able to relax.

bundle someone up^t (against something) to wrap someone up in protective clothing or bedding against the cold. □ Wally bundled Billy up against the winter storm. □ You had better bundle up the children against the bitter wind.

bundle someone up^t (in something) to wrap someone up in protective clothing or bedding. □ Bill bundled Billy up in his parka. □ Bill bundled up Mary in her parka.

bundle something off^t (to someone or some place) to send something off in a bundle to someone. □ He bundled his laundry off to his mother, who would wash it for him. □ Mary bundled off the package to her brother.

bung something in^t to cram or bang something into something. □ He bunged the cork into the barrel. □ With a heavy blow, he bunged in the cork.

bung something up^t to damage someone or something by blows. □ Don't let the watermelon roll around in the trunk of your car. You don't want to bung it up. □ Last time I put up the storm windows, I really bunged up my hands.

bunged up battered or bruised. □ It used to be a nice table, but it got all bunged up. □ What happened to Jane? Her face was bunged up.

bungle something up^t to botch something; to mess something up. □ Please don't bungle this job up. □ Tom was careless and he bungled up the job.

bunk down (for the night) to bed down for the night; to go to bed. □ Where are you going to bunk down for the night? □ I'm tired and ready to bunk down.

bunk (up) together [for two or more people] to share a bed, a bedroom, or a tent. □ Shall we bunk together? □ My tent is big and you can bunk up with me.

bunk (up) with someone to share a bed, a bedroom, or a tent with someone. □ Are you going to bunk up with Fred? □ I'll bunk with Todd.

buoy someone or something up^t to keep someone or something afloat. □ Use this cushion to buoy yourself up. □ The log buoyed up the swimmer until help came. □ The air trapped in the hull buoyed the boat up.

buoy someone up^t Fig. to support, encourage, or sustain someone. □ The good news buoyed her up considerably. □ Her good humor buoyed up the entire party.

burden someone or something with someone or something to bother or weigh down someone or something with someone or something. □ Please don't burden us with the bad news at this time. □ I don't want to burden the school with a troublesome child.

burden someone with something to give unpleasant information to someone; to give someone some bad news. □ I hate to burden you with this, but your cat ran away. □ I wish I had not been burdened with all the facts.

burgeon out to develop and grow rapidly; to burst forth. □ The flowers burgeoned out and made the garden beautiful again. □ When the trees have burgeoned out, spring is really here.

burn something to a crisp to burn something totally or very badly. □ The cook burned the meat to a crisp.

burn away 1. [for something] to burn until there is no more of it. □ All the oil burned away. □ The logs burned away and the fireplace was cooling down. 2. for something to keep on burning. □ The little fire burned away brightly, warming the tiny room. □ The candle burned away, giving a tiny bit of light to the huge room.

burn down 1. [for a building] to be destroyed by fire. □ The barn burned down. □ There was a fire, and the old factory was burned down. 2. [for a fire] to burn and dwindle away. □ The flame burned down and then went out. □ As the fire burned down, it began to get cold.

burn for someone or something to desire someone or something very much. □ Jim said he was burning for Sally. □ I was just burning for another look at her.

burn (itself) out 1. [for a flame or fire] to run out of fuel and go out. □ Finally, the fires burned themselves out. □ The fire finally burned out. 2. [for an electrical or mechanical part] to fail and cease working. □ The motor finally burned itself out. □ The light bulb burned out.

Burn not your house to fright the mouse away. Prov. Do not do something drastic when it is not necessary. □ Ellen: I don't like the shape of my nose; I think I'll have surgery to make it look better. Jane: But you can make your nose look better just by using different makeup. Don't burn your house to fright the mouse away. □ When someone pointed out a small flaw in Bob's latest painting, Bob wanted to tear the whole painting to shreds. "Now, now, Bob," his friends said, "burn not your house to fright the mouse away."

burn off [for some excess volatile or flammable substance] to burn away or burn up. □ A film of oil on the surface of the water was burning off, making dense black smoke. □ The alcohol burned off and left a delicious flavor in the cherries jubilee.

burn one's bridges (behind one) 1. Lit. to cut off the way back to where you came from, making it impossible to retreat. □ The army, which had burned its bridges behind it, couldn't go back. □ By blowing up the road, the spies had burned their bridges behind them. 2. Fig. to act unpleasantly in a situation that you are leaving, ensuring that you'll never be welcome to return. □ If you get mad and quit your job, you'll be burning your bridges behind you. □ No sense burning your bridges. Be polite and leave quietly. 3. Fig. to make decisions that cannot be changed in the future. □ If you drop out of school now, you'll be burning your bridges behind you. □ You're too young to burn your bridges that way.

burn one's bridges in front of one Fig. to create future problems for oneself. (A play on burn one's bridges (behind one).) □ I made a mistake again. I always seem to burn my bridges in front of me. □ I accidentally insulted a math teacher whom I will have to take a course from next semester. I am burning my bridges in front of me.

burn (oneself) out Fig. to do something so long and so intensely that one gets sick and tired of doing it. (See also burn someone out.) □ I burned myself out as a competitive swimmer. I just cannot stand to practice anymore. □ Tom burned himself out in that boring job.

burn someone at the stake 1. Lit. to set fire to a person tied to a post (as a form of execution). □ They used to burn witches at the stake. 2. Fig. to chastise or denounce someone severely or excessively. □ Stop yelling. I made a simple mistake, and you're burning me at the stake for it. □ Sally only spilled her milk. There is no need to shout. Don't burn her at the stake for it.

burn someone down^t Sl. to humiliate someone. □ Man, don't you ever burn me down like that again! □ You just want to burn down everybody to make yourself seem better.

burn someone in effigy to burn a dummy or other figure that represents a hated person. □ For the third day in a row, they burned the king in effigy. □ Until they have burned you in effigy, you can't really be considered a famous leader.

burn someone out^t Fig. to wear someone out; to make someone ineffective through overuse. (See also use someone up.) □ Facing all these problems at once will burn Tom out. □ The continuous problems burned out the office staff in a few months.

burn someone out of something and burn someone out^t to burn down a home (stead) or place of business. □ Lightning struck and burned the farmer out of his home.

burn someone up^t 1. Lit. to destroy someone by fire. □ The house fire burned the victims up. □ The fire burned up both of them. 2. Fig. to make someone very angry; to make someone endure the "heat" of rage. □ You really burn me up! I'm very angry at you! □ The whole mess burned up everyone.

burn something away^t to remove or destroy something by burning. □ The doctor burned the wart away. □ The doctor burned away the wart.

burn something down^t [for a fire] to destroy a building completely. □ The fire burned the barn down. □ It burned down the barn.

burn something in^t Fig. to run a piece of new electronic equipment for a while to make certain that all the electrical parts will last a long time. □ Please burn this computer in for a couple of hours before you deliver it. □ The technician burned in the computer.

burn something into something and burn something in^t 1. Lit. to engrave, brand, or etch marks or letters into something by the use of great heat. □ She burned her initials into the handle of the umbrella. □ She burned in her initials. 2. Fig. to implant something firmly in someone's head, brain, memory, etc. □ She burned the information into her head. □ The events of the day burned in sad memories.

burn something off^t Go to next.

burn something off something and burn something off^t to cause excess volatile or flammable substance to burn until there is no more of it. □ We burnt the gasoline off the water's surface. □ Why did you burn off the gasoline?

burn something out^t 1. to burn away the inside of something, getting rid of excess deposits. □ The mechanic burned the carbon out of the manifold. □ He burned out all of the carbon deposits. 2. to wear out an electrical or electronic device through overuse. □ Turn it off. You're going to burn the motor out! □ He burned out the motor.

burn something up^t to destroy something by fire; [for fire] to consume something. □ Take this cardboard and burn it up. □ The fire burned up the papers and left no trace.

burn the candle at both ends Fig. to work very hard and stay up very late at night. (One end of the candle is work done in the daylight, and the other end is work done at night.) □ No wonder Mary is ill. She has been burning the candle at both ends for a long time. □ You'll wear out if you keep burning the candle at both ends.

burn the midnight oil Fig. to stay up working, especially studying, late at night. (Alludes to working by the light of an oil lamp late in the night.) □ I have a big exam tomorrow so I'll be burning the midnight oil tonight. □ If you burn the midnight oil night after night, you'll probably become ill.

burn up to become destroyed or consumed by fire. □ The wood burned up and left only ashes. □ The deed burned up in the fire.

burn with a low blue flame 1. Lit. [of a properly adjusted gas burner] to burn and put off heat. □ Each burner on the stove burns with a low blue flame giving the maximum amount of heat per BTU. 2. Fig. to be quietly and intensely angry. □ She just sat there with her steak in her lap, burning with a low blue flame. □ She was quiet, but everyone knew she would soon burn with a low blue flame. 3. Fig. to be heavily intoxicated with alcohol. (Alludes to the irritability of a person who is very drunk.) □ Yeah, he's burning with a low blue flame. □ He's not just drunk, he's burning with a low blue flame.

burn with something 1. [for a fire] to burn with a particular quality. □ The building burned with great ferocity. □ The fire burned with a lot of crackling and popping. 2. [for someone] to experience intense and consuming feelings of a particular quality. □ Fred is just burning with anger. □ Why is he burning with envy?

burned to a cinder burned very badly. [Very often used figuratively.] □ I stayed out in the sun too long, and I am burned to a cinder. □ This toast is burnt to a cinder.

burned up Fig. very angry. (From the heat of anger. See also burn someone up.) □ My new assistant's mistakes are so maddening! I've never been so burned up in my life. □ I'm really burned up at Bob's behavior.

a burning question and the burning question Fig. a question whose answer is of great interest to everyone; a question that needs very much to be answered, as a fire needs to be extinguished. □ There's a burning question that needs to be answered: Why did you leave your wife of only one month?

A burnt child dreads the fire. Prov. If something has hurt you once, you avoid it after that. (See also once bitten, twice shy.) □ Jill: Let's go ride the roller coaster! Jane: No, thanks. I got sick on one of those once, and a burnt child dreads the fire. □ Ever since Cynthia rebuffed me so rudely, I've avoided asking her for anything; a burnt child dreads the fire.

burst See also entries at bust.

burst at the seams 1. Fig. to be very full and burst, perhaps at the seams. (Alludes to something that would burst at the seams if overfilled.) □ I am so full from dinner! I'm ready to burst at the seams. □ The room was so full it was bursting at the seams. 2. Fig. [for someone] to strain from holding in pride or laughter as if one might burst. □ Tom nearly burst at the seams with pride. □ We laughed so hard we just about burst at the seams.

B

burst forth to come forth explosively. □ The words burst forth and frightened everyone. □ The blossoms burst forth in the first warm days of the year.

burst in (on someone or something) to enter a room, interrupting someone or some activity. (Often without knocking or seeking permission to enter.) □ Tom burst in on his sister and her boyfriend while they were kissing. □ I must ask you not to burst into my office again. Whatever it is can wait.

burst in ((up)on someone or something) Fig. to intrude or come in thoughtlessly and suddenly and interrupt someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I didn't mean to burst in on you. □ She feared that someone would burst in upon her.

burst in (with something) to interrupt with some comment. □ Ted burst in with the good news. □ He burst in to tell us about his new car.

burst into flame(s) [for something] to catch fire and become a large fire quickly. □ As soon as the flame reached the curtains, the entire wall seemed to burst into flames. □ The two cars burst into flames soon after the collision.

burst into sight Fig. to come into view suddenly. (As if the sight appeared as suddenly as an explosion.) □ The sun finally burst into sight at the horizon. □ Suddenly, a tiger burst into sight and caught the hunter off guard.

burst in(to some place) Fig. to intrude or come in thoughtlessly and suddenly. □ Ted burst into the room and sat down right in the middle of the meeting. □ Wasn't it very annoying of him to just burst in?

burst into something Go to burst out into something.

burst into tears and burst out crying Fig. to begin to cry suddenly. □ After the last notes of her song, the audience burst into tears, such was its beauty and tenderness. □ The children burst into tears on hearing of the death of their dog.

burst onto the scene Fig. to appear suddenly in a location. □ When Charles burst onto the scene, no one was prepared for the news he brought. □ The police suddenly burst onto the scene and arrested everyone in the room.

burst out to explode outward; to break open under force. □ The door burst out and released the trapped people. □ When the glass burst out, Gerald was cut by some splinters.

burst out crying Go to burst into tears.

burst out doing something to begin to do something suddenly, such as cry, laugh, shout, etc. □ Suddenly, she burst out singing. □ Ted burst out laughing when he read the joke.

burst out into something and burst into something 1. Fig. [for plants or trees] to open their flowers seemingly suddenly and simultaneously. (Burst indicates suddenness.) □ The flowers burst out into blossom very early. □ They burst into blossom during the first warm day. 2. Fig. [for someone] to begin suddenly doing a particular activity, such as crying, laughing, chattering; to begin an activity such as laughter, chatter, tears, etc. □ Suddenly, she burst out into laughter. □ The child burst into tears.

burst out laughing to begin to laugh suddenly. □ The entire audience burst out laughing when the clown took a fall. □ Every time I think of you sitting there with a lap full of spaghetti, I burst out laughing.

burst out (of some place) to come out of a place very rapidly, like an explosion. □ Everyone burst out of the burning building. □ Suddenly, the windows all burst out.

burst out (of something) Fig. to seem to explode out of something; to become [suddenly] too big for something, such as clothes, a house, etc. □ She is practically bursting out of her dress. □ The butterfly burst out of the chrysalis.

burst out with something Fig. to utter something loudly and suddenly. (Compare this with burst in (with something).) □ The child burst out with a scream. □ Lily burst out with song.

burst someone's bubble Fig. to destroy someone's illusion or delusion; to destroy someone's fantasy. □ I hate to burst your bubble, but Columbus did not discover Canada. □ Even if you think I am being foolish, please don't burst my bubble.

burst through something to break through or penetrate something with force. □ The tank burst through the barrier easily. □ The workers burst through the wall after a lot of hard work.

burst (up)on someone Fig. [for an idea] to strike someone suddenly. (As if an idea had burst forth. Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ After thinking all morning long, this really tremendous idea burst upon me. □ It burst on me like a bolt of lightning.

burst (up)on the scene to appear suddenly somewhere; to enter or arrive suddenly some place. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The police suddenly burst upon the scene. □ They burst on the scene and took control.

burst with excitement Fig. to have a strong feeling of excitement. □ Joe was just bursting with excitement because of his triumph. □ The new toys had the children all bursting with excitement.

burst with joy Fig. [for someone] to be full to the bursting point with happiness. (To be so filled with joy as if to burst.) □ When I got my grades, I could have burst with joy. □ Bill was not exactly bursting with joy when he got the news.

burst with pride to be full as if to the bursting point with pride. □ My parents were bursting with pride when I graduated from college. □ I almost burst with pride when I was chosen for the first prize.

bury one's head in the sand and hide one's head in the sand; have one's head in the sand Fig. to ignore or hide from obvious signs of danger. (Alludes to an ostrich, which is believed incorrectly to hide its head in a hole in the ground when it sees danger.) □ Stop burying your head in the sand. Look at the statistics on smoking and cancer.

bury oneself in something 1. Fig. to become very busy with something. □ She stopped taking phone calls and buried herself in her work. □ He tended to bury himself in his work. 2. Fig. to hide oneself some place. (Alludes to burying oneself in a cave or something similar.) □ He buried himself in the back of the little shop and worked quietly. □ The lizard buried itself in the sand.

bury someone or something away (some place) to bury or hide someone or something some place. □ The dog buried the bone away under a bush. □ The ex-dictator was buried away in an unmarked grave.

bury someone or something in something 1. Lit. to inter someone or something in a grave, the ground, a vault, a tomb, etc. □ They buried the old man in the family vault. □ Thousands of war veterans are buried in the national cemetery. 2. Fig. to hide or conceal someone or something from view in some place. □ The office manager buried Tom at a small desk in the back room. □ Someone buried the manual typewriter in a room full of old junk.

bury someone or something under something to bury someone or something beneath something, sometimes to hide or conceal it. □ Joe buried the money under a stone in the forest. □ They buried Aunt Mary under a pine tree.

bury the hatchet Fig. to make peace. □ Let's stop arguing and bury the hatchet. □ Tom and I buried the hatchet and we are good friends now.

bush out [for a plant, bush, beard, head of hair] to develop many small branches or hairs. □ His beard bushed out and really needed trimming. □ I hope the hedge bushes out nicely this year.

a bushel and a peck (and some in a gourd) Rur. a great deal or amount. (Usually used to answer the question, "How much do you love me?") □ Mary: How much do you love me? Tom: A bushel and a peck and some in a gourd. □ We knew that Grandpa loved us a bushel and a peck.

The busiest men have the most leisure. and The busiest men find the most time. Prov. Industrious people get their work done efficiently and therefore have time to do what they want. □ Fred: How does Phil do it? He produces more than the rest of us, but he also manages to pursue all his hobbies. Alan: The busiest men have the most leisure. □ As the town's only doctor, Bert worked extremely hard, yet he always had time to play with his children and go out with his wife. The busiest men find the most time.

*the business 1. harassment; a scolding; general bad treatment. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ The guys have been giving me the business about my new hairstyle. □ Sam was giving Tom the business about being late all the time. 2. Sl. an execution. (Underworld. *Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ The mob wanted to give him the business for confessing to the federal prosecutor.

business as usual having things go along as usual. □ Even right after the flood, it was business as usual in all the stores. □ Please, everyone, business as usual. Let's get back to work.

Business before pleasure. Prov. You should finish your work before starting to relax and enjoy yourself. □ Alan: Hi, Ted. Shall we get something to drink? Ted: Business before pleasure, Alan. Do you have the reports I asked you to bring? □ I'd love to go water-skiing with you now, but I have a few things to do in the office first. Business before pleasure, I'm afraid.

the business end of something the part or end of something that actually does the work or carries out the procedure. □ Keep away from the business end of the electric drill so you won't get hurt. □ Don't point the business end of that gun at anyone. It might go off.

a busman's holiday leisure time spent doing something similar to what one does at work. (Alludes to a bus driver going on a bus tour for his vacation or on a day off.) □ Tutoring students in the evening is a busman's holiday for our English teacher. □ It's a bit of a busman's holiday to ask her to be wardrobe mistress for our amateur production in the summer. She's a professional dressmaker.

bust a bronco to ride and thus tame a wild horse so that it can be ridden. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst.) □ In them days, I made my living busting Broncos. □ That was the meanest bronco I ever seen. Nobody could bust 'im.

bust a gut Go to split a gut.

bust a gut (to do something) Fig. to work very hard; to strain oneself to accomplish something. (The word gut is considered impolite in some circumstances. Bust is a nonstandard form of burst.) □ I don't intend to bust a gut to get there on time. □ I busted a gut to get there the last time, and I was the first one there.

bust a move Sl. to leave (a place.) □ Let's go. Time to bust a move. □ Let's bust a move. Lots to do tomorrow.

bust ass out of some place Sl. to get out of some place in a hurry. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ I had to bust ass out of the house and run all the way to school. □ Bob busted ass out of the classroom and headed for home.

bust (one's) ass (to do something) and break one's balls to do something; bust one's butt to do something; bust one's nuts to do something Sl. to work very hard to do something. (The expressions with balls and nuts are said typically, but not necessarily, of a male. Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ I've been busting my nuts to get this thing done on time, and now they don't want it! □ The new boss expects you to bust your nuts every minute you are at work at the warehouse.

bust one's butt to do something Go to previous.

bust out laughing Fig. to start laughing suddenly. (See also burst out laughing. Bust is a nonstandard form of burst.) □ I busted out laughing when I saw him in that get-up. □ The bridegroom was so nervous, it was all he could do not to bust out laughing.

bust out (of some place) Sl. to break out of some place, especially a prison. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning 'break' here.) □ Somehow the gangsters busted out of prison and left the country. □ They busted out together.

bust (some) suds 1. Sl. to drink some beer. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst. See also crack some suds.) □ Let's go out and bust some suds. □ I'm tired of busting suds. Let's play cards. 2. Sl. to wash dishes. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst.) □ I don't want to spend the rest of my life busting suds. □ You get into that kitchen and bust some suds to earn your allowance.

bust someone one Sl. to punch someone; to give someone a punch, probably in the face. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning 'hit' here.) □ You better shut up, or I'll bust you one! □ You want me to bust you one? I will if you do that again.

bust someone out of some place and bust someone out[†]

1. Sl. to help someone escape from prison. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning ‘break’ here.) □ Lefty did not manage to bust Max out of prison. □ Lefty wanted to bust out some of his friends. 2. Sl. to expel or force someone to withdraw from school. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning ‘break’ here.) □ The dean finally busted Bill out of school. □ The dean busted out the students with very low grades.

bust (someone’s) balls Go to break (someone’s) balls.

bust (someone’s) stones Go to break (someone’s) balls.

bust someone up[†] 1. Sl. to cause lovers to separate; to break up a pair of lovers, including married persons. (See also bust something up. Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning ‘break (apart)’ here.) □ Mary busted Terri and John up. □ Mary busted up Terri and John. 2. Sl. to beat someone up; to batter someone. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning ‘hit’ here.) □ You want me to bust you up? □ Max busted up Lefty pretty badly.

bust someone wide open Sl. to beat someone severely. (An exaggeration. Bust is a nonstandard form of burst.) □ If you ever take a step onto my property, I’ll bust you wide open. □ Jim threatened to bust Bill wide open.

bust something up[†] 1. Inf. to break or ruin something; to break something into smaller pieces. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning ‘break’ here.) □ Who busted this plate up? □ Don’t bust up the plates! Be careful! 2. Sl. to ruin a marriage by coming between the married people. (See also bust someone up. Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning ‘break’ here.) □ He busted their marriage up by starting rumors about Maggie. □ He busted up their marriage.

bust something wide open Go to blow something wide open.

bust up 1. Sl. [for lovers] to separate or break up. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning ‘break’ here.) □ Tom and Alice busted up for good. □ They busted up last week. 2. Sl. [for something] to break up due to natural causes. (Bust is a nonstandard form of burst meaning ‘break (apart)’ here.) □ The rocket busted up in midair. □ I saw it bust up.

bustle about doing something to go about doing something busily and energetically. □ Greg bustled about all day, doing the chores. □ Lily bustled about, getting dinner ready.

bustle about some place to move about some place very busily, or as if busy. □ They were all bustling about the kitchen, getting the feast ready. □ Veronica was bustling about outside, cleaning up the yard.

bustle around to move about very busily. □ The people were bustling around, trying to get things ready for the picnic. □ I wish you would stop bustling around.

bustle off to leave in haste. □ Well, I have to bustle off or I’ll miss my flight. □ I hate to bustle off so soon.

bustle someone off[†] to help someone leave; to send someone out or away. □ The cops busted the crook off. □ They busted off the three men who were fighting.

busy as a beaver (building a new dam) and busy as a bee; busy as a one-armed paperhanger; busy as Grand Central Station; busy as a cat on a hot tin roof; busy as a fish peddler in Lent;

busy as a cranberry merchant (at Thanksgiving); busy as popcorn on a skillet very busy. (*Also: as ~.) □ My boss keeps me as busy as a one-armed paperhanger. □ I don’t have time to talk to you. I’m as busy as a beaver. □ When the tourist season starts, this store is busy as Grand Central Station. □ Sorry I can’t go to lunch with you. I’m as busy as a beaver building a new dam. □ Prying into other folks’ business kept him busy as popcorn on a skillet.

busy as a cranberry merchant (at Thanksgiving) Go to previous.

busy as a fish peddler in Lent Go to busy as a beaver (building a new dam).

busy as a hibernating bear not busy at all. (*Also: as ~.) □ Tom: I can’t go with you. I’m busy. Jane: Yeah. You’re as busy as a hibernating bear. □ He lounged on the sofa all day, busy as a hibernating bear.

busy as a one-armed paperhanger Go to busy as a beaver (building a new dam).

busy as Grand Central Station Go to busy as a beaver (building a new dam).

busy as popcorn on a skillet Go to busy as a beaver (building a new dam).

busy oneself with someone or something to occupy one’s time by dealing with someone or something. □ Tony busied himself with helping Sam. □ Mrs. Wilson busied herself with little Jimmy.

busy someone with someone or something to keep someone busy dealing with someone or something. □ You should busy the children with some activity. □ We will busy Randy with cleaning up the garage.

but for someone or something if it were not for someone or something. □ But for the railing, I’d have fallen down the stairs. □ But for the children, Mrs. Smith would have left her husband years ago.

but good severely; thoroughly. □ She told him off but good. □ Joe beat up Bill but good.

butt in (on someone or something) to interrupt someone or something. □ Pardon me for butting in on your conversation, but this is important. □ John butted in on Tom and Jane to tell them that the mail had come.

butt into something to intrude upon something; to break into a conversation. □ Please don’t butt into my conversation; I’m on the phone. □ I don’t like my conversations being butted into by perfect strangers!

the butt of a joke the reason for or aim of a joke, especially when it is a person. □ Poor Fred was the butt of every joke told that evening.

butt out to exit [as abruptly as one has intruded]. (Compare this with butt in (on someone or something). Usually a command.) □ Butt out! Leave me alone! □ Please butt out of my life!

butt (up) against someone or something to press against someone or something firmly. □ This board is supposed to butt up against the one over there. □ The goat butted against Fred, but didn’t hurt him.

butter someone up[†] and butter up to someone to flatter someone; to treat someone especially nicely in hopes of receiving special favors. (See also spread something on thick; soft soap.) □ A student tried to butter the teacher up. □ She buttered up the teacher again.

Butter wouldn't melt (in someone's mouth). Prov. Someone is acting as if innocent. □ By the time her parents came home, Emily had cleaned up all evidence of having broken the valuable figurine, and she looked as though butter wouldn't melt in her mouth. □ Jane: How can you suspect George of playing that practical joke on you? He looks so innocent. Jill: Yes, butter wouldn't melt, I'm sure.

butterflies in one's stomach a nervous feeling in one's stomach. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Whenever I have to speak in public, I get butterflies in my stomach. □ She always has butterflies in her stomach before a test. □ It was not frightening enough to give me butterflies in my stomach, but it made me a little apprehensive.

button something down[†] to fasten something down with buttons. □ Button your collar down. You look too casually dressed. □ Please button down your collar.

button something up[†] to fasten something with buttons. □ Button your shirt up, please. □ I will button up my shirt.

button up 1. Lit. to fasten one's buttons. □ Your jacket's open. You'd better button up. It's cold. □ I'll button up in the car. 2. Fig. to get silent and stay silent. (See also button (up) one's lip.) □ Hey, button up! That's enough out of you. □ I wish you would button up and stop gossiping.

button (up) one's lip Fig. to stop talking. (Fixed order.) □ Please button up your lip! □ Will you button your lip? I don't want the news to get out.

butress something up[†] 1. Lit. to brace something; to provide architectural support for something. □ We have to butress up this part of the wall while we work on it. □ The workers butressed the wall up with heavy timbers. 2. Fig. to provide extra support, often financial support, for something. □ We rounded up some money to butress the company up through the sales slump. □ The loan butressed up the company for a few months.

buy a pig in a poke Fig. to buy something without looking inside first. □ If you don't get a good look at the engine of a used car before you buy it, you'll wind up buying a pig in a poke. □ I just took the salesman's poke that this camera worked. I guess I bought a pig in a poke.

buy a round (of drinks) and buy the next round (of drinks) to buy a drink for each person present, with the expectation that one or more of those persons will later do likewise. □ Which one of you guys is going to buy the next round?

buy in(to something) 1. Lit. to purchase shares of something; to buy a part of something the ownership of which is shared with other owners. □ I bought into a company that makes dog food. □ Sounds like a good company. I would like to buy in. 2. Fig. to agree with; to accept an idea as worthwhile. □ The committee liked my proposal and decided to buy into my plan. □ Do you think you can get the whole board to buy in?

buy it Go to buy the farm.

buy one's way in(to something) to achieve entry or membership in something often by paying money. □ Do you think you can buy your way into this fraternity? □ I'm sure I can buy my way in with my family connections.

buy one's way out (of something) to get out of trouble by bribing or influencing someone to ignore what one has done wrong. □ You can't buy your way out of this mess, buster! □ You made this mess and you can't buy your way out!

buy some food to go Go to to go.

buy someone off[†] to bribe someone to ignore what one is doing wrong. □ Do you think you can buy her off? □ The mobster tried to buy off the jury.

buy someone or something out[†] to purchase full ownership of something from someone or a group. □ We liked the company, so we borrowed a lot of money and bought it out. □ Carl bought out the owners of the company.

buy someone's wolf ticket Sl. to challenge someone's boast or taunt. □ He wants me to buy his wolf ticket bad. □ He's such a fighter. He'll buy anybody's wolf ticket.

buy something Fig. to believe something someone says; to accept something to be a fact. □ It may be true, but I don't buy it. □ I just don't buy the idea that you can swim that far.

buy something at something 1. to purchase something at a particular place or at a particular type of sale, such as a store, an auction, a clearance sale, etc. □ I bought this table at an auction. □ This was bought at an auction. 2. to purchase something at a particular price or for a particular level of price. □ I bought shares in General Motors at forty and a half. □ The shares were bought at a good price.

buy something back[†] (from someone) to repurchase something that one has previously sold from the person who bought it. □ Can I buy it back from you? I have decided I need it. □ He bought back his book from George.

buy something for a song Go to for a song.

buy something (from someone) (for something) to purchase something from someone at a particular price, or for a particular type of payment, such as for cash, for practically nothing, etc. □ I bought the car from Mark for a reasonable price. □ I bought it for a reasonable price from Mark.

buy something on credit to purchase something now and pay for it later (normally plus interest). □ Almost everyone who buys a house buys it on credit. □ I didn't have any cash with me, so I used my credit card and bought a new coat on credit.

buy something on time to buy something on credit. □ Tom: That's an awful fancy TV. Are you sure you can afford it? Jane: I'm buying it on time. □ I bought the sofa on time, but I paid cash for the chairs.

buy something out[†] to buy all that is available of a particular item. □ The kids came in and bought all our bubble gum out. □ They bought out the bubble gum in a single hour.

buy something sight unseen to buy something without seeing it first. □ I bought this land sight unseen. I didn't know it was so rocky. □ It isn't usually safe to buy something sight unseen.

buy something up[†] to buy all of something; to buy the entire supply of something. □ He bought the oranges up from all the groves. □ He bought up all the oranges and drove up the price.

buy the big one Euph. to die. I don't plan to buy the big one for at least another thirty years. She conked out for good—you know, bought the big one.

buy the farm and buy it Sl. to die; to get killed. (The farm is a burial plot.) I'll pass through this illness; I'm too young to buy the farm. He lived for a few hours after his collapse, but then he bought it.

buy the next round (of drinks) Go to buy a round (of drinks).

buy time to postpone an event hoping that the situation will improve. You are just stalling to buy time. Maybe I can buy some time by asking the judge for a continuance.

buy trouble Fig. to encourage trouble; to bring on trouble. (As if certain acts would pay for or cause difficulties that would have to be suffered through.) I don't want to buy trouble. I have enough already. Saying something insulting to him is just buying trouble.

buzz along to move or drive along fast. The cars were buzzing along at a great rate. Traffic is sure buzzing along.

buzz for someone to sound a signal for someone. Please buzz for the bell captain. I buzzed for my secretary and waited for a reply.

buzz in(to some place) Fig. to come into a place rapidly or unexpectedly. The child buzzed into the shop and bought a nickel's worth of candy. I just buzzed in to say hello.

buzz off Fig. to leave quickly. I've got to buzz off. Bye. It's time for me to buzz off.

buzz someone into a place and buzz someone in^t Fig. to push a button that opens a door latch electrically, allowing someone to use the door and enter. (The process creates a buzz while the latch is open.) My secretary will buzz you in. Please buzz in our guest. Oh, hello. I will buzz you into the lobby. Then take the elevator to apartment 310.

buzz with something Fig. [for a place] to be busy or filled with something. The room buzzed with excitement. The office had better be buzzing with moneymaking activity when I get there.

by a hair('s breadth) and by a whisker Fig. just barely; by a very small distance. I just missed getting on the plane by a hair's breadth. I made it onto the last flight by a hair!

by a mile Fig. by a great distance. (Usually an exaggeration.) You missed the target by a mile. Your estimate of the budget deficit was off by a mile.

by a show of hands [of a vote taken] expressed by people raising their hands. We were asked to vote for the candidates for captain by a show of hands. Bob wanted us to vote on paper, not by a show of hands, so that we could have a secret ballot.

by a whisker Go to by a hair('s breadth).

by all accounts Go to according to all accounts.

by all appearances apparently; according to what one sees or how things seem. She is, by all appearances, ready to resume work. By all appearances, we ought to be approaching the airport.

by all means certainly; yes; absolutely. I will attempt to get there by all means. Bob: Can you come to dinner tomorrow? Jane: By all means. I'd love to.

by all means of something trying to do something by the use of every possible manner of something. People will be arriving by all means of transportation. The surgeon performed the operation by all means of instruments.

by and by at some time in the future; as time passes. The weather's sure to clear up by and by. You may think your heart is broken, but you'll feel better by and by.

by and large generally; usually. (Originally a nautical expression.) I find that, by and large, people tend to do what they are told to do. By and large, rosebushes need lots of care.

by ankle express Fig. on foot. After my horse was stolen, I had to go by ankle express. It's a five-minute drive, forty minutes by ankle express.

by any means by any way possible. I need to get there soon by any means. I must win this contest by any means, fair or unfair.

by any stretch of the imagination as much as anyone could imagine; as much as is imaginable. (Often negative.) I don't see how anyone by any stretch of the imagination could fail to understand what my last sentence meant.

by brute strength by great muscular strength. The men moved the heavy door by brute strength.

by chance accidentally; randomly; without planning. I found this book by chance at a book sale. We met by chance in a class in college.

by check by using a check for payment. He paid for the book by check. You will be paid by check.

by choice due to conscious choice; on purpose. I do this kind of thing by choice. No one makes me do it. I didn't go to this college by choice. It was the closest one to home.

by coincidence by an accidental and strange similarity; by an unplanned pairing of events or occurrences. We just happened to be in the same place at the same time by coincidence. By coincidence, the circus was in town when I was there. I'm glad because I love circuses.

By cracky! Rur. By God! (A mild oath, often used to express surprise or approval.) Jim said he'd get the whole house painted this weekend, and by cracky, that's just what he did. By cracky! That thunder sure was loud.

by day and by night during the day; during the night. (Often used in simultaneous clauses for contrast.) By day, Mary worked in an office; by night, she took classes. Dave slept by day and worked by night.

by dint of something because of something; due to the efforts of something. (Dint is an old word meaning 'force,' and it is never used except in this phrase.) They got the building finished on time by dint of hard work and good organization. By dint of much studying, John got through college.

by fits and starts Go to fits and starts.

by force of habit owing to a tendency to do something that has become a habit. After I retired, I kept getting up and getting dressed each morning by force of habit.

By godfrey! By God! (A mild oath.) □ By godfrey, Jim's brother is a big man! □ Those cats sure do make a lot of noise, by godfrey.

by guess and by golly Go to next.

by guess and by gosh and by guess and by golly Rur. by estimating; without careful planning. □ Jane: Did you have a plan for putting up that toolshed? Tom: Nope, we just sort of did it by guess and by gosh. □ Grandma always made dresses by guess and by golly, without using a pattern, and they always turned out just fine.

by hand made by human hands and handheld tools as opposed to a machine. □ This fine wooden cabinet was made by hand. □ I carved this figurine by hand.

by herself and by himself 1. with no one else present; alone. □ She hates to go to strange places by herself. □ He sat by himself at a table big enough for six people. 2. with the help of no one else. □ The two-year-old boy can get dressed by himself. □ Susan is unable to get there by herself.

by hook or (by) crook by any means, legal or illegal. □ I'll get the job done by hook or by crook. □ I must have that house. I intend to get it by hook or crook.

by itself with the help of nothing else; without the addition of anything else. □ Will this food be enough by itself for all of us? □ Can the dog get out of the house by itself?

by leaps and bounds Fig. rapidly; by large movements forward. □ The brush we cut back last fall is growing by leaps and bounds. □ The profits of my company are increasing by leaps and bounds. □ He is gaining by leaps and bounds.

by main strength and awkwardness Rur. by force or brute strength. □ Tom: How did you get that piano up the stairs? Mary: By main strength and awkwardness. □ By main strength and awkwardness, we got all the luggage crammed into the car.

by means of something using something; with the use of something. □ I opened the bottle by means of a bottle opener. □ I was able to afford a car by means of a loan.

by mistake in error; accidentally. □ I'm sorry. I came into the wrong room by mistake. □ I chose the wrong road by mistake. Now we are lost.

by myself 1. with no one else present; alone. □ I sat at the table by myself. □ I will not be at the party. I will be at home by myself tonight. 2. without the help of anyone else. □ I did it all by myself. □ Can you eat that whole pie by yourself?

by night Go to by day.

by no means absolutely not; certainly not. □ I'm by no means angry with you. □ Bob: Did you put this box here? Tom: By no means. I didn't do it, I'm sure.

by oneself 1. with no one else present; alone (of two or more people). □ Must one sit by oneself or may one join another group? □ One just hates eating by oneself, doesn't one? 2. with the help of no one else. □ One is expected to do it by oneself. □ Can one do this by oneself?

by ourselves 1. with no one else present; alone. □ Do we have to sit here by ourselves? Can't we sit with Mary and Max? □ We like to eat by ourselves, so we can talk about private matters. 2. with the help of no one else. □ We can do it by ourselves. □ Can we lift this by ourselves, or do we need some help?

by return mail and by return post by a subsequent mailing (back to the sender). (A phrase indicating that an answer is expected very soon, by mail.) □ Since this bill is overdue, would you kindly send us your check by return mail? □ I answered your request by return post over a year ago. Please check your records.

by return post Go to previous.

by rote [of learning or memorizing] done as habit and without thinking. □ I simply memorized the speech by rote. I don't know what it means. □ The student learns everything by rote and doesn't really understand the concepts.

by shank's mare Fig. by foot; by walking. (Shank refers to the shank of the leg.) □ My car isn't working, so I'll have to travel by shank's mare. □ I'm sore because I've been getting around by shank's mare.

by the book and by the numbers following the rules exactly. (Alludes to a (numbered) book of rules. *Typically: go ~; do something ~; play ~; run something ~.) □ The judge of the contest ran things strictly by the rules and disqualified us on a small technicality. □ Everyone insisted that we go by the numbers and not accept the proposal.

by the by Go to by the way.

by the day one day at a time. □ I don't know when I'll have to leave town, so I rent this room by the day.

by the dozen in groups of 12. (Compare this with by the dozens.) □ Eggs are normally sold by the dozen.

by the dozens Fig. many; by some fairly large, indefinite number. (Similar to but implying less than hundreds.) Compare this with by the dozen.) □ Just then people began showing up by the dozens. □ I baked cookies and pies by the dozens for the charity bake sale.

by the end of the day by the time when the workday is over; by the time that the sun goes down. □ Will this task be completed by the end of the day? □ We have to do all these things by the end of the day.

by the handful in amounts equal to a handful; in quantity. □ Billy is eating candy by the handful. □ People began leaving by the handful at midnight.

by the hour at each hour; once each hour. □ It kept growing darker by the hour. □ I have to take this medicine by the hour.

by the month one month at a time. □ Not many apartments are rented by the month. □ I needed a car for a short while, so I rented one by the month.

by the nape of the neck by the back of the neck. (Mostly said in threats.) □ He grabbed me by the nape of the neck and told me not to turn around if I valued my life. I stood very still. □ If you do that again, I'll pick you up by the nape of the neck and throw you out the door.

by the numbers Go to by the book.

by the same token Cliché a phrase indicating that the speaker is introducing parallel or closely contrasting information. □ Tom: I really got cheated! Bob: You think they've cheated you, but, by the same token, they believe that you've cheated them. □ Some say he is a real charmer, but by the same token others are put off by his manner.

by the seat of one's pants Fig. by sheer luck and use of intuition. (*Typically: fly ~; make it ~.) □ I got through school by the seat of my pants. □ Pilots who are in fog and using only instruments are flying by the seat of their pants.

by the skin of one's teeth Fig. just barely. (By an amount equal to the thickness of the (imaginary) skin on one's teeth.) □ I got through calculus class by the skin of my teeth. □ I got to the airport a few minutes late and missed the plane by the skin of my teeth. □ Lloyd escaped from the burning building by the skin of his teeth.

by the sweat of one's brow Fig. by one's efforts; by one's hard work. □ Tom raised these vegetables by the sweat of his brow. □ Sally polished the car by the sweat of her brow.

by the unit Fig. each; per. (Used to designate the unit of measure, but not the rate of a measure.) □ Lettuce is sold by the head. □ Gas is sold by the gallon.

by the way and by the by 1. a phrase indicating that the speaker is adding information. (By the by is not as frequent.) □ Tom: Is this one any good? Clerk: This is the largest and, by the way, the most expensive one we have in stock. □ Bill: I'm a realtor. Is your house for sale? Alice: My house is not for sale, and, by the way, I too am a realtor. 2. a phrase indicating that the speaker is casually opening a new subject. □ Bill: Oh, by the way, Fred, do you still have that hammer you borrowed from me? Fred: I'll check. I thought I gave it back. □ Jane: By the by, don't you owe me some money? Sue: Who, me?

by the week one week at a time. □ I plan my schedules by the week. □ Where can I rent a room by the week?

by the year one year at a time. □ Most apartments are available by the year. □ We budget by the year.

by themselves 1. with help from no one else. □ Do you think they can do it by themselves? □ Mike and Max cannot lift the piano by themselves. 2. with no one else present; alone (of two or more people). □ They are sitting there by themselves. Let's sit with them. □ They enjoy spending the evening at home by themselves.

by virtue of something because of something; due to something. □ She's permitted to vote by virtue of her age. □ They are members of the club by virtue of their great wealth.

by way of something 1. passing through something (as a place); via something. □ He came home by way of Toledo. □ She went to the bank by way of the drugstore. 2. in illustration; as an example. □ By way of illustration, the professor drew a picture on the board. □ He read them a passage from Shakespeare by way of example.

by word of mouth by speaking rather than writing. □ I learned about it by word of mouth. □ I need it in writing. I don't trust things I hear about by word of mouth.

by yourself 1. with no one else present; alone. □ Do you want to sit here by yourself, or can I sit here too? □ Don't sit at home by yourself. Come to the movie with me. 2. with the help of no one else. □ Can you really do all this cooking by yourself? □ Bill, can you lift this box by yourself?

by yourselves 1. with no one else present; alone (of two or more people). □ Are you two going to stand here by yourselves all evening? □ Don't sit home by yourselves. Come to the party. 2. with the help of no one else. □ Can you three do this by yourselves? □ I expect you guys to get there by yourselves.

Bye for now. Go to Good-bye for now.

cadge something from someone and cadge something off someone Sl. to beg or borrow something from someone.

□ Go cadge some sugar from the lady next door. □ I cadged this jacket off a friendly guy I met.

Caesar's wife must be above suspicion. Prov. The associates of public figures must not even be suspected of wrongdoing. (The ancient Roman Julius Caesar is supposed to have said this when asked why he divorced his wife, Pompeia. Because she was suspected of some wrongdoing, he could not associate with her anymore.) □ Jill: I don't think the mayor is trustworthy; his brother was charged with embezzlement. Jane: But the charges were never proved. Jill: That doesn't matter. Caesar's wife must be above suspicion. □ When the newspapers reported the rumor that the lieutenant governor had failed to pay his taxes, the governor forced him to resign, saying, "Caesar's wife must be above suspicion."

cage someone or something in[†] 1. Lit. to enclose someone or something in a cage. □ We caged the monkey in, but it threw a fit. □ We are going to have to cage in the dogs.

2. Fig. to confine someone or something. □ Please don't cage me in this tiny room! □ The health authorities virtually caged in the quarantined population until they could all be tested.

cage someone or something up[†] (in something) to enclose or confine someone or something in something or someplace. □ They caged the lions up in strong containers for the trip across country. □ How long did it take to cage up the lions securely?

cajole someone into something to coax or persuade someone to do something. □ They tried to cajole us into helping them move. □ You can't cajole me into doing that!

cajole someone out of something 1. to coax or persuade someone not to do something. □ Try and cajole her out of going there. □ I cajoled her out of leaving so soon. 2. to coax or persuade someone to give up something or give away something. □ She tried to cajole him out of his inheritance.

cake someone or something with something to cover someone or something with a thicker layer of clumps of a substance such as mud, dirt, blood, etc. □ The attendant caked her with hot mud at the beginning of the arthritis treatment. □ All the motocross racers were heavily caked with mud. □ She caked herself with green mud to remove her wrinkles.

calculate on something Rur. to think about or plan on something. □ Let me calculate on this a little bit. □ He's busy calculating on a serious problem.

calculate something into something and calculate something in[†] to include something in one's calculations. □ Did you calculate the cost of the cake into the total? □ Yes, I calculated in all the costs.

call a halt to something to demand that something be stopped. □ We must call a halt to this childish behavior. □ The manager called a halt to all overtime.

call a meeting to ask that people assemble for a meeting; to request that a meeting be held. □ The mayor called a meeting to discuss the problem. □ I'll be calling a meeting of the library board to discuss the new building project.

call a meeting to order and call the meeting to order to announce that a meeting is about to begin. □

Cc

The chair called the meeting to order. □ The meeting will be called to order at noon.

call a spade a spade Fig. to call something by its right name; to speak frankly about something, even if it is unpleasant. (Considered offensive by some. Use only with discretion.) □ Well, I believe it's time to call a spade a spade. We are just avoiding the issue. □ Let's call a spade a spade. The man is a liar.

Call again. Please visit this shop again sometime. (Said by shopkeepers and store clerks.) □ "Thank you," said the clerk, smiling, "Call again." □ Clerk: Is that everything? John: Yes. Clerk: That's ten dollars even. John: Here you are. Clerk: Thanks. Call again.

call (all) the shots to decide on the course of action; to be in charge. □ Why do you have to call all the shots? □ Do what you're told. I'll call the shots.

call around (about someone or something) to telephone a number of different people in succession about something. □ I'll call around about Tom and see if I can find out anything.

call at some place to visit some place; [for a ship] to put into port at a place. □ I called at the druggist's for some medicine. □ Our ship will call at seven ports during the voyage.

call attention to someone or something to cause someone, including oneself, or something to be noticed or observed. □ I think he dresses like that simply to call attention to himself.

call back 1. to call [someone] again on the telephone at a later time. □ Call back later, please. □ I will call back when you are not so busy. 2. to return a telephone call received earlier. □ The note says I am to call back. What did you want? □ This is Bill Wilson calling back.

call for someone or something 1. to need, require, or demand something or the services of someone. □ The recipe calls for two cups of flour. □ This job calls for someone with experience. 2. to arrive to collect or pick up a person or a thing. (Used especially when you are to pick someone up and are acting as an escort.) □ I will call for you about eight this evening. □ The messenger will call for your reply in the morning. 3. to shout for or request someone or something. □ I called for Ted, but he didn't hear me. □ I stood on the porch and called for the dog.

call hogs Rur. to snore. I couldn't sleep at all last night, with Cousin Joe calling hogs in the next room. Joe calls hogs so loud the windows rattle.

call in sick to call one's place of work to say that one is ill and cannot come to work. (See also report in sick.) Four of our office staff called in sick today. I have to call in sick today.

call in (to some place) to telephone to some central place, such as one's place of work, as to check for messages. I have to call in to the office at noon. I will call in whenever I have a chance.

call it a day to quit work and go home; to say that a day's work has been completed. I'm tired. Let's call it a day. The boss was mad because Tom called it a day at noon and went home.

call it a night to end what one is doing at night and go [home] to bed. At midnight, I called it a night and went to bed. Guest after guest called it a night, and at last we were alone.

call it quits to quit; to resign from something; to announce that one is quitting. Okay! I've had enough! I'm calling it quits. Time to go home, John. Let's call it quits.

Call my service. Please don't call me directly, but through my answering service. (Not a friendly or encouraging invitation.) Good to talk to you, but I gotta go now. Call my service. I can't talk now. Call my service.

Call no man happy till he dies. and Count no man happy till he dies. Prov. You cannot tell if a person's life has been happy on the whole until that person's life is over; no matter how happy someone is now, something bad may happen to destroy his or her happiness. Alan: You must be very happy with your new wife. Bill: Call no man happy till he dies. Jill: That movie star must be the happiest person in the world. He's rich, people love him, and he likes his work. Jane: Count no man happy till he dies.

the call of nature Euph. the need to go to the lavatory. Stop the car here! I have to answer the call of nature. There was no break in the agenda, not even for the call of nature.

call on someone to court someone. Jim's calling on the new cook over at the Browns'. In the old days, a boy had to ask a girl's father for permission to come call on her.

call on something Fig. to draw on something, such as a particular quality or talent. This project calls on all the creative skills you can gather together. It calls on everything you've got.

call out (to someone) to speak loudly to get someone's attention. Mike called out to Tom that there was a telephone call for him. I heard someone call out, but I could see no one.

call someone about something to call someone on the telephone, seeking information about someone or something. I'll call Maggie about Ted and see what she knows. Let me call the manager about this.

call someone away^t (from something) to ask someone to come away from some place or from doing something. The boss called Kathy away from her office. The principal called away the teacher from the classroom. Why did you call Kathy away?

call someone back^t 1. to call someone again on the telephone. Since she is not there, I will call her back in half an hour. Carl called back Mary after his meeting was over. 2. to return a telephone call to a person who had called earlier. I got his message; I will call him back tomorrow. I have to call back my friend now. 3. Go to call someone or something back.

call someone by a name to address someone by a particular kind of name. They call me by my first name. Don't call me by my nickname!

call someone down^t to reprimand a person; to awl someone out. The teacher had to call down Sally in front of everybody. "I wish you wouldn't call me down in public," cried Sally.

call someone forth^t to call to someone to come out or come forward. The principal called Wally forth. Please call forth Wally again.

call someone forward to call to someone to the front, and to the attention of everyone present. The teacher called the student forward to recite. Don't call me forward. I am not prepared.

call someone in^t (for something) 1. to request that someone come to have a talk. The manager called Karen in for a private meeting. The police called in Gary for questioning. 2. to request a consultation with a specialist in some field. (The person called probably will not "come in," but will work at another place.) We will have to call a heart specialist in for a consultation. We called in another specialist for an opinion.

call someone names to call someone by an abusive or insulting name. Billy cried when the other kids called him names. John was punished for calling his teacher names.

call someone on the carpet and haul someone on the carpet Fig. to reprimand a person. (When done by someone of clear superiority. Haul is stronger than call.) One more error like that and the big boss will call you on the carpet. I'm sorry it went wrong. I really hope the regional manager doesn't call me on the carpet again.

call someone or an animal off someone or something and call someone or an animal off^t to request that someone or an animal stop bothering or pursuing someone or something; to call a halt to an attack by someone or an animal. Please call your dogs off my brother. Call off your spying on me, or else!

call someone or something back^t to call out that someone or something should come back. As she left, the clerk called her back. The clerk called back the customer.

call someone or something in^t 1. to call on the special talents, abilities, or power of someone or something. They had to call a new doctor in. Yes, they had to call in a specialist. 2. Go to call someone or something into something.

call someone or something into question to cause someone or something to be evaluated; to examine or reexamine the qualifications or value of someone or something. Because of her poor record, we were forced to call Dr. Jones into question. We called Dr. Jones's qualifications into question.

call someone or something into something and call someone or something in^t to call to a person or a pet to come into something or some place. Would you please call Jeff into the house? Please call in Jeff.

call someone or something out^t to request the services of someone or a group. (See also call someone up; call someone out.) Things got bad enough that the governor called the militia out. The governor called out the militia.

call someone or something up^t to call someone, a group, or a company on the telephone. I will call them up and see what they have to say. Please call up the supplier.

call someone out^t to challenge someone to a fight. Wilbur wanted to call him out, but thought better of it. Why did you call out that guy? He used to be a prizefighter!

call someone over (to some place) to request that someone come to where one is. I will call her over to us, and you can ask her what you want to know. Call over the waitress so we can order. I called Ted over.

call someone's attention to something and call something to someone's attention to bring something to someone's notice; to make someone recognize some fact. May I call your attention to the sign on the door? He called to our attention the notice on the wall.

call someone's bluff to demand that someone prove a claim or is not being deceptive. All right, I'll call your bluff. Show me you can do it! Tom said, "You've made me really angry, and I'll punch you if you come any closer!" "Go ahead," said Bill, calling his bluff.

call someone to account to ask one to explain and justify one's behavior, policy, performance, etc. The sergeant called the police officer to account. I called my workers to account for the accident.

call someone to attention to demand that someone assume the formal military stance of attention. The officer called the platoon to attention. The sergeant called us to attention.

call someone together to request that people come together for a meeting. Please call everyone together and we'll discuss this. I called all the players together.

call someone up^t to request that someone or a group report for active military service. (See also call someone or something out.) The government called the reserve units up for active service. They called up another battalion.

call something (back) in and call something in^t to formally request (usually by mail) that something be returned. The car company called many cars back in for repairs. They called in a lot of cars.

call something down^t (on someone) Fig. to invoke some sort of divine punishment onto someone. The preacher sounded as though he was calling down the wrath of God on us. Moses called down a plague on the Pharaoh.

call something down^t (to someone) to shout something to a person on a lower level. The worker called a warning down to the people below. She called down a warning to them.

call something forth^t [for an event] to draw a particular quality or induce a particular behavior. The battle called extraordinary courage forth from the soldiers. It called forth great courage.

call something in^t Go to call something (back) in.

call something off^t to cancel an event. It's too late to call the party off. The first guests have already arrived. Because of rain, they called off the baseball game.

call something out^t 1. to draw on something, such as a particular quality or talent. It's times like these that call the best out in us. These times call out our best effort. 2. to shout out something. Who called the warning out? You should call out a warning to those behind you on the trail.

call something square to pronounce a debt or obligation to have been paid, balanced, or ended. Thanks for the hundred bucks. I think we can call it square now.

call something to mind and bring something to mind to bring something into someone's mind; to cause something to be remembered. Your comment calls something unpleasant to mind. This photo album calls our vacation to mind.

call something to someone's attention Go to call someone's attention to something.

call something up^t to summon information from a computer. John used his laptop to call the information up. With a few strokes on the computer keyboard, Sally called up the figures she was looking for.

call the dogs off^t 1. Lit. to order hunting or watch dogs to abandon their quarry. They robber gave up and the guard called the dogs off. Call off the dogs! 2. Fig. to stop threatening, chasing, or hounding [a person]. Tell the sheriff to call off the dogs. We caught the robber. Okay, you've caught me! Please call your dogs off!

call the meeting to order Go to call a meeting to order.

call (the) roll and take (the) roll to call the names of people from a list of those enrolled, expecting them to reply if they are present. After I call the roll, please open your books to page 12. I will take roll, and then we will do arithmetic.

call the shots and call the tune Fig. to make the decisions; to decide what is to be done. Sally always wants to call the shots, and Mary doesn't like to be bossed around. They don't get along well. Sally always wants to call the tune.

call the tune Go to previous.

call to someone to shout to get someone's attention. I called to Fred, but he didn't hear me. Did you hear me call to you?

call (up)on someone 1. to visit someone. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) My mother's friends call upon her every Wednesday. Let's call on Mrs. Franklin this afternoon. 2. to choose someone to respond, as in a classroom. The teacher called upon me, but I was not ready to recite. Please don't call on me. I can't remember a thing.

call (up)on someone (for something) to choose someone to do or to help with some particular task. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) Can I call upon you for help? You can call on me at any time.

call (up)on someone (to do something) to choose someone to do something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I call upon all of you to make your feelings known to your elected representatives. I called on George for his help, but he refused.

called to straw Rur. about to begin labor and childbirth. Susan was called to straw when she was only seven months along. Nancy's nine months pregnant and could be called to straw any day now.

the calm before the storm Go to the lull before the storm.

calm down to relax; to become less busy or active. Now, now, calm down. You look so nervous. Please calm down. Nothing bad is going to happen.

calm someone or an animal down[†] to cause someone or an animal to be less active, upset, or unsettled. Please try to calm yourself down! Can you calm down your yapping dog?

camp in the boondocks Go to in the boondocks.

camp in the boonies Go to in the boondocks.

camp it up [for performers] to overact or behave in an affected manner. The cast began to camp it up in the second act, and the critics walked out. (Fixed order.) There is no need to camp it up. Play it the way it was written.

camp out to live out of doors temporarily in a tent or camping vehicle, as on a vacation or special camping trip. I love to camp out in the winter.

campaign against someone or something 1. to crusade or battle against someone or something. Currently, I am campaigning against littering. Sarah is campaigning against crooked politicians. 2. to run one's political campaign against someone or something. I campaigned against the incumbent and won. John spent a lot of time campaigning against Sarah for class president.

campaign for someone or something to support actively someone or someone's candidacy for political office. I would be very happy to campaign for you. I want to campaign for the winning candidate.

Can do. I can definitely do it. (The opposite of No can do.) Jane: Will you be able to get this finished by quitting time today? Alice: Can do. Leave it to me. Bob: Can you get this pack of papers over to the lawyer's office by noon? Bill: Can do. I'm leaving now. Bye.

Can I help you? Go to Could I help you?

Can I leave a message? Go to Could I leave a message?

Can I see you again? Go to Could I see you again?

Can I see you in my office? Go to Could I see you in my office?

Can I speak to someone? Go to Could I speak to someone?

Can I take a message? Go to Could I take a message?

Can I take your order (now)? Go to Could I take your order (now)?

Can I tell her who's calling? Go to Could I tell him who's calling?

Can I use your powder room? Go to Could I use your powder room?

Can it! Shut up! I've heard enough of your arguing. Can it! That's enough complaining from you! Can it!

can (just) whistle for something Fig. can just forget about having something. The last time Mary came over for dinner, she was downright rude. If she wants dinner at my house again, she can just whistle for it! I asked the boss for a promotion. He told me I could whistle for it.

*a can of worms Fig. a very difficult issue or set of problems; an array of difficulties. (*Typically: be ~; open ~.) This political scandal is a real can of worms. Let's not open that can of worms!

can take it to the bank Fig. able to depend on the truthfulness of my statement: it is not counterfeit or bogus; to be able to bank on something. Believe me. What I am telling you is the truth. You can take it to the bank. This information is as good as gold. You can take it to the bank.

Can we continue this later? Go to Could we continue this later?

Can you excuse us, please? Go to Could you excuse us, please?

Can you hold? Go to Could you hold?

Can you imagine? Can you believe that?; Imagine that! She wore jeans to the wedding. Can you imagine? Billy was eating the houseplant! Can you imagine?

Can you keep a secret? Go to Could you keep a secret?

cancel each other out[†] [for the opposite effects of two things] to balance each other. The cost of the meal you bought and what I owed you cancel each other out, so we're even. They canceled out each other.

cancel out (of something) to withdraw from something. I hate to cancel out of the event at the last minute, but this is an emergency. It's too late to cancel out.

cancel someone out[†] Go to next.

cancel someone out of something and cancel someone out[†] 1. to eliminate someone from something (as from a list of names). We had to cancel them out. We canceled out all the people who did not show up. 2. Sl. to eliminate someone; to kill someone. The drug lord threatened to cancel out his former partner for testifying against him.

cancel someone's Christmas Sl. to kill someone; to destroy someone. (Underworld or jocular; the idea is that the dead person will not live until Christmas.) If he keeps bugging me, I'm gonna cancel his Christmas. Willie threatened to cancel Richard's Christmas if Richard didn't pay up.

cancel something out[†] to balance the effects of something. Sending flowers might cancel the bad feelings out. The last payment canceled out the debt.

*a candidate for a pair of wings Euph. someone who is likely to die; someone who is close to death. (Jocular. *Typically: be ~; look like ~.) Whenever Jane wants to cross the street, she just walks out into traffic without looking. She's a candidate for a pair of wings, I say. Tom: How's Bill doing? I heard he was sick. Jane: Not good, I'm afraid. He looks like a candidate for a pair of wings.

cannot See the expressions listed at can't and also those at not able.

cannot carry a tune Go to can't carry a tune.

cannot help doing something not able to refrain from doing something; not able not to do something. □ Anne is such a good cook, I can't help eating everything she serves. □ Since John loves to shop, he can't help spending money.

cannot see (any) further than the end of one's nose Go to see no further than the end of one's nose.

cannot see the forest for the trees Go to next.

cannot see the wood for the trees and cannot see the forest for the trees Prov. Cannot perceive the overview or important things because of concentrating too much on details. □ The information presented in this textbook is so disorganized that I can't see the wood for the trees. □ The politician's opponents claimed that she couldn't see the forest for the trees, because she spent so much time trying to solve minor problems.

cannot stomach someone or something Go to not able to stomach someone or something.

[can't] See the expressions listed at not able, as well as those listed below.

can't call one's soul one's own Fig. working for other people all the time. □ Jane has to work two jobs and take care of both her aging parents. She can't call her soul her own. □ Between supporting his family and working off his brother's bad debts, Bob really can't call his soul his own.

can't carry a tune and cannot carry a tune; can't carry a tune in a bushel basket; can't carry a tune in a bucket; can't carry a tune in a paper sack Fig. [to be] unable to sing a simple melody; lacking musical ability. □ I wish that Tom wouldn't try to sing. He can't carry a tune. □ I don't know why Mary's in the choir. She can't carry a tune in a bushel basket. □ Joe likes to sing in the shower, though he can't carry a tune in a bucket. □ I'd try to hum the song for you, but I can't carry a tune in a paper sack.

can't carry a tune in a bucket Go to previous.

can't carry a tune in a bushel basket Go to can't carry a tune.

can't carry a tune in a paper sack Go to can't carry a tune.

can't do anything with someone or something not [to be] able to manage or control someone or something. (Also with cannot.) □ Bill is such a discipline problem. I can't do anything with him. □ My hair is such a mess. I just can't do anything with it.

can't find one's butt with both hands (in broad daylight) Sl. is stupid or incompetent. (Use caution with butt, which is often considered crude.) □ Why did they put Jim in charge? He can't find his butt with both hands! □ Tom: Jane seems like a bright girl. Bill: You've got to be kidding! She couldn't find her butt with both hands in broad daylight!

can't hack it unable to do the job. □ I thought delivering papers would be an easy job, but I just can't hack it. □ If you can't hack it, let me know, and I'll help you out.

can't help but do something [to be] unable to choose any but one course of action. (Also with cannot.) □ Her parents live nearby, so she can't help but go there on holidays. □ Bob is a tennis fan and can't help but travel to Wimbledon each year.

can't hit the (broad) side of a barn Rur. cannot aim something accurately. □ You're way off. You couldn't hit the broad side of a barn. □ Please don't try to throw the paper into the wastebasket. You can't hit the side of a barn.

can't hold a candle to someone Fig. not [to be] equal to someone; unable to measure up to someone. (Also with cannot.) □ Mary can't hold a candle to Ann when it comes to athletics. □ As for singing, John can't hold a candle to Jane.

can't make heads or tails (out) of someone or something Fig. [to be] unable to understand someone or something. (Also with cannot.) □ John is so strange. I can't make heads or tails of him. □ Do this report again. I can't make heads or tails out of it.

Can't say (a)s I do, can't say (a)s I don't. Rur. I am not sure. □ Tom: Do you know Mr. Smith? Mary: Well, I can't say as I do, can't say as I don't. □ Jane: What do you think of my cousin? Do you like him? Mary: Can't say's I do, can't say's I don't.

can't say boo to a goose Rur. shy and not talkative. □ I was surprised to see Joe so talkative at the party. Usually he can't say boo to a goose. □ She's a quiet little kid. Can't say boo to a goose.

can't see a hole in a ladder stupid or drunk. □ No use asking her questions. She can't see a hole in a ladder. □ After the big party, Joe needed someone to drive him home. He couldn't see a hole in a ladder.

can't see beyond the end of one's nose Go to see no further than the end of one's nose.

can't see one's hand in front of one's face Fig. [to be] unable to see very far, usually due to darkness or fog. (Also with cannot.) □ It was so dark that I couldn't see my hand in front of my face. □ Bob said that the fog was so thick he couldn't see his hand in front of his face.

can't see straight Fig. cannot function (often because of strong emotion). □ I am so mad I can't see straight. □ She left me so frustrated that I couldn't see straight.

can't stand (the sight of) someone or something and can't stomach someone or something Fig. [to be] unable to tolerate someone or something; disliking someone or something extremely. (Also with cannot.) □ I can't stand the sight of cooked carrots. □ Mr. Jones can't stomach the sight of blood. □ None of us can stand this place. □ Nobody can stand Tom when he smokes a cigar.

can't stomach someone or something Go to previous.

can't wait (for something (to happen)) to be very eager, as if to be unable to endure the wait for something to happen. □ I am so eager for my birthday to come. I just can't wait.

can't wait (to do something) to be very eager, as if to be unable to endure the wait until it is possible to do something. □ I'm glad it's almost summertime—I just can't wait to go swimming!

cap and gown the academic cap or mortarboard and the robe worn in formal academic ceremonies. □ We all had to rent cap and gown for graduation. □ I appeared wearing my cap and gown, but I had shorts on underneath because it gets so hot at that time of year.

capable of doing something having the ability to do something. Do you think Tom is capable of lifting 200 pounds?
 No one I know is capable of such a crime!

capitalize on something Fig. to build on something; to exploit something, such as an opportunity of talent, to one's own benefit. Let's try to capitalize on the strength of the economy and invest for the future. Capitalize on your experience in the field and you'll do well in the interview.

capitulate to someone or something to surrender or submit to someone or something. The general finally capitulated to the enemy. I won't capitulate in this argument.

captain of industry Fig. a high-ranking corporation officer; a wealthy and successful capitalist. The captains of industry manage to hang on to their money no matter what. It's fun to see those captains of industry drive up in their limousines.

capture someone's imagination Fig. to intrigue someone; to interest someone in a lasting way; to stimulate someone's imagination. The story of the young wizard has captured the imagination of the world's children.

*a card Fig. an entertaining and clever person who says or does funny things. (*Typically: act like ~; be ~.) He is such a card. Always making jokes. Mary is a card, and she has to learn to take things seriously sometimes.

card-carrying member Fig. an official member of some group, originally, the communist party. Bill is a card-carrying member of the electricians union.

the cards are stacked against one [informal] luck is against one. (See also stack the deck (against someone or something).) I have the worst luck. The cards are stacked against me all the time. How can I accomplish anything when the cards are stacked against me?

care about someone or something 1. to hold someone or something dear; to prize someone or something. I really care about you. I care very much about my family. 2. to have even minimal regard for someone or something. (Does not imply any of the tender feelings expressed in ①.) Don't you care about animals? I care about what happens in Washington.

care for someone to feel tenderly toward someone; to love someone. I care for you a great deal, Walter. I care for you too, Alice.

care for someone or something to take care of someone or something. Will you care for my cat while I am away? I would be happy to care for your child.

care for something to like the taste of some kind of food or drink. (Usually used with a negative.) I don't care for sweet potatoes. I don't care for sweet desserts.

care nothing about someone or something to have no regard or respect for someone or something. You have hurt me with your insults. I care nothing about you! She cares nothing about your money!

care nothing for someone or something not to like someone or something. She cares nothing for your suggestion. Sarah cares nothing for Jeff.

care to do something to want to do something; to be willing to do something. I really don't care to see that movie. Would you care to go out for dinner?

careful not to do something using care to avoid some difficulty or difficulties. Please be careful not to discuss politics with Mr. Brown. Please be careful not to leave the house unlocked.

careful (with something) treating or handling something with caution. Please be careful with the vase. It's old and valuable. That's too big a load. Be careful!

carp about someone or something to complain about someone or something. You are always carping about all your petty problems at work. Stop carping about Randy!

carp at someone (about someone or something) to complain to someone about someone or something. Why are you always carping at me about your family? You are always carping at Joan about her brother.

carp at someone or something to criticize someone or something. Poor Clara is carping at Bill's carelessness again. Please stop carping at me.

carry (a lot of) weight (with someone or something) Fig. to be very influential with someone or some group of people. Your argument does not carry a lot of weight with me. The senator's testimony carried a lot of weight with the council.

carry a secret to the grave and carry a secret to one's grave Fig. to never reveal a secret, even to the day of one's death. John carried our secret to his grave. Trust me, I will carry your secret to the grave!

carry a torch (for someone) and carry the torch (for someone) Fig. to be in love with someone who is not in love with you; to brood over a hopeless love affair. John is carrying a torch for Jane. Is John still carrying a torch after all this time?

carry coals to Newcastle Prov. to do something unnecessary; to do something that is redundant or duplicative. (Newcastle is an English town from which coal was shipped to other parts of England.) Mr. Smith is so rich he doesn't need any more money. To give him a gift certificate is like carrying coals to Newcastle.

carry on to behave badly or mischievously. The children always carry on when the teacher's out of the room. Stop carrying on and go to sleep!

carry on (about someone or something) to make a great fuss over someone or something; to cry (especially for a long time or uncontrollably) about someone or something. (Note the variation in the examples.) Billy, stop carrying on about your tummy ache like that. The child carried on endlessly when his mother scolded him. When the soldier finally came home, his wife cried and carried on for hours. Calm down. There's no need to carry on so.

carry on somehow to manage to continue or endure, in spite of problems. Even though we did not have a lot of money, we managed to carry on somehow. Don't worry about us. We will carry on somehow.

carry on (to something) to continue on to some place or some time. Please keep reading. Carry on to the next page. Please carry on with your report.

carry on (with someone) to flirt with someone; to have a love affair with someone. It looks like Linda is carrying on with James.

carry on (with something) to continue doing something. (Compare this with carry something on.) □ Please carry on with your singing. □ Tom carried on with his boring speech for twenty minutes.

carry on without someone or something to manage to continue without someone or something. □ I don't know how we will be able to carry on without you. □ We can't carry on without a leader!

carry one's cross Go to bear one's cross.

carry one's (own) weight and pull one's (own) weight Fig. to do one's share; to earn one's keep. (The weight is the burden that is the responsibility of someone.) □ Tom, you must be more helpful around the house. We each have to carry our own weight. □ Bill, I'm afraid that you can't work here anymore. You just haven't been carrying your weight.

carry over to extend into another time period or location. □ I don't like for bills to carry over into the next month. □ Please do not let the paragraph carry over.

carry over (to something) 1. [for a sum or other figure] to be taken to another column of figures. □ This amount carries over into the next column. □ Yes, this number carries over. 2. to last or continue until another time. □ Will this enthusiasm carry over to the following week? □ Of course, it will carry over.

carry someone along^t (with someone) [for someone's enthusiasm or power] to affect other people and persuade them. □ The excitement of the play carried the audience along with the actors. □ She carried along the audience with her all the way.

carry someone along^t (with something) [for something] to transport someone as it moves along. □ The flood carried us along with the debris. □ The rushing water carried along everything with it.

carry someone around^t (with oneself) 1. Lit. to be the source of transport for someone, usually a child. □ I'm tired of carrying this baby around with me everywhere. Can't I buy a baby carriage? □ I always carry around my child with me. 2. Fig. to have in mind the memory or a sense of presence of another person with oneself. □ I have been carrying my dead grandfather around with me for years. □ She carries around her brother with her in her memories.

carry someone away^t [for someone or something] to cause a person to lose control. □ The excitement of the parade carried us all away. □ The fervor of the speech carried away the whole crowd.

carry someone back (to some time) to return someone, mentally, to a former time; to remind someone of an earlier time. □ This carries me back to the times of knights and jousting. □ This article about the Sixties really carries me back.

carry someone or something about and carry someone or something around to carry someone or something with one; to carry someone or something from place to place. □ Do I have to carry these books about all over campus? □ You are too heavy, sweetie. I don't want to carry you around all day.

carry someone or something away^t to take or steal someone or something. □ Someone carried our lawn furniture away while we were on vacation. □ The kidnappers carried away the child when no one was looking.

carry someone or something into some place and carry someone or something in^t to lift and move someone or something to some place. □ Will you carry the baby into the bedroom? □ Let me carry in the packages.

carry someone or something off^t to take or steal someone or something. □ The kidnappers carried the child off. □ They carried off the child.

carry someone or something out^t to lift up and move someone or something out. □ Help me carry the baby and her things out. □ Let's carry out the dishes and set the table.

carry someone or something over^t from something to transport someone or something from somewhere, usually a great distance or another country. □ The ship carried the travel club over from Spain. □ They carried over all my furniture from Paris.

carry someone or something over to something to lift and move someone or something to another place. □ Please carry this over to the window. □ Could you carry Timmy over to his bed, please? He's asleep.

carry someone or something through something to lift up and move someone or something through something. □ We will have to carry him through the crowd to the ambulance. □ Jane carried the groceries through the doorway.

carry someone somewhere Rur. to take or escort someone somewhere. □ Friday nights, Joe always carries his wife to town. □ "May I carry you home?" the young man asked Jane.

carry someone through (something) to sustain someone (as someone's expenses or needs) during something. □ Can this amount carry you through the week? □ Yes, this will carry me through.

carry something along^t (with someone) to bring or take something with one; to have something with one and have it handy at all times. □ You should carry this emergency phone list along with you whenever you travel. □ Please carry along this package when you go.

carry something around^t (with one) to have something on one's person at all times. □ He carries a backpack around with him. □ Max carries around his checkbook with him.

carry something back^t to take something back to where it came from. □ Did you bring this here? If so, carry it back. □ Please carry back the empty box after you take out all the books.

carry something down^t to take something from a higher to a lower place. □ Would you go up to the attic and carry the trunk down? □ Why should I carry down the trunk?

carry something forward to take a figure from one column or category to another. □ Now, carry this figure forward into the tens column.

carry something off^t 1. Lit. to take something away with oneself; to steal something. □ Someone carried off my books! □ I think someone carried off the lawn chairs last night. 2. Fig. to make a planned event work out successfully. □ It was a huge party, but the hostess carried it off beautifully. □ The magician carried off the trick with great skill.

carry something on¹ 1. to do something over a period of time. (Compare this with carry on (with something.) □ Do you think you can carry this on for a year? □ I will carry on this activity for three years if you want. 2. to continue to do something as a tradition. □ We intend to carry this celebration on as long as the family can gather for the holidays. □ We will carry on this tradition for decades, in fact. 3. Go to carry something onto something.

carry something on someone's shoulders Go to on someone's shoulders.

carry something onto something and carry something on² to take something onto a vehicle. □ Do you plan to carry this bag onto the plane? □ I'd like to carry on two bags. □ Can I carry them both on?

carry something out¹ to perform a task; to perform an assignment. □ "This is a very important job," said Jane. "Do you think you can carry it out?" □ The students didn't carry out their assignments.

carry something over¹ to let something like a bill extend into another period of time. □ We'll carry the amount of money due over into the next month. □ Yes, please carry over the balance.

carry something over² (until some time) and carry something over¹ (to some time) to defer something until a particular time. □ Can we carry this discussion over until later? □ We will carry over our discussion to tomorrow.

carry something with^{*} Go to next.

carry something with one and carry something with^{*} to have something with one or on one's person. (*The second form is informal.) □ Do you always carry that bag with you? □ I always carry a pen with.

carry the ball 1. Lit. to be the player who is relied on to gain yardage, especially in football. □ It was the fullback carrying the ball. □ Yes, Tom always carries the ball. 2. Fig. to be in charge; to be considered reliable enough to make sure that a job gets done. □ We need someone who knows how to get the job done. Hey, Sally! Why don't you carry the ball for us? □ John can't carry the ball. He isn't organized enough.

carry the day and win the day to be successful; to win a competition, argument, etc. (Originally meaning to win a battle.) □ Our team didn't play well at first, but we won the day in the end. □ Preparation won the day and James passed his exams.

carry the torch 1. Fig. to lead or participate in a (figurative) crusade. □ The battle was over, but John continued to carry the torch. □ If Jane hadn't carried the torch, no one would have followed, and the whole thing would have failed. 2. Go to carry a torch (for someone).

carry the weight of the world on one's shoulders Fig. to appear or behave as if burdened by all the problems in the whole world. □ Look at Tom. He appears to be carrying the weight of the world on his shoulders. □ Cheer up, Tom! You don't need to carry the weight of the world on your shoulders.

carry through (on something) Go to follow through (on something).

carry weight (with someone) Fig. to have influence with someone; [for an explanation] to amount to a good argument to use with someone. □ That carries a lot of weight with the older folks. □ What you say carries no weight with me.

cart someone or something off¹ to take or haul someone or something away. (When used with someone the person is treated like an object.) □ The police came and carted her off. □ Let's cart off these boxes.

carte blanche Fig. freedom or permission to act as one wishes or thinks necessary. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ He's been given carte blanche with the reorganization of the workforce. □ The manager has been given no instructions about how to train the staff. He has carte blanche from the owner.

carve someone or something up¹ to damage someone or something by careless or purposeful cutting (of a person, can be figurative). □ Someone carved the tabletop up. Who did it and why? □ The boxer wanted to carve up his opponent.

carve something from something to shape by cutting something off or out of something with a knife. □ Can you carve an elephant from a bar of soap?

carve something in¹ Go to carve something into something.

carve something in stone Fig. to fix some idea permanently. (See also carved in stone.) □ No one has carved this one approach in stone; we have several options.

carve something into something 1. and carve something in² to cut letters or symbols into something. □ He carved his initials into a tree. □ He carved in the letters one by one. 2 to create a carved object by sculpturing raw material. □ Ken carved the apple into a tiny snowman.

carve something out¹ to hollow something out by carving; to make something hollow by carving. □ Can he carve a bowl out of such soft wood? □ He carved out the bowl of the pipe and then began to sand it.

carve something out² (of something) to remove something from the inside of something else by carving or cutting. □ She carved the insides out. □ She carved out the insides of the pumpkin.

carve something up¹ to divide something up, perhaps carelessly. □ The peace treaty carved the former empire up into several countries. □ You can't just carve up one country and give the pieces away.

carved in stone and engraved in stone; written in stone Fig. permanent or not subject to change. (Often in the negative.) □ Now, this isn't carved in stone yet, but this looks like the way it's going to be. □ Is this policy carved in stone, or can it still be modified?

the case the [current] instance; an actual situation. □ I think Bill is a vegetarian, and if that is the case, we should not serve him meat. □ Susie believes trees can talk, but that is not the case.

a case in point a specific example of what one is talking about. □ Now, as a case in point, let's look at nineteenth-century England. □ Fireworks can be dangerous. For a case in point, look at what happened to Bob Smith last Fourth of July.

a case of mistaken identity the incorrect identification of someone. □ I am not the criminal you want to arrest. This is a case of mistaken identity.

*a case of something 1. an instance of something. (*Typically: be ~; have ~.) □ This is a case of police brutality. They should not have injured the suspect. 2. an occurrence of a disease. (*Typically: be ~; look like ~; treat ~.) □ I am suffering from a case of the flu.

a case of the blind leading the blind Fig. a situation where people who don't know how to do something try to teach other people. □ Tom doesn't know anything about cars, but he's trying to teach Sally how to change the oil. It's a case of the blind leading the blind. □ When I tried to show Mary how to use a computer, it was a case of the blind leading the blind.

case someone or something out^t Sl. to look someone or something over carefully, with a view to additional activity at a later time. □ He came into the room and cased all the lighting fixtures out. □ He cased out the fixtures to see which ones to replace. □ John cased the girls out.

case the joint 1. Sl. to look over some place to figure out how to break in, what to steal, etc. (Underworld.) □ First of all you gotta case the joint to see where things are. □ You could see he was casing the joint the way he hung around. 2. Sl. to look a place over. □ The dog came in and cased the joint, sniffing out friends and foes. □ The old lady entered slowly, casing the joint for someone of her own age, and finally took a seat.

cash flow problem a lack of hard currency. □ My real estate business has a temporary cash flow problem. □ Due to his cash flow problem, he was unable to pay his employees that month.

cash in (on something) Fig. to earn a lot of money at something; to make a profit at something. □ This is a good year for drug stocks, and you can cash in on it if you're smart. □ It's too late to cash in on that particular clothing fad.

Cash is king. Prov. It is best to keep one's investment money in cash. (Said when the prices in the securities markets are too high. It is better to build up cash and wait for a break in the market.) □ Things look a little pricey now. I'd say that cash is king for the moment. □ I'm holding a little cash for a little bottom fishing, but I wouldn't say that cash is king.

Cash is trash. Prov. It is unwise to keep one's investment money in cash. (Said when there are good opportunities in securities and it is foolish not to invest cash.) □ If you've got money sitting around in savings while the market is steaming ahead, you are losing dollars. Right now cash is trash. □ Cash is trash. Get into the market or you stand to lose a bundle.

cash money Rur. money in bills and coins. □ You could make cash money selling your quilts, you really could. □ Joe wants cash money for his old TV set. He won't let me have it on credit.

cash on the barrelhead and cash on the line Rur. cash at the time of purchase. □ Jonson's store doesn't give credit. Everything is cash on the barrelhead. □ They offered me fifty thousand dollars cash on the line for Aunt Nancy's old house.

cash on the line Go to previous.

cash (one's chips) in^t 1. Lit. to turn in one's gaming tokens or poker chips when one quits playing. □ When you leave the game, you should cash your chips in. □ Cash in your chips before you go. □ I'm going to cash in. 2. Fig. to quit [anything], as if one were cashing in gaming tokens; to leave or go to bed. □ I guess I'll cash my chips in and go home. □ Well, it's time to cash in my chips and go home. □ I'm really tired. I'm going to cash in. 3. and cash one's checks in^t Euph. to die; to finish the "game of life." □ There's a funeral procession. Who cashed his chips in? □ Poor Fred cashed in his chips last week.

cash or credit [a purchase made] either by paying cash or by putting the charges on a credit account. □ When Fred had all his purchases assembled on the counter, the clerk asked, "Cash or credit?" □ That store does not give you a choice of cash or credit. They want cash only.

cash something in^t to exchange something with cash value for the amount of money it is worth. □ I should have cashed my insurance policy in years ago. □ It's time to cash in your U. S. savings bonds.

cash something in^t (for something) to exchange a security for money; to convert a foreign currency to one's own currency; to turn gaming tokens or poker chips in for money. (See also cash (one's chips) in.) □ I cashed the bonds in for a cashier's check. □ I cashed in my bonds for their face value.

cash-and-carry a method of buying and selling goods at the retail level where the buyer pays cash for the goods and carries the goods away. (As opposed to paying on credit or with the cost of delivery included.) □ Sorry, we don't accept credit cards. This is strictly cash-and-carry. □ I bought the chair cash-and-carry before I realized that I had no way to get it home.

cast a spell (on someone) 1. Lit. to enchant someone with a magic spell. □ The wizard cast a spell on the frog, turning it into a prince with bad skin. 2. Fig. to intrigue and delight someone. □ She is a real beauty. She cast a spell on every man she met.

cast around for someone or something and cast about for someone or something to seek someone or something; to seek a thought or an idea. (Alludes to a type of person or thing rather than a specific one.) □ John is casting around for a new cook. The old one quit. □ Bob is casting about for a new car.

cast aspersions on someone to make a rude and insulting remark. □ I resent your casting aspersions on my brother and his ability! □ It is rude to cast aspersions on people in general.

cast doubt(s) (on someone or something) to cause someone or something to be doubted. □ The police cast doubt on my story. □ How can they cast doubt? They haven't looked into it yet. □ The city council cast doubt on John and his plan.

cast in the same mold Fig. [of two or more people or things] very similar. □ The two sisters are cast in the same mold—equally mean. □ All the members of the family are cast in the same mold and they all had success as entertainers.

cast off (from something) [for the crew of a boat or ship] to push away from the dock or pier; to begin the process of navigating a boat or ship. □ The crew cast off from the dock. □ It's time to cast off.

Cast one's bread upon the waters. Prov. Act generous because you feel it is right and not because you expect a reward. (Biblical.) □ Joseph is casting his bread upon the waters, supporting Bob while he works on his novel. □ Cast your bread upon the waters; make a generous contribution to our cause.

cast one's eyes down[†] Fig. to tilt one's head or gaze downward. (Usually a sign of shame or to appear not to have seen someone.) □ She cast her eyes down as they saw each other again. □ He cast down his eyes in shame.

cast one's lot in[†] (with someone or something) to join in with someone or a group. □ He cast his lot in with the others. □ She cast in her lot with the others. □ She cast in with a questionable crowd.

cast (one's) pearls before swine Fig. to waste something good on someone who doesn't care about it. (From a biblical quotation.) □ To sing for them is to cast pearls before swine. □ To serve them French cuisine is like casting one's pearls before swine.

cast one's vote to vote; to place one's ballot in the ballot box. □ The citizens cast their votes for president. □ The wait in line to cast one's vote was almost an hour.

cast someone as something 1. Lit. to choose someone to play a particular role in a play, opera, film, etc. □ The director cast her as the young singer. □ They cast me as a villain. 2. Fig. to decide or fantasize that someone is going to follow a particular pattern of behavior in real life. □ I'm afraid my teachers cast me as a dummy when I was very young. □ They cast me as someone who would not succeed.

cast someone aside[†] and cast someone off[†]; cast someone away[†] Fig. to dispose of someone; to reject or discard someone. □ He simply cast his wife aside, and that was it.

cast someone or something up[†] [for the waves] to bring up and deposit someone or something on the shore. □ The waves cast the wreckage up, and it was found on the shore. □ The waves cast up the wreckage of a boat.

cast something aside[†] and cast something off[†]; cast something away[†] to throw something away. □ You can't just cast aside a new coat that you've only worn once.

cast something back (some place) to throw something back somewhere. □ I cast the fish back in the water. □ Cast back those stones and all the others you took from the pile.

cast something down[†] to hurl or throw something down. □ She cast the glass down, breaking it into a thousand pieces. □ She cast down the tray and all that was on it.

cast something off[†] Go to cast someone or something aside[†].

cast the first stone Fig. to make the first criticism; to be the first to attack. (From a biblical quotation.) □ Well, I don't want to be the one to cast the first stone, but she sang horribly. □ John always casts the first stone. Does he think he's perfect?

cast-iron stomach Fig. a very strong stomach that can withstand bad food or anything nauseating. □ If I didn't have a cast-iron stomach, I couldn't eat this stuff. □ Fred—known for his cast-iron stomach—ate ten whole hot peppers.

A cat can look at a king. Prov. No one is so important that an ordinary person cannot look at him or her; everyone has the right to be curious about important people. □ Jane: I get so angry at those people who read tabloid mag- azines. The private lives of television stars are none of their business. Alan: Don't be so hard on them. A cat can look at a king. □ Fred: You shouldn't stare at me like that. I'm your boss. Jill: A cat can look at a king.

A cat has nine lives. Prov. Cats can survive things that are severe enough to kill them. (You can also refer to a particular cat's nine lives.) □ Jill: My cat fell off a third-floor balcony and just walked away. How can he do that? Jane: A cat has nine lives. □ I think my cat used up one of her nine lives when she survived being hit by that car.

A cat in gloves catches no mice. Prov. Sometimes you cannot get what you want by being careful and polite. □ Jill: I've hinted to Mary several times that I need her to pay me the money she owes, but she just ignores me. Jane: A cat in gloves catches no mice, Jill. Tell her bluntly that you need the money.

the cat is out of the bag Fig. the secret has been made known. (See also let the cat out of the bag.) □ Now that the cat is out of the bag, there is no sense in pretending we don't know what's really happening.

catapult someone or something into something 1. Lit. to throw someone or something into a place using a catapult. □ The soldiers catapulted the huge stone into the fortress.

2. Fig. to thrust or force someone or something into something, such as fame, glory, front-page news, etc. □ The success catapulted her into the spotlight. □ The scandal catapulted the contractual arrangements into public scrutiny.

catch a glimpse of someone or something Go to catch sight of someone or something.

catch a whiff of something Go to a whiff of something.

catch (a)hold of someone or something to grasp or seize someone or something. □ See if you can catch hold of the rope as it swings back and forth. □ I couldn't catch ahold of her.

catch cold and take cold Fig. to contract a cold (a common respiratory infection.) (Use with catch is more frequent.) □ Please close the window, or we'll all catch cold. □ I take cold every year at this time.

catch forty winks and take forty winks; have forty winks Fig. to take a nap; to get some sleep. □ I'll just catch forty winks before getting ready for the party. □ I think I'll go to bed and take forty winks. See you in the morning.

catch hell Go to hell.

catch hell (about someone or something) and get hell (about someone or something); catch hell (for something) to be scolded (about someone or something). □ This isn't the first time Bill's caught hell about his drinking. □ We knew we were gonna catch hell when Ma saw how we'd ruined her garden. □ Somebody is going to catch hell for this!

catch it to get into trouble and receive punishment. □ I know I'm going to catch it for denting mom's car when I get home. □ Bob hit Billy in the face. He really caught it from the teacher for that.

Catch me later. and Catch me some other time. Please try to talk to me later. □ Bill (angry): Tom, look at this phone bill! Tom: Catch me later. □ "Catch me some other time," hollered Mr. Franklin over his shoulder. "I've got to go to the airport."

Catch me some other time. Go to previous.

catch (on) fire to ignite and burn with flames. □ Keep your coat away from the flames, or it will catch fire. □ The curtains blew against the flame of the candle and caught on fire.

catch on (to something) Fig. to figure something out. (See also get onto someone.) □ I finally caught on to what she was talking about. □ It takes a while for me to catch on.

catch on (with someone) Fig. [for something] to become popular with someone. □ I hope our new product catches on with children. □ I'm sure it will catch on.

catch one off (one's) guard Go to catch someone off guard.

catch one's breath Fig. to struggle for normal breathing after strenuous activity. □ The jogger stopped to catch her breath. □ It took Jimmy a minute to catch his breath after being punched in the stomach.

catch one's death (of cold) and take one's death (of cold) Fig. to contract a cold, a common respiratory infection; to catch a serious cold. (See also catch cold.) □ If I go out in this weather, I'll catch my death of cold. □ Dress up warm or you'll take your death.

catch one with one's pants down Fig. to discover someone in the act of doing something that is normally private or hidden. (Literal uses are possible.) □ Some council members were using tax money as their own. But the press caught them with their pants down and now the district attorney will press charges.

catch onto someone or something Go to onto someone or something.

catch onto something [for something] to snag on or get grabbed by something else. (See also onto something.) □ This little piece has to catch onto this gear each time it comes around. □ A few threads of my shirt caught onto the cactus needles and ruined the whole thing.

catch sight of someone or something and catch a glimpse of someone or something to see someone or something briefly; to get a quick look at someone or something. □ I caught sight of the plane just before it flew out of sight. □ Ann caught a glimpse of the robber as he ran out of the bank.

catch some rays and bag some rays Fig. to get some sunshine; to tan in the sun. □ We wanted to catch some rays, but the sun never came out the whole time we were there. □ I went to Hawaii to bag some rays.

catch some Zs and cop some Zs; cut some Zs to get some sleep. (In comic strips, Zs are used to show that someone is sleeping or snoring.) □ I gotta catch some Zs before I drop. □ Why don't you stop a little bit and try to cop some Zs?

catch someone at a bad time to attempt to speak or deal with someone at a time inconvenient for that person. □ I'm sorry. You look busy. Did I catch you at a bad time?

catch someone at something and catch someone doing something to discover someone doing something, especially something bad or shameful. □ We caught her at her evil deeds. □ Don't let me catch you doing that again!

catch someone by surprise Go to take someone by surprise.

catch someone doing something Go to catch someone at something.

catch someone flat-footed Go to catch someone red-handed.

catch someone in the act (of doing something) to discover someone doing a [bad] deed at the very moment when the deed is being done. (See also caught in the act.) □ I caught her in the act of stealing the coat. □ He was caught in the act of taking money from the cash box.

catch someone napping and catch someone off balance; catch someone up short to come upon someone who is unprepared; to surprise someone. (See also asleep at the switch.) □ The enemy soldiers caught our army napping. □ The thieves caught the security guard napping. □ I didn't expect you so soon. You caught me off balance. □ The teacher asked a trick question and caught me up short. □ The robbers caught Ann off balance and stole her purse.

catch someone off guard and catch one off (one's) guard Fig. to catch a person at a time of carelessness. □ Tom caught Ann off guard and frightened her. □ She caught me off my guard, and my hesitation told her I was lying.

catch someone or something in something to trap someone or something in something. □ We caught David in the snare by accident. □ My platoon was caught in an enemy ambush.

catch someone out[†] to discover the truth about someone's deception. □ The investigator tried to catch me out, but I stuck to my story. □ The teacher caught out the student and punished him immediately.

catch someone red-handed and catch someone flat-footed to catch a person in the act of doing something wrong. (See also caught red-handed.) □ Tom was stealing the car when the police drove by and caught him red-handed. □ Mary tried to cash a forged check at the bank, and the teller caught her red-handed.

catch someone's eye and get someone's eye 1. Fig. to establish eye contact with someone; to attract someone's attention. □ The shiny red car caught Mary's eye. □ When Tom had her eye, he smiled at her. 2. Fig. to appear and attract someone's interest. □ A small red car passing by caught my eye. □ One of the books on the top shelf caught my eye, and I took it down to look at it.

catch someone up in something [for excitement or interest] to extend to and engross someone. □ The fireworks caught everyone up in the excitement. □ The accident caught us all up in the resultant confusion.

catch someone up (on someone or something) to tell someone the news of someone or something. (Fixed order.) □ Oh, please catch me up on what your family is doing. □ Yes, do catch us up! □ I have to take some time to catch myself up on the news.

catch someone up short Go to catch someone napping.

catch someone with something 1. to discover or apprehend someone with something—usually something stolen or illicit. □ They caught Elizabeth with the earrings she shoplifted. □ Don't let them catch you with the money! 2. to apprehend someone with the aid of something. □ The state trooper caught the speeder with radar. □ The cops caught Lefty with the help of an informer.

catch something Fig. to see or listen to something. □ I will try to catch that new movie this weekend. □ Did you catch that radio program about cancer last night?

catch something from someone to get a disease from someone. □ I hope my children catch the chicken pox in kindergarten. Better to have it while you are young. □ I don't want to catch a cold from you.

catch something on something to snag something on something. □ I caught the pocket of my trousers on the drawer pull and almost ripped it off. □ He caught the sleeve of his uniform on a branch.

catch something up^f in something to ensnare and capture something in something. □ We caught a large number of fish up in the net. □ We caught up many fish in the net.

catch the devil Go to the devil.

catch the next wave and wait for the next wave Fig. to follow the next fad. □ He has no purpose in life. He sits around strumming his guitar and waiting to catch the next wave.

a catch to it a hidden problem associated with it. □ It sounds good at first, but there's a catch to it. You have to pay all costs up front.

catch up (on someone or something) to learn the news of someone or something. □ I need a little time to catch up on the news. □ We all need to catch up on what Tony has been doing. □ I need some time to catch up.

catch up (on something) to bring one's efforts with something up-to-date; to do the work that one should have done. □ I need a quiet time so I can catch up on my work. □ He started school late and now has to catch up.

catch up (to someone or something) and catch up (with someone or something) to move faster in order to reach someone or something who is moving in the same direction. □ The red car caught up with the blue one. □ Bill caught up with Ann, and they walked to the bank together.

catch up with someone Go to up with someone.

catch up (with someone or something) Go to catch up (to someone or something).

catch wind of something Go to get wind of something.

catch-as-catch-can the best one can do with whatever is available. □ We went hitchhiking for a week and lived catch-as-catch-can. □ There were ten children in our family, and every meal was catch-as-catch-can.

cater to someone or something 1. Lit. to provide for or care for someone or something. □ I believe that we can cater to you in this matter. □ Our company caters to larger firms that do not wish to maintain a service department. 2. Fig. to provide special or favorable treatment for someone or something. □ I'm sorry, but I cannot cater to you and not to the others. □ We do not have the time to cater to special requests.

caught in the act and caught red-handed Fig. seen doing something illegal or private. (See also catch someone in the act (of doing something) and catch someone red-handed.) □ Tom was caught in the act and cannot deny what he did. □ Many car thieves are caught red-handed.

caught in the crossfire 1. Lit. trapped between two lines of enemy fire. □ I was caught in the crossfire and dove into a ditch to keep from getting killed. 2. and caught in the middle Fig. caught between two arguing people or groups, making it difficult to remain neutral. □ Bill and Ann were arguing, and poor Bobby, their son, was caught in the middle.

caught short 1. left without any money temporarily. □ I'm caught a little short. Can I borrow a few bucks? 2. pregnant and unmarried. □ Both of Jane's sisters got caught short before they graduated high school.

caught unaware(s) surprised and unprepared. □ Sorry. You startled me when you came up behind me. I was caught unaware. □ The clerk was caught unawares, and the robber emptied out the cash register before the clerk could sound the alarm.

caught up in something and caught up with something deeply involved with something; participating actively or closely in something. □ Wallace is caught up in his work and has little time for his son, Buxton.

cause a commotion Go to cause (quite a) stir.

cause hard feelings Go to hard feelings.

cause lean times (ahead) Go to lean times (ahead).

cause qualms (about someone or something) Go to qualms (about someone or something).

cause (quite) a stir and cause a commotion to cause people to become agitated; to cause trouble in a group of people; to shock or alarm people. □ When Bob appeared without jacket and tie, it caused a stir at the state dinner. □ The dog ran through the church and caused quite a commotion.

cause (some) eyebrows to raise and cause some raised eyebrows Fig. to shock people; to surprise and dismay people. (The same as raise some eyebrows.) □ John caused eyebrows to raise when he married a woman half his age. □ If you want to cause some eyebrows to raise, just start singing as you walk down the street.

cause some raised eyebrows Go to previous.

cause (some) tongues to wag Fig. to cause people to gossip; to give people something to gossip about. □ The way John was looking at Mary will surely cause some tongues to wag. □ The way Mary was so scantily dressed will also cause tongues to wag.

caution someone about someone or something and caution someone against someone or something to warn someone against someone or something. □ Haven't I cautioned you about that before? □ Hasn't someone cautioned you about Daniel?

cave in [for a roof or ceiling] to collapse. □ The roof of the mine caved in when no one was there. □ The tunnel caved in on the train.

cave in (to someone or something) Fig. to give in to someone or something. □ Finally, the manager caved in to the customer's demands. □ I refuse to cave in under pressure from my opponent.

cavil at someone to find fault with someone; to complain about someone constantly. □ Will you never cease caviling at all of us? □ There is no need to cavil at me day and night!

cease and desist to completely stop doing something. (A legal phrase.) □ The judge ordered the merchant to cease and desist the deceptive practices. When they were ordered to cease and desist, they finally stopped.

cede something to someone to grant a parcel of land to someone. We refuse to cede that land to you. They ceded the land to the city for a park.

celebrate someone for an accomplishment to honor someone for having done something. The people celebrated the astronaut for a successful journey. She was celebrated widely for her discovery.

cement something on[†] Go to next.

cement something on(to) something and cement something on[†] to fasten something onto something with glue or household cement. Cement this handle back onto the cup. Now, cement on the other handle. I will cement it on for you.

cement something together to fasten something together with glue or household cement. Use this stuff to cement the vase together. Will you cement these parts together?

censure someone (for something) to criticize someone formally for having done something. Please don't censure us for doing our duty. The legislature proposed to censure one of its members.

center around someone or something to make someone or something the central point in something; to be based on someone or something. Your salary increases center around your ability to succeed at your job. The success of the picnic centers around the weather next week.

the center of attention the focus of people's attention; the thing or person who monopolizes people's attention. She had a way of making herself the center of attention wherever she went.

center on someone or something to focus on someone or something in particular. Let us center on the basic problem and try to solve it. I want to center on Liz and her contributions to the firm.

center something on someone or something to base something on someone or something. Let us center the discussion on Walter. Our whole meeting was centered on the conservation question.

a certain party someone you know but whom I do not wish to name. I spoke to a certain party about the matter you mentioned. If a certain party finds out about you-know-what, what on earth will you do?

certain sure Rur. very sure. Tom: Are you sure you saw Bill at work today? Mary: Certain sure. If you keep hanging around with them no-good kids, you'll get in a heap of trouble for certain sure.

Certainly not! Go to Definitely not!

chafe at something Fig. to be irritated or annoyed at something. Jane chafed at the criticism for a long time afterward. Jerry chafed for a while at what Ken had said.

A chain is no stronger than its weakest link. Prov. A successful group or team relies on each member doing well. George is completely out of shape. I don't want him on our ball team; a chain is only as strong as its weakest link.

the chain of command Fig. the series or sequence of holders of responsibility in a hierarchy. The only way to get things done in the military is to follow the chain of command. Never try to go straight to the top.

chain someone or an animal up[†] to bind someone or an animal in chains. We will have to chain him up until the police get here. Please chain up your dog.

chain someone or something down[†] to fasten someone or something down with chains. They chained down the bicycle rack so no one could steal it. We chained the toolshed down so a strong wind would not blow it over.

chain something to something to connect things together with chains. We chained all the bicycles to one another so no one could steal them. We will have to chain the lawn furniture to a tree if we leave it out while we are on vacation.

chain something up[†] to lock or secure a door or gate with chains. Please chain the gate up again when you come through. Yes, chain up the gate.

chalk something out[†] 1. Lit. to draw a picture of something in chalk, especially to illustrate a plan of some type. The coach chalked the play out so the players could understand what they were to do. Our team captain chalked out the play. 2. Fig. to explain something carefully to someone, as if one were talking about a chalk drawing. She chalked out the details of the plan over the phone.

chalk something up[†] 1. Lit. to write something on a chalkboard. Let me chalk this formula up so you all can see it. I'll chalk up the formula. 2. Fig. to add a mark or point to one's score. See also chalk something up (against someone). Chalk another goal for Sarah. Chalk up another basket for the other side.

chalk something up[†] (against someone) Fig. to blame someone for something; to register something against someone. I will have to chalk another fault up against Fred. She chalked up a mark against Dave.

chalk something up[†] (to something) Fig. to recognize something as the cause of something else. We chalked her bad behavior up to her recent illness. I had to chalk up the loss to inexperience.

challenge someone on something to dispute someone's statement, remarks, or position. I think Fred is wrong, but I won't challenge him on his estimate.

challenge someone to something to dare someone to do something; to invite someone to compete at something. I challenge you to a round of golf. Jerry challenged us to a debate of the issues.

champ at the bit and chomp at the bit 1. Lit. [for a horse] to bite at its bit, eager to move along. Dobbin was champing at the bit, eager to go. 2. Fig. to be ready and anxious to do something. The kids were champing at the bit to get into the swimming pool. The dogs were champing at the bit to begin the hunt.

chance something to risk doing something; to try doing something while being aware of the risk involved. I don't usually ride horses, but this time I will chance it. Bob didn't have a ticket, but he went to the airport anyway, chancing a cancellation.

chance (up)on someone or something to find someone or something by accident; to happen on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I chanced upon a nice little restaurant on my walk today. I chanced on an old friend of yours in town today.

chances are the likelihood is (followed by a clause stating what is likely). □ Chances are that she would have been late even if she had left on time.

change back (from something) to return to the original form, state, or selection, from some other form, state, or selection. □ We are going to change back from our position of last month. □ We didn't like our new plumber, so we changed back.

change back ((in)to someone or something) to return to the original form. □ The crisis in Congress changed back to a minor matter within a week. □ Then Superman changed back into mild-mannered Clark Kent.

change hands [for something] to be sold or passed from owner to owner. (From the “point of view” of the object that is passed on.) □ How many times has this lot changed hands in the last ten years? □ We built this house in 1970, and it has never changed hands.

change horses in midstream and change horses in the middle of the stream Fig. to make major changes in an activity that has already begun; to choose someone or something else after it is too late. (Alludes to someone trying to move from one horse to another while crossing a stream.) □ I'm already baking a cherry pie. I can't bake an apple pie. It's too late to change horses in the middle of the stream. □ The house is half-built. It's too late to hire a different architect. You can't change horses in midstream. □ Jane: I've written a rough draft of my research paper, but the topic doesn't interest me as much as I thought. Maybe I ought to pick a different one. Jill: Don't change horses in midstream.

change horses in the middle of the stream Go to previous.

change into someone or something to alter one's or its state to another state. □ The ugly witch changed into a lovely maiden. □ An insect larva changes into a cocoon.

the change (of life) menopause. □ The change of life affects each woman differently. □ Jill started the change when she was forty-seven.

a change of pace an addition of some variety in one's life, routine, or abode. □ Going to the beach on the weekend will be a change of pace. □ The doctor says I need a change of pace from this cold climate.

a change of scenery a move to a different place, where the surroundings are different. □ I thought I would go to the country for a change of scenery. □ A change of scenery would help me relax and organize my life.

change off [for people] to alternate in doing something. □ Tom and I changed off so neither of us had to answer the phone all the time. □ Let's change off every 30 minutes.

change out of something to take off a set of clothing and put on another. □ I have to change out of these wet clothes. □ You should change out of your casual clothes and put on something more formal for dinner.

change over (from someone or something) (to someone or something) to convert from something to something else; to convert from someone to someone else. □ We decided to change over from oil to gas heat. □ We changed over to gas from oil.

change places with someone to trade or exchange situations or locations with someone. □ He has a much higher salary, but I wouldn't change places with him for the world. □ Juan decided to change places with Ken in the bus.

change someone or something into someone or something to make someone or something change form or state. □ The wizard claimed he could change a horse into a unicorn. □ He suddenly changed himself into a smiling friend rather than the gruff old man we had long known.

change someone's mind to cause a person to think differently (about someone or something). □ Tom thought Mary was unkind, but an evening out with her changed his mind. □ I can change my mind if you convince me that you are right.

change someone's tune to change the manner of a person, usually from bad to good, or from rude to pleasant. □ The teller was most unpleasant until she learned that I'm a bank director. Then she changed her tune. □ "I will help change your tune by fining you $150," said the judge to the rude defendant.

change something back^t to cause something to return to the original or a previous form. □ Whoever changed the television channel should change it back. □ Change back the channel to the game!

change something with someone to trade or exchange something with someone. □ I changed coats with Fred and his is much warmer. □ Will you change seats with me?

change the channel Sl. to switch to some other topic of conversation. □ Just a minute. I think you changed the channel. Let's go back to the part about you owing me money. □ Let's change the channel here before there is a fight.

change the subject to begin talking about something different. □ They changed the subject suddenly when the person whom they had been discussing entered the room. □ We'll change the subject if we are embarrassing you.

change to something to convert to something; to give up one and choose another. □ We will change to standard time in the fall. □ I decided to change to gas for heating and cooking.

channel something in(to something) 1. Lit. to divert water or other liquid through a channel into something. □ The farmer channeled the irrigation water into the field. 2. Fig. to divert something, such as energy, money, effort, into something. □ The government channeled a great deal of money into rebuilding the inner part of the city. □ I can't channel any more of our workforce into this project.

channel something off^t 1. Lit. to drain off water or some other liquid through a channel. □ The front yard is flooded, and we will have to channel the water off. □ Let's channel off the water before it gets too deep. 2. Fig. to drain off or waste energy, money, effort, etc. □ Unemployment channeled their resources off. □ The war channeled off most of the resources of the country.

chapter and verse Fig. very specifically detailed, in reference to sources of information. (A reference to the method of referring to biblical text.) □ He gave chapter and verse for his reasons for disputing that Shakespeare had written the play. □ The suspect gave chapter and verse of his associate's activities.

character assassination Fig. seriously harming someone's reputation. □ The review was more than a negative appraisal of his performance. It was total character assassination.

charge at someone or something to move quickly forward to attack someone or something. □ The elephant charged at the hunter. □ I was afraid that the water buffalo was going to charge our vehicle.

charge down on someone or something [for an animal or vehicle] to race or move quickly against someone or something. □ The angry elephant charged down on the hunters. □ The speeding truck charged down on the small shed.

charge in (to some place) to move quickly or run wildly into a place. □ The people charged into the store on the day of the sale. □ They all charged in trying to be first in line.

Charge it to the dust and let the rain settle it. Rur. Do not expect to be paid for this. (A humorous answer to a question like, “Who is going to pay for this?”) □ Tom: Who’s going to pay me all that money you owe? Mary: Charge it to the dust and let the rain settle it!

charge (of someone or something) control of someone or something; the responsibility for caring for someone or something. (*Typically: take ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ How long have you had charge of this office? □ He took charge of the entire company.

charge off to move quickly or run away. □ He got angry and charged off. □ Juan charged off to talk to the boss.

charge out (of some place) to move quickly or stomp out of some place. □ Carol charged out of the house, trying to catch Sally before she got on the bus. □ Juan got mad and suddenly charged out.

charge someone or something (with) something to make someone or a group pay the cost of something. □ I will have to charge Bill with the cost of repairs. □ The manager will charge your account with about forty dollars.

charge someone up[†] to excite someone; to make a person enthusiastic about something. (See also charged up.) □ The speaker charged up the crowd. □ He reread the report, hoping to charge himself up enough to make some positive comments.

charge someone with something 1. to place criminal charges against someone. □ The police charged Max with robbery. 2. to order someone to do a particular task. □ The president charged him with organizing the meeting. □ We charged her with locating new office space.

charge something against something to debit or assign the cost of something against something. □ Can I charge this item against the entertainment account? □ Don’t even try to charge it against your business expenses.

charge (something) for someone to demand an amount of money to pay for someone’s ticket, fare, admission, treatment, etc. □ Tickets are expensive. They charged sixty dollars for each seat. □ I didn’t realize they charged for children.

charge (something) for something to set a price in payment for something. □ You are charging too much for this. □ You really shouldn’t charge for it at all.

charge something off as something to consider something a legitimate expense and deduct it from one’s taxes; to assign something to the tax loss category in accounting.

□ I will have to charge this off as a loss. □ Try to charge it off as a business expense.

charge something on something 1. to put the cost of something on a credit card or credit account. □ I would like to charge this purchase on my credit card. □ What card do you want to charge it on? 2. to demand the payment of interest or a penalty on something. □ They charged an enormous amount of interest on the loan. □ The bank charged a penalty on the late payment.

charge something up[†] 1. Lit. to apply an electrical charge to a battery. □ How long will it take to charge this battery up? □ It takes an hour to charge up your battery. 2. Lit. to load or fill something under pressure or with special contents, such as a fire extinguisher. □ We had to send the extinguishers back to the factory, where they charged them up. □ How much does it cost to charge up an extinguisher? 3. Fig. to reinvigorate something. □ What can we do to charge this story up? □ A murder in the first act would charge up the play. 4. Go to next.

charge something up to someone or something and charge something up[†] to place the cost of something on the account of someone or a group. (Also without up.) □ I will have to charge this up to your account. □ Do you have to charge this to my account? □ Are you ready to charge up the total to my bill?

charged up 1. Lit. [of something such as a battery] full of electrical power. □ The battery is completely charged up. □ If the battery isn’t charged, the car won’t start. 2. Fig. [of someone] excited; enthusiastic. □ The crowd was really charged up. □ Tom is so tired that he cannot get charged up about anything.

Charity begins at home. Prov. You should take care of family and people close to you before you worry about helping others. □ I don’t think our church should worry so much about a foreign relief fund when there are people in need right here in our city. Charity begins at home. □ If you really want to make the world a better place, start by being polite to your sister. Charity begins at home.

a charley horse a painful, persistent cramp in the arm or leg, usually from strain. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Don’t hike too far or you’ll get a charley horse.

charm someone with something to enchant or fascinate someone with something. □ He charmed her with stories of his house on the beach. □ She charmed him with her bright smile.

charm the pants off someone Fig. to use very charming behavior to persuade someone to do something. (Use with caution.) □ She is so nice. She just charms the pants off you. □ He will try to charm the pants off you, but you can still refuse to take the job if you don’t want to do it.

chart something out[†] (for someone or something) to lay out a plan or course for someone or something. □ The navigator charted the course out for the captain. □ The captain charted out the course for us.

chase after someone or something Go to after someone or something.

chase around after someone or something to look here and there for something; to seek someone or something in many different places. □ I don’t want to have to spend a whole day chasing around after exotic ingredients for this recipe of yours. □ I chased around after Roger and never found him.

chase someone or an animal in[†] Go to next.

chase someone or an animal in(to) some place and chase someone or an animal in[†] to drive someone or an animal into a place of confinement. □ They chased all the cattle into the corral. □ The cowboys chased in the cattle.

chase someone or something around[†] to follow someone or something around in pursuit. (There is an implication that the person or thing pursued is attempting to elude whatever is in pursuit.) □ The dog chased us around in play. □ It chased around all the children.

chase someone or something (away[†]) from some place and chase someone or something out of some place to drive someone or something away from or out of a place. □ The police sirens chased the thief from the building. □ We chased away all the children from the pond.

chase someone or something down[†] to track down and seize someone or something. □ Larry set out to chase the pickpocket down. □ The police chased down the suspect.

chase someone or something out of some place Go to chase someone or something (away[†]) from some place.

chase someone or something up[†] to seek someone or something out; to look high and low for someone or something. □ I will chase Tom up for you. □ I will try to chase up a buyer for your car.

chase someone or something up something to drive someone or an animal up something, such as a tree, a hill, a cliff, etc. □ The ranchers chased the mountain lion up a tree. □ The bull chased the rodeo clown up into the stands.

chat about someone or something to talk idly or informally about someone or something. □ We need to chat about Molly. □ I want to chat about your expenditures a little.

chatter about someone or something to talk idly and actively about someone or something. □ All the guests were chattering about something or other. □ People are chattering about you and Claire. Do you want to know what they are saying?

chatter (away) (at someone or something) 1. Lit. to talk incessantly or noisily to or at someone or something. □ The parrot was chattering away at its reflection in the mirror. □ The kids were chattering away. □ Stop chattering at me! 2. Fig. [for a small animal, such as a squirrel] to try to scare off someone or something. □ The little squirrel chattered away at the crow. □ The crow came close and the squirrel chattered away again.

chatter from something [for one's teeth] to shake noisily with a chill from the cold, the dampness, a fever, etc. □ My teeth were chattering from the extreme cold. □ It was a terrible illness. My teeth chattered from the chills that followed the fever.

cheat at something to use deception while competing [against someone]. □ They say she cheats at cards. □ The mob is likely to cheat at getting the contracts.

cheat on someone to commit adultery; to be unfaithful to one's spouse or lover. □ "Have you been cheating on me?" cried Mrs. Franklin. □ He was caught cheating on his wife.

cheat someone out of something to get something from someone by deception. □ Are you trying to cheat me out of what is rightfully mine? □ She cheated herself out of an invitation because she lied about her affiliation.

Cheats never prosper. and Cheaters never prosper. Prov. If you cheat people, they will not continue to do business with you, and so your business will fail. □ Customer: You charged me for ten artichokes, but you only gave me nine. Grocer: Too bad. You should have counted them before you paid for them. Customer: Cheats never prosper, you know.

check back (on someone or something) to look into the state of someone or something again at a later time. □ I'll have to check back on you later.

check back (with someone) to inquire of someone again at a later time. □ Please check back with me later.

check in (at something) to go to a place to record one's arrival. □ When you get there, check in at the front office.

check in (on someone or something) Go to look in (on someone or something).

check in (with someone) to go to someone and indicate that one has arrived some place. □ Please check in with the desk clerk.

check in(to something) 1. to sign oneself into a place to stay, such as a hotel, hospital, motel, etc. □ She checked into a private hospital for some kind of treatment. □ They checked into the first motel they came to on the highway. 2. Go to look into something.

check on someone or something to look into the legitimacy or condition of someone or something. □ Sarah will check on the matter and report to us. □ I will check on Jeff while he's not feeling well.

check out [for someone or something] to prove to be correctly represented. □ Everything you told me checks out with what other witnesses said.

check out (of something) and check out (from something) to do whatever is necessary to leave a place and then depart. (check out (of something) is more frequent.) □ I will check out of the hotel at about noon. □ I will check out from the office and come right to where you are.

check out the plumbing Euph. to go to the bathroom. (The order is fixed.) □ I think I'd better check out the plumbing before we get on the highway.

Check, please. and Could I have the bill?; Could I have the check? Could you give me the check or the bill for this food or drink? □ When they both had finished their dessert and coffee, Tom said, "Check, please." □ Bill: That meal was really good. Waiter! Could I have the check, please. Waiter: Right away, sir.

check someone in[†] to record the arrival of someone. □ Ask the guard to check you in when you get there. □ Tell the guard to check in the visitors as they arrive.

check someone or something off[†] to mark or cross out the name of a person or thing on a list. □ I am glad to see that you were able to come. I will check you off. □ I checked the items off. □ I checked off the recent arrivals.

check someone or something out[†] to evaluate someone or something. □ That stock sounds good. I'll check it out. □ I'll check out the competition.

check someone or something out^t (of something) to do the paperwork necessary to remove someone or something from something or some place. □ I will have the manager check you out of the hotel and send you the bill. □ The librarian checked out the computer to me.

check someone or something over^t to examine someone or something closely. □ You should have the doctor check you over before you go back to work. □ The doctor checked over the children who had shown the worst symptoms. □ The mechanic checked the car over.

check someone or something through (something) to allow one to pass through something after checking one's identification, tickets, passes, etc. (Fixed order.) □ The guard checked us through the gate, and we went about our business. □ We checked them through security.

check someone's bags through (to some place) and check someone's luggage through (to some place) to have one's luggage sent directly to one's final destination. □ Please check these bags through London to Madrid.

check something in^t 1. to record that someone has returned something. □ I asked the librarian to check the book in for me. □ Did the librarian check in the book? 2. to take something to a place, return it, and make sure that its return has been recorded. □ I checked the book in on time. □ Did you really check in the book on time? 3. to examine a shipment or an order received and make certain that everything ordered was received. □ I checked the order in and sent a report to the manager. □ Tim checked in the order from the supplier to make sure that everything was there.

check something out^t to examine or try something; to think about something. □ It's something we all have to be concerned with. Check it out. □ Check out the new comedy show on tonight.

check that cancel that; ignore that (last remark). □ Check that. I was wrong. □ At four, no, check that, at three o'clock this afternoon, the shipment arrived and was signed for.

check through something to examine something or a collection of things. (Usually refers to papers or written work, or to details in the paperwork.) □ Check through this and look for missing pages. □ I'll check through it for typographical errors also.

check up (on someone or something) to determine the state of someone or something. □ Please don't check up on me. I can be trusted. □ I see no need to check up.

check with someone (about something) to ask someone about something. □ You should check with the concierge about the bus to the airport. □ Please check with your agent.

checks and balances a system, as in the U.S. Constitution, where power is shared between the various branches of government. □ The newspaper editor claimed that the system of checks and balances built into our Constitution has been subverted by party politics.

*a checkup a physical examination by a physician. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ She got a checkup yesterday. □ I'm going to have a checkup in the morning. I hope I'm okay.

cheek by jowl Fig. side by side; close together. □ The pedestrians had to walk cheek by jowl along the narrow streets. □ The two families lived cheek by jowl in one house.

cheer for someone or something to give a shout of encouragement for someone or something. □ Everyone cheered for the team. □ I cheered for the winning goal.

cheer someone or something on^t to encourage someone or a group to continue to do well, as by cheering. □ We cheered them on, and they won. □ We cheered on the team. □ Sam cheered Jane on.

cheer someone up^t to make a sad person happy. □ When Bill was sick, Ann tried to cheer him up by reading to him. □ Interest rates went up, and that cheered up all the bankers.

cheer up [for a sad person] to become happy. □ After a while, she began to cheer up and smile more. □ Cheer up! Things could be worse.

cheese someone off^t Sl. to make someone very angry. □ You sure know how to cheese Laurel off. □ Bobby cheesed off every person in the club.

cheesed off Sl. angry; disgusted. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; get someone ~.) □ Clare was really cheesed off at the waiter. □ The waiter was cheesed off at the cook.

cherry-pick something Fig. to choose something very carefully. (As if one were closely examining cherries on the tree, looking for the best.) □ We have to cherry-pick the lumber we want to use for the cabinetry. Nothing but the best will do.

chew (away) at something to gnaw or chew something for a period of time. □ The puppy chewed away at the leather belt all night.

chew on someone or something 1. to gnaw at something. □ The dog was chewing on my shoe. 2. Go to chew something over.

chew one's own tobacco Rur. to mind one's own business. □ Sally: You seem awfully happy all of a sudden. How come? Tom: Chew your own tobacco. □ I'm just sitting here chewing my own tobacco, not bothering anybody.

chew one's cud Fig. to think deeply; to be deeply involved in private thought. (Alludes to the cow's habit of bringing food back from the first stomach into the mouth to chew it, called chewing the cud.) □ He's chewing his cud about what to do next.

chew someone or something up^t to damage or ruin someone or something by pinching, grinding, biting, etc. □ Stay away from the mower blade or it will chew you up. □ The lawn mower chewed up the flowers.

chew someone out^t and eat someone out^t Fig. to scold someone. □ The sergeant chewed the corporal out; then the corporal chewed the private out. □ The boss is always chewing out somebody.

chew something away^t to gnaw something off; to gnaw at something until it's all gone. □ You can see what's left of it. Most of it has been chewed away by some animal. □ Your puppy chewed away the top of my shoe!

chew something off something and chew something off^t to bite or gnaw something off something. □ The puppy chewed the heel off my shoe. □ The puppy chewed off the heel and mangled the tongue.

chew something over^t 1. Inf. to talk something over; to discuss something. □ We can chew it over at lunch. □ Why don't we do lunch sometime and chew over these matters?

C

2. and chew on something Fig. to think something over. I'll have to chew it over for a while. I'm not sure now. I have to chew on all this stuff for a day or two. Then I'll get back to you.

chew something up[†] to grind food with the teeth until it can be swallowed. You had better chew that stuff up well. Please chew up your food well.

chew the fat and chew the rag Fig. to chat or gossip. Sit yourself down and let's chew the fat for a while. We were just chewing the rag. Nothing important.

chew the rag Go to previous.

chicken feed Fig. a small amount of anything, especially of money. (See also for chicken feed. Compare this with for peanuts.) Of course I can afford $800. That's just chicken feed. It may be chicken feed to you, but that's a month's rent to me.

chicken out (of something) Inf. to manage to get out of something, usually because of fear or cowardice. Come on! Don't chicken out now! Freddy chickened out of the plan at the last minute.

chicken out on someone Inf. to decide not to do something for or with someone. Come on, don't chicken out on me now! Ken chickened out on us and won't be going with us.

chicken-hearted cowardly. Yes, I'm a chicken-hearted softie. I never try anything too risky.

The chickens come home to roost. Prov. You have to face the consequences of your mistakes or bad deeds. Jill: Emily found out that I said she was incompetent, and now she won't recommend me for that job. Jane: The chickens have come home to roost, I see.

chide someone for something to tease or scold someone for doing something. Maria chided Gerald for being late.

chief cook and bottle washer Fig. the person in charge of practically everything (such as in a very small business). I'm the chief cook and bottle washer around here. I do everything.

The child is father of the man. and The child is father to the man. Prov. People's personalities form when they are children; A person will have the same qualities as an adult that he or she had as a child. (From William Wordsworth's poem, "My Heart Leaps Up.") In Bill's case, the child was father of the man; he never lost his childhood delight in observing nature.

child's play something very easy to do. The test was child's play to those who took good notes. Finding the right street was child's play with a map.

Children and fools tell the truth. Prov. Children have not yet learned, and fools never did learn, that it is often advantageous to lie. Fred: What will I tell Ellen when she asks why I'm so late getting home? Alan: Tell her the truth—we were out having a few drinks. Fred: Children and fools tell the truth, Alan.

Children should be seen and not heard. Prov. Children should not speak in the presence of adults. (Often used as a way to rebuke a child who has spoken when he or she should not.) You may come out and meet the party guests if you'll remember that children should be seen and not heard.

chill out and cool out Sl. to calm down. Before we can debate this matter, you're all gonna have to chill out. So sit down and stop bickering. Everybody cooled out after the emergency, and everything was fine.

chill someone's action Sl. to squelch someone; to prevent someone from accomplishing something. Freddie is trying to chill my action, and he'd better stop and leave me alone.

chilled to the bone Fig. very cold. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) I got chilled to the bone in that snowstorm. The children were chilled to the bone from their swim in the ocean.

chime in (with something) Fig. to add a comment to the discussion. Little Billy chimed in with a suggestion. He chimed in too late; the meeting was breaking up.

chin music Fig. talk; conversation. Whenever those two get together, you can be sure there'll be plenty of chin music. Bill just loves to hear himself talk. He'll make chin music for hours at a time.

a chink in one's armor Fig. a special weakness that provides a means for attacking or impressing someone otherwise invulnerable. (Alludes to an opening in a suit of armor that allows a weapon to penetrate.) Jane's insecurity is the chink in her armor. The boss seems mean, but the chink in his armor is that he is easily flattered.

chip away [for something] to break off or break away in small chips. The edges of the marble step chipped away over the years. Some of the stone figures had chipped away so badly that we couldn't see what they were.

chip (away) at something to break off tiny pieces of something little by little. The mason chipped away at the bricks. He chipped at the block of marble gently.

chip in (on something) and chip something in[†] (on something) 1. to contribute a small amount of money to a fund that will be used to buy something. Could you chip in a dollar on the gift, please? 2. chip in (on something) (for someone) to contribute money toward a gift for someone. Would you please chip in on the present for Richard? Will you chip in for Randy?

chip in (with something) (on something) (for someone) and chip in (with something) (for something) (for someone); chip something in[†] (on something) (for someone) to contribute money for a gift for someone. Would you like to chip in with a little cash on a gift for Carol? I will chip in a little with you on a gift for Carol. Would you chip in with a few bucks for a gift for Carol? Would you chip a few bucks in on a gift for Carol? Would you care to chip in on a gift for the teacher? Yes, I'd be happy to chip in.

a chip off the old block Fig. a person (usually a male) who behaves in the same way as his father or resembles his father. John looks like his father—a real chip off the old block. Bill Jones, Jr., is a chip off the old block. He's a banker just like his father.

*a chip on one's shoulder Fig. a bad attitude that tends to get someone easily upset. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give one ~.) Why did you get so angry at the slightest criticism? You seem to have a chip on your shoulder.

chip something away[†] (from something) to break off tiny pieces of something. Many years of heavy use chipped the marble steps away. □ Someone chipped away little bits of the marble from that step.

chip something in[†] (on something) Go to chip in (on something).

chip something in[†] (on something) (for someone) Go to chip in (with something) (on something) (for someone).

chips and dip potato chips, or some other kind of crisp snack food, and a sauce or dressing to dip them into before eating them. □ There were tons of chips and dip and all kinds of cold drinks available for everyone.

chisel in (on someone or something) Sl. to use deception to get a share of something. □ I won't chisel in on your deal. □ You had better not chisel in!

chisel someone out of something and chisel something out of someone; chisel something from someone to get something away from someone by cheating. □ The scam tried to chisel pension money out of retired people.

chock full of something Fig. very full of something. □ These cookies are chock full of big chunks of chocolate.

choke on something to gag and cough on something stuck in the throat. □ The dog choked on the meat. □ The restaurant patron began to choke on a fish bone.

choke someone off[†] to prevent someone from continuing to talk. (A figurative use; does not imply physical choking.) □ The opposition choked the speakers' debate off before they finished. □ Why did they want to choke off the speakers?

choke someone up[†] Fig. to cause someone to feel like starting to cry. □ Sad stories like that always choke me up. □ The movie was sad and it choked up most of the audience.

choke something back[†] to fight hard to keep something from coming out of one's mouth, such as sobs, tears, angry words, vomit, etc. □ I tried to choke the unpleasant words back, but I could not. □ She choked back her grief, but it came forth nonetheless. □ I could hardly choke my tears back.

choke something down[†] to eat something, even though it is hard to swallow or tastes bad. □ The cough medicine tasted terrible, but I managed to choke it down. □ She choked down four of those pills all at once.

choke something off[†] 1. Lit. to restrict or strangle a living creature's windpipe. □ The tight collar on the cat tended to choke its airstream off. □ The collar choked off its airstream. 2. Fig. to put an end to debate or discussion; to stop the flow of words from any source. □ Are they going to choke the debate off? □ The chair tried to choke off debate but failed.

choke something up[†] 1. to clog something up; to fill up and block something. □ Branches and leaves choked the sewer up. □ Rust choked up the pipes. 2. to cough or choke until something that has blocked one's windpipe is brought up. □ The old man choked up the candy that was stuck in his windpipe. □ He choked up the chunk of meat and could breathe again.

choke up 1. to feel like crying. □ I choked up when I heard the news. □ He was beginning to choke up as he talked. 2. to become emotional or saddened so that one cannot speak. □ I choked up when I heard about the disaster. □ I was choking up, and I knew I would not be able to go on.

chomp at the bit Go to champ at the bit.

choose among someone or something to make a choice of a person or thing from a variety of possibilities. □ We will choose among the names on the list you gave us. □ I need to choose among the car models available.

choose between two people or things to choose one from a selection of two persons or things in any combination. □ For dessert, you can choose between chocolate and vanilla ice cream. □ I am unable to choose between promoting John and hiring one of the others.

choose from someone or something to make a selection from a group of persons or things. □ You will have to choose from these people only. □ Ron chose from the items in the catalog.

choose someone as something to select someone to be something. □ We will choose her as our representative. □ I chose Sam as my assistant.

choose someone or something for something to select someone or something for a particular purpose, office, title, etc. □ I chose red for the color of the carpet. □ I will choose Alice for office manager.

choose something for someone to select something for someone, perhaps as a gift. □ I will probably choose flowers for your mother. □ I chose a funny card for his birthday.

choose (up) sides to select from a group to be on opposing sides for a debate, fight, or game. (Fixed order.) □ Let's choose up sides and play basketball. □ The children chose up sides and began the game.

chop someone off[†] Fig. to stop someone in the middle of a sentence or speech. (Abruptly, as if actually chopping or cutting.) □ I'm not finished. Don't chop me off! □ The moderator chopped off the speaker.

chop someone or something (up[†]) (in(to) something) to cut something up into something smaller, perhaps with an axe or a cleaver. □ The butcher chopped up the beef loin into small fillets. □ I chopped up the onion into little pieces.

chop something back[†] to prune vegetation; to reduce the size of plants by cutting. □ Why don't you chop those bushes back while you have the shears out? □ Chop back the bushes, please.

chop something down[†] 1. Lit. to cut down something, such as a tree, with an ax. □ Please don't chop my favorite tree down. □ Don't chop down this tree! 2. Fig. to destroy something, such as a plan or an idea. □ The committee chopped the idea down in its early stages. □ They chopped down a great idea!

chop something off (of) something and chop something off[†] to cut something off something, as with an axe or saw. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ We chopped the dead branches off the tree. □ You should chop off the other branch.

chortle about someone or something and chortle over someone or something to chuckle or giggle about someone or something funny. □ I was chortling about Elaine's silly puppy for a long time. □ Elaine chortled about me and my dislike for cats.

chortle with something Go to chuckle with something.

chow (something) down Sl. to eat something, usually quickly or without good manners. □ We can chow this pizza down in about two minutes! □ I found a box of cookies and chowed it down before anybody knew what I was doing.

C

Christmas comes but once a year. Prov. Since Christmas only happens once a year, we should treat it as a special time by being good to others or by indulging children. □ Christmas comes but once a year, so we urge you to give to those less fortunate through this Christmas charity campaign.

chuck it in Inf. to quit; to give up. (Fixed order.) □ I was so depressed, I almost chucked it in. □ If I didn't have to keep the job to pay my bills, I'd have chucked it in long ago.

chuck someone or something away[†] to push or shove someone or something out of the way quickly or roughly. □ She chucked the children away and ran to lock the door to protect them. □ He chucked away his clothes in a drawer. □ The rock star approached, and the guard chucked the teenagers away.

chuck someone out of some place and chuck someone out[†] to throw someone out of some place. □ The bouncer chucked the drunks out of the tavern. □ He chucks out about three drunks a night.

chuck someone under the chin to tap someone, as a child, lightly under the chin, as a sign of affection. □ He said hello to little Mary and chucked her under the chin. □ Please don't chuck me under the chin! I am not a child, you know!

chuck something away[†] to throw something away; to dispose of something. □ Would you please just chuck this garbage bag away? □ I don't want to chuck away any paper that's been used on only one side.

chuck something down[†] Sl. to eat something very quickly. □ Don't just chuck your food down. Enjoy it! □ I'll be with you as soon as I chuck down this hamburger.

chuck something into something and chuck something in[†] to pack something into something. □ She chucked her clothes into the suitcase and left. □ Just chuck in all your clothes and let's go.

chuck something over something to throw something over something. □ Here, chuck this over the wall, and let's go. □ If you chuck another can over the fence, I will file a complaint.

chuck something up[†] to vomit something up. □ Don't give chocolate to the dog. It will just chuck it up later. □ The dog chucked up the grass it had eaten.

chuckle about someone or something and chuckle over someone or something to giggle about someone or something. □ I had to chuckle about Wally and his story about that broken-down old car. □ We chuckled over how angry Jed was.

chuckle with something and chortle with something to giggle in some manner because one is gleeful or happy. □ He chuckled with unsuppressed mirth at the antics of the strangely dressed people. □ Sally chortled with glee at the thought of Ken slipping on the ice.

chug along 1. Lit. [for a train engine] to labor along slowly. (Steam locomotives made the sound “chug, chug.”) □ The train chugged along to the top of the hill. 2. Fig. to move along at a steady pace. □ We chugged along for two hours but finally made it home.

chum up to someone to try or seem to become friendly with someone. □ Todd chummed up to Martin. □ I don't want to have to chum up to anyone I don't want to work with.

chum up with someone to become friendly with someone. □ He seems to have chummed up with Fred. □ Juan quickly chummed up with all the guys in his class.

a chunk of change Fig. a lot of money. □ Tom's new sports car cost a real big chunk of change!

chuck something Rur. to throw something. □ The kids were out chucking rocks into the lake. □ Somebody chucked a snowball at me!

Church ain't out till they quit singing. Rur. things have not yet reached the end. □ Charlie: No way our team can win now. Mary: Church ain't out till they quit singing. There's another inning to go.

church key a two-ended device used to remove bottle tops and to pierce a hole in can lids. □ I'm looking for the church key so I can open this beer. □ She opened the can of tomato juice with the church key.

churn something out[†] to produce something in large numbers, perhaps carelessly. □ We churn toys out by the thousand. □ This factory can churn out these parts day and night.

churn something up[†] to stir up a liquid; to mix up material suspended in water. □ The oars of our boat churned the shallow water up, leaving little clouds of sediment in our wake. □ The oars churned up the mud.

circle around (over someone or something) [for a plane or a bird] to fly around above someone, something, or some place. □ The plane circled around over us for a few minutes and then went on. □ It circled around over the field.

circle around someone or something Go to around someone or something.

circulate among someone or something to move at random within a gathering of people or things. □ Karen circulated among the guests, serving drinks. □ The guests circulated among the various rooms in the house.

circulate something through something to route something through something; to make something travel through something. □ Walter circulated the memo from the boss through the department. □ I would like for you to circulate this through the members of the club.

circulate through something 1. Lit. [for a fluid in a closed system of pipes or tubes] to flow through the various pathways of pipes and tubes. □ Cold water circulates through the entire building and keeps it cool. □ Blood circulates through the veins and arteries, reaching all parts of the body. 2. Fig. to move through a group of people or an area, from person to person. □ Rumors circulated through the department about Tom's retirement. □ Please circulate through the room and hand out these papers to each person.

Circumstances alter cases. Prov. In unusual situations, people are allowed to do unusual things. □ Cashier: I'm sorry, this store does not accept personal checks. Customer: But I need this medicine, and I don't have any cash. I've shopped at this store for fifteen years. Surely you can trust me this once. Cashier: Well, all right. Circumstances alter cases.

cite someone for something 1. to honor someone for doing something; to give someone a citation of honor for doing something good. □ The town council cited her for bravery. □ They cited Maria for her courageous act. 2. to charge or arraign someone for breaking a law; to issue a legal citation to someone for breaking a law. □ An officer cited the driver for driving too fast. □ The housing department cited the landlord for sanitary violations.

city slicker someone from the city who is not familiar with country ways. □ Them city slickers think we're stupid just because we talk different. □ The city slicker didn't know the first thing about fishing for trout.

Civility costs nothing. and Courtesy costs nothing. Prov. It never hurts you to be polite. □ Always greet people politely, no matter what you think of them. Civility costs nothing. □ Why not write Mildred a thank-you note? Courtesy costs nothing.

claim a life Fig. [for something] to take the life of someone. □ The killer tornado claimed the lives of six people at the trailer park. □ The athlete's life was claimed in a skiing accident.

claim something for someone or something to declare rights to or control of something for someone, or that something is the property of someone, a group, or a nation. □ The small country claimed the mountainous area for itself. □ Roger claimed all the rest of the ice cream for himself.

claim something for something to make a claim for money in payment for damages. □ David claimed one thousand dollars for the damaged car. □ She claimed a lot of money for the amount of harm she experienced.

clam up to say nothing. (Closing one's mouth in the way that a clam closes up.) □ The minute they got him in for questioning, he clammed up. □ You'll clam up if you know what's good for you.

clamber onto something and clamber in(to something); clamber on to climb onto something clumsily. □ The kids clambered onto the tractor and tried to start it. □ The wagon stopped and the kids clambered on. □ All the campers clambered into the bus.

clamber up (something) to climb up something, especially in a particular way. □ The wall climbers clambered up the wall quickly. □ Tricia clambered up the ladder and cautiously went down again.

clamor against someone or something to raise a great outcry against someone or something. □ The protestors clamored against the mayor. □ The citizens clamored against the new taxes.

clamor for someone or something to raise a great outcry for someone or something. □ Everyone was clamoring for Mark. They just loved him. □ The children were clamoring for ice cream.

clamp down (on someone or something) to become strict with someone; to become strict about something. □ Because Bob's grades were getting worse, his parents clamped down on him. □ The police have clamped down on speeders in this town.

clamp something on(to) something and clamp something on¹ to press or squeeze something onto something else. □ Clamp this board onto the workbench. □ Clear a place near the edge of the table, and then clamp on the meat grinder.

clap eyes on someone or something to see someone or something, perhaps for the first time; to set eyes on someone or something. □ I wish she had never clapped eyes on her fiancé. □ I haven't clapped eyes on a red squirrel for years.

clap someone in(to) some place to shove or push someone into a place, usually jail. □ Be good or the sheriff will clap you into jail. □ The cops clapped Max into a cell.

clap something on(to) something to slap or attack something onto something else. □ The police came and clapped a sign onto the car saying it was abandoned. □ Do not clap any signs on my fence.

clap something out¹ to clap the rhythmic beat of something in order to learn it. (Said of music.) □ All right, now. Let's clap the rhythm out. □ We'll clap out the rhythm in time with our singing.

clap something together to slap two things, usually hands, together so that they make a noise. □ The boys clapped their hands together whenever a goal was scored. □ One of the orchestra members clapped two blocks of wood together periodically, making a very loud noise.

clash against something to wage a battle or attack against someone or something. □ The troops clashed against the enemy. □ We clashed against the opposite side for over three days.

clash (with someone) (over someone or something) to fight or argue with someone about someone or something. □ The customer clashed with the pharmacist over the price of the medicine. □ I clashed over my pay increase with the school principal.

clash with something [for the color of something] to conflict with or mismatch another color. □ This red carpet clashes with the purple of the drapes. □ This red does not clash with purple. It looks gorgeous.

clasp someone or something to something to hold on to and press someone or something to a part of one's body. □ He clasped a wad of cloth to the bleeding wound. □ She clasped the child to her breast and hugged him.

class someone or something with someone or something to group someone or something with someone or something considered similar. □ Please don't class this car with anything you've ever driven before. □ The sportswriters classed this team with some of the all-time best in history.

clatter around and clatter something around to move around among things, making noise. □ Stop clattering around! It's late. □ I wish you would not clatter those dishes around.

claw one's way to the top Fig. to climb to the most prestigious level of something ruthlessly. □ He was the type of hard-hitting guy who claws his way to the top. □ She clawed her way to the top, fighting at every step.

claw something off someone or something and claw something off¹ to rip or tear something off from someone or something. □ We saw a guy clawing his burning clothes off himself. □ He clawed off his burning clothes.

clean as a hound's tooth and clean as a whistle 1. Rur. Cliché very clean. (*Also: as ~.) □ After his mother scrubbed him thoroughly, the baby was as clean as a hound's tooth. □ The car was as clean as a whistle after the Girl Scouts washed it. 2. *Rur. Cliché innocent and free from sin or wrong. (Also: as ~.) □ Jane's record was clean as a whistle; she had never committed even the smallest infraction.

C

clean as a whistle Go to previous.

*a clean bill of health Fig. a physician's determination that a person is in good condition, especially following an illness, surgery, etc. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Sally got a clean bill of health from the doctor. □ Now that Sally has a clean bill of health, she can go back to work.

clean one's act up[†] to reform one's conduct; to improve one's performance. □ We were told to clean our act up or move out. □ I cleaned up my act, but not in time. I got kicked out.

clean one's plate Go to clean up one's plate.

clean out (of something) Go to fresh out (of something).

clean someone or something down[†] to clean someone or something by brushing or with flowing water. □ He was covered with mud, and we used the garden hose to clean him down. □ Please clean down the sidewalk.

clean someone or something out of something and clean someone or something out[†] to remove people or things from something or some place. □ Someone should clean those bums out of political office. □ Let's clean out the garage this weekend; I can't get the car in.

clean someone or something up[†] to get someone or something clean. □ Please go into the bathroom and clean yourself up. □ I'll clean up the kids before we leave for dinner. □ Can you clean this place up a little?

clean someone out[†] 1. Fig. to get or use up all of someone's money. □ The bill for supper cleaned me out, and we couldn't go to the flick. □ The robbers cleaned out all the bank's cash. 2. Fig. to empty someone's bowels. □ That medicine I took really cleaned me out. □ Whatever was in that stew cleaned out every kid in the entire scout camp.

clean someone's plow Rur. to beat someone up. □ If Joe crosses me one more time, I'll clean his plow for sure. □ Somebody must have really cleaned Bill's plow last night. He had two black eyes this morning!

clean something off[†] and clean something off something to take something off something; to remove something such as dirt or dirty dishes. □ Please clean the table off and put the dishes in the kitchen. □ I'll clean off the table. □ Judy cleaned the writing off the wall.

clean something out[†] to remove dirt or unwanted things from the inside of something. □ Someone has to clean the garage out. □ I'll clean out my closet tonight.

a clean sweep a broad movement clearing or affecting everything in its pathway. (See also make a clean sweep. Usually figurative.) □ The manager and everybody in accounting got fired in a clean sweep of that department. □ Everybody got a pay rise. It was a clean sweep.

clean the floor up[†] with someone Fig. to beat someone up. □ If you don't shut up, I'll clean up the floor with you. □ You won't clean the floor up with me!

clean up (on something) Fig. to make a lot of money on something. □ The promoters cleaned up on the product. □ If we get this invention to market soon, we can clean up.

clean (up) one's plate to eat all the food on one's plate. □ You have to clean up your plate before you can leave the table. □ Mom said we can't watch TV tonight unless we clean our plates.

clean-cut having to do with a person (usually male) who is neat and tidy. □ He's a very clean-cut guy, and polite too. □ He's sort of clean-cut looking, but with curly hair.

cleaned out 1. Fig. broke; with no money. □ I'm cleaned out. Not a cent left. □ Tom's cleaned out. How will he pay his bills now? 2. Fig. with one's digestive tract emptied. □ That medicine really left me cleaned out.

Cleanliness is next to godliness. Prov. It is very important to keep yourself clean. □ Child: How come I have to take a bath? Mother: Cleanliness is next to godliness. □ The woman sitting next to me on the bus had obviously never heard that cleanliness is next to godliness.

clear as a bell very clear, as with the sound of a bell. (*Also: as ~.) □ I fixed the radio, so now all the stations come in clear as a bell. □ Through the wall, I could hear the neighbors talking, just as clear as a bell.

clear as crystal 1. Cliché very clear; transparent. (*Also: as ~.) □ The stream was as clear as crystal. □ She cleaned the windowpane until it was clear as crystal. 2. Cliché very clear; easy to understand. (*Also: as ~.) □ The explanation was as clear as crystal. □ Her lecture was not clear as crystal, but at least it was not dull.

clear as mud 1. Cliché not clear at all. (*Also: as ~.) □ Your swimming pool needs cleaning; the water is clear as mud. 2. Cliché not easy to understand. (*Also: as ~.) □ This physics chapter is clear as mud to me. □ I did all the reading, but it's still as clear as mud.

clear as vodka Go to clear as crystal.

clear of something without touching something; away from something. (*Typically: keep ~; move ~; remain ~; stand ~.) □ Please stand clear of the doors while the train is moving. □ Make sure the dog moves clear of the driveway before backing the car up.

clear off ((of) some place) to depart; to get off someone's property. □ Clear off my property! □ Clear off, do you hear?

clear out (of some place) to get out of some place. □ Will you all clear out of here? □ Please clear out!

clear sailing and smooth sailing Fig. a situation where progress is made without any difficulty. (*Typically: be ~; have ~.) □ Once you've passed that exam, it will be clear sailing to graduation. □ Working there was not all smooth sailing. The boss had a very bad temper.

clear someone of something to show that a person is innocent; to exonerate someone of a crime. (See also clear someone's name.) □ An investigation cleared me of any wrongdoing. □ They were unable to clear themselves of the charges.

clear someone or something out of some place and clear someone or something out[†] to make someone or something leave a place. □ Please clear all the people out of here. □ Clear out the people quickly, please.

clear someone's name to prove that someone is not guilty of a crime or misdeed. (See also clear someone of something.) □ I was accused of theft, but the real thief confessed and I cleared my name.

clear something away^t to take something away. □ Please clear the children's toys away. □ Would you clear away the dishes?

clear something for publication to approve the release of something so it can be published. □ The government refused to clear the story for publication. □ I want to clear this for publication as soon as possible.

clear something from some place to take something away from a place. □ Please clear all these papers from the desk. □ Would you clear the dishes from the table?

clear something off something and clear something off^t to take something off something. □ Please clear the dishes off the table. □ I'll clear off the dishes.

clear something up^t 1. to make something more clear. □ Let the muddy water stand overnight so it will clear up. □ A strong wind blew in and cleared up the smoke in the air. 2. to explain something; to solve a mystery. □ I think that we can clear this matter up without calling in the police. □ First we have to clear up the problem of the missing jewels. 3. to cause a rash or inflammation to return to normal; to cause skin to "clear." □ There is some new medicine that will clear your rash up. 4. to cure a disease or a medical condition. □ The doctor will give you something to clear up your congestion.

clear something with someone or something to get someone's approval for something. □ You will have to clear this expenditure with the main office. □ I will clear your trip with Dad.

clear the air 1. Lit. to get rid of stale or bad air. □ Open some windows and clear the air. It's stuffy in here. 2. Fig. to get rid of doubts or hard feelings. □ All right, let's discuss this frankly. It'll be better if we clear the air.

clear the decks 1. Lit. [for everyone] leave the deck of a ship and prepare for action. (A naval expression urging seaman to stow gear and prepare for battle or other action.) □ An attack is coming. Clear the decks. 2. Fig. get out of the way; get out of this area. □ Clear the decks! Here comes the teacher. □ Clear the decks and take your seats.

clear the table to remove the dishes and other eating utensils from the table after a meal. (Compare this with set the table.) □ Will you please help clear the table? □ After you clear the table, we'll play cards.

Clear the way! Please get out of the way, because someone or something is coming through and needs room! □ The movers were shouting, "Clear the way!" because they needed room to take the piano out of the house.

clear up 1. [for the sky] to become more clear or sunny. □ Suddenly, the sky cleared up. □ When the sky cleared up, the breeze began to blow. 2. [for something] to become more understandable. □ At about the middle of the very confusing lecture, things began to clear up. □ I was having trouble, but things are beginning to clear up. 3. [for a rash or skin condition] to clear the skin and return to normal. □ I'm sure your rash will clear up soon. 4. [for a minor illness] to improve or become cured. □ His cold cleared up after a couple of weeks.

cleave to someone to be sexually faithful, usually to one's husband. (Biblical. As in the traditional marriage ceremony, "And cleave only unto him.") □ She promised to cleave only to him for the rest of her life.

click with someone 1. [for something] to be understood or comprehended by someone suddenly. □ His explanation clicked with Maggie at once. 2. [for someone or something new] to catch on with someone; to become popular or friendly with someone very quickly. □ The new product clicked with consumers and was an instant success. □ I clicked with Tom the moment I met him.

climb down (from something) to dismount something; to come down from something. □ The child climbed down from the roof. □ Please climb down!

climb on Go to climb on(to) something.

climb on the bandwagon Go to on the bandwagon.

climb on(to) something and climb on to ascend to or mount something. □ I climbed onto the side of the truck. □ Tommy climbed on the truck.

climb out (of something) to get, crawl, or move out of something. □ He climbed out of the wreckage and examined himself carefully for injuries. □ He climbed out very carefully.

climb the wall(s) Fig. to be very agitated, anxious, bored, or excited. □ He was home for only three days; then he began to climb the wall. □ I was climbing the walls to get back to work.

climb up (something) to ascend something; to scale something. (Fixed order.) □ The hikers took two hours to climb up the hill. □ The adventurer tried to climb up the side of the cliff.

cling to someone or something 1. Lit. to hold on tight to someone or something. □ The child clung tightly to his mother. □ As she drifted in the sea, she clung to a floating log. 2. Fig. to hold onto the thought or memory of someone or something; to have a strong emotional attachment to or dependence on someone or something. □ Her immigrant parents clung to the old ways. □ Harold clung to the memory of his grandmother.

cling together [for two or more people or animals] to hold on tightly to each other. □ The two children clung together throughout the ordeal. □ The baby baboon and its mother clung together and could not be separated.

clip someone's wings Fig. to restrain someone; to reduce or put an end to someone's privileges. (Alludes to clipping a bird's wings to keep it from flying away.) □ You had better learn to get home on time, or I will clip your wings. □ My mother clipped my wings. I can't go out tonight.

clip something from something to cut something out of or away from something; to cut something off something. □ I clipped the picture from the magazine. □ I clipped the straggly hairs from his head.

clip something on(to) someone or something and clip something on^t to attach something to someone or something with a clip. □ I clipped a little name tag onto him before I put him on the plane. □ I clipped on a name tag.

clip something out of something and clip something out^t to remove something from something by clipping or cutting. □ Please clip the article out of the magazine. □ Could you clip out the picture, too?

cloak someone or something in secrecy Fig. to hide or conceal someone or something in secrecy. □ Patrick cloaked his activities in secrecy. □ The agents cloaked the spy in secrecy, making her identity a mystery.

cloak-and-dagger involving secrecy and plotting. □ A great deal of cloak-and-dagger stuff goes on in political circles. □ A lot of cloak-and-dagger activity was involved in the appointment of the director.

clock in to record one's time of arrival, usually by punching a time clock. □ What time did she clock in? □ She forgot to clock in today.

clock out to record one's time of departure, usually by punching a time clock. □ I will clock out just before I go home. □ Jim clocked out early Tuesday to go to the doctor.

clock someone in to observe and record someone's time of arrival. □ The manager says he clocked you in at noon. That's a bit late, isn't it?

clock someone or something at something to measure the speed of someone or something to be a certain figure. □ I clocked the runner at a record speed for the race. □ Karen clocked the race at three minutes flat.

clock someone out to observe and record someone's time of departure. □ Jane clocked herself out and went home.

clock someone at speeds of some amount Go to speeds of some amount.

clock something up¹ to record the accumulated hours, miles, etc., of some device or machine. (The recording is usually done by a meter of some type such as a speedometer, an elapsed time meter, etc. □ She must have clocked two hundred flying hours up in six months. □ She clocked up a lot of hours. 2. to reach a goal that is worthy of being recorded. (Typically sports journalism. Compare this with chalk something up.) □ Patrick clocked a fantastic number of points up this year. □ He sure clocked up a lot of goals.

clock-watcher someone—a worker or a student—who is always looking at the clock, anticipating when something will be over. □ There are four clock-watchers in our office. □ People who don't like their jobs can turn into clock-watchers.

clog someone up[†] [for some kind of food] to constipate someone. □ This cheese clogs me up. I can't eat it. □ This food clogs up people who eat it.

clog something up[†] [for something] to obstruct a channel or conduit. □ The leaves clogged the gutters up. □ They clogged up the gutter.

clog something with something to block or obstruct a channel or conduit with something. □ The neighbors clogged the creek with their brush and leaves. □ Please don't clog the drain with garbage.

clog up [for a channel or conduit] to become blocked. □ The canal clogged up with leaves and mud.

close a deal and close the deal to formally conclude bargaining; to bring negotiating to an end by reaching an agreement. □ We negotiated the terms of the agreement, and this afternoon we will close the deal.

close a sale and close the sale to complete the sale of something; to seal a bargain in the sale of something. □

The salesman closed the sale and the customer drove off in a brand new car.

close as two coats of paint Cliché close and intimate. (*Also: as ~.) □ When Tom and Mary were in high school, they were as close as two coats of paint. □ All their lives, the cousins were close as two coats of paint.

close at hand within reach; handy. □ I'm sorry, but your letter isn't close at hand. Please remind me what you said in it. □ When you're cooking, you should keep all the ingredients close at hand.

Close, but no cigar. Cliché Some effort came close to succeeding, but did not succeed. (Alludes to not quite winning a cigar as a prize.) □ Jill: How did you do in the contest? Jane: Close, but no cigar. I got second place.

a close call Go to a close shave.

close chower and a tight spitter Rur. someone who hates to spend money; a cheapskate. □ He's a close chower and a tight spitter. Everything about him looks run-down, but he's probably the richest man in the county.

close down and shut down [for someone] to close a business, office, shop, etc., permanently or temporarily. □ This shop will have to close down if they raise taxes. □ The fire department closed down all the stores on the block because of the gas leak.

close enough for government work and good enough for government work sufficiently close; done just well enough. (Alludes to the notion that work for the government is not done with care or pride.) □ I didn't do the best job of mending your shirt, but it's close enough for government work.

close enough to use the same toothpick Rur. very close. (Used to describe close friends.) □ We've been friends since we were five years old. We're close enough to use the same toothpick.

close (in) around someone or something to move to surround someone or something. □ The police closed in around the thieves. □ We closed in around the enemy camp.

close in for the kill and move in for the kill¹. Lit. to move in on someone or something for the purpose of killing. □ The wolves closed in for the kill. □ When the lions closed in for the kill, the zebras began to stampede. 2. Fig. to get ready to do the final and climactic part of something. □ The car salesman closed in for the kill with contract and pen in hand.

close in (on someone or something)¹. Lit. to move inward on someone or something. □ The cops were closing in on the thugs. □ They closed in quietly and trapped the bear. 2. Fig. [for threats or negative feelings] to overwhelm or seem to surround someone or something. □ My problems are closing in on me. □ I feel trapped. Everything is closing in.

close on something to formally complete the sale and transfer of property, especially real estate. □ We closed on the new house on April 16. □ We were able to close on our old house on June 2.

close one's eyes to something and shut one's eyes to something¹. Lit. to close one's eyes to avoid seeing something unpleasant. □ I had to close my eyes to the carnage about me. I couldn't bear to look. 2. Fig. to ignore something; to pretend that something is not happening. □

Maria simply shut her eyes to the bad morale in her department.

Close only counts in horseshoes (and hand grenades). Prov. Coming close but not succeeding is not good enough. □ I came close to winning the election, but close only counts in horseshoes and hand grenades.

close ranks to move closer together in a military formation. □ The soldiers closed ranks and marched on the enemy in tight formation.

close ranks (behind someone or something) to support someone or something; to back someone or something. □ We will close ranks behind the party's nominee. □ Let's close ranks behind her and give her the support she needs.

close ranks (with someone) to join with someone in a cause, or agreement. □ We can fight this menace only if we close ranks. □ Let's all close ranks with Ann and adopt her suggestions.

a close shave and a close call a narrow escape. (See also have a close shave.) □ Wow, that was a close shave. I thought the guard would spot us. □ The speeding car passed only a few inches from us—a real close call.

close someone or something down[†] to force someone or someone's business, office, shop, etc., to close permanently or temporarily. □ The health department closed the restaurant down. □ They closed down the same place last year, too.

close someone or something in (something) to contain someone or something in something or some place; to seal someone or something inside something. □ Don't close the bird in such a small cage. □ Don't close me in! Leave the door open.

close someone out of something and close someone out[†] to prevent someone from getting into something, such as a class, a room, a waiting list, etc. □ They closed me out of the class I wanted. □ I got in, but they closed out everyone after me in line.

close someone up[†] to close a surgical wound at the end of a surgical procedure. □ Fred, would you close her up for me? □ Fred closed up the patient.

close something down[†] and shut something down[†] to make something stop operating; to put something out of business. □ The police closed the illegal casino down. □ The manager shut down the factory for the holidays.

close something off[†] to prevent entrance into something; to block something off. □ Please don't close this passageway off. □ They closed off the passageway anyway.

close something out[†] 1. to sell off a particular kind of merchandise with the intention of not selling it in the future. □ These are not selling. Let's close them out. □ They closed out all of last season's merchandise. 2. to prevent further registration in something. □ We are going to have to close this class out. □ The registrar closed out the class.

close something to someone to prevent someone or some type of person from participating in or attending something. □ We closed membership to anyone who signed up late. □ They had to close the registration to nonresidents.

close something up[†] 1. to close someone's business, office, shop, etc., temporarily or permanently. □ Tom's restaurant nearly went out of business when the health depart- ment closed him up. □ The health department closed up the restaurant. 2. to close something that is open, such as a door or a box. □ Please close the door when you leave.

close the books on someone or something Fig. to declare that a matter concerning someone or something is finished. (The books here originally referred to financial accounting records.) □ It's time to close the books on Fred. He's had enough time to apologize to us.

close the deal Go to close a deal.

close the door on someone or something Go to shut the door (up) on someone or something.

close the door to someone or something Go to shut the door (up) on someone or something.

close the sale Go to close a sale.

close to home Fig. affecting one personally and intimately. □ Her remarks were a bit too close to home. I took her review as a personal insult.

close to someone friendly or intimate with someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ She is very shy and really won't let anyone get close to her. □ It is difficult to get close to a loner like Wally.

close to someone or something 1. near someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; stand ~; sit ~; move ~.) □ Don't get close to me. I have a cold. □ If you get close to the fire, you may get burned. 2. approximating someone or something in some quality or measure. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ This brand of frozen fish does not even get close to that brand in flavor and freshness. □ Tom doesn't even get close to Nancy when it comes to artistic ability.

close up 1. Lit. [for an opening] to close completely. □ The door closed up and would not open again. □ The wound will close up completely in a day or so. 2. Fig. [for a place of business] to close for business. □ The store closed up and did not open until the next day.

close up shop Fig. to quit working, for the day or forever. (Fixed order.) □ It's five o'clock. Time to close up shop. □ I can't make any money in this town. The time has come to close up shop and move to another town.

close with someone or something to end a performance with a particular act or event. □ The show is almost over and we will close with Sarah Miles, who will announce her own song title. □ The evening closed with a magic act.

closefisted (with money) Go to tightfisted (with money).

closet someone with someone to put someone into a private room with someone else for the purposes of conducting business. □ She closeted herself with the president and finally, once and for all, had her say.

clothe someone in something to dress someone in something. □ She clothed her children in the finest garments. □ He clothed himself in his tuxedo for the wedding.

Clothes make the man. Prov. People will judge you according to the way you dress. □ Jim was always careful about how he dressed. He believed that clothes make the man.

cloud over 1. Lit. [for the sky] to fill with clouds; [for the sun] to be obscured by clouds. □ It was beginning to cloud over, so we went inside. □ The sky clouded over and it began to get chilly. 2. Fig. [for something once clear] to become opaque; to become clouded. My vision seemed to cloud over, and I could see very little. The mirror clouded over as the steam rose from the hot water in the sink.

cloud up 1. Lit. [for the sky] to get cloudy, as if it were going to rain. All of a sudden it clouded up and began to rain. It usually clouds up at the top of the mountain.

2. Fig. [for someone] to grow very sad, as if to cry. Whenever Mary got homesick, she'd cloud up. She really wanted to go home.

clown around (with someone) Fig. to join with someone in acting silly; [for two or more people] to act silly together. The boys were clowning around with each other. The kids are having fun clowning around.

clue someone in[†] (on something) to inform someone of something. Please clue me in on what's been going on. Clue in those guys before it's too late.

clunk down [for something] to drop or fall, making the sound "clunk." A large piece of metal clunked down right in front of me. A tree branch clunked down on the roof and damaged a few shingles.

clunk something down[†] to drop or place something heavily on something so that it makes a clunking noise. He clunked the big box down on the table. He clunked down all his school books on the table.

cluster around someone or something [for a group of people or things] to bunch together, surrounding someone or something. The birds clustered around the chimney top to keep warm. The kids clustered around the police officer.

cluster someone or something around someone or something to bunch people or things together around someone or something. She clustered the cups around the punch bowl. Karen clustered the children around the fire.

cluster together to bunch or group together. All of the bats clustered together on the roof of the cave. The children clustered together in small groups here and there on the playground.

clutch at someone or something to grasp at or grab for someone or something. He clutched at the roots of the trees along the bank, but the flood swept him away. Karen clutched at me, but lost her grip.

clutch at straws Fig. to continue to seek solutions, ideas, or hopes that are insubstantial. When you talk of cashing in quick on your inventions, you are just clutching at straws. That is not a real solution to the problem. You are just clutching at straws.

clutch someone or something to something to grasp and hold someone or something to something. She clutched the baby to her bosom. Lee clutched the ice pack to his head.

clutch (up) to become very tense and anxious; to freeze with anxiety. I have been known to clutch before a big game. Just relax, play your game, and you won't clutch!

clutter something up[†] to mess something up; to fill something or some place up with too many things. Heaps of newspapers cluttered the room up and made it a fire hazard. Who cluttered up this house?

coach someone for something to train or drill someone in preparation for doing something. Elliott coached his roommate every night for the contest. Juan coached Alice for the play.

coalesce into something [for two or more things] to blend or fuse and become one thing. The fading colors coalesced into a gray blur. In the distance, the crowd coalesced into a single blob.

coast along to roll or move along with little or no effort. We just coasted along on the flat prairie. We coasted along until we came to the bottom of the hill.

The coast is clear. There is no visible danger. I'm going to stay hidden here until the coast is clear. You can come out of your hiding place now. The coast is clear.

coast-to-coast from the Atlantic to the Pacific Oceans (in the continental U.S.A.); all the land between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans (considered in either direction). My voice was once heard on a coast-to-coast radio broadcast. Our car made the coast-to-coast trip in eighty hours.

coat and tie [for men] a jacket or sports coat and necktie. (A respectable but less than formal standard of dress.) My brother was not wearing a coat and tie, and they would not admit him into the restaurant. I always carry a coat and tie in my car just in case I have to dress up a little for something.

coat someone or something with something to put a layer of something on someone or something. Her manager coated her with grease before she began the Channel swim. The cook coated the chicken with batter and dropped it into the hot fat.

coax someone or an animal in(to something) 1. to urge or persuade someone or an animal to go into something. We coaxed the lion into the cage with fresh meat. The teacher coaxed the child into the kindergarten classroom.

2. to urge or persuade someone or an animal into doing something. We coaxed her into singing for us. Janet coaxed the dog into sitting up and begging.

coax someone or an animal out of something 1. to urge or persuade someone or an animal to give something up. He almost wouldn't sell it, but I coaxed him out of it. I coaxed the cat out of the canary it was holding in its mouth.

2. to urge or persuade someone or an animal to come out of something. She coaxed the puppy out of the carton. Janet coaxed the child out of the closet with a promise of a piece of cake.

coax someone to do something to urge someone to do something. The kids coaxed her to let them go swimming. Can I coax you to try some of this pie?

cobble something up[†] and cobble something together to make something or put something together hastily or carelessly. Who cobbled this thing up? Take it apart and start over. The kids cobbled up their model planes badly. It looks like you cobbled together that report just last night.

cock a snook at someone to show or express defiance or scorn at someone. He cocked a snook at the traffic cop and tore up the ticket. The boy cocked a snook at the park attendant and walked on the grass.

cock of the walk someone who acts more important than others in a group. The deputy manager was cock of the walk until the new manager arrived. □ He loved acting cock of the walk and ordering everyone about.

cock-and-bull story a hard-to-believe, made-up story; a story that is a lie. □ Don't give me that cock-and-bull story. □ I asked for an explanation, and all I got was your ridiculous cock-and-bull story!

cocky as the king of spades boastful; overly proud. (*Also: as ~.) □ He'd challenge anyone to a fight. He's as cocky as the king of spades. □ She strutted in, cocky as the king of spades.

coerce someone or an animal into something to force or compel someone or an animal to do something. □ I could not coerce her into coming along with us. □ You cannot coerce a cat into anything.

coexist with someone or something to exist agreeably or tolerably with or at the same time as someone or something. □ I decided that I would have to coexist with your policies, despite my objections. □ It is hard for cats to coexist with dogs.

coffee and coffee and a doughnut or a pastry. □ I'll have coffee and. □ We stopped at a little shop for coffee and.

coffee and Danish a cup of coffee and a Danish sweet roll. □ A few of us like to have coffee and Danish before we start work. □ Coffee and Danish is not my idea of a good breakfast!

coffee-table book a book that is more suitable for display than for reading, typically, an oversize, illustrated book left on the coffee table for visitors to examine. □ This book is more of a coffee-table book than an art book. I prefer something more scholarly. □ We purchased a coffee-table book for Jan's birthday.

cogitate on something Rur. to think about something. □ Cogitate on this idea for a while. □ I will have to cogitate on this for a few days. I'll get back to you.

cohabit with someone 1. [for an unmarried person] to live with a person of the opposite sex. □ They were cohabiting with one another for several years. 2. Euph. to copulate with someone. □ She had been cohabiting with him, and she admitted it in court.

coil (itself) around someone or something [for something or an animal] to wrap itself around someone or something. □ The monkey's tail coiled itself around the branch. □ The huge python coiled around poor Roger.

coil (itself) up [for something] to wrap or roll itself into a coil. □ The snake coiled itself up, trying to hide. □ It coiled up, ready to strike.

coil (itself) up into something [for something] to wrap or twist itself into a particular shape. □ The frightened snaked coiled itself up into a knot. □ The spring coiled up into its original shape.

coil something up[†] to roll or twist something into a coil. □ Maria coiled the strip of stamps up and put them in the little dispenser. □ Please coil up the rope.

coin a phrase Fig. to create a new expression that is worthy of being remembered and repeated. (Often jocular.) □ He is "worth his weight in feathers," to coin a phrase.

coincide with something to agree with or match something; [for something] to happen at the same time as something else. □ This pattern coincides with the pattern we see in the carpet. □ My birthday sometimes coincides with Thanksgiving Day.

cold as a welldigger's ass (in January) and cold as a welldigger's feet (in January); *cold as a witch's caress; *cold as marble; *cold as a witch's tit; *cold as a welldigger's ears (in January) very, very cold; chilling. (Use caution with ass. *Also: as ~.) □ Bill: How's the weather where you are? Tom: Cold as a welldigger's ass in January. □ By the time I got in from the storm, I was as cold as a welldigger's feet. □ The car's heater broke, so it's as cold as a welldigger's ears to ride around in it. □ She gave me a look as cold as a witch's caress.

cold as a welldigger's feet (in January) Go to previous.

cold as a witch's tit Go to cold as a welldigger's ass (in January).

cold as marble Go to cold as a welldigger's ass (in January).

coldcock someone to knock someone unconscious. □ He hit him once and looks like he coldcocked him. □ She coldcocked him with her walking stick.

cold comfort no comfort or consolation at all. □ She knows there are others worse off than her, but that's cold comfort. □ It was cold comfort to the student that others had failed as he had done.

cold feet Fig. fear of doing something; cowardice at the moment of action. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ The bridegroom got cold feet on the day of the wedding. □ Sally said I should try skydiving, but I had cold feet.

a cold fish Fig. a person who is distant and unfeeling. (*Typically: act like ~; be ~.) □ Bob is so dull—a real cold fish. □ She hardly ever speaks to anyone. She's a cold fish.

Cold hands, warm heart. Prov. People whose hands are usually cold have kind and loving personalities. □ Nancy: I don't like holding hands with Joe. His hands are so cold. Jane: Cold hands, warm heart.

cold, hard cash cash, not checks or credit. □ I want to be paid in cold, hard cash, and I want to be paid now! □ Pay me now! Cash on the barrelhead—cold, hard cash.

cold-shoulder to ignore someone; to give someone a cool reception. (See also the cold shoulder.) □ The hostess cold-shouldered me, so I spilt my appetizers in the swimming pool. □ Tiffany cold-shouldered the guy who was trying to flirt with her.

the cold shoulder Fig. an attitude of rejection. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ If you greet her at a party, you'll just get the cold shoulder. □ I thought that Sally and I were friends, but lately I've been getting the cold shoulder.

cold sober Go to stone (cold) sober.

cold turkey Sl. immediately; without tapering off or cutting down gradually. (See also go cold turkey. Originally drug slang. Now used of breaking any habit.) □ Tom stopped smoking cold turkey. □ She gave up her drinking habit cold turkey and had no ill effects.

C

collaborate with someone or something to work together on something with someone or a group. □ I will collaborate with Amy on this research. □ I was forced to collaborate with a totally uninformed committee.

collapse into something 1. Lit. to fall down into something with suddenness, as if out of energy. □ She was so tired, she collapsed into the chair. □ Juan collapsed into a chair and fell fast asleep. 2. Fig. [for someone] to fall into a particular kind of despair. □ The poor man collapsed into a deep depression. □ Scott collapsed into his own personal brand of grieving.

collapse under someone or something to cave in under the weight of someone or something. □ The grandstand collapsed under the weight of the spectators. □ The bridge collapsed from the force of the flood.

collar-and-tie men Rur. businessmen who wear dress shirts and ties. □ After Jim graduated from college, he went off to join the collar-and-tie men. □ Us working folks at the plant have an awful time getting the collar-and-tie men to see our point of view.

collate something with something to compare or match something with something. □ Try to collate these figures with that other list. □ I can't collate these notations with the spreadsheet they go with.

collect around someone or something to gather around someone or something; to accumulate around someone or something. □ The guests collected around the table that held the birthday cake. □ The children collected around the birthday boy.

collect (money) for someone or something to solicit money for the benefit of someone or something. □ I would like to collect some money for Fred, who is in the hospital. □ I am collecting for the church building fund.

collect (money) for something to solicit money that is owed. □ I'm collecting money for payment on your loan. □ Someone is calling to collect for the newspaper delivery.

collect on something to take or receive payment on a debt or promise. □ I have come to collect on your debt. □ I will have to assign your account to an agency to collect on this bill.

collect one's thoughts Fig. to take time to think through an issue; to give some thought to a topic. □ I'll speak to the visitors in a moment. I need some time to collect my thoughts.

collect something from someone 1. to gather up something from someone; to gather money from someone. □ I'm here to collect used clothing from you. □ She is out collecting donations from the neighbors. 2. to take a medical specimen from a person. □ I am here to collect a urine specimen from the patient. □ The phlebotomist collected the specimen from Todd and left the room.

collect something up[†] to gather something up. □ Collect your things up, and let's go. □ I collected up all my luggage and left.

collide with someone or something to crash with or bump into someone or something. □ The bus collided with a truck. □ Maria collided with Alice, but neither was hurt.

collude with someone or something to plot or conspire with someone or a group. □ The CEO colluded with the board of directors in the stock scandal.

color something in[†] to paint or draw color on a pattern or outline. □ Here is a sketch. Please color it in. □ Color in the sketch, please.

comb something for someone or something Fig. to look all over or all through something for a particular person or thing. □ The police combed the entire neighborhood for the criminals. □ I combed the entire house for the missing paper.

comb something out of something and comb something out[†] to remove substances or knots and snarls from something by combing. □ I had to comb the gum out of her hair. □ It took me over an hour to comb out the gum.

comb through something Fig. to look through something, examining it thoroughly. □ I combed through all my belongings, looking for the lost papers. □ The vet combed through the dog's coat, looking for tick bites.

combine something against someone or something to join something together in opposition to someone or something. □ We will combine forces against the enemy. □ Our game plan combined our various talents against the opposite team.

combine something with something to mix something with something else. □ I want to combine the red flowers with the pink ones for a bouquet. □ First, combine the eggs with the sugar.

come a cropper Fig. to have a misfortune; to fail. (Meaning 'fall off one's horse.')

□ Bob invested all his money in the stock market just before it fell. Boy, did he come a cropper. □ Jane was out all night before she took her final. She really came a cropper.

come aboard and go aboard to get onto a boat or ship. □ Please come aboard. We are shoving off now. □ Please ask everyone to go aboard.

come about 1. to happen. □ How did this damage come about? □ This came about due to the windstorm. 2. [for a ship or boat] to turn. □ Look how easily this boat comes about. □ Now, practice making the boat come about.

come across 1. to be compliant. □ Oh, she'll come across, just you wait; she'll do what we want. 2. to agree; to yield. □ How can we get him to come across?

come across as someone or something (to someone) Go to next.

come across like someone or something (to someone) and come across as someone or something (to someone) to appear or seem like someone or something to other people. □ You always come across like a madman to people. □ She comes across like the Queen of the Nile to most people who meet her.

come across someone or something and run across someone or something to find someone or something; to discover someone or something. □ John came across a book he had been looking for. □ Where did you run across that lovely skirt?

come across (to something) to agree to something; to yield to someone else's position. □ He came across to our point of view. □ Will a sign-on bonus get him to come across?

come across (with something) to deliver what is expected of one. □ You had better come across with what you owe me. You owe me money, and I wish you would come across.

come after someone or something Go to after someone or something.

Come again. 1. Please come back again sometime. Mary: I had a lovely time. Thank you for asking me. Sally: You're quite welcome. Come again. "Come again," said Mrs. Martin as she let Jimmy out the door. 2. Rur. (usually Come again?) I didn't hear what you said. Please repeat it. Sally: Do you want some more carrots? Mary: Come again? Sally: Carrots. Do you want some more carrots?

come along (with someone) to come with or go with someone. Please come along with me to the store. Come along, let's go.

Come and get it! and Come 'n' get it! Dinner's ready. Come eat! The camp cook shouted, "Time to eat! Come and get it!"

come apart to break apart; to break up. The missile came apart in midair. I was afraid our car would come apart on that rough road.

come apart at the seams Go to fall apart at the seams.

come (a)round 1. finally to agree or consent (to something). I thought he'd never agree, but in the end he came around. She came round only after we argued for an hour. 2. to return to consciousness; to wake up. He came around after we threw cold water in his face. The boxer was knocked out, but came round in a few seconds.

come around (for a visit) Go to come around (to visit).

come around (to doing something) to agree to do something eventually, after a long wait. Finally, she came around to painting the kitchen. She hesitated for a long time, but eventually we got Lynn to come around.

come around (to some place) 1. to come to some place for a visit. You must come around to our place for a while. Do come around and have dinner with us sometime. 2. and come around (to visit) and come around (for a visit) to pay a casual visit to someone. Why don't you come around to visit next week? Why don't you come around for a visit? You are welcome any time.

come as no surprise will not be surprising [for someone] to learn [something]. It will come as no surprise for you to learn that the company is losing money this year. It came as no surprise that the president had been lying.

come at someone or something 1. to make a threatening move toward someone or something. The gorilla came at the cage and shook the bars. Walter came at the cake as if he were going to snatch the whole thing. 2. to attack someone or something. The elephant came at us and we moved away. The cat came at the mouse and pounced on it.

come away empty-handed to return without anything. All right, go gambling. Don't come away empty-handed, though. Go to the bank and ask for the loan again. This time don't come away empty-handed.

come away (from someone or something) to move away from someone or something. Please come away from the fire. You will get burned if you don't. Come away! You can walk with me for a while.

come away with someone to go away or travel away with someone. Come away with me for a ride in the country. Come away with me and we'll find a nice place to eat.

come back to return; to return to an advantageous or favorable state or condition. Walter practiced every day, hoping to come back from his injury. When will the good old days come back?

Come back and see us. and Come back and see me. Come visit us [or me] again. (Often said by a host or hostess to departing guests.) Bill: Good night. Thanks for having me. Sally: Oh, you're quite welcome. Come back and see us. Bob: I enjoyed my visit. Good-bye. Mary: It was very nice of you to pay me a visit. Come back and see me.

Come back anytime. Please come and visit us again. You're always welcome. (Often said by a host or hostess to departing guests.) Mary: So glad you could come. Bill: Thank you. I had a wonderful time. Mary: Come back anytime. Bob: Thanks for the coffee and cake. Bye. Mary: We're glad to have you. Please come back anytime.

come back (from some place) to return from a place. When will you come back from Detroit? Please come back soon.

come back to haunt one and return to haunt one Fig. [for a bad memory] to recur; for the consequences of a bad decision to affect one negatively later. I never dreamed that a little thing like a traffic ticket could come back to haunt me years later.

come back (to someone) [for a memory] to return to someone's consciousness. Everything you said suddenly came back to me. All the old memories came back to me and made me feel very sad.

come back (to someone or something) to return to someone or something. Please come back to me. I'm lonely. Come back to your home!

Come back when you can stay longer. Come back again sometime when your visit can be longer. (Often said by a host or hostess to departing guests.) John: I really must go. Sue: So glad you could come. Please come back when you can stay longer. Bill: Well, I hate to eat and run, but I have to get up early tomorrow. Mary: Well, come back when you can stay longer.

come before someone or something 1. [of persons or things in an order or a line] to be in front of or in advance of someone or something. This one comes before that one. She comes before me. 2. [for one] to present oneself in the presence of someone or a group. Thank you for coming before this committee with your testimony. The judge said I would have to come before her again next month. 3. [for an issue] to be raised before someone, a board, committee, etc.; [for an issue] to appear on the agenda of someone or a deliberative body. The matter of the broken windows came before the school board at last. The question came before the business manager.

come between someone and someone else 1. Lit. to be in between two people. That's my place, there. I come between Maria and Lynn. In the line of contestants, I come between Bob and Bill. 2. Fig. to interfere in someone else's romance; to break up a pair of lovers. □ Don't come between Terri and Jeff.

come between something and something else to have a position between one thing and another. □ April comes between March and May. □ This volume comes between numbers fourteen and sixteen.

come by (some place) to stop some place for a visit. □ Can you come by our place for a few minutes on the way home? □ Please come by sometime.

come by something 1. Lit. to travel by a specific means, such as a plane, a boat, or a car. □ We came by train. It's more relaxing. □ Next time, we'll come by plane. It's faster. 2. Fig. to find or get something. □ How did you come by that haircut? □ Where did you come by that new shirt?

come by something honestly 1. Fig. to get something honestly. (See also come by something.) □ Don't worry. I came by this Swiss watch honestly. □ I have a feeling she didn't come by it honestly. 2. Fig. to inherit something—such as a character trait—from one's parents. □ I know I'm mean. I came by it honestly, though. □ She came by her kindness honestly.

come clean (with someone) (about something) Fig. to be honest with somebody about something. □ I want you to come clean with me about your financial status. □ Sam will come clean with me. I know he will.

come close (to someone or something) 1. Lit. to approach very near to someone or something. □ Come close to me and keep me warm. □ I didn't touch it, but I really came close that time. 2. Fig. to approximate someone or something in a specific quality. □ When it comes to kindness, you don't even come close to Jane. □ You don't come close to the former owners in caring for your property.

come down 1. Sl. to happen. □ Hey, man! What's coming down? □ When something like this comes down, I have to stop and think things over. 2. a letdown; a disappointment. (Usually comedown.) □ The loss of the race was a real comedown for Willard. □ It's hard to face a come-down like that. 3. Sl. to begin to recover from the effects of alcohol or drug intoxication. □ She came down slow from her addiction, which was good. □ It was hard to get her to come down. 4. [for something] to descend (to someone) through inheritance. □ All my silverware came down to me from my great-grandmother. □ The antique furniture came down through my mother's family.

come down (from some place) Go to down (from some place).

come down (from something) 1. to come to a lower point from a higher one. □ Come down from there this instant! □ Come down, do you hear? 2. to move from a higher status to a lower one. (See also come down in the world.) □ He has come down from his original position. Now he is just a clerk. □ He has come down quite a bit.

come down (hard) (on someone or something) Fig. [for someone] to scold or punish someone or a group severely. □ The judge really came down on the petty crooks. □ The critics came down much too hard on the performance.

come down in the world to lose one's social position or financial standing. □ Mr. Jones has really come down in the world since he lost his job. □ If I were unemployed, I'm sure I'd come down in the world, too.

come down to earth 1. Lit. to arrive on earth from above. □ An angel came down to earth and made an announcement. 2. Fig. to become realistic; to become alert to what is going on around one. □ You have a fit of enthusiasm, John, but you must come down to earth. We can't possibly afford any of your suggestions.

come down to some place to come to some place in the south or in a lower altitude for a visit. (Assumes a perspective of a visitor from a northern state of the U.S.) □ Come down to our place in Florida this winter if you want.

come down to something to be reduced to something; to amount to no more than something. □ It comes down to whether you want to go to the movies or stay at home and watch television. □ It came down to either getting a job or going to college.

come down with something to become or to be sick with some illness. □ Susan came down with a bad cold and had to cancel her trip. □ I didn't go to work because I came down with the flu.

come for someone to arrive to get someone. □ I have come for Amy. Is she ready? □ The mothers came for their children at about five o'clock.

come forth to come out; to move forward and appear. □ Please come forth and meet your cousins. □ All the stage crew came forth and received some applause.

come forward 1. Lit. to move oneself forward. □ Come forward and stand before the whole class. 2. Fig. to present oneself to offer evidence in court voluntarily. □ Why did you not come forward earlier in the trial? □ I was afraid to come forward during the trial.

come forward (with something) to bring something, such as information, to someone's attention. □ Colleen came forward with a new idea. □ I hope you each can come forward with something useful.

come from behind to advance from a losing position. (Alludes to being behind in a score or in a race.) □ Our team came from behind to win the game. □ The horse I bet on came from behind and almost placed second.

come from far and wide to arrive from everywhere; to arrive from many directions and great distances. □ People came from far and wide to attend the annual meeting. □ The deer came from far and wide to lick the salt block we had put out.

come from nowhere to come as a surprise with no warning. □ The dogs came from nowhere and attacked my cat. □ The whole set of problems came from nowhere. There was no way we could have foreseen them.

come from some place Go to from some place.

come from someone or something to arrive from someone or something; [for something] to have originated with someone or something. □ Did this letter come from Alice? □ A notice came from the Internal Revenue Service.

come full circle Fig. to return to the original position or state of affairs. □ The family sold the house generations ago, but things have come full circle and one of their descendants lives there now.

come hell or high water Fig. no matter what happens. (Use hell with caution.) □ I'll be there tomorrow, come hell or high water. □ Come hell or high water, I intend to own my own home.

come home from some place to arrive home from another place. □ The soldiers came home from the war. □ When will you come home from the office?

come home (to roost) 1. Lit. [for a fowl or other bird] to return to its home, as for a night's rest. □ The chickens come home to roost in the evening. 2. Fig. [for a problem] to return to cause trouble [for someone]. (See also come home to someone.) □ As I feared, all my problems came home to roost.

come home to someone Fig. [for a fact] to be recognized suddenly by someone. □ Suddenly, it came home to me that you thought I was Ronald. □ The importance of the events of the day finally came home to me.

come home to someone or something to arrive home and find someone or something there. (See also come home to someone.) □ I like to come home to a happy house. □ I look forward to coming home to you.

come in 1. to enter. (Often a command or polite request.) □ Please come in. □ If you will come in and have a seat, I will tell Betty that you are here. 2. to arrive; [for a shipment of something] to arrive. □ New models come in almost every week. □ When do you expect a new batch to come in? □ The tomatoes will come in at the end of July. □ The election results came in early in the evening. 3. [for a broadcast signal] to be received satisfactorily. □ Can you hear me? How am I coming in? □ You are coming in all right.

come in a certain position to finish in a certain position or rank. □ Fred came in fourth in the race. □ He was afraid he would come in last.

Come in and make yourself at home. Please come into my home and make yourself comfortable. □ Sue: Oh, hello, Tom. Come in and make yourself at home. Tom: Thanks. I will.

Come in and sit a spell. and Come in and set a spell.; Come in and sit down.; Come in and take a load off your feet. Rur. Please come in and have a seat and a visit. (The variant with set informal or folksy.) □ "Hi, Fred," smiled Tom, "Come in and sit a spell." □ Tom: I hope I'm not intruding. Bill: Not at all. Come in and set a spell.

come in for something to be eligible for something; to be due something. □ You are going to come in for a nice reward. □ Your report came in for a lot of criticism at the last board meeting.

come in handy [for something] to be useful. □ I think that this gadget will come in handy in the kitchen.

come (in) on a wing and a prayer Go to on a wing and a prayer.

come in on something Go to in on something.

come in out of the rain 1. Lit. to seek shelter from the rain. □ Come in out of the rain! You'll get wet. 2. Fig. to wake up to reality; to come down to earth. (See also doesn't have enough sense to come in out of the rain.) □ Hey, man! Come in out of the rain! Don't you see that your boss is taking advantage of you!

come in useful to be useful. □ Your report has come in useful a number of times.

come into a (small) fortune Go to come into (some) money.

come into being to begin existence. □ This idea came into being during the last decade. □ When did this organization come into being?

come into bloom and come into blossom 1. [for a flower] to bloom. □ This rose comes into bloom later in the summer. □ When do they normally come into blossom? 2. [for a plant, bush, or tree] to begin to have many blossoms. □ When do these bushes come into bloom? □ They come into blossom in June.

come into blossom Go to previous.

come into conflict [for things or people] to conflict or to be at odds with one another. □ The various policies came into conflict at the last moment. □ Bill and Bob came into conflict over almost everything.

come in(to) contact (with someone or something) 1. Lit. to touch someone or something, probably unknowingly. □ How many people have come into contact with the sick man? □ He came in contact with almost no one. 2. Fig. to meet up with and learn about someone or something. □ Have you ever come into contact with trigonometry before? □ I have never come in contact with anything so difficult.

come into effect to become valid, effective, or operable. □ When did these rules come into effect? □ They came into effect while you were on vacation.

come into existence to begin existence; to begin to be. □ This country came into existence in the early part of the fifteenth century. □ When did this little town come into existence?

come into fashion to become stylish or fashionable. □ Do you think that a design like this will ever come into fashion? □ That kind of dance will never come into fashion.

come into focus Go to in focus.

come in(to) heat and come in(to) season [for a female animal] to enter into the breeding season. □ This animal will come into heat in the spring. □ When did your dog come in season?

come into one's or its own to become independent; to be recognized as independent and capable, usually after much effort or time. □ Maria is coming into her own as a concert pianist.

come into play to become an important factor in something; to go into force. □ All your hard practice and preparation will now come into play in the finals.

come into power Go to in power.

come into prominence to become notable; to become renowned. □ She first came into prominence during the late forties, when she starred in a few movies. □ Wally came into prominence when he won the state championship.

come into season 1. [for a game animal] to be subject to legal hunting. □ When do ducks come into season around here? □ Deer came into season just yesterday. 2. Go to come in(to) heat.

come into service to begin to be used; to begin to operate and function as designed. □ When did this elevator come into service? □ I think that this machine came into service during World War II.

C

come into sight and come into view to become visible; to move closer so as to be seen. □ The tall buildings of the city came into sight first. □ A large herd of elephants came into view in the distance.

come into (some) money and come into a (small) fortune to get some money unexpectedly, usually by inheritance. □ She came into a lot of money when she turned twenty. □ I hope I can come into some money some day.

come into someone's possession Go to in someone's possession.

come into the world Fig. to be born. □ I came into this world nearly seventy years ago. □ Little Timmy came into the world on a cold and snowy night.

come into view Go to come into sight.

come Monday Rur. when Monday comes. (Can be used with other expressions for time, as in come next week, come December, come five o'clock. See the second example.) □ Joe plays so hard on the weekend that come Monday, he's all worn out. □ You may think that putting up storm windows is a bother, but come December, you'll be glad you did it.

Come 'n' get it! Go to Come and get it!

come naturally (to someone) to be natural and easy for someone. □ Her ability to deal easily with people comes naturally to her.

come of age Go to of age.

come off Inf. to happen; to take place. □ What time does this party come off? □ How did your speech come off? □ It came off very well.

Come off it! 1. Inf. Stop acting arrogantly! (See also come off ((of) something).) □ Come off it, Tiff. You're not the Queen of England. 2. Inf. Give up your incorrect point of view! □ Come off it! You're wrong, and you know it!

come off ((of) something) 1. [for something] to detach from, fall off, or drop off something. (See also Come off it! Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The paint came off the west side of the house because of the hot sun. □ A wheel came off Timmy's tricycle. 2. to get down off something; to get off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Come off the roof immediately. □ Please come off of that horse!

come off second best to be second to someone or something; to get the poorer end of a bargain. □ As usual, he came off second best with a little less prize money than the winner. □ I don't want to come off second best again.

come on 1. Stop it!; Stop doing that. (Usually Come on!) □ Mary: Are you really going to sell your new car? Sally: Come on! How dumb do you think I am? 2. please oblige me. □ Mother: Sorry. You can't go! Bill: Come on, let me go to the picnic! □ "Come on," whined Jimmy, "I want some more!" 3. to hurry up; to follow someone. □ If you don't come on, we'll miss the train. 4. [for electricity or some other device] to start operating. □ After a while, the lights came on again. □ I hope the heat comes on soon. 5. to walk out and appear on stage. □ You are to come on when you hear your cue. 6. Fig. [for a pain] to begin hurting; [for a disease] to attack someone. □ The pain began to come on again, and Sally had to lie down. 7. [for a program] to be broadcast on radio or television. □ The news didn't come on until an hour later.

come on as something to appear to be something; to project one's image as something. □ The senator comes on as a liberal, but we all know better. □ He comes on as a happy guy, but he is miserable.

come on (duty) to begin to work at one's scheduled time. □ When did you come on duty tonight? □ What time does she come on?

Come (on) in. and come on in(to) something Enter.; Come into this place. (A polite invitation to enter someone's home, office, room, etc. It is more emphatic with on.) □ Bob: Hello, you guys. Come on in. We're just about to start dinner. □ Bill: Come in. Nice to see you. Mary: I hope we're not too early. Bill: Not at all. □ Come on into the house and have a cold drink.

Come on in, the water's fine! 1. Lit. Get into the water and swim! (Usually a polite command.) □ As Todd swam along, he said to Rachel, "Come on in. The water's fine." 2. Fig. to begin to do anything. □ You will like skiing. Come on in, the water's fine. □ I think you would like working here, and I'm happy to offer you the job. Come on in, the water's fine.

come on like gangbusters Go to come on strong.

come on somehow to advance in some fashion, manner, rate, or degree. □ Darkness comes on early these days. □ The illness comes on by degrees.

come on strong and come on like gangbusters to seem aggressive; to impress people initially as very aggressive and assertive. □ She has a tendency to come on strong, but she's really a softie. □ The new president comes on strong at first.

come on the scene and arrive on the scene 1. Lit. to arrive at a place. □ When we came on the scene, the ambulances were already there. □ The police arrived on the scene and began directing traffic. 2. Fig. to become part of a situation. □ She thought she was in love with Harry until Bob came on the scene.

come on (to someone) Sl. to attempt to interest someone romantically or sexually. □ He was trying to come on to me, but I found him unappealing.

come on(to) someone or something to find someone or something by accident; to happen onto someone or something. □ When I was out on my walk, I came on a little shop that sells leather goods. □ I came onto an old friend of yours downtown today.

come out 1. Lit. to exit; to leave the inside of a place. □ Please come out. We have to leave. □ When do you think they will all come out? 2. Fig. to result; to succeed; to happen. □ I hope everything comes out fine. □ It will come out okay. Don't worry. 3. Fig. to come before the public; [for a book] to be published; [for a report] to be made public. □ A new magazine has just come out. □ When will your next book come out? 4. Fig. to become visible or evident. □ His pride came out in his refusal to accept help. □ The real reason finally came out, and it was not flattering. 5. Fig. [for a young woman] to make a social debut. (Now only done in certain U.S. regions.) □ Does your daughter plan to come out this year? 6. Fig. to reveal one's homosexuality. (See also out of the closet.) □ Herbie finally came out when he was forty-five.

come out against someone or something to announce or reveal that one is opposed to someone or something. □ Our governor came out against the new tax bill.

come out ahead to end up with a profit, benefit, or advantage. □ It was a tricky deal, and no one came out ahead of anyone else. □ I never come out ahead after paying my bills.

come out at an amount and come out to an amount to result in a certain amount, as the result of mathematical computation. □ The total charges came out at far more than we expected.

come out at someone or something and come out toward(s) someone or something to emerge and attack someone or something. □ The dogs came out at us, but we got away. □ Betsy's bulldog came out toward my bike as I rode by.

come out badly [for efforts at something] to have a bad result. □ I hope trying to get back together with Joan doesn't come out badly.

come out for someone or something and come out in favor of someone or something to announce or reveal that one supports someone or something. □ The defense lawyers all came out for the judge's ruling. □ Roger came out for Lynn, who was running for mayor. □ I thought the mayor would come out in favor of more public housing.

come out (in bloom) Go to out (in blossom).

come out (in blossom) Go to out (in blossom).

come out in droves Go to out in large numbers.

come out in force Go to out in force.

come out in large numbers Go to out in large numbers.

come out in something 1. Lit. to come outside wearing something in particular. □ You shouldn't come out in that skimpy jacket. □ I didn't mean to come out in my pajamas. I just wanted to get the newspaper. 2. Fig. to break out with a rash. □ The baby has come out in a rash again.

come out in the open Go to out in the open.

come out in the wash Fig. to work out all right. (Alludes to a clothing stain that can be removed by washing.) □ Don't worry about that problem. It'll all come out in the wash. □ This trouble will go away. It'll come out in the wash.

come out in(to) the open and come (out) into the open 1. Lit. [for someone or something] to move from a concealed position to an open area. □ Sooner or later, she will have to come out in the open. □ The deer finally came into the open. 2. Fig. [for someone who has been hiding] to appear in public. □ The thief came out into the open and was recognized by one of the witnesses to the crime. □ The FBI agents finally came into the open.

come out in(to) the open with something Fig. to make something known publicly. □ The auditors came out into the open with the story of the bankruptcy. □ After much fuss about its secret dealings, the city council came out in the open with the whole story.

come out of a clear blue sky and come out of the clear blue sky; come out of the blue suddenly; without warning. □ Then, out of a clear blue sky, he told me he was leaving. □ My sister Mary appeared on my doorstep out of the blue, after years with no word from her.

come out of left field [for a problem or dilemma] to come from an unexpected place. (See also out of left field.) □ This new problem came out of left field. We were really surprised. □ Your remarks came out of left field. I can't understand your complaint.

come out of nowhere Go to out of nowhere.

come out of one's shell Fig. to become more friendly; to be more sociable. (Alludes to a shy turtle putting its head out of its shell.) □ Come out of your shell, Tom. Go out and make some friends.

come out (of someone or something) to emerge from someone or something. □ Did that pile of books really come out of just one office? □ The lion came out of its den.

come out (of something) 1. and come out from something Lit. to exit from something. □ When will they come out of that meeting? □ The people came out from the houses and celebrated. 2. Fig. to result from something. □ Nothing at all came out of our discussions.

come out of the blue Go to come out of a clear blue sky.

come out of the closet Go to out of the closet.

come out (of) the little end of the horn Rur. to lose a great deal; to end with less than one started with. (See also end up with the short end of the stick.) □ After the stock market crash, plenty of folks came out the little end of the horn.

come out of the woodwork Go to out of the woodwork.

come out on something [for someone] to do well or poorly on a business venture. □ How did you come out on the Adams project? □ We came out ahead on the Adams project, but for the quarter we came out with a loss overall.

come out on top Fig. to end up being the winner. □ I knew that if I kept trying, I would come out on top. □ Harry came out on top as I knew he would.

come out smelling like a rose Fig. to succeed; to do better than anyone else in some situation. □ Everyone else in the firm lost money in the real estate deal, but Bob came out smelling like a rose. □ If I can just finish my research paper on time, I'll come out smelling like a rose by the end of the school year.

come out to an amount Go to come out at an amount.

come out to be to end up being a certain way. □ I do not know what this sculpture will come out to be. □ When I start writing a poem, I never know what it will come out to be.

come out well to end up well. □ I hope things come out well. □ Everything will come out well in the end.

come out with something 1. to publish something. □ When are you going to come out with a new edition? □ The publisher decided not to come out with the book. 2. to express or utter something. □ He came out with a strong dissenting opinion. □ It was over an hour before the president came out with an explanation.

come over 1. to join this party or side; to change sides or affiliation. Tom was formerly an enemy spy, but last year he came over. I thought that Bill was a Republican. When did he come over? 2. to come for a visit. See if Ann wants to come over. I can't come over to visit now. I'm busy.

come over someone [for something] to affect a person, perhaps suddenly. (See also come over someone or something.) I just don't know what came over me. Something came over her just as she entered the room.

come over someone or something to move over and above someone or something. (See also come over someone.) A cloud came over us and rained like fury. Darkness came over the city and streetlights blinked on.

come rain or (come) shine Go to next.

come rain or shine and come rain or (come) shine no matter whether it rains or the sun shines; in any sort of weather. (See also rain or shine.) Don't worry. I'll be there come rain or shine. We'll hold the picnic—rain or shine.

Come right in. Come in, please, you are very welcome here. Fred (opening door): Well, hi, Bill. Bill: Hello, Fred. Good to see you. Fred: Come right in. Bill: Thanks.

come (right) on top of something Fig. [for something] to happen immediately after something else. The accident expenses came right on top of the costs of her illness. The bad news came on top of some other problems we were having.

come short of something Fig. to do something almost; to fail to achieve something completely. The workers came short of finishing the job on time. We came short of our goal for the year.

come someone's way [for something] to come to someone. I wish a large sum of money would come my way. I hope that no bad luck comes my way.

come through 1. [for someone] to do what one is expected to do, especially under difficult conditions. You can depend on Jane. She'll always come through. Tom came through at the last minute with everything we needed.

2. [for something] to be approved; [for something] to gain approval. Our mortgage loan approval finally came through! Your papers came through, and you can be sure that the matter has been taken care of. 3. Go to come through (for someone or something). 4. Go to come through something. 5. Go to come through (with something).

come through (for someone or something) Fig. to produce or perform as promised for someone or a group. You knew I would come through for you, didn't you? The team came through for its loyal fans again.

come through something and come through Fig. to pass through something. Please come through the entrance slowly. Please chain the gate up again when you come through.

come through something (with flying colors) Fig. to survive something quite well. (See also with flying colors. Colors here refers originally to flags.) Todd came through the test with flying colors. Mr. Franklin came through the operation with flying colors.

come through (with something) to produce or deliver something as promised. Finally, Bob came through with the money he had promised. I knew he would come through.

come to to become conscious; to wake up. We threw a little cold water in his face, and he came to immediately.

come to a bad end Fig. to have a disaster, perhaps one that is deserved or expected; to die an unfortunate death. My old car came to a bad end. Its engine seized up. The dishonest merchant came to a bad end.

come to a boil 1. Lit. [for a liquid] to reach the boiling point. The soup came to a boil and the chef reduced the flame. 2. Fig. [for a problem or situation] to reach a critical or crucial stage. (Alludes to water reaching an active boil.) Finally, things really came to a boil. Everything came to a boil after Mary announced her engagement.

3. Fig. [for someone] to get very angry. Fred was coming to a boil and clearly he was going to lose his temper.

come to a climax Go to next.

come to a close and come to an end; come to a climax to end; to progress to an ending. The celebration came to an end about midnight.

come to a conclusion 1. to reach a decision. We talked for a long time but never came to any conclusion. Can we come to a conclusion today, or do we have to meet again? 2. [for a process] to reach the end and be finished. At last, the yearlong ordeal of buying a house came to a conclusion. I was afraid that the opera would never come to a conclusion.

come to a dead end and reach a dead end 1. Lit. to reach a point where one can go no farther and can turn in no new direction. The road comes to a dead end about a mile farther. 2. Fig. to have run out of possible ideas, solutions, energy, etc. I've come to a dead end. I'm fresh out of ideas. The committee reached a dead end on the matter and tabled the whole business.

come to a halt to stop; to slow down and stop. Slowly, the train came to a halt. After the bus came to a halt, more people got on.

come to a head Fig. [for a problem] to reach a critical or crucial stage. At the end of the week, everything came to a head and Sam was fired.

come to a pretty pass Fig. to encounter a difficult situation. (This pretty expresses irony.) This project has come to a pretty pass. I don't know how we can possibly finish on time. Mary had come to a pretty pass. She quit her job to be with her husband, and then he left her.

come to a standstill [for something] to slow down and finally stop; to stop completely. (Usually refers to something that is progressing, such as work, traffic, negotiations.) As the strike began, the production line came to a standstill. At the height of rush hour, traffic comes to a standstill.

come to a stop [for someone or something] to stop moving or happening. The bus finally came to a stop so I could get off. The dog's barking finally came to a stop.

come to a turning point Go to a turning point.

come to an end Go to come to a close.

come to an impasse Fig. to reach a deadlock, stalemate, etc., in a situation. (Alludes to a blocked roadway.) The committee has come to an impasse in its deliberations.

come to an understanding (with someone) Go to reach an understanding with someone.

come to an untimely end Fig. to come to an early death. Poor Mr. Jones came to an untimely end in a car accident. Cancer caused Mrs. Smith to come to an untimely end.

come to attention to assume a formal military posture, standing very straight. Almost immediately, the soldiers came to attention.

come to blows (over someone or something) and come to blows (about someone or something) to reach the point of fighting about someone or something. Let's not come to blows over this silly disagreement.

come to fruition Fig. to occur or turn out as suspected or intended. When will all of these good things come to fruition? Our hard work and the end we planned for will soon come to fruition.

come to grief Fig. to experience something unpleasant or damaging. In the end, he came to grief because he did not follow instructions.

come to grips with someone or something Fig. to begin to deal with someone or something difficult or challenging in a sensible way. We must all come to grips with this tragedy. I cannot come to grips with Ed and his problems.

come to harm to experience something bad; to get damaged or harmed. I sincerely hope that you do not come to harm. I hope no one comes to harm.

come to life 1. Lit. to act as if alive after a period of seeming not to be alive. As the anesthetic wore off, the patient came to life. After CPR, the child came to life. 2. Fig. to become vigorous or lively. About midnight, the party really came to life. The actors didn't come to life until the middle of the second act.

come to light Fig. [for something] to become known or to be discovered. Many surprises have come to light since then. Nothing new has come to light since we talked last.

come to mind Fig. [for a thought or idea] to enter into one's consciousness or be remembered. Do I know a good barber? No one comes to mind right now. Another idea comes to mind. Why not check in the phone book?

come to much 1. to amount to a large amount of money. (Usually used with a negative.) The bill did not come to much, considering what we had for dinner and drinks. 2. to count for much; to be important or meaningful. (Usually negative.) No one thought he would come to much. All that discussion did not come to much.

come to naught Go to come to nothing.

come to no good to end up badly; to come to a bad end. The street gang leaders came to no good in the end.

come to nothing and come to naught to amount to nothing; to be worthless. So all my hard work comes to nothing. Yes, the whole project comes to naught.

come to one's feet to stand up. The audience came to its feet, cheering. Fred came to his feet to greet Roger.

come to one's senses to begin thinking sensibly. I'm glad he finally came to his senses and went on to college. I wish you would come to your senses and look for a better job.

come to oneself to begin acting and thinking like one's normal self. I began to come to myself and realize the wrong I had done. Please come to yourself and stop acting so strangely.

come to pass to happen; to take place. And when do you think all these good things will come to pass? Do you think it will really come to pass?

come to rest to stop; to slow down and stop. The ball rolled and rolled and finally came to rest. Where did the ball come to rest?

come to someone's assistance to arrive and provide assistance to someone. A kindly truck driver came to our assistance, and we were able to call for help. I hope someone will come to my assistance soon.

come to someone's attention and come to someone's notice to be told to, revealed to, or discovered by someone. It has come to my attention that you are not following the rules. Your comments have just come to my notice.

come to someone's notice Go to previous.

come to someone's or something's rescue to rescue or save someone or something. The paramedics came to our rescue at once. A big donor came to the college's rescue.

come to something to end up being helpful or significant. (See also amount to something; when it comes to something.) Do you think this work will come to anything? I don't think this will come to what we were promised.

come to terms (about someone or something) and come to terms (on someone or something) [for two or more people] to reach an accord on someone or something. Ed and Alice came to terms about money. They did not come to terms on the price.

come to terms (with someone or something) 1. to come to an agreement with someone. I finally came to terms with my lawyer about his fee. Bob, you have to come to terms with your father. 2. to learn to accept someone or something. She had to come to terms with the loss of her sight. She couldn't come to terms with her estranged husband.

come to the fore Fig. to become prominent; to become important. The question of salary has now come to the fore. Since his great successes as a prosecutor, he has really come to the fore in city politics.

come to the job with something and come to the position with something; come to the task with something to bring a particular quality to a task or job. She comes to the job with great enthusiasm. Ann comes to this position with a lot of experience.

come to the point and get to the point to get to the important part (of something). He has been talking a long time. I wish he would come to the point. We are talking about money, Bob! Come on, get to the point.

come to the position with something Go to come to the job with something.

come to the same thing Go to amount to the same thing.

come to the task with something Go to come to the job with something.

C

come to think of it I just remembered. Come to think of it, I know someone who can help. I have a screwdriver in the trunk of my car, come to think of it.

come to this to result in this situation. (Usually said out of surprise.) Who would believe it would come to this? So, it has come to this?

come together 1. to touch together; to meet. The ends of the boards just came together. They were almost too short. We came together in the park, just as we had agreed. 2. to attend something together; to arrive at an event together. Alice and I are going to come together. We will come to the party together.

come together (on something) to discuss and agree on something. I hope we can come together on a price. I'm sure we can come together.

come true to materialize as expected or hoped. Jane's wishes had come true. Dave wondered if his dreams would ever come true.

come under something to be classed in the category of something. This request comes under the category of a plain nuisance. Your proposal comes under the heading of new business and is out of order.

come under the hammer and go under the hammer Fig. [for something] to be auctioned. The house at the corner is coming under the hammer next week. The repossessed farm will go under the hammer.

come unglued Fig. to lose emotional control; to break out into tears or laughter. When Sally heard the joke, she almost came unglued. When the bank took away my car, I came unglued and cried and cried.

come up 1. Lit. to come from a lower place to a higher one. You can come up now. They are gone. Come up and enjoy the view from the tallest rooftop in the county.

2. Lit. to come near; to approach. He came up and began to talk to us. A heron came up while we were fishing, but it just ignored us. 3. Fig. to come to someone's attention. The question of what time to be there never came up. The matter came up, but it was never dealt with.

come up a storm Rur. to become stormy. It came up a storm as I was on my way home, and I got soaked to the skin.

come up against someone or something Go to up against someone or something.

come up for air 1. Lit. to lift one's head out of the water to breathe. After staying under water for almost a minute, Jason had to come up for air. 2. Fig. to stop what one is doing for a different activity or rest. Whenever you get off the phone and come up for air, I have a question for you. I want you to go to the store for me when you come up for air. 3. Fig. to stop kissing for a moment and breathe. Don't those kids ever come up for air? When are you two going to come up for air?

come up for auction Go to up for auction.

come up for reelection Go to up for reelection.

come up for sale Go to up for sale.

come up for something to be eligible for something; to be in line or sequence for something. She comes up for reelection in April. How soon does your driver's license come up for renewal?

come (up) from behind to advance in competition; to improve one's position relative to the positions of other things or people. The horse was working hard to come up from behind. Lee was losing in the election, but he began to come from behind in the last week.

come up heads and come up tails Fig. [for a tossed coin] to turn out to be either heads or tails. We tossed a coin, and it came up heads. The coin came up tails.

come up in the world Go to move up in the world.

come up smelling like a rose and come up smelling like roses Fig. to end up looking good or respectable after being involved in some difficult or notorious affair. I was surprised that my congressional representative came up smelling like a rose after his colleagues investigated him.

come up tails Go to come up heads.

come up through the ranks Fig. to rise to a position of leadership by working up through the sequence of lower positions. He came up through the ranks to become a corporate executive. The general came up through the ranks. There is no other way to become a general.

come up to someone's expectations to be as good as someone expected. Sorry, but this product does not come up to my expectations and I want to return it.

come up to someone's standards to meet or be equal to someone's standards or requirements. Does this ice cream come up to your standards? Ann's concert recital did not come up to her own standards.

come up with someone or something to find or supply someone or something; to manage to find or improvise something. I came up with a date at the last minute. My mom is always able to come up with some yummy snack for me in the afternoon.

come (up)on someone or something to find or happen on someone or something. (See also happen (up)on someone or something.) I came upon Walter while I was in the bookstore. I came on this little store near Maple Street that has everything we need.

come what may Cliché no matter what might happen. I'll be home for the holidays, come what may. Come what may, the mail will get delivered.

come with (someone or something) to depart in the company of someone or something; to travel with someone or a group. Come with me. We'll go to my place. Are you going to come with the tour? Are you going to come with?

come with the territory and go with the territory Fig. to be expected under circumstances like this. (Alludes to the details and difficulties attendant to something like the assignment of a specific sales territory to a salesperson. When one accepts the assignment, one accepts the problems.) There is a lot of paperwork in this job. Oh, well, I guess it comes with the territory. There are problems, but they go with the territory.

come within a hair('s breadth) of someone or something Go to come within an inch of someone or something.

come within an ace of something to come very close to [doing] something. I came within an ace of leaving school. I'm glad you talked me out of it. Donna came within an ace of having an accident.

come within an inch of doing something Fig. almost to do something; to come very close to doing something. I came within an inch of going into the army. I came within an inch of falling off the roof.

come within an inch of someone or something and come within a hair(s) breadth of someone or something to come very close to someone or something. The bullet came within an inch of Heather. The car came within a hair of the bus.

come within earshot (of something) Go to within earshot (of something).

come within range Go to within range.

come within range (of something) Go to within range (of something).

come within something 1. to be in the category of something; to be under the domain of someone or something. This comes within the domain of the treasurer. This matter doesn't come within my area of expertise. 2. to be inside a stated range, such as price, time, weight, range, etc. This comes within my price range. I'll take it.

come-hither look an alluring or seductive look or glance, usually done by a woman. She blinked her bedroom eyes and gave him a come-hither look. She had mastered the come-hither look, but was not ready for the next part.

comfortable as an old shoe Cliché very comfortable; very comforting and familiar. (*Also: as ~.) My old house may seem small to you, but I think it's cozy. It's as comfortable as an old shoe.

Coming events cast their shadows before. Prov. Significant events are often preceded by signs that they are about to happen. (From Thomas Campbell's poem, "Lochiel's Warning.") If you pay attention to the news, you can generally tell when something momentous is about to happen. Coming events cast their shadows before.

coming out of one's ears Fig. very numerous or abundant. (As if people or things were coming in great numbers from many sources including unlikely ones.) I've got phone and e-mail messages coming out of my ears. We are very busy at the factory. We have orders coming out of our ears.

Coming through, (please). Please let me pass through. (Often said by someone trying to get through a crowd of people, as in a passageway or an elevator. Compare this with Out, please.) Tom: Coming through, please. Sue: Give him some room. He wants to get by. Mary (as the elevator stops): Well, this is my floor. Coming through, please. I've got to get off.

coming up a cloud Rur. getting ready to rain. Look at that sky! It's comin' up a cloud!

commence with someone or something to start a procedure affecting a number of people or things by choosing a particular person or thing first. Each meeting commences with a reading of the minutes of the last meeting. The doctor interviews with Lynn and took everyone else in the order in which they had arrived.

commend someone for something to praise someone for doing something. The committee commended Ralph for his good work.

commend someone or something to someone or something to recommend or speak well of someone to someone or a group. I commend Walter to your organization. He would make a fine employee. We commended your organization to Martha, who may wish to become a member.

comment about someone or something and comment (up)on someone or something to make a remark about someone or something. There is no need to comment upon this event. Please don't comment on Liz's problems.

commiserate with someone to share one's misery with another person who is also miserable. I stopped by Bruce's house to commiserate with him on being laid off.

commit oneself on something to agree to something; to promise or pledge to do something. I'm sorry, but I can't commit myself on this matter until I know more details.

commit oneself to someone or something to devote oneself to someone or something; to be faithful to someone or something. He committed himself to his wife. She settled down and committed herself to her job.

commit oneself to something 1. to agree to something; to promise or pledge to do something. Yes, I will commit myself to the repair of the door frame. Will you commit yourself to finishing on time? 2. to promise to support and assist something. I can't commit myself to your cause at the present time. Maybe next month when I am less busy. She committed herself to being there on time.

commit someone or something for something to promise someone or something for a particular purpose or time. I can't commit myself for Friday night. We are unable to commit any more funds for your project.

commit someone or something to something to pledge or assign someone or something to something. The boss committed Ralph to the task. I cannot commit any more money to your project.

commit something to memory to memorize something. Do we have to commit this poem to memory? The dress rehearsal of the play is tomorrow night. Please make sure you have committed all your lines to memory by that time.

commit to someone to marry or enter into an exclusive relationship with another person. Jane says she loves me, but she's not ready to commit to any one person. If you can't commit to me, then this relationship is over.

commode-hugging drunk Sl. heavily alcohol intoxicated; drunk and vomiting. Willie got commode-hugging drunk in the space of two hours.

common as an old shoe and common as dirt low class; uncouth. (*Also: as ~.) That ill-mannered girl is just as common as an old shoe. Despite Mamie's efforts to appear to be upper class, most folks considered her common as dirt.

common as dirt Go to previous.

a common thread (to all this) Fig. a similar idea or pattern to a series of events. All of these incidents are related. There is a common thread to all this.

commune with something Fig. to experience wordless or spiritual communication with something. She went on long walks to commune with nature. He enjoyed going off on a retreat to commune with his inner self.

C

communicate something to someone to say or write something to someone; to tell someone something. Will you please communicate my regards to her? I intend to communicate your request to the front office this morning.

communicate with someone 1. Lit. to correspond or talk with a person. I have to communicate with Wally first. As soon as I have communicated with Fred, I can give you an answer. 2. Fig. to make oneself understood with a person. (Often used with a negative.) I just don't seem to communicate with Sam, no matter what I do. We just can't seem to communicate with each other.

commute between places to travel between the place where one works and the place where one lives. I have to commute between Chicago and Detroit every week. Mary has commuted between New York City and New Jersey for years.

commute from some place to travel to work from some place. I commute from way out in the country. Betty commutes from only a few miles away and will be here very soon.

commute something into something to change something into something. No one, as it turns out, can commute lead into gold. I had hoped to commute this argument into a sensible discussion, but it is hopeless.

compare notes on someone or something to share observations on someone or something. We took a little time to compare notes on our ancestors and have discovered that we are cousins.

compare someone or something to someone or something to liken people or things to other people or things; to say that some people or things have the same qualities as other people or things. (See the comment at compare someone or something with someone or something.) I can only compare him to a cuddly teddy bear. He compared himself to one of the knights of the round table.

compare someone or something with someone or something to consider the sameness or difference of sets of things or people. (This phrase is very close in meaning to compare someone or something to someone or something, but for some connotes stronger contrast.) Let's compare the virtues of savings accounts with investing in bonds. When I compare Roger with Tom, I find very few similarities. Please compare Tom with Bill on their unemployment records.

compartmentalize something into something to segment or divide something into smaller things; to assign the parts of something into categories. We will have to compartmentalize this large area into a number of smaller offices. His brain seems to be compartmentalized into a number of different centers.

compel someone to do something to force someone to do something; to drive someone to do something. You can't compel me to do that. She compelled herself to try, even though she was ill.

compensate for something to counterbalance or counteract something; to make up for something. Your present kindness will not compensate for your previous rudeness.

compensate someone for something to pay someone [back] money for something. Don't worry. I will com- pensate you for your loss. Let us compensate you for your expenses.

compete against someone to contend against someone; to play against someone in a game or contest. I don't see how I can compete against all of them. She refused to compete against her own brothers.

compete against something to struggle against something; to seem to be in a contest with something. It was hard to be heard. I was competing against the noise of construction. Please stop talking. I do not wish to compete against the audience when I lecture.

compete for someone or something to contend against or contest [someone] for someone or something; to struggle for someone or something [against a competitor]. They are competing for a lovely prize. Ed and Roger are competing for Alice's attention.

compete in something to enter into a competition. I do not want to compete in that contest. Ann looked forward to competing in the race.

compete with someone or something to contend against someone, something, or a group; to play in a competition against someone, something, or a group. I can't compete with all this noise. We always compete closely with our crosstown rivals, Adams High School.

compile something from something to make up something from something; to collect and consolidate something from something. She compiled a book of poetry from verses written by her friends. Lynn compiled a picture book from family photographs going back almost a century.

complain about someone or something to protest someone or something; to grouch about someone or something. Oh, stop complaining about the weather. You are always complaining about me.

complain of something to moan and suffer from a disease; to report the symptoms of a disease or health condition. Kenneth complained of a headache and general weakness. The patient was complaining of a headache.

complain to someone to grouch or protest to someone. Don't complain to me. I will complain to the manager.

compliment someone on something to say something nice to someone about something connected to that person. I was pleased with Alice's work and complimented her on it. They complimented me on my new tie.

comply with something to conform to something; to obey guidelines or regulations; to agree to something. I hope you decide to comply with our rules. I am happy to comply with your request.

comport oneself with some manner to behave in a certain manner. I hope you are able to comport yourself with better behavior next time. The old man was able to comport himself with dignity.

composed of something assembled or made out of something. This cloth is composed of a number of different kinds of fibers. The committee is composed of people from every department.

compound something with something to unite some substance with another; to mix something with something else. Can this unpleasant medicine be compounded with something to make it palatable?

compress something into something 1. to squeeze or press something into something, such as a mold or container.

□ We compressed the tomatoes into the jar. □ I cannot compress any more clothing into the suitcase. 2. to form something into a shape by applying pressure. □ He compressed the mass of paper into a tight ball. □ The clay was compressed into the shape of a brick upon the application of pressure to the mold.

comprised of someone or something made up of someone or something. (The use of of after comprise is regarded as bad grammar by some.) □ The committee was comprised of representatives from all areas. □ The dessert was comprised of a number of different delicious substances.

compromise on someone or something (with someone) and compromise (on someone or something) with someone to reach agreement with someone on a disputed matter concerning someone or something; to make concessions to someone on some point concerning someone or something. □ I intend to compromise on this matter with them. □ Are you going to compromise with me on this issue?

compute something at something to calculate the total of something to be a certain figure. □ I compute the total at nearly three thousand dollars. □ The tax department computed the penalty at an enormous amount.

con someone into something to deceive someone into doing something. □ The dishonest contractor conned her into buying a new furnace even when her old one was fine. □ You are just conning yourself into believing your plan will work.

con someone out of something to trick someone out of money or something of value. □ Anne conned her little sister out of her allowance. □ Dave conned me out of my autographed baseball.

conceal someone or something from someone or something to hide someone or something from someone or something. □ Are you trying to conceal something from me? □ I cannot conceal Roger from the police. □ We could not conceal the present from mom.

concede something to someone or something to yield something to someone or a group; to grant something to someone or something. □ At midnight, Ronald conceded the election to his opponent.

concede to someone or something to yield to someone or a group; to give in to someone or a group. □ In the end we conceded to the demands of the petition. □ I will not concede to you.

conceited as a barber's cat Rur. very conceited; vain. (*Also: as ~.) □ Ever since he won that award, he's been as conceited as a barber's cat.

conceive of someone or something to think of or invent the notion of someone or something. □ Who on earth ever conceived of doing this? □ Edison conceived of many very useful things that we now use every day.

conceive of someone or something as someone or something to think of someone as being someone else; to think of something as being something else. □ I can't conceive of you as a pilot. □ I can conceive of this grassy spot as a very interesting setting for a cottage.

concentrate at some place to gather thickly at a place. □ The moths concentrated at the window at night, attracted by the light. □ All the thirsty children concentrated at the water fountain.

concentrate someone or something at something to cause people or things to gather at a place; to cause people or things to convene or converge at a place. □ You shouldn't concentrate all the guards at one entrance. □ The general concentrated all the big guns at the entrance to the valley.

concentrate something on someone or something to focus something on someone or something; to center on someone or something. □ Let's try to concentrate our efforts on finishing this job today. □ She concentrated her attention on Lynn.

concentrate (up)on someone or something to focus one's thinking on someone or something; to think intensely about someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Please concentrate upon Jeff. He is the one we should discuss. □ Try to concentrate on your work more.

concern oneself about someone or something and concern oneself over someone or something to turn one's thoughts and consideration to someone or something. □ I hope you will concern yourself over your work a little more. □ Please don't concern yourself about me. I'll do okay.

concern someone in something to bring someone into some matter; to engage someone in something; to occupy someone with something. □ Don't concern Dave in our party planning. He doesn't know anything about entertaining. □ The wrong committee was concerned in this from the very beginning.

concern someone with someone or something to busy someone with someone or something; to worry someone with thoughts of someone or something. □ I hope Jennifer does not concern herself with this matter. □ Try to concern him with something other than his work.

concur on someone or something (with someone) and concur (on someone or something) with someone to agree with someone about someone or something. □ I certainly do concur on this matter with all of you. □ I concur with you on Tom. □ We concurred with the committee on you as our choice for the job. □ We concurred on the plans with the council.

condemn someone as something to blame or judge someone as being something bad. □ The team condemned Larry as a traitor. □ Max was condemned as a common thief.

condemn someone for something to blame or judge someone for something or for having done something. □ I really can't condemn her for doing it. I would have done the same too. □ Don't condemn yourself for the accident. It was no one's fault.

condemn someone to something [for a judge] to sentence someone to something; to relegate someone to a particular punishment. □ By confessing, he condemned himself to many years in prison. □ I don't want to condemn you to a life of unpleasantness.

condense something (in)to something to compress or reduce something to something; to shrink or abridge something into a smaller version. □ Condense this into half its original volume. □ You should condense this novel to a short story.

condescend to do something to agree to do something that is humbling or belittling. I will not condescend to respond to that remark. “Will you condescend to join us for dinner?” teased Bob.

C

condescend to someone to talk down to someone; to treat people as if they were below oneself; to patronize someone. Please do not condescend to me. There is no need to condescend to the children. They are just small, not stupid.

condition someone or something to something 1. to train or adapt someone or an animal to do something. I conditioned the dog to beg for a treat. Over the years, he had conditioned himself to run for hours at a stretch. 2. to train or adapt someone or an animal to something. We could never condition the cat to the finer points of domestication. I conditioned myself to the extreme cold.

conduct someone away (from someone or something) to lead someone away from someone or something. The usher conducted the gentleman away from the front of the auditorium. Can you conduct Fred away from the area? Please conduct him away.

conduct someone into something and conduct someone in^t to lead someone into something or some place. The usher conducted the gentleman into the hall. The host was pleased to conduct in the guest of honor.

conduct someone out of something and conduct someone out^t to lead someone out of something or some place. The usher conducted the gentleman out of the hall. The cop conducted out the gang of rowdy youths.

confederate with someone or something to organize, join, or unite with someone or a group. A number of states confederated with one another and formed a loose association. I confederated with the neighbors and we filed a joint complaint.

confer on someone or something (with someone) and confer (on someone or something) with someone; confer with someone (about someone or something); confer (with someone) about someone or something to discuss someone or something. Let us confer on this matter with the headmaster. I want to confer with you on how to handle the problem. I need to confer with you about Walter.

confer something (up)on someone to grant something, such as an academic degree, to someone, usually in a ceremony. (Upon is more formal than on.) The university conferred an honorary degree upon her. They conferred degrees on 300 graduates this year.

confer with someone (about someone or something) Go to confer on someone or something (with someone).

confess something to someone and confess to someone to admit something to someone; to admit having done something to someone. Tom confessed his involvement to the boss. Max confessed to the police.

confess to something to admit having done something. He will not confess to the crime. In the end, Max confessed to it.

confide in someone to trust someone with one's secrets or personal matters. Sally always confided in her sister Ann. She didn't feel that she could confide in her mother.

confide something in someone and confide something to someone to tell a secret or private matter to someone, trusting that the person will not reveal the secret. I learned not to confide anything secret in Bob. Tom really needed to confide his inner fears to someone.

confine someone or an animal to something to limit someone or an animal to a particular place; to imprison someone or an animal in a particular place. Would you please confine the dog to the basement? She confined herself to the small room for over a year because of her fear of crowds.

confine someone or an animal within something to contain someone or an animal within something. We were unable to confine the dog within the yard. Could you confine all your car-repair mess within the garage?

confine something to someone or something to limit something or the doing of something to a person or a thing. Please try to confine your comments to John. Can we confine tonight's discussion to the agenda?

confirm someone in something to perform a religious rite that ties one more closely to one's religion. They confirmed her in the church this morning.

confiscate something from someone or something to seize or impound something from someone or a group. The police confiscated all the stolen property from the suspect's garage. The dean confiscated the beer from the dormitory.

conflict with something to clash with something. (Does not refer to fighting.) This date conflicts with my doctor's appointment. As far as I can tell, the date you suggest does not conflict with anything.

conform to something to agree with or behave within guidelines or regulations. I hope that your policies will conform to our guidelines. Does my casual dress conform to your regulations?

conform with something to match or agree with a model, plan, or set of specifications. (Compare this with conform to something.) Does this part conform with the specifications? This one conforms with them quite well.

confront someone with something to face someone with incriminating evidence, charges of wrongdoing, or criticism. The angry husband confronted his wife with the evidence of her financial irresponsibility. The police confronted Wilson with the witness's statement.

confuse someone about something to cause someone to be puzzled or bewildered about something. She confused me about the time of the concert. I wish you wouldn't confuse me about those things.

confuse someone or an animal with something to use something to bewilder or confuse someone or an animal. You have confused me with your clever talk. You confused the dog with your orders.

confuse someone with someone else and confuse something with something else to mix someone up with someone else; to mistake someone or something with something else. I'm afraid you have confused me with my brother. Don't confuse the old ones with the new ones.

congratulate someone (up)on something to compliment or wish happiness to someone because of something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I want to congratulate you on your recent success. I congratulate you on your new job!

conjecture on something to speculate on or guess about something. I will not even conjecture on the outcome. Dave conjectured on what might happen next.

conjure someone or something up[†] 1. Lit. to make someone or something appear, seemingly by the use of magic. The magician conjured seven white doves up. Then an old wizard conjured up a horse. 2. Fig. to manage to locate someone or something. I think I can conjure a pencil up for you. Do you think you can conjure up a large coffee urn in the next half hour? 3. Fig. to manage to think up or imagine someone or something in one's mind. Can you conjure a vision of grandma up? All I could do was to conjure up happy memories.

conk off and conk out 1. Sl. (from years ago.) to fall asleep. I conked off about midnight. I was so tired that I nearly conked off. I was afraid I would conk out while I was driving. 2. Sl. (always conk out.) [for something] to break down; to quit running. My car conked out finally. I hope my computer doesn't conk out.

conk out Go to previous.

connect someone or something (up) to someone or something and connect someone or something (up) with someone or something 1. Lit. to connect people or things in any combination, physically or by wires. The nurse connected Maggie up to the electrocardiograph. Eric connected the machine to the wall plug. The receptionist connected my call up to Susan. 2. Fig. to make a mental connection between people and things in any combination. I connected myself up to a person with similar interests. I often connect up Bob to sailing, because I first met him on a boat. 3. Fig. to argue that someone or something is linked to a criminal or a criminal act. I can connect Eric to the crime. The police connected the stolen goods to Susan.

connect (up) to something to attach to something; to attach or link something to some electrical device or electrical signal. When we finish the house, we will connect up to the utilities. We have to connect to the Internet ourselves.

connect (up) with someone or something 1. to form an association with someone or a group. (The up is informal.) Let's connect up with some other people and form an organization through which we can express our views. We need to connect with like-minded people that can help us with our problems. 2. to meet with someone or a group; to communicate with someone or a group, especially over the telephone. I tried to connect up with Bob over the phone, but I could never reach him. We could not connect with the council to discuss these matters.

connect (with someone) Fig. to meet someone; to talk to someone on the telephone. Let's try to connect on this matter tomorrow. We finally connected and discussed the matter fully over dinner.

connect (with the ball) [for a batter] to hit a baseball. Wally connected for a double. He swung, but didn't connect with the ball.

connive at something (with someone) and connive (at something) with someone to scheme at something (with someone); to plot something (with someone). Are you conniving at something with Ronald? Are you and Ronald conniving with Tom at something I should know about? Stop conniving with people!

Consarn it! Rur. Damn it! (A mild oath.) Consarn it! I can't find my keys. That's the second batch of muffins I've burned today, consarn it!

Conscience does make cowards of us all. Prov. People sometimes fear to do what they want or what they believe is necessary because they think it is wrong. (From Shakespeare's play, Hamlet.) Alan: I really want to go to the ball game with you guys this afternoon, but it just doesn't seem right to skip work to do it. Fred: Conscience does make cowards of us all, right, Alan?

conscript someone into something to call someone into military service; to draft someone. The war-torn country was even conscripting children into the army. Fred was conscripted into the army.

consecrate someone or something to God to pledge someone to the service of God; to dedicate something to the glory or service of God. They consecrated the new church building to the glory of God.

consent to something to agree to permit something to happen. I will not consent to your marriage. There is no need for you to consent to anything.

consider someone (as) something to think of a person as a particular type of person. I don't consider you as a possible candidate. I consider myself an excellent cook.

consider someone for something to think about offering someone a job, office, or other responsibility. Would you consider David for the job? I could not possibly consider you for the position.

consign something to someone or something 1. to entrust something to someone, something, or some place. We consigned all the toughest assignments to our top employees. What shipping company should we consign these boxes to? 2. to assign something for shipment to a place. Bill consigned this batch to Denver.

consist of someone or something to include people or things; to be made up of people or things. This bread consists of flour, water, sugar, oil, and yeast. The U.S. Senate consists of two elected officials from each state.

console someone on something to comfort someone about something. I want to console you on your recent loss. They consoled Fred on the continuing difficulties he was having.

console someone with something to use something to comfort someone. We consoled her with a sympathy card and flowers. He sat down and consoled himself with a beer or two.

consort with someone 1. to associate with someone. It is said that she consorts with thieves. No one worth anything would consort with Max. 2. Euph. to have sex with someone. Over the years it is rumored that she consorted with numerous young men.

conspicuous by one's absence Cliché noticeably absent (from an event). (*Typically: be ~; made ~.) How could the bride's father miss the wedding? He was certainly conspicuous by his absence.

conspire with someone (against someone or something) and conspire (with someone) against someone or some- thing to join with someone in a plot against someone or something else. □ The CEO conspired with the board of directors against the stockholders. □ Ed conspired with Sam against the plan.

C

Constant dropping wears away a stone. and Constant dripping wears away a stone. Prov. Persistence accomplishes things. □ Jill: How did you get Fred to give you a raise? Jane: I just kept asking him for it every week. Constant dropping wears away a stone.

constrain someone from doing something to prevent someone from doing something; to hold someone back from doing something. □ I hope this doesn't constrain you from trying out for the play. □ His handicap did not constrain him from finishing the race.

construct something from something and construct something out of something to build something using something. □ Do you want to construct the house from wood? □ Shall we construct the building out of stone?

construe something as something to interpret something to mean something. □ Please do not construe this as criticism. □ We mistakenly construed her comments as positive.

consult (with) someone (about someone or something) to ask someone about someone or something. □ Please consult with me about all your plans. □ You should consult the architect about your needs. □ Please consult with me first.

contact with someone a link to someone resulting in communication. (*Typically: be in ~; have ~; make ~.) □ I have had no contact with Bill since he left town. □ Tom made contact with a known criminal last month.

contaminate someone or something with something to get someone or something dirty with something; to pollute someone or something with something. □ Something in the hospital contaminated the patient with a serious infection. □ The campers learned not to contaminate the outdoors with anything they carried in.

contend against someone or something to fight or compete against someone or something. □ Do we have to contend against all this criticism? □ Ed refuses to have to contend against Eric.

contend with a problem to put up with a difficulty; to struggle with the problems caused by someone or something. □ I cannot contend with your temper anymore. □ I wish we did not have to contend with this changeable weather.

contend with someone (for something) and contend (with someone) for something to fight someone for something; to compete with someone to win something. □ I don't want to have to contend with Sally for the award. □ I don't want to have to contend for the job with Ed.

content oneself with someone or something to be satisfied with (usually less of) someone or something. □ You will just have to learn to content yourself with fewer nice vacations now that you have kids entering college.

A contented mind is a perpetual feast. Prov. If you are mentally at peace, you will always feel that you have enough of everything, and will not have to strive to get more. □ Jill: Lillian doesn't make very much money, but she seems to be happy all the time. I wonder how she manages that? Jane: A contented mind is a perpetual feast.

continue by doing something to keep going by starting to do something else or the next step. □ You are doing very well in this piano lesson. Please continue by playing the other sonata. □ After the interruption, Wally continued by explaining his position on the trade negotiations.

continue one's losing streak Go to a losing streak.

continue with something to keep doing whatever was being done before. □ Oh, please continue with your discussion. □ Do you mind if I continue with my knitting as we talk?

contract something out^t to make an agreement with someone to do a specific amount of work. (Rather than doing it oneself or in one's own place of business.) □ I will contract this out and have it done by consultants. □ I contracted out this kind of job the last time.

contract with someone (for something) and contract (with someone) for something to make an agreement with someone to produce or supply something, or to do something. □ I will have to contract with an expert for that part of the project. □ We contracted with a local builder for a new kitchen. □ Did you contract for plumbing work with Eric?

a contradiction in terms a statement containing a seeming contradiction. □ A wealthy pauper is a contradiction in terms. □ A straight-talking politician may seem to be a contradiction in terms.

contrary to something in spite of something that seems to suggest otherwise; regardless of something else. □ Contrary to what you might think, I am neat and tidy. □ Contrary to public opinion, my uncle is well and healthy.

contrast someone or something with someone or something else and contrast someone or something to someone or something else to examine people or things in a way that will show their differences. □ Contrast Sally with Sam, for instance, to see real differences. □ Contrast the busy geometry of a Gothic cathedral to the simple lines of an old Saxon castle.

contrast with someone or something 1. to be different from someone or something. □ Bill's cheery attitude really contrasts with the gloom of his twin brother, Bob. □ This striped tie really contrasts with that polka-dot shirt. 2. [for a color or pattern, etc.] to show a marked difference with or complement another. □ The black one contrasts nicely with the white one.

contribute something (to someone) (for someone or something) to donate something to someone for the benefit of someone or something. □ I hope you will contribute at least a dollar to Mary for Tom's birthday present. □ Will you contribute a dollar for Tom to Mary when she comes around? □ Can you contribute a dollar for the gift?

contribute to something 1. to donate something to some cause. □ Please contribute to the fund for the needy. 2. to add to or exacerbate something. □ The dry weather contributed to the failure of the crops.

control over someone or something the power to direct or manage someone or something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I have no control over control the purse strings and hold the purse strings Fig. to be in charge of the money in a business or a household. □ I control the purse strings at our house. □ Mr. Williams is the treasurer. He controls the purse strings.

Mary. I can't stop her from running away. □ Who gave you control over what goes on in this house?

convalesce from something to recuperate from a disease, operation, or injury. □ I spent three weeks in bed convalescing from the flu. □ Donna needed some time to convalesce from her surgery.

converge (up)on someone or something 1. Lit. to gather near or around someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Everyone converged on the wounded sailor. □ The shoppers converged on the store as it opened for the big sale. 2. Fig. to meet on someone or something; to grow together so as to focus on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Even political enemies converged on the matter of simplifying the tax code. □ Our discussions converged on Eric.

converse with someone (about someone or something) and converse (with someone) about someone or something to talk about someone or something. □ Please converse with Ted about that. □ I need to converse about last night with you. □ The principal needs to converse with you.

convert from something ((in)to something) and convert (from something) (in)to something to change from one thing into another. □ We converted from oil to natural gas to heat our house. □ I had hoped he would convert from an impatient youth into a relaxed gentleman. He did not.

convert someone or something (from something) ((in)to something) to change someone or something from something into something else. □ Can we convert you from a meat eater into a vegetarian? □ Would you be willing to convert your oil furnace to a gas one?

convey something (from someone or something) (to someone or something) to carry or transport something from someone or something to someone, something, or some place. □ I conveyed the box from the table to the basement. □ Please convey every good wish from those of us in the Midwest to those on the East Coast. □ Would you convey my blessings to the newlyweds?

convict someone of something to pronounce someone guilty of something. □ In the end, they convicted her of theft. □ The police wanted to convict Max of the crime.

convince someone of something to persuade someone that something is true. □ You will never convince me of what you say. □ I will probably convince myself of the need to find a better job.

convulse someone with something to cause someone to quake or jerk because of pain or emotion. (Can be physical or figurative; see examples.) □ He convulsed with abdominal pain from something he ate. □ The audience was convulsed with laughter.

cook someone's goose Fig. to damage or ruin someone. □ I cooked my own goose by not showing up on time. □ Sally cooked Bob's goose for treating her the way he did.

cook (something) out[†] to cook food out of doors. □ Shall we cook out some chicken tonight? □ Yes, let's cook out.

cook something to perfection to cook something perfectly. □ John cooked my steak to perfection. □ The entire dinner was cooked to perfection!

cook something up[†] 1. Lit. to prepare a batch of some kind of food by cooking. □ Fred cooked a batch of beans up for the ranch hands. □ He cooked up some food for dinner.

2. Fig. to devise or concoct something. □ Fred cooked up a scheme that was supposed to earn him a lot of money. □ I don't have a plan right now, but I think I can cook one up.

cook something up[†] (with someone) Fig. to arrange or plan to do something with someone. (The something is usually the word something. See also cook something up.) □ I tried to cook something up with Karen for Tuesday. □ I want to cook up something with John. □ Let's see if we can cook something up.

cook the accounts and cook the books to cheat in bookkeeping; to make the accounts appear to balance when they do not. □ Jane was charged with cooking the accounts of her mother's store. □ It's hard to tell whether she really cooked the accounts or just didn't know what she was doing.

cook the books Go to previous.

cook up a storm Go to up a storm.

cooked up contrived. (This is hyphenated before a nominal.) □ The whole thing seems so cooked up. □ What a cooked-up story! Of course, you don't believe it.

cooking with gas doing [something] exactly right. □ That's great! Now you're cooking with gas! □ I knew she was finally cooking with gas when she answered all the questions correctly.

cool as a cucumber extremely calm; imperturbable. (*Also: as ~.) □ Joan felt nervous, but she acted as cool as a cucumber. □ The politician kept cool as a cucumber throughout the interview with the aggressive journalist.

cool, calm, and collected Cliché [of a person] very calm and poised. □ James did very well in his TV appearances. He stayed cool, calm, and collected. □ The bad news didn't seem to distress Jane at all. She remained cool, calm, and collected.

cool down Go to cool off.

Cool it! Inf. Calm down!; Take it easy! □ Don't get mad, Bob. Cool it! □ Cool it, you guys! No fighting around here.

cool off and cool down 1. Lit. to lose or reduce heat. □ I wish my soup would cool off. I'm hungry. □ It'll cool down this evening, after dusk. 2. Fig. to let one's anger die away. (As the "heat" of anger declines.) □ I'm sorry I got angry. I'll cool off in a minute. □ Cool off, Tom. There is no sense getting so excited. 3. Fig. to let one's passion or love die away. (As the "heat" of passion declines.) □ Ted: Is Bob still in love with Jane? Bill: No, he's cooled off a lot.

cool one's heels Fig. to wait (for someone); to wait for something to happen. □ I spent an hour cooling my heels in the waiting room while the doctor saw other patients. □ All right, if you can't behave properly, just sit down here and cool your heels until I call you.

cool out Go to chill out.

cool someone down[†] and cool someone off[†] 1. Lit. to cool someone by reducing the heat or applying something cold. □ Here, have a cold drink. Cool yourself down. □ The ice finally cooled down the feverish child. □ We need to cool off the pudding in a hurry. 2. Fig. to reduce someone's anger. (Reducing the "heat" of anger.) □ I just stared at him while he was yelling. I knew that would cool him down. □ The coach talked to them for a long time. That cooled them off. 3. Fig. to reduce someone's passion or love. (Reducing the "heat" of passion.) □ When she slapped him, that really cooled him down. □ Seeing Mary was too intense, so Bill cooled himself off by breaking it off for a while.

cool someone out[†] Sl. to calm someone; to appease someone. □ Cool yourselves out, you people. We gotta be sensible. □ The manager appeared and tried to cool out everybody, but that was a waste of time.

cooled out Sl. calm; unabashed. □ Ted is a really cooled out kind of guy. □ When she's cooled out, she's great.

cooler heads prevail Fig. the ideas or influence of less emotional people prevail. (Used of a tense situation.) □ One hopes that cooler heads will prevail and soon everything will calm down.

coop someone or something up[†] to confine someone or something in a small place. □ Don't coop me up. I can't stand small places. □ We had to coop up the dogs for a while.

cooperate with someone (on something) and cooperate (with someone) on something to work together in harmony with someone on something. □ Please cooperate with me on this project. □ Can you cooperate on this with me? □ I hope we can cooperate on this.

co-opt someone into something to convince someone of a differing view to adopt one's position or philosophy. □ They tried to co-opt the students into rioting. □ There is no point in trying to co-opt them into it. They are too clever.

coordinate something with something 1. to make something harmonize with something else. □ I want to coordinate my hat with my shoes. □ Is this tie coordinated with my jacket? 2. to synchronize something with something else. □ Let us coordinate our actions in this matter. □ I think we should coordinate our departure times with that of Fred.

cop a packet to become badly injured; to be wounded severely. (Originally military.) □ My uncle copped a packet in Normandy. □ If you want to cop a packet or worse, just stand up in that shallow trench, son.

cop a plea Fig. to plead guilty to a lesser charge to avoid a more serious charge or lessen time of imprisonment. □ He copped a plea and got off with only two months in the slammer.

cop a squat Sl. to sit down. □ Hey, man! Come in and cop a squat here next to me. □ Cop a squat and crack a tube.

cop an attitude Sl. to take a negative or opposite attitude about something. □ My teenage son copped an attitude when I asked why he seemed to be sneaking around.

cop onto something Sl. to understand or become aware of something. □ I think I'm copping onto the significance of this at last. □ Try to cop onto what I'm saying, Otto.

cop out (of something) and cop out (on something) 1. Sl. to withdraw from doing something. □ Are you copping out of this job? □ No, I'm not copping out! 2. Sl. to break one's promise about doing something. □ You said you would and now you are copping out of it. □ I'm not copping out.

I just can't find the time. 3. Sl. to plead guilty (to a lesser charge). □ Frank copped out and got off with a night in the cooler.

cop out (on someone) Sl. to break one's promise to someone. (See also previous.) □ Come on! Don't cop out on me! □ You promised me you would do it! Don't cop out now!

cop out (on something) Go to cop out (of something).

cop some Zs Go to catch some Zs.

cop something from someone or something Sl. to steal or swipe something from someone or something. □ Some thug copped my watch from me. □ Max copped food from a number of stores.

cope with someone or something to endure someone or something; to manage to deal with someone or something. □ I don't think I can cope with any more trouble. □ I can't cope with your being late for work anymore.

copulate with someone [for someone] to have sexual intercourse with someone. □ He said he wanted to copulate with whom?

copy something down[†] (from someone or something) to copy onto paper what someone says; to copy onto paper what one reads. □ Please copy this down from Tony. □ Ted copied down the directions from the invitation. □ Jane copied the recipe down from the cookbook.

copy something out[†] Go to copy something out of something.

copy something out[†] (by hand) to copy something in handwriting. □ I have to copy this out again. I lost the first copy. □ Please copy out this article for me.

copy something out of something and copy something out[†] to copy something onto paper from a book or document. □ Did you copy this out of a book? □ I did not copy this paper or any part of it out of anything. □ I copied out most of it.

cordon something off[†] to mark off an area where people should not go with a rope, tape, ribbon, etc. □ The police cordoned the scene of the crime off, and we could not even get close. □ They cordoned off the area.

cork high and bottle deep Rur. very drunk. □ By the time the party was over, he was cork high and bottle deep.

cork something up[†] 1. Lit. to close and seal a bottle with a cork. □ I think we should cork this up and save it for later. □ Cork up the bottle for later. 2. Fig. to stop up one's mouth and be quiet. □ Cork it up and listen! □ Cork up your mouth!

corner the market on something and corner the something market Fig. to develop or obtain a monopoly of something. □ The company sought to corner the market on frozen yogurt. □ Standard Oil had the oil market cornered at the end of the nineteenth century.

corral someone or something Fig. to herd someone or something into a corral or other enclosed space. □ It took the cowboys two hours to corral the mustangs. □ The nursery school teacher herded the kids off the playground and corralled them in the classroom.

correlate something with something to match or equate something with something else. □ Can you correlate her comment with what she said yesterday? □ The scientist could not correlate the new data with his hypothesis.

correlate with something to match or equate with something. □ This does not correlate with your earlier story. □ What she said yesterday does not correlate with what she is saying today.

correspond to something to match up with something; to harmonize with something. □ This pin on this part corresponds to the receptacle on the other part it fits into.

correspond with someone (about someone or something) correspond (with someone) about someone or something to write letters back and forth with someone about someone or something. □ I will have to correspond with the manager about that. □ I corresponded about this with my brother. □ I corresponded with my brother for over a year. □ We corresponded about Fred.

cost a king's ransom Go to a king's ransom.

cost a pretty penny and cost an arm and a leg; cost the earth Fig. to be expensive; to cost a lot of money. □ Mary's dress is real silk. It must have cost a pretty penny. □ Taking care of a fancy car like that can cost a pretty penny, let me tell you. □ It cost an arm and a leg, so I didn't buy it. □ A house that size with an ocean view must cost the earth!

cost an arm and a leg Go to previous.

cost something out^t to figure out the total cost of some set of costs or a complex purchase of goods or services. □ Give me a minute to cost this out, and I will have an estimate for you. □ Do you have time to cost out these specifications this week?

cost the earth Go to cost a pretty penny.

cotton (on)to someone or something Rur. to begin to like or agree to someone or something quickly. □ She began to cotton to Fred, despite his country ways. □ She cottoned onto Jane's way of thinking.

cotton up to someone Rur. to try to make friends with someone; to flatter or fawn on someone in hopes of favorable treatment. □ James set out to cotton up to the parents of his friends. □ Just watch her cotton up to the teacher!

a couch potato a lazy individual, addicted to television-watching. □ All he ever does is watch TV; he's become a real couch potato. □ Couch potatoes can tend to become very fat and unhealthy, you know.

couch something in something to express something in carefully chosen or deceptive words. □ He tended to couch his explanations in arcane vocabulary. □ She couched her words in an overly polite manner.

cough one's head off Fig. to cough long and hard. (See also laugh one's head off.) □ I had the flu. I nearly coughed my head off for two days.

cough something out^t to say something while coughing. □ He coughed the words out, but no one could understand him. □ He coughed out the name of his assailant.

cough something up^t 1. to get something out of the body by coughing. □ She coughed some matter up and took some more medicine. □ She coughed up phlegm all night. 2. Euph. to vomit something. □ The dog coughed the rabbit up. □ The dog coughed up the food it had eaten. 3. Sl. to produce or present something, such as an amount of money. □ You will cough the money up, won't you? □ You had better cough up what you owe me, if you know what's good for you.

could do with someone or something to want or need someone or something; to benefit from someone or something. □ I could do with a nice cool drink right now. □ I could do with some help on this project.

could fight a circle-saw (and it a-runnin') Rur. eager to fight. □ He was so mad he could fight a circle-saw and it a-runnin'. □ She's a good watchdog. She could fight a circle-saw.

Could I be excused? Would you give me permission to leave?; Would you give me permission to leave the table? (Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Bill: I'm finished, Mom. Could I be excused? Mother: Yes, of course, when you use good manners like that.

(Could I) buy you a drink? 1. Lit. Could I purchase a drink for you? (An offer by one person—usually in a bar—to buy a drink for another. Then the two will drink together. Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ When Sally and Mary met at the agreed time in the hotel bar, Sally said to Mary, "Could I buy you a drink?" 2. Fig. Could I make you a drink? (A slightly humorous way of offering to prepare and serve someone a drink, as in one's home. Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Bill: Come in, Fred. Can I buy you a drink? I've got wine and beer. Fred: Great. A beer would be fine, thanks.

Could I call you? 1. I am too busy to talk to you now. Do you mind if I telephone you later on? (Usually in a business context. Also used with can in place of could. May is too polite here.) □ Sally: I can't talk to you right now. Could I call you? Tom: Sure, no problem. □ Bill: I've got to run. Sorry. Can I call you? Bob: No, I'm leaving town. I'll try to get in touch next week. 2. Do you mind if I call you and ask for another date sometime?; Do you mind if I call you sometime (in order to further our relationship)? (Usually in a romantic context. Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Mary: I had a marvelous time, Bob. Bob: Me, too. Can I call you? Mary: Sure. □ Bob: I had a marvelous time, Mary. May I call you? Mary: Maybe in a week or two. I have a very busy week ahead. I'll call you, in fact.

Could I come in? Do you mind if I enter? (A polite request. Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Tom (standing in the doorway): Hello, I'm with the Internal Revenue Service. Could I come in? Bill: Hi, Tom. What are you doing here? Tom: Could I come in? I have to talk to you. Bill: Sure. Come on in.

Could I get by, please? Would you please allow me space to pass by? (Also used with can or may in place of could. May is almost too polite.) □ Poor Bill, trapped at the back of the elevator behind a huge man, kept saying, "Could I get by, please?" □ "Can I get by, please?" Jane said, squeezing between passengers on the crowded bus.

(Could I) get you something (to drink)? an expression offering a drink, usually an alcoholic drink. (Compare this with (Could I) buy you a drink? Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Bill: Hi, Alice! Come on in! Can I get you something to drink? Alice: Just a little soda, if you don't mind. □ Waiter: Get you something to drink? John: No, thanks. I'll just order dinner now.

(Could I) give you a lift? Can I offer you a ride to some place? (Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Bill stopped his car at the side of the road where Tom stood. "Can I give you a lift?" asked Bill. □ John: Well, I've got to leave. Alice: Me, too. John: Give you a lift? Alice: Sure. Thanks.

Could I have a lift? and How about a lift? Would you please give me a ride (in your car)? (This usually refers to a destination that is the same as the driver's or on the way to the driver's destination. Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Bob: Going north? Could I have a lift? Bill: Sure. Hop in. Bob: Thanks. That's such a long walk to the north end of campus. □ Sue: Can I have a lift? I'm late. Mary: Sure, if you're going somewhere on Maple Street.

Could I have a word with you? Go to I'd like (to have) a word with you.

Could I have someone call you? Could I take a message so your call can be returned? (A question asked by someone who answers the telephone when the person the caller is seeking is not available. The someone can be a person's name or a pronoun, or even the word someone. Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Tom: Bill's not here now. Could I have him call you? Bob: Yeah. Ask him to leave a message on my machine. Tom: Sure. □ "Could I have her call you?" asked Mrs. Wilson's secretary.

Could I have the bill? Go to Check, please.

Could I help you? and Can I help you?; May I help you? Could I assist you? (Said by shopkeepers, clerks, food service workers, and people who answer the telephone.) □ The clerk came over and said, "Could I help you?" □ Clerk: May I help you? Mary: No thanks, I'm just looking.

Could I join you? and (Do you) care if I join you?; (Do you) mind if I join you? Will you permit me to sit with you? (An inquiry seeking permission to sit at someone's table or join someone else in some activity. Also used with can or may in place of could.) □ Tom came into the cafe and saw Fred and Sally sitting in a booth by the window. Coming up to them, Tom said, "Could I join you?"

Could I leave a message? and Can I leave a message? Can I request that a message be written down for a person who is not available to come to the telephone. □ Bill: Can I talk to Fred? Mary: He's not here. Bill: Could I leave a message? Mary: Sure, I can leave a message for him.

Could I see you again? and Can I see you again?; May I see you again? Could we go out again sometime? □ Tom: I had a wonderful time, Mary. Can I see you again? Mary: Call me tomorrow, Tom. Good night. □ "Could I see you again?" muttered Tom, dizzy with the magic of her kiss.

Could I see you in my office? and Can I see you in my office? I want to talk to you in the privacy of my office. (Typically said by a supervisor to a lower-ranking employee.) □ "Mr. Franklin," said Bill's boss sort of sternly, "Could I see you in my office for a minute? We need to talk about something."

Could I speak to someone? and Can I speak to someone?; May I speak to someone? the phrase used to request to talk to a particular person, usually on the telephone. (Also used with talk in place of speak.) □ Tom (answering the phone): Good morning, Acme Air Products. With whom do you wish to speak? Bill: Can I speak to Mr. Wilson? Tom: One moment. □ Sally: May I speak to the manager, please? Clerk: Certainly, madam. I'm the manager.

Could I take a message? and Can I take a message?; May I take a message? the phrase used on the telephone to offer to take a message and give it to the person the caller is seeking. □ Bill: Can I talk to Fred? Mary: He's not here. Could I take a message for him?

Could I take your order (now)? and Can I take your order (now)?; May I take your order (now)? an expression used by food service personnel to determine if the customer is ready to order food. □ Waiter: May I take your order now? Mary: Of course. Jane, what are you going to have? Jane: I'm still trying to decide. Waiter: I'll be back in a minute. □ Waiter: Can I take your order? Mary: Yes, we're ready.

Could I tell him who's calling? and Can I tell her who's calling?; May I tell him who's calling? a question asked by people who answer the telephone to find out politely who is asking for someone. (Him or her can be replaced by a person's name or by a plural pronoun.) □ Mary (on the phone): Hello. Could I speak to Bill Franklin? Sally: Could I tell him who's calling? Mary: It's Mary Peters. Sally: Oh yes, he's expecting your call. I'll get him for you.

Could I use your powder room? and Can I use your powder room?; May I use your powder room?; Where is your powder room? Euph. a polite way to ask to use the bathroom in someone's home. (Alludes to a woman powdering her nose. Sometimes used jocularly by men. See also powder one's nose.) □ Mary: Oh, Sally, could I use your powder room? Sally: Of course. It's just off the kitchen, on the left. □ Tom: Nice place you've got here. Uh, where is your powder room? Beth: At the top of the stairs.

Could we continue this later? and Can we continue this later? Could we go on with this conversation at a later time? □ As Mary and John were discussing something private, Bob entered the room. "Could we continue this later?" whispered John. "Yes, of course," answered Mary.

Could you excuse us, please? and Can you excuse us, please?; Would you excuse us, please?; Will you excuse us, please? We must leave. I hope you will forgive us. (A polite way of announcing a departure.) □ Bill: Could you excuse us, please? We simply must rush off. Alice: So sorry you have to go. Come back when you can stay longer.

Could you hold? and Can you hold?; Will you hold? Do you mind if I put your telephone call on hold? □ "Could you hold?" asked the operator. □ Sue: Hello. Acme Motors. Can you hold? Bob: I guess. Sue (after a while): Hello. Thank you for holding. Can I help you?

Could you keep a secret? and Can you keep a secret? I am going to tell you something that I hope you will keep a secret. (Also used with can in place of could.) □ Tom: Could you keep a secret? Mary: Sure. Tom: Don't tell anybody, but I'm going to be a daddy. □ Sue: Can you keep a secret? Alice: Of course. Sue: We're moving to Atlanta.

couldn't be happier totally happy. They both couldn't be happier since they got married.

could(n't) care less [one is] unable to care at all; it does not matter at all. John couldn't care less whether he goes to the party or not. I could care less if I live or die.

couldn't hit a bull in the ass with a bass fiddle Rur. unable to aim; very clumsy. (Jocular. Use with caution.) Tom: Is Jane a good shot? Charlie: She couldn't hit a bull in the ass with a bass fiddle.

couldn't pour water out of a boot (if there was instructions on the heel) Rur. stupid. I won't say Jim is dumb, but he couldn't pour water out of a boot. Jane couldn't pour water out of a boot if there was instructions on the heel—and she's the smartest one in her family!

Councils of war never fight. Prov. A group of people charged with crucial decisions often cannot act decisively. We tried to convince the boss not to form a committee, but to decide himself. We knew that councils of war never fight.

counsel someone about something to give advice to someone about something. Will you counsel George about which tires to buy?

counsel someone against something to advise someone against doing something. The lawyer counseled her against suing the government. I was counseled against going for a walk alone at night.

count against someone [for something] to be held against someone; [for something] to weigh against someone. I hope this mistake doesn't count against me. Don't worry, it won't count against you at all.

count down to count backwards to an event that will start when zero is reached. The project manager was counting down—getting ready for the launch of the rocket. I can still hear the captain counting down: "Five, four, three, two, one, zero, blast off!"

count for something to be valid for something; to be worth something. Doesn't all my work count for anything? Your positive attitude counts for a lot as far as I'm concerned.

count from something (up) to something to say or list the numbers from one number to some other number. Now, count from 100 up to 300 by threes. Timmy can count from 1 to 40.

count heads and count noses Fig. to count people. I'll tell you how many people are here after I count heads. Let's count noses so we can be sure everyone is back on the bus.

Count no man happy till he dies. Go to Call no man happy till he dies.

count noses Go to count heads.

count off [for a series of people, one by one] to say aloud the next number in a fixed sequence. The soldiers counted off by threes. The sergeant told them to count off.

count on someone or something to rely on someone or something; to depend on someone or something. We can count on Bill to get the job done. Can I count on this car to start every morning of the year?

count one's chickens before they hatch Fig. to plan how to utilize good results of something before those results have occurred. (The same as Don't count your chickens before they are hatched.) You may be disappointed if you count your chickens before they hatch.

count someone among something to consider someone as a particular type of person or part of a particular group. I count her among my closest friends. Rachel counted herself among the luckiest people alive.

count someone in (for something) and count someone in (on something); count someone in^t to include someone as part of something. Please count me in for the party. Do count me in on it. Count in everybody who said they would attend.

count someone or something as something to consider someone to be a particular type of person. I count Todd as one of the possible candidates. I count this entry as a definite prizewinner.

count someone or something off^t to count people or things, to see if they are all there. (See also count off.) Let's count them off to see who's missing. Count off each person, one by one. I counted each one off.

count someone or something up^t to count things or people to see how many there are. Let's count them up and see how many we have. I counted all the guests up, and there are too many to seat. Please count up all these books and tell me how many there are.

count someone out (for something) to exclude someone from something. Please count me out for the party next Saturday. I have other plans. You should count the whole family out. We are going to the beach for the weekend.

count something against someone to regard something in a negative way against someone. I'm afraid we must count this against you as an unexcused absence. Don't count that last strike against the batter.

count something as something to treat or think of something as being a certain thing. I count this as a win. Did you count that one as a fair ball?

count something in^t to include something in a count of something. Did you count the tall ones in? Did you count in the tall ones in the corner?

count something out^t 1. to disregard something; to eliminate a possibility. We'll have to count out the possibility of his being elected. Never count it out. It can always happen. 2. to give out things, counting them one by one. She counted the cookies out, one by one. She counted out the cookies to each child.

count up to something 1. to say or list the numbers from zero on up to a certain number. Can you count up to a million? I can count up to any number you name, and I will do it if you will stay around to listen. 2. to equal a specified total; to add up to something. That counts up to a lot. The money we earned today counts up to just enough to pay for the electricity we used today.

count (up)on someone or something to rely on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) Can I count upon you to do the job? You can count on me.

count with someone to be important to someone. Your cooperation really counts with me. All my efforts do not count with her.

counter someone or something with something to refute someone or something with something. □ She countered our evidence with an eyewitness. □ I countered Nancy with a better argument.

counter with something to say something in refutation of something; to strike back with something. □ Aren't you going to counter with an argument? □ He countered with a punch in the jaw.

a country mile Rur. a great distance. □ The batter knocked that ball a country mile. □ I had to walk a country mile to the next gas station.

a couple of two; two or three; a few; some; not many. □ Bill grabbed a couple of beers from the refrigerator. □ I hung a couple of pictures on the wall.

couple someone with someone to join one person with another to make a pair. □ I coupled Todd with Amy for the dinner party.

couple something (on)to something and couple something on(to) something); couple something on[†] to attach something to something. □ Couple this connector to that one. □ The railroad worker coupled on the next car in line. □ Couple the green one onto the red one.

couple something together to attach two parts of something together. □ Couple these two cars together and put them on track seven. □ You have to couple the ends of the two hoses together before you turn on the water.

couple something with something to join one thing with another to make a pair. □ We coupled the budget issue with the staffing issue for our agenda.

couple up (with someone) [for one person] to join another person to form a pair. □ I decided to couple up with Larry. □ Larry and I coupled up with each other. □ By midnight, they all had coupled up and were dancing.

couple with someone Euph. to have sexual intercourse with someone. □ They coupled with each other in a night of passion.

couple with something to connect or join to something. □ This railroad car will couple with the engine. □ These cars did not couple with the others properly, and there was almost an accident.

course of action the procedures or sequence of actions that someone will follow to accomplish a goal. □ I plan to follow a course of action that will produce the best results. □ The board planned a course of action that would reduce costs and eliminate employees.

The course of true love never did run smooth. Prov. People in love with each other often have to overcome difficulties in order to be together. (From Shakespeare's play, A Midsummer Night's Dream.) □ Jill: What am I going to do? My boyfriend's job is transferring him to Texas, and I have to stay here. Jane: The course of true love never did run smooth.

course through something to run, race, or flow rapidly through something. □ I believe, sometimes, that ice water courses through your veins. □ No, perfectly red blood courses through them.

Courtesy costs nothing. Go to Civility costs nothing.

cover a lot of ground 1. Lit. to travel over a great distance; to investigate a wide expanse of land. □ The prospectors covered a lot of ground, looking for gold. □ My car can cover a lot of ground in one day. 2. Fig. to deal with much information and many facts. □ The history lecture covered a lot of ground today.

cover for someone 1. to make excuses for someone; to conceal someone's errors. □ If I miss class, please cover for me. □ If you're late, I'll cover for you. 2. to handle someone else's work. □ Dr. Johnson's partner agreed to cover for him during his vacation.

cover someone in something to place something over someone or something to serve as clothing or concealment. □ The designer had covered her in see-through fabric that was very revealing.

cover someone or something against something 1. to cover someone or something as protection against something. □ You should cover your ears against the cold. □ I covered little Jimmy against the night's drafts. □ I covered myself against the driving rain. 2. Rur. [for an insurer] to provide insurance on someone or something against some peril. □ The insurance policy covered us against losses. □ This policy covers your car against theft.

cover someone or something for something [for an insurer] to provide protection to someone or something for a particular price. □ One company will cover the car for about a thousand dollars. □ This policy covers you for a few dollars a week.

cover someone or something up[†] to place something on someone or something for protection or concealment. □ Cover the pie up, so Terry won't see it. □ Cover up Jimmy so he doesn't get cold.

cover someone's tracks (up)[†] to conceal one's trail; to conceal one's past activities. □ She was able to cover her tracks up so that they couldn't pin the charges on her. □ It's easy to cover up your tracks when the investigators botch their job. □ The robber failed to cover his tracks.

cover something up[†] 1. Lit. to place some sort of cover on something. □ Please cover up that mess with a cloth. □ Cover it up. 2. Fig. to conceal a wrongdoing; to conceal evidence. □ They tried to cover the crime up, but the single footprint gave them away. □ She could not cover up her misdeeds.

cover the territory 1. Lit. to travel or deal with a specific large area. □ The sales manager was responsible for all of the eastern states and personally covered the territory twice each year. 2. Fig. to deal with all matters relating to a specific topic. □ That lecture really covered the territory in only an hour.

cover the waterfront to deal with every detail concerning a specific topic. □ Her talk really covered the waterfront. By the time she finished, I knew much more than I wanted to know.

cover (up) for someone to conceal someone's wrongdoing by lying or concealing the evidence of wrongdoing. □ Are you covering up for the person who committed the crime? □ I wouldn't cover for anyone.

cow chip and cow pie; cow patty; cow flop Inf. a piece of cow manure. □ The pioneers didn't have much wood, so they burned dried cow chips. □ How did that big ol' cow pie get in the middle of my flower bed? □ Tom slipped on a cow patty.

cow juice Sl. milk. □ Here's a little cow juice to pour on your cereal.

cow paste Rur. butter. □ Would you kindly pass the cow paste?

cow patty Go to cow chip.

cow pie Go to cow chip.

cow someone into something to intimidate someone into doing something through the use of guilt or shame. □ You can't cow me into doing it. Those tricks don't work on me. □ You can cow Wally into almost anything.

Cowards die many times before their death(s). Prov. Cowards are often afraid that they are going to die, so that they often feel what it is like to die, while brave people only feel the fear of death when they are really about to die. (From Shakespeare's play, Julius Caesar.) □ Every time Nina went out alone, she was always afraid. Cowards die many times before their deaths.

cower (away) from someone or something to pull away from someone or something in fear. □ The coyote cowered away from the fire.

cower down (from something) and cower down (with something) to crouch down, displaying an emotion, such as fear. □ They cowered down with sheer terror. □ I would cower down from fright in a similar situation.

cower from something to draw back from the fear of something. □ The wolves cowered from the flames. □ Some excited hyenas cowered from the lions as they passed by.

cozy up (to someone) 1. Lit. to snuggle up to someone as if to get warm. □ The children cozied up to their mother. □ They cozied up to each other. 2. Fig. to try to get in good with someone; to try to increase one's influence with someone by being extra nice and friendly. □ The salesman tried to cozy up to the customer.

crack a book Fig. to open a book to study. (Usually used with a negative.) □ I never cracked a book and still passed the course. □ Sally didn't crack a book all semester.

crack a bottle open[†] Fig. to open a bottle of liquor. □ Let's crack open a bottle and celebrate. □ He cracked a bottle open and poured a little for everyone to try.

crack a joke to tell a joke. □ She's never serious. She's always cracking jokes. □ Every time Tom cracked a joke, his buddies broke up laughing.

crack a smile to grin; to smile. □ I was tellin' my best jokes, but Jim never cracked a smile. □ She looked surprised, and then cracked a big, beautiful smile.

a crack at someone Go to a try at someone.

a crack at something Go to a try at something.

crack down (on someone or something) to put limits on someone or something; to become strict about enforcing rules about someone or something. □ The police cracked down on the street gangs. □ They cracked down once last year too.

crack open [for something brittle] to break or split open. □ The egg cracked open and a chick worked its way out. □ The side of the mountain cracked open and molten lava flowed out.

crack some suds Sl. to drink some beer. □ Let's go out tonight and crack some suds. □ The guys wanted to watch the game and crack some suds.

crack someone or something up[†] to damage someone or something. (See also crack someone up.) □ Who cracked my car up? □ Who cracked up my car? Who was driving? □ The accident cracked him up a little.

crack someone up[†] to make someone laugh very hard; to make someone break out laughing. □ You and your jokes really crack me up. □ That comedian really knows how to crack up an audience.

crack something up[†] to crash something; to destroy something (in an accident). □ The driver cracked the car up in an accident. □ The pilot cracked up the plane.

crack something (wide) open 1. Lit. to crack or split something. □ An incredible eruption cracked the volcano wide open. 2. Fig. to expose and reveal some great wrongdoing. □ The police cracked the drug ring wide open. □ The newspaper story cracked the trouble at city hall wide open.

crack the door (open) and crack the window (open) to open the door or window a very small amount. □ I cracked open the door to peek out. □ Just crack the window a bit to let some air inside.

crack the window (open) Go to previous.

crack under the strain Fig. to have a mental or emotional collapse because of continued work or stress. □ He worked 80-hour weeks for a month and finally cracked under the strain.

crack up 1. to have a wreck. □ The plane cracked up and killed two of the passengers. □ Whose car cracked up on the expressway? 2. to break out in laughter. □ The whole audience cracked up. □ I knew I would crack up during the love scene. 3. Sl. to have a mental or emotional breakdown. □ The poor guy cracked up. It was too much for him. □ You would crack up, too, if you had been through all he went through. 4. an accident; a wreck. (Usually crack-up.) □ There was a terrible crack-up on the expressway. □ There were four cars in the crack-up.

cracked Fig. solved; understood. (*Typically: get something ~; have something ~.) □ I've got the mystery cracked! □ After I get it cracked, the rest'll be easy.

cracked up to be something and cracked up to be; cracked up as something alleged or understood to be something. □ She was cracked up to be a pretty good player. □ She was cracked up as a pretty good golfer. □ (Used with the negative.) He is not the problem solving CEO that he was cracked up to be.

cram for a test Go to next.

cram for an examination and cram for a test Fig. to study very hard for an exam. □ I have to go cram for a test now. □ If you would study during the school term, you would not have to cram.

cram someone or something into something and cram someone or something in[†] to stuff or crush someone or something into something. □ Can you really cram seven kids into that car? □ He crammed in his clothes and closed the drawer.

cram someone or something with someone or something to fill someone or something by stuffing with someone or something. You won't be happy till you cram all of us with cake and ice cream. He crammed his drawer with his socks.

C

cramp someone's style Fig. to limit someone in some way. I hope this doesn't cramp your style, but could you please not hum while you work? To ask Bob to keep regular hours would really be cramping his style.

crank someone up[†] Fig. to motivate; to get someone started. (See also crank something up.) See if you can crank up your brother and get him going on time today. Some mornings, I can't crank myself up enough to get to work on time.

crank something out[†] Fig. to produce something quickly or carelessly; to make something in a casual and mechanical way. John can crank a lot of work out in a single day. The automated production line could really crank out parts, but the quality was shoddy.

crank something up[†] 1. to get a machine or a process started. (Alludes to turning the starting crank of an early automobile.) Please crank the machinery so the workers can start working. Let's crank up the drill and make a few holes here in the wall. 2. to increase the volume of an electronic device. He cranked it up a little more and CRACK, there went both speakers! Kelly cranked up his stereo until we were nearly deafened.

crap out Sl. to die. Max almost crapped out from the beating he took. The old dog just crapped out. What shall we do?

crap out (of something) to lose on a roll of the dice in a dice game called craps and leave the game and the other players. (See also crap out (of something) (on someone).) Wally crapped out of the game early in the evening.

crap out (of something) (on someone) 1. Sl. to withdraw from doing something with someone, unexpectedly, perhaps because of fear or cowardice. Are you going to crap out of this game on me? 2. Sl. to quit doing something with someone or withdraw because of exhaustion. Don't crap out of this on me! Pull yourself together! Don't crap out on me!

crash and burn 1. Lit. [for a plane or car] to crash and burst into flames. The small plane crashed and burned just after it took off. 2. Fig. to fail spectacularly. Poor Chuck really crashed and burned when he made his presentation at the sales meeting.

crash around to move around in a noisy way Stop crashing around. I'm trying to study. The people upstairs were crashing around and I couldn't get any sleep.

a crash course in something a short and intense training course in something. I took a crash course in ballroom dancing so we wouldn't look stupid on the dance floor.

crash down (around someone or something) and crash down (about someone or something) 1. and crash in (on someone or something) Lit. [for something] to collapse on someone or something. The walls crashed in around the burning house. The branches of the tree crashed down on the roof. The old barn crashed down. 2. Fig. [for the structure and stability of one's life] to fall apart. Her whole life crashed down around her. Everything he was familiar with crashed down about him.

crash into someone or something to bump or ram into someone or something accidentally or roughly. The student crashed into the door when it opened suddenly. The car crashed into a bus.

crash out (of some place) to break out of some place, such as a prison. Max and Lefty crashed out of the state prison last week, but they were captured. They crashed out at midnight.

crash something together to bring things together with great force, making a loud noise. Fred crashed the cymbals together and the sound could have wakened the dead. Don't crash those pans together. It drives me crazy.

crash through something to break through something forcefully. The cows crashed right through the fence.

crash to the floor to fall onto the floor and make a crashing sound. The tray of dishes crashed to the floor. Everything crashed to the floor and was broken.

crash together to ram or move together with great force. The two cars crashed together, making a loud noise. The ships crashed together, opening a gaping hole in the side of one of them.

crash with someone Sl. to spend the night at someone's place. I don't need a hotel room. I can crash with Tom. There is no room for you to crash with me.

crave to do something Rur. to want to do something eagerly. I don't crave to ride the roller coaster, thank you. The kids have been craving to see that movie for weeks.

crawl across something and crawl along something [for someone] to move across something on hands and knees; [for an insect or something similar] to walk across something. The wounded officer had to crawl across the open area to get to safety. The caterpillar crawled across the leaf and stopped at the end. She crawled along the catwalk, fearing to look down.

crawl along something Go to previous.

crawl back to someone Fig. to go back to someone humbly, perhaps asking for forgiveness. I knew you would come crawling back to me! I wouldn't crawl back to him for all the tea in China.

crawl in(to something) 1. Lit. to enter a place crawling or creeping. The cat crawled into the room and meowed. The baby crawled in and tried to stand up. 2. Fig. to dress quickly in some kind of clothing. I crawled into my pants and threw on a shirt. He finally found his pants and crawled in. 3. Fig. to get into bed. At about ten o'clock, she crawled into bed. She pulled back the covers and crawled in.

crawl out to get out by crawling. The bears finally woke up and crawled out. In the cave, I injured my leg and I had to crawl out.

crawl out (from under someone or something) Go to out (from under someone or something).

crawl out (of something) to get out of something by crawling. The injured man crawled out of the overturned car. Donna crawled out of the cave.

crawl over something to cross over something by crawling. We crawled over the pile of boxes. Timmy crawled over the carpet and stood up at the coffee table.

crawling with some kind of creature [of a surface] covered with insects or animals, moving about. □ The basement was crawling with rats! □ We came home and found the kitchen floor crawling with ants.

crawling with someone Fig. [of a surface] covered with many people or members of a class of people moving about. □ The place was crawling with police and FBI agents. □ The city was crawling with tourists making it almost impossible to go from place to place.

crazy about someone or something and mad about someone or something; nuts about someone or something; crazy for someone or something Fig. very fond of someone or something. □ Ann is crazy about John. □ He's crazy about her, too. □ I'm mad about their new song.

crazy as a betsy bug and crazy as a peach-orchard boar; crazy as a loon Rur. acting as if insane. (*Also: as ~.) □ Tom: Susan says she's really the Queen of England. Bill: She's crazy as a betsy bug. □ Jill: David's a little eccentric, isn't he? Jane: Crazy as a loon, I'd say. □ What's wrong with Jim? He's acting as crazy as a peach-orchard boar.

crazy as a loon Go to previous.

crazy as a peach-orchard boar Go to crazy as a betsy bug.

crazy bone Go to funny bone.

crazy for someone or something Go to crazy about someone or something.

crazy in the head stupid or insane. □ Be quiet, Jed. You are just crazy in the head. □ Am I crazy in the head, or did I just see someone walking a leopard on a leash?

A creaking door hangs longest. and A creaking gate hangs longest. Prov. Sickly people often live longer than healthy ones. □ Jill: I'm worried that my grandmother may not live much longer. She's been sick for so many years. Jane: Well, if it's any comfort, I've heard that a creaking door hangs longest.

A creaking gate hangs longest. Go to previous.

the cream of the crop Fig. the best of all. □ This particular car is the cream of the crop. □ These three students are very bright. They are the cream of the crop in their class.

crease something up[†] to get creases or folds into something that is supposed to be flat; to wrinkle one's clothing. (Very similar to messed up.) □ You will crease your jacket up if you don't sit up straight. □ I was sitting so long that I creased up my pants.

create a scene Go to make a scene.

create a stink (about something) and make a stink (about something); raise a stink (about something) Fig. to make a major issue out of something; to make much over something; to make a lot of complaints and criticisms about something. □ Tom created a stink about Bob's remarks. □ Why did he make a stink about that? □ Tom is always trying to raise a stink.

create an uproar and make an uproar to cause an outburst or sensation. □ The dog got into church and made an uproar. □ Her poodle created an uproar in the restaurant.

creature comforts things that make people comfortable. □ The hotel room was a bit small, but all the creature comforts were there.

credit (for something) 1. praise or recognition for one's role in something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) Especially with a lot of ~, much ~.) □ Mary should get a lot of credit for the team's success. □ Each of the team captains should get credit. 2. praise or recognition of someone for having a particular quality. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ We give her a lot of credit for her ability to get people to work out their differences. □ We will give credit to Sharon for her good humor. 3. credit granted to someone's account for some other financial transaction. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I will give you credit for the returned merchandise. □ We got credit for the check Brian sent us.

credit someone or something for something to give someone or something the praise deserved for doing something. □ We must credit Sarah for her efforts on our behalf. □ We have to credit all the rain we've had for saving the crops.

credit someone or something with something 1. Lit. to record a payment, deposit, etc., to the account of someone or something. □ I will credit you with this payment as you request. □ Your account has been credited with this adjustment. 2. Fig. to give someone or something well-deserved praise for doing something or having something. □ We have to credit Jeff with saving us a lot of money. □ We will credit the weather with part of the success of the picnic.

credit something to someone or something 1. Lit. to record a sum owed to the account of someone or something. □ I will credit this payment to your account. □ I am afraid that I accidentally credited your payment to George. 2. Fig. to give someone or something well-deserved praise. □ The entire organization credited much praise to Jeff. □ We had to credit much of our success to simple good luck.

a credit to someone or something of value or benefit to someone or something; of enough value or worth as to enhance someone or something. □ I always want to be a credit to my school. □ John is not what you would call a credit to his family.

creep across something 1. Lit. to move across something slowly and carefully; to sneak across something. □ The soldiers crept slowly across the rope bridge. □ The cat crept across the floor, stalking the mouse. 2. Fig. [for light, fog, etc.] to move slowly across a place or an area. □ A heavy fog crept across the coastal areas. □ The spotlight crept across the stage from one side to the other, as if looking for the performer.

creep along something to move along something slowly and carefully; to sneak along something. □ Creep along the side of the building until you reach the door. □ The cat crept along the narrow kitchen counter.

creep away to travel away slowly and carefully; to sneak away. □ The boys were completely ashamed and crept away. □ The cat crept away quietly.

creep by Fig. [for time] to pass slowly. □ The minutes crept by as I awaited Mrs. Barron's telephone call. □ I know the days will creep by until we finally get our test results.

creep in(to something) to go into something or a place slowly and carefully; to sneak into something or a place. □ The cat crept into the bedroom. □ Max planned to creep into the house and take cash and jewelry.

creep out (from under someone or something) Go to out (from under someone or something).

creep out (of something) to go out of something or a place slowly and carefully; to sneak out of something or a place. □ A little mouse crept out of the cupboard. □ The fox crept out of the henhouse, carrying a chicken.

creep out of the woodwork Go to out of the woodwork.

creep over someone or something 1. Lit. [for something, such as an insect] to walk or crawl over someone or something. □ A huge ant crept over me, and I just lay there.
2. Fig. [for darkness] to move slowly over someone or something. □ The shadows crept over the picnic and made everyone realize what time it was. □ Dusk crept over us.

creep under something to move slowly and carefully underneath something; to sneak underneath something. □ The dog crept under the table to escape punishment. □ The chipmunk crept under a pile of leaves and disappeared.

creep up [for darkness] to move gradually and slowly [toward someone or something]. □ Dusk crept up and swallowed us in darkness.

creep up on someone or something to sneak up on someone or something. □ Please don't creep up on me like that. You scared me to death. □ The cat crept up on the mouse.

*the creeps and *the willies a state of anxiety or uneasiness. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I get the creeps when I see that old house. □ I really had the willies when I went down into the dark basement.

crib something from someone or something to cheat by copying something from someone or something. □ It appears that you cribbed this directly from the person sitting next to you.

a crick in one's back a twisted or cramped place in the back that causes pain. □ I can't move! I've got a crick in my back! □ I had a crick in my back all night and I couldn't sleep.

a crick in one's neck Fig. a twisted place or a cramp in the neck that causes pain. □ I got a crick in my neck from sleeping in a draft. □ When I read on the plane, I get a crick in my neck.

Crime doesn't pay. Prov. Crime will ultimately not benefit a person. □ No matter how tempting it may appear, crime doesn't pay.

cringe away from someone or something and cringe from someone or something to pull back or away from someone or something, as from fear. □ The child cringed away from the teacher. □ Why did you cringe away from the dentist's chair? □ The cat cringed from the fire. □ The child cringed from the huge dog.

cringe before someone or something to cower or recoil in the presence of someone or something. □ Jeff cringed before the wrath of the policeman.

crinkle up to wrinkle up. □ Her nose crinkled up when she laughed.

criticize someone for something to reprimand or censure someone for something. □ I hope you don't criticize me too severely for my part in this matter. □ Maria criticized Ken for not being there on time.

crock someone or something up[†] Sl. to damage or harm someone or something. □ The accident crocked me up a bit. □ I really crocked up my car last night.

crooked as a barrel of fish hooks and crooked as a fish hook; crooked as a dog's hind leg very dishonest. (*Also: as ~.) □ Don't play cards with him. He's as crooked as a barrel of fish hooks. □ Mary says all politicians are crooked as a dog's hind leg.

crooked as a dog's hind leg Go to previous.

crop out to appear on the surface; [for something] to reveal itself in the open; to begin to show above the surface. □ A layer of rock cropped out at the edges of the desert.

crop someone or something out[†] [for a photographer] to cut or trim out someone or something from a photograph. □ The photographer cropped Mr. Jones out of the picture. □ See if you can crop out the ugly fence at the side of the house.

crop up to appear without warning; to happen suddenly; [for something] to begin to reveal itself in the open. □ Some new problems cropped up at the last minute.

cross a bridge before one comes to it and cross that bridge before one comes to it Fig. to worry excessively about something before it happens. (Note the variations in the examples. See also cross that bridge when one comes to it.) □ There is no sense in crossing that bridge before you come to it. □ She's always crossing bridges before coming to them. She needs to learn to relax.

cross from some place to some place to move across something from one point to another. □ We crossed from one side of the hall to the other, looking for a seat. □ I have to cross from Illinois to Missouri over a rickety old bridge.

cross one's fingers Go to keep one's fingers crossed (for someone or something).

cross one's heart (and hope to die) Fig. a phrase said to pledge or vow that the truth is being told. □ It's true, cross my heart and hope to die. □ It's really true—cross my heart.

cross over 1. to cross something such as a river or a street. □ This is a very wide river. Where do we cross over? □ Let's cross over here where it's shallow. 2. to change sides, from one to another. □ Some players from the other team crossed over and joined ours after the tournament. 3. Euph. to die. □ Uncle Herman crossed over long before Aunt Helen.

cross over into some place to go from one place into another, by crossing a border, river, mountain range, etc. □ The refugees crossed over into Switzerland. □ We crossed over into Missouri at dawn.

cross over something to go some place by crossing a border, river, mountain range, etc. □ Do we want to cross over the river at this point? □ How do we cross over the highway?

cross paths (with someone) Fig. to meet someone by chance and not by choice. □ The last time I crossed paths with Fred, we ended up arguing about something inconsequential.

cross someone to oppose someone. □ You best not cross Jim. He has a very bad temper. □ This is the last time you cross me, you hear?

cross someone or something off (of) something and cross someone or something off[†] to eliminate a name from a list or record. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ We will have to cross her off of our list. □ We crossed off Sarah.

□ I crossed the sweater off the list of what I needed to buy.

cross someone or something out^t to draw a line through the name of someone or something on a list or record. □ You can cross me out. I'm not going. □ Please cross out Sarah's name. □ I crossed the sweater out. It was an error.

cross someone's mind Go to pass through someone's mind.

cross someone's palm with silver Fig. to pay money to someone in payment for a service. (A fortune-teller might ask for a potential customer to cross her palm with silver. Used in that sense or jocularly for something like tipping a porter.) □ I crossed his palm with silver, but he still stood there. □ You will find that things happen much faster in hotels if you cross the staff's palms with silver fairly often.

cross someone up^t to give someone trouble; to defy or betray someone; to spoil someone's plans. (Also without up.) □ You really crossed up Bill when you told Tom what he said. □ Please don't cross me up again.

cross something with something 1. to go across something, using a particular type of vehicle. □ The explorers crossed the river with their Jeep. □ We can't cross this stream with the canoes. It's too fast. 2. to interbreed something with something else. □ The farmer crossed this smaller breed of chicken with the meatier one. □ It is possible to cross a horse with a donkey.

cross swords (with someone) Fig. to become the adversary of someone. □ Gloria loved an argument and was looking forward to crossing swords with Sally.

cross that bridge when one comes to it Fig. to delay worrying about something that might happen until it actually does happen. (Usually used in the phrase, "Let's cross that bridge when we come to it," a way of telling someone not to worry about something that has not happened yet. □ Alan: Where will we stop tonight? Jane: At the next town. Alan: What if all the hotels are full? Jane: Let's cross that bridge when we come to it.

cross the Rubicon Fig. to do something that inevitably commits one to following a certain course of action. (Alludes to the crossing of the River Rubicon by Julius Caesar with his army, which involved him in a civil war in B.C. 49.) □ Jane crossed the Rubicon by signing the contract. □ Find another job before you cross the Rubicon and resign from this one.

Cross the stream where it is shallowest. Prov. To do things in the easiest possible way. □ Jill: How can I get Fred to give me permission to start this project? Jane: Cross the stream where it is shallowest. First ask Fred's boss for permission; I'm sure she'll give it to you. Then Fred will have to agree.

Crosses are ladders that lead to heaven. Prov. Having to endure trouble can help you to be virtuous. □ When Mary was diagnosed with cancer, her mother consoled her by saying that crosses are ladders that lead to heaven, and that though she might have to suffer in this world, she would surely be rewarded in the next.

cross-examine someone to question someone in court who has already been questioned by the opposing side; to question a suspect or a witness at great length. □ The lawyer plans to cross-examine the witness tomorrow morning. □ The police cross-examined the suspect for three hours.

crouch around [for people or other creatures] to stoop or squat within an area. □ Everyone crouched around, hoping the bomb would fall somewhere else. □ The baboons crouched around, grooming one another.

crouch down to stoop or huddle down. □ Crouch down here, next to me. □ Suddenly, Tex crouched down and reached for his pistol.

crow about something and crow over something 1. Lit. [for a rooster] to cry out or squawk about something. □ The rooster was crowing about something—you never know what. 2. Fig. [for someone] to brag about something. □ Stop crowing about your successes! □ She is crowing over her new car.

crow bait Rur. someone or an animal that is likely to die; a useless animal or person. □ That old dog used to hunt good, but now he's just crow bait.

crow over something Go to crow about something.

crowd around someone or something to flock or swarm around someone or something. □ The children crowded around the department store Santa, eager for their chance at talking to him. □ Everyone crowded around the radio to listen.

crowd in Go to crowd in(to) some place.

crowd in (on someone or something) to press or crush around someone or something. □ Please don't crowd in on the guest of honor. □ Can you keep them back from me? I don't like it when they crowd in. □ The people crowded in on us and frightened us a little bit. □ Don't crowd in on the display case. It is an antique.

crowd in(to) some place and crowd in to push or squeeze into some place. □ Please don't try to crowd into this place. □ Too many people are trying to crowd in.

crowd someone or something in(to) something and crowd someone or something in^t to push or squeeze someone or something into a place or a container. □ They tried to crowd a dozen people into that tiny room. □ Then they crowded in one more. □ They all tried to crowd themselves into the same room.

crowd someone or something out of something and crowd someone or something out^t to push or force someone, something, or an animal out of something. □ Don't crowd your brother out of line! □ Don't crowd out my favorite plants with all your rosebushes!

crowd someone or something together to push or squeeze people or things together. □ See if you can crowd them together and get more in the row. □ I am afraid that I crowded the plants together too much.

crowd something with someone or something to pack too many people or things into something. □ The ushers crowded the room with visitors. □ Aunt Victoria had crowded the room with the busy trappings of a bygone era.

crowd through (something) [for a number of people] to push through something. □ The little group of revelers crowded through the door. □ They all tried to crowd through.

crowd together to pack tightly together. □ The tenants crowded together in the lobby. □ All the kittens crowded together to keep warm.

crown someone with something 1. Lit. to place a crown on someone's head. □ They crowned the prince with the heavily jeweled royal crown. 2. Fig. to strike someone on the head with something. □ She crowned him with a skillet. □ The carpenter crowned himself with a board he knocked loose.

crown something with something Fig. to place something on the very top of something. (As if crowning royalty.) □ The chef crowned the cake with golden icing.

cruise around in something to drive or ride around in something. □ Would you like to cruise around in a car like that? □ They really liked cruising around in the motorboat.

cruising for a bruising and cruisin' for a bruisin' Sl. asking for trouble. □ You are cruising for a bruising, you know that? □ Who's cruisin' for a bruisin'?

crum something up[†] and crumb something up[†] Sl. to mess something up. □ Who crummed the bird feeder up? □ Now don't crum up this deal. □ Who crumbed up my room?

crumble away to break away in little pieces. □ The marble pillar was crumbling away because of the acidic rain. □ One of my teeth is just crumbling away.

crumble into something to break apart and fall down into bits and pieces. □ The base of the pillar suddenly crumbled into dust. □ The bones crumbled into dust as the body was lifted from the box.

crumble something up[†] (into something) to crunch up or break up something into pieces. □ Now, crumble the dried bread up into crumbs. □ Crumble up the bread into crumbs.

crumble up to break up into little pieces. □ The cake, which was very dry, crumbled up when I tried to cut it. □ The paper of the old book crumbled up when I turned the pages.

crumped out Sl. intoxicated. □ She was too crumped out to drive herself home. □ Are you crumped out again?

crumple something up[†] to fold up or crush someone or something. □ Walter crumpled the paper up. □ He crumpled up the paper.

crumple up to fold up; to collapse. □ She was so frightened that she just crumpled up. □ Fran crumpled up in a dead faint.

crunch someone or something up[†] to break someone or something up into pieces. □ That machine will crunch you up. Stay away from it! □ A number of blows with the hammer crunched up the rocks into pebbles. □ Try to crunch the larger chunks up.

crunch something down[†] to press or crush something down, breaking it with a crunching noise. □ Sally crunched the flower pot down, breaking it. □ She crunched down the fragile glass in the box accidentally.

crusade against someone or something to campaign or demonstrate against someone or something. □ You are always crusading against one cause or another. □ Ed started crusading against Eric and the latter threatened suit.

crusade for someone or something to campaign or demonstrate for someone or something. □ I can hardly crusade for the defeat of a friend. □ Ed went on a crusade for Eric, hoping to get him elected.

a crush on someone infatuation with someone. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ Mary thinks she's getting a crush on Bill. □ Sally says she'll never have a crush on anyone again.

crush someone or something down[†] 1. Lit. to press or force someone or something down. □ Crush the leaves down so you can put more into the basket. □ Crush down the leaves and fill the basket higher. 2. Fig. to suppress someone or something. □ The dictator crushed the opposition down ruthlessly. □ He crushed down all political opposition. □ The army crushed the peasants down ruthlessly.

crush someone or something to something to press or squeeze someone or something into a particular state, such as death, a pulp, nothing, etc. □ The anaconda crushed the tapir to death. □ Donna crushed the bananas to a pulp and put them into the cake batter.

crush something in[†] to force something inward; to break something in. □ The beam nearly crushed Jason's head in. □ He tried to crush in the door.

crush something (in)to something to grind or break something into bits and pieces. □ He crushed the fennel seeds into a powder. □ The roller crushes the rocks to bits.

crush something out[†] 1. to put out a cigarette or small flame by crushing. □ She crushed her cigarette out and put the butt into the sink. □ Please crush out your cigarette. 2. Go to next.

crush something out of someone or something and crush something out[†] to press or squeeze something from someone or something. □ He crushed the juice out of the grapes. □ He thought that the weight of the lumber would crush the life out of him. □ Robert crushed out the juice.

crush something up[†] to reduce the mass of something by crushing. □ Crush this up and put it in the sauce. □ Crush up a clove of garlic and put it in the sauce.

crush something up[†] (into something) to press or grind something with great force until it is reduced to something smaller. □ The chef crushed the almonds up into a powder and sprinkled them on the dessert. □ The machine crushed up all the glass into tiny bits.

crush (up) against someone or something to press hard against someone or something. □ The crowd crushed up against the people standing in line. □ The eager theatergoers crushed against the lobby doors.

crushed by something Fig. demoralized; having hurt feelings. □ The whole family was completely crushed by the news. □ I was just crushed by your attitude. I thought we were friends.

the crux of the matter and the root of the matter; the heart of the matter the central issue of the matter. (Crux is an old word meaning "cross.") *Typically: be at ~; get at ~; go to ~; look at ~.) □ All right, this is the crux of the matter. □ It's about time that we got to the heart of the matter.

cry all the way to the bank Fig. to make a lot of money on something that one ought to be ashamed of. □ Jane: Have you read the new book by that romance novelist? They say it sold a million copies, but it's so badly written that the author ought to be ashamed of herself. Alan: I'm sure she's crying all the way to the bank. □ That dreadful movie had no artistic merit. I suppose the people who produced it are crying all the way to the bank.

cry before one is hurt Fig. to cry or complain needlessly, before one is injured. □ Bill always cries before he's hurt. □ There is no point in crying before one is hurt.

cry bloody murder Fig. to scream as if something very serious has happened, especially unnecessarily. □ Now that Bill is really hurt, he's crying bloody murder. □ There is no point in crying bloody murder about the bill if you knew the restaurant was expensive.

cry crocodile tears Go to shed crocodile tears.

cry for someone or something 1. to weep for the absence or loss of someone or something. □ No need to cry for me. Take care of yourself. □ She cried for her lost cat. 2. to shout a demand for someone or something. □ She cried for help, but no one heard her. □ Tony cried for Walter, but he did not hear. 3. to cry or bawl, signaling the need or want for someone or something. (As done by a baby.) □ The baby cried for a bottle. □ Little Jimmy was crying for his mother.

cry in one's beer Fig. to feel sorry for oneself. □ She calls up, crying in her beer, and talks on and on about her problems. □ Don't cry in your beer. Get yourself straightened out.

cry one's eyes out Fig. to cry very hard. □ When we heard the news, we cried our eyes out with joy. □ She cried her eyes out after his death.

cry one's heart out and sing one's heart out; play one's heart out; sob one's heart out Fig. to do something with vigor or intensity. □ She suffered such grief—alone and sobbing her heart out. □ The bird sang its little heart out each morning.

cry oneself to sleep to weep until sleep overtakes one. □ The baby finally cried herself to sleep.

cry out (against someone or something) to shout in anger against someone or something. □ The crowd cried out against the police. □ She cried out against Eric, who had insulted her grossly.

cry out for someone or something 1. to shout praise or encouragement for someone or something. □ Everyone in the street cried out for the mayor to make an appearance. 2. to shout out demands for someone or something. □ The children cried out for ice cream. □ The mob was crying out for justice when they heard the unpopular sentences of the judge.

cry out (in something) and cry out (with something) to scream or shout in pain, joy, anger, etc. □ The child cried out in pain. □ On seeing his father, the overjoyed little boy cried out.

cry over someone or something to weep because of someone or something. □ There's no need to cry over it. Things will work out. □ She is still crying over her lost love.

cry over spilled milk Fig. to be unhappy about what cannot be undone. (See also It's no use crying over spilled milk.) □ He is always crying over spilled milk. He cannot accept reality. □ It can't be helped. Don't cry over spilled milk.

cry (something) out[†] (to someone or an animal) to yell something to someone or an animal. □ She cried a warning out to the others. □ Sally cried out a warning to the people behind her. □ The trainer cried a command out to the runaway horse.

cry uncle Go to holler uncle.

cry wolf Fig. to cry or complain about something when nothing is really wrong. (From the story wherein a child sounds the alarm frequently about a wolf when there is no wolf, only to be ignored when there actually is a wolf.) □ Pay no attention. She's just crying wolf again. □ Don't cry wolf too often. No one will come.

a crying need (for someone or something) Fig. a definite or desperate need for someone or something. □ There is a crying need for someone to come in and straighten things out. □ All the people in that area have a crying need for a local hospital.

a crying shame Fig. a very unfortunate situation; a real shame. □ It's a crying shame that people cannot afford adequate housing. □ That your father could not attend graduation was a crying shame.

cuddle up (to someone or something) and cuddle up (with someone) to nestle or snuggle close to someone or something to get warm or to be intimate. □ Let's cuddle up to the warmth, near the fireplace. □ She cuddled up with him and went to sleep.

cuddle up with a (good) book and curl up (with a (good) book) to snuggle into a chair or bed comfortably to read a book. □ I want to go home and cuddle up with a good book. □ She went home and curled up with a good book.

cuddle up (with someone) Go to cuddle up (to someone or something).

cue someone in[†] 1. Lit. to give someone a cue; to indicate to someone that the time has come. □ Now, cue the orchestra director in. □ All right, cue in the announcer. 2. Fig. to tell someone what is going on. (Almost the same as cue someone in (on something).) □ I want to know what's going on. Cue me in. □ Cue in the general about the troop movement.

cull someone or something out of something and cull someone or something out[†] to eliminate someone or something from a group. □ We will cull the older pigeons out from the flock. □ They culled out the slower runners from the team.

culminate in something to climax in something; to end with something. □ The contest culminated in a victory for the best band. □ The play-offs culminated in a big win for the Chicago team.

culturally advantaged Euph. rich; upper-class. □ I can't deny I had a culturally advantaged upbringing. □ The charity appealed to culturally advantaged people to donate time and money to those less fortunate.

culturally deprived and culturally disadvantaged Euph. poor; lower-class. □ Joe is working at a summer camp for culturally deprived children. □ Jane grew up in a culturally disadvantaged neighborhood.

culturally disadvantaged Go to previous.

culture vulture someone whom one considers to be excessively interested in the (classical) arts. □ She won't go to a funny film. She's a real culture vulture. □ They watch only highbrow television. They're culture vultures.

cunning as a fox Go to sly as a fox.

cup one's hands together to put one's hands together to form a sort of cup. He cupped his hands together and scooped up the water. You have to cup your hands together if you want a drink.

curdle someone's blood Fig. to frighten or disgust someone severely. The story was scary enough to curdle your blood. The terrible scream was enough to curdle my blood.

cure someone of something to rid someone of a disease, ailment, bad habit, or obsession. I hope that the doctor prescribes something to cure him of that chronic cough. Will you please try to cure yourself of your constant interrupting?

cure something of something to eliminate the cause of a malfunction in a machine or a device. (See also cure someone of something.) I think I have cured the stapler of jamming all the time. I can't seem to cure the committee of procrastination.

Curiosity killed the cat. Prov. Being curious can get you into trouble. (Often used to warn someone against prying into other's affairs.) Jill: Where did you get all that money? Jane: Curiosity killed the cat.

curl someone's hair and make someone's hair curl Fig. to frighten or alarm someone; to shock someone with sight, sound, or taste. Don't ever sneak up on me like that again. You really curled my hair. The horror film made my hair curl.

curl something up[†] to roll something up into a coil. She curled the edges of the paper up while she spoke. Why did she curl up the paper?

curl up and die Fig. to die. (Often jocular.) When I heard you say that, I could have curled up and died. No, it wasn't an illness. She just curled up and died.

curl up (in(to) something) 1. to roll into a coil. The snake curled up into a neat coil. It curled up so we couldn't get at it. 2. [for one] to bend one's body into a resting place, such as a chair or a bed. Colleen curled up in the chair and took a nap. She curled up and took a nap.

curl up (with a (good) book) Go to cuddle up with a (good) book.

curl up with someone or an animal to snuggle up to someone or something. She curled up with her husband and fell asleep. Elaine curled up with the family dog to keep warm.

curly dirt and house moss; slut's wool puffs of dirt and dust. How long has it been since you swept under this bed? There's a mountain of curly dirt under here! No one's been in this room for an age. Look at all the cobwebs and curly dirt. She was a terrible housekeeper. House moss collected in all the corners of her rooms.

curry favor with someone to try to win favor from someone. The lawyer tried to curry favor with the judge. It's silly to curry favor with the boss. Just act yourself.

curse at someone or something to swear at someone or something; to use foul language at someone or something. He cursed at the jammed toaster and pounded his fist on the counter in anger. Please don't curse at me.

curse someone for something to damn someone for doing something; to invoke evil upon someone for doing something. She cursed her mother for ever having borne her. Over and over, she cursed herself for ever having come there.

curse someone or something under one's breath Go to under one's breath.

curse someone or something with something 1. to damn someone or something with something, especially a verbal curse. She cursed him with the fervent wish that he rot in hell. She cursed the day he was born with an unprintable oath. 2. to afflict or oppress someone or something with something. His upbringing cursed him with a strong sense of guilt. The political scandal cursed the town with a dismal reputation for years.

curse under one's breath Go to under one's breath.

curtain something off[†] to separate something or some place with a drape, screen, or curtain. We curtained this part of the room off, so please sleep over there. We will curtain off part of the room.

curtains for someone or something the death, end, or ruin of someone or something. (From the lowering or closing of the curtains at the end of a stage performance.) If the car hadn't swerved, it would have been curtains for the pedestrians. If they can't get into the export market, it's curtains for the whole company.

curtsy to someone [for a woman] to dip or bow in deference to someone. Of course, I curtsied to the queen! Do you think I'm an anarchist? The little girls curtsied after they did their dance number.

curve to something to bend or bow toward something, some direction, or some place. The road curved to the left. One of her toes curves to the right.

cuss a blue streak Rur. to curse a great deal. When she dropped the brick on her toe, she cussed a blue streak. Bill could cuss a blue streak by the time he was eight years old.

cuss someone out[†] to curse at someone. Dad cussed me out for losing the money he gave me. The little kid cussed out his brother, shocking his grandmother.

The customer is always right. Prov. In order to keep customers happy, the people who serve them should always obey their wishes. (Often cited as a principle of good business dealings; customers sometimes say it to the people serving them in order to try to get good service.) When I began working at the gift shop, my boss told me, "Remember, the customer is always right, no matter how stupid or rude you may think he is being."

cut a big swath Go to cut a wide swath.

cut a deal to arrange a deal; to negotiate an agreement. Maybe we can cut a deal. Let's talk. The two lawyers cut a deal that left me with my car, although she got the house.

cut a fine figure to look good; to look elegant. (Usually said of a male.) Tom really cuts a fine figure on the dance floor. Bill cuts a fine figure since he bought some new clothes.

cut a long story short Go to make a long story short.

cut a wide swath and cut a big swath to seem important; to attract a lot of attention. □ In social matters, Mrs. Smith cuts a wide swath. □ Bob cuts a big swath whenever he appears in his military uniform.

a cut above average better than average. (See also a cut above something. The cut is a degree or notch.) □ John isn't the best mechanic in town, but he's a cut above average.

a cut above something a measure or degree better than something else. (See also a cut above average. The cut is a degree or notch.) □ Your shirt is beautiful, but mine is a cut above yours.

cut across something 1. and cut across Lit. to travel across a particular area; to take a shortcut across a particular area. □ Please don't cut across the neighbor's yard anymore. 2. Fig. to reach beyond something; to embrace a wide variety; to slice across a figurative boundary or barrier. □ His teaching cut across all human cultures and races. □ This rule cuts across all social barriers.

cut against the grain Go to against the grain.

cut along something to make a cut following a line or guide. □ Please cut along the dotted line. □ My hand is too shaky to cut along the line neatly.

cut and dried fixed; determined beforehand; usual and uninteresting. (Can be hyphenated before nominals.) □ I find your writing quite boring. It's too cut and dried. □ The lecture was, as usual, cut and dried.

cut and paste 1. Lit. to cut something out of paper with scissors and paste it onto something else. □ The teacher told the little children that it was time to cut and paste, and they all ran to the worktables. □ Mary made a tiny house by cutting and pasting little strips of paper. 2. Fig. something trivial, simple, or childish. □ I hate this job. It's nothing but cut and paste. □ I don't mind doing things that have to be done, but I hate to waste my time on cut and paste.

cut and run Sl. to run away quickly. (Alludes to cutting loose a ship's or boat's anchor and sailing away in a hurry.) □ Wilbur decided to cut and run when he heard the police sirens. □ As soon as I finish what I am doing here, I'm going to cut and run. I've got to get home by six o'clock.

cut around something to move rapidly around something, such as a corner, pole, beam, etc. □ The cat cut around a corner and escaped from the dog. □ The speeding car cut around the light pole and almost hit it.

cut at someone or an animal to thrust a knife or something similar at someone or an animal. □ The hoodlum cut at me, but I dodged the blade. □ He cut at the dog, but it had no effect on the vicious animal.

cut at something and cut away at to cut on something to slice something. □ He cut at the chair leg carefully, trying not to remove too much. □ Dad cut away at the turkey and asked us what part we wanted.

cut back to turn back; to reverse direction. □ Suddenly, the bull cut back in our direction and began chasing us. □ The road cuts back about a mile ahead, and it goes west again.

cut back (on something) to reduce the use, amount, or cost of something. □ You are all going to have to cut back on water usage. □ You simply must cut back on office expenses.

cut back to someone or something [for a film or television camera] to return to a picture of someone or something. □ Suddenly, the camera cut back to the reporter, who—unprepared—just stood there. □ The scene cut back to the veranda overlooking the bay.

cut both ways to affect both sides of an issue equally. □ Remember that your suggestion that costs should be shared cuts both ways. Your division will have to reduce its budget as well. □ If our side cannot take along supporters to the game, then yours cannot either. The rule has to cut both ways.

cut class and cut school to skip a school class or a day of school without an excuse. □ As a joke, one day all the students cut their math class and went to lunch. □ Jane was grounded after she cut school last Friday.

cut corners Fig. to take shortcuts; to save money or effort by finding cheaper or easier ways to do something. □ They're always finding ways to cut corners. □ I won't cut corners just to save money. I put quality first.

cut down (on something) to reduce the amount of something or of doing something; to use or buy less of something. □ You will have to cut down on the time it takes you to get ready in the morning. □ The doctor told him to cut down on his drinking.

cut from the same cloth and made from the same mold Fig. sharing a lot of similarities; seeming to have been created, reared, or fashioned in the same way. □ She and her brother are cut from the same cloth. They both tell lies all the time. □ Father and son are made from the same mold and even sound alike on the telephone.

cut in (ahead of someone or something) to move quickly and carelessly into line ahead of someone, as in a line of people or in traffic. □ A red car cut in ahead of me and nearly caused me to run off the road. □ Careful! Don't cut in ahead of that car!

cut in (on someone) 1. Lit. [for someone] to ask to replace one member of a dancing couple. □ Excuse me, may I cut in? □ Please don't cut in. 2. Fig. [for someone] to interrupt someone who is talking. □ While Gloria was telling us her story, Tom kept cutting in on her. □ I'm talking. Please don't cut in!

cut in (on something) 1. Lit. to interrupt something, especially some sort of electronic transmission. □ I didn't mean to cut in on your announcement. □ Who cut in on my telephone call? 2. Fig. to join in something even when not invited. □ Can I cut in on this little party?

cut in (with something) to interrupt [someone] with a comment; to speak abruptly, interrupting what someone else is saying. □ Jimmy cut in with a particularly witty remark. □ Must you always cut in while others are talking?

cut in(to something) to slice something; to gouge something. □ We cut into the watermelon and found it to be spoiled. □ It was a beautiful apple, but when she cut in, she found out that she had been cheated.

Cut it out! Inf. Stop doing that!; Stop saying that! (Fixed order.) □ Sue: Why, I think you have a crush on Mary! Tom: Cut it out! □ "Cut it out!" yelled Tommy as Billy hit him again.

cut loose (with something) Go to let go (with something).

cut no ice (with someone) Sl. to have no influence on someone; to fail to convince someone. I don't care who you are. It cuts no ice with me. So you're the mayor's daughter. It still cuts no ice.

cut off 1. to stop by itself or oneself. The machine got hot and cut off. Bob cut off in midsentence. 2. to turn off a road, path, highway, etc. This is the place where you are supposed to cut off. When you come to a cutoff on the left, continue on for about mile.

cut one's coat according to one's cloth and cut one's coat to suit one's cloth Prov. to plan one's aims and activities in line with one's resources and circumstances. We would like a bigger house, but we must cut our coat according to our cloth. They can't afford a vacation abroad—they have to cut their coat according to their cloth.

cut one's coat to suit one's cloth Go to previous.

cut one's eyes at someone or something Rur. to glance at someone or something. He cut his eyes at me to see if I was looking. She cut her eyes at the TV for a second.

cut one's eyeteeth on something Fig. to grow up experiencing something; to have had the experience of dealing with something [successfully] at a very early age. My grandfather taught me how to fish, so I cut my eyeteeth on fishing. Fred cut his eyeteeth on writing; both his parents were authors.

cut one's losses to do something to stop a loss of something. I knew I had to do something to cut my losses, but it was almost too late. Sell some of the high-priced stuff to cut your losses.

cut one's nose off to spite one's face Prov. to hurt yourself in an attempt to hurt someone else. (Often in the form, "Don't cut off your nose to spite your face.") Isaac dropped out of school because he wanted to make his father angry; years later, he realized that he had cut off his nose to spite his face.

cut one's (own) throat Fig. [for someone] to bring about one's (own) failure. If I were to run for office, I'd just be cutting my throat. Judges who take bribes are cutting their own throats.

cut one's wolf loose Sl. to go on a drinking bout; to get drunk. I'm gonna go out and cut my wolf loose tonight. You're going to cut your wolf loose too often and really get into trouble.

cut (oneself) loose (from someone or something) to get out from under the domination of someone or something. At last, she cut herself loose from her mother. She had to cut loose from home. Everyone wished that Todd would cut himself loose from his mother.

cut oneself on something to slice one's flesh with something accidentally. Careful, you will cut yourself on that knife. Careful! Don't cut yourself on that broken glass.

cut out to depart; to leave in a hurry. Good-bye. I have to cut out now. It's time I was cutting out. I'm late already.

cut out (for some place) and light out (for some place) to leave quickly for some place. The kids all cut out for home. When they heard their mother call, the Wilson kids cut out for home.

cut out for someone or something to run hurriedly toward someone or something. At the last minute, he cut out for the gate, which was closing very fast. The child cut out for his mother, who had come to get him at school.

cut out for something suited for something. She was bright and she loved to read. Her folks thought she was cut out for being a schoolteacher. He did his best, but he just wasn't cut out for farming.

cut out to be something destined to be something or a particular type of person. (See also cut out for something.) I don't think I was cut out to do this. We weren't cut out to be laborers.

cut school Go to cut class.

cut some Zs Go to catch some Zs.

cut someone a break and cut someone some slack Sl. to give someone a break; to allow someone a reprieve from the consequences of an action. Come on, cut me a break! I'm a good guy! I was only a few minutes late! Cut me a break! Don't dock my pay! Cut me some slack and I'll be sure to pay you all I owe in a month.

cut (someone) a check to write a check; to have a computer print a check. (Used in business especially of machine-made checks.) We will cut a check for the balance due you later this afternoon. We will cut you a check as soon as possible.

cut someone dead to ignore someone totally. Joan was just about to speak to James when he walked away and cut her dead. Jean cut her former husband dead.

cut someone down[†] to kill someone with a weapon, such as a sword, or with gunfire, etc. The bandits cut the bystanders down and fled. The gunman cut down an innocent pedestrian.

cut someone down (to size) and take someone down (to size) Fig. to make a person humble; to put one in one's place. John's critical remarks really cut me down to size. Jane is too conceited. I think her new boss will take her down to size.

cut someone in[†] (on something) Sl. to permit someone to share something, such as profits or loot. Max refused to cut in his partner Lefty. We can't cut you in. There's not enough.

cut someone off[†] at the pass Fig. to block someone's effort to get away; to thwart someone's efforts. They are ahead now, but we'll cut them off at the pass. Try to cut off the bandits at the pass!

cut someone off[†] without a penny Fig. to end someone's allowance; to fail to leave someone money in one's will. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin cut their son off without a penny after he quit school. They cut off both of their sons without a penny. We learned, when Uncle Sam's will was read, that he cut off his own flesh and blood without a penny.

cut someone or something loose from something to sever the connection between people or things, in any combination. Wally cut the child loose from the tree where his playmates had tied him up. I cut the cord loose from the anchor by mistake.

cut someone or something off[†] (from something) to block or isolate someone or something from some place or something. They cut the cattle off from the wheat field. The enemy tanks cut off the troops from their camp.

cut someone or something off^t (short) Fig. to interrupt someone or something; to prevent someone from continuing to speak. (See also chop someone off.) □ In the middle of her sentence, the teacher cut her off short. □ Bob cut off Mary when she was trying to explain.

cut someone or something out^t to eliminate someone or something. □ They cut out the free coffee with lunch at the cafeteria. □ We have to cut Chuck out. There are too many better men on the team.

cut someone or something to something 1. Lit. to chop or slice up someone or something, especially to bits or pieces. □ The chef cut the carrots to bite-size pieces. □ The lawn mower will cut you to bits if you get under it. 2. Fig. to destroy an argument; to destroy someone's argument. □ The lawyer heard her argument and cut her to bits. □ She cut the argument to pieces.

cut someone or something up^t Fig. to criticize someone or something severely. □ Jane is such a gossip. She was really cutting Mrs. Jones up. □ The professor really cut up my essay.

cut someone or something with something and cut someone or something on something to slice someone or something with or on something. □ Don't cut yourself on that sharp blade. □ He cut the bread with a dull knife and crushed it.

cut someone's water off^t Fig. to squelch someone; to thwart someone. (Fixed order.) □ Well, I guess that cuts your water off! □ That sure cuts off my water!

cut someone some slack Go to cut someone a break.

cut someone to ribbons 1. Lit. to cut or slice someone severely. □ He broke a mirror and the glass cut his hand to ribbons. 2. Fig. to criticize someone severely. □ The critics just cut her acting to ribbons!

cut someone to the bone Go to next.

cut someone to the quick and cut someone to the bone 1. Lit. to slice the flesh of someone or some animal clear through to the underlying layer of flesh or to the bone. □ With the very sharp knife, David cut the beast to the quick in one blow. □ He cut his finger to the quick with the sharp knife. 2. Fig. to injure someone emotionally. (See also cut something to the bone.) □ Your heartless comments cut me to the quick. □ Her remarks cut him to the bone.

cut someone up^t 1. Lit. to gash or carve on someone by cutting. □ The thugs cut him up badly, just for talking back. □ They cut up their victim into pieces. 2. Fig. to cause someone severe emotional distress. □ That rebuke really cut me up. □ The critic really cut up the performer.

cut someone up Fig. to make someone laugh. □ That comedian's routine really cut me up. □ Tommy's rude noises cut the whole class up, but not the teacher.

cut something away^t (from something) to separate something from something by cutting. □ The doctor cut the wart away from the patient's foot. □ She cut away the loose thread.

cut something back^t to prune plants; to reduce the size of plants, bushes, etc. □ Let's cut these bushes back. They're getting in the way. □ Don't cut back my roses!

cut something down^t 1. Lit. to chop something down; to saw or cut at something until it is felled. □ Stop cutting the banners down! □ Don't cut down that tree! 2. Fig. to destroy someone's argument; to destroy someone's position or standing. □ The lawyer cut the testimony down quickly. □ The lawyer cut down the witness's story. 3. to reduce the price of something. □ They cut the prices down to sell the goods off quickly. □ I wish they would cut down the prices in this store.

cut something down^t to something to reduce something to a manageable size. □ We cut the program down to size and it was very enjoyable. □ We cut down the program to a half hour.

cut something from something to remove something from something by cutting. □ She carefully cut the blossoms from the bush. □ A few blossoms were cut from the bush.

cut something into something 1. and cut something in^t to mix something, usually a soft baking ingredient, into something else. (See also fold something into something.) □ Carefully cut the butter into the flour mixture. □ Now, cut in some more butter. 2. to slice or chop something into very small pieces, bits, etc. □ We cut the meat into one-inch cubes for the stew.

cut something off^t 1. to shorten something. □ Cut this board off a bit, would you? □ Cut off this board a little, please. 2. to turn something off, such as power, electricity, water, the engine, etc. □ Would you please cut that engine off? □ Cut off the engine, Chuck.

cut something on something 1. to slice something on or against something, accidentally. □ I cut my finger on the knife. □ Maria cut her foot on the broken glass. 2. to slice something that is lying on something else. □ I cut the tomatoes on the cutting board your mother gave us.

cut something out^t 1. to stop doing something. (Usually a command. See also Cut it out!) □ Cut that noise out! □ Cut out that noise! □ Now, cut that out! 2. Go to next.

cut something out of something and cut something out^t to cut a pattern or shape from cloth, paper, sheet metal, etc.; to remove something from something by cutting; to excise something from something. (When both out and of are used, no direct object can intervene.) □ Sam cut a pig out from the paper. □ I cut the picture out of a magazine. □ I cut out the shape of the moon from the paper.

cut something to the bone 1. Lit. to slice deep to a bone. □ The knife cut John to the bone. He had to be sewed up. □ Cut each slice of ham to the bone. Then each slice will be as big as possible. 2. Fig. to cut down severely (on something). (To the bone emphasizes the severity of the cutting.) □ We cut our expenses to the bone and are still losing money. □ Congress had to cut expenditures to the bone in order to balance the budget.

cut something with something to dilute something with something else. □ They cut the liquor with cold water. □ Please cut this with some soda. It's too sweet, otherwise.

cut teeth [for a baby or young person] to have new teeth emerging through the gums. □ Billy is cranky because he's cutting teeth. □ Ann cut her first tooth this week.

cut the cheese and cut the mustard Sl. to release intestinal gas. (Crude. Use caution with the topic.) □ Who cut the cheese? □ People who cut the mustard in the car have to get out and walk.

Cut the comedy! and Cut the funny stuff!; Cut the shit! Stop acting silly and telling jokes!; Be serious! (Use shit with caution, as it is considered vulgar.) □ John: All right, you guys! Cut the comedy and get to work! Bill: Can't we ever have any fun? John: No. Bill: Come on, Mary, let's throw Tom in the pool! Mary: Yeah, let's drag him over and give him a good dunking! Tom: Okay, you clowns, cut the funny stuff! I'll throw both of you in!

cut the deadwood out 1. Lit. to prune away and remove the dead branches from a tree or bush. □ They cut a lot of the deadwood out to save the tree. □ You have to cut out the deadwood to make room for new growth. 2. Fig. to remove unproductive persons from employment. □ This company would be more profitable if management would cut out the deadwood. □ When we cut the deadwood out, all our departments will run more smoothly.

cut the dust Fig. to take a drink of liquor. □ I think I'll stop in here and cut the dust. □ I want to cut the dust. Can I have a snort?

Cut the funny stuff! Go to Cut the comedy!

cut the ground out[†] from under someone Fig. to destroy the foundation of someone's plans or someone's argument. □ The politician cut the ground out from under his opponent. □ Congress cut out the ground from under the president.

cut the mustard Go to cut the cheese.

cut the pie up[†] Fig. to divide something up. (Can refer to an actual pie or anything that can be divided into varying portions.) □ It all depends on how you cut the pie up. □ How should I cut up the pie?

Cut the shit! Go to Cut the comedy!

cut through red tape Fig. to eliminate or neutralize something complicated, such as bureaucratic rules and procedures. □ I will try to cut through all the red tape for you so you get your visa on time. □ I am sure someone can help us cut through all this red tape.

cut through something to penetrate something by cutting; to slice through something. □ The worker cut through the steel door with a torch. □ Walter cut through the rind of the watermelon.

cut to someone or something to shift the radio, movie, or television audience's attention abruptly to someone or something new. □ Suddenly, the engineer cut to the announcer. □ The technical director cut to a remote unit that was covering an accident. □ The camera cut to scenes of Atlanta burning.

cut to the chase Sl. to focus on what is important; to abandon the preliminaries and deal with the major points. □ All right, let's stop the idle chatter and cut to the chase. □ After a few introductory comments, we cut to the chase and began negotiating.

cut up 1. to act wildly; to show off and be troublesome; to act like a clown. □ Tom, Billy! Stop cutting up, or I'll send you to the principal's office. □ If you spent more time studying than cutting up, you'd get better grades. 2. Go to next.

cut up (about someone or something) Sl. emotionally upset about someone or something. □ She was all cut up about her divorce. □ You could see how cut up she was.

cut your peaches Rur. go on with what you were doing. □ Stop gawking and cut your peaches. □ There's no need for you to follow me around. Go cut your peaches.

cute as a bug's ear very cute. (*Also: as ~.) □ That little baby is cute as a bug's ear.

the cutting edge Fig. the most forward part of a trend; the leading part of a trend. (Alludes to the edge of a sword. See also on the cutting edge. See also on the bleeding edge.) □ Fred's invention put him on the cutting edge of the computer chip business.

dab at something to touch or pat something. □ The painter dabbled at the canvas, making little changes here and there.
□ Don't just dab at the wall, spread the paint on!

dab something off[†] Go to next.

dab something off (of) something and dab something off[†] to pat or wipe something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Please dab the butter off your chin. □ Please dab off the butter. □ Dab the moisture off of the apples.

dab something on(to) something and dab something on[†] to pat or spread carefully something onto something else. □ Dab some medicine onto the scratch. □ Dab on some medicine.

dabble at something to play at doing something; to do something halfheartedly. □ Don't just dabble at your history paper. Settle down and do it right. □ She dabbles at painting.

dabble in something to be involved in something in a casual manner. □ She dabbled in local politics for a while.
□ I want to dabble in something new for a while.

Dad fetch my buttons! Rur. What a surprise!; Goodness me! □ Dad fetch my buttons! It's a letter from Aunt Rita! □ Dad fetch my buttons, I never was so happy in all my life!

the daddy of them all and the granddaddy of them all Fig. the biggest or oldest of all; the patriarch. □ This old fish is the granddaddy of them all. □ This tree is the daddy of them all. It's been here since the place was built.

daily dozen Fig. physical exercises done every day. □ My brother always feels better after his daily dozen. □ She would rather do a daily dozen than go on a diet.

the daily grind [someone's] everyday work routine. □ I'm getting very tired of the daily grind. □ When my vacation was over, I had to go back to the daily grind.

dally over something to waste time or take too long doing something. □ Don't dally over your food. Eat your dinner.
□ I wish you wouldn't dally over your homework.

dally with someone to flirt with someone; to waste time with someone of the opposite sex. (Old.) □ Sam is dallying with that Johnson girl again. □ Stop dallying with her and get back to your studies!

dam something up[†] to erect a barrier in a river, stream, brook, etc. □ We are going to have to dam this stream up to make a pond for the cattle. □ Let's dam up this stream.
□ Why is this river dammed up?

Damn it to blue blazes! Rur. Damn it. (An oath.) □ Damn it to blue blazes, I told you I can't lend you any more money! □ "Damn it to blue blazes! I give up!" Joe shouted, flinging his tools aside.

a (damn) sight better Rur. much better. □ Mary can sing a damn sight better than Tom can. □ You look a sight better with your hair cut short.

damn someone or something with faint praise Fig. to criticize someone or something indirectly by not praising enthusiastically. □ The critic did not say that he disliked the play, but he damned it with faint praise. □ Mrs. Brown is very proud of her son's achievements, but damns her daughter's with faint praise.

Dd

damn someone with something 1. Lit. to curse someone with words. □ She damned him with curse after curse. □ Maria damned Joe with the worst curses she could think of.
2. Fig. to denounce or defeat someone in a particular way. □ She damned him with her insincere words of praise. □ She damned herself with the evidence she had hoped would save her.

Damned if you do, damned if you don't. Prov. No matter what you do, it will cause trouble. □ If I use this money to pay the rent, I won't have enough left over for food. But if I don't use the money to pay the rent, my landlord will evict me. Damned if I do, damned if I don't. □ Helen: If I invite Shirley to the party, I'm sure she'll get drunk and make an unpleasant scene. But if I don't invite her, she'll never forgive me. Jane: Damned if you do, damned if you don't, huh?

damp off [for seedlings] to die from too much water. □ All the new plants damped off, and we had to buy some from the nursery. □ The little seedlings damped off and withered away.

damp something down[†] 1. Lit. to make something damp. □ Damp the clothes down before you iron them. □ Please damp down the clothes first. 2. Fig. to reduce the intensity of a flame, usually by cutting down on the air supply, as with a damper. □ Please damp the woodstove down. □ Damp down the air supply or you are going to end up with a raging inferno.

dampen someone's spirits Go to someone's spirits.

dance at someone's wedding to celebrate in honor of someone at someone's wedding. □ I will dance at your wedding—if you invite me, of course. □ If you think I will dance at your wedding, you had better be nicer to me!

dance on air Fig. to be very happy; to be euphoric enough as if to dance on air. □ I was so happy, I could have danced on air. □ She was just dancing on air, she was so happy.

dance out of step (with someone or something) Go to out of step (with someone or something).

dance out of time (with someone or something) Go to out of step (with someone or something).

dance to a different tune Go to next.

dance to another tune and dance to a different tune Fig. to shift quickly to different behavior; to change one's behavior or attitude. □ After being yelled at, Ann danced to another tune. □ A stern talking-to will make her dance to a different tune.

dance to something to respond to music or rhythm with dancing. I can't dance to that fast beat! That music is horrible. No one can dance to that.

dance with death Fig. to attempt to do something that is very risky. The crossing of the border into enemy territory was like dancing with death. You are dancing with death in your effort to cross that narrow ledge.

D dance with someone to perform social dancing with another person. Do you think you would like to dance with Wally? Would you please dance with me?

dangle from something to hang from something. A number of colorful glass balls dangled from the branches of the tree. Some loose threads dangled from the bottom of his jacket.

dangle something before someone and dangle something in front of someone 1. Lit. to tempt someone by dangling a tempting object in front of them. Don't dangle that string of pearls in front of me unless you intend to give them to me! 2. Fig. to lure someone with something. He dangled the keys before Wally, hoping to get him to drive. He dangled the money in front of Eric, hoping to make him change his mind.

dangle something from something to hang something loosely from something else. She dangled a few small bells from the bottom of her skirt during the holidays. I dangled a bit of fish from the window so I could see how high the cat would jump.

dangle something in front of someone Go to dangle something before someone.

dare someone (to do something) to challenge someone to do something. Sally dared Jane to race her to the corner. You wouldn't do that, would you? I dare you.

dark horse Fig. someone or something whose abilities, plans, or feelings are little known to others. (From a race horse about which little or nothing is known.) It's difficult to predict who will win the prize—there are two or three dark horses in the tournament. Everyone was surprised at the results of the election. The dark horse won.

the dark side of someone or something Fig. the negative and often hidden aspect of someone or something. I had never seen the dark side of Mary before, and I have to tell you that I was horrified when she lost her temper.

darken someone's door Fig. [for an unwelcome person] to come to someone's door seeking entry. (As if the visitor were casting a shadow on the door. Formal, or even jocular.) Who is this who has come to darken my door? She pointed to the street and said, "Go and never darken my door again!"

The darkest hour is just before the dawn. and It's always darkest just before the dawn. Prov. When things are extremely bad, it may signal that they are about to get much better. Jill: I feel like giving up. I don't have a job, my boyfriend left me, and they're raising the rent for my apartment. Jane: It's always darkest just before the dawn.

darn tooting and darn tootin' absolutely. You're darn tooting I'll be there. I wouldn't miss it for the world.

dart a glance at someone or something to shoot a quick look at someone or something. She darted a glance at him and looked quickly away. He darted a glance at the door and looked even more uncomfortable.

dart about to move about quickly. The little fish were darting about everywhere. People were darting about, to and fro, during the noon rush hour.

dart across something to run quickly over something. A small animal darted across the road in front of the car. I tried to dart across the street, but the traffic was too heavy.

dart in and out [for something moving] to move quickly between two things, or into a number of things, and move away again. On the highway, a small car was darting in and out of the two right lanes of traffic. A small bird darted in and out of the bush, probably going into a nest inside.

dart out (of something) (at someone or something) to move quickly out of something toward someone or something. The ferret darted out of its burrow at the children. The snake darted out at the frog. The mouse darted out of its hole.

dash a letter off[†] Go to next.

dash a note off[†] and dash a letter off[†] to write a note or letter quickly and send it off. I have to dash this letter off, then I will be with you. I'll dash off a note to her.

dash across something to run quickly across some area. John dashed across the busy street and ran in the door. The dog dashed across the yard and confronted the meter reader.

dash away and dash off to run away; to leave in a hurry. I must dash away. See you tomorrow. Juan had to dash away to an appointment. Ken dashed off and left me behind to deal with the angry customer.

dash cold water on something Go to pour cold water on something.

dash off Go to dash away.

dash out (for something) [for someone] to leave a place in a hurry to get something. Harry dashed out for some cigarettes. Excuse me. I just have to dash out.

dash over (for something) [for someone] to come by quickly for something such as a brief visit. I just dashed over for a cup of sugar. Can you spare it? I needed some sugar, so I just dashed over.

dash someone or something against someone or something to throw or fling someone or something at or against someone or something. Sam dashed the bottle against the floor, shattering it. Alice dashed the box against Ed, throwing him off balance.

dash someone's hopes Fig. to ruin someone's hopes; to put an end to someone's dreams or aspirations. Mary dashed my hopes when she said she wouldn't marry me.

dash something off[†] to make or do something quickly. I will dash this off now and try to take more time with the rest of them. I will see if I can dash off a cherry pie before dinner.

dash something to pieces to break something into small pieces. She dashed the glass to pieces on the floor—she was so mad. The potter dashed the imperfect pot to pieces.

date back (to someone or some time) to have origins that extend back to the time of someone or something. This part of the palace dates back to Catherine the Great. This is old! It really must date back.

date from something to have an existence that extends from a particular time. □ This building dates from the beginning of the last century. □ These books date from the 1920s.

daub something on(to) something and daub something on† to smear or paint something onto something else. □ The painter daubed a bit of yellow onto the canvas. □ Daub on a bit of yellow here. □ She daubed the medicine on.

daub something with something to smear or paint something with something sticky, such as paint, grease, makeup, etc. □ The mechanic daubed the part with grease and put it back where it came from. □ The end of the chair leg was daubed with glue and set into place.

Davy Jones's locker the bottom of the sea, especially when it is a grave. □ They were going to sail around the world, but ended up in Davy Jones's locker. □ Most of the gold from that trading ship is in Davy Jones's locker.

dawdle about to waste time in a place; to waste time talking idly. □ Don't dawdle about. Get moving. □ Tim has been dawdling about all morning.

dawdle along to move along slowly and casually. □ The boys dawdled along on their way to school. □ We were just dawdling along, talking about life. We didn't know we were late.

dawdle over something to waste time when one should be doing a particular task; to loaf while doing something. □ Don't dawdle over your hamburger. The lunch period ends in two minutes. □ Don't dawdle over it. Get it done.

dawdle something away† to waste a particular amount of time; to let a period of time slip away, wasted. □ You didn't finish your work because you dawdled most of your time away. □ You dawdle away too much time daydreaming.

dawn (up)on someone Fig. [for a fact] to become apparent to someone; [for something] to be suddenly realized by someone. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Then it dawned upon me that I was actually going to have the job. □ On the way home, it dawned on me that I had never returned your call, so when I got home I called immediately.

day after day every day; daily; all the time. □ He wears the same clothes day after day. □ She visits her husband in the hospital day after day.

day and night and night and day all the time; around the clock. □ The nurse was at her bedside day and night. □ The house is guarded night and day.

day in and day out and day in, day out on every day; for each day. □ She watches soap operas day in and day out. □ They eat nothing but vegetables, day in, day out.

a day late and a dollar short late and ill-prepared. □ Tommy, you seem to show up a day late and a dollar short all the time. You need to get organized.

the day off a day free from working. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~; take ~.) □ The next time I get a day off, we'll go to the zoo. □ I have the day off. Let's go hiking.

day one the very beginning; the very first day. (*Typically: from ~; since ~.) □ You haven't done anything right since day one! You're fired! □ She was unhappy with her new car from day one.

a day person a person who prefers to be active during the daytime. (Compare this with a night person.) □ I am strictly a day person. Have to be in bed early.

daydream about someone or something to have daytime fantasies about someone or something. □ Poor Alice is always daydreaming about Albert. □ John is daydreaming about running away to Tahiti.

daylight robbery Fig. the practice of blatantly or grossly overcharging. □ It's daylight robbery to charge that amount of money for a hotel room! □ The cost of renting a car at that place is daylight robbery.

days running and weeks running; months running; years running days in a series; months in a series; etc. (Follows a number.) □ I had a bad cold for five days running. □ For two years running, I brought work home from the office every night.

day-tripper a tourist who makes excursions lasting just one day. □ At about 4:00 P.M. the day-trippers start thinning out. □ Being a day-tripper is hard on your feet sometimes.

dead ahead straight ahead; directly ahead. □ Look out! There is a cow in the road dead ahead. □ The farmer said that the town we were looking for was dead ahead.

dead and buried 1. Lit. dead and interred, and soon to be forgotten. □ Now that Uncle Bill is dead and buried, we can read his will. 2. Fig. gone forever. □ That kind of old-fashioned thinking is dead and buried.

dead and gone 1. Lit. [of a person] long dead. □ Old Gert's been dead and gone for quite a spell. □ When I'm dead and gone, I hope folks remember me at my best. 2. Fig. [of a thing] gone long ago. □ That kind of thinking is dead and gone. □ The horse-and-buggy days are dead and gone.

dead as a dodo and dead as a doornail; deader than a doornail dead; no longer in existence. (*Also: as ~.) □ That silly old idea is dead as a dodo. □ When I tried to start my car this morning, I discovered that the battery was deader than a doornail.

dead as a doornail Go to previous.

dead broke completely broke; without any money. □ I'm dead broke—not a nickel to my name. □ I've been dead broke for a month now.

a dead cat on the line Rur. [for something to be] wrong. □ I'm afraid there's a dead cat on the line over at Martha's place. I haven't heard from them for days. □ Bill has a kind of sixth sense. He can tell a dead cat on the line before anybody knows there's something wrong.

dead center at the exact center of something. (See also on dead center.) □ The arrow hit the target dead center. □ When you put the flowers on the table, put them dead center.

dead certain very sure. (Dead means absolutely.) □ I'm dead certain that horse will win. I bet two hundred on it myself. □ I didn't believe the rumor at first, but Bill's dead certain that it's true.

dead drunk very intoxicated; totally inebriated. □ They were both dead drunk. They could only lie there and snore. □ Marty stumbled off the bar stood dead drunk.

a dead duck Fig. someone or something that is certain to die or fail. □ If I fail that test, I'm a dead duck. □ When the outlaw drew his pistol, the sheriff knew he was a dead duck.

dead easy very easy. □ This whole job is dead easy. □ It was so dead easy, Frank did it with one hand.

dead from the neck up 1. Fig. stupid. (With a “dead” head.) □ She acts like she is dead from the neck up. 2. Fig. no longer open to new ideas. □ Everyone on the board of directors is dead from the neck up.

a dead giveaway something that reveals a fact or an intention completely. □ The car in the driveway was a dead giveaway that someone was at home.

dead in someone’s or an animal’s tracks Fig. exactly where someone or something is at the moment; at this instant. (This does not usually have anything to do with death. The phrase is often used with stop.) □ Her unkind words stopped me dead in my tracks. □ When I heard the rattlesnake, I stopped dead in my tracks.

dead in the water stalled; immobile. (Originally nautical.) □ This whole company is dead in the water. □ The project is out of funds and dead in the water for the time being.

dead letter 1. a piece of mail that is returned to the post office as both undeliverable and unreturnable. □ At the end of the year, the post office usually has bushels of dead letters. □ Some of the dead letters are opened to see if there is an address inside. 2. an issue, law, or matter that is no longer important or that no longer has force or power. □ His point about the need for education reform is a dead letter. It is being done now. □ This point of law is a dead letter since the last Supreme Court ruling on this matter.

a dead loss a total loss. □ My investment was a dead loss. □ This car is a dead loss after the accident.

dead meat Fig. dead; as good as dead. (Usually an exaggeration.) □ If you don’t do exactly as I say, you are dead meat!

Dead men tell no tales. Prov. Dead people will not betray any secrets. □ The club members liked to hold their secret meetings in a graveyard, since dead men tell no tales. □ Gangster: Mugsy is going to tell the police that we robbed the bank. How can we stop him? Henchman: Dead men tell no tales.

dead on exactly right; on target. □ That’s a good observation, Tiffany. You are dead on. □ Your criticism is dead on!

dead on one’s feet and dead on its feet Fig. exhausted; worn out; no longer useful. □ Ann is so tired. She’s really dead on her feet. □ He can’t teach well anymore. He’s dead on his feet. □ This inefficient company is dead on its feet.

a (dead) ringer (for someone) Fig. very closely similar in appearance to someone else. (*Typically: be ~; look like ~.) □ You are sure a dead ringer for my brother. □ Isn’t he a ringer for Chuck?

dead serious absolutely serious; not joking. □ Tom: You’re funning me. Bill: No, I’m dead serious. □ Mary has threatened divorce a hundred times, but this time she says she’s dead serious.

dead set against someone or something totally opposed to someone or something. □ I’m dead set against the new tax proposal. □ Everyone is dead set against the mayor.

dead to the world 1. sound asleep. □ After all that exercise, he’s dead to the world. □ He’s dead to the world, and I can’t rouse him. 2. intoxicated. □ Six beers and he was dead to the world. □ By midnight almost everybody at the party was dead to the world.

dead wrong completely wrong. □ I’m sorry. I was dead wrong. I didn’t have the facts straight.

deadens something with something to dull or anesthetize pain with something. □ The doctor deadened the area with an injection before she began to stitch. □ I will deaden the pain with a local anesthetic.

deader than a doornail Go to dead as a dodo.

deadly dull very dull. □ The lecture was deadly dull, and I went to sleep. □ Her story was really deadly dull. I am sorry I was awake for part of it.

deaf and dumb unable to hear or speak. (Used without any intended malice, but no longer considered polite. Sometimes euphemized as “hearing and speech impaired.”) □ Fred objected to being called deaf and dumb. □ Aunt Clara—she was deaf and dumb, you know—lived to be over 100.

deaf as a post deaf. (*Also: as ~.) □ When my cousin was a teenager, she played her drum set without ear protection, and she was as deaf as a post by the age of twenty-five. □ Mark can’t hear you even if you shout; he’s deaf as a post.

deal in something to buy and sell something. □ My uncle is a stockbroker. He deals in stocks and bonds. □ My aunt deals in antiques.

deal someone in[†] Go to deal someone into something.

deal someone into something and deal someone in[†] 1. Lit. to pass out cards to someone, making that person a player in a card game. □ Can you deal me into this hand? □ Deal in anyone who wants to play. □ Deal me in! 2. Fig. to permit someone to take part in something. □ Let’s deal him into this project. □ Yes, deal in this guy. □ Should we deal her in?

deal someone out of something and deal someone out[†] 1. Lit. to skip someone when dealing a hand of cards. □ Please deal me out of the next hand. I have to go make a telephone call. □ They dealt out the old lady because she would not pay attention to the game. 2. Fig. to remove someone from participation in something. □ They dealt me out at the last minute. □ They dealt out Fred, too.

deal something out[†] to pass something out piece by piece, giving everyone equal shares. □ The manager dealt the proposals out, giving each person an equal number to read. □ I’ll deal out some more proposals.

deal the race card Go to the the race card.

deal with someone Sl. to kill someone. □ “Spike, you deal with that cop,” said the crime boss. □ The agent planned how best to deal with the rebel leader without getting caught.

deal with someone or something to manage someone or something. □ This is not a big problem. I think I can deal with it. □ I am sure I can deal with Jill.

dear departed Euph. a dead person, as referred to at a funeral. □ Let’s take a moment to meditate on the life of the dear departed.

a Dear John letter a letter a woman writes to her boyfriend telling him that she does not love him anymore. Bert got a Dear John letter today from Sally. He was devastated.

Dear me! an expression of mild dismay or regret. Sue: Dear me, is this all there is? Mary: There's more in the kitchen. "Oh, dear me!" fretted John, "I'm late again."

Death is the great leveler. Prov. Death makes everyone equal, because it does not spare anyone, not even the wealthy, famous, or talented. (Also the cliché: the great leveler, death.) The wealthy tycoon lived as though he were exempt from every law, but death is the great leveler and came to him the same as to everyone else. We hoped that the brilliant pianist would entertain us with her music for many decades, but death, the great leveler, did not spare her.

death on something 1. Fig. very harmful; very effective in acting against someone or something. This road is terribly bumpy. It's death on tires. The sergeant is death on lazy soldiers. 2. Fig. accurate or deadly at doing something requiring skill or great effort. John is death on curve balls. He's our best pitcher. The boxing champ is really death on those fast punches.

debate on something to hold a long and disciplined discussion on a particular subject. We can debate on this all night if you think we will settle anything in the end. Are they still debating on the question?

debate (with someone) about something 1. to enter into a long and disciplined discussion on a particular subject with someone. Our team debated with the other team about the chances for world peace. The candidates debate about taxes tomorrow. We will debate with them about health care. 2. Fig. to argue with someone about something. I do not intend to debate with you about that matter. Tom did not agree to debate about it.

debit something against someone or something to record a charge for something against someone's account or against a particular category of an account. I will have to debit this against your account. The clerk debited the charge against you.

debit something to someone or something to make a charge for something to someone or something. To whose account can we debit this charge? Let's debit it to Jane.

debit something with something to charge something for something. They debited Fred's account with the whole expense. The bank debited my checking account with the cost of the new checks.

deceive someone into something to trick someone into doing something. She deceived me into giving her my car keys. You can't deceive me into doing what I don't want to do.

deceive someone with something to cheat someone with something or with deceptive words. You cannot deceive me with your promises. You are just deceiving yourself with fancy talk.

decide against someone or something to rule against someone or something; to make a judgment against someone or something. We decided against Tom and chose Larry instead. Jane decided against the supplier.

decide among someone and someone else and decide among something and something else to choose from three or more people; to choose from three or more things. I couldn't decide among all the choices on the menu. I will decide among Fred, Tom, and Alice.

decide between someone and someone else and decide between something and something else to choose one from two people; to choose one from two things. I could not decide between Tom and Wally. We could not decide between those two.

decide for someone or something to rule in favor of someone or something; to make a judgment for someone or something. The jury decided for the plaintiff. The judge decided for me.

decide in favor of someone or something to determine that someone or something is the winner. The judge decided in favor of the defendant. I decided in favor of the red one.

decide (up)on someone or something to choose someone or something; to make a judgment about some aspect of someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) Will you please hurry up and decide upon someone to vote for? I decided on chocolate.

deck someone or something out[†] (in something) and deck someone or something out (with something) to decorate someone or something with something. Sally decked all her children out for the holiday party. She decked out her children in Halloween costumes. Tom decked the room out with garlands of flowers.

declare (oneself) against someone or something to state one's opposition to someone or something publicly. I must declare myself against the amendment. The politician declared himself against whatever the voters were already against.

declare (oneself) for someone or something to state one's support of someone or something. Susan declared herself for Mary's candidacy. I have not yet declared for any particular policy. Todd declared himself for the candidacy of Mary Brown for mayor.

declare war against someone or something and declare war on someone or something 1. Lit. to formally announce that one will fight a war with someone or some country. A group of countries declared war against the aggressor. 2. Fig. to announce a serious campaign against a type of person or a serious problem. The president declared war against crime and criminals. The pressure group declared war on waste.

decorate someone for something to award someone a medal or ribbon for doing something important or brave. The town decorated her for her heroic act. She was decorated for her heroism.

decorate something with something to adorn or ornament something with something. I will decorate the cake with roses made of sugar. Can I decorate your car with streamers for the parade?

dedicate someone or something to someone or something 1. to reserve someone or something for the use of someone or something. The manager dedicated new assistants to the exclusive use of the legal department. The committee dedicated a corner in the library to books on agriculture. 2. to pledge someone or something to someone, something, a deity, or religious purposes. The elders dedicated the building to the glory of God. He dedicated himself to the prosecution of justice.

deduce something from something to infer or conclude something from a set of facts. Can I deduce a bit of anger from your remarks? I deduce nothing from everything I have heard today.

deduct something from something else to subtract an amount from another amount. Are you going to deduct this from your income taxes? Mr. Wilson deducted the discount from the bill.

deed something (over) to someone to grant something, such as land, to someone; to transfer legal title to something to someone. Grudgingly, he deeded the land over to Walter. He deeded the property to his niece.

deem it (to be) necessary and deem that it is necessary to decide that something is necessary. Mary deemed that it was necessary to leave town that night. Lisa deemed it necessary to go home.

deep-six someone or something Sl. to get rid of someone or something; to dispose of someone or something. (Refers originally to burying someone or something six feet deep, the standard depth of a grave.) Take this horrible food out and deep-six it. That guy is a pain. Deep-six him so the cops will never find him.

deface something with something to mutilate or spoil the appearance of something with something. Someone defaced the wall with spray paint. Please don't deface the facilities.

default on something to fail to act in some way regarding something, such as failing to make a payment, thereby losing one's right to the thing in question. You are not going to default on your loan, are you? She defaulted on her mortgage payments and lost the house.

defect from something to run away from something; to forsake something. Thousands of soldiers defected from the army. Roger would never think of defecting from the armed services.

defect to something to forsake one group and take up with another. Will he defect to the other side? David defected to a small East European country.

defend someone or something against someone or something 1. to stand against an attack; to provide a defense against attack. Don't worry, I will defend you against any muggers. We defended ourselves against the attack. *The army defended the town against the enemy soldiers. 2. to advocate the cause of someone or something against someone or something else. The lawyer defended her against the plaintiff. *She defended the company against the suit.

defend someone with something to repel danger from someone with something. Here, defend yourself with this club. Mary defended herself with karate.

defer to someone or something (on something) to yield to someone or something on some question or point. I will defer to Mary on that question. She would not defer to the committee on anything.

define something as something to label something as being something. I define that kind of behavior as just plain rude! We have to define that comment as careless and unthinking.

Definitely not! and Certainly not! No, without any doubt at all. (Compare this with Absolutely not!) Bill: Will you lend me some money? Bob: No way! Definitely not! Bob: Have you ever stolen anything? Fred: Certainly not!

deflect something away from someone or something to divert someone or something away from someone or something; to cause someone or something to veer away from someone or something. The press secretary deflected the reporter's questions from the candidate. The emergency deflected the boss's attention away from my mistake.

defraud someone out of something to cheat someone out of something. The crooked contractor defrauded the town out of a fortune. The clerk defrauded the employer out of a great deal of money.

degenerate into something to decay into something; to break down into something. The peace rally degenerated into a riot. I was afraid that the party would degenerate into a drinking contest.

deign to do something to lower oneself to do something. She will never deign to join in with us. I expect that he will not deign to have dinner with us.

delegate someone to something to appoint someone to something; to appoint someone to be something. I will delegate Jane to be our representative. Donna was delegated to attend the conference.

delegate something to someone to assign a task to someone; to appoint someone to do a specific task. I will have to delegate this job to Sam, who knows how to do these things. The job was delegated to Sally.

delete something from something to remove something from something; to cross something out from something. Will you please delete this paragraph from the contract? The line was deleted from the sales agreement.

deliberate about someone or something and deliberate on someone or something to think about someone or something; to consider what to do about someone or something. How long do you intend to deliberate about Carol? We will deliberate about this matter as long as it takes to do it right. Let's deliberate on this for a while.

deliberate on someone or something Go to previous.

deliberate over someone or something to discuss and argue about someone or something. We will deliberate over this question tomorrow. We have been deliberating over Karen long enough.

delight in someone or something to take great pleasure in someone or something. I delight in your interest in my work. We all delight in James. What a fine boy!

delight someone by something to please someone with something; to please someone by doing something. (See also delight someone with something.) You delighted me by agreeing to join us. I was delighted by your proposal.

delight someone with something to please someone with something, such as a gift. We delighted Alice with a gift of money. She was delighted with the gift.

deliver someone from someone or something to save or rescue someone from someone or something. The hero delivered the children from a fiery death. □ Thank you for delivering me from a very boring meeting by calling me to the telephone.

deliver someone of something to free someone from some burden or problem; to liberate someone from some confinement. □ He was looking for someone to deliver him of his burdensome responsibility. □ He was delivered of his burden.

deliver someone or something to someone or something to transfer someone or something to someone or something; to yield over someone or something to someone or something. □ When will you deliver the deed to me? □ I will deliver the deed to you when I have your check.

deliver something under pressure Go to under pressure.

deliver something up[†] to someone to render or yield something to someone. □ Will you please deliver the documents up to Jane? □ Will you please deliver up the documents to Jane?

delude someone into something to fool someone into thinking something. □ You can't delude me into believing you. □ Todd deluded himself into believing he was back at home.

delude someone with something to fool or trick someone with something. □ She deluded us with her clever talk. □ Don't delude yourself with false hopes.

deluge someone or something with something 1. Lit. to flood someone or something with water or something similar. □ The swollen river broke the dam and deluged the town with billions of gallons of water. 2. Fig. to overwhelm someone or something with something; to "flood" someone or something with something. □ The reporters deluged us with questions.

delve into something to examine or study something carefully; to enter into the examination or study of something. □ He delved into the solution of the problem facing him. □ I am just now delving into a study of the Trojan War.

demand something from someone or something and demand something of someone or something to command that something be received from someone or a group or something; to demand that someone or a group or something do something. □ The muggers demanded money from everyone. □ The petitioners demanded a response from the board of directors. □ She demanded too much of her automobile.

demand something of someone or something Go to previous.

demonstrate against someone or something to make a public show against someone or something. □ The citizens demonstrated against the new policies. □ A number of protestors demonstrated against the mayor.

demonstrate for someone or something to make a public show in favor of someone or something. □ We will all demonstrate for Walter's candidacy. □ A number of supporters demonstrated for the mayor.

demonstrate something to someone to show someone how something works. □ Would you please demonstrate this DVD player to me? I may want to buy it. □ The new products were demonstrated to the board of directors in advance.

demote someone from something (to something) and demote someone (from something) to something to lower someone's rank from one rank to another. □ The manager demoted Bill from cashier to clerk. □ The army demoted her from lieutenant to sergeant.

demur at something to dispute something; to challenge something. □ I fear I must demur at your suggestion that I am aloof and condescending. □ Alice demurred at the suggestion that she was late.

a den of iniquity a place filled with criminal activity or wickedness. □ The town was a den of iniquity and vice was everywhere. □ Police raided the gambling house, calling it a den of iniquity.

denounce someone as something to criticize someone as something; to publicly call someone something bad. □ The mayor denounced her opponent as a crook. □ Anne was denounced as a cheater.

denounce someone for something to criticize someone publicly for doing something. □ The candidate denounced the governor for raising taxes. □ Donna denounced the mayor for incompetence.

dent something up[†] to mar or make depressions in something. □ I don't want to dent my car up. It's still new. □ He dented up my new bike!

denude someone or something of something to strip something from someone or something. □ The prison guards denuded the new prisoner of his garments. □ The wind denuded the trees of their leaves.

deny someone or something to someone to prevent someone from having someone or something. □ Would you deny her children to her after all these long months? □ I would not deny food to a starving man.

depart for some place to leave for some place. □ When shall we depart for the airport? □ When do we depart for St. Petersburg?

depart from some place to leave from some place or something; to set out from some place or something. □ When will you depart from here? □ We departed from Moscow on time.

depart this life Euph. to die. □ He departed this life on April 20th, 1973. □ She departed peacefully, in her sleep.

depend (up)on someone or something to rely upon someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Can I depend on you to do this right? □ You can depend upon me for help.

depict someone as something to show someone as something; to make someone appear to be something. □ He did report the fire, but it is going too far to depict him as a hero. □ The artist depicted himself as a much younger man than he really was.

deplete something of something to use up all of a certain thing that something has. □ They will deplete the soil of its nutrients by planting the same crop over and over.

deport someone (from some place) (to some other place) to expel or exile someone from one place to another, usually back to their prior country of residence. □ The government deported Jane from this country to her homeland. □ They deported Tom to Brazil from this country.

deposit something in(to) something to put something into something. □ Please deposit your chewing gum into the wastebasket. □ You should deposit your money in the bank.

deprive someone of something to take something away from someone. □ If you don't behave, I will deprive you of your driving rights. □ They deprived themselves of a good time by pouting.

D deputize someone as something to assign someone the temporary power to act in some official capacity. □ The sheriff deputized Chuck as an aid during the uprising. □ Chuck was deputized as an officer of the law.

derive from something to come from something; to evolve from something. (Usually in reference to a word and its etymological history.) □ This word derives from an ancient Celtic word. □ What does the English word skirt derive from?

derive something from someone or something to draw or abstract something from someone or something. □ She derives a lot of spiritual support from her religion. □ She derives her patience from her mother.

derive something from something to show how something is descended from something else. □ Is it possible to derive this word from Greek? □ Is this word derived from Latin?

descend from someone or some group [for a living creature] to come from a particular set of ancestors. □ I descend from a large family of Dutch traders. □ Wally is descended from Daniel Boone.

descend from something to move down from something. □ The bird descended from the top of the tree to a lower branch. □ Take care when you descend from the ladder.

descend into something to go down into something. □ The butler descended into the cellar for another bottle of wine. □ Fred descended into the canyon on an organized tour.

descend to something 1. Lit. to go down to something. □ I must descend to the lower level to greet the guests. □ Gerald descended to the front door to see who was there. 2. Fig. to condescend to do something; to stoop to doing something; to lower oneself to do something bad. □ I refuse to descend to the performance of such menial duties. □ I will not descend to a life of crime.

descend (up)on someone or something 1. Lit. [for something] to come down or fall upon someone or something. □ Flakes of fluffy snow descended upon the gentle slopes. 2. Fig. [for people] to arrive or come to someone or something in great numbers. □ The petitioners descended upon the mayor's office in droves.

describe someone or something as something to describe or portray a person or a thing as something or as being in some particular state. □ Would you describe her as a woman of average height? □ We described the building as a collection of contemporary architectural clichés.

describe someone or something to someone to characterize or portray a particular person or thing to someone. □ Will you describe her to me, please? □ Please describe yourself to me so I will know you.

desensitize someone to something to make someone less sensitive to something. □ The doctor wanted to desensitize the allergic child to pollen. □ I took injections to desensitize me to house dust.

desert a sinking ship and leave a sinking ship Fig. to leave a place, a person, or a situation when things become difficult or unpleasant. (Rats are said to be the first to leave a ship that is sinking.) □ I hate to be the one to desert a sinking ship, but I can't work for a company that continues to lose money. □ There goes Tom. Wouldn't you know he'd leave a sinking ship rather than stay around and try to help?

Desert and reward seldom keep company. Prov. If you deserve a reward, you are not necessarily going to get it. □ Jill: I worked so hard on that project, and Fred is taking all the credit for it. Jane: You know how it goes; desert and reward seldom keep company.

desert someone or something for someone or something else to leave someone for someone else; to leave something or some place for some other thing or place. □ She deserted her husband for another man. □ Many retirees have deserted northern states for the warmer climates of the South.

desert someone or something to someone or something to abandon someone or something to someone or something; to let someone or something have someone or something. □ Who deserted this child to her horrible fate? □ Sam deserted his land to the horde of grubby prospectors.

deserve better from someone or something to merit better treatment from someone. □ We deserve better from someone who is supposed to be our friend. □ I deserve better from Bill.

deserve credit for something [for someone] to be owed recognition for doing something. □ He certainly deserves credit for the work he did on the project.

design something for someone to conceive of something for someone; to draw up plans of something for someone. □ Ann designed a new kitchen for us. □ Would you design a book cover for me?

design something for something to conceive of something that is to be part of something else; to draw up plans for something that is to be part of something else. □ The engineers designed a cure for the rattling problem. □ Bob, the computer programmer, designed a fix for the bug in the program. □ She designed a system of shelving for the library.

designate someone or something as something to choose or name someone or something as something. □ Alice will designate Andrew as our representative. □ She designated herself as the head of the committee.

Desires are nourished by delays. Prov. The longer you have to wait for something you want, the more eager you will be to get it. □ The longer I had to postpone my trip to San Francisco, the more eagerly I wanted to go. Desires are nourished by delays.

desist from something to stop doing something. □ You must desist from further attempts to contact your wife. □ I wish you would desist from calling me Willie.

despair of something to give up all hope of something. □ Do not despair of his returning; I think we will see him again. □ I despair of ever seeing her again.

Desperate diseases must have desperate remedies. Prov. If you have a seemingly insurmountable problem, you must do things you ordinarily would not do in order to solve it. □ Fred: All my employees have been surly and morose for months. How can I improve their morale? Alan: Why not give everyone a raise? Fred: That's a pretty extreme suggestion. Alan: Yes, but desperate diseases must have desperate remedies.

despise someone for something to hate someone for something or for doing something. □ I just despise him for running away! □ She despised herself for her dishonest actions.

despoil something of something to make something, such as a town, tomb, or building, lose value by stealing from it; to rob something of something. □ The vandals despoiled the castle of much of its furnishings. □ The land was despoiled of its fertility by overplanting.

destine someone for something to determine that someone should receive or achieve something in the future. □ Her many talents destined her for a distinguished career. □ Larry's intelligence destined him for big things.

destined for something predetermined to achieve or become something. □ I know I am destined for a job that is better than this. □ We are destined for death in the long run.

detach someone or something from someone or something to separate or disconnect someone or something from someone or something. □ The high command detached Wallace from his platoon. □ The technician detached the sensors from Harry's chest.

detail someone for something to choose someone to do a particular task. (Originally military.) □ Sam detailed Private Bailey for guard duty. □ Donna was detailed for some extra work.

detail someone to someone or something to assign someone to someone or a group. (Military.) □ I will detail Private Bailey to that job. □ The general detailed a lieutenant to the platoon that was going to the front.

detect something in something to recognize or identify something in something. □ Can you detect the anger in her voice? □ I detect a bit of sarcasm in your comments.

deter someone or something from something to prevent or discourage someone or a group from doing something. □ We can't seem to deter them from leaving. □ They were not deterred from their foolish ways.

determine the root of the problem Go to the root of the problem.

detract from someone or something to lessen or diminish someone or something. □ The large pieces of furniture detracted from the lovely design in the carpet. □ Alice's quiet demeanor did not detract from her grace and beauty.

develop from someone or something (into someone or something) and develop (from someone or something) into someone or something to grow or evolve out of someone or something into someone or something else. □ Her interest in music developed from a childlike curiosity to a full-fledged professional career. □ The flower developed from a little knot of a bulb.

deviate from something to wander away from something, such as a path, road, etc.; to vary from the normal procedure. □ Please do not deviate from the path. You will crush the wildflowers. □ I will not deviate one inch from the route you have prescribed. □ They did not deviate from her instructions.

*the devil Fig. a severe scolding. (*Typically: get ~; catch ~; give someone ~.) □ Bill is always getting the devil about something. □ I'm late. If I don't get home soon, I'll catch the devil!

The devil can cite Scripture for his own purpose. Go to next.

The devil can quote Scripture for his own purpose. and The devil can cite Scripture for his own purpose. Prov. Evil people sometimes try to win the confidence of good people by quoting persuasive passages of Scripture.; Just because someone can quote Scripture to support his or her argument does not mean that the argument is virtuous. (Scripture usually refers to the Bible, but it can refer to other religious writings.) □ Sadie: Dad, you really ought to give me permission to go out with Nathan. He's such a polite boy, and he can even quote the Bible. Father: The devil can quote Scripture for his own purpose.

The devil finds work for idle hands to do. Prov. If you do not have useful work to do, you will be tempted to do frivolous or harmful things to get rid of your boredom. □ Knowing that the devil finds work for idle hands to do, Elizabeth always made sure that her children had plenty of chores to keep them occupied.

The devil is not so black as he is painted. Prov. No one is as bad as people say he is. (Implies that people are saying too many bad things about someone.) □ I can't believe that actress is as coldhearted as the gossip columns say she is. The devil is not so black as he is painted.

The devil looks after his own. Prov. Evil people are often prosperous or well taken care of. (Implies that they must be getting their prosperity from the devil, since they are not earning it by being good and deserving.) □ Jane: I don't understand why the corner store is still in business. They cheat everybody! Alan: Well, the devil looks after his own.

a devil of a job and the devil's own job the most difficult task. □ We had a devil of a job fixing the car. □ It was the devil's own job finding a hotel with vacancies.

a devil of a time and the devil's own time a very difficult time. □ I had a devil of a time with my taxes. □ This cold has been giving me a devil of a time. □ Fixing the car seemed easy, but I had the devil's own time doing it.

The devil's children have the devil's luck. Prov. Evil people often seem to have good luck. □ The police thought they had trapped the murderer, but he escaped. The devil's children have the devil's luck.

the devil's own job Go to a devil of a job.

the devil's own time Go to a devil of a time.

devil someone or an animal for something Fig. to bother or harass someone or an animal for something. □ The child kept deviling her mother for an ice-cream cone. □ The kittens continued to devil the mother cat for their dinner.

Devil take the hindmost. Go to Every man for himself (and the devil take the hindmost).

devil-may-care attitude and devil-may-care manner a very casual attitude; a worry-free or carefree attitude. □ You must get rid of your devil-may-care attitude if you want to succeed. □ She acts so thoughtless—with her devil-may-care manner.

D

devil-may-care manner Go to previous.

devolve (up)on someone or something [for something, such as a task] to be passed on to someone or a group. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ This job, I am afraid, devolves upon you and you alone. □ The task of repairing the damage devolved on Diane.

devote oneself to someone or something to dedicate or give oneself over to someone or something. □ Do you agree to devote yourself to this task? □ She devoted herself to raising her children.

devote someone or something to someone or something to dedicate someone or something to the use or benefit of someone or something. □ I will devote a few of my people to your project. □ Sarah devoted all of her time to Roger.

dial the wrong number Go to the wrong number.

dialogue with someone to talk with someone. □ I look forward to dialoguing with you tomorrow. □ The supervisor sets aside time to dialogue with each and every person in the department once a week.

a diamond in the rough Fig. a person who has good qualities despite a rough exterior; a person with great potential. □ Sam looks a little scruffy, but he's a diamond in the rough. □ He's a diamond in the rough—a little hard to take at times, but very smart and helpful.

diarrhea of the jawbone Go to next.

diarrhea of the mouth and diarrhea of the jawbone Fig. constant talking; a “disorder” involving constant talking. □ Wow, does he ever have diarrhea of the mouth! □ You're getting diarrhea of the jawbone again.

dibs on something a claim on something. (See also have dibs on something; put one's dibs on something.) □ I've got dibs on the yellow one! □ Dibs on the front seat!

dicker with someone (for something) and dicker with someone (over something) to bargain with someone for something; to haggle with someone for something. □ I don't want to stand here dickering with you for a cheap trinket. □ I don't want to waste time dickering with them over a few dollars.

dictate (something) to someone 1. to speak out words to someone who writes them down; to speak words into a recording device to be written down later by someone. □ Walter dictated a letter to his secretary. □ Please come in so I can dictate to you. 2. to lay out or spell out the exact terms of something to someone; to act as a dictator. □ You can't dictate the rules to us. □ Please don't dictate to me.

did everything he could 'cept eat us Rur. acted very hostilely. □ When it came time to pass sentence on the criminal, the judge did everything he could 'cept eat him.

did you hear? Go to have you heard?

diddle someone out of something to cheat someone into giving up something. □ The boys diddled the old man out of a few bucks. □ He was diddled out of his last dime.

diddle something out of someone Sl. to get something from someone by deception. □ We diddled about forty bucks out of the old lady who runs the candy shop. □ They diddled Larry's last dime out of him.

diddle with something to play with something; to toy with something. □ Here, don't diddle with that watch. □ Stop diddling with your nose, Jimmy!

didn't care a whit and don't care a whit didn't care at all. □ Sally thought Joe liked her, but he didn't care a whit about her. □ I don't care a whit what you do with my old clothes.

didn't care too hard Rur. didn't mind. □ Dad said he didn't care too hard if I took the dog out with me. □ If you don't care too hard, I'll shut this window.

didn't exchange more than three words with someone to say hardly anything to someone. (The number may vary.) □ I know Tom was there, but I am sure that I didn't exchange more than three words with him before he left. □ We hardly exchanged more than two words the whole evening. □ Sally and Liz didn't have enough time to exchange more than five words.

didn't invent gunpowder Rur. did not do anything terribly important. □ He may be the class president, but he didn't invent gunpowder. □ What's all this fuss about a movie star? She didn't invent gunpowder!

die a natural death 1. Lit. [for someone] to die by disease or old age rather than by violence or foul play. □ I hope to live to 100 and die a natural death. □ The police say she didn't die a natural death, and they are investigating.

2. Fig. [for something] to fade away or die down. □ I expect that all this excitement about the scandal will die a natural death. □ Most fads die a natural death.

die away Fig. to fade away. □ The sound of the waterfall finally died away. □ When the applause died away, the tenor sang an encore.

die back [for vegetation] to die back to the stems or roots. □ The hedge died back in the winter but regenerated leaves in the spring. □ This kind of grass dies back every year.

die behind the wheel to die in an automobile accident in a car that one is driving. □ Poor Fred died behind the wheel in a horrible collision.

die by one's own hand Euph. to commit suicide. □ Jane: I just heard that Bill died. I didn't know he was sick. Dan: He wasn't sick. He died by his own hand. □ She died at the age of fifty, by her own hand.

die by something to perish by a particular cause or device. (Often refers to execution as a death sentence.) □ He died by electrocution. □ She was condemned to die by hanging.

die down to fade to almost nothing; to decrease gradually. □ The fire died down and went out. □ As the applause died down, a child came on stage with an armload of roses for the singer.

die for someone or something 1. Lit. to perish for the benefit or glory of someone or something. □ He said he was willing to die for his country. □ She would die for her child if necessary. 2. Fig. to experience great physical or emotional desire for someone or something. □ He was just dying for Jane, but she would have nothing to do with him. □ Freddie was dying for a glass of water—he was so thirsty.

die from curiosity Go to die of curiosity.

die from something Go to die of something.

die in one's boots and die with one's boots on Fig. to go down fighting; to die in some fashion other than in bed; to die fighting. (Popularized by western movies. Heroes and villains of these movies said they preferred death in a gunfight to showing cowardice or giving up.) □ I won't let him get me. I'll die in my boots.

die in something to perish in a particular calamity or accident. □ They both died in an automobile accident. □ Wally did not want to die in the war.

The die is cast. Prov. A process is past the point of no return. (The die is one of a pair of dice. The cast means thrown. This phrase [in Latin] was said by Julius Caesar when he crossed the Rubicon with his legions, starting a civil war.) □ After that speech favoring reform of the education system, the die is cast. This is now a campaign issue. □ The die is cast. There is no turning back on this point.

die laughing 1. Lit. to meet one's death laughing—in good spirits, revenge, or irony. □ Sally is such an optimist that she'll probably die laughing. □ Bob tried to poison his rich aunt, who then died laughing because she had taken Bob out of her will. 2. Fig. to laugh very long and hard. □ The joke was so funny that I almost died laughing. □ The play was meant to be funny, but the audience didn't exactly die laughing.

die of a broken heart Fig. to die of emotional distress. □ I was not surprised to hear of her death. They say she died of a broken heart. □ In the movie, the heroine appeared to die of a broken heart, but the audience knew she was poisoned.

die of boredom Fig. to be very bored. □ No one has ever really died of boredom. □ We sat there and listened politely, even though we almost died of boredom.

die of curiosity and die from curiosity Fig. to experience a strongly felt need to know about something. □ I was just dying of curiosity! □ I almost died from curiosity to finish the book and see how the mystery was solved.

die of something and die from something to perish from an injury or a particular disease. □ The doctors did all they could, but he finally died of cancer. □ What did it die from?

die of throat trouble Sl. to be hanged. (Old.) □ He died of throat trouble after the posse caught up with him. □ The cattle rustler died of throat trouble.

die off [for a living thing] to perish one by one until there are no more. □ Most of the larger lizards died off eons ago. □ It would be really bad if all the owls died off. □ The cucumber blossoms all died off.

die on someone 1. Lit. [for a patient] to die under the care of someone. □ Get that medicine over here fast, or this guy's gonna die on me. □ Come on, mister, don't die on me! 2. Fig. [for something] to quit running for someone. □ My car died on me, and I couldn't get it started. □ My CD player died on me, and I had to listen to the radio.

die on the vine Go to wither on the vine.

die out 1. Lit. [for a species or family] to perish totally because of the failure to produce offspring. □ I am the last one in the family, so I guess our line will die out with me. □ The owls might die out if you ruin their nesting area. 2. Fig. [for an idea, practice, style, etc.] to fade away through time. □ That way of doing things died out a long time ago. □ It died out like the horse and buggy.

die with one's boots on Go to die in one's boots.

differ from something [for something] to be different from something else. □ No, this one differs from the one you saw because it has a bigger handle. □ How does this one differ from that one?

differ in something [for people or things] to be different in a specific way or in specific ways. □ They differ only in the color of their eyes and the size of their shoes. □ They differ in size and shape.

differ (with someone) about something and differ (with someone) on something 1. [for someone] to disagree with someone about something. □ I must differ with you about that. □ We differ about that. □ I don't differ with you on that point. 2. [for someone] to argue with someone about something. □ Tom was differing with Terry rather loudly about which one of them was going to carry the flag. □ Let's stop differing with each other on these simple things!

different as night and day Cliché completely different. (*Also: as ~.) □ Although Bobby and Billy are twins, they are as different as night and day. □ Birds and bats appear to be similar, but they are different as night and day.

Different strokes for different folks. Prov. Different people like different things.; Different people live in different ways. □ My neighbor spends all his free time working in his garden. I would never want to do that, but different strokes for different folks.

differentiate between someone or something and someone or something else 1. to recognize the difference between people or things in any combination. (Usually refers to two entities.) □ In your painting, I cannot differentiate between the costume of the figure in front and the flowers in the background. □ Can't you differentiate between Billy and his brother? □ I can't differentiate between a donkey and a burro. 2. to establish or create the difference between people or things. □ Why don't you paint in some highlights to differentiate between the figure in the foreground and the flowers in the background?

differentiate someone or something from someone or something else 1. to recognize the difference between people and things; to tell the difference between people and things. □ How do you differentiate this one from that one? □ Can you differentiate Bill from Bob? 2. to make people and things different. □ I will differentiate this one from that one by painting this one red. □ The twins' mother used different-colored clothing to differentiate Bill from Bob.

The difficult is done at once; the impossible takes a little longer. Prov. Tasks that are only difficult are done immediately, harder tasks take longer. (Describes a very competent group or person.) □ The secretary in our office is extremely capable. She has a little sign on her desk that says, "The difficult is done at once; the impossible takes a little longer." In her case, it's not a joke.

difficult times Go to bad times.

diffuse something through something else to distribute or scatter something through something else. □ The chemical process diffused the purple color through the liquid. □ Let us try to diffuse the medication through the bloodstream as rapidly as possible.

diffuse through something to spread or scatter through something. □ The smell diffused through the office through the ventilating system. □ The dye diffused through the water rapidly.

dig at someone or something 1. Lit. to poke or jab at someone or something. □ Don't dig at me all the time. My side is getting sore where you jabbed me. □ Stop digging at the wall! Look at the hole you've made! 2. Fig. to make a cutting remark about someone or something. □ She is always digging at her husband's laziness. □ Fred was digging at the company he works for.

D dig deep Go to next.

dig down and dig deep 1. Lit. to excavate deeply. □ They are really having to dig deep to reach bedrock. □ We are not to the buried cable yet. We will have to dig down some more. 2. Fig. to be generous; to dig deep into one's pockets and come up with as much money as possible to donate to something. (As if digging into one's pocket.) □ Please dig down. We need every penny you can spare. □ Dig down deep. Give all you can.

dig for something 1. Lit. to excavate to find something that is buried. □ They are digging along the river bank for a special kind of clay. □ I want to dig for gold in Alaska. 2. Fig. to go to great pains to uncover information of some kind. □ The police were digging for some important information while they questioned Mike "Fingers" Moran. □ There is no point in digging further for the name of the inventor. I have it right here.

dig in(to something) 1. Lit. to use a shovel to penetrate a mass of something. □ He dug into the soft soil and made a hole for the roots of the bush. □ He grabbed a shovel and dug in where he thought the tree ought to go. 2. Fig. to begin to process something; to go to work on something. □ I have to dig into all these applications today and process at least half of them. □ Jed got out the stack of unanswered mail and dug in. 3. Fig. to begin to eat food. □ We dug into the huge pile of fried chicken. □ I stuck the corner of my napkin in my collar and dug in.

dig one's heels in† Fig. to refuse to alter one's course of action or opinions; to be obstinate or determined. □ The student dug her heels in and refused to obey the instructions. □ I'm digging in my heels. I'm not going back.

dig one's own grave Fig. to be responsible for one's own downfall or ruin. □ If you try to cheat the bank, you will be digging your own grave. □ Those politicians have dug their own grave with their new tax bill. They won't be reelected.

dig out (of something) to channel or excavate one's way out of something. □ The miner had to dig out of the cave-in. □ They were too exhausted to dig out.

dig some dirt up† (on someone) Fig. to find out something bad about someone. □ If you don't stop trying to dig some dirt up on me, I'll get a lawyer and sue you. □ The citizens' group dug up some dirt on the mayor and used it against her at election time.

dig someone or something in something to poke someone or something in something, such as the ribs, the side, the cheek, etc. □ He dug Wally in the ribs as he finished telling the joke. □ Jed dug the cow in its side with a stick, trying to make it move into the barn.

dig someone or something out of something and dig someone or something out† to excavate in order to get someone or something out of something; to dig about in order to get someone or something out of something. □ She dug out the roots of the tree. □ The dog dug itself out of the rubble of the fallen building.

dig someone or something up† Fig. to go to great effort to find someone or something. (There is an implication that the thing or person dug up is not the most desirable, but is all that could be found.) □ Mary dug a date up for the dance next Friday. □ I dug up a recipe for roast pork with pineapple. □ I dug up a carpenter who doesn't charge very much.

dig something into something and dig something in† to stab or jab something into something. □ Dig your fork into that heavenly cake! □ He dug in his fork.

dig something out† Fig. to work hard to locate something and bring it forth. □ They dug the contract out of the file cabinet. □ I dug out an old dress and wore it to the Fifties party.

Dig up! Sl. Listen carefully! □ John: All right, you guys! Dig up! You're going to hear this one time and one time only! □ Bill: Dig up! I'm only going to say this once. Bob: What was that? Bill: I said listen!

dig up one's tomahawk Rur. to get angry. (A jocular reversal of bury the tomahawk. Fixed order.) □ When Joe saw the mess we made, he dug up his tomahawk and went looking for us.

digress from something [for a speaker or writer] to stray from the subject. □ I am going to digress from my prepared text. □ You will pardon me if I digress from my point a little.

dilate on something Fig. to speak or write in great detail on some subject. □ I am sure you do not wish me to dilate further on this matter. □ If you do not see my point, I would be pleased to dilate on this matter further.

Diligence is the mother of good luck. Prov. If you work carefully and constantly, you will be far more likely to be successful, as if luck had come your way. □ Mimi: I'll never get work as an actress; I always have such bad luck at auditions. Jane: Keep working at it. Diligence is the mother of good luck.

dilly-dally (around) with someone or something to waste time frivolously with someone or something. □ Stop dilly-dallying around with your friends. □ He is always dilly-dallying around with his work.

dim down [for the lights] to go dim. □ The lights dimmed down for a few seconds. □ Open the stage curtain when the house lights dim down.

dim out [for a light] to grow dim and go out altogether. □ The lights dimmed out twice during the storm. □ I was afraid that the lights would dim out completely.

dim something down† to make lights dim; to use a dimmer to make the lights dimmer. □ Why don't you dim the lights down and put on some music? □ Let me dim down the lights and put on some music.

dim something up† to use a dimmer to make the lights brighter. (Theatrical. A dimmer is a rheostat, variable transformer, or something similar. The expression, a seeming contradiction, is the opposite of dim something down.) □ As the curtain rose, the electrician dimmed the lights up on a beautiful scene. □ You dimmed up the lights too fast.

a dime a dozen Fig. abundant; cheap and common. People who can write good books are not a dime a dozen. Romantic movies are a dime a dozen.

din something into someone and din something in[†] to repeat something over and over to someone. (As if one could “hammer” words into someone.) The teacher dinned it into her constantly, but it did no good. He dinned in the same message over and over.

dine at some place to eat at a place. We really like to dine at the small cafe on the corner. I hope we can dine at a fine restaurant for our anniversary.

dine in to eat at home rather than at a restaurant. I think we will dine in tonight. I am tired of dining in. Let's go out.

dine off something to make a meal of something; to make many meals of something. Do you think we can dine off the leg of lamb for more than one meal? I hope we dine off the turkey only one more time.

dine on something to eat something. We are dining on roast beef tonight. What will we be dining on tonight?

dine out Go to eat (a meal) out.

dinged out Sl. intoxicated. Gary is dinged out and can't drive.

dink someone off[†] Sl. to make someone angry. Whatever you do, don't dink her off! Why did you have to start out your speech by dinking off the entire audience?

Dinner is served. It is time to eat dinner. Please come to the table. (As if announced by a butler; often jocular.) Sue: Dinner is served. Mary (aside): Aren't we fancy tonight? “Dinner is served,” said Bob, rather formally for a barbecue.

dip into one's savings Fig. to take out part of the money one has been saving. (See also dip in(to) something.) I had to dip into my savings in order to pay for my vacation. I went to the bank and dipped into savings. There wasn't much left.

dip in(to) something) 1. to reach into a liquid. I dipped into the dishwasher, looking for the missing spoon. I dipped in and there it was. 2. to reach into a substance, usually to remove some of the substance. I dipped into the sour cream with a potato chip and brought out an enormous glob. He grabbed the jar of peanut butter and dipped in. 3. [for something] to sink or lower into a liquid. The oars dipped into the water and came out again. The lower branches sagged down to the water and dipped in.

dip something in(to) something and dip something in[†] to put something into a substance in order to take some of it. Tom dipped some of the bread into the cheese sauce. Dip in the bread again and get some more cheese on it.

dip to something to decline to a lower level quickly or briefly. The temperature dipped into the lower twenties overnight. The stock market dipped to a very low level during the day Friday.

direct someone's attention to someone or something to focus someone's regard or concern on someone or something; to cause someone to notice someone or something. May I direct your attention to the young man in the purple costume? The announcer directed our attention to the magician who was coming on stage.

direct something against someone or something to aim a critical remark or a weapon at someone or something. (Very close to direct something at someone or something.) We directed the guns against the occupied village. Ted said he had directed his remark against Judy.

direct something at someone or something to aim something at someone or something. (Very close to direct something against someone or something.) Are you directing your remarks at me? Please direct the hose at the bushes.

direct something to someone to address, designate, or send something to someone. Shall I direct the inquiries to you? Please direct all the mail to the secretary when it is delivered.

direct something to(ward) someone or something to send, throw, push, or aim something at someone or something. Tom directed the ball toward Harry. Should I direct this inquiry to Alice?

dirty cheap extremely cheap. Buy some more of those plums. They're dirt cheap. In Italy, the peaches are dirt cheap.

dirty crack a rude remark. Who made that dirty crack? Another dirty crack like that and I'll leave.

dirty deal an unfair deal. That was a dirty deal. I feel cheated. I got a dirty deal at that shop, and I won't go back.

dirty dog a low and sneaky person. That dirty dog tried to cheat in the card game!

*a dirty look Fig. an angry face or a frown. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) Anne gave me a dirty look. I got a dirty look from the teacher when I cracked a joke in class.

dirty old man a lecherous old man. (Usually jocular.) Jimmy, what you call flirting will make some girls call you a dirty old man! What a terrible joke. You are a dirty old man!

dirty one's hands Go to get one's hands dirty.

dirty something up[†] Rur. to get something dirty. Those pants are brand-new! Don't dirty them up! Don't dirty up your brand-new pants!

a dirty word 1. a swearword; an obscene or blasphemous word; a four-letter word. You are not allowed to use dirty words in your school essays. My aunt is offended by the use of dirty words. 2. something that is disliked or disapproved of. Since Tom broke off his engagement, his name is a dirty word in the village. Socialism is a dirty word in that house.

dirty work 1. Fig. unpleasant or uninteresting work. My boss does all the traveling. I get all the dirty work to do. She's tired of doing all the dirty work at the office. 2. Fig. dishonest or underhanded actions; treachery. She knew there was some dirty work going on when she saw her opponents whispering together. The company seems respectable enough, but there's a lot of dirty work that goes on.

disabuse someone of something to rid someone of an incorrect idea. Please allow me to disabuse you of that assumption. Please disabuse yourself of the notion that you are perfect.

disagree with someone [for food or drink] to upset someone's stomach. Milk always disagrees with me. Onions disagree with my husband, so he never eats them.

disagree (with someone) (about someone or something) and disagree (with someone) (on someone or something) to hold views about someone or something that are opposed to someone else's views. I take it you disagree with me about Tom. Don't disagree about Tom with me. I disagree about this with almost everyone. I disagree with you.

disappear from something to vanish from something or some place, especially from sight, view, or the face of the earth; to have been taken away from something. Jack disappeared all of a sudden last week, as if from the face of the earth. The car pulled away and disappeared from sight down the road.

disappoint someone with someone or something to disappoint someone with someone or something. I hope I haven't disappointed you with the modest size of the donation. I disappointed myself with my performance.

disappointed at someone or something and disappointed in someone or something becoming sad because of someone or something. I am really disappointed at what you did. I am very disappointed in you. That was a terrible thing to do. They were disappointed in the outcome.

disappointed in someone or something Go to previous.

disapprove of someone or something to object to someone or something. I disapprove of her choice for maid of honor. Do you disapprove of me?

a disaster of epic proportions Cliché a very large disaster. (Often jocular.) The earthquake was responsible for a disaster of epic proportions. Your late arrival caused a disaster of epic proportions.

disbar someone from something to take the right to practice law away from a lawyer. The state board disbarred Todd from practicing law in his own state. Sally was also disbarred from practicing law.

discern between someone or something and someone or something to detect the difference between people and things. I cannot discern between the dark trees and the dark sky behind them. I cannot discern between the person and the background.

discern someone or something from something else to detect the difference between someone or something and something else. I can hardly discern Tom from the busy background in this picture. I can't discern anything from that cluttered scene.

discern something from someone or something to learn or determine something from someone or something. We discerned a lot from the eyewitnesses. We discerned a lot from our discussions with the past president.

discharge someone from something 1. to fire someone from a job. The manager discharged Walter from his position with the bank. Walter was discharged from his job. 2. to permit a person to leave a place, such as a hospital or the armed service. They discharged her from the hospital today. She was well enough to be discharged from the hospital.

discharge something from something to fire a round from a gun. I discharged two bullets from the gun accidentally. Randy discharged about twenty rounds from his automatic rifle.

discharge something into something to let something out of something into something else. She discharged some nitrogen from the tank into the laboratory by accident. The technician discharged oxygen into the atmosphere.

discipline someone for something to punish or chastise someone for doing something. I will have to discipline you for fighting. Mary was disciplined for taking part in the fiasco.

disclose something to someone to tell or reveal something to someone. Tony refused to disclose the location of the papers to me. Please disclose the names to me at once.

disconnect someone or something from someone or something to break the connection between things or people. The telephone operator disconnected Larry from his caller. He disconnected himself from the cords of his parachute.

discourage someone from something to dissuade someone from doing something. I hope I can discourage Tom from leaving. I do not want to discourage you from further experimentation.

discourse (up)on someone or something to lecture about someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I would like to discourse upon this matter awhile. The committee chose to discourse on Tom and his latest fiasco rather than deal with the budgetary problems it faces.

Discretion is the better part of valor. Prov. It is good to be brave, but it is also good to be careful.; If you are careful, you will not get into situations that require you to be brave. Son: Can I go hang gliding with my friends? Father: No. Son: But they'll say I'm chicken if I don't go! Father: Discretion is the better part of valor, and I'd rather have them call you chicken than risk your life.

discriminate against someone or something to single out a type of person or thing for special negative treatment or denial of equal treatment; to act in a prejudicial manner against someone or something. This law discriminates against short people. You discriminate against people in wheelchairs.

discriminate between someone and someone else or something and something else to distinguish between people or between things. I find it hard these days to discriminate between my friends and my enemies. Can you discriminate between this shade of pink and that one?

discuss someone or something with someone to talk about someone or something with someone. I need to discuss Mickey with you. We need to discuss compensation with the boss.

the disease to please an obsessive need to please people. I, like so many, am afflicted with the disease to please. I am just too nice for my own good.

disembark from something to get off a ship, plane, or train. We disembark from the ship in Manaus. At what time do we expect to disembark from the plane?

disengage (oneself) from someone or something to detach oneself from someone or something; to untangle oneself from someone or something. I wanted to disengage myself from the person I was talking to and go home. □ We disengaged from the argument.

disengage something from something to detach something from something. □ Sally disengaged the locking mechanism from the cupboard door and peeked in. □ The coupling was disengaged from the boxcar, and the car separated and rolled away.

disentangle someone or something from someone or something to untangle someone or something from someone or something. □ I helped disentangle Tony from the coils of ropes he had stumbled into. □ They worked feverishly to disentangle the dolphin from the net. □ He disentangled himself from the net.

disguise someone in something to conceal someone's identity in a costume or makeup. □ We disguised her in men's clothing and got her across the border. □ She disguised herself in a clown suit.

disguise someone or something as someone or something to dress or make someone up to appear to be someone or something. □ We disguised the child as a witch. □ We disguised Gerald as a pumpkin.

disgusted at someone or something severely disappointed at someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; grow ~.) □ We were disgusted at her incessant lying. □ Sam was disgusted at her.

disgusted with someone or something severely disappointed over someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; grow ~.) □ I am totally disgusted with Ellen. □ We are all disgusted with the fall in the company's profits.

dish on someone Sl. to gossip about or slander someone. □ Stop dishing on her. She never hurt you! □ They spent an hour dishing on Wally.

dish something out! 1. Lit. to serve up food to people. □ I'll dish it out, and you take it to the table. □ Careful how you dish out the mashed potatoes. There may not be enough.

2. Fig. to distribute information, news, etc. □ The press secretaries were dishing reports out as fast as they could write them. □ The company dishes out propaganda on a regular basis. 3. Fig. to give out trouble, scoldings, criticism, etc. □ The boss was dishing criticism out this morning, and I really got it. □ The teacher dished out a scolding to each one who was involved in the prank.

dish the dirt Sl. to spread gossip; to gossip. □ Let's sit down, have a drink, and dish the dirt. □ David goes down to the tavern to dish the dirt.

disinclined to do something unwilling to do something. □ I am disinclined to allow you to leave class early. □ They were disinclined to allow us to enter the country.

dislodge someone or something from someone or something to loosen and remove someone or something from someone or something. □ We were unable to dislodge her from office. □ Gene was able to dislodge the bone from his throat.

dismiss someone (from something) (for something) to discharge someone from employment for some reason; to fire someone from a job for some cause. □ We will have to dismiss him from employment for absenteeism. □ She was dismissed from the bank for making many errors in one month.

dismiss something as something to put something out of one's mind or ignore something as something. (The second something can be a noun or an adjective.) □ I dismissed the whole idea as foolishness. □ It was not possible to dismiss the whole matter as a one-time happening. □ Molly dismissed the whole event as accidental.

dismount from something to get down from something, such as a horse, bicycle, etc. □ She dismounted from her horse and fled into the house. □ Please dismount from the bicycle and wheel it into the shed.

dispatch someone from some place to send someone from some place. □ I dispatched a messenger from here over an hour ago. □ A telegram will be dispatched from my office first thing in the morning.

dispatch someone or something to someone or something to send someone or something to someone, something, or some place. □ I will dispatch a new copy of the damaged book to you immediately. □ Gene will dispatch a messenger to you.

dispense something (to someone) (from something) to distribute something to someone from something or some place. □ The nurse dispensed aspirin to everyone from a large bottle. □ The nurse dispensed aspirin from a large bottle to anyone who asked for it.

dispense with someone or something to get rid of someone or something; to brush someone or something aside. □ I think we will dispense with that subject for the rest of the day. □ We will have to dispense with the expensive gifts this year.

display something to someone to show something to someone. □ The peacock displayed his tail feathers to the other birds. □ Would you please display the artwork to the committee?

dispose of someone Sl. to kill someone. (See also dispose of someone or something.) □ Max suggested that he would dispose of Lefty if Lefty continued to be a pest. □ The boss ordered Max to dispose of Lefty.

dispose of someone or something to get rid of someone or something. (See also dispose of someone.) □ How can I dispose of this bothersome customer? □ Where shall I dispose of this wastepaper?

dispossess someone of something to separate someone from a possession. □ Do you intend to dispossess us of our home? □ They were dispossessed of the only possessions they had.

dispute something with someone to argue with someone about something, such as an amount of money. □ The customer disputed the amount of the check with the waiter. □ Please don't feel like you have to dispute every bill with the supplier.

disqualify someone or something for something and disqualify someone or something from something to invalidate someone's or something's claim to something. □ Does being late for practice disqualify me for the team? □ This loss disqualifies our team, doesn't it? □ Does it disqualify us from competition?

dis(s) (on) someone Sl. to belittle someone; to show disrespect for someone. (From either a nonstandard transitive verb disrespect or from dismiss [as insignificant]. Dis is also a slang transitive verb.) □ Gary is such a complainer. All he does is diss on people. □ Please stop dissing my little sister. She didn't do any of those things.

dissatisfied with someone or something unhappy with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; grow ~.)

□ We are quite dissatisfied with the service provided by the dealer. □ I am not dissatisfied with you.

dissent from something to disagree with something. □ We have chosen to dissent from the decision the rest of you made. □ Fred dissented from almost everything that everyone else agreed on.

dissociate oneself from someone or something to break one's association or relationship with someone or something. □ They decided to dissociate themselves from our organization. □ I was forced to dissociate myself from her. □ We advised her to dissociate herself from the gang.

dissolve in something [for a substance] to break down in a liquid and disperse in the liquid. (Compare this with dissolve into something.) □ Salt will dissolve in warm water. □ This material will not dissolve in oil.

dissolve into something 1. Lit. [for a substance to change from a solid state into another state; [for a substance] to melt or liquefy something. (Compare this with dissolve in something.) □ In a hot pan, the sugar dissolved into syrup. 2. Fig. [for someone] to begin suddenly to display laughter, tears, giggles, gales of laughter, etc. (See also dissolve in something.) □ The children dissolved into tears. □ The clown's appearance made the audience dissolve into laughter. 3. Fig. [for a film or television picture] to fade away into some other picture. □ The scene dissolved into a shot of the interior of the castle. □ At this point in the script, dissolve to a face shot of Walter.

dissolve something in something to cause a substance to break down in a liquid and disperse in the liquid. (See also dissolve in something.) □ First, dissolve the salt in some warm water. □ Dissolve this medicine in water.

dissolve something into something to cause a film or television picture to fade away into some other picture. (See also dissolve into something (3).) □ The director dissolved the picture into the next scene. □ At this point, the opening scene should be dissolved into a side shot of the exterior.

dissuade someone from something to discourage someone from (doing) something. □ I hope to dissuade her from getting married until she graduates. □ I could not dissuade him from his plan.

Distance lends enchantment (to the view). Prov. Things that are far away from you appear better than they really are. □ Jill: High school was the happiest time of my life. Jane: But that was fifteen years ago. I think distance lends enchantment to the view.

distance oneself from someone or something 1. Lit. to separate oneself physically from someone or something. □ She wanted to distance herself from the fighting in the corridor. □ I distanced myself from her from then on. 2. Fig. to "separate" oneself ideologically from someone or something. □ She felt that he would want to distance himself from her radical politics. □ He had to distance himself from those policies if he wanted to be reelected. □ I will feel better when I can distance myself from that part of my life.

distill something from something to derive product from something by heating and condensation. □ They distilled the lighter components from the raw oil. □ The alcohol was distilled from fermented grain.

distinguish between someone or something and someone or something else 1. to perceive the difference between different people and things, in any combination. □ Can't you distinguish between Tom and your real enemies? □ He can't distinguish between a good used car and that wreck over there! 2. to create or emphasize the difference between people and things, in any combination. □ Try to distinguish between the figure in the foreground and the flowers in the background in your painting. □ I used red to distinguish between the new part and the old.

distinguish oneself among someone to make oneself stand out from other people because of one's achievements. □ I hope someday to distinguish myself among my peers. □ He distinguished himself among his classmates by his many talents.

distinguish someone or something from someone or something else 1. to tell the difference between different people and things, in any combination. □ I cannot distinguish Billy from Bobby. □ She could not distinguish basil from oregano. 2. to delineate or emphasize the boundary between people and things, in any combination. □ I cannot distinguish the blue scarf from the sky in the background. □ We could not distinguish the leaves of the bushes from the leaves of the trees as we moved farther away.

distract someone from something to turn or divert someone's attention from something. □ I hate to distract you from your work, but I have some important news. □ You haven't distracted me from anything.

distribute something (all) around to give shares of something to people. □ I distributed many gifts all around to everyone. □ We distributed the drinks around.

distribute something among someone or something to give out shares of something to three or more people. □ We must distribute the money among the various charities. □ The food was distributed among the people who showed up.

distribute something between someone to give out shares of something to two people. □ He distributed the remaining cake between Dave and Don. □ Please distribute the magazines between the two boys.

distribute something over something to spread something over something or over an area. □ Distribute the icing over the entire cake. □ Walter distributed the sand over the icy spots.

distribute something to someone to give out something to someone. □ Can you distribute this clothing to the needy people who live around here? □ I will distribute the ice cream to the party guests.

dive in with both feet and jump in with both feet Fig. to become completely involved with something quickly, especially something new. □ I had never done anything like this before, but I just jumped in with both feet and learned it in no time.

dive in(to something) 1. Lit. to plunge into something; to jump into something headfirst. □ Don't dive into that water! It's too shallow. □ David walked to the edge of the pool and dived in. 2. Fig. to start immediately on some business or activity with energy. □ I can't wait to dive into the next project. □ Clara dives into her work eagerly every morning.

diverge from something to move in a different direction from something. □ Her line of thinking diverged from generally accepted thought on this point. □ The driveway diverges from the main road beyond the fence, straight ahead.

diverge from something to move in a different direction from something. □ Her line of thinking diverged from generally accepted thought on this point. □ The driveway diverges from the main road beyond the fence, straight ahead.

diverge to something to turn to a particular direction. □ A narrow road diverged to the left. □ A narrower channel diverged to the left of the island.

divert someone or something from someone or something to turn someone or something aside or away from someone or something. □ We could not divert his attention from his mother. □ I could not divert the woman from her interest in the book.

divert someone or something to someone or something to channel or redirect someone or something to someone or something. □ The farmers diverted the stream to a different channel. □ The guards diverted the museum visitors to the great hall.

divert something into something 1. to channel something into something. □ We will have to divert the runoff water into the culvert. □ Let's divert this stream into the ditch. 2. Euph. to steal something and keep it some place. □ He diverted the funds into a secret bank account. □ She diverted her clients' stock dividends into her own investment portfolio.

divert something onto something to channel something onto the surface of something. □ Temporarily, they diverted the southbound traffic onto the side streets.

divest someone or something of something to take something away from someone or something. □ The judge divested the company of its foreign holding. □ The court divested her of her stocks.

divide and conquer to cause the enemy to divide and separate into two or more factions, and then move in to conquer all of them. □ Mary thought she could divide and conquer the board of directors, but they had survived such tactics many times, and her efforts failed. □ Sam led his men to divide and conquer the enemy platoon, and his strategy succeeded.

divide by something to perform mathematical division by a particular number. □ Can you divide by sixteens? □ Add this figure to the next column and divide by twenty.

divide someone against someone or something to cause people to separate into two groups, one of which opposes someone or something. □ The issue divided the children against their parents. □ The argument divided the president against the board of directors.

divide something between people or things to give shares of something to specific people or groups. (In a strict sense, only between two entities. Informally, between two or more.) □ I will have to divide the toys between the two children. □ He divided the tasks between the day crew and the night crew.

divide something by something to perform mathematical division on something, using a particular number. □ Now, divide this sum by the figure in column seven. □ Can you divide 1,400 by 59?

divide something fifty-fifty and split something fifty-fifty to divide something into two equal parts. (The fifty means 50 percent.) □ Tommy and Billy divided the candy fifty-fifty. □ The robbers split the money fifty-fifty.

divide something into something 1. and divide something in something to separate something into parts. □ I will divide it into two parts. □ I will divide the cake in half. □ If you divide the pie in fourths, the pieces will be too big. 2. to do mathematical division so that the divisor goes into the number that is to be divided. □ Divide seven into forty-nine and what do you get? □ If seven is divided into forty-nine, what do you get?

divide something (off^t) (from something or animals) 1. to separate something from something else. □ Let's divide the chickens off from the ducks and put the chickens in the shed. □ We divided off the chickens from the ducks. 2. to separate something from something else, using a partition. □ We divided the sleeping area off from the rest of the room. □ A curtain was used to divide off a sleeping area.

divide something (up^t) (between someone or something) and divide something (up^t) (among someone or something) to give something out in shares to people or groups. (More informal with up. Between with two; among with more.) □ Please divide this up between the visitors. □ Cut the birthday cake and divide it up among all the party guests. □ Please divide up this pie between the children.

divide something with someone to share something with someone. □ I will divide a piece of cake with you. □ They refused to divide the ice cream with us.

divided between something separated into different categories. □ The applicants for the job seemed to be divided between the overqualified and the underqualified. □ The dogs were divided evenly between terriers and poodles.

divided on someone or something having differing opinions about someone or something. □ Our opinions are divided on what is going to happen. □ We were divided on Ann. Some of us wanted to choose her; some did not.

divorce oneself from something to separate oneself from something, such as an idea, policy, philosophy, etc. □ She was not able to divorce herself from long-held prejudice. □ You should divorce yourself from those limiting ideas.

divulge something to someone to reveal something to someone. □ Promise that you will not divulge any of this to anyone. □ She refused to divulge their names to us.

divvy something up (between someone) and divvy something up (among someone); divvy something up^t to divide something up between two people or among three or more people. (Between is for two and among is for more than two.) □ Would you like to divvy this money up? □ Please divvy up this money between you. □ Let's divvy up the leftovers among all the dinner guests.

do a double take to react with surprise; to have to look twice to make sure that one really saw correctly. □ When the boy led a goat into the park, everyone did a double take. □ When the nurse saw that the man had six toes, she did a double take.

do a dump on someone or something Go to dump on someone or something.

do a fade Sl. to leave; to sneak away. □ Richard did a fade when he saw heard the police siren. □ It's time for me to do a fade.

do a flip-flop (on something) and do an about-face Fig. to make a total reversal of opinion. □ Without warning, the government did a flip-flop on taxation. □ The candidate had done an about-face on the question of deductions last year.

do a job on someone or something 1. Euph. to defecate on someone or something. (Note the variation in the second example.) □ The puppy did a job on the living-room carpet. □ It's supposed to do its job on the newspapers in the basement. 2. Sl. to damage someone or something; to mess up someone or something. □ The robbers really did a job on the bank guard. They beat him when they robbed the bank. □ The puppy did a job on my shoes. They are all chewed to pieces.

do a land-office business Fig. to do a large amount of buying or selling in a short period of time. □ The ice-cream shop always does a land-office business on a hot day. □ The tax collector's office did a land-office business on the day that taxes were due.

do a number on someone or something Sl. to damage or harm someone or something. □ The teacher did a number on the whole class by giving them a pop quiz. □ Tom did a number on Mary when he went out with Ann.

do a one-eighty and turn one hundred and eighty degrees 1. Lit. to turn around and go in the opposite direction. □ When I hollered, the dog did a one-eighty and headed back to its own yard. 2. Fig. to radically reverse a decision or opinion. □ His political philosophy turned one hundred and eighty degrees when he grew a little older.

do a slow burn Fig. to be quietly angry. (See also burn with a low blue flame.) □ I did a slow burn while I was waiting in line for a refund.

do a snow job on someone Sl. to deceive or confuse someone. (As if to blind someone with snow.) □ Don't try to do a snow job on me. I know all the tricks. □ She thought she did a snow job on the teacher, but it backfired.

do a takeoff on someone or something to perform a parody on someone or something. □ The comedian did a takeoff on the president, and everyone thought it was terribly funny.

do a three-sixty and turn three-hundred and sixty degrees 1. Lit. to turn completely around. □ I was really lost. I did a three-sixty in the middle of the street because I couldn't make up my mind which way to go. 2. Fig. to reverse a decision or an opinion and then return to one's original stance. □ Over time, he did a three-sixty in his thinking about integration.

do an about-face (on someone or something) Go to do a flip-flop (on something).

do an errand Go to run an errand.

Do as I say, not as I do. Prov. Take my advice, even though I am acting contrary to it. (Sometimes used as an apology for behaving hypocritically.) □ Jill: Why are you walking on the grass when I told you not to? Jane: But you're walking on the grass. Jill: Do as I say, not as I do.

do as something [for something] to serve as something; to be usable as something. □ This spoon will do as a small shovel. □ This jacket will not do as formal wear.

Do as you would be done by. Go to Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

do away with oneself Euph. to commit suicide. (See also do away with someone or an animal; do away with something.) □ The doctor was afraid that Betty would do away with herself. □ I wouldn't think of doing away with myself.

do away with someone or an animal Euph. to kill someone or an animal. (See also do away with oneself; do away with something.) □ The crooks did away with the witness. □ I was there, too. I hope they don't try to do away with me.

do away with something to get rid of something. □ This chemical will do away with the stain in your sink. □ The time has come to do away with that old building.

do business with someone to trade or bargain with someone; to conduct commerce with someone. □ You sound reasonable. I think I can do business with you. □ I am sure we can do business with one another.

do credit to someone and do someone credit to add positively to the reputation of someone. □ Your new job really does credit to you. □ Yes, it really does you credit.

do dope Go to next.

do drugs and do dope to take illegal drugs; to use illegal drugs habitually. □ Sam doesn't do drugs, and he doesn't drink. □ Richard started doing dope when he was very young.

do for someone 1. to provide for someone; to take care of or serve someone. □ Do you expect me to stay home and do for you for the rest of my life? □ I can't do for all of them! 2. to suffice for someone; to be sufficient for someone. □ Will this amount of sweet potatoes do for you? □ Yes, this will do for me fine. 3. See also done for.

do for something to serve as something; to substitute as something. □ I think that this stone will do nicely for a doorstep. □ This stick will just not do for a stirring spoon.

(Do) have some more. a polite invitation to take more of something, usually food or drink. □ Bill: Wow, Mrs. Franklin, this scampi is great! Sally: Thank you, Bill. Do have some more. □ Jane: What a lovely, light cake. Mary: Oh, have some more. Otherwise the boys will just wolf it down.

Do I have to paint (you) a picture? Go to next.

Do I have to spell it out (for you)? and Do I have to paint (you) a picture?; Do I need to paint you a picture? Fig. What do I have to do to make this clear enough for you to understand? (Shows impatience.) □ Mary: I don't think I understand what you're trying to tell me, Fred. Fred: Do I have to spell it out for you? Mary: I guess so. Fred: We're through, Mary. □ Sally: Would you please go over the part about the square root again? Mary: Do I have to paint you a picture? Pay attention!

Do I make myself (perfectly) clear? Do you understand exactly what I mean? (Very stern.) □ Mother: You're going to sit right here and finish that homework. Do I make myself perfectly clear? Child: Yes, ma'am. □ Sue: No, the answer is no! Do I make myself clear?

Do I need to paint you a picture? Go to Do I have to spell it out (for you)?

do it Euph. to have sex. I hear that Bill and Jane did it in the back of his car. He did it for the first time when he was seventeen.

do justice to something 1. Fig. to do something well; to represent or portray something accurately. Sally did justice to our side in the contract negotiations. This photograph doesn't do justice to the beauty of the mountains.
2. Fig. to eat or drink a great deal. Bill always does justice to the turkey on Thanksgiving. The party didn't do justice to the roast pig. There were nearly ten pounds left over.

Do not let the sun go down on your anger. Go to next.

Do not let the sun go down on your wrath. and Do not let the sun go down on your anger. Prov. Do not stay angry with anybody; calm your anger by the end of the day. Son: Billy broke my bicycle, and I'm never going to speak to him again. Mother: Now, now, don't let the sun go down on your wrath. I was very upset by what you did, but I don't want to let the sun go down on my anger. Let's make up.

Do not wash your dirty linen in public. Prov. Do not talk about your private family problems in public. Grandson: How are we going to make Dad stop drinking? Grandmother: Hush! Don't wash your dirty linen in public.

do one's bit Go to do one's part.

do one's business Euph. to defecate or urinate. Do you need to do your business before we get in the car? The cat did her business on the sofa again.

do one's duty 1. to do one's job; to do what is expected of one. Please don't thank me. I'm just doing my duty. Soldiers who fight in wars are doing their duty. 2. Euph. to defecate or urinate. We're not leaving this restroom until you do your duty. She did her duty in the potty, just like a big girl!

do one's (level) best to do something as well as one can. Just do your level best. That's all we can ask of you. Tom isn't doing his best. We may have to replace him.

do one's (own) thing to do what one wants; to do what pleases oneself no matter what others think. She's going to start doing her own thing for a change. I've always done my thing, and I don't see any reason to change to your view now.

do one's part and do one's bit to do one's share of the work; to do whatever one can do to help. All people everywhere must do their part to conserve energy. I always try to do my bit. How can I help this time?

do one's utmost (to do something) to make one's best effort at doing something. We will do our utmost to make the guests to feel welcome.

do oneself proud to have done a very fine job. That's super! You've done yourself proud! I feel like I've done myself proud by earning high honors.

do or die Fig. trying as hard as one can. I was determined to get there—do or die. (Used as an attributive) He has the obsessive do-or-die attitude.

do's and don'ts the rules; the things that should be done and those that should not be done. I must admit that a lot of do's and don'ts at this company are hard for me to understand. Better learn the do's and don'ts immediately.

Do sit down. Don't stand on ceremony; Please sit down. (A polite phrase encouraging people to resume their seats after rising for an introduction or out of deference.) Tom rose when Mary approached the table, but she said graciously, "Do sit down. I just wanted to thank you again for the lovely gift." Tom: Hello, Bill. Bill (rising): Hi, Tom. Tom (standing): Do sit down. I just wanted to say hello.

do so Go to do too.

do some fine coin Sl. to make a large sum of money. When I get my big break, I'm going to do some fine coin. Richard did some fine coin on that last housepainting job.

do somehow by someone to treat someone in a particular manner. (Do not confuse this with a passive construction. The someone is not the actor but the object.) Tom did all right by Ann when he brought her red roses. I did badly by Tom. I fired him without good reason.

do somehow for someone to benefit or harm someone in some degree. This jacket does fine for me. I don't need a different one. This meal does okay for me. I'm satisfied.

do someone a favor and do someone a good turn to perform a helpful service to someone. Would you please do me a favor and take this letter to the post office? My neighbor did me a good turn by lending me his car.

do someone a good turn Go to previous.

do someone a heap of good Go to do someone a power of good.

do someone a kindness to do a kind deed for a person. My neighbor did me a kindness when he cut my grass. I am always happy to have the opportunity of doing someone a kindness.

do someone a power of good and do someone a heap of good Rur. to be very good for someone. You should take a vacation. It'd do you a power of good. Just hearing your voice does me a heap of good.

do someone credit Go to do credit to someone.

do someone damage Fig. to harm someone, physically or otherwise. I hope she doesn't plan to do me damage. They did us damage by telling the whole story to the newspapers.

do someone dirt(y) Rur. to do something bad or dishonest to someone. He sure did his wife dirty, leaving her like that. She did me dirt when we divided up the things mother left us.

do someone (down) Rur. to treat someone badly. I ain't speaking to Mary. Not after the way she did me down.

do someone good to benefit someone. A nice hot bath really does me good. A few years in the army would do you good.

do someone in 1. to make someone tired. That tennis game really did me in. Yes, hard activity will do you in. 2. to cheat someone; to take someone in. The scam artists did the widow in by talking her into giving them all the money in her bank account. 3. Sl. to kill someone. The crooks did the bank guard in. They'll probably do the witnesses in soon.

do someone one better Go to go (someone) one better.

do someone or something up^t to make someone or something attractive; to decorate or ornament someone or something. □ Sally did Jane up for the party. □ Would you do up this present for Jane? It's her birthday.

do someone out of something to swindle something away from someone; to defraud someone of a right or of property. □ Are you trying to do me out of what's mine? □ Max tried to do her out of everything she had. □ I did myself out of a week's vacation by quitting when I did.

do someone over^t and make someone over^t to buy a new wardrobe for someone; to redo someone's hairstyle, makeup, etc. □ Sally's mother did Sally over for the play tryouts. □ The designer made over Sally completely.

do someone proud to make someone proud. □ Bill's kids sure did him proud at the boat race. □ Mary resolved she would do her friends proud.

do someone's bidding to do what is requested. □ The servant grumbled but did his employer's bidding. □ Am I expected to do your bidding whenever you ask?

do someone's heart good Fig. to make someone feel good emotionally. □ It does my heart good to hear you two are back together. □ When she sent me a get-well card, it really did my heart good.

do something about someone or something to manage or deal with someone or something. □ Can you please do something about Bob? He is too noisy. □ We were not able to do anything about the excessive rent increase.

do something by hand to do something with one's hands rather than with a machine. □ The calculator was broken so I had to do the calculations by hand. □ All this tiny stitching was done by hand. Machines cannot do this kind of work.

do something by the book Go to by the book.

do something from scratch Go to from scratch.

do something hand in hand Go to hand in hand.

do something in^t to destroy something. □ The huge waves totally did in the seaside community. □ The fire did the wooden building in.

do something over^t 1. and make something over^t to rebuild, redesign, or redecorate something. □ We did our living room over for the holidays. □ We made over the family room because it was looking shabby. 2. and do something over^t (again) to repeat something; to do something again. □ I am afraid that you are going to have to do over the complete series again. □ Would you do this one over, please?

do something the hard way to accomplish something in the most difficult manner, rather than by an easier way. □ I made it to this job the hard way. I came up through the ranks. □ She did it the hard way. She had no help from her parents.

do something to excess to do too much of something; to consume too much of something. □ Anne often drinks to excess at parties. □ John smokes to excess when he works.

do something up^t 1. to fasten, zip, hook, or button some item of clothing. □ Would you do my buttons up in back? □ Please do up my buttons. 2. to wrap up something, such as a package, gift, etc. □ I have to do this present up before the party guests get here. □ Do up the presents quickly. They are coming up the walk. 3. to arrange, fix, repair, cook, clean, etc., something. □ I have to do the kitchen up before the guests get here. □ Do up the kitchen now, please.

do something up brown to do something just right or with great effect. (Fixed order.) □ Whenever they put on a party, they do it up brown. □ He was determined to cause a scandal, and he really did it up brown.

do something with a vengeance Fig. to do something with vigor; to do something energetically as if one were angry. □ Bob is building that fence with a vengeance. □ Mary is really weeding her garden with a vengeance.

do something with someone or something 1. Lit. to use someone or something in some way. □ Can you do something with this bracket, or shall I throw it away? □ We can't do anything with the new secretary. Find us another. 2. Fig. to improve or refresh someone or something. □ I would like to do something with this room. It is so drab. □ I can't do anything with this child! Keep him at home. 3. Fig. to manage as well as possible with someone or something; to make do with someone or something. □ We will just have to do whatever we can with what we have. □ We will do the best we can with this employee until you find a better one.

Do tell. a response to one of a series of statements by another person. (The expression can indicate disinterest. Each word has equal stress. See also You don't say.) □ Bill: The Amazon basin is about ten times the size of France. Mary: Do tell.

do the dishes to wash the dishes; to wash and dry the dishes, knives, forks, glasses, etc., after a meal. □ Bill, you cannot go out and play until you've done the dishes. □ Why am I always the one who has to do the dishes?

do the honors to act as host or hostess and serve one's guests by pouring drinks, slicing meat, making (drinking) toasts, etc. □ All the guests were seated, and a huge juicy turkey sat on the table. Jane turned to her husband and said, "Bob, will you do the honors?" Bob smiled and began slicing thick slices of meat from the turkey. □ The mayor stood up and addressed the people who were still eating their salads. "I'm delighted to do the honors this evening and propose a toast to your friend and mine, Bill Jones. Bill, good luck and best wishes in your new job in Washington."

do the trick to do exactly what is needed. □ This new paint scraper really does the trick. □ Is this envelope large enough to do the trick?

do time Sl. to serve a sentence in prison; to serve a specific amount of time in prison. □ Lefty had done time on a number of occasions. □ You'd better talk and talk fast if you don't want to do time.

do too and do so to do something (despite anything to the contrary). (An emphatic way of saying do.) □ Bob: You don't have your money with you. Bill: I do too! □ He does so! I saw him put it in his pocket. □ She did too take a cookie. I saw her do it.

Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. and Do as you would be done by. Prov. You should treat other people the way you want them to treat you. (From Luke 6:31; it is also known as "The Golden Rule.") □ Mother: Don't call your playmates names. Child:

Why not? Mother: Because you should follow the Golden Rule: Do unto others as you would have them do unto you. □ It's hard to be kind to people sometimes, but I try to remember to do as I'd be done by.

Do we have to go through all that again? Do we have to discuss that matter again? (Compare this with Let's not go through all that again.) □ Bill: Now, I still have more to say about what happened last night. Sally: Do we have to go through all that again? □ Sally: I can't get over the way you treated me at our own dinner table. Fred: I was irritated at something else. I said I was sorry. Do we have to go through all that again?

Do what? What did you say?; You want me to do what? □ Charlie: My mama's coming to visit, so I want you to cook a fancy dinner. Mary: Do what? □ A: Let's perambulate. B: Do what? A: Let's take a walk.

do with someone or something to do as well as possible with someone or something; to make do with someone or something. □ I will just have to do with the car I now have. □ Can she do with just one chair for a while?

do without Go to go without.

do without (someone or something) to manage or get along without someone or something that is needed or expected. □ I guess I will have to do without dinner. □ Yes, you'll do without.

(Do you) care if I join you? Go to Could I join you?

(Do) you eat with that mouth? and (Do) you kiss your momma with that mouth? Sl. Do you actually eat with the mouth you use to talk that filth?; Do you actually use that filthy mouth to kiss your mother? (A phrase said to someone who talks dirty all the time.) □ That's a lot of foul talk. Do you eat with that mouth? □ After the suspect finished swearing at him, the police officer said, "Do you kiss your momma with that mouth?"

Do you expect me to believe that? That is so unbelievable that you do not expect me to believe it, do you? (Said with impatience or strong doubt. Compare this with You can't expect me to believe that.) □ Bill: I'm going to quit my job and open a restaurant. Mary: That's silly. Do you expect me to believe that? □ Mary: Wow! I just got selected to be an astronaut! Sally: Do you expect me to believe that? Mary: Here's the letter! Now do you believe me?

Do you follow? Fig. Do you understand what I am saying?; Do you understand my explanation? □ Mary: Keep to the right past the fork in the road, then turn right at the crossroads. Do you follow? Jane: No. Run it by me again.

(Do you) get my drift? Do you understand what I mean?; Do you understand what I am getting at? □ Father: I want you to settle down and start studying. Get my drift? Bob: Sure, Pop. Whatever you say. □ Mary: Get out of my way and stop following me around. Do you get my drift? John: I guess so.

(Do you) get the picture? Do you understand the situation?; Do you know what this means you have to do? □ Bill: I want to get this project wrapped up before midnight. Do you get the picture? Tom: I'm afraid I do. Bill: Well, then, get to work. □ Fred: I want you to straighten up and get moving. Get the picture? Bill: I got it.

(Do) you hear? Rur. Do you hear and understand what I said? □ John: I want you to clean up this room this instant!

Do you hear? Sue: Okay. I'll get right on it. □ Bob: Come over here, Sue. I want to show you something, you hear? Sue: Sure. What is it?

(Do) you kiss your momma with that mouth? Go to (Do) you eat with that mouth?

(Do you) know what? and You know what? an expression used to open a conversation or switch to a new topic. □ Bob: You know what? Mary: No, what? Bob: I think this milk is spoiled. □ Bob: Know what? Bill: Tell me. Bob: Your hair needs cutting. Bill: So what?

(Do you) know what I mean? Go to next.

(Do you) know what I'm saying? and You know what I'm saying?; (Do you) know what I mean?; You know what I mean? Do you understand me?; Do you agree? □ Sue: This is, like, really great! You know what I'm saying? Mary: Yeah, I've been there. It's great.

(Do) you mean to say something? and (Do) you mean to tell me something? Do you really mean to say what you said? (A way of giving someone an opportunity to alter a comment. The something represents a quote or a paraphrase.) □ Mary: I'm leaving tomorrow. Sally: Do you mean to say you're leaving school for good? Mary: Yes. □ Bob: Do you mean to tell me that this is all you've accomplished in two weeks? Bill: I guess so. Bob: I expected more.

(Do) you mean to tell me something? Go to previous.

Do you mind? 1. You are intruding on my space!; You are offending me! (Impatient or incensed. Essentially, "Do you mind stopping what you are doing?") □ The lady behind her in line kept pushing against her every time the line moved. Finally, Sue turned and said sternly, "Do you mind?" □ All through the first part of the movie, two people in the row behind John kept up a running conversation. Finally, John rose and turned, leaned over into their faces, and shouted, "Do you mind?" 2. Do you object to what I am about to do? □ Mary had her hand on the lovely silver cake knife that would carry the very last piece of cake to her plate. She looked at Tom, who stood next to her, eyeing the cake. "Do you mind?" she asked cooly. □ "Do you mind?" asked John as he bumped Sally and ran through the door.

(Do you) mind if...? a polite way of seeking someone's permission or agreement. □ Mary: Do you mind if I sit here? Jane: No, help yourself. □ Tom: Mind if I smoke? Bill: I certainly do. Tom: Then I'll go outside.

(Do you) mind if I join you? Go to Could I join you?

Do you read me? 1. Fig. an expression used by someone communicating by radio, asking if the hearer understands the transmission clearly. □ Controller: This is Aurora Center, do you read me? Pilot: Yes, I read you loud and clear. □ Controller: Left two degrees. Do you read me? Pilot: Roger, Sir, G'day. 2. Fig. Do you understand what I am telling you? (Said sternly, as when giving an instruction, and used in general conversation, not in radio communication.) □ Mary: I want you to pull yourself together and go out and get a job. Do you read me? Bill: Sure. Anything you say. □ Mother: Get this place picked up immediately. Do you read me? Child: Yes, ma'am.

(Do you) want to know something? and (You want to) know something? an expression used to open a conversation or switch to a new topic. □ John: Do you want to know something? Sue: What? John: Your hem is

orn. □ Bill: Hey, Tom! Know something? Tom: What is it? Bill: It's really hot today. Tom: Don't I know it!

(Do you) want to make something of it? and You want to make something of it? Do you want to start a fight about it? (Rude and contentious.) □ Tom: You're really bugging me. It's not fair to pick on me all the time. Bill: You want to make something of it? □ Bob: Please be quiet. You're making too much noise. Fred: Do you want to make something of it?

(Do) you want to step outside? an expression inviting someone to go outdoors to settle an argument by fighting. □ John: Drop dead! Bob: All right, I've had enough out of you. You want to step outside? □ Bill: So you're mad at me! What else is new? You've been building up to this for a long time. Bob: Do you want to step outside and settle this once and for all? Bill: Why not?

dock someone or something for something to subtract money from someone or someone's account for payment of a debt or as punishment; to withhold money from someone's pay in payment of a debt or for recompense. □ I will have to dock you for any breakage you cause. □ I was docked for being absent for half a day.

dock (something) at some place to bring a boat or ship to a dock. □ Let's dock our boat at the left side of the pier. □ We docked at the marina overnight.

dock something from something to withhold money from an amount due to someone. □ I will have to dock this from your paycheck. □ The boss docked ten dollars from my monthly pay.

Doctor Livingstone, I presume? Jocular You are who I think you are, are you not? □ Oh, there you are. Doctor Livingstone, I presume?

doctor's orders something that one is strongly advised to do as ordered or as if ordered by a doctor. □ I have to spend a month in Arizona. Doctor's orders. □ I'm doing this on doctor's orders, but I don't like it.

doctor someone up[†] to give someone medical treatment, especially first aid. □ Give me a minute to doctor Fred up, and then we can continue our walk. □ I'll doctor up Fred with a bandage; you can go on ahead.

odder along to walk along unsteadily, as in old age. □ Both of the elderly ladies doddered along very slowly. □ We dodder along because we can't go any faster.

dodge behind something to duck behind something; to move quickly and evasively behind something. □ She dodged behind a tree to hide from Mark. □ The turkey dodged behind a tree to elude the hunter.

Does it work for you? Is this all right with you?; Do you agree? (Can be answered by (It) works for me.) □ Bill: I'll be there at noon. Does it work for you? Bob: Works for me. □ Mary: We're having dinner at eight. Does it work for you? Jane: Sounds just fine.

doesn't care who knows it doesn't try to conceal something. (Also with don't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ Jane dyes her hair, and she doesn't care who knows it. □ Yeah, my old man's in jail. I don't care who knows it!

doesn't have enough sense to bell a cat and doesn't have enough sense to come in out of the rain acts foolish. (Also with don't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ I should've known Mary would mess things up completely. She doesn't have enough sense to bell a cat. □ Look after Joe and make sure he doesn't get into trouble. You know he doesn't have enough sense to bell a cat. □ I ain't surprised that Jim spends a hundred dollars a week on the lottery. Everyone knows he don't have enough sense to come in out of the rain.

doesn't have enough sense to come in out of the rain Go to previous.

doesn't have the sense God gave geese and doesn't have the sense God gave him (or her) Prov. Doesn't have basic common sense. (Also with don't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ Mary's going out in this incredibly cold weather without a hat or gloves. She doesn't have the sense God gave geese. □ It was obvious that the man was a swindler, but George gave him all his money anyway. I swear, George doesn't have the sense God gave him.

doesn't have the sense God gave him (or her) Go to previous.

doesn't know beans (about something) does not know anything. (Also with don't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ Bill doesn't know beans about car engines. □ Don't ask your daddy for advice about child rearing. He doesn't know beans.

doesn't know his ass from a hole in the ground and doesn't know his ass from his elbow doesn't know anything; acts ignorant. (Use ass with caution. Also with don't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ That teacher doesn't know his ass from a hole in the ground. □ She's supposed to be an expert, but she doesn't know her ass from her elbow.

doesn't know his ass from his elbow Go to previous.

dog and pony show Fig. a display, demonstration, or exhibition of something—such as something one is selling. (As in a circus act where trained dogs leap onto and off of trained ponies.) □ Gary went into his standard dog and pony show, trying to sell us on an upgrade to our software. □ Don't you get tired of running through the same old dog and pony show at every trade show?

The dog ate my homework. a poor excuse for something that someone has failed to do on time. (From an excuse a student might give for failing to turn in homework on time. Occurs in many variations.) □ The dog ate my homework, so I have nothing to turn in. □ (Used as an attributive.) Bob was late with his report and had nothing but his typical dog-ate-my-homework excuses.

dog days the hottest days of summer, usually during July and August. (Named for Sirius, the 'dog star.') □ Bill spent the dog days lying out in his hammock. □ I hate doing yard work in the dog days.

Dog does not eat dog. Prov. One disreputable person will not harm other disreputable people. □ Ellen: My lawyer did such a bad job that I want to hire another lawyer to sue him. Jane: You'll never find a lawyer to take on that job. Dog does not eat dog.

dog in the manger one who unreasonably prevents other people from doing or having what one does not wish them to do or have. (From one of Aesop's fables in which a dog—which cannot eat hay—lay in the hayrack [manger] and prevented the other animals from eating the hay.) □ Jane is a real dog in the manger. She cannot drive, but she will not lend anyone her car. □ If Martin were not such a dog in the manger, he would let his brother have that dinner jacket he never wears.

Dog my cats! Rur. My goodness! What do you know! (An exclamation of surprise.) □ Dog my cats! Somebody painted my house green! □ Well, dog my cats—it hasn't rained once all month!

dog-eat-dog Fig. a situation in which one has to act ruthlessly in order to survive or succeed; ruthless competition. □ It is dog-eat-dog in the world of business these days. □ Universities are not quiet peaceful places. It's dog-eat-dog to get a promotion.

dog-faced liar Rur. a terrible liar. □ Suzy said Jimmy was a dog-faced liar. □ If Joe says that, he's a dog-faced liar.

a doggy bag a bag or other container used to carry uneaten food home from a restaurant. (As if it is for the dog.) □ I can't eat all of this. Can I have a doggy bag, please?

dole something out^t (to someone) to distribute something to someone. □ The cook doled the oatmeal out to each camper who held out a bowl. □ Please dole out the candy bars, one to a customer. □ She doled it out fairly.

doll someone up^t to dress someone up in fancy clothes. □ She dolled her children up for church each Sunday. □ She dolls up all her kids once a week.

dollar for dollar considering the amount of money involved; considering the cost or value. (Often seen in advertising.) □ Dollar for dollar, you cannot buy a better car. □ Dollar for dollar, this laundry detergent washes cleaner and brighter than any other product on the market.

done and gone Rur. gone. □ She's not here. She's done and gone. □ Jed was done and gone before dawn.

done by mirrors and done with mirrors Fig. illusory; purposefully deceptive. (See also smoke and mirrors.) □ The whole legislative budgetary process is done with mirrors. □ The company's self-review was done by mirrors and didn't come off too bad, despite our falling stock price.

a done deal a completed deal; something that is settled. □ It's too late. It's a done deal. □ The sale of the property is a done deal. There is nothing that can be done now.

done for finished; dead. □ I'm afraid that animal hit by the car is done for. □ The goldfish looked as if it was either done for or sunning its tummy.

done in exhausted. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm really done in! I think I'll go to bed. □ After all that lifting, Gerald was done in and breathing hard.

done 'n' did Rur. already did. □ Tom: Guess I better take the garbage out. Bill: No need. I done 'n' did it. □ Mary done 'n' did the chores for you.

done over Sl. beat; outscored. □ The other team was done over, and they showed it in their lackluster play.

done to a T cooked just right. □ Yummy! This meat is done to a T. □ I like it done to a T, not too done and not too raw.

done to a turn 1. well-cooked; nicely cooked. □ The entire meal was done to a turn. □ The turkey was done to a turn. 2. Inf. beaten. □ When Wilbur's opponent was done to a turn, Wilbur was declared the winner.

done told you Rur. have already told you something. □ I done told you not to touch that pan, and you went and did it anyhow. □ Sally done told you to leave that dog alone.

done with mirrors Go to done by mirrors.

done with someone or something finished with someone or something. □ Mary is done with Bill. She has found another boyfriend. □ I can't wait until I'm done with school forever. □ I agree. I'll be glad when we are done with all these exams.

don't amount to a bucket of spit Rur. is not worth anything. □ Joe's a shiftless cuss. He don't amount to a bucket of spit. □ All your pretty promises don't amount to a bucket of spit.

Don't ask. It is so bad, I do not wish to be reminded or talk about it, so do not ask about it. □ John: How was your class reunion? Alice: Oh, heavens! Don't ask. □ Tom: What was your calculus final exam like? Mary: Don't ask.

Don't ask me. Go to How should I know?

Don't be gone (too) long. Good-bye. Hurry back here. □ Tom: I've got to go to the drugstore to get some medicine. Sue: Don't be gone too long. Tom: I'll be right back. □ "Don't be gone long," said Bill's uncle. "It's about time to eat."

Don't be too sure. I think you are wrong, so do not sound so certain.; You may be wrong. (Compare this with Don't speak too soon.) □ Bill: I think I've finally saved up enough money to retire. John: Don't be too sure. Inflation can ruin your savings.

Don't bite off more than you can chew. Prov. Do not commit yourself to doing more than you can actually do. □ I don't think you ought to take dance lessons three times a week; you're already working two jobs. Don't bite off more than you can chew.

Don't bother. Please don't do it. It is not necessary, and it is too much trouble. □ Mary: Should I make some dinner for you? Bill: No, don't bother; it's late. □ Sue: Do you want me to save this spoonful of mashed potatoes? Jane: No, don't bother. It isn't worth it. Sue: I hate to waste it.

Don't bother me! Go away!; Leave me alone! □ Tom: Hey, Bill! Bill: Don't bother me! I'm busy. Can't you see? □ "Don't bother me! Leave me alone!" the child shouted at the dog.

Don't breathe a word of this to anyone. This is a secret or secret gossip. Do not tell it to anyone. (Breathing a word is fig. for whispering.) □ Bill: Have you heard about Mary and her friends? Sally: No. Tell me! Tell me! Bill: Well, they all went secretly to Mexico for the weekend. Now, don't breathe a word of this to anyone.

Don't call us, we'll call you. Cliché a formulaic expression said to applicants who have just interviewed or auditioned for a job or part. □ Thank you, Eddie Evans. Don't call us, we'll call you. □ Stupendous, Gloria, just stupendous. What glamour and radiance! Don't call us, we'll call you.

don't care a whit Go to didn't care a whit.

Don't change horses in midstream. Go to change horses in midstream.

Don't count your chickens before they are hatched. Prov. Cliché Do not act as though something has turned out favorably for you until it has really turned out that way. □ Jill: When I get my raise, I'll use the extra money to go on vacation. Jane: But you don't know for sure that you're going to get a raise. Don't count your chickens before they are hatched.

Don't cry before you are hurt. Prov. Do not be upset about a bad thing that might happen; only be upset when something bad really does happen. □ Fred: What am I going to do? There's a possibility that my job will be eliminated! Jane: Don't cry before you are hurt. They haven't eliminated you yet.

Don't cry over spilled milk. Go to It's no use crying over spilled milk.

Don't do anything I wouldn't do. an expression said when two friends are parting. □ Bill: See you next month, Tom. Tom: Yeah, man. Don't do anything I wouldn't do.

Don't even look like something! Do not even appear to be doing something! (The something can be thinking about something or actually doing something.) □ Mary: Are you thinking about taking that last piece of cake? Bob: Of course not. Mary: Well, don't even look like you're doing it! John: You weren't going to try to sneak into the theater, were you? Bob: No. John: Well, don't even look like it, if you know what's good for you.

Don't even think about (doing) it. Do not do it, and do not even think about doing it. □ John reached into his jacket for his wallet. The cop, thinking John was about to draw a gun, said, "Don't even think about it."

Don't even think about it (happening). Do not think about something like that happening, as the mere thought of it is so bad. (Compare this with Don't even think about (doing) it.) □ Mary: Oh, those cars almost crashed! How horrible! Fred: Don't even think about it. Sally: If the stock market crashes, we'll lose everything we have. Sue: Don't even think about it!

Don't forget to write. Go to Remember to write.

Don't get your bowels in an uproar! Do not get so excited! □ Bill: What have you done to my car? Where's the bumper? The side window is cracked! Bob: Calm down! Don't get your bowels in an uproar!

don't give a continental Rur. does not care at all. (Also with doesn't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ I don't give a continental if I never see him again. Mary's kids can do whatever they want. She doesn't give a continental.

don't give a hoot (in hell's hollow) Rur. to not care one bit. (Also with doesn't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ Mary: Joe left town. Are you sorry to see him go? Tom: No! I don't give a hoot in hell's hollow. She's a devil-may-care young woman, doesn't give a hoot about anything.

Don't give it a (second) thought. Go to Think nothing of it.

Don't give it another thought. Go to Think nothing of it.

Don't give me any of your lip! Fig. Don't talk back! □ Do as I tell you and don't give me any of your lip!

Don't give me that line! and Don't hand me that (line)! Don't tell me those lies! □ Don't give me that line! I know the truth! You're lying to me!

Don't give up! Do not stop trying!; Keep trying! □ John: Get in there and give it another try. Don't give up! Bill: Okay. Okay. But it's hopeless. Jane: I asked the boss for a raise, but he said no. Tom: Don't give up. Try again later.

Don't give up the ship! Fig. Do not give up yet!; Do not yield the entire enterprise! (Fixed order. Alludes to the words on a flag made by Captain Oliver Hazard Perry in the Battle of Lake Erie during the War of 1812.) □ Bill: I'm having a devil of a time with calculus. I think I want to drop the course. Sally: Keep trying. Don't give up the ship! Bill: Every time we get enough money saved up to make a down payment on a house, the price of houses skyrockets. I'm about ready to stop trying. Sue: We'll manage. Don't give up the ship!

Don't give up without a fight! Fig. Do not yield easily; Keep struggling and you may win.; Do not give up too soon. (Also with don't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ Sue: She says no every time I ask her for a raise. Mary: Well, don't give up without a fight. Keep after her.

Don't give up your day job. Go to Don't quit your day job.

Don't hand me that (line)! Go to Don't give me that line!

Don't have a cow! Calm down!; Don't get so excited! (Made famous in the television show, The Simpsons.) □ Chill out, man! Don't have a cow! Aw, don't have a cow, Dad!

don't have a pot to piss in (or a window to throw it out of) Fig. doesn't have anything of value; very poor. (Use with caution.) □ When Ed was a young man, he didn't have a pot to piss in. Jane's folks don't have a pot to piss in or a window to throw it out of.

Don't hold your breath. Fig. Do not stop breathing waiting for something to happen that won't happen. (Meaning that it will take longer for it to happen than you can possibly hold your breath.) □ Tom: The front yard is such a mess. Bob: Bill's supposed to rake the leaves. Tom: Don't hold your breath. He never does his share of the work. Sally: Someone said that gasoline prices would go down. Bob: Oh, yeah? Don't hold your breath.

Don't I know it! I know that very well! □ Mary: Goodness gracious! It's hot today. Bob: Don't I know it! Sue: You seem to be putting on a little weight. John: Don't I know it!

Don't I know you from somewhere? a way of striking up a conversation with a stranger, as at a party or other gathering. □ Bill: Don't I know you from somewhere? Mary: I don't think so. Where did you go to school? Henry: Don't I know you from somewhere? Alice: No, and let's keep it that way.

Don't judge a book by its cover. and You can't tell a book by its cover. Prov. Do not draw a conclusion about someone or something just from outward appearances. □ Just because Sam dresses sloppy doesn't mean he's a bad person. Don't judge a book by its cover. Jill: How can you be so sure this will be a boring movie? Jane: The poster for it is so boring. Jill: Don't judge a book by its cover!

Don't knock it. Don't criticize it. □ You don't want any okra? Don't knock it.

don't know whether to eat it or rub it on Rur. do not know what to do with something. (Used to describe a kind of food one does not recognize or that looks unusual.) (Also with doesn't. Don't used with all persons is folksy.) □ That sure was a fancy dessert Mary served. I didn't know whether to eat it or rub it on. □ What kind of sauce is this? I don't know whether to eat it or rub it on!

Don't let it go any further. and Don't let it out of this room. Don't tell this secret to anyone else. (Also literal.) □ This is a strict secret. Don't let it go any further. □ I'll tell you what you what to know, but don't let it go out of this room.

Don't let it out of this room. Go to previous.

Don't let someone or something get you down. Do not allow yourself to be overcome or disappointed by someone or something. □ Don't let their constant teasing get you down. □ Don't let Tom get you down. He's not always unpleasant.

Don't let the bastards wear you down. Don't let those people get the best of you. (Exercise caution with bastard.) □ Bill: The place I work at is really rough. Everybody is rude and jealous of each other. Tom: Don't let the bastards wear you down. □ Jane: I have to go down to the county clerk's office and figure out what this silly bureaucratic letter means. Sue: You might call them on the phone. In any case, don't let the bastards wear you down.

Don't look a gift horse in the mouth. Prov. Do not look for defects in a gift. □ Jill: I wonder why Grandma gave me this table. Maybe it has one leg shorter than the others. Jane: Don't look a gift horse in the mouth. □ Mike: This letter says I just won a trip to Hawaii. I bet there's some kind of catch. Keith: Don't look a gift horse in the mouth.

Don't make me laugh! That is a stupid suggestion! □ You a judge? Don't make me laugh! □ Don't make me laugh. Tom could never do that.

Don't make me say it again! and Don't make me tell you again! I have told you once, and now I'm mad, and I'll be madder if I have to tell you again. (Typically said to a child who will not obey.) □ Mother: I told you thirty minutes ago to clean up this room! Don't make me tell you again!

Don't make me tell you again! Go to previous.

Don't make two bites of a cherry. Prov. Do not leave a simple job half-done. □ Tom: I washed the dishes and left them in the rack. I'll put them away tomorrow. Mary: Oh, come on. Don't make two bites of a cherry.

Don't mention it. You are welcome and your thanks are not necessary. □ A: Thank you so much! B: Don't mention it.

Don't mind me. Don't pay any attention to me.; Just ignore me. (Sometimes sarcastic.) □ Bill and Jane were watching television when Jane's mother walked through the room, grabbing the newspaper on the way. "Don't mind me," she said.

Don't push (me)! 1. Lit. I can move on my own, so don't shove me! □ I can't move any faster than this. Don't push me! 2. Fig. Don't put pressure on me to do something! □ Sue: You really must go to the dentist, you know. John: Don't push me. I'll go when I'm good and ready.

Don't put all your eggs in one basket. Prov. Do not risk everything on one undertaking. □ Keep your day job while you pursue your acting career at night, just in case the acting doesn't go so well. You know—don't put all your eggs in one basket.

Don't put off for tomorrow what you can do today. Prov. Do not procrastinate. □ Father: Take out the garbage. Child: I'll do it in the morning. Father: It only takes a minute. Don't put off for tomorrow what you can do today.

Don't put the cart before the horse. Prov. Do not do things in the wrong order. (This can imply that the person you are addressing is impatient.) □ Tune the guitar first, then play it. Don't put the cart before the horse.

Don't quit trying. Go to Keep (on) trying.

Don't quit your day job. and Don't give up your day job. Don't quit your regular job in hopes that you can support yourself doing this task that you do not do very well. □ I saw your comedy act at the nightclub. Don't quit your day job! □ So, you laid the bricks in this wall. Well, don't quit your day job.

Don't rush me! Don't try to hurry me! □ Bill: Hurry up! Make up your mind! Bob: Don't rush me! Bill: I want to get out of here before midnight. □ Bill: The waiter wants to take your order. What do you want? Jane: Don't rush me! I can't make up my mind. Waiter: I'll come back in a minute.

Don't say it! I don't want to hear it!; I know, so you don't have to say it. □ John (joking): What is that huge pile of stuff on your head? Bill: Don't say it! I know I need a haircut.

Don't speak too soon. I think you may be wrong. Don't speak before you know the facts. (Compare this with Don't be too sure.) □ Bill: It looks like it'll be a nice day. Mary: Don't speak too soon. I just felt a raindrop. □ Tom: It looks like we made it home without any problems. Bill: Don't speak too soon, there's a cop behind us in the driveway.

Don't spend it all in one place. Prov. a phrase said after giving someone some money, especially a small amount of money. □ Fred: Dad, can I have a dollar? Father: Sure. Here. Don't spend it all in one place. □ "Here's a quarter, kid," said Tom, flipping Fred a quarter. "Don't spend it all in one place."

Don't stand on ceremony. Do not wait for a formal invitation.; Please be at ease and make yourself at home. (Some people read this as "Don't remain standing because of ceremony," and others read it "Don't be totally obedient to the requirements of ceremony.") □ Come in, Tom. Don't stand on ceremony. Get yourself a drink and something to eat and introduce yourself to everyone."

Don't start (on me)! Do not complain! □ Yes, I know it's a mess. Don't start! □ Don't start on me, I'm sorting it out.

Don't stay away so long. Rur. Please visit more often. (Said upon the arrival or departure of a guest.) □ John: Hi, Bill! Long time no see. Don't stay away so long! Bill: Thanks, John. Good to see you. □ Mary: I had a nice time. Thanks for inviting me. Sally: Good to see you, Mary. Next time, don't stay away so long.

Don't sweat it! Inf. Don't worry about it! □ No problem. Don't sweat it! □ Don't sweat it! We'll take care of it.

Don't take any wooden nickels. Prov. Be careful and do not let anyone cheat you. (Often used as a jocular way of saying good-bye.) □ Tom: So long. Bill: Don't take any wooden nickels. □ Good luck in college. Don't take any wooden nickels.

Don't teach your grandmother to suck eggs. Prov. Do not try to instruct someone who is more experienced than you. (Extremely casual; potentially rude.) □ Bob told the seasoned guitar player that she was holding the guitar incorrectly. "Don't teach your grandmother to suck eggs," she replied.

Don't tell a soul. Please do not tell anyone this gossip. □ Bill: Is your brother getting married? Sally: Yes, but don't tell a soul. It's a secret. □ Mary: Can you keep a secret? John: Sure. Mary: Don't tell a soul, but Tom is in jail.

Don't tell me what to do! Do not give me orders. □ Sue: Next, you should get a haircut, then get some new clothes. You really need to fix yourself up. Sally: Don't tell me what to do! Maybe I like me the way I am!

Don't that (just) beat all! Go to if that don't beat all!

Don't throw the baby out with the bathwater. Prov. Do not discard something valuable in your eagerness to get rid of some useless thing associated with it. □ Jill: As long as I'm selling all the books Grandpa had, I might as well sell the bookcases, too. Jane: Don't throw the baby out with the bathwater. You can use the bookcases for something else.

Don't touch that dial! 1. Lit. Do not change your radio or television dial, but continue to listen to this station. (From broadcasts in the days when tuning was done with a dial.) □ Don't touch that dial. Stay tuned for The Adventures of Blondie. 2. Fig. Do not change anything or divert your attention. □ Don't touch that dial. Remember what you hear in today's lecture. It will be on the test.

Don't waste my time. Do not take up my valuable time with a poor presentation.; Do not waste my time trying to get me to do something. □ Bob: I'd like to show you our new line of industrial-strength vacuum cleaners. Bill: Beat it! Don't waste my time. □ "Don't waste my time!" said the manager when Jane made her fourth appeal for a raise.

Don't waste your breath. You will not get a positive response to what you have to say, so don't even say it.; Talking will get you nowhere. □ Alice: I'll go in there and try to convince her otherwise. Fred: Don't waste your breath. I already tried it. □ Sally: No, I won't agree! Don't waste your breath. Bill: Aw, come on. At least hear me out.

Don't waste your time. You will not get anywhere with it, so don't waste time trying. □ Mary: Should I ask Tom if he wants to go to the convention, or is he still in a bad mood? Sally: Don't waste your time. Mary: Bad mood, huh? □ Jane: I'm having trouble fixing this doorknob. Mary: Don't waste your time. I've ordered a new one.

Don't work too hard. an expression said at the end of a conversation after or in place of good-bye. □ Mary: Bye, Tom. Tom: Bye, Mary. Don't work too hard.

Don't worry (about a thing). Do not become anxious about something.; Everything will be all right. □ "Don't worry, Fred," comforted Bill, "everything will be all right." □ Bill: I think I left the car windows open. Sue: Don't worry, I closed them. □ "Don't worry about a thing," the tax col- lector had said. "We'll take care of everything." Or was it "We'll take everything?"

Don't worry your (pretty little) head about it. Rur. Do not worry about it. (Said condescendingly, and can cause offense.) □ Mary: How are you going to get another job if you don't start looking for one? Tom: Now don't worry your pretty little head about it. Just leave it to me. □ Tom: What are we going to do if we can't find an apartment? Sally: Don't worry your head about it. We'll find one, one way or another.

Don't you know it! You can be absolutely sure about that!; You're exactly right, and I agree with you. (This is not a question.) □ Alice: Man, is it hot! Fred: Don't you know it! □ Bob: This is the best cake I have ever eaten. The cook is the best in the world! Bill: Don't you know it!

Don't you wish! Don't you wish that what you have just said were really true? □ Mary: I'm going to get a job that lets me travel a lot. Sally: Don't you wish! □ Sally: Sorry you lost the chess game. It was close, but your opponent was top-notch. Bob: Next time, I'll do it! I'll win the next round. Sally: Don't you wish!

doom someone or something to something to destine someone or something to something unpleasant. □ The judgment doomed her to a life in prison. □ Your insistence on including that rigid clause doomed the contract to failure.

doomed to something condemned to something; facing something as a future or as a consequence [of something]. □ The project was doomed to failure from the start. □ I am doomed to a life of hard work and low pay.

A door must be either shut or open. Prov. If you have only two alternatives, you must choose one or the other; you cannot have both. □ Either you're going to marry that girl, or you're not. A door must be either shut or open.

doors open up (to someone) opportunities become available to someone. □ After Ann made a few inquiries, doors began to open up to me. □ An agent helps. After I got one, all sorts of doors opened up.

door-to-door 1. Lit. having to do with movement from one door to another or from one house to another. □ John is a door-to-door salesman. □ We spent two weeks making a door-to-door survey. 2. Fig. by moving from one door to another or one house to another. □ Anne is selling books door-to-door. □ We went door-to-door, collecting money.

dope someone or an animal up[†] to give drugs to someone or an animal. □ Her parents doped her up with medicine so she would sleep through the night. □ It's dangerous to dope up a child night after night. □ The trainer got caught doping the horse up.

dope something out[†] 1. Sl. to figure something out. □ He spent a lot of time trying to dope the assignment out so he could understand it. □ It's hard to dope out a physics assignment after midnight. 2. Sl. to explain something carefully. □ He doped it all out to them very carefully so that no one would be confused. □ He doped out the information slowly and patiently.

dork off Sl. to waste time; to goof off. □ Stop dorking off and get busy. □ The whole class was dorking off and the teacher got furious.

a dose of one's own medicine Go to a taste of one's own medicine.

dose someone or an animal with something to give medicine to someone or an animal. □ You should dose the child with a little nonaspirin painkiller. □ She dosed the horse with a mild tranquilizer.

doss down (for some time) Sl. to lie down to sleep for a period of time. □ Chuck dosed down for a few hours before the evening performance. □ It's midnight: time to doss down.

dot something with something to put little bits or dots of something on something. □ She dotted her face with red marks to make it look as if she had measles. □ The chef dotted the cake with blobs of buttery icing.

dote (up)on someone or something to adore or spoil someone or something; to like very much. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ His aunt simply dotes upon him. □ Mary dotes on vanilla ice cream.

double as someone or something [for someone] to serve in two capacities. □ The chairman will have to double as CEO until we find a new one. □ This table doubles as a desk during busy times.

double back (on someone or something) [for a person or animal] to reverse motion, moving toward (rather than away from) someone or something. (Refers primarily to a person or animal that is being pursued by someone or a group.) □ The deer doubled back on the hunter. □ The robber doubled back on the police, and they lost track of him. □ I doubled back on my own trail.

double Dutch 1. language or speech that is difficult or impossible to understand. □ This book on English grammar is written in double Dutch. I can't understand a word. □ Try to find a lecturer who speaks slowly, not one who speaks double Dutch. 2. a game of jumping rope using two ropes swung simultaneously in opposite directions. □ The girls were playing double Dutch in the schoolyard.

double in brass (as something) Fig. to serve in two capacities. (Alludes to a musician who could play the brass instruments as well as other instruments.) □ Wally was our bookkeeper and doubled in brass as a clerk.

double over [for a person] to bend at the waist. □ Suddenly, he doubled over and collapsed. □ The people in the audience doubled over with laughter.

double someone over^t to cause someone to bend at the waist. □ The blow to the back of the head doubled Steve over. □ The wind almost doubled over the children running for home.

double something over^t to fold something over. □ Double the paper over twice, then press it flat. □ Double over the cloth a few times before you pack it away.

double up (on someone or something) [for people] to deal with someone or something in pairs. □ We are going to have to double up in this job. □ We will double up and get it done.

double up (with laughter) Fig. to laugh so hard that one bends over. □ We all just doubled up with laughter. □ I doubled up when I heard the punch line.

double up (with pain) to bend at the waist with severe pain. □ The man doubled up with pain when he was stabbed. □ He hurt so bad that he doubled up.

double up (with someone) to share with someone. □ We don't have enough books. Tom, will you double up with Jane? □ When we get more books, we won't have to double up anymore.

double whammy a double dose of something; a strong or powerful helping of something. □ When the Federal Reserve Board raised the interest rates, I got a double whammy. My stocks went down and my bonds did too.

double-cross someone to betray someone. (Originally a more complicated switching of sides in a conspiracy wherein the double-crosser sides with the victim of the conspiracy—against the original conspirator.) □ Don't even think about double-crossing me! □ Richard double-crossed Mr. Big a few years back.

double-edged sword Go to a two-edged sword.

doubting Thomas someone who will not easily believe something without strong proof or evidence. (Can be said of a man or a woman. From the biblical account of the apostle Thomas, who would not believe that Jesus had risen from the dead until he actually touched the risen Christ.) □ Mary won't believe that I have a dog until she sees it. She's such a doubting Thomas.

douse someone or something with something to splash or drench someone with something. □ She doused her brother with a bucket of cold water. □ They had to keep dousing the porpoise with cold water to keep it healthy.

dovetail something into something Fig. to fit something neatly into something; to make something interlock nicely with something else. □ She dovetailed her story into mine perfectly and the police let us go.

dovetail with something 1. Lit. to interlock tightly with something using a dovetail joint. □ The side of the drawer dovetails with the front of the drawer. 2. Fig. to fit neatly into something. □ Your story doesn't dovetail with mine very well.

down and dirty 1. crude and carelessly done. □ (Used as an attributive.) The last time he painted the kitchen, it was a down and dirty job because he thought we were moving. Fig. coarse; mean-spirited. □ The campaign for governor really got down and dirty in the final week.

down by some amount having a score that is lower, by the specified amount, than someone else's score or the other team's score. □ At halftime, the home team was down by 14 points. □ Down by one run, the team scored two runs in the ninth inning and won the game.

down for something having one's name written down for something. □ Am I down for an evening appointment? □ You are down for Friday.

down for the count 1. and out for the count [of a boxer] knocked down by an opponent's punching and remaining down until the last count, or even beyond. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ Wally is down for the count. Chris is the winner. 2. eliminated from something or an activity for a period of time, perhaps permanently. (*Typically: be ~; go ~.) □ I can't continue with this course. I'm down for the count. □ I'm down for the count. I have the flu.

down in the dumps Fig. sad or depressed. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I've been down in the dumps for the past few days. □ Try to cheer Jane up. She's down in the dumps for some reason.

down in the mouth Fig. sad-faced; depressed and unsmiling. □ Since her dog died, Barbara has been down in the mouth. □ Bob has been down in the mouth since he was laid off from his job.

down on one's luck without any money; unlucky. □ Can you lend me twenty dollars? I've been down on my luck lately. □ The gambler had to get a job because he had been down on his luck and hadn't won enough money to live on.

down on someone or something against someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ You've been down on us all lately. □ I'm down on computers lately. □ Everyone sure got down on fast food.

down one for the road Go to one for the road.

down pat learned or memorized perfectly. (*Typically: get something ~; have something ~.) □ I have practiced my speech until I have it down pat. □ Tom has his part in the play down pat. He won't make any mistakes.

down South to or at the southeastern United States. □ I used to live down South. □ We are going down South for the winter.

down the chute Fig. gone; wasted; ruined. □ A lot of money went down the chute on that deal, and all for nothing. □ I just hate to see all that effort go down the chute.

down the drain Fig. gone; wasted. □ Well, there's 400 bucks down the drain. □ A lot of money went down the drain in that Wilson deal.

Down the hatch. I am about to drink this.; Let's all drink up. (Said as one is about to take a drink, especially of something bad-tasting or potent. Also used as a jocular toast.) □ Bob said, "Down the hatch," and drank the whiskey in one gulp. □ Let's toast the bride and groom. Down the hatch!

down the little red lane Fig. down someone's throat; down a child's throat. □ This really tasty medicine has to go down the little red lane. □ The last spoonful of that stuff that went down the little red lane came right back up.

down the road 1. Lit. farther along on this same road. □ Just continue down the road until you come to a little church. Turn left there. 2. Fig. in the future. □ We don't know what things will be like a few months down the road.

down the road a piece and down the road a stretch Rur. a short distance down the road. □ Smith's Dry Goods Store? It's down the road a piece, on the left-hand side. □ I'm not sure we're lost. Let's go on down the road a stretch and see if we recognize anything.

down the road a stretch Go to previous.

down the street a short distance away on this same street. □ Sally lives just down the street. □ There is a drug-store down the street. It's very convenient.

down the tube(s) Fig. ruined; wasted. □ His political career went down the tubes after the scandal. He's lost his job. □ The business went down the tube.

down to a gnat's eyebrow Fig. down to the smallest detail. □ He described what the thief was wearing down to a gnat's eyebrow. □ No use trying to sneak anything out of the refrigerator. Mom knows what's in there, down to a gnat's eyebrow.

down to chili and beans Rur. very poor; down to one's last penny. □ Mary and Tom aren't doing too well. They're down to chili and beans. □ Many's the time I was down to chili and beans, but I always pulled through.

down to the last bit of money having only a small amount of money left. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I'm down to my last nickel. □ Lily is down to her last dollar.

down to the last detail considering all of the details. □ Jean planned the party very carefully, down to the last minute. □ Mary wanted to be in charge of everything right down to the last detail.

down under Australia and New Zealand. □ I've always wanted to visit down under. □ We spent Christmas down under.

down with a disease ill; sick at home. (Can be said about many diseases. *Typically: be ~; come ~; get ~.) □ Tom isn't here. He's down with a cold. □ Sally is down with the flu.

down (with someone) Sl. friends with someone; okay or on good terms with someone. (Down = okay. *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ It's okay. I'm down with Chuck. □ Chuck and I are down.

Down with someone or something! Do away with someone or something!; I am opposed to someone or something! □ Down with higher taxes! Down with corporate tax breaks! □ Down with tyrants!

down-and-out 1. having no money or means of support. □ There are many young people down-and-out in the city. □ John gambled away all his fortune and is now completely down-and-out. 2. someone who is impoverished. □ There were a couple of down-and-outs sleeping under the railway bridge. □ The down-and-out touched Martin for a fiver.

down-at-the-heels 1. Lit. [of shoes] worn on the bottom of the heels. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ This pair is a little down-at-the-heels, but I only use them for gardening. 2. Fig. worn down; showing signs of use or age. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ He is a little down-at-the-heels, but give him a new suit of clothes and he'll look just great. □ This jacket is a little down-at-the-heels.

downgrade someone or something to something to decrease the status of someone or something to something. □ In effect, this downgrades your project to unimportant. □ I didn't mean to downgrade you to the assistant status.

downhill all the way Fig. easy the entire way. □ Don't worry about your algebra course. It's downhill all the way after this chapter. □ The mayor said that the job of mayor is easy—in fact, downhill all the way.

downhill from here on Fig. easy from this point on. □ The worst part is over. It's downhill from here on. □ The painful part of this procedure is over. It's downhill from here on.

down-home as one would find in rural, especially southern, America. □ She speaks with a kind of down-home accent that sounds more friendly than the typical, urban northerner.

downtime the time when a computer or some other system is not operating. (Computer jargon.) □ I can't afford a lot of downtime in the system I buy. □ We had too much downtime with the other machine.

down-to-earth 1. Fig. direct, frank, and honest. □ You can depend on Ann. She's very down-to-earth. □ It's good that she's down-to-earth and will give us a frank response.

2. Fig. practical; not theoretical; not fanciful. □ Her ideas for the boutique are always very down-to-earth. □ The committee's plans for the village are anything but down-to-earth.

down-to-the-wire Fig. waiting until the very last moment; right up to the deadline. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ It came down-to-the-wire before I turned the proposal in. □ We went right down-to-the-wire on that one.

doze off (to sleep) to slip away into sleep. □ I dozed off to sleep during the second act of the opera. □ I was so comfortable that I just dozed off.

draft someone for something to select someone for something or to do something. □ We drafted a bunch of the boys for moving tables. □ The committee drafted some of the members for kitchen work.

draft someone into something 1. Lit. to conscript someone into the armed services. □ The draft board drafted Scott into the army. □ Todd was drafted into the army.

2. Fig. to convince someone to participate in something. □ She drafted some of the boys into helping her move tables. □ They were drafted into helping.

drag behind to follow along close behind someone. □ His little brother came along, dragging behind. □ Stop dragging along behind!

drag on and drag out to go on slowly for a very long time; to last a very long time. □ The lecture dragged on and on. □ Why do these things have to drag on so? □ How much longer do you think his speech will drag out?

a drag (on someone) a burden (to someone). □ I wish you wouldn't be such a drag on your friends. □ I don't want to be a drag on the department.

a drag (on something) Sl. a puff or any kind of cigarette. (*Typically: have ~; take ~.) □ She had a drag on her cigarette and crushed it out on the sidewalk.

drag one's feet (on or over something) and drag one's heels (on or over something) to progress slowly or stall in the doing of something. □ Why is she taking so long? I think she is just dragging her feet on this matter. □ I didn't mean to drag my feet on this decision. □ If the planning department had not dragged their heels, the building would have been built by now. □ You must not drag your heels over this; we must get finished.

drag out Go to drag on.

drag someone in[†] (on something) to force someone to join something or participate in something. □ Don't drag me in on this. □ Let's try to drag in some of the others on this.

drag someone or something down[†] 1. Lit. to pull someone or something to the ground or to a lower level. □ The lions dragged the antelope down and made dinner out of it. □ They dragged down the boxes from the closet shelf. 2. Fig. to debase someone or something; to corrupt someone or something. □ The bad acting dragged the level of the performance down. □ The bad acting dragged down the level of the performance.

drag someone or something into something and drag someone or something in[†] 1. Lit. to haul or pull someone or something into something or some place. □ She dragged in the child to make him put on this jacket. □ Despite his broken leg, he dragged himself into the shelter. 2. Fig. to involve someone or a group in something. □ Please don't drag me into your argument. □ Don't drag the committee into this discussion. □ It is a serious dispute, and please don't drag me in.

drag someone or something off of someone or something and drag someone or something off[†] to pull or remove someone or something off someone or something. (The of is informal.) □ The police officers dragged the boys off the top of the wall. □ The cops dragged off the boys and took them home.

drag someone or something off[†] (to someone or something) to haul someone or something away to someone, something, or some place. □ The cops dragged her off to jail. □ They dragged off the criminal to the judge.

drag someone or something on(to) something and drag someone or something on[†] to pull or lead someone or something to a particular place, such as a stage, platform, dance floor, etc. □ The master of ceremonies dragged her onto the stage for another bow. □ Then he dragged on the next performer.

drag someone or something over to someone or something and drag someone or something over[†] to pull or haul someone or something to someone or something. □ He dragged the chair over to the window so he could sit and watch the children. □ Drag over a chair and sit down.

drag someone or something through something 1. and drag someone or something through Lit. to pull someone or something through an opening. □ I dragged my brother through the opening into the room. □ We dragged the sofa through the window because we couldn't get it through the door. 2. Fig. to debase someone or something. □ I don't want you to drag me through a drawn-out divorce. □ She dragged herself through all sorts of trouble in her autobiography.

drag someone through the mud Fig. to insult, defame, and debase someone. □ The newspapers dragged the actress through the mud week after week. □ The columnist felt it was her duty to drag people through the mud.

drag someone up[†] to force someone to come up or to come and stand nearby. □ He wouldn't come on his own, so I dragged him up. □ You will have to drag him up. He is too tired to walk by himself. □ The reporter dragged up a homeless man to interview.

drag something away (from something) and drag something away[†] to push or pull something away from something or some place. □ He dragged the sofa away from the wall so he could clean behind it. □ He had to drag away the sofa in order to plug in the lamp. □ We worked together to drag it away.

drag something behind one to pull something that is behind one. □ The child dragged the wooden toy behind him. □ What is that you are dragging behind you?

drag something out[†] 1. to make something last for a long time. □ Why does the chairman have to drag the meeting out so long? □ Don't drag out the meetings so long! 2 Go to next.

drag something out of someone and drag something out[†] to force someone to reveal something; to extract an answer or information out of someone laboriously. □ Why don't you just tell me? Do I have to drag it out of you? □ We had to drag out the information, but she finally told us.

D

drag something up[†] to pull something close, such as a chair, stool, etc., to sit in. □ Please drag a chair up and sit down.
□ Drag up a chair and sit for a while.

dragged out Sl. exhausted; worn out. □ I feel so dragged out. I think I need some sleep. □ After the game, the whole team was dragged out.

dragoon someone into something to force someone into doing something. □ We dragooned the boys into helping us. □ She was trying to dragoon some of the men into setting up the banquet tables.

drain away [for something] to flow away. □ All the water drained away and exposed the mud and rocks on the bottom of the pond. □ When the water drained away, we found three snapping turtles in the bottom of the pond.

drain from something to flow out of something. □ All the dirty oil drained from the engine. □ The milk drained from the leaky container and covered the bottom of the refrigerator.

drain out to flow out or empty. □ All the milk drained out of the container onto the bottom of the refrigerator. □ All the oil drained out of the crankcase.

drain someone or something of something Fig. to exhaust someone or something of something, such as energy, motivation, etc. □ This day has drained me of all my motivation. □ The first performance drained the cast of all its energy.

drain something away[†] (from something) to channel some liquid away from something. □ Drain all of the standing water away from the foundation of the house. □ Drain away the water from the foundation.

drain something from someone or something to cause something to flow out of someone or something. □ The farmers drained the water from the flooded fields. □ The doctor drained the fluids from Roger after his operation.

drain something of something to empty something out of something. □ He drained the glass of the remaining beer.

drain something off something and drain something off[†] to cause or permit something to flow from the surface or contents of something. □ Drain some of the broth off the chicken. □ Drain off the fat at the bottom of the pan.

drain something out of something and drain something out[†] to cause something to flow from something; to empty all of some liquid out of something. □ She drained the last drop out of the bottle. □ She drained out all the water in the pot.

drape oneself over something to sprawl on a piece of furniture. □ He draped himself over the armchair and dropped off to sleep. □ He came in and casually draped himself over grandmother's antique chair.

drape over (something) [for cloth] to cover something and hang down. □ The robe draped over her knees, but she was still cold. □ The tablecloth draped over and reached down to the floor.

drape someone or something in something to wrap or cover someone or something in something. □ They draped her in golden silks, but she still looked like a country girl. □ They draped the tables in polka-dot cloth for the party.

drape someone or something with something to hang something on or over someone or something. □ They draped each guest with a makeshift toga. □ They draped the statue with a brightly colored loincloth.

drape something around someone or something to wrap or hang something around someone or something. □ She draped the shawl around her shoulders and felt a little warmer. □ Mother draped a towel around Timmy after his bath.

draw a bead on someone or something and get a bead on someone or something 1. Lit. to locate someone or something in the sights of a gun. □ Fred drew a bead on the target and pulled the trigger. □ The hunter drew a bead on the deer. 2. Fig. to prepare to deal with or obtain someone or something. □ As soon as I get a bead on how widespread the problem really is, I will set up a meeting about it.

draw a blank 1. Fig. to get no response; to find nothing. □ I asked him about Tom's financial problems, and I just drew a blank. □ We looked in the files for an hour, but we drew a blank. 2. Fig. to fail to remember something. □ I tried to remember her telephone number, but I could only draw a blank. □ It was a very hard test with just one question to answer, and I drew a blank.

draw a line between something and something else and draw the line between something and something else Fig. to separate two things; to distinguish or differentiate between two things. (Also with the.) □ I draw a line between just bumping into people and actually striking them. □ It's very hard to draw a line between slamming a door and just closing it loudly.

draw a line in the sand Fig. to create or declare an artificial boundary and imply that crossing it will cause trouble. □ Todd drew a line in the sand by giving his roommate an ultimatum about his sloppiness—he had to start cleaning up after himself or move out.

draw against an amount of money to withdraw money from something in advance. □ I can draw against my allowance—at least a small amount. □ You cannot draw against your salary.

draw ahead (of someone or something) to pull or move ahead of someone or something in motion. □ I drew ahead of the car in front of me. □ The horse I was racing against drew ahead.

draw apart (from someone or something) and draw away (from someone or something) to pull back or away from someone or something. □ Don't draw apart from the rest of us. □ Please don't draw away from me. I won't bite. □ She drew away slowly and left the room.

draw away (from someone or something) Go to previous.

draw blood 1. Lit. to hit or bite (a person or an animal) and make a wound that bleeds. □ The dog chased me and bit me hard, but it didn't draw blood. □ The boxer landed just one punch and drew blood immediately. 2. Fig. to anger or insult a person. □ Sally screamed out a terrible insult at Tom. Judging by the look on his face, she really drew blood. □ Tom started yelling and cursing, trying to insult Sally. He wouldn't be satisfied until he had drawn blood, too.

draw fire from someone Go to draw someone's fire.

draw for something and draw lots to choose lots for something, without looking; to draw a token for something from a set of tokens concealed in something. (The tokens are typically slips of paper, one of which is marked as the winner. See also draw straws.) □ Let's draw for the prize. The winner gets it. □ We will draw for a winner from the five finalists. □ The players drew lots to determine who would go first.

draw in one's horns and pull in one's horns Fig. to back down from a fight. □ For a minute it looked like they were gonna start sluggin' each other, but then they drew in their horns. □ We tried to calm him down and get him to pull in his horns.

draw interest 1. to appear interesting and get (someone's) attention. (Note the variation in the examples.) □ This kind of event isn't likely to draw a lot of interest. □ What kind of show will draw public interest? 2. [for money] to earn interest while on deposit. □ Put your money in the bank so it will draw interest. □ The cash value of some insurance policies also draws interest.

draw lots Go to draw for something.

draw near 1. and draw near (to someone or something) Lit. to come near to someone or something. □ Draw near to me, and let me look at you. □ Draw near to the table and look at this. 2. Fig. [for a particular time] to approach. □ The time to depart is drawing near. □ As the time for her speech drew near, Ann became more and more nervous.

draw on someone or something and draw upon someone or something to use someone or something in some beneficial way; to extract from a resource, reserve, etc. □ I may have to draw on your advice in order to complete this project. □ If there is some way you can draw on me to your advantage, let me know. □ By the end of the contest I had drawn upon all the energy I had.

draw (oneself) aside [for someone] to move aside. □ I drew myself aside so the children could pass. □ He drew himself aside so Maggie could pass.

draw oneself up (to something) to stand up straight to one's full height. (Fixed order.) □ Walter drew himself up to his six-foot height and walked away. □ She drew herself up and walked away.

draw people or things together^t to pull people together; to pull things together. □ She drew her toys together in preparation for leaving. □ She drew together all the people she wanted to talk to.

draw some kind of attention away^t (from someone or something) to capture attention or praise due to someone or something. □ Her sterling performance drew attention away from the big star in one of the other roles. □ She drew away too much notice by her late arrival at the party.

draw someone aside^t to pull or steer someone aside. □ The teacher drew Bob aside to have a word with him. □ Harry drew aside someone he could trust and expressed his fears.

draw someone or an animal out of something and draw someone or an animal out^t to lure someone or an animal out of something or some place. □ I thought the smell of breakfast would draw him out of his slumber. □ The catnip drew out the cat from under the front porch.

draw (someone or something) from something to sketch (someone or something) from a particular source, such as memory, real life, a photograph, etc. □ He is a very good artist. He can draw from a photograph or a painting. □ I will try to draw him from memory.

draw someone or something into something and draw someone or something in^t 1. Lit. to pull someone or something into something; to attract someone or something in. □ She drew the child into the shoe store and plunked her down. □ Liz opened the door and drew in the children who were all bundled in their parkas. 2. Lit. to sketch a picture, adding someone or something into the picture. □ She drew a little dog into the lower corner of the picture. □ I drew in a large tree and the ruins of an abbey. □ She drew herself into the scene. 3. Fig. to involve someone or something in something. □ Don't draw me into this argument. □ This is not the time to draw that argument into the discussion.

draw someone or something out of some place and draw someone or something out^t to pull someone or something out of a place. □ We drew him out of the crawl space where he lay hiding. □ We drew the concealed microphone out of the cabinet.

draw someone or something to(ward) someone or something to pull someone or something to someone or something. □ She drew him toward her and kissed him. □ Todd drew the child toward the light.

draw someone out on someone or something and draw someone out about someone or something; draw someone out^t to bring out someone's private thoughts about someone or something. □ I tried to draw him out on this matter, but he would not say any more. □ I tried to draw out the speaker, but she would not elaborate on what she had said. □ Fred wanted to draw out information about the company's plans, but the controller had nothing to say.

draw someone's attention to someone or something to attract someone to notice or focus on someone or something. □ Now, I would like to draw your attention to Fred, the gentleman we have all heard so much about. □ Could I draw your attention to the statue standing at the entrance?

draw (someone's) fire (away) from someone, something, or an animal and draw (someone's) fire away^t to attract the attention of someone firing a gun away from the target, hoping to protect the target; to make oneself a target in order to protect someone or something. (Can be verbal "fire," such as questions, etc.) □ The mother bird drew fire away from her chicks. □ The hen drew away the hunter's fire. □ The president drew fire away from Congress by proposing a compromise.

draw someone together to make people seek one another for emotional support. □ The tragic accident drew the family all together. □ Do you think the crisis actually will draw us closer together?

draw something apart^t to pull something, such as curtains or drapes, open or apart. □ She drew the curtains apart and looked out the window. □ She drew apart the curtains a little bit.

draw something down^t to pull something down. □ She drew the shades down to cut off the bright sunlight. □ She drew down the shades.

draw something forth[†] to pull something forward or where it can be seen. □ Carl drew a booklet forth and began to show it to the people sitting on either side of him. □ She drew forth her pocketknife and threatened the bandit.

draw something off (from something) to remove a portion of a liquid from something; to cause something to flow from something. □ The steward drew some wine off from the cask. □ He drew off some wine.

draw something out¹ 1. to make something have greater length. □ Bill drew the taffy candy out into a long string. □ He drew out a long strand of melted cheese and tried to drop it into his mouth. 2. to extend something in time. □ Do we have to draw this thing out? Let's get it over with. □ Stop drawing out the proceedings. 3. Lit. to draw a picture to make something more clear. □ Here, I'll draw it out so you can see what I mean. □ Please draw out the concept on paper. I can't follow your explanation. 4. Go to next.

draw something out of someone and draw something out[†] to get some kind of information from someone. □ He kept his mouth closed, and we couldn't draw anything out of him. □ We were able to draw out the information we wanted.

draw something over someone or something to cover someone or something with something. □ She drew the blanket over the sleeping baby. □ Polly drew some plastic over her work and left for the day.

draw something to to close or nearly close something, such as curtains, drapes, etc. □ She drew the drapes to and turned on the lights. □ Please draw the door to as you leave, but don't shut it all the way.

draw something to a close to make something come to an end. □ It is time we drew this evening to a close. □ Ann drew the meeting to a close with a few words of encouragement.

draw something to someone's attention to make someone aware of something. □ Please draw this error to the clerk's attention.

draw something up[†] 1. Lit. to pull something close by, such as a chair, stool, etc. □ Draw a chair up and sit down. □ She drew up a pillow and sat on the floor. 2. Fig. to draft a document; to prepare a document. □ Who will draw a contract up? □ I will draw up a contract for the work.

draw straws for something Fig. to decide who gets something or must do something by choosing straws from an unseen set of straws of different lengths. (The person who gets the shortest straw is chosen. See also draw lots.) □ We drew straws for the privilege of going first. □ Let's draw straws for it.

draw the line (at something) to set a limit at something; to decide when a limit has been reached. □ You can make as much noise as you want, but I draw the line at fighting. □ It's hard to keep young people under control, but you have to draw the line somewhere.

draw the line between something and something else Go to draw a line between something and something else.

draw to a close to end; to come to an end. □ This evening is drawing to a close. □ It's a shame that our vacation is drawing to a close.

draw up to pull up more tightly; to shrink up. □ When they got wet, his trunks drew up and became very tight. □ This cheap underwear has a tendency to draw up.

draw (up) alongside someone or something and draw (up) alongside to move up even with someone or something in motion. □ The police officer drew up alongside us and ordered us to pull over. □ A car drew up alongside us.

draw upon something Go to draw on someone or something.

a drawing card Fig. an attraction that helps bring patrons to a place of entertainment. □ The comedian was a real drawing card at the night club.

drawn and quartered Fig. to be dealt with very severely. (Now fig. except in historical accounts; refers to a former practice of torturing someone guilty of treason, usually a male, by disembowling and dividing the body into four parts. *Typically: be ~; have someone ~. Fixed order.) □ Todd was practically drawn and quartered for losing the Wilson contract. □ You were much too harsh with Jean. No matter what she did, she didn't need to be drawn and quartered for it!

drawn like a moth to a flame Fig. attracted [to someone or some event] instinctively or very strongly, as a moth is drawn to the light of a flame. □ Customers were drawn to the sale like a moth to a flame. They came from all over and bought up everything in the store.

dream about someone or something and dream of someone or something to have mental pictures about someone or something, especially in one's sleep. □ I dreamed about you all night last night. □ I dreamed of a huge chocolate cake.

a dream come true Fig. a wish or a dream that has become a reality. □ My vacation to Hawaii was like a dream come true. □ Having you for a friend is a dream come true.

Dream of a funeral and you hear of a marriage. and Dream of a funeral and you hear of a wedding. Prov. If you dream that a person has died, you will learn that person is to be married. □ Alan: I had a dream last night that my sister was killed. Jane: Dream of a funeral and you hear of a marriage.

Dream of a funeral and you hear of a wedding. Go to previous.

dream of doing something Fig. to have a fantasy of doing something. (See also dream about someone or something.) □ I dream of owning a house like that. □ Clara dreamed of sailing off into the sunset with Roger.

dream of someone or something Go to dream about someone or something.

Dream on. What you are expecting or wanting to happen is nothing but fantasy. □ You want to get promoted to general manager? Dream on. □ You, an opera singer? Dream on.

dream something away[†] Fig. to waste away a period of time having fantasies. □ I just want to sit in the sun and dream the day away. □ Don't dream away your life!

dream something up[†] Fig. to invent something; to fabricate something. (The something can be the word something.) □ I don't know what to do, but I'll dream something up. □ Please dream up a solution for this problem.

dredge someone or something up[†] 1. Lit. to scoop something up from underwater. □ The workers dredged the lifeless body up from the cold black water. □ They dredged up the mud from the riverbed. 2. Fig. to use some effort to seek and find someone or something. □ I will see if I can dredge a date up for Friday. □ Can you dredge up a date for me? □ I don't have a wrench here, but I'll see if I can dredge one up from the basement.

drench someone or something in something and drench someone or something with something to soak someone or something in something. □ A sudden summer shower drenched them in sheets of rain. □ My raincoat was drenched with droplets from the foggy night air.

dress for someone to clothe oneself to please someone. □ I don't dress for you! Don't tell me how I should look! □ Sally says she dresses for her friends, but she really dresses for herself.

dress for something to clothe oneself suitably for some occasion or activity, or for success. □ Finally, I learned to dress for success. □ I can wear my tuxedo if you want me to dress for the formal dinner.

dress (oneself) up to dress in fancy dress. □ They dressed themselves up in their finest. □ Please dress up for the dance.

dress someone down[†] to bawl someone out; to give someone a good scolding. □ The drill sergeant dressed down the entire squadron for failing inspection. □ I'm really late. I know my parents will dress me down when I get home.

dress someone or something up[†] to make someone or something appear fancier than is actually so. □ The publicity specialist dressed the actress up a lot. □ They dressed up the hall so it looked like a ballroom.

dress someone or something up[†] (in something) to clothe, decorate, or ornament someone or something in something. □ She dressed her dolls up in special clothing. □ She dressed up her dolls in tiny outfits.

dress someone up[†] (as someone or something) to dress someone to look like or impersonate someone or something. □ She dressed her little girl up as a witch for Halloween. □ She dressed up her little girl as a fairy.

dress (up) as someone or something to dress in the manner of someone or something. □ I am going to dress up as a ghost for Halloween. □ Larry will dress up as the pumpkin from Cinderella.

dressed to kill and dressed (up) fit to kill Fig. dressed in fancy or stylish clothes. (See also dressed (up) fit to kill.) □ Wow, look at Sally! She's really dressed to kill. □ A person doesn't go on vacation dressed to kill. □ When Joe came to pick Mary up for the movie, he was dressed up fit to kill and carrying a dozen roses.

dressed to the nines and dressed to the teeth Fig. dressed very stylishly with nothing overlooked. □ She showed up for the picnic dressed to the nines. □ Clare is usually dressed to the teeth in order to impress people.

dressed to the teeth Go to previous.

dressed (up) fit to kill Go to dressed to kill.

a dressing-down a harsh scolding. □ The boss gave the entire sales crew a powerful dressing-down for missing their forecast.

drift along to float along; to be carried along on no particular course. □ The boat just drifted along lazily with the current. □ The project drifted along until we received the leadership we needed.

drift apart (from each other) 1. Lit. [for floating things] to separate as they drift. □ The boats drifted apart from one another. □ The boats drifted apart in the waves. 2. Fig. [for people] to lead their lives without contact with each other having been together or friendly. □ He drifted apart from his friends. □ As the years went by, they drifted apart.

drift away (from someone) Fig. [for someone] to begin to be less of a friend and more like a stranger. (See also drift away (from someone or something).) □ He began drifting away from me a few months ago, and I haven't seen him at all in the last three weeks.

drift away (from someone or something) [for floating people, animals, or things] to move away from a particular person or thing, on the surface of water. (See also drift away (from someone).) □ We watched the boat drift away from us. □ He was drifting away on the ice block and there was nothing we could do.

drift back (to someone) Fig. [for someone] to return to one's friendship or romantic involvement slowly. (See also drift back (to someone or something).) □ Finally he drifted back to her and they made up.

drift back (to someone or something) to move back to someone or something slowly, on the surface of water. □ The canoe drifted back to shore. □ My little boat finally drifted back to me.

drift in (to something) to move slowly and gradually into something. □ The people drifted slowly into the hall. □ The boats drifted into the shore on the tide.

drift off to move slowly away. □ The boat slowly drifted off and was gone. □ The clouds drifted off and the sun came out.

drift off course Go to off course.

drift off to sleep Fig. to fall asleep gradually. □ At last, he drifted off to sleep. □ During that boring lecture, I drifted off to sleep a number of times.

drift out to move out of a place slowly. □ After there was no more food, the people drifted out, one by one. □ The boat drifted out and almost got away.

drift toward someone or something to move slowly and gradually toward someone or something. □ The clouds drifted toward us, and we could see that a storm was coming. □ As the clouds drifted toward us, we could feel the humidity increase.

drift with something 1. Lit. to float along with something; to be carried along at the same rate as something. □ He paddled the canoe into the center of the stream and let it drift with the current. 2. Fig. to "move along" passively with events and ideas. □ He is not very decisive and is as likely as not to drift with the tide of sentiment.

drill down (to something) to bore downward to something or some distance. □ We drilled down to a layer of water-bearing sand, hoping to make a well. □ They had to drill down to bedrock to make a base for the piers that hold the building up.

drill in (to something) to bore into or penetrate something. □ The worker drilled into the wall in three places. □ Please don't drill into the wall here, where it will show.

drill someone in something to give someone practice in something. □ Now, I am going to drill you in irregular verbs. □ The teacher drilled the students in the use of the passive.

drill something into someone or something and drill something in† Fig. to force knowledge into someone or something. □ Learn this stuff! Drill it into your brain. □ Drill in this information so you know it by heart!

drink like a fish Fig. to drink alcohol excessively; to be in the habit of drinking alcohol excessively. □ Jeff really drank like a fish at the party on Saturday. □ I worry about Nancy; she drinks like a fish.

drink someone under the table Fig. to be able to drink more alcohol than someone else. □ I bet I can drink you under the table.

drink something down† to drink something; to consume all of something by drinking it. □ Here, drink this down, and see if it makes you feel better. □ Drink down this medicine.

drink something in† Fig. to absorb something; to take in information, sights, a story, etc. □ Terry and Amy drove up to the top of the hill to drink the sights in. □ They drank in the beautiful view.

drink something up† to drink all of something that is served or that is on hand. □ Who drank all the root beer up? □ I drank up the root beer.

drink to excess Euph. to drink too much alcohol; to drink alcohol continually. □ Mr. Franklin drinks to excess. □ Some people drink to excess only at parties.

drink to someone or something to toast someone or something; to take an alcoholic drink in honor of someone or something. □ I'll drink to that! □ Let us drink to our guest of honor, Wallace J. Wilson!

Drink up! Finish your drink!; Finish that drink, and we'll have another! □ Okay, drink up! It's closing time. □ Drink up, and let's get going.

drip in(to something) [for a liquid] to fall into something drop by drop. □ The water dripped into the bowl we had put under the leak. □ Is the water still dripping in the bathtub?

drip something into something and drip something in† to make something fall into something drop by drop. □ Alice dripped a little candle wax into the base of the candlestick. □ Don't pour it all into the jar. Drip in a little at a time.

drip with something 1. Lit. to be heavy or overloaded with something to the point of overflowing. □ The foliage dripped with the heavy morning dew. □ Her clothing dripped with seawater as she climbed back onto the deck.

2. Fig. [for someone's speech] to show certain states of mind or attitudes. □ Her voice dripped with sarcasm. □ The old lady's voice dripped with sweetness and affection.

drive a coach and horses through something Fig. to expose weak points or "holes" in an argument, alibi, or criminal case by [figuratively] driving a horse and carriage through them. (Formal. Emphasizes the large size of the holes or gaps in the argument.) □ The barrister drove a horse and carriage through the witness's testimony. □ The opposition will drive a coach and horses through the wording of that government bill.

drive a hard bargain to work hard to negotiate prices or agreements in one's own favor. □ All right, sir, you drive a hard bargain. I'll sell you this car for $12,450. □ You drive a hard bargain, Jane, but I'll sign the contract.

drive a price down† Fig. to force the price of something down. □ The lack of buyers drove the price down. □ The lack of buyers drove down the price.

drive a price up and force something up† to force the price of something upwards. □ Someone is buying a lot of gold and driving the price up. □ They are driving up the price.

drive a wedge between someone and someone else Fig. to cause people to oppose one another or turn against one another. □ The argument drove a wedge between Mike and his father.

drive at something to be making a point; to be hinting at something; to work up to making a point. □ What are you driving at? What's the point? □ I could tell Mary was driving at something, but I didn't know what it was.

drive away to leave some place driving a vehicle. □ They got in the car and drove away. □ They drove away and left us here.

drive back to go in a vehicle back to where it started. □ Mary drove back and parked the car where it had been when she started. □ You drive us there and I'll drive back.

drive between something and something else to go in a vehicle between things or places. □ I can't drive between work and home in less than thirty minutes. □ The cab driver drove between the airport and downtown more than twelve times in one day.

drive down (to some place) to go in a vehicle to a relatively lower place or to a place in the south. □ We are going to drive down to Houston for the weekend. □ We were going to fly to Florida, but it will be nice to drive down.

drive into someone or something to strike someone or something while driving. □ She drove into the garage and damaged the wall. □ Accidentally, Fred drove into Max.

drive in(to something) to enter something or some place by driving. □ She drove right into the garage and stopped the car before she realized that she was not at her own house. □ She drove in and looked around.

drive into the middle of nowhere Go to in the middle of nowhere.

drive off to leave somewhere, driving a vehicle. □ She got in her car and drove off. □ Please don't drive off and leave me!

drive on to continue driving; to continue with one's journey. □ We drove on for a little while. □ The traffic jam is breaking up, so we can drive on.

drive one out of one's mind Fig. to make someone go crazy; to frustrate someone. □ You are driving me out of my mind with your nagging. □ Henry was driven out of his mind by all the negative comments.

drive out (to some place) to go in a vehicle to a place that is away from one's home, away from a city, etc. □ We drove out to a little place in the country for a picnic. □ Why don't you drive out this weekend? We would love to have you here.

drive over (to some place) to go in a vehicle to some place that is neither close by nor far away. □ Let's drive over to Larry's place. □ Yes, let's drive over. It's too far to walk.

Drive safely. an expression used to advise a departing person to be careful while driving. □ Mary: Good-bye, Sally. Drive safely. Sally: Good-bye. I will. □ “Drive safely!” everyone shouted as we left on our trip.

drive someone around something to transport a person in a vehicle on a tour of something or some place. □ Fred will drive you around the city to see the sights. □ He spent an hour driving himself around town.

drive someone around the bend Fig. to make someone angry or very frustrated. □ This tax stuff is about to drive me around the bend. □ Gert will drive us all around the bend with her constant complaining.

drive someone back on something to force someone to tap reserves of something. □ The hard times drove them back on their life savings. □ The challenges of being a corporate executive drove her back on all her personal resources.

drive someone back to someone to force someone to return to someone, such as a spouse, lover, parent, etc. □ Her bad experience with her new friend drove her back to her husband. □ Being homeless was no fun, and soon Wally was driven back to his parents.

drive someone batty and drive someone bonkers; drive someone nuts Fig. to annoy or irritate someone. □ You are certainly annoying! You’re going to drive me batty. □ This cold is driving me bonkers. □ These tax forms are driving me nuts.

drive someone bonkers Go to previous.

drive someone crazy and drive someone insane; drive someone mad 1. Lit. to force someone into a state of insanity or mental instability. □ The sound of the wind howling drove me crazy. □ The dog’s constant barking drove me insane. 2. Fig. to annoy or irritate someone. □ This itch is driving me crazy. □ All these telephone calls are driving me mad.

drive someone down (to some place) to transport someone to some place (as in town or away from home), or to a relatively lower place or to a place in the south. □ She drove herself down to the hospital. □ We have to drive Andrew down to school in the fall.

drive someone insane Go to drive someone crazy.

drive someone into a corner 1. Lit. to force someone into the place where two walls intersect. □ They drove him into a corner and captured him there. □ When he is driven into a corner, he will fight. 2. Fig. to force someone into a position or state where there are few choices and no escape. □ You have driven me into a corner, so I guess I have to give in. □ Todd was driven into a corner when everyone disagreed with him.

drive someone mad Go to drive someone crazy.

drive someone nuts Go to drive someone batty.

drive someone on^t (to something) to make someone move onward toward some kind of success. □ She said her parents drove her on to finish law school. □ They drove on their daughter to great things. □ The thought of earning a large salary drove him on.

drive someone or an animal away^t (from something or some place) to repel someone or an animal from something or some place. □ We drove the monkeys away from the pineapples. □ We drove away the monkeys from the fruit.

drive someone or an animal out of something and drive someone or an animal out^t to force or chase someone or an animal out of something or some place. □ We drove them all out of the country. □ We drove out the troublesome kids.

drive someone or something back^t to force someone or something away; to force someone or something to retreat. □ The infantry drove the attackers back into the desert. □ They drove back the invading army. □ We drove them back to the border.

drive someone or something off^t to repel or chase away someone or something. □ The campers drove the cows off before the animals trampled the tents. □ They drove off the cows.

drive someone out^t Go to force someone out of office.

drive someone out of office Go to force someone out of office.

drive someone to despair Fig. to depress someone; to frustrate someone. □ Sometimes raising an infant drives me to despair! □ The recent problems drove her to despair.

drive someone to distraction Fig. to confuse or perplex someone. □ Can’t you see you’re driving her to distraction? □ The problems I am having with my boss are driving me to distraction.

drive someone to do something to force someone to do something. □ Poverty drove him to steal. □ She drove herself to earn a living.

drive someone to drink Fig. [for someone or something] to cause someone to turn to alcohol as an escape from frustration. □ Being a Cubs fan is enough to drive you to drink. □ She was driven to drink by the problems she had with her teenage son.

drive someone to the brink Go to next.

drive someone to the edge and drive someone to the brink Fig. to drive someone almost insane; to drive someone close to doing something desperate. □ Your trouble with the police has driven me to the brink! The next time you are arrested, I will not get you out of jail.

drive someone to the wall Go to force someone to the wall.

drive someone up the wall Fig. to annoy or irritate someone. □ Stop whistling that tune. You’re driving me up the wall. □ All his talk about moving to California nearly drove me up the wall.

drive someone up (to some place) to transport someone to a place on a higher level or to a place in the north. □ Ralph drove Sally up to the cabin. □ He was going to drive her up last week, but could not.

drive something around something 1. to steer or propel something around something. □ Wally drove the small car around the post easily. □ Please drive your truck around the corner carefully. 2. to go in a vehicle through different parts of a place. □ He drove his new car around town, hoping everyone would see it. □ We drove the car around the parade route twice so everyone could get a good look at it.

drive something down^t (to some place) to transport a vehicle to a place by driving it there. □ I will drive the car down to the college and leave it there for you. □ I’ll drive down the car and meet you. □ Do I have to drive the car down? Can't you fly up here and get it?

drive something home and drive something home^t (to someone) Fig. to emphasize an important point about something (to someone). □ The teacher repeated the point three times just to drive it home. □ I hope this really drives the importance of safety home to you. □ The accident drove home the importance of wearing seatbelts to everyone concerned.

drive something into someone or something to strike someone or something while driving. □ He drove the truck right into the abutment. □ She drove the car into the side of the garage.

drive something into something and drive something in^t 1. to steer or guide a vehicle into something. □ Liz drove the car into the garage. □ She drove in the car. 2. to pound or hammer something into something. □ Using a heavy mallet, he drove the stake into the hard earth. □ With a mighty hammer blow, she drove in the nail.

drive something into the ground Go to run something into the ground.

drive through (something) to go in a vehicle from one side of something to the other; to pass through something while driving. □ We drove through some nice little towns on the way here. □ We didn't stop. We just drove through.

drive up (to some place) to arrive some place in a vehicle. □ She drove up to the door and stopped. □ Sally drove up and honked.

the driving force (behind someone or something) the person or a thing that motivates or directs someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; serve as ~.) □ Making money is the driving force behind most businesses. □ Ambition is the driving force behind Tom. □ Love can also be the driving force.

drizzle down (on someone or something) to rain on someone or something. □ The light rain drizzled down on the garden. □ The rain drizzled down and soaked us because we had no umbrella.

drone on (about someone or something) to lecture or narrate in a low-pitched, dull, and boring manner. □ The dull old professor droned on about Byron—or was it Keats? □ It was Shelley and, yes, he did drone on.

drone something out^t to make a loud and low-pitched noise; to say something in a low-pitched and monotonous manner. □ The announcer droned the winning numbers out. □ She droned out the winning numbers.

drool (all) over someone or something 1. Lit. to drip saliva on someone or something. □ You're drooling all over my plate! □ The dog drooled all over my hand. 2. Fig. to envy or desire someone or something. (Alludes to drooling from hunger.) □ The boys stood there, drooling over the fancy sports car. □ Wally Wilson spent many hours drooling over photographs of Marilyn.

drop a bomb(shell) and explode a bombshell; drop a brick Fig. to announce shocking or startling news. □ They really dropped a bombshell when they announced that the mayor would resign. □ Friday is a good day to drop a bomb like that. It gives the business world the weekend to recover. □ They must choose their words very carefully when they explode a bombshell like that. □ They really dropped a brick when they told her the cause of her illness.

drop a brick Go to previous.

drop a bundle (on someone) and blow a bundle (on someone) Inf. to spend a lot of money pleasing or entertaining someone. □ I blew a bundle on the candidate, and it didn't help me at all. □ Over the years, I've dropped a bundle on clients at that restaurant.

drop a bundle (on something) Inf. to pay a lot of money for something. □ Pete dropped a bundle on this car. □ I always buy old used cars. I've never dropped a bundle on any car.

drop a hint Fig. to give a tiny or careful hint about something. □ Mary dropped a hint that she wanted a new ring for her birthday.

drop across someone or something [for something long or wide] to fall on and lay on someone or something. □ A snake dropped across the hood of the tourist bus as it passed under a tree. □ As I lay sleeping, a ceiling panel dropped across me and woke me up.

drop around (for something) to come for a casual visit that includes something such as tea, dinner, a drink, etc. □ Drop around for a drink sometime. □ Yes, please drop around.

drop around (sometime) and drop by (sometime) to come and visit (someone) at some future time. (Similar to drop in (on someone).) □ Nice to see you, Mary. You and Bob must drop around sometime. □ Please do drop around when you're out driving.

drop away 1. Lit. to fall off; to fall away. □ The leaves were still dropping away from the trees in November. □ The dead branches dropped away from the tree. 2. Fig. [for a group of people] to decline in number over time through disinterest or attrition. □ His friends gradually dropped away as the years passed. □ As the other contenders dropped away, Mary's chances for election improved.

drop back 1. to fall back to an original position. □ His arm raised up and then dropped back. □ The lid dropped back to its original position as soon as we let go of it. 2. to go slowly and lose one's position in a march or procession. □ He dropped back a bit and evened up the spacing in the line of marchers. □ He got tired and dropped back a little.

drop behind (in something) to fail to keep up with a schedule. □ I don't want to drop behind in my work. □ She is dropping behind and needs someone to help her.

drop behind (someone or something) 1. Lit. to reduce speed and end up after someone or a group, at the back of a moving line. □ I dropped behind the rest of the people, because I can't walk that fast. □ I dropped behind the speeding pack of cars and drove a little slower. 2. Fig. to fail to keep up with the schedule being followed by someone or a group. □ My production output dropped behind what it should have been. □ I stayed later at work to keep from dropping behind.

drop below someone or something to fall to a point lower than someone or something. □ The gunman dropped below the cowboy's hiding place and got ready to take a shot. □ The temperature dropped below the freezing point.

drop by (sometime) Go to drop around (sometime).

drop by the wayside and fall by the wayside 1. Lit. to leave a march or procession in exhaustion to recover beside the pathway. A few of the marchers dropped by the wayside in the intense heat. 2. Fig. to fail to keep up with others. Many of the students will drop by the wayside and never finish. Those who fall by the wayside will find it hard to catch up.

drop dead 1. to die suddenly. I understand that Tom Anderson dropped dead at his desk yesterday. No one knows why Uncle Bob suddenly dropped dead. 2. Go away and stop bothering me. (Usually Drop dead!) If you think I'm going to put up with your rudeness all afternoon, you can just drop dead! Drop dead! I'm not your slave!

drop down 1. [for someone] to fall down or stoop down. Suddenly, Ted dropped down, trying not to be seen by someone in a passing car. I dropped down as soon as I heard the loud sounds. 2. [for something] to fall from above. The tiles on the ceiling dropped down, one by one, over the years. The raindrops dropped down and gave the thirsty plants a drink.

drop down (on someone or something) to fall on someone or something. The leaves dropped down on the newly mowed lawn. The wind blew a mighty gust and a thousand leaves dropped down.

drop everything Fig. to stop doing whatever you are doing. Drop everything and go outside. The house is on fire. Do you expect me to drop everything and come and pick you up at school?

drop in (on someone) and drop in (to say hello) to pay someone a casual visit, perhaps a surprise visit. I hate to drop in on people when they aren't expecting me. You're welcome to drop in at any time.

drop in one's tracks 1. to collapse from exhaustion. I was so tired, I dropped in my tracks. Kelly almost dropped in her tracks from overwork. 2. to die instantly. Finally, one day, he worked so hard that he dropped in his tracks. I know that someday I will just drop in my tracks.

Drop in sometime. Visit my home or office sometime when you are nearby. Bob: Bye, Bill, nice seeing you. Bill: Hey, drop in sometime. Bob: Okay. "Drop in sometime," said Bob to his uncle.

a drop in the bucket and a drop in the ocean Fig. an insignificant contribution toward solving a large problem. Jane: We need to stop spending so much. Alan: OK. I'll buy a cheaper brand of toothpaste. Jane: But that's just a drop in the bucket. Many companies donated food and medicine to help the survivors of the earthquake, but it was just a drop in the ocean of what was needed.

a drop in the ocean Go to previous.

drop in (to say hello) Go to drop in (on someone).

Drop it! Go to Drop the subject!

drop like flies Fig. to faint, sicken, collapse, or die, in great numbers like houseflies dying in a large group. It was a terrible year for the flu. People were dropping like flies.

drop names and drop someone's name to mention a name or the names of important or famous people as if they were personal friends. (See also drop someone's name.) Mary always tries to impress people by dropping the name of some big-time executives she claims to know.

Bill's such a snob. Leave it to him to drop the names of all the local gentry.

drop off 1. Lit. [for a part of something] to break away and fall off. The car's bumper just dropped off—honest. I lifted boxes until I thought my arms would drop off. 2. Fig. to decline. Attendance at the meetings dropped off after Martin became president. Spending dropped off as the recession became worse.

drop off (to sleep) Fig. to go to sleep without difficulty; to fall asleep. I sat in the warm room for five minutes, and then I dropped off to sleep. After I've eaten dinner, I can drop off with no trouble at all.

drop one's drawers to lower one's pant or underpants. The boys dropped their drawers and jumped in the creek.

drop one's teeth Fig. to react with great surprise. I almost dropped my teeth when she told me her news. They dropped their teeth when I told them I was married.

drop out of sight 1. Lit. to fall behind something and be seen no longer. The pen dropped out of sight behind the sofa nevermore to be seen. 2. Fig. to disappear from public view; [for someone] to go into hiding. The robbers dropped out of sight and the crime was never solved.

drop out (of something) 1. Lit. to fall out of something. One by one, the skydivers dropped out of the plane. The marshmallows dropped out of the bag. 2. Lit. or Fig. [for the bottom of something] to break loose and drop. The bottom dropped out of the box, spilling everything everywhere. The bottom dropped out of the stock market, and we lost a lot of money. 3. Fig. [for someone] to resign from or cease being a member of something; [for someone] to leave school. Sally dropped out of school for some unknown reason. But why did she drop out?

drop over to come for a casual visit. We would love for you to drop over. I would really like to drop over soon.

drop someone 1. Sl. to knock someone down; to punch and knock down a person. Fred dropped Willie with one punch to the jaw. 2. Fig. to stop being friends with someone, especially with one's boyfriend or girlfriend. Bob finally dropped Jane. I don't know what he saw in her. I'm surprised that she didn't drop him first.

drop someone a few lines Go to next.

drop someone a line and drop someone a few lines; drop someone a note to write a letter or a note to someone. (The line refers to lines of writing.) I dropped Aunt Jane a line last Thanksgiving. She usually drops me a few lines around the first of the year. Drop me a note when you get a chance.

drop someone or something down[†] to let someone or something fall. He dropped his pants down, revealing the swimming trunks beneath. The rescuer dropped down the baby and the doctor caught it. Sam went to the well and dropped a rock down.

drop someone or something from something 1. Lit. to release someone or something from some higher point. Galileo proved that two objects of different weights dropped from the same height will reach the ground at the same time. 2. Fig. to exclude someone or something from something. We had to drop Sally from our guest list. The professor was forced to drop the failing students from the course.

drop someone or something into something and drop someone or something in^t to let someone or something fall into something. □ He dropped a quarter into the slot and waited for something to happen. □ He dropped in a quarter. □ Johnny Green dropped a cat into a well. □ He went to the well and dropped a coin in.

drop someone or something like a hot potato Fig. to disassociate oneself with someone or something instantly. □ When we learned of the conviction, we dropped him like a hot potato. □ I dropped the idea like a hot potato when the big boss said he didn't like it.

drop someone or something off^t Go to drop someone or something off something.

drop someone or something off^t (some place) 1. Lit. to let someone or a group out of a vehicle at a particular place; to deliver someone or something some place. □ Let's drop these shirts off at the cleaners. □ Let's drop off Tom and Jerry at the hamburger joint. 2. Fig. to give someone or a group a ride to some place. □ Can I drop you off somewhere in town? □ I dropped off the kids at the party.

drop someone or something off something and drop someone or something off^t to let someone or something fall from something; to make someone or something fall from something. □ They dropped the feather off the top of the building. □ Jake dropped off a feather and it fell to the ground.

drop someone or something on someone or something to release something so it falls on someone or something. □ Poor Alice dropped an iron on her toe. □ I accidentally dropped the baby on the floor.

drop someone or something out of something and drop someone or something out^t to let someone or something fall out of something. □ She dropped the paper out of the window. □ Max threatened to drop Lefty out of the open door of the plane. □ I opened the window and dropped out the caterpillar.

drop someone's name Go to drop names.

drop something across something to let something fall in such a way that a span is bridged; to let something fall in such a way that a pathway is blocked. □ Let's drop a little rug across the threshold. □ They dropped a huge boulder across the road so no one could pass.

drop something on someone 1. Lit. to let something fall on someone. □ The bricklayer dropped some mortar on me. 2. Fig. to give someone some bad news. (As if dropping a burden on someone.) □ Sally dropped some really bad news on Walter. □ I'm sorry I had to drop it on you like that.

drop the ball 1. Lit. [in a ball game of some type] to let the ball get away or fall out of one's grasp. □ Good grief! Bill dropped the ball, just as he was about to score! 2. Fig. to make a blunder; to fail in some way. □ Everything was going fine in the election until my campaign manager dropped the ball. □ You can't trust John to do the job right. He's always dropping the ball.

drop the other shoe Fig. to do the deed that completes something; to do the expected remaining part of something. (See also wait for the other shoe to drop.) □ Mr. Franklin has left his wife. Soon he'll drop the other shoe and divorce her. □ Tommy has just failed three classes in school.

We expect him to drop the other shoe and quit altogether any day now.

Drop the subject! and Drop it! Fig. Do not discuss it further! □ Bill: Sally, you're gaining a little weight. I thought you were on a diet. Sally: That's enough! Drop the subject! □ Bill: That house is a mess. I wonder who lives there. Mary: That's my aunt's house. Just what did you want to know about it? Bill: Oh, drop it! Sorry I asked.

drop up (some place) to come for a visit to a place that is relatively higher or in the north. □ Drop up and see us sometime. □ Please drop up when you can.

drop-dead gorgeous Sl. very good-looking. □ Perry's girlfriend is drop-dead gorgeous. How can a twit like him hold onto a looker like that?

drown in something 1. Lit. to be asphyxiated in some liquid. □ Wouldn't you hate to drown in that nasty, smelly water? □ I am not choosy about what I don't want to drown in. 2. Fig. to experience an overabundance of something. □ We are just drowning in cabbage this year. Our garden is full of it. □ They were drowning in bills, not money to pay them with.

drown one's sorrows Go to next.

drown one's troubles and drown one's sorrows Fig. to try to forget one's problems by drinking a lot of alcohol. □ Bill is in the bar, drowning his troubles. □ Jane is at home, drowning her sorrows.

drown someone in something Fig. to inundate someone with something. (See also drown in something.) □ I will drown you in money and fine clothes. □ Mike drowned the nightclub singer in fancy jewels and furs.

drown someone or an animal in something to cause someone or an animal to die of asphyxiation in a liquid. □ He accidentally drowned the cat in the bathtub. □ She drowned herself in the lake.

drown someone or an animal out^t [for a flood] to drive someone or an animal away from home. □ The high waters almost drowned the farmers out last year. □ The water drowned out the fields.

drown someone or something out^t [for a sound] to be so loud that someone or something cannot be heard. □ The noise of the passing train drowned out our conversation. □ The train drowned us out.

A drowning man will clutch at a straw. Prov. When you are desperate, you will look for anything that might help you, even if it cannot help you very much. □ Scott thinks this faith healer will cure his baldness. A drowning man will clutch at a straw.

a drug on the market and a glut on the market something that is on the market in great abundance. □ Right now, small computers are a drug on the market. □ Twenty years ago, small transistor radios were a glut on the market.

drum on something to tap, thump, or beat on something in rhythm. □ Who is drumming on the table? □ Please stop drumming on the wall.

drum someone out^t Go to next.

drum someone out of something and drum someone out^t Fig. to expel or send someone away from something, especially in a formal or public fashion. □ They drummed Bill out of the bridge club for having a bad attitude. □ The corps drums out a few cadets each year.

drum something into someone and drum something into someone's head; drum something in^t Fig. to teach someone something intensely. □ Her mother had drummed good manners into her. □ She drummed in good manners day after day.

drum something out^t to beat a rhythm, loudly and clearly, as if teaching it to someone. □ Drum the rhythm out before you try to sing this song. □ Drum out the rhythm first.

drum something up^t to obtain something by attracting people's attention to one's need or cause. □ I shall try to drum up support for the party. □ You shall have to drum up new business by advertising. □ I need to do something to drum some business up.

drunk and disorderly a criminal charge for public drunkenness accompanied by bad or offensive behavior. □ The judge fined Richard for being drunk and disorderly. □ In addition to being convicted for driving while intoxicated, Richard was found guilty of being drunk and disorderly.

drunk as a lord and drunk as a skunk very drunk. (*Also: as ~.) □ After his fifth cocktail, Michael was as drunk as a lord. □ Judy bought herself a case of beer and proceeded to get as drunk as a skunk.

drunk as a skunk Go to previous.

dry as a bone Go to next.

dry as dust and dry as a bone 1. Cliché very dry. (*Also: as ~.) □ The bread is as dry as dust. □ When the leaves are dry as a bone, they break into powder easily. 2. Cliché very dull; very boring. (*Also: as ~.) □ This book is as dry as dust. I am going to stop reading it. □ Her lecture was dry as dust—just like her subject.

dry out 1. Lit. to become dry. □ The clothes finally dried out in the wet weather. 2. Fig. to allow alcohol and the effects of drunkenness, especially if habitual, to dissipate from one's body. □ He required about three days to dry out completely. □ He dried out in three days.

dry run Fig. an attempt; a practice or rehearsal. □ We had better have a dry run for the official ceremony tomorrow. □ The children will need another dry run before their procession in the pageant.

dry someone or something off^t to remove the moisture from someone or something. □ Please dry your feet off before coming in. □ Dry off your feet before you come in here!

dry someone out^t Fig. to cause someone to become sober; to cause someone to stop drinking alcohol to excess. □ If the doctor at the clinic can't dry him out, no one can. □ The hospital will dry out Mary and start treatment.

dry something out^t to make something become dry. □ Dry this out and put it on immediately. □ Dry out your jacket in the clothes dryer.

dry something up^t 1. to cause moisture to dry away to nothing. □ Dry this spill up with the hair dryer. □ Will the hair dryer dry up this mess? 2. to cure a skin rash by the use of medicine that dries. □ Let's use some of this to try to dry that rash up. □ This medicine will dry up your rash in a few days.

dry spell Rur. a period with no rain. □ The dry spell killed the crops. □ We ain't had such a long dry spell since 1988.

dry up 1. Lit. [for something] to dry away to nothing. □ Finally, the water on the track dried up, and the race was able to continue. □ When will the fields dry up so we can plant? 2. Fig. [for someone] to be quiet or go away. □ Dry up, you jerk! □ I wish you would dry up!

dry-gulch someone to ambush someone. □ The outlaw dry-gulched the traveler and took everything he had. □ The posse planned to dry-gulch the outlaw by waiting outside his favorite saloon.

dub something in^t to mix a new sound recording into an old one. □ The actor messed up his lines, but they dubbed the correct words in later. □ They dubbed in his lines.

dub something over^t to record a replacement sound over another sound in a recording. □ They had dubbed over all the dialog in the movie. □ It doesn't matter if you say a word wrong on the tape. We can dub it over.

duck and cover 1. Lit. to bend down and seek protection against an attack. □ When the gunfire started, we had to duck and cover or get killed. 2. Fig. to dodge something, such as an issue or a difficult question, and attempt to shield oneself against similar issues or questions. □ The candidate's first reaction to the question was to duck and cover. □ The debaters were ducking and covering throughout the evening.

duck down to stoop down quickly, as if to avoid being hit. □ He ducked down when he heard the gunshot. □ Duck down and get out of the way.

duck out (of some place) Fig. to sneak out of some place. □ She ducked out of the theater during the intermission. □ When no one was looking, she ducked out.

duck out (of something) Fig. to evade something; to escape doing something. □ Are you trying to duck out of your responsibility? □ Fred tried to duck out of going to the dance.

duck soup Fig. very easy; an easy thing to do. □ For Maria, knitting a sweater is duck soup. □ Jill: This jar is stuck. Could you open it for me? Jane: Sure. Duck soup.

dude (oneself) up Sl. to dress in fancy or stylish clothing. □ I have to go dude myself up for the party. □ I'm not going to dude up tonight. □ Why don't you dude yourself up so we can go out tonight?

duded up Sl. dressed up. □ She got all duded up in her fanciest dancing dress. □ He hates fancy clothes. He didn't even get duded up for his own wedding.

duke it out Sl. to have a fistfight. □ John told George to meet him in the alley so they could duke it out.

duke someone out^t Sl. to knock someone out. □ Wilbur tried to duke the guy out first. □ Bob duked out the mugger with a jab to the cheek.

dull as dishwater and dull as ditchwater very uninteresting. (*Also: as ~.) □ I'm not surprised that he can't find a partner. He's as dull as dishwater. □ Mr. Black's speech was as dull as dishwater.

dull as ditchwater Go to previous.

dummy up Sl. to refuse to talk. □ Jill dummied up when they got her into the station. □ John dummied up right away when the police arrived.

dump a load Go to dump one's load.

dump on someone or something 1. to snow on someone or something. Well, it dumped on us again last night. The cold front dumped on the northeast again today. 2. and do a dump on someone or something; dump all over someone or something Sl. to criticize someone or something; to destroy someone or something. There is no need to do a dump on me. I didn't wreck your car. The boss—mad as a wet hen—dumped all over me.

dump one's load 1. Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. He's had too much to drink and is dumping his load. 2. and dump a load Sl. to defecate. (Crude. Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) He had to go dump a load. He dumped his load and settled back down to work.

dump something on someone Fig. to pour out one's troubles to someone. She dumped all her grief on her friend, Sally. I wish you wouldn't dump all your problems on me.

dumped on 1. snowed on. The entire Midwest was dumped on with about ten inches of snow. Our town really got dumped on last night. 2. Sl. maligned; abused. I really feel dumped on by all the bad reviews in the press. The jerk who designed this stupid congested stairway hasn't been dumped on enough.

dun someone for something to harass someone to pay a bill or deliver something. If you don't pay the bill, they will dun you for it day and night. My job is to dun people for payment of their bills.

dunk someone or something into something and dunk someone or something in^t to submerge someone or something in something, fully or partially. They dunked him into the pool as a way of celebrating. Liz pulled the cup of coffee toward herself and dunked in her doughnut. She dunked herself into the cold water for just a minute.

a dust bunny and a dust kitten; a turkey's nest Fig. a clump of dust and lint. She swept the dust bunnies out from under the bed. There's a huge dust kitten behind the chiffarobe. He hasn't cleaned in weeks. There are turkey's nests in every corner.

a dust kitten Go to previous.

dust someone off^t Sl. to punch or beat someone. We dusted them off one by one. We had to dust off all those big guys.

dust someone or something off^t to wipe or brush the dust off someone or something. Dust this vase off and put it on the shelf. Please dust off this vase.

dust someone's pants Sl. to spank someone, usually a child. My dad will dust my pants if he hears about this. I'm too old for somebody to dust my pants.

dust something out^t to brush the dust out of something. Dust this cabinet out and put the china back in. Please dust out this cabinet.

Dutch auction an auction or sale that starts off with a high asking price that is then reduced until a buyer is found. (Viewed by some as insulting to the Dutch.) Dutch auctions are rare—most auctioneers start with a lower price than they hope to obtain. My real estate agent advised me to ask a reasonable price for my house rather than get involved with a Dutch auction.

Dutch courage unusual or artificial courage arising from the influence of alcohol. (Viewed by some as insulting to the Dutch.) It was Dutch courage that made the football fan attack the policeman. It will take a bit of Dutch courage to make an after-dinner speech.

Dutch treat a social occasion where one pays for oneself. (Viewed by some as insulting to the Dutch.) "It's nice of you to ask me out to dinner," she said, "but could we make it a Dutch treat?" The office outing is always a Dutch treat.

Dutch uncle a man who gives frank and direct advice to someone. (In the way an uncle might, but not a real relative.) I would not have to lecture you like a Dutch uncle if you were not so extravagant. He acts more like a Dutch uncle than a husband. He's forever telling her what to do in public.

duty bound (to do something) forced by a sense of duty and honor to do something. Good evening, madam. I'm duty bound to inform you that we have arrested your husband. No one made me say that. I was duty bound.

dwell in an ivory tower Go to in an ivory tower.

dwell (up)on someone or something to remain on the [important] subject of someone or something for a long time. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) I can't dwell upon this subject anymore. There is no need to dwell on Sarah further.

dwell (up)on something to live on something, such as the planet Earth. (Upon is more formal than on.) This is the largest turtle that dwells upon the earth. Many creatures dwell on this earth.

dwindle away (to something) and dwindle down (to something) to shrink, contract, or diminish to something. The noise dwindled away to nothing. It just dwindled down and was gone.

dwindle down (to something) Go to previous.

dyed-in-the-wool [of someone] permanent or extreme. My uncle was a dyed-in-the-wool farmer. He wouldn't change for anything. Sally is a dyed-in-the-wool socialist.

dying to do something Fig. very eager to do something. I'm just dying to go sailing in your new boat. After a long hot day like this one, I'm just dying for a cool drink.

dying to know (something) Fig. very eager to know something. I'm just dying to know how your weekend went.

eager beaver someone who is very enthusiastic; someone who works very hard. □ New volunteers are always eager beavers. □ The young assistant gets to work very early. She's a real eager beaver.

eagle eye acute eyesight; an intently watchful eye. (From the sharp eyesight of the eagle.) □ The students wrote their essays under the eagle eye of the headmaster. □ The umpire kept his eagle eye on the tennis match.

*an earful Fig. a great amount of discussion, criticism, gossip, or complaint. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ She was really mad about something, and I sure got an earful. □ Sue was standing around the corner while Jim and Mary were arguing and got an earful.

early bird 1. Fig. a person who gets up early. □ I never miss sunrise. I'm an early bird. □ The early birds were up at dawn and ready for breakfast. 2. Fig. a person who arrives early. □ The early birds get the best seats. □ There were some early birds who arrived before the party was set to start. 3. Fig. having to do with early arrival. (Usually hyphenated.) □ Early-bird arrivals will be given a free cup of coffee. □ The early-bird special this week is a free six-pack of iced tea for the first 100 visitors.

The early bird catches the worm. Prov. If you wake up and get to work early, you will succeed. (Sometimes used to remark that someone is awake and working surprisingly early, as in the first example.) □ Fred: What are you doing in the office at 7:30 A.M.? Jane: The early bird catches the worm. □ I didn't expect to see you studying at the library at this hour of the morning. The early bird catches the worm, huh?

early on early; at an early stage. □ We recognized the problem early on, but we waited too long to do something about it. □ This doesn't surprise me. I knew about it early on.

Early ripe, early rotten. and Soon ripe, soon rotten. Prov. A child with extraordinary talent or intelligence will probably lose those qualities by the time he or she grows up. □ Jill: Philip was such a fine young boy; I'm surprised he's become such a good-for-nothing adult. Jane: Early ripe, early rotten. □ Jane: You must be very proud of your little boy. He seems so mature for his age. Ellen: I'm afraid it won't last. You know what they say: "Soon ripe, soon rotten."

Early to bed and early to rise, makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise. Prov. Going to bed early and waking up early is good for success. □ Grandmother: I don't think it's good for you to be staying out so late, dear. Early to bed and early to rise— Grandson: Makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise. Yeah, Grandma, I know. □ Host: Don't leave so soon! The party's just beginning. Guest: It's past my bedtime, I'm afraid. Host: Early to bed, early to rise, huh?

earmark something for someone or something Fig. to reserve something for someone or something. □ Tom earmarked the best of the steaks for his special guests. □ I have earmarked this chair for the family room.

earn one's keep to help out with chores in return for food and a place to live; to earn one's pay by doing what is expected. □ I earn my keep at college by shoveling snow in the winter. □ Tom hardly earns his keep around here. He should be fired.

earn one's spurs Fig. to prove oneself. □ After that rodeo, all the cowboys agreed that Sally had earned her spurs. □ He felt that he had earned his spurs when he received his Ph.D.

ease away (from someone or something) to pull away from someone or something slowly and carefully. □ The great ship eased away from the pier. □ The ship eased away slowly.

ease back (on something) to move something back slowly and carefully. (Usually refers to a throttle or some other control on an airplane or other vehicle.) □ Ann eased back on the throttle and slowed down. □ Please ease back on the volume control a little. You will deafen us.

ease off [for something] to diminish. □ The rain began to ease off. □ The storm seems to have eased off a little.

ease off (from someone or something) to move away from someone or something, slowly and carefully. □ Ease off carefully from the deer, so you don't frighten it. □ Ease off quietly.

ease off (on someone or something) and ease up (on someone or something) to reduce the urgency with which one deals with someone or something; to put less pressure on someone or something. □ Ease off on John. He has been yelled at enough today. □ Yes, please ease off. I can't stand any more. □ Tell them to ease up on the horses. They are getting tired.

ease (on) out (of something) 1. Lit. to continue moving out of something, slowly and carefully. □ I was able to ease on out of the parking space, but only with difficulty. □ I looked both ways and eased on out. 2. Fig. to leave something, such as an office or position, quietly and without much embarrassment. □ The bum finally eased on out of office without much public notice. □ He eased out while the press was concerned with some other crisis.

ease someone (on) out (of something) 1. Lit. to help someone continue to get out of something. □ We helped ease her on out of the car. □ With care, we eased her on out. □ After taking a look around, Tom eased himself out of the opening. 2. Fig. to help someone decide to leave something, such as an office or position, quietly and without much embarrassment. □ The scandal eased her on out of office in a way that an election might not have. □ The scandal eased her on out.

ease someone or something along to help someone or something to move along, very carefully. □ Just ease the piano along little by little. □ She eased the shy child along.

ease someone or something down[†] (from something) to bring someone or something downward from something gently. □ The rescuers eased the injured hiker down from the mountain. □ They eased down the hiker carefully.

ease someone out of something and ease someone out[†]
1. Lit. to get someone out of something carefully. □ The paramedics eased the injured man out of the wreckage. □ Please ease out the patient carefully. 2. Fig. to get someone out of an office or position quietly and without much embarrassment. □ We eased the sheriff out of office without a fight. □ The board eased out the chairman by offering him a huge bonus.

ease up (on someone or something) Go to ease off (on someone or something).

easier said than done Cliché said of a task that is easier to talk about than to do. □ Yes, we must find a cure for cancer, but it's easier said than done. □ Finding a good job is easier said than done.

East is East and West is West (and never the twain shall meet). Prov. Two things are so different that they can never come together or agree. (From Rudyard Kipling's poem, "The Ballad of East and West.") □ I had hoped that Andrew and I could be friends in spite of our political differences. But, in our case, I'm afraid that East is East and West is West.

East, west, home's best. and East or west, home is best. Prov. Home is the best place to be no matter where it is. □ You may think that traveling all the time is fun, but eventually you'll discover that east or west, home is best.

easy as A, B, C and easy as falling off a log; *easy as rolling off a log; *easy as (apple) pie; *easy as duck soup very easy. (*Also: as ~.) □ If you use a cake mix, baking a cake is easy as A, B, C. □ Mountain climbing is as easy as pie. □ Finding your way to the shopping center is easy as duck soup. □ Getting out of jail was easy as rolling off a log.

easy as (apple) pie Go to previous.

easy as duck soup Go to easy as A, B, C.

easy as falling off a log Go to easy as A, B, C.

easy as rolling off a log Go to easy as A, B, C.

easy as shooting fish in a barrel Go to like shooting fish in a barrel.

easy come, easy go Cliché said to explain the loss of something that required only a small amount of effort to acquire in the first place. □ Ann found twenty dollars in the morning and spent it foolishly at noon. "Easy come, easy go," she said. □ John spends his money as fast as he can earn it. With John it's easy come, easy go.

Easy does it. 1. Move slowly and carefully. □ Bill (holding one end of a large crate): It's really tight in this doorway. Bob (holding the other end): Easy does it. Take your time. □ Nurse (holding Sue's arm): Easy does it. These first few steps are the hardest. Sue: I didn't know I was so weak. 2. Calm down.; Don't lose your temper. □ John: I'm so mad I could scream. Bob: Easy does it, John. No need to get so worked up. □ Sue (frantic): Where is my camera? My passport is gone too! Fred: Easy does it, Sue. I think you have someone else's purse.

easy money Go to soft money.

easy pickings [of things] easy to get or steal; [of people] easy to get or persuade. □ The pickpockets found lots of easy pickings at the state fair.

Easy, there! Calm down! □ "Easy, there!" said Arizona Slim, patting his horse's neck. □ Easy, there! Before you start yellin', tell me what you're yellin' about.

easy to come by easily found; easily purchased; readily available. □ Please be careful with that phonograph record. It was not easy to come by. □ A good dictionary is very easy to come by.

eat (a meal) out and dine out to eat a meal at a restaurant. □ I like to eat a meal out every now and then. □ Yes, it's good to eat out and try different kinds of food. □ It costs a lot of money to dine out often.

eat an animal up[†] Go to eat something up[†].

eat and run Fig. to eat a meal or a snack quickly and then leave. □ Well, I hate to eat and run but I have to take care of some errands. □ I don't invite John to dinner anymore because he always has some excuse to eat and run.

eat (away) at someone Fig. [for a problem] to trouble someone constantly. □ The nasty situation at work began to eat away at me. □ Nagging worries ate at me day and night.

eat (away) at something Fig. to erode something. □ The acid ate away at the metal floor. □ Fingers have a mild acid that eats at the metal of the door handle.

eat crow 1. Fig. to display total humility, especially when shown to be wrong. □ Well, it looks like I was wrong, and I'm going to have to eat crow. □ I'll be eating crow if I'm not shown to be right. 2. Fig. to be shamed; to admit that one was wrong. □ When it became clear that they had arrested the wrong person, the police had to eat crow. □ Mary talked to Joe as if he was an uneducated idiot, till she found out he was a college professor. That made her eat crow.

Eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die. Prov. Enjoy yourself whenever you can, because you may die soon. ("Eat, drink, and be merry" by itself is simply a way of encouraging people to enjoy themselves.) □ Fred: No cake for me, thank you. I'm on a diet. Jane: But, Fred, this is a birthday party. Eat, drink, and be merry. □ Natasha encouraged all her guests to eat, drink, and be merry, for tomorrow we die.

eat high on the hog Go to live high off the hog.

eat humble pie to act very humble when one is shown to be wrong. □ I think I'm right, but if I'm wrong, I'll eat humble pie. □ You think you're so smart. I hope you have to eat humble pie.

eat in to eat a meal at home. □ I really don't want to eat in tonight. □ Let's eat in. I'm tired.

eat in (to something) to erode into something; to etch something. □ The acidic water ate into the rocks on the shore. □ The acid ate in and weakened the structure.

eat like a bird Fig. to eat only small amounts of food; to peck at one's food. □ Jane is very slim because she eats like a bird. □ Bill is trying to lose weight by eating like a bird.

eat like a horse Fig. to eat large amounts of food. □ No wonder he's so fat. He eats like a horse. □ John works like a horse and eats like a horse, so he never gets fat.

Eat my shorts! Sl. Leave me alone!; Nonsense!; Drop dead! □ You're nuts! Eat my shorts! □ You think I'm going to clean up after you? Eat my shorts!

eat one's cake and have it too Go to have one's cake and eat it too.

eat one's fill to eat as much as one can hold; to eat as much as one wants. □ Please eat your fill. There's plenty for everyone.

eat one's hat Fig. a phrase telling the kind of thing that one would do if a very unlikely event really happens. □ If we get there on time, I'll eat my hat. □ I'll eat my hat if you get a raise. □ He said he'd eat his hat if she got elected.

eat one's heart out 1. Fig. to grieve; to be sorrowful. (Fixed order.) □ She has been eating her heart out over that jerk ever since he ran away with Sally. □ Don't eat your heart out. You really didn't like him that much, did you?
2. Fig. to suffer from envy or jealousy. (Usually a command.) □ Yeah, the reward money is all mine. Eat your heart out! □ Eat your heart out! I won it fair and square.

eat one's words Fig. to have to take back one's statements; to confess that one's predictions were wrong. □ You shouldn't say that to me. I'll make you eat your words. □ John was wrong about the election and had to eat his words.

eat out to eat a meal away from home, as at a restaurant. □ I just love to eat out every now and then. □ Let's eat out tonight. I'm tired.

eat out of someone's hand Fig. to do exactly as someone says; to grovel to someone. □ I've got her eating out of my hand. She'll do anything I ask. □ He will be eating out of your hand before you are finished with him.

eat someone out[†] Go to chew someone out[†].

eat someone out of house and home Fig. to eat everything that someone has in the house. □ That huge dog is eating us out of house and home. □ The entire football team came over and ate poor Sally out of house and home.

eat someone's lunch Sl. to best someone; to defeat, outwit, or win against someone. (Like a school bully taking away children's lunches and eating them.) □ The upstart ABC Computer Company is eating IBM's lunch.

eat someone's salt Rur. to be someone's guest. □ The least you can do when you're eating someone's salt is to help them out around the house. □ That good-for-nothing Jim was flirting with Bill's wife at the same time he was eating Bill's salt.

eat someone up[†] 1. Lit. to consume the flesh of someone. □ The big bad wolf said he was going to eat you up! □ The bear ate up the fish.
2. Fig. [for an idea] to consume a person. □ The whole idea of visiting Australia was just eating her up. □ The obsession to own a car was eating up my brother and his friends.
3. Fig. [for insects] to bite a person all over. □ These mosquitoes are just eating me up! □ The bugs literally ate up all the hikers.
4. Fig. [for someone] to overwhelm and devastate someone. □ The guy is a devil! He just eats up people! □ Fred will just eat you up. He is a vicious administrator.

eat something away[†] to erode something; to consume something bit by bit. □ The acid ate the finish away. □ It ate away the finish.

eat something off[†] Go to next.

eat something off (of) something and eat something off[†] to erode something off a larger part. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ The acidic rain ate the finish off the steeple. □ The acid ate off the finish.

eat something out[†] 1. to eat some kind of meal or a particular food away from home, as at a restaurant. □ We eat fish out, but we don't cook it at home. □ We may eat out a meal or two, but certainly not every meal.
2. [for something or an animal] to consume the inside of something. □ The ants ate the inside of the pumpkin out. □ The ants ate out the pumpkin.

eat (something) out of something to eat food directly from a container, such as a bag, box, can, etc. □ You shouldn't eat out of the can. □ Maria was eating potato chips right out of the bag.

eat something up[†] 1. and eat an animal up[†] Lit. to devour all of some food or an animal. □ They ate the turkey up, and no one had to eat leftovers. □ The lion ate up the zebra very quickly.
2. Fig. to consume something rapidly, such as money. □ Running this household eats my income up. □ The car really eats up gas.
3. Fig. to believe something. □ Those people really eat that stuff up about tax reduction. □ They'll eat up almost anything you tell them.
4. Fig. to appreciate something. □ The audience liked my singing; they really ate it up. □ The stuff about the federal budget went over well. They really ate up the whole story.

eat through (something) to erode all the way through something. □ The acid ate through the countertop and ruined everything in the drawers below. □ The vinegar ate through the top of the pickle jar.

Eat to live, not live to eat. Prov. Do not be gluttonous; Eating should not be your favorite activity, but something you do to maintain your health. □ "Eat to live, not live to eat," was the doctor's advice to Gene, who was dangerously overweight.

Eat up! to eat everything; to eat eagerly. (Usually a command to begin eating. Compare this with Drink up!.) □ Come on, let's eat up and get going. □ Eat up, you guys, and get back to work!

eat(en) up with something Fig. consumed with something, such as jealousy. □ Jed was so eaten up with hatred that he couldn't see straight. □ Effie was eaten up with jealousy.

eavesdrop on someone to listen in on people having a private conversation. □ I saw her eavesdropping on them. □ Please don't eavesdrop on me.

eavesdrop on something to listen in on a private conversation. □ She was eavesdropping on their conversation. □ Maria was eavesdropping on the telephone call.

Eavesdroppers never hear any good of themselves. and Listeners never hear any good of themselves. Prov. If you eavesdrop on people who are talking about you, chances are that you will hear them say unfavorable things about you. (This implies that you should not eavesdrop.) □ Child: Mommy, I heard Suzy and Lisa talking about me, and they said I was a crybaby!
Mother: That just goes to show you, dear, that eavesdroppers never hear any good of themselves. □ I knew that Mother and Dad had gone into the other room to discuss my situation, and I was tempted to put my ear to the door and listen to them, but I remembered that listeners never hear any good of themselves.

ebb and flow to decrease and then increase, as with tides; a decrease followed by an increase, as with tides. □ The fortunes of the major political parties tend to ebb and flow over time. □ The ebb and flow of democracy through history is a fascinating subject.

ebb away to recede; to subside; to flow back. □ His life ebbed away little by little. □ As the sunlight ebbed away, the sky took on a grayish color.

echo back to something [for something] to recall something similar in the past. □ This idea echoes back to the end of the last century, when people thought this way.

echo with something 1. Lit. [for a large space] to resound with the echoing sounds of a loud noise. □ The cathedral echoed with the sounds of the organ. □ The valley echoed with the sound of horses' hooves. 2. Fig. [for something] to have reminders of something. (Literary and very limited.) □ My thoughts echoed with the sounds of spring. □ The room echoed with happier days.

economical with the truth Euph. untruthful. □ The mayor was known to be economical with the truth. □ I discovered that my boss had been economical with the truth when she said that the company was making money.

economize on something to save money by cutting the cost of something. □ We will have to economize on our food budget. □ We can only economize on a few things.

edge away (from someone or something) to move cautiously away from someone or something. □ We edged away from the dirty man in the ragged clothes. □ As others saw the gun, they edged away.

edge by (someone or something) to move carefully past someone or something. □ Try to edge by the portly gentleman carefully. He is very grumpy about being bumped. □ Edge by as carefully as you can.

the edge on someone Go to the advantage of someone.

edge (one's way) across (something) to make one's way across something carefully. □ The hikers edged their way across the narrow ledge. □ Now, edge your way across and don't look down.

edge (one's way) around something to make one's way around something carefully. □ I edged my way around the table, trying not to disturb anyone. □ Sam edged around the perimeter of the room.

the edge over someone Go to the advantage of someone.

edge someone out of something to pressure someone gradually to leave something; to put gradual pressure on someone to retire from a job. □ We grasped the child's hand and edged her out of the stable without frightening the horses. □ The board tried to edge him out of the job by limiting his staff and budget.

edge something out† Go to next.

edge something out of something and edge something out† to move something out of something very carefully, bit by bit. □ Sam edged the control rod out of the reactor, using the remote control device. □ Mary edged the car out of the parking place. □ Carefully, she edged out the car.

edge something with something to put an edging or border of something onto something. □ The tailor edged the hem with lace, making the skirt appear longer. □ The hem was edged with lace.

edit something out of something and edit something out† to strike out words or sentences from something that is going to be published; to cut out textual material in the editing process. □ She edited the foul language out of the essay. □ Frank edited out the misspelled words.

educate someone for something to train someone for something or to do something. □ I wasn't educated for doing this kind of thing. □ He had spent many years educating himself for just this kind of job.

educate someone in something to train someone about something; to school someone in something. □ Her parents educated her in the ways of the old country. □ She had educated herself in the ways of big business.

egg someone on to encourage, urge, or dare someone to continue doing something, usually something unwise. □ John wouldn't have done the dangerous experiment if his brother hadn't egged him on. □ The two boys kept throwing stones because the other children were egging them on.

eighty-six something Sl. to throw something away. □ Let's eighty-six this stew and go out and get some decent pizza.

(either) feast or famine Fig. either too much (of something) or not enough (of something). (*Typically: be ~; have ~.) □ This month is very dry, and last month it rained almost every day. Our weather is either feast or famine. □ Sometimes we are busy, and sometimes we have nothing to do. It's feast or famine.

eject someone from some place to use force to make someone leave a place; to throw someone out of some place. □ The management ejected Sam from the theater. □ He was ejected from the theater.

eke something out† to extend something; to add to something. □ He worked at two jobs in order to eke his income out. □ He managed to eke out a living.

elaborate on someone or something to give additional details about someone or something. □ Would you care to elaborate on that? □ I want to know more about Kelly. Could you elaborate on her?

elbow grease Fig. hard scrubbing. □ Tom: What did you use to get your car so shiny? Mary: Just regular wax and some elbow grease. □ Joe put a lot of elbow grease into cleaning the kitchen.

elbow (one's way) through (something) to push or drive oneself through something, such as a crowd, perhaps using one's elbows or arms to move people out of the way. □ She elbowed her way through the crowd. □ Jerry elbowed through the people gathered at the door.

elbow someone aside† to push someone aside with one's elbow or arm. □ She elbowed the other woman aside and there was almost a fight. □ The rude woman elbowed aside all the other people.

elbow someone out of something and elbow someone out† Fig. to force or pressure someone out of something, such as an office, post, or status. □ The board managed to elbow out the old head of the company. □ They tried to elbow me out, but I held on to what was mine.

elect someone (as) something to select someone to be something by ballot. □ We elected her as our representative. □ She was elected as our president.

elect someone to something to select someone to be a member of something by ballot; to select someone to be an officer in something by ballot. □ We elected you to office, so do your job. □ Tom was elected to the congress.

an elegant sufficiency Go to a gracious plenty.

elevate someone or something to something to raise the status of someone to something; to promote someone to something higher, such as a job, a better status, etc. □ The success elevated her to a new rank and higher pay. □ The boss's attention elevated the policy question to the highest priority. □ She sought to elevate herself to some sort of social goddess.

eleventh-hour decision Fig. a decision made very late in a process, or at the last possible moment. □ Eleventh-hour decisions are seldom satisfactory. □ The president's eleventh-hour decision was made in a great hurry, but it turned out to be correct.

elicit something from someone to obtain information from someone. □ I hoped to elicit a statement from the mayor, but I could not reach her. □ Larry was not able to elicit anything new from Jane.

eliminate someone or something from something to remove someone or something from something. □ We had to eliminate Jeff from the list. □ The cook eliminated veal from the menu. □ She sought to eliminate herself from consideration.

elope with someone to sneak away with someone and get married without much ceremony. □ Sally eloped with Tom, and everyone was surprised. □ I don't want to elope with Juan. I want a church wedding.

emanate from someone or something to arise from or come out of someone or something. □ A strange smell emanated from the basement. □ Some kind of eerie light emanated from the eyes of the statue.

emancipate someone from someone or something to free someone from someone or something. □ The president emancipated the slaves from their bondage. □ The planter emancipated Fred from slavery long before the law was written.

embark for some place to leave for some place, usually in a ship or an airplane. □ We are embarking for Denver tomorrow morning. □ Maria is embarking for Honolulu in just a few minutes.

embark on something 1. Lit. to begin a journey by boarding a ship, airplane, etc. □ They embarked on their journey from San Juan. 2. Fig. to begin a project; to begin any process. □ When will you embark on your new project?

embarrass someone about someone or something to make someone feel bad or ashamed about someone or something. □ Please don't embarrass me by mentioning my mistake again. □ There is no need to embarrass her about her unfortunate sister.

embarrass someone into doing something to shame someone into doing something. □ They tried to embarrass me into doing it, but I resisted. □ Juan tried to embarrass Fred into going home early.

embarrass someone with something to use something to make someone feel bad or ashamed. □ Please don't embarrass me with that old story again. □ Maria embarrassed Henry with a reminder of what had happened.

embed someone or something in something to insert someone or something in something. □ The team of oxen embedded their legs in the muddy river bottom. □ Laura embedded sequins in the candles and turned them into clever gifts.

embed something in something to stick something into something. □ The mugger only embedded his knife in the cloth of the victim's coat. □ A ring was embedded in the bread dough by accident.

embellish something with something 1. Lit. to ornament something with something. □ He embellished the painting with too many little decorations. □ The room has been embellished with too many baroque sconces. 2. Fig. to add to a story with detail. □ The storyteller embellished the tale with the names of people in the audience. □ I always try to embellish my tales with a little local color. 3. Fig. to add untrue things to a story. □ He tends to embellish the truth with a few imaginative details. □ There is no need to embellish this story with anything untrue.

embezzle something from someone or something to steal something from someone or a group. □ They caught her embezzling funds from the bank. □ Jerry's business partner embezzled a large sum from their checking account.

emblazon something on(to) something 1. to decorate something with something. □ The workers emblazoned wild decorations on the door. □ They emblazoned their name on the side of the building. 2. to put some writing or symbols that proclaim something onto something. □ The knight emblazoned his crest onto his shield. □ The craftsman emblazoned the knight's crest on his shield.

emblazon something with something to decorate something with writing or symbols. □ They emblazoned the wall with pictures of past triumphs. □ His shield was emblazoned with the family crest.

embody something in something to actualize something in something; to make something represent something else in actuality. □ I tried to embody both good and evil in my painting. □ A strong sense of morality is embodied in her writing.

embroil someone in something Fig. to entangle someone in something; to get someone involved in something. □ Please do not embroil me in your squabbles. □ I wish I could keep from embroiling myself in this kind of mess.

emerge (from something) (as something) to come out of something as something. □ The caterpillar would emerge as a butterfly in a short time. □ A new man emerged from prison.

emigrate (from some place) (to some place) to move away from a foreign land to a new land. □ My family emigrated from England to this country over two centuries ago. □ They emigrated to this country from England.

emit something (from something) (into something) to discharge something from something into something else. □ The snake emitted poison from its fangs into the cup the man held. □ It emitted venom into the cup from its fangs.

empathize with someone or something to have an understanding about the way someone feels; to feel emotional pain with someone. □ I can really empathize with what you must be going through. I've been through the same thing. □ I empathize with people who have the same family problems that I have.

employ someone as something to pay someone to work in some capacity. □ I employed Fred as a personal secretary for about three months. □ Can you employ me as a stock clerk?

employ someone for something to hire someone for a particular purpose. □ I employ him for special chores around the factory. □ Kelly employed Walter for emergency repairs on the night shift.

employ someone in something to pay someone to work in a particular type of work. □ I employ Tom in machine maintenance. □ Laura is employed in accounting.

empower someone to do something to authorize someone to do something; to grant someone the power to do something. □ I will empower you to collect the dues of the members. □ The prime minister empowered a special office to oversee tax collection.

emptier than a banker's heart Rur. completely empty. □ My wallet was emptier than a banker's heart. □ His pockets were emptier than a banker's heart.

empty into something [for a river, stream, or man-made conduit] to pour its contents into something. □ The Amazon River empties into the Atlantic Ocean. □ The drainage pipe empties into the river.

An empty sack cannot stand upright. Prov. A poor or hungry person cannot function properly. □ Sit down and have something to eat before you go back to work. An empty sack can't stand upright.

empty someone out[†] to cause someone to empty the bowels, stomach, or bladder. □ This medication will empty you out. □ This stuff could empty out an army! □ He fasted for two days to empty himself out.

empty something into something and empty something in[†] to pour something into something else. □ Now, empty the can of soup into the pan. □ Open the can and empty in the contents.

empty something out[†] to remove or pour all of the contents from something. □ Please empty this drawer out and clean it. □ She emptied out the aquarium and cleaned it well.

Empty vessels make the most sound. Prov. Foolish people make the most noise. □ I suspect Amy is not very smart. She chatters constantly, and as they say, empty vessels make the most sound.

enable someone to do something to make it possible for someone to do something. □ This money will enable me to open my own business. □ My uncle enabled me to open my own candy shop.

enamored of someone or something to feel love for someone or something. (Often an exaggeration. *Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ She is hopelessly enamored of Tom. □ Tom is enamored of chocolate ice cream.

encase someone or something in something to contain someone or something in something. □ We encased her broken leg in a splint and raced to the hospital. □ Sammy encased the butterfly in a glass display box.

enchant someone with something 1. Lit. to bewitch someone or something with a magic spell. □ The children were enchanted with a spell that made them forget. 2. Fig. to fascinate someone with some object. □ She enchanted the children with the little drawings she made of them. □ We were enchanted with her drawings.

enclose someone or something (with)in something to contain someone, something, or some space inside of something. □ The police enclosed the people in a safe area while the accident was being cleaned up. □ The farmer enclosed the pig within a new pen.

encompass someone or something (with)in something to surround or include someone or something within the domain or span of something. □ We encompassed the group within our administrative area. □ They could not encompass our neighborhood in the new school district.

encourage someone in something to give support to someone about something in particular. □ We want to encourage her in her musical career. □ Ted encouraged me in my efforts to become a baseball player.

encourage someone to do something to inspire or stimulate someone to do something; to give someone the courage to do something. □ We encouraged her to develop her musical talents. □ He encouraged himself to study hard so he could make it into medical school.

encroach (up)on someone or something to infringe or trespass on someone or something; to move into the space belonging to someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ I did not mean to encroach upon your property. □ I need lots of space. Don't encroach on me.

encumber someone or something with someone or something to burden someone or something with someone or something. □ Please do not try to encumber me with your debts. □ She encumbered the marriage with a number of children from a previous marriage. □ She encumbered herself with the weight of both children and her purse.

*an end in itself existing for its own sake; existing for no clear purpose. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ For Bob, art is an end in itself. He doesn't hope to make any money from it. □ Learning is an end in itself. Knowledge does not have to have a practical application.

end in something [for something, such as a play, film, opera, etc.] to end in a particular way. □ The opera ended in a lengthy duet before the death of the heroine. □ The party ended in a champagne toast.

end it (all) Euph. to kill oneself. □ He had been depressed for months. He decided to end it all. □ I'm no good to anybody. I'm going to end it. Don't try to talk me out of it.

The end justifies the means. Prov. You can use bad or immoral methods as long as you accomplish something good by using them. (Not everyone agrees with this idea.) □ Lucy got money for the orphanage by embezzling it from the firm where she worked. "The end justifies the means," she told herself. □ The politician clearly believed that the end justifies the means, since he used all kinds of nefarious means to get elected.

End of story. Inf. That completes the story, and I will say no more. □ I did it because I wanted to. End of story.

the end of the ball game Fig. the end of some process; the end of life. □ Well, the car broke down. I guess that's the end of the ball game. □ It looked like the end of the ball game as we sped too fast around the curve.

the end of the line Go to next.

the end of the road and the end of the line 1. Lit. the place where the road stops; the end of the route, such as a bus, train, or subway route. □ Our house is at the end of the road. □ We drove to the end of the road and began our hike into the mountains. 2. Fig. the end of the whole process. □ When we reach the end of the road on this project, we'll get paid. □ You've come to the end of the line. I'll not lend you another penny. 3. Euph. death. □ When I reach the end of the road, I wish to be buried in a quiet place, near some trees. □ She was nearly ninety when she came to the end of the line.

end something up[†] to terminate something; to bring something to an end. □ He ended his vacation up by going to the beach. □ She ended up her speech with a poem.

end up to come to an end. □ When will all this end up? □ I think that the party will have to end up about midnight.

end up (as) (something) to become something at the end of everything. □ I always knew I would end up as a doctor. □ If I don't get a job, I will end up a beggar.

end up at something to be at something or some place at the end. □ The plane ended up at Denver airport because of a storm in Colorado Springs. □ We ended up at home for the evening because the car broke down.

end up (by) doing something and wind up (by) doing something 1. to conclude something by doing something. □ We ended up by going back to my house. □ They danced until midnight and wound up by having pizza in the front room. 2. to end by doing something [anyway]. □ I wound up by going home early.

end up in the poorhouse Go to in the poorhouse.

end up (somehow) to end something at a particular place, in a particular state, or by having to do something. □ I ended up having to pay for everyone's dinner. □ After paying for dinner, I ended up broke. □ We all ended up at my house. □ After playing in the rain, we all ended up with colds.

end up (somewhere) and wind up (somewhere) to finish at a certain place. □ If you don't get straightened out, you'll end up in jail. □ I fell and hurt myself, and I wound up in the hospital.

end up with all the marbles Go to all the marbles.

end up with someone or something to finish with the possession of someone or something or in the company of someone or something. □ Careful or you will end up with Johnny for the weekend. □ Do you want to end up with the bill? □ I thought my date was with Sally, but I ended up with her twin sister.

end up with the short end of the stick Go to the short end of the stick.

end with something to make something the final element, just before the end. □ We will end with the singing of the school song. □ The concert ended with a vigorous march.

endear someone to someone or something to cause someone to be cherished by someone else or a group. □ Her good humor endears her to all of us. □ Sally endears herself to everyone because she is so funny. □ She failed to endear herself to her husband's parents.

endeavor to do something to try to do something. □ Whenever I endeavor to console her, she breaks down again. □ Maria endeavored to comfort Henry.

endow someone or something with something 1. to give something to someone or something. □ We endowed her with the courage she needed to do the job. □ Gerald endowed the proceedings with a distinctive atmosphere. 2. to provide someone or something with a large sum of money that will provide income. □ I will endow my alma mater with some of my fortune. □ The family endowed a chair in the humanities at the university.

enfold someone in something to wrap or contain someone in something. □ He enfolded the tiny baby in a soft blanket. □ Sarah enfolded herself in the silk sheets and giggled with glee.

enforce something on someone to make a law effective with regard to someone. □ I can't enforce this on her if I don't enforce it on you. □ This law can't be enforced on anyone.

engage in small talk to talk only about minor matters rather than important matters or personal matters. □ All the people at the party were engaging in small talk. □ They chatted about the weather and otherwise engaged in small talk.

engage someone as something to hire someone to serve as something. □ Yes, I engaged her as a secretary just last month. □ Will you engage me as a general troubleshooter?

engage someone or something in something 1. to make someone or a group busy doing something. □ She knew how to engage the boys in useful activity. □ The den mother engaged the scouts in a woodworking project. 2. to draw someone or something into something. □ The enemy sought to engage our troops in battle but failed. □ I tried to engage Gerald in conversation.

engage someone to someone to betroth someone to someone. □ Her parents engaged her to the man she ended up marrying. □ She engaged herself to some guy she met at a singles bar.

engage (itself) on someone or something and engage (itself) with something [for an animal] to drink its fill of blood. □ The vampire bat engaged itself on a number of creatures last night. □ Mosquitoes engage on human victims. □ The mosquitoes engaged themselves with my blood all night long.

engage (itself) with something Go to previous.

engrave something into something to cut symbols into something. □ She engraves a lovely design into the soap that she puts out for guests. □ Todd engraved his initials into the bark of the tree.

engrave something on(to) something to cut symbols into the surface of something. □ She engraved her initials onto the side of the tree. □ Ted engraved her name on the bracelet.

engrave something (up)on something 1. Lit. to cut letters or a design into the surface of something; to engrave something on(to) something. □ Todd engraved his initials into the bark of the tree. □ Their names were engraved onto each of their wedding rings. □ He asked them to engrave his initials upon the back of his watch. □ He engraved his name on the desktop. 2. Fig. to imprint something firmly on someone's mind. □ I engraved the combination to the safe upon my brain. □ The teacher engraved the definition of a noun into my memory.

E

engrave something with something 1. to carve something, such as letters, into something. □ He engraved the soft pewter with an old motto. □ Can you engrave my watch with a date? 2. to carve on something, using some tool or device. □ The worker engraved the watch with a sharp stylus. □ Can I engrave this bracelet with this tool? Is it sharp enough?

engraved in stone Go to carved in stone.

engross someone in something to occupy someone's time or thinking with something. □ You can't expect me to engross Tom in my work. □ We were all engrossed in what the speaker had to say.

engulf someone or something in something [for the fog, a flood, or waves] to swallow up someone or something. □ The fog engulfed the small town in heavy mist. □ The waves engulfed the small boat in thousands of gallons of water.

enjoin someone or something from something [for a court] to order someone or something not to do something. □ The judge enjoined her from further action in this matter. □ The company was enjoined from further dumping of waste.

enjoin someone to do something to order someone to do something. □ We sought to enjoin her to remain in office. □ Sally wants to enjoin the committee to finish its work on time.

enjoy the best of both worlds Go to the best of both worlds.

Enjoy your meal. an expression used by food servers after the food has been served. □ The waiter set the plates on the table, smiled, and said, "Enjoy your meal." □ Waiter: Here's your dinner. Jane: Oh, this lobster looks lovely! Tom: My steak looks just perfect. Waiter: Enjoy your meal.

enlarge (up)on something Go to expand (up)on something.

enlighten someone (about someone or something) and enlighten someone (on someone or something) to tell someone the facts about someone or something. □ Please enlighten me about this trip you are planning. □ Would you enlighten me on the current state of things? □ Enlighten me about Sarah. □ She enlightened herself about automobile engines.

enlist (oneself) for something to sign up for something; to enroll for something. □ Sam wouldn't enlist for service. □ Todd enlisted himself for the army last week.

enlist (oneself) in something to join something; to join the armed services. □ She decided not to enlist herself in the air force. □ Bill enlisted in the army.

enlist someone for something to enroll someone for something; to seek help for something from someone. □ I enlisted all of them for the understudy parts. □ Can I enlist you for the committee?

enlist someone in something to recruit someone into something; to recruit someone into the armed services. □ They tried to enlist me in the army, but I decided against it. □ David enlisted his brother in an organization that gave assistance to peasants in South America.

enmesh someone or something in something 1. Lit. to entangle someone or a group in something. □ Don't enmesh yourself in these ropes and chains. □ I didn't mean to enmesh you in this net. I should have kept it out of the way. □ Jane enmeshed herself in the net that had been set out to dry. 2. Fig. to get someone or a group involved in some problem. □ They enmeshed us in their problems even though we tried to avoid it. □ We enmeshed the entire committee in the lawsuit. □ Why do I always enmesh myself in someone else's business?

enough and some to spare Fig. plenty. □ Would you like some more pie? We've got enough and some to spare. □ Mary: Can I borrow a cup of milk? Tom: Don't worry about borrowing. Take it. I have enough and some to spare.

Enough is as good as a feast. Prov. You do not need more than enough of anything. □ We don't have much of a surplus of food for dinner tonight, but enough is as good as a feast. □ Jane: I wish I could offer you more lavish hospitality. Jane: Don't be silly. Enough is as good as a feast.

Enough is enough. Prov. That is enough, and there should be no more.; Stop! □ Stop asking for money! Enough is enough! □ I've heard all the complaining from you that I can take. Enough is enough!

enough something to plague a saint and something is enough to plague a saint Rur. enough of something to annoy even a patient person. □ That little boy has enough curiosity to plague a saint! □ Sally's a well-meaning woman, but her endless gossiping is enough to plague a saint.

enough (something) to go (a)round enough to serve a need; enough to serve all who have a need. □ There's not enough coffee to go around. □ Will there be enough chocolates to go around?

enough to keep body and soul together Fig. very little; only enough to survive. (Usually refers to money.) □ When he worked for the library, Marshall only made enough to keep body and soul together. □ Maria's savings were just enough to keep body and soul together while she looked for another job.

enrich someone or something with something to improve or enhance someone or something with something. □ You might want to enrich this soup with a little milk or cream. □ The teacher enriched her students with field trips and films.

enroll (someone) for something to sign someone up for something; to allow someone to join something. □ I intend to enroll myself for physics next year. □ Todd enrolled himself for a refresher course in algebra.

enroll (someone) in something to sign someone up to be in something. □ They enrolled me in calculus against my wishes. □ I want to enroll myself in the history class offered at the latest hour.

ensconce oneself in something Fig. to establish oneself in something; to settle oneself into something; to place oneself firmly into something. □ He ensconced himself in the most comfortable chair. □ Sally ensconced herself in the huge throne and pretended she was a queen.

enshrine someone in one's heart and enshrine someone's memory in one's heart Fig. to keep the memory of someone in a special place in one's heart or mind. □ Bob enshrined Jill's memory in his heart.

enshrine someone's memory in one's heart Go to previous.

enshrine something in something to honor someone or something by placement in a shrine. □ Bill enshrined his grandfather's watch in a glass dome.

ensnare someone or something in something 1. Lit. to capture someone or something in something. □ Dave ensnared the rabbit in his trap. □ Henry ensnared himself in the trap they had laid for deer. 2. Fig. to catch or "trap" someone in an act or pattern of deception. □ She sought to ensnare him in his own framework of lies. □ He ensnared himself in his many lies.

ensue from something to result from someone or something. □ What ensued from the change in policy was not anticipated at all. □ A very serious problem ensued from the events of the day.

entangle someone or something in something 1. and entangle an animal in something Lit. to catch or tangle up someone, a group, or an animal in something. □ Careful! Don't entangle your foot in the anchor chain. □ Somehow I entangled the dog in the fishing net. 2. Fig. to get someone or a group involved in something. □ She was trying to entangle us in her latest cause. □ They entangled us in their lawsuit.

entangle someone or something with something to get someone or something tangled up with something. □ He sought to entangle the pursuing mugger with a mass of ropes and boards. □ Sam entangled the rabid dog with a net and got away. □ He entangled himself with the ropes on the deck.

enter in something to enroll as a participant in something, such as a contest, competition, etc. □ She was not ready to enter in the competition. □ I can't enter in that contest. I'm not prepared.

enter into something 1. Lit. to get into something. □ She entered into the house and immediately went to work. □ As the people entered into the cathedral, they became quiet. 2. Fig. to join in something; to participate in something. □ I couldn't get him to enter into the spirit of the party. □ She just loves to enter into things and have a good time with people.

enter one's mind Fig. [for an idea or memory] to come into one's consciousness; to be thought of. □ Leave you behind? The thought never even entered my mind. □ A very interesting idea just entered my mind. What if I ran for Congress?

enter someone or something in(to) something to enroll someone or something in something; to make someone or something a competitor in something. □ I will enter you into the contest whether you like it or not. □ The trainer entered his fastest horse in the race.

enter (something) by something and enter (something) through something to enter something or some place by way of a certain entrance. □ We entered the building by the west door. □ You should enter through the revolving door only.

enter the fray Go to join the fray.

enter the lists Fig. to begin to take part in a contest or argument. □ He had decided not to stand for Parliament, but entered the lists at the last minute. □ The family disagreement had almost been resolved when the grandfather entered the lists.

enter (up)on something 1. to come in at a particular point as marked by something. □ We entered the theater upon the most delicate point of the story. □ We entered on the tail end of a live scene. 2. to begin something. □ Todd entered upon a new phase of his life. □ He entered on the management of a new project.

entertain someone with something to provide something for amusement or refreshment to someone. □ Will you try to entertain the children with a game or two, please? □ She entertained herself with the puzzle.

enthrall someone with something to charm or captivate someone with something. □ They enthralled us with the beauty of their singing. □ The children enthralled us with their rustic dances.

entice someone or an animal into doing something to lure or cajole someone or an animal into doing something. □ We finally enticed him into running for office. □ Donna enticed the cat into coming down from the tree.

entice someone or an animal into something to lure someone or an animal into something. □ Can I entice you into the house for some cold lemonade? □ We were able to entice the squirrel into the box with nuts.

entice someone or an animal with something to lure someone or an animal with something. □ We tried to entice him with a description of the cake, but he was not interested in coming. □ If the cat won't come in, try enticing it with a bit of fish.

entitle someone to do something [for something] to qualify someone to do something. □ This ticket entitles you to go in and take a seat. □ Does this paper entitle me to get a discount?

entomb someone or an animal in something to imprison someone or an animal in a tomblike enclosure. □ Please don't entomb me in that huge, cold office. □ Unknowingly, when they closed the door, they had entombed a tiny mouse in the church.

entrap someone (in something) (with something) Fig. to use something to deceive someone into involvement in something. □ The investigators entrapped Max into breaking the law with promises to buy the goods he stole. □ They entrapped Max into breaking the law.

entreat someone to do something to beg someone to do something. □ They entreated us to come back as soon as we could. □ I entreat you to think it over again.

entrust someone or something to someone to place someone or something into the protection of someone. □ Can I entrust Johnny to you while I shop? □ I entrusted my share of the money to Fred until I returned to town.

entrust someone with someone or something to trust someone to provide protection and care for someone or something. □ Can I entrust you with Johnny while I go in and vote? I entrusted Fred with my share of the money until I returned. I would not even entrust myself with the care of this priceless vase!

E

entwine around someone or something to weave or wind around someone or something. The snake entwined around the limb of the tree. The huge python entwined around the horrified farmer.

entwine something around someone or something to weave or wind something around someone or something. They entwined their arms around each other. Jack entwined the garland of flowers around Jill.

enunciate something to someone to say something to someone very clearly and distinctly. Now, enunciate it to everyone, because they probably did not understand you the first time. I will enunciate it to you one more time, slowly.

envelop someone or something in someone or something to wrap someone or something in someone or something. The fog enveloped us in its grasp. Mountains of fog rolled in and enveloped the house in dense vapor.

envisage someone or something as someone or something to imagine or visualize someone or something as someone or something. I envisaged you as a more graceful person than you are. We envisaged the living room as sort of a gathering place for the entire family.

envision someone as someone else and envision something as something else to imagine or fantasize someone as someone else; to imagine or fantasize something as something else. I envision her as the next company president. We envisioned this as larger than it turned out to be.

envy someone for someone or something to regard one with jealousy or resentment because of someone or something one has. I envy you for your lovely car. We all envy you for your beautiful children.

equal someone or something in something to be even or identical with someone or something in something. John equals Bill in strength and size, I think. This cake equals that one in texture but not in richness.

equal to someone as good or as accomplished as someone else. I certainly feel equal to Randy. He's nothing special. I don't think that Bill feels equal to Bob, even though they are twins.

equal to someone or something able to handle or deal with someone or something. I'm afraid that I'm not equal to Mrs. Smith's problem right now. Please ask her to come back later. That's a very difficult task, but I'm sure Bill is equal to it.

equate someone or something with someone or something to compare people and things, in any combination. I tend to equate Tom with trouble. I equate the Johnsons with a long boring evening.

equate someone to someone else and equate something to something else to claim that someone is in some manner the same as someone else; to claim that something is in some manner the same as something else. I would equate Tom to Wally when it comes to native ability. You cannot equate my car to that jalopy you drive!

equip someone or something (with something) (for something) to outfit someone or something with something for something; to provide equipment for someone or something for some purpose. We equipped everyone with a spade for digging. They equipped the rescuers with equipment for any conceivable occurrence.

equip something with something to add a piece of equipment to something. We will equip our truck with a plow blade and plow snow this winter. This car is equipped with air-conditioning.

erase something from something 1. Lit. to delete or wipe something from something. Please erase the writing from the blackboard. I will erase the incorrectly spelled word from my paper. 2. Fig. to remove something from something. Erase that smile from your face! I hope you will erase that thought from your mind.

erupt from something to burst out of something or some place. A billow of smoke erupted from the chimney. A mass of ashes and gasses erupted from the volcano.

erupt into something [for something] to become a serious problem suddenly. The argument erupted into a terrible fight. They were afraid the fight would erupt into a riot.

escalate into something to intensify into something; to increase gradually into something. This argument is going to escalate into something serious very soon. These cases of the flu could escalate into a real epidemic.

escalate something into something to cause something to intensify. He escalated the argument into a vicious fight. The dictator tried to escalate the disagreement into a cause for war.

escape by the skin of one's teeth Go to by the skin of one's teeth.

escape (from someone or something) (to some place) to get away from someone, something, or some place to another place. Max escaped from prison to a hideout in Alabama. He escaped to Alabama from one of the worst-run prisons in the land.

escape someone's notice Fig. to go unnoticed; not to have been noticed. (Usually a way to point out that someone has failed to see or respond to something.) I suppose my earlier request escaped your notice, so I'm writing again. I'm sorry. Your letter escaped my notice.

escort someone or something from something to accompany or lead someone or something away from something or some place. A police officer escorted them from the auditorium. A band of honorary pallbearers escorted the coffin from the chapel.

escort someone or something to something to accompany or lead someone or something to something or some place. We escorted the women to their seats. Claude escorted Harry to the exit and bade him farewell.

establish someone or something as someone or something to validate or confirm someone or something as someone or something. As soon as we establish her as a viable candidate, we will launch the publicity campaign. She established herself as an authority on rare books.

establish someone or something in something to set someone or something up in something or some place; to install someone or something in something or some place. We established a restaurant in the middle of downtown. My uncle established me in the candy business.

estimate the cost at some amount to approximate the cost of something at a particular amount. □ I estimate the cost at about one hundred dollars. □ The cost of repairing the car was estimated at over four thousand dollars!

estranged from someone to be alienated from someone. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ Toward the end, they were estranged from each other, so a separation was perfectly natural. □ She had been estranged from her husband for a number of years.

etch something in(to) something and etch something in† to erode a design or message into something, usually with acid. □ They etched their family crest into their good crystal. □ He etched in his initials.

eternal life Euph. life after death. □ He passed on into eternal life, leaving us behind to mourn. □ She is now at rest in eternal life.

the eternal triangle a sexual or emotional relationship involving two women and one man or two men and one woman. (Typically, a couple [man and woman] and another man or woman.) □ Henry can't choose between his wife and his mistress. It's the eternal triangle. □ I'm surprised Jane doesn't get tired of the eternal triangle. She goes out with Peter at the weekend and Jim during the week.

evacuate one's bowels Euph. to defecate. □ After taking a jog around the block, Jill felt the need to evacuate her bowels. □ I am afraid my little boy is sick. He has not evacuated his bowels for several days.

evacuate someone (from something) (to something) to remove someone from something or some place to another thing or place, as in an emergency. □ They had to evacuate everyone from the subway station to a nearby building. □ The rescuers evacuated the people from the flames.

evaluate someone as something to judge someone's performance as something. □ I will have to evaluate you as a new student. □ We must evaluate ourselves as teachers and leaders.

Even a worm will turn. Prov. Even a meek person will become angry if you abuse him or her too much. □ You'd better stop maltreating Amy. She's a mild-mannered woman, but even a worm will turn.

even as we speak Go to as we speak.

an even break a fair chance; a fair judgment. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Please give me an even break! I need some help here!

even if it kills me Fig. [pledging to do something] even if [doing it] is very difficult. □ Don't worry. I will get it done even if it kills me.

even in the best of times even when things are good; even when things are going well. □ It is hard to get high-quality leather even in the best of times. □ John had difficulty getting a loan even in the best of times because of his poor credit record.

even something out† to make something even or level. □ Please even the gravel out. □ They evened out the surface of the road.

even something up† to make something even, square, level, equal, balanced, etc. □ I'll even the table up. □ See if you can even up the legs of this table. It wobbles.

even steven to be even (with someone or something) by having repaid a debt, replied in kind, etc. □ Bill hit Tom; then Tom hit Bill. Now they are even steven. □ Mary paid Ann the $100 she owed her. Ann said, "Good, we are even steven."

(Even) the best of friends must part. Prov. Even very good friends cannot stay together forever. □ Child: I don't want Debby to move away. She's my best friend. Mother: Sometimes the best of friends must part, honey, even if they don't want to.

even (with someone) not being indebted to someone for money; no longer needing to retaliate against someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ I will get even with you for breaking my baseball bat! □ Jimmy got even with Bill by punching him in the nose.

the evening of life Euph. old age. □ As she approached the evening of life, Sarah looked back on her accomplishments with satisfaction. □ The residents of this rest home are all in the evening of life.

ever and anon now and then; occasionally. (Literary and archaic.) □ Ever and anon the princess would pay a visit to the sorcerer in the small walled garden directly behind the castle.

Every cloud has a silver lining. Prov. You can derive some benefit from every bad thing that happens to you. (You can also refer to the silver lining of a particular cloud, the benefit you can derive from a particular misfortune.) □ I'm sorry your business is going badly, but don't despair. Every cloud has a silver lining. □ When Mary's friends visited her in the hospital, they tried to cheer her up, but Mary never could find the silver lining in the cloud of her illness.

Every dog has its day. and Every dog has his day. Prov. Everyone gets a chance eventually. □ Don't worry, you'll get chosen for the team. Every dog has its day. □ You may become famous someday. Every dog has his day.

every fool thing every ridiculous or insignificant thing. □ Every fool thing seems to go wrong with this car. □ I don't want to hear about every fool thing you did on your vacation.

Every horse thinks its own pack heaviest. Prov. Everyone thinks he or she has the hardest work to do or the most difficult problems to overcome. □ When we were growing up, my sister and I each thought our own chores were harder than the other's. Every horse thinks its own pack heaviest.

every inch a something and every inch the something completely; in every way. (Usually strengthening a following adjective.) □ Mary is every inch the schoolteacher. □ Her father is every inch a gentleman.

Every Jack has his Jill. Prov. Every man will eventually find a woman to be his romantic partner. □ Bill: I'll never have a girlfriend. None of the girls I take out will agree to a second date. Fred: Cheer up; every Jack has his Jill.

every last one every one; every single one. □ You must eat all your peas! Every last one! □ Each of you—every last one—has to take some medicine.

Every little bit helps. Prov. Even the smallest amount is helpful. □ Tom: I can only give a dollar to your charity. Mary: That's OK. Every little bit helps. □ Jane gave me a pair of booties for my new baby. It's not much, but every little bit helps.

every living soul Fig. every person. I expect every living soul to be there and be there on time. This is the kind of problem that affects every living soul.

Every man for himself (and the devil take the hindmost). and Devil take the hindmost Prov. Everyone has to fight for his or her own survival. (You can use this to describe an extremely competitive situation.) At first we tried to help each other study for the exam, but soon it was every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost. The inventors tried to collaborate, agreeing to share the profits from their invention, but they grew so suspicious of each other that each began to work separately, and devil take the hindmost. When the ship began to sink, it was every man for himself.

Every man has his price. Prov. It is possible to bribe anyone as long as you know how much or what to bribe him or her with. Henchman: I've offered the judge half a million dollars to give you a light sentence, but he says he can't be bought. Gangster: Keep trying. Every man has his price. Every man has his price, and the townsfolk were shocked to discover just how low their mayor's price had been.

Every man is the architect of his own fortune. Prov. Your own decisions and your own actions determine what your life will be like. The teacher told us, "If you work hard, you can become whatever you want. Every man is the architect of his own fortune." You shouldn't blame other people for your problems. Every man is the architect of his own fortune.

Every man to his taste. Prov. Everyone likes something different, and you should not condemn people because of what they like. (Can be used to remark that someone's tastes are different from yours, as in the first example.) Jill: Why don't you get some decent neckties, Fred? Fred: What do you mean, decent? My ties are perfectly fine! Jill: Oh, well. Every man to his taste. Ellen: People who like cats are much more discerning than people who like dogs, don't you think? Jane: Not necessarily. Everyone to his taste.

Every minute counts. and Every moment counts. Fig. time is very important. (Used especially in situations where time is very limited.) Doctor, please try to get here quickly. Every minute counts. When you take a test, you must work rapidly because every minute counts. When you're trying to meet a deadline, every moment counts.

Every moment counts. Go to previous.

every mother's son (of them) Fig. every one of them. The scout leader said that unless the scouts told him who had stolen the money, he would punish every mother's son of them. When the football team won the championship, they were all crying, every mother's son of them.

every nook and cranny Fig. every small, out-of-the-way place or places where something can be hidden. We looked for the tickets in every nook and cranny. They were lost. There was no doubt. The decorator had placed flowers in every nook and cranny.

(every) now and again Go to next.

(every) now and then and (every) now and again; (every) once in a while occasionally; infrequently.

We eat lamb every now and then. We eat pork now and then. I read a novel every now and again.

every other person or thing every second or alternate person or thing. The magician turned every other card over. Every other table had an ashtray on it.

every time one turns around Fig. frequently; at every turn; with annoying frequency. Somebody asks me for money every time I turn around. Something goes wrong with Bill's car every time he turns around.

(every) Tom, Dick, and Harry and any Tom, Dick, and Harry Fig. everyone, without discrimination; ordinary people. (Not necessarily males.) The golf club is very exclusive. They don't let any Tom, Dick, or Harry join. Mary's sending out very few invitations. She doesn't want every Tom, Dick, and Harry turning up.

Every tub must stand on its own bottom. and Let every tub stand on its own bottom. Prov. People should be independent. Emily did not want to join the other students, who were helping each other study for the exam. "Every tub must stand on its own bottom," she said. Don't ask me for help. Let every tub stand on its own bottom.

every walk of life every status and occupation. We invited people from every walk of life, but only those who could afford the long drive could possibly come.

ever(y) which way Rur. in all directions. When they heard me yell, the kittens ran off every which way. That mountain road kind of turns you ever which way before it finally gets you to the top.

everybody and his brother and everybody and his uncle Fig. everybody; lots of people. The state fair was packed. Everybody and his brother was there. Everybody and his uncle was asking me where you was today.

everybody and his uncle Go to previous.

Everybody loves a lord. Prov. People are attracted to the wealthy and powerful. Although the prince was vulgar and unpleasant, he always received plenty of invitations to social gatherings; everybody loves a lord.

everything an' all Rur. everything. The thieves broke into Mary's house and took the television, the silver, her jewelry, everything an' all. I had to write a report about my trip to Memphis, what I did, what I ate, what I saw, and everything an' all.

everything but the kitchen sink Cliché almost everything one can think of. When Sally went off to college, she took everything but the kitchen sink. John orders everything but the kitchen sink when he goes out to dinner, especially if someone else is paying for it.

Everything comes to him who waits. Go to Good things come to him who waits.

everything from A to Z Go to next.

everything from soup to nuts and everything from A to Z Cliché almost everything one can think of. For dinner we had everything from soup to nuts. In college I studied everything from soup to nuts.

everything humanly possible everything that is in the range of human powers. The rescuers did everything humanly possible to find the lost campers. The doctor tried everything humanly possible to save the patient.

Everything's coming up roses. Fig. Everything is really just excellent. Life is prosperous. □ Life is wonderful. Everything is coming up roses. □ Q: How are things going? A: Everything's coming up roses.

Everything's going to be all right. and Everything will be all right.; Everything will be okay.; Everything will be just fine.; Everything will be great. Do not worry, everything will be okay. □ "Don't worry, Fred," comforted Bill. "Everything will be all right." □ Mary: I just don't know if I can go on! Bob: Now, now. Everything will be just fine.

Everything will be all right. Go to previous.

Everything will be great. Go to Everything's going to be all right.

Everything will be just fine. Go to Everything's going to be all right.

Everything will be okay. Go to Everything's going to be all right.

Everything will work out (all right). Go to Things will work out all right.

Everything will work out for the best. Go to Things will work out all right.

evict someone from some place to force someone to move out of something or some place. □ They evicted the squatters from the building. □ They were evicted from their home for not paying their mortgage.

Evil be to him who evil thinks. Prov. May bad things happen to anyone who thinks evil things. (A curse against those who wish you harm. This is the English version of the French Honi soit qui mal y pense, the motto of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, a British order of knighthood.) □ The secret brotherhood took an oath of loyalty and finished their meeting by declaring, "Evil be to him who evil thinks."

evolve (from something) (into something) and evolve out of something (into something) to develop from something to something else; to develop from a more primitive form to the present form. □ This creature evolved from a smaller, horselike creature into what we know as a horse. □ The human brain evolved out of a smaller and less complex form into the brain of today.

exact something from someone to demand something from someone; to take something from someone. □ The bill collector sought to exact payment from them for a debt that had been paid off long ago. □ You cannot exact a single cent from me.

examine someone in something to give someone an examination in a particular subject or covering certain material. □ The committee examined her in her knowledge of history. □ I was examined in math.

examine someone on something to give someone an examination covering certain material. □ I will have to examine you on this chapter myself. □ The teacher examined Larry on his understanding of phonetics.

examine someone or something for something to inspect someone or something for the presence of something. □ I examined the child for signs of abuse. □ You had better examine this dog for ticks. □ Don't forget to examine yourself for ticks after you return from the hike.

Example is better than precept. Prov. You will teach people more effectively by being a good example than you will by telling them what to do. □ Mother never lectured us; she just tried her best to be a good person, and we tried hard to be like her. She was living proof that example is better than precept.

exceed someone or something by something to surpass someone or something by some amount. □ Wally exceeded his quota by two hundred. □ He exceeded Larry by a large amount.

exceed someone or something in something to surpass someone or something in something. □ Tom exceeds Walter in athletic ability. □ Ralph exceeded the Rock of Gibraltar in hardheadedness.

excel at something and excel in something to do something in a superior fashion. □ She really excels at running. □ Wally does not excel at anything. □ Frank always hoped he would excel in math.

excel in something Go to previous.

The exception proves the rule. Prov. Something that does not follow a rule shows that the rule exists. (Often used facetiously, to justify some rule you have proposed but which someone else has listed exceptions to. From a Latin phrase meaning that an exception tests a rule.) □ Ellen: Men are always rude. Jane: But Alan's always polite. And Larry and Ted are polite, too. Ellen: They're just the exceptions that prove the rule. □ Bill: All the shows on TV are aimed at people with low intelligence. Alan: What about that news program you like to watch? Bill: The exception proves the rule.

excerpt something from something to select a part of something from the whole. □ We excerpted a few short scenes from the play and performed them for the class. □ A few paragraphs had been excerpted from the film as an example.

exchange no more than some number of words with someone and not exchange more than some number of words with someone; hardly exchange more than some number of words with someone; scarcely exchange more than some number of words with someone to say hardly anything to someone. (Always negative.) □ I know Tom was there, but I am sure that I didn't exchange more than three words with him before he left. □ We hardly exchanged more than two words the whole evening. □ Sally and Liz didn't have enough time to exchange more than five words.

exchange something for something to trade something for something else. □ I will exchange this one for a larger size. □ Can this be exchanged for something more suitable?

exchange something with someone to trade something with someone. □ I exchange Christmas presents with him, but I never see him otherwise. □ Let's exchange coats with each other.

excite someone about something to stimulate someone about something. □ I thought our vacation stories would excite her about going, but they did not. □ She was excited about the trip to Moscow.

excite something in someone to arouse something in someone; to arouse someone with something. □ The horror movie excited a lot of fear in Mike. □ The smell of jasmine in the warm air excited a romantic streak in me.

exciting as watching (the) paint dry very, very dull. (Sarcastic. *Also: about as ~; as ~.) □ This book is about as exciting as watching paint dry. □ Listening to you is exciting as watching the paint dry.

exclude someone or something from something to leave someone or something out of something; to leave someone or something off a list. □ Did you mean to exclude me from the party? □ I excluded chocolate cake from the shopping list.

Excuse me. and Excuse, please; Pardon (me); 'Scuse (me); 'Scuse, please. 1. an expression asking forgiveness for some minor social violation, such as belching or bumping into someone. ('Scuse is colloquial, and the apostrophe is not always used.) □ John: Ouch! Bob: Excuse me. I didn't see you there. □ Mary: Oh! Ow! Sue: Pardon me. I didn't mean to bump into you. □ Tom: Ouch! Mary: Oh, dear! What happened? Tom: You stepped on my toe. Mary: Excuse me. I'm sorry. 2. Please let me through.; Please let me by. □ Tom: Excuse me. I need to get past. Bob: Oh, sorry. I didn't know I was in the way. □ Mary: Pardon me. Sue: What? Mary: Pardon me. I want to get past you.

Excuse my French. Go to Pardon my French.

excuse someone 1. to forgive someone. (Usually with me. Said when interrupting or when some other minor offense has been committed. There are many mannerly uses of this expression.) □ John came in late and said, "Excuse me, please." □ John said "excuse me" when he interrupted our conversation. □ When John made a strange noise at the table, he said quietly, "Excuse me." □ John suddenly left the room saying, "Excuse me. I'll be right back." 2. to permit someone to leave; to permit someone to remain away from an event. □ The coach excused John from practice yesterday. □ The teacher excused John, and he ran quickly from the room.

excuse someone for something to pardon someone for something or for (doing) something. □ Please excuse me for this mess. I've not been able to clean the house. □ I can't excuse myself for not doing it.

excuse someone from something to permit a person not to do something; to exempt someone from something. □ Please excuse me from attending the meeting. □ I must excuse myself from the discussion.

exemplify something by something to use something to explain or illustrate something. □ He exemplifies wisdom by his decisions. □ Roger exemplifies virtue by the way he treats his employees.

exempt someone from something to release someone from the obligation to do something; to allow a person not to be affected by a rule or law. □ I cannot exempt anyone from this rule. □ The members of Congress exempted themselves from the wage freeze.

exercise a firm hand Go to a firm hand.

exercise control over someone or something Go to next.

exercise power over someone or something and exercise control over someone or something; exercise influence over someone or something to have someone or something under one's control or influence. □ The dictator exercised power over the island for many years. □ See if you can exercise some control over your appetite. □ I wish I could exercise some influence over the committee.

exercise someone or an animal in something to give someone or an animal practice in doing something; to drill someone or an animal at something. □ Please exercise the dog in obedience routines. □ I hope you will exercise me in my Spanish irregular verbs.

exercised about something Fig. upset about something. □ Mary: You lost a hundred dollars playing poker!? Bill: Now don't get exercised about it. □ I can't tell Ma I'm failing English class. She gets exercised about every dumb thing I do.

exhort someone to do something to urge or pressure someone to do something. □ She exhorted us to do better, but we only did worse. □ The boss exhorted the workers to increase productivity.

exile someone (from something) (to something) to force someone to leave something or some place and go to something or some place, often as a punishment for political reasons. □ The government exiled him from his hometown to an island off the coast of South America. □ They exiled Gerald to another country.

exit (from something) (to something) to go out of something or some place to another. □ The children exited from the school to the parking lot when the fire alarm rang. □ We exited to the main street from the parking lot.

exorcise something out of someone and exorcise something out to remove or cast out evil from someone. □ We saw a movie about a priest who exorcised a demon out of a young girl.

expand into something to grow into something; to enlarge into something. □ The little problem expanded into a big one in no time at all. □ In no time at all, the vegetable garden had expanded into a small farm.

expand one's horizons Fig. to experience and learn new things. □ Read more! Travel! Go out and expand your horizons!

expand something into something to enlarge something into something; to make something grow into something. □ She expanded her business into a national company. □ I would like to build on an addition to expand this room into a more usable space.

expand (up)on something and enlarge (up)on something Fig. to add detail to a report about something; to say more about something. □ Would you please expand upon that last remark? □ Would you care to enlarge upon your remarks?

expatiate on someone or something to say or write many words about someone or something. □ She expatiated endlessly on the evils of tobacco. □ I have heard you expatiate on Harry quite enough, thank you.

expect someone or something for something to anticipate someone or a group to attend something. □ I expect you for dinner on Thursday. □ We expected all of the board of directors for the meeting.

expect something from someone or something 1. to anticipate receiving something from someone or a group. □ I expect a letter from you at least once a week while you are gone. □ We expect at least a postcard out of you. 2. and expect something (out) of someone or something to demand something from someone or something. □ I expect more effort from you. Get to work. 3. and expect something (out) of someone or something to anticipate a certain kind of behavior from someone or something. □ We expected better from you. I'm very disappointed in your behavior. □ We really expected better behavior of you.

expectant mother a pregnant woman. □ The doctor's waiting room was filled with expectant mothers. □ The magazine has articles of interest to young parents and expectant mothers.

expecting (a child) to be pregnant. □ Tommy's mother is expecting a child. □ Oh, I didn't know she was expecting.

expel someone from something to force someone to leave something or some place; to eject someone from something or some place. □ The two men expelled the fighters from the tavern. □ Ken was expelled from school for disciplinary reasons.

expel something from something to force or eject something out of something. □ The machine expelled cup after cup from its opening. □ The volcano expelled huge globs of molten lava.

expend something for something to pay a certain amount for something. □ I expended an enormous amount for skin creams. □ How much money did you expend for this gaudy tie?

expend something in something to use or consume something in some activity. □ You expend too much energy in talking. □ Harry expended a lot of time in the preparation of his speech.

expend something on someone or something to use something on someone or something. □ Don't expend too much energy on him. He isn't worth it. □ There is no point in expending any more money on this car.

Expense is no object. Go to Money is no object.

Experience is the best teacher. Prov. You will learn more from things that happen to you in real life than you will from hearing about or studying things that happen to other people. □ I don't care how many books you read about how to run a business; experience is the best teacher. □ The nurse believed that experience was the best teacher when it came to developing a bedside manner, so she made sure that all her students spent a lot of time with patients.

Experience is the father of wisdom. and Experience is the mother of wisdom. Prov. The more that happens to you, the more you will learn. □ I never understood why supervisors got so frustrated with me until I became a supervisor and got frustrated with my subordinates. Experience was definitely the mother of wisdom, in my case.

Experience is the mother of wisdom. Go to previous.

Experience is the teacher of fools. Prov. Only fools do not learn after seeing other people's mistakes and insist on repeating them. □ Father: You should spend more time studying and less time having fun with your friends. If I had been a better student when I was your age, I'd have a better job now. Son: Oh, come on, Dad. School's worthless. Father: Don't make the same mistake I did! Experience is the teacher of fools.

experiment in something to conduct research or experiments about something. □ The research group is experimenting in the field of biomechanics. □ We want to experiment in thermodynamics.

experiment (up)on someone or something to use someone or something as the subject of an experiment. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Do you think we should experiment upon people? □ The researchers were experimenting on a new drug that might cure rabies.

experiment with someone or something to try different experiments on someone or something; to use different people or things as key variables in an experiment. □ They are supposed to be experimenting with new drugs. □ We no longer experiment with animals.

explain at great length Go to at great length.

explain oneself 1. to explain what one has said or done or what one thinks or feels. (Formal and polite.) □ Please take a moment to explain yourself. I'm sure we are interested in your ideas. □ Yes, if you will let me explain myself, I think you'll agree with my idea. 2. to give an explanation or excuse for something wrong that one may have done. (Usually said in anger.) □ Young man! Come in here and explain yourself this instant. □ Why did you do that, Tom Smith? You had better explain yourself, and it had better be good.

explain someone or something to someone to give information or instruction about someone or something to someone. □ Please explain it to me. □ Can you explain Andrew to me?

explain something away^t to explain something so that it is no longer a problem. □ You can try to explain it away if you want, but that won't solve the problem. □ You can't just explain away all your problems.

explode a bombshell Go to drop a bomb(shell).

explode with something 1. Lit. to make a loud noise upon exploding or releasing energy. □ The bomb exploded with a thunderous roar. □ When the joke was finished, the audience exploded with laughter. 2. Fig. to burst out saying something; to be about to burst with eagerness to say something. □ The children exploded with protests when their parents told them it was bedtime. □ Hanna was exploding with questions. 3. Fig. to produce a sudden abundance of something. (Alludes to buds bursting or a sudden blooming or sprouting of vegetation.) □ The fields exploded with an enormous crop of wildflowers. □ The cherry trees exploded with blossoms.

export something to some place to sell something abroad to a particular country. □ They are now exporting their products to Hungary. □ We are exporting all our product line to Eastern Europe.

export something to someone or something to sell something abroad to someone or some country. □ The company exported alcohol to Brazil. □ We only export books to our agents abroad.

expose someone or an animal to a disease to place someone or an animal near a source of a disease. □ Try to expose your children to chicken pox while they are young. It's horrible when you are an adult. □ He accidentally exposed his sheep to an infected animal.

expose someone or something to someone or something to show someone or something to someone or something. □ You should not expose the children to violent movies at their age. □ Do not expose the film to the light.

expose something or oneself to someone or something to disclose someone's or something's secrets to someone or a group. □ He exposed his inner thoughts to everyone there. □ She refused to expose herself to the ears of the curious and ceased talking. □ He exposed himself to the public when he revealed his involvement in the arms sale.

expostulate about someone or something and expostulate on someone or something to comment or argue intensely about someone or something. □ He always seems to be expostulating on something. Why can't he simply say "Yes" or "No"? □ Sam is expostulating on Bill's many shortcomings again.

expound ((up)on someone or something) (to someone) to speak at length about someone or something to someone. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Let me expound upon Tom to you for a while. I think you need all the details on his qualifications. □ Please do not expound on Bill anymore.

express one's anger to allow a release or expression of anger, such as through angry words, violence, or talking out a problem. □ Don't keep your emotions inside of you. You have to learn to express your anger. □ Bob expresses his anger by yelling at people.

express oneself (to someone) (on something) to say what one thinks about something. □ I will express myself to Karen on that matter at another time. □ She expressed herself on Karen to the entire group.

express something in round figures Go to in round figures.

express something in round numbers Go to in round numbers.

expropriate something (from someone or something) (for someone or something) to seize something from someone or something for someone or something. □ The government expropriated the land from the peasants for an airfield. □ They expropriated land for a highway. □ They expropriated land from the farmers.

expunge something from something to erase something from something. □ The judge ordered the clerk to expunge the comment from the record. □ Please expunge the lawyer's remark from the transcript.

expurgate something from something to cleanse something by removing something. (Often refers to editing objectionable material from written or broadcast material.) □ They expurgated the most graphic passages from the novel. □ We will expurgate the offensive matter from the article.

extend across something to spread across something. □ The shadows extended across the whole land. □ The fog extended across the low-lying land.

extend credit (to someone or a company) and extend someone or a company credit to allow someone to purchase something on credit. □ I'm sorry, Mr. Smith, but because of your poor record of payment, we are no longer able to extend credit to you. □ Look at this letter, Jane. The store won't extend credit anymore.

extend (from something) (to something) to spread from one point to another point. □ The cloud of smoke extended from one end of town to the other. □ It extended to the end of the road from our front gate.

extend one's sympathy (to someone) to express sympathy to someone. (A very polite and formal way to tell someone that you are sorry about a misfortune.) □ Please permit me to extend my sympathy to you and your children. I'm very sorry to hear of the death of your husband. □ Let's extend our sympathy to Bill Jones, who is in the hospital with a broken leg. We should send him some flowers.

extend over someone or something to spread over someone or something. □ The smoke extended over Tom and his friends, who were having a picnic. □ The cloud extended over the entire valley.

extend someone or a company credit Go to extend credit (to someone or a company).

extend something to something 1. to lengthen something to reach something. □ We extended the antenna to its full length. □ Extend your arm to the wall and see how straight you can make it. 2. to push a stated deadline further into the future. □ I will extend the deadline to Friday. □ We cannot extend the due date to next month.

extend to someone or something to reach all the way to someone or something. □ This policy extends to you also. □ The road extends to Los Angeles.

extenuating circumstances special (but otherwise unspecified) circumstances that account for an irregular or improper way of doing something. □ Mary was permitted to arrive late because of extenuating circumstances. □ Due to extenuating circumstances, the teacher will not meet with the class today.

extol someone or something as something to praise someone or something as something. □ We extolled her as a heroine. □ The salesman extolled the medicine as a cure-all.

extort something from someone or something to steal something from someone by coercion; to force someone to give something by making threats. □ The crook was trying to extort a lot of money from the widow by selling her a worthless insurance policy. □ The authorities caught the accounting firm trying to extort a great deal of money from the bank.

extract something from someone or something to remove something from someone or something; to make someone or a group give something. □ We extracted the juice from the oranges. □ The police questioning Maggie extracted the truth from her.

extradite someone from some place (to some place) to have someone sent from some place to face criminal prosecution. □ The state's attorney sought to extradite Max from Missouri. □ The gang leader was extradited from Indiana to New York to face assault charges.

extrapolate something from something to reason out the answer from the known facts. □ I cannot extrapolate what he meant from these notes. □ Can you extrapolate the annual total from the company's sales so far this year?

extricate someone or something from someone or something to disentangle someone or something from someone or something; to free someone or something from someone or something. □ I tried to extricate myself from her, but she made it hard for me to get away politely. □ I managed to extricate the ring from the vacuum cleaner bag.

exult at something and exult over something to rejoice because of something; to rejoice about something. □ We exulted at the end of the hostilities. □ The citizens exulted over the downfall of the dictator.

exult in something to take great pleasure in something; to enjoy something immensely. □ I exult in the beauty of a spring day. □ We exulted in the glory of summer.

exult over something Go to exult at something.

An eye for an eye (and a tooth for a tooth). Prov. If someone hurts you, you should punish the offender by hurting him or her in the same way. (An ancient principle of justice going back to biblical times.) □ When they were children, the two brothers operated on the principle of an eye for an eye, so that if the older one hit the younger one, the younger one was entitled to hit him back just as hard.

the eye of the hurricane and the eye of the storm 1. Lit. the area of calm in the center of a tornado, hurricane, or cyclone. □ It is calm and peaceful in the eye of the storm.
2. Fig. a temporary peaceful time amidst more trouble and strife yet to come. □ Don't relax. This is the eye of the storm. The lunch hour rush is over, but the dinner rush will start soon.

the eye of the storm Go to previous.

eyeball-to-eyeball Fig. face-to-face and often very close; in person. □ They approached each other eyeball-to-eyeball and frowned. □ Let's talk more when we are eyeball-to-eyeball.

*an eyeful (of someone or something) Fig. a shocking or surprising sight. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ The office door opened for a minute and I got an eyeful of the interior. □ Mary got an eyeful of the company's extravagant spending when she saw the bill for the executive board's catered lunch.

eyes like saucers Fig. eyes opened widely as in amazement. □ Our eyes were like saucers as we witnessed another display of the manager's temper.

eyes like two burnt holes in a blanket Rur. eyes with dark circles around them. □ I can tell you ain't slept. You got eyes like two burnt holes in a blanket.

E

Ff

F

face away (from someone or something) to turn away from someone or something. □ Please face away from me while I change clothes. □ I'll face away. You go right ahead.

face off 1. to begin a hockey game with two players facing one another. □ They faced off and the match was on.
2. to prepare for a confrontation. □ The opposing candidates faced off and the debate began. □ They faced off and I knew there was going to be a fight.

face on(to) something [for something] to have a view out onto something. □ The house faced onto the sea and provided a beautiful view of the incoming ships. □ Our office building does not face onto the street. □ We asked for a room that faces on the main square.

face someone down¹ to make a face-to-face stand with someone who eventually backs down. □ Chuck succeeded in facing Tom down. □ Facing down Tom wasn't difficult for Chuck.

face someone or something forward to turn someone or something to the front. (Also with many other directions—backward, to the right, to the left, etc.) □ Please face your brother forward now. □ Face the book forward so we can read the title.

face (someone or something) into something to turn (the face or front of) someone or something directly toward something. □ Face the sail into the wind. □ Please face into the camera.

face someone with something to present evidence of something to someone. □ When I faced him with the evidence, he confessed immediately. □ The police faced Max with the witness's story. □ The CEO was faced with the problem of bringing the bankrupt firm back to profitability.

face something down to turn something face downward. □ Ted drew a card and faced it down. □ Face your cards down when you leave the card table.

face something head-on Fig. to confront a problem directly and openly. □ Let's face this problem head-on and try to solve it quickly and painlessly.

face something with something to install something on the surface of something. □ We faced the kitchen walls with yellow tile. □ The wall was faced with tile.

a face that could stop a clock Go to next.

a face (that) only a mother could love and a face that could stop a clock Fig. a very ugly face. (Usually jocular. See also homely enough to stop a clock.) □ The poor baby has a face only a mother could love. □ Look at that guy. That's a face that could stop a clock.

face (the) facts to confront the truth about someone or something; to confront and accept the consequences of something. □ Eventually, you will have to face the facts. Times are hard.

face the music Fig. to receive punishment; to accept the unpleasant results of one's actions. □ Mary broke a dining-room window and had to face the music when her father got home. □ After failing a math test, Tom had to go home and face the music.

face up (to someone or something) to confront with courage someone or something representing a threat or unpleasantness. □ You are simply going to have to admit your mistake and face up to the boss. □ You must face up to the authorities if you have done something wrong.

face-to-face 1. Fig. in person; in the same location. (Said only of people. An adverb.) □ Let's talk about this face-to-face. I don't like talking over the telephone. □ Many people prefer to talk face-to-face.
2. Fig. facing one another; in the same location. (Used as an attributive.) □ I prefer to have a face-to-face meeting. □ They work better on a face-to-face basis.

Fact is stranger than fiction. and Truth is stranger than fiction. Prov. Things that really happen are harder to believe or more amazing than stories that people invent. □ Did you see the story in the newspaper about the criminal who attacks people with a toenail clipper? Fact is stranger than fiction! □ Jill: I can't believe someone's paying 900 dollars for Tom's broken-down old car—it doesn't even run. Jane: Truth is stranger than fiction.

the facts of life 1. Euph. the facts of sex and reproduction, especially human reproduction. (See also the birds and the bees.) □ My parents told me the facts of life when I was nine years old. □ Bill learned the facts of life from his classmates.
2. Fig. the truth about the unpleasant ways that the world works. □ Mary really learned the facts of life when she got her first job. □ Tom couldn't accept the facts of life in business, so he quit.

fade away (into something) 1. to diminish into something. □ The light faded away into nothing. □ The sound of the drums faded away into the distance.
2. Go to fade out.

fade back (into something) to move back into a particular area. □ He faded back to throw a pass. □ Quickly and unnoticed, he faded back.

fade down [for sound] to diminish. □ The roar of the train faded down as it passed and fled into the night. □ As the thunder faded down, the sun began to break through the clouds.

fade from something [for something] to leave something gradually, such as one's consciousness, memory, view, etc. (See also fade from view.) □ The image faded from her memory at last.

fade from view [for a sight] to fade away, typically owing to loss of light or distance. □ The scene faded from view as the stage lights dimmed. □ My house faded from view as we drove down the long road to town.

fade into something to diminish or change into something.

□ The light of dusk faded into blackness. □ In the corner of the painting, the deep reds faded into lavender.

fade out and fade away to diminish and go away altogether. □ The light in the distance faded out as the sun began to set. □ The light faded out as the candles burned themselves out, one by one. □ As it got farther into the distance, the car faded away.

fade something down^t to turn down a sound. (Broadcasting.) □ The radio engineer faded the music down and the announcer's voice began. □ She faded down the music.

fade something in^t to bring a picture, sound, or both into prominence. (Broadcasting.) □ The technician faded the picture in and the program began. □ Fade in the picture a little faster next time.

fade something out^t to diminish something altogether. (Broadcasting.) □ At the end, you should fade the music out completely. □ Fade out the music earlier.

fade something up^t to increase the sound gradually. (Broadcasting.) □ The director faded the music up and then down again before the announcer spoke. □ Fade up the music when the announcer stops talking.

fag someone out Sl. to tire someone out. □ All that work really fagged me out. □ The hard climb fagged the hikers out.

fagged out Sl. exhausted. □ I'm really fagged out after all that running. □ John, you sure look fagged out.

fail in something to have not earned passing or satisfactory grades in some school subject. □ George is failing in geometry. □ I hope I do not fail in math.

fail someone on something to give someone an unsatisfactory grade on an assignment or test. □ She failed us all on the math assignment. □ The teacher failed half the class on the assignment.

faint dead away Fig. to faint and fall unconscious. □ I almost fainted dead away. □ David will faint dead away when he reads this.

faint from something to faint because of something. □ I nearly fainted from fear! □ Three people along the parade route fainted from the heat.

Faint heart never won fair lady. Prov. A timid suitor never won his lady. (Used to encourage boys or men to be bold in courting women.) □ Bill: I'd really like to go out with Alice, but what if she says no? Alan: You won't know till you ask her. Faint heart never won fair lady. □ Don't be so shy about talking to Edith. Faint heart never won fair lady.

the faint of heart Fig. people who are squeamish; someone who is sickened or disturbed by unpleasantness or challenge. □ The pathway around the top of the volcano, near the crater, is not for the faint of heart.

fair and impartial just and unbiased. (Usually referring to some aspect of the legal system, such as a jury, a hearing, or a judge.) □ Gary felt that he had not received a fair and impartial hearing. □ We demand that all of our judges be fair and impartial in every instance.

fair and square completely fair(ly); justly; within the rules. □ She won the game fair and square. □ The division of the money should be fair and square.

fair game (for something) someone or something that it is considered permissible to attack or abuse in some way. □ I don't like seeing articles exposing people's private lives, but politicians are fair game for that kind of criticism. □ Journalists always regard movie stars as fair game.

*a fair shake an instance of fair treatment. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ He's unpleasant, but we have to give him a fair shake. □ He got a fair shake from us. Don't worry!

fair something out^t Rur. to distribute something fairly. □ She faired the meager stew out the best she could. □ Walter faired out the pie.

fair to middlin' Rur. mediocre; not bad but not good. (Middling means 'of average quality.')

□ Tom: How are you feeling today? Bill: Fair to middlin'. □ My sewing is excellent, but my cooking is only fair to middlin'.

fair-haired boy Fig. a favored person. (Not necessarily young or a boy.) □ The teacher's fair-haired boy always does well on tests. □ The supervisor's son was the fair-haired boy on the construction site.

fair-weather friend Fig. someone who is your friend only when things are pleasant or going well for you. □ Bill stayed for lunch but he wouldn't help me with the yard work. He's just a fair-weather friend. □ A fair-weather friend isn't much help in an emergency.

Faith will move mountains. Prov. If you believe in what you are doing, you can overcome any obstacle. (Sometimes refers to faith in God.) □ Jane's faith in her cause could move mountains. □ You may feel disheartened sometimes, but remember that faith will move mountains.

fake it to pretend (to do something). □ If you don't know the right notes, just fake it. □ I can't fake it anymore. I've got to be honest with you.

fake off Sl. to waste time; to goof off. □ Hey, you guys, quit faking off! □ All you clowns do is fake off. Now, get busy!

fake someone out^t to deceive someone; to fool someone. □ You really faked me out. I never would have guessed it was you. □ The student tried to fake out the teacher.

fake someone out of something Sl. to get something from someone by deception. □ He faked Tom out of his place in line. □ She faked me out of a lot of money.

fall (a)foul of someone or something and run (a)foul of someone or something to get into a situation where one is opposed to someone or something; to get into trouble with someone or something. □ Dan fell afoul of the law at an early age. □ I hope that you will avoid falling afoul of the district manager. She can be a formidable enemy. □ I hope I don't run afoul of your sister. She doesn't like me.

fall (all) over oneself (to do something) Fig. to rush eagerly and awkwardly to do something. □ The boys fell all over themselves to open the door for Sarah. □ Larry fell over himself trying to help Sarah on with her coat.

fall all over someone Fig. to give a lot of attention, affection, or praise to someone. □ My aunt falls all over me whenever she comes to visit. □ I hate for someone to fall all over me. It embarrasses me.

fall apart (at the seams) and come apart at the seams 1. Lit. [for something] to break apart where its parts are joined. □ The dress fell apart at the seams. □ I wouldn't have thought that a coat that cost that much money would just come apart at the seams. 2. Fig. to break down mentally. □ Tom works too much and finally fell apart. □ Poor Ralph simply fell apart at the seams.

fall asleep Fig. to go to sleep. □ I fell asleep while reading the very dull book. □ I got in bed and fell asleep at once.

fall asleep at the switch Go to asleep at the switch.

fall away (from someone or something) 1. Lit. [for something] to drop away from someone or something. □ The paint is falling away from the sides of the house. □ Over the years, all the paint fell away. 2. Fig. [for someone] to move back or retreat from someone or something. □ The soldiers fell away from the line of battle. 3. Fig. to distance oneself from someone; to end an association with someone. □ The candidate's supporters fell away from her when they heard about the scandal.

fall away toward something to slant downward toward something. □ The yard fell away toward the shore of the lake. □ The broad expanse of prairie land fell away toward the river bottomland, and beyond that, the river itself.

fall back to move back from something; to retreat from something. □ The gang members fell back, and I took that opportunity to get away. □ The troops fell back to regroup.

fall back on(to) someone or something 1. Lit. to fall backwards onto someone or something. □ She stumbled and fell back onto the lady behind her. □ She fell back on the couch. 2. Fig. to begin to use someone or something held in reserve. □ We fell back on our savings to get us through the hard times. □ We had to fall back on our emergency generator.

fall behind (in something) and fall behind (on something); fall behind (with something); get behind (in something); get behind (on something); get behind (with something) to lag behind schedule in some kind of work or some other scheduled activity. □ You are falling behind in your car payments. □ I tried not to get behind on them. □ Please don't fall behind with your payments. □ I won't fall behind again.

fall behind schedule Go to behind schedule.

fall behind (someone or something) to lag behind someone or something. □ You have fallen behind everyone else in class. □ Our production fell behind that of the other production line.

fall behind (with something) Go to fall behind (in something).

fall below something to drop to a lower level than something. □ The temperature has fallen below freezing again. □ When the audience fell below two hundred a night, they closed the play.

fall beneath something to drop under something. □ The thimble fell beneath the sofa. □ The gift that Bob had purchased for Maggie fell beneath the wheels of a truck.

fall between something and something else to drop between things. □ My loose change fell between the cushions of the sofa. □ I hope that my wallet doesn't fall between the table and the wall. I would never be able to move the table to get it.

fall between two stools Fig. to come somewhere between two possibilities and so fail to meet the requirements of either. □ The material is not suitable for an academic book or for a popular one. It falls between two stools. □ He tries to be both teacher and friend, but falls between two stools.

fall by some amount [for an asset] to drop in value by a certain amount. □ The gas stocks fell by nearly 10 percent today. □ If the stock market falls by four hundred points, I'm going to jump off a cliff.

fall by the wayside Go to drop by the wayside.

fall down to drop or topple. □ The baby fell down. □ Walk carefully on this ice or you will fall down.

fall (down) at something to prostrate oneself before or at the feet of someone or something. □ She fell down at the feet of the horrid man who held her child. □ She fell at his feet.

fall down on someone or something to fall and drop onto someone or something. □ Bits of the ceiling paint fell down on us and into our food. □ The leaves fell down on the lawn.

fall down on the job Fig. to fail to do something properly; to fail to do one's job adequately. □ The team kept losing because the coach was falling down on the job. □ Tom was fired because he fell down on the job.

fall (flat) on one's face 1. Lit. to fall down, face first. □ Bobby fell flat on his face and skinned his nose. □ Down he went—he fell on his face. 2. Fig. to fail miserably, usually in a performance. □ She was terrible in the play. She fell flat on her face. □ The whole play fell on its face.

fall for someone Fig. to fall in love with someone. □ I fell for her in a big way. She's gorgeous! □ Ted fell for Alice and they decided to get married.

fall for something Fig. to believe something without reservation. □ Surely, you don't expect me to fall for that! □ She fell for the excuse I gave her about getting stuck in traffic.

fall from grace 1. Lit. to sin and get on the wrong side of God. (A Christian concept.) □ It was either fall from grace or starve from lack of money. That's how thieves are made. □ Given the choice between falling from grace and starving, few people choose to starve. 2. Fig. to do something wrong and get in trouble with someone other than God. □ I hear that Ted lost the Wilson contract and has fallen from grace with the boss. □ The accounting firm has fallen from grace and the board is looking for a new one.

fall from power Fig. to go out of power; to go out of office. □ The dictator fell from power after the riots. □ Every ruler will fall from power sooner or later.

fall from someone or something to fall off of someone or something. □ The books fell from the top shelf in the earthquake. □ The eggs rolled and fell from the counter and broke on the floor.

fall head over heels Fig. to fall down, perhaps turning over or rolling. □ Fred tripped on the rug and fell head over heels into the center of the room. □ Slow down or you will fall down—head over heels.

fall head over heels in love (with someone) Fig. to fall deeply in love with someone, especially suddenly. □ Roger fell head over heels in love with Maggie, and they were married within the month. □ Very few people actually fall head over heels in love with each other. □ She fell head over heels in love and thought she was dreaming.

fall heir to something 1. Lit. to inherit something; to end up with certain possessions of someone who has died. □ I fell heir to all my grandmother's old photographs. 2. Fig. to end up with having to take care of something that no one else wants; to be placed in charge of something unexpectedly. □ Bob fell heir to the Wilson project and has to complete what Jane failed to do.

fall ill Fig. to become ill. □ Tom fell ill just before he was to perform. □ We both fell ill after eating the baked fish.

fall in to line up in a row, standing shoulder to shoulder. □ The Boy Scouts were told to fall in behind the leader. □ The soldiers fell in quickly.

fall in love (with each other) [for two people] to become enamored of each other. □ They met in school and fell in love. □ When they fell in love, they thought it would last forever.

fall in love (with someone) to develop the emotion of love for someone. □ Tom fell in love with Mary, but she only wanted to be friends. □ John is too young to really fall in love.

fall in love (with something) to become enamored of something. □ I simply fell in love with the dress. I had to have it. □ I fell in love with the red car and bought it at once.

fall in on someone or something to cave in on someone or something; to collapse on someone or something. □ The roof of the mine fell in on the workers. □ The ceiling fell in on the diners.

fall in the drink Go to in the drink.

fall in with someone or something to become involved with someone or a group. □ I'm afraid that he fell in with the wrong kind of friends. □ John fell in with Max, who had served time in prison.

fall in with something to concur with something; to harmonize with something. □ We had to fall in with her wishes. □ The statement falls in exactly with my view.

fall into a trap 1. Lit. to get caught in a trap. □ The tiger fell into a trap and leapt out again immediately. □ The boys tried to get a squirrel to fall into a trap, but squirrels are too clever. 2. and fall into the trap; fall into someone's trap Fig. to become caught in someone's scheme; to be deceived into doing or thinking something. □ We fell into a trap by asking for an explanation. □ I fell into his trap when I agreed to drive him home.

fall into decay to degenerate; to rot. □ The house was very old and had fallen into decay. □ The small town fell into decay, and people moved out.

fall into disfavor to lose one's influence; to be preferred less and less. □ This style of government fell into disfavor some years ago. □ Poor Lee fell into disfavor with the boss and lost all his special privileges.

fall into disgrace to become without honor. □ The mayor fell into disgrace because of his financial dealings. □ We fell into disgrace because of our criminal affiliations.

fall into disuse to be used less and less. □ The pump had fallen into disuse and the joints had rusted solid. □ Since my books had fallen into disuse, I sold them to a used-book dealer.

fall in(to) line 1. Lit. to line up so that each person (except the first person) stands behind someone. □ The teacher told the students to fall in line for lunch. □ Hungry students fall into line very quickly. 2. Fig. to conform; to fall in(to) place. □ All the parts of the problem finally fell into line. □ Bill's behavior began to fall in line. 3. Fig. to behave in a manner similar to someone or something. □ You are expected to fall into line with the other people. □ We want you to fall in line.

fall into one's lap Fig. [for something of great value or usefulness] to be given or granted to someone without having been requested. □ Some valuable antique jewelry just fell into his lap. His late mother had kept it hidden for years.

fall in(to) place to fit together; to become organized; to make sense. □ After we heard the whole story, things began to fall in place. □ When you get older, the different parts of your life begin to fall into place.

fall into someone's trap Go to fall into a trap.

fall in(to) something to drop into something. □ The rabbit fell into the hole and was trapped. □ It went right up to the hole and fell in.

fall in(to) step to get into the same marching pattern as everyone else as regards which foot moves forward. (Everyone should be moving the same foot forward at the same time.) □ I just can't seem to fall into step. I am very uncoordinated. □ Fall in! March with the others!

fall into the gutter Go to in the gutter.

fall into the trap Go to fall into a trap.

fall into the wrong hands Fig. to become associated with the wrong person; to become the possession of the wrong person. □ I don't want these plans to fall into the wrong hands. □ This could be dangerous if it fell into the wrong hands.

fall like a ton of bricks Go to like a ton of bricks.

fall off to decline or diminish. □ Business falls off during the summer months. □ My interest in school fell off when I became twenty.

fall off (of) something to drop off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ A button fell off my shirt. □ I fell off the log. □ The twigs fell off of him as he stood up.

fall off the wagon Go to off the wagon.

fall on deaf ears Fig. [for talk or ideas] to be ignored by the persons they were intended for. □ Her pleas for mercy fell on deaf ears; the judge gave her the maximum sentence. □ All of Sally's good advice fell on deaf ears. Walter had made up his own mind.

fall on hard times Fig. to experience difficult times, especially financially. □ Since the war, her family had fallen on hard times. □ We fell on hard times during the recession.

fall on one's knees and fall to one's knees to kneel down, usually in respect. □ The people fell on their knees and prayed in gratitude for their salvation from the flood. □ They fell to their knees in awe.

fall on one's sword 1. Lit. to fall down and be penetrated by one's own sword, accidentally or on purpose. □ He tripped and fell on his sword. 2. Fig. to accept defeat; to go to extremes to indicate one's defeat. (From the ancient practice of a military commander committing suicide this way rather than being captured.) □ So, because I lost the contract, I am supposed to fall on my sword or something?

fall on someone's shoulders Go to on someone's shoulders.

fall on(to) someone or something to collapse toward or onto someone or something. □ The fence fell onto the car, denting it severely. □ The branch fell on David.

fall out 1. to happen; to result. □ As things fell out, we had a wonderful trip. □ What fell out of our discussion was a decision to continue. 2. to leave one's place in a formation when dismissed. (Usually in scouting or the military. The opposite of fall in.) □ The scouts fell out and ran to the campfire. □ All the soldiers fell out and talked among themselves. 3. to depart. □ It's late, George. I have to fall out. □ Let's fall out. I have to get up early in the morning.

fall out of bed 1. Lit. to roll out of one's bed onto the floor. □ I fell out of bed and broke my arm. □ Billy fell out of bed and started to cry. 2. Fig. [for a measurement] to drop very low very fast. □ The major stock averages fell out of bed today as the market suffered its second severe crash in two months. □ The temperature fell out of bed last night.

fall out of favor (with someone) and lose favor (with someone) to lose someone's approval or acceptance. □ This style of house has fallen out of favor with most people lately. □ Saving money has lost favor with most people.

fall out of love (with someone) to stop being in love with someone. □ She claimed she had fallen out of love with him. □ He also had fallen out of love.

fall out (of something) to topple out of something. □ Mary fell out of the tree and hurt herself.

fall out (with someone) (about someone or something) Go to next.

fall out (with someone) (over something) and fall out (with someone) (about someone or something) to quarrel or disagree with someone about something. □ Tony fell out with Nick about the video game. □ Bill fell out with Sally over the question of buying a new car. □ Bill fell out with John about who would sleep on the bottom bunk.

fall outside something to be beyond someone's power, responsibility, or jurisdiction. □ This matter falls outside my bailiwick. □ Her offense fell outside of the manager's jurisdiction.

fall over to topple over and fall down. □ The fence fell over and dented the car. □ I felt faint and almost fell over.

fall over backwards (to do something) and bend over backwards (to do something); lean over backwards (to do something) Fig. to do everything possible to please someone. □ The taxi driver fell over backwards to be helpful. □ The teacher bent over backwards to help the students understand. □ You don't have to lean over backwards to get me to help. Just ask.

fall over someone or something to stumble over someone or something. □ Sam came into the house and fell over a kitchen chair. □ Walter fell over Roger, who was napping on the floor.

fall overboard to fall from a boat or a ship into the water. (See also go overboard.) □ Someone fell overboard and they had to stop the boat and go back. □ The lady's sunglasses fell overboard.

fall short to lack something; to lack enough of something, such as money, time, etc. □ We fell short of money at the end of the month. □ Tom fell short of cash and had to borrow from me.

fall short of one's goal(s) and fall short of the goal(s); fall short of the record to fail to achieve a goal. □ We fell short of our goal of collecting a thousand dollars. □ Ann ran a fast race, but fell short of the record.

fall through [for something, such as plans] to fail. □ Our party for next Saturday fell through. □ I hope our plans don't fall through.

fall through something to fall and break through something. □ One of the skaters fell through the thin ice. □ A number of hailstones fell through the roof of the greenhouse.

fall through the cracks Go to through the cracks.

fall to to begin doing something; to prepare to do something and go to work on it. □ She asked for help, and everyone fell to. □ Fall to, you guys!

fall to one's knees Go to fall on one's knees.

fall to pieces 1. Lit. to break into pieces. □ The road was so rough the car almost fell to pieces. □ I was afraid that my bicycle would fall to pieces before I got there. 2. Fig. to become emotionally upset. □ I was so nervous, I fell to pieces and couldn't give my speech. □ Roger fell to pieces when his mother died.

fall to someone Fig. to become the responsibility of someone. □ It always falls to me to apologize first. □ Why does it fall to me to answer the telephone every time it rings?

fall toward something to drop or fall in the direction of something. □ She fell toward the curb rather than toward the traffic. □ The tree fell toward the garage rather than toward the house.

fall under someone or something to drop down and end up beneath someone or something. □ The old man fell under the wheels of the truck, but he suffered only minor injuries. □ The child tripped and fell under Mrs. Rogers, who almost did not see her.

fall under someone's spell 1. Lit. to come under the magical control of a magician or similar person. □ The damsel fell under the wizard's spell and sat there speechless. □ As the children fell under the witch's spell, they went to sleep. 2. Fig. to be fascinated by someone; to be enchanted by someone. □ She was so beautiful. I fell under her spell at once. □ Wally fell under Donna's spell and became helpless in her presence.

fall (up)on someone [for a task] to become the duty of someone. □ The task of telling Mother about the broken vase fell upon Jane. □ The job of cleaning up the spill fell upon Tom.

fall (up)on someone or something 1. to collapse on top of someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The bridge fell upon a boat passing beneath it. □ A small branch fell on Jerry as he passed beneath the tree. 2. to attack someone or something. □ The cat fell upon the mouse and killed it. □ The children fell on the birthday cake and ate it all.

fall wide of the mark Go to wide of the mark.

fall within something to belong to a specific category or classification. □ This falls within the realm of the medical profession. There's no more I can do for you. □ Does this fall within your area of expertise?

a false move and one false move Fig. [even] a single movement that indicates that one is disobeying an order to remain still or in a nonthreatening posture. □ The robber threatened to shoot us if we made one false move.

falter in something to fail in doing something; to exhibit a lack of something, such as faith, loyalty, perseverance, etc. □ He did not falter in his effort to see the project through to the end. □ I promised not to falter in my loyalty.

familiar with someone or something to have a good knowledge of someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; get ~.) □ Are you familiar with changing a flat tire? □ I can't speak German fluently, but I'm somewhat familiar with the language.

Familiarity breeds contempt. Prov. People do not respect someone they know well enough to know his or her faults. □ The movie star doesn't let anyone get to know him, because he knows that familiarity breeds contempt.

familiarize someone with something to help someone get to know or understand someone or something. □ I hope you will take the time to familiarize yourself with the instructions before you set out to operate this device. □ Let me take a moment to familiarize myself with the facts of the case.

The family that prays together stays together. Prov. Families who practice religion together will not break apart through divorce or estrangement. □ Mother believed that the family that prays together stays together and insisted that we all say prayers every night.

famous last words Fig. assertions that are almost immediately countered. (Sarcastic.) □ A: I said I would never speak to her again in my entire life! B: Famous last words! You just said hello to her.

a fan of someone to be a follower of someone; to idolize someone. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ My mother is still a fan of the Beatles. □ I'm a great fan of the mayor of the town.

fan out Fig. to spread out over a wide area. □ The searchers fanned out, looking for the child lost in the woods. □ Let's fan out and search a wider area.

fan out (from some place) to spread outward from a particular area. □ The paths seem to fan out from the wide trail that starts at the house. □ The trails fanned out and soon we were all separated.

fan something out¹ to spread something out so that all parts can be seen better. (As one opens a wood and paper fan.) □ Todd fanned the cards out so we could see which ones he held. □ He fanned out the cards.

fan the breeze Fig. to chat or gossip. □ We're just fanning the breeze, so you didn't interrupt anything. □ Stop fanning the breeze and get to work.

fan the flames (of something) Fig. to make something more intense; to make a situation worse. □ The riot fanned the flames of racial hatred even more. □ The hostility in the school is bad enough without anyone fanning the flames.

fancy footwork 1. Lit. clever and intricate dance steps. □ The old man was known for his fancy footwork when he was on Broadway. 2. Lit. adroit movements of the feet that help someone retain balance or move through treacherous territory. □ It took some fancy footwork to get down the mountain carrying the injured child. 3. Fig. a clever and intricate strategy that helps someone get out of trouble. □ The governor did some fancy footwork to keep from getting blamed for the scandal.

Fancy meeting you here! I am very surprised to meet you here! □ Tom: Hi, Sue! Fancy meeting you here! Sue: Hi, Tom. I was thinking the same thing about you. □ "Fancy meeting you here," said Mr. Franklin when he bumped into the company president at the racetrack.

fancy someone as someone or something to imagine that someone were someone else or some particular type of person. □ Can you fancy her as a zookeeper? □ I can fancy him as a tall, dark stranger. □ I really don't fancy myself as a farmer.

fancy someone's chances to have confidence in someone's [including one's own] ability to be successful. □ We all think she will refuse to go out with him, but he certainly fancies his own chances. □ The other contestants are so talented that I don't fancy his chances at all.

Fancy that! and Imagine that! I am very surprised to hear that.; That is hard to imagine or believe. □ Mary: My father was elected president of the board. Sally: Fancy that! □ Sue: This computer is ten times faster than the one we had before. Jane: Imagine that! Is it easy to operate? Sue: Of course not.

far and away the best unquestionably the best. □ This soap is far and away the best I've ever used. □ Sally is good, but Ann is far and away the best artist in our school.

far be it from me to do something it is not really my place to do something. (Always followed by but, as in the example.) □ Far be it from me to tell you what to do, but I think you should buy the book.

a far cry from something a thing that is very different from something else. □ What you did was a far cry from what you said you were going to do. □ The song they played was a far cry from what I call music.

far from it not it at all; not at all. □ Do I think you need a new car? Far from it. The old one is fine. □ Bill: Does this hat look strange? Tom: Far from it. It looks good on you.

far from the madding crowd in a quiet, restful place. (From Thomas Gray's poem, "Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard.") □ Julia sat daydreaming at her desk, wishing she were far from the madding crowd. □ Jane: Where shall we go this weekend? Alan: Anywhere, as long as it's far from the madding crowd.

far gone 1. in an extreme state, usually an irrational or intoxicated state. □ Wow, that chick is far gone. Listen to her rave. □ He was too far gone to make any sense. 2. intoxicated. □ Larry's far gone and looking sick. □ Wow, is she ever far gone!

far into the night late into the night; until very late. □ She sat up and read far into the night. □ The party went on far into the night.

far out 1. Lit. far from the center of things; far from town. □ The Smiths live sort of far out. □ The restaurant is nice, but too far out. 2. Sl. great; extraordinary. This jazz is really far out! You want to hear some far out heavy metal?

3. very hard to understand; arcane; highly theoretical. This physics chapter is too far out for me. I can't follow your far out line of reasoning. 4. intoxicated. Three beers and Wally was really far out.

faraway look and far-off look Fig. an appearance on one's face of having one's mind in another place. Dave had a faraway look in his eyes, so I elbowed him to get his attention. Lisa's face had a far-off look indicating that she was daydreaming.

F

farm someone out[†] 1. [for someone in control] to send someone to work for someone else. I have farmed my electrician out for a week, so your work will have to wait. We farmed out the office staff. 2. to send a child away to be cared for by someone; to send a child to boarding school. We farmed the kids out to my sister for the summer. We farmed out the kids.

farm something out[†] 1. to deplete the fertility of land by farming too intensely. They farmed their land out through careless land management. They farmed out their land. 2. to send work to someone to be done away from one's normal place of business; to subcontract work. We farmed the assembly work out. We always farm out the actual final assembly of the finished units.

far-off look Go to faraway look.

fart around Fig. to waste time playing around. (Caution with fart, which is considered coarse.) Stop farting around and get the job started.

fashion something into something to make, form, or convert something into something else. He fashioned the newspaper into a temporary rain hat. Sarah fashioned the clay into a little bowl.

fashion something on something to model something on something else; to pattern something after something else. She fashioned her dress on something she had seen in a history book. Donna fashioned the plan on the one Robert had used.

fashion something out of something to make something from something; to convert something into something else. He tried to fashion a dog out of balloons. Elaine was expert at fashioning a bow out of chocolate.

fast and furious Cliché very rapidly and with unrestrained energy. Her work in the kitchen was fast and furious, and it looked lovely when she finished. Everything was going so fast and furious at the store during the Christmas rush that we never had time to eat lunch.

fast friends good, loyal friends. The two of them had been fast friends since college.

a fast one a clever and devious trick. (Compare this with pull a fast one.) That was a fast one. I didn't know you were so devious. This was the last fast one like that you'll ever catch me with.

fasten someone or something (on)to someone or something to attach people or things together. He fastened himself onto the mast of the boat with a length of rope. I fastened a note onto Jimmy, so his kindergarten teacher would read it and remind him to wear his gloves home.

fasten something down[†] (to something) to attach something down to something else. Fasten this board down to the top of the workbench. Please fasten down the board.

fasten something up[†] to close something up, using buttons, a zipper, snaps, hooks, a clasp, or other things meant to hold something closed. Please fasten this up for me. I can't reach the zipper. Please fasten up my buttons in back.

fasten (up)on someone or something 1. Lit. to take firm hold of someone or something. She fastened upon me and would not let me go until she finished speaking. I don't like people who fasten on me and ask a lot of questions.

2. Fig. to fix one's attention on someone or something. He fastened upon the picture for a brief moment and then turned away. The baby fastened on the television screen and watched it for many minutes.

faster and faster at an increasing rate of speed; fast and then even faster. The car went faster and faster and I was afraid we would crash. The cost of education goes up faster and faster every year.

fast-talk someone into something to use deceitful talk to get someone to do something. You can't fast-talk me into giving you money. How dumb do you think I am? Max tried to fast-talk Lefty into robbing a bank with him.

fast-talk someone out of something to use deceitful talk to get someone not to do something or to give something up. Don't try to fast-talk me out of my share.

fat and happy Fig. content, as if from being well-fed. Since all the employees were fat and happy, there was little incentive to improve productivity. You look fat and happy. Has life been treating you well?

fat and sassy Fig. in good health and spirits. She came back from her vacation all fat and sassy. Under Joe's care, the runt of the litter grew up fat and sassy.

fat as a pig exceptionally fat; grotesquely fat. (*Also: as ~.) If I don't stop eating this cake, I'll be fat as a pig! You really ought to go on a diet; you're as fat as a pig.

fat cat Fig. someone who is ostentatiously and smugly wealthy. I like to watch the fat cats go by in their BMWs. I'm no fat cat. I can't even pay my normal bills!

fat chance Fig. very little likelihood. Fat chance he has of getting a promotion. You think she'll lend you the money? Fat chance!

the fat hit the fire Fig. a situation that suddenly becomes frantic and unpleasant. (*Typically: suddenly ~; then ~; when ~.) Things were looking bad in the stock market, then the fat hit the fire and I lost everything.

The fat is in the fire. Prov. Matters have come to a crisis; trouble is about to start. Brother: Mom found out that we broke the clock. Sister: Uh-oh. The fat's in the fire now. The fat is in the fire at work; we're nowhere near finishing the project, but the deadline is in two days.

a fate worse than death Fig. a terrible fate. (Usually an exaggeration.) Having to sit through one of his lectures is a fate worse than death.

father something on someone Fig. to regard someone as the author or originator of something. Do not attempt to father that stupid idea on me! We fathered the whole plan on the president. And we learned later she had nothing to do with it.

fatten someone or an animal up^t (with something) to use something to make someone or an animal fat. □ We will fatten the calf up with corn. □ I don't know why they keep fattening up their children with so much food.

fatten up (on something) 1. Lit. to get fat by eating something. □ The cattle fattened up on the succulent grass. □ The bears have to fatten up on food before they hibernate for the winter. 2. Fig. to become prosperous because of something. □ The corporations fattened up on easy profits and low taxes. □ The directors of the company fattened up even during the recession when the workers were laid off.

fault someone (for something) to blame or criticize someone for something. □ I can't fault you for that. I would have done the same thing. □ He tended to fault himself for the failure of the project.

faunch around Rur. to fuss and complain. □ Stop faunching around about your problems and go to sleep. □ Aunt Bess is always faunching around about something.

favor someone or something with something to provide someone or something with something beneficial or special. □ Mary favored us with a song. □ Nature favored Bill with curly hair.

fawn (all) over someone Fig. to flatter someone or attend to someone excessively; to curry favor with someone. □ Please stop fawning all over the guests. You are embarrassing me. □ She always fawns over us when we visit.

fawn (up) on someone Fig. to praise and flatter someone. □ Aunt Mabel fawned on the new baby till the poor child was rescued by her mother. □ I hate the way our aunts fawn on us at family gatherings.

fear for someone or something to be afraid for the safety of someone or something; to worry about someone or something. □ I fear for Tom. He has gone to a very dangerous place. □ I don't want to go down that rocky trail. I fear for my car.

feast one's eyes ((up)on someone or something) Fig. to enjoy the sight of someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Just feast your eyes on that beautiful beach. □ Jane feasted her eyes on Roger for a while and then went on with her studying.

feast (up)on something to eat a great deal of something; to eat a feast built around something in particular. □ We will feast upon turkey for weeks. □ We feasted on the fish Harry had caught.

a feather in one's cap Fig. an honor; a reward for something. □ Getting a new client was really a feather in my cap. □ John earned a feather in his cap by getting an A in physics.

feather one's (own) nest 1. Fig. to decorate and furnish one's home in style and comfort. (Alludes to birds lining their nests with feathers to make them warm and comfortable.) □ With the new family room and expanded kitchen, they seem to have feathered their nest quite comfortably. 2. Fig. to use power and prestige to provide for oneself selfishly. (Said especially of politicians who use their offices to make money for themselves.) □ The mayor seemed to be helping people, but she was really feathering her own nest. □ The building contractor used a lot of public money to feather his nest.

feature someone as something 1. to imagine someone to be something or a particular type of person. □ I really can't feature you as a ship's captain. □ Alice had always featured Fred as a fairly even-tempered person. 2. to give special prominence to someone in a particular part in a play, film, opera, etc. □ They featured Laura as the lead singer in the group. □ The director refused to feature Roger as a lead.

feature someone in something 1. to imagine someone wearing something. □ I can't feature you in that ridiculous dress. □ Can you feature Fran in that hat? 2. to imagine someone being in something or some place. □ I can't feature you in Paris. You are too rural to enjoy a place like Paris. □ Can you feature David in New York City?

fed up (to some degree) (with someone or something) bored or disgusted with someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ I am fed up to my eyeballs with your complaining. □ I am just fed up to here!

Feed a cold and starve a fever. Prov. You should feed someone who has a cold, and withhold food from someone who has a fever; (or, interpreted differently) If you feed someone who has a cold, that will ward off a fever. □ Jill: I don't feel like going out to lunch with you. I have a cold. Jane: All the more reason you should get something to eat. Feed a cold and starve a fever, you know.

feed off (of) something to eat something in particular customarily. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ This creature feeds off fallen fruit. □ Mosquitoes seem to want to feed off of me!

feed one's face Inf. to put food in one's mouth; to eat (something). □ You're always feeding your face. You're going to get fat. □ Stop feeding your face and listen to me.

feed someone a line Go to give someone a line.

feed someone, something, or an animal with something 1. to feed something to someone, a group, or an animal. □ The camp cook fed them with hot dogs and beans. □ We fed the dogs with the leftovers. 2. to use a tool or utensil to feed someone, a group, or an animal. □ He fed the baby with a spoon. □ We fed the entire group with paper plates.

feed something back into something to return something back to where it came. □ I tried to feed the stamps back into the machine, but, of course, they wouldn't go. □ The machine made too many boxes, but you can't feed them back into it!

feed something back^t to someone to give or hand something back to someone. □ We fed the rope back to those in line behind us. □ Feed back the papers to the clerk.

feed something into something to put something into something; to push a supply of something into something. □ I fed all the coins into the telephone and waited to be connected. □ I will feed every coin I have into the phone and see what it does for me. □ Did you feed the data into the computer?

feed something to someone Fig. to tell someone lies. □ Don't try to feed that nonsense to me! I know it isn't so. □ Please don't feed any of those lies to Mark.

feed something to someone or an animal to give someone or an animal food. □ Don't feed pizza to the baby. □ I fed the leftover turkey to the dog.

F

feed the kitty Fig. to contribute money. (A kitty here is a small collection of money.) Please feed the kitty. Make a contribution to help sick children. Come on, Bill. Feed the kitty. You can afford a dollar for a good cause.

feed (upon) someone or something to eat someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) They say that some Bengal tigers feed upon people. They feed on anything that moves.

a feeding frenzy 1. Lit. [of sharks] a vicious, competitive feeding attack on prey animals. One of the sharks was fatally bitten during a feeding frenzy amongst his own kind. 2. Fig. a vicious attack on someone or something. It wasn't an office argument, it was a feeding frenzy led by the head accountant!

feel a draft to sense that one is being rejected; to sense that someone is cool toward one, possibly for racial reasons. Oh, man, I feel a draft in here. Let's leave. What a reception! I sure felt a draft.

feel a glow of contentment Go to next.

feel a glow of happiness and feel a glow of contentment; feel a glow of satisfaction; feel a glow of peacefulness Fig. to have a good feeling of some kind. Anne felt a glow of happiness as she held her new baby. Sitting by the lake, the lovers felt a warm glow of contentment.

feel around (for someone or something) and feel about (for someone or something) to try to find someone or something by feel [rather than sight]. He felt around for the soap in the bathtub. She felt about for the dog at the foot of the bed, but it wasn't there. Gerald felt about for a pencil.

feel at home to feel as if one belongs; to feel as if one were in one's home; to feel accepted. I liked my dormitory room. I really felt at home there. We will do whatever we can to make you feel at home.

feel blue Fig. to feel sad. You look like you feel blue. What's wrong?

feel fit to feel well and healthy. If you want to feel fit, you must eat the proper food and get enough rest. I hope I still feel fit when I get old.

feel for someone to feel the emotional pain that someone else is feeling; to empathize or sympathize with someone. I really feel for you. I'm so sorry it turned out this way. Fred felt for Dave, but there was nothing he could do for him.

*a feel for something a natural or learned ability to do something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) I will do better with this work as soon as I get a feel for it. He doesn't have a feel for this kind of careful work.

feel free (to do something) to feel like one is permitted to do something or take something. Please feel free to stay for dinner. If you see something you want in the refrigerator, please feel free.

feel guilty (about something) to feel that one is to blame for something; to feel intense regret for something that one has done. I feel guilty for forgetting about your birthday. You shouldn't feel guilty about the accident. It's not your fault.

feel it beneath one (to do something) to feel that one would be lowering oneself to do something. Tom feels it beneath him to scrub the floor. Ann feels it beneath her to carry her own luggage. I would do it, but I feel it beneath me.

feel like a million (dollars) Fig. to feel well and healthy, both physically and mentally. A quick swim in the morning makes me feel like a million dollars. What a beautiful day! It makes you feel like a million.

feel like a new person Fig. to feel refreshed and renewed, especially after getting well or getting dressed up. I bought a new suit, and now I feel like a new person. Bob felt like a new person when he got out of the hospital.

feel like death warmed over Go to like death warmed over.

feel like doing something to want to do something; to be in the mood to do something; to feel well enough to do something. Do you feel like stopping work to eat something? I feel like going on a vacation.

feel like oneself again Go to oneself again.

feel like someone or something to have the feel of someone or something; to seem to be someone or something according to feel or touch. Whoever this is feels like Tom. Sort of soft and pudgy. This thing feels like a rubber hose, not a hot dog.

*the feel of something Fig. a sense for how something feels when it is being used correctly. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I haven't yet got the feel of this bat. I hope I don't strike out. I can drive better now that I have the feel of this car's steering.

feel on top of the world Fig. to feel very good, as if one were ruling the world. I feel on top of the world this morning. I do not actually feel on top of the world, but I have felt worse.

feel one's gorge rise Fig. to sense that one is getting very angry. I felt my gorge rise and I knew I was going to lose my temper. Bob could feel his gorge rise as he read his tax bill.

feel one's oats Fig. to be very lively. Careful with that horse. He's feeling his oats today. Mary was feeling her oats and decided to go out dancing.

feel out of place Go to out of place.

feel out of sorts Go to out of sorts.

feel out of things to feel alienated from something. I feel out of things lately. Are people ignoring me? I feel a little out of things at this party, but I will try to join in the fun.

feel pinched and feel the pinch Fig. experiencing hardship because of having too little money. The Smiths used to go abroad every year, but now that he's retired, they're really feeling pinched. You're bound to feel the pinch a little when you're a student.

feel somehow about someone or something to have ideas, opinions, or reactions regarding someone or something. I feel good about him. Do you feel good about how you did on the test? How do you feel about Sally?

feel someone out[†] (about someone or something) Fig. to find out what someone thinks about someone or something. (This does not involve touching anyone.) □ I will feel him out about what he thinks about going to Florida.

□ Let me feel out the boss about this matter.

feel someone up[†] to feel someone sexually. (Use discretion with topic.) □ I heard him say he really wanted to feel her up. □ He wanted to feel up the girl.

feel something in one's bones and know something in one's bones Fig. to sense something; to have an intuition about something. □ The train will be late. I feel it in my bones.
□ I failed the test. I know it in my bones.

feel something with something to touch and explore something with something. □ I felt the soft little creature with my hand. □ Don't feel that thing with your bare hands.

feel the pinch Go to feel pinched.

feel up to something to feel well enough or prepared enough to do something. (Often in the negative.) □ I don't feel up to jogging today. □ Aunt Mary didn't feel up to making the visit.

a feeling about something Go to a feeling (that something is the case).

feeling (kinda) puny feeling ill. □ I'm feeling puny. Think I might be coming down with a cold. □ Bill had to skip football practice on account of he was feeling puny.

feeling no pain numbed by alcohol and feeling nothing; intoxicated. □ She fell off the wagon and is feeling no pain.
□ He drank the whole thing, and he's feeling no pain.

*a feeling (that something is the case) and *a feeling about something a premonition that [something might happen or be the case]; an intuition about something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I had a feeling that you might be dropping by this afternoon. □ I didn't have any facts to support it. I just had a feeling.

The female of the species is more deadly than the male. Prov. In many animal species, the female is poisonous and the male is not, and, by analogy, women are more dangerous than men. □ Bill: My old girlfriend's been threatening me ever since I broke up with her, but she's too small and weak to do me any harm. Fred: I'd be careful if I were you. The female of the species is more deadly than the male.

fence an animal in[†] to enclose an animal and its area within a fence or barrier. □ We fenced the dog in to keep it at home.
□ We had to fence in the dog.

fence someone in[†] to restrict someone in some way. □ I don't want to fence you in, but you have to get home earlier at night. □ Don't try to fence me in. I need a lot of freedom.
□ Your last stupid move fenced in the department, making us less effective.

fence someone or an animal out[†] to keep someone or an animal out with a fence or barrier. □ We decided that living in the woods was satisfactory only if we fenced the wildlife out. □ We had to fence out the deer. □ We hoped we had fenced prowlers out with the tall electric fence.

fence someone or something off[†] (from something) to separate someone or something from something else with a fence or barrier. □ We fenced the children's play area off from the rest of the yard. □ Dave fenced off the play area.
□ We fenced off the children from the rest of the yard.

fence something in[†] to enclose an area within a fence. □ When they fenced the garden in, they thought the deer wouldn't be able to destroy the flowers. □ We fenced in the yard to make a safe place for the children.

fend for oneself Go to shift for oneself.

fend someone or something off[†] to hold someone or something off; to fight someone or something off. □ We knew we could fend them off only a little while longer. □ They could not fend off the attackers.

fender bender Fig. a minor car accident. □ A small fender bender tied up traffic on the expressway for hours!

ferret something out[†] Go to ferret something out of someone or something.

ferret something out[†] (from something) Fig. to fetch something out from something. □ We will have to ferret the mouse out from behind the stove. □ We can ferret out the mouse with the aid of the cat.

ferret something out of someone or something and ferret something out[†] Fig. to get, remove, or retrieve something from someone or something, usually with cunning and persistence. □ I tried very hard, but I couldn't ferret the information out of the clerk. □ I had to ferret out the answers one by one.

ferry someone around[†] to transport people here and there in small groups. □ I really don't want to spend all my days ferrying children around. □ Why am I ferrying around a bunch of kids all day?

ferry someone or something across something and ferry someone or something across[†] to transport someone or something across a river on a ferryboat. □ Can we get someone to ferry us across the lake to the island? □ After they ferried across all the cars, they closed the ferryboat down for the night.

fess up (to something) to confess to having done something. (Short form of confess.) □ I tried to get the boy to fess up to doing it, but he wouldn't do it. □ Come on, fess up.

festoon someone or something with something to drape or garland someone or something with something. □ Karen festooned her daughter with flowers for the party. □ The kids festooned the gymnasium with crepe paper and garlands of plastic flowers.

fetch something in[†] to bring or pull something in. □ Would you please fetch some more firewood in? □ Can you fetch in the paper?

fetch something out of something and fetch something out[†] to pull something out of something. □ Could you fetch me another hot dog out of the pot? □ I'll fetch out a hot dog for you.

fetch up Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ I really felt like I was going to fetch up. □ Somebody fetched up in here and didn't clean it up.

fetch up at some place to reach a place; to end up at a place. □ We fetched up at Sam's house at about midnight. □ The car fetched up at the cabin and everyone got out.

feud (with someone) (over someone or something) and feud (with someone) about (someone or something) to fight with someone over someone or something; to have an ongoing battle with someone about someone or something. □ Some of the neighbors are feuding with each other over the parking places on the street. □ Don't feud over her with me!

few and far between very few; few and widely scattered. □ Get some gasoline now. Service stations on this highway are few and far between. □ Some people think that good movies are few and far between.

a few bricks short of a load and a few cards shy of a full deck; a few cards short of a deck; not playing with a full deck; two bricks shy of a load Fig. lacking in intellectual ability. (Many other variants.) □ Tom: Joe thinks he can build a car out of old milk jugs. Mary: I think Joe's a few bricks short of a load. □ Ever since she fell and hit her head, Jane's been a few bricks short of a load, if you know what I'm saying. □ Bob's nice, but he's not playing with a full deck. □ You twit! You're two bricks shy of a load.

a few cards shy of a full deck Go to previous.

a few cards short of a deck Go to a few bricks short of a load.

fiddle around (with someone) and fiddle about (with someone) to tease, annoy, or play with someone; to waste someone's time. □ All right, stop fiddling around with me and tell me how much you will give me for my car. □ Now it's time for all of you to quit fiddling around and get to work. □ Tom, you have to stop spending your time fiddling about with your friends. It's time to get serious with your studies.

fiddle around (with something) and fiddle about (with something) to play with something; to tinker with something ineptly. □ My brother is outside fiddling around with his car engine. □ He should stop fiddling around and go out and get a job.

fiddle something away¹ to waste something. □ She fiddled the afternoon away. □ Don't fiddle away the afternoon. Get to work.

fiddle while Rome burns Fig. to do nothing or something trivial while knowing that something disastrous is happening. (From a legend that the Roman emperor Nero played the lyre while Rome was burning.) □ The lobbyists don't seem to be doing anything to stop this tax bill. They're fiddling while Rome burns.

fiddle with someone or something to tinker or play with someone or something. □ Please don't fiddle with the stereo controls. □ Leave your brother alone. Don't fiddle with him. He's cranky.

fidget around to wiggle and twitch nervously. □ The child sat there, fidgeting around for over ten minutes. □ Please don't fidget around so.

fidget with something to play with something nervously. □ Please don't fidget with your zipper. □ Carl is always fidgeting with his left ear.

field questions and field a question to answer a series of questions, especially from reporters. □ After her speech, Jane fielded questions from reporters. □ The president's press agents field questions from the newspaper.

Fields have eyes, and woods have ears. Prov. Even though you are outside in an apparently empty landscape, someone may be eavesdropping on you. □ Jill: You said you had a secret. Tell me. Jane: Not here. Jill: But there's nobody else in the park. Jane: Fields have eyes, and woods have ears.

a fifth wheel Fig. an unwelcome or extra person. □ I don't like living with my son and daughter-in-law. I feel like a fifth wheel. □ Bill always begs to come on camping trips with us, but really, he's a fifth wheel.

fifty-fifty even or equal. (See also go fifty-fifty (on something).) □ The chances of success are about fifty-fifty. □ Even at fifty-fifty, it's probably worth it, you know.

fight about someone or something to have a battle or argue about someone or something. □ Why do we always have to fight about money? □ Let's not fight about Ed.

fight against someone or something to battle against someone or something. □ The general refused to fight against the enemy, which was much stronger. □ He fought against the disease to the very end.

fight against time Fig. to hurry to meet a deadline or to do something quickly. □ The ambulance sped through the city to reach the accident, fighting against time. □ All the students fought against time to complete the test.

fight back (at someone or something) to defend oneself against someone or something; to retaliate against someone or something. □ You are going to have to fight back at them. You can't expect us to defend you. □ It's hard for me to fight back against three of them by myself.

Fight fire with fire. Prov. Use against your opponent the same methods he or she is using against you. □ After her opponent had spent several weeks slandering her, the candidate decided to fight fire with fire. □ When evangelists would come to our house and try to convert us, Mother would fight fire with fire and try to convert them to her religion.

fight for someone or something to go to battle for the benefit of someone or something; to go to battle in the name of someone or something. □ They all went off to fight for their country. □ The soldiers fought for the queen and the survival of the empire. □ I guess I will have to learn to fight for my rights.

fight like hell Go to like the devil.

fight like the devil Go to like the devil.

fight like the dickens Go to like the devil.

fight on to continue to fight. □ The boys fought on until one of them was down. □ They fought on until they were exhausted.

fight (one's way) back (to something) to struggle to return to something or some place. □ She fought her way back to the head of the line. □ Jan fought back to good health.

fight one's way out (of something) and fight one's way out to struggle to get out of something or some place. □ He fought his way out of the crowded room and out through the door. □ He couldn't fight his way out of a paper bag.

fight (one's way) through (something) 1. to struggle to get through something; to struggle to penetrate something. □ I'll have to fight my way through all this crepe paper in order to reach the punch bowl. □ The room was filled with trash, and I had to fight through it to get to the other door. 2. to struggle to work through all of something. □ I have to fight my way through this stack of papers by noon. □ I am tired of fighting through red tape.

fight over someone or something to fight a battle that decides who gets someone or something. □ Well, let's not fight over Tom. You can have him. I can make a better team without him. □ The children were fighting over who would get the largest piece of cake.

fight someone or something down[†] to fight against and defeat someone or something. □ We fought the opposition down and got our bill through the committee. □ We had to fight down Fred, who wanted something entirely different.

fight someone or something hammer and tongs and fight someone or something tooth and nail; go at it hammer and tongs; go at it tooth and nail Fig. to fight against someone or something energetically and with great determination. □ They fought against the robber tooth and nail. □ The dogs were fighting each other hammer and tongs.

fight someone or something off[†] to repel an attack from someone or something. □ We fought the enemy attack off, but they returned almost immediately. □ She fought off the mosquitoes all evening. □ Jed fought the attacker off.

fight someone or something with something to attack or battle someone or something with something. □ We can't fight the enemy with clubs and pitchforks! □ I fought him with my bare fists.

fight something down[†] 1. to struggle to hold something back; to struggle to keep from being overwhelmed by something. □ She fought her anger down and managed to stay calm. □ She fought down the urge. 2. to struggle to swallow something; to fight to get something down one's throat. □ It tasted terrible, but I managed to fight it down. □ She fought down the nasty-tasting medicine.

fight something out[†] to settle something by fighting. □ Do we have to fight this out? Can't we use reason? □ I prefer to fight out this matter once and for all.

fight something through[†] (something) to force something through some sort of procedure or process; to railroad something through (something). □ The governor fought the bill through the legislature successfully. □ She fought through the bill successfully.

fight the good fight to fight a noble and well-intentioned battle. □ He fought the good fight and left the meeting with a clear conscience.

fight to the death to engage in a battle that isn't finished until one opponent is dead. □ The two men looked as though they were going to fight to the death. □ These evil-tempered dogs will fight to the death.

fight (with) someone or some creature (over someone or something) to fight with someone or an animal over who gets or keeps someone or something. □ The terrier fought with the collie over the piece of meat. □ I don't want to fight you over Harry.

fight (with) someone or something (about someone or something) to do battle or argue with someone or something about someone or something. □ Let's not fight with each other about this simple matter. □ I don't want to fight with you about this!

a fighting chance a good possibility of success, especially if every effort is made. □ They have at least a fighting chance of winning the race. □ The patient could die, but he has a fighting chance since the operation.

figure in something [for someone or something] to play a role in something. □ Tom figures in our plans for future office management. □ I don't wish to figure in your future.

figure on doing something to plan on something. □ I figured on arriving at the party around eight o'clock. □ Jane figured on spending $25 on dinner.

figure on someone or something to count on someone or something; to assume something about someone or something. □ I am figuring on twelve people for dinner next Friday. □ We are figuring on you and your wife for dinner next weekend.

figure out the root of the problem Go to the root of the problem.

figure someone as something to think of a person as a particular type of person. □ I figured her as a reliable worker. □ We figured them all as good credit risks.

figure someone or something in[†] Go to figure someone or something in((to) something).

figure someone or something in[†] (on something) to plan on having someone or something included in something. □ Please figure another ten people in on the picnic. □ I will figure in those people.

figure someone or something in((to) something) and figure someone or something in[†] to reckon someone or something into the total. □ I will figure the electric bill into the total. □ We can figure in one more person.

figure someone or something out[†] to begin to comprehend someone or something; to come to understand someone or something better. □ I just can't figure you out. □ I can't figure out quiet people readily.

figure something up[†] to add up the amount of something. □ Please figure the bill up. We have to go now. □ I will figure up the bill right away.

filch something (from someone) Sl. to grab or steal something from someone. □ The young boy filched a candy bar from the store. □ Who filched my wallet from me?

file charges (against someone) Go to press charges (against someone).

file for something to submit an application or document for something. □ The company filed for bankruptcy. □ Let's file for reorganization.

file in((to) something) [for a line of people] to move into something or some place. □ The people filed into the hall quietly. □ Everyone filed in quietly.

file out (of something) [for a line of people] to move out of something or some place. □ The people filed quietly out of the theater. □ They filed out at the end.

file past (someone or something) [for a line or procession] to move past someone or something. □ The people filed past the coffin, looking sadly at the still figure inside. □ As they filed past, some wept openly.

file something against someone to lodge a criminal charge against someone. □ Sally filed a charge of assault against Max. □ The old man filed charges against the attacker.

file something (away)[†] to put something away, usually in a file folder or file cabinet. □ She filed the letter away for future reference. Please file away this report. You will need it some day.

file something away[†] (from something) and file something off ((of) something); file something off[†] to remove something from something else by filing. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) The dentist filed the sharp point away from the tooth. The dentist filed away the sharp point from the tooth. The dentist filed the point off.

file something down[†] to level off a protrusion by filing. File this edge down so no one gets cut on it. Please file down this edge.

F

file something off ((of) something) Go to file something away[†] (from something).

file something with someone or something to submit an application or a document to someone or a group. You must file this copy with the state office. I will file this with my boss.

file something off[†] Go to file something away[†] (from something).

fill in [for an indentation, hole, etc.] to become full. The scar filled in after a few months. Will this hole in the ground fill in by itself, or should I put some dirt in?

fill in (for someone or something) Fig. to substitute for someone or something; to take the place of someone or something. I will have to fill in for Wally until he gets back. I don't mind filling in.

Fill in the blanks. You can figure out the rest.; You can draw a conclusion from that. (Fixed order. See also fill something in.) Mary: What happened at Fred's house last night? Bill: There was a big fight, then the neighbors called the police. Mary: Then what happened? Bill: Fill in the blanks. What do you think? John: They had been lost for two days, then the wolves came, and the rest is history. Jane: Yes, I think I can fill in the blanks.

fill one's face and stuff one's face Sl. to eat food fast; to stuff food into one's face. Everytime I see you, you are stuffing your face. No wonder you're overweight!

fill out to become full; to gain weight. About a month after her debilitating illness, Maggie began to fill out again. The fruit on the trees began to fill out, and we knew it was going to ripen soon.

fill someone full of lead Sl. to shoot someone. The shopkeeper bought a gun and swore the next time someone broke into the shop, he'd fill him full of lead. Don't move, or I'll fill you full of lead.

fill someone in[†] (on someone or something) to tell someone the details about someone or something. Please fill me in on what happened last night. Please fill in the committee on the details.

fill someone or something up[†] (with something) to put as much as possible into someone or something. We filled him up with chili and crackers. We will fill up the basket with leaves. I will fill the basket up with flowers.

fill someone's head with something Fig. to put some kind of ideas into someone's head. Who's been filling your head with ideas like that? Mary has been filling my head with ideas about how to get rich.

fill someone's shoes Fig. to take the place of some other person and do that person's work satisfactorily. (As if you were wearing the other person's shoes.) I don't know how we'll be able to do without you. No one can fill your shoes. It'll be difficult to fill Jane's shoes. She did her job very well.

fill something in[†] 1. to add material to an indentation, hole, etc., to make it full. You had better fill the crack in with something before you paint the wall. You should fill in the cracks first. 2. Fig. to write in the blank spaces on a paper; to write on a form. (See also Fill in the blanks.) Please fill this form in. I will fill in the form for you.

fill something out[†] Fig. to complete a form by writing in the blank spaces. Please fill this form out and send it back to us in the mail. I will fill out the form as you asked.

fill something to something to add material to something up to a certain point. Fill the barrel up to here and no higher. Please fill the glass to the top.

fill the bill and fit the bill to be acceptable. Jane: I need some string. Tom: Here's some twine. Will it fill the bill? I need cloth to make a shirt. This muslin ought to fit the bill.

fill the gap to serve temporarily. I think that the temp will fill the gap until a new person can be hired.

fill up 1. to become full. The creek filled up after the heavy rain yesterday. The rain barrel began to fill up during the storm. 2. to fill one's gas tank. I've got to stop and fill up. The gas tank is running low. We will fill up at the next little town.

filled to the brim filled all the way full; filled up to the top edge. I like my coffee cup filled to the brim. If the glass is filled to the brim, I can't drink without spilling the contents.

film over [for something] to develop a film on its surface. The windows had filmed over because of all the humidity. Her eyes filmed over with the cold.

filter in(to some place) 1. Lit. to leak or seep into some place. The smell of bacon cooking filtered into his room and made him wake up. The smoke filtered in and burned our eyes. 2. Fig. [for people] to come into a place, a few at a time, over a period of time. One by one, the guests filtered into the room. They filtered in and started on the snacks.

filter something out of something and filter something out[†] to remove something from a fluid by running it through a filter. We filtered the odors out of the water and made it fit to drink. I'm glad you filtered out the odor.

filter through (something) to pass or seep through something. The water filtered through the coffee grounds and dripped into the pot. The clear water filtered through and left the sand behind.

filthy lucre money. I sure could use a little of that filthy lucre. I don't want to touch any of your filthy lucre.

filthy rich 1. Fig. very wealthy. I wouldn't mind being filthy rich. There are too many filthy rich people now. 2. Fig. people who are very wealthy. The filthy rich can afford that kind of thing, but I can't. I sort of feel sorry for the filthy rich.

a final fling Fig. the last act or period of enjoyment before a change in one's circumstances or lifestyle. You might as well have a final fling before the baby's born. Mary's going out with her girlfriends for a final fling. She's getting married next week.

the final say Go to the last word.

the final word Go to the last word.

financially embarrassed Euph. broke. □ I'm a bit financially embarrassed at the moment. □ Gary found himself financially embarrassed when the time came to pay the bill.

find a way around someone or something 1. Lit. to find a way to pass around someone or something to get to the other side. □ I could hardly find a way around the tables in the crowded restaurant to get to the restroom. 2. Fig. to find a way to evade the rules, or someone's restrictions. □ The students are always trying to find a way around the regulations.

find against someone or something [for a jury or a judge] to announce a decision against one side of a lawsuit. □ The jury found against the defendant, who was a horrible witness. □ The court found against the corporation and levied a fine.

find fault (with someone or something) to find things wrong with someone or something. □ We were unable to find fault with his arguments. □ Sally's father was always finding fault with her.

find favor with someone to win the praise of someone. □ The maid found favor with the family and was given a large salary increase. □ Mary found favor with her employer because of her good ideas.

find for someone or something [for a jury or a judge] to announce a decision in favor of one side of a lawsuit. □ The judge found for Mrs. Franklin, and that made her family quite happy. □ The court found for the plaintiff and admonished the defense lawyer.

find it in one's heart (to do something) and find it in oneself (to do something) Fig. to have the courage or compassion to do something. □ She couldn't find it in herself to refuse to come home to him. □ I can't do it! I can't find it in my heart.

find it in oneself (to do something) Go to previous.

find its way somewhere [for something] to end up in a place. (This expression avoids accusing someone of moving the thing to the place.) □ The money found its way into the mayor's pocket. □ The secret plans found their way into the enemy's hands.

find (neither) hide nor hair Go to (neither) hide nor hair.

find one's feet Fig. to become used to a new situation or experience. □ She was lonely when she first left home, but she is finding her feet now. □ It takes time to learn the office routine, but you will gradually find your feet.

find one's own level Fig. to find the position or rank to which one is best suited. □ You cannot force new clerks to be ambitious. They will all find their own level. □ The new student is happier in the beginning class. It was just a question of letting her find her own level.

find one's tongue Fig. to be able to talk; to figure out what to say. □ Tom was speechless for a moment. Then he found his tongue. □ Ann was unable to find her tongue. She sat there in silence.

find one's way (around) Fig. to be able to move about an area satisfactorily without getting lost. □ I can go downtown by myself. I can find my way around. □ I know the area well enough to find my way.

find one's way around (something) to discover a way to move around something or some place without getting lost. □ Can you find your way around or shall I have someone take you? □ Don't worry. I can find my way around.

find one's way (somewhere) [for someone] to discover the route to a place. □ Mr. Smith found his way to the museum. □ Can you find your way home?

find oneself Fig. to discover what one's talents and preferences are. □ Bill did better in school after he found himself. □ John tried a number of different jobs. He finally found himself when he became a cook.

find oneself in a bind Go to in a bind.

find oneself in a jam Go to in a jam.

find oneself in the doghouse Go to in the doghouse.

find oneself in the market (for something) Go to in the market (for something).

find oneself in the public eye Go to in the public eye.

find oneself with someone or something to discover that one has a disease or a problem. □ I found myself with a terrible case of sunburn after the first day of my vacation.

find oneself without someone or something to discover that one no longer has someone or something. □ When I got to the head of the line, I found myself without a cent!

find out a thing or two (about someone or something) Go to a thing or two (about someone or something).

find someone a bit off Go to a bit off.

find someone a little off Go to a little off.

find someone guilty and find someone innocent; find someone not guilty to decide guilt or innocence and deliver a verdict in a court of law. □ The judge found the defendant not guilty by reason of insanity. □ The jury found the defendant innocent.

find someone in to learn or discover that one is at home; to learn or discover that one is in one's office. □ I never expected to find you in at this time of night. □ Did you really expect to find me in on a Friday night?

find someone innocent Go to find someone guilty.

find someone not guilty Go to find someone guilty.

find someone out 1. to discover that someone is not at home. □ We knocked on their door and found them out. □ Sam found Frank out when he arrived to collect the debt. 2. to discover something surprising or shocking about someone. □ I don't want them to find me out. □ We found her out despite her deviousness.

find something in mint condition Go to in mint condition.

find something out[†] to discover facts about someone or something; to learn a fact. □ I found something out that you might be interested in. □ We found out that the Smiths are going to sell their house.

find (something) out[†] (about someone or something) (from someone or something) to learn something about someone or something from someone or something. □

F

What did you find out about Terry from Mr. Franklin? □ I didn't find anything out about Roger from the newspaper stories. □ I found out what I wanted to know about solar flares from the encyclopedia. □ What did you find out about Bill?

find (something) out the hard way Go to learn (something) the hard way.

find the root of the problem Go to the root of the problem.

find time for someone or something Go to time for someone or something.

F

Finders keepers, losers weepers. Prov. If you find something, you are entitled to keep it. (This is a children's rhyme and sounds childish when used by adults.) □ Bill: Hey! How come you're using my fountain pen? Fred: It's mine now. I found it on the floor—finders keepers, losers weepers. □ Child: That's my hat. You can't have it. Playmate: I found it. Finders keepers.

fine and dandy nice; good; well. □ Well, that's just fine and dandy. Couldn't be better. □ I feel fine and dandy, and I'm going to have a good time here.

Fine feathers make fine birds. Prov. If you dress elegantly, people will think you are elegant. (Can be used ironically, to suggest that even though someone dresses well, he or she is not a high-class person.) □ Bill: I don't see why I should have to wear a necktie for a job interview. Jane: Fine feathers make fine birds.

a fine how do you do an unpleasant situation. (Said with surprise.) □ This is a fine how do you do! Someone left a big puddle of motor oil in my driveway. □ John saw his girlfriend out with another young man. He walked up to her and said, "Well, isn't this a fine how do you do!"

a fine kettle of fish Fig. a troublesome situation; a vexing problem. (Usually appears in the expression, This is a fine kettle of fish!) □ This is a fine kettle of fish. My husband is not here to meet me at the train station, and there's no phone here for me to call him. □ Alan: Oh, no! I've burned the roast. We don't have anything to serve our guests as a main dish. Jane: But they'll be here any minute! This is a fine kettle of fish.

fine print Go to small print.

fine someone for something to demand a monetary penalty from someone for having done something. □ The judge fined her for speeding. □ The agency fined our company for having the wrong kind of tank to store waste oil.

a fine state of affairs Go to a pretty state of affairs.

Fine weather for ducks. Go to Lovely weather for ducks.

Fine words butter no parsnips. Prov. Just because someone promises something does not guarantee that he or she will do it. (Can be used as a rebuke, implying that the person you are addressing is promising something he or she will not do, as in the second example.) □ Sue: Tom promised he would buy me any house I want if I marry him! Jane: Fine words butter no parsnips. □ Fred: Sweetheart, I'm very sorry I've been so short-tempered. I'll never, never be like that anymore. Ellen: Fine words butter no parsnips.

fine-tune something 1. Lit. to make delicate adjustments in some mechanical or electronic device. □ It took a while to fine-tune the flute, but it was worth it. 2. Fig. to make small alterations in a plan or procedure. □ We need to spend some time fine-tuning the scheme, then we will seek approval.

finger someone as someone Sl. to identify someone as a certain person. (As if one were pointing a finger at someone.) □ Max fingered his partner as the gunman. □ The accountant fingered the bookkeeper as the one who fixed the books.

Fingers were made before forks. Prov. It is all right to eat with one's fingers because people had to eat somehow before there were forks. (Used to justify eating something with your fingers.) □ Mother: Put that chicken wing back on your plate and eat it properly, with a knife and fork. Child: But Mom, fingers were made before forks. □ I don't see why it's considered bad manners to eat with your fingers. Fingers were made before forks.

finish ahead of schedule Go to ahead of schedule.

finish someone or an animal off¹ to kill someone or an animal that is already injured or wounded. □ They had to finish the wounded bear off with a revolver. □ The hunter finished off the bear.

finish someone or something off² Fig. to complete some activity being performed on someone or something. □ Let's finish this one off and go home. □ Yes, let's finish off this one. □ Nancy is cutting Elaine's hair. When she finishes her off, she will be ready to leave.

finish someone or something up¹ Fig. to finish doing something to someone or something. □ I will finish this typing up in a few minutes. □ She finished up Fred in a short time.

finish (something) by doing something to bring something to a conclusion by doing something. □ She finished the lecture by naming her sources. □ Sharon finished by reading a poem.

finish something off¹ Fig. to eat or drink up all of something; to eat or drink up the last portion of something. □ Let's finish the turkey off. □ You finish off the turkey. I've had enough.

finish (something) off² with something to bring something to a conclusion with something. □ She finished the dinner off with fancy cheeses and fruit. □ She finished off the dinner with pie.

finish something with a lick and a promise Go to a lick and a promise.

finish with something to complete something; to become done with something. □ I will finish with fixing this soon, and then you can have it. □ When will this be finished with?

finishing touch(s) a final adjustment of something; some effort or action that completes something. □ Norm is in his workshop putting the finishing touches on his latest project.

fink on someone Sl. to inform parents, the authorities, etc. on someone. □ You're not going to fink on me, are you? □ Chuck finked on all of us.

fink out (on someone or something) Sl. to decide not to cooperate with someone or something (after all). □ Come on, don't fink out on us now. □ Bob finked out on the plan.

fire away (at someone) Fig. to ask many questions of someone; to criticize someone severely. □ When it came time for questions, the reporters began firing away at the mayor. □ Members of the opposite party are always firing away at the president.

Fire is a good servant but a bad master. Prov. You must be careful to use fire wisely and under control so that it will not hurt you. □ Don't play with the candle flames, children. Fire is a good servant but a bad master. □ At camp, we learned how to build and extinguish fires safely, since fire is a good servant but a bad master.

fire over something to shoot over something with a weapon, usually people's heads. □ We fired over their heads to warn them to stay away. □ Wally fired over the target.

fire someone up[†] Fig. to motivate someone; to make someone enthusiastic. □ See if you can fire John up and get him to rake the leaves. □ I have to fire up the electorate if I want them to vote for me.

fire someone with anger and fire someone with enthusiasm; fire someone with hope; fire someone with expectations Fig. [for someone's words] to fill someone with eagerness or the desire to do something. □ The speech fired the audience with enthusiasm for change. □ We were fired with anger to protest against the government.

fire someone with enthusiasm Go to previous.

fire someone with expectations Go to fire someone with anger.

fire (something) at someone or something and fire (something) away at someone or something to shoot at someone or something with a weapon. □ Someone fired a gun at my car! □ The cowboy fired at the rattlesnake. □ The hunters fired away at the ducks. □ On television, somebody is always firing away at somebody else.

fire (something) away at someone or something Go to previous.

fire (something) back (at someone or something) to shoot back at someone or something. □ We fired about ten rounds back at them. □ The soldiers in the fort did not fire back at the attackers.

fire something back[†] (to someone or something) Fig. to send something back to someone or a group immediately. □ Look this over and fire it back to me immediately. □ Fire back all this stuff to the printer as soon as you have proofed it.

fire something into someone or something to shoot something, as a weapon, into someone or something. □ She fired the gun into a special box that stopped the bullet. She would then examine it under a special microscope. □ Max fired two shots into Lefty, but even that did not stop him.

fire something off[†] (to someone) Fig. to send something to someone immediately, by a very rapid means. □ Fire a letter off to Fred, ordering him to return home at once. □ I fired off a letter to Fred as you asked. □ I finished the e-mail and fired it off.

fire something up[†] 1. Lit. to light something, such as a pipe, cigarette, etc. □ If you fire that pipe up, I will leave the room. □ Please don't fire up that cigar in here! 2. Fig. to start something such as an engine. □ Fire this thing up, and let's get going. □ Andy fired up the snowblower and started to clear a path.

*a fire under someone Fig. something that makes someone start doing something. (*Typically: build ~; light ~; start ~.) □ The teacher built a fire under the students, and they really started working. □ You had better light a fire under your staff. Either that or we will lay off some of them.

fire up to light a cigarette, cigar, or pipe. □ One by one, the guests went outside and fired up. □ I have to get out of here and fire up.

fire (up)on someone or something to shoot at someone or something with a weapon; to shoot in the direction of someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The troops fired upon the advancing army. □ The cops fired on Max.

fired up Fig. excited; enthusiastic. □ How can you be so fired up at this time of the morning? □ It's impossible to get Martin fired up at all.

firing on all cylinders and hitting on all cylinders

1. Lit. [of an internal combustion engine] having all its cylinders working and thus providing the maximum amount of power. □ The old car is firing on all cylinders despite its age. □ This thing's not hitting on all cylinders.

2. Fig. working at full strength; making every possible effort. □ The team is firing on all cylinders under the new coach. □ The factory is hitting on all cylinders to finish the orders on time.

*a firm hand Fig. [someone's] strong sense of management; a high degree of discipline and direction. (*Typically: exercise ~; have ~; need ~; take ~; use ~.) □ I had to use a firm hand with Perry when he was a child. He had a problem with discipline.

firm something up[†] 1. Lit. to make something more stable or firm. □ We need to firm this table up. It is very wobbly. □ You need to use a whisk to firm up the egg whites. 2. Fig. to make a monetary offer for something more appealing and attractive and therefore more "solid" and likely to be accepted. □ You will have to firm the offer up with cash today, if you really want the house. □ Please firm up this offer if you still want the house.

firm up 1. Lit. to develop better muscle tone; to become less flabby. □ I need to do some exercises so I can firm up. □ You really ought to firm up. 2. Fig. to become more stable or viable; to recover from or stop a decline. □ The economy will probably firm up soon. □ I hope that cattle prices firm up next spring.

first and foremost Cliché first to be dealt with and most important. □ First and foremost, I think you should work harder on your biology. □ Have this in mind first and foremost: Keep smiling!

First catch your hare. Prov. Do not make plans about what you will do when you have something until you actually have it. □ Fred: When I buy my house on the beach, you can spend summers with me there. Ellen: First catch your hare.

First come, first served. Prov. The first people to arrive will be able to get the best choices. □ You can't reserve a seat at the movie theater; it's strictly first come, first served. □ We should get to the book sale as soon as they open; it's first come, first served.

first crack at something Fig. the first opportunity at doing, fixing, or having something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~; take ~; want ~.) □ I'll take the first crack at it, and if I can't do it, you can try.

first hundred years are the hardest.

The first hundred years are the hardest. Prov. The first hundred years of your life are the hardest, and after that, you can expect things to get easier; in other words, your whole life will probably be difficult. (A jocular, ironic way to console someone who is having difficulties.) □ Don't worry; things are bound to improve for you. The first hundred years are the hardest.

First impressions are the most lasting. Prov. People will remember the way you appear when you first meet them, so it is important to look and act your best when you meet someone for the first time. □ George spent two hours picking just the right clothes to wear when he met the head of the law firm, since he knew that first impressions are the most lasting.

the first leg (of a journey) and the first leg (of the journey) the first segment of a journey; the first flight of a multi-flight trip. □ The first leg of the journey got me to London.

first of all as the very first thing; before anything else. □ First of all, put your name on this piece of paper. □ First of all, we'll try to find a place to live.

first off first; the first thing. (Almost the same as first of all.) □ He ordered soup first off. □ First off, we'll find a place to live.

first see the light of day 1. Fig. to be born. □ My grandfather has taken care of me since I first saw the light of day. 2. Fig. to come into being. □ Bob's collection of short stories first saw the light of day in a privately printed edition three years ago.

The first step is always the hardest. Prov. Starting a new endeavor is the hardest part of it. □ Fred: I want to quit smoking, but I can't convince myself to sign up for the "stop smoking" program. Jill: The first step is always the hardest. □ If I can just start this project, I know the rest will be easy. The first step is always the hardest.

first thing (in the morning) before anything else is done in the morning. □ Please call me first thing in the morning. I can't help you now. □ I'll do that first thing.

First things first. Prov. Do things in the proper order; do not skip things that you should do first. □ Jill: Should we go to the museum first, or should we go shopping? Jane: I'm hungry. Let's eat lunch before we discuss it. First things first. □ First things first: read the directions carefully before you try to assemble the bookcase.

the firstest with the mostest the earliest and in the largest numbers; the earliest with more of what's needed. □ Pete got the prize for being the firstest with the mostest. □ I always like to be there early—the firstest with the mostest.

fish for a compliment Fig. to try to get someone to pay oneself a compliment. □ When she showed me her new dress, I could tell that she was fishing for a compliment. □ Tom was certainly fishing for a compliment when he modeled his fancy haircut for his friends.

fish for something 1. Lit. to try to catch a particular kind of fish. □ We are fishing for cod today, but we'll take whatever we get. □ We will fish for perch from the riverbank. 2. Fig. to seek some kind of information. □ You could tell the lawyer was fishing for something from the vague way she asked the questions. □ The telephone caller was fishing for too much information, so I hung up.

fish in troubled waters Fig. to involve oneself in a difficult, confused, or dangerous situation, especially with a view to gaining an advantage. □ Frank is fishing in troubled waters by buying more shares of that company. They are supposed to be in financial difficulties. □ The company could make more money by selling armaments abroad, but they would be fishing in troubled waters.

Fish or cut bait. Fig. Do something or get out of the way. □ Fish or cut bait, Chuck. There's work to be done here. □ Decide whether you're going to watch or help. Fish or cut bait.

fish someone or something out of something and fish someone or something out^t to pull someone or something out of something or some place. □ She is down at the riverbank, fishing driftwood out of the water. □ She fished out a lot of wood.

fish something up^t Go to next.

fish something up out of something and fish something up^t to pull or hoist something out of something, especially after searching or reaching for it. □ The old shopkeeper fished a huge pickle up out of the barrel. □ He fished up a huge pickle.

fish story and fish tale Fig. a great big lie. (Like a fisherman who exaggerates the size of the fish that got away.) □ That's just a fish story. Don't try to fool me. □ He's a master at the fish tale. Maybe he should be a politician.

fish tale Go to previous.

a fishing expedition a search for information without knowledge of whether such information exists. (This involves asking questions with no preconceived notion of what the answers might reveal.) □ The lawyer was on a fishing expedition. There was no real wrong committed to justify a lawsuit. □ Your honor, the prosecutor is just on a clumsy fishing expedition. I move for dismissal. □ We are going to have to go on a fishing expedition to try to find the facts.

fit and trim slim and in good physical shape. □ Jean tried to keep herself fit and trim at all times. □ For some people, keeping fit and trim requires time, effort, and self-discipline.

fit around something to wrap around something. □ This part fits around the top and keeps the water out. □ Will this wrench fit around the bolt?

fit as a fiddle Cliché in very good health. (*Also: as ~.) □ You may feel sick now, but after a few days of rest and plenty of liquids, you'll be fit as a fiddle. □ Grandson: Are you sure you'll be able to climb all these stairs? Grandmother: Of course! I feel as fit as a fiddle today.

fit for a king and fit for the gods Fig. very nice; luxurious. □ What a delicious meal. It was fit for a king. □ Our room at the hotel was fit for a king.

fit for the gods Go to previous.

fit in (somehow) (with something) to match up or harmonize with something in some fashion. □ Your itinerary fits in well with my plans. □ This fits in very poorly with what I had planned.

fit in (with someone or something) to be comfortable with someone or something; to be in accord or harmony with someone or something. I really feel as if I fit in with that group of people. It's good that you fit in. This chair doesn't fit in with the style of furniture in my house.

fit in((to) something) [for something] to be a suitable size to go into something. This peg does not fit into this hole. That huge sofa simply doesn't fit in through the door.

fit like a glove Fig. to fit very well; to fit snugly. My new shoes fit like a glove. My new coat is a little tight. It fits like a glove.

fit someone for something 1. to measure someone for something. I have to fit him for his tuxedo. I'll take his measurements and get to work on it. She was fitted for her gown in only one afternoon. 2. to prepare someone for something; to make someone suitable for some purpose or activity. His education did not fit him for working with children. Her temperament does not fit her for this kind of work.

fit someone or something in((to) something) and fit someone or something in⁺ to manage to place someone or something into something. I think I can fit you into my schedule. I have fit in three people already today. The shelf is tight, but I think I can fit one more book in.

fit someone or something out⁺ (for something) to equip someone or something for something; to outfit someone or something for something. We are going to fit our boat out so we can live on it during a long cruise. We fit out the children in funny costumes for Halloween.

fit someone or something out⁺ (with something) to provide or furnish someone or something with something. They fit out the campers with everything they needed. They fit them out for only $140.

fit someone or something up⁺ (with something) and fit someone or something (up⁺) with something to provide someone or something with something for a particular purpose. We fit the couple up with fins, masks, and snorkels for skin diving. The clerk fitted up the couple with diving gear for their vacation. She fit them with tanks and weights.

fit someone to a T Go to suit someone to a T.

fit something on((to) something) and fit something on⁺ to manage to place something onto something. See if you can fit this lid onto that jar over there. Sorry, I can't fit on this lid, because it's too big.

fit something to something to make something suit something else. Please try to fit your remarks to the audience. Can you fit the main course to the needs of all the people who are coming to dinner?

fit something together⁺ to put the parts of something together. First you have to fit the pieces together to see if they are all there. I think I can fit the parts of the model airplane together. Do you think you can fit together all the parts of the puzzle?

fit the bill Go to fill the bill.

fit to be tied angry and agitated. (As if needing to be restrained.) Joe was fit to be tied when his wife told him she was leaving. I was fit to be tied when Mary tried to be friendly, after three years of not speaking to me.

fit to kill Rur. a great deal; to the highest possible degree. We laughed fit to kill when we saw the expression on Jim's face. I had my car gussied up fit to kill.

fit together [for things] to conform in shape to one another. All the pieces of the puzzle fit together. They really do. This nut and bolt just don't fit together.

fit with something to harmonize with something; to go well with something. Do you think that your behavior fits with the occasion? This coat doesn't fit with these slacks.

fits and starts with irregular movement; with much stopping and starting. (*Typically: by ~; in ~; with ~.) Somehow, they got the job done in fits and starts. By fits and starts, the old car finally got us to town.

five-finger discount Sl. shoplifting. Sam used his five-finger discount to get the kind of ring Jane wanted. I got this necklace by five-finger discount.

a fix 1. Sl. a dose of a drug or narcotic. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~; need ~.) The addict badly needed a fix and was very fidgety. 2. an appropriate repair. Do you have a good fix for a leaky faucet?

fix an animal Euph. to remove the uterus or testicles of a pet animal. We took Fluffy to the veterinarian to have her fixed. The animal shelter fixes all animals that come there, to prevent overpopulation.

a fix on something 1. the exact location of something distant. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I can't get a fix on your location. Where are you? We are trying to get a fix on your radio transmission. 2. Fig. an understanding of the direction of a discussion. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I can't quite get a fix on what you're trying to say. I can't get a fix on where you're going with this argument.

fix someone or something up⁺ to rehabilitate someone or something. The doctor said he could fix me up with a few pills. The doctor fixed up the injured hunter and sent him home.

fix someone's wagon Fig. to punish someone; to get even with someone; to plot against someone. If you ever do that again, I'll fix your wagon! Tommy! You clean up your room this instant, or I'll fix your wagon! He reported me to the boss, but I fixed his wagon. I knocked his lunch on the floor.

fix someone up⁺ (with someone) and line someone up⁺ (with someone) to arrange for someone to have a date or a companion. They lined John up with my cousin, Jane. John didn't want us to fix him up. We fixed up Bob with a date.

fix someone up⁺ (with something) to supply someone with something. I will fix you up with some alcohol and bandages. The clerk fixed up the lady with what she needed. Larry wanted some film and the clerk fixed him up with the best.

fix something Sl. to pay money in secret to have something turn out the way you want. The Boss fixed all the horse races in the county. After the gun-control bill failed to pass, there were rumors that the gun lobby had fixed the legislature.

fix something for (a meal) to prepare something for a specific meal. I will fix some chili for lunch. Will you fix something good for dinner tonight?

fix something on(to) something to attach something onto something. □ We fixed a notice onto the broken door so people wouldn't use it. □ Please fix a label on this package.

fix something over^t to redo something; to do something over; to redecorate something. □ I want to fix this room over next spring. □ I really want to fix over this room.

fix something with someone 1. to get someone's agreement or permission for something. □ Don't worry, I'll fix it with your boss. □ Can you fix things with my brother? He doesn't want me to do this. 2. to apologize or make amends to someone for something. □ She is upset at you, but you can fix it with her, I'm sure. □ I will fix it with her. Don't worry.

F

fix (up)on someone or something to become preoccupied with someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ She seems to have fixed upon becoming a pilot. □ James is quite fixed on Janet.

fixed up provided with a date. □ Sam got fixed up with Martha. □ Okay, Sam is fixed up with a date for Saturday.

fixin(g) to do something Rur. getting ready to do something; getting ready to start something. □ I'm fixin' to go to the store. Need anything?

fizz up [for a liquid] to sparkle and bubble with many tiny bubbles; [for a liquid] to effervesce. □ The cola drink fizzed up and spilled over. □ As she poured the root beer, it fizzed up over the glass.

fizzle out 1. Lit. [for a liquid] to lose its effervescence. □ This seltzer has fizzled out. I need a fresh glass of it. 2. Fig. [for an item in a fireworks display] to fail to operate properly, often producing only a hiss. □ That last rocket fizzled out. Set off another one. □ A lot of the fireworks fizzled out because it was raining. 3. Fig. to fade or become ineffectual gradually. □ The party began to fizzle out about midnight. □ The last clerk I hired fizzled out after the first week.

flack out and flake out Sl. to collapse with exhaustion; to lie down because of exhaustion. □ All the hikers flacked out when they reached the campsite. □ After a few hours, the hikers all flaked out.

flag someone or something down^t to signal or wave, indicating that someone should stop. □ Please go out and flag a taxi down. I'll be right out. □ She went to flag down a taxi.

flake away (from something) [for bits of something] to break away from the whole gradually or from natural causes. □ Bits of stone flaked away from the surface of the statue year after year. □ Bits of the steps flaked away from years of constant use.

flake down Sl. to go to bed and go to sleep. □ I've got to go home and flake down for a while. □ Tom is flaked down for the night.

flake off ((of) something) [for bits of something] to break away from the whole, perhaps under pressure or because of damage. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Little bits of marble began to flake off the marble steps. □ Bits flaked off from the whole.

flake out Go to flack out.

flake something off^t Go to next.

flake something off of something and flake something off^t to make bits or flakes break off from the whole. □ The sculptor flaked bits of stone off the block, but you could not yet see what the block was going to become. □ She flaked off a little more.

flame up 1. [for something] to catch fire and burst into flames. □ The trees flamed up one by one in the forest fire. □ Suddenly the car flamed up and exploded. 2. [for a fire] to expand and send out larger flames. □ The raging fire flamed up and jumped to even more trees. □ As firemen opened the door and came in, the fire flamed up and filled the room.

flame with anger and flame with resentment; flame with lust; flame with vengeance Fig. [for someone's eyes] to "blaze" or seem to communicate a particular quality or excitement, usually a negative feeling. □ His eyes flamed with resentment when he heard Sally's good news. □ Her eyes flamed with hatred.

flame with lust Go to previous.

flame with resentment Go to flame with anger.

flame with vengeance Go to flame with anger.

flank (up)on someone or something to be at the side of someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The Victorian mansion flanked on the tall, modern apartment building. □ It flanked on a broad expanse of fir trees.

flap around [for a sheet of something] to blow, flop, or slap around, perhaps in the wind. □ The sails flapped around, making a lot of noise. □ The awning flapped around during the night.

flap one's gums and flap one's jaws Rur. to talk aimlessly. □ They're still out on the porch, flapping their gums. □ Well, I can't sit here flapping my jaws all day. Gotta get back to work.

flap one's jaws Go to previous.

flare out to spread out; to widen. (Said especially of one opening of a tube or round-topped vessel.) □ The end of the pipe flared out to a larger diameter. □ The top of the vase flared out, and was decorated with little blobs of colored glass.

flare something out^t to spread something out; to make something wider. (Said especially of one end of a tube or round-topped vessel.) □ Can you flare the end of this pipe out a little? □ Flare out the end of this pipe.

flare up 1. Lit. [for something] to ignite and burn. □ The firewood flared up at last—four matches having been used. 2. Lit. [for a fire] to burn brightly again and expand rapidly. □ After burning quietly for a while, the fire suddenly flared up and made the room very bright. 3. Fig. [for a pain or medical condition] to get worse suddenly. □ My arthritis flares up during the damp weather. 4. Fig. [for a dispute] to break out or escalate into a battle. □ A war flared up in the Middle East. □ We can't send the whole army every time a dispute flares up. 5. and flare up at someone or something Fig. to lose one's temper at someone or something. □ I could tell by the way he flared up at me that he was not happy with what I had done. □ I didn't mean to flare up.

flash a smile (at someone) Fig. to smile quickly and perhaps briefly at someone. □ She flashed a smile at me as if she recognized me.

flash across something 1. Lit. [for something bright] to move quickly across something. □ The telephone number flashed across the television screen too fast for me to copy it down. □ The spotlight flashed across the audience, blinding me as it went by. 2. Fig. [for an idea or image] to move quickly through one's mind. □ A solution to the problem suddenly flashed across my mind. □ Thoughts of food flashed across my mind, and I began to be very hungry.

flash back (on someone or something) Fig. to provide a glimpse of someone or something in the past. (In films, literature, and television.) □ The next scene flashed back on Fred's murder. □ The story then flashed back, giving us information out of the past.

flash back (to someone or something) to return briefly to a view of someone or something in the past. (In films, literature, and television.) □ The story suddenly flashed back to Tom when he was a child. □ The story flashed back to Tom's childhood.

a flash in the pan Fig. someone or something that draws a lot of attention for a very brief time. □ I'm afraid that my success as a painter was just a flash in the pan. □ Tom had hoped to be a major film star, but his career was only a flash in the pan.

flash into one's mind Fig. [for an idea or image] to enter one's mind for an instant. (See also flash through one's mind.) □ A brilliant idea flashed into her mind, and she wrote it down. □ When the idea flashed into my mind, I closed my eyes and tried to forget it.

flash into view Fig. to move quickly into view. □ Suddenly, a doe and her fawn flashed into view. □ A bright parrot flashed into view and squawked raucously.

flash off [for a light] to go off suddenly. (See also flash on.) □ The light flashed off and it was dark for a few minutes. □ When the lights flashed off, I was setting my watch.

flash on [for a light] to turn on suddenly. □ The light flashed on and woke us up. □ When the light flashed on, I had just been getting to sleep.

flash on someone or something [for a light] to shine on someone or something suddenly or in bursts. □ The orange neon light flashed on John's face, making him look quite strange. □ The light flashed on the window shade, startling the occupants of the room.

flash on something Sl. to remember something suddenly and vividly. □ Then I flashed on a great idea. □ I was trying to flash on her name, but I couldn't bring it to mind.

flash out [for a light] to shine out of something suddenly or in bursts. □ The light flashed out, signaling us to stay away from the rocks. □ Under the door, we saw a light flashing out. Someone was watching television in that room.

flash something around^t to display something so everyone can see it. (Usually something one would hold in one's hand.) □ Don't flash your money around on the streets. □ She flashed around the pictures of her grandchildren every chance she got.

flash something at someone or something 1. Lit. to shine a light quickly on someone or something. □ Larry flashed a light at Frank to verify his identity. □ We flashed the light at each doorway, looking for the address we had been sent to. 2. Fig. to show something, such as a badge, to someone or a group quickly. □ The cop flashed his badge at the suspect. □ The security officer came in and flashed his badge at the board of directors.

flash something up^t (some place) to shine a light upwards toward something. □ Flash your light up into the tree. □ She flashed up her light at the cat in the tree. □ Gloria flashed the light up.

flash through one's mind Fig. [for an idea or image] to move quickly through one's mind. (See also flash into one's mind.) □ Suddenly, a great idea flashed through my mind. □ The same idea flashed through all of our minds at once.

flash with anger and flash with recognition; flash with eagerness [for someone's eyes] to "glimmer" or seem to communicate a particular quality or excitement. □ Her green eyes flashed with anger. □ Ellen's eyes flashed with recognition when she saw me.

flash with recognition Go to previous.

flat as a board and flat as a pancake Cliché very flat. (Also used to describe someone's chest or abdomen, referring to well-developed abdominal muscles or small or nearly absent breasts or pectoral muscles—in either sex. *Also: as ~.) □ Jane was flat as a board until she was sixteen, when she suddenly blossomed. □ Lucy can mash an aluminum can flat as a pancake with one blow from her heel.

flat as a pancake Go to previous.

flat broke and flat busted Fig. having no money at all. □ Sorry, I'm flat broke. Not a cent on me. □ You may be flat broke, but you will find a way to pay your electricity bill or you will live in the dark. □ Mary was flat busted, and it was two more weeks before she was due to get paid.

flat busted Go to previous.

flat on one's ass 1. Fig. Inf. completely exhausted. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ I'm just flat on my ass. I need some rest. □ After the day of the marathon, Pete was flat on his ass for a week. 2. Fig. Inf. broke; financially destroyed. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion. An elaboration of flat broke.) □ Sorry, I can't help you. I'm broke—flat on my ass. □ The guy's flat on his ass. Can you help him out with a loan?

(flat) on one's back ill in bed. □ I've been on my back with the flu for two weeks. □ She was flat on her back during her illness.

flat out 1. clearly and definitely; holding nothing back. □ I told her flat out that I didn't like her. □ They reported flat out that the operation was a failure. 2. at top speed. □ How fast will this car go flat out? □ This car will hit about 110 miles per hour flat out.

flatten someone or something out^t to make someone or something flat. □ If you fall under the steamroller, it will flatten you out. □ Flatten out that dough a little more. □ Please flatten it out.

flatter one's figure Fig. [for clothing] to make one look thin or to make one's figure look better than it is. □ The lines of this dress really flatter your figure. □ The trousers had a full cut that flattered Maria's figure.

Flattery will get you nowhere. Flattering me will not increase your chances of success. □ A: Gee, you can do almost anything, can't you? B: Probably, but flattery will get you nowhere.

flavor food with something to season a food with something. □ He flavors his gravy with a little sage. □ Can you flavor the soup with a little less pepper next time?

fleck something with something to put little specks of something on something. □ They flecked the little figures with some kind of powder that made them sparkle. □ His hair was flecked with gray.

flee from someone or something to run away from someone or something. □ The robber fled from the scene of the crime. □ The children fled from the wrath of the old man.

flee to something to escape to something or some place. □ We fled to our little place on the coast. They never found us. □ The little mouse fled to its hole in the wall when the cat came around.

fleet of foot Fig. able to run fast. □ Frederick, who was notably fleet of foot, outran all the other boys and won the prize.

a fleeting glance Fig. a quick glance; a very brief look. □ I had a fleeting glance at the car as it sped by, but I couldn't read the license plate number.

flesh and blood 1. Lit. a living human body, especially with reference to its natural limitations; a human being. □ This cold weather is more than flesh and blood can stand. □ Carrying 300 pounds is beyond mere flesh and blood.
2. Fig. the quality of being alive. □ The paintings of this artist are lifeless. They lack flesh and blood. □ This play needs flesh and blood, not the mumbling of intensely dull actors.
3. and own flesh and blood Fig. one's own relatives; one's own kin. □ That's no way to treat one's own flesh and blood. □ I want to leave my money to my own flesh and blood.

flesh out to become more fleshy. □ She began to flesh out at the age of thirteen. □ After his illness, Tom fleshed out and regained his strength.

flesh something out[†] (with something) Fig. to make something more detailed, bigger, or fuller. □ This is basically a good outline. Now you'll have to flesh it out. □ The play was good, except that the author needed to flesh out the third act. It was too short.

flex something out of shape to bend something out of its normal shape. □ Don't flex all the hangers out of shape. We need a few in the closet. □ Who flexed the gate out of shape?

flexed out of shape Sl. very angry; bent out of shape. □ The boss was completely flexed out of shape. □ I am truly flexed out of shape.

flick out 1. [for the ends of a flame] to reach out as the flame burns. □ The flames of the campfire flicked out and threatened the cold fingers that were too close. □ The flames flicked out from the burning house and set a nearby tree on fire.
2. [for the tongue of a reptile] to come out suddenly. □ The snake's tongue flicked out regularly. □ The lizard's tongue flicked out, grabbed the insect and ate it.

flick something off[†] 1. to turn something off, using a toggle switch. □ Mary flicked the light off and went out of the room. □ Please flick the light off as you go out the door. □ Please flick off the light.
2. Go to next.

flick something off someone or something and flick something off[†] to brush or knock a speck of something off of someone or something with a quick movement. □ She flicked a speck of lint off his collar. □ She flicked off the lint.

flick something on[†] to turn something on, using a toggle switch. □ Mary came into the room and flicked the light on. □ Please flick on the light.

flick something out[†] [for a reptile] to push out its tongue quickly. □ The lizard flicked its tongue out repeatedly. □ The lizard kept flicking out its tongue at regular intervals.

flick something with something to brush or knock something with something quickly or lightly. □ She flicked her finger at the fly that had lighted nearby. □ Tom flicked the vase with his sleeve and knocked it over.

flick through something to turn quickly through the pages of something. □ Colleen flicked through the magazine, looking only at the advertisements. □ I have only had time to flick through the manuscript, but it looks okay.

flicker out [for a flame] to dwindle, little by little, until it goes out. □ The candle flickered out, leaving us in total darkness. □ When the last flame flickered out, the room began to get cold.

flight of fancy an idea or suggestion that is out of touch with reality or possibility. □ What is the point in indulging in flights of fancy about exotic vacations when you cannot even afford the rent?

flinch from someone or something to move back suddenly from someone or something; to shrink (back) (from someone or something) suddenly. □ She struck at him and he flinched from her. □ At the last minute the center fielder flinched from the ball.

fling one's head back[†] to tilt one's head back quickly. □ She flung her head back and laughed heartily. □ She flung back her head and laughed.

fling oneself at someone Go to throw oneself at someone.

fling someone or something around[†] to sling or throw someone or something around. □ Don't fling your wet clothing around. You are messing up the whole room. □ Don't fling around all your clothes.

fling someone or something aside[†] to toss or sling someone or something aside or out of the way. □ She flung aside the covers and leaped out of bed. □ She flung the covers aside.

fling someone or something away[†] to throw or sling someone or something away or out of the way. □ You can't just fling me away! I am your eldest son! □ You can't just fling away the things you don't want!

fling someone or something back[†] 1. to sling or throw someone or something backwards. □ I had to fling the child back, away from the fire. □ I flung back the door and ran out. □ Walt grabbed at the door and flung it back.
2. to return someone or something by slinging or throwing. □ She took the little fish and flung it back into the water. □ Did you fling back the ball to Roger?

fling someone or something down[†] to throw or push someone or something down. □ He flung the book down in great anger. □ He flung down the book and ran from the room.

fling someone or something out of something and fling someone or something out[†] to sling or throw someone or something out of something or some place. □ In anger, she flung the cat out of the window. □ She flung out the cat and closed the window.

fling something at someone or something to throw something roughly or carelessly at someone or something. □ Don't fling that towel at me! □ Don't just fling that paper at the wastebasket, hoping it will get there!

fling something in(to) something and fling something in† to throw something into something. □ I will fling this thing in the trash. It is junk! □ Liz opened the laundry chute and flung in her clothes. □ She flung them in.

fling something off of oneself and fling something off† 1. to pull or throw something off of oneself hastily. □ She flung the blanket off herself. □ She flung off the blanket. 2. to pull or take off an article of clothing. □ Larry flung his jacket off and went straight to the kitchen. □ He flung off his jacket.

fling something off (of) something and fling something off† to yank or pull something off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ He flung the bedspread off the bed and dived in. □ He flung off the covers and dived into bed.

fling something on oneself and fling something on† to put an article of clothing onto oneself hastily. □ She got up and flung on her robe. □ She flung her robe on and went to answer the door.

fling something up† in someone's face Fig. to bring a problem up and confront someone with it. □ Don't fling it up in my face! It's not my fault! □ I don't like anyone to fling up my past in my face.

fling something up† (in something) to throw one's arms or hands up in an expression of some emotion, such as despair, horror, disgust, resignation. □ She flung her hands up in despair. □ She flung up her hands and cried out for help.

fling up Sl. to empty one's stomach; to vomit. □ I was afraid I was going to fling up. □ Who flung up on the sidewalk?

flip around to turn end for end, all the way around, quickly. □ The alligator flipped around and hissed at us. □ The kitten flipped around and pounced on my hand.

flip one's lid Go to next.

flip one's wig and flip one's lid Sl. to suddenly become angry, crazy, or enthusiastic. □ Whenever anyone mentions taxes, Mr. Jones absolutely flips his wig. □ Stop whistling. You're going to make me flip my lid.

flip out Sl. to lose control of oneself. □ After a sleepless night, Wally simply flipped out. □ I felt like I was going to flip out from the steady dripping of the faucet.

flip over to turn over quickly. □ The fish flipped over and flipped back over again. □ The cat flipped over and ran away.

flip over someone or something Sl. to become very excited about someone or something; to lose control because of someone or something. □ I flipped over her the first time I ever saw her. □ The guests really flipped over the Beef Wellington!

the flip side 1. Lit. the "other" side of a phonograph record. □ On the flip side, we have another version of "Love Me Tender" sung by Sandy Softly. □ You really should listen to the flip side sometime. 2. Fig. another aspect of a situation. □ On the flip side, if we lower the taxes it may stimulate consumer spending.

flip someone for something to flip [a coin] with someone to determine the possession of something or the right to do something. □ Maybe it's yours; maybe it's mine. I'll flip you for it.

flip someone off† and flip someone out†; flip someone the bird Sl. to give someone the finger, that is raise the middle finger, a rude sign. (The digitus impudicus.) □ The youth flipped the police officer off. Not a good idea. □ He flipped off the cop. □ You better not flip a cop out! □ The little kid flipped the cop the bird and didn't even know what it meant.

flip someone out† Go to previous.

flip someone the bird Go to flip someone off.

flip someone or something over† to turn someone or something over quickly. □ He flipped over the fish and removed the scales from its other side. □ Billy flipped Bobby over and started hitting him on the other side.

flip someone out† Go to flip someone off†.

flip through something to go quickly through the leaves of a book, etc., page by page. □ She flipped through the book, looking at the pictures. □ Don't just flip through it. Read it.

flirt with someone to tease or trifle with someone alluringly. □ Are you flirting with me? □ Everyone knows that married men aren't supposed to flirt with anyone.

flirt with the idea of doing something Fig. to think about doing something; to toy with an idea; to consider something, but not too seriously. (See also flirt with someone.) □ I flirted with the idea of going to Europe for two weeks. □ Jane flirted with the idea of quitting her job.

flit about to move about quickly; to dart about. □ A large number of hummingbirds were flitting about. □ Butterflies and moths flitted about among the trees and flowers.

flit from person to person Fig. to move quickly from person to person or thing to thing. (See also flit from something to something else.) □ Tom flitted quickly from person to person, handing out snacks and beverages. □ The singer flitted from table to table, working the crowd for tips.

flit from something to something else 1. Lit. [for an insect] to fly quickly from one thing to another. □ The butterfly flitted from flower to flower. 2. Fig. [for someone] to go quickly from task to task, spending little time on each one. □ The housekeeper only flits from room to room without ever getting anything completely clean.

float a loan Fig. to get a loan of money; to arrange for a loan of money. □ I couldn't afford to pay cash for the car, so I floated a loan. □ They needed money, so they had to float a loan.

float around to float from here to there freely. □ All sorts of paper and trash were floating around on the surface of the pond. □ Water hyacinths floated around, making a very tropical scene.

float into something 1. Lit. to move on water or in air into something. □ The huge cruise ship floated majestically into the harbor. □ The kite floated into a tree and was ruined.

2. Fig. to move into something gently, as if floating. □ She floated into the room, looking like Cinderella before midnight. □ Tom and Gloria floated into the theater like a king and queen. They must have rehearsed it.

float on air Fig. [for someone] to feel free and euphoric. □ I was so happy, I was floating on air. □ Mary was floating on air after she won first prize.

float through something 1. Lit. to move slowly through water or air, gently. □ The boats floated through the water slowly and gracefully. □ As the clouds floated through the sky, they cast blotchy shadows on the ground. 2. Fig. [for someone] to move aimlessly through something. (As if semiconscious.) □ She has no ambition. She's just floating through life. □ He floated through his work that day. It is probably done all wrong.

float (up)on something to drift as if on the surface of something; to drift along through the air. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The little tufts of dandelion seeds floated upon the breeze. □ The fluff floated on the breeze.

flock after someone or something to follow someone or something in a group. □ The children flocked after the man playing the flute. □ Fans flocked after the movie star as he went from his limo into the hotel.

flock around someone or something to crowd around someone or something. □ All the children will flock around the magician to see how the tricks are performed. □ The guests flocked around the birthday cake.

flock in((to) some place) Fig. [for people] to move into some place in crowds. □ People were flocking into the store where everything was on sale.

flock to someone or something Fig. [for people] to come to someone or something in great numbers. □ Many people flocked to the shopping mall for the postholiday discounts. □ The kids flocked to the movie theater on Saturday afternoon.

flock together to gather together in great numbers. (Typically said of birds and sheep.) □ A large number of blackbirds flocked together, making a lot of noise. □ Do sheep really flock together in a storm?

flog a dead horse and beat a dead horse Fig. to insist on talking about something that no one is interested in, or that has already been thoroughly discussed. □ The history teacher lectured us every day about the importance of studying history, until we begged him to stop flogging a dead horse. □ Jill: I think I'll write the company president another letter asking him to prohibit smoking. Jane: There's no use beating a dead horse, Jill; he's already decided to let people smoke.

flog someone to death Lit. to beat someone to death with a whip. □ In the movie, the captain ordered the first mate to flog the sailor to death.

flog something to death Fig. to dwell on something so much that it no longer has any interest. □ Stop talking about this! You've flogged it to death. □ Walter almost flogged the whole matter to death before we stopped him.

flood in(to something) 1. Lit. [for a fluid] to flow quickly into something in great volume. □ The water flooded in and soaked the carpets. 2. Fig. [for large amounts or numbers or people or things] to pour or rush into something.

□ The people flooded into the hall. □ We opened the door, and the dogs and cats flooded in.

flood out (of something) 1. Lit. [for water or something that flows] to rush out of something. □ The water flooded out of the break in the dam. 2. Fig. [for people] to rush out of something or some place. □ The people flooded out of the theater, totally disgusted with the performance.

flood someone or something out of something and flood someone or something out[†] [for too much water] to force someone or something to leave something or some place. □ The high waters flooded them out of their home. □ The high waters flooded out a lot of people.

flood someone or something with something to cover or inundate someone or something with something. □ We flooded them with praise and carried them on our shoulders. □ The rains flooded the fields with standing water.

the floor Fig. the exclusive right to address the audience. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; hold ~; grant someone ~.) □ When I get the floor, I'll make a short speech. □ The last time you had the floor, you talked for an hour.

floor it Fig. to press down hard and fast on the accelerator of a vehicle. □ She floored it and sped off over the hill.

floor someone to surprise and astound someone. □ His brashness simply floored me!

flop around [for something] to turn around awkwardly; [for a fish out of water] to squirm and flap. □ The hose flopped around, throwing water first this way and then that, knocking down plants as it flopped. □ A number of fish flopped around in the bottom of the boat.

flop as something to be a failure in a particular aspect of something in one's life or career. □ He flopped as an actor. □ I don't want to flop as a public speaker.

flop down to sit down heavily or awkwardly. □ Be graceful. Don't just flop down! □ When I reached the chair, all I could do was flop down.

flop into something [for someone] to fall or drop into something, such as bed, a chair, a bathtub, etc. □ Maggie flopped into the chair and slipped off her shoes. □ Tom flopped into bed and fell fast asleep.

flop someone or something over[†] to turn someone or something over, awkwardly or carelessly. □ They flopped the unconscious man over, searching for his identification. □ They flopped over the injured man.

flop something down on(to) something and flop something down[†] to drop or slap something down on something. □ She flopped the liver down on the cutting board. □ She flopped down the raw meat.

flora and fauna plants and animals. □ The magazine story described the flora and fauna of Panama. □ We went for a hike in the Finnish wilderness hoping to learn all about the local flora and fauna.

floral tribute Euph. flowers sent to a funeral. □ The church was filled with floral tributes. □ Did you wish to make any arrangements for floral tributes at your grandmother's funeral?

flotsam and jetsam 1. Lit. the floating wreckage of a ship and its cargo, or floating cargo deliberately cast overboard to stabilize a ship in a rough sea. □ All sorts of flotsam and jetsam washed up on the beach. 2. Fig. worthless matter; worthless encumbrances. □ His mind is burdened with the flotsam and jetsam of many years of poor instruction and lax study habits. □ Your report would be better if you could get rid of a lot of the flotsam and jetsam and clean up the grammar a bit.

flounce in(to some place) to move into a place with exaggerated or jerky motions. □ A couple of teenagers flounced into the store and started examining the most expensive merchandise. □ They flounced in and caught the eye of the security guard.

flounce out (of some place) to bounce or bound out of some place. □ She turned up her nose and flounced out of the shop. □ She flounced out in anger.

flounder around to struggle or wallow around. □ The whole company is just floundering around and getting nowhere. □ The horse floundered around, trying to get across the soggy pasture.

flounder through something 1. Lit. to struggle through something, such as a mire, swamp, etc. □ The Jeep floundered through the swamp without getting stuck. □ The horse floundered through the muddy field. 2. Fig. to struggle awkwardly through a difficult situation. □ We floundered through the performance. I don't know how we did it, but we did it. □ We just floundered through our presentation, hoping for a lot of questions.

flow across something to stream or glide across something. □ A mass of cold air flowed across the city and froze us all. □ The floodwaters flowed across the fields and ruined the spring planting.

flow along to move along evenly, as a liquid flows. □ At the base of the dam, the river began to flow along at a slower pace. □ The project flowed along quite nicely.

flow away to course or move away. □ The floodwaters flowed away as fast as they had come. □ All the spilled water flowed away.

flow from something to run out from something. □ The blood flowed from the wound on his hand and stained his shirt. □ The oil flowed from the cracked engine and made a mess on the floor.

flow (from something) (to something) to course from one thing to another. □ This water flows all the way from Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico. □ Rain flows to the river from this very drain.

flow in(to something) to course into something; to pour into something. □ The words flowed into my head, and I felt like I could write again. □ The water flowed in when I opened the door on the flood.

flow out (of something) 1. Lit. to course out of something. □ The apple juice flowed out of the press as we turned the crank. □ It stopped flowing out when we had crushed the apples totally. 2. Fig. [for people] to issue forth from something. □ The people flowed out of the stadium exits. □ At the end of the game, the people flowed out in a steady stream.

flow over someone or something 1. Lit. [for a liquid or something that flows] to move over someone or something. □ The water flowed over the land, covering everything. □ She slipped and fell into the icy creek and the water flowed over her, freezing her almost to death. 2. Fig. [for some kind of feeling] to envelop someone. □ A sense of peace flowed over her. □ Patriotic feelings flowed over the crowd as they listened to the national anthem.

flow with something to have some liquid coursing on the surface or within someone or something. □ The sewers were flowing with the floodwaters. □ Her veins must flow with ice water. She is so cold.

flub something up[†] to mess something up; to ruin something. □ I saw you play in the tournament last Friday. You really flubbed it up, if you don't mind me saying so. □ You really flubbed up the tournament.

flub the dub Inf. to fail to do the right thing. □ Martin is flubbing the dub with the fund-raising campaign. □ Please don't flub the dub this time.

flub up to make an error. □ I flubbed up again!

fluctuate between someone and someone else to waver between choosing one person and another. □ I am fluctuating between Sam and Tony as my choice. □ The manager fluctuated between Mary and Sarah as the new assistant.

fluctuate between something and something else to move between one thing and another; to change from one thing to another. □ Things seemed to fluctuate between the very good and the very bad. □ The temperature in here fluctuates between too hot and too cold.

fluctuate with something to vary in accord with something. □ The tides fluctuate with the phase of the moon. □ Frank's blood pressure fluctuates with his mood.

fluff one's lines and blow one's lines; muff one's lines to speak one's speech badly or forget one's lines when one is in a play. □ The actress fluffed her lines badly in the last act. □ I was in a play once, and I muffed my lines over and over. □ It's okay to blow your lines in rehearsal.

fluff something out[†] [for a bird] to move its feathers outward. □ The parrot said good night, fluffed its feathers out, and went to sleep. □ The bird fluffed out its feathers.

fluff something up[†] to make something soft appear fuller or higher. □ Fluff your pillow up before you go to bed. □ She fluffed up her pillow before retiring.

flunk out (of something) to leave school or a course because of failure. □ Fred flunked out of school and never tried to go back. □ That's it. All F's. I've flunked out.

flunk someone out[†] to give one a grade that forces one to leave school or a course. □ The math professor flunked me out. He expects too much. □ She flunked out half the class!

flush someone or something out of some place and flush someone or something out[†] to cause someone or something to leave a hiding place. (Originally from hunting.) □ The police flushed the gunman out from his hiding place. □ They flushed out the crooks.

flush something away[†] to wash something unwanted away. □ Flush all this mess away! □ Fred flushed away all the leaves on the sidewalk.

flush something out[†] to clean something out with a flow of liquid. □ Flush the fuel line out to clean it. □ Please flush out the fuel line and clean it.

flush with something 1. Lit. even with something; sharing a surface with something. □ The edge of the sink is flush with the counter. □ The wood flooring is flush with the carpet so people won't trip. 2. Fig. [of a face] red with anger, embarrassment, rage, etc. □ He faced the woman he had dreamed about all his life. His face flushed with recognition and his heart pounded. □ Ellen's face flushed with embarrassment.

flutter about and flutter around 1. Lit. to fly about with quick, flapping motions of the wings. □ The moths fluttered about aimlessly. □ A few birds fluttered around. 2. Fig. [for someone] to move about quickly and busily. □ Aunt Margaret fluttered about, picking up after everyone. □ Stop fluttering around and sit down!

flutter about something and flutter around something 1. Lit. to fly around something or some place. □ The moths were fluttering about the lightbulb. □ The butterflies fluttered around the bright flowers. 2. Fig. to keep moving busily within a particular place. □ The maid fluttered about the house, dusting and arranging. □ She fluttered around the house from room to room.

flutter down [for flying or falling things] to flap or float downward. □ The butterflies fluttered down onto the flowers. □ The leaves fluttered down from the trees when the breeze blew.

flutter over someone or something to fly or flap above someone or something. (Also said of a person being fussy about someone or something.) □ The little moths fluttered over us while we were in the garden. □ The birds flutter over the fountain, eager for a bath.

fly across something [for a bird or a plane] to move in the air across something. □ A bird flew across the open area in the forest. □ A large jet flew across the clear blue sky.

fly apart to break apart, throwing pieces around. □ Don't run the engine too fast or it will fly apart! □ Mary's bicycle wheel flew apart during the race.

fly around to soar or float aloft randomly. □ There were insects flying around everywhere. □ Planes flew around all day and all night, making it hard to sleep.

fly around someone or something to soar or float in the air near someone or something. □ We saw seven helicopters flying around the stadium. □ A bunch of mosquitoes flew around me.

fly at someone or something to attack someone or something suddenly and violently. □ The angry bird flew at its attacker. □ She flew at him, threatening to scratch his eyes out.

fly away to take flight and depart. □ The owl hooted one last hoot and flew away. □ All the birds flew away when the cat came around.

fly by 1. Lit. to soar past, flying. □ Three jet fighters flew by. □ A huge hawk flew by, frightening all the smaller birds. 2. Fig. [for time] to go quickly. □ The hours just flew by, because we were having fun. □ Time flew by so fast that it was dark before we knew it.

fly by the seat of one's pants Go to by the seat of one's pants.

fly from someone or something (to something) to escape from something or some place to a place of safety. □ The family had to fly from their pursuers to a place of safety outside the country. □ They flew from the people chasing them.

fly from something (to something) to go from something or some place to some other place by air. □ We had to fly from Miami to Raleigh to get a flight to Chicago. □ We were able to fly from Miami at the last minute.

fly in Go to fly into something.

fly in the face of someone or something and fly in the teeth of someone or something Fig. to challenge someone or something; to go against someone or something. □ This idea flies in the face of everything we know about matter and energy. □ You had better not fly in the face of the committee.

fly in the ointment Fig. a small, unpleasant matter that spoils something; a drawback. □ We enjoyed the play, but the fly in the ointment was not being able to find my hat afterward. □ It sounds like a good idea, but there must be a fly in the ointment somewhere.

fly in the teeth of someone or something Go to fly in the face of someone or something.

fly into a rage Fig. to become enraged suddenly. □ When he heard the report, he flew into a rage. □ We were afraid that she would fly into a rage.

fly into something 1. and fly in to go to something or some place by air; to arrive by air. □ When are you going to fly into the airport? □ We will fly into Detroit tomorrow. 2. to crash into something while flying. □ Birds sometimes fly into tall buildings. 3. to pass into something, such as fog, clouds, wind, etc., while flying. □ We flew into some clouds, but the flight was not rough. □ The plane flew into some fog as it was landing.

fly into the face of danger Fig. to take great risks; to threaten or challenge danger, as if danger were a person. (This may refer to flying, as in an airplane, but not necessarily.) □ John plans to go bungee jumping this weekend. He really likes flying into the face of danger. □ Willard was not exactly the type to fly into the face of danger, but tonight was an exception, and he ordered extra-hot enchiladas.

fly off 1. Lit. to take to flight quickly. □ The stork flew off before we got a good look at it. □ The little birds flew off and things were quiet again. 2. Fig. to leave in a hurry. □ Well, it's late. I must fly off. □ She flew off a while ago.

fly off the handle Fig. to lose one's temper. □ Every time anyone mentions taxes, Mrs. Brown flies off the handle. □ If she keeps flying off the handle like that, she'll have a heart attack.

fly off with someone or something 1. Lit. to depart with someone or something by air. □ The eagle flew off with the kitten. □ The pilot flew off with the eight passengers. 2. Fig. to leave in a hurry with someone or something. □ She flew off with her packages before she got her change. □ Dave flew off with his brother because they had to meet a train.

fly out (of something) 1. Lit. to leave a place by air. □ We are going to fly out of Manaus on a charter. □ We flew out on time. 2. Fig. to leave a place quickly. □ We flew out of there as fast as we could. □ She opened the door and flew out.

fly over someone or something to soar or glide over someone or something. □ We saw an eagle fly over us. □ The plane flew over the desert.

fly past (someone or something) to soar or glide past someone or something. □ The stone flew past Mike's left ear, and he ducked. □ The plane flew past the cloud bank.

fly someone or something in(to) some place (from some place) and fly someone or something in^t to transport someone or something to some place from some place. □ We flew the documents into Adamsville from Springfield. □ We flew in the documents to Chicago from Springfield.

fly someone or something out of something and fly someone or something out^t to transport someone or something out of something by air. □ They flew the tourists out of the troubled area on chartered flights. □ The tourists flew out to any destination that was available.

fly the coop Fig. to escape; to get out or get away. (Alludes to a chicken escaping from a chicken coop.) □ I couldn't stand the party, so I flew the coop. □ The prisoner flew the coop at the first opportunity.

fly to someone or something to go to someone or something quickly and eagerly; to flee to someone or something. □ She flew to his arms as he got off the boat. □ Harry flew to Gloria and hugged her tight.

fly to something to go to something or some place by air. □ After Miami, we fly to Chicago. □ Let's fly to Paris for lunch.

fly up to something to go by air to a place at a higher elevation or to a place in the north. □ We will fly up to St. Paul for the holidays. □ I want to fly up to Alberta, Canada, for the summer.

fly-by-night Fig. irresponsible; untrustworthy. (Alludes to a person who sneaks away secretly in the night.) □ The carpenter we hired was a fly-by-night worker who did a very bad job. □ You shouldn't deal with a fly-by-night merchant.

flying high 1. Fig. very successful in one's ambitions; in an important or powerful position. (Often with the implication that this is not the usual situation or will change.) □ The government is flying high just now, but wait until the budget is announced. □ He's flying high these days, but he comes from a very poor family. 2. Fig. in a state of euphoria. (From good news, success, or drugs.) □ Wow! Todd is really flying high. Did he discover a gold mine? □ Sally is flying high. What's she on?

foam at the mouth 1. Lit. to create froth or foam around the mouth, as with some diseases. □ The poor dog was foaming at the mouth and looked quite dangerous. □ What does it mean when a cow foams at the mouth? 2. Fig. to be extraordinarily angry. □ She was almost foaming at the mouth when she heard about the cost of the car repairs. □ Walter was foaming at the mouth with rage.

foam up [for something, such as soap or milk] to make foam or lather. □ Milk will foam up when it is boiled. □ The boiling soup foamed up and slopped over the pot.

fob someone or something off^t (on(to) someone) to get rid of someone or something by transferring someone or something to someone. □ Don't try to fob your girlfriend off on me! □ He also fobbed off a bad car on Jane. □ Some car dealers are always trying to fob something off.

focus on someone or something 1. Lit. to aim and adjust a lens (including the lens in the eye) onto someone or something. □ I focused on the flower and pressed the shutter release. □ I focused on Fred and snapped just as he moved. 2. Fig. to dwell on the subject of someone or something. □ Let's focus on the question of the electric bill, if you don't mind. □ Let us focus on Fred and discuss his progress.

focus something on someone or something 1. Lit. to aim a lens at someone or something and adjust the lens for clarity. □ I focused the binoculars on the bird and stood there in awe at its beauty. □ He focused the camera on Jane and snapped the shutter. 2. Fig. to direct attention to someone or something. □ Could we please focus the discussion on the matter at hand for a few moments? □ Let's focus our attention on Tom and discuss his achievements so far.

fog over [for something made of glass] to become covered over with water vapor. □ The windshield fogged over because I forgot to turn on the defroster. □ The mirror fogged over, and I couldn't see to shave.

fog something up^t to make something made of glass become covered with a film of water vapor. □ The moisture fogged the windshield up, and we had to stop to clean it off. □ The moisture fogged up the glass.

fog up [for something made of glass] to become partially or completely obscured by a film of water vapor. □ The glass fogged up, and we couldn't see out.

the foggiest (idea) Fig. (even) a hazy idea. (Usually in the negative.) □ I'm sorry I don't know. I haven't the foggiest. □ I don't have the foggiest idea of how to do this.

foist someone or something off^t (on someone or something) to cast someone or something unwanted off on someone or a group. □ Please don't try to foist cheap merchandise off on me. □ Don't foist off your brother on me! □ You can't foist that stuff off! It's worthless! People won't buy it!

fold back [for a sheet of something] to bend back. □ The cloth folded back, revealing the faded upholstery below. □ The top page folded back, revealing a neatly typed manuscript.

fold one's hands to bring one's hands together, palm to palm, with the fingers interlocking; to grasp one's hands together, palm to palm, perpendicular to one another. □ Please fold your hands and put them on the table while the teacher reads you a story. □ Please fold your hands and be quiet.

fold something away^t to fold something up and put it away. □ Please fold the maps away. □ Please fold away the maps neatly.

fold something back^t to bend a sheet or flap of something back. □ She very carefully folded the page back to mark her place in the book. □ She folded back the page to mark her place in the book. □ The surgeon folded the flap of skin back, revealing the torn ligament.

fold something into something 1. and fold something in^t to blend something, such as eggs, into batter. (See also cut something into something.) □ Carefully, the chef folded the eggs into the other ingredients. □ The chef folded in the eggs. 2. to make an object by folding something, such as paper or cloth. □ He folded the paper into a little bird. □ Wally can fold a sheet of paper into an airplane that flies.

fold something over^t to double something over on itself; to make a fold in something. □ I folded the paper over twice to make something I could fan myself with. □ Fold over each sheet, and then place it on the stack.

fold something up^t 1. Lit. to double something over into its original folded position. □ Please fold the paper up when you are finished. □ Please fold up the paper. 2. Fig. to put an end to something; to close a money-losing enterprise. Mr. Jones was going broke, so he folded his business up. The producer decided to fold up the play early. It was losing money.

fold, spindle, or mutilate to harm or disfigure. Referring to a once-standard line printed on machine-readable documents, such as computer punch cards. (Such a document, if folded, placed on a bill spike, or otherwise punctured, would no longer be machine-readable.) At the bottom of the bill, it said “do not fold, spindle, or mutilate,” and Jane, in her anger, did all three. Look here, chum, if you don’t want to get folded, spindled, or mutilated, you had better do what you are told!

F

fold up 1. Lit. [for something] to close by folding. The table just folded up with no warning, trapping my leg. 2. Fig. [for someone] to faint. She folded up when she heard the news. I was so weak that I was afraid I was going to fold up. 3. Fig. [for a business] to cease operating. Our shop finally folded up because of the recession. Tom’s little candy shop folded up.

foldng money bills of various dollar denominations. I don’t want a check. Give me folding money! You got any folding money with you?

follow after the style of someone or something Go to after the style of someone or something.

follow in someone’s tracks and follow in someone’s footsteps to follow someone’s example; to assume someone else’s role or occupation. The vice president was following in the president’s footsteps when he called for budget cuts. She followed in her father’s footsteps and went into medicine.

follow on (after someone or something) 1. Lit. to depart and arrive after someone or something. I can’t leave now. I will have to follow on after the others. I will follow on later. 2. Fig. to die at a date later than someone or a group. She followed on after her husband a few years later. He died in June and she followed on in August.

follow one’s heart Fig. to act according to one’s feelings; to obey one’s sympathetic or compassionate inclinations. I couldn’t decide what to do, so I just followed my heart. I trust that you will follow your heart in this matter.

follow one’s nose 1. Lit. to go straight ahead, the direction that one’s nose is pointing. The town that you want is straight ahead on this highway. Just follow your nose. The chief’s office is right around the corner. Turn left and follow your nose. 2. Fig. to follow an odor to its source. The kitchen is at the back of the building. Just follow your nose. There was a bad smell in the basement—probably a dead mouse. I followed my nose until I found it.

follow orders to do as one has been instructed. You have to learn to follow orders if you want to be a Marine. I didn’t do anything wrong. I was only following orders.

follow someone or something about and follow someone or something around to go the same route as someone or something all the time; to trail someone or something. Why are you always following me about? Stop following me around.

follow someone or something out to go out right after someone or something. I followed her out and asked her if I could take her home. The dog followed Billy out and went to school with him.

follow someone’s lead to do as someone else does; to accept someone’s guidance; to follow someone’s direction. Just follow my lead and you will not get lost. John followed his father’s lead and became a lawyer.

follow someone up[†] and follow up (on someone) to check on the work that someone has done. I have to follow Sally up and make sure she did everything right. I follow up Sally, checking on her work. I’ll follow up on her.

follow something through Go to follow through (with something).

follow something up[†] and follow up (on something) 1. to check something out; to find out more about something. Would you please follow this lead up? It might be important. Please follow up this lead. I’ll follow up on it. Yes, please follow up. 2. to make sure that something was done the way it was intended. Please follow this up. I want it done right. Please follow up this business. I’ll follow up on it.

follow suit to follow in the same pattern; to follow someone else’s example. (From card games.) Mary went to work for a bank, and Jane followed suit. Now they are both head cashiers. The Smiths went out to dinner, but the Browns didn’t follow suit. They stayed home.

follow the crowd to do what everyone else is doing. I am an independent thinker. I could never just follow the crowd. When in doubt, I follow the crowd. At least I don’t stand out like a fool.

follow through (on something) and carry through (on something) to complete a task; to see a task through to its completion. You must follow through on the things that you start. Don’t start the job if you can’t follow through. Ask Sally to carry through on her project.

follow through (with something) and follow something through to complete an activity, doing what was promised. I wish you would follow through with the project we talked about. You never follow through!

follow up (on someone) Go to follow someone up[†].

follow up (on someone or something) to find out more about someone or something. Please follow up on Mr. Brown and his activities. Bill, Mr. Smith has a complaint. Would you please follow up on it?

follow up (on something) Go to follow something up[†].

foment trouble to cause trouble. Leave it to Bob to foment trouble. I wasn’t fomenting trouble, just expressing my opinion!

fond of someone or something liking someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) I’m fond of chocolate. Mary isn’t fond of me, but I’m fond of her.

food for thought Fig. something for someone to think about; issues to be considered. Your essay has provided me with some interesting food for thought. My adviser gave me some food for thought about job opportunities.

A fool and his money are soon parted. Prov. Foolish people spend money, without thinking. (Perceived as a rebuke if you say it about the person you are addressing.) Go ahead and buy a diamond collar for your dog if you really want to. A fool and his money are soon parted. Bill sends a check to every organization that asks him for money. A fool and his money are soon parted.

fool around to waste time doing something unnecessary or doing something amateurishly. Stop fooling around and clean your room as I told you. I wish you didn't spend so much time fooling around.

fool (around) with someone or something 1. to waste time in the company of someone or a group. Stop fooling around with those guys. They're up to no good most of the time. Better not fool around with part-time work. Go get a good job if you can. 2. to have dealings with or tamper with someone or something. You had better not fool around with my little sister. Don't fool with that thing! 3. to challenge or threaten someone or something. You had better not fool around with me, if you know what's good for you. Don't fool with the police force!

Fool me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me. Prov. After being tricked once, one should be wary, so that the person cannot trick you again. Fred: Would you like a can of peanuts? Jane: The last can of peanuts you gave me had a toy snake in it. Fred: This one really is peanuts. Jane: Fool me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me.

a fool's paradise Fig. a state of being happy for foolish or unfounded reasons. I'm afraid that Sue's marital happiness is a fool's paradise; there are rumors that her husband is unfaithful. Fred is confident that he'll get a big raise this year, but I think he's living in a fool's paradise.

fool someone into something to deceive someone or oneself into doing something. You'll never fool me into believing you. We fooled the boss into giving us all the day off.

Fools rush in where angels fear to tread. Prov. Foolish people usually do not understand when a situation is dangerous, so they are not afraid to do things that would frighten more sensible people. Alan: Bob is too scared to go in and confront the boss, so I'm going to. Jane: Fools rush in where angels fear to tread.

*a foot in both camps Fig. an interest in or to support each of two opposing groups of people. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) The shop steward had been promised a promotion and so had a foot in both camps during the strike—workers and management. Mr. Smith has a foot in both camps in the parent-teacher dispute. He teaches math, but he has a son at the school.

foot the bill (for something) Fig. to pay for something; to pay for a bill. My boss took me out for lunch and the company footed the bill. You paid for dinner last time. Let me foot the bill for lunch today.

*a foothold (somewhere) Fig. an initial position of support; a starting point. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; help someone get ~.) It's difficult to get a foothold in the education market when schools are laying off teachers. Max's father helped him get a foothold in the textile industry.

foot-in-mouth disease the tendency to say the wrong thing at the wrong time. I suffer a lot from foot-in-mouth disease. Well, Ralph has foot-in-mouth disease again.

footloose and fancy-free Fig. without long-term responsibilities or commitments. All the rest of them have wives, but John is footloose and fancy-free. Mary never stays long in any job. She likes being footloose and fancy-free.

for a drive Go to for a spin.

for a lark and on a lark for a joke; as something done for fun. For a lark, I wore a clown's wig to school. On a lark, I skipped school and drove to the beach.

for a living [of work] done to earn enough money to live. John paints houses for a living. What do you do for a living?

for a ride Go to for a spin.

for a song Fig. cheaply. (As if the singing of a song were payment. *Typically: buy something ~; get something ~; pick up someone ~.) No one else wanted it, so I picked it up for a song. I could buy this house for a song, because it's so ugly.

for a spin and for a ride; *for a drive to take a ride in a vehicle or on a bicycle. (*Typically: go ~; go out ~; take something ~.) Let's get out our bikes and go for a spin.

for a split second Go to a split second.

for all I care I don't care if (something happens). For all I care, the whole city council can go to the devil. They can all starve for all I care.

for all I know according to the information I have; I think; probably. (Usually implies uncertainty.) For all I know, the mayor has resigned already. She may have gone to town for all I know.

for all intents and purposes Cliché seeming as if; looking as if. Tom stood there, looking, for all intents and purposes, as if he could strangle Sally, but, being the gentleman that he is, he just glowered. Mary: Is the car washed now? John: For all intents and purposes, yes, but I didn't dry it yet.

for all it's worth and for what(ever) it's worth if it has any value. (Usually implies lack of confidence.) My idea—for all it's worth—is to offer them only $300. Here is my thinking, for whatever it's worth. Ask her to give us her opinion, for what it's worth.

for (all) one's trouble in spite of one's efforts; in return for one's efforts. (Implies that the "trouble" was not worth taking, or was harmful.) He got a punch in the jaw for all his trouble. For her trouble, she got only honorable mention.

for all practical purposes as might be reasonably expected; essentially. For all practical purposes, this is simply a matter of right and wrong. This should be considered final, for all practical purposes.

for all someone's problems in spite of a person's problems (as specified). For all her complaining, she still seems to be a happy person. For all my aches and pains, I'm still rather healthy.

for all the world 1. exactly; precisely. (Especially with look.) She sat there looking for all the world as if she was going to cry. It started out seeming for all the world like a beautiful day. Then a storm came up. 2. everything. (Usually in the negative.) I wouldn't give up my baby for all the world. They wouldn't sell their property for all the world.

for better or for worse under any conditions; no matter what happens. I married you for better or for worse. For better or for worse, I'm going to quit my job.

for chicken feed and for peanuts Fig. for nearly nothing; for very little money. (Also used without for.) Bob doesn't get paid much. He works for chicken feed. You can buy an old car for chicken feed. I won't do that kind of work for peanuts!

For crying in a bucket! Go to next.

For crying out loud! and For crying in a bucket! Inf. an exclamation of shock, anger, or surprise. Fred: For crying out loud! Answer the telephone! Bob: But it's always for you! John: Good grief! What am I going to do? This is the end! Sue: For crying in a bucket! What's wrong?

F

for days on end Fig. for many days. We kept on traveling for days on end. Doctor, I've had this pain for days on end.

for fear of something out of fear for something; because of fear of something. He doesn't drive for fear of an accident. They lock their car doors for fear of being attacked.

for free for no charge or cost; free of any cost. They let us into the movie for free. I will let you have a sample of the candy for free.

for giggles Go to for kicks.

for good forever; permanently. I finally left home for good. They tried to repair it many times before they fixed it for good.

for good measure as extra; (adding) a little more to make sure there is enough. When I bought a pound of nails, the clerk threw in a few extra nails for good measure. I always put a little extra salt in the soup for good measure.

For goodness sake! Go to For Pete's sake!

For gosh sake! Go to For Pete's sake!

For heaven('s) sake Go to For Pete's sake!

for hours on end Fig. for many hours. We sat and waited in the emergency room for hours on end. The children were happy to play video games for hours on end.

for instance for example. I've lived in many cities, for instance, Boston, Chicago, and Detroit. Jane is very generous. For instance, she volunteers at the hospital and gives money to charities.

for keeps forever. Does that mean I'm going to have this scar for keeps? This is yours for keeps. Enjoy it.

for kicks and for laughs; for giggles Fig. for fun; just for entertainment; for no good reason. They didn't mean any harm. They just did it for kicks. We drove over to the next town for laughs.

for life for the remainder of one's life. The accident caused me to become blind for life. She will stay in prison for life.

for miles Fig. to or in a distance extending two or more miles. The huge field of wheat extends for miles. We traveled for miles without stopping.

for my money in my opinion (as regards value or worth). That's the best brand of tools there is, for my money. For my money, you can't go wrong with a pure wool sweater.

for one's (own) part as far as one is concerned; from one's point of view. For my own part, I wish to stay here. For her part, she prefers chocolate.

for one's (own) sake for one's good or benefit; in honor of someone. I have to earn a living for my family's sake. I did it for my mother's sake.

for openers and for starters to start with. For openers, they played a song everyone knows. For starters, I'll serve a delicious soup.

for peanuts Go to for chicken feed.

For Pete's sake! and For pity's sake!; For the love of Mike!; For goodness sake!; For gosh sake!; For heaven('s) sake! a mild exclamation of surprise or shock. For Pete's sake! How've ya been? For pity's sake! Ask the man in out of the cold!

For pity's sake! Go to previous.

for real Inf. genuine; not imaginary. Ken is really strange. Is he for real? This whole day has been weird, it just isn't for real.

for safekeeping for the purpose of keeping someone or something safe. I put my jewelry in the vault for safekeeping. I checked my fur coat at the entrance to the bar for safekeeping.

for sale available for purchase; buyable. Is this item for sale? How long has this house been for sale? My car is for sale. Are you interested?

For shame! That is shameful! Sue: Did you hear that Tom was in jail? Fred: For shame! What did he do? Sue: Nobody knows. Mary: I've decided not to go to the conference. John: For shame! Who will represent us?

for short as an abbreviation. The Internal Revenue Service is known as the IRS for short. David goes by Dave for short.

for (some) days running and for (some) weeks running; for (some) months running; for (some) years running days in a series; months in a series; etc. (The some can be any number.) I had a bad cold for five days running. For two years running, I brought work home from the office every night.

for (some) months running Go to previous.

for (some) years running Go to for (some) days running.

for someone or something's sake and for the sake of someone or something for the purpose or benefit of someone or something; to satisfy the demands of someone or something. I made a meatless dinner for John's sake; he's a vegetarian. The teacher repeated the assignment for the sake of the slower students.

for starters Go to for openers.

for sure for certain. I will be there for sure. Sally: Are you ready to go? Bob: For sure. Sally: Then, let's go.

for that matter besides; in addition. If you're hungry, take one of my doughnuts. For that matter, take two. I don't like this house. The roof leaks. For that matter, the whole place is falling apart. Tom is quite arrogant. So is his sister, for that matter.

for the asking if one just asks (for something); simply by asking; on request. Do you want to use my car? It's yours for the asking. I have an extra winter coat that's yours for the asking.

for the better to be an improvement. (*Typically: be ~; be a change ~.) A change of government would be for the better. □ A new winter coat would certainly be for the better.

for the birds worthless; undesirable. □ This television program is for the birds. □ Winter weather is for the birds.

for the devil of it and for the heck of it; for the hell of it because it is slightly evil; for no good reason. (Use caution with hell.) □ The kids broke the window just for the devil of it. □ We just drove over for the heck of it.

for the duration for the whole time that something continues; for the entire period of time required for something to be completed; for as long as something takes. □ We are in this war for the duration. □ However long it takes, we'll wait. We are here for the duration.

for the fun of it just for the entertainment value of doing it. □ We went on a picnic just for the fun of it.

for the good of someone or something for the benefit, profit, or advantage of someone or something. □ The president said the strict drug laws were for the good of the country. □ David took a second job for the good of his family.

for the heck of it Go to for the devil of it.

for the hell of it Go to for the devil of it.

for the life of me at all; even one little bit. (Used with a negative.) □ For the life of me, I can't figure this out. □ I can't for the life of me climb up a mountain.

For the love of Mike! Go to For Pete's sake!

for the moment and for the time being for the present; for now; temporarily. □ This quick fix will have to do for the moment. □ This is all right for the time being. It'll have to be improved next week, however. □ This good feeling will last only for the time being.

for the most part mostly; in general. □ For the most part, the class is enjoying geometry. □ I like working here for the most part.

for the record so that (one's own version of) the facts will be known; for open, public knowledge. (This often is said when there are reporters present.) □ I'd like to say—for the record—that at no time have I ever accepted a bribe from anyone. □ For the record, I've never been able to get anything done around city hall without bribing someone.

for the sake of someone or something Go to for someone or something's sake.

for the time being Go to for the moment.

For want of a nail the shoe was lost; for want of a shoe the horse was lost; and for want of a horse the man was lost. Prov. Overlooking small details can have disastrous consequences. (You can quote any of the sentences in this proverb by themselves.) □ Jill: I don't think we need to check our bicycle tires before we go for our ride. Jane: I disagree. For want of a nail the shoe was lost. □ Before we began the hike into the mountains, we checked our equipment painstakingly, remembering that for want of a horse the man was lost.

for what(ever) it's worth Go to for all it's worth.

for your information a phrase that introduces or follows a piece of information. (Can be spoken with considerable impatience.) □ Mary: What is this one? Sue: For your information, it is exactly the same as the one you just asked about.

□ Bob: How long do I have to wait here? Bill: For your information, we will be here until the bus driver feels that it is safe to travel.

forage (around) (for something) to search for something, especially something to eat. □ I will go to the kitchen and forage around for some cereal or something. □ The rabbits got into the garden and were foraging for a good meal.

forbidden fruit Fig. someone or something that one finds attractive or desirable partly because having the person or thing is immoral or illegal. (Biblical; from the apple in the Garden of Eden that was forbidden to Adam by God.) □ Jim flirts with his sister-in-law only because she's forbidden fruit. □ The boy watches that program only when his parents are out. It's forbidden fruit.

force someone or an animal from something to drive someone or an animal away from something. □ We forced the horses from the corral, putting them back into the pasture. □ I forced Tom from the room and locked the door.

force someone or something down[†] to press or push someone or something downward. □ I forced him down and slipped the handcuffs on him. □ The cop forced down the thug and handcuffed him. □ I forced the dog down and held it there.

force someone or something down someone's throat Go to shove someone or something down someone's throat.

force someone or something in(to) something and force someone or something in[†] 1. to make someone or something go into something. □ Please don't force me into that little room! □ They forced in many people. 2. to make someone or something fit into something. □ Don't try to force the plug into the socket. □ Don't force in the plug. □ Sam forced his buddy into the cabinet, and left him well hidden there.

force someone or something off (of) something and force someone or something off[†] 1. Lit. to get someone, something, or an animal off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ I had to force the cat off the sofa. She just wouldn't be coaxed off. □ I had to force off the cat. She is so stubborn. 2. Fig. to make someone or a group resign from a board, committee, panel, etc. □ They forced her off the board before she could change any of their policies. □ They forced off the dissenters as well as the CEO.

force someone or something (off) on someone to make someone take someone or something. □ I didn't want it, but she forced it off on me. □ She forced her nephew on me and went out shopping.

force someone or something out of something and force someone or something out[†] to drive someone or something out of something or some place. □ The citizen's group forced the governor out of office. □ They forced out the governor.

force someone or something through something to push someone or something through an opening. □ First, you must force the others through the opening and then go through yourself. □ We forced the sofa through the door and scarred up the doorjamb.

force someone out of office and drive someone out of office; drive someone out[†]; force someone out[†] to drive someone out of an elective office. □ The city council forced out the mayor, who resigned under pressure. □ Please resign immediately, or I'll have to drive you out.

force someone's hand to force a person to reveal plans, strategies, or secrets. (Alludes to a handful of cards in card playing.) □ We didn't know what she was doing until Tom forced her hand. □ We changed our game plan after we forced the other team's hand in the first period.

force someone to the wall and drive someone to the wall Fig. to push someone to an extreme position; to put someone into an awkward position. □ He wouldn't tell the truth until we forced him to the wall. □ They don't pay their bills until you drive them to the wall.

F

force something down^t to force oneself to swallow something. □ I can't stand sweet potatoes, but I manage to force them down just to keep from making a scene. □ She forced down the sweet potatoes.

force something through something to press or drive something through something that resists. □ They forced the bill through the legislature. □ We were not able to force the matter through the board of directors.

force something up^t Go to drive something up.

a force to be reckoned with Fig. someone or something that is important and powerful and must not be ignored. □ Walter is a force to be reckoned with. Be prepared to deal with him. □ The growing discontent with the political system is a powerful force to be reckoned with.

fore and aft at the front and the back, usually of a boat or ship. □ They had to attach new lights fore and aft because the old ones were not bright enough to meet the new regulations. □ The captain ordered a watch stationed fore and aft.

foreclose on something to take the property on which a mortgage is held; to satisfy an unpaid loan by taking ownership of the property put up for security on the loan. □ If you don't pay, we will be forced to foreclose on your house. □ The bank foreclosed on our property.

a foregone conclusion Cliché a conclusion already reached; an inevitable result. □ That the company was moving to California was a foregone conclusion. □ That the mayor will win reelection is a foregone conclusion.

forever and a day Go to next.

forever and ever and forever and a day forever. □ I will love you forever and ever. □ This car won't keep running forever and ever. We'll have to get a new one sometime upcoming. □ We have enough money to last forever and a day.

forewarn someone about something and forewarn someone of something to warn someone about someone or something. □ They forewarned us of your strange behavior. □ Didn't we forewarn you about Max's problem?

Forewarned is forearmed. Prov. If you know about something beforehand, you can prepare for it. □ Before you meet Lily, I should tell you that she's a little eccentric. Forewarned is forearmed, right? □ Check the temperature before you go outside. Forewarned is forearmed.

Forget (about) it! 1. Inf. Drop the subject!; Never mind!; Don't bother me with it. □ Jane: Then, there's this matter of the unpaid bills. Bill: Forget it! You'll have to pay them all! □ Sally: What's this I hear about you and Tom?

Sue: Forget about it! I don't want to talk to you about it. 2. Inf. Nothing. □ Sue: What did you say? Mary: Forget it! □ Tom: Now I'm ready to go. Sue: Excuse me? Tom: Oh, nothing. Just forget it. 3. Inf. You're welcome.; It was nothing. □ John: Thank you so much for helping me! Bill: Oh, forget it! □ Bob: We're all very grateful to you for coming into work today on your day off. Mary: Forget about it! No problem!

forget about someone or something 1. to put someone or something out of one's mind. □ Don't forget about me! □ You ought to forget about all that. 2. to fail to remember something at the appropriate time. □ She forgot about paying the electric bill until the lights were turned off. □ She forgot about the children and they were left standing on the corner.

forget one's manners to do something ill-mannered. □ Jimmy! Have we forgotten our manners?

forget oneself to forget one's manners or training. (Said in formal situations in reference to belching, bad table manners, and, in the case of very young children, pants-wetting.) □ Sorry, Mother, I forgot myself. □ John, we are going out to dinner tonight. Please don't forget yourself.

Forget you! Sl. Drop dead!; Beat it! □ Oh, yeah! Forget you! □ Forget you! Get a life!

Forgive and forget. Prov. You should not only forgive people for hurting you, you should also forget that they ever hurt you. □ When my sister lost my favorite book, I was angry at her for weeks, but my mother finally convinced me to forgive and forget. □ Jane: Are you going to invite Sam to your party? Sue: No way. Last year he laughed at my new skirt. Jane: Come on, Sue, forgive and forget.

forgive someone for something to pardon someone for something. □ Please forgive me for being late. □ He never forgave himself for harming her.

fork some money out^t (for something) Fig. to pay (perhaps unwillingly) for something. (Often mention is made of the amount of money. See the examples.) □ Do you think I'm going to fork twenty dollars out for that book? □ Forking out lots of money for taxes is part of life.

fork something out^t (to someone) 1. Inf. Lit. to serve food to someone, using a fork. □ He forked out the chicken to everyone. □ He brought up a big dish of fried chicken and forked it out. 2. Fig. to give out something to someone. □ We forked the coupons out to everyone who asked for them. □ We forked out the coupons.

fork something over^t (to someone) Inf. to give something to someone. (Usually refers to money.) □ Come on! Fork the money over to me! □ Fork over the cash you owe me!

form an opinion to think up or decide on an opinion. (Note the variations in the examples.) □ I don't know enough about the issue to form an opinion. □ Don't tell me how to think! I can form my own opinion. □ I don't form opinions without careful consideration.

form and substance structure and meaningful content. □ The first act of the play was one screaming match after another. It lacked form and substance throughout. □ Jane's report was good. The teacher commented on the excellent form and substance of the paper.

form from something [for something] to develop from something; [for something] to assume a shape, using something else as raw material. □ Suddenly, an idea began to form from the things that you had said. □ It seemed that a figure was forming from the mists arising from the swamps.

form someone or something into something to shape someone or something into something. □ We formed the people into a line. □ Kathy formed the clay into a small elephant.

form something out of something to shape something from something. □ He formed a tiny elephant out of the clay. □ Wally formed a mound out of the sand.

form (up) into something [for a group of people] to assume the shape of something. □ The boys formed up into a jagged line. □ We'll form into a line.

fortify someone or an animal (against something) (with something) to strengthen someone or an animal against something with something. □ I'll need a cup of hot chocolate to fortify me against the storm. □ We have to fortify the dogs against the cold with extra food.

Fortune favors the bold. Go to next.

Fortune favors the brave. and Fortune favors the bold. Prov. You will have good luck if you carry out your plans boldly. (Used to encourage people to have the courage to carry out their plans.) □ Fortune favors the bold, Bob. Quit your day job and work on your novel full-time. □ Jill: Let's wait till next year before trying to start our own business. Jane: No. We'll do it this year. Fortune favors the brave.

forty winks Fig. a nap; some sleep. □ I could use forty winks before I have to get to work. □ I need forty winks before I get started again.

forward something from some place (to someone or some place) to send something onward to someone from the place it was originally received. □ We forwarded the letter from Chicago to Springfield. □ Kelly forwarded the letter to her brother.

foul one's own nest Fig. to harm one's own interests; to bring disadvantage upon oneself. (Alludes to a bird excreting into its own nest. See also It's an ill bird that fouls its own nest.) □ He tried to discredit a fellow senator with the president, but just succeeded in fouling his own nest. □ The boss really dislikes Mary. She certainly fouled her own nest when she spread those rumors about him.

foul out (of something) [for a basketball player] to be forced out of a game because of having too many fouls. □ The center fouled out in the first fifteen minutes. □ Two other players fouled out soon after.

foul play illegal activity; bad practices. □ The police investigating the death suspect foul play. □ Each student got an A on the test, and the teacher imagined it was the result of foul play.

foul someone or something up^t to cause disorder and confusion for someone or something; to tangle up someone or something; to mess someone or something up. □ Go away! Don't foul me up any more. □ You've fouled up my whole day. □ Watch out! You're going to foul up my kite strings.

foul up to blunder; to mess up. □ Please don't foul up this time. □ The quarterback fouled up in the first quarter, and that lost us the game.

fouled up messed up; ruined; tangled up. (Usually as fouled-up when attributive.) □ This is sure a fouled-up mess. □ You sure are fouled up, you know.

found money money that has come to someone with such ease or surprise that one might have just as well found it by accident. □ The money he got from his uncle's estate is all found money except for the taxes. He did nothing to earn it.

found something (up)on something to establish something on some kind of basis or justification. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The owners founded this company upon prompt service. □ We founded our business on practically no money.

four sheets in the wind and four sheets (to the wind) intoxicated. (See comments at three sheets in the wind.) □ She's not just tipsy. She's four sheets! □ After only three beers, Gary was four sheets to the wind.

'Fraid not. Go to (I'm) afraid not.

'Fraid so. Go to (I'm) afraid so.

fraidy cat Fig. a coward; a person who is frightened of everything. (Used in children's taunts.) □ Don't be a fraidy cat. Go ahead, jump! □ Carl is such a fraidy cat. He runs inside when it starts to rain.

frame something in something 1. Lit. to place a frame of something around something. □ Let us frame the photograph in a wood frame rather than a metal one. □ Alice chose to frame the painting in a simple, unmatte frame. 2. Fig. to express something in a particular way. □ He framed his comments in very simple language. □ I hope you frame your remarks more clearly next time.

frame something out^t to build the basic wood structure of a building, such as a house. □ The carpenters, working fast, framed the whole house out in a day. □ They framed out the house.

frankly speaking Go to (speaking) (quite) frankly.

fraternize with someone or something to associate with someone or a group; to consort with someone or a group. □ They were instructed not to fraternize with the opposing team before the game. □ Don't fraternize with Lefty "Fingers" Moran.

fraught with danger Cliché [of something] full of something dangerous or unpleasant. □ The spy's trip to Russia was fraught with danger. □ My escape from the kidnappers was fraught with danger.

freak out (at someone or something) Go to freak out (over someone or something).

freak out (on something) to lose control of one's mind because of something, usually a drug. □ She freaked out on the stuff she was smoking. □ She took some funny little pills and freaked out immediately.

freak out (over someone or something) and freak out (at someone or something) to become very angry or lose control of one's mind because of someone or something that has happened. □ I absolutely freaked out over the whole business! □ Don't freak out at me!

freak someone out^t to shock or disorient someone. □ The whole business freaked me out. □ I didn't mean to freak out everybody with the bad news.

freaked (out) 1. shocked; disoriented. (Sometimes used of the effects of drugs or alcohol.) I was too freaked out to reply. Man, was I freaked. 2. tired out; exhausted. I'm too freaked out to go on without some rest. The chick is really freaked. Let her rest.

free and clear without encumbrance, particularly in regard to the ownership of something. After the last payment, Jane owned the car free and clear. If you can't prove that you own the house and the land it stands on free and clear, you can't sell it.

free and easy casual. John is so free and easy. How can anyone be so relaxed? Now, take it easy. Just act free and easy. No one will know you're nervous.

free as a bird and free as (the) air Cliché carefree; completely free and unhindered. (*Also: as ~.) Jane is always happy and free as a bird. The convict escaped from jail and was as free as a bird for two days. No, I'm not married. I don't even have a girlfriend. I'm free as the air.

free as (the) air Go to previous.

free gift something extra given to you when you buy something else. When you order your magazine subscription, this book is yours to keep as our free gift. This canvas tote is a free gift for everyone who opens an account at our bank today!

a free hand (with someone or something) Fig. freedom to exercise complete control over something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) I didn't get a free hand with the last project. John was in charge then, but he didn't get a free hand either.

free lunch Fig. something of value that is free. (Often negative. See also There's no such thing as a free lunch.) There's always somebody who'll do anything to get a free lunch.

a free ride 1. Lit. a ride to somewhere for which no payment is demanded. I got a free ride from a truck driver who was headed for town. I won't call a taxi when I can get a free ride. 2. Fig. an easy time; participation without contributing anything. You've had a free ride long enough. You have to do your share of the work now. No more free rides around here. Get off your duff and get a job!

free someone or something from someone or something to release or unburden someone or something from someone or something. We freed the raccoon from the trap. Max tried to free himself from the police officer. The dog tried to free itself from the dogcatcher.

a free translation and a loose translation a translation or restatement that is not completely accurate and not well thought out; a translation or restatement done casually. John gave a free translation of what our Japanese client asked for, and we missed the main issue. Anne gave a very free translation of the ancient Chinese poem.

a freeze on doing something Fig. a policy that put a temporary end to something. The company put a freeze on hiring as soon as they took us over.

freeze one's tail off Fig. Inf. to freeze; to get very cold. Don't stand out there in the cold wind! You'll freeze your tail off! It's as cold as a well-digger's nose today. I about froze my tail off walking to work.

freeze (on)to something [for something] to touch something very cold and freeze hard and fast to it. My hand froze to the railing. The branch froze onto the side of the house.

freeze over [for a body of water] to get cold and form a layer of ice on top. The pond froze over, so we went skating.

freeze someone or something in one's memory Fig. to preserve the image of someone or something in one's memory. I tried to freeze her in my memory so I would have her with me always. I froze the scene in my memory.

freeze someone or something to death 1. Lit. [for cold weather] to kill someone or something. I was afraid that the cold snap would freeze the dog to death. 2. Fig. to make someone or something very cold. This weather is going to freeze us all to death.

freeze someone out! 1. Lit. to make it too cold for someone, usually by opening windows or through the use of air-conditioning. Turn up the heat unless you're trying to freeze us out. Are you trying to freeze out everybody? Close the door. 2. Fig. to lock someone out socially; to isolate someone from something or a group. We didn't want to freeze you out. You failed to pay your dues, however. They froze out the newcomers.

freeze someone's wages Fig. to hold someone's pay at its current level. The company froze everyone's wages as soon as the economy went sour.

freeze something into something 1. to use cold to solidify something into a different state, usually water into ice. The extreme cold froze the water of the river into solid ice. The cold snap froze the water in the puddles into hard sheets of ice. 2. to use cold to solidify something into a particular shape. We froze the ice cream into the shape of a penguin. This ice tray will freeze water into little round balls of ice.

freeze up 1. Lit. [for something] to freeze and stop functioning. The joint froze up and wouldn't move anymore. 2. Fig. [for someone] to become frightened and anxious, and be unable to move, speak, or continue with something. I froze up and couldn't say anything more.

fresh and sweet 1. very clean and fresh smelling. Now the baby is changed and she is all fresh and sweet. 2. Inf. just out of jail. Mary is fresh and sweet and back on the street.

fresh as a daisy Cliché very fresh; [of a person] always alert and ready to go. (*Also: as ~.) How can you be fresh as a daisy so early in the morning? I always feel fresh as a daisy after a shower.

fresh blood Go to (some) new blood.

fresh out (of something) and clean out (of something) just now having sold or used up the last of something. Sorry, I can't serve you scrambled eggs. We are fresh out of eggs. We are fresh out of nails. I sold the last box just ten minutes ago. Lettuce? Sorry. I'm clean out.

a fresh pair of eyes Go to another pair of eyes.

a fresh start a new start; an act of starting over. (*Typically: get ~; get off to ~; give someone ~; have ~; make ~.) After our apologies and a little discussion, we decided to make a fresh start.

fresh (with someone) overly bold or impertinent with someone. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ When I tried to kiss Mary, she slapped me and shouted, "Don't get fresh with me!" □ I can't stand people who get fresh.

freshen someone or something up[†] to revive or restore the appearance or vitality of someone or something. □ What can we do to freshen this room up? □ A cold shower freshened up the runner.

freshen up to get cleaned up, rested up, or restored. □ I need a few minutes to freshen up before dinner.

fret about someone or something and fret over someone or something to worry about someone or something. □ Please don't fret about being a few minutes late. □ There is no need to fret over Larry.

Fret not! Inf. Don't worry!; Do not fret about it! □ Mary: Oh, look at the clock! I'm going to be late for my appointment! Bob: Fret not! I'll drive you. □ "Fret not!" said Sally. "We're almost there!"

fret over someone or something Go to fret about someone or something.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. A true friend is a person who will help you when you really need help. □ When Bill helped me with geometry, I really learned the meaning of "A friend in need is a friend indeed."

friend or foe a friend or an enemy. □ I can't tell whether Jim is friend or foe. □ "Who goes there? Friend or foe?" asked the sentry.

friends with someone a friend of someone. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ Sally is friends with Bill. □ Mary and Bill are friends with one another.

frighten one out of one's wits and scare one out of one's wits; frighten someone out of a year's growth; scare someone out of a year's growth; frighten one out of one's mind; scare one out of one's mind Fig. to frighten one very badly. □ Oh! That loud noise scared me out of my wits. □ I'll give him a good scolding and frighten him out of his wits. □ Oh, you frightened me out of a year's growth! □ You frightened Bob out of his mind.

frighten someone or an animal in[†] Go to frighten someone or an animal into something.

frighten someone or an animal into doing something to threaten someone or an animal into doing something. □ You can't frighten me into leaving! □ Let's try to frighten the coyotes into running away.

frighten someone or an animal into something 1. and frighten someone or an animal in[†] to scare someone or an animal into entering something or some place. □ The trouble in the neighborhood frightened most of the residents into their houses. □ The mouse was out of its hole, but we came in and frightened the little mouse back in. 2. to scare someone or an animal into a particular state. □ They frightened me into a quivering mass. □ The mouse was frightened into a state of confusion.

frighten someone or an animal to death and scare someone or an animal to death 1. Lit. to frighten a living creature badly enough to cause death. □ The roar of the plane engine seems to have frightened the little dog to death. 2. Fig. to frighten someone severely. □ The dentist always frightens me to death. □ She scared me to death when she screamed.

frighten someone or something away[†] and frighten someone or something off[†] to scare someone or something off. □ The noise frightened the burglar away. □ Something frightened away the prowlers. □ The high prices frightened the shoppers off.

frighten someone out of a year's growth Go to frighten one out of one's wits.

frighten the hell out of someone and frighten the pants off someone; frighten the living daylights out of someone; scare the living daylights out of someone; scare the shit out of someone; scare the wits out of someone to frighten someone badly, suddenly or both. (Use of hell and shit are crude.) □ These figures frighten the hell out of me. □ The door blew shut and scared the shit out of me. □ It takes a lot to scare the pants off a hardened criminal.

frighten the pants off someone Go to previous.

frightened to death and scared to death 1. Lit. frightened to the point of dying. □ This poor animal has been frightened to death by the attacking dogs. 2. Fig. frightened or anxious. □ I don't want to go to the dentist today. I'm frightened to death. □ I'm frightened to death of spiders.

fritter something away[†] (on someone or something) to waste something, such as money, on someone or something, foolishly. □ Did you fritter good money away on that old car? □ You frittered away one hundred dollars on that piece of junk?

a frog in one's throat Fig. a feeling of hoarseness or a lump in one's throat. (Often regarded as a sign of fear. *Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ I feel like I'm getting a frog in my throat when I have to speak in public. □ She says she gets a frog in her throat when she is nervous.

from A to Z Fig. of a complete and wide variety. □ We have just about everything from A to Z. □ She ordered everything on the menu from A to Z.

from all corners of the world and from the four corners of the earth Fig. from all places in the world. □ People came from all corners of the world to attend the conference.

from dawn to dusk Fig. during the period of the day when there is light; from the rising of the sun to the setting of the sun. □ I have to work from dawn to dusk on the farm. □ The factory runs from dawn to dusk to produce hats and gloves.

from day one Go to day one.

from day to day on a daily basis; one day at a time; occasionally. □ We face this kind of problem from day to day. □ I'll have to check into this matter from day to day.

from door to door moving from one door to another—typically, from one house to another. □ The candidate went from door to door, campaigning for town council. □ The children went from door to door, saying "Trick or treat!" at each one.

from far and near and from near and far from all around, both close by and farther away. (In either order.) □ All the young people from far and near gathered at the high school for the game. □ The eagles gathered from near and far at the river where the salmon were spawning.

from giddy-up to whoa Rur. all the way from the beginning to the end. □ The road is paved from giddy-up to whoa. □ The play stinks. It is dull from giddy-up to whoa.

from hand to hand Fig. from one person to a series of other persons. □ The book traveled from hand to hand until it got back to its owner. □ By the time the baby had been passed from hand to hand, it was crying.

from head to toe Fig. from the top of one's head to one's feet. □ She was decked out in flowers from head to toe. □ The huge parka covered the small child from head to toe, assuring that she would be well-protected against the cold.

F

from hell to breakfast Rur. from one end of the earth to the other; all over; everywhere. (Use with caution.) □ We searched from hell to breakfast, but never did find the runaway kid. □ I tracked that deer from hell to breakfast, but never got a shot at it.

from here on (in) and from here on (out) from this point forward. □ From here on in we do it my way. □ I want everything clear from here on out.

from here till next Tuesday Rur. for a great distance; for a long time. □ If you try that again, I'll knock you from here till next Tuesday. □ You can lecture him from here till next Tuesday, but he won't listen.

from Missouri requiring proof; needing to be shown something in order to believe it. (From the nickname for the state of Missouri, the Show Me State.) □ You'll have to prove it to me. I'm from Missouri. □ She's from Missouri and has to be shown.

from my perspective and from where I stand; from my point of view; the way I see it Fig. in my own opinion. □ Mary: What do you think of all this? Tom: From my perspective, it is just terrible. □ Bob: From my point of view, this looks like a very good deal. □ Bill: That's good for you. I stand to lose money on it. □ Alice: From where I stand, it appears that you're going to have to pay a lot of money to get this matter settled. □ Sue: I'll pay anything. I just want to get all this behind me.

from near and far Go to from far and near.

from overseas from a location on the other side of the Atlantic or Pacific Ocean, according to the point of view of someone located in the U.S. □ The latest word from overseas is that the treaty has been signed. □ Is there any news from overseas about the war?

from pillar to post Fig. from one place to a series of other places; (figuratively) from person to person, as with gossip. □ My father was in the army, and we moved from pillar to post year after year. □ After I told one person my secret, it went quickly from pillar to post.

from rags to riches Fig. from poverty to wealth; from modesty to elegance. □ The princess used to be quite poor. She certainly moved from rags to riches. □ After I inherited the money, I went from rags to riches.

from scratch Fig. [making something] by starting from the beginning with the basic ingredients. (*Typically: bake something ~; do something ~; make something ~; start (something) ~.) □ We made the cake from scratch, using no prepared ingredients. □ I didn't have a ladder, so I made one from scratch.

from sea to shining sea Fig. from coast to coast. (Taken from the lyrics of the song "America the Beautiful".) □ from side to side moving first to one side and then to the other, repeatedly. □ The pendulum of the clock swings from side to side. □ The singers swayed from side to side as they sang.

The new insect pest spread from sea to shining sea in a matter of months.

from start to finish Fig. entirely; throughout. □ I disliked the whole business from start to finish. □ Mary caused problems from start to finish.

from stem to stern 1. Lit. from the front of a boat or ship to the back. □ He inspected the boat from stem to stern and decided he wanted to buy it. 2. Fig. from one end to another. □ Now, I have to clean the house from stem to stern. □ I polished my car carefully from stem to stern.

from the bottom of one's heart Fig. sincerely. □ When I returned the lost kitten to Mrs. Brown, she thanked me from the bottom of her heart. □ Oh, thank you! I'm grateful from the bottom of my heart.

from the cradle to the grave Fig. from birth to death. □ The government promised to take care of us from the cradle to the grave. □ You can feel secure and well-protected from the cradle to the grave.

from the four corners of the earth Go to from all corners of the world.

from (the) git-go Sl. from the very start. □ This kind of thing has been a problem from the git-go. □ I warned you about this from git-go.

from the ground up Fig. from the very beginning. □ We must plan our sales campaign carefully from the ground up. □ Sorry, but you'll have to start all over again from the ground up.

from the heart Fig. from a deep and sincere emotional source. □ I know that your kind words come from the heart. □ We don't want your gift unless it comes from the heart.

from the old school and of the old school Fig. holding attitudes or ideas that were popular and important in the past, but which are no longer considered relevant or in line with modern trends. (See also of the old school.) □ Grammar is not taught much now, but fortunately my son has a teacher from the old school. □ Aunt Jane is from the old school. She never goes out without wearing a hat and gloves.

from the outset throughout, from the very beginning. □ I felt from the outset that Lisa was the wrong one for the job. □ From the outset, I felt unwelcome in the group.

from the sublime to the ridiculous Fig. from something fine and uplifting to something ridiculous or mundane. □ After Mr. Jones had introduced my wife to his wife, he jokingly turned to introduce me and said, "From the sublime to the ridiculous." □ After the opera singer finished, the master of ceremonies introduced the comic juggler saying, "From the sublime to the ridiculous...."

From the sublime to the ridiculous is only a step. Prov. Something grand can easily become very funny. □ Bob, I don't think you should include a bowl of breakfast cereal in your still-life painting. From the sublime to the ridiculous is only a step. □ The production of Macbeth went from the sublime to the ridiculous when Lady Macbeth came onstage in an old army uniform.

from the top Fig. from the beginning of something, such as a song or a script. □ Okay, let's try it again from the top. □ Play it from the top one more time.

from the word go Cliché from the very beginning. □ I knew about the problem from the word go. □ She was failing the class from the word go.

from this day forward Go to next.

from this day on and from this day forward from today into the future. □ We'll live in love and peace from this day on. □ I'll treasure your gift from this day forward.

from time to time irregularly; now and then; occasionally; sometimes; not predictably. □ From time to time, I like to go fishing instead of going to work. □ Bob visits us at our house from time to time.

from tip to toe Fig. from the top to the bottom. □ She is wearing all new clothes from tip to toe. □ The house needs to be cleaned thoroughly from tip to toe.

from top to bottom Fig. from the highest point to the lowest point; throughout. □ I have to clean the house from top to bottom today. □ We need to replace our elected officials from top to bottom.

from way back from far in the past; from a much earlier time. □ Grandfather comes from way back. □ This antique clock is from way back.

from where I stand Go to from my perspective.

front for someone or something to serve as the public contact or public “face” for someone or something. □ Her publicity agent fronted for her most of the time. □ Max fronted for a gang of thieves.

front off (about something) Sl. to be brash and resentful about something. □ Todd was fronting off about his assignment and got a detention for it. □ You will wish you hadn't fronted off about your supervisor.

front on something [for a building or a piece of land] to face out on something. □ The property fronts on a lovely boulevard that has very little traffic. □ Our house fronts on a lake.

front someone some amount of money to provide an advance payment of some amount to someone. □ The buyer fronted me half the purchase price as a favor.

the front-runner the person or thing thought most likely to win or succeed. □ The press found out some juicy secrets about the front-runner and made them all public. □ Who is the front-runner in the race to be governor?

frost over to become covered with frost. □ The windows had all frosted over in the night. □ The car windows frosted over.

frosted (over) Sl. angry; annoyed. □ The clerk was really frosted over when I asked for a better one. □ Why was he so frosted?

froth something up[†] to whip or aerate something until it is frothy. □ Froth the milk up before you add it to the sauce. □ Froth up the milk before you pour it in.

froth up [for something] to build up a froth when whipped, aerated, or boiled. □ The mixture began to froth up as Dan beat it. □ The milk frothed up as the steam went through it.

frown at someone or something to scowl at someone or something. □ Please don't frown at me. I didn't do anything. □ Frank frowned at the dog and gave it a kick.

frown on someone or something to disapprove of someone or something; to show displeasure or disapproval of someone or something. □ The Internal Revenue Service frowns on tax cheaters. □ Aunt Clara always seemed to frown on my cousin for some reason.

the fruits of one's labor(s) Fig. the results of one's work. □ We displayed the fruits of our labor at the county fair. □ What have you accomplished? Where is the fruit of your labors?

fry something up[†] to cook something by frying. □ Let's fry some chicken up for dinner. □ We fried up some chicken.

Fuck you! a strong condemnation. (Taboo.) □ Fuck you! Why did you have to do that? □ Fuck you! I don't care any more!

fudge factor Fig. a margin of error. □ I never use a fudge factor. I measure correctly, and I cut the material exactly the way I measured it. □ I built in a fudge factor of three percent.

fuel something (up[†]) to put fuel into something. □ I have to fuel this car up before I go any farther. □ I need to fuel up the car.

fuel up to fill one's tank with fuel. □ Let's stop here and fuel up. □ I need to fuel up at the next little town.

full as a tick very full of food or drink. (Alludes to a tick that has filled itself full of blood. See also tight as a tick. *Also: as ~.) □ Little Billy ate and ate until he was as full as a tick. □ Our cat drank the cream until he became full as a tick.

full of beans Go to full of hot air.

full of bull Go to full of hot air.

full of holes Fig. [of an argument or plan] that cannot stand up to challenge or scrutiny. (See also not hold water; pick holes in something.) □ Your argument is full of holes. □ This plan is full of holes and won't work.

full of hot air and full of beans; full of bull; full of it; full of prunes Fig. full of nonsense; talking nonsense. □ Oh, shut up, Mary. You're full of hot air. □ Don't pay any attention to Bill. He's full of beans. □ My English professor is full of bull. □ You're full of it.

full of Old Nick Go to full of the devil.

full of oneself Fig. conceited; self-important. (*Typically: act ~; be ~.) □ Mary is very unpopular because she's so full of herself. □ She doesn't care about other people's feelings. She's too full of herself.

full of prunes Go to full of hot air.

full of the devil and full of Old Nick always making mischief. □ Little Chuckie is sure full of the devil. □ Toward the end of the school year, the kids are always full of Old Nick.

a full plate Fig. a full schedule; a lot to do. □ I'm very busy at work, and I've got a full plate at home too.

full steam ahead Fig. onward with determination. □ We started moving full steam ahead on the project. □ Full steam ahead! Let's see how fast this will go!

full up Rur. full. I ate till I was full up. I can't get any more gas in the tank. It's full up.

fulminate against someone or something to denounce someone or something. The workers were fulminating against their employer. They are fulminating against the president of the union.

fumble for something to try to grasp awkwardly for something. He fumbled for his wallet, hoping Wally would pay the bill. Tex was shot while fumbling for his gun.

fume about someone or something and fume over someone or something to be very angry about someone or something. She was just fuming over her broken vase. She was still fuming about Larry the next morning.

fume at someone Fig. to rage at someone. She was really fuming at Sam, who had broken her table leg.

fume over someone or something Go to fume about someone or something.

fun and games Fig. playing around; doing worthless things. All right, Bill, the fun and games are over. It's time to get down to work. This isn't a serious course. It's nothing but fun and games.

funked out Sl. intoxicated. Do you think you can go through life funked out all the time? Are you funked out again?

funny as a barrel of monkeys Cliché very funny. (*Also: as ~.) Ron was as funny as a barrel of monkeys. The entire evening was funny as a barrel of monkeys.

funny as a crutch not funny at all. (Sarcastic. *Also: as ~.) Your trick is about as funny as a crutch. Nobody thought it was funny. The lame joke Ron told was as funny as a crutch, and we all yawned.

funny bone and crazy bone a spot near the elbow bone that is very sensitive to the touch. Ouch, I hit my funny bone. Effie bumped her crazy bone and made a horrendous face.

funny business Go to monkey business.

funny ha-ha amusing; comical. (As opposed to funny peculiar.) I didn't mean that Mrs. Peters is funny ha-ha. She's weird—funny peculiar in fact. Mike thinks his jokes are funny ha-ha, but we laugh because they are so silly.

funny money 1. Sl. counterfeit money. The bank teller spotted the funny money in the man's deposit almost immediately. 2. Fig. temporary or substitute money, good only in certain places. What am I going to do with all this funny money when I leave here? It's no good anywhere else. 3. Fig. foreign currency. (Jocular.) We had better buy some gifts and get rid of some of this funny money before our flight.

funny peculiar odd; eccentric. (As opposed to funny ha-ha.) I didn't mean that Mrs. Peters is funny ha-ha. She's weird—funny peculiar in fact. His face is sort of funny—funny peculiar, that is.

a fur piece Rur. a long distance. (Fur = far.) It's a fur piece to the library. You'd best take the bus instead of walking. It's a pretty fur piece to the nearest big town.

furnish something for someone or something and furnish someone or something with something to provide something for someone or a group. I would be happy to furnish dinner for the visitors. I furnished the board of directors with the information.

furnish something for something to provide something to be used as something. Could you furnish the salad for our picnic? We can't furnish enough glassware for the whole party.

a furtive glance a secret or quick glance, quickly averted. He made a furtive glance in the direction of the closet when the robbers asked where the jewelry was hidden.

fuse something with something to bond something together with something. You have to fuse the upper layer to the lower layer with heat. He used heat and pressure to fuse the patch with the soft rubber of the raft.

fuse with something to bond with something. The metal has fused with the glass coating on the tank. I didn't know that metal could fuse with glass.

fuss about and fuss around to go about complaining; to move about in a busy manner. Don't fuss about so much. Things will take care of themselves. Now, stop fussing around and sit down.

fuss about someone or something to complain about someone or something. What are you fussing about now? Are you still fussing about Tony?

fuss and feathers Rur. fancy addictions that are overdone or troublesome. A truly elegant dress doesn't have a lot of fuss and feathers. They ruined a nice room with all that fuss and feathers.

fuss around Go to fuss about.

fuss (around) with someone or something to keep bothering with someone or something; to fiddle with someone or something. Don't fuss around with it. We'll have to get a new one. Don't fuss with your children. They will get along just fine without all that attention.

fuss at someone or something to complain at someone. Stop fussing at me! The squirrel is fussing at the dog.

fuss over someone or something to go to a lot of bother about someone or something. My aunt always fusses over me and my sister. You spend a lot of time fussing over your hair.

futz around Sl. to waste time. Stop futzing around and get the job done. I wish you would stop futzing around!

futz something up[†] Sl. to mess something up. Who futzed the computer up? I don't want to futz up the deal, so I will be quiet.

gab up a storm Go to up a storm.

gad around and gad about to go from place to place, having fun. □ I'm too old to gad around like that. □ She wasted too much time gadding about with her friends.

gag on something to choke on something; to retch on something. □ The dog is gagging on whatever you gave her. □ This fish is good, but I hope I don't gag on a bone.

gain dominion over someone or something to achieve total authority over someone or something. □ The dictator sought to gain dominion over the entire country. □ Harry was not happy until he had gained dominion over the people who worked for him.

gain from something to benefit from something. □ I hope you gain from this experience. □ What do you think I will gain from this?

gain ground to make progress; to advance; to become more important or popular. □ Our new product is gaining ground against that of our competitor. □ Since the government announced its new policies, the opposition has been gaining ground.

gain in something to advance in a particular quality. □ Todd grew in stature and gained in wisdom. □ Mary gained in experience as the weeks went on.

gain on someone or something to begin to catch up or move ahead of someone or something. □ We were gaining on them when they suddenly sped up. □ Our horse was gaining on the horse in front.

gain something by doing something to achieve some benefit by doing something. □ What did he gain by dropping out of school? □ I will gain some degree of security by investing in U.S. Treasury bonds.

gain something from something to earn or achieve something from something. □ I hope you gain something worthwhile from all this. □ I know I will gain some valuable experience from this job.

gallivant around to travel around aimlessly. □ Why don't you stop gallivanting around and come home for a while? □ Mary is off gallivanting around with her boyfriend.

gallop through something 1. Lit. [for a horse] to pass through something at a gallop. □ Her horse galloped through the garden and dumped her in the cabbages. □ A few horses galloped through the meadow. 2. Fig. to go through something quickly; to do or perform something rapidly and perhaps carelessly. □ Mike galloped through his song and left the stage in a hurry. □ Don't just gallop through your homework!

galumph around to move around looking for someone or something or transporting someone or something. □ I am so tired of galumphing around, dropping off and picking up kids. □ I have to stop galumphing around day after day.

galvanize someone into action Fig. to stimulate someone into some activity. □ The explosion galvanized Martha into action. □ We were galvanized into action by the storm.

gamble on someone or something 1. Lit. to make a wager on something concerning someone or something. □ I wouldn't gamble on it happening. □ Don't gamble on that horse. You'll be sorry. 2. Fig. to run a risk by choosing or depending on someone or something. □ I wouldn't gam- ble on Ted's being able to come. I don't think he can. □ Don't gamble on Ted. I'm almost sure he won't come.

gamble something away^t to lose all of something by gambling. □ He gambled all his money away. □ He gambled away all his money.

The game is up. and The jig is up. Fig. The illegal activity has been found out or has come to an end. □ When the police were waiting for them inside the bank vault, the would-be robbers knew that the game was up. □ "The jig is up!" said the cop as he grabbed the shoulder of the pickpocket.

a game that two can play Fig. a manner of competing that two competitors can use; a strategy that competing sides can both use. (Said when about to use the same ploy that an opponent has used.) □ The mayor shouted at the city council, "Politics is a game that two can play." □ "Flattery is a game that two can play," said John as he returned Mary's compliment.

gang up (on someone) to form into a group and attack someone. (Usually a physical attack, but it can also be a verbal attack.) □ We can't win against the robber unless we gang up on him. □ All right, you guys, don't gang up on me. Play fair!

gape at someone or something to stare at someone or something in wonder. □ Don't just stand there, gaping at me. Come in. □ Stop gaping at the storm clouds and get in here.

garb someone in something to dress someone in something. □ He hoped that someday he wouldn't have to garb his children in rags. □ She garbed herself in her finest clothes and got ready to meet her husband's family.

Garbage in, garbage out. Prov. If you give nonsensical instructions to people or computers, those instructions will produce nonsensical results. □ Jill: Why is my computer generating all this gibberish? Jane: You must have made a mistake in the program. Garbage in, garbage out. □ Ed insists that children are so ignorant nowadays because their teachers are incompetent. "Garbage in, garbage out," he says.

garbage something down^t Sl. to gobble something up; to quickly swallow something down. □ Don't garbage your food down! □ That guy will garbage down almost anything.

garner something in^t and garner something up^t to take something in and store it; to harvest something in and store it. (Originally referred to grain stored in a granary.)

□ Will they garner the crop in on time this year? □ They had garnered in the entire crop by late October.

garnish something with something to embellish or decorate something, such as food, with something. □ For the final presentation, I will garnish the dish with a sprig of parsley. □ The roast was garnished with slices of apple.

gas something up[†] to put gasoline into a vehicle. □ I have to gas this car up soon. □ I will stop and gas up the car at the next little town.

gas up to fill up one's gasoline tank with gasoline. □ I have to stop at the next service station and gas up. □ The next time you gas up, try some of the gasoline with alcohol in it.

gasp at someone or something to inhale sharply in surprise or shock at someone or something. □ I gasped at the sight that lay before me. □ I saw how weary Denise looked and I gasped at her.

gasp for air to fight for a breath of air. (After one has been deprived of air.) □ Walter popped to the surface of the water and gasped for air. □ The injured dog appeared to be gasping for air.

gasp for breath to labor for one's breath. (Usually because of physical exertion.) □ She ran and ran until she was gasping for breath. □ The diver finally came to the surface, gasping for breath.

gasp something out[†] to utter something, gasping. □ She gasped the words out haltingly. □ Dan was just able to gasp out the instructions before he passed out.

gassed (up) Sl. intoxicated. □ Fred is gassed up and very wobbly. □ He was too gassed up to drive home.

gather a case (against someone) to go to build a case (against someone).

gather around someone or something to collect around someone or something. □ Let's all gather around her and hear her out. □ Please gather around the table for dinner.

gather dust Fig. [for something] to sit unused for a long time. □ Most of my talent is just gathering dust because I don't really have an opportunity to perform.

gather someone into something and gather someone in[†] to assemble or bring people into something or some place. □ The hostess gathered the children into the house just as the storm hit. □ She gathered in the children. □ Harry gathered them in before the storm.

gather someone or something around (oneself) to collect people or things around oneself; to draw someone or something to oneself. □ He gathered a lot of arty people around himself. □ She liked to gather exotic plants around herself. □ Grandpa gathered all the kids around and read them a story.

gather someone or something to oneself to draw someone or something to oneself. □ The hen gathered her chicks to herself. □ Harry gathered the poker chips to himself.

gather someone or something together[†] to assemble people or things together in one place. □ Gather everyone together in the drawing room for a meeting. □ Please gather together all the suspects so that they can be questioned again. □ Would you gather all your papers together and put them away?

gather something from someone to collect something from someone. □ I will gather the papers from Wally, and you go get those that Ted is working on. □ Would you gather the pictures from everyone? We have to leave now and take them with us.

gather something from someone or something to learn something from someone or something; to infer something from someone or someone's remarks. (The something is often a clause shifted to another position in the sentence.) □ I gather from your brother that you do not approve of her. □ We gathered that from your remarks.

gather something from something to collect something from something. □ Kristine gathered the honey from the beehives. □ I gathered my money from the cashier.

gather something in[†] 1. Lit. to collect something and bring it in; to harvest something. □ We gathered the pumpkins in just before Halloween. □ We gathered in the pumpkins just in time. 2. Fig. to fold or bunch cloth together when sewing or fitting clothing. □ Try gathering it in on each side to make it seem smaller. □ I will have to gather in this skirt.

gather something up[†] to collect something; to pick something up. □ Let's gather our things up and go. □ Please gather up your things.

gather together to assemble together. □ We will gather together on the main deck for a meeting. □ Let's all gather together this evening and sing.

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may. Prov. Enjoy yourself while you can, before you lose the opportunity or before you become too old. (From Robert Herrick's poem, "To the Virgins, to Make Much of Time.") □ Sue: Should I go out on a date with Robbie on Saturday, or should I stay home and study? Ellen: Gather ye rosebuds while ye may. □ You ought to travel abroad now, while you're young, before you have responsibilities that might keep you from going. Gather ye rosebuds while ye may.

gaudy as a butterfly fancy; colorful. (*Also: as ~.) □ Marie looked as gaudy as a butterfly in her new dress. □ Michael's scarf is gaudy as a butterfly.

gawk at someone or something to stare at someone or something, obviously and awkwardly. □ Why are you standing there, gawking at me? □ The tourists stood at the foot of the mountain and gawked at the top.

gaze around (at someone or something) to look all around at someone or something. □ The manager gazed around at each of us, and finally spoke. □ Tourists gazed around at the scenery for a while and got back in the bus. □ We just stood there, gazing around.

gaze at someone or something to stare at someone or something. □ I stood for an hour, gazing at the sea. □ She gazed at me for a moment and then smiled.

gaze on someone or something to look at someone or something; to survey someone or something. □ She gazed sullenly on the ruin that had been her home. □ The teacher gazed on the student and frightened her.

gaze out on something to look out on something, such as a lovely view, from inside a building or from a particular spot. □ She gazed out on the flowering trees and knew that life would go on. □ Henry sat for hours, gazing out on the lake.

gear someone or something up[†] (for someone or something) to prepare someone or something for someone or something. □ We have to gear up the workers for the arrival of the new manager. □ We geared ourselves up for Frank, who was coming to lecture to us.

gear something to someone or something to cause something to match something else; to create or adapt something for a specific purpose. □ Tim geared his speech to his audience. □ The newspaper geared its language to a fourth-grade reading level.

gear up for someone or something to get ready for something. □ We are busy gearing up for Joan's visit next week.

generalize about someone or something and generalize on someone or something to interpret someone or something in very general terms. □ Sometimes it isn't wise to generalize about a complicated issue. □ She is very complex and it is difficult to generalize on her.

generalize from something to assume a general pattern in something from specific observances of something. □ You can hardly generalize from only two instances. □ You can't generalize anything from the testimony of a single witness!

generalize on someone or something Go to generalize about someone or something.

Generation X and Generation X'er people reaching puberty during the 1970s and 1980s. □ Three or four generation X'ers were in the antique store looking eagerly at some of those horrible old dinette chairs from the 1950s.

generous to a fault Cliché too generous; overly generous. □ My favorite uncle is generous to a fault. □ Sally—always generous to a fault—gave away her lunch to a homeless man.

Genius is an infinite capacity for taking pains.

Prov. Genius is the quality of being exceedingly careful about everything you do. □ If genius is an infinite capacity for taking pains, Marilyn certainly has it. She never overlooks a single detail that needs attention.

Genius is ten percent inspiration and ninety percent perspiration. Prov. People get brilliant results primarily by working hard, not because they have special inborn powers. □ Child: Betty always does the best drawings in art class. She must be a genius. Father: If you worked hard, you could do just as well. Remember, genius is ten percent inspiration and ninety percent perspiration.

gentle as a lamb Cliché [of someone] very gentle. (*Also: as ~.) □ Don't be afraid of Mr. Schaeffer. He may look fierce, but he's as gentle as a lamb. □ Lisa was gentle as a lamb when dealing with children.

the genuine article the real thing rather than a substitute. □ Is this the genuine article or some cheap imitation substitute? □ I'll take the genuine article, thanks.

get a bang out of someone or something Go to get a charge out of someone or something.

get a bead on someone or something Go to draw a bead on someone or something.

get a buzz out of someone or something Fig. to get some humor from someone or something. □ I thought you'd get a buzz out of that gag. □ I hope you get a buzz out of Ted. He's a funny guy.

get a charge out of someone or something and get a bang out of someone or something; get a kick out of someone or something to receive special pleasure from someone or something. □ I really got a charge out of that comedian's routine. □ Tom is really funny. I always get a kick out of his jokes. □ Bill really got a bang out of the present we gave him.

get a hurry on and get a move on to start to hurry. □ We are going to leave in five minutes, Jane. Get a hurry on! □ Mary! Get a move on! We can't wait all day.

get a kick out of someone or something Go to get a charge out of someone or something.

get a laugh to do something that will create laughter. □ John will do almost anything to get a laugh.

Get a life! Inf. Change your life radically! Find something interesting to do or say! □ You are such a twit! Get a life! □ Get a life, you clown!

get a load of someone or something to get a good look at someone or something. □ Wow! Get a load of that car! □ Get a load of Mary!

get a lot of mileage out of something Fig. to get a lot of use from something, as if it were a car. □ Bob always got a lot of mileage out of one joke. □ I got a lot of mileage out of my TV before it broke down.

get a move on Go to get a hurry on.

get a rise from someone and get a rise out of someone Fig. to make someone react, usually angrily. □ Tease Joe about his girlfriend. That generally gets a rise from him. □ I pestered Mary for half the afternoon, but didn't get a rise out of her.

get a say (in something) Go to a voice (in something).

get a (sound) grasp of something Go to a (solid) grasp of something.

get a ticket to receive a traffic ticket. □ If you keep racing along at this speed, you will get a ticket!

get a weight off one's mind Go to a load off one's mind.

get a word in edgewise and get a word in edgeways Fig. to manage to say something when other people are talking and ignoring you. (Often in the negative. Alludes to trying to "squeeze" a word into a running conversation.) □ It was such an exciting conversation that I could hardly get a word in edgewise. □ Mary talks so fast that nobody can get a word in edgeways.

get aboard something to get onto a ship, a train, or an airplane. □ What time should we get aboard the ship? □ Everyone can get aboard at noon.

get about and get around to manage to move around. □ I broke my hip last year, but I can still get about. □ Dad can't get around too much anymore, so I go over to help him.

get across (something) to manage to cross something. (See also put something across (to someone).) □ We finally got across the river where it was very shallow. □ Where the water was low, it was easy to get across.

get after someone 1. Lit. to begin to chase someone. □ The other boys got after him and almost caught him. □ Henry got after Bill and almost caught up with him. 2. Fig. to bother someone about doing something; to scold someone about something. □ I will get after Fred about his behavior. □ Please don't get after me all the time.

get ahead (in something) to advance in one's employment, school, or life in general. □ I work hard every day, but I can't seem to get ahead in my job. □ I want to get ahead in life.

get ahead of oneself Fig. [for someone] to do or say something sooner than it ought to be done so that the proper explanation or preparations have not been made. □ I have to stick to my notes or I will get ahead of myself in my lecture. □ When he bought a new little bicycle before the baby was born, he was getting ahead of himself.

get along 1. [for people or animals] to be amiable with one another. □ Those two just don't get along. □ They seem to get along just fine. 2. to leave; to be on one's way. □ I've got to get along. It's getting late. □ It's time for me to get along. See you later.

get along (on a shoestring) and get by (on a shoestring) Fig. to be able to afford to live on very little money. □ For the last two years, we have had to get along on a shoestring. □ With so many expenses, it's hard to get by on a shoestring.

get along on something Fig. to manage to survive with just something. □ I think we can get along on what I earn. □ I can't get along on what they pay me.

Get along with you! Rur. to go on; to depart; to go and "take oneself along." (Only with you.) □ Get along with you, now. Get going! □ Get along with you, Sally!

get along without (someone or something) to manage without someone or something; to do without someone or something. □ I don't think I can get along without my secretary. □ My secretary just quit, and I don't think I will be able to get along without.

get an amount of money for something to receive an amount of money in exchange for something; to sell something for a specific price. (See also get something for an amount of money.) □ I got nearly two thousand dollars for my car. □ How much did they get for their house?

get around Go to get about.

get around someone or something 1. Lit. to cluster around someone or something. □ Tell everyone to get around the cat so she won't run away. □ Let's get around Mary and sing "Happy Birthday" to her. 2. to manage to go around someone or something. □ We couldn't get around the fallen tree, so we turned back. □ Mary couldn't get around the people standing in the hallway. 3. Fig. to avoid or elude an authority or regulation that constitutes a barrier; to circumvent someone or something in order to get one's way. □ We knew she would oppose us, so we got around her and got it approved by someone else. □ I know I can find a way to get around the rule.

get around to doing something to find time to do something; to do something after a long delay. (See also get (around) to someone or something.) □ I finally got around to buying a new coat. □ It took Sally years to get around to visiting her aunt.

get (around) to someone or something to be able to deal with someone or something eventually. (See also get around to doing something.) □ I will get around to you in a moment. Please be patient. □ The mechanic will get around to your car when possible.

get at someone Fig. to find a way to irritate someone; to manage to wound someone, physically or emotionally. (See also get at someone or an animal.) □ Mr. Smith found a way to get at his wife. □ John kept trying to get at his teacher.

get at someone or an animal Fig. to attack or strike someone or an animal. □ The cat jumped over the wall to get at the mouse. □ Ok, you guys. There he is. Get at him!

get at something 1. Fig. to explain or understand something. □ We spent a long time trying to get at the answer. □ I can't understand what you're trying to get at. 2. Fig. begin doing something. (See also Have at it!) □ I won't be able to get at it until the weekend. □ I'll get at it first thing in the morning.

get away to move away. (Often a command.) □ Get away! Don't bother me! □ I tried to get away, but he wouldn't let me.

get away (from someone or something) 1. to escape from someone, something, or some place. □ Max did get away from the prison guard but was caught soon after. □ Mary couldn't get away from the telephone all morning. 2. Go to away (from someone or something).

get away with murder 1. Lit. to commit murder and not get punished for it. (See also get away with something.) □ Don't kill me! You can't get away with murder! 2. Fig. to do something very bad and not get punished for it. □ That guy always gets away with murder—just because he's cute. □ You will spoil your son if you let him get away with murder. You should punish him for his back-talk.

get away with someone or something to escape, taking someone or something with one. □ The kidnapper got away with little Brian. □ The burglars got away with a lot of cash and some diamonds.

get away with something and get by with something to do something and not get punished for it. (See also get away with murder.) □ You can't get away with that! □ Larry got by with the lie.

get axed Fig. to get fired. □ Betty and two of her friends got axed today.

get back (to someone) (on something) Fig. to continue talking with someone (at a later time); to find out information and tell it to a person (at a later time). □ I don't have the answer to that question right now. Let me find out and get back to you. □ Okay. Please try to get back early tomorrow.

get back to something to return to dealing with something. □ I will have to get back to my work now. □ I want to get back to my knitting.

get better to improve. □ I had a bad cold, but it's getting better. □ Business was bad last year, but it's getting better. □ I'm sorry you're ill. I hope you get better.

get between someone or something and someone or something else to position oneself between people and things, in any combination. □ She got between Dan and his career. □ The dog got between the archer and the target.

get busy to start working; to work or appear to work harder or faster. □ The boss is coming. You'd better get busy. □ I've got to get busy and clean this house up.

get by (on a shoestring) Go to get along (on a shoestring).

get by (on a small amount of money) to survive with only a small amount of money. □ I can't get by on that much money. □ That is a very small amount of money to live on. No one could get by.

get by (someone or something) to move past someone or something. □ I need to get by this intersection, and then I will stop and look at the tires. □ Please let me get by.

get by (with something) 1. to satisfy the minimum requirements. □ I was failing geometry, but managed to get by with a D. □ I took the bar exam and just barely got by.
2. Go to get away with something.

get by (without someone or something) to survive without someone or something. □ I can't get by without you. □ We can probably get by without two cars.

get carried away Fig. to be overcome by emotion or enthusiasm (in one's thinking or actions). □ Calm down, Jane. Don't get carried away. □ Here, Bill. Take this money and go to the candy store, but don't get carried away.

get cracking Rur. to get to work. □ If you want to finish that quilt by Labor Day, you best get cracking. □ Sit down to your homework and get cracking!

get down 1. Sl. to lay one's money on the table. (Gambling.) □ Okay, everybody get down. □ Get down, and let's get going! 2. Sl. to concentrate; to do something well. □ I'm flunking two subjects, man. I gotta get down. □ Come on, Sam, pay attention. Get down and learn this stuff. 3. Sl. to copulate. □ Hey, let's get down! □ All Steve wants to do is get down all the time.

get down (from something) to get off something; to climb down from something. □ Please get down from there this instant! □ Get down before you fall!

get (down) off one's high horse Fig. to become humble; to be less haughty. □ It's about time that you got down off your high horse. □ Would you get off your high horse and talk to me?

get down (on all fours) to position oneself on one's hands and knees. □ He got down on all fours and played with the children. □ Mary got down and walked around like a dog.

get down to brass tacks Fig. to begin to talk about important things; to get down to business. □ Let's get down to brass tacks. We've wasted too much time chatting. □ Don't you think that it's about time to get down to brass tacks?

get down to business and get down to work to begin to get serious; to begin to negotiate or conduct business. □ All right, everyone. Let's get down to business. There has been enough chitchat. □ When the president and vice president arrive, we can get down to business.

get down to cases to begin to discuss specific matters; to get down to business. □ When we've finished the general discussion, we'll get down to cases. □ Now that everyone is here, we can get down to cases.

get down to (doing) something to begin doing some kind of work in earnest. □ I have to get down to my typing. □ John, you get in here this minute and get down to that homework!

get down to the facts to begin to talk about things that matter; to get to the truth. □ The judge told the lawyer that the time had come to get down to the facts. □ Let's get down to the facts, Mrs. Brown. Where were you on the night of January 16?

get down to the nitty-gritty to get down to the basic facts. □ Stop messing around and get down to the nitty-gritty. □ If we could only get down to the nitty-gritty and stop wasting time.

get down to the nuts and bolts Fig. to get down to the basic facts. (See also nuts and bolts.) □ Stop fooling around. Get down to the nuts and bolts. □ Let's stop wasting time. We have to get down to the nuts and bolts.

get down to work Go to get down to business.

get enough courage up[†] (to do something) Go to get enough nerve up[†] (to do something).

get enough guts up[†] (to do something) Go to next.

get enough nerve up[†] (to do something) and get enough courage up[†] (to do something); get enough guts up[†] (to do something); get enough pluck up[†] (to do something); get enough spunk up[†] (to do something); get the nerve up[†] (to do something); get the courage up[†] (to do something); get the guts up[†] (to do something); get the pluck up[†] (to do something); get the spunk up[†] (to do something) Fig. to work up enough courage to do something. □ I hope I can get enough nerve up to ask her for her autograph. □ I wanted to do it, but I couldn't get up enough nerve. □ I thought he would never get up the courage to ask me for a date.

get euchred out of something to get cheated out of something. (Alludes to losing in the card game euchre.) □ Joe's dad left him a farm, but he got euchred out of it by some city slicker real estate agent. □ I got euchred out of ten bucks by a con artist with a hard-luck story.

get free of someone or something and get free from someone or something 1. to rid oneself of the burden of someone or something. □ Can't I get free of this problem? □ I can't seem to get free of Randy. 2. to liberate oneself from someone or something. □ I tried to get free of Mr. Franklin, but he kept talking and wouldn't let me interrupt. □ Is there any way that somebody can get free of Tom? □ I couldn't get free of the nail that had snagged my sleeve.

get going 1. to start moving. □ Let's get going! We can't stand here all day. 2. to depart. □ What time should we get going in the morning?

get hell (about someone or something) Go to catch hell (about someone or something).

get hip to someone or something Go to hip to someone or something.

get home to someone or something to manage to return home to someone or something there. □ The infantryman wants to get home to his wife. □ I like to get home to a nice warm house.

get in deeper Fig. to get in more and more trouble; to get more deeply involved with someone or something. □ Everytime he opened his mouth to complain, he just got in deeper.

get inside something 1. Lit. to go inside of something or some place. □ Get inside the house and wait for me. □ Get inside the car so you won't get wet. 2. Fig. to learn about the inner workings of something or some organization. □

I can't wait to get inside that company and see what makes it tick. □ Someone needs to get inside the boardroom and straighten things out.

get into a mess 1. Lit. to get some part of one into a sloppy or messy substance. □ Look at your shoes! You really got into a mess. □ Please don't get into a mess in the park.
2. and get into a jam Fig. to get into difficulty; to get into trouble. □ Now you have really gotten into a mess. □ I got into a real mess at work.

get into an argument (with someone) (about someone or something) and get into an argument (with someone) (over someone or something) to enter a quarrel with someone about someone or something. □ I don't want to get into an argument with you about Dan. □ Mary got into an argument about money with Fred. □ I really don't want to get into an argument.

get into bed with someone Fig. to work closely as business partners; to merge businesses. □ Have you heard? The company's getting into bed with Acme Industries. □ I want you to get into bed with the other department supervisors and sort this problem out.

get into one's stride 1. Lit. [for a runner] to reach a comfortable and efficient pace. □ I got into my stride right away, and that helped win the race. □ She never got into her stride, and that's why she lost. 2. Fig. to reach one's most efficient and productive rate of doing something. □ When I get into my stride, I'll be more efficient. □ Amy will be more efficient when she gets into her stride.

get into something 1. to tamper with something; to open something and disturb the contents. □ Who got into my desk? □ Someone has been getting into my work after the office closes. 2. to put oneself into clothing. □ As soon as I get into this coat, I will help you load the car. □ Let me get into my boots, and then I'll be with you. 3. to enter something or some place. □ I got into the theater just before the rain started. □ Let's get into the car and go. 4. Sl. to become involved in something; to develop an interest in something. □ I can really get into sailing, I think. □ No matter how hard I try, I can't get into basketball. 5. to enter a particular type of business; to deal in a particular product in business. □ Yes, I used to work for the government, but now have gotten into private industry.

get in(to) the act Fig. to participate in something; to try to be part of whatever is going on. (As if someone were trying to get on stage and participate in a performance.) □ Everybody wants to get into the act! There is not room here for everyone. □ I want to get in the act.

get in(to) the swing of things Fig. to join in with people and their activities; to become more social and up-to-date. □ Come on, Bill. Try to get into the swing of things. □ John just couldn't seem to get in the swing of things.

get it Go to get something.

get it (all) together Fig. to become fit or organized; to organize one's thinking; to become relaxed and rational. □ Bill seems to be acting more normal now. I think he's getting it all together. □ I hope he gets it together soon. His life is a mess.

get it in the neck Sl. to receive trouble or punishment. □ You are going to get it in the neck if you are not home on time. □ I got it in the neck for being late.

get it off Sl. to achieve sexual release; to copulate. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion. Compare this with get it off with someone.) □ Harry kept saying he had to get it off or die. What's wrong with Harry? □ The entire crew of the yacht came ashore to get it off.

get it off with someone Sl. to have sexual intercourse with someone. □ She said she wanted to get it off with him. □ She said all he wanted was to get it off with just anybody.

get it on 1. Sl. to begin something. □ Time to go back to work. Let's get it on! □ Get it on, you guys! Time to start your engines. 2. Sl. to begin dancing. □ Let's go out there and get it on! □ He wanted to get it on, but my feet hurt. 3. Sl. [for people] to copulate. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) □ Come on, baby, let's get it on. □ I don't want to get it on with you or any other creep. 4. Sl. to undertake to enjoy oneself. □ I can really get it on with that slow jazz. □ Let's go listen to some new age and get it on.

get it out Fig. to tell someone about a problem; to pour out one's grief. (Fixed order.) □ Come on, get it out. □ He would feel better if he could get it out.

get it wrong to misunderstand someone or something. □ Oh, Otto, you've got it wrong again! □ Why do you have to get it wrong every time?

get laid to have sexual intercourse. (Use caution.) □ Tommy wanted nothing more out of life than to get laid.

get lost 1. to become lost; to lose one's way. □ We got lost on the way home. □ Follow the path, or you might get lost. 2. Inf. Go away!; Stop being an annoyance! (Always a command.) □ Stop bothering me. Get lost! □ Get lost! I don't need your help.

get mad (at something) to muster all one's physical and mental resources in order to do something difficult. □ Come on, Bill. If you're going to lift your end of the piano, you're going to have to get mad at it. □ The sergeant keeps yelling, "Work, work! Push, push! Come on, you guys, get mad!"

get married to become united as husband and wife. □ Bill and Sally got married when they were in college. □ We got married in Texas just after we graduated from college.

get moving to get busy; to get started; to work harder or faster. □ Come on, everybody. Get moving! □ The director is coming. You had better get moving.

get nowhere fast Fig. not to make progress; to get nowhere. □ I can't seem to make any progress. No matter what I do, I'm just getting nowhere fast. □ Come on. Speed up this car. We're getting nowhere fast.

get off 1. to start off (on a friendship). □ Tom and Bill had never met before. They seemed to get off all right, though. □ I'm glad they got off so well. 2. to leave; to depart. □ What time did they get off? □ We have to get off early in the morning before the traffic gets heavy. 3. Go to get off (easy); get off (of) someone or something; get off (of) something; get off something; get off to something; get off with something.

get off a few good ones Fig. to tell a few good jokes; to land a few good punches; to manage to make a few strong criticisms. □ The comedian managed to get off a few good ones, but most of his material was old or obscene.

get off (easy) and get off (lightly) to receive very little punishment (for doing something wrong). □ It was a seri- ous crime, but Mary got off easy. Billy's punishment was very light. Considering what he did, he got off lightly.

Get off it! 1. Inf. Stop acting so arrogant! Get off it, you jerk! Get off it! That's too much! 2. Inf. You're lying! Get off it, you liar! Get off it! That can't be true.

get off kilter Go to out of kilter.

get off (lightly) Go to get off (easy).

Get off my back! Inf. Stop harassing me! Leave me alone about this matter! Tom: You'd better get your paper written. Bill: I'll do it when I'm good and ready. Get off my back! Alice: I'm tired of your constant criticism! Get off my back! Jane: I was just trying to help.

get off (of) someone or something and get off to get down from someone or something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) Please get off of me. I can't play piggyback anymore. Get off of the sofa!

get off (of) something and get off Inf. to stop discussing the topic that one is supposed to be discussing [and start discussing something else]; to stray from the topic at hand. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) I wish you wouldn't get off the subject so much. This writer gets off of his topic all the time.

get off one's ass and get off one's rear; get off one's butt Sl. to get up and get busy; to stop loafing and get to work. (Caution with ass. Butt is also offensive to some people.) Get off your ass and get busy! It's time you got off your butt and started to work.

get off one's butt Go to previous.

get off one's rear Go to get off one's ass.

get off scot-free Go to go scot-free.

Get off someone's back! Go to next.

Get off someone's case! and Get off someone's back! Fig. Inf. Leave someone alone! Stop picking on someone! (Usually a command.) I'm tired of your criticism, Bill. Get off my case! Quit picking on her. Get off her back!

get off someone's tail 1. Fig. to stop following someone closely, usually in an automobile. Get off my tail! Keep your distance! I wish that car behind me would get off my tail. 2. Fig. to stop bothering someone; to stop monitoring someone's actions. Get off my tail! I can manage without you. Who needs your help? Get off my tail!

get off (something) to climb down from something. Please get off the stairs. You know you shouldn't play on the stairs. I wish that the children would get off that ladder before they fall off.

get off the dime Sl. to start moving; to get out of a stopped position. Why don't you get off the dime and complete some of these projects that you started? As soon as the board of directors gets off the dime on this proposal, we will have some action.

get off to sleep to manage to get to sleep finally. About midnight everyone finally got off to sleep. I wasn't able to get off to sleep until dawn.

get off (to something) to leave for something. I've got to get off to my violin lesson. We have to get off to the hospital immediately!

get off (with something) to receive only a light punishment for something. Let's hope John gets off with a light sentence. Max got off with only a few years in prison.

get on 1. to get along; to thrive. Well, how are you two getting on? We are getting on okay. 2. Go to get on something and get on (with someone).

get on (in years) to grow older; to be aged. Aunt Mattie is getting on in years. They were both getting on in years.

get on one's horse Sl. to prepare to leave. (Usually fig., with no horse present.) It's time to get on my horse and get out of here. I've got to get on my horse and go.

get on someone Fig. to pester someone (about something); to pressure someone. John is supposed to empty the trash every day. He didn't do it, so I will have to get on him. It's time to get on Bill about his homework. He's falling behind.

get on (something) to enter a conveyance; to get aboard something; to climb onto something. They just announced that it's time to get on the airplane. The bus stopped, and I got on. The child was afraid to get on the train. Where did you get on?

get on the phone Go to on the telephone.

get on the track of someone or something Go to on the trail of someone or something.

get on (with someone) and get along (with someone) to be friends with someone; to have a good relationship with someone. (The friendship is always assumed to be good unless it is stated to be otherwise.) How do you get on with John? I get along with John just fine. We get along.

get on with something to continue doing something. Let's get on with the game! We need to get on with our lives.

get on (without someone or something) to survive and carry on without someone or something. I think we can get on without bread for a day or two. Can you get on without your secretary for a while?

get one on one's feet and put one on one's feet 1. Lit. to help someone stand up after a fall or prolonged bed rest. We had to get him on his feet, but he was able to walk without much help. We put the child on his feet and he took off running again. 2. Fig. to get someone back to normal, financially, medically, mentally, etc. When he gets himself on his feet, Tom will buy a new car. We will put him on his feet and help him along. When I get myself on my feet, things will be better.

get one right here Fig. to affect one deeply in a specific way. (Usually accompanied with a hand gesture showing exactly where one is affected: the heart = lovingly, the stomach or bowels = sickeningly.) That sort of thing gets me right here. Pete clasped his hand to his chest and said, "That sort of thing gets me right here."

get one's act together to get oneself organized and on schedule. I've got to get my act together and start getting my work done. When I have my act together, I'll get a job.

get one's ass in gear and get one's tail in gear Sl. to get moving; to get organized and get started. (Use caution.) □ Come on, you guys. Get moving. Get your ass in gear!

get one's bowels in an uproar Sl. to get oneself anxious or excited. (Normally fig.) □ Cool it! Don't get your bowels in an uproar. □ Fred's always getting his bowels in an uproar about nothing.

get one's comeuppance to get a deserved punishment. □ I can't wait till that snobbish girl gets her comeuppance. □ Joe got his comeuppance when the teacher caught him making fun of her.

get one's ducks in a row Fig. to get one's affairs in order or organized. □ Jane is organized. She really gets all her ducks in a row right away. □ You can't hope to go into a company and sell something until you get your ducks in a row.

get one's ears pinned back Fig. to experience a severe scolding. □ Jimmy was ordered to report to the principal's office and got his ears pinned back.

get one's ears set out and get one's ears lowered Fig. to get one's ears made more visible by getting a haircut. □ Well, I see you got your ears set out! □ Better get my ears lowered because I'm getting a little shaggy.

get one's feet wet Fig. to get a little first-time experience with something. (Obvious literal possibilities.) □ Of course he can't do the job right. He's hardly got his feet wet yet. □ I'm looking forward to learning to drive. I can't wait to get behind the steering wheel and get my feet wet.

get one's fingers burned Fig. to receive harm or punishment for one's actions. (Normally fig.) □ I had my fingers burned the last time I questioned the company policy. □ I tried that once before and got my fingers burned. I won't try it again.

get one's foot in the door Fig. to complete the first step in a process. (Alludes to people selling things from door-to-door and blocking the door with a foot so it cannot be closed on them.) □ I think I could get the job if I could only get my foot in the door. □ It pays to get your foot in the door. Try to get an appointment with the boss.

get one's hands dirty and dirty one's hands; soil one's hands 1. Fig. to get closely involved in a difficult task. □ You have to get your hands dirty if you expect to get the gutters cleaned out. 2. Fig. to become involved with something illegal; to do a shameful thing; to do something that is beneath one. □ The mayor would never get his hands dirty by giving away political favors. □ I will not dirty my hands by breaking the law.

get one's head above water and have one's head above water 1. Lit. to get one's head above the surface of the water while swimming. (See also keep one's head above water.) □ He finally got his head above water and was able to get a good breath. 2. Fig. to manage to get oneself caught up with one's work or responsibilities. □ I can't seem to get my head above water. Work just keeps piling up. □ I'll be glad when I have my head above water.

get one's head together to get one's thoughts or attitude properly organized. □ I've got to get my head together and get going. □ I need to take some time off and get my head together.

get one's hooks in(to) someone or something and get one's hooks in[†] Fig. to obtain a strong and possessive hold on someone or something. □ She just can't wait to get her hooks into him. □ He finally got in his hooks and guarded her jealously.

get one's just deserts and get one's just reward(s); get one's [specified by context] to get what one deserves. □ I feel better now that Jane got her just deserts. She really insulted me. □ The criminal who was sent to prison got his just rewards. □ You'll get yours!

get one's just reward(s) Go to previous.

get one's kicks (from someone or something) Fig. Inf. to get pleasure from someone or something. □ Do you get your kicks from this sort of thing? □ I get my kicks from Billy Simpson. What a great entertainer!

get one's knuckles rapped 1. Lit. to get one's knuckles struck with a ruler as a punishment. □ I got my knuckles rapped for whispering too much. □ You will have your knuckles rapped if you are not careful. 2. Fig. to receive a minor punishment. □ The lawyer got his knuckles rapped for talking back to the judge. □ Better watch your tongue if you don't want to get your knuckles rapped.

get one's lumps Inf. to get the result or punishment one deserves. (See also take one's lumps.) □ If she keeps acting that way, she'll get her lumps. □ We will see that Dave gets his lumps.

get one's nose out of joint and have one's nose out of joint; put one's nose out of joint Fig. to resent that one has been slighted, neglected, or insulted. □ You get your nose out of joint too easily about stuff like that. □ Now, don't get your nose out of joint. She didn't mean it.

get one's nose out of someone's business Fig. to stop interfering in someone else's business; to mind one's own business. □ Go away! Get your nose out of my business! □ Bob just can't seem to get his nose out of other people's business.

get one's rocks off (on something) 1. Sl. [for a male] to ejaculate. (Considered coarse.) Boys normally don't talk about getting their rocks off. 2. Sl. to enjoy something. (Fixed order.) □ I really get my rocks off on heavy metal. □ I've listened to the stuff, but I sure don't get my rocks off on it.

get one's shit together and get one's stuff together 1. Fig. to get one's possessions organized. (Shit is usually taboo.) □ Let me get my shit together, and I'll be right with you. □ I'll get my shit together and be right with you. □ Will you all please get your stuff together so we can get going? 2. Fig. to get oneself mentally organized. (Shit is usually taboo.) □ As soon as I get my shit together, I can be of more help. □ When you have your shit together you can start living independently again.

get one's stuff together Go to previous.

get one's tail in gear Go to get one's ass in gear.

get one's teeth into something and sink one's teeth into something; get one's teeth in[†]; sink one's teeth in[†] Fig. to begin to do something; to get completely involved in something. □ I can't wait to get my teeth into that Wallace job. □ Here, sink your teeth into this and see if you can't manage this project. □ He'll find it easier when he sinks in his teeth.

get one's ticket punched Sl. to die; to be killed. (Literally, to be cancelled.) □ Poor Chuck got his ticket punched while he was waiting for a bus. □ Watch out there, or you'll get your ticket punched.

get one's wits about one and have one's wits about one Fig. to keep one's thinking in order or make one's mind work smoothly, especially in a time of stress. (See also keep one's wits about one.) □ Let me get my wits about me so I can figure this out. □ I don't have my wits about me at this time of the morning.

get (oneself) into a stew (over someone or something) Fig. to be worried or upset about someone or something. □ Please don't get yourself into a stew over Walter. □ Liz is the kind of person who gets into a stew over little problems.

get oneself up 1. to arise from bed; to rise to one's feet. □ I've got to get myself up and get going. □ Get yourself up and get going. 2. Rur. to dress oneself up. □ I got myself up in my Sunday best. □ Jane got herself up as if she were a movie star.

get on(to) someone (about something) Fig. to remind someone about something. □ I'll have to get onto Sarah about the deadline. □ I'll get on Gerald right away.

get on(to) the (tele)phone and get on(to) the (tele)phone extension to pick up a telephone receiver to talk to someone or make a telephone call. □ I'll get onto the extension and talk with Fred. □ I'll get on the phone and call Fran right away.

get out 1. [for someone or an animal] to depart to the outside or to escape. □ When did your dog get out and run away? □ When did he get out of jail? 2. [for information or a secret] to become publicly known. □ We don't want the secret to get out. □ The word soon got out that he had a prison record.

get out of a jam Fig. to get free from a problem or a bad situation. □ Would you lend me five hundred dollars? I need it to get out of a jam. □ I need some help getting out of a jam.

get out of a mess Fig. to get free of a bad situation. (Also with this, such a, etc.) □ How can anyone get out of a mess like this? □ Please help me get out of this mess!

get out of (doing) something to manage not to have to do something. □ I was supposed to go to a wedding, but I got out of it. □ Jane had an appointment, but she got out of it.

Get out (of here)! Go away!; Leave this place! □ John: I've heard enough of this! Get out of here! Bill: I'm going! I'm going! □ Where have you been? You smell like a sewer! Get out of here!

Get out of my sight! Go away immediately! (Usually said in anger.) □ Get out of my sight! □ Please get out of my sight forever!

get out of one's face Lit. Inf. to stop bothering or intimidating someone. □ Look, get out of my face, or I'll poke you in yours! □ He told you to get out of his face, you creep!

get out of someone's hair Fig. Inf. to stop annoying someone. □ Will you get out of my hair! You are a real pain!

get out of the road Go to out of the way.

get out of time (with someone or something) Go to out of step (with someone or something).

Get out of town! Beat it!; Get out of here! □ Go away, you bother me! Get out of town! □ You'd better get out of town, my friend. You are a pest.

get out of wind Go to out of breath.

get (out) while the gettin(g)'s good and get (out) while the goin(g)'s good to leave while it is still safe or possible to do so. □ I could tell that it was time for me to get while the gettin's good. □ I told her she should get out while the goin's good.

Get out with it! Get it said! □ Stop stuttering around! Get out with it! □ Get out with it! I don't have all day to wait for you!

get out with one's life Fig. to survive a serious or life-threatening incident or an accident without dying. □ We were lucky to get out with our lives.

Get over it! Forget about it and be done with it! (Said to someone who is fretting and stewing over some kind of problem.) □ Forget about her. She's gone. Get over it!

get over someone or something 1. Lit. to move or climb over someone or something. □ I managed to get over the sand dunes and moved on toward the shoreline. □ I couldn't get over the huge rock in the path, so I went around it. 2. Fig. to recover from difficulties regarding someone or something. (See also Get over it!.) □ I almost never got over the shock. □ Sharon finally got over Tom. He had been such a pest.

get over something to recover from a disease. (See also get over someone or something.) □ It took a long time to get over the flu. □ I thought I would never get over the mumps.

get over (to some place) 1. to go to some place. □ I have to get over to Molly's place and pick up some papers. □ Go ahead and start without me. I'll get over as soon as I can. 2. to cross over something to get somewhere. □ I want to get over to the other side. □ I can't find a way to get over!

get past (someone or something) 1. to move around or ahead of someone or something that is in the way. □ We have to get past the cart that is blocking the hallway. □ We just couldn't get past. 2. to pass ahead of someone or something that is moving. □ I want to get past this truck, then we can get into the right lane. □ When we get past, I'll stop and let you drive.

Get real! Inf. Start acting realistically! □ Hey, chum! You are way off base! Get real! □ Get real! Wake up to reality!

get religion Fig. to become serious (about something), usually after a powerful experience. (Sometimes literal.) □ When I had an automobile accident, I really got religion. Now I'm a very safe driver.

get right on something to do something immediately. □ I know it has to be done today. I'll get right on it. □ Please get right on these reports as soon as possible.

get rolling Fig. to get started. □ Come on. It's time to leave. Let's get rolling! □ Bill, it's 6:30. Time to get up and get rolling!

get screwed 1. Sl. to have sexual intercourse. (Considered a crude usage.) □ A lot of the college kids on spring break in Florida do nothing but get drunk and get screwed. 2. Sl. to get cheated. □ I really got screwed on that last deal.

Get serious! Inf. Get realistic!; Stop horsing around! □ Oh, come on! Get serious! You don't really mean that!

get shed of someone or something Go to next.

get shut of someone or something and get shed of someone or something; get shet of someone or something Rur. to get rid of someone or something. I can't wait to get shut of that old refrigerator. Tom followed me around for months, but I finally got shed of him.

get smart (with someone) Fig. to become fresh with someone; to talk back to someone. Don't you get smart with me! If you get smart again, I'll bop you.

get some kind of mileage out of something 1. Lit. to achieve some level of efficiency with a vehicle. (Some kind of typically includes more, better, good, etc.) Do you get good mileage out of a vehicle like this. 2. Fig. to get [sufficient] use or service from something. I wish I could get better mileage out of this car. He knows how to get a lot of mileage out of a pair of shoes.

get (some) steam up^t 1. Lit. [for a steam engine] to build up steam pressure and become more powerful. As the engine got up steam, it began to move faster. 2. Fig. to begin to be stronger and more powerful. The movement to cut taxes is getting up some steam. Our little organization just couldn't get up enough steam to become effective.

get some weight off one's feet Fig. to sit down. Come in and get some weight off your feet. I need to sit down and get some weight off my feet.

get someone across (in a good way) Go to put someone across (in a good way).

get someone (all) wrong to misunderstand someone's intentions or character. I think you've got me all wrong. I want to be your friend, not your enemy.

get someone around the table Fig. to collect people together for discussion or bargaining. We have to get everyone around the table on this matter. If I can get them around the table, I'm sure I can make them agree.

get someone down to depress a person; to make a person very sad. My dog ran away, and it really got me down. Oh, that's too bad. Don't let it get you down.

get someone going to get someone excited; to get someone talking excitedly. I guess I really got him going on the subject of politics. The whole business really makes me mad. Don't get me going.

get someone in a family way Go to in a family way.

get someone in(to) something 1. Lit. to manage to put someone into a confining area or into clothing. I couldn't get Billy into his boots! 2. Fig. to manage to get someone enrolled into a school, club, organization, class, etc.; to manage to get someone accepted into something. Somehow, we managed to get Jody into a fine private school. We got her in the group at last! Well, I managed to get myself into the class I wanted.

get someone off 1. to get someone cleared of a criminal charge. Ted's lawyer got him off, although we all knew he was guilty. I hope someone can get her off. She is innocent no matter how it looks. 2. to get someone freed from a responsibility. (See also get off the hook.) I think I can get you off. What do I need to do to get myself off?

get someone on(to) someone or something to assign someone to attend to someone or something. Get someone onto the injured man in the hall right now. Get someone on the telephone switchboard at once!

get someone or something across something and get someone or something across to transport someone or something across something. We have to get everyone across the bridge before the floodwaters rise any more. Let's get the truck across also. It's foolhardy to try to get your car across the desert without a few gallons of water with you.

get someone or something away from someone or something to take someone or something away from someone or something, in any combination. Please get that cigar away from me! See if you can get Timmy away from the horse.

get someone or something back^t to receive someone or something back; to recover someone who had been taken away; to recover something that had been taken away. Beth finally got her car back from the service station. She got back her car.

get someone or something by someone or something and get someone or something by to get someone or something past an inspection. Do you think I can get my cousin by the border guards? I don't think I can get this sausage by the customs desk.

get someone or something down^t (from something) to bring someone or something down from a higher place. See if you can get my cat down from the tree. Please get down the sugar from the top shelf.

get someone or something down something and get someone or something down to manage to put or force something downward. We finally got her down the stairs, but it was a struggle. Don had to push and push to get his laundry down the chute.

get someone or something free (from someone or something) to liberate someone or something from someone or something. We finally got cousin George free from the talkative old man. We managed to get the animal's paw free from the trap.

get someone or something in(to) something and get someone or something in^t to manage to fit someone or something into something. I will try to get you into the beginning of the line. The key is bent, but I think I can get it in. He struggled to get in the key.

get someone or something off someone or something and get someone or something off to remove someone or something from someone, oneself, or something. Come in and get those wet clothes off. Get him off of me!

get someone or something out of one's mind and get someone or something out of one's head to manage to forget someone or something; to stop thinking about or wanting someone or something. (Almost the same as put someone or something out of one's mind.) I can't get him out of my mind. Mary couldn't get the song out of her mind.

get someone or something out of one's sight Fig. to remove someone or something from one's presence. (Often said in anger.) Get that child out of my sight! Please get that cake out of my sight.

get someone or something out of someone or something and get someone or something out^t to release or extricate someone or something from someone, something, or some place. See if you can get the cat out of this cabinet.

□ I can't get the nail out of the board. □ I can get out almost anything with my pry bar.

get someone or something through (to someone or something) to manage to get someone or something transported or connected to someone or something. □ I hope I can get her through to her hometown in Italy. □ Do you think I can get this parcel through to Istanbul?

get someone or something together to gather people or things together. □ Let's see if we can get both sides together and discuss this. □ I want to get Tom and Sharon together for a conference.

get someone out of a jam Fig. to get someone out of trouble. □ Thanks for getting my brother out of that jam. □ How am I going to get myself out of this jam?

get someone out of one's hair Fig. Inf. to cause someone to stop annoying oneself. □ What do I have to do to get this guy out of my hair.

get someone's attention Go to grab someone's attention.

get someone's back up Go to get someone's dander up.

get someone's blood up Fig. to get someone or oneself angry. (Fixed order.) □ That kind of language really gets my blood up. □ That will really get his blood up!

get someone's dander up and get someone's back up; get someone's hackles up; get someone's Irish up; put someone's back up Fig. to make someone get angry. (Fixed order.) □ Now, don't get your dander up. Calm down. □ I insulted him and really got his hackles up. □ Bob had his Irish up all day yesterday. I don't know what was wrong. □ Now, now, don't get your back up. I didn't mean any harm.

get someone's drift Fig. to understand what someone is saying or implying. (Akin to if you get my drift.) □ I don't want to hear anymore about her or you. Do you get my drift?

get someone's eye Go to catch someone's eye.

get someone's goat Fig. to irritate someone; to annoy and arouse someone to anger. □ I'm sorry. I didn't mean to get your goat. □ Jean got Sally's goat and Sally made quite a fuss about it.

get someone's hackles up Go to get someone's dander up.

get someone's Irish up Go to get someone's dander up.

get someone through something and get someone through 1. Lit. to manage to help someone move through some kind of barrier or tight opening. □ I will do what I can to get you through the front office. From then on, it's up to you. □ The first opening is tight. I can help you get through, but not beyond that. 2. Fig. to help someone survive some ordeal. □ The medication got her through the pain of the surgery. □ We will get you through while you recover. Don't worry.

get someone through (to someone or something) to manage to get something to someone or some place. □ Can I get a message through to Rome? □ I hope Bob can get word through to his cousin.

get someone up to wake someone up; to get someone out of bed. □ I've got to get John up, or he will be late for work. □ Can you get yourself up, or should I call you?

get someone up (for something) to get someone into peak condition for something; to prepare someone for something. □ I hope we can get Walter up for the race. □ Sharon was not quite prepared for the race, and the trainer did everything possible to get her up.

get something and get it 1. to receive punishment. □ Bill broke the window, and he's really going to get it. □ John got it for arriving late at school. 2. to receive the meaning of a joke; to understand a joke. □ John told a joke, but I didn't get it. □ Bob laughed very hard, but Mary didn't get it.

get something across (to someone) Go to put something across (to someone).

get something down¹ 1. to manage to swallow something, especially something large or unpleasant. □ The pill was huge, but I got it down. □ I get down all the pills despite their size. □ It was the worst food I have ever had, but I got it down somehow. 2. Go to next.

get something down (in black and white) and get something down (on paper); get something down[†] Fig. to record some important information in writing. (Alludes to the black of ink and the white of paper.) □ Be sure to get his statement down in black and white. □ I'm glad we have agreed on a price. I want to get it down in black and white. □ Get down every word of it! □ This is important. Please get it down on paper.

get something down (on paper) Go to previous.

get something for an amount of money to buy something for a certain amount of money. (See also get an amount of money for something.) □ I got my car for only $1500. □ She got her dinner for a song.

get something for someone to obtain something for the use or benefit of someone. □ I will get a new book for you. Sorry I messed the old one up. □ Would you get a glass of water for me?

get something for something to obtain a part or attachment for an object. □ I need to get a part for the vacuum cleaner. □ Would you please get a bulb for my flashlight?

get something from someone or something 1. to receive something from someone or something. □ I got this belt from my aunt for my birthday. □ I got a letter from the bank about the loan we applied for. 2. to contract a disease from someone or something. □ I got chicken pox from my son. □ I probably got my cold from walking in the rain.

get something going with someone to start a romance or affair with someone. □ Todd got something going with Amy, and they both look pretty happy. □ I want to get something going with Chuck.

get something home to someone or something to carry something home [quickly] to someone or something. □ I have to get this pizza home to my parents before it gets cold. □ Please get this ice cream home to the refrigerator.

get something into a mess to cause something to become messy or untidy; to cause something to become unmanageable. □ When he made the spaghetti sauce, he got the kitchen into a real mess. □ You have got these accounts into a mess!

get something in(to) someone to make something enter someone or something. □ Get that morphine into her before she goes into shock. □ Let's get some food into him. He looks starved.

get something into someone's thick head Go to get something through someone's thick skull.

get something in(to) something to manage to put something into something. □ I got the notice into tomorrow's newspaper. □ I will get the replacement battery into the car right away.

get something off^t Go to get something off (to someone or something).

get something off one's chest to unburden oneself; to confess something; to criticize or make a personal complaint to someone. □ You will feel better if you get it off your chest. □ I have to get this off my chest. I'm tired of your rudeness to me!

get something off the ground 1. Lit. to get something into the air. □ I'll announce the weather to the passengers as soon as we get the plane off the ground. □ I hope they get this plane off the ground soon. 2. Fig. to get something started. (Alludes to an airplane beginning a flight.) □ When we get this event off the ground we can relax. □ It is my job to get the celebration plans off the ground.

get something off (to someone or something) and get something off^t to send something to someone or something. □ I have to get a letter off to Aunt Mary. □ Did you get off all your packages?

get something out^t 1. Lit. to remove or extricate something. □ Please help me get this splinter out. □ Would you help me get out this splinter? □ The tooth was gotten out without much difficulty. 2. Fig. to manage to get something said. □ He tried to say it before he died, but he couldn't get it out. □ I had my mouth full and couldn't get out the words.

get something out of one's system 1. Lit. to get something like food or medicine out of one's body, usually through natural elimination. □ He'll be more active once he gets the medicine out of his system. □ My baby, Mary, ate applesauce and has been crying for three hours. She'll stop when she gets the applesauce out of her system. 2. Fig. to be rid of the desire to do something; to do something that you have been wanting to do so that you aren't bothered by wanting to do it anymore. □ I bought a new car. I've been wanting to for a long time. I'm glad I finally got that out of my system. □ I can't get it out of my system! I want to go back to school and earn a degree. 3. Fig. to do so much of something that one does not want or need to do it anymore. □ I got riding roller coasters out of my system when I was young.

get something out of someone to cause or force someone to give specific information. □ We will get the truth out of her yet. □ The detective couldn't get anything out of the suspect. □ They got a confession out of him by beating him.

get something out (of someone or something) to remove something from someone or something. (See also get something out of someone; get something out of something.) □ He probably will be okay when they get the tumor out of him. □ Please get that dog out of the living room.

get something out of something to get some kind of benefit from something. □ I didn't get anything out of the lecture. □ I'm always able to get something helpful out of our conversations.

get something over (to someone) 1. to deliver something to someone. □ Get these papers over to Mr. Wilson's office right away. □ He needs it now, so try to get it over as soon as you can. 2. to make someone understand something; to succeed in explaining something to someone. □ I finally got the basic concepts of trigonometry over to him. □ He tries to understand what I'm talking about, but I can't get it over.

get something past (someone or something) 1. Lit. to move something around or ahead of someone or something that is in the way. □ Let's get the piano past the bump in the floor, then we'll figure out how to move it farther. □ See if you can get the ball past their goalie by shooting high. 2. Fig. to get someone or a group to approve something; to work something through a bureaucracy. □ Do you think we can get this past the censors? □ I will never get this size increase past the board.

get something straight Fig. to understand something clearly. □ Now get this straight. You're going to fail history. □ Let me get this straight. I'm supposed to go there in the morning?

get something straight from the horse's mouth Prov. to get information from the person most directly involved or best informed. □ Jill: Sue is going to have a baby. Jane: Who told you that? Jill: I got it straight from the horse's mouth. □ There's a rumor that Randolph is moving to Alaska, but I won't believe it until I get it straight from the horse's mouth.

get something through someone's thick skull and get something into someone's thick head Fig. to manage to get someone, including oneself, to understand something. □ He can't seem to get it through his thick skull that he has to study to pass the exam. □ If I could get this into my thick head once, I'd remember it.

get something to someone to have something delivered or transported to someone. □ Will you please get this to Joe Wilson today? □ I'll try to get it to you by the end of the day.

get something together (for a particular time) to arrange a party or other gathering for a certain time. (Fixed order.) □ I'll try to get a meeting together for Friday afternoon. □ I'm sure we can get something together.

get something up^t to organize, plan, and assemble something. □ Let's get a team up and enter the tournament. □ I think we can get up a team quite easily.

get something wrapped up Go to sewed up.

get started on something to begin doing something; to take the first steps to do something. □ When do we get started on this project? □ I want to get started on this right away.

get the ball rolling and set the ball rolling; start the ball rolling Fig. to get a process started. (See also keep the ball rolling.) □ If I could just get the ball rolling, then other people would help. □ Who else would start the ball rolling? □ I had the ball rolling, but no one helped me with the project.

get the courage up^t (to do something) Go to get enough nerve up^t (to do something).

get the draw on someone Fig. to be faster than one's opponent in a fight. (Alludes originally to an Old West gunfight.) □ The sheriff got the draw on Arizona Slim and shot him in the arm. □ Bill's competitor got the draw on him. She was the first one in town to start selling those popular new shoes.

get the drift of something Fig. to understand the general idea of something. I knew enough German to get the drift of this article. I don't get the drift of what you're trying to tell me.

get the drop on someone 1. Sl. [for person A] to manage to get a gun aimed at person B before person B can aim back at person A. (The gun is then "dropped" by person B.) Fred got the drop on Wilbur in a flash. Wilbur was too stoned to get the drop on Fred. 2. Sl. to succeed in getting an advantage over someone. I guess I got the drop on you because I was early. I got the drop on almost everybody by sending in my registration by e-mail.

get the facts straight and have the facts straight Fig. to have an understanding of the real facts. Ask a lot of questions and get all of your facts straight. Please be sure you have the facts straight before you make a decision.

get the final word Go to the last word.

get the gate Inf. to be sent away; to be rejected. I thought he liked me, but I got the gate. I was afraid I'd get the gate, and I was right.

get the go-by Inf. to be ignored or passed by. It was my turn, but I got the go-by. Tom stood on the road for fifteen minutes trying to get a ride, but all he could get was the go-by.

get the hell out (of here) Inf. to depart as rapidly as possible. Time for us all to get the hell out of here, I think. The cafe is closing now. He got the hell out before he was fired.

get the kinks (ironed) out Fig. to fix a problem associated with something. The actors had to get the kinks out before they were ready to present the play to an audience. That'll be a right nice car, when you get the kinks ironed out in the engine.

get the lead out and shake the lead out Inf. to hurry; to move faster. (This originally refers to getting lead weights (used in exercise) off so you can move faster.) Come on, you guys. Get the lead out! If you're going to sell cars, you're going to have to shake the lead out.

Get the message? and Get the picture? Inf. Do you understand?; Are you able to figure out what is meant? (See also (Do you) get my drift?) Things are tough around here, and we need everyone's cooperation. Get the picture? We don't need lazy people around here. Get the message?

get the most out of someone or something to achieve the greatest output of work, effort, production, etc., out of someone or something. I do what I can to get the most out of life. I try to get the most out of my employees.

Get the picture? Go to Get the message?

get the point (of something) to understand the purpose, intention, or central idea of something. I wish he would stop telling jokes and get to the point of his speech.

get the shaft Sl. to be cheated; to be taken advantage of; to be mistreated. (See also give someone the shaft.) Why do I get the shaft when I did nothing wrong?

get the show on the road and get this show on the road Fig. to get (something) started. Let's get started!

Get the show on the road! Get this show on the road. We don't have all day.

get the spunk up[†] (to do something) Go to get enough nerve up[†] (to do something).

get the word Fig. to receive an explanation; to receive the final and authoritative explanation. I'm sorry, I didn't get the word. I didn't know the matter had been settled. Now that I have gotten the word, I can be more effective in answering questions.

get the wrinkles out (of something) 1. Lit. to remove the wrinkles from fabric by ironing or flattening in some way. This has been packed in my suitcase for a week, and I know I'll never be able to get the wrinkles out of it. 2. Fig. to eliminate some initial, minor problems with an invention, a procedure, a computer program, or a mechanical device. I need more time working with this system to get the wrinkles out.

get through (something) 1. Lit. to penetrate something. We couldn't get through the hard concrete with a drill, so we will have to blast. The hardest drill bit we have couldn't get through. 2. Fig. to complete something; to manage to finish something. I can't wait till I get through school. I'll get through college in five years instead of four. 3. Fig. to survive something; to go through something. This is a busy day. I don't know how I'll get through it. Sally hopes to get through college while still working full-time and being a mother.

get through (to someone) 1. Lit. to reach someone; to manage to communicate to someone. I called her on the telephone time after time, but I couldn't get through to her. I tried every kind of communication, but I couldn't get through. 2. Lit. to pass through (something) to reach someone. The crowd was so thick that I couldn't get through to him. I couldn't get through security without taking off my shoes and being searched. 3. Fig. to make someone understand something; to get something through someone's thick skull. Why don't you try to understand me? What do I have to do to get through to you? Can anybody get through, or are you just stubborn?

get through (to something) to make contact by radio or telephone with a company, organization, or group. I could not get through to the police because the telephone line was down. Harry couldn't get through to his office.

get through (with someone or something) 1. to manage to transport someone or something through difficulties or barriers. Customs was a mess, but we got through with all our baggage in only twenty minutes. I got through with my aged father without any trouble. 2. Go to through with someone or something.

get to first base (with someone or something) and reach first base (with someone or something) Fig. to make a major advance with someone or something. I wish I could get to first base with this business deal. John adores Sally, but he can't even reach first base with her. She won't even speak to him.

get to one's feet Fig. to stand up. On a signal from the teacher, the students got to their feet. I was so weak, I could hardly get to my feet.

get to someone 1. Lit. to manage to locate and meet someone; to manage to communicate with someone. (See also get to something.) □ I got to her on the telephone and told her what to do. 2. Fig. [for someone or something] to annoy someone. □ The whole business began to get to me after a while. □ Her high-pitched voice got to me after a while. 3. Fig. [for someone or something] to please or entice someone. □ Lovely flowers and things like that get to me. □ Sad music gets to me and makes me cry.

get to something 1. Lit. to reach something physically. (See also get to someone.) □ I couldn't get to the telephone in time. □ I got to him just in time to help him. 2. Fig. to arrive at a topic of discussion. □ Money? We will get to that in a minute. □ We will get to the question of where your office will be after we discuss whether you are hired or not. 3. Fig. to start on [doing] something; to begin doing something. □ I'll get to it as soon as possible. □ Have you managed to get to my repair job yet? □ Your complaining is getting to bother me.

get to the bottom of something Fig. to get an understanding of the causes of something. □ We must get to the bottom of this problem immediately. □ There is clearly something wrong here, and I want to get to the bottom of it.

get to the point (of something) Fig. to arrive at a discussion or explanation of the purpose of something. □ Please get to the point of all this. □ Will you kindly get to the point?

get to the top (of something) 1. Lit. to get to the highest point of something. □ We finally got to the top of the mountain and planted the flag. □ We had tried twice before to get to the top. 2. Fig. to work up to the highest status in something. □ She got to the top of her field in a very short time. □ It takes hard work to get to the top.

get together (with someone) (on someone or something) 1. and get together (with someone) (about someone or something) Lit. to meet with someone about someone or something. □ I would like to get together with you on this Wilson matter. What would be a good time for you? □ Let's get together on Fred and his department at our next meeting. 2. Fig. to agree with someone about someone or something. □ I would like to get together with you on this, but we are still nowhere near agreement. □ I want to get together on price with the suppliers.

get tough (with someone) to become firm with someone; to use physical force against someone. □ The teacher had to get tough with the class because the students were acting badly. □ I've tried nicely to get you to behave, but it looks like I'll have to get tough and really punish you.

get under someone's skin Fig. to bother or irritate someone. □ John is so annoying. He really gets under my skin. □ I know he's bothersome, but don't let him get under your skin.

get under something to get beneath something. □ The cat came in and got under the sofa where she couldn't be seen. □ Why don't you get under the table where Billy won't find you?

get up to wake up and get out of bed. □ What time do you usually get up? □ I get up when I have to.

get up a (full) head of steam 1. Lit. [for a steam engine] to build steam pressure in order to start operating. □ It took nearly thirty minutes to get up a full head of steam so that the locomotive could start moving. 2. Fig. to develop sufficient energy, enthusiasm, commitment, or determination to undertake something. □ It's nearly noon before I can get up a full head of steam and accomplish something.

get up a thirst and work up a thirst Fig. to do something that will make one thirsty. (Fixed order.) □ Jogging makes me work up a thirst. □ Doing this kind of work always gets up a thirst with me.

get up against someone or something to press close against someone or something. □ I got up against the wall, out of the way. □ The child got up against his father to stay warm.

get up an appetite Fig. to do something to make one very hungry. (Usually in this order.) □ He can't seem to get up an appetite these days. □ Whenever I jog, I really get up an appetite.

get up (from something) to go to a standing position from a lower position. □ She got up from the chair and walked to the door. □ I don't want to get up from this hammock unless I just have to.

get up (off (of) something) to rise up and get off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Please get up off the sofa. I have to turn the cushions over. □ Get up off of it!

get up on one's hind legs Fig. to get angry and assertive. (Alludes to the action of a horse when it is excited or frightened.) □ She got up on her hind legs and told them all to go to blazes. □ She has a tendency to get up on her hind legs and tell people off.

get up on the wrong side of bed and get out of the wrong side of bed Fig. to seem grouchy on a particular day. □ Did you get out of the wrong side of bed this morning? You are a real grouch.

get up something to manage to climb something. □ I was so tired I couldn't get up the stairs. □ The entire group was able to get up the side of the mountain.

get up to something 1. Lit. to climb up to something, at a certain height or level. □ We finally got up to the top. □ How long will it take to get up to the tenth floor? 2. Fig. to arrive as far as something. □ We got up to the halfway point and stopped. □ Will I ever get up to the finish line? I'm so tired of running!

get well to become healthy again. □ Ann had a cold for a week, and then she got well. □ Hurry up and get well!

get wet to become moist or soaked with water. □ Get out of the rain or you'll get wet. □ Don't get wet, or you'll catch a cold.

get wind of something and catch wind of something Fig. to learn of something; to hear about something. □ The police got wind of the illegal drug deal. □ John caught wind of the gossip being spread about him.

get with it 1. Inf. to modernize one's attitudes and behavior. □ Get with it, Martin. Go out and buy some new clothes! □ You really have to get with it, Ernie. 2. Inf. to hurry up and get busy; to be more industrious with something. □ Get with it; we've got a lot to do. □ Let's get with it. There's a lot of work to be done.

get with something to become alert. (Often with it.) □ Hey, stupid. Get with it! □ Wake up, Bill. Get with what's going on!

get with the program Fig. follow the rules; do what you are supposed to do. (Implies that there is a clearly known method or “program” that is usually followed.) □ Come on, Mark. Get with the program. Do what you are told. □ Jane just can't seem to get with the program. She has to do everything her way, right or wrong.

Get your ass over here! and Get your buns over here!; Get your butt over here! Sl. Get yourself over here, now! □ Get your butt over here and help me move this trunk.

Get your buns over here! Go to previous.

Get your head out of the clouds! Inf. Stop daydreaming! □ Get your head out of the clouds and watch where you are driving! You're going to kill us all.

Get your nose out of my business. Go to Mind your own business.

a ghost of a chance even the slightest chance. (Usually negative.) □ She can't do it. She doesn't have a ghost of a chance. □ There is just a ghost of a chance that I'll be there on time.

giggle at someone or something to snicker or chuckle at someone or something. □ Are you giggling at me? □ Fran giggled at the antics of the clown.

gild the lily Fig. to add ornament or decoration to something that is pleasing in its original state; to attempt to improve something that is already fine the way it is. (Often refers to flattery or exaggeration.) □ Your house has lovely brickwork. Don't paint it. That would be gilding the lily. □ Oh, Sally. You're beautiful the way you are. You don't need makeup. You would be gilding the lily.

Gimme a break! Go to Give me a break!

gird up one's loins Fig. to get ready, especially for hard work; to prepare oneself (for something). □ Well, I guess I had better gird up my loins and go to work. □ Somebody has to do something about the problem. Why don't you gird up your loins and do something?

give a good account of oneself Fig. to do (something) well or thoroughly. □ John gave a good account of himself when he gave his speech last night. □ Mary was not feeling well, and she didn't give a good account of herself in last night's game.

give a little 1. Lit. to give a small amount of something, probably money. □ If everyone will just give a little, we can have enough money to provide a nice Thanksgiving dinner for the needy. 2. Fig. to move a slight amount. □ When he pressed on the wall, it gave a little where the water had soaked in. 3. Fig. to yield a little bit on a point to someone. □ She is so stubborn. If she would just give a little, she could get more cooperation from other people.

give an account of someone or something (to someone) and give someone an account of someone or something to tell a narrative about someone or something to someone. □ You are going to have to give an account of yourself to your parole officer. □ Please give an account of your day to my secretary. □ Give me an account of every minute.

give (an) ear to someone or something and give one's ear to someone or something Fig. to listen to someone or to what someone is saying. (Compare this with get someone's ear.) □ I gave an ear to Mary so she could tell me her prob- lems. □ She wouldn't give her ear to my story. □ He gave ear to the man's request.

give as good as one gets Fig. to give as much as one receives; to pay someone back in kind. (Usually in the present tense.) □ John can take care of himself in a fight. He can give as good as he gets. □ Sally usually wins a formal debate. She gives as good as she gets.

give birth to someone or something 1. Lit. to have a child; [for an animal] to bring forth young. □ She gave birth to a baby girl. □ The cat gave birth to a large number of adorable kittens. 2. Fig. to bring forth a new idea, an invention, a nation, etc. □ The company gave birth to a new technology. □ The basic idea of participatory democracy gave birth to a new nation.

give cause for something to serve as a just cause for something; to warrant something. □ Your comments give cause for further investigation. □ I didn't give cause for you to worry so much.

give chase (to someone or something) to chase someone or something. □ The dogs gave chase to the fox. □ A mouse ran by, but the cat was too tired to give chase.

give credence to someone or something to consider someone or something as believable or trustworthy. □ How can you give credence to a person like Henry? □ I can't give any credence to Donald. □ He tells lies. Don't give credence to what he says. □ Please don't give credence to that newspaper article.

Give credit where credit is due. Prov. Acknowledge someone's contribution or ability. □ Jill: Jane, that was a wonderful meal. Jane: I must give credit where credit is due; Alan helped with all of the cooking. □ Ellen: Roger is pompous, petty, and immature. I think he's completely worthless. Jane: Now, Ellen, give credit where credit is due; he's also extremely smart.

give currency to something to spread a story around. (With a negative if there is doubt about what is said.) □ I can't give any currency to anything Ralph Jones says. □ We give no currency to those stories. □ His actions gave currency to the rumor that he was about to leave.

give evidence of something to show signs of something; to give proof of something. □ You are going to have to give evidence of your good faith in this matter. A nominal deposit would be fine. □ She gave evidence of being prepared to go to trial, so we settled the case.

give forth with something and give out with something to say or shout something. □ The kids in the street gave forth with cries of excitement. □ Walter gave out with a loud whoop when he heard the good news.

give free rein to someone and give someone free rein Fig. to allow someone to be completely in charge (of something). (Alludes to loosening the reins of a horse and therefore control.) □ The boss gave the manager free rein with the new project. □ The principal gave free rein to Mrs. Brown in her classes.

give ground 1. Lit. to retreat, yielding land or territory. □ I approached the barking dog, but it wouldn't give ground. 2. Fig. to “retreat” from an idea or assertion that one has made. □ When I argue with Mary, she never gives ground.

Give her the gun. Go to Give it the gun.

give in cave in; to push in. □ The rotting door gave in when we pushed, and we went inside. □ The wall gave in where I kicked it.

give in (to someone or something) to yield to someone or something; to give up to someone or something. □ He argued and argued and finally gave in to my demands. □ I thought he'd never give in.

Give it a rest! Inf. Stop talking so much. Give your mouth a rest. (Familiar or rude. Compare this with Give me a rest!) □ Mary: So, I really think we need to discuss things more and go over all our differences in detail. Bill: Stop! I've heard enough. Give it a rest! Mary: Oh, am I disturbing you? □ Tom: Now, I would also like to say something else. Alice: Give it a rest, Tom. We're tired of listening to you.

Give it all you've got! Inf. Do your very best! □ Go out there and try. Give it all you've got!

Give it the gun. and Give her the gun. Fig. to make a motor or engine run faster; to rev up an engine. (The her is often pronounced "er.") □ Bill: How fast will this thing go? Bob: I'll give it the gun and see. □ Hurry up, driver. Give 'er the gun. I've got to get there immediately.

Give it time. Be patient.; In time, things will change. (Usually said to encourage someone to wait or be patient.) □ Things will get better. Don't worry. Give it time. □ Of course, things will improve. Give it time.

give it to someone (straight) to tell something to someone clearly and directly. □ Come on, give it to me straight. I want to know exactly what happened. □ Quit wasting time, and tell me. Give it to me straight.

Give it up! Inf. Stop trying!; You are wasting your time! (Fixed order.) □ Bob: I just can't understand calculus! Bill: Give it up! Get out of that course and get into something less cruel. □ Tom: I'm just not a very good singer, I guess. Sue: It's no good, Tom. Give it up! Tom: Don't you think I'm doing better, though? Sue: Give it up, Tom!

Give me a break! and Gimme a break! 1. Inf. Don't be so harsh to me!; Give me another chance! □ *I'm sorry! I'll do better! Give me a break! □ I was only late once! Give me a break! 2. Inf. That is enough, you're bothering me!; Stop it! □ *Do you have to go on and on? Give me a break! □ Give me a break, you guys! That's enough of your bickering! 3. Inf. I don't believe you!; You don't expect anyone to believe that! □ *You say a gorilla is loose in the city? Gimme a break! □ Tom said he was late again because the back stairs caved in. His boss said, "Gimme a break!"

Give me a call. and Give me a ring. Please call me (later) on the telephone. □ Mary: See you later, Fred. Fred: Give me a call if you get a chance. □ "When you're in town again, Sue, give me a call," said John. □ Bob: When should we talk about this again? Bill: Next week is soon enough. Give me a ring.

Give me a chance! 1. Please give me an opportunity to do something! □ *Mary: I just know I can do it. Oh, please give me a chance! Sue: All right. Just one more chance. □ Bob: Do you think you can do it? Jane: Oh, I know I can. Just give me a chance! 2. Please give me a fair chance and enough time to complete the task. □ *Alice: Come on! I need more time to finish the test. Give me a chance! Teacher: Would another ten minutes help? □ Bob: You missed that one! Bill: You moved it! There was no way I could hit it. Give me a chance! Hold it still!

Give me a rest! Inf. Stop being such a pest!; Stop bothering me with this problem! (Compare this with Give it a rest!) □ "Go away and stop bothering me!" moaned Bob. "Give me a rest!" □ Bob: I need an answer to this right away! Bill: I just gave you an answer! Bob: That was something different. This is a new question. Bill: Give me a rest! Can't it wait?

Give me a ring. Go to Give me a call.

Give me five! and Give me (some) skin!; Skin me!; Slip me five!; Slip me some skin! Sl. Slap my hand! (As a greeting or to show joy, etc.) □ "Yo, Tom! Give me five!" shouted Henry, raising his hand. □ Bob: Hey, man! Skin me! Bill: How you doing, Bob?

Give my best to someone. and All the best to someone. Please convey my good wishes to a particular person. (The someone can be a person's name or a pronoun. See also Say hello to someone (for me).) □ Alice: Good-bye, Fred. Give my best to your mother. Fred: Sure, Alice. Good-bye. □ Tom: See you, Bob. Bob: Give my best to Jane. Tom: I sure will. Bye. □ Bill: Bye, Rachel. All the best to your family. Rachel: Thanks. Bye.

give of oneself to be generous with one's time and concern. □ Tom is very good with children because he gives of himself. □ If you want to have more friends, you have to learn to give of yourself.

give one one's freedom to set someone free; to divorce someone. □ Mrs. Brown wanted to give her husband his freedom. □ Well, Tom, I hate to break it to you this way, but I have decided to give you your freedom.

give one's best Go to give something one's best shot.

give one's eyeteeth (for someone or something) Go to give one's right arm (for someone or something).

give (one's) notice to formally tell one's employer that one is quitting one's job. □ Did you hear that James is leaving? He gave his notice yesterday. □ Lisa gave notice today. She got a job offer from another company.

give one's right arm (for someone or something) and give one's eyeteeth (for someone or something) Fig. to be willing to give something of great value for someone or something. □ I'd give my right arm for a nice cool drink. □ I'd give my eyeteeth to be there.

give oneself airs Go to put on airs.

give oneself over to someone or something 1. Lit. to surrender to someone or something. □ *He went to the station and gave himself over to the police. □ Max gave himself over to the officer. 2. Fig. to devote oneself to someone or something. □ *Laurie gave herself over to her work and soon forgot her pain. □ David gave himself over to the religious order.

give oneself up (to someone or something) 1. Lit. to surrender to someone or something. □ *Fran gave herself up to the disease. □ Walter gave himself up to the police. 2. Fig. to devote oneself to someone or something; to give oneself over to someone or something. □ *She gave herself up to her children and their care. □ Fran gave herself up to tennis. □ Jane refused to give herself up to weight lifting, which is a full-time hobby.

give out 1. to wear out and stop; to quit operating. □ My old bicycle finally gave out. □ I think that your shoes are about ready to give out. 2. to be depleted. □ The paper napkins gave out, and we had to use paper towels. □ The eggs gave out, and we had to eat cereal for breakfast for the rest of the camping trip.

give (out) with something 1. Inf. to give out information. □ Come on, give out with the facts, man. □ Give with the info. We're in a hurry. 2. Go to give forth with something.

give rise to something to cause something; to instigate something. □ The attack gave rise to endless arguments. □ Her ludicrous living gave rise to further speculation as to the source of her money.

give some thought to something to think about something; to devote some time to thinking about something. □ After I have had time to give some thought to the matter, I will call you.

give someone a bang and give someone a charge; give someone a kick Fig. Inf. to give someone a bit of excitement. □ John always gives me a bang. □ The whole afternoon, with all its silliness, gave me a charge anyway.

give someone a blank check and give a blank check to someone 1. Lit. to give someone a signed check that lacks only the amount or payment which can be filled in by anyone. □ Sally sent a blank check to school with Billy to pay for his books. 2. Fig. to give someone freedom or permission to act as one wishes or thinks necessary. (See also carte blanche.) □ He's been given a blank check with regard to reorganizing the workforce. □ The manager has been given no instructions about how to train the staff. The owner just gave him a blank check. □ Jean gave the decorator a blank check and said she wanted the whole house done.

give someone a blank look and give someone a blank stare to look back at someone with a neutral look on one's face. □ After I told her to stop smoking, she just gave me a blank look and kept puffing.

give someone a blank stare Go to previous.

give someone a buzz Go to give someone a ring.

give someone a call Go to give someone a ring.

give someone a charge Go to give someone a bang.

give someone a crack at something Go to a try at something.

give someone a dig Sl. to insult someone; to say something which will irritate a person. □ Jane gave Bob a dig about his carelessness with money. □ The headmaster's daughter gets tired of people giving her digs about favoritism.

give someone a (good) bawling out to bawl someone out; to chastise someone. □ When the teacher caught Billie, he gave him a good bawling out.

give someone a kick Go to give someone a bang.

give someone a lift 1. and give someone a ride Fig. to provide transportation for someone. □ I've got to get into town. Can you give me a lift? 2. Fig. to raise someone's spirits; to make a person feel better. □ It was a good conversation, and her kind words really gave me a lift.

give someone a line and feed someone a line to lead someone on; to deceive someone with false talk. □ Don't pay any attention to John. He gives everybody a line. □ He's always feeding us a line.

give someone a pain Fig. to annoy or bother someone. □ Please don't give me a pain. I've had a hard day. □ You give me a pain! □ She's such a pest. She really gives me a pain.

give someone a pat on the back Go to pat someone on the back.

give someone a piece of one's mind Fig. to bawl someone out; to tell someone off. □ I've had enough from John. I'm going to give him a piece of my mind. □ Sally, stop it, or I'll give you a piece of my mind.

give someone a red face Fig. to make someone visibly embarrassed. □ We really gave him a red face when we caught him eavesdropping. □ His error gave him a very red face.

give someone a ride Go to give someone a lift.

give someone a ring and give someone a buzz; give someone a call Fig. to call someone on the telephone. □ Nice talking to you. Give me a ring sometime. □ Give me a buzz when you're in town.

give someone a whack at something Go to a try at something.

Give someone an inch and he'll take a mile. and Give someone an inch and he'll take a yard. Prov. Be generous to someone and the person will demand even more. (Describes someone who will take advantage of you if you are even a little kind to him or her.) □ If you let Mark borrow your tools for this weekend, he'll wind up keeping them for years. Give him an inch and he'll take a mile.

Give someone an inch and he'll take a yard. Go to previous.

give someone away (to someone) 1. Fig. [for the bride's father] to give the bride away to the groom. (Customarily done just prior to the actual marriage ceremony.) □ Mr. Franklin gave Amy away to Terry just as he had done in the rehearsal. □ He was reluctant to give his daughter away. 2. Fig. to reveal something secret about someone to someone else. □ Please don't give me away. I don't want anyone to know my plans. □ Alice did everything she could to keep from giving herself away.

Give someone enough rope and he'll hang himself. Prov. If you give someone that you suspect of bad behavior the freedom to behave badly, eventually he or she will be caught and punished. □ Jill: I think Matilda's been stealing things out of my desk. Should I tell the boss? Jane: No; give her enough rope and she'll hang herself. One of these days she'll steal something important, the boss will find out for himself, and he'll fire her.

give someone Hail Columbia Inf. to scold someone severely. □ The teacher gave her students Hail Columbia over their poor test scores. □ If Miss Ellen finds out I broke her window, she'll give me Hail Columbia for sure!

give someone no quarter Go to grant someone no quarter.

give someone odds that... to propose a sham bet to someone, the implication being that even at favorable odds the outcome will defy the odds. (Often with a negative.) □ I'll give you odds that you won't be able to order a decent steak at this restaurant.

give someone or something a wide berth Fig. to keep a reasonable distance from someone or something; to steer clear (of someone or something). (Originally referred to sailing ships.) □ The dog we are approaching is very mean. Better give it a wide berth. □ Give Mary a wide berth. She's in a very bad mood.

give someone or something away^t to reveal a secret about someone or something. □ I thought no one knew where I was, but my loud breathing gave me away. □ We know that Billy ate the cherry pie. The cherry juice on his shirt gave him away. □ I had planned a surprise, but John gave away my secret.

give someone or something back^t (to someone or something) to return someone or something to someone or something. □ Please give it back to me. □ You took my lunch away from me. You had better give it back. □ Give back the book right now!

give someone or something up^t (for lost) to abandon someone or something as being lost; to quit looking for someone or something that is lost. □ After a week we had given the cat up for lost when suddenly she appeared. □ We gave up the cat for lost.

give someone or something up^t (to someone) to hand someone or something over to someone; to relinquish claims on someone or something in favor of someone else. □ We had to give the money we found up to the police. □ We gave up the money to the police.

give someone pause (for thought) Fig. to cause someone to stop and think. □ When I see a golden sunrise, it gives me pause for thought. □ Witnessing an accident is likely to give all of us pause.

give someone some lip Inf. to speak rudely or disrespectfully to someone; to sass someone. □ Billy gave me some lip, so I whupped him. □ Jane is always giving the teacher some lip.

give someone some skin Sl. [for two people] to touch two hands together in a special greeting, like a handshake. (One hand may be slapped down on top of the other, or they may be slapped together palm to palm with the arms held vertically. Usually said as a command.) □ Hey, Bob, give me some skin! □ Come over here, you guys. I want you to meet my brother and give him some skin!

give someone some sugar Rur. to give someone a kiss. □ Come here, honey, and give me some sugar. □ "Give me some sugar!" Grandma said when she saw me.

give someone static Fig. to argue with someone; to give someone back talk. □ I want you to do it and do it now! Don't give me any static!

give someone the eye Fig. to look at someone in a way that communicates romantic interest. □ Ann gave John the eye. It really surprised him. □ Tom kept giving Sally the eye. She finally got disgusted and left.

give someone the finger 1. Fig. to display the middle finger upright as a sign of derision. (The gesture is derisive and offensive. See also flip someone off, flip someone the bird.) □ Did one of you guys give Ted the finger? □ Somebody gave the cop the finger. 2. Fig. Inf. to mistreat someone; to insult someone. □ You've been giving me the finger ever since I started working here. What's wrong? □ I'm tired of everybody giving me the finger around here just because I'm new.

give someone the gate Sl. to get rid of someone. □ The chick was a pest, so I gave her the gate. □ He threatened to give me the gate, so I left.

give someone the go-by to bypass someone; to ignore someone. □ Gert gave us all the go-by when she took up with that rich boyfriend. □ I didn't mean to give you the go-by. I'm preoccupied, that's all.

give someone the raspberry Inf. to make a rude noise with the lips at someone. □ The audience gave him the raspberry, which gave him some second thoughts about his choice of career. □ Even after his grandstand play, they gave him the raspberry.

give someone the shaft Sl. to cheat or deceive someone; to mistreat someone. (See also get the shaft.) □ The boss really gave Wally the shaft. □ Somebody always gives me the shaft.

give someone the shirt off one's back Fig. to give anything that is asked for, no matter the sacrifice required. □ Tom would give any of his old army buddies the shirt off his back. □ You can always count on Mark when you're in trouble; he'd give you the shirt off his back.

give someone the slip Sl. to escape from a pursuer. □ We were on his tail until he gave us the slip. □ I can give her the slip in no time at all.

give someone tit for tat Fig. to give someone something equal to what was given you; to exchange a series of very similar things, one by one, with someone. □ They gave me the same kind of difficulty that I gave them. They gave me tit for tat. □ He punched me, so I punched him. Every time he hit me, I hit him. I just gave him tit for tat.

give someone to understand something to explain something to someone; to imply something to someone. (Possibly misleading someone, accidentally or intentionally. See also given to understand.) □ Mr. Smith gave Sally to understand that she should be home by midnight. □ The mayor gave the citizens to understand that there would be no tax increase. He didn't promise, though.

give someone up^t for dead 1. Lit. to give up hope for someone who is dying; to abandon a dying person as already dead. □ The cowboys gave up their comrade for dead and rode off. □ We gave up the poor old man for dead and went to telephone the police. 2. Fig. to abandon hope for someone to appear or arrive. □ We were delighted to see you. We had almost given you up for dead. □ After an hour, they gave up their guest for dead.

give something a go Go to give something a try.

give something a shot Go to next.

give something a try and give something a go; give something a whirl; give something a shot to make a try at something. □ Why don't you give it a go and see if you like it?

give something a whirl Go to previous.

give something away^t (to someone) 1. to donate to, or bestow something upon, someone. □ I gave the old clothing away to Tom. □ I gave away my coat to Tom. 2. to tell a secret to someone. □ Please don't give the surprise away to anyone. □ Don't give away my secret. 3. to reveal the answer to a question, riddle, or problem to someone. □ Don't give the answer away to them! □ Don't give away the answer!

give something back^t (to someone) (with interest)

1. Lit. to return money to someone with an additional amount for interest. □ You are going to have to give that money back to me with interest. □ Please give back the proper amount...with interest! 2. Fig. to return something to someone in excess of what was received. □ We will give back all your kindness to you with interest. □ We will give it all back with interest.

give something for something to exchange something for something. □ I will give two brownies for that piece of cake in your lunch box. □ Jed gave two pigs for an old motorcycle.

give something off^t to release something, such as smoke, a noise, an odor, fragrance, etc. □ The little animal gave a foul smell off. □ The flower gave off its heavy perfume at dusk.

give something one's best shot and give one's best Fig. to give a task one's best effort. □ I gave the project my best shot. □ Sure, try it. Give it your best!

give something out^t 1. Lit. to distribute something; to pass something out. □ The teacher gave the test papers out. □ The teacher gave out the papers. 2. Fig. to make something known to the public. □ When will you give the announcement out? □ The president gave out the news that the hostages had been released.

give something over (to someone or something) to hand something over to someone or something. □ Please give the money over to Sherri, who handles the accounts. □ She is waiting at the front office. Just go there and give it over.

give something to someone to bestow something, such as a gift, on someone. □ Please give this to Sally Wilson. □ Who gave this book to me? I want to thank whoever it was.

give something under (the) threat of something to give something only because one is threatened. □ He gave the money under threat of exposure. I think that is blackmail. □ You are asked to give your testimony under the threat of being jailed if you don't.

give something up^t 1. to forsake something; to stop using or eating something. □ I gave coffee up because of the caffeine. □ They advised me to give up sugar in all forms. 2. to quit doing something. □ Oh, give it up! You're not getting anywhere. □ You should give up smoking.

give teeth to something and put teeth in(to) something Fig. to make something powerful; to give something a real effect. □ The severe penalty really gives teeth to the law. □ Strong enforcement puts teeth in the regulation.

give the bride away Go to give someone away (to someone).

give the devil her due Go to next.

give the devil his due and give the devil her due Fig. to give your foe proper credit (for something). (This usually refers to a person who has been evil—like the devil.) □ She's very messy in the kitchen, but I have to give the devil her due. She bakes a terrific cherry pie. □ John is a bit too nosy, but he keeps his yard clean and is a kind neighbor. I'll give the devil his due.

give the game away Fig. to reveal a plan or strategy. □ Now, all of you have to keep quiet. Please don't give the game away. □ If you keep giving out hints, you'll give the game away.

give the lie to something Fig. to show that something is a lie. □ The evidence gives the lie to your testimony. □ Your own admission of your part in the conspiracy gives the lie to your earlier testimony.

give up to quit; to quit trying. □ I give up! I won't press this further. □ Are you going to give up or keep fighting?

give up (all) hope to stop hoping for something. (Fixed order.) □ Don't give up hope. There's always a chance. □ We had given up all hope when a miracle happened.

give up (on someone or something) to give up trying to do something with someone or something, such as being friendly, giving advice, managing, etc. □ I gave up on jogging. My knees went bad. □ Gloria tried to be friendly with Kelly, but finally gave up.

give up the fight and give up the struggle 1. Lit. to quit fighting; to stop trying to do something. □ Don't give up the fight. Keep trying. □ Mary refused to give up the struggle. 2. Fig. to give up and die. □ At the end of months of pain, she gave up the fight. □ In the end, he lost interest in life and just gave up the struggle.

give up the ghost Euph. to die. (Fixed order. Often used to describe machines breaking down.) □ The old man gave up the ghost. □ My poor old car finally gave up the ghost.

give up the struggle Go to give up the fight.

Give us the tools, and we will finish the job. Prov. A reply to someone who wants you to do a task for which you lack the equipment. □ How am I supposed to wash the upstairs windows without a ladder? Give us the tools, and we will finish the job!

give vent to something Fig. to express anger. (The something is usually anger, ire, irritation, etc.) □ John gave vent to his anger by yelling at Sally. □ Bill couldn't give vent to his frustration because he had been warned to keep quiet.

give voice to something Fig. to express a feeling or an opinion in words; to speak out about something. □ The bird gave voice to its joy in the golden sunshine. □ The protestors gave voice to their anger at Congress.

give way to someone or something to yield to someone or something; to give preference to someone or something. □ The cars gave way to the pedestrians. □ The motorboats have to give way to the sailboats.

give weight to something Fig. to attach importance to something. □ I give a lot of weight to your opinion. □ Kelly gave no weight at all to the comments by Betty.

give with something Inf. to give something to someone; to tell something to someone. □ Come on! Give with the money! □ You had better give with the information if you know what's good for you.

given to doing something likely to do something; inclined to do something habitually. □ Mary is given to singing in the shower. □ Bob is given to shouting when things don't go his way.

given to understand [of someone] made to believe [something]. (See also give someone to understand.) □ They were given to understand that there would be no tax increase, but after the election taxes went up. □ She was given to understand that she had to be home by midnight.

*the glad hand Fig. an overly friendly welcome; a symbol of insincere attention. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) □ Whenever I go into that store, I get the glad hand. □ I hate to go to a party and get the glad hand.

glance around (some place) to look quickly around some place. □ He glanced around the room, looking for his favorite cap. □ Mary glanced around, looking for her friend.

glance at someone or something to look quickly at someone or something. □ Sharon glanced at Todd to see if he looked as if he was ready to go. □ I glanced at my watch and realized how long all this had taken.

glance back (at someone) 1. to look quickly at someone who is looking at you. □ He glanced back at Mary, so he could remember her smile. □ She hoped he would notice her but he never even glanced back. 2. to look quickly at someone who is behind you. □ Dan glanced back at the man chasing him and ran on even faster. □ He glanced back and ran faster.

glance down (at something) to look quickly downward at something. □ Sherri glanced down at her watch and then pressed on the accelerator. □ She glanced down and hurried off.

glance off (someone or something) to bounce off someone or something. □ The bullet glanced off the huge boulder. □ The baseball glanced off of Tom and left a bruise on his side where it had touched.

glance over someone or something to examine someone or something very quickly. □ I only glanced over the papers. They look okay to me. □ The doctor glanced over the injured woman and called for an ambulance.

glance through something to look quickly at the contents of something. □ I glanced through the manuscript, and I don't think it is ready yet. □ Would you glance through this report when you have a moment?

glare at someone or something to scowl at someone or something. □ Don't glare at me! □ I glared at the cat and thought mean thoughts.

glare down on someone or something 1. [for someone] to scowl down at someone or something. □ The judge glared down on the accused. □ I glared down on the cat, which ignored me, as usual. 2. [for the sun] to burn down brightly on someone or something. □ The sun glared down on the beach and made the sand hot to the touch. □ The bright sun glared down on the desert rocks.

glass something in^t to enclose something, such as a porch, in glass. □ I want to glass this porch in, so we can use it in the winter. □ We glassed in our porch last year.

glaze over 1. Lit. [for something] to be covered over with a coat of something cloudy or ice. □ The roads glazed over and became very dangerous. □ The street is glazed over badly. 2. Fig. [for one's eyes] to assume a dull, bored appearance, signifying an inability to concentrate or a lack of sleep. □ My eyes glaze over when I hear all those statistics.

gleam with something to sparkle or shine with something. □ The crystal goblets gleamed with the sparkling candlelight. □ The glass gleamed with a bright reflection.

glean something from something 1. Lit. to gather the leftovers of something from something; to gather the ears of grain left in a field after a harvest. □ The poor people gleaned their entire living from what was left in the fields. □ We will have to go out and glean something from the fields. 2. and glean something from someone Fig. to figure something out from bits of gossip. □ I was able to glean some important news from Tommy. □ Tell me the news you gleaned from the people in town.

glide across something to float or slide across something. □ The skaters glided across the frozen expanse of the river. □ The small plane glided across the sky.

glide away (from someone or something) to slide or float away from someone or something. □ The skaters glided away from the center of the rink. □ The canoes glided away from the judge who had started off the canoe race.

glint with something to sparkle or shine with something. □ Her bright eyes glinted with the sunlight. □ The crystal goblet glinted with the orange firelight.

glisten with something to sparkle or shimmer with something. □ The trees glistened with a thin coating of ice from the freezing rain. □ Fran's eyes glistened with a few tears.

glitter with something 1. to sparkle with something. □ Her earrings glittered with many tiny diamonds. □ The tree glittered with tiny ice crystals. 2. [for eyes] to shine with a strong emotion. □ Her eyes glittered with anger. □ The eyes of the great beast glittered with ravenous hunger.

gloat over something to rejoice smugly over something; to be glad that something unfortunate has happened to someone else. □ He gloated over his good luck in a way that made all of us angry. □ Please don't gloat over my misfortune.

Glory be! Inf. an exclamation expressing surprise or shock. (A bit old-fashioned.) □ Mary: Glory be! Is that what I think it is? Sue: Well, it's a kitten, if that's what you thought. □ Sally: First a car just missed hitting her, then she fell down on the ice. Mary: Glory be!

glory in something Fig. to take great pleasure in something; to revel in something. □ He just glories in all the attention he is getting. □ Martha tends to glory in doing things just exactly right.

gloss over something to cover up, minimize, or play down something bad. □ Don't gloss over your own role in this fiasco! □ I don't want to gloss this matter over, but it really isn't very important, is it?

The gloves are off. Fig. There is going to be a serious dispute. (As if boxers had removed their gloves in order to inflict more damage. See also take the gloves off.) □ Bob got mad and yelled, "Ok, the gloves are off!" and started cussing and pounding the table.

glow with something 1. Lit. [for something] to put out light, usually because of high heat. □ The embers glowed with the remains of the fire. □ The last of the coals still glowed with fire. 2. Fig. [for someone's face, eyes, etc.] to display some quality, such as pride, pleasure, rage, health. □ Her healthy face glowed with pride. □ Her eyes glowed with a towering rage.

glower at someone or something to scowl intently at someone or something. □ The judge glowered at the irate witness until order was restored. □ Fred glowered at the painting of his uncle, hating the subject of the picture.

glue something down^t to fix something down onto something with cement. □ Glue the edge of the rug down before someone trips over it. □ You should glue down the rug.

glue something on(to) something and glue something to something; glue something on^t to attach something to something else with cement. □ Please glue the binding onto this book. Someone pulled it off. □ Please glue on the binding.

glue something together^t to attach the pieces of something together with glue. □ She glued the pieces of the model plane together. □ She glued together all the loose pieces.

glued to someone or something Fig. following someone everywhere; very close to or touching something. □ His little sister was glued to him all afternoon. Finally he sent her home.

a glut on the market Go to a drug on the market.

glut someone or something with something to overfill someone or something with something. □ The hungry lions glutted themselves with the meat of their recent kill. □ Sally would glut herself with doughnuts, given the chance.

a glutton for punishment Fig. someone who is eager for a burden or some sort of difficulty; someone willing to accept a difficult task. □ Tom works too hard. He is a glutton for punishment. □ I enjoy managing difficult projects, but I am a glutton for punishment.

gnash one's teeth Fig. to grind or bite noisily with one's teeth. □ Bill clenched his fists and gnashed his teeth in anger. □ The wolf gnashed its teeth and chased after the deer.

a gnashing of teeth Fig. a show of anger or dismay. (Biblical: "weeping, wailing, and gnashing of teeth.") □ After a little gnashing of teeth and a few threats, the boss calmed down and become almost reasonable.

gnaw (away) at someone Fig. to worry someone; to create constant anxiety in someone. □ The thought of catching some horrible disease gnawed away at her. □ A lot of guilt gnawed at him day and night.

gnaw (away) at someone or something Lit. to chew at someone or something. □ I hear a mouse gnawing away at the wall. □ The mosquitoes are gnawing at me something awful.

gnaw on something to chew on something. (Usually said of an animal.) □ The puppy has been gnawing on my slippers! □ This slipper has been gnawed on!

go a long way toward doing something and go a long way in doing something Fig. almost to satisfy specific conditions; to be almost right. □ This machine goes a long way toward meeting our needs. □ Your plan went a long way in helping us with our problem.

go a mile a minute Go to a mile a minute.

go aboard Go to come aboard.

go about and go around 1. [for a rumor] to go from person to person. □ What is this story about you that I hear going about? □ There was a nasty rumor about Gerald going around. 2. [for a disease] to spread. □ There is a lot of this flu going about these days. □ There is a bad cough going around. 3. Go to go around someone or something.

go about one's business Go to about one's business.

go about something to approach the doing of something in a particular way. □ How should I go about researching this topic? □ Would you tell me how to go about it?

go about with someone or something and go around with someone or something to go around in the company of someone or something. □ I always go about with my friends. □ Fran has been going around with James.

go above and beyond one's duty and go above and beyond the call of duty Fig. to exceed what is required of one. □ Doing what you ask goes above and beyond my duty. □ My job requires me to go above and beyond the call of duty almost every day.

go above and beyond (something) Go to above and beyond (something).

go above and beyond the call of duty Go to go above and beyond one's duty.

go above someone Go to above someone.

go above someone or something to travel over someone or something. □ The model airplane swooped low right at us but went above us at the last minute.

go absent without leave Go to absent without leave.

go across (something) to cross something, such as water, a bridge, land, the ocean, etc. □ We went across the ocean in just three hours. □ How long did it take you to go across?

go across something to someone or something to cross something to someone, something, or some place on the other side. □ We went across the bridge to the island. □ We came upon a little footbridge and went across to the other side. □ Timmy went across the street to his mother.

go after someone to investigate someone or something for possible criminal prosecution. □ The prosecutor went after Max first, knowing that Max was the gang leader. □ The police detectives went after the whole gang.

go after someone, something, or an animal 1. Lit. to pursue someone, something, or an animal. (See also go after someone.) □ The dogs went after the burglar. □ I went after the gang that took my wallet. 2. Fig. to charge or attack someone or an animal. □ The bear went after the hunters and scared them off. □ Then the bear went after the hunting dogs and killed two.

go against someone or something Go to against someone or something.

go against the grain Go to against the grain.

Go ahead. Please do it; You have my permission and encouragement to do it. □ Alice: I'm leaving. John: Go ahead. See if I care. □ Jane: Can I put this one in the refrigerator? Sue: Sure. Go ahead.

(Go ahead,) make my day! 1. Just try to do me harm or disobey me. I will enjoy punishing you. (From a phrase said in a movie where the person saying the phrase is holding a gun on a villain and would really like the villain to do something that would justify firing the gun. Compare this with Keep it up!) □ The crook reached into his jacket for his wallet. The cop, thinking the crook was about to draw a gun, said, "Go ahead, make my day!" □ As Bill pulled back his clenched fist to strike Tom, who is much bigger and stronger than Bill, Tom said, "Make my day!" 2. Go ahead, ruin my day!; Go ahead, give me the bad news. (A sarcastic version of ①.) □ Tom (standing in the doorway): Hello, I'm with the Internal Revenue Service. Could I come in? Mary: Go ahead, make my day! □ Sally: I've got some bad news for you. John: Go ahead, make my day!

go ahead (of someone or something) to get in front of and proceed someone or something. □ Please let me go ahead of you. □ The car carrying the parade marshal went ahead of the others.

go ahead (with something) 1. to continue with something; to continue with plans to do something. □ Can we go ahead with our party plans? □ Let's go ahead with it. 2. to carry something ahead. □ Please go ahead with the baggage. I will meet you at the ticket counter. □ Will you please go ahead with the cake? I will bring the ice cream in a minute.

go all out (for someone or something) to do everything possible for someone or something. □ We went all out for George and threw a big party on his return. □ We went all out and it was not appreciated at all.

go all the way (with someone) and go to bed (with someone) Euph. to have sexual intercourse with someone. □ If you go all the way, you stand a chance of getting pregnant. □ I've heard that they go to bed all the time.

go along 1. to continue; to progress. □ Things are going along quite nicely in my new job. □ I hope everything is going along well. 2. to accompany [someone]. □ Can I go along? □ If you're going to the party, can I go along?

go along (with someone) for the ride 1. Lit. to accompany someone just to be taking a ride. □ Why don't you go along with us for the ride? □ I am going to the store. Do you want to go along for the ride? 2. Fig. to accompany someone, whether or not riding. □ I'll just go along for the ride to the beach. I don't want to bask in the sun all day. □ He wasn't actually invited to the party. He just went along for the ride.

go along with someone or something 1. Lit. to travel along with someone or something. □ Dorothy went along with the scarecrow for a while until they met a lion. 2. Fig. to agree with someone or agree to something. □ I will go along with you on that matter. □ I will go along with Sharon's decision, of course. 3. Fig. to consent on the choice of someone or something. □ I go along with Jane. Tom would be a good treasurer. □ Sharon will probably go along with chocolate. Everyone likes chocolate! 4. Fig. to play along with someone or something; to pretend that you are party to someone's scheme. □ I went along with the gag for a while.

go ape (over someone or something) Sl. to become very excited over something. □ I just go ape over chocolate. □ Sam went ape over Mary.

go arm in arm Go to arm in arm.

go around Go to go about.

go around doing something to move around doing something. □ She keeps going around telling lies about me. □ Please stop going around knocking things over. □ She goes around helping whomever she can.

go (a)round in circles 1. Lit. to move over and over on a circular path. □ The model plane went around in circles until it ran out of fuel. □ The oxen went around in circles, pulling along a beam that was connected to the millstone.

2. Fig. to act in a confused and disoriented manner. □ I've been going around in circles all day. □ The children have been going around in circles, waiting for you to arrive.

3. Fig. to keep going over the same ideas or repeating the same actions, often resulting in confusion, without reaching a satisfactory decision or conclusion. □ We're just going round in circles discussing the problem. We need to consult someone else to get a new point of view. □ Fred's trying to find out what's happened but he's going round in circles. No one will tell him anything useful.

go around someone 1. Lit. to walk or travel in such a way as to avoid hitting or touching someone. □ I can't move from this place right now. You'll have to go around me.

2. Idiomatic to avoid dealing with someone. □ I try to go around Steve. He can be very difficult. □ We will want to go around the boss. He will say no if asked.

go (a)round the bend Go to (a)round the bend.

go around (with someone) Go to hang around (with someone).

go around with someone or something Go to go about with someone or something.

go as someone or something to pretend to be someone or a type of person. □ There's a costume party this weekend. I'm going as Santa Claus. □ My husband and I are going as a king and queen.

go astray 1. Lit. to wander off the road or path. □ Stick to the path and try not to go astray. □ I couldn't see the trail and I almost went astray. 2. Fig. [for something] to get lost or misplaced. □ My glasses have gone astray again. □ Mary's book went astray or maybe it was stolen. 3. Fig. to turn bad or wander from the way of goodness; to make an error. □ I'm afraid your son has gone astray and gotten into a bit of trouble. □ I went astray with the computer program at this point.

go at a fast clip Go to at a fast clip.

go at a good clip Go to at a good clip.

go at it hammer and tongs Go to hammer and tongs.

go at it tooth and nail Go to fight someone or something hammer and tongs.

go at one another tooth and nail Fig. to fight one another like animals. (One another can also be each other.) □ The man and his wife went at one another tooth and nail. □ The children would go at one another tooth and nail almost every evening.

a go at someone Go to a try at someone.

go at someone or something to attack someone or something; to move or lunge toward someone or something. □ The dog went at the visitor and almost bit him. □ He went at the door and tried to break it down.

a go at something Go to a try at something.

go at something like a boy killing snakes Rur. to do something with a great deal of energy. □ Once Mary decided to take that test, she went at her books like a boy killing snakes. □ I hired Joe to weed my garden, and he went at it like a boy killing snakes.

Go away! Leave me!; Get away from me! □ Mary: You're such a pest, Sue. Go away! Sue: I was just trying to help. □ "Go away!" yelled the child at the bee.

go away empty-handed Fig. to depart with nothing. □ I hate for you to go away empty-handed, but I cannot afford to contribute any money. □ They came hoping for some food, but they had to go away empty-handed.

go away (for something) 1. to leave for a period of time. □ I have to go away for a week or two. □ Sharon went away for a few days. 2. to leave in order to get something and bring it back. □ Excuse me. I have to go away for a soft drink. □ He went away for a pizza. He'll be right back.

go away with someone or something 1. to leave in the company of someone or something. □ I saw him go away with Margie. □ She went away with the others. 2. to take someone or a group away with one. □ He went away with the baby in his arms.

go AWOL to become absent without leave. (Originally military.) □ Private Smith went AWOL last Wednesday. Now he's in a military prison. □ Tom went AWOL and finally we had to fire him.

go back to return to the place of origin. □ That's where I came from, and I'll never go back. □ I don't want to go back.

go back on one's promise Go to next.

go back on one's word and go back on one's promise; go back on one's pledge to break a promise that one has made. □ I hate to go back on my word, but I won't pay you $100 after all. □ Going back on your promise makes you a liar.

go back to someone or something to return to someone, something, or some place. □ She went back to her husband after a few months. □ Sharon had to go back to her office for a few minutes.

go back to square one Fig. to return to the starting point. (Alludes to the squares of a board game.) □ It's back to square one. We have to start over. □ It looks like it's back to square one for you.

go back to the drawing board Fig. to return to the planning stage, so that a failed project can be planned again. □ These plans have to go back to the drawing board. □ I thought these problems went back to the drawing board once already.

go back to the salt mines Fig. to return to one's work. (Jocular; fig. on the image of menial labor working in salt mines.) □ It's late. I have to go back to the salt mines. □ What time do you have to go back to the salt mines Monday morning?

go bad to become rotten, undesirable, evil, etc. □ I'm afraid that this milk has gone bad. □ Life used to be wonderful. Now it has gone bad.

go badly with someone or something [for something] to proceed badly for someone or something. □ I hope that things are not still going badly with you. □ Things are going very badly with the project.

go ballistic and go postal Fig. to become irrationally enraged. (Ballistic refers to a missile launching; postal refers to an enraged post office employee attacking those at his place of work. See also go into orbit.) □ The boss went ballistic when he saw my expense report. □ She was so mad, I thought she was going to go postal.

go bananas Sl. to go mildly crazy. □ Sorry, I just went bananas for a minute. □ I thought he was going to go bananas.

go before someone Go to before someone.

go before someone or something 1. to precede someone or something. □ Do you wish to go before me? □ I will go before the other waiters and clear the aisles. 2. to appear before someone or something. □ Sharon went before a magistrate and laid out her complaint. □ Mary went before the entire board of directors with her proposal.

go begging Fig. to be left over, unwanted, or unused. (As if a thing were begging for an owner or a user.) □ There is still food left. A whole lobster is going begging. Please eat some more. □ There are many excellent books in the library just going begging because people don't know they are there.

go behind someone's back 1. Lit. to move behind someone; to locate oneself at someone's back. □ The mugger went behind my back and put a gun to my spine. □ Bob went behind my back and pushed me through the opening. 2. Fig. to do something that is kept a secret from someone affected by it. □ I hate to go behind her back, but she makes so much trouble about things like this. □ Please don't try to go behind my back again!

go belly up Go to turn belly up.

go below to go beneath the main deck of a ship. (Nautical.) □ I will have to go below and fiddle with the engine. □ The captain went below to escape the worst of the storm.

go berserk to go crazy. □ She went berserk and strangled her cat.

go between someone or something and someone or something else to get in between people or things, in any combination. □ The dog went between Mr. Franklin and the wall. □ The arrow went between Jed and Tex, injuring neither of them.

go beyond someone or something to pass ahead of someone or something. □ I went beyond the place where I should have turned off. □ Fred went beyond me a half block before he remembered who I was. Then he came back and said hello.

go beyond something 1. Lit. to do more of something than the expected amount; to go further with something than was required. □ You clearly went beyond what was required of you. □ Sharon went beyond the basic requirements. 2. Fig. to go past something or some place. □ We went beyond the town and lost our way. □ They went beyond the turnoff.

go broke to completely run out of money and other assets. □ This company is going to go broke if you don't stop spending money foolishly. □ I made some bad investments last year, and it looks as if I may go broke this year.

go by (someone or something) to pass by someone or something. □ We went by Alice without even noticing her. □ We went by because we were in a hurry.

go by the board Fig. to get ruined or lost. (This is originally a nautical expression meaning "to fall or be washed overboard.") □ I hate to see good food go by the board.

G

Please eat up so we won't have to throw it out. □ Your plan has gone by the board. The entire project has been canceled.

go by the book Go to by the book.

go by the name of something to be known by a specific name. □ She goes by the name of Gladys George. □ I used to go by the name of George.

Go chase yourself! and Go climb a tree!; Go fly a kite!; Go jump in the lake! Inf. Go away and stop bothering me! □ Bob: Get out of here. Bill! You're driving me crazy! Go chase yourself! Bill: What did I do to you? Bob: You're just in the way. □ Bill: Dad, can I have ten bucks? Father: Go climb a tree! □ Fred: Stop pestering me, John. Go jump in the lake! John: What did I do? □ Bob: Well, Bill, don't you owe me some money? Bill: Go fly a kite!

go cold turkey Inf. to stop (doing something) without tapering off. (Originally drug slang. Now concerned with breaking any habit.) □ I had to stop smoking, so I went cold turkey. It's awful! □ When heroin addicts go cold turkey, they get terribly sick.

go crazy and go nuts to become crazy, disoriented, or frustrated. □ It is so busy here that I think I will go crazy. □ Bob went nuts because his car got a flat tire.

go down 1. to sink below a normal or expected level or height. □ The plane went down in flames. □ The ship went down with all hands aboard. 2. to descend to a lower measurement. □ Her fever went down. □ The price of the stock went down yesterday. 3. to be swallowed. □ The medicine went down without any trouble at all. □ The pill I took simply would not go down. 4. to fall or drop down, as when struck or injured. □ Sam went down when he was struck on the chin. □ The deer went down when it was hit with the arrow. 5. Sl. to happen. □ Hey, man! What's going down? □ Something strange is going down around here. 6. Sl. to be accepted. □ We'll just have to wait awhile to see how all this goes down. □ The proposal didn't go down very well with the manager. 7. Sl. to be arrested. (Underworld.) □ Lefty didn't want to go down for a crime he didn't do. □ Mr. Big said that somebody had to go down for it, and he didn't care who.

go down fighting Fig. to continue the struggle until one is completely defeated. □ I won't give up easily. I'll go down fighting. □ Sally, who is very determined, went down fighting.

go down for the count Go to down for the count.

go down for the third time Fig. to be just on the verge of failing. (From the notion that a boxer who is knocked down three times in one round normally loses the fight.) □ I was going down for the third time when I thought of a plan that would save my job.

go down in defeat and go down to defeat Fig. to submit to defeat; to be defeated. □ The team went down in defeat again. □ She fears going down in defeat.

go down in flames 1. Lit. [for a plane] to crash. □ The enemy fighter planes went down in flames, ending the battle. □ The pilot and crew went down in flames near the airport. 2. Fig. to fail spectacularly. □ The whole project went down in flames. □ Todd went down in flames in his efforts to win the heart of Marsha.

go down (in history) (as someone or something) to be recorded for history as a significant person or event. □

You will go down in history as the most stubborn woman who ever lived. □ She will go down as a very famous woman.

go down on one's knees to kneel down. □ The people went down on their knees and prayed. □ Larry went down on his knees and asked for forgiveness.

go down something to descend something; to fall down something. □ She went down the ladder very carefully. □ I did not want to go down those steep stairs.

go down the chute and go down the drain; go down the tube(s) Sl. to fail; to be thrown away or wasted. □ Everything we have accomplished has gone down the chute. □ The whole project went down the drain.

go down the drain Go to previous.

go down the line to go from person to person or thing to thing in a line of people or things. □ She went down the line, asking everyone for a dollar for a cup of coffee. □ Sam went down the line, passing out tickets.

go down the tube(s) Go to go down the chute.

go down to defeat Go to go down in defeat.

go down to someone or something to travel to someone, something, or some place that is downtown, at a lower level, or in the South. □ We went down to Amy's aunt in Memphis. □ Fran went down to Tiffany's place on the first floor.

go down to something [for something] to decline or diminish to some level. □ His temperature has gone down to normal. □ Will the temperature go down to freezing tonight?

go down with something Fig. to be stricken with a disease. □ Beth went down with the flu. □ She went down with a high fever.

go downhill [for something] to decline and grow worse and worse. □ This industry is going downhill. We lose money every year. □ As one gets older, one's health tends to go downhill.

go Dutch [for each person in a pair or a group] to pay for himself or herself. □ I don't want you to pay for my ticket. Let's go Dutch. □ Is it still considered a date if you go Dutch?

go easy on someone or something to be gentle on someone or something; not to be too critical of someone or something; to take it easy on someone or something. (See also go easy on something.) □ Go easy on Sherri. She's my friend. □ Try to go easy on criticizing their report. They did the best they could in the time allotted.

go easy on something to use something sparingly. (See also take it easy on something; go easy on someone or something.) □ Go easy on the mustard. That's all there is. □ Please go easy on the onions. I don't like them very much.

go fifty-fifty (on something) to divide the cost of something in half with someone. □ Todd and Jean decided to go fifty-fifty on dinner. □ The two brothers went fifty-fifty on a replacement for the broken lamp.

Go figure. It's really strange.; Just try to figure it out. □ She says she wants to have a conversation, but when I try, she does all the talking. Go figure.

Go fly a kite! Go to Go chase yourself!

go for broke to risk everything; to try as hard as possible. □ Okay, this is my last chance. I'm going for broke. □

Look at Mary starting to move in the final hundred yards of the race! She is really going for broke.

Go for it! Inf. Go ahead! Give it a good try! □ Sally: I'm going to try out for the basketball team. Do you think I'm tall enough? Bob: Sure you are! Go for it! □ Bob: Mary can't quit now! She's almost at the finish line! Bill: Go for it, Mary!

go for nothing 1. Lit. [for something] to be done for no purpose. □ All our work went for nothing. □ Our efforts at helping out went for nothing. 2. Fig. [for something] to be sold for a very low price. □ This merchandise can go for nothing; let's just clear it out at 90 percent off. □ I don't want this good stuff to just go for nothing.

go for someone or something 1. Lit. to go out for someone or something; to go fetch someone or something. □ I am going for bread—do we need anything else from the store? □ Roger went for his aunt, who had arrived at the station. 2. Fig. to find someone or something interesting or desirable. □ I really go for chocolate in any form. □ Tom really goes for Gloria in a big way. 3. Fig. to believe or accept something or something that someone says. □ It sounds pretty strange. Do you think they'll go for it?

go forward with something Fig. to continue with something; to do something that is planned. □ We will go forward with our plans. □ Let's go forward with the plan.

go from bad to worse to progress from a bad situation to one that is worse. □ Things went from bad to worse in a matter of days. □ I'm afraid that things are going from bad to worse.

go from one extreme to the other to change from one thing to its opposite. □ You go from one extreme to another about Tom—one day angry, the next day perfectly happy.

Go fry an egg! Go away and stop bothering me! □ Go away and stop bothering me. Go fry an egg! □ Get out of my way! Go fry an egg!

go hand in hand Go to hand in hand.

go haywire Rur. to go wrong; to malfunction; to break down. □ I was talking to Mary when suddenly the telephone went haywire. I haven't heard from her since. □ There we were, driving along, when the engine went haywire. It was two hours before the tow truck came.

go hog wild Rur. to behave wildly. □ Have a good time at the party, but don't go hog wild. □ The teacher cannot control a class that is going hog wild.

go home in a box Sl. to be shipped home dead. (Often said in exaggeration.) □ Hey, I'm too young to go home in a box. □ You had better be careful on this camping trip, or you'll go home in a box.

go home to mama to give up something—such as a marriage—and return to one's mother's home. □ I've had it. I'm going home to mama. □ Mary left him and went home to mama.

go hungry to miss a meal and end up hungry. □ The kids were late for dinner so they had to go hungry.

go in Go to go into something.

go in a body Go to in a body.

go in and out (of something) to pass in and out of something or some place. □ The nervous little mouse kept going in and out of its hole. □ The cat kept going in and out of the back door.

go in for something to take part in something; to enjoy (doing) something. □ John doesn't go in for sports. □ None of them seems to go in for swimming.

go in one ear and out the other Cliché Fig. [for something] to be heard and then soon ignored or forgotten. □ Everything I say to you seems to go in one ear and out the other. Why don't you pay attention? □ I can't concentrate. Things people say to me just go in one ear and out the other.

go in someone's favor [for something] to change to someone's benefit. (Alludes to very changeable things like game scores, wind direction, or chance in general.) □ Things appear to be going in our favor—finally. □ The game was going in our favor during the first half.

go in the hole Go to in the hole.

go in the right direction 1. Lit. to head or travel in the right direction. □ Are you sure we are going in the right direction? □ We were supposed to turn back there. We are not going in the right direction. 2. Fig. [for plans or intentions] to be progressing sensibly. □ Well, everything seems to be going in the right direction—for now anyway. □ Do you feel that this project is going in the right direction?

go in with someone (on something) Fig. to join together with someone to work on a project; to pool financial resources with someone to buy something. □ I would be happy to go in with you on the charity ball. I'll find a hall. □ Yes, we can pool our money. I'll go in with you.

go into a huddle 1. Lit. [for team members] to get into a small circle and plan what they are going to do next. □ They went into a huddle to plan their strategy. □ The players will go into a huddle and decide what to do. 2. Fig. [for people] to group together to talk and decide what to do. □ We went into a huddle to plan our sales strategy. □ Top-level management needs to go into a huddle and come up with a good plan.

go into a nosedive and take a nosedive 1. Lit. [for an airplane] suddenly to dive toward the ground, nose first. □ It was a bad day for flying, and I was afraid we'd go into a nosedive. □ The small plane took a nosedive. The pilot was able to bring it out at the last minute, so the plane didn't crash. 2. Fig. [for someone] to fall to the ground face first. □ She took a nosedive and injured her face. 3. Fig. to go into a rapid emotional or financial decline, or a decline in health. □ Our profits took a nosedive last year. □ After he broke his hip, Mr. Brown's health went into a nosedive, and he never recovered.

go into a song and dance (about something) and go into the same old song and dance about something Fig. to start repeating excuses or stories about something. (See also go into one's act.) □ Please don't go into your song and dance about how you always tried to do what was right. □ John went into his song and dance about how he won the war all by himself. □ He always goes into the same old song and dance every time he makes a mistake.

go into a tailspin 1. Lit. [for an airplane] to lose control and spin to the earth, nose first. □ The plane shook and then suddenly went into a tailspin. □ The pilot was not able to bring the plane out of the tailspin, and it crashed into the sea. 2. Fig. [for someone] to become disoriented or panicked; [for someone's life] to fall apart. Although John achieved great success, his life went into a tailspin. It took him a year to get straightened out. After her father died, Mary's world fell apart, and she went into a tailspin.

go into action and swing into action to start doing something. I usually get to work at 7:45, get some coffee, and I go into action at 8:00. When the ball is hit in my direction, you should see me swing into action.

go into detail(s) to give all the details; to present and discuss the details. The clerk went into detail about the product with the customer. I just want a simple answer. Don't go into details.

go into effect and take effect [for a law or a rule] to become effective. When does this new law go into effect? The new tax laws won't go into effect until next year.

go into heat Go to in heat.

go into hiding to conceal oneself in a hidden place for a period of time. The political dissident went into hiding. After robbing the bank, the bandits went into hiding for months.

go into hock go into debt. We will have to go into hock to buy a house. I go further into hock every time I use my credit card.

go into one's act Fig. to begin to behave in a way typical to oneself. The curtain opened and Steve went into his act.

go into orbit 1. Lit. [for a rocket, satellite, etc.] to rotate around a heavenly body in a fixed path. The satellite went into orbit just as planned. When did the moon go into orbit? 2. Fig. [for someone] to get very excited. (See also go ballistic.) She was so upset, she went into orbit. Todd went into orbit when he heard the price.

go into service to start operating. When will the new elevator go into service? It has already gone into service.

go into something 1. and go in Lit. to enter something; to penetrate something. The needle went into the vein smoothly and painlessly. It went in with no trouble. 2. Fig. to enter some line of business or a profession. He went into accounting when he got out of college. I want to prepare to go into law enforcement. 3. Fig. to examine or study something; to discuss and explain something. (See also go there.) I need to go into this more. When we have time, we need to go into this question more thoroughly.

go into the bull pen Go to in the bull pen.

go into the red Go to in the red.

go into the same old song and dance about something Go to go into a song and dance (about something).

go into the service to enter one of the military services. She went into the service when she got out of high school. I chose not to go into the service.

go it alone to do something by oneself. Do you need help, or will you go it alone? I think I need a little more experience before I go it alone.

Go jump in the lake! Go to Go chase yourself!

go like clockwork Fig. to progress with regularity and dependability. The building project is progressing nicely. Everything is going like clockwork. The elaborate pageant was a great success. It went like clockwork from start to finish.

go like stink Go to like stink.

go like the wind Go to like the wind.

go near (to) someone or something to approach someone or something. Don't go near Sue. She's got chicken pox. Now, don't go near the water!

go nuts Go to go crazy.

go off 1. Lit. [for an explosive device] to explode. The fireworks all went off as scheduled. The bomb went off and did a lot of damage. 2. Lit. [for a sound-creating device] to make its noise. The alarm went off at six o'clock. The siren goes off at noon every day. 3. Fig. [for an event] to happen or take place. The party went off as planned. Did your medical examination go off as well as you had hoped?

go off (by oneself) to go into seclusion; to isolate oneself. She went off by herself where no one could find her. I have to go off and think about this.

go off half-cocked Fig. to go into action too early or without thinking. (Originally refers to a flintlock or matchlock gun firing prematurely, before the trigger was pulled.) Don't go off half-cocked. Plan out what you're going to do. Bill went off half-cocked and told everybody he was running for the state legislature.

go off (into something) to go away to something; to depart and go into something. He went off into the army. Do you expect me just to go off into the world and make a living?

go off kilter Go to out of kilter.

go off on a tangent Fig. to pursue a somewhat related or irrelevant course while neglecting the main subject. Don't go off on a tangent. Stick to your job. Just as we started talking, Henry went off on a tangent about the high cost of living.

go off on someone Sl. to berate someone. Don't go off on me! I'm not the cause of your problems! The teacher went off on poor little Harry.

go off the deep end and jump off the deep end 1. Lit. to jump into a swimming pool where the water is over one's head and one needs to be able to swim You are still only learning to swim. Are you ready to go off the deep end? He jumped off the deep end where he would make a bigger splash. 2. Fig. to become deeply involved (with someone or something) before one is ready. (Applies especially to falling in love.) Look at the way Bill is looking at Sally. I think he's about to go off the deep end. 3. Fig. to act irrationally, following one's emotions or fantasies. Now, John, I know you really want to go to Australia, but don't go jumping off the deep end. It isn't all perfect there.

go off (to the side) with someone Go to off (to the side) with someone.

go off (with someone) to go away with someone. Tom just now went off with Maggie. I think that Maria went off with Fred somewhere.

Go on. 1. Lit. Please continue. Alice: I guess I should stop here. Tom: No. Don't stop talking. I'm very interested. Go on. Bill: Don't turn here. Go on. It's the next corner. Bob: Thanks. I didn't think that was where we should turn. 2. Lit.

to happen. □ What went on here last night? □ The teacher asked what was going on. 3. Fig. That's silly!; You don't mean that! (Usually Go on!) □ John: Go on! You're making that up! □ Bill: I am not. It's the truth! □ Bill: Gee, that looks like a snake there in the path. □ Bob: Go on! That isn't a snake. No snake is that big.

go on a binge to do too much of something, especially to drink too much. □ Jane went on a binge last night and is very sick this morning. □ Bill loves to spend money on clothes. He's out on a binge right now—buying everything in sight.

go on a diet Go to on a diet.

go on a fishing expedition Go to a fishing expedition.

go on a fool's errand Go to on a fool's errand.

go on a power trip Go to on a power trip.

go on a rampage to get very disturbed or angry. □ The angry bull went on a rampage and broke the fence. □ My boss went on a rampage because the report wasn't finished.

go on an errand Go to run an errand.

go on and on to (seem to) last or go forever. □ You talk too much, Bob. You just go on and on. □ The road to their house is very boring. It goes on and on with nothing interesting to look at.

go on (and on) (about someone or something) to talk endlessly about someone or something. □ She just went on and on about her new car. □ Albert went on about the book for a long time.

go on (at someone) to rave at someone. □ He must have gone on at her for ten minutes—screaming and waving his arms. □ I wish you would stop going on at me.

go on before (someone) 1. Lit. to precede someone. □ Please go on before me. I will follow. □ She went on before. 2. Euph. to die before someone. □ Uncle Herman went on before Aunt Margaret by a few years. □ He went before her, although we had all thought it would be the other way around.

go on doing something Go to go on with something.

go on for an age and go on for ages Fig. to continue for a very long time. □ The symphony seemed to go on for an age. □ It seemed to go on for ages.

go on something 1. Lit. to begin something, such as a diet, rampage, drunk, etc. □ I went on a diet for the second time this month. □ Fred went on a rampage and broke a window. 2. Fig. to start acting on some information. □ We can't go on this! We need more information before we can act on this matter! □ Can you please give us more information to go on?

go on the block Fig. [for something] to go up for auction; [for something] to be placed on the auction block. □ Our farm went on the block last week. Got a good price. □ When this painting goes on the block, I hope I get a lot for it.

go on to a better land Euph. to die. □ After a long illness, Reggie went on to a better land. □ When I finally go on to a better land, I hope there is enough money for a proper funeral.

go on to something to advance to something or to doing something. □ After a few years she went on to even greater heights. □ Larry went on to found his own company.

go on tour [for a performing group] to go from place to place, performing. □ Our play went on tour across the state. □ If we make the play a success, we will go on tour.

go on with something and go on doing something to continue with something. □ I can't go on with this. I have to rest. □ You simply cannot go on behaving like this!

Go on (with you)! Inf. Go away! (Always a command. No tenses.) □ It's time you left. Go on with you! □ Go on. Get yourself home.

go out 1. to leave one's house. □ Call me later. I'm going out now. □ Sally told her father that she was going out. 2. to become extinguished. □ The fire finally went out. □ The lights went out and left us in the dark. 3. Go to go out of fashion.

go out for someone or something to leave in order to bring back someone or something. □ Albert just went out for a newspaper. □ Fran went out for Bob, who was on the back porch, smoking a cigarette.

go out (for something) 1. Lit. to go outside to get something or to do something. □ Jill just went out for a breath of fresh air. □ He just went out, and should be back any minute. 2. Fig. to try out for something. (Usually refers to a sport.) □ Mary went out for the soccer team. □ Tom went out for baseball.

go out for the count Go to out for the count.

go out from something Go to out from something.

go out in force Go to out in force.

go out in search of someone or something to leave to find someone or something. □ I went out in search of someone to help me. □ Mary went out in search of Gloria.

go out of bounds Go to out of bounds.

go out of business to stop doing commerce or business. □ The new shop will probably go out of business if sales don't get better. □ I have to work hard to keep from going out of business.

go out of control Go to out of control.

go out of fashion and go out of style; go out to become unfashionable; to become obsolete. □ That kind of furniture went out of style years ago. □ I hope this kind of thing never goes out of fashion. □ It went out years ago.

go out of favor (with someone) Go to out of favor (with someone).

go out of focus Go to out of focus.

go out of kilter Go to out of kilter.

go out of one's head Go to out of one's mind.

go out of one's mind Go to out of one's mind.

go out of one's senses Go to out of one's mind.

go out of one's skull Go to out of one's skull.

go out of one's way (to do something) 1. Lit. to travel an indirect route or an extra distance in order to do something. □ I'll have to go out of my way to give you a ride home. □ I'll give you a ride even though I have to go out of my way. 2. Fig. to make an effort to do something; to accept the bother of doing something. □ We went out of our way to please the visitor. We appreciate anything you can do, but don't go out of your way.

go out of practice Go to out of practice.

go out of service [for something] to stop working; [for something] to have been turned off so it cannot be used.

This elevator went out of service last week. How long has it been since this thing went out of service?

go out of sight Go to out of sight.

go out (of something) to leave something or some place.

I went out of there feeling sorry for myself. I went out with a smile on my face.

go out of style Go to go out of fashion.

go out of the frying pan into the fire Go to out of the frying pan into the fire.

go out on a limb Go to out on a limb.

go (out) on strike and go out (on strike) [for a group of people] to quit working at their jobs until certain demands are met. If we don't have a contract by noon tomorrow, we'll go out on strike. The entire workforce went on strike at noon today.

go out to someone [for one's sympathy, heart, etc.] to be aimed toward someone. All of my sympathy went out to her. I knew just how she felt. My thanks go out to you all.

go out (with someone) 1. Lit. to go out with someone for entertainment. The Smiths went out with the Franklins to a movie. Those guys don't have much time to go out. 2. Fig. to go on a date with someone; to date someone regularly. Is Bob still going out with Sally? No, they've stopped going out.

go out with something to go out of fashion at the same time as something else went out of fashion. That style of dress went out with the bustle. Your thinking went out with the horse and buggy.

go over Euph. to leave one's country and go to ideologically opposed or enemy country; to defect. When the ballet company visited New York, two of the dancers went over. He had been spying for the Americans for many years, and he finally went over.

go over big (with someone) to be very much appreciated by someone. Your jokes did not exactly go over big with my parents. We hope that the musical will go over big with the audience.

go over like a lead balloon Fig. to fail completely; to go over badly. Your joke went over like a lead balloon. If that play was supposed to be a comedy, it went over like a lead balloon. Her suggestion went over like a lead balloon.

go over someone Go to over someone.

go over someone or something to examine someone or something. The doctor will go over you very carefully, I'm sure. I went over the papers and found nothing wrong.

go over someone's head Go to over someone's head.

go over something with a fine-tooth comb and search something with a fine-tooth comb; go through something with a fine-tooth comb Fig. to search through something very carefully. I can't find my calculus book. I went over the whole place with a fine-tooth comb. I searched this place with a fine-tooth comb and didn't find my ring.

go over something (with someone) to review or explain something. The teacher went over the lesson with the class. Can you please go over it again, more slowly?

go over the hill Go to over the hill.

go over the wall Go to over the wall.

go over to some place to travel some distance or cross water to get to some place. We went over to Cedar Point and spent the day having fun. John went over to the other side of the stadium for the rest of the tournament.

go over (well) [for someone or something] to be accepted or well received. The party went over very well. The play really went over with the audience.

go over with a bang 1. Fig. [for something] to be funny or entertaining. Our presentation was a success. It really went over with a bang. That's a great joke. It went over with a bang. 2. Fig. to succeed spectacularly. The play was a success. It really went over with a bang. That's a great joke. It went over with a bang.

go overboard 1. Fig. to fall out of a boat or off of a ship; to fall overboard. Be careful or you will go overboard. Someone went overboard in the fog. 2. Fig. to do too much; to be extravagant. Look, Sally, let's have a nice party, but don't go overboard. It doesn't need to be fancy. Okay, you can buy a big comfortable car, but don't go overboard on price.

go past someone or something to pass by someone or something. You went right past Tom. Did you mean to? Did I go past it?

go past something Go to past something.

go places to become very successful. I knew that Sally, with all her talent, would go places. I really want to go places in life.

Go play in the traffic. Go to Take a long walk off a short pier.

go postal Go to go ballistic; go into orbit.

go public (with something) 1. to sell to the public shares of a privately owned company. (Securities markets.) The company decided not to go public because the economy was so bad at the time. We'll go public at a later time. 2. to reveal something to the public. It's too early to go public with the story. Just let me know when we can go public with this press release.

go (right) through someone and go through someone like a dose of the salts Fig. [for something] to be excreted very soon after being eaten; [for something] to go immediately through the alimentary canal of a person. (Use with discretion.) No, thanks. This stuff just goes right through me. The coffee went through me like a dose of salts.

go scot-free and get off scot-free to go unpunished; to be acquitted of a crime. (This scot is an old word meaning "tax" or "tax burden.") The thief went scot-free. Jane cheated on the test and got caught, but she got off scot-free.

go sky-high Fig. to go very high. Prices go sky-high whenever there is inflation. Oh, it's so hot. The temperature went sky-high about noon.

go so far as to say something to put something into words; to risk saying something. I think that Bob is dishonest, but I wouldn't go so far as to say he's a thief. Red meat may be harmful, but I can't go so far as to say it causes cancer.

go (someone) one better and do someone one better to do something superior to what someone else has done; to top someone. That was a great joke, but I can go you one better. Your last song was beautifully sung, but Mary can do you one better.

go (somewhere) by shank's mare Go to by shank's mare.

go sour Fig. to turn bad or unpleasant. It looks like all my plans are going sour. My whole life is going sour right now.

go South and head South 1. Sl. to make an escape; to disappear. (Not necessarily in a southerly direction.) Lefty went South the minute he got out of the pen. The mugger headed South just after the crime. 2. Sl. to fall; to go down. (Securities markets.) All the stock market indexes went South today. The market headed South today at the opening bell. 3. Sl. to quit; to drop out of sight. Fred got discouraged and went South. I think he gave up football permanently. After pulling the bank job, Wilbur went South for a few months.

go stag to go to an event (which is meant for couples) without a member of the opposite sex. (Originally referred only to males.) Is Tom going to take you, or are you going stag? Bob didn't want to go stag, so he took his sister to the party.

go steady with someone Go to go with someone.

go stir-crazy Go to stir-crazy.

go straight to stop breaking the law and lead a lawful life instead. The judge encouraged the thief to go straight. After Bob was arrested, he promised his mother he would go straight.

go (straight) to the top Fig. to attempt to confer with the person at the top of the chain of command, bypassing the intermediate people. When I want something, I always go straight to the top. I don't have time for a lot of bureaucracy.

go the distance Fig. to do the whole amount; to play the entire game; to run the whole race. (Originally sports use.) That horse runs fast. I hope it can go the distance. This is going to be a long, hard project. I hope I can go the distance.

go the extra mile to try harder to please someone or to get the task done correctly; to do more than one is required to do to reach a goal. I like doing business with that company. They always go the extra mile. My teacher goes the extra mile to help us.

go the limit Fig. to do as much as possible; to get as much as possible. Let's plan to do everything we can. Let's go the limit. We'll go the limit. To heck with the cost.

go the way of the dodo and go the way of the horse and buggy Fig. to become extinct; to become obsolete. The floppy disc has gone the way of the horse and buggy.

go the way of the horse and buggy Go to previous.

go there to begin a discussion of something; to take up a certain topic. (Similar to go into something. Often in the negative. This has nothing to do with traveling or going to a place.) A: How are things going at your place of business? B: Please! I don't want to go there. We don't have time to discuss your health problems, so let's not go there.

go through to be approved; to succeed in getting through the approval process. I sent the board of directors a proposal. I hope it goes through. We all hope that the new law goes through.

go through channels Go to go through (the proper) channels.

go through someone 1. Lit. to travel through someone's body; to go (right) through someone. That medicine went right through me. 2. Fig. to work through someone; to use someone as an intermediary. I can't give you the permission you seek. You will have to go through our main office. I have to go through the treasurer for all expenditures.

go through someone like a dose of the salts Go to go (right) through someone.

go through someone or something [for something sharp] to penetrate someone or something. The sword went through the knight cleanly and quickly. The nail went through all three boards.

go through something 1. to search through something. She went through his pants pockets, looking for his wallet. He spent quite a while going through his desk, looking for the papers. 2. to use up all of something rapidly. We have gone through all the aspirin again! How can you go through your allowance so fast? 3. [for something] to pass through an opening. The piano wouldn't go through the door. Do you think that such a big truck can go through the tunnel under the river? 4. to pass through various stages or processes. The pickles went through a number of processes before they were packed. Johnny is going through a phase where he wants everything his way. 5. to work through something, such as an explanation or story. I went through my story again, carefully and in great detail. I would like to go through it again, so I can be sure to understand it. 6. to experience or endure something. You can't believe what I've gone through. Mary has gone through a lot lately. 7. to rehearse something; to practice something for performance. They went through the second act a number of times. We need to go through the whole play a few more times.

go through something with a fine-tooth comb Go to go over something with a fine-tooth comb.

go through the changes Fig. to experience life's changes. A good day, a bad day—it's all part of going through the changes. Nothing new with me, just going through the changes.

go through the cracks Go to through the cracks.

go through the mill Go to through the mill.

go through the motions Fig. to make a feeble effort to do something; to do something insincerely or in cursory fashion. Jane isn't doing her best. She's just going through the motions. Bill was supposed to be raking the yard, but he was just going through the motions.

go through (the proper) channels to use the proper procedure, working through the correct people and offices to get something done; to cooperate with a bureaucracy. □ I'm sorry. I can't help you. You'll have to go through the proper channels. □ I didn't get what I wanted because I didn't go through channels.

go through the roof 1. Fig. Inf. to become very angry. □ She saw what had happened and went through the roof. □ My father went through the roof when he saw what I did to the car. 2. Fig. Inf. [for prices] to become very high. □ These days, prices for gasoline are going through the roof. □ The cost of coffee is going through the roof.

go through with something to complete something the outcome of which is troubling or doubtful; to do something in spite of problems and drawbacks. □ I have to go through with it, no matter what. □ I just couldn't go through with it.

Go to! Inf. Go to hell! □ Oh, you're terrible. Just go to! □ Go to, you creep!

go to any length Fig. to do whatever is necessary. (See also go to great lengths (to do something).) □ I'll go to any length to secure this contract. □ I want to get a college degree, but I won't go to any length to get one.

go to bat against someone Fig. to aid someone against someone else. □ I would be happy to go to bat against Dan. □ We refused to go to bat against one of our friends.

go to bat for someone Fig. to support or help someone. □ I tried to go to bat for Bill, but he said he didn't want any help. □ I heard them gossiping about Sally, so I went to bat for her.

go to bed to go to where one's bed is, get into it, and go to sleep. □ It's time for me to go to bed. □ I want to go to bed, but there is too much work to do.

go to bed (with someone) Go to go all the way (with someone).

go to bed with the chickens Fig. to go to bed at sundown—at the same time that chickens go to sleep. □ They say that farmers go to bed with the chickens. □ We always go to bed with the chickens and get up early too.

go to bed with the sun Fig. to go to bed early, at sunset. □ The campers went to bed with the sun. □ The children had to go to bed with the sun. The grown-ups stayed up a little later.

Go to blazes! Inf. Go to hell! □ Go to blazes! Stop pestering me! □ I'm sick of your complaining. Go to blazes!

go to Davy Jones's locker Go to Davy Jones's locker.

go to extremes (to do something) to be excessive in one's efforts to do something. □ Auntie Jane will go to extremes to make us all comfortable. □ Let's not go to extremes! We've already spent enough on gifts for the kids.

go to great lengths (to do something) and go to any lengths (to do something) to work very hard to accomplish something; to expend great efforts in trying to do something. (See also go to any length.) □ I went to great lengths to explain to him that he was not in any trouble.

go to hell and go to (the devil) 1. Inf. to go to hell and suffer the agonies therein. (Often a command. Caution with hell.) □ Oh, go to hell! □ Go to hell, you creep! 2. Inf. to become ruined; to go away and stop bothering someone. (Use hell with caution.) □ This old house is just going to hell. It's falling apart everywhere. □ Leave me alone! Go to the devil! □ Oh, go to, yourself!

go to hell in a bucket and go to hell in a handbasket Fig. to get rapidly worse and worse. □ The school system in this district is going to hell in a bucket, and no mistake. □ His health is going to hell in a handbasket ever since he started drinking again.

go to it 1. Lit. to start something actively; to do something with vigor. □ Time to play ball. Go to it! □ Let's go to it, you guys! 2. Inf. to fight. □ Come on, let's go to it! I'm gonna beat the daylights out of you!

go to one's (just) reward Euph. to die. □ Let us pray for our departed sister, who has gone to her just reward. □ Bill: How's your grandma these days? Tom: She went to her reward last winter, may she rest in peace.

go to pieces 1. Lit. [for something] to fall apart into many pieces. □ The vase—which had been repaired many times—just went to pieces when I put it down. □ When the window was hit by the ball, it went to pieces. 2. Fig. [for something] to become nonfunctional. □ His plan went to pieces. □ All her hopes and ideas went to pieces in that one meeting. 3. Fig. [for someone] to have a mental collapse. □ Poor Jane went to pieces after her divorce. □ Fred went to pieces during the trial.

go to pot and go to the dogs Fig. to go to ruin; to deteriorate. □ My whole life seems to be going to pot. □ My lawn is going to pot. I had better weed it.

go to press [for a publication] to be sent to the printing presses. □ The book went to press last week. We expect finished books by the first of the month. □ The book you want to order hasn't even gone to press yet.

go to press with something [for someone] to cause something to be printed. □ The columnist went to press with the rumor without checking any of her usual sources. □ We are going to press with a series of books on textiles.

go to rack and ruin and go to wrack and ruin to become ruined. (The words rack and wrack mean “wreckage” and are found only in this expression.) □ That lovely old house on the corner is going to go to rack and ruin. □ My lawn is going to wrack and ruin.

go to sea to become a sailor. □ I went to sea at an early age. □ When I get older, I'm going to go to sea too.

go to seed 1. and run to seed Lit. [for a plant] to grow long enough to produce seed; [for a plant] to spend its energy going to seed. □ The lettuce went to seed and we couldn't eat it. □ Plants like that ought not to be allowed to go to seed. 2. and run to seed Fig. [for a lawn or a plant] to produce seeds because it has not had proper care. □ You've got to mow the grass. It's going to seed. □ Don't let the lawn go to seed. It looks so—seedy! 3. Fig. [for something] to decline in looks, status, or utility due to lack of care. (The same as run to seed.) □ This old coat is going to seed. Have to get a new one. □ The front of the house is going to seed. Let's get it painted.

go to someone (about someone or something) to discuss one's problems with someone or something with someone else. □ I went to the boss about the new secretary. □ This is a real problem. I'll have to go to the manager.

go to someone or something to travel to or toward someone or something. □ We went to her as soon as she called saying she needed us. □ Are you going to the bank?

go to someone's head 1. Fig. [for something, such as fame or success] to make someone conceited. □ Don't let all this praise go to your head. □ Too much success will go to her head. 2. Fig. [for alcohol] to affect someone's brain. □ That last glass of champagne went right to her head. □ Any kind of liquor goes to my head.

go to the bathroom 1. Fig. Euph. to go into and use a restroom, bathroom, or toilet. □ Bill: Where is Bob? Jane: He went to the bathroom. □ John went to the bathroom to brush his teeth. 2. Fig. Euph. to eliminate bodily wastes. □ Mommy! The dog went to the bathroom on the carpet! □ Billy's in there going to the bathroom. Don't disturb him.

go to the bother (of doing something) Go to go to the trouble (of doing something).

go to the crux of the matter Go to the crux of the matter.

go to (the devil) Go to go to hell.

go to the dogs Go to go to pot.

go to the expense (of doing something) to pay the (large) cost of doing something. □ I hate to have to go to the expense of painting the house. □ It needs to be done, so you'll have to go to the expense.

go to the heart of the matter Go to the crux of the matter.

go to the lavatory Euph. to go into a restroom and use a toilet. □ Bob requested to leave the room to go to the lavatory. □ Please stop the car. I have to go to the lavatory.

go to the limit to do as much as is possible to do. □ Okay, we can't afford it, but we'll go to the limit. □ How far shall I go? Shall I go to the limit?

go to the polls to go to a place to vote; to vote. □ What day do we go to the polls? □ Our community goes to the polls in November.

go to the root of the matter Go to the crux of the matter.

go to the toilet Fig. Euph. to use a toilet for defecation or urination. □ Jimmy washed his hands after he went to the toilet. □ Excuse me, I have to go to the toilet.

go to the trouble (of doing something) and go to the trouble (to do something); go to the bother (of doing something); go to the bother (to do something) to endure the effort or bother of doing something. □ I really don't want to go to the trouble to cook. □ Should I go to the bother of cooking something for her to eat? □ Don't go to the trouble. She can eat a sandwich.

go to the wall (on something) to take on great risk or to hold out to the very last on some issue. (See also push someone to the wall.) □ I will go to the wall on this point. □ This is a very important matter and I will go to the wall if necessary.

go to town 1. Lit. to travel into town or a city. □ I have to go to town today. 2. Fig. to work hard or very effectively. □ Look at all those ants working. They are really going to town. □ Come on, you guys. Let's go to town. We have to finish this job before noon.

go to trial [for a case] to go into court to be tried. □ When will this case go to trial? □ We go to trial next Monday.

go to war (over someone or something) to wage a war over someone or something. (Often an exaggeration.) □ We aren't going to go to war over this, are we? □ Do you want to go to war over Sarah? Is she that important to you?

go to waste [for something] to be wasted; to be unused (and therefore thrown away). □ Eat your potatoes! Don't let them go to waste. □ We shouldn't let all those nice herbs go to waste. Let's pick some before the first hard frost.

go to work (on someone or something) to begin working on someone or something. □ The masons went to work on repairing the wall. □ The surgeons went to work on the patient. □ Come on! Let's go to work!

go to wrack and ruin Go to go to rack and ruin.

Go to your room! Go to On your bike!

go together 1. Lit. [for two or more things] to look, sound, or taste good together. □ Do you think that this pink one and this purple one go together? □ Milk and grapefruit don't go together. 2. Fig. [for two people] to date each other regularly. □ Bob and Ann have been going together for months. □ Tom and Jane want to go together, but they live too far apart.

go too far to do more than is acceptable. □ I didn't mind at first, but now you've gone too far. □ If you go too far, I'll slap you.

go toward someone or something to move toward someone or something. □ The child went toward the open door. □ The dog went toward the cat and the cat ran away.

go under 1. to sink beneath the surface of the water. □ After capsizing, the ship went under very slowly. □ I was afraid that our canoe would go under in the rapidly moving water. 2. Fig. [for something] to fail. □ The company went under exactly one year after it opened. □ We tried to keep it from going under. 3. Fig. to become unconscious from anesthesia. □ After a few minutes, she went under and the surgeon began to work. □ Tom went under and the operation began.

go under (someone or something) 1. to pass beneath someone or something. □ The boats went under us as we stood on the bridge. □ The boat went under the bridge. 2. to belong beneath someone or something. □ That box goes under the bed. □ All the Christmas presents go under the tree after the children are asleep.

go under the hammer Go to come under the hammer.

go under the knife Fig. to submit to surgery; to have surgery done on oneself. □ She goes under the knife tomorrow for her gallbladder. □ Frank lives in constant fear of having to go under the knife.

go under the name of something [for someone or something] to be known under a particular name. □ Now she goes under the name of Suzanne. □ The man you just met goes under the name of Walter Sampson.

go under the wrecking ball Fig. to be wrecked or torn down. □ That lovely old building finally went under the wrecking ball. □ I hate to see good architecture go under the wrecking ball.

go up [for something] to go higher. □ Gasoline prices are still going up. □ Prices keep going up and up, no matter what.

go up a blind alley Go to up a blind alley.

go up against someone to compete with someone; to face someone in competition. □ She is going up against Rodney in the spelling bee. □ The champ went up against the challenger in a match last Friday.

go up against someone or something Go to up against someone or something.

go up for auction Go to up for auction.

go up in flames and go up in smoke 1. Lit. to burn up completely. □ The entire forest went up in flames! □ The expensive house went up in smoke. 2. Fig. [for value or investment] to be lost suddenly and totally. □ Everything we own has gone up in flames with the stock crash. □ The entire investment went up in smoke.

go up in smoke Go to previous.

go up something to climb up something. □ The monkey went up the tree in no time. □ How fast can you go up this rope?

go up the wall 1. Lit. to climb or run up the wall. □ Look at that silly cat go up the wall! How can its claws hold onto the brick? 2. Fig. to exhibit great frustration, as if trying to climb up a wall. □ I was so upset, I almost went up the wall. □ We went up the wall waiting for you.

go up to someone or something to approach someone or something. □ The temperature will go up to near one hundred today. □ I went up to her and asked her for a match.

go well with someone or something [for something] to proceed nicely for someone or something. □ I hope things are going well with you. □ Things are going very well with the project.

go whole hog to do everything possible; to be extravagant. □ Let's go whole hog. Order steak and lobster. □ Show some restraint. Don't go whole hog all the time.

go wild Fig. to get very excited. □ At the end of the football game, the kick was good and the crowd went wild.

go window-shopping to go about looking at goods in store windows without actually buying anything. □ The office workers go window-shopping on their lunch hour, looking for things to buy when they get paid. □ Joan said she was just going window-shopping, but she bought a new coat.

go with it Go to go with the flow.

go with someone and go steady with someone to have a romantic relationship with someone. (Go steady is dated.) □ Sally has been going with Mark for two months now. □ He wants to go steady with her. He doesn't want her to see other guys.

go with (someone or something) to depart in the company of someone or a group. □ Jim's not here. He went with the last busload. □ I'm leaving now. Do you want to go with?

go with something 1. Lit. to accompany something agreeably. □ Milk doesn't go with grapefruit. □ Pink doesn't go with orange. 2. Fig. to choose something (over something else). □ I think I'll go with the yellow one. □ We decided to go with the oak table rather than the walnut one.

go with the flow and go with it Inf. to cope with adversity; to accept one's lot. □ No, just relax and go with the flow. □ Go with it. Don't fight it.

go with the territory Go to come with the territory.

go with the tide Fig. to move along with the effect of outside forces. □ I just go with the tide. I never fight fate. □ She just goes with the tide, never giving a thought to thinking for herself.

go without and do without to manage while not having any of something that is needed; to not have any of something. □ We were a poor family and usually went without. □ I didn't have enough money to buy a new coat so I did without.

go without (someone or something) to manage without a particular type of person or thing. □ I can't go without a doctor much longer. □ I need a doctor now. I simply can't go without. □ We can go without food for only so long.

go wrong to fail; [for something bad] to happen. □ The project failed. I don't know what went wrong. □ I'm afraid that everything will go wrong.

goad someone into something to urge or coerce someone into doing something. □ Don't try to goad me into it. I just won't do it! □ We goaded Mary into going with us.

goad someone on to urge someone onward, possibly with jeers or challenges; to urge someone to continue. (Usually in this order.) □ The cheering crowd goaded the team on to victory. □ I goaded Jed on to taking the risk.

gobble someone or something up⁺ to eat someone or something completely and rapidly. □ The wolf said that he was going to gobble the little girl up. □ The wolf wanted to gobble up the little pig.

gobble something down⁺ to eat something very fast, swallowing large chunks. □ The dog gobbled the meat down in seconds. □ The cat gobbled down the sardines.

gobble something up⁺ to use up, buy up, or occupy all of something. □ The shoppers gobbled all the sale merchandise up in a few hours. □ They gobbled up everything.

God forbid! and Heaven forbid! a phrase expressing the desire that God would forbid the situation that the speaker has just mentioned from ever happening. □ Tom: It looks like taxes are going up again. Bob: God forbid! □ Bob: Bill was in a car wreck. I hope he wasn't hurt! Sue: God forbid!

God helps them that help themselves. and God helps those who help themselves. Prov. You cannot depend solely on divine help, but must work yourself to get what you want. □ You can't spend your days waiting for a good job to find you. God helps those that help themselves. □ If you want a better education, start studying. God helps those who help themselves.

God only knows! Inf. Only God knows.; No one knows but God. □ Tom: How long is all this going to take? Alice: God only knows! □ Bob: Where are we going to find one hundred thousand dollars? Mary: God only knows!

God rest someone's soul. May God bless a previously mentioned person who has died. □ I remember what my mother, God rest her soul, used to say about that.

God's gift (to women) Fig. a desirable or perfect man. (Usually sarcastic.) □ Tom thinks he's God's gift to women, but if the truth were known, they laugh at him behind his back. □ He acted like he was God's gift and I should be real grateful to be going out with him.

God takes soonest those he loveth best. Prov. Good people often die young. □ The minister told the boy's grieving parents that God takes soonest those he loveth best. □ It may seem to us that Nancy was too young to die, but God takes soonest those he loveth best.

God willing. If God wants it to happen. (An expression indicating that there is a high certainty that something will happen, so high that only God could prevent it.) □ John: Please try to be on time. Alice: I'll be there on time, God willing. □ Bob: Will I see you after your vacation? Mary: Of course, God willing.

God willing and the creek don't rise and Lord willing and the creek don't rise Rur. If all goes well. □ Tom: Will you be able to get the house painted before the cold weather sets in? Jane: Yes, God willing and the creek don't rise. □ We'll be able to visit our daughter for Christmas, Lord willing and the creek don't rise.

God's in his heaven; all's right with the world. Prov. Everything is just as it should be. (Used to express satisfaction, joy, or contentment.) □ Now that my wife has returned from her long trip, God's in his heaven; all's right with the world.

The gods send nuts to those who have no teeth. Prov. People often get good fortune that is no use to them. □ Soon after Melissa lost her hearing, she won season tickets to the symphony. The gods send nuts to those who have no teeth.

goggle at someone or something to stare at someone or something with bulging eyes. □ Don't stand there goggling at me! □ The child stood there and goggled at the newborn lamb.

going, going, gone 1. [in an auction] close to being sold, almost sold, sold. □ Going, going, gone. The new owner is the handsome gentleman in the back row. 2. Fig. disappearing and finally gone. □ The little car is going, going, gone.

going great guns Fig. going fast or energetically. □ I'm over my cold and going great guns. □ Business is great. We are going great guns selling ice cream.

going on happening; occurring. □ What is going on here? □ Something is going on in the center of town. Can you hear the sirens?

the going rate the current rate or the current charges for something. □ The going interest rate for your account is 10 percent. □ Our babysitter charges us the going rate.

going strong functioning well or energetically. □ We are still well and going strong.

going to tattle Go to next.

going to tell and going to tattle a threat that one is going to report someone's misdeed to someone in authority. □ If you do that again, I'm going to tell! □ Sue just went to the teacher. She's going to tattle.

gol dang Go to next.

gol dern and gol dang Rur. God damn.; God-damned. □ Gol dern it, Mary, shut the screen door! Them bugs is gettin' in here in droves. □ The gol dang car's in the shop again.

a gold mine of information Fig. someone or something that is full of information. □ Grandfather is a gold mine of information about World War I. □ The new encyclopedia is a positive gold mine of useful information.

A golden key can open any door. Prov. Sufficient money can accomplish anything. □ Jill: I'm amazed that Sally got into a good university; her grades were so poor. Jane: Well, she comes from a wealthy family, and a golden key can open any door. □ Jane: How did Fred manage to get invited to the party at the country club? It's so exclusive there. Alan: Yes, but a golden key can open any door.

a golden opportunity Fig. an excellent opportunity that is not likely to be repeated. □ When I failed to finish college, I missed my golden opportunity to prepare myself for a good job.

gone but not forgotten Cliché gone or dead and still remembered. □ The good days we used to have together are gone, but not forgotten. □ Uncle Harry is gone but not forgotten. The stain where he spilled the wine is still visible in the parlor carpet.

gone goose someone or something that has departed or run away. □ Surely, the burglar is a gone goose by now. □ The child was a gone goose, and we did not know where to look for him.

gone on Euph. died. □ My husband, Tom—he's gone on, you know—was a great one for golf. □ Let us remember those who have gone on before.

gone to meet one's maker Euph. died. □ Poor old Bob has gone to meet his maker. □ After a long illness, Reggie went to meet his maker.

gone with the wind Fig. gone as if taken away by the wind. (A phrase made famous by the Margaret Mitchell novel and subsequent film Gone with the Wind. The phrase is used to make gone have a stronger force.) □ Everything we worked for was gone with the wind.

a goner a dead or dying creature or person. □ The boy brought the sick fish back to the pet store to get his money back. "This one is a goner," he said. □ John thought he was a goner when his parachute didn't open.

(Good) afternoon. 1. the appropriate greeting for use between noon and supper time. □ Sally: How are you today? Jane: Good afternoon. How are you? Sally: Fine, thank you. □ Bob: Afternoon. Nice to see you. Bill: Good afternoon. How are you? Bob: Fine, thanks. 2. an expression used on departure or for dismissal between noon and supper time. (Meaning "I wish you a good afternoon.") □ Sally: See you later, Bill. Bill: Afternoon. See you later. □ Mary: Nice to see you. Tom: Good afternoon. Take care.

good and something very or completely something. (Something is a state of being.) □ Joe never does anything till he's good and ready. □ Mary's good and mad, all right.

good as done the same as being done; almost done. (*Also: as ~. Many different words can replace done in this phrase, according to context: cooked, dead, finished, painted, typed, etc.) □ This job is as good as done. It'll just take another second. □ Yes, sir, if you hire me to paint your house, it's as good as painted. □ When I hand my secretary a package to be shipped, I know that it's as good as delivered right then and there.

good as gold Cliché very good. (Usually used to describe children. *Also: as ~.) □ Mother: Thank you for taking care of Gretchen; I hope she hasn't been too much trouble. Grandmother: Not at all; she's been as good as gold. □ We knew that Daddy would not read us a bedtime story unless we behaved, so we tried to be good as gold.

good as new Cliché as good as when it was new; as well or as healthy as normal. (*Also: as ~.) □ A little rest and I'll be as good as new.

a good bet Fig. a great likelihood. □ It's a good bet that he will be late because of the rain.

the Good Book the Bible. □ I read some in the Good Book every day. □ Sally's always quoting from the Good Book.

G

The good die young. Prov. Good people tend to die at an early age. □ Marshall's twenty-year-old son died in a car crash; it did not comfort Marshall to think that the good die young. □ Jill: It doesn't seem fair that Laurie is dead. She was such a wonderful person. Jane: They always say that the good die young.

a good egg Fig. a good and dependable person. □ He seems like a good egg. I'll take a chance on him.

Good enough. That's good.; That's adequate. □ Bill: Well, now. How's that? Bob: Good enough. □ Bob: I'll be there about noon. Tom: Good enough. I'll see you then.

good enough for government work Go to close enough for government work.

good enough for someone or something adequate for someone or something. □ This seat is good enough for me. I don't want to move. □ I'm happy. It's good enough for me. □ That table is good enough for my office.

(Good) evening. 1. the appropriate greeting for use between supper time and the time of taking leave for the night or by midnight. (Compare this with Good night.) □ Bob: Good evening, Mary. How are you? Mary: Evening, Bob. Nice to see you. □ "Good evening," said each of the guests as they passed by Mr. and Mrs. Franklin. 2. the appropriate phrase used for leave-taking between supper time and before the time of final leave-taking to go to bed. □ Mary: Let's call it a day. See you tomorrow, Bill. Bill: Yes, it's been a long and productive day. Good evening, Mary. □ Bob: Nice seeing you, Mr. Wilson. Mr. Wilson: Good evening, Bob.

Good fences make good neighbors. Prov. It is easier to be friendly with your neighbor if neither of you trespasses upon the other's property or privacy. □ Jane: The guy next door is letting his party guests wander across our lawn again. Alan: I guess we'll have to build a fence there. Good fences make good neighbors, like they say.

good for what ails you Rur. able to cure any problem or illness. (Usually used to describe food or liquor.) □ Have a sip of this whiskey. It's good for what ails you. □ Sally's beef broth is good for what ails you.

Good for you! a complimentary expression of encouragement for something that someone has done or received. □ Sue: I just got a raise. Bill: Good for you! □ Jane: I really told him what I thought of his rotten behavior. Sue: Good for you! He needs it.

Good going! Go to Nice going!

Good golly, Miss Molly! Inf. Good grief!; Wow! □ Good golly, Miss Molly! This place is a mess! □ Good golly, Miss Molly, that's awful!

a (good) grasp of something Go to a (solid) grasp of something.

Good grief! Inf. an exclamation of surprise, shock, or amazement. □ Alice: Good grief! I'm late! Mary: That clock's fast. You're probably okay on time. □ Bill: There are seven newborn kittens under the sofa! Jane: Good grief!

(Good) heavens! Inf. an exclamation of surprise, shock, or amazement. (See also (My) heavens!) □ John: Good heavens! Look at that diamond ring she has! Bill: I bet it's not real. □ Jane: Ouch! John: Good heavens! What happened? Jane: I just stubbed my toe.

A good husband makes a good wife. and A good Jack makes a good Jill. Prov. If a husband or man wants his wife or girlfriend to be respectful and loving to him, he should be respectful and loving to her. □ Don't blame your wife for being short-tempered with you; you've been so unpleasant to her lately. A good husband makes a good wife.

The good is the enemy of the best. Prov. Instead of making things the best that they can, people often settle for making them merely good. □ Mother: Aren't you going to rewrite your paper? Child: Why? It's good enough. Mother: The good is the enemy of the best.

A good Jack makes a good Jill. Go to A good husband makes a good wife.

Good job! Go to Nice going!

Good luck! 1. a wish of good luck to someone. □ Mary: I have my recital tonight. Jane: I know you'll do well. Good luck! □ Sally: I hear you're leaving for your new job tomorrow morning. Bob: That's right. Sally: Well, good luck! 2. You will certainly need luck, but it probably will not work. (Sarcastic.) □ Bill: I'm going to try to get this tax bill lowered. Sue: Good luck! □ Bill: I'm sure I can get this cheaper at another store. Clerk: Good luck!

A good man is hard to find. Go to Good men are scarce.

a good many quite a few. □ I have a good many kinfolk in Texas. □ Mary owns a good many acres of land.

Good men are scarce. and A good man is hard to find. Prov. Men who make good husbands or workers are rare. □ Larry is the best employee I've ever had, and I'll go to a good deal of effort to keep him, because good men are scarce. □ "I think you should marry John," Sue advised her daughter. "He's a good man, and a good man is hard to find."

(Good) morning. the standard greeting phrase used any time between midnight and noon. □ Bob: Good morning. Bill: Good morning, Bob. You sure get up early!

(Good) night. 1. the appropriate departure phrase for leave-taking after dark. (This assumes that the speakers will not see one another until morning at the earliest. Night alone is familiar.) □ John: Bye, Alice. Alice: Night. See you tomorrow. □ Bill: Good night, Mary. Mary: Night, Bill. 2. the appropriate phrase for wishing someone a good night's sleep. □ Father: Good night, Bill. Bill: Night, Pop. □ Father: Good night. Mother: Good night.

good old boy and good ole boy Rur. a good guy; a dependable companion. □ Old Tom is a good old boy. He'll help. □ One of these good ole boys will give you a hand.

the good old days back in an earlier time which everyone remembers as a better time, even if it really wasn't. □ Back in the good old days, during World War I, they used real cactus needles in record players. □ The good old days didn't start until they had indoor bathrooms.

good riddance (to bad rubbish) Cliché [It is] good to be rid (of worthless persons or things). (See also Good-bye and good riddance.) □ She slammed the door behind me and said, "Good riddance to bad rubbish!" □ "Good riddance to you, madam," thought I.

Good seed makes a good crop. Prov. Starting with good materials will help you get good results. □ Jill: Elsie and Jim are going to have a baby. Jane: I'm sure it will be a good child, since they're both such good people. Good seed makes a good crop. □ I am sure Robert's business will flourish. He's capable and honest, and good seed makes a good crop.

a good sport someone who can accept a loss in a competition or can accept being the butt of a joke. □ Bob is usually a good sport, but this time he didn't seem to appreciate your joke.

Good things come in small packages. Go to The best things come in small packages.

Good things come to him who waits. and Everything comes to him who waits. Prov. If you are patient you will get what you want. □ Fred: Why is it taking you so long to get dinner ready? Can't you hurry up? Ellen: Good things come to him who waits. □ Jill: I wish our train would get here. Jane: Everything comes to her who waits.

A good time was had by all. Cliché Everyone had a good time. □ Jill: How was the party? Jane: A good time was had by all. □ After seeing the movie, the ten of us went out for ice cream, and a good time was had by all.

good to go Inf. all ready to go; all checked and pronounced ready to go. □ I've checked everything and we are good to go. □ Everything's good to go and we will start immediately.

*a (good) working over a good scolding. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ The boss gave me a good working over before firing me. □ She got a working over about her performance on the project.

Good-bye and good riddance. Cliché a phrase marking the departure of someone or something unwanted. □ Fred: Supposing I was to just walk out of here, just like that? Mary: I'd say good-bye and good riddance. □ As the garbage truck drove away, carrying the drab old chair that Mary hated so much, she said, "Good-bye and good riddance."

Good-bye for now. and (Good-bye) until next time.; Till next time.; Bye for now.; Till we meet again.; Until we meet again. Good-bye, I'll see you soon.; Good-bye, I'll see you next time. (Often said by the host at the end of a radio or television program.) □ Alice: See you later. Good-bye for now. John: Bye, Alice. □ Mary: See you later. Bob: Good-bye for now. □ The host of the talk show always closed by saying, "Good-bye until next time. This is Wally Ott, signing off."

(Good-bye) until then. and (Good-bye) till then.; (Good-bye) till later.; (Good-bye) until later. Good-bye until sometime in the future. □ Sally: See you tomorrow. Good-bye until then. Sue: Sure thing. See you. □ Mary: See you later. Bob: Until later. □ The announcer always ended by saying, "Be with us again next week at this time. Good-bye until then."

*the goods on someone something potentially damaging or embarrassing about someone. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ John beat me unfairly in tennis, but I'll get even. I'll get the goods on him and his cheating. □ The authorities are going to get the goods on Mr. Smith. He has been selling worthless land again.

goof around to act silly. □ The kids were all goofing around, waiting for the bus. □ Stop goofing around!

goof off to waste time. □ John is always goofing off. □ Quit goofing off and get to work!

goof on someone Inf. to tease or kid someone. □ I don't believe you. I think you're just goofing on me.

goof someone or something up† Inf. to mess someone or something up; to ruin someone's plans; to make something nonfunctional. □ Who goofed this machine up? Who goofed up the machine?

goof up (on something) Inf. to make an error with something; to blunder while doing something. □ Please don't goof up on this job. □ If you goof up one more time, you're finished.

goofed (up) 1. Inf. messed up; out of order. □ All my papers are goofed up. □ *Everything on my desk is goofed. Who's been here? 2. Inf. confused; distraught. □ I'm sort of goofed up today. I think I'm coming down with something. □ *I was up too late last night, and now I'm all goofed up.

goose bumps and goose pimples Fig. a prickly feeling related to having bumps on one's skin due to fear, excitement, or cold. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ When I hear that old song, I get goose bumps. □ I never have goose pimples, but my teeth chatter when it's cold.

goose egg 1. Fig. a raised bump on the skull as when one's head has been struck. □ *I walked into the edge of the door and got a terrible goose egg. 2. Fig. in a sports score, zero. □ *At the end of the game there was nothing but goose eggs next to our name.

goose pimples Go to goose bumps.

gorge oneself on something and gorge oneself with something to eat something to the point of fullness. □ Don't gorge yourself on the snacks. Dinner is in ten minutes. □ You have gorged yourself with cheese! No wonder you're not hungry. □ Claire gorged herself on the doughnuts that Fred bought.

gorge someone or something with something to fill someone or something by eating something. □ She gorged the dog with canned food. □ The puppy gorged itself with all the hamburger Paul had set out to thaw.

gorked (out) Sl. heavily sedated; knocked out. □ Once the patient was gorked, he was more cooperative. □ The guy in Room 226 is totally gorked out now.

the gospel truth Fig. the undeniable truth. □ The witness swore he was telling the gospel truth. □ I told my parents the gospel truth about how the vase broke.

gossip about someone or something to talk maliciously about someone or something. □ Who are you gossiping about now? □ They are gossiping about what happened last weekend.

got to fly Go to I've got to fly.

gotta get up pretty early in the morning to do something Rur. it would be difficult to do something (specified) because of the ability or quality involved. □ You gotta get up pretty early in the morning to cheat Bill Johnson. He's a sharp businessman for sure. □ You gotta get up pretty early in the morning to know your Bible better than Preacher Harris.

gouge something out[†] Go to gouge something out of something.

gouge something out of someone to cheat someone out of something. (Compare this with chisel something out of someone.) □ They gouged the money out of the old man. □ The crooks gouged the life savings out of the old lady.

gouge something out of something and gouge something out[†] to scoop or chisel something out of something. □ Tom gouged a horrible furrow out of the wood of the piano bench. □ He gouged out a horrible scratch.

Governments have long arms. Go to Kings have long arms.

grab a bite (to eat) Go to a bite (to eat).

grab a chair and grab a seat Fig. to quickly sit down in a seat. □ Grab a chair and join the group!

grab a seat Go to previous.

grab at someone or something and grab for someone or something to grasp quickly at someone or something; to try to seize someone or something. □ He grabbed at me, but I got away unscathed. □ I grabbed at the rope, but missed. □ The teacher grabbed for the little boy and held him.

grab for someone or something Go to previous.

grab on(to someone or something) to grasp someone or something; to hold onto someone or something. □ Here, grab onto this rope! □ Grab on and hold tight.

grab someone or something away[†] (from someone or something) to snatch someone or something away from someone or something. □ Harry's aunt grabbed the dirty candy away from him before he got it in his mouth. □ I grabbed away the meat from the dog.

grab someone's attention and get someone's attention; grip someone's attention Fig. to draw or attract someone's attention. □ The bright colors on the poster are there to grab your attention. □ The scary movie gripped my attention.

grace someone or something with one's presence Fig. to honor someone or something with one's presence. □ "How nice of you to grace us with your presence," Mr. Wilson told Mary sarcastically as she entered the classroom late.

□ The banquet was graced with the presence of the governor.

grace something with something Fig. to adorn something or some place with something, especially a person's presence. □ The lovely lady graced our home with her presence. □ The stage was graced with flowers and a few palm trees.

graced with something made elegant by means of some ornament or decoration. □ The altar was graced with lovely white flowers. □ The end of the beautiful day was graced with a beautiful sunset.

graceful as a swan very graceful. (*Also: as ~.) □ The boat glided out onto the lake as graceful as a swan. □ Jane is graceful as a swan.

a gracious plenty and an elegant sufficiency Euph. enough (food). □ No more, thanks. I have a gracious plenty on my plate. □ At Thanksgiving, we always have an elegant sufficiency and are mighty thankful for it.

grade someone down (on something) to give someone a low ranking, rating, or score on some performance. □ I had to grade you down on your essay because of your spelling. □ Please don't grade me down for a minor mistake.

graduate (from something) to earn and receive a degree from an educational institution. □ I graduated from a large midwestern university. □ Bill intends to graduate in the spring.

graduate (in something) (with something) to earn a degree in some subject with honors, etc. □ I graduated in math with highest honors. □ Sharon graduated with honors in medicine.

graft something on(to) something and graft something on[†] to splice a living part onto another living part. □ The gardener grafted a red rose onto the stem of another species. □ The gardener grafted on a red rose.

a grain of truth even the smallest amount of truth. □ The attorney was unable to find a grain of truth in the defendant's testimony. □ If there were a grain of truth to your statement, I would trust you.

the granddaddy of them all Go to the daddy of them all.

a grandfather clause a clause in an agreement that protects certain rights granted in the past even when conditions change in the future. □ The contract contained a grandfather clause that protected my pension payments against claims such as might arise from a future lawsuit.

grandfather someone or something in[†] to protect someone or a right through the use of a grandfather clause. □ My payments were grandfathered in years ago.

grant someone no quarter and give someone no quarter Fig. not to allow someone any mercy or indulgence. (Originally meant to refuse to imprison and simply to kill one's prisoner.) □ The professor was harsh on lazy students. During class, he granted them no quarter.

grant something to someone to give or award something to someone. □ The foundation granted a large sum of money to Jane for her research. □ They granted an award to Kelly.

graph something out[†] to draw a graph of something. □ Please take this data and graph it out. □ Graph out this data, please.

grapple (with someone) (for something) to fight or scuffle with someone to get hold of something. □ The cop grappled with the thief for the gun. □ He grappled for the gun with Max.

grapple with something Fig. to deal with a problem; to get a “good hold” on a problem. □ I have enough to grapple with now. No more problems, please. □ I cannot grapple with any additional problems.

grasp at someone or something to try to seize someone or something. □ He grasped at the bar and held on tight. □ The beggar grasped at the pedestrian and lost his grip.

grasp someone or something by something to hold onto someone or something by something. □ He grasped his friend by the hand and pulled him to safety. □ Sharon grasped the dog by its collar and held on tight.

grasping at straws Fig. to depend on something that is useless; to make a futile attempt at something. □ John couldn't answer the teacher's question. He was just grasping at straws. □ There I was, grasping at straws, with no one to help me.

The grass is always greener on the other side (of the fence). Prov. People always think they would be happier in a different set of circumstances. (Usually implies that the other circumstances really are not any better.) □ Jill: My job is so tedious. I wish I had my own business, like Beatrice does. Jane: Beatrice probably wishes she had the security of her old job. The grass is always greener on the other side of the fence.

grass widow a woman abandoned by her husband. (The origin of this is not clear.) □ Jane's husband isn't dead, but she's a widow just the same—a grass widow. □ Bill ran off and left Mary a grass widow.

grate on someone to annoy someone; to rub someone the wrong way. □ Your negative attitude really grates on me. □ Everything you say grates on me.

grate on someone(s) nerves Fig. to annoy someone; to bother someone. □ My obnoxious brother is grating on my nerves. □ Your whining really grates on me.

grate on something to rub, scrape, or abrade something. □ The tree branch is grating on the side of the house. □ The bottom of the door is grating on the threshold. Please fix it.

gratify someone's desires Euph. to have sex with someone. □ The prostitute promised to gratify her customer's desires. □ That night, he gratified her desires.

gravitate to(ward) someone or something Fig. to move slowly toward someone or something, as if being pulled by gravity. □ People tend to gravitate toward the kitchen at parties. □ Unless you correct their manners, the children will gravitate toward rude behavior.

a gray area Fig. an area of a subject or question that is difficult to put into a particular category because it is not clearly defined and may have connections or associations with more than one category. □ The responsibility for social studies in the college is a gray area. Several departments are involved. □ Publicity is a gray area in that firm. It is shared between the marketing and design divisions.

gray hair(s) 1. Lit. a lightening of the hair caused by aging or hereditary factors. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I get more gray hair the older I get. □ I guess my genes give me gray hair. 2. Fig. a lightening of the hair caused by stress or frustration. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I'm getting gray hairs because I have three teenage boys. □ I have gray hair from raising four kids.

gray matter Fig. intelligence; brains; power of thought. □ Use your gray matter and think what will happen if the committee resigns. □ Surely they'll come up with an acceptable solution if they use some gray matter.

graze against someone or something to brush or scrape against someone or something. □ The car grazed against the side of the truck. □ I grazed against an old man as I was jogging this morning.

graze on something 1. [for animals] to browse or forage in a particular location. □ The cattle are grazing on the neighbor's land. □ I wish they wouldn't graze on other people's land. 2. [for animals] to browse or forage, eating something in particular. □ The deer are grazing on my carrots! □ The cows were grazing on the meadow grasses for weeks.

grease someone's palm and oil someone's palm Fig. to bribe someone. □ If you want to get something done around here, you have to grease someone's palm. □ I'd never oil a police officer's palm. That's illegal.

grease the skids Fig. to help prepare for or ease the way for the success or failure of someone or something. □ Ray set out to grease the skids for the right things to happen. □ We need someone to grease the skids for the Wilson contract.

a greasy spoon Fig. a cheap diner, where the silverware might not be too clean. □ The corner greasy spoon is always busy at lunchtime.

Great balls of fire! Inf. Good heavens!; Wow! □ Mary got up to play the fiddle, and great balls of fire! That girl can play! □ Tom: Will you marry me? Jane: Yes, I will. Tom: Great balls of fire! I'm the happiest man on earth.

the great beyond Euph. life after death. □ The fortune-teller claimed to get messages from the great beyond. □ I often think of my loved ones in the great beyond, and long for the day I will see them again.

Great day (in the morning)! Rur. My goodness! (An exclamation of surprise.) □ Great day in the morning! I didn't expect to see you here. □ Great day! That thunder sure is loud!

a great deal much; a lot. □ You can learn a great deal about nature by watching television. □ This is a serious problem and it worries me a great deal.

Great minds think alike. Prov. Very intelligent people tend to come up with the same ideas at the same time. (Used playfully, to commend someone for expressing the same thing you were thinking of; implies that you are congratulating that person for being as smart as you are. Also Great minds run in the same gutters, a casual and jocular variant.) □ Jill: Let's ride our bikes to the store instead of walking. Jane: I was just thinking we should do that, too. Jill: Great minds think alike.

Great oaks from little acorns grow. and Mighty oaks from little acorns grow. Prov. Immense things can come from small sources. □ Don't tell lies, not even small ones. Great oaks from little acorns grow.

Great Scott! Inf. an exclamation of shock or surprise. □ “Great Scott! You bought a truck!” shrieked Mary. □ Fred:

The water heater just exploded! Bill: Great Scott! What do we do now? Fred: Looks like cold showers for a while.

the great unwashed Fig. the general public; the lower middle class. □ The Simpsons had a tall iron fence around their mansion—put there to discourage the great unwashed from wandering up to the door by mistake, I suppose. □ Maw says the great unwashed don't know enough to come in out of the rain.

The greater the truth, the greater the libel. Prov. It is more offensive to say something damaging and true about someone than it is to tell a damaging lie. □ Jill: Fred's really upset. Someone's started a rumor that he's unfaithful to his wife. Jane: But it's true. Jill: Yeah, but the greater the truth, the greater the libel.

the greatest thing since indoor plumbing and the greatest thing since sliced bread Rur. the most wonderful invention or useful item in a long time. □ As far as I'm concerned, this new food processor is the greatest thing since indoor plumbing. □ Joe thinks Sally is the greatest thing since sliced bread. You can tell just by the way he looks at her.

the greatest thing since sliced bread Go to previous.

Greek to someone incomprehensible to someone; as mysterious as Greek writing. □ I don't understand this. It's all Greek to me. □ She said it was Greek to her, and that it made no sense at all.

green around the gills Go to pale around the gills.

green as grass very green. (*Also: as ~.) □ His face turned as green as grass just before he vomited.

green stuff Fig. money; U.S. paper money. □ I've run out of green stuff. Can you loan me a few bucks?

green with envy Fig. appearing jealous; appearing envious. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ My new car made my neighbor green with envy. □ Bill was green with envy that I won first place.

greet someone or something with something to welcome someone or something with something; to accost someone or something with something upon arrival. □ I greeted her with a large bouquet of roses. □ The sun greeted the day with bright rays of light.

Greetings and felicitations! and Greetings and salutations! Hello and good wishes. (A bit stilted.) □ "Greetings and felicitations! Welcome to our talent show!" said the master of ceremonies. □ Bill: Greetings and salutations, Bob! Bob: Come off it, Bill. Can't you just say "Hi" or something?

grieve for someone or something to mourn for someone or something. □ Don't grieve for me. I'm okay. □ She grieved for her lost chances.

grieve over someone or something to lament and pine for someone or something. □ Now, don't grieve over a lost cat. □ There is no reason to continue grieving over him.

the grim reaper Fig. death. □ I think I have a few years to go yet before the grim reaper pays me a call.

grin and bear it Fig. to endure something unpleasant in good humor. □ There is nothing you can do but grin and bear it. □ I hate having to work for rude people. I guess I have to grin and bear it.

grin at someone or something 1. to smile a beaming smile at someone or something. □ The entire class grinned at the camera. □ I grinned at her and she turned away quickly.

2. to smile a beaming smile at the thought of, or mental picture of, someone or something. □ He grinned at the thought of his coming home to his family. □ He grinned at her as she gazed upon the diamond ring he had given her.

grin from ear to ear Fig. to smile a very wide, beaming smile. □ She was grinning from ear to ear as she accepted the prize. □ We knew Timmy was happy because he was grinning from ear to ear.

grind away (at someone) Fig. to needle, criticize, and nag someone continually. □ Why are you always grinding away at me? □ Leave me alone. Stop grinding away!

grind away (at something) to crush something into particles continually. □ The machine ground away at the rocks, making tons of gravel. □ It ground away, making a terrible noise in the process.

grind on Fig. [for something] to drag on endlessly. □ The hours ground on without anything happening. I was so tired of waiting. □ The lecture ground on, minute after minute.

grind someone down[†] Fig. to wear someone down by constant requests; to wear someone down by constant nagging. □ If you think you can grind me down by bothering me all the time, you are wrong. □ The constant nagging ground down the employees at last.

grind something away[†] to remove something by grinding. □ Grind the bumps away and make the wall smooth. □ Please grind away the bumps.

grind something down[†] to make something smooth or even by grinding. □ Grind this down to make it smooth. □ Please grind down this rough spot.

grind something into something 1. to pulverize something into powder, grit, particles, etc. □ The machine ground the rocks into gravel. □ The mill ground the grain into flour.

2. and grind something in[†] to crush or rub something into something. □ People's feet ground the cigarette ashes into the carpet. □ Their feet ground in the ashes.

grind something out[†] 1. Lit. to produce something by grinding. □ Working hard, he ground the powder out, a cup at a time. □ He ground out the powder, a cup at a time.

2. Fig. to produce something in a mechanical or perfunctory manner. □ The factory just keeps grinding these toys out, day after day. □ The machine grinds out the same part by the hundreds all day long.

grind something to something to keep grinding something until it is something. □ I ground the fennel seeds to a powder and threw them in the simmering sauce. □ The wheels of the cars, trucks, and buses had ground the football to a broken mass.

grind something together to rub things together. □ Stop grinding your teeth together. □ The stones ground together as we drove over them.

grind something up[†] to pulverize or crush something by crushing, rubbing, or abrasion. □ Please grind the fennel seeds up. □ Grind up the fennel seeds and sprinkle them on the top.

grind to a halt Fig. to slow down and stop. □ Every day about noon, traffic in town grinds to a halt. □ The bus ground to a halt at the corner and someone got off.

*a grip on oneself Fig. control of one's emotions. (*Typically: get ~; have ~.) □ Calm down, man! Get a grip on yourself! □ I encouraged him to get a grip on himself.

*a grip on something 1. and *a hold on something Lit. a good grasp on something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Try to get a grip on the ropes and pull yourself up. □ You should get a hold on the knob and turn it firmly. 2. Fig. a thorough knowledge of some topic. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I need to have a grip on the basics of accounting. □ Try to get a hold on all the facts first.

grip someone's attention Go to grab someone's attention.

gripe at someone to complain to someone. □ Stop griping at me! □ There is no need to gripe at your little brother.

gripe one's soul Inf. to annoy someone. □ That kind of thing really gripes my soul! □ John, have I ever told you that you gripe my soul?

gripe (to someone or something) (about someone or something) to make specific complaints to someone about someone or something. □ Don't gripe to me about what she said to you! □ There is no need to gripe about the job to everyone.

grist for the mill and grist for someone's mill; grist to the mill Fig. something useful or needed. □ Bob bases the novels he writes on his own experience, so everything that happens to him is grist for the mill. □ Ever since I started making patchwork quilts, every scrap of cloth I find is grist for the mill.

grit one's teeth Fig. to grind or clench one's teeth together in anger or determination. □ I was so mad, all I could do was stand there and grit my teeth. □ All through the race, Sally was gritting her teeth. She was really determined.

groan about someone or something to complain about someone or something. □ What are you groaning about? □ She is groaning about her work.

groan something out^t to say something with a groan. □ He groaned the name out. □ He groaned out the name of his assailant before he passed out.

groan under something 1. Lit. to groan while bearing a heavy burden. □ He groaned under the weight of the trunk. □ The rafters groaned under the heavy weight of the pianos. 2. Fig. to suffer under a burden. □ For years, the people had groaned under the cruel ruler. □ England groaned under the rule of Cromwell just as he had groaned under King Charles.

groan with something to groan because of something, such as pain. □ She groaned with pain, but no one helped her. □ I think the old man was groaning with boredom more than anything else.

gronk (out) Sl. to conk out; to crash, as with a car or a computer. □ My car gronked out on the way to work this morning. □ The program gronks every time I start to run it.

groom someone as something to prepare someone for a job or position. □ He was grooming his son as his successor. □ They groomed Charles as the next treasurer.

groom someone for something to prepare someone for something; to prepare someone to be someone. □ The boss is grooming his son for the presidency of the company. □ They are grooming the vice president for the top position.

groove on someone or something to show interest in someone or something; to relate to someone or something. □ Fred was beginning to groove on new age music when he met Phil. □ Sam is really grooving on Mary.

grope (about) (for someone or something) and grope (around) (for someone or something) to feel around blindly for someone or something. □ In the darkness, he groped about for his glasses. □ Fran groped for the light switch and found it.

grope after someone or something to reach for a departing or fleeing person or thing awkwardly or ineffectually. □ The feeble hand groped after the departing form. □ I groped after the cat as it ran under the bed.

grope (around) (for someone or something) Go to grope (about) (for someone or something).

grope at someone or something to reach for someone or something blindly. □ She groped feebly at the form she could hardly see. □ Sharon groped at Frank as he ran out to get the doctor.

gross someone out^t to disgust someone. □ Those horrible pictures just gross me out. □ Jim's story totally grossed out Sally.

ground someone in something Fig. to instruct someone in an area of knowledge. □ We grounded all our children in the basics of home cooking. □ We were all grounded in basic cooking by the time we were six.

ground something on something Fig. to build a firm basis for something on something else. □ He grounded his thinking on his detailed research. □ His thinking was grounded on years of reading.

grounded in (actual) fact Fig. based on facts. □ This movie is grounded in fact. □ The stories in this book are all grounded in actual fact.

grounds for something the basis or cause for legal action such as a lawsuit. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ Your negligence is grounds for a lawsuit. □ Is infidelity grounds for divorce in this state?

group someone or something around someone or something to gather people or things around people or things. □ The photographer grouped the wedding party around the bride for the picture. □ The photographer then grouped them around the cake.

group someone or something together to gather people or things together. □ Try to group all the smokers together at one table. □ Steve grouped all the dictionaries together.

group something under something to classify something under some category. □ They have now grouped the fungi under their own families. □ We should group all the older ones under a separate category.

grouse about someone or something to complain about someone or something. □ What are you grouching about now? □ I am grouching about your carelessness!

grouse at someone or an animal Fig. to criticize someone or an animal directly to the person or animal. □ Stop grouching at me! □ Sharon is grouching at the cat again.

grovel (about) in something to wallow around in the dirt, etc., while prostrating oneself. □ The poor fellow groveled about in the mud, trying to keep from being beaten. □ Why are you there, groveling in the dust?

grovel before someone or something to prostrate oneself before someone or something. □ The prisoner groveled before his accusers. □ The peasant groveled before the lord of the manor.

grovel to someone to kneel in deference to someone; to kowtow to someone. □ You don't have to grovel to me! □ I refuse to grovel to anyone.

grow accustomed to doing something Go to accustomed to doing something.

grow accustomed to someone or something Go to accustomed to someone or something.

grow apart (from someone or something) 1. Lit. [for things] to separate as they grow. □ These trees tend to grow apart from each other as they get bigger. □ They need to grow apart so they won't be too crowded. 2. Fig. [for people] to separate from one another gradually. □ Over the years, they grew apart from each other. □ Ted and Sharon grew apart and saw less and less of each other.

grow away from someone [for someone] to become less intimate with someone; [for someone] to become independent of someone gradually. □ She has grown away from her husband over the years. □ We expect our children to grow away from us.

grow away from something [for something] to move away from something as it grows. □ The tree grew away from the house—thank heavens. □ See if you can train the vine to grow away from the fence.

grow back [for something that has come off] to grow back again. (Includes parts of plants and some animals, fingernails, toenails, etc.) □ The lizard's tail grew back in a few months. □ The leaves will grow back in a month or so.

grow disgusted at someone or something Go to disgusted at someone or something.

grow disgusted with someone or something Go to disgusted with someone or something.

grow dissatisfied with someone or something Go to dissatisfied with someone or something.

grow down (into something) [for roots] to penetrate downward as they grow. □ The young roots grew down into the rich soil. □ The roots grew down and drew up the precious water.

grow from something to develop and grow from a seed, bulb, corm, etc. □ This huge tree grew from a little seed. □ What kind of plant grows from this bulb?

grow in something 1. [for someone] to increase in some quality, such as wisdom, strength, stature, etc. □ As I got older, I was supposed to grow in wisdom and other good things. □ Sam grew in strength as he got over the disease. 2. [for a plant] to develop or flourish in something or some place. □ These plants grow in rich soil with moderate moisture. □ They will grow well in this soil.

grow into something 1. Lit. [for a child] to develop into a particular type of person. □ The child grew into a tall, powerful athlete. □ I hope I have grown into a person my parents can be proud of. 2. Lit. [for a plant] to develop into a mature specimen of its species. □ This twig will grow into an oak tree. □ I hope this seedling grows into a fine mango tree. 3. Lit. [for a plant, tumor, toenail] to penetrate into something as it grows. □ The roots of the tree grew into our sewer line. □ Try to keep the tree roots from growing into the foundation. 4. Lit. to grow enough to fit into something. □ The shirt is a little large, but Timmy will grow into it. □ My shoes are too big, but I will grow into them. 5. Fig. [for a situation or a problem] to develop into something more serious. □ I hope this matter doesn't grow into something worse. □ This business is growing into a real crisis.

grow knee-high by the 4th of July Go to knee-high by the 4th of July.

grow on someone 1. Lit. [for a fungus, tumor, parasite, etc.] to live and grow on someone's skin. □ I've got this stuff growing on me and I want to get rid of it. □ Is that an ink stain or is something growing on you? 2. Fig. [for something] to become familiar to and desired by someone; [for something] to become habitual for someone. □ This kind of music grows on you after a while. □ Kenneth sort of grows on you after a while.

grow out [for something that has been cut back] to regrow. □ Don't worry, your hair will grow out again. □ Will the grass grow out again, do you think?

grow out of (all) proportion Go to out of (all) proportion.

grow out of something 1. Lit. to develop and grow outward from something. □ Soft green shoots grew out of the trunk of the tree. □ A bush grew out of the gutter and hung down the front of the house. 2. Lit. to age out of something; to outgrow something; to abandon something as one matures. □ Finally, Ted grew out of his bedwetting. □ Haven't you grown out of your fear of the dark yet? 3. Lit. to grow so much that some article of clothing does not fit. □ Timmy's getting so tall that he's grown out of all his clothes. □ He grew out of his suit, and he's only worn it three times. 4. Fig. [for a problem] to develop from something less serious. □ This whole matter grew out of your failure to let the cat out last night. □ A big argument has grown out of a tiny disagreement!

grow over something [for vegetation] to cover over something as it grows. □ The vines grew over the shed and almost hid it from view.

grow poles apart Go to poles apart.

grow sick (and tired) of someone or something Go to sick (and tired) of someone or something.

grow soft on someone Go to soft on someone.

grow something from something to propagate a plant from a seed, bulb, corm, etc. □ I grew these tomatoes from seeds. □ Can you grow a mango tree from a seed?

grow thick-skinned Go to thick-skinned.

grow thin-skinned Go to thin-skinned.

grow to do something to gradually begin to do certain things, using verbs such as feel, know, like, need, respect, sense, suspect, think, want, wonder, etc. □ I grew to hate Bob over a period of years. □ As I grew to know Bob, I began to like him.

grow together [for things] to join together as they grow and develop. □ Two of these trees grew together when they were much smaller. □ The broken ends of the bone grew together far more rapidly than Chuck had thought.

grow up to become mature; to become adult. □ All the children have grown up and the parents are left with a lot of debts.

grow up into someone or something to mature into a type of person or a person who does a particular job. □ She grew up into a fine young lady. □ I want to grow up into a strong and healthy person.

grow worlds apart Go to worlds apart.

A growing youth has a wolf in his belly. Prov. Young people who are growing fast are hungry all the time. □ If you doubt that a growing youth has a wolf in his belly, you should see how much my fourteen-year-old cousin eats.

growl at someone or something to snarl at someone or something. □ Don't growl at me like that. □ The dog growled at the cat.

growl something out^t to say something with a sound like growling or snarling. □ Jane growled a few words out. □ She growled out a few words and the gates opened for us.

a growth experience and a growth opportunity; a learning experience Euph. an unpleasant experience. □ This job has been a growth experience for me. I've learned so much. □ Jim said that his trip to Mexico turned out to be a real learning experience.

a growth opportunity Go to previous.

grub around (for someone or something) to search around for someone or something. □ I went to the attic and grubbed around for my old uniform. □ The guys went out and grubbed around for another soccer player.

grub around (in something) to wear old or "grubby" clothes around. □ I was grubbing around in my jeans when Alice showed up. □ I was wearing my jeans and just sort of grubbing around when she came.

gruff as a bear gruff; curt and unsociable. (*Also: as ~.) □ I hate to ask Erica questions; she's always gruff as a bear. □ I'm always as gruff as a bear before I've had my first cup of coffee.

grumble about someone or something to complain about someone or something. □ What are you grumbling about now? □ The students were grumbling about the teacher.

grumble at someone to complain to someone. □ Go grumble at someone else. I'm tired of listening. □ Stop grumbling at me!

grunt something out^t to say something with a snort or grunt. □ Jane grunted a command out to someone. □ She grunted out a curt command and the gate opened.

grunt work Fig. work that is menial and thankless. □ During the summer, I earned money doing grunt work. □ I did all of the grunt work on the project, but my boss got all of the credit.

guarantee against something to certify that something bad will not happen. □ No one can guarantee against that happening. □ I can't guarantee against something going wrong.

guarantee something against something (for something) to certify that something will not fail, break, or wear out, usually for a period of time. □ We guarantee this radio against defects for one year. □ I bought a service contract to guarantee my car against defects.

guard against someone or something to take care to avoid someone or something. □ Try to guard against getting a cold. □ You should guard against pickpockets.

guard someone or something from someone or something to protect someone or something from someone or something. □ The assistant manager will guard your valuables from thieves. □ She guarded the kitten from the angry dog.

guess at something to estimate something; to give an opinion about what something might be. □ I hate to just guess at it, but if you insist: ten feet long. □ Go ahead, guess at the number of pennies in this jar.

Guess what! Inf. a way of starting a conversation; a way of forcing someone into a conversation. □ Alice: Guess what! Bob: I don't know. What? Alice: I'm going to Europe this summer. Bob: That's very nice. John: Guess what! Jane: What? John: Mary is going to have a baby. Jane: Oh, that's great!

guest of honor a guest who gets special attention from everyone; the person for whom a party, celebration, or ceremony is given. □ Bob is the guest of honor, and many people will make speeches about him. □ The guest of honor sits at the front of the room on the dais.

guffaw at someone or something to laugh at someone or something very hard and raucously. □ The audience guffawed at the clown's antics. □ The old man guffawed at the clown.

guide someone around something and guide someone around to lead or escort someone on a tour of something or some place. □ Please let me guide you around the plant, so you can see how we do things here. □ I would be happy to guide you around.

guide someone away from someone or something and guide someone away^t to lead or escort someone away from someone, something, or some place. (Usually said of someone who requires help or guidance.) □ A police officer guided the children away from the busy street. □ Please guide away those people before they bump into your grandmother.

guide someone or something across (something) to lead or escort someone or something across something. □ I had to guide him across the desert. □ The bridge was very narrow and Jill got out to guide the truck across. □ We had to guide it across.

guide something away^t (from someone or something) 1. to lead something away from someone or something. □ I guided the lawn mower away from the children. □ Please stand there and guide away the cars. 2. to channel or route something away from someone or something. □ The farmer guided the creek water away from the main channel through a narrow ditch. □ We had to guide away the sheep from the road.

A guilty conscience needs no accuser. Prov. If you have done something wrong and feel guilty about it, you will be uncomfortable and want to confess even if no one accuses you of wrongdoing. □ Even though no one noticed him eating most of the cookies, Peter felt so bad about it that he told us what he had done. A guilty conscience needs no accuser.

gulp for air Fig. to eagerly or desperately try to get air or a breath. □ Tom gulped for air after trying to hold his breath for three minutes. □ Mary came up out of the water, gulping for air.

gulp something back^t Fig. to force or hold back tears, sobs, etc. □ He gulped his sobs back and clutched at his wound. □ He gulped back his sobs.

gulp something down^t to drink all of something, usually quickly. □ He gulped his coffee down and left. □ He gulped down his coffee.

gum something up^t and gum the works up^t Fig. to make something inoperable; to ruin someone's plans. □ Please, Bill, be careful and don't gum up the works. □ Tom sure gummed up the whole plan.

gun for someone 1. Lit. to seek one out to shoot one. □ They say that Tex is gunning for the sheriff. 2. Fig. to seek someone out in anger. □ The boss is gunning for you. □ I think that Walter is gunning for me.

gun someone or an animal down^t Lit. to shoot someone or an animal. □ Max tried to gun a policeman down. □ The cop tried to gun down the rabid dog.

gung ho Inf. enthusiastically in favor of something. □ Bobby is really gung ho on his plan to start his own company.

gush (forth) (from someone or something) and gush (forth) (out of someone or something); gush (out) (from someone or something) to spout out of someone or something. (Can be words, water, blood, vomit, etc. The optional elements cannot be transposed.) □ The blood gushed forth from his wound. □ Curses gushed forth from Sharon. □ Water gushed forth out of the broken pipe. □ The words gushed out from her mouth. □ The curses gushed from her mouth in torrents.

gush over someone or something 1. Lit. [for liquid] to flood over someone or something. □ The floodwaters gushed over the farmland. □ The hot soup gushed over the cook as the huge pot tipped over. 2. Fig. [for someone] to heap praise, flattery, and compliments on someone or something. □ Aunt Mattie always gushed over us children so much that we dreaded her coming. □ All the guests gushed over my beet salad.

gush with something [for something] to flow with something. □ The stream gushed with the sudden runoff of the storm. □ The faucet gushed with brownish water, so I turned it off.

gussied up Rur. dressed up fancy. □ All the girls got gussied up for the dance, but the guys wore their regular clothes. □ Mary really got gussied up. She even curled her hair.

gussy someone or something up^t Rur. to dress someone or something up; to make someone or something fancy. □ She gussied the kids up for the wedding. □ See if you can gussy up this room a little before folks get here.

gut feeling and gut reaction; gut response a personal, intuitive feeling or response. □ I have a gut feeling that something bad is going to happen. □ My gut reaction is that we should hire Susan for the job.

gut reaction Go to previous.

gut response Go to gut feeling.

guzzle something down^t to drink something rapidly and eagerly. □ He guzzled the beer down and called for another. □ He guzzled down the beer and called for another.

gyp someone out of something to deceive someone in order to get something of value. □ The salesclerk gypped me out of a dollar. □ The taxi driver tried to gyp me out of a fortune by driving all over the place.

habituate someone to someone or something to accustom someone to someone or something. □ Soon she will habituate the baby to the new feeding schedule. □ The office staff worked hard to habituate the new employee to the schedule.

hack around Inf. to waste time. □ I'm just hacking around and doing nothing. □ Stop hacking around and get to work.

hack (away) at someone or something to chop at someone or something continuously. □ The brutal murderer hacked away at his victim. □ The woodchopper hacked at the tree and finally got it down.

hack one's way through something Fig. to cut one's way through something. □ We had to hack our way through the jungle. □ The surveyors hacked a pathway through the undergrowth.

hack someone (off) Inf. to annoy someone; to embarrass someone. □ It really hacks me when you drum your fingers like that. □ You really hack me off!

hack someone or something apart¹. Lit. to chop up someone or something. □ The murderer hacked the victim apart. □ He hacked apart the victim. □ The butcher hacked the chicken apart. 2. Fig. to criticize someone or something severely. □ The review just hacked him apart for his poor showing in the play. □ The critic hacked apart all the actors in the play.

hack something Inf. to endure something; to deal with something. (The something is usually it.) □ I don't know if I can hack it. □ John works very hard, but he can't seem to hack it.

hack something down[†] to chop something down. □ Who hacked this cherry tree down? □ Who hacked down this cherry tree?

hack something off[†] to chop something off. □ I need to get up that tree and hack that big branch off before it bangs on the house. □ Please hack off that big branch.

hack something out of something and hack something out[†] 1. to cut or chop something out of something. □ Jill hacked the bone out of the roast. □ She hacked out the big bone. 2. to fashion something by carving or chiseling from something. □ He hacked a rabbit out of the chunk of wood. □ In no time, the carver had hacked out a rabbit.

hack something to something to cut something up into something roughly or crudely, such as pieces, bits, smithereens. □ The editor hacked my story to smithereens. □ Don't hack the turkey to pieces!

hack something up[†] 1. Lit. to chop something up into pieces. (Refers often to wood.) □ Hack all this old furniture up, and we'll burn it in the fireplace. □ Hack up this stuff, and we'll burn it. 2. Fig. to damage or mangle something. □ Who hacked my windowsill up? □ Who hacked up my table?

hacked (off) Inf. angry; annoyed. □ Wally was really hacked off about the accident. □ Oh, Wally is always hacked about something.

(had) best do something ought to do something, had better do something. □ Mary had best learn to mind her manners. □ You best listen to what I say.

had (just) as soon do something and would (just) as soon do something prefer to do something else; to be content to do something. (The would or had is usually expressed as the contraction 'd.) □ They want me to go into town. I'd as soon stay home. □ If you're cooking stew tonight, we'd as soon eat somewhere else. □ I would just as soon stay home as pay to go to see a bad movie.

(had) known it was coming Go to knew it was coming.

had rather do something and had sooner do something prefer to do something. (The had is usually expressed as the contraction, 'd.) □ I'd rather go to town than sit here all evening. □ They'd rather not.

had sooner do something Go to previous.

hadn't oughta Inf. should not have. □ You hadn't oughta teased me like that. □ I know I hadn't oughta stolen that candy.

haggle about something to bargain or negotiate about something. □ They are always willing to haggle about the price, so don't take the first price you're given. □ I wish you wouldn't try to haggle about everything when we shop.

haggle (with someone) over someone or something and haggle with someone (over someone or something) to argue with someone over someone or something. □ I don't want to haggle with you over Tom and whose team he's going to be on. □ Let's not haggle over the price. □ There is no point in haggling with her.

hail a cab and hail a taxi to signal to a taxi that you want to be picked up. □ See if you can hail a cab. I don't want to walk home in the rain.

hail a taxi Go to previous.

hail from some place to come from some place as one's hometown or birthplace; to originate in some place. □ He hails from a small town in the Midwest. □ Where do you hail from?

hail someone as something to praise someone for being something. □ The active members hailed him as fraternity brother of the year. □ Sally was hailed as an effective leader.

hair and hide(, horns and tallow) Rur. every last thing; every part. (Refers originally to using every part of slaughtered cattle for something.) □ They took everything Mary had, hair and hide, horns and tallow. □ Joe never threw anything away. He found a use for everything, hair and hide.

the hair of the dog that bit one Fig. a drink of liquor taken when one has a hangover; a drink of liquor taken when one is recovering from drinking too much liquor. (Often the same type of liquor as one got drunk on.) □ Oh, I'm miserable. I need some of the hair of the dog that bit me. □ That's some hangover you've got there, Bob. Here, drink this. It's some of the hair of the dog that bit you.

hale and hearty Cliché healthy. □ The young infant was hale and hearty. □ The calf—hale and hearty—ran around the barnyard.

hale-fellow-well-met Fig. friendly to everyone; falsely friendly to everyone. (Usually said of males.) □ Yes, he's friendly, sort of hale-fellow-well-met. □ He's not a very sincere person. Hail-fellow-well-met—you know the type. □ What a pain he is. Good old Mr. Hail-fellow-well-met. What a phony!

half a bubble off plumb Fig. giddy; crazy. □ She is acting about half a bubble off plumb. What is wrong with her? □ Tom is just half a bubble off plumb, but he is all heart.

Half a loaf is better than none. Prov. Getting only part of what you want is better than not getting anything. □ Fred: How did your court case go? Alan: Not good. I asked for $500, and the judge only awarded me $200. Fred: Half a loaf is better than none.

half in the bag intoxicated. □ Jerry was half in the bag when we found him. □ They were all half in the bag by midnight.

half the battle Fig. a significant part of an effort. □ Getting through traffic to the airport was half the battle. The flight was nothing at all.

half the time sometimes. □ I like that TV show, but half the time I forget to watch it when it's on. □ She says she's my friend, but she can't remember my name, half the time.

Half the truth is often a whole lie. Prov. If you do not tell the whole truth, you can mislead people just as if you tell them an outright lie. □ Jill: You lied to me. Jane: I did not. Everything I said was true. Jill: But you didn't tell me the whole story. And half the truth is often a whole lie.

Half the world knows not how the other half lives. Prov. You cannot understand what life is like for people who are different from you.; Often, rich people do not know what it is like to be poor, and poor people do not know what it is like to be rich. □ Until he spent school vacation at his friend Richard's country home, Jim was never aware that some people do not have to work for a living. He discovered that half the world knows not how the other half lives. □ Bill decided to dress in secondhand clothes and spend the weekend among the homeless men in the warehouse district, to see how the other half lives.

half under 1. Lit. semiconscious. □ I was half under and could hear what the doctor was saying. □ I was afraid they would start cutting while I was only half under. 2. Fig. Inf. to be intoxicated; to be tipsy. □ He was half under and could barely stand up. □ Only four beers and she was half under.

halfhearted (about someone or something) unenthusiastic about someone or something. □ Ann was halfhearted about the choice of Sally for president. □ She didn't look halfhearted to me. She looked angry.

ham something up[†] Fig. to make a performance seem silly by showing off or exaggerating one's part. (A show-off actor is known as a ham.) □ Come on, Bob. Don't ham it up! □ The play was going fine until Bob got out there and hammed up his part.

hammer (away) at someone Fig. to interrogate someone; to ask questions endlessly of someone. □ The cops kept hammering away at the suspect until he told them everything they wanted to know. □ They hammered at him for hours.

hammer (away) at something 1. Lit. to continue to do a task that requires much hammering. □ The roofers are hammering away at the job, trying to finish before night.

2. Lit. to pound at or on something, such as a door. □ Who is hammering away at the door? □ The police are hammering at the door. 3. Fig. to dwell overly long on a point or a question. □ Stop hammering away at the same thing over and over. □ The agents asked question after question. They would not stop hammering at the issue.

hammer on someone or something to pound on someone or something. □ The cop hammered on the poor man over and over. □ Sharon hammered on the door for a long time.

hammer something down[†] to pound something down even with the surrounding surface. □ Hammer all the nails down so that none of them will catch on someone's shoe. □ Hammer down all these nails!

hammer something home[†] Fig. to try extremely hard to make someone understand or realize something. □ The boss hopes to hammer the firm's poor financial position home to the staff. □ I tried to hammer home to Anne the fact that she would have to get a job.

hammer something into someone and pound something into someone; hammer someone in[†]; pound someone in[†] Fig. to teach something to someone intensively, as if one were driving the information in by force. □ Her parents had hammered good manners into her head since she was a child. □ They hammered in good manners every day. □ They pounded proper behavior into the children.

hammer something into something and pound something into something; hammer something in[†]; pound something in[†] Lit. to drive something into something as with a hammer. □ Todd hammered the spike into the beam. □ He hammered in the spike. □ He hammered it in with two hard blows.

hammer something onto something and hammer something on[†] to pound something onto something. □ I hammered the lid onto the paint can. □ She hammered on the lid very tightly.

hammer something out[†] 1. Lit. to hammer a dent away; to make a dent even with the surrounding surface. □ I'm going to have to have someone hammer this dent in my fender out. □ It will take a while to hammer out the dent. 2. Lit. to expand something by hammering it thinner. □ He hammered the gold out into a very thin sheet. □ He hammered out the gold into thin sheets. 3. Fig. to arrive at an agreement through argument and negotiation. □ The two parties could not hammer a contract out. □ At last, we were able to hammer out an agreement. 4. Fig. to play something on the piano. □ She hammered the song out loudly and without feeling. □ Listen to John hammer out that song on the piano.

hand in glove (with someone) Fig. very close to someone. □ John is really hand in glove with Sally. □ The teacher and the principal work hand in glove.

hand in hand 1. Lit. holding hands. (*Typically: do something ~; sit ~; walk ~.) □ They walked down the street hand in hand. □ Bob and Mary sat there quietly, hand in hand. 2. Fig. [of two things] together, one with the other. (*Typically: go ~.) □ Cookies and milk seem to go hand in hand. □ Teenagers and back talk go hand in hand.

*a hand in something and *a part in something Fig. a part in establishing or running something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I would like to have a hand in the planning process. □ I will not let Jane have a part in this project.

Hand it over. Give it to me. (Fixed order.) □ It's mine. Hand it over! □ Come on. Give me the box of jewels. Hand it over!

hand over fist Fig. [for money and merchandise to be exchanged] very rapidly. □ What a busy day. We took in money hand over fist. □ They were buying things hand over fist.

hand over hand Fig. [moving] one hand after the other (again and again). □ Sally pulled in the rope hand over hand. □ The man climbed up the rope hand over hand.

hand someone or something over^t (to someone or something) to deliver someone or something to someone or a group; to relinquish someone or something to someone or a group. □ The kidnappers handed the child over to the go-between. □ All right, hand over the hostage!

hand someone something Fig. to tell someone something; to tell someone nonsense. □ Don't hand me that stuff! That's silly! □ She handed me a line about being a famous author.

hand something around^t to pass something around. □ Hand this around and let everyone look at it. □ Hand around each of these pictures so everyone gets to see them.

hand something back^t (to someone) to return something to someone by hand. □ Would you please hand this paper back to Scott? □ Hand back this book to Fred, if you please.

hand something down^t from someone to someone to pass something down through many generations. □ I hope we can make it a tradition to hand this down from generation to generation. □ My descendants will hand down this watch from generation to generation.

hand something down^t (to someone) 1. Lit. to pass something to a person on a lower level. □ Hand this wrench down to the man under the sink. □ Please hand down this wrench. 2. Fig. to give something to a younger person. (Either at death or during life.) □ John handed his old shirts down to his younger brother. □ I hope my uncle will hand down his golf clubs to me when he dies. 3. Fig. to announce or deliver a (legal) verdict or indictment. □ The grand jury handed seven indictments down last week. □ The jury handed down a guilty verdict.

hand something in^t to submit something by hand. □ Did you hand your application form in? □ I forgot to hand in my test paper.

hand something in^t (to someone) Go to pass something in^t (to someone).

hand something off^t (to someone) 1. Lit. to give a football directly to another player. □ Roger handed the ball off to Jeff. □ He handed off the ball. □ Tim handed it off. 2. Fig. to give something to someone else to do or complete. □ I'm going to hand this assignment off to Jeff. □ Don't hand off your dirty work to me—do it yourself!

hand something on (to someone or something) 1. Lit. to pass something on to someone or a group. □ Please hand this on to Walter after you've read it. □ Please read this and hand it on. 2. Fig. to bequeath something to someone or a group. □ I want to hand this land on to my children. □ The family will hand on the business to a foundation.

hand something out^t (to someone) 1. to give something out to someone. □ The judge was known for handing heavy fines out. □ She handed out large fines to everyone. 2. to pass something, usually papers, out to people. □ The teacher handed the tests out to the students. □ Please hand out these papers.

hand something over to give something (to someone); to relinquish something (to someone); to turn something over (to someone). □ Come on, John! Hand over my wallet. □ Please hand this over to the guard.

hand something to someone to give something to someone by hand. □ The clerk handed her a message when she stopped at the desk. □ This message was just handed to me.

hand something up^t (to someone) to pass something to someone who is on a higher level. □ Please hand this cup of coffee up to Carl. □ Please hand up this coffee to Carl.

The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world. Prov. Mothers are the most powerful people, because they shape their children's personalities. □ When Lena got pregnant, Lena's mother told her to take her responsibility seriously, because the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.

*a hand with something Fig. assistance with something, especially using the hands. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Mary would really like to get a hand with that. It's too much for one person. □ I'd like to have a hand with this.

*a handful Fig. someone, often a child, who is difficult to deal with. (*Typically: be ~; become ~.) □ Bobby can be a real handful when he needs a nap.

*a handle on something Fig. a means of understanding something; an aid to understanding something. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Let me try to get a handle on this. □ Now that I have a handle on the concept, I can begin to understand it.

handle someone with kid gloves Fig. to be very careful with a touchy person. □ Bill has become so sensitive. You really have to handle him with kid gloves. □ You don't have to handle me with kid gloves. I can take it.

hands down easily; unquestionably. □ She won the contest hands down. □ They declared her the winner hands down.

Hands off! Do not touch someone or something. □ Careful! Don't touch that wire. Hands off! □ The sign says, "Hands off!" and you had better do what it says.

Hands up! and Stick 'em up!; Put 'em up! Raise your hands in the air; this is a robbery! (Underworld and Old West.) □ Hands up! Don't anybody move a muscle. This is a heist. □ Stick 'em up! Give me all your valuables.

Handsome is as handsome does. Prov. It is more important to treat people well than to be good-looking; just because you are good-looking does not mean you are a good person. □ Jill: I'd like to get to know George better. Jane: Why? Jill: He's so handsome. Jane: Handsome is as handsome does. He's a very unpleasant person.

hang a few on[†] to take a few drinks; to have a few beers. □ They went out to hang a few on. □ Let's hang on a few and then go on to the meeting.

hang a huey Sl. to make a U-turn. □ Hang a huey in the middle of the block. □ Right here! Hang a huey!

hang a left Inf. to turn left. □ He hung a left at the wrong corner. □ Hey, here! Hang a left here!

hang a louie Sl. to turn left. □ You have to hang a louie at the stop sign. □ Go another block and hang a louie.

H hang a ralph Sl. to turn right. □ He skied down the easy slope and hung a ralph near a fir tree. □ Don't hang a ralph until you get past the traffic light.

hang a right Inf. to turn right. □ Hang a right about here. □ I told him to hang a right at the next corner, but he went on.

hang around (some place) to loiter some place; to be in a place or in an area, doing nothing in particular. □ Why are you hanging around my office? □ It's comfortable here. I think I'll hang around here for a while.

hang around someone or something Go to around someone or something.

hang around (with someone) and go around (with someone) Fig. to spend a lot of time with someone; to waste away time with someone. □ John hangs around with Bill a lot. □ They've been going around with the Smiths.

hang back (from someone or something) to lag back behind someone or something; to stay back from someone or something, perhaps in avoidance. □ Why are you hanging back from the rest of the group? □ Come on! Don't hang back!

hang behind (someone or something) to stay behind someone or something. □ Don't hang behind us, please. Come on up here and walk with us. □ Fred is hanging behind and may get lost at the next turn.

hang by a hair and hang by a thread 1. Lit. to hang by something very thin, such as a thread or a hair. □ The tiniest part of the mobile hung by a thread, the rest are on plastic cords. 2. and hang on by a hair; hang on by a thread Fig. to depend on something very insubstantial; to hang in the balance. □ Your whole argument is hanging by a thread. □ John isn't failing geometry, but his passing grade is just hanging by a hair.

hang by a thread Go to previous.

hang by something 1. to be suspended at the end of something, such as a rope, chain, string, etc. □ The bag is only hanging by a string. □ The food hung by a rope from a tree to protect it from the bears that wandered into camp now and then. 2. to dangle, suspended by some body part, such as thumbs, legs, etc. □ I was hanging by my legs on the exercise bar when the rain started. □ I can hang by just my middle fingers!

hang down (from someone or something) to be suspended from someone or something. □ Grasping vines hung down from the towering trees. □ Thousands of vines hung down.

hang fire to delay or wait; to be delayed. □ I think we should hang fire and wait for other information. □ Our plans have to hang fire until we get planning permission.

hang five and hang ten Sl. to stand toward the front of a surfboard or diving board and hang the toes of one or both feet over the edge. (Surfing.) □ The coach told her to hang ten and not to look down. □ Get out there and hang five. You can swim. Nothing can go wrong.

hang from something to be suspended from something. □ Colorful decorations hung from the branches of the tree. □ What is that hanging from the side of the building?

hang in the balance Go to in the balance.

Hang in there. Be patient, things will work out. □ Bob: Everything is in such a mess. I can't seem to get things done right. Jane: Hang in there, Bob. Things will work out. □ Mary: Sometimes I just don't think I can go on. Sue: Hang in there, Mary. Things will work out.

Hang it all! Inf. Damn it all! □ Oh, hang it all! I'm late. □ He's late again! Hang it all!

hang it up Sl. to quit something. (Fixed order. See also hang something up.) □ I've had it with this job. It's time to hang it up. □ Just hang it up. Don't bother with it.

hang loose and stay loose to relax and stay calm. □ Just hang loose, man. Everything'll be all right. □ Stay loose, chum. See ya later.

*the hang of something the knowledge or knack of doing something correctly. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; teach someone ~.) □ As soon as I get the hang of this computer, I'll be able to work faster. □ Now that I have the hang of starting the car in cold weather, I won't have to get up so early.

hang off to wait quietly to one side. □ The boys hung off a little, waiting to see what would happen next. □ Hang off awhile and don't do anything.

hang on 1. to wait awhile. □ Hang on a minute. I need to talk to you. □ Hang on. Let me catch up with you. 2. to survive for awhile. □ I think we can hang on without electricity for a little while longer. 3. [for an illness] to linger or persist. □ This cold has been hanging on for a month. □ This is the kind of flu that hangs on for weeks. 4. be prepared for fast or rough movement. (Usually a command.) □ Hang on! The train is going very fast. □ Hang on! We're going to crash! 5. to pause in a telephone conversation. □ Please hang on until I get a pen. □ If you'll hang on, I'll get her.

hang on by a thread Go to hang by a hair.

hang on for dear life Cliché to hang on tight. □ As the little plane bounced around over the mountains, we hung on for dear life.

hang on someone's coattails Go to ride on someone's coattails.

hang on (someone's) every word Cliché to listen closely or with awe to what someone says. □ I am hanging on your every word. Please go on. □ The audience hung on her every word throughout the speech.

hang on (to someone or something) and hold on (to someone or something) 1. Lit. to grasp someone or something. □ She hung on to her husband to keep warm. □ She sat there and hung on, trying to keep warm. 2. Fig. to detain someone or something. □ Please hang on to Tom if he's still there. I need to talk to him.

Hang on to your hat! and Hold on to your hat! Fig. Get ready for what's coming!; Here comes a big shock! □ There is a rough road ahead. Hang on to your hat! □ Here we go! Hold on to your hat!

hang one on Go to tie one on.

hang one's hat (up) somewhere to take up residence somewhere. □ George loves Dallas. He's decided to buy a house and hang his hat up there. □ Bill moves from place to place and never hangs his hat up anywhere.

hang out (of something) to be visibly coming out of something. □ Your shirttail is hanging out of your pants. □ My shirttail was hanging out.

hang out (some place) 1. to spend time in a place habitually. □ Is this where you guys hang out all the time? 2. to spend time aimlessly; to waste time. □ Bill: What are you doing this afternoon? Tom: Oh, I'll just hang out. □ Kids hang out too much these days.

hang out (with someone or something) to associate with someone or a group on a regular basis. □ She hangs out with Alice too much. □ I wish you would stop hanging out with that crowd of boys.

hang over someone or something 1. to be suspended over someone or something. □ A fancy crystal chandelier hung over us. □ An ornate ceiling fan hung over the table. 2. [for some pervading quality] to seem to hover over someone or something. □ An aura of gloom hung over Joe. □ A dismal pall hung over the gathering.

hang over someone's head [for something unpleasant] to worry someone. □ I have a horrible exam hanging over my head. □ I hate to have medical problems hanging over me.

hang someone by the neck to execute someone or kill oneself by tying a noose around the neck and dropping the victim in order to break the neck or strangle the victim. □ The executioner hanged him by the neck until he died. □ He hanged himself by the neck.

hang someone for something 1. Lit. to execute someone by hanging for doing something. □ The state prosecutor will try to hang you for this crime. □ The sheriff wanted to hang Jed for murder. 2. Fig. to extract an overly severe punishment for some deed. □ They are trying to hang me for a parking ticket. □ You can't hang me just for coming in late!

hang someone in effigy Fig. to hang a dummy or some other figure of a hated person. □ They hanged the dictator in effigy. □ The angry mob hanged the president in effigy.

hang someone or something from something to suspend someone or something from something. □ The captain wanted to hang him from the highest yardarm as punishment. □ I hung a colorful decoration from the windowsill.

hang someone or something with something to suspend someone or something with something, such as a rope, chain, thread, etc. (The past tense hanged is usually used only with the hanging of people.) □ The executioners hanged the criminal with a rope and later with a chain. □ They hung the picture with a golden cord.

hang someone out to dry Fig. to defeat or punish someone. □ The boss was really angry at Billie. He yelled at him and hung him out to dry.

hang something on someone Sl. to blame something on someone; to frame someone for something. (See also hang something on someone or something.) □ Don't try to hang the blame on me! □ The sheriff tried to hang the bank robbery on Jed.

hang something on someone or something to drape or hook something on someone or something. (See also hang something on someone.) □ Hang this sign on Walter and see how he looks. □ Please hang this sign on the front door.

hang something out (of something) to suspend something outside of something while it is attached to the inside of something. □ He hung the rope out of the window so he could escape the burning building. □ She ran to the window and hung the rope out.

hang something over someone or something to suspend something over someone or something. □ Sally hung the colorful mobile over the baby's crib. □ Please hang these garlands over the party table.

hang something up[†] to return the telephone receiver to its cradle. (See also hang it up.) □ Please hang this up when I pick up the other phone. □ Please hang up the phone.

hang ten Go to hang five.

hang together 1. Fig. [for something or a group of people] to hold together; to remain intact. □ I hope our bridge group hangs together until we are old and gray. □ I don't think that this car will hang together for another minute. 2. Fig. [for a story] to flow from element to element and make sense. □ This story simply does not hang together. □ Your novel hangs together quite nicely. 3. Fig. [for people] to spend time together. □ We hung together for a few hours and then went our separate ways. □ The boys hung together throughout the evening.

hang tough (on something) Sl. to stick to one's position (on something). □ I decided I'd hang tough on it. I tend to give in too easy. □ Yes, just hang tough.

hang up 1. [for a machine or a computer] to grind to a halt; to stop because of some internal complication. □ Our computer hung up right in the middle of printing the report. □ I was afraid that my computer would hang up permanently. 2. to replace the telephone receiver after a call; to terminate a telephone call. □ I said good-bye and hung up. □ Please hang up and place your call again.

hang up (in someone's ear) Go to next.

hang up (on someone or something) 1. and hang up (in someone's ear) to end a telephone call by returning the receiver to the cradle while the other party is still talking. □ She hung up on me! □ I had to hang up on all that rude talk. 2. to give up on someone or something; to quit dealing with someone or something. □ Finally, I had to hang up on Jeff. I can't depend on him for anything. □ We hung up on them because we knew we couldn't make a deal.

hang with someone Sl. to spend or waste time with someone. □ Dave spent the afternoon hanging with Don, and neither one got anything done. □ I'm going down to the corner and hang with the guys.

hanker after someone or something and hanker for someone or something Rur. to want someone or something; to long for someone or something. I hanker after a nice big beefsteak for dinner.

happen before someone's time Go to before someone's time.

happen in the (very) nick of time Go to in the (very) nick of time.

happen to someone or something to befall someone or something; to occur to someone or something. What is going to happen to me? Something awful happened to your car.

happen (up)on someone or something to come upon someone or something, as if by accident. (See also come (up)on someone or something.) I just happened upon a strange little man in the street who offered to sell me a watch. Andrew happened on a book that interested him, so he bought it.

happy as a clam (at high tide) and happy as a clam (in butter sauce); *happy as a lark; *happy as can be contented; very happy. (*Also: as ~.) I've been as happy as a clam since I moved to the country. I don't need much. Just somewhere to live, some work to do, and a TV to watch, and I'm happy as a clam at high tide. Matthew was happy as a lark throughout his whole vacation. Bob was happy as can be when he won the lottery.

happy as a clam (in butter sauce) Go to previous.

happy as a lark Go to happy as a clam (at high tide).

happy as can be Go to happy as a clam (at high tide).

a happy camper a happy person. The boss came in this morning and found his hard disk trashed. He was not a happy camper.

happy hour a time to drink a cocktail, starting at about 5:00 P.M. (Often bars have lower prices during "happy hour.") I think that Mary has been starting happy hour a little early. Before noon I think.

Happy is the bride that the sun shines on. Prov. It is supposed to be good luck for the sun to shine on a couple on their wedding day. Our wedding day was a sunny one, and most of my relatives made sure to remind me, "Happy is the bride that the sun shines on."

Happy is the country which has no history. Prov. Since history tends to record only violent, unfortunate, or tumultuous events, a country with no history would be a country lucky enough to have no such unhappy events to record. The history of our country is so full of greed, violence, and dishonesty; happy is the country which has no history.

a harbinger of things to come and a portent of things to come; a sign of things to come a sample of the events that are to occur in the future. The first cuts in our budget are a harbinger of things to come. Today's visit from the auditors is a portent of things to come.

harbor something against someone or something to have and retain a bad feeling of some kind toward someone or something. I harbor no ill will against you. Alice does not harbor any bad feeling against the company that let her go.

a hard act to follow Go to a tough act to follow.

hard as a rock and hard as stone very hard. (*Also: as ~.) This cake is as hard as a rock! I can't drive a nail into this wood. It's hard as stone.

hard as nails Cliché [of someone] stern and unyielding. (*Also: as ~.) Don't try to bargain with Liz. She's as hard as nails. Bob may seem sweet and easily swayed, but in fact he's hard as nails.

hard as stone Go to hard as a rock.

hard at something and hard at doing something working hard at something. Tom's busy. He's hard at work on the lawn.

hard feelings Fig. feelings of resentment or anger. (*Typically: cause ~; have ~; give someone ~.) The argument caused a lot of hard feelings, but finally we got over it.

a hard nut to crack and a tough nut to crack Fig. difficult person or problem to deal with. This problem is getting me down. It's a hard nut to crack. Tom sure is a hard nut to crack. I can't figure him out.

hard of hearing [of someone] unable to hear well or partially deaf. Please speak loudly. I am hard of hearing. Tom is hard of hearing, but is not totally deaf.

hard on someone's heels Go to on someone's heels.

hard on someone harming someone's feelings; demanding much from someone. I wish you wouldn't be so hard on me. So I make mistakes. I never said I was perfect.

hard put (to do something) and hard pressed (to do something) able to do something only with great difficulty. I'm hard put to come up with enough money to pay the rent. I get hard put like that about once a month.

a hard row to hoe Go to a tough row to hoe.

*the hard sell high-pressure selling techniques. (*Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) They gave me the hard sell, but I still wouldn't buy the car. The clerk gave the customer the hard sell.

hard sledding and tough sledding Fig. a very difficult time. They had some hard sledding when they were first married. It was tough sledding for sure when our crops failed that year.

*a hard time and *a bad time; *a rough time trouble [over something]; unnecessary difficulty. (*Typically: have ~; give someone ~.) Please don't give me a hard time. The clerk got a hard time from the boss, so he quit.

hard times Go to bad times.

hard to believe and hard to swallow not easily believed; hardly believable. Her story was hard to swallow, and it finally was proven to be a lie.

hard to swallow Go to previous.

hard to take difficult or painful to accept. The news was hard to take, but we soon realized that it was all for the best.

hard up (for something) greatly in need of something, especially money. Ann was hard up for cash to pay the bills. I was so hard up, I couldn't afford to buy food.

Hard words break no bones. Prov. Verbal abuse does not physically hurt you, and therefore you should not be very upset by it. (Can be used to reply to someone who is verbally abusing you.) Jill: I can't believe some of the names Fred called me. Jane: Well, hard words break no bones.

harden oneself to something Fig. to make oneself capable of bearing something unpleasant. □ You will have to learn to harden yourself to tragedies like this. They happen every day in a hospital. □ She had learned to harden herself to the kinds of poverty she had to work in.

harden something off^t to accustom a young plant to normal weather so it can be moved from a protected environment to the out-of-doors. □ We put the plants by the open window to harden them off. □ We hardened off the plants.

harden something up^t to make something hard or strong. □ Put the meat in the freezer awhile to harden it up before you try to slice it thin. □ Harden up the ice cream a little in the freezer.

harder than the back of God's head Rur. very hard. □ The soil was harder than the back of God's head. We had a hard time digging it. □ The wood was solid and dense and harder than the back of God's head.

hardly dry behind the ears Go to wet behind the ears.

hardly exchange more than some number of words with someone Go to exchange no more than some number of words with someone.

hardly have time to breathe and scarcely have time to breathe Fig. to be very busy. □ This was such a busy day. I hardly had time to breathe. □ They made him work so hard that he scarcely had time to breathe.

hardly have time to think so busy that one can hardly think properly; very busy. □ I've been so busy that I hardly have time to think. □ I hardly have time to think in the job that I do. We are just too busy.

hard-nosed Fig. stern and unforgiving. □ Mr. Howe was known to be very hard-nosed, but he could really be friendly if you got to know him.

hark(en) back to something 1. to have originated as something; to have started out as something. (Harken is an older word meaning "pay heed to.") □ The word ice-box harks back to refrigerators that were cooled by ice. □ Our modern breakfast cereals hark back to the porridge and gruel of our ancestors. 2. to remind one of something. □ Seeing a horse and buggy in the park harks back to the time when horses drew milk wagons. □ Sally says it harkens back to the time when everything was delivered by horse-drawn wagons.

harmonize with someone or something to blend with someone or something musically. □ Please try to harmonize with the rest of the singers! □ Will you harmonize with the piano, please?

harness an animal up^t to put a harness on an animal, such as a horse. □ You had better harness the horses up so we can go. □ Please harness up the mare for me.

harness someone or an animal to something to attach someone, something, or an animal to something with a harness. □ The instructor harnessed me to the hang glider, and I really began to get nervous. □ Andrew harnessed the horses to the little wagon.

harp on someone or something Fig. to keep talking or complaining about someone or something; to refer to someone or something again and again. □ I wish you would quit harping on Jeff all the time. He couldn't be all that bad. □ Stop harping on my mistakes and work on your own.

has come and gone has already arrived and has already departed. □ No, Joy is not here. She's come and gone. □ Sorry, you are too late for your appointment. The doctor has come and gone.

(Has the) cat got your tongue? Why are you not saying anything? (Often said by adults to children.) □ Grandpa used to terrify me, both because he was big and fierce-looking and because he usually greeted me by belittling, "Cat got your tongue?" □ Hi, Lisa! How are you? How's your husband? Are you surprised to see me? What's the matter, has the cat got your tongue?

has the world by the tail (with a downhill drag) Rur. has destiny under control. □ The young businessman had the world by the tail with a downhill drag. He had made a million dollars before he was twenty-five. □ She's got the world by the tail now, but her fame won't last forever.

hash something over^t (with someone) Fig. to discuss something with someone. □ I need to hash this matter over with you. □ I've hashed over this business enough.

hash something up^t 1. to chop something up. □ Now, hash the onion and garlic up and put it in the skillet. □ Now, hash up the beef and brown it. 2. to mess something up. □ Somebody hashed my manuscript up! □ Somebody hashed up my manuscript!

hassle someone about something and hassle someone with something to harass someone about something. □ Come on! Don't hassle me about the deadline! □ Stop hassling me with all the little details.

Haste makes waste. Prov. You do not save any time by working too fast; hurrying will cause you to make mistakes, and you will have to take extra time to do the job over again. □ Fred: Hurry up and get my car fixed. Alan: Don't rush me. Haste makes waste.

hatch an animal out^t to aid in releasing an animal from an egg. □ They hatched lots of ducks out at the hatchery. □ The farmer hatched out hundreds of chicks each month.

hatchet man a man who does the cruel or difficult things for someone else; someone who does someone else's dirty work. □ He served as the president's hatchet man and ended up doing all the dirty work.

hate someone or something like sin Fig. to hate someone or something a great deal. □ She won't eat brussels sprouts. She hates 'em like sin. □ I don't want that man anywhere near me. I hate him like sin.

hate someone's guts Fig. to hate someone very much. □ Oh, Bob is terrible. I hate his guts! □ You may hate my guts for saying so, but I think you're getting gray hair.

hats off to someone or something Fig. let us salute or honor someone or something. □ Hat's off to Perry for planning the dinner and finding such a good band.

haul off and do something 1. Inf. to draw back and do something, such as strike a person. □ She hauled off and slapped him hard. □ Max hauled off and poked Lefty in the nose. 2. Rur. to do something without a great deal of preparation. □ The old man hauled off and bought himself a house. □ Someday, I'm going to haul off and buy me a new car.

haul someone in[†] Fig. to arrest someone; [for a police officer] to take someone to the police station. □ The cop hauled the drunk driver in. □ They hauled in the suspects.

haul someone on the carpet Go to call someone on the carpet.

haul someone or something over to something to drag someone or something over to something. (Fixed order.) □ She hauled the boy over to the mess he made and forced him to clean it up. □ Ken hauled the logs over to the fireplace and laid the fire.

haul someone over the coals Go to rake someone over the coals.

haul someone (up[†]) before someone or something Fig. to bring someone into the presence of someone or something, usually some officer of the law. □ The officer hauled the suspect up before the judge. □ She hauled up the suspect before the judge.

haul something down[†] to pull something down from a higher level. □ Terry hauled the sail down and put it away. □ Please haul down the mainsail.

haul something (from some place) to some place and haul something from some place (to some place) to drag something from one place to another. □ I don't want to have to haul this thing from home to office and back again. □ I hauled my suitcase to the airport from my hotel.

haul something up[†] (from something) to drag or pull something up from below. □ Jeff hauled the bucket up from the bottom of the well. □ He hauled up the bucket.

haul up (somewhere) and pull up (somewhere) to stop somewhere; to come to rest somewhere. □ The car hauled up in front of the house. □ My hat blew away just as the bus pulled up to the stop.

have a bad attitude to have a negative outlook on things; to be uncooperative. □ Perry has a bad attitude and has nothing positive to contribute to the conversation.

have a bad case of the simples Rur. to be stupid. □ That boy has a bad case of the simples. He can't understand anything. □ She acts smart enough on the playground, but get her in the classroom and she has a bad case of the simples.

have a bad effect (on someone or something) to be bad for someone or something. □ Aspirin has a bad effect on me. □ Cold weather has a bad effect on roses.

have a ball to have an exciting time. □ I plan to have a ball while I'm on vacation. □ Come on, everybody! Let's have a ball!

have a bear by the tail Go to have a tiger by the tail.

have a bellyful Inf. to have as much as one can stand. □ I've had a bellyful of your whining. Be quiet!

have a big mouth to be a gossip; to be a person who tells secrets. □ Mary has a big mouth. She told Bob what I was getting him for his birthday. □ You shouldn't say things like that about people all the time. Everyone will say you have a big mouth.

have a blast Inf. to have a great time; to have a lot of fun. □ The food was good and we had a blast. Thanks for inviting us to the party.

Have a blimp! Sl. Have a good year! (A reference to the Goodyear blimp, which is famous for being at notable events.) □ Good-bye. Have a blimp! □ Have a blimp! See you next summer.

have a blowout 1. [for one's car tire] to burst. □ I had a blowout on the way here. I nearly lost control of the car. □ If you have a blowout in one tire, you should check the other tires. 2. Sl. to have a big, wild party; to enjoy oneself at a big party. □ Mary and Bill had quite a blowout at their house Friday night. □ Fred and Tom had quite a blowout last night.

have a bone to pick (with someone) to have a disagreement to discuss with someone; to have something to argue about with someone. □ Hey, Bill. I've got a bone to pick with you. Where is the money you owe me? □ I had a bone to pick with her, but she was so sweet that I forgot about it.

have a brush with something to have a brief contact with something; to have an experience with something. (Especially with the law. Sometimes a close brush.) □ Ann had a close brush with the law. She was nearly arrested for speeding. □ When I was younger, I had a brush with scarlet fever, but I got over it.

have a burr under one's saddle Rur. to be irritated by something. □ Joe has a burr under his saddle because Jane's going out with Bill tonight. □ Mary must have a burr under her saddle. She's been snapping at me all day.

have a buzz on Fig. to be intoxicated. (Fixed order.) □ Pete has a buzz on and is giggling a lot. □ Both of them had a buzz on by the end of the celebration.

have a case (against someone) to have much evidence that can be used against someone in court. □ Do the police have a case against John? □ No, they don't have a case.

have a change of heart Fig. to change one's attitude or decision, usually from a negative to a positive position. □ I had a change of heart at the last minute and gave the beggar some money. □ Since I talked to you last, I have had a change of heart. I now approve of your marrying Sam.

have a clear conscience (about someone or something) and have a clean conscience (about someone or something) to be free of guilt about someone or something. □ I'm sorry that John got the blame. I have a clean conscience about the whole affair. □ I have a clear conscience about John and his problems. □ I didn't do it. I swear to that with a clean conscience.

have a close call Go to next.

have a close shave and have a close call Fig. to have a narrow escape from something dangerous. □ What a close shave I had! I nearly fell off the roof when I was working there. □ I almost got struck by a speeding car. It was a close shave.

have a clue (about something) Fig. to know anything about something; to have even a hint about someone or something. (Usually negative.) □ I don't have a clue about where to start looking for Jim. □ Why do you think I have a clue about Tom's disappearance?

have a conniption (fit) Rur. to get angry or hysterical. (See also have a fit) □ I got so mad I thought I was going to have a conniption. □ My father had a conniption fit when I got home this morning.

have a corncob up one's ass and have a poker up one's ass 1. Inf. to be very stiff. (Use with caution.) □ How come you're acting so high-and-mighty with me? Do you have a corncob up your ass? □ He was a terrible actor, stiff and wooden. He looked like he had a poker up his ass.
2. Inf. to be very touchy or irritable. □ Wow! Old Mr. Webster really has a corncob up his ass this morning. Watch out! □ Tom has a poker up his ass and he's looking for you. Better make yourself scarce.

have a death wish Fig. to seem to be willing to take all sorts of needless risks. □ Look at the way that guy drives. He must have some sort of a death wish.

have a familiar ring (to it) Fig. [for a story or an explanation] to sound familiar. □ Your excuse has a familiar ring. Have you done this before? □ This term paper has a familiar ring to it. I think it has been copied.

have a field day Fig. to experience freedom from one's usual work schedule; to have a very enjoyable time. (As with children who are released from classes to take part in sports and athletic contests.) □ The boss was gone and we had a field day today. No one got anything done. □ The air was fresh and clear and everyone had a field day in the park during the lunch hour.

have a finger in the pie and have one's finger in the pie Fig. to have a role in something; to be involved in something. (See also have one's finger in too many pies) □ Tess wants to have a finger in the pie. She doesn't think we can do it by ourselves. □ Sally always wants to have a finger in the pie.

have a fit and throw a fit to be very angry; to show great anger. (See also have a conniption (fit).) □ The teacher had a fit when the dog ran through the classroom. □ John threw a fit when he found his car had been damaged.

have a flair for something to have a talent for doing something; to have a special ability in some area. □ Alice has quite a flair for designing. □ I have a flair for fixing clocks.

have a gift for (doing) something Fig. to have a natural talent for doing something. □ Tony has a gift for writing short stories. □ Sharon has a gift for dealing with animals.

have a glass jaw Fig. to be susceptible to a knockout when struck on the head. (Said only of boxers who are frequently knocked down by a blow to the head.) □ When the prizefighter was knocked out cold by a right to the chin in the first round, the newspapers said he had a glass jaw. □ Once a fighter has a glass jaw, he's finished as a boxer.

have a go at something Go to try at something.

have a good arm Fig. to have a strong and conditioned arm for sports, especially pitching in baseball. □ Perry had a good arm, but he often pitched wide of the plate.

have a good command of something to know something well. □ Bill has a good command of French. □ Jane has a good command of economic theory.

have a good head on one's shoulders Fig. to have common sense; to be sensible and intelligent. □ Mary doesn't do well in school, but she's got a good head on her shoulders. □ John has a good head on his shoulders and can be depended on to give good advice.

have a (good) mind to do something Fig. have an inclination to do something. □ I have a good mind to tell him just what I think of him. □ She had a mind to go to college, but her folks talked her out of it.

Have a good one. Go to Have a nice day.

have a good thing going to have something of an ongoing nature arranged for one's own benefit. □ Sally paints pictures and sells them at art fairs. She has a good thing going, and she makes good money. □ John inherited a fortune and doesn't have to work for a living anymore. He's got a good thing going.

Have a good time. Enjoy yourself in what you are about to do. (Often said when someone is about to leave for an event.) □ Bill: I'm leaving for the party now. Father: Have a good time. □ Sue: Tonight is the formal dance at the Palmer House, and I'm going. Mary: Have a good time. I'm watching television right here.

Have a good trip. and Have a nice trip. Have a pleasant journey. (Compare this with Have a safe trip. This phrase avoids references to safety.) □ As Sue stepped onto the plane, someone in a uniform said, "Have a nice trip." □ "Have a good trip," said Bill, waving his good-byes.

have a (good) working over Go to a (good) working over.

have a green thumb Fig. to have the ability to grow plants well. □ Just look at Mr. Simpson's garden. He has a green thumb. □ My mother has a green thumb when it comes to houseplants.

have a head for something Fig. have the mental capacity for something. □ Jane has a good head for directions and never gets lost. □ Bill doesn't have a head for figures and should never become an accountant.

have a heart Fig. to be compassionate; to be generous and forgiving; to have an especially compassionate heart. □ Oh, have a heart! Give me some help! □ If Anne had a heart, she'd volunteer to help us on the charity drive.

have a heart of gold Cliché to be generous, sincere, and friendly. □ Mary is such a lovely person. She has a heart of gold. □ You think Tom stole your watch? Impossible! He has a heart of gold.

have a heart of stone Fig. to be cold and unfriendly. □ Sally has a heart of stone. She never even smiles. □ The villain in the play had a heart of stone. He was cruel to everyone.

have a heart-to-heart (talk) Fig. to have a sincere and intimate talk. □ I had a heart-to-heart talk with my father before I went off to college. □ I have a problem, John. Let's sit down and have a heart-to-heart.

have a hidden talent and have hidden talents Fig. to have talents or skills that no one knows about. □ Wow, Perry! I didn't know you had so many hidden talents.

have a hitch in one's gitalong Rur. to have a permanent or temporary limp. □ Pappy's got quite a hitch in his gitalong since he broke his hip.

have a hunch (that something is the case) and have a hunch about something to have an idea about what did, will, or should happen; to have a feeling that something will or should happen. □ I had a hunch that you would be here when I arrived. □ I have a hunch about the way things will happen.

have a keen interest in something to have a strong interest in something; to be very interested in something. □ Tom had always had a keen interest in music, so he started a band. □ The children have a keen interest in having a pet, so I bought them a cat.

have a kick to it Fig. to have a strong or spicy flavor; to have a high alcohol content. □ I like that salsa. It has a kick to it. □ Tom's moonshine sure has a kick to it—don't drink too much of it, now!

have a load on and have got a load on Sl. to be intoxicated. □ Fred has a load on and is finished drinking for the evening. □ You have a load on every time I see you at a party.

have a lot going (for one) to have many things working to one's benefit. □ Jane is so talented. She has a lot going for her. □ She has a good job and a nice family. She has a lot going.

have a lot on one's mind Fig. to have many things to worry about; to be preoccupied. □ I'm sorry that I'm so grouchy. I have a lot of troubles on my mind. □ He forgot to go to his appointment because he had a lot on his mind.

have a low boiling point Fig. to anger easily. □ Be nice to John. He's upset and has a low boiling point. □ Mr. Jones sure has a low boiling point. I hardly said anything, and he got angry.

have a mind as sharp as a steel trap Fig. to be very intelligent. □ She's a smart kid. Has a mind as sharp as a steel trap. □ They say the professor has a mind as sharp as a steel trap, but then why can't he figure out which bus to take in the morning?

have a mind of one's own Fig. to be very independent. □ There is no point in telling her what to do. She has a mind of her own.

have a mind to to be inclined to do something. □ I have a mind to accept your challenge. □ Tom had a mind to call up Sally and ask her to dinner.

have a near miss Fig. to nearly crash or collide. □ The airplanes—flying much too close—had a near miss. □ I had a near miss with a bike while driving over here.

Have a nice day. and Have a good day; Have a nice one; Have a good one. Cliché an expression said when parting or saying good-bye. (This is now quite hackneyed, and many people are annoyed by it.) □ Clerk: Thank you. Tom: Thank you. Clerk: Have a nice day. □ Bob: See you, man! John: Bye, Bob. Have a good one!

Have a nice flight. Please enjoy your flight. (Said when wishing someone well on an airplane trip. Often said by airline personnel to their passengers.) □ Clerk: Here's your ticket, sir. Have a nice flight. Fred: Thanks. □ As Mary boarded the plane, the flight attendant said, "Have a nice flight."

have a nose for something Fig. to have the ability to sense or find something, such as news, trouble, gossip, etc. □ She really has a nose for news. She's a good reporter. □ Fred has a nose for gossip.

have a one-track mind Fig. to think entirely or almost entirely about one subject. □ Adolescent boys often have one-track minds. All they're interested in is the opposite sex. □ Bob has a one-track mind. He can only talk about football.

have a passion for someone or something Fig. to have a strong feeling of need or desire for someone, something, or some activity. □ Mary has a great passion for chocolate. □ John has a passion for fishing, so he fishes as often as he can.

have a penchant for doing something to have a taste, desire, or inclination for doing something. □ John has a penchant for eating fattening foods. □ Ann has a penchant for buying clothes.

have a place in something to have a role in some plan or some activity. □ Do I have a place in the negotiations? □ Mary did not have a place in any of this.

have a rare old time a fine and enjoyable time at a party or something similar. □ We had a rare old time at Tom's the other night. □ I haven't had a rare old time like that in years.

have a rough time (of it) and have a tough time (of it) to experience a difficult period. □ Since his wife died, Mr. Brown has been having a rough time of it. □ Be nice to Bob. He's been having a rough time at work.

have a roving eye Euph. to be flirtatious; to be interested in having sexual relations outside of marriage. (Usually used to describe men.) □ Poor Maria. Her husband has a roving eye. □ When they were first married, he had a roving eye.

have a run of something Fig. to have a continuous series of events. (Especially bad luck.) □ I had a run of bad luck at the casino. □ The city had a run of serious crimes that angered the citizens. □ The company had a run of huge sales increases over the last few years.

have a run-in (with someone or something) to have trouble with someone or something. □ I had a run-in with Mrs. Wilson. She's a hard case. □ We've had a run-in before.

Have a safe journey. Go to next.

Have a safe trip. and Have a safe journey. I hope that your journey is safe.; Be careful and assure that your journey is safe. (Said as someone is about to leave for a trip.) □ Bill: Well, we're off for London. Sally: Have a safe trip. □ Bill: You're driving all the way to San Francisco? Bob: Yes, indeed. Bill: Well, have a safe trip.

have a score to settle (with someone) Fig. to have a problem to clear up with someone; to have to get even with someone about something. □ I have a score to settle with John since he insulted me at our party. □ John and I have a score to settle.

have a scrape (with someone or something) Fig. to come into contact with someone or something; to have a small battle with someone or something. □ I had a scrape with the county sheriff. □ John and Bill had a scrape, but they are friends again now.

have a screw loose and have a loose screw; have got a screw loose Inf. Fig. to be silly or eccentric. □ He's sort of strange. I think he's got a loose screw. □ Yes, he has a screw loose somewhere. He wears a heavy jacket in the middle of summer.

have a seat to sit down. (Often a polite invitation to sit down.) □ Have a seat. I'll be with you in a minute.

have a set-to (with someone) to have an argument or fight with someone. □ Perry and Emmet had quite a set-to over the choice of music.

have a soft spot (in one's heart) for someone or an animal Fig. to have a fondness for someone, something, or an animal. □ I have a soft spot in my heart for Jeff. I'll always be his friend. □ Elaine has a soft spot for kittens.

have a (sound) grasp of something Go to a (solid) grasp of something.

have a spaz Sl. to get angry or hysterical; to have a convulsion (fit). (Spaz is short for a spastic attack or fit.) □ If my dad hears about this, he'll have a spaz. □ The teacher had a spaz when I came in so late.

have a stake in something Fig. to have something at risk in something; to have a financial or other interest in something. □ I have a stake in that company. I want it to make a profit. □ I don't have a stake in it, so I don't care.

have a stroke to experience sudden unconsciousness or paralysis due to an interruption in the blood supply to the brain. (Also used as an exaggeration. See the last example.) □ The patient who received an artificial heart had a stroke two days after the operation. □ My great-uncle Bill—who is very old—had a stroke last May. □ Calm down, Bob. Don't have a stroke over a silly mistake.

have a sweet tooth Fig. to desire to eat many sweet foods—especially candy and pastries. □ I have a sweet tooth, and if I don't watch it, I'll really get fat. □ John eats candy all the time. He must have a sweet tooth.

have a thing about someone or something 1. to have a special fear or dislike of someone or something. □ Kelly has a thing about Tim. She simply hates him. □ I have a thing about snakes. 2. to have a craving for someone or something. □ I have a thing about Maggie. I guess I'm in love. □ Elaine has a thing about strawberry ice cream. She can't get enough of it.

have a thing going (with someone) and have something going (with someone) Fig. to have a romance or a love affair with someone. □ John and Mary have a thing going. □ Bill has something going with Ann.

have a thirst for something 1. Lit. to be thirsty for something to drink. □ I have a thirst for a tall glass of iced tea. 2. Fig. to have a craving or desire for something. □ The tyrant had an intense thirst for power. □ The actor's thirst for fame caused him to become unscrupulous.

have a tiger by the tail and have got a tiger by the tail; have a bear by the tail Fig. to have become associated with something powerful and potentially dangerous; to have a very difficult problem to solve. □ You have a tiger by the tail. You bit off more than you could chew. □ You've had a bear by the tail ever since you agreed to finish that big project.

have (a) use for someone or something 1. to have need for someone or something. (Often negative. Note the use of any and no in several examples.) □ I have no use for Josh and his big fancy car. □ See if you have use for this hammer. □ Do you have any use for this? □ I have no use for that. 2. to like someone or something. (Often negative.

Note the use of any and no.) □ I don't have any use for sweet potatoes. □ I have no use for Harry.

have a way with someone or something to have a special and effective way of dealing with someone or something. □ She has a way with Jeff. She can get him to do anything. □ Sarah has a way with flowers. She can arrange them beautifully.

have a way with words to have talent in the effective or stylish use of words. (See also have the gift of the gab.) □ Ask Perry to make the announcement. He has a way with words.

have a weakness for someone or something Fig. to be unable to resist someone or something; to be (figuratively) powerless against someone or something. □ I have a weakness for chocolate. □ John has a weakness for Mary. I think he's in love.

have a weight problem Euph. to be fat; to be overweight. □ He had a weight problem when he was a teenager, but he slimmed down once he started exercising. □ She has a weight problem, but she's a lovely woman.

have a whack at something Go to a try at something.

have a whale of a time Fig. to have an exciting or fun time; to have a big time. (Whale is a way of saying big.) □ We had a whale of a time at Sally's birthday party. □ Enjoy your vacation! I hope you have a whale of a time.

have a yellow belly and have a yellow streak down one's back Fig. to be cowardly. □ Tex has a yellow streak down his back a mile wide. He's afraid to cross the street!

have a yellow streak down one's back Go to previous.

have all one's marbles Fig. to have all one's mental faculties; to be mentally sound. (Very often with a negative or said to convey doubt.) □ I don't think he has all his marbles. □ Do you think Bob has all his marbles?

have an accident 1. to experience something that was not foreseen or intended. □ Traffic is very bad. I almost had an accident. □ Drive carefully. Try to avoid having an accident. 2. Euph. to lose control of the bowels or the bladder. (Usually said of a young child.) □ "Oh, Ann," cried Mother. "It looks like you've had an accident!" □ Mother asked Billy to go to the bathroom before they left so that he wouldn't have an accident in the car.

have an ace up one's sleeve Go to have something up one's sleeve.

have an affair (with someone) to have a love affair with someone. □ When I was 20, I had an affair with a rock star, and really made a fool of myself.

have an alcohol problem and have a drinking problem Euph. to be a drunkard. □ He has an alcohol problem. It got so bad that he almost lost his job. □ If you have a drinking problem, our clinic can help.

have an appetite for something 1. Lit. to have a desire to eat something in particular. □ I have an appetite for a nice big steak. 2. Fig. to have a desire to have, see, hear, etc., something. □ Bobby has a big appetite for sports and activity. □ Bob has no appetite for violence on television.

have an argument (with someone) to argue with someone. □ Let's not have an argument with the boss. □ Tom and John had an argument.

have an ax(e) to grind Fig. to have something to complain about. □ Tom, I need to talk to you. I have an ax to grind. □ Bill and Bob went into the other room to argue. They had an axe to grind.

have an ear for something Fig. to have the ability to learn music or languages. □ Bill doesn't have an ear for music. He can't carry a tune. □ Mary has a good ear for languages.

have an easy time of it to have an experience with something that is less difficult or severe than others have experienced. □ We were given a hard assignment, but Fred had an easy time of it.

have an effect on someone or something to cause a result in someone or something. □ The storm had a bad effect on the baby, who cried all night. □ Will this have an effect on my taxes?

have an eye for someone or something Fig. to have a taste or an inclination for someone or something. □ Bob has an eye for beauty. □ He has an eye for color.

have an impact on someone or something to leave an impression on someone or something. □ The sharp change in interest rates had an impact on the housing market. □ Your story really had an impact on me.

have another guess coming Go to next.

have another think coming and have another guess coming to have to rethink something because one was wrong the first time. (Think is a noun here.) □ She's quite wrong. She has another think coming if she wants to walk in here like that. □ You have another guess coming if you think you can treat me like that!

have arrived to have reached a position of power, authority, or prominence. □ Jane saw her picture on the cover of the magazine and felt that she had finally arrived. □ When I got an office with a window, I knew that I had arrived.

Have at it. Start doing it.; Start eating your food. □ John: Here's your hamburger. Have at it. Jane: Thanks. Where's the mustard? □ John: Did you notice? The driveway needs sweeping. Jane: Here's the broom. Have at it.

have at someone to go at someone; to attack someone. □ The boys had at the gang members and gave them a beating. □ I just knew John was going to have at Fred.

have at something Go to get at something.

have bats in one's belfry Inf. Fig. to be crazy. □ You must really have bats in your belfry if you think I'll put up with that kind of stuff. □ Pay no attention to her. She has bats in her belfry.

have been around to be experienced in life. (Use with caution since this can also be taken to mean to be promiscuous.) □ Ask Sally about how the government works. She's been around the state capital for years. □ They all know a lot about life. They've been around.

have been to hell and back Fig. to have survived a great deal of trouble. □ What a terrible day! I feel like I have been to hell and back. □ After a day of shopping, I feel like I have been to hell and back.

have bigger fish to fry and have other fish to fry; have more important fish to fry Fig. to have other things to do; to have more important things to do. □ I can't take time for your problem. I have other fish to fry. □ have broad shoulders 1. Lit. to have wide shoulders. □ She has broad shoulders because she exercises and lifts weights. 2. Fig. to have the ability to cope with unpleasant responsibilities; to have the ability to accept criticism or rebuke. □ No need to apologize to me. I can take it. I have broad shoulders. □ Karen may have broad shoulders, but she can't endure endless criticism.

I won't waste time on your question. I have bigger fish to fry.

have calluses from patting one's own back and break one's arm patting oneself on the back Fig. to be a braggart. □ If you haven't heard about Bill's latest achievement, he'd be glad to tell you. He has calluses from patting his own back. □ Jane: I did a really wonderful job, if I do say so myself. Tom: If you're not careful, you'll break your arm patting yourself on the back.

have carnal knowledge of someone Euph. to have had sex with someone. (Formal or jocular.) □ She had never before had carnal knowledge of a man.

have cause to do something to have a justifiable reason to do something. □ Do you have cause to think that Mary took your money? □ He had no cause to yell at me like that.

have clean hands Fig. to be guiltless. (As if a guilty person would have dirty or bloody hands.) □ Don't look at me. I have clean hands. □ The police took him in, but let him go after questioning because he had clean hands.

have come a long way 1. Lit. to have traveled a long distance. □ You've come a long way. You must be tired and hungry. □ I've come a long way. Please let me rest. 2. Fig. to have accomplished much; to have advanced much. □ My, how famous you are. You've come a long way. □ Tom has come a long way in his career in a short time.

have confidence in someone to trust someone; to know that someone will be true. □ I have confidence in you, and I know you will do well. □ Randy tends not to have confidence in anyone.

have designs on someone or something Fig. to have plans to exploit or somehow take advantage of someone or something. □ Mrs. Brown has designs on my apple tree. I think she's going to cut off the part that hangs over her fence. □ Mary has designs on Bill. I think she'll try to date him.

have dibs on something to reserve something for oneself; to claim something for oneself. (Often said by children.) □ I have dibs on the last piece of cake. □ John has dibs on the last piece again. It isn't fair.

have doubts about someone or something to have questions or suspicions about someone or something. □ I have doubts about Alice and whether she can do it. □ We have no doubts about the usefulness of this project.

have egg on one's face Fig. to be embarrassed by something one has done. (As if one went out in public with a dirty face.) □ I was completely wrong, and now I have egg on my face. □ She's really got egg on her face!

have eyes in the back of one's head Fig. to seem to be able to sense what is going on behind or outside of one's field of vision. □ My teacher seems to have eyes in the back of her head. □ My teacher doesn't need to have eyes in the back of his head. He watches us very carefully.

have faith in someone to believe someone; to trust someone to do or be what is claimed. □ I have faith in you. I know you will try your best. We have faith in you and know you can do the job well.

have feelings about someone or something to have preferences or notions about someone or something. (Usually in the negative.) I don't have any feelings about Jeff. You can choose him if you want. I have no feelings about this matter. Do what you want.

have feet of clay Fig. [for a strong person] to have a defect of character. All human beings have feet of clay. No one is perfect. Sally was popular and successful. She was nearly fifty before she learned that she, too, had feet of clay.

have fun to experience enjoyment. Please forget your problems and have fun.

have (got) a glow on Fig. to be intoxicated; to be tipsy. (Fixed order.) Since you already have a glow on, I guess you won't want another drink. Jed had a glow on and was acting silly.

have growing pains 1. Fig. [for a child] to have pains—which are attributed to growth—in the muscles and joints. The doctor said that all Mary had were growing pains and that nothing was really wrong. Not everyone has growing pains. 2. Fig. [for an organization] to have difficulties in its early stages of growth. The banker apologized for losing my check and said the bank was having growing pains. The new administration was having terrible growing pains.

have had enough to have had as much of something as is needed or will be tolerated. Stop yelling at me. I've had enough. No more potatoes, please. I've had enough. I'm leaving you, Bill. I've had enough!

have had it (up to here) to have reached the end of one's endurance or tolerance. (When used with up to here, can be accompanied by a gesture, such as the hand held at the neck.) Okay, I've had it. You kids go to bed this instant. We've all had it up to here with you, John. Get out!

have had its day to be no longer useful or successful. Streetcars have had their day in most American cities. Some people think that the fountain pen has had its day, but others prefer it to other kinds of pens.

have half a mind to do something Go to next.

have half a notion to do something and have half a mind to do something Fig. to have almost decided to do something, especially something unpleasant. I have half a mind to go off and leave you here. The cook had half a notion to serve cold chicken.

have hell to pay Go to have the devil to pay.

have hidden talents Go to have a hidden talent.

have (high) hopes of something Fig. to be expecting something. I have hopes of getting there early. We have high hopes that John and Mary will have a girl.

Have I got something for you! Inf. I have something really exciting for you! (Said earnestly, before saying or showing something surprising or exciting.) Have I got something for you! Wait'll you hear about it! Have I got something for you! You're gonna love it.

Have I made myself clear? Do you understand exactly what I am telling you? (Indicates anger or dominance.) I don't intend to warn you again. Have I made myself clear?

I do not want you to hang around with Tim ever again! Have I made myself clear?

have intimate relations with someone Euph. to have sex with someone. I understand that Jim once had intimate relations with Sarah. Rumor has it that she has had intimate relations with someone other than her husband.

have it (all) over someone or something (in something) to be much better than someone or something. This case has it all over that one. My car has it all over yours.

have it all together and have got it all together to be mentally and physically organized; to be of sound mind. I don't have it all together today. Try me again later when I have it all together.

have it both ways to have both of two incompatible things. John wants the security of marriage and the freedom of being single. He wants to have it both ways. John thinks he can have it both ways—the wisdom of old age and the vigor of youth.

have it in for someone to be mad at someone; to wish to harm someone. Jane seems to have it in for Jerry. I don't know why. Max has it in for his old girlfriend since she broke up with him.

have it in one to do something to have the motivation or inspiration to do something. She just doesn't have it in her to go back home. I wanted to help out, but I just didn't have it in me.

have it made and have got it made to have succeeded; to be set for life. I have a good job and a nice little family. I have it made. He's really got it made since he won the lottery.

have it made in the shade and have got it made in the shade Sl. to have succeeded; to be set for life. Wow, is he lucky! He has it made in the shade. Sarah's got it made in the shade with her huge inheritance.

Have it your way. It will be done your way.; You will get your way. (Usually shows irritation on the part of the speaker.) Tom: I would like to do this room in blue. Sue: I prefer yellow. I really do. Tom: Okay. Have it your way. Jane: Let's get a pie. Apple would be good. Bob: No, if we are going to buy a whole pie, I want a cherry pie, not apple. Jane: Oh, have it your way!

have just one oar in the water Rur. to not be thinking clearly. Tom has some crazy plan for opening his own restaurant. If you ask me, he has just one oar in the water. She has just one oar in the water if she thinks Bill is going to pay any attention to her.

have kittens to get extremely upset. My mother pretty near had kittens when she found out I got fired. Calm down. Don't have kittens.

have more luck than sense to be lucky but not intelligent. Jane went driving out into Death Valley without any water. She survived—she has more luck than sense. Tom: I like to drive ninety miles an hour on the freeway. Nobody's ever caught me. Mary: You have more luck than sense.

have more than one string to one's fiddle Rur. to have many talents. Joe has more than one string to his fiddle. He's a good painter, and he also cooks and fixes cars. This job involves a lot of different duties. We'll need to hire someone who has more than one string to his fiddle.

have neither rhyme nor reason Go to neither rhyme nor reason.

(have) never had it so good have never had so much good fortune. No, I'm not complaining. I've never had it so good. Mary is pleased with her new job. She's never had it so good.

have no business doing something to be wrong to do something; to be extremely unwise to do something. You have no business bursting in on me like that! You have no business spending money like that!

have no staying power to lack endurance; not to be able to last. Sally can swim fast for a short distance, but she has no staying power. That horse can start fairly fast, but it has no staying power.

have no truck with something Rur. to have nothing to do with something. After the way Mary treated me, I'll have no truck with her. We only show good, wholesome movies at this theater. We have no truck with most of that Hollywood trash.

have none of something to tolerate or endure no amount of something. I'll have none of your talk about quitting school. We'll have none of your gossip. I wish to have none of the sweet potatoes, please.

have nothing on someone 1. to lack the evidence necessary to place a charge against someone. The police had nothing on Bob, so they let him loose. You've got nothing on me! Let me go! 2. to have an advantage over someone. Roger has nothing on me when it comes to basketball.

have nothing on someone or something to have no information about someone or something. (See also have nothing on someone.) The dictionary had nothing on the word I looked up. The librarian said that the library has nothing on the topic of my paper.

have nothing to do with someone or something and not have anything to do with someone or something to prefer not to associate or be associated with someone or something. I don't like Mike so I won't have anything to do with the books he writes. Bob will have nothing to do with Mary since she quit her job.

have one foot in the grave Fig. to be almost dead. I was so sick, I felt as if I had one foot in the grave. Poor old Uncle Herman has one foot in the grave.

have one in the oven Fig. to be pregnant with a child. She's got three kids now and one in the oven.

have one's ass in a sling and have got one's ass in a sling Sl. to be dejected or hurt; to be pouting. (Potentially offensive. Use only with discretion.) She's got her ass in a sling because she got stood up. So you didn't get a perfect score. Why do you have your ass in a sling?

have one's back to the wall Fig. to be in a defensive position. He'll have to give in. He has his back to the wall. How can I bargain when I've got my back to the wall?

have one's brain on a leash Sl. to be drunk. Max had his brain on a leash before he even got to the party. Some guy who had his brain on a leash ran his car off the road.

have one's cake and eat it too and eat one's cake and have it too Cliché to have in one's possession something and be able to use or exploit it; to have it both ways. (Usually stated in the negative.) Tom wants to have his cake and eat it too. It can't be done. Don't buy a car if you want to walk and stay healthy. You can't eat your cake and have it too.

have one's druthers Go to have one's rathers.

have one's ear to the ground Go to keep an ear to the ground.

have one's eye on someone or something Go to keep an eye on someone or something.

have one's eye out (for someone or something) Go to keep an eye out (for someone or something).

have one's feet on the ground Go to keep one's feet on the ground.

have one's finger in too many pies Fig. to be involved in too many things; to have too many tasks going to be able to do any of them well. (See also have a finger in the pie.) I'm too busy. I have my finger in too many pies. She never gets anything done because she has her finger in too many pies.

have one's finger(s) in the till Go to have one's hand in the till.

have one's hand in something Fig. to exercise control over something; to play an identifiable role in doing something. (See also have a hand in something.) She always has to have her hand in everything. I want to have my hand in the arrangement.

have one's hand in the till and have one's finger(s) in the till Fig. to steal money from one's employer. James couldn't afford that car on just his salary. He must have his hand in the till. Sally was outraged when she found that one of her salesclerks had his fingers in the till.

have one's hands full (with someone or something) Fig. to be busy or totally occupied with someone or something. I have my hands full with my three children. You have your hands full with managing the store.

have one's hands tied Fig. to be prevented from doing something. (As if one's hands were made immobile.) I can't help you. I was told not to, so I have my hands tied. John can't help. He has his hands tied by his boss.

have one's head in the clouds Fig. to be unaware of what is going on from fantasies or daydreams. "Bob, do you have your head in the clouds?" asked the teacher. She walks around all day with her head in the clouds. She must be in love.

have one's head in the sand Go to bury one's head in the sand.

have one's heart (dead) set against something Fig. to be totally against something; to be opposed to something. Jane has her heart dead set against going to Australia. John has his heart set against going to college.

have one's heart go out to someone Fig. to have compassion for someone. I can't have my heart go out to everyone. To give generously to charity shows that one's heart goes out to those who are suffering.

have one's heart in one's mouth Fig. to feel strongly emotional about someone or something. (See also one's heart is in one's mouth.) I had my heart in my mouth when I heard the national anthem.

have one's heart in the right place Fig. to have good intentions, even if there are bad results. I don't always do what is right, but my heart is in the right place. Good old Tom. His gifts are always tacky, but his heart's in the right place.

have one's heart on one's sleeve Go to wear one's heart on one's sleeve.

have one's heart set on something Fig. to be desiring and expecting something. Jane has her heart set on going to London. Bob will be disappointed. He had his heart set on going to college this year.

have one's heart stand still Fig. an expression said when one's heart (figuratively) stops beating because one is shocked or is feeling strong emotions. I had my heart stand still once when I was overcome with joy. Lovers—at least the ones in love songs—usually say their hearts stood still.

have one's luck run out Fig. for one's good luck to stop; for one's good fortune to come to an end. I had my luck run out when I was in South America. I nearly starved. I hate to have my luck run out just when I need it.

have one's mind in the gutter and have got one's mind in the gutter Fig. tending to think of or say things that are obscene. Tiffany has her mind in the gutter. That's why she laughs at all that dirty stuff. Why do you tell so many dirty jokes? Do you always have your mind in the gutter.

have one's name inscribed in the book of life Euph. to die. He was a beloved father, brother, and friend, and he has his name inscribed in the book of life. By the time she was twenty, her parents, brothers, and sister had all had their names inscribed in the book of life.

have one's nose in a book Fig. to be reading a book; to read books all the time. Bob has his nose in a book every time I see him. His nose is always in a book. He never gets any exercise.

have one's nose in the air Fig. to be conceited or aloof. Mary always seems to have her nose in the air. I wonder if she knows that she has her nose in the air.

have one's nose out of joint Go to get one's nose out of joint.

have one's rathers and have one's druthers (More informal with druthers.) to have what one prefers; to have one's way. If I had my rathers, we'd go out every Friday night. I suspect that if Joe had his druthers, he'd be taking Mary to the dance instead of Jill.

have one's shoulder to the wheel and keep one's shoulder to the wheel; pit one's shoulder to the wheel Fig. to do the hard work that needs to be done; to focus on getting a job done. You won't accomplish anything unless you put your shoulder to the wheel. I put my shoulder to the wheel and finished the job quickly.

have one's way with someone Euph. to have sexual relations with someone, possibly with that person being reluctant. He invited her up to his apartment, hoping to have his way with her. Now that you have had your way with me, do I mean nothing to you?

have one's wires crossed Fig. to have one's mental processes in disarray; to be confused. You don't know what you are talking about. You've really got your wires crossed!

Joan got her wires crossed about who arrived first. It was Bob, not Gary.

have one's words stick in one's throat Fig. to be so overcome by emotion that one can hardly speak. I sometimes have my words stick in my throat. John said that he never had his words stick in his throat.

have one's work cut out for one Fig. to have a large and difficult task prepared for one. They sure have their work cut out for them, and it's going to be hard. There is a lot for Bob to do. He has his work cut out for him.

have one too many and have a few too many Euph. to be drunk. He had one too many, and now he's throwing up. You'd better not drive. I think you've had a few too many.

have oneself something to get, have, or take something. I'll have myself some of that coconut cream pie, if you don't mind. You just go and have yourself a nice, long nap.

have pity on someone or an animal to have compassion toward someone or an animal. (See also take pity on someone or an animal.) Please! Have pity on us. Let us come in!

have pull with someone to have influence with someone. (Also with some, much, lots, etc.) Let's ask Ann to help us. She has pull with the mayor. Do you know anyone who has some pull with the bank president? I need a loan.

have recourse to something to be able to use something for help; to be able to fall back on something. You will always have recourse to the money your grandfather left you. You will not have recourse to that money until you are over 21 years of age.

have relations with someone Euph. to have sexual relations with someone. While engaged to Mary, he was having relations with at least two other women. She was having relations with one of her employees, which was strictly against policy.

have rocks in one's head Fig. to be silly or crazy. John is a real nut. He has rocks in his head. I don't have rocks in my head—I'm just different.

have seen better days Euph. to be in bad condition. My old car has seen better days, but at least it's still running. She's seen better days, it's true, but she's still lots of fun.

have so Go to have too.

have (some) bearing on something to have relevance to something. (Note the use of no and any in the negative.) I know something that has some bearing on the issue you are discussing. This has no bearing on anything that will happen today. This doesn't have any bearing on all that. What bearing does John's decision have on the situation?

have some food to go Go to to go.

have (some) time to kill Fig. to have extra time; to have a period of time with nothing to do. Whenever you have some time to kill, call me up and we'll chat.

have someone around (for something) to have someone come for a visit, tea, dinner, etc. We really should have the Wilsons around for an evening of bridge. Yes, let's have them around.

have someone back to invite someone for a return visit. We would love to have you back sometime. We want to have you back the next time you are in town.

have someone behind the eight ball Go to behind the eight ball.

have someone by someone or something Go to by someone or something.

have someone by something to hold onto someone by something. (See also have someone by someone or something.) She had me by the shoulder and I couldn't get away. Timmy had Billy by the collar and was punching him on the shoulder.

have someone dead to rights Fig. to have caught someone red-handed; to have irrefutable evidence about someone's misdeed. We have you dead to rights on this one. The cops had him dead to rights with damning testimony of two eyewitnesses.

have someone down to have someone for a visit to a place that is on a lower level or in the south. (Fixed order.) Why don't we have Roger down for the weekend? They had us down to their place in Florida.

have someone drawn and quartered Go to drawn and quartered.

have someone for breakfast Fig. to defeat someone with ease. Careful, she'll have you for breakfast if you're not prepared to debate her. I'm afraid they had our team for breakfast again.

have someone in to call or invite someone into one's home. (Fixed order.) I'll have the plumber in to fix that leak. We had friends in for bridge last night.

have someone in one's corner Fig. to have someone supporting one's position or goals. (Originally from boxing.) As long as I have Mr. Howe in my corner, I feel confident about what I have to say.

have someone in one's pocket Fig. to have complete control over someone. Don't worry about the mayor. She'll cooperate. I've got her in my pocket. John will do just what I tell him. I've got him and his brother in my pocket.

have someone in one's spell and have someone under one's spell Fig. to have enchanted or captivated the attention of someone. She has him in her spell with her grace and beauty. Ken has Karen under his spell.

have someone on a string Go to on a string.

have someone on the string Fig. to have someone waiting for a decision. Sally has John on the string. He has asked her to marry him, but she hasn't replied yet. Yes, it sounds like she has him on the string.

have someone or something about and have someone or something around to have someone or something nearby habitually. I really don't want to have all those people about all the time. It's good to have a fire extinguisher around.

have someone or something cornered 1. Lit. to have someone or something trapped as in a corner. We had the wild cat cornered, but it jumped over the wall and got away. 2. Fig. to have someone or something located and under control. I think I have the part you need cornered in a warehouse in Indiana. We'll order it.

have someone or something in mind Fig. to be thinking of someone or something as a candidate for something. Did you have anyone in mind for the job? I have something in mind for the living-room carpeting. He proba- bly had himself in mind when he spoke about the need for new blood.

have someone or something in one's hands 1. Lit. to hold someone or something in one's hands. (Have can be replaced with leave or put.) I have the tools you need in my hands, ready to give them to you when you need them.

2. Fig. to have control of or responsibility for someone or something. (Have can be replaced with leave or put.) You have the whole project in your hands. The boss put the whole project in your hands.

have someone or something in one's sights 1. Lit. to have one's gun aimed at someone or something. The sniper had the soldier in his sights. I had the deer in my sights. I fired. 2. Fig. to consider someone or something one's goal or conquest. I have a promotion in my sights and I hope to get it before the end of the year. I've had Sally in my sights for years. I intend to marry her.

have someone or something in tow Fig. to lead, pull, or tow someone or something around. Mrs. Smith has her son by the hand and in tow. That car has a boat in tow.

have someone or something on one's hands to be burdened with someone or something. (Have can be replaced with leave.) I run a record store. I sometimes have a large number of unwanted records on my hands. Please don't leave the children on my hands.

have someone or something on one's mind and have someone or something on the brain (More informal with brain.) to think often about someone or something; to be obsessed with someone or something. Bill has chocolate on his mind. John has Mary on his mind every minute. Karen has Ken on the brain.

have someone or something on the brain Go to previous.

have someone or something on track Go to on track.

have someone or something under (close) scrutiny Go to under (close) scrutiny.

have someone or something under control Go to under control.

have someone or something (well) in hand Fig. to have someone or something under control. I have the child well in hand now. She won't cause you any more trouble. We have everything in hand. Don't worry.

have someone over a barrel Go to over a barrel.

have someone over (for something) to invite someone to come to one's home, for a meal, party, visit, cards, the evening, etc. (Fixed order.) We will have you over for dinner some day. We will have you over soon.

have someone pegged as something Go to peg someone as something.

have someone's best interest(s) at heart to make decisions based on someone's best interests. I know she was only doing what would benefit her, but she said she had my best interests at heart.

have someone's blood on one's hands 1. Lit. to have the blood of some other person on one's hands. He fell and got a terrible cut and now I have his blood on my hands as well as my shirt. 2. Fig. to be responsible for someone's death; to be guilty of causing someone's death. The teenager's blood was on the policeman's hands. The king's blood was on the hands of the murderer who killed him.

have someone's eye Fig. [for someone] to establish and hold eye contact with someone; to attract someone's attention. When Tom at last had her eye, he smiled at her. Once she had my eye, she began motioning toward the exit.

have someone's hide Fig. to punish someone severely. The sheriff swore he'd have the outlaw's hide. You lousy no-good so-and-so! I'll have your hide!

have someone slated for something Go to slated for something.

have someone slated to do something Go to slated to do something.

have someone under a spell Go to under a spell.

have someone under one's spell Go to have someone in one's spell.

have someone under someone's thumb Go to under someone's thumb.

have someone under someone's wing(s) Go to under someone's wing(s).

have someone up (for something) to invite someone to a place that is on a higher level or in the north, for a meal, party, cards, etc. (Fixed order.) We would like to have you up for dinner some evening. We will have you up soon.

have something against someone or something to have a reason to dislike someone or something. (Note the replacement for something in the negative in the example.) Do you have something against me? I have nothing against chocolate ice cream.

have something at one's fingertips and have something at hand Fig. to have something within (one's) easy reach. (Have can be replaced with keep.) I have a dictionary at my fingertips. I try to have everything I need at hand.

have something cinched Fig. Inf. to have something settled; to have the results of some act assured. Don't worry. I've got it cinched. You just think you've got it cinched.

have something coming (to one) to deserve punishment (for something). Bill broke a window, so he has a spanking coming to him. That's it, Bill. Now you've got it coming!

have something doing and have something on to have plans for a particular period of time. (Note the variation with anything in the examples. Fixed order.) Bob: Are you busy Saturday night? Bill: Yes, I've got something doing. I don't have anything doing Sunday night. I have something on almost every Saturday.

have something down to a T Fig. to have something mastered. I can do it. I have it down to a T.

have something for (a meal) to serve or eat something at a particular meal, such as breakfast, lunch, dinner, supper, etc. We had eggs for breakfast. What did you have for dinner?

have something for someone to have a gift for someone; to have something in reserve for someone. I have some cake for you in the kitchen if you want it. We have a present for you. Here. I hope you like it.

have something for something to have a remedy for a problem, disease, etc.; to possess something used for some purpose. I have something for tight jar lids. It will open them immediately. I have some medicine for that disease.

have something going (for oneself) [for someone] to have a beneficial scheme or operation going. John really has something going for himself. He's a travel agent, and he gets to travel everywhere for free. I wish I could have something like that going.

have something going (with someone) Go to have a thing going (with someone).

have something hanging over one's head Fig. to have something bothering or worrying one; to have a deadline worrying one. I keep worrying about my old car breaking down. I hate to have something like that hanging over my head. I have a history paper that is hanging over my head.

have something hung up and salted Rur. to know everything about something. (Often used ironically, as in the second example.) The historian sure had Louisiana history hung up and salted. Jim's sixteen years old, and he thinks he has the opposite sex hung up and salted.

have something in common (with someone or something) [for groups of people or things] to resemble one another in specific ways. Bill and Bob both have red hair. They have that in common with each other. Bob and Mary have a lot in common. I can see why they like each other.

have something in hand 1. Go to in hand. 2. Fig. to have something under control. I thought I had my destiny in hand, but then fate played a trick on me. Don't worry about me. I have everything in hand.

have something in stock to have merchandise available and ready for sale. Do you have extra large sizes in stock? Of course, we have all sizes and colors in stock.

have something in store (for someone) Fig. to have something planned for one's future. Tom has a large inheritance in store for him when his uncle dies. I wish I had something like that in store.

have something made to hire someone to make something. Isn't it a lovely coat? I had to have it made because I couldn't find one I liked in a store. We had the cake made at the bakery. Our oven isn't big enough for a cake that size.

have something on Go to have something doing.

have something on file to have a written record of something in storage. I'm sure I have your letter on file. I'll check again. We have your application on file somewhere.

have something on one's person) to carry something about with one. Do you have any money on your person? I don't have any business cards on me.

have something on the ball to have a particular amount of smartness or cleverness. Both John and Mary have a lot on the ball. They should go far. I think I'd do better in school if I had more on the ball. I learn slowly.

have something out to have something, such as a tooth, stone, tumor, removed surgically. (Fixed order.) You are going to have to have that tumor out. I don't want to have my tooth out!

have something out (with someone) to settle a disagreement or a complaint. (Fixed order.) John has been mad at Mary for a week. He finally had it out with her today. I'm glad we are having this out today.

have something stick in one's craw Fig. to have something irritate or displease someone. □ I don't like to have someone's words stick in my craw. □ He meant to have the problem stick in my craw and upset me.

have something to burn Fig. to have lots of something, such as money, power, food, space, cars, etc.; to have more of something than one needs. □ Look at the way Tom buys things. You'd think he had money to burn. □ If I had all that acting talent to burn as he does, I'd have won an Oscar by now.

have something to do with something and not have anything to do with something to be associated with or related to something. □ Does your dislike for Sally have something to do with the way she insulted you? □ My illness has something to do with my lungs.

have something to spare Fig. to have more than enough of something. □ Ask John for some firewood. He has firewood to spare. □ Do you have any candy to spare?

have something up one's sleeve and have an ace up one's sleeve Fig. to have a secret or surprise plan or solution (to a problem). (Alludes to cheating at cards by having a card hidden in one's sleeve.) □ I've got something up my sleeve, and it should solve all your problems. I'll tell you what it is after I'm elected. □ The manager has an ace up her sleeve. She'll surprise us with it later.

have something wrapped up Go to sewed up.

have sticky fingers Fig. to have a tendency to steal. □ The clerk—who had sticky fingers—got fired. □ The little boy had sticky fingers and was always taking his father's small change.

have the ball in one's court 1. Lit. to have a ball belonging to a game played on a court on one's side of the court. □ You have the ball in your court, so hit it back to me! 2. Fig. to be responsible for the next move in some process; to have to make a response to something that someone else has started. □ You have the ball in your court now. You have to answer the attorney's questions. □ There was no way that Liz could avoid responding. She had the ball in her court.

have the best of someone or something to defeat someone or something. □ I'm afraid you have the best of me. □ We had the best of the opposite team by the end of the first half.

have the cards stacked against one and have the deck stacked against one Fig. to have one's chance at future success limited by factors over which one has no control; to have luck against one. □ You can't get very far in life if you have the deck stacked against you. □ I can't seem to get ahead. I always have the cards stacked against me.

have the courage of one's convictions to have enough courage and determination to carry out one's goals. □ It's fine to have noble goals in life and to believe in great things. If you don't have the courage of your convictions, you'll never reach your goals. □ Jane was successful because she had the courage of her convictions.

have the deck stacked against one Go to have the cards stacked against one.

have the devil to pay and have hell to pay Inf. to have a great deal of trouble. (Use hell with caution.) □ If you cheat on your income taxes, you'll have the devil to pay. □ I came home after three in the morning and had hell to pay.

have the facts straight Go to get the facts straight.

have the final say Go to the last word.

have the gall to do something Fig. to have sufficient arrogance to do something. □ I bet you don't have the gall to argue with the mayor. □ Only Jane has the gall to ask the boss for a second raise this month.

have the gift of gab and have a gift for gab Fig. to have a great facility with language; to be able to use language very effectively. (See also have a way with words.) □ My brother really has the gift of gab. He can convince anyone of anything. □ I don't talk a lot. I just don't have the gift for gab.

have the hots for someone Sl. to be sexually aroused by someone. □ Perry has the hots for Earline.

have the makings of something Fig. to possess the qualities that are needed for something. □ The young boy had the makings of a fine baseball player. □ My boss has all the makings of a prison warden.

have the Midas touch Fig. to have the ability to be successful, especially the ability to make money easily. (From the name of a legendary king whose touch turned everything to gold.) □ Bob is a merchant banker and really has the Midas touch. □ The poverty-stricken boy turned out to have the Midas touch and was a millionaire by the time he was twenty-five.

have the mullygrubs Rur. to feel depressed. □ She had the mullygrubs because her husband was out of town. □ Joe had the mullygrubs. We tried to cheer him up.

have the patience of a saint and have the patience of Job Fig. to have a great deal of patience. □ Steve had the patience of Job given the way his wife nags him. □ Dear Martha has the patience of a saint; she raised six children by herself.

have the patience of Job Go to previous.

have the presence of mind to do something Fig. to have the calmness and ability to act sensibly in an emergency or difficult situation. □ Jane had the presence of mind to phone the police when the child disappeared. □ The child had the presence of mind to write down the car's license-plate number.

have the shoe on the other foot Fig. to experience the opposite situation (from a previous situation). (See the proverb The shoe is on the other foot.) □ I used to be a student, and now I'm the teacher. Now I have the shoe on the other foot.

have the stomach for something 1. Fig. to be able to tolerate certain foods. □ Do you have the stomach for Tex-Mex cooking? □ We just don't have the stomach for onions anymore. 2. Fig. to have the courage or resolution to do something. □ I don't have the stomach for watching those horror movies. □ Ken doesn't have the stomach for fighting.

have the time of one's life to have a very good time; to have the most exciting time in one's life. □ What a great party! I had the time of my life. □ We went to Florida last winter and had the time of our lives.

have to do something so bad one can taste it Go to so bad one can taste it.

have to do with something to be associated with or related to something. □ Sally's unhappiness has to do with the way you insulted her. □ My illness has to do with my stomach.

have to get married Euph. [for a couple] to get married because the woman is pregnant. □ They didn't have a long engagement. They had to get married, you see. □ They had to get married, and their first baby was born seven months later.

have to go some (to do something) to need to try very hard to accomplish something. □ That's really great, Jean! I have to go some to do better than that!

have to hand it to someone to give someone credit [for something]. (Includes an expression of obligation, such as must, got to, have to, etc.) □ You've really got to hand it to Jane. She has done a fine job. □ We have to hand it to Fred. That wine he brought was great.

have to live with something to have to endure something. □ I have a slight limp in the leg that I broke last year. The doctor says I'll have to live with it. □ We don't like the carpeting in the living room, but since money is so tight we'll have to live with it.

have too and have so to have done something (despite anything to the contrary). (This is an emphatic way of affirming that something has happened.) □ Mother: You haven't made your bed. Bob: I have too! □ I have so turned in my paper! If you don't have it, you lost it!

have too many irons in the fire Fig. to be doing too many things at once. □ Tom had too many irons in the fire and missed some important deadlines. □ It's better if you don't have too many irons in the fire.

have too much of a good thing Prov. To hurt yourself by overindulging in something good. □ I've gained five pounds from all the holiday dinners I've eaten this month. I think I had too much of a good thing. □ Alan: We're having such a good time at this resort, why don't we stay another week? Jane: I think we'd get bored with it if we stayed that long. You can have too much of a good thing, you know.

have too much on one's plate and have a lot on one's plate Fig. to be too busy. □ I'm sorry, I just have too much on my plate right now. □ If you have too much on your plate, can I help?

have (too much) time on one's hands Fig. to have extra time; to have time to spare. □ Your problem is that you have too much time on your hands. □ I don't have time on my hands. I am busy all the time.

have two left feet Fig. to be very awkward with one's feet. (Often refers to awkwardness at dancing.) □ I'm sorry, I can't dance better. I have two left feet.

have what it takes and have got what it takes to have the skills, power, intelligence, etc., to do something. □ I know I've got what it takes. □ I guess I don't have what it takes to be a composer.

have words Euph. to argue. □ From the sound of things, Bill and his father had words last night. □ We had words on the subject of money.

have words with someone (over someone or something) Fig. to quarrel with someone over someone or something. □ I had words with John over Mary and her friends. □ Elaine had words with Tony over his driving habits.

(Have you) been keeping busy? and (Have you been) keeping busy?; You been keeping busy? Inf. a vague greeting asking about how someone has been occupied. □ Tom: Been keeping busy? Bill: Yeah. Too busy. □ Sue: Hi, Fred. Have you been keeping busy? Fred: Not really. Just doing what I have to.

(Have you) been keeping cool? and (Have you been) keeping cool?; You been keeping cool? Inf. an inquiry about how someone is surviving very hot weather. □ Tom: What do you think of this hot weather? Been keeping cool? Sue: No, I like this weather just as it is. □ Mary: Keeping cool? Bill: Yup. Run the air-conditioning all the time.

(Have you) been keeping out of trouble? and (Have you been) keeping out of trouble?; You been keeping out of trouble? Inf. a vague greeting asking one what one has been doing. □ Bob: Hi, Mary. Have you been keeping out of trouble? Mary: Yeah. And you? Bob: Oh, I'm getting by. □ Tom: Hey, man! Been keeping out of trouble? Bob: Hell, no! What are you up to? Tom: Nothing.

(Have you) been okay? and You been okay? Inf. a vague greeting asking if one has been well. □ Tom: Hey, man. How you doing? Bob: I'm okay. You been okay? Tom: Sure. See you! □ Mary: I heard you were sick. Sally: Yes, but I'm better. Have you been okay? Mary: Oh, sure. Healthy as an ox.

(Have you) changed your mind? and You changed your mind? Have you decided to alter your decision? □ Sally: As of last week, they said you are leaving. Changed your mind? Bill: No. I'm leaving for sure. □ Tom: Well, have you changed your mind? Sally: Absolutely not!

Have you heard? and Did you hear? a question used to introduce a piece of news or gossip. □ Sally: Hi, Mary. Mary: Hi. Have you heard about Tom and Sue? Sally: No, what happened? Mary: I'll let one of them tell you. Sally: Oh, come on! Tell me! □ Bob: Hi, Tom. What's new? Tom: Did you hear that they're raising taxes again? Bob: That's not new.

Have you met someone? a question asked when introducing someone to someone else. (The question need not be answered. The someone is usually a person's name.) □ Tom: Hello, Mary. Have you met Fred? Mary: Hello, Fred. Glad to meet you. Fred: Glad to meet you, Mary. □ Tom: Hey, Mary! Good to see you. Have you met Fred? Mary: No, I don't believe I have. Hello, Fred. Glad to meet you. Fred: Hello, Mary.

Haven't I seen you somewhere before? and Haven't we met before? a polite or coy way of trying to introduce yourself to someone. □ Bob: Hi. Haven't I seen you somewhere before? Mary: I hardly think so. □ Bill (moving toward Jane): Haven't we met before? Jane (moving away from Bill): No way!

hazard a guess Go to take a guess.

hazard an opinion Fig. to give an opinion. □ Anne asked the attorney to hazard an opinion about the strength of her lawsuit. □ Don't feel like you have to hazard an opinion on something you know nothing about.

He gives twice who gives quickly. Prov. When someone asks you for something, it is more helpful to give something right away than to wait, even if you might be able to give more if you waited. □ Morris didn't have all the money his sister asked for, but he sent what he had immediately, knowing that he gives twice who gives quickly.

He lives long who lives well. Prov. If you live virtuously, you will have a long life; a person who does not live virtuously is wasting his life. □ The pastor, exhorting his congregation to live moral lives, said, "He lives long who lives well."

He puts his pants on one leg at a time. Prov. The person referred to is only human.; The person referred to is an ordinary person. □ Sue: That man is my favorite movie star. Don't you think he's just divine? Jane: Oh, I don't know. I imagine he puts his pants on one leg at a time.

He that cannot obey cannot command. Prov. If you want to become a leader, you should first learn how to follow someone else. □ Jones can't seem to do anything I ask him to. He'll never get anywhere; he that cannot obey cannot command.

He that hath a full purse never wanted a friend. Prov. A rich person always has plenty of friends. □ Jill: Ever since Joe won the lottery, he's been getting congratulations from friends and relatives he hasn't heard from in years. Jane: You know how it is. He that hath a full purse never wanted a friend.

He that is down need fear no fall. Prov. If you have nothing, you cannot lose anything by taking a risk. □ Jim spent his last ten dollars on lottery tickets, figuring that he who is down need fear no fall.

He that would eat the kernel must crack the nut. Prov. You have to work if you want to get anything good. □ If you want to be a good pianist, you have to practice every day. He that would eat the kernel must crack the nut.

He that would go to sea for pleasure, would go to hell for a pastime. Prov. Being a sailor is so unpleasant that anyone who would do it for fun must be crazy. □ Old Sailor: Why did you decide to go to sea? Young Sailor: I thought it would be fun. Old Sailor: He that would go to sea for pleasure, would go to hell for a pastime.

He that would have eggs must endure the cackling of hens. Prov. You must be willing to endure unpleasant, irritating things in order to get what you want. □ Sue: I'm tired of working after school. All the customers at the store are so rude. Mother: But you wanted money to buy a car. He that would have eggs must endure the cackling of hens, dear.

He that would the daughter win, must with the mother first begin. Prov. If you want to marry a woman, you should find a way to impress her mother, so that the mother will favor her marrying you. □ Harry: I think I want to marry Gina. Bill: Don't propose to her until you're sure her mother is on your side. He that would the daughter win, must with the mother first begin.

He travels fastest who travels alone. Prov. It is easier to achieve your goals if you do not have a spouse, children, or other connections to consider. □ Jill: Don't go yet! Wait for me to get ready. Jane: But you always take at least half an hour. No wonder they always say that he travels fastest who travels alone.

He wears a ten-dollar hat on a five-cent head. Rur. He is stupid but rich. □ He got the job because he's the boss's son, not because he's smart. He wears a ten-dollar hat on a five-cent head.

He who begins many things, finishes but few. Prov. If you start a lot of projects, you will not have time and energy to complete them all. (Can be used to warn someone against starting too many projects.) □ Sarah's room is littered with sweaters and mittens she started to knit but never finished, a testament to the fact that she who begins many things, finishes but few.

He who excuses himself accuses himself. Prov. By apologizing for something, you admit that you did it. □ Maybe I should tell my boss I'm sorry for breaking the copy machine. On the other hand, he who excuses himself accuses himself.

He who fights and runs away, may live to fight another day. Prov. It may be cowardly to run away from a fight, but running away gives you a better chance of surviving. □ The school bully told Phillip to meet him in the playground after school, but Phillip didn't keep the appointment. When his friends called him a coward, Phillip shrugged and said, "He who fights and runs away, may live to fight another day."

He who hesitates is lost. Prov. People should act decisively. □ Jill: Should I apply for that job? At first I thought I definitely should, but now I don't know. . . . Jane: She who hesitates is lost. □ Call that girl and ask her out. Call her right now. He who hesitates is lost.

He who laughs last, laughs best. Go to next.

He who laughs last, laughs longest. and He who laughs last, laughs best. Prov. If someone does something nasty to you, that person may feel satisfaction, but you will feel even more satisfaction if you get revenge on that person. □ Joe pulled a dirty trick on me, but I'll get him back. He who laughs last, laughs best.

He who pays the piper calls the tune. Prov. If you are paying for someone's services, you can dictate exactly what you want that person to do. □ When Mrs. Dalton told the artist what she wanted her portrait to look like, the artist cringed to think that anyone could have such bad taste. Still, he who pays the piper calls the tune, and Mrs. Dalton got what she wanted.

He who rides a tiger is afraid to dismount. Prov. Sometimes it is more dangerous to stop doing a dangerous thing than it is to continue doing it. □ Jill: You shouldn't take out another loan. You're already too far in debt. Jane: If I don't take out a loan, I can't make the payments on the loans I already have. You know how it is—she who rides a tiger is afraid to dismount.

He who sups with the devil should have a long spoon. Prov. If you have dealings with dangerous people, you must be careful that they do not harm you. □ If you're going to hang out with that disreputable bunch of people, keep in mind that he who sups with the devil should have a long spoon.

He who would climb the ladder must begin at the bottom. Prov. If you want to gain high status, you must start with low status and slowly work upwards. □ Although Thomas hoped to become a famous journalist, he didn't mind working for a small-town newspaper at first.

“He who would climb the ladder must begin at the bottom,” he said.

He will get his. and She will get hers. One will be punished for one’s misdeeds. □ Jill: It seems like Fred can do any evil thing he wants. Jane: Don’t worry. He’ll get his. □ You may think you will always profit by your life of crime, but you’ll get yours.

a head and per head [for] a person; [for] an individual. □ How much do you charge per head for dinner? □ It costs four dollars a head.

head and shoulders above someone or something Fig. clearly superior to someone or something. (Often with stand, as in the example.) □ This wine is head and shoulders above that one. □ John stands head and shoulders above Bob.

head away from someone or something to turn and move away from someone or something. □ The car headed away from Andrew and he knew he was stranded for at least an hour. □ We headed away from the store, not knowing that my purse was riding on the roof of the car.

head back (some place) to start moving back to some place. □ I walked to the end of the street and then headed back home. □ This is far enough. Let’s head back.

head for someone or something to aim for or move toward someone or something. □ She waved good-bye as she headed for the door. □ Ann came in and headed for her mother.

head for the hills and take to the hills; run for the hills 1. Lit. to flee to higher ground. □ *The river’s rising. Head for the hills! □ Head for the hills! Here comes the flood! 2. Fig. to depart quickly. □ *Here comes crazy Joe. Run for the hills. □ Everyone is heading for the hills because that boring Mr. Simpson is coming here again.

head for the last roundup Euph. to reach the end of usefulness or of life. (Originally said of a dying cowboy.) □ This ballpoint pen is headed for the last roundup. I have to get another one. □ I am so weak. I think I’m headed for the last roundup.

head for (the) tall timber Rur. to run away and hide. □ When we heard Pa’s angry bellow, we headed for the tall timber. □ The bank robbers headed for tall timber with their loot.

head in(to something) to move into something head or front end first. □ Head into that parking space slowly. It is quite narrow. □ I turned the boat toward shore and headed in.

head on directly; head to head. □ I think we need to face this threat head on. Let’s be proactive not reactive!

head out after someone, something, or an animal to start pursuing someone, something, or an animal. □ The sheriff and his men headed out after the bank robbers. □ We headed out after the runaway boat.

head out (for something) to set out for something or some place; to begin a journey to something or some place. □ We headed out for Denver very early in the morning. □ What time do we head out tomorrow morning?

head over heels in debt Fig. deeply in debt. □ Finally, when she was head over heels in debt, she cut up her credit cards. □ I couldn’t stand being head over heels in debt, so I always pay off my bills immediately.

head over heels in love (with someone) Fig. very much in love with someone. □ John is head over heels in love with Mary. □ They are head over heels in love with each other.

head someone off at the pass Fig. to intercept someone. (From Old West movies. Fixed order.) □ I need to talk to John before he gets into the boss’s office. I’ll head him off at the pass. □ The sheriff set out in a hurry to head Jed off at the pass.

head someone or something at someone or something to point or aim someone or something toward someone or something. □ He headed the boat at the island and sped off. □ I headed Rachel at her brother, whom she hadn’t seen for thirty years.

head someone or something into someone or something to direct someone or something into someone or something. □ Jill headed the car into the parking place. □ I headed Rachel into the ice cream store and left her on her own.

head someone or something off^t Fig. to intercept and divert someone or something. □ I think I can head her off before she reaches the police station. □ I hope we can head off trouble. □ We can head it off. Have no fear.

head something out^t to aim something outward; to move something on its way, head or front first. □ Head the boat out and pull out the throttle. □ I headed out the car and we were on our way.

head something up^t 1. Lit. to get something pointed in the right direction. (Especially a herd of cattle or a group of covered wagons.) □ *Head those wagons up—we’re moving out. □ Head up the wagons! 2. Fig. to be in charge of something; to be the head of some organization. □ *I was asked to head the new committee up for the first year. □ Will you head up the committee for me?

head South Go to go South.

*a head start (on someone) an early start [at something], before someone else starts. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ Bill always gets there first because he gets a head start on everybody else. □ I’m doing well in my class because I have a head start; I learned some of this last year.

*a head start (on something) an early start on something, [before someone else starts]. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ I was able to get a head start on my reading during the holidays. □ If I hadn’t had a head start, I’d be behind in my reading.

head toward someone or something 1. Lit. to point at and move toward someone, something, or some place. □ Head toward Mary and don’t stop to talk to anyone else. □ Sharon headed toward the parking lot, hoping to get home soon.

2. Fig. to be developing into something; to be moving toward a specific result. □ The problem will head toward a solution when you stop making the situation worse than it is. □ I believe that you are heading toward severe health problems if you don’t stop smoking.

headed for something destined for something. □ Harry is headed for real trouble. □ She is headed for a breakdown.

heads or tails the face of a coin or the other side of a coin. (Often used in an act of coin tossing, where one circumstance is valid if the front of a coin appears and another circumstance is valid if the other side appears.) □ Jim looked at Jane as he flipped the coin into the air. "Heads or tails?" he asked. □ It doesn't matter whether the result of the toss is heads or tails. I won't like the outcome in any case.

Heads up! Raise your head and look around you carefully for information or something that you need to see or avoid. □ Heads up! Watch out for that door! □ Heads up! There is a car coming.

heads will roll Fig. people will get into severe trouble. □ When the company's year-end results are known, heads will roll. □ Heads will roll when the principal sees the damaged classroom.

heal over [for the surface of a wound] to heal. □ The wound healed over very quickly, and there was very little scarring. □ I hope it will heal over without having to be stitched.

H heal someone of something to cure someone's ailments. □ Are you the doctor who healed me of my wounds? □ Can any doctor heal us of a common cold?

heal up [for an injury] to heal. □ The cut healed up in no time at all.

a heap of something a great deal of something. □ Tom's got a heap of money, but no one to spend it on. □ A teacher has to have a heap of patience as well as a lot of smarts.

a heap sight Rur. a lot; very much. □ This chair is a heap sight better than that one. □ You got a heap sight more taters than I did.

heap something up[†] to make something into a pile. □ He heaped the mashed potatoes up on my plate, because he thought I wanted lots. □ Heap up the leaves in the corner of the yard.

heap something (up)on someone or something 1. Lit. to pile something up on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Please don't heap so much trouble upon me! □ Wally heaped leaves on the flower bed. 2. Fig. to give someone too much of something, such as homework, praise, criticism, etc. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Don't heap too much praise on her. She will get conceited. □ The manager heaped criticism on the workers.

heap something with something to pile something onto something. □ Karen heaped Jeff's plate with way too much food. □ We heaped the driveway with leaves and then put them into bags.

hear a peep out of someone Fig. to get some sort of a response from someone; to hear the smallest word from someone. (Usually in the negative.) □ I don't want to hear another peep out of you. □ I didn't know they were there. I didn't hear a peep out of them.

hear about someone or something to learn about someone or something. (Not necessarily by hearing.) □ Have you heard about Tom and what happened to him? □ I heard about the accident.

hear from someone or something to get a message from someone or a group. □ I want to hear from you every now and then. □ We hear from the court every year or so about jury duty.

hear of someone or something to learn of the existence of someone or something. □ Did you ever hear of such a thing? □ I have heard of Sharon Wallace and I would like to meet her.

hear someone out[†] 1. Lit. to hear all of what someone has to say. (Fixed order.) □ Please hear me out. I have more to say. □ Hear out the witness. Don't jump to conclusions.

2. Fig. to hear someone's side of the story. (Fixed order.) □ Let him talk! Hear him out! Listen to his side! □ We have to hear everyone out in this matter.

hear something through to listen to all of something. □ I would like you to hear this explanation through before making your decision. □ I won't have an opinion until I hear this through.

hear word (from someone or something) Go to word (from someone or something).

hearing impaired Euph. deaf or nearly deaf. □ This program is closed-captioned for our hearing-impaired viewers. □ His mother happens to be hearing impaired, so he learned to sign at an early age.

hearken to someone or something Formal or stilted to listen to someone or something; to pay attention to someone or something. □ Please hearken to me. I speak the truth. □ Hearken to the call of the nightingale.

heart and soul Fig. the central core [of someone or something]. □ Now we are getting to the heart and soul of the matter. □ This feature is the heart and soul of my invention.

the heart of the matter Go to the crux of the matter.

a heartbeat away from being something Cliché set to be the next ruler upon the final heartbeat of the current ruler. (The decisive heartbeat would be the current ruler's last heartbeat.) □ The vice president is just a heartbeat away from being president. □ The prince was only a heartbeat away from being king.

heat someone up[†] Fig. to make someone angry. (One old [now folksy] past tense is het.) □ This kind of nonsense really heats me up. □ Mean talk heats up the kids.

heat something up[†] (to something) to raise the temperature of something to a certain level. □ Please heat this room up to about seventy degrees. □ Can you heat up the room a little more?

heat up 1. Lit. to get warmer or hot. □ It really heats up in the afternoon around here. □ How soon will dinner be heated up? 2. Fig. to grow more animated or combative. □ The debate began to heat up near the end. □ Their argument was heating up, and I was afraid there would be fighting.

heave in(to) sight Fig. to move into sight in the distance. □ As the fog cleared, a huge ship heaved into sight. □ After many days of sailing, land finally heaved in sight.

heave something at someone or something to throw something at someone or something. □ Fred heaved a huge snowball at Roger. □ The thug heaved the rock at the window and broke it to pieces.

heave something up[†] 1. Lit. to lift something up. □ With a lot of effort, they heaved the heavy lid up. □ The workers heaved up the huge boulder. 2. Fig. to vomit something up. □ The dog heaved most of the cake up on the kitchen floor. □ It heaved up the cake it had eaten.

heave to to stop a sailing ship by facing it directly into the wind. □ The captain gave the order to heave to. □ The ship hove to and everyone had a swim.

Heaven forbid! Go to God forbid!

Heaven help us! Fig. Good grief!; That's awful. □ He fell and broke his hip! Heaven help us! What's next?

Heaven protects children(, sailors,) and drunken men. Prov. Children(, sailors,) and drunk(ard)s often escape being injured in dangerous situations. (Often used to express amazement that a child, sailor, or drunk person has escaped injury.) □ Jill: Did you hear? A little girl fell out of a second-floor window in our apartment building. Jane: Was she killed? Jill: She wasn't even hurt. Jane: Heaven protects children, sailors, and drunken men. □ Mike was so drunk he shouldn't even have been conscious, but he managed to drive home without hurting himself or anyone else; heaven protects children and drunkards.

Heavens to Betsy! Inf. My goodness! (A mild oath.) □ Heavens to Betsy! What was that noise? □ Heavens to Betsy! It's good to hear your voice!

heavy going difficult to do, understand, or make progress with. □ Jim finds math heavy going. □ Talking to Mary is heavy going. She has nothing interesting to say.

heavy into someone or something Inf. much concerned with someone or something; obsessed with someone or something. □ Freddie was heavy into auto racing and always went to the races. □ Sam is heavy into Mary. He's been out with her every night this week.

A heavy purse makes a light heart. Prov. If you have plenty of money, you will feel happy and secure. □ Everyone in the office is especially cheerful on payday, since a heavy purse makes a light heart.

hedge against something to do something to lessen the risk of something happening; to bet against something bad happening. □ I want to hedge against something going wrong in the stock market, so I have bonds in my portfolio, too. □ We will hedge against any risk we can detect.

A hedge between keeps friendship green. Prov. Your friendship will flourish if you and your friend respect each other's privacy. □ Lynne and I are the best of friends, but we often like to spend time apart. A hedge between keeps friendship green.

hedge one's bets Fig. to reduce one's loss on a bet or on an investment by counterbalancing the loss in some way. □ Bob bet Ann that the plane would be late. He usually hedges his bets. This time he called the airline and asked about the plane before he made the bet. □ John bought some stock and then bet Mary that the stock would go down in value in one year. He has hedged his bets perfectly. If the stock goes up, he sells it, pays off Mary, and still makes a profit. If it goes down, he reduces his loss by winning the bet he made with Mary.

hedge someone in[†] Fig. to restrict someone. (See also hedge someone or something in.) □ Our decision hedged in the children so they could not have any flexibility. □ She hedged herself in by her own behavior.

hedge someone or something in[†] to enclose someone or something in a hedge. (See also hedge someone in.) □ Their overgrown yard has almost hedged us in. □ Their bushes hedged in our yard.

hedge something against something Fig. to protect investments against a decline in value by making counterbalancing bets or investments. □ The investor hedged his portfolio against a drop in stock prices by buying some bonds. □ I have to hedge my bets against losing.

heist someone or something (up[†]) Rur. to lift someone or something. □ See if you can heist that box onto the top shelf. □ Dad heisted me up so I could see over the fence. □ John groaned and heisted up the bale of hay.

hell and the devil 1. Inf. a severe scolding. (*Typically: get ~; catch ~; give someone ~. Use caution with hell.) □ The boss just gave me hell about it. □ I'm really going to give Tom hell when he gets home. 2. Inf. trouble; pain. (*Typically: give someone ~. Use caution with hell.) □ My arthritis is giving me hell in this weather. □ This problem is giving us hell at the office.

hell around Sl. to go around making trouble or noise. □ Who are those kids who are out there helling around every night? □ They hell around because it's fun.

Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned. Prov. There is nothing as unpleasant as a woman who has been offended or whose love has not been returned. □ When Mary Ann discovered that George was not in love with her, George discovered that hell hath no fury like a woman scorned. □ Bill: I'm getting tired of going out with Mary; I think I'll tell her we're through. Fred: Be careful. Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned, you know.

a hell of a mess Inf. a terrible mess. (Use caution with hell.) □ This is really a hell of a mess you've gotten us into. □ I never dreamed I'd come back to such a hell of a mess.

a hell of a note Inf. a surprising or amazing piece of news. (Use caution with hell.) □ So you're just going to leave me like that? Well, that's a hell of a note! □ You forgot what I asked you to bring? That's a hell of a note.

a hell of a someone or something and a helluva someone or something 1. Inf. a very bad person or thing. (Use caution with hell.) □ That's a hell of a way to treat someone. □ He's a hell of a driver! Watch out! 2. Inf. a very good person or thing. (Use caution with hell.) □ He is one hell of a guy. We really like him. □ We had a helluva good time.

hell on a holiday Rur. a big commotion. (Use caution with hell.) □ It was hell on a holiday outside the stadium when the team won the big game. □ What's going on down on Main Street? Sounds like hell on a holiday!

hell on earth Fig. a very unpleasant situation, as if one were in hell. □ That man made my life hell on earth! □ The whole time I was there was just hell on earth.

hell-bent for leather Inf. moving or behaving recklessly; riding a horse fast and recklessly. □ They took off after the horse thief, riding hell-bent for leather. □ Here comes the boss. She's not just angry; she's hell-bent for leather.

hell-bent for somewhere or something Fig. riding or drive somewhere very fast or recklessly. □ Fred sped along, hell-bent for home, barely missing another car.

Hellfire and damnation! Inf. Damn it! (An oath used to express anger or irritation.) □ Hellfire and damnation! Turn that radio down! □ Hellfire and damnation! This is the second time our picnic's been rained out.

Hell's bells (and buckets of blood)! Inf. an exclamation of anger or surprise. (Use caution with hell.) □ Alice:

Your pants are torn in back. John: Oh, hell's bells! What will happen next? □ Bill: Well, Jane, looks like you just flunked calculus. Jane: Hell's bells and buckets of blood! What do I do now?

a helluva someone or something Go to a hell of a someone or something.

help oneself (to something) to take something oneself without asking permission. □ The thief helped himself to the money in the safe. □ Help yourself to more dessert.

help out some place to help [with the chores] in a particular place. □ Would you be able to help out in the kitchen? □ Sally is downtown, helping out at the shop.

help out (with something) to help with a particular chore. □ Would you please help out with the dishes? □ I have to help out at home on the weekends.

help someone along 1. to help someone move along. □ I helped the old man along. □ Please help her along. She has a hurt leg. 2. to help someone advance. □ I am more than pleased to help you along with your math. □ She helped herself along by studying hard.

help someone back (to something) to help someone return to something or some place. □ The ushers helped him back to his seat. □ When she returned, I helped her back.

help someone down (from something) to help someone climb down from something. □ Sharon helped the boy down from the horse. □ Elaine helped the children down.

help someone get a foothold (somewhere) Go to a foothold (somewhere).

help someone in something to help someone with some task; to help someone in the doing of something. □ Please help me in my efforts to win the contest. □ Will you help me in my reelection?

help someone in(to something) to help someone get into something. □ I will help my grandfather into the car. □ We all had to help him in.

help someone off (of) something to help someone get off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ Please help me off this horse! □ Do help him off of it!

help someone off with something to help someone take off an article of clothing. □ Would you please help me off with my coat? □ We helped the children off with their boots and put their coats in the hall.

help someone on with something to help someone put on an article of clothing. □ Would you help me on with my coat? □ Please help her on with her coat.

help someone or an animal (get) over something 1. Lit. to aid someone or an animal climb over something. □ I helped him get over the wall. □ I helped the puppy over the barrier. 2. Fig. to aid someone or an animal recover from something. □ Sharon wanted to help Roger get over his illness. □ We try to help the families get over the loss of their loved ones.

help someone or an animal out (of something) 1. to help someone or an animal get out of something or some place. □ Please help your grandmother out of the car. □ Please help the cat out of the carton. 2. to help someone or an animal get out of a garment. □ She helped the dog out of its sweater. □ I helped her out of her coat when we got inside. 3. to help someone or an animal get out of trouble. □ Can you please help me out of this mess that I got myself into? □ You are in a real mess. We will help you out.

help someone or something out[†] with someone or something 1. Lit. to assist someone or something with a person or a thing. □ Can you help me out with my geometry? □ Please help out my son with his geometry. 2. Fig. to help someone or a group by providing someone or something. □ I need some salt. Would you help me out with a little bit of salt? □ Can you help out our department with a secretary?

help someone or something with someone or something to give aid to someone or something in dealing with someone or something. □ Please help your father with your little sister. □ I helped the committee with the problem.

help (someone) out[†] to help someone do something; to help someone with a problem. □ I am trying to raise this window. Can you help me out? □ I'm always happy to help out a friend.

help someone up[†] (from something) to help someone rise up from something; to help someone get up from something. □ She offered to help him up from the chair. □ Elaine helped up her grandmother who was stuck in the chair.

Help yourself. Please take what you want without asking permission. □ Sally: Can I have one of these doughnuts? Bill: Help yourself. □ Mother led the little troop of my friends to the kitchen table, which was covered with cups of juice and plates of cookies. "Help yourself," she said.

a helping hand Fig. help; physical help, especially with the hands. (*Typically: get ~; need ~; give someone ~; offer ~; offer someone ~.) □ When you feel like you need a helping hand making dinner, just let me know.

hem and haw (around) Inf. to be uncertain about something; to be evasive; to say "ah" and "eh" when speaking—avoiding saying something meaningful. □ Stop hemming and hawing around. I want an answer. □ Don't just hem and haw around. Speak up. We want to hear what you think.

hem someone or something in[†] Fig. to trap or enclose someone or something. □ The large city buildings hem me in. □ Don't hem in the bird. Let it have a way to escape.

hepped (up) Sl. to be intoxicated. (*Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Wally is a little too hepped up to drive home. □ Harry's too hepped to stand up.

herd someone or something together to bunch people or animals together. □ Let's herd all the kids together and take them in the house for ice cream and cake. □ I herded all the puppies together and put them in a box while I cleaned their play area.

the here and now the present, as opposed to the past or the future. □ I don't care what's happening tomorrow or next week! I care about the here and now. □ The past is dead. Let's worry about the here and now.

here and there at this place and that; from place to place. □ We find rare books in used-book stores here and there. □ She didn't make a systematic search. She just looked here and there.

Here goes nothing. Inf. I am beginning to do something that will fail or be poorly done. □ Sally stood on the diving board and said, "Here goes nothing." □ As Ann walked onto the stage, she whispered, "Here goes nothing."

Here (it) goes. Something is going to start.; I will start now.; I will do it now. □ I'm ready to start now. Here goes. □ Okay, it's my turn to kick the ball. Here it goes!

Here's looking at you. Go to Bottoms up!

Here's mud in your eye. Go to Bottoms up!

Here's to someone or something. an expression used as a toast to someone or something to wish someone or something well. □ Here's to Jim and Mary! May they be very happy! □ Here's to your new job!

Here's to you. Go to Bottoms up!

Here's your hat, what's your hurry? Rur. It is time for you to go. (Jocular.) □ I hate to rush you out the door, but here's your hat, what's your hurry? □ Jane: I suppose I'd better be on my way. Charlie: Here's your hat, what's your hurry?

here, there, and everywhere Fig. everywhere; at all points. □ Fred searched here, there, and everywhere, frantically looking for the lost check. □ She did not rest until she had been here, there, and everywhere, shopping for just the right gift.

Here today, (and) gone tomorrow. Prov. Available now, but soon to be gone. (Used to describe something that does not last—often an opportunity). □ The stores near my house don't stay in business very long—here today, and gone tomorrow. □ If you want this carpet, buy it now. This sale price is here today, gone tomorrow.

Here we go again. We are going to experience the same thing again.; We are going to hear about or discuss the same thing again. □ John: Now, I would like to discuss your behavior in class yesterday. Bill (to himself): Here we go again. □ Fred: We must continue our discussion of the Wilson project. Sue: Here we go again. Fred: What's that? Sue: Nothing.

Here you go. Inf. Here is what you asked for. (See also There you go.) □ "Here you go," said the waiter as he put the plate on the table. □ Here you go. Here is your hamburger and your drink.

hesitate over something to pause before acting on something; to suspend action about someone or something. □ We are hesitating over the final decision because we have some doubts about the competitors. □ Do not hesitate too long over this matter.

hew something down^t to fell something wooden, usually a tree. □ We will have to hew most of this forest down. □ They hewed down the tree.

hew something out of something and hew something out^t to carve the shape of something out of something wooden. □ Dan hewed each of the posts out of a tree trunk. □ He hewed out a number of posts.

hew to something to conform to a rule or principle. □ I wish you would hew to the rules a little better. □ Sarah refuses to hew to the company policies.

a hidden agenda Fig. a secret plan; a concealed plan; a plan disguised as a plan with another purpose. □ I am sure that the chairman has a hidden agenda. I never did trust him anyway.

hide behind someone or something to conceal oneself behind someone or something. □ The child hid behind his father. □ Rachel hid behind a tree.

hide from someone or an animal to conceal oneself from someone or an animal. □ Are you hiding from me? □ The rabbit was trying to hide from the fox.

hide one's face in shame Fig. to cover one's face because of shame or embarrassment. □ Mary was so embarrassed. She could only hide her face in shame. □ When Tom broke Ann's crystal vase, he wanted to hide his face in shame.

hide one's head in the sand Go to bury one's head in the sand.

hide one's light under a bushel Fig. to conceal one's good ideas or talents. (A biblical theme.) □ Jane has some good ideas, but she doesn't speak very often. She hides her light under a bushel. □ Don't hide your light under a bushel. Share your thoughts with other people.

hide out (from someone or something) to hide oneself so that one cannot be found by someone or something. □ Max was hiding out from the police in Detroit. □ Lefty is hiding out too.

hide someone or something away^t (some place) to conceal someone or something somewhere. □ Please hide Randy away where no one can find him. □ Rachel hid the cake away, hoping to save it for dessert. □ Mary hid away the candy so the kids wouldn't eat it all.

hide someone or something behind something to use something to conceal someone or something. □ We hid the guests for the surprise party behind a large Oriental screen. □ I will hide the cake behind the screen too.

hide something in something to conceal something inside something. □ She hid her money in a book. □ Let's hide the cake in this closet.

high and dry Fig. safe; unbothered by difficulties; unscathed. (As if someone or something were safe from a flood. See also leave someone high and dry.) □ While the riot was going on down on the streets, I was high and dry in my apartment. □ Liz came out of the argument high and dry.

high as a kite and high as the sky 1. Lit. very high. (*Also: as ~.) □ The tree grew as high as a kite. □ Our pet bird got outside and flew up high as the sky. 2. Fig. drunk or drugged. (*Also: as ~.) □ Bill drank beer until he got as high as a kite. □ The thieves were high as the sky on drugs.

high as the sky Go to previous.

high man on the totem pole Fig. the person at the top of the hierarchy; the person in charge of an organization. □ I don't want to talk to a vice president. I demand to talk to the high man on the totem pole. □ Who's in charge around here? Who's high man on the totem pole?

high on something Sl. 1. excited or enthusiastic about something. □ Tom is really high on the idea of going to Yellowstone this summer. □ I'm not high on going, but I will. 2. intoxicated. □ John is acting as if he is high on something. Has he been doing drugs again?

a high roller Fig. a gambler who bets heavily. □ They welcomed me at the casino because I had the same name as one of their high rollers.

*the high sign Fig. a prearranged signal for going ahead with something. (Often refers to a hand signal or some other visual signal. *Typically: get ~; give someone ~.) high-and-mighty Fig. self-important and arrogant. □ I don't know why William is so high-and-mighty. He's no better than the rest of us. □ The boss acts high-and-mighty because he can fire us all.

□ When I got the high sign, I pulled cautiously out into the roadway. □ The train's engineer got the high sign and began to move the train out of the station.

high-pressure someone into something Fig. to urge someone forcefully to do something. □ Here comes Jill. Watch out. She will try to high-pressure you into working on her committee. □ You can't high-pressure me into doing anything! I'm too busy!

hightail it out of somewhere Rur. to run or ride a horse away from somewhere fast; to leave in a hurry. (Typically heard in western movies.) □ Here comes the sheriff. We'd better hightail it out of here. □ Look at that guy go. He really hightailed it out of town.

highway robbery outrageous overpricing; a bill that is much higher than normally acceptable but must be paid. (As if one had been accosted and robbed on the open road or in broad daylight.) □ Four thousand dollars! That's highway robbery for one piece of furniture! □ I won't pay it! It's highway robbery!

highways and byways 1. major and minor roads. □ The city council voted to plant new trees along all the highways and byways of the town. 2. Cliché routes and pathways, both major and minor. □ I hope I meet you again some day on life's highways and byways.

hike something up[†] to raise something, such as prices, interest rates, a skirt, pants legs, etc. □ The grocery store is always hiking prices up. □ She hiked up her skirt so she could wade across the creek.

hind end Rur. the rump of someone or an animal. □ If you say that again, I'll swat you right across the hind end. □ The mule slipped and came down right on her hind end.

the hind end of creation Rur. a very remote place. □ I wish I lived in the city. I'm tired of living here in the hind end of creation. □ Joe moved out to a little shack at the hind end of creation.

hinder someone from something to prevent someone from doing something. □ Please don't hinder me from my appointed tasks. □ You can't hinder me from doing what I want!

hinside first Rur. backwards. □ You've got your shirt on hinside first. □ The horse came out of the trailer hinside first.

hinge (up)on someone or something Fig. to depend on someone or something; to depend on what someone or something does. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ The success of the project hinges upon you and how well you do your job. □ How well the corn crop does all hinges on the weather.

hint at something to refer to something; to insinuate something. □ What are you hinting at? □ I am not hinting at anything. I am telling you to do it!

hint for something to give a hint that something is wanted. □ I could tell she was hinting for an invitation. □ Are you hinting for a second helping of fried chicken?

hint something to someone to give a hint or clue to someone. □ I thought she was leaving. She hinted that to me. □ She wasn't hinting anything to you! You made it all up!

hip to someone or something Inf. knowing about someone or something; adapting to someone or something. (*Typically: be ~; get ~; become ~.) □ The boss began to get hip to Mary and her deviousness. □ She finally began to get hip to what was going on.

hire someone away[†] (from someone or something) [for one] to get someone to quit working for some other employer and begin working for one. □ We hired Elaine away from her previous employer, and now she wants to go back. □ The new bank hired away all the tellers from the old bank.

hire someone or something out[†] to grant someone the use or efforts of someone or something for pay. □ I hired my son out as a lawn-care specialist. □ I hire out my son to mow lawns.

hiss at someone or something 1. [for a reptile] to make a hissing sound as a warning. □ The snake hissed at me. Otherwise I wouldn't have known it was there. □ The lizard hissed at the snake. 2. [for someone] to make a hissing sound at someone to show disapproval. □ The audience hissed at the performer, who was not all that bad. □ They hissed at all three acts.

hiss someone off ((of) the stage) Fig. [for the audience] to hiss and drive a performer off the stage. □ The boys in the front row tried to hiss her off the stage. □ The audience, angry with the quality of the singers, tried to hiss them all off.

hiss something out[†] Fig. to say something with a hissing voice, usually in anger or disgust. □ The disgusted manager hissed his appraisal out. □ He hissed out his criticism.

hissy (fit) Rur. a tantrum. (Often with throw. Probably refers to an angry, hissing cat.) □ Jane practically has a hissy fit every time she gets a run in her nylons. □ The boss is really mad today. It's just one hissy fit after another.

History repeats itself. Prov. The same kinds of events seem to happen over and over. □ It seems that history is about to repeat itself for that poor country; it is about to be invaded again. □ Alan: The country is headed for an economic depression. Jane: How do you know? Alan: History repeats itself. The conditions now are just like the conditions before the last major depression.

hit a happy medium Go to strike a happy medium.

hit a plateau Fig. to reach a higher level of activity, sales, production, output, etc., and then stop and remain unchanged for a time. □ When my sales hit a plateau, my boss gave me a pep talk. □ When production hit a plateau, the company built a new factory.

hit a snag Fig. to run into an unexpected problem. □ We've hit a snag with the building project. □ I stopped working on the roof when I hit a snag.

hit a sour note Go to strike a sour note.

hit against someone or something to strike against someone or something. □ The door hit against me as I went through. □ The door hit against my foot as I went out.

hit and miss and hit or miss carelessly; aimlessly; without plan or direction. □ There was no planning. It was just hit and miss. □ We handed out the free tickets hit or miss. Some people got one. Others got five or six.

hit at someone or something to strike at someone or something. □ The injured man hit at the nurses who were trying to help him. □ I hit at the wall to see how solid it was.

hit back (at someone or something) to strike someone or something back. □ Tom hit Fred, and Fred hit back at Tom. □ I have to hit back when someone hits me.

hit bottom Fig. to reach the lowest or worst point. □ Our profits have hit bottom. This is our worst year ever. □ When my life hit bottom, I began to feel much better. I knew that if there was going to be any change, it would be for the better.

hit home and strike home Fig. to really make sense; [for a comment] to make a very good point. □ Mary's criticism of my clothes hit home, so I changed. □ The teacher's comment struck home and the student vowed to work harder.

hit it off (with someone) Fig. to quickly become good friends with someone. □ Look how John hit it off with Mary. □ Yes, they really hit it off.

hit like a ton of bricks Go to like a ton of bricks.

hit on someone Inf. to flirt with someone; to make a pass at someone. □ The women were all hitting on George, but he didn't complain. □ I thought he was going to hit on me—but he didn't.

hit on something to discover something. □ She hit on a new scheme for removing the impurities from drinking water. □ I hit on it when I wasn't able to sleep one night.

hit one's stride Go to reach one's stride.

hit one where one lives and hit one close to home Fig. to affect one personally and intimately. □ Her comments really hit me where I live. Her words seemed to apply directly to me. □ I listened carefully and didn't think she hit close to home at all.

hit or miss Go to hit and miss.

hit out (at someone or something) (in something) to strike at someone or something in some state, such as anger, revenge, etc. □ The frightened child hit out at the teacher in sheer terror. □ He hit out in terror. □ Andy hit out at the threat.

hit out (for something or some place) Rur. to start out for something or some place. □ We hit out for the top of the hill early in the morning, and it was noon before we got there. □ We'll hit out about noon.

hit pay dirt 1. Fig. to discover something of value. (Alludes to discovering valuable ore.) □ Sally tried a number of different jobs until she hit pay dirt. □ I tried to borrow money from a lot of different people. They all said no. Then when I went to the bank, I hit pay dirt. 2. Fig. to get great riches. □ After years of poverty, the writer hit pay dirt with his third novel. □ Jane's doing well. She really hit pay dirt with her new business.

hit (rock) bottom Go to (rock) bottom.

hit someone Fig. [of a meaning] being understood by someone. □ I didn't understand what she was getting at until it suddenly hit me. She was asking for a ride home.

hit someone below the belt 1. Lit. [for a boxer] to strike an opponent below the belt. (An unfair blow.) □ The champ hit the contender below the belt and the crowd began to boo like fury. □ Fred was hit below the belt and suffered considerably. 2. Fig. to deal someone an unfair blow. □ That's not fair! You told them I was the one who ordered the wrong-size carpet. That's hitting me below the belt. □ Todd hit below the belt when he said it was all her fault because she had become ill during the trip.

hit someone hard Fig. to affect someone's emotions strongly. □ The death of his friend hit John hard. □ The investor was hit hard by the falling stock prices.

hit someone in something to strike someone on a particular part of the body. □ She hit him in the face by accident. □ Watch out or you'll hit yourself in the arm with the hammer.

hit someone like a ton of bricks Go to like a ton of bricks.

hit someone or an animal on something to strike someone or an animal in a particular place. □ The stone hit me on the leg. □ I hit the beaver on its side and it didn't seem to feel it. □ She hit herself on her left cheek.

hit someone (right) between the eyes 1. Lit. to strike someone between the eyes. □ The baseball hit her right between the eyes. 2. Fig. to become completely apparent; to surprise or impress someone. □ Suddenly, it hit me right between the eyes. John and Mary were in love. □ Then—as he was talking—the exact nature of the evil plan hit me right between the eyes. □ The realization of what had happened hit me between the eyes.

hit someone up[†] (for something) to ask someone for a loan of money or for some other favor. □ The tramp hit up each tourist for a dollar. □ My brother hit up Harry for a couple of hundred bucks.

hit someone with something 1. Fig. to charge someone with an amount of money. □ The government hit us with a big fine. □ The tax people hit us with a huge tax bill. 2. Fig. to present someone with shocking or surprising news. □ He was shocked when she hit him with the news that she was leaving. □ Don't hit me with another piece of bad news!

hit something off[†] to begin something; to launch an event. □ She hit off the fair with a speech. □ The mayor hit the fair off by giving a brief address.

hit speeds of some amount Go to speeds of some amount.

hit the books and pound the books Inf. Fig. to study hard. □ I spent the weekend pounding the books. □ I gotta go home and hit the books. I have finals next week.

hit the booze Go to next.

hit the bottle and hit the booze Fig. Inf. to go on a drinking bout; to get drunk. □ Jed's hitting the bottle again. □ He's been hitting the booze for a week now.

hit the brakes 1. Lit. to step on a vehicle's brakes hard and fast. □ I came around the curve too fast and had to hit the brakes immediately. 2. Fig. to stop [something]. □ The project seemed to be getting nowhere so we hit the brakes before too much more money was spent.

hit the bricks and hit the pavement 1. Fig. Inf. to start walking; to go into the streets. □ I have a long way to go. I'd better hit the bricks. □ Go on! Hit the pavement! Get going! 2. Inf. Fig. to go out on strike. □ The workers hit the pavement on Friday and haven't been back on the job since.

 □ Agree to our demands, or we hit the bricks.

hit the (broad) side of a barn Fig. to hit an easy target. (Usually negative.) □ He can't park that car! He can't hit the broad side of a barn, let alone that parking place. □ He's a lousy shot. He can't hit the side of a barn.

hit the bull's-eye 1. Lit. to hit the very center of a circular target. □ The archer hit the bull's-eye three times in a row. □ I didn't hit the bull's-eye even once. 2. Fig. to achieve the goal perfectly. □ Your idea really hit the bull's-eye. Thank you! □ Jill has a lot of insight. She knows how to hit the bull's-eye.

hit the ceiling and hit the roof Fig. to get very angry. □ She really hit the ceiling when she found out what happened. □ My dad'll hit the roof when he finds out that I wrecked his car.

hit the deck 1. Fig. to fall down; to drop down to the floor or ground. □ Hit the deck. Don't let them see you. □ I hit the deck the minute I heard the shots. 2. Fig. to get out of bed. □ Come on, hit the deck! It's morning. □ Hit the deck! Time to rise and shine!

hit the fan Inf. Fig. to become publicly known; to become a scandal. (From the phrase when the shit hit the fan.) □ I wasn't even in the country when it hit the fan. □ It hit the fan, and within ten minutes the press had spread it all over the world.

hit the ground running Fig. to start the day very energetically. □ A decade ago I had a lot more energy. I would wake up, hit the ground running, and never stop until I went to bed again.

hit the hay and hit the sack Fig. to go to bed. □ I have to go home and hit the hay pretty soon. □ Let's hit the sack. We have to get an early start in the morning.

hit the high spots Fig. to do only the important, obvious, or good things. □ I won't discuss the entire report. I'll just hit the high spots. □ First, let me hit the high spots; then I'll tell you the details.

hit the jackpot 1. Lit. to win a large amount of money gambling or in a lottery. □ I hit the jackpot in the big contest. □ Sally hit the jackpot in the lottery. 2. Fig. to be exactly right; to find exactly what was sought. □ I hit the jackpot when I found this little cafe on Fourth Street. □ I wanted a small house with a fireplace, and I really hit the jackpot with this one.

hit the nail (right) on the head 1. Lit. to strike a nail precisely on the head with a hammer. □ If you expect to drive a nail straight, you have to hit the nail on the head. 2. Fig. to do exactly the right thing; to do something in the most effective and efficient way. □ You've spotted the flaw, Sally. You hit the nail on the head. □ Bob doesn't say much, but every now and then he hits the nail right on the head.

hit the panic button and press the panic button; push the panic button Fig. to panic suddenly. □ She hit the panic button and just went to pieces. □ Don't press the panic button. Relax and keep your eyes open.

hit the pavement Go to hit the bricks.

hit the road Fig. to depart; to begin one's journey, especially on a road trip; to leave for home. □ It's time to hit the road. I'll see you. □ We have to hit the road very early in the morning.

hit the roof Go to hit the ceiling.

hit the sack Go to hit the hay.

hit the skids Fig. to decline; to decrease in value or status. □ Jed hit the skids when he started drinking. □ The firm hit the skids when the dollar collapsed.

hit the spot Inf. to be exactly right; to be refreshing. □ This cool drink really hits the spot. □ That was a delicious meal, dear. It hit the spot.

hit the trail Inf. to leave. (As if one were hiking or riding a horse.) □ I have to hit the trail before sunset. □ Let's hit the trail. It's late.

hit town Fig. to arrive in town. □ The minute he hit town, he checked into a hotel and took a long nap.

hit (up)on someone or something 1. Lit. to strike or pound on someone or something. (Upon is formal and less commonly used than on.) □ Jeff hit upon the mugger over and over. □ I hit on the radio until it started working again. 2. Fig. to discover someone or something. □ I think I have hit upon something. There is a lever you have to press in order to open this cabinet. □ I hit on Tom in an amateur play production. I offered him a job in my nightclub immediately. 3. Go to hit on someone; hit on something.

hitch a ride Go to thumb a ride.

hitch someone or something (up¹) (to something) to attach someone or something to something. □ Please hitch the horse up to the wagon, and let's get going. □ Please hitch up the horse.

Hitch your wagon to a star. Prov. Always aspire to do great things.; Do not set pessimistic goals. (From Ralph Waldo Emerson's essay, "Civilization.") □ The speaker who delivered the high school commencement address challenged the graduating students to hitch their wagons to a star. □ Bob: What do you want to be when you grow up? Child: I used to want to be a great actor, but my dad told me hardly anybody gets to be an actor, so now I have to pick something else. Bob: Nonsense. If you want to be an actor, then do your best to be an actor. Hitch your wagon to a star!

hither, thither, and yon and hither and thither everywhere; here, there, and everywhere. (Formal and archaic.) □ The prince looked hither, thither, and yon for the beautiful woman who had lost the glass slipper. □ The terrible wizard had sown the seeds of his evil vine hither, thither, and yon. Soon the evil, twisted plants began to sprout in all the land.

hitting on all cylinders Go to firing on all cylinders.

a hive of activity Fig. a location where things are very busy. □ The hotel lobby was a hive of activity each morning. □ During the holidays, the shopping center is a hive of activity.

hoard something up[†] to accumulate a large store of something against bad times. □ Scott was hoarding canned goods up for the hard times ahead. □ He hoarded up many pounds of canned tuna.

hoarse as a crow very hoarse. (*Also: as ~.) □ After shouting at the team all afternoon, the coach was as hoarse as a crow. □ Jill: Has Bob got a cold? Jane: No, he's always hoarse as a crow.

hobnob with someone or something to associate with someone or a group, especially with those more wealthy, famous, etc. □ I'm not used to hobnobbing with such luminaries. □ Walter is spending a lot of time hobnobbing with the very rich.

Hobson's choice the choice between taking what is offered and getting nothing at all. (From the name of a stable owner in the seventeenth century who always hired out the horse nearest the door.) □ We didn't really want that particular hotel, but it was a case of Hobson's choice. We booked very late and there was nothing else left. □ If you want a yellow car, it's Hobson's choice. The garage has only one.

hoe one's own row Rur. to mind one's own business. □ Tom: You're cutting up those carrots awful small. Jane: Hoe your own row! □ He didn't get involved in other people's fights. He just hoed his own row.

hog wild wild; out of control. □ I went hog wild at the sale and bought six new pairs of shoes. □ There were a dozen different desserts at the picnic. A person who liked sweets could go hog wild.

hoist with one's own petard Fig. to be harmed or disadvantaged by an action of one's own which was meant to harm someone else. (From a line in Shakespeare's Hamlet.) □ She intended to murder her brother but was hoist with her own petard when she ate the poisoned food intended for him. □ The vandals were hoist with their own petard when they tried to make an emergency call from the pay phone they had broken.

Hoist your sail when the wind is fair. Prov. Begin a project when circumstances are the most favorable. □ Don't ask your mother for permission now; she's in a bad mood. Hoist your sail when the wind is fair. □ Wait until the economy has stabilized before trying to start your own business. Hoist your sail when the wind is fair.

hold a grudge (against someone) Go to bear a grudge (against someone).

hold a meeting to meet; to have a meeting (of an organization). □ We'll have to hold a meeting to make a decision. □ Our club held a meeting to talk about future projects.

hold all the aces and hold all the cards to be in a favorable position; to be in a controlling position. (Alludes to having possession of all four aces or all the high cards in a card game.) □ How can I advance in my career when my competitor holds all the aces? □ If I held all the aces, I'd be able to do great things. □ I tried to get my points across, but Joan held all the cards and the board voted for her plan.

hold all the cards Go to previous.

hold back (on something) to withhold something; to give or take only a limited amount. □ Hold back on the gravy. I'm on a diet. □ That's enough. Hold back. Save some for the others.

hold by something to stick by a promise. □ I hope that you will hold by our agreement. □ I will hold by everything I said.

Hold everything! Inf. Stop everything!; Everyone, stop! □ "Hold everything!" cried Mary. "There's a squirrel loose in the kitchen!" □ Bill: Hold everything! Let's try this part again. Bob: But we've already rehearsed it four times.

hold forth (on someone or something) to speak at great length about someone or something. □ Sadie held forth on the virtues of home cooking. □ Sharon is holding forth, and everyone is paying close attention.

hold good for someone or something [for an offer] to remain open to someone or a group. □ Does your offer of help still hold good for us? □ Does it hold good for the entire membership?

Hold it! Inf. Stop right there. □ Tom: Hold it! Mary: What's wrong? Tom: You almost stepped on my contact lens. □ Bill: Hold it! Bob: What is it? Bill: Sorry. For a minute, that stick looked like a snake.

hold no brief for someone or something not to tolerate someone or something; to be opposed to someone or something. □ I hold no brief for Wally and his friends. □ Rachel holds no brief for that kind of thing.

hold off (from) doing something to avoid doing something; to postpone doing something. □ Can you hold off from buying a new car for another few months? □ I will hold off firing him until next week.

hold off (on someone or something) to delay doing something concerning someone or something. □ Please hold off on Tom until we interview the other candidates. □ I will hold off on this job for a while.

hold on to be patient. □ Just hold on. Everything will work out in good time. □ If you will just hold on, everything will probably be all right.

Hold on (a minute)! and Hold on for a minute! Stop right there!; Wait a minute! (Minute can be replaced by moment, second, or other time periods.) □ Bob: Hold on, Tom. Tom: What? Bob: I want to talk to you. □ "Hold on!" hollered Tom. "You're running off with my shopping cart!"

*a hold on someone a strong and secure influence on someone. (*Typically: get ~; have ~; give someone ~.) □ The strange religion seemed to have a strong hold on its followers. □ The drug has a hold on the minds of those who use it.

a hold on something Go to a grip on something.

hold (on) tight to grasp (someone or something) tightly. □ Here we go on the merry-go-round! Hold on tight! □ The children were told to hold tight on the swings.

hold on (to someone or something) Go to hang on (to someone or something).

Hold on to your hat! Go to Hang on to your hat!

hold one's breath 1. Lit. to stop breathing for a short period, on purpose. □ Do you hold your breath when you dive into the water? □ I can't hold my breath for very long.

2. Fig. to wait or delay until something special happens. (Usually in the negative. See also Don't hold your breath.) □ I expect the mail to be delivered soon, but I'm not holding my breath. It's often late.

hold one's end of the bargain up[†] and keep one's end of the bargain up[†] Fig. to do one's part as agreed; to attend to one's responsibilities as agreed. □ If you don't hold your end up, the whole project will fail. □ Tom has to learn to cooperate. He must keep up his end of the bargain.

hold one's end up[†] to carry one's share of the burden; to do one's share of the work. □ You're not holding your end up. We're having to do your share of the work. □ Get busy. You have to hold up your end.

hold one's fire 1. Lit. to refrain from shooting (a gun, etc.). □ The sergeant told the soldiers to hold their fire. □ Please hold your fire until I get out of the way. 2. Fig. to postpone one's criticism or commentary. □ Now, now, hold your fire until I've had a chance to explain. □ Hold your fire, Bill. You're too quick to complain.

hold one's ground Go to stand one's ground.

hold one's head up[†] Fig. to be confident of the respect of other people; to hold up one's head with pride rather than bowing one's head. (A bowed head would indicate a lack of confidence.) □ I am so embarrassed. I will never be able to hold my head up again. □ Now I can hold up my head with pride.

hold one's liquor Fig. to be able to drink alcohol in quantity without ill effects. □ Old Jed can sure hold his liquor—and a lot of it, too. □ I asked him to leave because he can't hold his liquor.

hold one's mouth the right way Fig. do something very carefully under optimal conditions. □ It was a tedious task. If I didn't hold my mouth just the right way, I wouldn't be able to do it.

hold one's nose 1. Lit. to use one's fingers to keep one's nose closed to avoid a bad smell or to keep water out. □ The kid held his nose and jumped off the dock into the lake. 2. Fig. to attempt to ignore something unpleasant, illegal, or "rotten." □ He hated doing it, but he held his nose and made the announcement everyone dreaded.

hold one's own to do as well as anyone else. □ I can hold my own in a footrace any day. □ She was unable to hold her own, and she had to quit.

hold one's peace to remain silent. □ Bill was unable to hold his peace any longer. "Don't do it!" he cried. □ Quiet, John. Hold your peace for a little while longer.

hold one's temper Go to keep one's temper.

hold one's tongue Fig. to refrain from speaking; to refrain from saying something unpleasant. □ I felt like scolding her, but I held my tongue. □ Hold your tongue, John. You can't talk to me that way!

hold oneself together Fig. to maintain one's calmness or sanity. □ I don't know if I can hold myself together through another horrible day like this one. □ I don't know how she held herself together through all her troubles.

hold out (against someone or something) to continue one's defense against someone or something. □ We can hold out against them only a little while longer. □ Dave can hold out forever.

hold out (for someone or something) to strive to wait for someone or something. □ I will hold out for someone who can do the job better than the last person we interviewed. □ I want to hold out for a better offer.

hold out the olive branch Fig. to offer to end a dispute and be friendly; to offer reconciliation. (The olive branch is a symbol of peace and reconciliation. A biblical reference.) □ Jill was the first to hold out the olive branch after our argument. □ I always try to hold out the olive branch to someone I have offended. Life is too short for a person to bear grudges for very long.

Hold, please. Go to Hold the phone.

hold someone accountable (for something) and hold someone responsible (for something) to consider someone responsible for something; to blame something on someone. □ I hold you accountable for John's well-being. □ I must hold you responsible for the missing money.

hold someone back Go to keep someone back.

hold someone for ransom to demand money for the return of a person who has been kidnapped. □ The kidnapers held me for ransom, but no one would pay. □ We will hold Timmy for ransom and hope that the police don't find us.

hold someone hostage to keep someone as a hostage. □ The terrorists planned to hold everyone hostage in the airplane. □ My neighbor was held hostage in his own home by a robber.

hold someone or an animal down[†] 1. Lit. to keep someone, something, or an animal down. □ The heavy beam held him down, and he could not rise. □ The owner held down his pet while the vet treated the injured paw. 2. Fig. to prevent someone or something from advancing. □ I had a disability that held me down in life. □ Too much debt held down the company while others profited.

hold someone or something at bay Fig. to make someone, a group, or an animal stay at a safe distance. (Originally referred only to animals.) □ I held the attacker at bay while Mary got away and called the police. □ The dogs held the bear at bay while I got my gun loaded.

hold someone or something at something to keep someone or something at some distance, such as an arm's length, respectful distance, comfortable distance, etc. □ I held the child at an arm's length until he could be calmed. □ The police held the crowd at a distance from the injured man.

hold someone or something by something to grasp someone or something by a particular part. □ I held him by the shoulder while I talked to him. □ Donna held the dog by the collar.

hold someone or something in check Go to keep someone or something in check.

hold someone or something in high regard Fig. to think well of someone or something. □ All of us hold the vice president in high regard. □ We hold these policies in high regard.

hold someone or something in low regard Fig. to think poorly of someone or something. □ I'm afraid that Hazel holds you in low regard. □ I'm afraid we hold this establishment in low regard.

hold someone or something in reserve and keep someone or something in reserve Fig. to hold back someone or something for future needs. □ I am holding the frozen desserts in reserve, in case we run out of cake. □ We are holding Sharon in reserve. □ Keep a few good players in reserve.

hold someone or something off[†] 1. and keep someone or something off[†] Lit. to do something physical to keep someone or something away; to stave someone or something off. □ Tom was trying to rob us, but we managed to hold him off. □ We held off the attackers. □ I couldn't keep off the reporters any longer. 2. Fig. to make someone or something wait. □ I know a lot of people are waiting to see me.

Hold them off for a while longer. □ See what you can do to hold off the reporters.

hold someone or something out (of something) and hold someone or something out^t to set someone or something aside from the rest; to prevent someone or a group from participating. □ Her parents held her out of sports because of her health. □ They held out every player who had an injury.

hold someone or something over^t to retain someone or something (for a period of time). □ The storm held John over for another day. □ The manager held over the hit movie for another week.

hold someone or something still Go to keep someone or something still.

hold someone or something together to keep a group of people or things together. □ She worked at two jobs in order to hold her family together. □ Our club was failing despite our efforts to hold it together.

hold someone or something up^t 1. Lit. to keep someone or something upright. □ Johnny is falling asleep. Please hold him up until I prepare the bed for him. □ Hold up the window sash while I prop it open. 2. Fig. to rob someone or a group. □ Some punk tried to hold me up. □ The mild-looking man held up the bank and shot a teller. 3. Fig. to delay someone or something. □ Driving the kids to school held me up. □ An accident on Main Street held up traffic for thirty minutes.

hold someone or something up^t as an example Fig. to single out someone or something as a person or thing worthy of imitation. □ No one has ever held me up as an example. □ Jane held up Doris as an example. □ I hate to hold myself up as an example, but if you would do what I do, at least I wouldn't criticize you.

hold someone or something up^t to ridicule Fig. to ridicule someone or something. □ They must stop holding Matt up to ridicule! Who do they think they are? □ She held up Donald to ridicule.

hold someone or something up to scorn^t Fig. to single out someone or something for repudiation. □ The entire crowd held Randy up to scorn for his part in the riot. □ The disappointed fans held up the losing team to scorn.

hold someone responsible (for something) Go to hold someone accountable (for something).

hold someone's attention Fig. to keep someone's attention; to keep someone interested. □ The boring teacher could not hold the students' attention. □ The mystery novel held my attention and I couldn't put it down.

hold someone's hand 1. Lit. to hold the hand of someone who is frightened, especially a child. □ Please hold Jimmy's hand when you cross the street. 2. Fig. to comfort someone who is anxious or frightened. □ You'll be all right, won't you? You don't need anyone to hold your hand, do you?

hold someone, something, or an animal back^t (from someone or something) to restrain someone, something, or an animal from getting at or getting to someone or something. □ The parents held the children back from the cake and ice cream until the hostess said she was ready. □ Please hold back your dog.

hold someone to something Fig. to make someone adhere to an agreement. □ You promised me that you would buy six of them, and I'm going to hold you to your promise. □ It was difficult, but he held himself to the terms of the contract.

hold someone under someone's thumb Go to under someone's thumb.

hold someone up^t to something to lift someone up to the level of something. □ I held up little Mary to the window so she could see out. □ She was held up to the window so she could see better.

hold something against someone Fig. to blame something on someone; to bear a grudge against someone; to resent someone. □ Your brother is mean to me, but I can't hold it against you. □ You're holding something against me. What is it?

hold something against someone or something 1. Lit. to press something against someone, a group, or something. □ Max held the gun against the bank guard's head and threatened to pull the trigger. □ Fred held the drill against the wall and turned it on. 2. Fig. to think badly of someone, a group, or something because of something. □ I am the one who dented your fender. I'm sorry. I hope you don't hold it against me. □ I hold all this mess against the government.

hold something back for a rainy day Go to save (something) for a rainy day.

hold something for someone 1. to keep something safe for someone. □ I will hold your money for you. □ Do you want me to hold your wallet for you while you swim? 2. [for a merchant] to set something aside for a purchaser who will pay for it and take delivery at a later date. □ I will hold it for you until you can pay for it. □ We can hold it for you right here and give it to you when you have the money.

hold something in^t and keep something in^t 1. and hold something inside ((of) one(self)); keep something inside ((of) one(self)) Fig. to keep one's emotions inside oneself. □ You really shouldn't hold those feelings inside of you. □ I have kept all this inside myself too long. □ You shouldn't hold in all that anger. 2. Lit. to hold in one's stomach, gut, belly, etc. □ Hold your belly in so you don't look like a blimp. □ Hold in your stomach.

hold something in abeyance to stall or postpone something. □ This is a good plan but not at this time. Let's just hold it in abeyance until things get better. □ We will hold the matter in abeyance until we hear from you.

hold something in store (for someone) Go to in store (for someone).

hold something inside ((of) one(self)) Go to hold something in^t.

hold (something) out on someone or something to keep news or something of value from someone or a group. □ What's going on? Are you holding something out on me? □ Don't hold out on the city council. They have ways of finding out everything.

hold something out^t (to someone) to offer something to someone. □ I held a bouquet of roses out to her. □ I held out an offer of immunity from prosecution to her, but she would not cooperate.

hold something over someone('s head) Fig. to have knowledge of something about a person and to use that knowledge to control the person. □ So I made a mistake when I was young. Are you going to hold that over my head all my life? □ Please don't hold that over me anymore.

hold something together to keep the parts of an object together. □ Hold this broken vase together until I get back with the glue. □ What can I use to hold this together?

hold still Go to keep still.

hold still (for someone or something) and keep still (for someone or something); stand still (for someone or something) to remain motionless for someone or something. □ Hold still for the doctor and the shot won't hurt. □ Please keep still for the doctor.

hold still for something and stand still for something Fig. to tolerate or endure something. (Often in the negative.) □ I won't stand still for that kind of behavior! □ She won't hold still for that kind of talk.

hold terror for someone [for something] to be frightening to a person. □ The thought of flying to Rio by myself held great terror for me. □ Nothing holds terror for me. I am a daredevil.

hold the fort Fig. to take care of a place while someone who is usually there is gone, such as a store or one's home. (From western movies.) □ I'm going next door to visit Mrs. Jones. You stay here and hold the fort. □ You should open the store at eight o'clock and hold the fort until I get there at ten.

hold the line (at someone or something) Fig. not to exceed a certain limit regarding someone or something. □ Having your wife on the payroll is one thing, but no one else from the family—I will hold the line at her. □ We have to hold the line at this kind of expenditure. □ Okay, we'll hold the line.

Hold the phone. 1. and Hold the wire(, please).; Hold, please.; Hold the line(, please).; Hold the phone(, please).; Please hold. Fig. Please wait on the telephone and do not hang up. (A phrase in use before telephone "hold" circuitry was in wide use.) □ Bill: Hold the wire, please. (Turning to Tom) Tom, the phone's for you. Tom: Be right there. □ Rachel: Do you wish to speak to Mr. Jones or Mr. Franklin? Henry: Jones. Rachel: Thank you. Hold the line, please. □ Sue: Good afternoon, Acme Motors, hold please. Bill (hanging up): That makes me so mad! 2. Fig. Wait just a minute.; Don't rush into something. □ Hold the phone! Let's think about it a little longer. □ Hold the phone. I just had another idea.

hold the purse strings Go to control the purse strings.

Hold the wire(, please). Go to Hold the phone.

hold together [for something] to keep from falling apart. □ Don't run the engine too fast because it won't hold together. □ Do you think that this book will hold together much longer?

hold true [for something] to be true; [for something] to remain true. □ Does this rule hold true all the time? □ Yes, it holds true no matter what.

hold under wraps Go to under wraps.

hold up 1. Lit. to endure; to last a long time. □ How long will this cloth hold up? □ I want my money back for this chair. It isn't holding up well. 2. and hold up (for someone or something) to wait; to stop and wait for someone or something. □ Hold up for Wallace. He's running hard to catch up to us. □ Hold up a minute.

hold up (for someone or something) Go to hold up; wait up (for someone or something).

hold up (on someone or something) to delay or postpone further action on someone or something. □ I know you are getting ready to choose someone, but hold up on Tom. There may be someone better. □ Hold up on the project, would you? □ We need to hold up for a while longer.

Hold your horses! and Hold your tater! Fig. Inf. Wait! □ Tom: Let's go! Let's go! Mary: Hold your horses. □ Hold your tater, now. Where did you say you are going?

Hold your tater! Go to previous.

Hold your tongue! Inf. You have said enough!; You have said enough rude things. (See also hold one's tongue.) □ Bill: You're seeing Tom a lot, aren't you? You must be in love. Jane: Hold your tongue, Bill Franklin! □ After listening to the tirade against him for nearly four minutes, Tom cried out, "Hold your tongue!"

hole in one 1. Lit. an instance of hitting a golf ball from the tee to the hole in only one try. (From the game of golf.) □ John made a hole in one yesterday. □ I've never gotten a hole in one. 2. Fig. an instance of succeeding the first time. □ It worked the first time I tried it—a hole in one. □ Bob got a hole in one on that sale. A lady walked in the door, and he sold her a car in five minutes.

a hole in the wall Fig. a tiny shop, room, etc., not much wider than its doorway. □ I went into this little hole in the wall where they had the nicest little gifts. □ His office is just a hole in the wall.

hole up (somewhere) 1. to take shelter somewhere. □ During the blizzard, we holed up in a lean-to made of branches. □ Looks like bad weather coming. We'd better find a place to hole up. 2. to hide somewhere. □ The police are looking for me. I need somewhere to hole up. □ The outlaw holed up in a cave.

holler something out^t to yell something out. □ The guard hollered a warning out. □ They hollered out a warning.

holler uncle and cry uncle; say uncle Fig. to admit defeat. □ Joe kept pounding on Jim, trying to get him to holler uncle. □ He twisted my arm until I cried uncle.

hollow something out^t to make the inside of something hollow. □ Martha hollowed the book out and put her money inside. □ She hollowed out a book.

Holy cow! Inf. Wow! □ Holy cow! I never expected such a nice gift! □ Give me a chance! Holy cow, don't rush me!

holy Joe 1. a chaplain; a cleric; a clergyman. □ I went to see the holy Joe, and he was a lot of help. □ Old holy Joe wants to see all of us at services. 2. a very pious person. □ Martin looks stuffy, but he's no holy Joe. □ Don't let that holy Joe hear about what you've done.

Holy mackerel! Inf. Wow! □ Holy mackerel! What a beautiful day! □ Holy mackerel! What's this? A new car?

Holy mole! Inf. Wow! □ Holy mole! A whole quarter! □ Look, here's another one! Holy mole!

(home) folks Rur. one's family, especially one's parents. □ It sure is good to see the home folks again. □ Sally went to visit her folks.

home free safe and without problems. (Not necessarily about home or about money. *Typically: be ~; get ~.) □ Everyone else had a lot of trouble with the bureaucrats, but we got home free.

home in (on someone or something) Fig. to aim directly at someone or something. □ She came into the room and homed in on the chocolate cake. □ She saw the cake and homed in.

Home is where the heart is. Prov. People long to be at home.; Your home is whatever place you long to be. □ I've had a lovely time visiting you, but home is where the heart is, and I think it's time I went back. □ If home is where the heart is, then my home is my parents' old house. I've never loved my own apartment the way I love their place.

home on(to something) Fig. to aim directly at something; to fix some type of receiver on a signal source. □ The navigator homed onto the radio beam from the airport. □ The navigator located the beam and homed on.

homely enough to stop a clock Rur. ugly. □ She's a sweet girl, but homely enough to stop a clock. □ No one asks Mary out, and no wonder. She's homely enough to stop a clock.

hone for someone or something Rur. to long for someone or something. □ Tom: What's wrong with Jane? Mary: She's honing for her sweetheart. □ Jimmy was honing for the red bicycle in the toy store window.

honest and aboveboard and open and aboveboard Fig. in the open; visible to the public; honest. □ Don't keep it a secret. Let's make sure that everything is honest and aboveboard. □ You can do whatever you wish, as long as you keep it honest and aboveboard. □ The inspector had to make sure that everything was open and aboveboard.

Honest to God. Go to next.

Honest to goodness. and Honest to God.; Honest to Pete. I speak the truth. (Some people may object to the use of God in this phrase.) □ Did he really say that? Honest to goodness? □ Honest to Pete, I've been to the South Pole.

Honest to Pete. Go to previous.

Honesty is the best policy. Prov. You should always tell the truth, even when it seems as if it would be useful to tell a lie. □ Jill: I borrowed Jane's white blouse without asking her, and then I spilled tomato sauce on it. Should I tell her what happened, or should I just put the blouse back in her closet and hope she won't notice? Jane: Honesty is the best policy.

The honeymoon is over. The early pleasant beginning (as at the start of a marriage) has ended. □ Okay, the honeymoon is over. It's time to settle down and do some hard work. □ I knew the honeymoon was over at my new job when they started yelling at me to work faster.

honk at someone or something to sound a horn at someone or something. □ Is someone honking at me? □ The motorists honked at the sheep that were clogging the roadway.

honor someone as something to praise someone as something; to praise someone for being something. □ Aren't you going to honor Kevin as a hero? □ We will honor Henry as the most promising scholar of the year.

honor someone for something to praise someone for doing something. □ The committee agreed to honor Laurel for her role in the benefit dance. □ I want to honor you for your efforts on behalf of our cause.

honor someone's check to accept someone's personal check in payment of an obligation. □ The clerk at the store wouldn't honor my check. I had to pay cash. □ The bank didn't honor your check when I tried to deposit it. Please give me cash.

honor someone with something to show one's respect for someone with something, such as a gift, party, ceremony, a response, etc. □ We would like to honor you with a little reception. □ We chose to honor you with a little gift.

hooched (up) Sl. intoxicated. □ Sally is too hooched to drive. □ She got herself hooched up and couldn't give her talk.

hoodwink someone into something Fig. to deceive someone into doing something. □ She will try to hoodwink you into driving her to the airport. Watch out. □ You can't hoodwink me into doing that!

hoodwink someone out of something Fig. to get something away from someone by deception. □ Are you trying to hoodwink me out of my money? □ Max tried to hoodwink the old lady out of all her money.

hoof it Inf. to walk. □ If nobody gives us a ride, we'll have to hoof it. □ She hoofed it home from the dance in her high-heeled shoes.

hook in(to something) to connect into something. □ We will hook into the water main tomorrow morning. □ We dug the pipes up and hooked in.

hook, line, and sinker Fig. totally. □ She fell for our story hook, line, and sinker. □ They believed every word hook, line, and sinker.

hook oneself on someone or something Fig. to become enamored of someone or something. □ I'm afraid I've hooked myself on Alice. □ He hooked himself on Bach organ music.

hook someone on something Fig. to addict someone to a drug or alcohol. □ Careful, or you'll hook yourself on those tranquilizers. □ Some friend at school hooked Roger on dope. □ Sharon has hooked herself on cocaine.

hook someone or something up[†] (to someone or something) and hook someone or something up[†] (with someone or something) 1. Lit. to attach someone or something to someone or something. □ The nurse hooked the patient up to the oxygen tubes. □ They hooked up the patient with the tubes.

hook someone up (with someone) Fig. to arrange for someone to go out with someone. □ I hooked Alice up with Tom last year, and now they're getting married.

hook something down[†] 1. Lit. to attach something and hold it down with a hook. □ Please hook the lid down so it doesn't fall off. □ Please hook down the lid. 2. Sl. to toss something down to someone. □ Hook another can of beer down to me, will you? □ Hook down another can of beer. 3. Sl. to eat something quickly; to gobble something up. □ Wally hooked the first hamburger down and ordered another. □ He hooked down two more burgers in a few minutes.

hook something into something to connect something to something. □ I want to hook another communication line into the system. □ Is it possible to hook my computer into your network?

hook something on(to someone or something) and hook something on^t to attach something to someone or something by a hook. □ Hook this sign on her and let her walk around advertising our play. □ Hook on the sign and hope that it stays. □ Hook it onto the tree carefully.

hook something up^t to set something up and get it working. (The object is to be connected to a power supply, electronic network, telephone lines, etc.) □ Will it take long to hook the telephone up? □ As soon as they hook up the computer to the network, I can e-mail my friends.

hook up with someone 1. Fig. to meet with someone. □ Fancy hooking up with you here, Bill. How have you been? □ Well, hello, Tom. I didn't think I'd hook up with you again so soon. 2. Fig. to join forces with someone. □ If we hook up with each other it'll be easier to defeat the others. □ These two competitors have hooked up together and we now have a real problem.

hooked on something 1. Fig. addicted to a drug or something similar. □ Jenny is hooked on cocaine. □ She was not hooked on anything before that. 2. Fig. enthusiastic about something; supportive of something. □ Mary is hooked on football. She never misses a game. □ Jane is so happy! She's hooked on life.

hoot and holler to shout in disapproval; to call and shout one's displeasure. □ After the umpire rendered his decision, the spectators hooted and hollered their thoughts on the matter. □ It's hard to play a good game of basketball when the fans are hooting and hollering at everything you do.

hoot at someone or something Go to howl at someone or something.

hoot someone down^t Go to howl someone down^t.

hoot someone off the stage [for an audience] to boo and hiss until a performer leaves the stage. □ The rude audience hooted Carl off the stage. □ Carl was hooted off the stage.

hop in(to something) to jump into something; to get into something. □ Hop into your car and drive over to my house. □ I hopped in and drove off.

hop off ((of) something) to jump off something. (Of is usually retained before pronouns.) □ She hopped off her bike and came into the house. □ The bird on the branch hopped off.

hop on the bandwagon Go to on the bandwagon.

hop on(to something) to jump or get onto something that is moving. □ Sometimes you have to hop onto the cable car after it has started to move. □ I ran to the cable car and hopped on.

a hop, skip, and a jump Fig. a short distance. □ Bill lives just a hop, skip, and a jump from here. We can be there in two minutes. □ My car is parked just a hop, skip, and a jump away.

hop something up^t Sl. to make a machine, especially a car, run extra fast or give it extra power. □ He will take that junk heap home and hop it up. □ He spent nearly every evening hopping up his old car.

Hop to it! Inf. Get started right now! □ Bill: I have to get these things stacked up before I go home. Bob: Then hop to it! You won't get it done standing around here talking. □ "Hurry up! Hop to it!" urged Bill. "We've got to get this done!"

hop up (to someone or something) [for an animal] to come close to someone or something by hopping. □ The bunny hopped up to me and just sat there. □ It hopped up and stared.

hope against (all) hope to have hope even when the situation appears to be hopeless. □ We hope against all hope that she'll see the right thing to do and do it. □ There is little point in hoping against hope, except that it makes you feel better.

Hope deferred makes the heart sick. and Hope deferred maketh the heart sick. Prov. If you have to wait a long time for something you want, you will become despairing. (Biblical.) □ Charlie waited so long for the woman he loved that he decided he didn't want to love anybody. Hope deferred makes the heart sick.

Hope deferred maketh the heart sick. Go to previous.

hope for something to be optimistic that one's wish for something will come true. □ I still hope for her return. □ We hope for good weather on Friday.

hope for the best to desire the best to happen. □ Good luck. You know we all hope for the best. □ Mary is worried, but she hopes for the best.

Hope for the best and prepare for the worst. and Hope for the best but expect the worst. Prov. You should have a positive attitude, but make sure you are ready for disaster. □ While my father was in the hospital after his heart attack, we hoped for the best and prepared for the worst. □ When you study for a major exam, hope for the best but expect the worst. Don't make yourself anxious worrying that it will be too difficult, but review as if you expect the exam to be extremely hard.

Hope for the best but expect the worst. Go to previous.

Hope is a good breakfast but a bad supper. Prov. It is good to start the day feeling hopeful, but if none of the things you hope for come to pass by the end of the day, you will feel disappointed. (Can be used to warn someone against hoping for something that is unlikely to happen.) □ Lisa began the day hoping that she would find work, and by the end of the day she had learned that hope is a good breakfast but a bad supper.

Hope springs eternal (in the human breast). Prov. People will continue to hope even though they have evidence that things cannot possibly turn out the way they want. (From Alexander Pope's poem, "Essay on Man." Sometimes used to remark that you believe someone's situation is hopeless, as in the first example.) □ Jill: The boss may have turned me down the first twelve times I asked for a raise, but this time I really think she'll give it to me. Jane: Hope springs eternal in the human breast. □ Alan: You're not still trying to teach the dog to shake hands! Jane: Hope springs eternal.

hopeless at doing something incapable of doing something.

□ Tom is hopeless at cooking. □ Sally is hopeless at keeping her room clean, and it shows.

hopped up 1. Sl. intoxicated with drugs or alcohol; stimulated by drugs or alcohol. □ The old man was hopped up again. He was addicted to opium. □ John usually gets hopped up on the weekends. 2. Inf. excited; enthusiastic. □ What are you hopped up about now? You're certainly cheery. □ I always get hopped up when I think of mountain climbing.

hopping mad Fig. very angry. □ Joe got hopping mad when the salesclerk was rude to him. □ The student's practical jokes made the teacher hopping mad.

horn in (on someone) Fig. to attempt to displace someone; to interfere with someone, especially with someone's romantic interests. □ I'm going to ask Sally to the party. Don't you dare try to horn in on me! □ I wouldn't think of horning in.

horn in (on something) Fig. to attempt to participate in something without invitation or consent. □ Are you trying to horn in on my conversation with Sally? □ I hope you are not trying to horn in on our party.

horse and buggy and horse and carriage; buggy whip Fig. a carriage pulled by a horse, as opposed to a modern automobile; the horse was urged on with a whip. (A symbol of old-fashionedness or out-of-dateness. Particularly with go out with, as in the examples.) □ That kind of clothing went out with the horse and buggy. □ I thought suspenders went out with the horse and carriage, but I see them everywhere now.

horse and carriage Go to previous.

horse around (with someone or something) 1. Fig. to play around roughly with someone or something, possibly abusing someone or something. □ Stop horsing around with your little brother. Leave him alone. □ Will you kids stop horsing around? 2. Fig. to join someone in boisterous play; to participate in rough play with someone. □ He's horsing around with his little brother. They are really having a good time. □ We spent the entire afternoon just horsing around.

a horse of a different color Go to next.

a horse of another color and a horse of a different color Fig. another matter altogether. □ I was talking about trees, not bushes. Bushes are a horse of another color. □ Gambling is not the same as investing in the stock market. It's a horse of a different color.

horse sense Fig. common sense; practical thinking. □ Bob is no scholar but he has a lot of horse sense. □ Horse sense tells me I should not be involved in that project.

hose someone down[†] Sl. to kill someone. (Underworld. From the image of spraying someone with bullets.) □ Mr. Big told Sam to hose Wilbur down. □ The thugs tried to hose down the witness.

hose someone or something down[†] to wash something down with water from a hose. □ Hose her down to cool her off and maybe she will do the same for you. □ Please hose down the driveway. □ Hose it down.

hot and bothered 1. Fig. excited; anxious. □ Now don't get hot and bothered. Take it easy. □ John is hot and bothered about the tax increase. 2. Fig. amorous; interested in romance or sex. □ John gets hot and bothered whenever Mary comes into the room. □ The dog seems hot and bothered. I think it's that time of the year again.

hot and heavy Fig. referring to serious passion or emotions. □ Things were getting a little hot and heavy so Ellen asked to be taken home. □ The movie had one hot and heavy scene after another. Pretty soon it got to be a joke.

hot as fire and hot as hell very hot; burning hot. (*Also: as ~. Use hell with caution.) □ I'm afraid Betsy has a high fever. Her forehead is hot as fire. □ It's as hot as hell outside. It must be near 100 degrees.

hot as hell Go to previous.

Hot damn! Inf. Wow!; Hooray! (An exclamation of surprise and delight.) □ Hot damn! I just won a vacation trip to Florida!

Hot diggety (dog)! and Hot dog!; Hot ziggety! Inf. an expression of excitement and delight. (These expressions have no meaning and no relationship to dogs or to wieners.) □ Rachel: I got an A! Hot diggety dog! Henry: Good for you! □ Tom: You won first place! Mary: Hot ziggety!

hot enough to burn a polar bear's butt Rur. very hot. (Used to describe weather.) □ Every day in August was hot enough to burn a polar bear's butt. □ Even in October, it was hot enough to burn a polar bear's butt.

hot off the press Fig. freshly printed; just released by a publisher. □ Here is a copy of the new Perry Hodder novel. It's hot off the press.

hot on someone's heels Go to on someone's heels.

hot on something Fig. enthusiastic about something; very much interested in something; knowledgeable about something. □ Meg's hot on animal rights. □ Jean is hot on modern ballet just now.

hot on the trail (of someone, some creature, or something) Fig. very close to finding or catching up with someone, some creature, or something. □ I am hot on the trail of the book that I have been seeking for months.

a hot ticket Fig. something that is really popular and attractive at the moment. □ Singers who can dance are a hot ticket right now. Who knows what folks will like next month?

hot under the collar Fig. very angry. □ The boss was really hot under the collar when you told him you lost the contract. □ I get hot under the collar every time I think about it.

Hot ziggety! Go to Hot diggety (dog)!

a hotbed of something Fig. a nest of something; a gathering place of something. □ This office is a hotbed of lazy people. □ My class is a hotbed of nerds.

hotfoot it (off to) somewhere to go somewhere as fast as possible. □ I've got to hotfoot it off to school. □ When they heard the police sirens, the thieves hotfooted home.

hotfoot it out of somewhere to run away from a place. □ Did you see Tom hotfoot it out of the office when the boss came in? □ Things are looking bad. I think we had better hotfoot it out of here.

hound someone from some place and hound someone out (of something or some place) to chase someone out of some place; to force someone out of something or some place. □ They hounded Joel and his friends from the town. □ The sheriff hounded Tex out of town.

hound someone or an animal down^t to pursue and capture someone or an animal. □ I will hound the killer down if it takes me the rest of my life. □ I will hound down that killer if it takes years.

hound someone out (of something or some place) Go to hound someone from some place.

hound something out of someone Fig. to force someone to give information. □ We are going to have to hound the information out of her. □ We hounded the combination to the safe out of them.

A house divided against itself cannot stand. Prov. If the members of a group fight each other, the group will disintegrate. (Often the group under discussion is a family.) □ The leader of the newly formed union tried hard to reconcile the different factions within his organization, because he knew that a house divided against itself cannot stand.

house moss Go to curly dirt.

house of correction Euph. a prison. □ He was sentenced to five years in the county's house of correction. □ The Jones House of Correction was built in the 1950s, when violent crime was much less common here.

a house of ill fame Go to next.

a house of ill repute and a house of ill fame Euph. a house of prostitution. □ The sign says "Health Club," but everyone knows it's a house of ill repute. □ He made a lot of money by running a house of ill fame.

*a household name and *a household word Fig. well known by everyone; commonly and widely known. (*Typically: be ~; become ~; make something ~.) □ I want my invention to become a household word. □ Some kid named Perry Hodder has become a household name!

a household word Go to previous.

hover around (someone or something) to hang or wait around someone or something. □ The mugger hovered around the side door to the theater, waiting for a victim. □ The birds hovered around the bird feeder.

hover between something and something else 1. Lit. to float or hang between things. □ The helicopter hovered between the buildings and lowered a rescue chair. □ The hummingbird hovered between the blossoms, sipping from one and then the other. 2. Fig. to waver between choosing one thing and another. □ I hovered between chocolate and vanilla. □ Uncle Jed hovered between life and death for days.

hover over someone or something 1. Lit. to remain suspended over someone or something. □ The rescue helicopter hovered over the floating sailor. □ A huge blimp hovered over the football stadium. 2. Fig. [for someone] to stay close to someone or something, waiting, ready to advise or interfere. □ Please don't hover over me, watching what I am doing. □ I have to hover over this project or someone will mess it up.

How about a lift? Go to Could I have a lift?

How about that! Isn't that surprising! □ A: My husband and I just celebrated our sixtieth anniversary. B: How about that!

How about you? What do you think?; What is your choice?; What about you? □ Bob: How are you, Bill? Bill: I'm okay. How about you? Bob: Fine, fine. Let's do lunch sometime. □ Waiter: Can I take your order? Bill: I'll have the chef's salad and ice tea. Waiter (turning to Sue): How about you? Sue: I'll have the same.

[how are] See also the entries beginning with How're.

How (are) you doing? a standard greeting inquiry. (The entry without are is informal and usually pronounced "How ya doin'?") □ Jane: How are you doing? Mary: I'm okay. What about you? Jane: Likewise. □ Sally: Sue, this is my little brother, Bill. Sue: How are you, Bill? Bill: Okay. How you doing?

How (are) you feeling? an inquiry into the state of someone's health. □ Sally: How are you feeling? Bill: Oh, better, thanks. Sally: That's good. □ Bill: Hey, Jane! You been sick? Jane: Yeah. Bill: How you feeling? Jane: Not very well.

How are you getting on? How are you managing?; How are you doing? □ Jane: Well, Mary, how are you getting on? Mary: Things couldn't be better. □ Sue: Hey, John! How are you getting on? What's it like with all the kids out of the house? John: Things are great, Sue!

How bout them apples? and How do you like them apples? Rur. What do you think of that? (Often used to express admiration, as in the first example; bout is short for about.) □ Tom: I got first prize! Mary: Well! How bout them apples? Joe got a job as a newspaper reporter. How do you like them apples?

How can I serve you? Go to How may I help you?

How come? How did that come about?; Why? □ Sally: I have to go to the doctor. Mary: How come? Sally: I'm sick, silly. □ John: I have to leave now. Bill: How come? John: I just have to, that's all. □ Henry: How come you always put your right shoe on first? Rachel: Do I have to have a reason for something like that?

How could you (do something)? How could you bring yourself to do a thing like that? (No answer is expected.) □ Looking first at the broken lamp and then at the cat, Mary shouted, "How could you do that?" Tom: Then I punched him in the nose. Rachel: Oh, how could you?

How do you do. a standard inquiry and response on greeting or meeting someone. (This expression never has rising question intonation, but the first instance of its use calls for a response. Sometimes the response does, in fact, explain how one is.) □ Sally: Hello. How do you do. Bob: How do you do. Mary: How do you do. So glad to meet you, Tom. Tom: Thank you. How are you? Mary: Just fine. Your brother tells me you like camping. Tom: Yes. Are you a camper? Mary: Sort of.

How do you know? 1. How did you get that information? (A straightforward question. The stress is on know.) □ Bill: The train is about to pull into the station. Sue: How do you know? Bill: I hear it. □ Fred: I have to apologize for the coffee. It probably isn't very good. Jane: How do you know? Fred: Well, I made it. 2. Inf. What makes you think you are correct?; Why do you think you have enough information to make this judgment? (Contentious. The heaviest stress is on you.) □ Bill: This is the best recording made all year. Bob: How do you know? Bill: Well, I guess it's just my opinion. □ Tom: Having a baby can be quite an ordeal. Mary: How do you know? Tom: I read a lot.

How do you like school? a phrase used to start a conversation with a school-age person. □ Bob: Well, Billy, how do you like school? Billy: I hate it. Bob: Too bad. □ Mary: How do you like school? Bob: It's okay. Almost everything else is better, though.

How do you like that? 1. Lit. Do you like that?; Is that to your liking? □ *Tom: There's a bigger one over there. How do you like that? Bill: It's better, but not quite what I want. □ Clerk: Here's one without pleats. How do you like that? Fred: That's perfect! 2. Fig. an expression said when administering punishment. □ *"How do you like that?" growled Tom as he punched John in the stomach. □ Bill (being spanked): Ouch! Ow! No! Mother (spanking): How do you like that? Bill: Not much. Mother: It hurts me more than it hurts you. 3. Fig. an expression said to show surprise at someone's bad or strange behavior or at some surprising event. □ *Tom (shouting at Sue): Can it! Go away! Sue (looking at Mary, aghast): Well, how do you like that! Mary: Let's get out of here! □ Fred: How do you like that? Sue: What's the matter? Fred: My wallet's gone.

How do you like them apples? Go to How bout them apples?

How do you like this weather? something said when greeting someone. (A direct answer is expected.) □ Henry: Hi, Bill. How do you like this weather? Bill: Lovely weather for ducks. Not too good for me, though. □ Alice: Gee, it's hot! How do you like this weather? Rachel: You can have it!

How does that grab you? Inf. What do you think of that? (Pronounced more like HowZAT grab ya?) □ Looks good, okay? How does that grab you? □ How does that grab you? Enough salt?

How dumb do you think I am? Inf. Your question is insulting. I am not stupid. (Shows agitation. An answer is not expected or desired.) □ Mary: Are you really going to sell your new car? Sally: Come on! How dumb do you think I am? □ Tom: Do you think you could sneak into that theater without paying? Bob: Good grief! How dumb do you think I am?

How goes it? Inf. How are you?; How are things going? □ Nice to see you. How goes it? □ How goes it? Everything okay?

How goes it (with you)? and How's it going? Inf. Hello, how are you? □ Hi, Mary. How goes it with you?

How (have) you been? a standard greeting inquiry. (See also How you is?) □ Bob: Hi, Fred! How have you been? Fred: Great! What about you? Bob: Fine. □ Bob: How you been? Sue: Okay, I guess. You okay? Bob: Yup.

[how is] See the entries beginning with how's.

How is someone fixed for something? Is there enough of something? □ How are you fixed for ketchup? Do you have enough for the picnic?

How is someone getting along? How is someone feeling or progressing? □ How is your father getting along? Is he any better?

How is someone making out? How is someone doing?; How is someone surviving or getting along? □ How are you making out since your retirement?

How many times do I have to tell you? Inf. a phrase admonishing someone who has forgotten instructions. □ Mother: How many times do I have to tell you? Do your homework! Bill: Mom! I hate school! □ Mary: Clean this place up! How many times do I have to tell you? Bill: I'll do it! I'll do it!

How may I help you? and How can I help you?; How can I serve you?; May I help you?; What can I do for you? In what way can I serve you? (Usually said by store clerks and food service personnel. The first question is the most polite, and the last is the least polite.) □ Waiter: How can I help you? Sue: I'm not ready to order yet. □ Clerk: May I help you? Jane: I'm looking for a gift for my aunt.

How's business? Inf. a question asked in a conversation about the state of someone's business or job. □ Tom: Hello, Sally. How's business? Sally: Okay, I suppose. □ Bob: Good to see you, Fred. Fred: Hello, Bob. How's business? Bob: Just okay.

How's by you? Inf. a greeting inquiry. □ Fred: Hey, man! How's by you? John: Just fine, Fred. □ Bob: Hello. What's cooking? Bill: Nothing. How's by you?

How's every little thing? Inf. How are you?; How are things with you? □ Bill: Hello, Tom. Tom: Hi, Bill. How's every little thing? Bill: Couldn't be better. □ Bill: Hi, Mary. How's every little thing? Mary: Things are fine. How are you? Bill: Fine, thanks.

How's it going? Go to How goes it (with you)?

How's (it) with you? Inf. a greeting inquiry. □ Tom: Hey, man. How's with you? Bob: Great! And you? Tom: Okay. □ Bill: How's with you, old buddy? John: Can't complain. And you? Bill: Couldn't be better.

How's my boy? and How's the boy? Inf. How are you? (Male to male and familiar. The speaker may outrank the person addressed.) □ Bob: How's my boy? Bill: Hi, Tom. How are you? □ Fred: Hello, old buddy. How's the boy? Bob: Hi, there! What's cooking? Fred: Nothing much.

How's that again? Inf. Please say that again.; I did not hear it all. □ Sue: Would you like some coffee? Mary: How's that again? Sue: I said, would you like some coffee? □ Tom: The car door is frozen closed. Bob: How's that again? Tom: The car door is frozen closed.

How's the boy? Go to How's my boy?

How's the family? and How's your family? an expression used on greeting to ask about the state of the person's immediate family. □ Bob: Hello, Fred. How are you? Fred: Fine, thanks. Bob: How's the family? Fred: Great! How's yours? Bob: Couldn't be better. □ "How's the family?" asked Bill, greeting his boss.

How's the wife? Inf. a phrase used by a man when inquiring about a male friend's wife. □ Tom: Hi, Fred, how are you? Fred: Good. And you? Tom: Great! How's the wife? Fred: Okay, and yours? Tom: Couldn't be better. □ Bill: Hi, Bob. How's the wife? Bob: Doing fine. How's every little thing? Bill: Great!

How's the world (been) treating you? Inf. How are you? □ Hi, Jane. How's the world treating you? □ How's the world been treating you, Bill?

How's tricks? Inf. a greeting inquiry. □ Bob: Fred! How's tricks? Fred: How are you doing, Bob? Bob: Doing great! □ Bill: What's up? How's tricks? Bob: I can't complain. How are things going for you? Bill: Can't complain.

How's your family? Go to How's the family?

How should I know? and Don't ask me. Inf. I do not know.; Why should I be expected to know? (Shows impatience or rudeness.) □ Bill: Why is the orca called the killer whale? Mary: How should I know? □ Sally: Where did I leave my glasses? Tom: Don't ask me.

How so? Please explain your remark. □ A: You have to bring all the lawn furniture in. B: How so?

How the mighty have fallen. Prov. a jovial or mocking way of remarking that someone is doing something that he or she used to consider very demeaning. □ Jill: Ever since Fred's wife left him, he has had to cook his own meals. Jane: Well! How the mighty have fallen! □ When Dan lost his money, he had to sell his expensive sports car. Now he drives an ugly old sedan. How the mighty have fallen.

how the other half lives Fig. how poorer people live; how richer people live. □ Now that I am bankrupt I am beginning to understand how the other half lives. □ Most people don't care how the other half lives.

How will I know you? Go to next.

How will I recognize you? and How will I know you? a question asked by one of two people who have agreed to meet for the first time in a large busy place. □ Tom: Okay, I'll meet you at the west door of the station. Mary: Fine. How will I recognize you? Tom: I'll be wearing dark glasses. □ Bill: I'll meet you at six. How will I recognize you? Mary: I'll be carrying a brown umbrella.

a howdy and a half Rur. a short distance. □ Tom: Is it far to the dime store? Jane: Just a howdy and a half. □ Her house was a howdy and a half from the place where I grew up.

howl at someone or something 1. Lit. [for a canine] to bay at someone or something. □ The dog howls at me when I play the trumpet. □ The wolves howled at the moon and created a terrible uproar. 2. and hoot at someone or something Fig. to yell out at someone or something. □ The audience howled at the actors and upset them greatly. □ We hooted at the singer until he stopped. 3. Fig. to laugh very hard at someone or something. □ Everyone just howled at Tom's joke. □ I howled at the story Alice told.

howl someone down⁺ and hoot someone down⁺ Fig. to yell at or boo someone's performance; to force someone to stop talking by yelling or booing. □ The audience howled the inept magician down. □ They howled down the musician.

howl with something to yell or holler because of something, such as pain. □ Roger howled with pain as the needle went into his arm. □ Mary howled with grief when she saw what had happened to her roses.

How're things going? Inf. a standard greeting inquiry. □ Bob: Hi, Fred! How're things going? Fred: Could be better. How's by you? □ Bill: How are things going? Mary: Fine, but I need to talk to you.

How're things (with you)? Inf. a greeting inquiry. □ Sally: How are you? Bill: Fine. How are things? □ Bill: How are things going? Mary: Fine. How are things with you?

huddle around someone or something to gather or bunch around someone or something. □ The girls huddled around Mary to hear what she had to say. □ The kids huddled around the cake and consumed it almost instantaneously.

huddle someone together to bunch people together. □ The scoutmaster huddled the boys together to give them a pep talk. □ Let's huddle everyone together to keep warm.

huddle (up) (together) to bunch up together. □ The children huddled up together to keep warm. □ They huddled up to keep warm. □ The newborn rabbits huddled together and squirmed hungrily.

a hue and cry Fig. a loud public protest or opposition. (See also raise a hue and cry.) □ There was a hue and cry when the city government tried to build houses on the playing field. □ The decision to close the local school started a real hue and cry.

huff and puff Fig. to breathe very hard; to pant as one exerts effort. □ John came up the stairs huffing and puffing. □ He huffed and puffed and finally got up the steep hill.

hum with activity Fig. [for a place] to be busy with activity. □ The kitchen hummed with activity as usual. □ Our main office was humming with activity during the busy season.

hunch over [for someone] to bend over. □ The wounded man hunched over and staggered to the window. □ He was hunched over with pain.

hunch something up⁺ to raise up or lift up some body part, usually the shoulders. □ He hunched his shoulders up in his effort to get warm. □ He hunched up his shoulders to keep warm.

hunch up to squeeze or pull the parts of one's body together. □ He hunched up in a corner to keep warm. □ Why is that child hunched up in the corner?

hung up (on someone or something) obsessed with someone or something; devoted to someone or something. □ John is really hung up on Mary. □ She's hung up, too. See how she smiles at him.

hunger after something Fig. to crave for something, not necessarily food. □ I hunger after some old-fashioned gospel music. □ Mary hungered after something fattening, such as ice cream or even a baked potato with sour cream.

hunger for someone or something to desire someone or something; to yearn for someone or something. □ I hunger for you. I want you madly. □ He looked at the cake and you could see he was hungering for it. □ The prisoner was consumed with a hunger for freedom.

Hunger is the best sauce. Prov. Everything tastes especially good when you are hungry, because you are so eager to eat it. □ After our twenty-mile hike, we stopped at a little roadside restaurant. It may have been that they made the most delicious food in the world there, or it may have been that hunger was the best sauce.

hungry as a bear and hungry as a hunter Cliché very hungry. (*Also: as ~.) □ I'm as hungry as a bear. I could eat anything! □ We'd better have a big meal ready by the time Tommy gets home; he's always hungry as a hunter after soccer practice.

hungry as a hunter Go to previous.

hungry for something Fig. desiring something, often something other than food. □ The orphan was hungry for the warmth of a family. □ Bill has become hungry for knowledge and is always studying.

hunker down (on something) Fig. to squat down on one's heels, a stool, a stone, etc. □ Jeff hunkered down on the pavement and watched the world go by. □ He hunkered down to take a rest.

hunker down to something Fig. to apply oneself to something, to get started working at something. □ I hunkered down to my chores, hoping to get them done before noon. □ If you want to get a good grade on that report, you'd better hunker down to it.

hunt after someone or something to seek or pursue someone or something. □ I'm hunting after a tall man with straight black hair. □ Elaine is hunting after a place to store her bicycle.

hunt for someone or something 1. to chase someone or something for sport. □ The hunter hunted for grouse on the game preserve. □ Frank likes to hunt for deer. 2. to look for someone or something. □ I am hunting for someone to help me with the piano. □ I am hunting for a new piano.

hunt high and low (for someone or something) and look high and low (for someone or something); search high and low (for someone or something) Fig. to look carefully in every possible place for someone or something. □ We looked high and low for the right teacher. □ The Smiths are searching high and low for the home of their dreams.

hunt someone or something down[†] 1. to chase and catch someone or something. □ I don't know where Amy is, but I'll hunt her down. I'll find her. □ I will hunt down the villain. 2. to locate someone or something. □ I don't have a big enough gasket. I'll have to hunt one down. □ I have to hunt down a good dentist.

hunt someone or something out[†] to find someone or something even if concealed. □ We will hunt them all out and find every last one of those guys. □ We will hunt out all of them. □ They hunted out the murderer.

hunt someone or something up[†] Go to look someone or something up[†].

hunt through something to search through the contents of something; to search among things. □ Joel hunted through his wallet for a dollar bill. □ I will have to hunt through my drawers for a pair of socks that match.

hurl insults (at someone) and throw insults (at someone) Fig. to direct insults at someone; to say something insulting directly to someone. □ Anne hurled an insult at Bob that made him very angry. □ If you two would stop throwing insults, we could have a serious discussion.

hurl someone or something at someone or something to throw someone or something at someone or something. □ The huge man actually hurled me at the tree. □ Larry hurled his shoe at me.

hurl someone or something down[†] to throw or push someone or something downward to the ground. □ Roger hurled the football down and it bounced away wildly. □ He hurled down the football in anger. □ The angry player hurled the ball down.

hurl someone or something into something to throw someone or something into something. □ She hurled the little boys into the storm cellar and went back to the house for the dog. □ Sharon hurled her belongings into the suitcase and jammed it closed.

hurl someone or something out (of some place) and hurl someone or something out[†] to throw someone or something out of some place. □ The manager hurled them out of the tavern. □ The manager hurled out the annoying people.

hurl something around[†] to throw something, such as words, around carelessly. □ Don't just go hurling foul words around like they didn't mean anything. □ You are just hurling around words!

hurl something away[†] (from someone or something) to throw or push something away from someone or something. □ She hurled the bricks away from the partially buried child. □ Hurl away the bricks as fast as you can.

hurry away and hurry off to leave in a hurry. □ I have to hurry away. Excuse me, please. It's an emergency. □ Don't hurry off. I need to talk to you.

hurry back (to someone or something) to return to someone or something immediately or as fast as possible. □ Oh, please hurry back to me as soon as you can. □ Hurry back!

hurry down (to somewhere) to descend rapidly. □ We need you down here in the basement. Hurry down. □ Please hurry down to the kitchen and help us.

hurry off Go to hurry away.

hurry on Go to hurry up.

hurry one on one's way to help someone to hasten on. □ Mary hurried Joel on his way so he could catch his train. □ There is no need to hurry me on my way. I am leaving.

hurry someone or something along to make someone or something go faster. □ Go hurry your mother along. We're almost late. □ Why don't you hurry the meeting along?

hurry someone or something in(to something) to make someone or something go into something fast. □ She hurried the chickens into the coop and closed the door on them for the night. □ It was beginning to rain, so Jerry hurried the children in.

hurry someone or something up to make someone or something go or work faster. □ Please hurry them all up. We are expecting to have dinner very soon. □ See if you can hurry this project up a little.

hurry up and hurry on to move faster. □ Hurry up! You're going to be late. □ Please hurry on. We have a lot to do today.

hurry up and wait Fig. to do some things in a series fast and then have to wait a long time to do the next things in the series. (Originally military.) □ That's all we ever do. Rush to stand in line somewhere. We just hurry up and wait all day long. □ Hurry up and wait! That's the army for you.

hurt for someone or something Go to ache for someone or something.

hurt someone's feelings to cause someone emotional pain.

□ It hurts my feelings when you talk that way. □ I'm sorry. I didn't mean to hurt your feelings.

hurting for something Rur. in need of something. □ I went to fetch a bottle of cough syrup. My sick child was hurting for it. □ Jim was hurting for a new set of tools.

hurtle through something to travel through something at great speed or with great force, possibly causing breakage. □ A brick hurtled through the window and fell on the floor. □ The rocket hurtled through space toward Mars.

a hush fell over someone or something Fig. a sudden silence enveloped something or a group. □ As the conductor raised his arms, a hush fell over the audience. □ The coach shouted and a hush fell over the locker room.

hush money Fig. money paid as a bribe to persuade someone to remain silent and not reveal certain information. □ Bob gave his younger sister hush money so that she wouldn't tell Jane that he had gone to the movies with Sue. □ The crooks paid Fred hush money to keep their whereabouts secret.

hush someone up¹ to make someone quiet. □ Please hush the children up. I have a telephone call. □ Hush up those kids! 2. Sl. to kill someone. □ The gang was afraid the witness would testify and wanted to hush him up. □ Mr. Big told Sam to hush up Richard.

hush something up[†] Fig. to keep something a secret; to try to stop a rumor from spreading. □ We just couldn't hush it up. □ We wanted to hush up the story, but there was no way to do it.

hush up to be quiet; to get quiet; to stop talking. □ You talk too much. Hush up! □ I want you to hush up and sit down!

Hush your mouth! Inf. Please be quiet. (Not very polite.) □ I've heard enough of that talk. Hush your mouth! □ Now, hush your mouth! You shouldn't talk like that!

hustle and bustle Fig. confusion and business. □ I can't stand the hustle and bustle of big cities. □ There is a lot of hustle and bustle in this office at the end of the fiscal year.

hustle up to hurry up. □ Hustle up, you guys. We have to get moving. □ Hustle up. We are almost late.

hygienically challenged Euph. [of a person] dirty. (Jocular.) □ Bill always smells terrible. He must be hygienically challenged. □ A couple of the kids in my class are, let us say, hygienically challenged.

hype someone or something (up) to promote, advertise, or boost someone or something, often excessively. □ No matter how much they hyped it up, it was still a very dull movie. □ Her agent hyped her up as a great actress.

hypothesize about something to speculate about something; to make guesses about something. □ Don't waste time hypothesizing about what happened. □ There is no point in hypothesizing about what happened when we don't know the actual truth.

hypothesize on something to conjecture on the origin or nature of something. □ We sat around hypothesizing on the origin of life.

[I am] See the entries beginning with I'm.

I am not my brother's keeper. and Am I my brother's keeper? Prov. You are not responsible for another person's doings or whereabouts. (Biblical.) □ Fred: Where's Robert? Jane: Am I my brother's keeper? Jill: How could you let Jane run off like that? Alan: I'm not my brother's keeper.

I am so sure! Inf. I am right! □ You are way rad! I am so sure! □ This is too much. I am so sure!

(I) beg your pardon, but... and Begging your pardon, but... Please excuse me, but. (A very polite and formal way of interrupting, bringing something to someone's attention, or asking a question of a stranger.) □ Rachel: Beg your pardon, but I think your right front tire is a little low. Henry: Well, I guess it is. Thank you. John: Begging your pardon, ma'am, but weren't we on the same cruise ship in Alaska last July? Rachel: Couldn't have been me.

I believe so. Go to I guess (so).

I believe we've met. a phrase suggesting that one has already met a person to whom one is being introduced. □ John: Alice, have you met Fred? Alice: Oh, yes, I believe we've met. How are you, Fred? Fred: Hello, Alice. Good to see you again. Alice: Tom, this is my cousin, Mary. Tom: I believe we've met. Nice to see you again, Mary. Mary: Hello, Tom. Good to see you again.

I can accept that. Inf. I accept your evaluation as valid. □ Bob: Now, you'll probably like doing the other job much better. It doesn't call for you to do the things you don't do well. Tom: I can accept that. Sue: On your evaluation this time, I noted that you need to work on telephone manners a little bit. Bill: I can accept that.

I can live with that. Inf. That is something I can get used to.; That is all right as far as I'm concerned. □ Sue: I want to do this room in green. Bill: I can live with that. Clerk: This one will cost twelve dollars more. Bob: I can live with that. I'll take it.

(I) can too. You are wrong, I can.; Don't say I can't, because I can! (The response to (You cannot!)) □ Sue: I'm going to the party. Mother: You can't. Sue: I can too. Mother: Cannot! Sue: Can too! "Can too!" protested Fred. "I can, if you can!"

I can't accept that. Inf. I do not believe what you said.; I reject what you said. □ Sue: The mechanic says we need a whole new engine. John: What? I can't accept that! Tom: You're now going to work on the night shift. You don't seem to be able to get along with some of the people on the day shift. Bob: I can't accept that. It's them, not me.

(I) can't argue with that. Inf. I agree with what you said.; It sounds like a good idea. □ Tom: This sure is good cake. Bob: Can't argue with that. Sue: What do you say we go for a swim? Fred: I can't argue with that.

(I) can't beat that. and (I) can't top that. Inf. I cannot do better than that.; I cannot exceed that. □ Henry: That was really great. I can't beat that. Rachel: Yes, that was really good. "What a great joke! I can't top that," said Kate, still laughing.

I can't believe (that)! That is unbelievable! □ Tom: What a terrible earthquake! All the houses collapsed, one by one. Jane: I can't believe that! Bill: This lake is nearly two hun- dred feet deep. Sue: I can't believe that! Bill: Take my word for it.

Ii

(I) can't complain. and (I have) nothing to complain about. Inf. a response to a greeting inquiry asking how one is or how things are going for one. □ Sue: How are things going? Mary: I can't complain. Mary: Hi, Fred! How are you doing? Fred: Nothing to complain about.

I can't get over something! Fig. I am just so amazed! (The something can be a fact or a pronoun, such as that or it. Also with just, as in the examples.) □ "I just can't get over the way everybody pitched in and helped," said Alice. Bob: The very idea, Sue and Tom doing something like that! Bill: I can't get over it!

(I) can't help it. There is nothing I can do to help the situation.; That is the way it is.; There is nothing I can do. (Often in answer to a criticism.) □ Mary: Your hair is a mess. Sue: It's windy. I can't help it. Fred: I wish you'd quit coughing all the time. Sally: I can't help it. I wish I could too.

(I) can't rightly say. Rur. I do not know with any certainty. □ Fred: When do you think we'll get there? Bill: Can't rightly say. Bob: Okay, how does this look to you? Bill: I can't rightly say. I've never seen anything like it before.

(I) can't say (as) I do. Go to (I) can't say that I do.

(I) can't say (as) I have. Go to (I) can't say that I have.

(I) can't say for sure. Inf. I do not know with any certainty. □ Tom: When will the next train come through? Jane: I can't say for sure. Bob: How can the driver hit so many potholes? Bill: Can't say for sure. I know he doesn't see too well, though.

(I) can't say's I do. Go to (I) can't say that I do.

(I) can't say's I have. Go to (I) can't say that I have.

(I) can't say that I do. and (I) can't say's I do.; (I) can't say (as) I do. Fig. a vague response to a question about whether one remembers, knows about, likes, etc., something or someone. (The say as and say's are not standard English.) □ Jane: You remember Fred, don't you? John: Can't say as I do. Bob: This is a fine looking car. Do you like it? Bill: I can't say I do.

(I) can't say that I have. and (I) can't say's I have.; (I) can't say (as) I have. Fig. a vague response to a question about whether one has ever done something or been somewhere. (A polite way of saying no.) □ Bill: Have you ever been to a real opera? Bob: I can't say as I have. □

(I) can't thank you enough.

Mary: Well, have you thought about going with me to Fairbanks? Fred: I can't say I have, actually.

(I) can't thank you enough. Fig. a polite expression of gratitude. □ Bill: Here's the book I promised you. Sue: Oh, good. I can't thank you enough. □ Tom: Well, here we are. Bill: Well, Tom. I can't thank you enough. I really appreciate the ride.

(I) can't top that. Go to (I) can't beat that.

(I) changed my mind. I have reversed my previous decision or statement. □ Tom: I thought you were going to Atlanta today. Bill: I changed my mind. I'm leaving tomorrow. □ Mary: I thought that this room was going to be done in red. Sue: I changed my mind.

(I) could be better. Go to (Things) could be better.

(I) could be worse. Go to (Things) could be worse.

I could eat a horse! Fig. I am very hungry! □ Where's dinner? I could eat a horse!

(I) couldn't ask for more. Inf. Everything is fine, and there is no more that I could want. □ Bill: Are you happy? Sue: Oh, Bill. I couldn't ask for more. □ Waiter: Is everything all right? Bill: Oh, yes, indeed. Couldn't ask for more.

I couldn't ask you to do that. That is a very kind offer, but I would not ask you to do it. (This is not a refusal of the offer.) □ Sally: Look, if you want, I'll drive you to the airport. Mary: Oh, Sally. I couldn't ask you to do that. □ Bill: I'll lend you enough money to get you through the week. Sally: I couldn't ask you to do that.

(I) couldn't be better. Inf. I am fine. □ John: How are you? Jane: Couldn't be better. □ Bill: I hope you're completely well now. Mary: I couldn't be better.

(I) could(n't) care less. Inf. It doesn't matter to me. (The less bears the heaviest stress in both versions. Despite the apparent contradiction, either reading of this—both the affirmative and negative—usually have the same meaning. The exception would be in a sentence where the could bears the heaviest stress: I COULD care less, [but I don't.]) □ Tom: The rain is coming! The carpet will get wet! Mary: I couldn't care less. □ Bill: I'm going to go in there and tell off the boss? John: I could care less.

(I) couldn't help it. There was no way I could prevent it; I was unable to prevent something from happening; I was unable to control myself. □ Sally: You let the paint dry with brush marks in it. Mary: I couldn't help it. The telephone rang. □ Fred: You got fingerprints all over the window. Mary: Sorry. Couldn't help it.

I declare (to goodness)! Rur. What a surprise! □ I declare to goodness! You certainly have grown since I saw you. □ Tom: Jim and Sally are going to get married. Mary: Well, I declare!

I didn't catch the name. and I didn't catch your name. I don't remember your name; I didn't hear your name when we were introduced. □ Bill: How do you like this weather? Bob: It's not too good. By the way, I didn't catch your name. I'm Bob Wilson. Bill: I'm Bill Franklin. Bob: Nice to meet you, Bill. □ Bob: Sorry, I didn't catch the name. Bill: It's Bill, Bill Franklin. And you? Bob: I'm Bob Wilson.

I didn't hear you. Go to next.

I didn't (quite) catch that (last) remark. and I didn't get that.; I didn't hear you. I didn't hear what you said, so would you please repeat it. □ John: What did you say? I didn't quite catch that last remark. Jane: I said it's really a hot day. □ Bill: Have a nice time, if you can. Sally: I didn't get that. Bill: Have a nice time! Enjoy!

I do believe. a way of affirming or reaffirming one's opinion. □ Jim's in love with that gal, I do believe. □ Jane's store will do well, I do believe.

I (do) declare! Inf. I am surprised to hear that! (Old-fashioned.) □ Mary: I'm the new president of my sorority! Grandmother: I declare! That's very nice. □ A plane had landed right in the middle of the cornfield. The old farmer shook his head in disbelief. "I do declare!" he said over and over as he walked toward the plane.

I don't believe it! an expression of amazement and disbelief. □ Bob: Tom was just elected president of the trade association! Mary: I don't believe it! □ Bob: They're going to build a Disney World in Moscow. Sally: I don't believe it!

(I) don't believe I've had the pleasure. Fig. an expression meaning I haven't met you yet. □ Tom: I'm Tom Thomas. I don't believe I've had the pleasure. Bill: Hello. I'm Bill Franklin. Tom: Nice to meet you, Bill. Bill: Likewise. □ Bob: Looks like rain. Fred: Sure does. Oh, I don't believe I've had the pleasure. Bob: I'm Bob, Bob Jones. Fred: My name is Fred Wilson. Glad to meet you.

I don't believe this! Inf. What is happening right now is unbelievable! □ It's snowing in July! I don't believe this! □ I don't believe this! It can't be happening.

I don't care. It doesn't matter to me. □ Mary: Can I take these papers away? Tom: I don't care. Do what you want. □ Bill: Should this room be white or yellow? Sally: I don't care.

(I) don't care if I do. Rur. Thank you.; I will. (See also (I) don't mind if I do.) □ Tom: Have some more grits? Jane: Don't care if I do. □ Charlie: Come on in and set a spell. Mary: Don't care if I do.

I don't have time to breathe. Go to next.

I don't have time to catch my breath. and I don't have time to breathe. Fig. I am very busy; I have been very busy. □ Henry: I'm so busy these days. I don't have time to catch my breath. Rachel: Oh, I know what you mean. □ Sue: Would you mind finishing this for me? Bill: Sorry, Sue. I'm busy. I don't have time to breathe.

I don't know. a common expression of ignorance or of lacking an answer. □ Father: Why can't you do better in school? Bill: I don't know. □ Bill: Well, what are we going to do now? Sue: I don't know.

I don't mean maybe! Inf. I am very serious about my demand or order. □ Bob: Do I have to do this? Sue: Do it now, and I don't mean maybe! □ Father: Get this place cleaned up! And I don't mean maybe! John: All right! I'll do it!

(I) don't mind if I do. Yes, I would like to. □ Sally: Have some more coffee? Bob: Don't mind if I do. □ Jane: Here are some lovely roses. Would you like to take a few blossoms with you? John: I don't mind if I do.

I don't mind telling you (something). I want you to know something. □ Tom: You have a beautiful garden. Mary: Thank you. But I don't mind telling you, it's an awful lot of work. □ I don't mind telling you, I was as pleased as Punch when my daughter won the race.

I don't rightly know. Rur. I do not know. □ Tom: When will Joe be getting back? Charlie: I don't rightly know. □ Jane: What's the difference between a first cousin and a first cousin once removed? Mary: I don't rightly know.

(I) don't think so. Go to I guess not.

I don't understand (it). and I can't understand (it).

I am confused and bewildered (by what has happened). □ Bill: Everyone is leaving the party. Mary: I don't understand. It's still so early. □ Bob: The very idea, Sue and Tom doing something like that! Alice: It's very strange. I can't understand it.

I don't want to alarm you, but and I don't want to upset you, but an expression used to introduce bad or shocking news or gossip. □ Bill: I don't want to alarm you, but I see someone prowling around your car. Mary: Oh, goodness! I'll call the police! □ Bob: I don't want to upset you, but I have some bad news. Tom: Let me have it.

I don't want to sound like a busybody, but Fig. an expression used to introduce an opinion or suggestion. □ Bob: I don't want to sound like a busybody, but didn't you intend to have your house painted? Bill: Well, I guess I did. □ Bob: I don't want to sound like a busybody, but some of your neighbors wonder if you could stop parking your car on your lawn. Sally: I'll thank you to mind your own business!

I don't want to upset you, but Go to I don't want to alarm you, but.

I don't want to wear out my welcome. Fig. a phrase said by a guest who doesn't want to be a burden to the host or hostess or to visit too often. □ Mary: Good night, Tom. You must come back again soon. Tom: Thank you. I'd love to. I don't want to wear out my welcome, though. □ Bob: We had a fine time. Glad you could come to our little gathering. Hope you can come again next week. Fred: I don't want to wear out my welcome, but I'd like to come again. Bob: Good. See you next week. Bye. Fred: Bye.

I don't wonder. Go to I'm not surprised.

I doubt it. I do not think so. □ Tom: Think it will rain today? Sue: I doubt it. □ Sally: Think you'll go to New York? Mary: I doubt it.

I doubt that. I do not believe that something is so. □ Bob: I'll be there exactly on time. Sue: I doubt that. □ John: Fred says he can't come to work because he's sick. Jane: I doubt that.

I expect Go to I guess.

I expect not. Go to I guess not.

I expect (so). Go to I guess (so).

I felt like a penny waiting for change. Rur. I felt worthless or helpless. □ When I lost the race, I felt like a penny waiting for change. □ My best girl went off with someone else. I felt like a penny waiting for change.

I guess and I expect; I suppose; I suspect 1. a phrase that introduces a supposition. (Frequently, in speech, suppose is reduced to 'spose, and expect and suspect are reduced to 'spect. The apostrophe is not always shown.) □ Bob: I guess it's going to rain. Bill: Oh, I don't know. Maybe so, maybe not. □ Alice: I expect you'll be wanting to leave pretty soon. John: Why? It's early yet. 2. a vague way of answering 'yes'. □ John: You want some more coffee? Jane: I 'spose. □ Alice: Ready to go? John: I spect.

I guess not. and (I) don't think so.; I expect not.; I suppose not.; I suspect not.; I think not. a vague statement of negation. (More polite or gentle than simply saying no. Frequently, in speech, suppose is reduced to 'spose, and expect and suspect are reduced to 'spect. The apostrophe is not always shown.) □ Bill: It's almost too late to go to the movie. Shall we try anyway? Mary: I guess not. □ Tom: Will it rain? Mary: I 'spect not.

I guess (so). and I believe so.; I expect (so).; I suppose (so).; I suspect (so).; I think so. a vague expression of assent. (Frequently, in speech, suppose is reduced to 'spose, and expect and suspect are reduced to 'spect. The apostrophe is not always shown.) □ Tom: Will it rain today? Bob: I suppose so. □ Sue: Happy? Bill: I 'spect. Sue: You don't sound happy. Bill: I guess not.

(I) had a good time. Go to (I) had a nice time.

I had a lovely time. and We had a lovely time. a polite expression of thanks to the host or hostess. □ Fred: Good-bye. I had a lovely time. Bill: Nice to have you. Do come again. □ Jane: We had a lovely time. Mary: Thank you and thanks for coming.

(I) had a nice time. and (I) had a good time. the standard good-bye and thank you said to a host or hostess by a departing guest. □ John: Thank you. I had a nice time. Sally: Don't stay away so long next time. Bye. □ Mary: Had a nice time. Bye. Got to run. Sue: Bye. Drive safely.

(I) hate to eat and run. Cliché an apology made by someone who must leave a social event soon after eating. □ Bill: Well, I hate to eat and run, but it's getting late. Sue: Oh, you don't have to leave, do you? Bill: I think I really must. □ Mary: Oh, my goodness! I hate to eat and run, but I have to catch an early plane tomorrow. Bob: Do you have to go? Mary: Afraid so.

[I have] See also the entries beginning with I've.

(I have) no problem with that. That is okay with me. (See also No problem.) □ Bob: Is it okay if I sign us up to play mixed doubles? Sally: I have no problem with that. □ Bill: It looks as though we will have to come back later. They're not open yet. Is that all right? Jane: No problem with that. When do they open?

(I have) nothing to complain about. Go to (I) can't complain.

(I) have to be moving along. and (I) have to move along. It is time for me to leave. □ Bill: Bye, now. Have to be moving along. Sally: See you later. □ Rachel: I have to be moving along. See you later. Andrew: Bye, now. □ Sally: It's late. I have to move along. Mary: If you must. Good-bye. See you tomorrow.

(I) have to go now. an expression announcing the need to leave. □ Fred: Bye, have to go now. Mary: See you later. Take it easy. □ Sue: Would you help me with this box? John: Sorry. I have to go now.

(I) have to move along. Go to (I) have to be moving along.

(I) have to push off. Go to (I) have to shove off.

(I) have to run along. an expression announcing the need to leave. □ Jane: It's late. I have to run along. Tom:

(I) have to shove off.

Okay, Jane. Bye. Take care. □ John: Leaving so soon? Sally: Yes, I have to run along.

(I) have to shove off. and (I've) got to be shoving off.; (I've) got to shove off.; (I) have to push off.; (It's) time to shove off. a phrase announcing one's need to depart. □ John: Look at the time! I have to shove off! Jane: Bye, John. □ Jane: Time to shove off. I have to feed the cats. John: Bye, Jane. □ Fred: I have to push off. Bye. Jane: See you around. Bye.

I have to wash a few things out¹. 1. Lit. I have to wash things by hand, such as socks and underwear. □ I have to wash a few things out before I go to bed. □ She has to wash out a few things. 2. Fig. I have to do something (that keeps me from spending time with you). □ Jane: Time to shove off. I have to wash a few things out. John: Bye, Jane. □ Bill: I have to wash out a few things. Bob: Why don't you use a machine? Bill: Oh, I'll see you later.

(I) haven't got all day. Fig. Please hurry.; I'm in a hurry. □ Rachel: Make it snappy! I haven't got all day. Alice: Just take it easy. There's no rush. □ Henry: I haven't got all day. When are you going to finish with my car? Bob: As soon as I can.

(I) haven't seen you in a long time. Fig. an expression of greeting, often said as part of a series. □ Mary: Hi, Fred! Haven't seen you in a long time. Fred: Yeah. Long time no see. □ Tom: Well, John. Is that you? I haven't seen you in a long time. John: Good to see you, Tom!

(I) haven't seen you in a month of Sundays. Rur. I haven't seen you in a long time. □ Tom: Hi, Bill. Haven't seen you in a month of Sundays! Bill: Hi, Tom. Long time no see. □ Bob: Well, Fred! Come right in! Haven't seen you in a month of Sundays! Fred: Good to see you, Uncle Bob.

I hear what you're saying. and I hear you. 1. I know exactly what you mean! □ John: The prices in this place are a bit steep. Jane: Man, I hear you! □ Bill: I think it's about time for the whole management team to resign! Andrew: I hear what you're saying. 2. an expression indicating that the speaker has been heard, but implying that there is no agreement. □ Tom: Time has come to do something about that ailing dog of yours. Mary: I hear what you're saying. □ Jane: It would be a good idea to have the house painted. John: I hear what you're saying.

I hear you. Go to previous.

I hope all goes well. I hope there is success. □ Good luck on your operation tomorrow. I hope all goes well.

(I) hope not. a phrase expressing the desire and wish that something is not so. □ John: It looks like it's going to rain. Jane: Hope not. □ John: The Wilsons said they might come over this evening. Jane: I hope not. I've got things to do.

(I) hope so. a phrase expressing the desire and wish that something is so. □ Bill: Is this the right house? Bob: Hope so. □ John: Will you be coming to dinner Friday? Sue: Yes, I hope so.

(I) hope to see you again (sometime). an expression said when taking leave of a person one has just met. □ Bill: Nice to meet you, Tom. Tom: Bye, Bill. Nice to meet you. Hope to see you again sometime. □ Bill: Good talking to you. See you around. Bob: Yes, I hope to see you again. Goodbye.

I just have this feeling. I have a premonition about this; I have a feeling about this. □ I really don't know that something is wrong. I just have this feeling. □ I just have this feeling that she is not telling us the truth.

(I) just want(ed) to mention something. Go to next.

(I) just want(ed) to say something. and (I) just want(ed) to mention something.; (I) just want(ed) to tell you something. a sentence opener that eases into a statement or question. (Can be followed by words like say, ask, tell you, be, and come.) □ Rachel: I just wanted to say that we all loved your letter. Thank you so much. Andrew: Thanks. Glad you liked it. □ Rachel: I just wanted to tell you how sorry I am about your sister. Alice: Thanks. I appreciate it. □ Andrew: Just wanted to come by for a minute and say hello. Tom: Well, hello. Glad you dropped by.

I kid you not. Inf. I am not kidding you.; I am not trying to fool you. □ Bill: Whose car is this? Sally: It's mine. It really is. I kid you not. □ "I kid you not," said Tom, glowing. "I outran the whole lot of them."

I know (just) what you mean. I know exactly what you are talking about, and I feel the same way about it. □ John: These final exams are just terrible. Bob: I know just what you mean. John: Why do we have to go through this? □ Mary: What a pain! I hate annual inventories. John: I know what you mean. It's really boring.

(I) love it! Inf. It is just wonderful. □ Mary: What do you think of this car? Bill: Love it! It's really cool! □ Bob: What a joke, Tom! Jane: Yes, love it! Tom: Gee, thanks.

I must be off. an expression announcing the speaker's intention of leaving. □ Bill: It's late. I must be off. Bob: Me, too. I'm out of here. □ Sue: I must be off. John: The game's not over yet. Sue: I've seen enough.

I must say good night. an expression announcing the speaker's intention of leaving for the night. □ Jane: It's late. I must say good night. Bob: Can I see you again? Jane: Call me. Good night, Bob. Bob: Good night, Jane. □ Sue: I must say good night. Mary: Good night, then. See you tomorrow.

I need it yesterday. Inf. an answer to the question "When do you need this?" (Indicates that the need is urgent.) □ Bob: When do you need that urgent survey? Bill: I need it yesterday. □ Mary: Where's the Wilson contract? Sue: Do you need it now? Mary: I need it yesterday! Where is it?

(I) never heard of such a thing! an expression of amazement and disbelief. (Compare this with Well, I never!) □ Bill: The company sent out a representative the same day I called to examine the new sofa and see what the problem was with the wobbly leg. Jane: I've never heard of such a thing! That's very unusual. □ Bill: The tax office is now open on Sunday! Sue: Never heard of such a thing!

(I) never thought I'd see you here! I am surprised to see you here. □ Tom: Hi, Sue! I never thought I'd see you here! Sue: Hi, Tom. I was thinking the same thing about you. □ Bill: Well, Tom Thomas. I never thought I'd see you here! Tom: Likewise. I didn't know you liked opera.

I owe you one. Inf. Thank you, now I owe you a favor.; I owe you something similar in return. □ Bob: I put the extra copy of the book on your desk. Sue: Thanks, I owe you one. □ Bill: Let me pay for your drink. Bob: Thanks a lot, I owe you one.

I promise you! Inf. I am telling you the truth! (Compare this with Trust me!) □ John: Things will work out, I promise you! Jane: Okay, but when? □ Sue: I'll be there exactly when I said. Bob: Are you sure? Sue: I promise you, I'm telling the truth!

(I) read you loud and clear. 1. Lit. a response used by someone communicating by radio stating that the hearer understands the transmission clearly. (See also Do you read me?) □ Controller: This is Aurora Center, do you read me? Pilot: Yes, I read you loud and clear. □ Controller: Left two degrees. Do you read me? Pilot: Roger. Read you loud and clear. 2. Fig. I understand what you are telling me. (Used in general conversation, not in radio communication.) □ Bob: Okay. Now, do you understand exactly what I said? Mary: I read you loud and clear. □ Mother: I don't want to have to tell you again. Do you understand? Bill: I read you loud and clear.

(I) really must go. an expression announcing or repeating one's intention to depart. □ Bob: It's getting late. I really must go. Jane: Good night, then. See you tomorrow. □ Sally: I really must go. John: Do you really have to? It's early yet.

I rest my case. 1. Lit. I have completed the presentation of my argument. (Said by a lawyer.) □ Clearly the defendant is guilty. I rest my case. 2. Fig. What you just heard sums up my point of view. □ Your remark just supported my position! I rest my case.

I spoke out of turn. Fig. I said the wrong thing.; I should not have said what I did. (An apology.) □ Bill: You said I was the one who did it. Mary: I'm sorry. I spoke out of turn. I was mistaken. □ Bill: I seem to have said the wrong thing. Bob: You certainly did. Bill: I spoke out of turn, and I'm sorry.

I spoke too soon. 1. Fig. I am wrong.; I spoke before I knew the facts. □ Bill: I know I said I would, but I spoke too soon. Sue: I thought so. □ John: You said that everything would be all right. Jane: I spoke too soon. That was before I learned that you had been arrested. 2. Fig. What I had said was just now contradicted. □ Bob: It's beginning to brighten up. I guess it won't rain after all. John: I'm glad to hear that. Bob: Whoops! I spoke too soon. I just felt a rain-drop on my cheek. □ Bill: Thank heavens! Here's John now. Bob: No, that's Fred. Bill: I spoke too soon. He sure looked like John.

